Subdivision 11.—That plaintiff was in possession of the account books and would not permit defendant, his former partner, to inspect them was a sufficient excuse for not particularly itemizing the amount alleged by counterclaim to be due to defendant. Reeves v. White (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 42.

Where plaintiff sued on a verified open account in compliance with art. 3712, defendant, not denying any items under oath, as required by this article, could not object to the items. Green v. Hoppe (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 1117.

Art. 1907. [1266] [1266] Plea of payment, counterclaim, etc.

Payment.—Where defendants failed to plead payment of water rent sued for, or to request a jury, failure to do so was not sufficient to authorize the court to grant a motion for reversal, in view of art. 1995. Bennett v. Rio Grande Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 713.

Under arts. 1232, 1236, and 1907, a plea of payment to an undisclosed agent does not

Evidence of set-off admitted without objection under a plea of payment to an undisclosed agent held in effect to show payment. Id.

Where defendant, in an action on a verified account, admitted its correctness and did not allege any payment thereof, plaintiff was entitled to recover. Eay Lumber Co. v. Artman & Buettmer (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 279.

In a suit to foreclose a vendor's lien note, where plaintiff's own testimony was not conclusive that the notes were not paid, defendant was entitled, without having pleaded payment, to show that he had fully paid note. Key v. Jones (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 228.

Set-off or counterclaim.—In an action upon a check by the assignee thereof, an answer held to set up a partial payment and not a set-off. Rahn v. Yett (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 30.

That the set-off and counterclaim pleaded by defendant did not distinctly state the nature of the counterclaim and the several items thereof as required by arts. 1326 and 1907 cannot be reached by general demurrer, but must be reached by special exception. Aja v. Hudnall & Co. v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 568.

In an action for possession of cotton seed in which writ of sequestration was levied, where a defendant bank alleged indebtedness against plaintiff for money advanced and used for his benefit, mere fact that dishonored draft made by principal defendant upon plaintiff was also set up did not present variance. Guitar v. First State Bank of Hermleigh (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 506.

In action on note.—In an action on notes, defendants' answer held properly stricken, not setting forth any legal counterclaim. Rushing v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Plainview (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 466.

In a suit on a note an answer which failed in its object of setting up a counterclaim could not be held good as stating an equitable remedy independent of the statute allowing set-off where it failed to aver insolvency of the plaintiff. Ray v. Cartwright (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 527.

Pleading damages.—In an action begun by attachment, where defendant's plea in reconvention did not in terms allege that the attachment was sued out without probable cause but alleged facts showing that it was, such plea was sufficient to support a recovery of replevin damages. Miss. v. Tindall (Civ. App.) Johnson v. Wolf (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 650.

In counterclaim for wrongful issuance of writ of sequestration, allegations that writ issued because the party who sued it out desired to prevent sale by defendant and secure profit for himself are not bad as seeking remote damages. Garlington v. Cotten (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 294.

Art. 1908. [1267] [1267] General denial need not be repeated.

Admission of facts not denied.—Under this article a defendant who had pleaded a general denial does not, where plaintiff filed an amended petition, admit all facts not specially denied upon filing special denials. Hines v. Meadow (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1111.

Art. 1909. [1268] [1268] Pleas to be filed in due order, etc.

In general.—As parties cannot, by consent, confer jurisdiction a plea in abatement that plaintiff in his amended petition that plaintiff fraudulently stated the amount of the damage as such an amount as would give the court jurisdiction will be sustained, even though it was not presented seasonably after the filing of the amended petition. L. Grief & Bro. v. Texas Cent. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 345.

Where a plea of privilege is filed in due order of pleading, the subsequent filing of a plea over against plaintiff did not effect a waiver of the plea of privilege. Hickman v. Swain, 190 S. W. 209, 106 Tex. 421.

Notwithstanding this article, the court may hear exceptions before trying a plea in abatement, and a party who under such circumstances submits exceptions before submitting a plea in abatement does not waive his plea. J. D. Fields & Co. v. Allison (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 274.

A motion to vacate a default judgment, which alleged a meritorious defense, is not a waiver of defendant's right thereafter to plead his personal privilege to be sued in the county in which it was rendered. Kohler v. Chicago Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 191 S. B. W. 650.

In view of U. S. Comp. St., Anno. 1916, § 1011, held, that the filing of a petition for removal and procurement of action thereon, before the filing of a plea of privilege, did not constitute a waiver of defendant's privilege to have the cause transferred to another county. Weller v. Guajardo (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 675.

In garnishments, where supplement, so called, and other portion of traverse were attached, and made part of each other by allegation, in absence of special exception as to order of pleading, or that they were attached, entire answer should be looked to by trial court. Gerlach Mercantile Co. v. Hughes-Bozarth-Anderson Co. (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 784.

Answer to merits as waiver of matter in abatement.—Pleas of misjoinder, in abatement, set up first in amended answer filed by defendants after answering to merits, came too late. Mayor v. Galbraith (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 249.

Where, after defendant had answered on the merits, it asked leave to file a plea in abatement, but failed to ask leave to withdraw its pleadings, the plea in abatement must be overruled. City of San Antonio v. Reed (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 549. See, also, notes under Arts. 1809, 1947.

Art. 1910. [1269] [1269] Certain pleas to be determined during the term at which filed.

Construction and application.—Under County and District Court Rule 24 (142 S. W. xix), providing that all dilatory pleas shall be tried at the first term at which the attention on the court shall be called thereto, a plea of privilege filed in justice's court, not brought to the attention of the court at the trial de novo on appeal to the county court was waived. Edwards v. Youngblood ( Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 1184.
Where defendant files his plea for removal of the cause to another court, but fails to call it up for hearing at the term at which it is filed, he waives his plea, so that refusal to cook to court cannot thereafter be alleged as error. Parrott v. Peacock Military College
(Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 132.
Where defendant, through no fault of the clerk or plaintiff or his attorneys, fails to call the court's attention to a plea of privilege at the time it was filed, and there was no time for the court to have passed on it, and the cause is not continued without prejudice to such plea, he waives his right to have the plea passed on at a subsequent term, under this article and district and county court rule 24 (142 S. W. xix). Smith v. First Nat.
In such case defendant cannot file an amended plea of privilege after the case has been continued for that term. 1d.
Where a verdict found defendant's residence in accordance with plaintiff's contention, and judgment was entered for plaintiff without mentioning the plea of privilege, defendant waived the plea by not invoking the court's action upon it at the first term of court.

Decisions Relating to Subject in General

1. Necessity of pleading in defense in general.—It is only where a defendant seeks affirmative relief upon the issues he desires adjudicated that he is required to specially

2. When an answer waives a demurrer to a special plea of privilege. —As against general defense a matter—Answer pleading alteration of note held good, though not alleging that alteration was without defendant's consent and by a party to the note. Bolt v. State Savings Bank of Manchester
(Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1119.

7. Joint or separate pleas or answers of codefendants. —Where the amount in controversy is below jurisdiction of the county court, the action will be dismissed upon the plea in abatement of only one of the defendants that plaintiff fraudulently misstated the amount so as to give the court jurisdiction. L. Grief & Bro. v. Texas Cent. R. Co. ( Civ.
App.) 182 S. W. 345.

10. Plea to the jurisdiction. —Where, as presented, the same facts which would sus-tain a plea to the jurisdiction would defeat the whole cause of action, the case should be submitted to the merits and the plea in abatement disregarded. Johnson v. Miller
(Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 992.

12. Plea in abatement. —The fact that plaintiff corporation had not paid its franchise tax, so that it was not entitled to maintain an action under art. 7339, could only be A plea of pending action between the same parties, involving the same cause of action, is available only as in abatement. Blassingame v. Cattlemen's Trust Co. ( Civ.
App.) 174 S. W. 990.

In habeas corpus for the custody of a child, held, that a plea setting up want of jurisdiction because of pending divorce suit was no plea in abatement, and the only question was whether the court had jurisdiction over the subject-matter, and the pendence of other suit involving the same question could not be considered. Ex parte Garcia ( Civ.
App.) 187 S. W. 410.

A petition which states two separate causes of action which were misjoined may be corrected by plea in abatement, subject to the discretion of the court. International &

16. Cross-complaint against plaintiff. — The transferee of secured lien notes could in trespass to try title against himself and his transferee, who had conveyed to plaintiff's grantor, have in a cross-action the lien enforced for the attorney's fees stipulated for in Exceptions to allegations in cross-complaint seeking rescission of a contract of purchase, which exceptions were based on the ground that the allegations did not constitute a defense, were set up as to where the allegations were set up as a basis for the relief sought by the defendants. Hurst v. Knight ( Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1072.

Where the answer specially pleads lien on stock as defense to action for damages for refusal to transfer it on the corporation books, no affirmative relief foreclosing the lien can be awarded. Milner v. Brewer-Monaghan Mercantile Co. ( Civ. App.) 188 S.
W. 49.

17. Cross-complaint against codefendant. — Where a contractor gave a bond to a school district conditioned to complete the building free from mechanics' liens, and a materialman sued the contractor, his surety, and the school district, the school district can maintain no cross-complaint on the bond, for the materialman could not acquire a lien

Matters alleged in a cross-complaint filed in an action on a note and to foreclose a chattel mortgage held extraneous to the issues made by the petition and answer, so that an extension to the cross-bill should have been sustained. Carla Land & Irrigation Co. v.
Dimmit County State Bank ( Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 897.

A cross-action must contain allegations which, given every reasonable interpretation, would justify facts essential to be shown to obtain a judgment. Reserve

Chap. 8) COURTS—DISTRICT AND COUNTY—PRACTICE IN Art. 1910
In an action by plaintiff against two defendants, with one of whom he had been associated in the commission of the stock, each defendant's cross-petition against his codefendant held not to cause a misjoinder of causes of action. Harless v. Halle (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1026.

In action on a note, allegations of defendant in cross-petition held to state a cause of action against the cross-defendants for breach of the guarantee or surety contract. Adams v. First Nat. Bank of Waco (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 993.

In an action on a note wherein defendant made his alleged sureties cross-defendants, he need not allege that the suretyship agreement was in writing, as, if required to be in writing, written evidence would be admissible to prove the alleged agreement. Id.

In action on a note, an answer held to support a judgment for defendants against codefendants. Cleverger v. Commercial Guaranty State Bank (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 65.

26. Variance between pleading and proof.—Where the contract with the initial carrier provided for notice of claim within 91 days, and it was not alleged that two of the carriers did not notify the claimant within 91 days, the service was provided by Rev. St. 1911, arts. 731, 732; and hence an allegation that their contracts provided for notice within 120 days, followed by introduction of the 91-day contract, constituted a variance. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bojer (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 1093.

In an action on a note defendant's answer did not deny ownership, but the court improperly allowed it to introduce evidence in denial, it could not complain of disregard of such evidence by the jury. Ward Cattle & Pasture Co. v. Ford (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 784.

30. Form and sufficiency of allegations—Conclusions.—An answer held not bad on general demurrer as stating only the pleader's conclusions. James McCord Co. v. Res (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 649.

Answer to suit on note that defendants were accommodation makers signing for sole accommodation of payee held bad as pleading conclusion. Magill v. McCamley (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 22.

33. —Irrelevancy and surplusage.—In an action to recover the balance of the purchase price of a business, an answer held irrelevant. McLane v. Haydon (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1146.

42%/2 —Bona fide purchase.—A chattel mortgagee entitled to foreclosure as against purchasers not pleading defense of innocent purchasers. Murray Co. v. Randolph (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 825.

46. —Damages and mitigation thereof.—An allegation that a claim was fraudulently assigned to give jurisdiction over the action, in a county where the defendant did not reside, is not sufficient to authorize an allowance to the defendant of attorney's fees, or expenses in attending the trial. Leventhal v. Hollammon (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 6.

Right of broker to have damages diminished by unpaid premiums held defense material which should have been pleaded. Diamond v. Duncan (Sup.) 177 S. W. 965, denying rehearing 172 S. W. 1100.

47. —Discharge of surety.—In action on a surety's note, answer alleging that the defendant was a broker and the note was issued in contemplation of the collateral sale of the cotton to him, held insufficient to discharge the surety. In re First State Bank of Amarillo v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 295.

Where defendant alleged his signature was secured as surety on certain notes by fraud, it being represented to him that certain others would sign as sureties with him, and they did not so sign, that was no defense to an action on the notes in the absence of a further allegation that plaintiff had notice of the fraud. Gulf Live Stock Ins. Co. v. Love (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 766.

The maker of a vendor's lien note, if he can avail of an extension thereon to his grantor of the land as a release of him, must plead and prove it was without his consent or notice to him. Newly v. Harbison (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 642.

In an action by owner of bills of lading for cotton against one to whom a third person, having obtained the bills of lading by fraud, transferred the cotton, plea that defendant was an innocent purchaser held insufficient to raise the issue of estoppel. B. W. McMahan & Co. v. State Nat. Bank of Shawnee (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 403.

A pleading that defendant acquired a way by parol agreement upon the conveyance to plaintiff of the land over which he asserted it is not good as a plea of an easement by estoppel, because alleging no fact showing the injustice of a revocation of the way. Bowington v. Williams (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 719.

In action for breach of contract, estoppel of plaintiff, to be available as defense, must be pleaded. Crews v. Gulf Grocery Co. (Sup.) 183 S. W. 1096.

The principal, seeking to defeat the broker's claim for a commission, cannot rely upon allegations of his agent to her that the broker's commission, where she failed to plead such representations as against the broker. Goodwin v. Gun- ter (Sup.) 185 S. W. 295.

Buyer of engine seeking to cancel purchase-money notes, relying upon written warranty of engine's power, must have complied with warranty's terms relative to notice of 448

In action on note for price of stallion, in absence of pleading to support defense of waiver of requirement of guaranty limiting defendants' remedy to return of horse by fixed date, testimony of defendant that sellers' agent promised that defendants would receive another horse when shipment was received in Texas held inadmissible. Adams v. Crittenden (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 833.

51. Fraud and mistake.—In a suit against the makers and indorsers of notes given for the price of certain school land, the makers having pleaded an unpaid claim of the state as an incumbrance, an answer by the indorser that the makers assumed and agreed to pay such claim, but that the covenant was omitted from the deed by mistake, was sufficient. Alton v. Pierson (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1165.

Where defendant filed only a plea of privilege which did not allege fraud, accident, or mistake, fraud in the preparation of the note could not be proved. Newman v. Burjo, Plitt Co. (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 657.

Under allegations of fraud or mutual mistake in the execution of a contract, evidence would be admissible to show that it did not express the real agreement of the parties and to show what the agreement in fact was. Conn v. Rosamond (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 73.

In an action for the breach of a contract, defendant's allegation that he intended that a deposit should be the extent of his liability, and that if the contract did not show that it was a mistake of the parties, held not sufficient as an allegation of mutual mistake.

ID. Answer, in action for deficiency after foreclosure, alleging collusion between defendant primarily liable on the notes and plaintiff, held subject to some of the special exceptions which were sustained. Poppy v. Sewall (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 795.

An answer in an action by a vendor for the purchaser's deposit, alleging failure to furnish a good title and false representations as to character of the land is good. Cline v. Booty (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 1087.

In an action on a note given for the purchase price of mules, held to allege fraud by the seller in making the sale, so as to authorize an instruction on that issue. Latham Co. v. Snell (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 917.

In an action on a note, an answer averring misrepresentations held to present a good defense. Brown v. Davis (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 843.

Where, in action against county, defendant pleaded minutes of commissioners' court showing written contract in supplemental petition to which no plea of fraud or mistake was filed, parol evidence that there was no contract held inadmissible. Mosler Safe Co. v. Atascosa County (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 254.

In an action for the price of machinery, answer held to apprise plaintiff of defense of fraudulent representations, warranting admission of parol evidence thereof, though the contract was written. Willett v. Browning Engineering Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 252.

In suit on note, parol evidence supporting allegations of answer, in addition to plea of non est factum, that defendants had been defrauded into signing a note for more than that which should have been drawn, held properly admitted. Farmers' & Citizens Sav. Bank v. Smith (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1026.

In an action for price of silo, allegations of answer held sufficient to charge fraud in obtaining defendant's signature to contract of purchase. Ames Portable Silo & Lumber Co. v. Gill (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1120.

52. Homestead.—Where a plea to set aside a homestead out of a larger tract did not designate the particular portion selected, but merely asked that his right be protected, and the plaintiff creditors did not except to the plea, the debtor is entitled to have his homestead set off. Coben v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 267.

In an action in replevin of personal property, to prevent the sale under judgment, and to restrain foreclosure deed of trust and vendor's liens, held insufficient, as against a general demurrer, to set up acquittal of homestead in 209 acres of part remaining after sale of 199 acres from 413-acre tract. Crawford v. Spruill (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 361.

53. Illegality of contract.—The trial court will not enforce an illegal contract where the illegality appears in the proof, though not pleaded. Bishop v. Japhet (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 499.

57. Laches.—In suit to rescind exchange of property for false representations, in the absence of any issue of laches or limitation, evidence as to time when plaintiff discovered their falsity held incompetent. Kirkland v. Rutherford (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1081.

58. Limitation of liability of carrier.—Where plaintiff's cattle were injured as the result of a failure to properly bed the cars, and the carrier pleaded that the shipping contract required the shipper to bed the cars, the answer was defective for failure to further allege that the shipper was given an opportunity to do so, and that, if the cars were not properly bedded, it was through his default. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Rager (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1093.

In an action for injury to shipment of live stock, a contract of shipment, part of the stipulations of which were void, and the other portion of which were not properly pleaded, was properly rejected. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 361.

60. Marshaling securities.—Crop mortgagee cannot, as against a landlord's lien, first raise on appeal the question of marshaling. Frith v. Wright (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 483.

61. Negligence and contributory negligence.—Untraversed allegations in the answer, that deceased, run down at a crossing, did not stop, look, and listen, though warned by reflections from the headlight of the approaching train, held not to show him to have been guilty of contributory negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pennington (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 464.

SUEP.VERN.S.CIV.ST.TEX.—29 449
Burden is on railroad company to plead and establish by evidence its defense that it was due to negligence in which it maintains its tracks, or that the open condition of the gate was due to some other agency. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Scheer (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1059.

The contributory negligence of a shipper of live stock must be pleaded to be rebutted by the purchaser. R. & O. Ry. Co. v. Storey (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 158.

Plaintiff's contributory negligence in failing to call in a consulting physician must be pleaded to entitle defendant to have an instruction submitting the question. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Whitsett (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 406.

Plaintiff's contributory negligence in failing to call in a consulting physician must be pleaded to entitle defendant to have an instruction submitting the question. Id.

In action against a street railway company, an answer alleging that plaintiff was in plain view and that he did not make any effort to avoid collision, was a good plea of contributory negligence continued after discovered peril by plaintiff, at least where no exception was taken. Southern Traction Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 536.

In suits for shipment of live stock under contract requiring shipper to feed and care for them and hold the carrier harmless for damages, except from its negligence, allegations held to sufficiently set up shipper's contributory negligence. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 765.

Although the evidence tended to show contributory negligence of plaintiff in failing to properly care for his injury, which aggravated it, the defendant could not invoke this as a defense, where contributory negligence was not pleaded. Roscoe, S. & P. Ry. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 1175.

In absence of special exception, defendant, in action for injuries in a crossing accident, held not required to specify particulars of plaintiff's contributory negligence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Harrell (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 971.

62. Non est factum.—See notes under art. 5710.

63. Notice or knowledge of facts.—An answer alleged sufficient to charge that the holder of a note was a bona fide purchaser without notice and in view of district and county court rule 17, to sufficiently charge that the holder of the note had knowledge of its infirmities before he acquired it. Brown v. Davis (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 842.

Where a bill to set aside a sale of infants' property did not show that the infants were stopped by a judgment in a prior suit prosecuted by their guardian, defendants must plead and prove such adjudication if they rely thereon. Mullinax v. Barrett (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1181.

If there are exceptions taking case of prescriptive easement of way out of statute, they must be pleaded. Callan v. Walters (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 829.

68. Tender and offer of equity.—Though an insurer which proves the amount of its liability to be less than the face of the policy and tenders such amount to the plaintiff is entitled to a judgment limited to the amount of the tender, such rule is not applicable where the amount was not tendered to the court, and the insurer pleaded nullity of the contract, although there had been a tender to plaintiff's attorney. Floyd v. Illinois Bankers' Life Ass'n of Monmouth, Ill. (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 607.

70. Defense or relief in particular actions.—An owner of chattels in possession of another is entitled to recover the same, unless the latter shows his right to possession on an unbroken chain of possession (Kilman v. Young, 171 S. W. 955).

72. Against railroad companies.—The defense that defendant had made an honest effort to light it, but trespassers had destroyed the lights, should have been pleaded; that being matter in avoidance. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. State (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 338.

73. Against surety.—In suit to enforce claim for material against a railroad company, answer held not to raise issue of suretyship between the lessee, who had contracted for the material, and the company. Cleburne St. Ry. Co. v. Barber (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1176.

76. By foreign corporation.—Where the petition in action by a foreign corporation fails to disclose the character of the transaction sued on, and does not allege that it has a permit to transact business in the state, the issue of its right to do business in the state may be raised by appropriate pleading and proof. First State Bank of Cleburne v. Hidden (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1165.

77 1/2. By or against receivers.—In absence of special plea denying defendants' capacity as receivers, proof to sustain such allegations was not required. Schaff v. Nash (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 496.

78 1/2. For divorce.—In wife's divorce suit for cruel treatment, husband's answer alleging facts as to wife's cruelty toward him as justification of his having her tried on charge of insanity held to plead such cruel acts of wife sufficiently to admit evidence of them. Hartman v. Hartman (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 846.

79. For injuries to servant.—Although interstate shipment was not alleged by either party, defendant railroad may avail itself of the federal Employers' Liability Act, where evidence requires finding that employé was engaged in interstate commerce at time of injury. Geer v. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 194 S. W. 939.

80. For libel or slander.—In an action for slander, justification must be specially pleaded with such particularity as to notify the plaintiff as to what charge he will be compelled to meet. Burkholder v. Lyons (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 244.

84. Mandamus.—Whether mandamus should issue to compel an officer to perform an official duty must depend on a proper showing of an affirmative right to the relief sought, and not on the officer's failure to set up a valid defense. Johnson v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 968.

85. On bonds and notes.—Allegations of the answer in an action against two defendants on a note given for stock held to sufficiently allege, in the absence of a special exception, that the stock was purchased by only one of defendants, J. O. G., alone. Cowboy State Bank & Trust Co. v. Guinn (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1103.

In an action against maker of note, held that he was bound to plead and prove a collateral agreement, thereon that it was secured by a deed of trust, and that a third person had assumed payment if this would constitute a defense. Grisham v. Connell Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1197.

An allegation of the defendant's answer that he did not owe the amount of the note, and that he had signed notes thinking that a further accounting would be made, held not to set up a collateral agreement, whereby the notes were delivered in part performance of an agreement for credits on the notes. Baldwin v. W. H. Coyle & Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 126.

86. On contracts in general.—In an action for extracting turpentine on lands on which defendants were not entitled to enter by their lease, the answer, alleging that the land leased contained less acreage than was represented, held to state a good defense. Conn v. Rosamond (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 75.

Where purchasers of motor truck contended that it was secondhand and wholly unfit for use, they may plead and prove amounts expended in attempting to operate the motor as a circumstance establishing that it was defective; no recovery for such amounts being sought. Avery Co. of Texas v. Staples Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 49.

In an action for the price of machinery, defendants' answer held sufficient to authorize proof of breach of warranty. Willett v. Browning Engineering Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 352.

87. On insurance contracts.—Where defendant insurer admitted liability, paying the amount of the certificate into court, it could not on appeal assert that the beneficiary was not entitled to the full amount so paid. Wright v. Grand Lodge K. P., Colored (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 270.

Where the life insurance policy introduced by plaintiff was the one sued on, and defendant did not plead the issuance of another policy, there was no error in excluding evidence offered by defendant to show that there were two policies issued. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Bird (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 939.

In an action on life insurance policy, defense that insured was not in sound health when policy issued held not sufficiently pleaded to justify admission of evidence to establish it. American Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Rowell (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 170.

The insurer, who did not set up in the trial court a provision of the policy that assumed no obligation unless insured was in good health, could not urge the defense on appeal. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 66.

Allegation of the answer, in an action on a life policy, that the coroner found that insured committed suicide, presents no defense, his finding not being proof or evidence of suicide. De Garcia v. Cherokee Life Ins. Co. of Rome, Ga. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 123.

CHAPTER NINE

CHANGE OF VENUE

Art. 1911. By consent of parties.

In view of this article, provision in a power of attorney and agreement for formation of a reciprocal fire insurance association that all suits on policies shall be brought in county where association is located is reasonable, and while fact that a suit is instituted in another county will not defeat policy or be a defense, upon a plea of privilege agreement, will be enforced by changing venue. Merchants' Reciprocal Underwriters of Dallas v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1098.

In action on a fire policy, where defendant reciprocal insurance association established its domicile and an agreement that actions against it on policies should be brought only in said county show that defendant was not such an organization as could then do business at that place or any other under the laws of the state. Id.

Art. 1912. Granted on application, when.

Application and determination.—Under arts. 1912 and 1913, held that, on the statutory showing, change of venue was mandatory. Crawford v. Wellington Railroad Committee (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1004.

Art. 1913. Shall be granted, unless, etc.

Issue and determination.—Under arts. 1912 and 1913, held that, on the statutory showing, change of venue was mandatory. Crawford v. Wellington Railroad Committee (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1004.
Burden of proof.—Under this article, where motion for change of venue was opposed, moving party held to have burden of proving the facts upon which it was based. Wolnisek v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 819.

Counter affidavits and other evidence.—Denial of defendant's application for change of venue held proper, under this article, though plaintiff's written contest of the application was supported only by his affidavit. Sands v. Sedwick (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 594.

Discretion of court.—In an action for breach of a lease of property to be used as a saloon, the court's denial of an application for change of venue held not an abuse of discretion. Taber v. Eyler (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 496.

As change of venue is in discretion of trial court, and it must be made to appear that court has abused its discretion before its action will be set aside, order refusing an application to change venue will not be disturbed in absence of evidence on which it was based. Colgrove v. Falfurrias State Bank (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 589.

DECISIONS APPLICABLE TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Statutory right.—A court has no authority to change the venue except when expressly given by law. Holmes v. Coalson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 628.

CONTINUANCE

Article 1917. [1276] [1276] Continuance not to be granted, except, etc.

In general.—Where an order continuing a case to the next term was made after an order was passed by the commissioners' court changing the time of the next term from August to the intervening June, the continuance was to the June term, although the parties were not apprised of the change in the date of the term. Guerra v. Guerra (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 191.

In a consolidated suit to quiet title, request of defendants, made after various dismissals and interlocutory judgment against them, for permission to withdraw their announcement of ready, for trial and continue the case that they might again add parties as to whom they had dismissed, held properly refused. Brady v. Cope (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 675.

Under arts. 4698 and 4699, as to parties in death action, where surviving wife seeks for her sole benefit, and it appears at the trial that deceased's parents are living, defendant is entitled to postponement to have them made parties. San Antonio Portland Cement Co. v. Gschwender (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 699.

In a servant's action for injuries where plaintiff testified at the trial, court's refusal to grant continuance because of plaintiff's alleged failure to sign and swear to a deposition held not error. Santa Fé Tie & Lumber Preserving Co. v. Burns (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 348.

Amendment of pleadings.—Allowing plaintiff to amend his petition after the case had gone to trial, without granting defendant a continuance, is largely a matter of discretion, where the amendment simply enlarges on the cause of action, and does not require of defendant any evidence not before required. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. James B. & Charles J. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 699.

The overruling of a motion for continuance, made on the ground of the filing of an amended petition on the day of trial, held not an abuse of discretion. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1069.

There was no error in overruling defendant's motion to continue an action on an insurance policy on the ground of surprise at facts set out in trial amendment, where they were at all times known to defendant. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Burnside (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 169.

Amendment of petition in action for personal injuries held not to entitle defendant to continuance, especially where application was not supported by affidavit, as required by this article. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 488.

The denial of a continuance sought by defendant to meet amendment held improper. McWhorter v. Estes (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 846.

Defendant held not entitled to a continuance on the ground of surprise after the amendment of the petition at the trial so as to deny contributory negligence which the answer had pleaded. Terrell Sewerage Co. v. Stiles (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 1053.

Where defendants in a foreclosure suit were not surprised or misled by a trial amendment, changing a misdescription of the note as to date and amount, it was not error to refuse to permit them to withdraw their announcement of ready for trial and grant a continuance. Memphis Cotton Oil Co. v. Giat (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1060.

In action for negligent transportation of stock, a trial amendment alleging defendant's refusal to permit them to be unloaded for feed, water, and rest held to require continu- 452

Absence of party.—The absence of a party does not give a party an absolute right to a continuance. Apache Cotton Oil & Mfg. Co. v. Watkins & Kelly (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1083.

Absence of counsel.—The absence of a party's leading attorney does not give a party an absolute right to a continuance, but the mere fact that a continuance does not alone warrant refusal of continuance for absence of leading counsel, where those in attendance are unfamilial with the case. Apache Cotton Oil & Mfg. Co. v. Watkins & Kelly (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1083.

Voluntary absence of counsel on account of important professional business in Court of Civil Appeals is not ground for continuance, especially where it is not affirmatively shown that his client will suffer by his absence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Cummins (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 161.

Absence of witness or evidence.—Overruling defendant's motion for a continuance, based upon the sickness of one of its witnesses, who was present in court although sick, held not an abuse of discretion. Yellow Pine Paper Mill Co. v. Lyons (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 952.

The denial of continuance requested to obtain evidence to sustain defense held not an abuse of the trial court's discretion. Ferrell-Michael Abstract & Title Co. v. McCormac (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1081.

An application for a continuance, made on ground of correcting depositions because a witness failed to locate definitely the injuries to plaintiff, need not be granted, and no error or prejudice would result where the depositions showed that there was some injury to plaintiff's forehead. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Truss (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 249.

Where indorsees of note by making inquirv would not have learned of fraud, the makers not then knowing thereof, held, that it was not an abuse of discretion to refuse to delay the trial to allow a witness to procure the indorsees' books to show the exact amount of the discount. Lock v. Citizens' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 536.

In an action for the price of horses, where it was not shown that cattle transactions between the parties were material, the denial of a continuance for absence of witnesses who could testify as to such transactions was not error. Hazelrigg v. Naranjo (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 316.

Where testimony expected from absent witness is immaterial to any defense defendant had right to interpose, it is no error to deny him second continuance. Houston Transp. Co. v. Paine (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 188.

Cumulative evidence.—Defendant cannot obtain a continuance on the ground of the absence of material witnesses, where other witnesses could testify to the same fact. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Pitkin (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1083.

A party's first application for continuance cannot be denied because the evidence of the absent witness was cumulative. Hamilton v. Southwest Texas Baptist Hospital (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 574.

Contradictory evidence.—The refusal of a continuance for an absent witness who would testify that plaintiff's condition was due to injury received prior to entering defendant's employ held not error, where defendant's witnesses testified that plaintiff was suffering from no injury, and that at the time he entered defendant's employ a thorough physical examination disclosed no injury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Cornelius (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 34.

Diligence.—Defendant cannot obtain a continuance on the ground of absence of material witnesses where due diligence has not been used. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Pitkin (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1035.

Refusal of continuance to enable defendant to secure experts to examine fixtures, asked for after commencement of the action, is warranted on the ground of lack of diligence; the litigation primarily involving the question of plaintiff's compliance with his contract to make and install the fixtures, and defendant having been in exclusive possession thereof. Earhart v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 56.

Defendant's application for a continuance was properly overruled, where the case had been on file for more than a year and no process had been issued for any witnesses and the application did not give the names or residences of any witnesses wanted. Planting Mill Co. v. Tunstill (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 424.

Denial of continuance held not error, where no diligence to procure the absent witnesses was shown, though the adverse party did not comply, until the case was called for trial, with an order requiring a bond for costs. Etheridge v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1144.

Denial of continuance to procure absent witness was not abuse of discretion, where application did not show evidence could not be obtained from other source and case was tried when set. Bottoms v. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas (Sup.) 184 S. W. 176.

A continuance on account of the absence of a witness will be denied when no process had been issued for the witness, no effort was made to secure his testimony, and defendant who was applying for the continuance declined offer of privilege of using the testimony of the witness taken on a former trial. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Hagen (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 954.

Failure of defendant railroad to notify attorney of discharge of employé, an important witness, that process might issue, was such negligence as justified trial court in finding that proper diligence was not exercised, to obtain continuance for his absence was properly denied. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Cummins (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 161.

Party cannot be charged with lack of due diligence in not securing witness where it appears from his motion, made when case is called, that witness is sick. Houston Transp. Co. v. Paine (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 188.

Where a continuance is sought for absence of a witness, it will be refused, in the absence of diligence in attempting to procure such evidence. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Mudd (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 969.
Surprise.—Surprise as a ground for further continuance cannot be claimed because the case was first continued, was not known of by associate counsel, called into the case after such setting, till five days before day for which it was so specially set. Banner v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 102.

In an action for injuries to cattle on route, defendant was not entitled to a continuance for surprise because of evidence that the rough handling was due to sudden stops pages on account of a preceding train being pulled by a broken-down engine. St. Louis

Plaintiff's trial amendments, not constituting a defense to the policy sued on, could not be made the basis for a continuance on the ground of surprise. Ameri-

Plaintiff's second motion to prove testimony on former trial of deceased witness only by the statement of facts on a former appeal, which was inadmissible, could have a continuance on the ground of surprise, to obtain proper evidence of the former testimony. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 701.

A remand of an amended answer, both bearing on total disability of plaintiff and both filed the day before trial, held not to entitle defendant to a continuance on the ground of surprise, it having from the first known that total disability was claimed. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Bryant (Civ. App.)

185 S. W. 575.

Where defendant made no showing that a continuance would enable it to secure evidence to rebut a reply to a defense urged, the denial of a continuance, though the reply was first made at trial, is not an abuse of discretion. New Jersey Fire Ins. Co. v. Baird

(Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 356.

In suit by assignee of legal title to chose in action, where defendant by cross-examination developed the fact that such holder held for the benefit of the real owner, it was not an application to withdraw defendant's application for continuance, and continue the cause on the ground of surprise. City of San Antonio v. Reed (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 549.

Admissions.—The mere admission that an absent witness would, if present, testify to the facts for which the continuance is requested, is not a reason for refusing a Successive applications.—Where a case has been continued several times because of the intoxication of defendant, it was not an abuse of the court's discretion to refuse a continuance to secure attendance of such witness. Houston Transp. Co. v. Palins (Civ.

App.) 193 S. W. 188.

Discretion of court.—The discretion of the trial court, where the application for a continuance is not a statutory one, is not subject to review unless abused. St. Louis

Art. 1918. [1278] [1278] Application for continuance, requisites of.

Affidavits and motion for continuance.—Where a witness, on the ground of whose illness a continuance was asked, was present in court, it was nevertheless error to refuse to permit a physician to testify that the witness' physical and mental condition was such that he could not testify clearly and accurately. Yellow Pine Paper Mill Co. v. Lyons

(Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 969.

Affidavit for postponement held such that while the plaintiff might not have been entitled to continuance for the term, yet postponement should have been granted.

Amendment.—An application for continuance based on surprise in the filing of an amended petition must show that defendant had a meritorious defense, which by continuance could be made to appear. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. McDermit (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 559.

Surprise.—Application in continuance on ground of surprise by new matter in amended petition held not to state sufficient cause. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. of Texas

v. Ankenbauer (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1036.

Materiality of evidence.—Where an application for a continuance for absence of witnesses did not state that the testimony expected was material or that the applicant used diligence to procure it, it was not a statutory application within this article, and it was within the discretion of the court to grant it or not. Wauhop v. Sauvage's

Heirs (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 182.

A motion for continuance, which alleges the materiality of the testimony of the absent defendant and states generally that defendant was absent for some cause over which he has no control, is properly overruled. Muldoon v. J. E. Bray Land Co. (Civ.

App.) 171 S. W. 1027.

A motion for a continuance held insufficient where it did not show that either of the absent witnesses would testify to any facts material to the issues. Allen v. Rettig (Civ.

App.) 177 S. W. 215.

A statement of a conclusion as to what would be proven by an absent witness is not a compliance with the statute entitling a party to a continuance to procure such

Application for continuance, not stating testimony is material, showing materiality therein and that applicant "has used due diligence to procure such testimony," etc., as required by this article, is insufficient. McKinnon v. Porter (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1113.

Diligence.—An application for a continuance, failing to show diligence and to state the facts which the applicant expected to prove by the absent witness, was insuf-

Application for continuance, which showed that absent witness was not summoned and failed to testify or what was expected to be proved by him, held properly overruled. Hunter v. Holt (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 608.

Refusal of a continuance for absent witnesses, not a statutory one, within this article, held not an abuse of discretion, where the case was decided November 28th and a new trial granted on December 5th; the court having told counsel several days before that he would grant it, and the motion for continuance made on December the 6th. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Williams (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1069.

Absence of witness.—Application for a continuance for absence of a nonresident witness not being a statutory application under arts. 1918, 366, the discretion of the court will not be disturbed in the absence of abuse. Kansas City Southern Ry. Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 115.

Testimony that the absent witness stated that he would not swear to the facts set forth in the application for continuance is not admissible. Hambleton v. Southwest Texas Baptist Hospital (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 574.

Where application for continuance on ground of absent witnesses is made on information and belief, and is indefinite, the granting thereof is within the court's discretion, and such discretion held not abused. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Starr (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 637.

Article 1920. District judges shall appoint official reporters, when.

Art. 1923. Duties of reporter.

Record of objections to charge.—Under Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 1923, 1924, it is not reporter's duty to make a record of objections to charge, and his notes thereof, even if in record, cannot be considered. Jefferson Cotton Oil & Fertilizer Co. v. Friden & Conglton (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 733.

Art. 1924. Same subject: preparation of transcript; compensation.

Record of objections to charge.—See Jefferson Cotton Oil & Fertilizer Co. v. Friden & Conglton (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 733; note under art. 1923.

Duty to transcribe notes.—Under Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, §§ 5, 6, preparation free of charge of transcript of testimony upon request of pauper appellant held to be duty of such stenographer. Rice v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 149.

A court stenographer may be compelled by mandamus to transcribe his shorthand notes of proceedings in court taken by him by virtue of his appointment. Otto v. Wren (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 350.

Statement of facts, how prepared.—Under Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, §§ 5, 6, the statement of facts must be reduced to narrative form, and a statement in question and answer form cannot be sanctioned. Mooney v. State, 72 C. R. 121, 164 S. W. 828.

Under Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, §§ 5, 6, and 13 (Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 1924, 2070, 2072), where appellant had the official stenographer prepare a narrative form of a statement of facts from the shorthand notes, the reporter acted as appellant's agent, and the statement so prepared was a statement of facts, independent of the transcript of the reporter's notes, permitted by section 13. Canode v. Sewell (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 271.

Arts. 1924, 2070, and 2072 must be construed together, and, where the parties on appeal have agreed to a statement of facts by virtue of article 2072, they lose the right to object that articles 1924 and 2070 have not been complied with. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Prazak (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 839.

Under arts. 1924, 2070, and 2072, held, that appellant could not require appellee to agree to a statement of facts prepared by him independently of the official transcript, which statement would not be considered as a statement of facts. Buffalo Bayou Co. v. Lorents (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1052.

Under Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 1924, 2070, 2072, an appellant may, without procuring the reporter's transcript of the proceedings, prepare a statement of
Art. 1925. Compensation of shorthand reporters; Bexar County; fees; salary in certain counties.—The official shorthand reporter of each judicial district in Bexar and Travis counties shall receive a salary of $1800.00 per annum, in addition to the compensation for transcript fees as provided for in this Act, said salary to be paid monthly by the commissioners’ court of the county, out of the general fund of the county, upon the certificate of the district judge. Provided, however, in other judicial districts composed of one county, the official shorthand reporter shall receive a per diem compensation of five dollars for each and every day he shall be in attendance upon the court for which he is appointed, in addition to the compensation for transcript fees as provided for in this Act, said compensation shall be paid monthly by the commissioners’ court of the county in which the court sits, out of the general fund of the county, upon the certificate of the District Judge; provided, further, however, that in the 22nd, 25th and 26th Judicial Districts and the Criminal District Court of Travis and Williamson counties the official shorthand reporter shall receive a salary of $1800.00 per annum, in addition to the compensation for transcript fees as provided for in this Act, said salary shall be paid monthly by the counties of the district in proportion to the number of weeks provided by law for holding court in the respective counties; and provided further, that in all other judicial districts in this State composed of two or more counties, the official shorthand reporter shall receive a salary of $1500.00 per annum, in addition to the compensation for transcript fees as provided for in this Act, such salary shall be paid monthly by the counties of the district in proportion to the number of weeks provided by law for holding court in the respective counties. Provided, that in a district wherein any county in the district the term may continue until the business is disposed of, each county shall pay in proportion to the time court is actually held in such county. [Acts 1911, p. 264, § 8; Act April 3, 1917, ch. 189, § 1; Act May 19, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 27, § 1. (sec. 8).]

Explanatory.—The act amends sec. 8, ch. 119, general laws, regular session, 32nd Leg. 1911, as amended by ch. 159, regular session, 35th Leg. The above text is a part of section 8 as amended. The other parts of the section are set forth as art. 2071, Civil Statutes, and art. 845a, Code Cr. Proc. Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment.

Art. 1926. Reporters to make transcript for any person; compensation.

Art. 1930. [1295] [1295] Special stenographer appointed, when.

Art. 1932. Stenographer in civil case in county court; appointment; oath; compensation; other provisions applicable.

Cited, Buffalo Bayou Co. v. Lorents (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1052.

Appointment and nature of office.—A stenographer sworn to take the testimony in a cause in the county court, but not in the manner prescribed by statute for an official court stenographer, which is more enlarged and broader in scope than the oath administered, is not an official court stenographer within the meaning of the statutes relating to official court stenographers. Security Trust & Life Ins. Co. v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 198.

Under the statutes an official court stenographer is to be appointed by the judge of the county court upon demand of either party in a civil action, and hence the appointment of an official stenographer is a judicial act, manifested by the judge before rendition of judgment. Id.

Art. 1933. In felony cases reporter to keep stenographic record, to be made when and how; transcript for appointed attorney, when, and compensation for same.

See notes under Code Cr. Proc. art. 846.

TRIAL OF CAUSES

1939. Procedure in case of service by publication where no answer.
1940. Guardian ad litem for minors, lunatics, etc.
1941. Suits called in their order, etc.
1942. Agreed case.

Article 1934. [1280] [1280] Appearance day.

Default judgment.—Notwithstanding arts. 1934 and 1936, court held not to have abused discretion in denying default judgment upon defendant's failure to file its answer on the appearance day of the April term and in treating the case as for the July term, where, at the January term, he had ordered that civil matters should not be called for trial at the April term. Schattenberg v. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 8.

Pleading to sustain judgment.—In an action on a note given for premium on insurance policy, application for which was rejected, in which recovery over against the company was sought, allegations of company's cross-action against R., to whom its agent paid a part of the proceeds of the note as a commission, held insufficient to support a default judgment. Reserve Loan Life Ins. Co. v. Benson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 266.

In determining the sufficiency of the allegations of a cross-action to support a default judgment against a third party, evidence on the trial of the action against defendant could not aid the pleadings in the cross-action. Id.

A petition good as against general demurrer will sustain a default judgment. Findlay v. Lumdsen (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 518.

A petition praying for judgment on notes against "plaintiff" is not bad on general demurrer, and will sustain a default judgment. Id.

A default judgment on a petition not signed by plaintiff or his attorney and not excepted to is not void or voidable. Shipp v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 598.

A petition which fails to state a cause of action will not support a judgment by default. Texas Auto & Supply Co. v. Magnolia Petroleum Co. (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 573.

Default in pleading.—Entry of default judgment against defendant, who did not show, when requesting the day to answer, that it had a meritorious defense, was proper. Western Lumber Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 644.

On substitution of new plaintiffs and adoption by them of petition of original plaintiffs, entry of judgment by default without permitting opportunity to answer was error. Cooney v. Van Deren (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1196.

Time of answering or filing answer.—Notwithstanding arts. 1934 and 1936, court held not to have abused discretion in denying default judgment upon defendant's failure to file its answer on the appearance day of the April term and in treating the case as for the July term, where, at the January term, he had ordered that civil matters should not be called for trial at the April term. Schattenberg v. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 8.

Where a lumber company sued by a railroad for freight charges delayed answering for nearly a year, although its attorney was in court several times securing continuances, entry of default judgment for the road was proper. Western Lumber Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 644.

Jurisdictional matters.—Ordinarily where an action is brought against a nonresident by attachment of property within the state, judgment will not be rendered until jurisdiction and service has been procured for the required length of time before the court convenes for the term at which judgment is rendered. Connell v. Nickcy (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 313.

Where the petition or citation in an action against a corporation fails to direct the manner of service, to sustain a default judgment proof of proper service must be made when judgment is entered. Miller v. First State Bank & Trust Co. of Santa Anna (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 614.

To authorize a default judgment the sheriff's return must show service as required by statute. Id.

Return, showing service of citation by delivering to two defendants "in person a true copy," would not support a default judgment. Kellam v. Trail (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 988.

Record and recitals.—In trespass to try title, judgment against plaintiffs tendering to show title in defendants' predecessor held not inadmissible because held reciting that the "defendant" was served with notice of the suit while the judgment, which was by default, purported to be against three persons. Dunn v. Epperson (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 927.

In case of a judgment by default, the court’s jurisdiction over the defendant must

Art. 1937.  [1283] [1283] Where some defendants answer and others do not.

Answer by part of defendants.—Under this article the fact that one of defendants defaulted in an action to quiet title would not relieve plaintiffs from proving title as

Where one of the several defendants, though duly cited, made default, the court should have rendered judgment against him by default. A. J. Birdsong & Son v. Allen (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 1177.

Where one of the several defendants, though duly cited, made default, the judgment for plaintiff was properly amended so as to include him though the verdict failed to mention him. Id.

Art. 1769, as to judgment of title on default without proof by plaintiff, in trespass or to try title, does not purport to prescribe the rights of defendants who do answer, and their rights are controlled by article 1937 as to answering and defaulting defendants.

In action against two defendants, where demurrer of one was sustained and plaintiff did not request judgment against other defendant, who did not answer, his right to judgment against such defendant was waived. W. T. Rawleigh Medical Co. v. Mayberry (Civ.
App.) 193 S. W. 199.

Correction of judgment.—Under arts. 1937, 1938, 2015, petitioner held not entitled to the correction of a final judgment entered on a default. Mallory v. Mantius (Civ. App.)

Art. 1938.  [1284] [1284] Damages on liquidated demands, how assessed.

Liquidated damages.—Cause of action of a railroad for freight charges fixed in accordance with arts. 6656, 6659, held for a liquidated demand rendering proper entry of default judgment without proof under arts. 1938, 1939. Western Lumber Co. v. Chicago,

A stipulation for liquidated damages for delay in completing wells to be used for irrigation held to be compensation and not penalty. Foos Gas Engine Co. v. Fairview Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 382.

A contract for sale of land having fixed a certain amount as liquidated damages for vendor’s refusal to accept deed, the vendor cannot have greater damages. Nelson v.
Butler (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 811.

Stipulation in contract for sale of land for forfeiture as liquidated damages of earnest money for failure to accept deed, money to be returned if a good merchantable title could not be shown, held valid stipulation for liquidated damages. Id.

Proof of cause of action.—Awarding default judgment, in action to foreclose a mechanic’s lien based on a note mentioning a contract for mechanic’s lien for labor and materials was improper, where the mechanic’s lien was not put in evidence, and there was no evidence that improvements were made as contracted for. Herring v. Herring
(Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1105.

Correction of judgment.—Under arts. 1937, 1938, 2015, petitioner held not entitled to the correction of a final judgment entered on a default. Mallory v. Mantius (Civ. App.)

Art. 1939.  [1285] [1285] On unliquidated demands, etc.

Inquest of damages.—Cause of action of a railroad for freight charges fixed in accordance with arts. 6654 and 6659 held for a liquidated demand rendering proper entry of default judgment without proof under arts. 1938, 1939. Western Lumber Co. v. Chicago,

Evidence.—Despite art. 1903, as amended by Acts 33d Leg. c. 127, plaintiff, in case of defendant’s default in filing an answer, is, under this article, bound to prove unliquid­

Art. 1942.  [1211] [1211] Guardian ad litem for minors, lunatics, etc.

Application and appointment in general.—Failure to appoint a guardian ad litem for a defendant of unsound mind held not to require a reversal, where she filed a cross-action "represented by her husband": this article not prohibiting the cross-action from being so brought, where there is no guardian. Bundick v. Moore-Cories Canal Co. (Civ. App.)
177 S. W. 1035.

The general guardian of minors may maintain suit against them, a guardian ad

Duty and power of court.—In a suit against infants cited to appear and answer, the court, in the absence of a general guardian of their estate, must, as required by this article, appoint a guardian ad litem. Simmon’s v. Arnim (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 184.

Where the court appointed a guardian ad litem for infant defendants cited to appear and answer, the court could, without further representation or service on them, allow compensation to the guardian. Id.
Validity of judgment.—A judgment adjusting rights of property between an infant and his guardian, rendered pursuant to an agreement in open court, while the infant was represented only by the guardian, is void. Pearce v. Heyman (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 242.

That no guardian of her estate or guardian ad litem has been appointed to represent a defendant of unsound mind does not render void a judgment for plaintiff. Bundick v. Moore-Cortez Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 1030.

Where infants sued as adults were duly served with process and the proceedings of the trial did not disclose that they were infants, a judgment against them was voidable only. Kelly v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 686.

The remedy against a judgment voidable because against a minor not represented by a guardian ad litem, the fact of infancy appearing on the face of the record, is by writ of error, and not bill of review. Kidd v. Prince (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 725.

Compensation for services.—Where adult and infant defendants in trespass to try title had no interest in real estate, the fees of the guardian of the infants appointed on the motion of plaintiff must be taxed against plaintiff. Pryor v. Krause (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 498.

Where plaintiff in trespass to try title against an adult and infants filed a motion to have a guardian appointed for the infants who had no guardian, the compensation to the guardian was costs incurred by plaintiff. Id.

Under arts. 1942 and 2045, the court may tax as costs against successful infant defendants the compensation allowed their guardian ad litem, and this, without further representation or service on them. Simons v. Arnim (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 184.

A judgment against infant defendants for compensation to their guardian ad litem may be collected by execution when there is no guardianship pending. Id.

A fee of $500, allowed an attorney ad litem, held not excessive. Baber v. Galbraith (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 345.

Art. 1943. [1287] [1287] Suits called in their order, etc.

Vacation of judgment entered.—Decree in action for divorce on ground of wife's abandonment, within jurisdiction of district court under arts. 4630 and 4631, the cause being called out of its regular order and tried at an unusual place, without notice to defendant, was not in order while not a nonjurisdictional order as to authorize its vacation. McConkey v. McConkey (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1100.

As constituting statement of facts.—An agreed statement in the trial court cannot, under arts. 1949, 2068, be considered as a statement of facts on appeal, where not showing the approval of the trial judge. Lingo Lumber Co. v. Garvin (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 561.

Art. 1950. [1294] [1294] Cases brought up from inferior courts, tried de novo.

Jurisdiction dependent on jurisdiction below.—Under Const. art. 5, § 16, and this article, held that, on appeal from a judgment void because in excess of jurisdiction, the county court could only order the appeal dismissed. Parker v. Watt (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 718.

Art. 1951. [1297] [1297] Order of proceedings on trial by jury.

Right to open and close.—As to argument, see notes under Art. 1953.

Where, in a suit on purchase-money notes and to foreclose a vendor's lien retained in the deed, the purchaser admitted the execution of the notes and liability thereon, but did not admit the execution and delivery of the deed, the vendor had the right to open and close. Luckenbach v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 99.

In an action on notes, pleadings held to constitute placing burden on plaintiff to prove the transfer, so that defendants were not entitled to open and close. Jines v. Astle (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1081.

One seeking to establish a parol trust, having the burden of proof, is entitled to open and close. Hamilton v. Southwest Texas Baptist Hospital (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 574.

Motion by defendant for open and close held properly denied under rule 31 for district and county courts (142 S. W. xx), because they manifestly did not intend to admit everything the proponent was required to prove. Wollnitzek v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 519.

Under art. 1953, and district court rule No. 31 (142 S. W. xx), plaintiff in suit upon an itemized account wherein defendant before trial filed a written acknowledgment of the correctness of the account except as to three items had the right to open and close. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 624.

In a broker's action for commissions, where intervenors claimed a share of commission, and defendant had paid money into court, fact that defendant asked costs did not defeat intervenor's right to open and close, where they had the burden of proof. Knight Realty Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 185.

Discretion of court as to order of proof.—The exclusion of testimony upon the motion of the defendant before the introduction of its evidence rests largely within the discretion of the trial court, and its action is not reviewable in the absence of a showing of an abuse. Frey v. A. J. Jones Co. v. Drake (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 441.

Evidence dependent on preliminary proof.—See notes under Art. 3687, rule 5, note 9.
Scope of evidence in chief.—It was within discretion of trial court to admit testimony of defendant's master mechanic to support allegations in answer that all of its locomotives had been properly constructed. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Wood (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 812.

Evidence in rebuttal.—In an action against a railroad company for injuries to a female plaintiff, certain evidence held competent in rebuttal. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 922, judgment reversed 166 Tex. 317, 166 S. W. 683.

Introduction of additional testimony of physicians as to nature and extent of plaintiff's injury in rebuttal of testimony for defendant contending original testimony for plaintiff on that subject was proper. Caffarello Bros. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 225.

Admission in rebuttal of evidence proper in chief.—Where the parties failed to offer parole evidence to explain a written instrument, because they understood that the court had declared it improper, the instrument was not improperly allowed to be admitted in rebuttal. Barnett v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 671. Evidence which would be admissible in chief when admitted by the court on rebuttal should be considered by it and given the same weight as any other evidence; the case being tried to the court without a jury. Id.

Art. 1952. [1298] [1298] Additional testimony allowed, when.

Cited, City of Ft. Worth v. Young (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 983.

Reopening case for further evidence.—The discretion of the court on motion to reopen a case after the court has announced it will direct a verdict will not be reviewed unless an abuse appears. Puckett & Wear v. City of Ft. Worth (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1115.

In an action against a city, it was an abuse of discretion to refuse to reopen the cause where defendant failed to give notice that proper notice had been given, notwithstanding the court had announced it would direct verdict for defendant. Id.

That the court, after reopening a case to hear testimony on a single issue, refused to hear additional testimony by the adverse parties who did not allege that their testimony was in rebuttal but who sought to introduce, by virtue of parole evidence which could not in any way affect the result, was not error. Fiddy v. Tabor (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 111.

It was not error for the court, on motion for new trial after judgment to open the case to hear additional evidence. Id.

—— After argument begun or closed.—The admission of testimony pursuant to an offer made in answer to argument of opposing counsel is a matter of discretion with the court. Fox v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 852.

Art. 1953. [1299] [1299] Order of argument.

Under this article and rule 31 for district and county courts (142 S. W. xx), court held to have erred in permitting defendant to open and close the argument. J. W. Carter Music Co. v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 547; First State Bank of Amarillo v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 295.

Under district court rule 31, and this article, referring to the right of parties to open and conclude, held, that defendant was not entitled to that right, even though he had the burden of proving his defense which was due; the admission required by district court rule not being made until the conclusion of the evidence. Caldwell v. Auto Sales & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1090.

Under district and county court rule 37 (142 S. W. xx), the admission in the argument of counsel for an intervenor is within the sound discretion of the court. Cooper v. Marek (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 58.

The exercise of the trial court's discretion as to the position in the argument of counsel for an intervenor is not subject to review unless abused. Id.

Where defendant admitted plaintiff's right to recover the amount of the note sued on, but filed a plea in reconvention claiming damages for wrongful attachment, he was entitled to open and close the argument. Fisher v. Scherer (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1333.

Under rule 31 for district and county courts (142 S. W. xx), including the provision of this article, held, on the pleadings in an action on a note, that the granting to defendants of the right to open and close was error. First State Bank of Amarillo v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 295.

It is the province of the court alone to determine the right to open and conclude the argument. DeLaney v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 909.

Under Rules of Practice in the District and County Courts, rule 31 (142 S. W. xx), held, that defendant was properly permitted to open and close argument, where he admitted execution of the instrument sued on, and that plaintiff would be entitled to recover against the fraud pleaded by defendant in avoidance. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Webb (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 833.

Error, if any, in refusing defendant the right to open and close the evidence and argument was harmless, where the court properly took the case from the jury. Abernathy Rigby Co. v. McDougle Cameron & Webster Co. (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 503.

In a broker's suit for commissions on exchange of lands, where interveners claiming a share of commission had burden of proof on their affirmative allegations, they were entitled to the benefit of this statute, regarding right to open and close when party has burden of proof and right to open and close was reversible error. Knight Realty Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 168. See, also, notes under art. 1952.

Art. 1954. Charge and instructions before argument.

Art. 1955. [1301] [1301] Nonsuit may be taken, when.

Request for nonsuit.—Under this article held that after filing a request for a non-suit it was necessary to actually notify the judge thereof before a nonsuit could be effectively claimed. Towell v. Towell (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 23.

Withdrawal of plea without prejudice.—Under arts. 1900 and 1955, a plaintiff is entitled to nonsuit, notwithstanding counterclaim, as to his own cause without dismissal of or prejudice to the defendant’s counterclaim. Apache Cotton Oil & Mfg. Co. v. Watkins & Kelly (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1683.

Where allegations of counterclaim were insufficient to state a cause of action, the filing thereof could not cut off plaintiff’s right to nonsuit. Id.

Art. 1957. [1303] [1303] Jury may take papers with them, except, etc.

See art. 1975.

Pleadings.—New trial should be granted for the taking into the jury room, contrary to this article, of a pleading in another case, not in evidence, influencing one juror, at least, to agree to a higher award. City of Ft. Worth v. Young (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 988.

Instructions.—The papers connected with a written statement made by plaintiff shortly after his injury, cannot be treated as a deposition within this article. It was the duty of the court to send the statement with the jury on its retirement though the jury did not request it, especially where the jury knew that the court refused to permit it at counsel’s request. The fact that the jury would probably have remembered the contents of the statement was no justification for refusing to permit the jury to take it in retirement. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Lunsford (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 112.

Documentary evidence.—Under this article refusal of court, in an action for the killing of mules, was in issuing plaintiff’s ownership was taken by the jury room plaintiff’s statement, conflicting with his oral testimony as to ownership, was error. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 357.

In suit against railroad for killing mules, error in refusing to allow jury to take to the jury room plaintiff’s written statement, as expressly permitted by this article, held not harmless within rule 62a for Courts of Civil Appeals (149 S. W. x). Id.

Art. 1962. [1308] [1308] May ask further instruction.

See art. 1975.

Instructions during absence and without consent of party or his attorney.—The action of the trial court in recalling the jury after they had received the charge and began their deliberations, and, without the consent of the plaintiff, giving them additional instructions requested by defendant, was not error. Gotoskey v. Grawunder (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 249.

Under this article action of trial court on communication from jury through officer in charge in replying in writing as to the meaning of a word inquired about, in the absence of and without the knowledge of defendant’s attorneys, held error. Corpus Christi St. & Interurban Ry. Co. v. Kjellberg (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 430.

The giving of oral instructions concerning the law applicable to any issue in the absence of attorneys, and after the jury had retired and had reported that they could not agree, constitutes reversible error, but this did not apply where instructions did not relate to any law question or to merits of case. Varn v. Gonzales (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1122.

Mode of giving instructions.—The trial court’s order that a dictionary be furnished to the jury, made on their request through an officer in charge, which was used in the jury room, was erroneous, as the trial judge is the only one authorized by law to give definitions and explanations to the jury. Corpus Christi St. & Interurban Ry. Co. v. Kjellberg (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 430.

Form of Instruction.—Where the jury in fire insurance case inquired whether they were instructed to calculate the loss according to an inventory, an answer that they were to consider the inventory, together with all the other evidence, held unobjectionable as laying too much stress upon the inventory. Fire Ass’n of Philadelphia v. Powell (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 47.

In a suit on notes and to foreclose a chattel mortgage, held, that court erred in informing jury, after they had retired, in response to a question after he had been called into jury room, that generally a jury could do whatever it wanted to do. Dempster Mill Mfg. Co. v. Humphries (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1110.

Reading stenographic notes.—Arts. 1963 and 1964 do not provide for the reading of stenographic notes to the jury, and, in the absence of any other statute on the subject, it is not to have the stenographic notes read to the jury discharging as to the testimony of a witness. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Badgett (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 803.

Art. 1964. [1310] May have deposition, etc., re-read.

Urging or coercing agreement.—The conduct of the trial court in retaining the jury which had stated they could not agree and asked to be discharged, and urging an agreement, held not reversible error. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Barber (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 116.

Where the jury in a civil case announced that it was divided nine to three and could not agree, it was improper for the court to emphasize the difference between civil and criminal cases, as to deprivation of liberty and money judgments, thus minimizing the importance of the case on trial. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Driver (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 981.

When the jury had been out two days and asked to be discharged, it was highly improper for the judge to reply that the trial had been costly and that he would give them eight more days to reach a verdict, where, in view of terrific storm conditions and lack of communication with their homes, the jury might have been and apparently was coerced into rendering a compromise verdict. Hunter v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1049.

A court's statement to a jury, reporting, after a day's deliberation, without verdict, that it had taken a long time to try the case and had been expensive, and that it was their duty to get together was not error. Fleck v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 356.

Objection of verdict.—Where the court submitted the case to the jury, it may, in its discretion, upon the inability of that body to agree, direct a verdict. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Waco v. Abell (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 609.

Decisions Relating to Subject in General

3. Remarks and conduct of judge in general.—In action for damages to a farm, trial judge's remark in the presence of the jury that the testimony of witnesses as to the damage was not worth anything and that the jurors would decide the case accordingly to their own knowledge, held prejudicial error. Guerin v. Brazelton (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 439.

It is error to reprimand a witness without a proper basis therefor. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lloyd (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 721.

A remark by the court urging the jury to agree, intended as a pleasantry, that the jury had the whole world to agree upon and the whole week before you, held not error. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Oakley (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 507.

Action of the court in deciding that certain of the grounds of negligence charged are so supported by evidence as to authorize their submission held not objectionable as an intimation of opinion on the weight to be given to the grounds submitted. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Watts (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 415.

It was error for the trial judge, in making a ruling in the presence of the jury, to say or do anything calculated to influence the jury in reaching its verdict. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 829.

Remarks of trial judge marks trial judge explanatory of his action in excluding immaterial deeds were not improper. Black v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 493.

The court, in rejecting testimony of statements made by a third person, which could not itself be vouched, was justified in asking defendant, "How in the world could any statement made to Black by other people bind this plaintiff in this case?" Id.

Remarks of court in an action for damages for the flooding of lands held improper, tending to discredit the testimony offered by defendant. City of Ft. Worth v. Burton (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 239.

13. Misconduct of others affecting jurors.—An assignment in a motion for new trial that jury was caused to increase amount of award because of seeing plaintiff in a swoon or fainted after retiring to deliberate, in the absence of a showing that the verdict was excessive, is insufficient to warrant reversal. Houston Electric Co. v. Pearce (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 555.

14 3/4. View.—In an action for death of plaintiff's decedent at a railroad crossing, refusal of court to allow jury to view premises was not error. House v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1025.

22. Arguments and conduct of counsel—Proceedings for impaneling jury.—It was error for the attorney of an injured servant, on the voir dire examination of a juror connected with an indemnity insurance policy, after ascertaining that the master had no policy with the juror's company, to ask further questions, endeavoring to insinuate that the master was protected by such a policy. Houston Car Wheel & Mach. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 435.

Where the issue was simple and there were no questions of law to be argued to the jury, it was not an abuse of discretion to limit the argument of counsel on each side to 30 minutes. Mitchell v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 448, rehearing denied Childress v. Robinson, 162 S. W. 1172.
Press of court business will not authorize refusal of reasonable time to counsel for full presentation of issues of fact to the jury. Id.

In a suit against a railroad for personal injuries, argument of plaintiff's counsel that defendant had neglected to ring the bell or blow whistle on other occasions held improper. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 615.

In an action against a railroad for personal injuries, the closing argument of plaintiff's counsel that jury should award such sum as would provide for plaintiff, and furnish interest to take care of him, held prejudicial error, as appeal for damages unwarranted by pleading, proof, or charge. Id.

It is improper for counsel to claim that a witness made statements which he did not, in fact, make. Hamilton v. Southwest Texas Baptist Hospital (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 574.

29. Statements as to facts, comments, and arguments in general.—It was legitimate for plaintiff's counsel to state in his argument that he believed that $25,000 damages would be fair and reasonable. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Dodd (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 238.

It is improper for counsel for a party to state that, if the jury find any sum for the adventitious and unavoidable costs of defending the suit, there will have to pay the court. A. S. Cameron Steam Pump Works v. Lubbock Light & Ice Co. (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 256.

Counsel in the presentation of his case to the jury is allowed great freedom of speech, and may discuss all facts in evidence or admitted by the pleadings, and may draw conclusions from the evidence and give his opinion thereon. Winslow Cotton Oil Co. v. Carson (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1902.

Where jury must have known effect of answers to issues, held not error for counsel to inform jury of effect of their answers. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Sheppard (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 799.

Stating or reading and commenting on proceedings in cause.—In trial of a libel suit, it was improper for plaintiff's attorney to state in his argument to the jury that the case had been tried before and a verdict rendered for the plaintiff. Houston & Chron. Pub. Co. v. McDavid (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 467.

In an action against defendant on the ground that he had assumed payment of the plaintiff's debt, held not error to read to the jury allegations of verbal promises to pay the note which were negatived by exceptions, where such allegations were interwoven with the remainder of the pleading. Bell v. Swim (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 850.

It was error for counsel for the plaintiff to comment to the jury on the court's refusal to direct a verdict for the defendant. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 829.

It was error for counsel for the plaintiff to tell the jury that the court thought a verdict should be rendered for the plaintiff. Id.

In action against railroad for injuries, defendant's counsel was properly allowed to argue that the court's failure to submit question of contributory negligence showed that he had withdrawn the question from the jury and limited plaintiff's right of recovery to issue of discovered peril. La Grone v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 99.

The statements of counsel, in argument, that the first four special issues represented plaintiff's theory and the last four defendant's, was not prejudicial where the effect of the answers to the questions was apparent and obvious. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 592.

Counsel in his argument to the jury may read only a portion of a deposition. Houston Chronicle Pub. Co. v. Lemmon (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 347.

Arguing or reading law to jury.—Action of trial court in allowing counsel for plaintiff to read part of a case to the court in the hearing of the jury after the charge had been given held, in view of the cases read to the jury by defendant to have been within its discretion. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Stalcup (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 578.

So far as argument of counsel, in a case submitted to the jury on special issues, explains to the jury the legal effect of their answers, it is improper. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Hodnett (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 7.

In an action against a railroad for injuries, when plaintiff drove his automobile into a freight car placed upon defendant's team track in a street for unloading, the remark of counsel in argument that plaintiff had a greater right on the street than any corporation in the world was improper. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Marti (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 846.

Matters not within issues.—In an action for the death of a servant, argument of counsel held not improper as urging a ground of negligence not alleged. Selden-Breck Const. Co. v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 952.

Counsel cannot argue that a railroad's charge was gross negligence held improper. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Rasmussen (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 212.

Matters not sustained by evidence.—A statement in argument by proponent's counsel, unsupported by any evidence, that the principal witness for contestants on the principal issue, who had testified by deposition, did dare to come into court, and a further statement of counsel that his statement was true, when contestants' counsel objected, held to require that the verdict be set aside. Tompkins v. Pendleton (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 256.
Where a witness testified that a turf fire had killed the roots of grass, a statement by counsel that the witness testified that it would take three or four years for the grass to rest is not error requiring reversal. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Firestone (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 919.

Statement of counsel in argument, without evidence to support, in effect, that witness had been hindered to his prior statement to counsel, was improper. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Hodnett (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 7.

Argument of plaintiff's counsel, to have claimed that attorney requesting plaintiff to submit to physical examination represented an insurance company, held not improper in view of the testimony as to whom he represented. Decatur Cotton Seed Oil Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 401.

The practice of counsel going outside of the record in argument and using language which could only be used to prejudice the jury is condemned. Stark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 716.

32. — Comments on evidence or witnesses.—Where, in an action for negligent death, the case for plaintiffs depended on the testimony of two witnesses who had made contradictory statements to defendant, the argument of counsel that the practice of taking statements was reprehensible, and inquiring whether the jury would deprive plaintiffs of a recovery on statements obtained ex parte, held reversible error. American Express Co. v. Parcarello (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 926.

In a civil action, the argument of the district attorney that a witness for defendant had committed perjury, and that he could convict him of that offense, was improper. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. v. Culver (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 514.

In an action against a landlord on a promise to pay for groceries furnished his tenant, the deduction of counsel from the fact that the landlord stood for the tenant in 1910 that it was likely he again stood for him in 1911 was permissible. Chilson v. Oheim (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1074.

In an action for personal injuries, it was not improper for plaintiff's counsel in his argument to tell the jury what amount he thought they should give plaintiff. International & N. H. Ry. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 488.

Argument of plaintiff's attorney, in a suit for deprecation in value of real estate, that such real estate had remained stationary while other property had advanced in value, held not improper. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 967.

In an action by a railroad brakeman for loss of his eye, argument by plaintiff's attorney that he would not treat the case as superficially an defendant's doctors treated plaintiff's eye held, under the evidence, not to require a reversal. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Harragave (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 595.

Where personal injuries resulted in paralyzis argument of counsel that plaintiff would suffer mental anguish because unable to have children is warranted. Decatur Cotton Seed Oil Co. v. Belew (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 617.

In action for general damages for slander, remarks of counsel that: "Slander goes upon wings and is scattered; slander gets wings and never stops"—were proper; proof of consequences of an act not being necessary to warrant them. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Wilkins (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 429.

Where the carrier had agreed with certain witnesses to reimburse them for the time they were in attendance upon court as witnesses, statement to the jury by counsel for plaintiff that these witnesses were "bought and paid for" and that the carrier's claim agent admitted that fact, etc., was error. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1028.

Argument of plaintiff's counsel that defendant transferred the note to his wife to beat his debt to the plaintiff, held permissible as an inference from the evidence. Earhart v. Bynaw (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1149.

In an action for the killing of cattle, argument of counsel that, inasmuch as a witness could see a train a given distance, those in charge of the train might have seen cattle, though possibly illogical, is not objectionable. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Decatur Cotton Seed Co. (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 594.

In an action for killing of cattle, argument of counsel that terminal of switches marked terminal of switching yard, and that beyond it a railroad company could not escape liability to fence its right of way as required by Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1894, art. 6608, held warranted under the evidence. Id.

In an action against a carrier for injuries alleged to have resulted from contracting a severe cold in defendant's station, remarks of counsel for plaintiff in his argument to jury that "there are thousands of dollars won't compensate this good woman for the injuries she has sustained" held not an abuse of right of counsel to comment on weight of evidence. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Faulkner (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 651.

In action against railroad company, remarks of counsel in comments on witness' testimony that he knew from past experience that you could not get anything favorable to plaintiff out of an employee of railroad company was improper. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 847.

It was improper for attorney to refer in argument to excluded testimony. Id.

33. — Comments on failure to produce evidence or call witness.—Argument of counsel for plaintiff held not ground for reversal. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 838.

Argument of plaintiff's counsel, in suit against a railroad for personal injuries, that the constable who had served subpoenas for defendant was its "employee," "in its power," justifying plaintiff's failure to call him as a witness, was objectionable. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 615.

35. — Appeals to sympathy or prejudice.—In an action for injuries, argument of plaintiff's counsel that the jury should give plaintiff every cent it possibly could under the pleadings and evidence, because, if they gave too much, the court would cut it down, but could not raise it, held prejudicial error. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Wagner (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 24.
Remark of plaintiff's counsel that he had heard of the plea of contributory negligence during his experience as an attorney for 21 years as an attorney for a railroad company, improper. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Loftis (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 408.

The argument of counsel for plaintiff, suing a railroad company for a personal injury received while employed as a section hand, that plaintiff was poor, and that the railroad company had access to its own books, but not to those of other railroads, to ascertain the location of other men who were working with plaintiff at the time of the injury, and that such men had the privilege of transportation over the other roads, was improper. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. v. Culver (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 514.

The argument of counsel in an action by the plaintiff's counsel, in order to transmit a telephone call, whereby plaintiff was prevented from attending the funeral of his half-sister, that the jury should allow such damages as would compensate them for the injury they would have suffered had they not been so notified, was improper. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 215.

Argument of counsel for a passenger, claiming to have contracted tuberculosis because of exposure on defendant's train, that he would not have tuberculosis but for the railroad company's failure to guard the train so as to prevent his exposed to tuberculosis, was improper. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dellmon (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 799.

In actions for personal injuries to a minor, remarks of plaintiff's counsel, held calculated to arouse the sympathies of the jury, and in view of defendant's complaint of the insufficiency of the evidence, reversible error. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Terrell (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 742.

Argument, in a personal injury action against a railroad company, that in many cases v. by the facts, if a defendant's evidence was defeated on the ground of assumption of risk, coupled with a plea for a large verdict, held improper. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Rasmussen (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 212.

Remark in argument of plaintiff's counsel concerning defendant's request for physical examination, that it was contrary to the custom in the community of approving examinations and held to be reversible error. Decatur Cotton Seed Oil Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 401.

Remark of plaintiff's counsel that defendant should apply money it was paying stenographer for taking down argument on plaintiff's doctor's bill held not improper. Argument that defendant transferred note garnished to his wife to beat his debt to plaintiff, held not improper or intended to prejudice the jury. Earhart v. Agnew (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1149.

Counsel's argument that "rich landowners want to buy up all the land * * * and let it rot and keep the common people from getting any of it and let them rot" was cause for reversal. Stark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 716.

351/2. — Statements as to mode of arriving at verdict.—Argument in a personal injury action, that jurors might be of the opinion that each of the damages they considered proper and a quotient be taken, but warning them that a previous agreement to that effect would render the verdict objectionable, was improper. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Rasmussen (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 212.

37. — Reference to protection of defendant by insurance or other indemnity.—Circumstances surrounding the making of a statement by plaintiff, while testifying in an action for negligence on the part of the driver of an automobile, that defendant had insurance, held to show that it was made deliberately with an appreciation of the effect it would have; and hence a judgment for plaintiff would be reversed. Carter v. Stucker (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 486.

In a personal injury action by a servant, it was not error to ask the jurors on their voir dire examination whether they had any stock in an employers' liability insurance company or were in any way connected with any such company which was insuring employers. Jones v. Hall (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 419.

It is error for plaintiff's attorney, in examining jurors on their voir dire, to ask questions which intimate that an insurance company is defending the case. Gordon Jones Const. Co. v. Lopez (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 973.

In servant's action for injuries, held, that verdict will not be regarded as rendered through passion and prejudice as result of argument of counsel that defendant would not have to pay judgment against it, but an insurance company would pay it, where policy was in evidence and the jury was instructed not to consider the statement. Rice v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 607.

38. — Retaliatory statements and remarks.—Where, in an action to recover the balance due on a building contract, defendant's counsel argued that plaintiffs should have sued on the contractor's bond, argument in reply that plaintiffs did not know of the bond, and that defendants should not be permitted to conceal it and the defense plaintiffs because they did not sue on it, was not error. Funk v. House (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 481.

Where, in a construction contract, defendant's counsel argued that all controversies and doubts as to the specifications should have been referred to the architect for instructions, argument in reply that it was the duty of the owner or the architect to supervise the work and call the contractor's attention to deviations was not error. Id.

In a city's proceeding to condemn land for a public use, the argument of counsel for the owners in answer to argument of counsel for plaintiff, tending only to enlarge the amount of damages, held not reversible error, where the city did not complain that the judgment was excessive. City of Ft. Worth v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 976.

Where no ruling of the court on the question of objectionable argument was asked until motion for new trial, the matter cannot be considered on appeal. San Antonio, U. & G. Ry. Co. v. Storey (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 188.

Argument of plaintiff's counsel provoked by that of defendant's attorney, held no ground, though based upon facts not appearing in the evidence. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Hagen (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 954.

Argument outside of the record, made to meet argument by defendant's counsel outside of the record, cannot be complained of by defendant on appeal. Id.
39. Objections and exceptions in general.—An objection to remarks of counsel as a whole cannot be sustained, where some of the remarks objected to were proper. Ferguson v. Pail (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 104.

Where part of counsel’s argument was plainly within the scope of the evidence and the objections went to the whole, the argument will not be considered reversible error, passing unnoticed, or treated with levity by counsel and the court. Decatur Cotton Seed Oil Co. v. Eelew (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 607.

Where objection goes to whole argument of counsel, and a portion is not subject to the objection, the rule applicable to the admission or exclusion of testimony applies, and the assignment will be overruled. La Grone v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 99.

In absence of request to lower court to instruct jury that counsel’s argument was improper, Court of Appeals cannot reverse on account of argument. Fadgett v. Hines (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1122.

It is enough that the court sustains objections to remarks of counsel in argument, and stops him; it not appearing request was made to instruct the jury to disregard them. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 462.

Defendant held, in view of other contentions and failure to move to exclude the same, not entitled to attack the verdict on appeal as resulting from passion on account of improper argument. San Antonio & Aransas Pass Ry. Co. v. Schoaffer (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 684.

42. Withdrawal or correction of objectionable matter.—Error cannot be predicated upon remarks of counsel which were withdrawn. Black v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 493.

Even if arguments of plaintiff’s counsel to jury were improper, case will not be reversed where remarks were withdrawn, the jury instructed not to consider them, and three arguments for appellant followed. Andrews v. Wilding (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 192.

43. Action of court.—Where the plaintiff’s attorney argues to the jury upon mental suffering which is too remote to be an element of damages, and the court refuses to give a requested charge that such suffering is not an element of damage, judgment for plaintiff will be reversed. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Vickery (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 792.

In an action for personal injuries, where a fellow servant, who was injured in the same accident, testified, and an objection to a question asked him whether he had uncompensated his claim against the company was sustained, and the jury were instructed to disregard it, the asking of the question could not be assigned as error. Yellow Pine Paper Mill Co. v. Lyons (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 599.

The argument to be pursued by counsel in any stage of a trial is largely in the discretion of the trial court, and, unless an abuse of such discretion clearly appears, the court on appeal will not reverse a judgment simply because it believes a different course should have been pursued. Glover v. Pfeuffer (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 956.

Where the court excluded all of the objectionable part of the argument for defendant and instructed the jury to disregard it, such argument was not prejudicial. Id.

In an action for negligence, testimony of plaintiff, given deliberately, that defendant said he had insurance, held not cured by admonition to the jury not to consider it. Carter v. Walker (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 483.

If remarks of counsel in argument to the jury were inflammatory, they were not proper when made, and the court withdrew them not to consider them. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Dodd (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 238.

Where objectionable argument is withdrawn by counsel making it, and the jury is instructed to disregard it, the error is cured. * Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Stalcup* (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 278.

Argument of counsel, which the jury were charged to disregard, held not so inflammatory as to invalidate a verdict in a personal injury action. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Moyn (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 698.

If evidence or size of verdict indicates the jury were influenced by improper remarks of counsel, judgment should be reversed, notwithstanding objection was sustained and counsel reprimanded. Stockey & White v. Mours (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 741.

In a personal injury case against a railroad improper, but not inflammatory, remarks of plaintiff’s counsel to the jury, withdrawn upon objection, and as to which the court instructed they should be disregarded, held not prejudicially erroneous, in absence of anything in verdict or record indicating they affected the jury. Texas City Terminal Co. v. Petritis (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 19.

Statements of counsel that a general charge given would be a safer guide than a special charge held not to require a reversal, where part of statements were withdrawn and the court instructed that the jury was bound by the special charge, the same as by the general charge, and no further instructions were requested by defendant. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Watts (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 412.

When, when defendant objected to his object of proof of the contents of books by the bookkeeper’s memorandum, as to the time it would take to secure original evidence, were withdrawn, and the jury instructed not to be influenced, there was no error. Elkmeyer Co. v. McCordell (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 416.

Judgment in a personal injury case adverse to plaintiff is not a remark of plaintiff’s counsel, remarking that the road’s counsel that an annuity equal to plaintiff’s earning power could be purchased for $10,000, that he would like to know who would buy one for him, counsel later withdrawing remark and the court instructing not to consider it, was not prejudicial. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 822.

Art. 1965 COURTS—DISTRICT AND COUNTY—PRACTICE IN (Title 37)
In a personal injury case, where remarks of plaintiff’s counsel were not such as to inflame the jury’s passions or arouse their prejudice against defendant, and where, upon objection, the remarks were withdrawn, while the court instructed the jury to disregard them, their making was harmless. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Marti (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 816.

Although plaintiff’s counsel made improper remarks, the error in admitting them was cured where on request the court instructed the jury not to consider them. Young Men’s Christian Ass’n v. Jasse (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 867.

Statement in opening argument that plaintiff could not scour country for witnesses as had defendant, and corporation to bolster up unjust claim held not error, where withdrawn from jury with instruction not to consider. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Jones (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 611.

It is within the discretion of the trial court to require the jury to disregard statements or inferences as to why plaintiff did not bring the suit in another county. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 311.

In personal injury action, where counsel for plaintiff was each time stopped before he made any improper argument and nothing actually improper was brought before jury, attempted improprieties are no ground for reversal. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Galbreath (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 901.

Any error in permitting counsel to argue, in an action for injuries by explosion of fireworks in process of manufacture, that in another place there had been such an explosion and the master had been held liable, is cured by a specific instruction to disregard it. Texas Fireworks Co. v. Gunn (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 528.

In servant's action for injuries, argument of counsel held reversible error, despite court’s admonition. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1166.

Remark of plaintiff’s counsel as to attempt of defendant’s counsel to impeach plaintiff, though censurable, held not reversible error in view of reprimand and instructions to disregard. City of Henderson v. Fields (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1603.

44. — Harmless error. — See notes under art. 1528.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN
CHARGES AND INSTRUCTIONS TO THE JURY

Article 1970. [1316] [1316] Unless waived court shall charge jury or submit issues of fact; failure to give time for examination, etc.

1. Necessity and propriety of instructions in general. — It was not error to furnish the jury with a form of verdict for plaintiff, where they were also furnished with a form of verdict in case of a finding for defendant. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Burnett (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 458.

Rev. St. 1911, art. 2061, embodied in chapter 19, tit. 27, and amended by Acts 1934, c. 59, refers to the articles of the chapter relating to bills of exceptions, and not to the foregoing articles of the amendatory law, amending articles 1970, 1911, 1973, 1974, of chapter 13, relating to instructions and objections; and the articles as amended govern the exceptions to instructions and refusal of instructions. Heath v. Huffman (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 974.

This article and art. 1971, which require the court to prepare and read its charges to the jury before argument, are mandatory. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Parke (Civil App.) 189 S. W. 397.

This article requires the court to give a written charge which may be either general or special, unless expressly waived by the parties. Gordon Jones Const. Co. v. Lopez (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 987.

Where a peremptory instruction is given for defendant, the court not indicating on what issue the instruction was based, plaintiff, to obtain a reversal, must show that there was evidence to take all the issues to the jury. Hinks v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 635.

This article and article 1971, requiring charge to be presented to counsel before being read to jury, do not relieve trial judge of common-law duty to give charge on law of case, unless expressly waived. Whaley v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 409.

It was not erroneous to refuse to submit an issue which, under the facts, did not assist in determination of the case. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sturr (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 637.

2. Issues and theories of case in general. — Where the evidence raises an issue a requested charge thereon, if in proper form, should be granted. Caldwell v. Auto Sales & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1030.
Defendant is entitled to have affirmatively presented to the jury any specified group of facts to constitute the trial, which, if true, would in law be a defense to the action. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Overturf (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 639.

Ordinarily, where plaintiff presents two causes of action, the withdrawal of one of the causes from the jury eliminates that ground of recovery and the defense set up against it. There is no claim that the defense was not presented in the charge. Missouri, O. & G. Ry. Co. v. Boring (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 76.

There was no error in refusing defendant's request instructing the jury to find for it as to certain acts of negligence set forth in the petition, where the court did not make the allegation of recovery in the instructions which he gave. Stone & Webster Engineering Corporation v. Goodman (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 10.

3. Duty to submit all the issues.—Where two or more grounds of negligence are alleged as the basis of the plaintiff's action, and the court submits the case only upon one of them, the theory is thereby that the negligence of the judge's consideration, and the defendant is not entitled to have any special charge thereon. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Martin (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 405.

Where the parties to a personal injury action agreed what issue should be submitted, the court should have confined his charge to that issue. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Barber (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 116.

The refusal of a special charge, applicable to the facts and not covered by the general charge, is error. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Chaten (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 911.

If judge does not give charge on law of case on controverted issues of fact, error requires reversal. Whaley v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 409.

4. Affirmative and negative of issue.—The giving of an instruction authorizing the allowance of damages for permanent injuries, coupled with the denial of an instruction that if not permanent, no recovery could be had therefor, held improper. Texas Traction Co. v. Fearris (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 1060.

When requested the court must give an affirmative charge on any defense as applied to the particular facts in the case. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 574.

Party held entitled to affirmative presentation of issue on which he relies. Wichita Falls Traction Co. v. Adama (Sup.) 183 S. W. 155.

Refusal of instruction presenting an affirmative defense, especially if pleaded, and not presented in the main charge, constitutes error, provided the facts raised the issue. Bean v. Hall (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1064.

In action for injury to car inspector from explosion of tank car, defendant held entitled to instruction affirmatively presenting the group of facts upon which it relied to refuse negligence on which suit was predicated. Magnolia Petroleum Co. v. Hay (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1985.

In an action for commissions for selling cattle, where owner contended that contract did not contemplate commissions where the sale was to one of his old customers, the owner is entitled to have such issue affirmatively submitted. Shaller v. Johnson-McQuiddy Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 553.

Defendant has the right on request to have an affirmative presentation of facts well pleaded, and relied on by him in support of plea of contributory negligence if the evidence fairly supports an inference of negligence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 739.

5. Improper issues.—The refusal of a request presenting an immaterial issue was not error. First Nat. Bank v. Mangum (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 647.

Effect of fact on evidence.—Where a part of the deposition was relevant to the material issues in the case, a requested instruction that it should be considered only in determining the credibility of witness was properly refused. McFarland v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 302.

8. In an action on an accident policy, an instruction that a physician's certificate as to the cause of death, showing compliance with a provision of the policy requiring notice of the accident, with full particulars, could not be considered as establishing the cause of death, should have been given. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Co. v. Heidric (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1097.

In an action against a carrier for misdelivery, refusal to instruct that plaintiff's evidence that no partnership existed between consignee and him to whom goods were delivered could be considered as impeaching consignee testifying to the partnership held erroneous. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Missouri Iron & Metal Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 597.

An instruction that statements of witness in conflict with his testimony were admissible only on the issue of his credibility held proper. Buchanan v. Houston & T. C. R. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 825.

11. Exclusion of evidence from consideration.—It was error to refuse to instruct the jury to disregard evidence erroneously admitted. W. P. Carmichael Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 976; Occident Fire Ins. Co. v. Linn (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 523.

16. Law applicable to particular issues or theories.—On the facts held that it was reversible error to refuse to submit a special issue in open court pursuant to this article. Wood v. J. M. Radford Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1070.

Where the pleadings in an action for the title and possession of goods showed that the parties were adverse claimants, and the jury found that plaintiff was the sole owner, and sustains the price, refusal to charge that the parties were tenants in common was not erroneous. Trimble v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 1021.

In trespass to try title, refusal of instruction as to lease from plaintiff by son and effect as against mother claiming that she and not the son was in possession held not erroneous. Hovilla v. Wy (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 592.

In an action on an option contract, evidence held to justify the submission of an instruction on the character of the tenancy of the option holder as a special tenancy. Leaster v. Hutson (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 208.

In an action by seller of embalming fluid for purchase price, defended on the ground of breach of warranty refusal to submit issue as to manner of use of fluid was not error, there being only evidence on the issue of the warranty. Frigid Fluid Co. v. Sid Westheimer Co. (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 334.

A defendant may have presented to the jury any specified group of facts developed at trial, which, if true, would in law establish a given defense, provided the evidence represented is not substantially covered by the main charge. Scott v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 209.

Where, in proceeding for appointment of administrator, evidence showed common-law marriage, but that deceased lived apart from his wife for long period, instruction should have been given that to constitute valid common-law marriage it is not necessary that parties live together for any specified time. Walton v. Walton (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 188.

17. — Negligence.—It was error to refuse a charge to find for defendant if plaintiff’s wife and automobile were injured as the result of a cause which defendant, by use of ordinary diligence, could have foreseen and guarded against. Texas Traction Co. v. Wiley (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1028.

In action for injuries from falling of tank on walk in amusement grounds, instruction that if defendant did not place the tank there, and could not, by ordinary care, have known that it was placed there, it was not liable, should be given. Wichita Falls Traction Co. v. Adams (Sup.) 183 S. W. 155.

In action for injury when defendant’s car struck and overturned plaintiff’s wagon, where the allegation was not denied by the defendant, a requested charge on a defense supported by defendant’s evidence should have been given. Corpus Christi St. & Interurban Ry. Co. v. Kjellberg (Civ. App.) 385 S. W. 430.

In an action against a sleeping car company for loss of wearing apparel stolen from a car, against and embroiled in the case, defendant held liable to an instruction applying the law to its theory of the facts as to its exercise of reasonable care to guard the property against theft. Pullman Co. v. Moise (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 249.

In lineman’s action for personal injuries, defendant’s requested charges on certain phases of negligence held properly refused. Gulf States Telephone Co. v. Evetts (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 289.

18. — Agency and respondent superior.—Where employees of defendant on its depot platform saw the danger in time to have prevented the collision had they warned plaintiff in time, and the jury may have concluded from the charge that their failure to do so was imputable to defendant, it was error to refuse a charge which precluded consideration of evidence of such omission as showing negligence attributable to defendant. Texas Traction Co. v. Wiley (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1028.

Requested instruction as to agency of one who had received message from sender over telephone held properly refused. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Gorman & Wilson (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 925.

In a telephone lineman’s action for personal injury joining an electric light company, its requested charge on its liability was properly refused, where it could not, in any event, be liable for the negligence of plaintiff’s employer, a telephone company. Gulf States Telephone Co. v. Evetts (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 289.

In an action for damages caused by an automobile operated by defendant’s servant, requested instruction, making defendant liable for accident if machine was defective, although not used in his business, held properly refused. Gordon v. Texas & Pacific Mercantile & Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 748.

Evidence, in an action for commission on an exchange of lands, held not to warrant an instruction on adoption or ratification by defendant of plaintiff’s act in finding a purchase price. Andrews v. Walters (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 198.

19. — Contributory negligence and assumption of risk.—Where, in an action for injuries to an automobile, struck by a street car, there was evidence that the operator of the automobile was guilty of contributory negligence, the street railway company, relying on the defense of contributory negligence, was entitled to a specific charge that contributory negligence was a complete defense. Austin St. Ry. Co. v. Hefflin (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1040.

Where there was testimony in a negligence case which, if believed, would entitle the defendant to a verdict, on account of contributory negligence, failure of the court to give an instruction requiring the jury to find as to a specified group of facts was error. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Hardy (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 80.

In an action under the federal Employers’ Liability Act, held not error to refuse a requested charge that it was plaintiff’s duty to exercise ordinary care to avoid the accident. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. of Texas v. Finke (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1143.

In a section hand’s action for injuries due to fall while hurriedly removing hand car from track to avoid approaching train, where a strongly controverted issue was distance of telephone when first discovered, refusal to instruct on such issue held error. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Mitchum (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 622.

In action for death of railway conductor from a derailment of a train due to defective coach trucks where it was not alleged or proved that condition of trucks was such that deceased, if ordinarily prudent, would not have operated train with knowledge of that condition, court properly ignored issue of contributory negligence. Marshall & E. T. Ry. Co. v. Roden (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1163.

21. — Negligence of fellow servant.—In action for injuries received when machine at which he worked with fellow servant was started by latter, court should have given defendant’s special request directing jury to find for defendant if injuries were inflicted by reason of fellow servant’s negligence. Armour & Co. v. Morgan (Sup.) 194 S. W. 942.

22. — Proximate cause.—Evidence held to call for a charge on accident, and it was error to refuse a charge to find for defendant if it was shown that plaintiff’s injury was due to misfortune and misadventure. Texas Traction Co. v. Wiley (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1023.
In an action against a carrier of live stock for damages caused by delay in transportation, held entitled to have its defense that delay was caused by unusual rains and floods on its road presented clearly, without being confused and mixed with other issues. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Atterberry (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1133.

25. Determination of amount of recovery.—Under Acts 33d Leg. c. 55, art. 1984—a, amending Rev. St. 1911, c. 14, § 37, where a case is submitted to the jury on special issues, it is necessary for the court to charge the jury on the measure of damages. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Wall (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 527.

In suit by the grantee of land to restrain sale on execution against the grantor, where there was abundant evidence on issue of market value of property, court should have given requested instruction limiting jury's finding to such value. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Plainview v. Slaton (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 742.

In an action for price of silo, refusal of a requested instruction, stating amount to be allowed for a breach of warranty alleged as defense, held error. Ames Portable Silo & Lumber Co. v. Gill (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1130.

In action for death of horse on railroad track, court should have submitted charge on measure of damages requiring verdict to assess amount. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Price (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 855.

26. Instructions as to duties of jury.—It will not be presumed that jury would be inclined to go contrary to their statutory oath to find upon issues submitted without reference to their opinions as to legal rights of parties, and refusal of an instruction as to the jury's duty in that respect is not ground for reversal. Stine Oil & Gas Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1009.

27. Definition or explanation of terms.—The court need not define to the jury the meaning of the words "would hold water" in a contract for construction of a dam; they being of common use and easily understood. Lattimore v. Puckett & Wear (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 551.

Where the court instructs that the carrier is not liable for injuries to a shipment of cattle due to "inherent vice," he should state the meaning of such term. Ft. Worth & D. O. Ry. Co. v. Berry (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 155.

Terms "burden of proof" and "preponderance of the testimony" being of common use, it will not be presumed that jury did not understand them, though instructions defining such terms were refused. Stine Oil & Gas Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1009.

On broker's suit for commissions it was not error to refuse to instruct as to meaning of "efficient and procuring cause," as the words are not technical, but are in common use. Bank of Gilmer (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1035.

28. General or special charge.—A party to a suit has right to special instruction on any group of facts supported by pleadings and evidence, and which, if true, would be of controlling effect in his favor, although a charge in general terms is given which is to some extent covering the facts. R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Mitchum (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 622.

29. Requisites and sufficiency of charge.—See notes under next article.

30. Weight of evidence.—See notes under next article.

31. Requests for instructions.—See notes under art. 1798.

32. Questions of law or fact.—See notes under next article.

33. Objections and exceptions.—See notes under next article and art. 2061.

36. Waiver.—Defendant employer does not waive its right to have refusal of a requested peremptory instruction reviewed by subsequently requesting specific instructions upon plaintiff's assumption of risk. Patton v. Dallas Gas Co. (Sup.) 192 S. W. 1060.

Party objecting to direction of verdict cannot be held to have expressly waived charge upon law of case. Whaley v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 409.

Art. 1971. [1317] [1317] Requisites of charge; submission to parties; objections, etc.

I. PROVINCE OF COURT AND JURY

(A) Questions of Law or Fact

2. Mixed questions of law and fact.—Where parol evidence is admitted to remove the ambiguity in a deed, the identity of the land is a mixed question of law and fact. Young v. Gharis (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 766.

3. Preliminary or introductory questions of fact.—Unless specially requested, the court need not charge the jury to look to the evidence of plaintiffs, as well as defendant, in determining whether the contributory negligence of a deceased servant, for whose death the action is brought, has been established. Texas Power & Light Co. v. Bird (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 8.

4. Sufficiency of evidence to take case to jury.—Where the evidence is such that reasonable men may differ, the question of fact is for the jury, and, when such that all reasonable men must draw the same conclusion, for the court. Cartwright v. Canode, 171 S. W. 698, 106 Tex. 79; Zimmerman v. Baugh (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 943; American Machinery Co. v. Haley (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 83; Keevil v. Ponsford (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 518; International & G. N. R. Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 554; Mann v. Bell (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 420.

Where there is more than a scintilla of evidence for each party on the issue, the case must go to the jury. Jones v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 128.
Where there was evidence sufficient to support a verdict for defendant, the court did not err in refusing a peremptory instruction for plaintiff. Carter v. South Texas Lumber Yard (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 626.

Where the evidence is such that under the most favorable view of it from plaintiff's standpoint it would not sustain a verdict, the court should instruct a verdict for defendant. Lanier v. Lumber Co., Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 103.

Where there was evidence to establish one ground of recovery alleged in the petition, a peremptory instruction requested by defendant was properly refused, though plaintiff could not recover on another ground alleged. Missouri, O. & G. Ry. Co. v. Boring (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 76.

Where plaintiff under all the evidence was entitled to a recovery of at least a part of the sum demanded, a peremptory instruction for defendant was properly denied. Menefee v. Bering Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 385.

A peremptory instruction for plaintiff is properly refused, where the evidence is sufficient to warrant a finding for defendant. Murray Gin Co. v. Putman (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 806.

Where there was positive and negative testimony on the issue whether an engine bell was rung, the question is for the jury. Paris & G. N. R. Co. v. Lackey (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 540.

Greater insufficiency of evidence sustaining plaintiff's case is necessary to justify direction of a verdict against him than to warrant setting a verdict for him aside. Keevil v. Fonsford (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 518.

The question whether there is sufficient testimony to go to the jury is for the court. Pt. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. McMurray (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 929.

Where there was evidence to show that defendant's witnesses were compromised, there was no error in instructing the jury to consider the evidence of plaintiff's witnesses alone. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Woy (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 294.

In an action for the death of plaintiff's son at a crossing, testimony by plaintiff's witnesses as to the situation some time after the accident held too remote to raise a jury question as to the situation at the time. Beaumont, S. L. & W. Ry. Co. v. Moy (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 697.

Where neither the evidence admitted nor that offered and excluded was sufficient to authorize a finding of fraud, it was not error to refuse to submit that issue to the jury. McCullough v. Hurt (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 781.

To authorize directing verdict, the evidence must be undisputed and so conclusive as to authorize the drawing of different conclusions. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Frazer (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1161.

In an action for injuries caused by defendant's street car striking plaintiff's automobile, where there was no evidence tending to prove the issue to be submitted, court did not err in instructing a verdict for defendant. Jacobs v. Houston Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 247.

Where there is slight evidence, court should instruct a verdict if its probative force is so weak that it merely raises a suspicion of existence of fact sought to be established, and there is no room for ordinary minds to differ as to the conclusion to be drawn from it. Sovereign Camp of Woodmen of the World v. McCulloch (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1154.

It cannot be said, as a matter of law, that the testimony of a witness who has been impeached should be entirely disregarded, even though it be shown that he is utterly unworthy of belief. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cole (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 146.

The jury alone could pass upon the credibility of witnesses, and though the trial judge doubted the testimony he had no authority to discard it. Zeigl v. Magee (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 631.

Where plaintiff, testifying at a former trial that, when he passed the engine of a work train which later struck him, the fireman was in the gangway, from which place he could not have seen plaintiff when he stepped upon the track, and at the second trial testified that the fireman was at his window, from which place the plaintiff could have been seen, the plaintiff's testimony was corroborated by other witnesses, it was for the jury to say which testimony was true. Angelina & N. R. R. Co. v. Due (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 918.

A peremptory instruction for defendant may not be given on his uncorroborated testimony, proving facts material to his defense. Iowa City State Bank v. Friar (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 261.

Where an injured servant testified that he did not sign a release, it was sufficient to take that question to the jury. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Moya (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 608.
Though plaintiff, in an action for personal injuries while a passenger, admitted that he had misrepresented the extent of a former injury while making a settlement with the party liable, his credibility was not impeached by the jury, and a verdict in his favor was held unsupported by his testimony as matter of law. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Hassell (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 518.

In an action for goods sold and delivered, buyer's letter to seller, omitting the terms of the contract, held for the jury on the question of his credibility as to making a contract upon a precedent condition of delivery. National Novelty Import Co. v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 888.

Plantiff's testimony that the work had not been properly done, though meager, was enough to raise an issue on the vital question, requiring submission to the jury, and making the giving of a peremptory instruction error. Appelbaum v. Spinner-Hay Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 816.

Where the commission agent testified that the president of the corporation principally authorized departure from a written contract, that question was for the jury. Channell Chemical Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 794.

If a party to a contract which was error for the court to direct a verdict for plaintiffs based on the testimony of one of them that her ancestors had a deed to the land from the original patentee, which deed had been lost. Morris v. Parsons (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 241.

When there was uncontested evidence that as the train approached the station plaintiff's wife prepared to leave the train and was ready with her children to leave it when it reached the station, the issue as to care on her part in preparing to leave the train as it approached the station was not in the case, so as to require a charge thereon. Mitchell v. Weeks, of Texas v. McComb (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 699.

In an action on a policy indemnifying against the loss of rents for such period as was reasonably necessary to restore the premises, the evidence being undisputed that from the date of the fire to the restoration of the building the rents were $175, the insurance company contending alone the amount of recovery, the court properly charged that if the time actually spent was no more than was reasonably necessary, they should find for the insured for the sum of $175. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Fires (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 669.

Where the testimony was not actually involved, a deed from defendant to plaintiff, and defendant's acknowledgment that he leased from plaintiff, held to justify an instruction to find for plaintiff as to the title. Wolf v. Lane (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 72.

Where, on a contest between a creditor and the wife of the debtor claiming property in the wife's name, the evidence showed a gift by the wife to her creditors, the question as to when the gift was made was immaterial, within Rev. St. 1911, art. 1971, as amended by Acts 33d Leg. c. 59, and the submission of the question and an insufficient answer thereto were immaterial. Wofford v. Lane (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 380.

If the undisputed facts showed that contracts signed by a buyer were accepted by the seller and acted on as a binding contract, the court should have so held as a matter of law instead of submitting the question to the jury. Texas Co. v. Alamo Cement Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 62.

Where the undisputed evidence in an action for trespass showed that defendants occupied only a portion of plaintiff's land, held error to refuse to instruct that plaintiff could not recover more than the reasonable rental value of that portion of the land occupied by defendants. Piers v. Worth (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 496.

In an action for damages to a farm from pasturing cattle thereon, where the evidence was undisputed that the pasturing in one of the years was without plaintiff's authorization, this should not have been submitted as a disputed issue. Gorman v. Brazelton (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 494.

Where the evidence sustained all the allegations in the petition, and there was no evidence to the contrary, there was nothing on which to direct verdict for defendant. Hodge v. Toyah Valley Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 354.

Where a carrier, when sued for injuries to live stock, proved by uncontested evidence that the injuries occurred while its railroad was operated by a receiver, the court must direct a verdict for it. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Ballou (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 387.

Failure to submit to the jury the issue of the true location of a boundary line held not error, where the evidence conclusively showed such location. Bundick v. Moore-Cortes Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 1050.

A case wholly dependent upon the uncorroborated testimony of a party interested in the litigation, though not contradicted, is for the jury. First Nat. Bank of Plainview v. McWhorter (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1147.

Where the evidence conclusively showed that the grantee in a defectively acknowledged deed, and those claiming under him, claimed under such deed, held, that the court properly refused to submit to the jury whether a curative deed had been given. Ayers v. Snowball (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 287.

It is unnecessary to submit to the jury matters admitted. Avery v. Co. of Texas v. Staples Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 49.

In trespass to try title, the burden being upon the plaintiffs, if their evidence was insufficient, clearly to establish title, the jury might disregard it altogether, and therefore submission of the sufficiency of evidence was proper whether defendants introduced any evidence. Staples v. St. J. & S. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 865.

To submit undisputed facts as independent grounds of recovery is to submit a ques... tion of law, which is always for the court’s determination. Pt. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Yantis (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 969.

Where several material issues are involved, some of which are sustained by undisputed evidence and are within themselves sufficient upon which to predicate a judgment, the court may direct a verdict, notwithstanding the evidence on the other issues is conflicting. Peerless Fire Ins. Co. v. Bevire (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 744.

Though plaintiff makes out a prima facie case on undisputed evidence, some rebutting evidence alone carries the case to the jury. Yeasman v. Galveston City Co. (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 212.

In an action for commissions upon sale of land listed with plaintiff by defendant, but sold by the latter, where the undeniably evidenced showed the agency to have been terminated in good faith long prior to the sale, the defendant should have had an instruction to that effect. Ry. v. Dumas (App.) 191 S. W. 399.

Submission of issue whether employee turned his mule team out of proper road, thus dragging log he was snaking against end of log on skidway, to plaintiff’s injury, held not erroneous on theory that undisputed evidence showed no causal connection between turning from passageway and contact between logs. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Bratcher (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 709.

In action for injury to shipment of stock, where evidence was uncontroverted as to carrier’s negligence during part of carriage, it was error to submit question to the jury. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Harp (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 438.

10. Inferrences from evidence.—To authorize the court to take a case from the jury, the evidence must be such a character that there is no room for ordinary minds to differ as to the inferences to be drawn therefrom. Phoenix Land Co. v. Exall (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 741; Pecho v. Vaughn (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 741; Luten v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 798; Berryhill v. Berryhill (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 218.

Whenever the evidence reasonably authorizes an inference supporting a material issue necessary for a recovery, it is the duty of the court to submit the issue to the jury. Bennett v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 132; Ebersole v. Sapp (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1157.

Where there is evidence from which a conclusion for either party might be drawn, it is the province of the jury to weigh the evidence and reach the conclusion they deem proper. Manning v. Beaumont, S. L. & W. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 181 S. W. 687.

It is proper to refuse to submit to the jury such issues as to which on the evidence only one conclusion is possible. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Lauster (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 969.

Testimony being conflicting, the question of whether false representations were made was for the jury in the trial court. Maddox v. Clark (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 398.

It was proper for the trial court to direct a verdict, though the evidence was conflicting, where the conflicts were immaterial or could not affect the result. Jewett State Bank v. Coriscana Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 747.

Where plaintiff’s evidence, though contradicted, materially supported his allegations of damages, the court properly refused defendant’s request for a peremptory instruction. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Goodwin (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1164.

Where there is a disputed question of fact, the refusal of a peremptory charge is proper. Southern Co. v. Kesser (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 661.

It is a question for the jury, under conflicting evidence, whether a statement, purported to be that of plaintiff made shortly after his injury, was accurately taken down. Truax v. W. & L. Naduor (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1912.

A peremptory charge should not be given where there is in the evidence such conflicts or matters of fact that reasonable minds might reach different conclusions therefrom. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Bryant (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 973.

Where the evidence is conflicting, and reasonable minds might differ as to the inference therefrom, the issue is for the jury. Peerless Fire Ins. Co. v. Bevire (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 254.

In an action on a note, where evidence was conflicting, it was error to instruct a verdict for plaintiff. Ater v. Rotan Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1108.

In an action for purchase by party who purchased real fact that defendants denied fraud charged to them, and denied making representations, merely presented conflict in testimony which it was jury’s province to determine. Barbien v. Grant (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 783; 798.

In an action for breach of contract, it was proper to refuse to instruct for defendant, where there was conflicting evidence on plaintiff’s part as to the terms of the contract. Wolfe City Milling Co. v. Ward (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 967.

Where statute of frauds was not pleaded, and court charged that if sale of lumber was to contractor, and defendant did not promise to pay before delivery to find for him, failure to charge directly as to the statute held not error in the absence of a request. Schramm v. P. J. Owens Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 1016.

As a note given money advanced for defendant for drilling a well, in which defendant counterclaimed for damages from plaintiff’s delay in pointing out a place for drilling the well, plaintiff should have requested a charge as to estoppel from claiming such damages and as to an uncertain claim being sought to be offset against a certain claim, if she desired to submit those questions. Ross v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 518.

It was not error to refuse to withdraw from the jury an issue on which there was no evidence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1123.

A defendant charged no distinct grounds of negligence, and denied the first at the trial, but supported the second by sufficient evidence, defendant was not entitled to a directed verdict, in that its plea of contributory negligence as to the first ground was confessed by failure to traverse. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Woldert Grocer Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 613.

13. Effect of failure to question sufficiency of evidence.—Where record disclosed no motion on part of defendant to direct verdict at close of plaintiff's case, question whether it would have been proper to direct such verdict cannot be reviewed. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Galbreath (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 501.

14. Demurrer to evidence.—Defendants' motion for judgment at the close of plaintiff's case held not technically a demurrer to the evidence and was waived by the introduction of testimony without objection by either party. Ward v. Walker (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 320.

In determining whether there is sufficient evidence to carry an issue to the jury, only plaintiff's evidence should be considered. Charles B. Smith & Co. v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 333.

15. — Operation and effect.—The effect of a technical demurrer to the evidence by defendants is to withdraw the case from the jury and call for the judgment of the court, except where a question of unliquidated damages is to be passed on. Ward v. Walker (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 320.

The effect of a technical demurrer to the evidence by defendants is to admit the truth of plaintiff's evidence and every legitimate inference to be drawn therefrom. Id.

Demurrer to evidence admits every fact and conclusion that the evidence tends to prove; that is, which a jury could legally infer from the evidence. Combination Foun­ dation Co. v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 407.

16. Direction of verdict.—A request to direct a verdict for plaintiff in certain contingencies was properly refused, where the case is submitted on special issues. Beebe v. Sweeney (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 238.

It was error to give a peremptory instruction for defendant, when no evidence had been submitted. Arlington Heights Realty Co. v. Citizens' Ry. & Light Co. (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1109.

In an action for decedent, and to cancel a note, a peremptory instruction to find for defendant "as to all matters set up in plaintiffs' petition" held improper. Martin v. Daniel (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 17.

Where a motion for an instructed verdict is overruled and the moving party thereafter introduced evidence in his own behalf, he waives his right to assign error on denial of the motion. Savage v. Mowery (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 905.

On appeal from a judgment on a directed verdict, the question is whether the evidence may not support a contrary finding. Adams v. A. A. Paton & Co. (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 546.

Where defendant introduced no evidence and by admission in open court conceded plaintiff's cause of action, it is proper for the court to direct a verdict for plaintiff. Workman v. Ray (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 291.

The evidence failing to raise any issue of fact requiring submission to the jury, a peremptory instruction was proper. Childress v. Crow (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 414.

Where plaintiffs had no cause of action against two of the defendants, and one of the plaintiffs had no cause of action, court may dispose of such parties by directed verdict without submitting matter to jury. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Galbreath (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 901.

A requested charge that plaintiff is not entitled to the weekly indemnity for total disability not preventing recovery, though not preventing disability. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Bryant (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 979.

Where evidence upon issues in lineman's action against his employer for personal injury was such that the jury could find a different verdict, the defendant's requests for peremptory instruction upon issues were properly refused. Gulf States Telephone Co. v. Evetta (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 289.

In a landlord's suit against her tenant, charge held a peremptory instruction not only to find for plaintiff for possession of the premises, but their fair rental value from a date until defendant surrendered. Land v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 387.

In action by subscriber for stock of insurance company to recover price paid, verdict held properly directed for defendant in view of want of evidence as to authority of agent to contract for return of price. Overton v. First Texas State Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 514.

In an action against a carrier of live stock for damages caused by delay in transportation, held that an instruction that if defendant received shipment after it was in possession of facts to put it upon inquiry regarding conditions of bridges and tracks, plaintiff could recover, should not be given. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Atterberry (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1133.

That counsel for plaintiffs indulged in improper argument beyond the issues did not entitle defendant to a directed verdict. Padgett v. Hines (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1123.

In action under lease retaining share of crop as rent, landlord held entitled to directed verdict under provisions of lease, notwithstanding tenant's testimony. McDowell v. Rathbun (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 428.

(B) Particular Questions or Issues

18. In general.—Where circumstances were shown which would raise a vendor's lien to secure payment of the purchase price of land sold, it was not necessary to submit to the jury the question of its existence; the lien being established by law. Hales v. Peters (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 388.
Where there was evidence that a letter was mailed, whether it was received by the addressee, since deceased, was a question for the jury, though it could not be found among the addressee's papers. Northern Assur. Co., Limited, of London v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 411.

Where no controversy existed between parties as to salary due plaintiff except as to $3 which was then paid, the acceptance of a check "in full of salary" was not, as a matter of law, an accord and satisfaction, but was a question for the jury. Graham v. Kesler (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 299.

19. Account and accounting.—Evidence, in an action for an accounting, an adjustment of expenses, and a partition, held to go to the jury on the material issues, so that there was no error in refusing to direct a verdict for defendant. Phoenix Land Co. v. Exall (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 474.

In an action for damages for breach of contract, where defendant counterclaimed, evidence held to warrant the submission of plaintiff's claim to the jury, it not conclusively establishing an accounting by which plaintiff agreed to his liability. Arminger v. City Nat. Bank of Paris (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 906.

21. Adverse possession.—It was a question for the jury in the light of the facts of the case whether the acceptance by a party, after his title to land by limitations had been perfected, of a payment from another for repairing a fence on the land showed that his possession was not adverse. Dryden v. Makey (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 302.

It was not for the jury to determine whether title or color of title had been shown by one claiming by adverse possession in trespass to try title. Sullivan v. Fant (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 612.

Evidence held sufficient to go to the jury on the issue of plaintiff's claim to the specific land described in his petition and in the field notes of the surveyor, and of such claim for the period of limitations. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Lambert (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 6.

In trespass to try title, where plaintiff claimed under a prescriptive title, evidence held to raise a question for the jury and not to warrant a directed verdict in plaintiff's favor. Zimmer v. Baugh (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 942.

In trespass to try title, where defendant had gone into possession under a contract of purchase, the question of defendant's repudiation of the contract and adverse holding held, under the evidence, for the jury. McCulloch v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 422.

Where there was evidence that would have justified a finding for defendants on the issue of limitations as to a portion of the land in controversy the court erred in refusing to submit such issue at defendant's request. Wilmot v. Fore (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 1014.

In trespass to try title in which defendant claimed by adverse possession, evidence held to be sufficient to produce a jury issue of whether defendant's possession had stayed under the father, and not to raise the issue of adverse possession by defendant. Harle v. Harle (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 574.

Whether the inclosure and cultivation of 1 acre on a tract of 160 was notice to the owner that the possessor was claiming the 160-acre tract, or any larger portion than that actually inclosed, was for the jury. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 902.

Where the evidence was conflicting on whether defendant had prescriptive title to the part of the land under fence, held that the court properly refused to instruct a verdict for plaintiff for all of the land. South Texas Development Co. v. Manning (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 998.

Where the evidence failed to show any use made by defendants of a portion of land to which they claimed title by limitation or to show that such portion was inclosed for ten years prior to commencement of the suit, held, that the court properly directed a verdict for plaintiff as to such land. Bundick v. Moore-Cortes Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 1000.

Facts held to raise issue as to son's possession and as to mixed or joint possession or occupancy by mother and son, and not to entitle mother to peremptory instruction under the ten-year statute. Wichita Valley Ry. Co. v. Somerville (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 671.

Evidence, in an action of trespass to try title, held insufficient to show, as a matter of law, that the land in question was part of a public street, so as to prevent plaintiff's acquisition of title by limitation as claimed. Buchanan v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 625.

When cotenants of one claiming title under exclusive possession and doing acts of ownership fail to exert rights or meet obligations as to the land, presumption of their ouster arises, raising an issue for the jury, of title by adverse possession. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Davis, 181 S. W. 651.

Occasional use of land under claim of record title, who purchased claims of others claiming to be his cotenants, held not thereby as a matter of law to recognize such claims in derogation of his adverse possession. Id.

In trespass to try title, evidence of plaintiff's title by adverse possession held to be such as to require submission thereof to jury. Village Mills Co. v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 755.

On the issue of adverse possession, evidence of occupation by defendants and their predecessors, and conflicting evidence as to interruption thereof, held not to warrant peremptory instruction for plaintiff. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Stepney (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1678.

Where title to land is claimed by adverse possession, nature of possessor's claim as an adverse holder, a question of fact. Nerio v. Christen, 185 S. W. 1046.

In trespass to try title, evidence held sufficient to require the question of defendant's right to the property under the five-year statute of limitations to be submitted to the jury. Morris v. Parsons (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 241.

Whether the widow of the record owner's lessee lived on the land after her husband's death, but did not claim title by adverse possession in a former suit to eject her, and certain of her children testified that she did not dispute her lessor's title, her hostile holding was a jury question.

22. Agency and respondeat superior.—Evidence of the employment by K., an employee of defendant, of plaintiff physicians to render services to an injured employé of defendant, being within the apparent authority of K., so as to render defendant liable for the services rendered, held sufficient to go to the jury. Gray v. Lumpkin & Thomas (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 889.

Evidence held to raise the issue of good faith in canceling the agency after plaintiff had interested another in defendant's property. T. A. Hill & Son v. Patton & Schenck (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1155.

Evidence, in an action for commissions for effecting an exchange of land, held sufficient to go to the jury on the issue of plaintiffs' authority from defendant to make the exchange. McKinney v. Thedford (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 443.

Whether the theory of an agency or servitude which revocation, if made, would make defendant liable to plaintiff, it was error to instruct peremptorily for defendant. Mason v. Ward (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 456.

Evidence in an action for injury to an employé held to make a question for the jury whether the person who employed plaintiff was an independent contractor, or merely a servant or agent. Corrigan, Lee & Halpin v. Heubler (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 159.

In a personal injury action by one who had been sent by one defendant to install a cotton gin on the premises of the other defendant, evidence held sufficient to take to the jury the question whether the plaintiff was the servant of both or either of the defendants. Dawson v. King (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 257.

One who was authorized by the owner of horses to accompany them during a shipment to sell was held, if got down, to be entitled to execute a contract of shipment limiting the carrier's liability. Southern Pac. Co. v. T. W. Meadors & Co. (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 882.

Evidence held to make question for jury, as to agency for defendant of person employing plaintiff to repair a building. Texas Mfg. Co. v. Fitzgerald (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 891.

Evidence, in an action for damages for deterioration of goods shipped, held to warrant submission of the issue whether defendant's agent, who assumed to compromise a claim and consigned as his shippers agents to do so Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. A. E. Want & Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 903.

Where the evidence was not conclusive that the servants of the defendant stockyards company were under the exclusive control of plaintiff's agent, held, that whether defendant was liable for injuries to stock servants was for the jury. Hoven camp v. Union Stockyards Co. (Sup.) 180 S. W. 225.

Whether servant sent by employer to repair defendants' boiler was subject to direction and control of his master or of defendants held for the jury. Fink v. Brown (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 44.

In an action by a servant for personal injuries, whether servant had such knowledge of the danger as to charge him with assumption of the risk held a question of fact for the jury. Southern Pac. Co. v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 471.

26. Attorney and client.—In an action by plaintiff to recover attorney fees from corporation in which he was stockholder, evidence held not to require directed verdict for defendant, but otherwise so held assumed the risk held for the jury. Nacional & Oregon Land Co. v. Scott & Dodson (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 418.

In an action by attorney upon quantum meruit, on contract for additional compensation made after services had been commenced, the evidence being conflicting as to good faith, held, jury for the jury, and where evidence was for or against a contract that the attorney would not be employed by the opposing party during the litigation and there was evidence to support the allegation and to show breach thereof, the issue raised thereby should have been submitted to the jury. Laybourne v. Bray & Shifflett (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 1159.

27. Bills and notes.—Where, in an action on notes given for the price of stock, defendant admitted giving the notes, and there was no issue of fact presented, the court properly directed a verdict for plaintiff. Hughes v. Four States Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 598.

Evidence in an action against A. as principal and P. and others as sureties on a note held to present an issue for submission to the jury as to whether P. was a principal debtor or the note. Solomon v. Merchants' & Planters' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 1019.

In a suit by transferee of a note, where there was no sworn pleading attacking the validity of the assignment, and the evidence clearly showed that the note was in force, it was proper to direct a verdict for plaintiff. Gaines v. Brown (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 220.

In an action by the indorsee of two of a series of notes, evidence held sufficient to take to the jury the question whether the notes were indorsed after the first of the series became overdue. National State Bank of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, v. Ricketts (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 528.

Whether one of two renewal notes constituted a novation was a question for the jury. First State Bank of Amarillo v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 295.

In suit on a note which was in evidence and its execution admitted by defendant, a claimed accommodation surety, peremptory instruction for plaintiff held proper. Banks v. Bricken (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 296.
defendant ever intended to put it into circulation at all was issue of fact for trial court.

28. Bona fide purchase.—Where plaintiff states the note sued on was indorsed to it before maturity, and produces proof to sustain it, and defendant introduces testimony that another was in possession and the owner of it a few weeks after its maturity, when plaintiff claims to have been its owner, the evidence for defendant requires submission of the question of ownership to the jury. Jones v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1109.

Evidence held to make it a jury question whether the alleged purchaser of the land from a corporation was a bona fide purchaser. Arlington Heights Realty Co. v. Citizen's First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1109.

Where there was nothing in any way to impeach the testimony of the cashier of a bank which held the note in suit that it was purchased before maturity for value and without notice of the payee's fraud, it was proper to direct a verdict in favor of the bank. First Nat. Bank v. Ringhreys (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1109.

In an assignee's action on a negotiable instrument, the question whether he purchased in good faith held for the jury. Douglas v. Lockhart (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 382.

Whether a purchaser of a negotiable note acquired it in good faith is a question of fact. Forester v. Enid, O. & W. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 783.

Whether a grantee who knew that the consideration mentioned in his grantor's deed was not paid, and that the deed was not recorded, was chargeable with notice that the deed was intended as a mortgage, held for the jury under the evidence. Harris v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 469.

Where one who had bought a note and vendor's lien therefor from one who had brought suit on the note, in which suit defendant had filed answer setting up defenses, then in suit in such plaintiff, the question as to whether the note was for the jury, even if he were not chargeable with such notice under the lis pendens statute (Article 6831. Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914). Miller v. Poultier (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 105.

Evidence held to require peremptory instruction for plaintiff in action by holder of notes against the maker and Indorsers. Landon v. Wm. E. Huston Drug Co. (Civ. App.) 290 S. W. 534.

Acquiescence in a boundary line established by an adjoining owner affords a strong presumption that it is the true line, but the weight of such acquiescence is for the jury. Beebe v. Sweeney (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 225.

Where a latent ambiguity in a call for a boundary arises because the proof shows that a line run in accordance with the call will not reach the corner called for, the manner of ascertaining the true corner is for the jury. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 372.

In an action involving a disputed boundary to land, the question whether the line should be governed by courses and distances or by artificial monuments claimed to have been laid out by earlier surveyors, and whether a corner as located by the surveyors was the true corner held, under the evidence, for the jury. McSpadden v. Vannerson (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1079.

Acquiescence under circumstances, not amounting to an estoppel, is a mere fact to be considered by the jury in determining the true location of a boundary line. Bundick v. Moore-Cortes Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 1039.

On evidence in trespass to try title, held, that the proper location of a block on a map is estoppel to the surveyor with reference thereto was a question of fact for the jury. McCormack v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 455.

In trespass to try title, maps constituting necessary part of grant showing conflict with legal notes should have been submitted to the jury. Brand v. Parsons (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 517.

30. Breach of marriage promise.—That plaintiff in action for breach of promise, in answer to defendant's statements that he did not know that he would ever marry and that he did not have the same affection for her as formerly, said that they had better quit, was not, as a matter of law, a waiver or surrender of her rights under the contract. Kalser v. Parnell (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 517.

30. Brokers' commissions.—In an action for commissions for procuring the sale of realty, evidence held to make it a jury question whether the broker procured the purchaser. Shaw v. Faires (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 501.

In an action by a broker for commissions, an instruction authorizing a recovery, and refusal of a requested charge on the subject, held reversible error. Arrington v. Layden (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 475.

In an action by broker for commission on a purchase of land, evidence of revocation held sufficient to require submission to jury. West v. Kirby Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 172.

31. Cancellation, rescission, and abandonment of contracts.—Whether an attorney who lost his interest in land secured by a contract for an interest therein contingent on his success in recovering the same, by abandonment of the fee contract, and by litigation in connection with the land after acquisition, did, on the evidence, for the jury. Phoenix Land Co. v. Excel (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 471.

Where defendant leased part of a farm to plaintiff, agreeing to pay him for supervising the tenants of the remainder, and subsequently, leased to him other parts of the farm abandoned by the tenants, the question whether they intended to abrogate the provision for payment to plaintiff for supervising the other tenants was a question for the jury. Looney v. Evans (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 150.

In an action to enforce the cancellation of a policy containing cancellation clause, and the agents wrote that the policy would be canceled if he would send certain increased premium but not otherwise, it cannot be held, as a matter of law, that insured’s letter operated as a cancellation. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Akin (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 669.

Whether an insurance policy was canceled by mutual consent without the return of the unearned premium held to be a question for the jury, though insured did not ask for the return of the premium may have the same effect without such return. Polemanakos v. Austin Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1134.

In action for refusal to permit plaintiff to perform contract, evidence held to make question for jury as to plaintiff’s abandonment of the contract before defendant’s cancellation. San Lumber & Supply Co. v. Holmes (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 70.

Whether a contract of sale had been mutually rescinded, held, under the evidence, for the jury. Stinson v. Sneed (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 985.

83. False imprisonment and malicious prosecution.—In an action against store proprietor for false imprisonment, petition and evidence held to justify the submission of the question whether defendant's employes took hold of and examined plaintiff against his will and without his consent to ascertain if he had stolen a pin. S. H. Kress & Co. v. Lawrence (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 448.

84. Foreign laws.—Where the evidence of the laws of a sister state consists of reports of judicial decisions of the state, the effect of the decisions is for the trial court, though, where the evidence consists of parol testimony of experts, the jury must determine what the foreign law is. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 906.

Whether, under the Mexican law, a Mexican judge had power to order a bank to pay over a deposit as a payment on a judgment he had rendered against the owner held a question of fact. Bass v. Minster Co., 175 S. W. 711; Bass v. Ross, 172 S. W. 406.

85. Fraud.—Whether the representation that notes of a third person given by defendant in payment of timber were made by defendant before or at the time the first contract was made, whether his later statements to plaintiff in regard thereto were intended to and did induce plaintiff to make a second contract, held under the evidence, for the jury, and whether plaintiff accepted the notes relying upon his own judgment as to the chance to invest the money, held to have opportunity to investigate their value before making the contract, were for the jury. Benton v. Kuykendall (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 438.

Evidence held to require submission of the issue whether a release including the company was procured by fraud. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Walck (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 902.

Where the damages alleged were $96, and the purchase price deposited in a bank was $144, and a plea in abatement alleged want of jurisdiction because the attempted recovery of fraud was the question of fraud, held, the jury, and it was not enough to instruct that, if defendant had not received the deposit of $144, the verdict should be for defendant. Johnson v. Miller (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 592.

Evidence held insufficient to take to the jury the question of fraudulent misrepresentations by the seller of a stock of jewelry as to the quality. Bixler v. Rinn (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 96.

In an action on a note, defendants' evidence, which merely showed a loan from plaintiff bank on the faith of their own and other signatures to a note and default, presented no issue of fraud as to other makers and the bank's notice thereof for submission to the jury. Solomon v. Merchants' & Planters' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 1029.

In an action to rescind a land trade for misrepresentations, evidence of reliance thereon held sufficient to justify the submission of the issue whether the trade was so made. Boles v. Aldridge (Sup.) 175 S. W. 1082, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 373.

Whether a representation was intended by the seller, and understood by the buyer, as an affirmation of opinion and not mere expression of opinion, was a question of fact. Fowler v. Carlisle (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 528.

In a suit for fraud and false representations, where there was ample evidence to sustain plaintiff's allegations thereof, and to show that he suffered damage, the issues were for the jury, and whether he had relied on defendant's representations. Vaden v. Buck (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 716.

In a suit by a subscriber to stock to cancel the note representing the purchase price, whether the party who negotiated the stock subscription contract with plaintiff represented that he was offering the stock at par value, and that such value was $90 a share, held for the jury. Cutikemen's Trust Co. of Ft. Worth v. Pruett (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 716.

Where the pleadings raised the issue of validity of a release for injuries given by the employer on representations of the employer's surgeon that he would soon be as well as ever, such issue was for the jury. Alenkowsky v. Texas & N. Oz. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 956.

Mere statement of vendor that the property was worth more than the contract price was not sufficient for submission of the defense of fraud of the broker in inducing her to sell at less than its value. Leonard v. Kendall (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 786.

In action for misrepresenting amount of land traded to plaintiff, evidence held to make as defendant's fraud a jury question, although plaintiff sent his own agent to inspect the land, where such agent was misled by defendant's representative regarding the boundaries and amount of timber on the tract. Peck v. Robinson & Smith (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 446.

In action against directors to recover amount of loan made to the corporation upon misrepresentations as to its financial condition, evidence held to justify a refusal to direct verdict for defendants. Cameron v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 469.

86. Fraudulent conveyances.—Whether a chattel mortgage was fraudulent as to creditors is a question for the jury, unless the fraudulent intent is apparent on the face of the deed, or unless some interest is admitted, or unless it is a conveyance, has been reserved. Panell v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 340.

Whether the transfer of a note by a debtor was in fraud of creditors held, under the evidence, for the jury. Citizens' State Bank v. McShain (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 565.

Marriage.—Where there is testimony tending to rebut the presumption of validity of marriage, the presumption is for the jury. Adams v. Wm. Cameron & Co. (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 417.

97. Misconduct by physician.—Whether other pressing professional and business engagements furnished a sufficient excuse for the defendant's failure to attend plaintiff's wife, and whether plaintiff was justified in substituting a pistol with a sword, and thus contributed to his failure to exercise ordinary skill and care in the treatment, was for the jury. Lee v. Moore (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 437.

In an action by a husband for injuries to the wife, evidence held insufficient to warrant an instruction on the question whether his wife had suffered a miscarriage at the hands of a doctor, rather than from the jury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Bibb (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 178.

98. Mistake.—In trespass to try title, the question whether a defendant had paid pursuance to another plaintiff's knowledge defendant was entitled to a correction deed describing the land as against plaintiff and such other defendant, held, under the evidence, for the jury. Hodges v. Moore (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 415.

99. Negligence in general.—Negligence, whether of plaintiff or defendant, is generally a question of fact, and becomes a question of law only when the act done is in violation of law or when the facts are undisputed and admit of but one inference. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cardwell (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1073; Luten v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 798.

The issues of a defendant's negligence, and the proximate cause of an injury on account of which a recovery is sought, are nearly always questions for the jury, and never become questions of law for the court, when there is evidence of proximate force in support of the issue. Bennett v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 123.

100. Violation of statute or ordinance.—Whether defendant's freight car, with which plaintiff's automobile collided at night, was left standing in the street for temporary work, and not contrary to ordinance, held for the jury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Marti (Civ. App.) 383 S. W. 482.

Weather-water-closets are within a reasonable and convenient distance of a depot, as required by Rev. St. 1911, arts. 653, 6594, is a question of fact for the jury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 462.

100. Injuries to passengers.—In an action for injuries while traveling on a freight train with cattle, evidence held to justify the submission of the questions as to unnecessarily checking or jerking the car. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1059.

Where plaintiff's wife, who was riding was not physically impossible, so as to require a directed verdict for the defendant. St. Louis Southernwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. McNatt (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 89.

Whether a street railway company was negligent in permitting the exit door of a car to remain open so as to permit a passenger to fall from the car running on a curve held, for the jury. Dallas St. Ry. Co. v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 798.

Where plaintiff, who claimed that his arm was hurt by the falling of a car window, testified that he found it defective, verdict cannot be directed for defendant, on the ground that such claim was contrary to the physical facts because defendant's inspectors and servants testified the window was in good order. Weatherford, M. & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 133.

Whether a carrier should have provided a step box for passengers alighting where there were no facilities therefor held a question for the jury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Kemp (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 552.

Whether defendant carrier's brakeman, claimed to have assaulted a passenger in self-defense, for negligence, was a question for the jury on conflicting evidence. St. Louis Southern Ry. Co. v. Huddleston (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 704.

Refusal of instruction to find for defendant, if plaintiff remained in the waiting room of the station after all business with the railroad company connected with her journey had been entirely finished, held not error, in view of art. 6591, where there was no evidence that more than 30 minutes elapsed between the time she alighted from the train and the accident. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Watts (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 412.

In a passenger's action for injuries from a fellow passenger, held that, under the evidence, the conductor's negligence in not ejecting the offending passenger was for the jury. Ft. W. & Ry. Co. v. Stewart (Sup.) 182 S. W. 893.

It is a question of fact for the jury in each case whether or not the highest degree of care was exercised in the premises by the defendant carrier. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1185.

Whether a carrier owed the duty of assisting a passenger from its train held for the jury. Id.

In action for injuries to passenger, where there is evidence to sustain allegation of one of the acts of negligence alleged, peremptory instruction was properly refused. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Hooper (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 347.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff's wife resulting from cold contracted in an insufficiently heated car, evidence held insufficient to raise the question whether the carrier's servants would have heated the car had they been informed of the wife's delicate condition. St. Louis Southern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rutherford (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 700.

Evidence, in a passenger's action for injuries received when he stepped upon a banana peel discarded, held to authorize submission to the jury of the fact of negligence in permitting the banana peel to remain upon the doorstep. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Yantis (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 965.

In action for injuries to passenger boarding a car, whether a duty arises for employes to fasten to board a car is for the jury upon consideration of all the circumstances. Southern Traction Co. v. Reagor (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 272.

Evidence in a newsboy's action for damages for personal injury by a passenger held insufficient to raise the question whether the carrier's servants were negligent in failing to protect him. Neaville v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 588.

In passenger's action for personal injury while alighting from car held that whether a box, about which a witness testified, was the same box used to assist plaintiff to alight, and whether defendant's employes knew that the box on which plaintiff stepped was there when she alighted or by ordinary care could have known that it was not a safe step. B & T Ry. v. Richichi (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 415.

In an action against a railroad for injuries to a passenger who fell in stepping on a round piece of wood lying on car floor, the question of the negligence of the servants of the company in failing to remove the wood held for the jury. Texas & Pac. Ry. Co. v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 259.

In action for injuries from being struck by a truck on an unlighted station platform, held not error to submit question of the failure of the railway to have the platform properly lighted. St. Louis Southern Ry. Co. of Texas v. McMichael (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 136.

102. Loss of passenger's baggage.—In an action for damages for the loss of wearing apparel stolen from a sleeping car berth, and for consequent mental anguish and embarrassment, defendant's negligence held a question for the jury. Fullman Co. v. Mosle (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 249.

In action against sleeping car company for loss of passenger's money by theft of porter or failure to keep watch over it, evidence that the money was lost and that the порter had an opportunity to take it, there being others in the car with equal opportunity, held not to raise an issue of theft by porter. Pullman Co. v. Franks (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 501.

103. Injuries from defects in streets.—Whether the foreman of a gas company negligently invited a pedestrian to cross its street in a street held a question for the jury. North Texas Gas Co. v. Meador (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 708.

Evidence that defendant maintained guy wire where it obstructed the most natural entrance to a residence held to present question for jury whether defendant power company was negligent in failing to cover guy wire with plank or otherwise and to paint it white. Canyon Power Co. v. Gober (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 802.

When in an action for injuries to a boy, employed when not quite 14, it appeared that he was able to read and write simple sentences in English, the court did not err in refusing to submit to the jury the issue of defendant's negligence in employing plaintiff in alleged violation of Act March 6, 1903 (Acts 28th Leg. c. 25). Stirling v. Bettis Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 915.

The master's negligence held for the jury. Ebersole v. Sapp (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1137.

106. Defective tools, appliances, and places for work.—Evidence, in an action for death of a railroad engine by derailment after a washout, held to make it a jury question whether the company in the exercise of ordinary care could have inspected the tracks and notified decedent of the defect before the accident occurred. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Neill (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1190.

In an action by a car inspector for injuries from falling into a ditch, held, that the questions whether the ground through which the ditch ran was a part of defendant's yard at that place, and under its control, at the time of the accident, were for the Jury. Intervenors v. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1309.

Whether the outer step on a tender which was worn so as to slant downward, instead of presenting a square edge on top, made it more likely that one's foot would slip thereon, was an issue of fact. Foster v. Missouri Pacific R. Co. 161 S. W. 405.

On injury to a brakeman, thrown from wild cars which had come uncoupled, the question of negligence was in furnishing insufficient couplers and in maintaining defective tracks held for the jury. Ft. Worth Belt Ry. Co. v. Cabell (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1083.

In an action for decedent's death while descending from a platform suspended on a messenger wire by a line passing over a pulley attached to an open hook, by the hook slipping off, whether defendant employer was negligent in using an open hook held a jury question. French v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 466.

Evidence held to make a question for the jury as to whether obstruction over which brakeman stumbled as he was getting on moving car was a pile of clinkers, as claimed by him. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Geron (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 471.

Evidence, in an action against a railroad for injury to an employee in its shops from the falling of a locomotive spring, held sufficient to raise the issue of negligence. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Stewert (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 264.

There was no error in directing a verdict for the defendant in an action for the death of a servant by the explosion of an engine, alleged to have been old and unsafe, where there was no evidence that it was unsafe, or as to the cause of the explosion, though there was sufficient evidence to raise the issue as to its being old. Graves v. San Antonio & N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1599.

In an action for an injury to a servant caused by a dummy elevator falling which the servant was dismantling preparatory to the installation of new elevators, held, under the evidence, a question for the jury whether the master exercised due care. American Machinery Co. v. Haley (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 83.

It could not be said as a matter of law that if a railroad was not negligent in failing to inspect and repair a defective car door, which came open and struck a brakeman, it was negligent in failing to use due care to close and fasten the door when the train started on its trip. Kansas City Southern Ry. Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 115.

In railroad engineer's action for injuries caused by slipping on running board, evidence held to make a question for the jury as to the company's negligence in permitting oil to be on the running board. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bloland (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 133.

In railroad engineer's action for injuries caused by slipping on running board, evidence held to justify submission of issue as to a defect in the air pump permitting oil to escape. Id.

On evidence in an action for a switchman's death by falling from a car upon its sudden stop to avoid striking an iron pipe, on the issue whether the pipe was placed on the track by the employee of the impaled defendant, held, that the trial court did not err in peremptorily instructing a verdict for such defendant. Ft. Worth Belt Ry. Co. v. Jones, 166 S. W. 1130, 106 Tex. 345.

In an action for an injury to a station agent caused by his falling from the platform into the tracks after the steps were removed to construct the ditch, the court properly submitted to the jury the negligence of defendant in removing the steps and in leaving the ditch uncovered. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Graham (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 55.

In an action for injuries to a servant by the fall of a wall, defendant held entitled to have the issue of latent defects in the wall submitted to the jury. Gordon Jones Const. Co. v. Lopez (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 957.

Where the facts are such that reasonable minds may differ whether a master exercised ordinary care to provide a safe place for work, it could not be said, as a matter of law, that there was no negligence. Wells Fargo & Co. Express v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 465.

Where a minor employed was injured by having his hand caught in the rollers of a printing machine that had no foot brake nor fender, whether defendant had used reasonable care in furnishing such machine was for the jury. Magnolia Paper Co. v. Duffy (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 88.

That a machine whereby an employed is injured is one customarily used in the same line of business does not as matter of law, exonerate the employer for liability for injuries. Id.

Evidence held sufficient to take to the jury the question of a railroad company's negligence in furnishing a defective hand car for plaintiff's use. St. Louis Southern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ewing (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 300.

Where a servant claimed that his injuries were caused by the master's negligent failure to fasten a ladder leading to a fuel oil tank, the question whether the master was guilty of negligence in that respect held properly submitted to the jury. Smith v. Webb (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 814.

It is the duty of the employer to furnish a reasonably safe implement for the work required, and whether it was the duty of a railroad company to furnish a tool car with a motor starting apparatus was a question for the jury in a servant’s action for injuries in attempting to start the car by pushing it. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Cosio (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 83.

Where a switchman was injured by jumping from a car derailed for the second time in a few minutes because of rigid tracks, it was a question for the jury whether the inspection of the car was properly made. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Webb (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 424.

In a railroad employe’s action for injuries when the sides of a narrow ditch on which he was working caved in, held, that there was no error in overruling defendant’s motion for a directed verdict. Turner v. M. K. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 493.

In an action by a switchman injured between the running boards of two cars, evidence held to raise the issue of negligence with respect to defective drawheads or coupling appliances allowing the cars when switched to come too close together on striking. Southern Pac. Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 117.

Under the common rule for establishing negligence, where there was evidence that the railroad car on which a switchman was injured by breaking of a handhold had been delivered to the company recently, and that the company had not have been discovered by a customary careful inspection, question of the road’s negligence was for the jury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Sherer (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 404.

Evidence held sufficient to take the jury the question of the employer’s negligence in failing to furnish a safety belt to a derrick man. Hodges v. Swastika Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 369.

In action for death of brakeman killed while between cars to make a coupling question of railroad’s negligence held for jury. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Galbreath (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 901.

Question, whether injury to car inspector from explosion of tank car ought to have been anticipated by defendant road as the probable result of allowing defective car to remain in yard, held for the jury. Magnolia Petroleum Co. v. Ray (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1955.

It is for the jury whether a furnace was in safe condition in which to work, and whether it was the foreman’s duty to inspect the furnace and determine whether it was safe. Consolidated Kansas City Smelting & Refining Co. v. Dull (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 439.

In a railroad linemen’s action for injury while riding in an engine cab to inspect wires, his forehead being struck and skull crushed in as the engine passed the bridge, defendant’s negligence held for the jury. Detro v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 317.

In action under federal Employers’ Liability Act by railroad’s employe, question whether there was negligence in furnishing hammer and nails which plaintiff’s fellow servant was using, and which caused his injury, was of fact to be determined from facts found by jury. Comanche & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Pitts (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 538.

Where the evidence showed that if the employer had coupled coal cars together, they would not have collided with the car in which plaintiff worked, and injured him, the question of whether the employer was negligent in not doing so was for the jury. Rule Cotton Oil Co. v. Russell (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 892.

The defective condition of the running boards on two cars between which brakeman was injured was not made a jury question by testimony that they came so close together as to make the car’s body, into which he had been caved in, thereby adhere to the defective boards. Southern Pac. Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 265.

In a servant’s action for injuries caused by falling of lumber from a car which plaintiff was injured in unloading had to have stays on side of car before it was unloaded held for the jury. Santa Fe Tie & Lumber Preserving Co. v. Burns (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 548.

107. Negligence in operation of railroads.—In a section hand’s action for injuries, plaintiff’s testimony that when he stepped on the cinders and sank down the men engaged with him in lifting a hand car “turned the hand car and pushed it on” him held to authorize submitting their negligence to the jury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Martinez (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1167.

Where the rear end of a passenger train did not clear a switch, and so a very long freight which was on the switch could not pass the passenger train, and thus clear the main line, the failure of those in charge of the freight to protect the rear end by signals in accordance with the rules warranted a charge on their negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Bosheer (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 35.

Under the evidence, held a question for the jury whether the trainmen could have foreseen that plaintiff would probably jump from the car. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Walters (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 525, reversing judgment on rehearing 166 S. W. 916.

In an action for personal injuries received by a railroad construction employe, the question whether the engineer of the train which struck plaintiff did see him held, under the evidence, to be a question for the jury, notwithstanding the denial of the engineer that he saw the plaintiff. Angelina & N. R. R. Co. v. Due (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 919.

Evidence held sufficient to warrant submission to the jury as to whether fault of train employees was guilty of negligence proximately causing a passenger train fireman’s injuries in failing to post and put out a flag at a sufficient distance to warn the passenger train. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 168, vacated and cause remanded.

In an action for the death of an engineer caused by the failure of the switch tender to throw a switch, the court properly submitted the question whether the engineer had the right to rely upon a go-ahead signal received from the switch tender. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Doubl (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 282.
The affirmative evidence of a circumstantial nature, in an action for injury to an employee on a gravel train, from the instant stop of it, from sudden application of the air brakes through a breaking of the air hose, held sufficient of the air hoses of the train was not properly attached, and therefore a question of negligence in improper operation of equipment of the train. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Geary (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 201, judgment reversed (Sup.) 172 S. W. 545.

Evidence held to make question for jury whether injured section hand got upon hand car and was injured returning to do work, it being claimed an employee had started it for the same purpose. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Elevins (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 283.

The question of the cause of the derailment of the locomotive held, under the evidence, for the jury, in an action by the injured engineer. Kansas City Southern Ry. Co. v. Coomer (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 544.

Evidence held to make question for jury as to negligence of engineer, or foreman of a switchman, as to whether the switchman knew which cars were kicked upon a side track. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Moore (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 904.

Evidence of negligence of a station porter in throwing truncs about the platform, one of which fell on a switchman, held insufficient to carry the case to the jury. Sanderson & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Blair (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1186.

In an action for injuries to a railroad brakeman, evidence held sufficient to take to the jury the negligence of the engineer in making an emergency stop when the signal for the ordinary stop was given. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hargrave (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 699.

Where an engine crew has information giving notice that a car inspector may leave the car on which he rides parallel with the engine's track and put himself in position to be struck by the engine when the crew should foresee he would do so was a question of fact for the jury. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Walters (Sup.) 179 S. W. 880.

In a car repairer's action for injuries by being struck by an engine, when he jumped from a car on a parallel track, held, on the evidence, that the question whether defendant's servants was ignorant of the approach of the engine was for the jury. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Walters (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 525, reversing judgment on rehearing 161 S. W. 916.

In a car repairer's action for injuries by being struck by an engine, held, that the question whether defendant's servants knew the train would stop, and ran in front of the engine, and whether defendant's employees on the engine exercised ordinary care to prevent the injury, and, if they did not, whether their exercise of such care could have averted the injury, was for the jury. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Walters (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 916, judgment reversed on rehearing 185 S. W. 525.

In a servant's action for injuries in operating a tool car on an interstate railway, it is a question for the court whether the servant's injuries were received while employed in interstate commerce, therefore federal statutes shall control. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Costo (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 93.

In an action by a switchman injured when a car was let down against the cars on which he was riding, the question of negligence in compelling the last car at an excessive speed, not raised by the evidence and improperly submitted. Southern Pac. Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 117.

It cannot be said that railroad, as matter of law, was not negligent, in crushing its brakeman between two cars attempted to be coupled, because conductor did not know where the brakeman was. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 579.

Testimony that a car was kicked into the car on which plaintiff was standing, the force indicating it was moving 15 or 20 miles per hour, makes its speed a jury question. Southern Pac. Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 288.

108. —Promulgation and enforcement of rules.—Where a brakeman was injured by a hook and knocking over a car swinging out on the track, and there was no rule or custom requiring the fastening of the doors of such cars does not require the direction of a verdict for the defendant. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Tune (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 238.

109. —Orders, and warning and instructing employees.—In an action for injuries to a conductor the submission to the jury of the question whether the conductor was ordered by the train dispatcher to bring in certain "bad order" cars, either directly or under the instructions of the foreman of a wrecking crew. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Wilkes (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 126.

In a servant's action for injuries to his foot from the wheels of a wagon driven by another, to hold, that the question whether the driver's use of the words, "get up here if you are going with me," was negligent, was for the jury. Carter v. South Texas Lumber Yard (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 636.

Evidence, in an action for death of an elevator operator, held to make it a jury question whether the person in charge of the operators was negligent in directing the work to be done in a negligent manner. Modern Order of Praetorians v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 17.

Evidence, in a section hand's action for injuries from a hand car falling against him when his foot sank in a pile of cinders, held to authorize submitting to the jury whether the foreman was negligent in ordering the car to be moved. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Martínez (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1167.

In an action for injuries to an employé while assisting in carrying a tie, caused by the employés dropping it under orders of the foreman, evidence held that the question of whether the employé was or was not the cause for the injury to the employé was for the jury. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 658.

As between a master and a minor servant, not instructed as to the dangers of his employment, it is a question for the jury whether he acquired sufficient knowledge of the danger to exempt the master from liability for his injury therefrom. Cook v. Urban (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 251.
Whether there was an extraordinary risk, from nuts weakened by rust, of which an inexperienced servant, directed to tighten nuts on handholds on a box car, should have been warned, held a question for the jury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 617.

Evidence held sufficient to warrant submission to the jury of defendant's failure to warn of dangers, to furnish a safe place and to properly direct the work. Stockey & White v. Moors (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 774.

Where plaintiff, who was injured while on a ladder furnished by the master, claimed the master was negligent in failing to warn him, and the evidence on that issue was conflicting, the question whether the failure to warn was negligence was for the jury. Smith v. Webb (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 814.

Evidence held to warrant submission to jury of question whether employer's foreman ordered servant to work in furnace while it was dangerous owing to extreme heat. Consolidated Brick Co. v. Dill (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 459.

Evidence held insufficient to warrant submission of issue whether foreman was negligent in failing to warn of danger which caused his injuries. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Tedmeda (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 259.

110. — Number and competency of fellow servants.—Where, in an action for injuries to a section hand while attempting to remove a hand car from the track, the evidence showed that a car weighed about 300 pounds, and that one person could take a car off the track, and that three men were engaged in removing the car, the issue of the carrier's negligent failure to furnish a sufficient number of men to handle the car safely was not raised. Missouri, O. & G. Ry. Co. v. Boring (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 76.

Evidence held to make defendant's failure to furnish sufficient workmen a jury question. Stockey & White v. Mears (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 774.

In a servant's action for injuries from a strain from carrying a heavy timber where it appeared that plaintiff had made a protest before carrying the timber but had no thought of sustaining an injury, held evidence held insufficient to justify submission of question of negligence of the defendant to the jury. Rice v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 667.

111. — Negligence of fellow servants.—In an employee's suit for injuries against lumber company, question of negligence on part of defendant's other employé making logs with a four-mule team, held for jury. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Bratcher (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 700.

In an action for injuries to employé working at machine, whether operator of machine, plaintiff's fellow servant, was guilty of negligence was for the jury. Armour & Co. v. Morgan (Sup.) 394 S. W. 942.

114. — Injuries to persons on railroad track.—In action for death of a person struck by a train while on the track, evidence held insufficient to justify submission of alleged negligent danger of speed of the train as a basis for recovery. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Loftis (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 403.

Whether the speed of defendant's train was too great under the circumstances held for the jury. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 438.

In an action for personal injury to boy of nine, who, while on pathway crossing defendant's track, was injured by shunted car, held, on evidence, that whether pathway was one commonly used by public was for jury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Key (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 492.

In an action against a railroad for death of plaintiffs' minor son, while walking on the tracks, whether defendant negligently operated its engine at a high rate of speed held for the jury. Chicago, R. L. & G. Ry. Co. v. Loftis (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 530.

In a widow's action against a railroad for death of her husband at a crossing, issues whether deceased was killed at the crossing, whether the train operators in striking him were guilty of negligence which was the proximate cause of his death, and whether the train was being run without an automobile headlight were for the jury. Luten v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 798.

Evidence held to present a question for the jury as to whether a railroad company, operating a street car, was negligent in driving cars on a track which was not suitable for such purpose as to cause such standing cars to strike plaintiff, who was crossing the track. Broughton v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 354.

115. — Defects in roadbed or tracks.—Whether a railroad company was guilty of negligence proximately resulting in injuries to the driver of a horse, which ran away at a crossing which was torn up because of repairs, and whether the driver was guilty of contributory negligence or assumed the risk, held to be questions for the jury. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Evans (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 702.

Under Rev. St. 1911, art. 6455, requiring a railroad company to restore a crossing, it is a question for the jury whether a crossing was properly restored or kept in repair. Horton v. Texas Midland R. R. (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1023.

116. — Frightening horses.—In an action for injuries to plaintiff by frightening his horse, while waiting to drive across the track, evidence held to justify submission of question of speed of the train at the time of the accident as an independent act of negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Burk (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 629.

117. — Signboards and flagmen.—The question of the railroad company's negligence in failing to keep a watchman at the crossing held for the jury. Texas Midland R. R. v. Wiggins (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 445.

Whether defendant in the exercise of ordinary care was required to station a flagman at the crossing, especially when it was about to back trains over it in order to warn persons about to use the crossing, held for the jury. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 428.

The issue of negligence in not maintaining a flagman, on the theory of the crossing being unusually dangerous, held for the jury. Southern Pac. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 264.

118. — Signals and lookouts from trains.—In an action for damages at a crossing, evidence of negligence in failing to keep a lookout held insufficient to go to the jury. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 322.
In an action for the death of a person killed on the track, evidence held insufficient to show negligence of defendant's railroad and its employees' failure to keep a proper lookout as a ground of recovery. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. v. Loftis (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 402.

Whoever a death was caused by ringing of a bell and blowing a whistle in a way reasonably calculated to apprise a man of ordinary prudence of the approach of the train held Ry. v. Cunningham (N. D. O. R. Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 366.

In an action for death at a crossing, evidence held to make question for the jury as to whether the statutory signals were given. Texas & P. Ry. v. Moody (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 167.

In a widow's action against a railroad for death of her husband at a crossing, whether the trainmen failed to keep a proper lookout, ring the bell or blow the whistle, or otherwise give warning was for the jury. Luten v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 759.

Evidence held to present a jury question whether one injured by railway cars received due warning of their approach. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 739.

Evidence held to warrant submission to jury of issue of negligence of railway employees in running at high speed without warning, proximately causing death of deceased. Texas & P. Ry. v. Co. v. Miles (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1138.

119. Injuries to animals on or near railroad tracks.—Where plaintiff's horse was killed on a track where there was no stock law in force, and where animals were in the habit of grazing at will on defendant's right of way, evidence of the operation of the train at a high rate of speed without signals held sufficient to carry the question of defendant's negligence to the jury. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 111.

In an action against a railroad for injuries to stock driven on its right of way and run into by a freight train, where there was no evidence upon the issue of discovered peril, a verdict for the railroad held properly directed. Irving v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. 164 S. W. 1100. (Citing judgment 157 S. W. 751 on rehearing.)

In an action for the value of a mule killed by one of defendant's trains, where there was evidence of defendant's negligence in the particulars charged, the question of negligence was properly submitted to the jury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. With­ er­ (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 5.

Under conflicting evidence, in an action for the value of a mule killed by defendant's train, held, that the question whether defendant was guilty of negligence proximately causing the injury was for the jury. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. v. Knowles (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 214.

In an action for killing horses on a right of way, evidence held sufficient to take defendant's negligence to the jury. Kansas City Southern Ry. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 944.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff's horses, which were frightened and attempted to cross a railroad cattle guard, the question whether the railroad company's guard was sufficient held, in view of Rev. St. 1911, arts. 6596-6600, properly submitted to the jury. International & G. N. Ry. v. Vogel (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 229.

Whether defendant railway company used all available means to avoid a collision between its train and plaintiff's horse and wagon, which were awaiting freight at a station, after discovering the danger of such a collision, held, on the facts, to be a question for the jury. Moore v. Schwettemer & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Schwettemer (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 314.

120. Injuries by fire set out in operation of railroad.—Evidence held to make question for jury whether fire which destroyed plaintiff's pecan trees was set out by defendant's locomotive, and hence verdict for defendant was improperly directed. Schattenberg v. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 8.

In an action for the firing of plaintiff's barn, evidence held sufficient to go to the jury where the petition alleged that all of defendant's engines were defective, and conflicting evidence on that point was introduced. Texas Midland R. & R. v. Ray (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1013.

In a suit against a railroad company for the firing of adjacent property, evidence held insufficient to go to the jury on any theory; the cause of the fire being wholly conjectural. Talley v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 65.

In an action against a railway company for the destruction of plaintiff's house by fire from the spark of a locomotive, evidence held to justify direction of verdict for defendant. Moose v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 75, writ of error granted (Sup.) 180 S. W. 225.

121. Injuries to property from operation of railroad.—In action against a railroad for damages to plaintiff's basement by surfacing of defendant's sewerage from natural course by defendant's elevated roadway, evidence held sufficient to take to jury question of defendant's failure to provide proper culverts or sluices as required by Rev. St. 1911, art. 6495. Pence v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 538.

122. Injuries to persons at stations.—In an action by one who fell down an elevator shaft in a station, evidence of the company's negligence in maintaining in a dangerous condition what was an apparent exit held sufficient to go to the jury. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Winerich (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 993.

123. Injuries to children on trains.—In action for injuries to plaintiff, a small child, when he was caused by being on defendant's elevated and diverged from natural course by defendant's elevated roadway, evidence held sufficient to take to jury question of defendant's failure to provide proper culverts or sluices as required by Rev. St. 1911, art. 6495. Pence v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 538.

124. Injuries in operation of street railways.—In an action for injuries to a pedestrian who was hit by a bridge, which in a defendant street railway company, held a question for the jury whether defendant's failure to restore the bridge to its original condition was negligence. Cleburne St. Ry. v. Dickey (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 475.

125. Injuries from live electric wires.—Where plaintiff's husband was electrocuted by a broken electric transmission line, a witness' testimony held to make defendant's negligence in not having automatic circuit breakers attached to the line a jury question. Abraham Gas & Electric Co. v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1016.

130. Notice.—Ordinarily knowledge of an existing state of facts is a jury question, Kimmell v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 283.

132. Partnership and rights and liabilities incident thereto.—Where the pleading and the evidence raised the issue of a consummated partnership, and there was slight evidence to establish such issue, it was for the jury. Look v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 407.

Whether the person to whom delivery was made was a partner of the consignee held for the jury under the evidence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Missouri Iron & Metal Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 597.

135. Proximate cause.—In an action against a carrier for damages for delay in a shipment of live stock, evidence held to raise the issue whether the carrier's negligence proximately caused the holding of the cattle on board the cars beyond the required time. Atchison, Topeka & S. F. Ry. Co. v. H. Word (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 633.

Ordinarily, the question whether an injury should have been foreseen and was the proximate result of the negligence complained of is for the jury. Ft. Worth Belt Ry. Co. v. Cabell (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1985.

The question of remote or proximate cause of loss is one of law to be decided by the court. Eagle Pass Lumber Co. v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 402.

The question whether the consequences should have been anticipated is for the jury only when the evidence is such that they might find for the wrongdoer. Waterman Lumber Co. v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 127.

Evidence that an overflow was caused by obstructions placed in a stream by defendant, held for the jury. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Kezer (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 661.

In an action against a carrier of live stock for injuries to a jack, question whether foundering was caused by defendant, held for the jury. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Grimes (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 63.

In action against railroad for damages to land from flood caused by negligent construction or maintenance of culverts, the question whether the damages were caused by such embankment and culverts or would have occurred from natural conditions is for the jury. Scott v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 269.

In pedestrian's action for injuries by cars, plaintiff having died before trial, refusal of requested instruction on proximate cause of death, as being the injuries or a subsequent fail, held error. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 739.

136. Injuries to passengers.—In a passenger's action for the loss of an eye due to a particle of metal being blown through an opening of an open toilet and embedding itself in his eye, held that the question whether the accident was one that ought to have been anticipated by defendant was for the jury. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 984.

Whether the act of defendant's porter in directing a passenger to alight and showing him toward the door of a moving train and defendant's failure to stop the train was the proximate cause of the passenger's death, he having been killed by being run over when alighting, held for the jury. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Keith (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 143.

In action for injuries in derailment, evidence held not to show, as a matter of law, that the breakage in the first rail struck by the train was the proximate cause of the derailment. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Berthea (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1087.

In suit against a railroad for death of a shipper, riding with his goods, the question whether the death held for the jury under the evidence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Norris (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 261.

Evidence that a passenger's automobile was caused by being rained on through an open broken car window held sufficient to go to the jury. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Sikes (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 412.

In an action for injuries to a child boarding street car and being assisted by conductor, question whether conductor's negligent assistance was proximate cause of injury was for the jury. Southern Traction Co. v. Reagor (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 272.

137. Injuries to persons at railroad crossings.—That plaintiff's mule on which he was riding was frightened and ran away, resulting in plaintiff's injury by striking his head on projecting bolts of a bridge negligently maintained over an underground passageway by defendant, did not relieve defendant of liability for its negligence; the proximate cause of the jury for the determination of the injury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cardwell (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1973.

139. Delay in transmitting telegram or in affording telephone communication.—That addressee of telegram informing him of his mother's death had received another shortly before advising him that she was paralyzed and speechless, but had not gone to see her, held merely to make a question for the jury whether he would have attended the funeral. The Kansas City v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 272.

Evidence held to make question for jury as to whether plaintiff would have reached child's bedside before it died, if telegram had been promptly delivered. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Forest (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 294.

140. Wrongful death.—In action by pedestrian for injuries when struck by railway cars, evidence held to make jury question whether his injuries resulted in death or whether his death pending suit was from other cause, as to permit revival under art. 5588. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 739.
141. Injuries to employees.—In an action for injuries to the conductor of a freight train in a collision between the separate sections of the train, which had pulled apart and collided, with the evidence of the question whether a failure to comply with the safety appliance act, requiring 75 per cent. of the cars to be equipped with air brakes, was the proximate cause of the injury. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Wiener (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 326.

In an action for death of an employé caused by injuries sustained while fighting fire, whether defendant's negligence was the proximate cause of the injury held, under the evidence, for the jury. Bennett v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 132.

In a personal injury action by a railroad brakeman, the question whether the employé's negligence was the proximate cause of the injury held under the evidence for the jury. Ft. Worth Belt Ry. Co. v. Cabell (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1083. Evidence held insufficient to make jury as to whether negligence in permitting men to work in railroad yards with brilliant lanterns, exposed them to any way to railroad switchman's injuries from a collision of a car on which he was riding with another. Paris & G. N. R. Co. v. Flanders (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 95.

Evidence held to warrant submission to jury of question whether impaired condition of servant's health resulted from extreme heat of furnaces in which he worked, Consolidated Kansas City Smelting & Refining Co. v. Dill (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 439.

Whether another railroad employé pulled the stake that released timbers that fell, and whether the timbers fell as a result of the act, held for the jury. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 761.

In laundry worker's action for injuries, held proper to refuse to submit issue whether her negligence was proximate cause of injury. Kampmann v. Cross (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 437.

142. Public lands.—In trespass to try title to school lands, evidence held to make a question for the jury as to whether defendant, at the time of his application to purchase the land, had settled thereon in good faith, desiring it as a home. Patrick v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 698.

Mere absence by a purchaser of public free school lands for eight or nine months does not as a matter of law necessarily constitute an abandonment of the property as the purchaser's permanent place of abode. Anthony v. Ball (Sup.) 183 S. W. 1142.

143. Ratification.—Evidence held to make a question for the jury as to whether defendant ratified an agreement after her husband's death. Smith v. Guerre (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 417.

144. Reasonableness of ordinance.—Whether an ordinance, or a regulation of a quasi municipal corporation as a school board, is reasonable, is a question of law for the court, although it may depend largely upon surrounding circumstances. Zucht v. Board of School Trustees (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 840.

When facts alleged to make ordinance unreasonable and void are controverted, they must be determined by jury; but whether they show ordinance to be unreasonable or not is for court. Munger Oil & Cotton Co. v. City of Grossbeck (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1121.

145. Reasonable time.—Whether a vendor delivered a deed within a reasonable time the contract fixing no time is a question for the jury. Zavala Land & Water Co. v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 523.

What is a reasonable time within which to express dissatisfaction with a chattel sold on trial is ordinarily a question of fact under the circumstances surrounding the parties. Street v. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 725.

General rule is that it is a mixed question of law and fact as to what constitutes a reasonable time for the performance of a contract when no time is fixed by its terms. Potter County v. Boesen (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 757.

Unless facts are undisputed, what is a reasonable time for performance of contract is for jury, being a mixed question of law and fact. J. W. Crowdues Drug Co. v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 484.

146. Residence.—In an election contest, the question whether a voter had resided in the county for a sufficient length of time to vote, held a question of fact. Aldridge v. Hamlin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 602.

153. Title and possession.—In an action for wrongful attachment, evidence of attachment debtor's statements that he did not own the attached property held not to justify the submission of the ownership in view of his explanation thereof, showing that the statements were made under a misapprehension of his legal rights, and the other evidence showing ownership by him. Carroll v. First State Bank of Denison (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 632.

Evidence in trespass to try title held not sufficient to raise the question of a presumed deed in defendant's claim of title to such degree of certainty as to require its submission to the jury. Lafferty v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 879.

Evidence in an action on a vendor's lien note or, in the alternative, for recovery of the land held to warrant a directed verdict for defendants, where the note and land were not owned by plaintiffs, but had been allotted to another joint owner with plaintiffs in a parcel partition. Scott v. Watson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 288.

The question as to whether the claimant had possession, or as to who had possession, held for jury. Nat. Refining Co. v. Ft. Wayne, Ind., v. Howard (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 719.

In a suit against a railroad for killing and injuring mules, evidence held to make the plaintiff's ownership when they were killed or injured a question for the jury. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 357.

There was evidence sustaining plaintiff's claim that the renting to defendant was by the month, and defendant's that it was by the year, and that she paid rent after its expiration, the court properly declined to direct verdict for plaintiff, though defendant's plea in reconvention relied on a rental contract for a year which had expired before suit, Hamlett v. Coates (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1144.

Evidence held sufficient to carry to the jury the issue whether land claimed by the wife to be exempt from husband's creditors was her separate property. Amend v. Jacob (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 723.

In trespass to try title to land sold in tax proceeding against unknown owners, whether the county attorney had exercised such diligence as would have ascertained the ownership before the proceeding, held a question for jury. Hume v. Carpenter (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 707.

In suit to establish ownership of certificate in corporation and for new certificate in lieu of an alleged lost trustee's certificate, evidence held to make plaintiff's ownership of the certificate a question for the jury and to support a verdict for defendants. Converse v. Galveston Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 539.

In suit for commissions for selling corporate stock, where evidence showed that stock issued in lieu of stock owned by president was traded by him for a lot, it was error to refuse to submit issue of whether stock belonged to president or company. Moroingsport Oil v. Bridge (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 493.

Evidence that money deposited with defendant bank was credited to order of proposed bank and that defendant's cashier so stated makes jury question whether money was deposited for proposed bank or for depositor's individual benefit. 1d. Where a third person claimed liens levied on, the question of ownership being made one of fact by Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 7755, was for the jury.

156. Trespass.—In an action to recover damages caused by cattle which the owner had turned into plaintiff's field, evidence as to the inclosure of the field held to justify a refusal of defendant's request for a directed verdict, because the field was part of a common inclosure in which the defendant had a right to pasture cattle. Tandy v. Astle (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 468.

157. Trusts.—Whether plaintiff contracted with Q. to purchase certain school lands, agreeing to furnish half of the price, so that Q. should take title to one-half the land as trustee, held for the jury. Eller v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 579.

159. Usury.—Whether a contract apparently innocent upon its face is usurious is a question for the jury. Cotton v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 597.

When waiver is pleaded and supported by evidence, such issue should always be submitted to the jury. Frigid Fluid Co. v. Sid Westheimer Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 334.

163. Wrongful levy.—Issue as to excessive levy held properly submitted to the jury under the petition and evidence. Brady-Neely Grocer Co. v. De Foe (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 1135.

Evidence held sufficient to warrant submission of the issue of malice in suing out a writ of sequestration. Half v. Co. Waugh (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 839.

(C) Instructions Inading Province of Jury

166. Credibility of witnesses.—Instruction that testimony of railroad company's employees could not be arbitrarily disregarded held properly refused; their credibility being for the jury. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 488.

Requested instructions assuming facts not in evidence are properly refused. Stevens v. Crosby (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 62.

An instruction assuming a fact which was not conclusively shown by the evidence was properly refused. Anderson v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 54.

A charge directing the jury to return an answer to a special issue submitted is not erroneous as assuming facts in issue. Richardson v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 566.

Material facts controverted by the evidence should not be assumed in the charge. Shanan v. Lane (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 306.

A charge which assumed the existence of facts on which the evidence was conflicting was properly refused. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 511.

A requested instruction, assuming a fact as to which the evidence raised an issue, is properly denied. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 346.

171. Contracts and actions relating thereto.—A requested charge was properly refused, in an action against a railroad company for injury to live stock en route, which assumed that the written contract of shipment should be considered in determining the measure of liability, though there was evidence tending to show its invalidity. Galveston H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Sparks (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 943.

In suit for injury in the sale of land, an instruction that, if defendant unreasonably delayed boring a well that would produce sufficient water for irrigation for the purpose for which plaintiff, within defendant's knowledge, purchased the land, etc., held erroneous as assuming that defendant had agreed to bore a well which would produce sufficient water for irrigation, which was a contested issue. Zavala Land & Water Co. v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 28.

In an action against the initial carrier for negligent handling and delay in transportation, where there for through shipment assumed was a controverted fact, San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Grady (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1019.

In an action on note, instruction held not objectionable, as assuming that court thought that part of defendants were sureties. First State Bank of Amarillo v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 295.

In action on fire policy, court did not err in refusing a peremptory instruction for defendant assuming, as a matter of law, that the evidence was not sufficient to raise the issues of waiver and estoppel. Mechanics' & Traders' Ins. Co. v. Dalton (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 771.

In action on note for insurance premium, a requested instruction, assuming that a contract regarding the note was not abrogated by the company's refusal to issue the policy, was properly refused. Texas Life Ins. Co. v. Huntsman (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 655.

172. — Actions relative to property.—In trespass to try title, a charge, assuming that plaintiffs were in actual possession of the land when it was entered by trespassers, but concluding with the admonition, "if you find from the evidence that she, or they, were in possession of the same," held not objectionable as assuming such possession. Glover v. Pfeuffer (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 984.

In a suit to remove a cloud, where the evidence raised the issue whether the land was a public alley, a charge assuming that it was not is properly refused. Perrow v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 573, rehearing denied 181 S. W. 496.

173. — Actions for torts in general.—In action for injuries to property in crossing accident, an instruction held properly refused, even if otherwise proper, because it made driver's failure to heed warning negligence per se, whether or not an ordinarily prudent person would have observed the warning. Texas Midland R. R. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 1083.

174. — Negligence in general.—A requested charge which assumed, as a matter of law, negligence from a contested fact was properly refused. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 553.

In an action for delay in delivering a telegram, an instruction on defendant's liability for negligence of the sending agent in informing plaintiff that the message had been delivered held not objectionable in assuming defendant's negligence under certain circumstances, etc. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 598.

An instruction specifying different features of negligence for which, if established, defendant might be liable, held not error as assuming negligence by defendant. Rio Grande Ry. Co. v. Sarnes (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 566.

An instruction that plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence in the use of an underground passageway if he knew such use to be dangerous held properly refused as invading the province of the jury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cardwell (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1073.

Requested charge that jury should not consider damages to cattle by reason of the cows and calves being loaded in the same car was properly refused; as it assumed that it would be negligence to load them together, and excluded question of ordinary care in so loading them. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Vaughn (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 142.

Instructions should not assume that certain facts constitute contributory negligence, but leave such issue to the jury. Abilene Gas & Electric Co. v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1016.

175. — Personal injuries in general.—In action to recover for death by electrocution an instruction that defendant's failure to turn off the current under certain circumstances constituted negligence is erroneous. Abilene Gas & Electric Co. v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1016.

In an action for injury to a railway mail clerk from a falling letter box, continued after his death by his surviving children, instruction as to defendant's negligence and liability held objectionable as upon the weight of the evidence in assuming that defendant furnished a defective car and failed to inspect the car. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 159, judgment reversed (Sup.) 173 S. W. 398, motion to re-tax costs granted (Sup.) 177 S. W. 964.

In a pedestrian's action for injuries when struck by railway cars, instruction, assuming that, as a matter of law, if he attempted to cross the tracks without looking or listening and after warning he was negligent, was properly refused, when he testified that he did look. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 729.

177. — Injuries to passengers.—In an action against a carrier for personal injuries, charge that "if you find from the evidence that after plaintiff's wife was so injured (if held not objectionable) assuming her injury was caused and hence her husband's liability on the weight of the evidence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. McCormick (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 429.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff's wife while boarding a train, a charge held not erroneous as started with a jerk which caused plaintiff's wife to lose her balance. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Kruger (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 677.

In an action for injuries caused by the failure of a railroad company to keep its station warmed and lighted for one hour after the departure of a passenger train, as required by 4560, it was not erroneous as assuming that the plaintiff was a passenger. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cook (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 453.

In action for injuries to woman alighting from street car, instructions held not erroneous as assuming the conductor's failure to exercise due care. Galveston Electric Co. v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 822.
In action for injuries to plaintiff's wife, an instruction that defendant was bound to use the highest degree of care for her safety held erroneous as not predating such care upon determination whether she was a passenger and assuming such to be a fact in violation of this article. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1028.

Injuries to servants.—In an action for injuries to a servant, an instruction which assumed that he knew of the danger in operating the machine, was misleading, where he knew of one danger but not of the particular danger which caused the injury. Wichita Falls Motor Co. v. Bridge (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1161.

In servant's case by burns from steam, who was burned conducting the steam to a drill blew off owing to the excessive pressure and the failure of the safety valve to work, the court could assume in its charge that the master was guilty of negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Burton (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 479.

Instruction that, if foreman directing work unduly hastened employee, or if plaintiff employee was injured as alleged, plaintiff would be entitled to recover, held erroneous as whether such acts were negligence, and whether such negligence was the proximate cause of the injury, should have been submitted to the jury. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Moreno (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 540.

In an action for injuries to a railroad construction employee, an instruction on the doctrine of last clear chance held not erroneous, as assuming that the engineer and fireman of the work train discovered plaintiff's peril in time to have avoided the injury. Angelina & N. R. R. Co. v. Due (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 918.

There being evidence making issues for the jury, on which depended the question of a minor servant in a dangerous service having assumed the risks, unequivocally charging that he assumed all the risks ordinarily sent to his employment was affirmative error. Cook v. Urban (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 251.

In servant's action for injury from explosion in defendant's cement plant, instruction on assumption of risk held not objectionable as assuming an accumulation of coal dust as alleged in the petition. Western Portland Cement Co. v. Moreno (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 221.

Refusal of special charge on contributory negligence, which issue was submitted, held not error, where it assumed that brakeman placed himself in a more hazardous position than was necessary. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Galbreath (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 901.

179. — Damages and amount of recovery.—In contractor's action for damages from refusal to permit him to perform, instruction on measure of damages as to considering irregularity of the job, distance from the contractor's home, and other expenses, held properly refused as assuming that such matters were parts of the expense of performance. Waterman Lumber & Supply Co. v. Holmes (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 70.

In suit for damages to a shipment of cattle, instruction on measure of damages held objectionable as assuming a difference between the value as they were and their value had they arrived earlier, and as assuming that the cattle were damaged and failed to arrive in a reasonable time. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Shankle & Lane (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 115.

In an action for injuries to a passenger by being thrown down in the aisle of a passenger coach and injured by an extraordinary and unusual bump as the engine was coupled, to the movement not), the severity of the collision, the court properly assumed that the carrier was negligent. Quannah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 406.

When there was no dispute that the injuries to plaintiff continued up to the time of the trial, it would not be error in the charge to assume that his suffering continued to that time. Yellow Pine Paper Mill Co. v. Lyons (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 999.

Instruction which assumed a breach of a contract of sale held not erroneous where the undisputed fact showed such breach. Standard Milling Co. v. Imperial Rice Co. (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 637.

In an action against a passenger carrier for damages caused by failure to furnish proper facilities for taking a train, it was not error for the court in his charge to assume that the plaintiff had never to a right to ride; the carrier having made no attempt to sustain the burden on it of negating that fact. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Voss (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 603.

In an action on an insurance policy, where the actual issuance of a policy was not controverted, the court properly assumed it as a fact. International Order of Twelve Knights & Daughters of Tabor v. Denman (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 980.

In an action for an amount due on a contract, where it was liquidated, it is not improper for the charge to assume that any recovery should be for the sum agreed upon. Spires v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 457.

In proceedings to condemn land for a right of way of a ditch, an instruction assuming a fact held not erroneous under the evidence. McKenzie v. Imperial Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 495.

A party who admits in his pleading a fact is bound thereby, and the court may assume that fact in its instructions. Richard Coxe & Co. v. New Era Gravel & Development Co. (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 988.

Where the execution of a deed by complainants to defendant was not a controverted issue, the court could charge the jury that they did so execute it. Irwin v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1059.

Where the evidence is conclusive that plaintiff was an invitee when injured, an instruction requiring the railroad company to exercise ordinary care to keep its premises 501.
safe for him was not erroneous for assuming that he was an invitee. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Olow (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1124.

The court in his charge may assume, as established, facts alleged in the petition and not denied, and which are supported by undisputed evidence. Melado Land Co. v. Field (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1136.

In an action for injury to live stock in dipping, an instruction assuming that some dipping had taken place was not erroneous, where that fact was uncontested. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Caple (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 880.

Since the state treasurer's receipt for the money paid by a purchaser of school land and a subsequent positive evidence afforded by an entry on the treasurer's account that the payment was made on June 28th, it was not error for the court to assume in an instruction that payment was made on June 28th. Houston Oil Co. v. McGrew (Sup.) 176 S. W. 45, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 191.

An instruction on acquisition of title by adverse possession held not objectionable, in view of the undisputed evidence, as invading the province of the jury. Id.

Opinion or belief of judge as to facts.—In an action for negligence in transporting a shipment of cattle, an instruction which might have conveyed the impression that the court did not believe the evidence justified a finding that defendants were negligent was properly refused. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Treadwell & Wilkison (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1089.

Instruction, in action to quiet title, held not improper for indicating what the findings of the jury should be. Crosby v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 705.

In an action by real estate broker who claimed to have been the procuring cause of a sale, a charge informing the jury what fact in the opinion of the court would constitute the procuring cause is improper; that being a question for the jury. Andrew v. Mace (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 598.

A requested charge, which is on the weight of the evidence, and which, so far as proper, is covered by the general charge, is properly refused. Miller v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 251.

Charges should not be held on the weight of the evidence. Thornburg v. Moon (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 959.

Nature of instruction in general.—An instruction consisting of abstract statements of the principles of law governing the case, and not affirmatively presenting the issues involved, is not on the weight of the evidence. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bryan (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 400.

An instruction as to the inconclusiveness of recited consideration in deed should be omitted or so phrased as not to be on the weight of the evidence. Crass v. Adams (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 510.

Conflicting evidence.—An instruction that a person who stated to vendor in purchaser's presence that he made no claim to land was estopped thereby held properly refused as on the weight of evidence, where the evidence was conflicting as to what was said in such conversation. Blount v. Henry (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 418.

A charge that the undisputed evidence showed that defendant was indebted to plaintiff after all the undisputed items were deducted in a certain sum held to invade the province of the jury, where such evidence was not undisputed. Look v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 497.

A charge that defendant's action for injuries, charge was not on weight of evidence which told jury that there was a customary and proper passageway for hauling of logs other than way which defendant's mule driver took, a point undisputed in evidence. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Braicher (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 706.

Nature of action or issue in general.—In an action for a broker's commission, a requested instruction that letters, introduced by the plaintiff as declarations on the part of the defendant of plaintiff's exclusive agency, failed to show such agency, was a charge upon the weight of the evidence. McFarland v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 362.

Actions relating to property.—In an administrator's action to recover certain property, an instruction that the jury should consider a house and lot in G. as the community property of the deceased wife of plaintiff's intestate and her former husband held erroneous, as on the weight of the evidence. Douthitt v. Farrar (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 182.

An instruction in trespass to try title held objectionable as on the weight of the evidence. Davis v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 913.

An instruction in an action for land claimed by defendant by adverse possession in submitting the question of defendant's intention, that the intention or lack of intention of a party may be determined by the facts and circumstances in evidence was not on the weight of the evidence. Allison v. Arlington Heights Realty Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1062.

A requested instruction relative to the comparative weight of locative calls, and directory or incidental passing calls contained in field notes, held properly refused as on the weight of evidence. Heiferman v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 845.

A charge that the jury should not consider the fact that defendant's deed made calls for an alley, the existence of which was in controversy, is improper, being on the weight of the testimony. Petrow v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 975, re-hearing denied 181 S. W. 496.
In an action involving disputed boundary line, a charge on an agreed boundary line held improper as on the weight of the evidence. Cosgrove v. Smith (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 199.

Instructions, in trespass to try title to land alleged to be part of an old grant, that the jury should consider only the boundary issue of mistake in old plat and as it existed before the grant, were not erroneous, as they were not in error to determine where the boundary was. Crosby v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 705.

A charge that it was the duty of a surveyor to extend a correct description of courses and distances into the field notes, and map accompanying such field notes, and until reversed was proper. It would be a virtual denial that the surveyor did his duty in all respects, held not erroneous, as on the weight of the evidence. Dunn v. Land (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 698.

190. — Contracts and actions relating thereto in general.—An instruction that plaintiff would be entitled to recover if the jury believed its testimony, unless the contract had or was breached, was not objectionable as a charge on the weight of the testimony. Cooper Cotton Oil Co. v. Cooper Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 491.

An action for breach of a lease to which defendants claimed their signatures had been obtained by the fraud of plaintiffs' agent, an instruction, containing a clause "by reason of the fraudulent representation" of such agent, was not objectionable as on the weight of the evidence. Taber v. Eyler (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 490.

In an action for broker's commissions, alleged to have been earned by negotiating a contract for the exchange of real property, an instruction that if the jury believed a certain fact, hypothesized, plaintiff was entitled to recover $171, held not objectionable as on the weight of the evidence. Tevebaugh v. Smith Land Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 664.

Instructions that, in an action on implied contract, it is only necessary for the plaintiff to show that he performed acts as the broker of the seller, and that the latter adopted and approved, and that, "whatsoever was the procuring cause of the sale, * * * it is immaterial * * * that he did not personally conduct the negotiations, * * *" were not objectionable as upon the weight of evidence, being mere abstract legal propositions not applicable directly to any issue. McKinnon v. Ford (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 443.

In a garnishment proceeding against the owner of a building for labor and materials furnished a contractor, an instruction that, if the latter did not construct the house in accordance with the contract, the owner could only retain an amount sufficient to remedy the defects held not objectionable as on the weight of the evidence. Fink v. House (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 481.

In an action for alleged necessary, instruction to find the goods to be necessary as against the defendant called to impress the jury that there was evidence of negligence, was erroneous, and held improper. Trammell v. Neiman-Marcus Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 271.

Instruction on right of the holder of an option to purchase land to have proceeds of sales to other persons applied to his debt held not on the weight of evidence. Lester v. Houston (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 258.

191. — Bills and notes.—In an action on a note, a requested instruction held properly refused, being on the weight of the evidence. First State Bank of Amarillo v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 295.

192. — Sales.—In an action for price of lumber which defendant claimed to have rejected, where his pleading and evidence showed the use of a small quantity of the lumber by mistake, instruction that he could not accept in part and reject in part held properly refused as on the weight of the evidence. Continental Lumber & Tie Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 927.

193. — Carriage of goods and live stock.—In an action against a carrier for injuries to a shipment of live stock, a charge that one claim of negligence was that the cars were improperly bedded, and that if this fact was true it was negligence, was not upon the weight of the evidence, in that it impugned the plaintiff. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Mulkey & Allen (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 111.

In an action for injuries to shipment of cattle which the shipper accompanied and unloaded and dipped under quarantine regulations, instruction that the carriers owed no duty to deliver them in good condition, but were only responsible for negligence, held not on the weight of the evidence. Good v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 670.

In an action against connecting carriers for injuries to cattle, a charge that there was no evidence warranting a finding that the cattle were roughly handled by the first carrier, where there was evidence from which that fact might have been inferred, was a charge upon the weight of testimony. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Hawkins & Nance (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 390.

In an action against a carrier for rough handling and delay in transporting cattle, an instruction held properly refused as on the weight of the evidence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lindsey (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 708.

In action for damages to shipment of live stock, requested charge as to the manner in which cattle recovered after the injury should be refused, as a charge on the weight of the evidence. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 128.

184. — Transmission of telegrams.—The requested instruction, in an action for delay in delivering a telegram, announcing death and place and time of funeral of the victim, was proper, that the wife was presumed to know the schedule of trains which she could take and thereby seasonably reach such place is properly refused as on the weight of evidence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 289.

96. Negligence in general.—A requested charge that the existence of certain facts would constitute the negligence held objectionable as a charge on the weight of the evidence. Carter v. South Texas Lumber Yard (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 626.

In an action for the injury to plaintiff's sailboat by defendants' failure to lift a bridge, which they were operating under a contract with the owner, high enough to permit the vessel to pass, it was error to charge, as a matter of law, that a failure to lift the bridge to a perpendicular position was negligence; that being a jury question. Galveston-Houston Electric Ry. Co. v. Stautz (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 11.

A requested instruction that, if the hostler cut off a valve, and thereafter the valve was opened by some person unknown, a verdict should be returned for defendant, held properly refused, as being, in effect, a peremptory instruction that defendant's hostler was not negligent. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. v. Dickey (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1897.

Where the instructions in their entirety required the jury to find as facts the participation of negligence complained of, that failure to lift the weight of the evidence. Kansas City Southern Ry. Co. v. Coomer (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 84.

In action against sleeping car company for loss of wearing apparel and consequent mental embarrassment, instruction upon defendant's negligence held to be upon the weight of the evidence and reversible error. Pullman Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 249.

In an action for damages to an automobile by a street car, an instruction held properly refused, as objectionable as a charge on the weight of the evidence. Adams & Washam v. Southern Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 275.

In action for destruction of property by fire communicated from boarding cars on defendant's siding, defendant's requested special charges, directly on the weight of the evidence, were properly refused. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Moerbé (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 128.

A request that defendant's hostler had right to assume that brakeman had right wires crossed track with which he could come in contact, and that character of work and surrounding conditions might be considered in determining contributory negligence, held not objectionable as charging upon the weight of evidence. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1771.

An instruction that unless you believe from the evidence by a preponderance thereof that the said injuries, if any, received by said H. were direct and proximate cause of death, you cannot find for plaintiff, is not on weight of evidence in assuming that defendant is responsible for injuries. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1091.

98. Personal injuries in operation of railroads in general.—In an action for injury to plaintiff by frightening his team while walking to drive across the track, an instruction that defendant had no right to assume that a safe place to stop in approaching a railroad crossing with a team was a place where travelers usually stopped. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Burk (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 629.

An instruction requiring the operators of trains over city crossings to keep such a lookout as would intimate to persons on the crossings as a person of ordinary prudence would keep under like circumstances, considering the character and extent of the use of such crossings, held not on the weight of the evidence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Kennon (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 867.

In an action for injuries to an intoxicated passenger by falling out of an open vestible door of defendant's coach, an instruction that the door should have been closed, and that the carrier was bound to exercise a high degree of care to accomplish that end, held erroneous as on the weight of the evidence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Christian (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1103.

Instruction that it was negligence for passenger to pass from car to platform while the car was moving held properly refused as invading the province of the jury. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 488.

200. Injuries to servants.—In a switchman's action for personal injuries, a charge that, if the roadbed was so defective as to make switching dangerous, defendant was negligent was error. Trinity & Brazos Valley Ry. Co. v. Lamsford (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 677.

In a brakeman's action for injuries by slipping from a step of the tender, as to the dangerous condition of the step and as to defendant's negligence in maintaining it held not on the weight of the evidence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Martin (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 406.

In a personal injury action by a servant, a charge that, if plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence, he or she contributed to his injuries, if any, this would not bar recovery, but would only go in diminution of damages, is in substantial accord.
II. FORM, REQUISITES AND SUFFICIENCY OF INSTRUCTIONS

(A) In General

212. Written instructions—Reading or delivery to jury.—Despite Court Rule 62a (149 S. W. x), the failure of the trial court to prepare and read its charge to the jury before argument held prejudicial, though no objections to the charge given were given or reserved. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Parke (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 397.

This article and article 1796, which require the court to prepare and read its charges to the jury before argument, are mandatory. Id.

215. Language and punctuation.—Court should avoid word "desideratum" and use instead words generally used and concerning the meaning of which jury can have no doubt. Dunn v. Land (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 698.
Repetition.—In action for injuries to person attempting to pass between cars of train blocking a crossing, special charge held not to unduly repeat an issue already submitted in the general charge. Englefield v. International & G. N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1038.

Repeated references in an instruction as to the conditions upon which plaintiff may recover upon claim for recovery, is not undue repetition, for if the repetitions are necessary to apply the rules of law to the various phases of the evidence, and the grouping of the facts of the particular case in an instruction, after generally defining assumed risk, and the application of law thereto, was not erroneous as an undue repetition of the defense of assumed risk. Carter v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 587.

Where the evidence is so conflicting as to authorize the jury to find for either party, instructions so emphasizing and repeating the theory of plaintiff's cause that they amount to a peremptory instruction for him are erroneous. Raisinger v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 597.

In trespass to try title, held, that a charge as to defendant's claim under a void sheriff's deed and by estoppel, containing a repetition of what constituted an estoppel and as to defendant's burden of proof was not a proper presentation of the law of the case. Lafferty v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 375.

Where the issue of contributory negligence was submitted in several paragraphs of the charge, it was immaterial that other paragraphs did not refer to such issue. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Stogner (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 515.

Where contributory negligence is defined in one paragraph of a charge, the definition need not be repeated in another. Glover v. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 1063.

Repeating 12 times in the charge that the jury must believe "from a preponderance of the evidence" the facts alleged by plaintiff tended to emphasize the burden cast by law on plaintiff, and was probably harmful. Cook v. Urban (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 351.

Sufficiency as to subject-matter in general.—Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 1075, providing that judge shall prepare and deliver written charge to jury on law of case, is not to be incorporated into an article, requiring that before being read to jury, do not relieve trial judge of common-law duty to give charge on law of case, unless expressly waived. Whaley v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 409.

Statement of issues.—Where the issues were correctly set forth in the charge, error cannot be assigned to the failure in the preliminary statement of the case to state the allegations of the petition in connection with an instruction that the burden of proof rests upon defendant. Yellow Pine Paper 155 S. W. 679.

While it may not be necessary to make a preliminary statement of the issues raised by the pleadings, it is not error in the charge to state the issues by copying a part of the petition. Lisle-Dunning Const. Co. v. McCall (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 810.

In an action against a surety, where the answer alleged that the plaintiff had failed to record the mortgage securing the debt, an instruction that defendant's answer alleged an agreement between the parties that the plaintiff was to exhaust the mortgaged property before the defendant should become liable was a misstatement of the issues. Baker v. Drake (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 870.

It is the better practice for the trial judge to summarize the pleadings on the issues to be determined. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 138.

— Referring jury to pleadings.—It is the better practice for the court in its charge to distinctly instruct the jury as to the issues involved, and the practice of referring the jury to the pleadings for the issues is not to be encouraged. Adams & Washam v. Southern Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 275.

Instruction referring jury to plaintiff's petition for statement of injuries claimed is not erroneous, although the court mentioned wrong paragraph of the petition. Andrews v. Wilding (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 195.

— Conflicting issues and verdict.—A plaintiff may rely upon inconsistent grounds of recovery, and, where he may prevail upon either, he can have both submitted to the jury; but the instructions embodying such submission should be in the alternative, rendering it plain that a recovery may be had upon only one. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Matkin (Sup.) 174 S. W. 1098, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 604.

Evidence and matters of fact in general.—Where junior surveys were admissible to show their general location on the ground, but not to establish lines and corners of a tract, instructions that the junior surveys were to be considered for all purposes except the bald declaration as to the location of the line should not be considered, were sufficient to limit the legitimate purpose of the evidence. Maddox v. Dayton Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 388.

— Stating, grouping or summarizing facts or evidence.—When it is proper for an instruction to refer to a statute, its provisions should be stated and the jury informed as to what bearing they have on the case. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Bandy (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 347.

In an action against railway company for failure to maintain substantial bridge which in flood damaged county bridge, requested instructions held not to present a consideration of all relevant facts. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Milam County (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 571.

— Directing verdict if specified facts are proved.—Whether certain facts constitute negligence being for the jury, unless duty is imposed by statute, etc., it is error to direct finding upon mere finding of existence of acts alleged, without further finding on part of jury that such acts constitute negligence. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Price (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 666.
233. Presumptions and burden of proof.—In an employee's action for injuries, where there is no clear or plain contributory negligence shown by evidence, the court should charge that the burden is on the defendant to prove contributory negligence. Reliable Steam Laundry v. Schuster (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 447.

Where there was no contention that notices of assessments were or could have been mailed as required by defendant, an instruction that the burden of proof was upon defendant to show that notices were mailed at that time held objectionable. State Division, Lone Star Ins. Union, v. Blassengame (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 6.

In action on policy prohibiting assignment, unless otherwise provided by agreement, instruction that notification to the insurer was not sufficient, that assent by the insurer was also required, and that, if notification was given, its assent would be presumed, unless it would be proper and not erroneous, as placing the burden on insurer to prove nonassent. Northern Assur. Co., Limited v. London v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 411.

Where the court charged that plaintiff had the burden of proving the material allegations of the petition by a preponderance of the evidence, a charge directing a recovery for defendant if certain facts were not established was not objectionable as leading the jury to believe that defendant had the burden of proof. McIndoo v. Wood (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 488.

An instruction that, if the jury found from the preponderance of the evidence that plaintiff had no reasonable expectation of receiving any pecuniary benefit from the defendant, the jury should find for defendant was erroneous as placing the burden of proof upon defendant to show that defendant did not have contributed anything to plaintiff. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 621.

In action to rescind contract for fraud, instruction that contracts are presumed fair, and not fraudulent, and that the party attacking them had the burden of proving fraud, held properly refused, as it was improper to charge as to the effect of such presumption. Underwood v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 88.

In an action for injuries to an employee from the negligence of the foreman giving an improper order, a charge directing a verdict for the employer if an ordinarily prudent person, in like circumstances, would have given the same order, was harmless error. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Balthrop (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 246.

In an action against a carrier for injury to live stock, a charge held not error as placing the burden upon defendant to show a defense, where the burden was expressly placed on plaintiff to prove his case by another instruction. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cauble (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 588.

In an action for injuries to horses during shipment, instructions as to the burden of proof held sufficient. Southern Pac. Co. v. W. T. Meadors & Co. (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 882.

The court, in charging the jury, should apply the rule as to the burden of proof to plaintiff's alleged cause of action, and then apply it also to defendant's defense or defenses. Instructions as to whether certain facts are or are not established or proved, as the evidence held misleading and by implication to shift the burden of proof, where such facts are a mere negative of the cause of action, but not objectionable when such facts constitute a defense, are not objectionable. Bessette v. Boswell (Sup.) 180 S. W. 592.

Instruction, that burden was on plaintiff to show defendant instituted prosecution without probable cause and with malice and intent to injure, was not bad as depriving plaintiff of benefit of presumption of malice and intent arising from want of probable cause, or as asserting that defendant could be actuated with malice while without intent to injure. Rainey v. Old (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 923.

A charge that shipper had burden of proof in an action for injuries to a shipment held not objectionable on theory that where carrier receives shipment in good condition, it is bound to excuse injury. Cleburne Peanut & Products Co. v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1070.

In an action on purchase price notes, a requested instruction that plaintiff had the burden of proving its compliance with the sales contract is properly refused as misleading after defendant burden had the burden of showing the contract was obtained by fraud or breached by plaintiff. Varley v. Nichols-Shepard Sales Co. (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 611.

234. Failure to produce evidence.—Where the general charge authorized a recovery if defendant was negligent in constructing or operating its electric plant, it was error to rest on grounds of negligence not supported by evidence. Abilene Gas & Electric Co. v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1018.

235. Weight and effect of evidence.—The rule that in a particular case the evidence must be clear and convincing to justify equitable relief by reformation of an instrument should not be given in the charge to the jury. Western Assur. Co. v. Hillyer-Deutsch-Jarratt Co. (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 816.

240. Preponderance of evidence.—Where the court had charged that the burden was upon the plaintiff to establish his case by a preponderance of the evidence, it was proper to refuse a requested charge that if the evidence left the jury in doubt, they should return a verdict for the defendant. Moore v. Lehmann (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 31.

242. — Degree of proof required in general.—Charge requiring facts relied upon as grounds for refusal to be established by clear and convincing evidence, held to impose too great a burden. Wyatt v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 16.

In action to rescind contract for fraud, instruction that contracts are presumed fair, and that the party attacking them had the burden of proving fraud, held properly refused as argumentative. Underwood v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 88.

A requested charge, which is argumentative, and which, so far as proper, is covered by the main charge, is properly refused. Miller v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 251.

Instruction in action by optionee on contract of sale held not argumentative. Lester v. Hutson (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 268.

246. Confused or misleading instructions.—Instructions in an action for injuries to an employee defining vice principal, held not misleading. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 349.

In an action against connecting carriers for injury to cattle, an instruction that defendant was liable, if at all, only for the loss or damage, if any, accruing on its own line, and neither defendant was liable for any loss occurring on any other of the defendants' lines, was not defective as confusing the terms "occurred" and "accrued." Missouri Pac. Ry. Co. v. Cheek (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 427.

In instructing, the word "act" instead of "injury" in defining proximate cause held not to have misled the jury, nor subject to complaint by a party who asked no special charge. Reliable Steam Laundry v. Schuster (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 447.

An instruction allowing compensation for nursing and attention to plaintiff's child until "cured" of his injuries, because, by the instruction, defendant claims she would never be cured, as "cured" means the act of healing, to heal a wounded limb, and the jury could not have construed it as contended. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Wininger (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 831.

In an action against a carrier for personal injuries, charge as to plaintiff's efforts to procure treatment and as to defendant's liability held not objectionable as being misleading or confusing. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. McCormick (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 439.

Charge, in brakeman's action for injury, that unless the jury should find the existence of all the facts enumerated in a previous paragraph of the charge they should return a verdict for defendant, held not confusing. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Martin (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 465.

In a will contest, an instruction that it was incumbent upon proponent to prove to the satisfaction of the jury that testator was possessed of testamentary capacity was misleading. In re Bartels' Estate (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 859.

Where, in trespass to try title, plaintiffs claimed no title by limitation to land which passed from their ancestor to defendant, but only to another tract in controversy, a charge that plaintiffs could not claim by limitation land which passed by regular chain of title from their ancestor to defendant was not misleading; there being no contention that defendant claimed title to the tract in controversy from plaintiffs' ancestor. Gosch v. K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 767.

Where court charged that to constitute sale the agreement must be unconditional, failure to again use the term "unconditional" in stating facts to be found to warrant finding for plaintiff held not misleading. Alamo Trust Co. v. Prudential Life Ins. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 760.

Instruction, in action by optionee on contract of sale, held not ambiguous. Lester v. Hutson (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 288.

In an action against a carrier for damage to cattle by delay an instruction that plaintiff might recover for extra shrinkage and bad appearance was not improper as misleading in mixing two elements of damage, since they are so nearly similar in character as to be substantially a common cause of loss. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 311.

In actions for injuries from crossing accident, an instruction held erroneous as confusing and apt to mislead. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 284.

Though the doctrine of presumed grant had no application in trespass to try title in which the issue was as to boundary, a charge that there was no issue of limitation and that the evidence should not be considered as establishing any adverse claim or right was unnecessary and misleading. Dunn v. Land (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 689.

In actions to recover for injuries to passengers when thrown from defendant's street car, an instruction on negligence of plaintiff in attempting to alight while car was in motion, and as to proximate cause held not misleading. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Evans (Sup.) 193 S. W. 1067.

247. Inconsistent or contradictory instructions.—In an action against a carrier for personal injuries, charge as to plaintiff's efforts to procure treatment and as to defendant's liability held not objectionable as being contradictory. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. McCormick (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 429.

A jury cannot be required to harmonize conflicting charges, and, where such charges are given, which may be material, the case will be reversed. Trinity & Brazos Valley Ry. Co. v. Lunsford (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 677.
Instructions, in an action for commissions for assisting to exchange property, concerning plaintiffs were acting for both parties held not inconsistent. T. A. Hill & Son v. Patton & Schwartz (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1156.

A special charge making the carrier responsible for overloading cars with live stock, if it supervised the loading, was conflicting with another charge exempting the carrier from liability for overloading the cars, if done by the railroad. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Sparks (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 943.

Instructed that burden was on plaintiff to prove facts submitted as material to defense. Held, contradictory and calculated to load the jury to believe that defendant had the burden of disproving negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Dozier (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1019.

Where, in an action for the price of cotton, defendant pleaded estoppel, and the court charged affirmatively in one part of the charge that plaintiff must prove his case by a preponderance of the evidence and in another part charged to find for plaintiff if defendant had not established its plea of estoppel, there was error, as it could not be told upon which theory the verdict was rendered. Wold-Neville Cotton Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 667.

Instructions that burden was on defendant to prove payment pledged, and that receipt was prima facie evidence of payment, held not to conflict. Richards v. Osborne (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 392.

In action against carriers for delay in transportation, instruction that neither carrier was responsible for damage not directly or proximately caused by it, and another instruction that the initial carrier was responsible for the delay on any of the connecting carriers, and therefore entitled to recover over against the carrier responsible, held contradictory. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Caudle (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 369.

Instruction authorizing recovery if right of way fence was not sufficient under ordinary circumstances that it was not the duty of the party to keep gates shut, and that if the carrier entered while the gates were open to find for defendant, held not in conflict. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Scheer (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1069.

As to claim of plaintiff for property levied on as property liable for judgment debt, a charge that a debtor's sale must be accompanied by open change of possession held not to conflict with one explaining delivery and possession. First Nat. Bank of Ft. Wayne, Ind., v. Howard (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 719.

In action for damages for failure to deliver telegram addressed to plaintiff relative to seller's offer of stock, charge and special charge as to such offer held not conflicting. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Gorman & Wilson (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 925.

In a street car passenger's action for injuries from falling from the running board of a car, held, that instructions given relative to negligence and contributory negligence were not conflicting. Tennessee v. Galveston Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 72.

248. Undue prominence of particular matters.—A requested special charge embodied in the main charge should be refused, where to give it serve to unduly emphasize the point. Rodgers v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1117.

Defendant is not entitled to select a single allegation of the petition and require the court to charge that, to recover, plaintiff must have established it by a preponderance of the evidence. Hamilton Compress Co. v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 474.

Undue emphasis of the cause of one party by reiteration of charges as to damages is improper. Heldenfels v. School Trustees of School Dist. No. 7, San Patricio County (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 356.

In suit for damages to a shipment of cattle, instruction repeating all the issues of negligence already submitted in preceding instructions gave undue emphasis to those issues. Smith v. Western Union, Southern Ry., Co. of S. W. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 658.

249. — Evidence and matters of fact in general.—A party's right to a charge on any specified group of facts which might constitute a defense does not require the giving of a number of differently phrased charges on such group of facts since this would probably give undue prominence to such facts. Mayfield v. Gause (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 927.

Charge held improper because singling out facts in case and giving them undue emphasis. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 963.

In an action on a note plaintiff claimed to have secured for value before maturity, submission of issue whether plaintiff received the note on a particular day held improper, giving undue weight to evidence that it was not received on that date; for plaintiff was holder in due course of it and received it before maturity. First Nat. Bank of Garner, Iowa, v. Smith (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 862.

250. — Nature of action or issue in general.—Where the only evidence to contradict defendant's testimony that he claimed adversely was by plaintiff's manager that defendant had not claimed the land, and that the general charge did not affirmatively submit the issue of intention, held, that the charge affirmatively submitting such issue was no objectionable, as giving undue prominence to the question of intention. Heldenfels v. Arlington Heights Realty Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1022.

In an action for damage by the purchase price of an automobile defendant denied had not been delivered, it was improper for the court to single out and weaken or destroy testimony as to the furnishing of a demonstrator to run the car and as to the housing of the car by explaining to the jury the effect of such testimony. Lange v. Interstate Sales Co. (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 909.

In an action against a carrier for rough handling and delay in transporting cattle, an instruction held properly refused as giving undue prominence to a part of the evidence. Hege v. C. R. Co. v. Lindsey (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 798.

In action to try title, defendant on title by adverse possession, requested charge as to continuous possession held properly refused, as giving undue prominence to the matter of construction. City of El Paso v. Wiley (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 199.

In a suit to determine a boundary, special charge, making the "agreement" generally charged between the parties' predecessors have reference to the concrete point of difference in the evidence whether it was intended to be temporary or permanent, held not erroneous as unduly emphasizing the issue. Tailey v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 220.

In action for damages to shipment of live stock, requested charge singling out certain facts which in part were claimed as an excuse for the delay was properly refused. Panhandle Ry. v. Morrison (N. Y. App.) 191 S. W. 338.

251. — Negligence and personal injuries.—An instruction which, in stating the converse of a proposition presented in a previous instruction, repeated the facts relied on by plaintiff to constitute defendant's negligence was not erroneous as unduly emphasizing the jury with plain side of the case. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Maples (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 426.

In action for injuries sustained while riding on freight train with cattle, instruction held not erroneous as placing too great emphasis on the question of negligence in handling the train. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1659.

A requested instruction as to contributory negligence in a railroad crossing collision case held not an isolation of acts disconnected with other facts sufficient to condemn it. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Alcorn (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 833.

An instruction specifying different features of negligence for which, if established, defendant might be liable, held not error as unduly emphasizing defendant's claimed negligence. Rio Grande, E. P. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Starnes (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 368.

In section holding damages, splitting up in instructions single issue of train crew's negligence in failing to give warning of approach of train was improper, tending to place undue emphasis upon such issue and divert attention from true issue. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Mitchum (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 622.

254. Instructions correcting previous erroneous instructions and omissions.—Refusal of court to charge that in calculating the value of the injured party the court could not deduct the debts and circulation of the banks held improper, in view of another instruction. Brown v. First Nat. Bank of Corsicana (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1152.

(B) Particular Actions or Issues

256. In general.—The denial of a special charge submitting the question whether the testatrix executed an alleged will with full knowledge of its contents was improper, where the instruction given did not clearly submit such issue. Rucker v. Carr (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 632.

An instruction defining residence as meaning living in a particular locality, although the intent to make it a permanent home be not present, held correct. Littlefield v. Clayton Bros. (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 194.

257. Adverse possession.—In trespass to try title, instruction that a failure to keep up the fence so as to exclude others did not necessarily interrupt the running of limitations held not misleading under the evidence. Dryden v. Malkey (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 202.

In trespass to try title, a charge that, if the land was inclosed by a fence for ten years, plaintiffs could not recover, unless they asserted ownership by "continuous use" for ten years, was not erroneous in using the words "continuous cultivation, use, and occupancy" employed in the statute. Buie v. Penn (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 647.

Instruction that if the public had used any portion of the land in controversy for a street, plaintiff, claiming by limitation, could not recover was too general and calculated to mislead the jury. Talley v. Houston & Texas P. Ry. Co. v. Houston (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 625.

A charge that "adverse possession is a claim inconsistent with and hostile to the claim of another" held not misleading as suggesting that defendant's possession could be adverse, although against "another" than the owner. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Stepney (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1078.

259. Assumption of risk.—When plaintiff seeks a recovery upon the issue of discovered peril as well as upon other theories, charges on assumed risk should be limited to be considered only upon the other theories, as such defense cannot be urged to defeat liability arising by reason of discovered peril. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Walters (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 516, judgment reversed on rehearing 165 S. W. 525.

An instruction on assumption of risk which fails to except from the general definition of "assumed risk" those resulting from the master's negligence is properly refused, being misleading and erroneous. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Menefee (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 1038.

In action for injuries to electric hand while removing wreck, instruction that he did not assume the risk of extrahazardous work unless he was warned and instructed, and after such warning continued to work, held proper as applied to the facts. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Mooney (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 543.

If the application assuming risk of injury from obstructions near track is void and to be considered only as notice of obstructions is not objectionable as minimising its effect for that purpose. Barnhart v. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas (Sup.) 184 S. W. 176.

262. Bona fide purchase.—In an action where the maker set up the payee's fraud, the refusal of an instruction that, if plaintiff purchased the note in good faith 510 and without notice; judgment should be for it held improper. First Nat. Bank v. Chapman (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 509.

262 5. Boundary. In an action by a county to locate its school lands, an instruction precluding the jury from considering certain surveys as evidence bearing upon the location of monuments named in a prior survey held erroneous where there was close accord between the first and later surveys. Colorado County v. Travis County (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 845.

In an action where the boundary line of a railroad grant block was in dispute, the refusal of a special charge requested by defendant as to the effect of the finding of original corners held erroneous under the evidence. Higginbotham v. Weaver (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 532.

263. Brokers' commissions. Where, in an action for broker's services in negotiating an exchange of real property, the evidence showed an unconditional and enforceable contract to sell property, the refusal of the court not to instruct the jury that even if the contract was not made by the purchaser, without defendant's fault, plaintiff could not recover. Tevebaugh v. Smith Land Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 664.

In an action for the half of a real estate brokers' commission which he had agreed to pay, induced by defendant's false statement, the questions whether the false statement was a fraudulent misrepresentation, and whether the broker relied upon it, are immaterial, the action being for an amount due under contract. Spires v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 457.

In action by broker for commissions for procuring an exchange of realty, instruction submitting question whether an agreement for exchange was made, and making right to recovery dependent on affirmatory finding, held proper. Lanham v. Cockrell (Sup.) 194 S. W. 256.

264. Carriage of goods and live stock. Charges in an action against carriers for damage to a shipment of live stock to the effect that the basis of the action is unnecessary and unreasonable delay, and that when a railroad company accepts stock for transportation, it is the carrier's duty in the handling of the stock, to use all possible means to effectuate the purpose for which it was shipped, held erroneous. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. v. Word (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 375.

In an action for injuries to shipment of cattle accompanied by plaintiff, instruction that the damages were a manifest on the part of the railway company causing the damages, it being sufficient if the damages were caused by negligence of the railway company, held properly refused. Good v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 670.

A charge as to the liability of a carrier for injury to cattle in transit held misleading. Texas & P. Ry. v. O'Gara (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1117.

In an action for injuries to a shipment of cattle, the charge held to sufficiently safeguard the carrier's interests. International & G. N. Ry. v. Frank (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 168.

In an action against railroads for damage to shipment of fruit by freezing, refusal of charge as to effect of directions given agent of defendant roads by shipper's agent to leave car vents open during transit held erroneous. Abiline & S. Ry. v. Ward (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 636.

In an action for delay in the shipment of live stock, refusal of an instruction for defendant, if a connecting carrier failed to run a special train, held not erroneous, where no such train rested on the carrier. Quannah, A. & P. Ry. v. Collier (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 95.

In action for delay in transporting live stock, defendant's contention, supported by evidence, that after arrival of shipment at connecting point it repaired defective cars and delayed in transporting connection and as quickly as possible should have been submitted to jury in affirmative form. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. v. Gateswood (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 922.

In an action against a carrier of live stock for delay in transportation, an instruction on duty of carrier to maintain its tracks, etc., to withstand ordinary floods held not erroneous. Ft. Worth & P. Ry. v. Atterbery (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1133.

265. Carriage of passengers. Personal injuries, see note 311, post. Instruction as to plaintiff's rights, after surrender of his ticket to an employee of defendant, held objectionable, as calculated to lead the jury to believe that, if such employee was not authorized to take it, plaintiff could not be ejected. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. v. Short (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 801.

In an action for the failure of a railroad company to keep its depot warmed after the departure of a passenger train, as required by art. 6591, a special charge as to the duty of the company held misleading, as possibly denying the duty of the company to keep its depot warm. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. v. Texas v. Weaunt (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 465.

In a notice against a carrier for wrongful ejection of a passenger, a request, though correct in the main, held properly refused. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dic (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 478.

In an action against a holder of a customer's ticket, instruction held erroneous as calculated to lead the jury to believe that some notice to the passenger other than the announcement of the station was required, and the correct portion of a requested instruction should have been given. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Middleton (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1114.

269. Contracts—Sales. Where, in an action for the price, defendant relied on breach of warranty, a charge authorizing a verdict for the buyer if the machinery did not possess certain good qualities was not sufficient; but the charge should require the jury to find that the machinery was defective in the particular qualities. A. S. Cameron Steam Pump Works v. Lubbock Light & Ice Co. (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 256.

In a suit for breach of an agreement to procure an extension of an option to purchase land, a charge on the duty of defendant held sufficient. Hahn v. McPherson (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 804.

In an action on notes given for the price of a registered horse, the refusal of a requested charge that the horse was registered if the certificate in evidence was issued for him, though the description was inaccurate, held erroneous. National State Bank of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa v. Ricketts (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 528.
Submission of issue whether goods were necessary, considering husband's financial circumstances in life at "and prior to" the time of the purchase, held erroneous. Trammell v. Neiman-Marcus Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 371.

Instruction on right of the holder of an option to purchase land to have proceeds of sales to other persons applied to his debt held not calculated to confuse. Lester v. Huston (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 308.

270. Transmission of telegrams and telephonic service.—In an action for mental anguish for failure to deliver telegram informing plaintiff of her father's death, an instruction held correct. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Gest (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 182.

272. Contributory negligence.—Refusal to tell the jury that if plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence he could not recover, even though they might believe from the evidence that defendants were also guilty of negligence held error. Texas Traction Co. v. Wiley (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1028.

Where the court did not present in an affirmative way the defense of contributory negligence, refusal of special charge calling the attention of the jury to the fact that he might be found to have a contributory recovery held prejudicial on that issue. Id.

In an action against an express company for injuries by being struck by a box falling from an express truck while plaintiff walked along the depot platform, the charge held to sufficiently present the question of contributory negligence. Wells Fargo & Co. v. Benjamin (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 120.

An instruction on contributory negligence, in an action for injuries to a servant, held not erroneous, though not to be approved. Gordon Jones Const. Co. v. Lopez (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 987.

273. Children and persons under physical disability.—In an action for the wrongful death of a 14 year old boy, an instruction that a person of immature years need not exercise the same degree of care as is required of a person of mature years was held not erroneous. Instruction "immature years" instead of "tender years." Stephenville, N. & S. T. Ry. Co. v. Voss (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 64.

Where a plaintiff was a boy 16 years old, and had lived around railroads three or four years, and there was no suggestion that he had not the discretion to appreciate the danger of a moving train, it was not error to require the jury to find that to prevent a recovery because of contributory negligence he must have failed to exercise the degree of care and caution which persons of his age and discretion would exercise under the circumstances. Heffin v. Eastern Ry. Co. of New Mexico (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 498.

In an action for injuries to an intoxicated passenger by a fall from the open vestibule of a railroad car, instructions given held not to present the isolated question of plaintiff's contributory negligence as a contributing cause as explicitly as defendant had a right to demand. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Christian (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1192.

275. Acts in emergencies.—In section hand's action for injuries due to fall in removing hand car from track to avoid approaching train, requested instruction that plaintiff could not recover if he and those with him had ample time in which to remove car was not had for failure to add with "safety to plaintiff." Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Mitchum (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 622.

276. Employés.—An instruction as to the contributory negligence of a servant who required the jury to find the master guilty of negligence before they could find contributory negligence is not prejudicial. Wichita Falls Motor Co. v. Bridge (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1061.

An instruction in action for death held erroneous as prejudicing the defense of contributory negligence. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Neill (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1189.

A child, with switchman, engaged in opening, closing, etc., couplings, could assume that the engine would not be moved without a signal held proper. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Barber (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 116.

Charge that employé might assume that track of employer was free from obstruction so near as to expose him to danger, and he was not required to examine it to see that it was free theretrom, held proper. Barnhart v. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas (Sup.) 184 S. W. 176.

In a servant's action for injuries, defendants' requested charge that if plaintiff in discharge of his duty could have uncoupled the cars by use of available means which did not require him to go between the cars, and that in the exercise of ordinary care he should have used other available means for cutting the cars without going between them, verdict must be for the defendant was properly refused. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Chatten (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 811.

277. Passengers.—Where, in a passenger's action for injuries in alleging by negligently failing to hold the train long enough and not providing sufficient exits, the evidence raised the issue whether the station was called in plaintiff's coach and whether two minutes after the exit of passengers, the court should have fully instructed on plaintiff's duties. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 967.

In an action for injuries to a female passenger by slipping down the steps of defendant's passenger coach, an instruction held to properly submit the issue of contributory negligence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Gresham, 106 Tex. 452, 167 S. W. 649, 724, 140 S. W. 483.

280. Persons at railroad crossings.—Where plaintiff's decedent received fatal injuries in a collision between the ambulance in which he was riding and a railroad train, an instruction that, if the defective sight of the driver was the proximate cause of or was a proximate cause of the accident, the railroad company was not liable held properly refused. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Kennon (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 867.

Under Rev. St. 1911, art. 1058, requiring railroads to keep their roadbeds and rights of way at crossings in proper condition for travel, an instruction, in an action for injury to plaintiff in being caught between the rails, the court held error to presume that the tracks were in proper condition held not objectionable as relieving him from the exercise of any care, or as not defining the term "proper condition." St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Matthews (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1092.

Refusal of an instruction that, if he might have avoided collision by stopping and listening, he was guilty of contributory negligence defeating a recovery, held error. Texas & N. O. R. R. Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 792.

283. Persons injured In operation of street railways.—In an action for injuries to plaintiff's wife in a collision between a street car and a vehicle in which she was riding, an instruction on contributory negligence held proper. Kelly v. Dallas Consol. Electric St. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 221.

284. Discovered peril or last clear chance rule.—When plaintiff seeks a recovery upon the issue of discovered peril as well as upon other theories, charges on contributory negligence should be limited to be considered only upon the other theories, as such definitions of duty arising by reason of the plaintiff's knowledge, shall be limited to those induced by reason of his own knowledge, International & G. N. R. Co. v. Walters (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 916, judgment reversed on rehearing 168 S. W. 528.

It was not error to charge, in an instruction on discovered peril, that "after the motorman discovered the peril of deceased, if he failed to use all the means and appliances he had at command," etc., instead of charging that it was the motorman's duty to exercise ordinary care in using the means at hand, etc. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 397.

In an action for the killing of mules at a railroad crossing, held, on the evidence, that an instruction on the defendant's duty after its engineer discovered their peril was properly given. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Templeton (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 504.

An instruction on an accrual of injuries in being caught between stock cars suddenly moved, held not to submit the issue of discovered peril. Weatherford, M. W. & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 522.

In an action against a railroad for a death, where there was evidence that the engineer discovered the decedent sitting on the track destruction, on discovered peril, failing to state that defendant was not required to stop its train until it was reasonably apparent that decedent probably could not or would not save himself, was error. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 806.

In an action for damages to an automobile by collision with a street car, an instruction that, if after the motorman discovered the perilous condition of the automobile, he used all the means within his power to prevent the collision, then verdict will be for defendant was favorable to plaintiff. Adams & Washam v. Southern Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 275.

285. Comparative negligence.—Even though instruction that contributory negligence defeats a recovery may not be error prejudicial to an employ, the court should follow his instance (Vt. Giclee's Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 534h) under which such negligence merely diminishes the damages proportionately. Fettner & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Welshimer (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 263.

287. Conversion.—An instruction, in an action against a gin company, held to place too great a burden upon the company. Staley v. Colony Union Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 361.

288. Divorce.—Though there was evidence of a number of acts of violence by the husband, the refusal of a charge that one act of personal violence by the husband may be sufficient cause for divorce held error, and an instruction that if plaintiff sought a divorce because of the influence of her mother, instead of the wrongs of defendant, to find for defendant was also erroneous as authorizing a verdict solely on the issue whether the mother induced the suit. Powell v. Powell (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 111.

291. False imprisonment and malicious prosecution.—In an action for malicious prosecution for theft of bale of cotton, instruction that relation of landlord and tenant, under which plaintiff claimed to have sold cotton to satisfy his landlord's lien, did not exist, held not objectionable under the evidence, nor did instruction that jury should consider only facts known to defendant when instituting criminal proceedings, in determining question of defendant's probable cause, improperly limit jury on question of malice. Rainey v. Old (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 923.

292. Fraud and undue influence.—A charge, submitting the question whether a testament was under undue influence "at or before the time of the execution of the will" to such an extent as to induce her to make a disposition different from what she would have made had she not been under undue influence at the time of execution of the will. Holt v. Guerguin (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 581, judgment reversed, 106 Tex. 158, 163 S. W. 10, 50 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1348.

Instructions in a will contest, where the only material issue was that of undue influence, held sufficiently definitive to confine the jury to that one issue, and where the court defined undue influence to be such as to destroy the testator's free agency and prevent the exercise of his own will, an instruction, permitting a verdict for contestant if the will was procured by undue influence of the contestants, was not erroneous in failing to require a finding that such undue influence caused him to make his will, and that but for it he would have made a different will. Scott v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 343, judgment reversed, 106 Tex. 232, 166 S. W. 1135.

Instruction to find for buyer for rescission and the amount of purchase price, if false and fraudulent representations were made by the seller, held not objectionable, as failing to hypothesize plaintiff’s reliance on the representations and damage therefrom. Underwood v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 88.

Instruction held to present fairly the issue of fraud under the policy by excessive demand in proof of loss. Fidelity Phenix Fire Ins. Co. v. Sadau (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 559. In suit for rescission of a contract for exchange of land and for cancellation of plaintiff’s deed, on the ground of fraud and mistake as to the character of defendant’s land, a charge that if all of defendant’s representations were true the verdict should be in his favor held not objectionable. Kincaid v. Tant (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1103.

283. Fraudulent conveyances.—In suit by the grantee of land to restrain sale on execution against said being charged, issues of fraudulent intent and of notice and of market value of debtor’s property and property received by him from plaintiff in exchange should have been submitted separately. Citizens’ Nat. Bank of Plainview v. Slavin, Jr. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 742.

284. Statute of frauds.—In an action for debt, where the pleadings and testimony presented the defense of the statute of frauds as to some of the items sued upon, the refusal of a requested charge correctly submitting that issue was erroneous. Newman v. Bengoe & Flemister (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 6.

295. Indemnity.—Instruction in action for personal injuries by falling in coalhole negligently closed, held not error where it correctly stated certain conditions under which one could recover from the other as a joint tort-feasor, but did not state that they were the only conditions. Young Men’s Christian Ass’n v. Jasse (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 867.

296. Insurance.—In an action on a fire policy, an instruction defining total loss held sufficiently favorable to insurer. Fire Ass’n of Philadelphia v. Strayhorn (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 901.

In a suit on a fire policy on household goods, instruction held to present fairly the issue of the effect of noncompliance with the policy as to proof of loss. Fidelity Phenix Fire Ins. Co. v. Sadau (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 559.

In an action on a fire insurance policy, void if additional insurance was taken out without consent, an instruction as to what constituted waiver of consent held misleading, and a requested instruction as to what constituted notice of an intention to take out additional insurance, and was not erroneous. Belanos Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Dalton (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 966, rehearing denied 180 S. W. 668.

297. Landlord and tenant.—Where defendant under a modification of a rent contract was authorized to and did cancel the rent notes sued on, an instruction that the jury should allow plaintiff for the three years during which defendant used the plaintiff’s property without complaint was erroneous and properly refused. Savage v. Mowery (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 965.

In landlord’s suit against tenant, instruction held not to have affirmatively stated any rule that lessor could, in bad faith, without excuse or justification, take advantage of word “deem” in lease to arbitrarily terminate it after fire injured the premises. Land v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 337.

298. Libel and slander.—In action for libel, it was not error to refuse special charge defining actual malice. Houston Chronicle Pub. Co. v. Quinlan (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 669.

300. Mental incapacity.—In an action to set aside a deed and a judgment confirming it because of insanity of the grantor, an instruction that the jury must find that the grantor was insane at the time of the conveyance and also when the judgment was rendered; the jury knew thereof, and fraudulently procured the conveyance —was as favorable to the defendant as he could ask. Fye v. Fyle (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 488.

In proceedings to contest a will on the grounds of mental incapacity, an instruction held to submit the issue. Kell v. Ross (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 752.

A charge on contracting capacity that the question to decide was whether there was sufficient mental soundness and capacity to understand the contract in detail, and as a whole to appreciate values and obligations held not overexciting. Smith v. Guerre (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1699.

In an action for negligent death in collision between vehicles, caused by the viciousness of a team of mules belonging to defendant, a corporation, an instruction authorizing recovery if the team was uncontrollable, and was known to be so by defendant, or would have been known to be so by the exercise of ordinary care, held to properly predicate liability on the negligence of the company alone. American Express Co. v. Pardaello (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 925.

Instruction held not so erroneous as to require a reversal, though it did not expressly state that the acts that the jury might consider as negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 185.

Instruction held properly refused, because not sufficiently full as to what character of diligence constituted ordinary care. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Welshimer (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 263.

In action for value of mule struck by automobile while the mule was running loose on public highway in violation of stock law, instructions held improperly refused as clearly presenting the issue of gross negligence. Dillon v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 648.
In the event of injury to a defendant which is the result of the negligence of the injured party, it is the duty of the defendant to warn the injured party of the danger and to take such steps as may be necessary to prevent injury. Where the defendant did not place the injured party on reasonable notice of the danger, and could not have known that it was placed there by reasonable care, only negligently at all, the claim is for negligence, and not for injury to property. Wichita Falls Traction Co. v. Adams (Sup.) 183 S. W. 155.

In an action for negligent injuries, an instruction that if the jury believed that plaintiff’s injury was the proximate result of his own negligence and not due to the negligence of the defendant to find for defendant, was error as requiring the jury, in order to find for defendant, to find not only plaintiff’s contributory negligence, but also absence of any negligence of defendant. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 284.

In an action for malicious assignment of error complaining of court’s definition of negligence, which is but verbal criticism and without substantial merit, it will be overruled. Miles v. Harris (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 829.

In an action for damages to automobile from collision, held, that instruction given was not erroneous, as stating that it was defendant’s duty to turn onto generally traveled street, to give Sales Co. v. Bland (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1001.

303. Injuries to employe.—In a servant’s action for personal injuries, a charge affirmatively presenting defendant’s theory, based on the foreman’s negligence, and in no way limiting the right of recovery, was not ground for reversal because it failed to define particularly the foreman’s duties. Glover v. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 1968.

Where, in an action for injuries to plaintiff while assisting in setting in place an electric light pole, the court submitted the issue of the employer’s negligence in selecting the tools for plaintiff and his employees, refused to direct the jury not to consider as a ground of negligence the failure to select another method of doing the work was not erroneous. Texas Power & Light Co. v. Burger (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 680.

In an action by a railroad brakeman, an instruction to find negligence held not erroneous under the evidence as predicated negligence on a necessary act which was done in the usual and customary manner. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. v. Hargrave (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 509.

In defendant’s action for injury, refusal of defendant’s requested special issue held not error, where the question was one of evidence merely bearing on the issues submitted and determined. Thurber Brick Co. v. Matthews (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1183.

Refusal of instruction predicated master’s liability for injuries to servant on question of ordinary care held not error, where the question was the duty of the master to appreciate the facts which caused the injury, and not whether he used ordinary care in the premises. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 285.

304. — Appliances and places for work.—In a brakeman’s action for injuries from a defective switch shield not objectionable as authorizing a verdict for plaintiff, even though defendant had exercised ordinary care to furnish a proper shield and keep it in repair. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Martin (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 495.

In employee’s action for injuries to plaintiff, held, that the court should have charged that it was the employee’s duty to exercise ordinary care to furnish reasonably safe appliances and to keep them in condition. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Dinwiddie (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 499.

In an action for injuries due to defective tongs used in unloading from a ship, an instruction calculated to lead the jury to believe that plaintiff could not recover if the tongs became defective while the ship was being unloaded held properly refused. J. H. W. Steel & Co. v. Dover (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 806.

An instruction held proper as not having predicated liability of defendant railroad on the sole ground that it had equipped its locomotive with a “straight” air brake. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Matkin (Sup.) 174 S. W. 1908, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 604.

Instruction held not objectionable as imposing upon defendant a greater burden than was required by law with regard to what it must do to provide a safe place for work. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Moreno (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 200.

305. — Knowledge of defect or danger and duty as to inspection.—An instruction, in an action for a railroad engineer’s death by derailment after a storm, that if defendant knew of the company’s rules requiring an inspection of the roadbed, etc., after rains he could rely thereon and assume that the track, etc., was safe, in the absence of warning, held erroneous as requiring the company to inspect the roadbed after the storm, regardless of the time intervening between the rain and the accident. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Neill (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1189.

Where defendant failed to inspect hand car, an instruction that it was defendant’s duty to inspect, instead of giving general charge on duty to furnish safe appliances, held proper. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ewing (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 300.

306. — Operation of locomotives, trains, or cars.—An instruction in an action for injuries to a railroad construction employe, a charge that it was the duty of the engineer and fireman in charge of the train, before starting the same, to give warning, such as by ringing the bell or blowing the whistle, is not erroneous, as requiring warning to be given in one of those ways. Angelina & N. R. R. Co. v. Due (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 918.

In an action for the death of an engineer caused by the failure of switch tenders to throw the switch, a charge that if the engineer gave the switch tender the signal that his train was approaching, etc., and the tender negligently failed, etc., to find for plaintiff, was not erroneous in not specifying the kind of signal. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Dodd (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 298.

Though in an action for the death of a railway employe, who fell in front of a moving train, the facts as to his peril were uncontroverted, the charge should have given the jury the hypothesis upon which they were to measure what would be ordinary care. People v. N. W. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 238.

Where a car inspector was injured while inspecting a locomotive on a turntable which was moved without warning in spite of custom to give warning if any one could be seen about the engine, it was error to refuse to instruct that the employe could not recover.
In an action for injuries to a fireman, an instruction as to the facts the jury must find to render a verdict for plaintiff, held erroneous for omitting reference to the engineer's duty to know that the fireman was in a place of danger. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry., Co. v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 304.

In section hand's action for injuries, instruction on alleged negligence of train crew in not giving warning of approach of train held likely to lead jury to believe negligent failure of train crew to discover hand car was itself proximate cause of injury. Chicago, B. & I. Ry. Co. v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 622.

Promulgation and enforcement of rules.—In an action for injuries received by a freight handler, an instruction as to the duty of the company to furnish safe means and manner of work held not erroneous as requiring it to prescribe rules and regulations for the conduct of freight carriers. (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 335. 307.

Warning and instructing servants.—Instruction as to defendant's failure to warn of dangers must be qualified by advising as to plaintiff's knowledge of the dangers, or his acquiring such knowledge by exercising ordinary care. Stockley & White v. Mears (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 774.

Negligence of fellow servants.—Where the jury must have understood from the court's charge that they could not find for an employé for a personal injury unless they found that a coemployé had authority to hire and discharge him, and the court directed a verdict for the employer if the coemployé did not have authority to control the employee and to hire and discharge him, the issue of vice principal was sufficiently presented. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 309.

In employee's action for injuries, an instruction as to who was a vice principal and as to plaintiff's responsibility for his orders, acts, directions, instructions, or conduct held proper. Reliable Steam Laundry v. Schuster (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 447.

Where there was no negligence of any fellow servants except two Mexicans, an instruction authorizing recovery if the injury resulted from negligence of fellow servants, without limiting such act to negligence not erroneous. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Reinhart (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 436.

Injuries to passengers.—Breach of contract of carriage not involving injury to the person, see ante, note 265.

A special charge that common carriers are held to the highest degree of care in operation for the protection of passengers was correct so far as it went. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 378.

An instruction, in a passenger's action for personal injuries from not furnishing sufficient protection to those other than passenger not in defendant's employment, informed plaintiff that she could not leave by certain doors, because they were closed, such statement did not bind defendant was not sufficiently full, as not limiting the effect of such statements to the person making them, but another instruction using the term "safe accommodation" properly held reasonably true the use of such term. Fr. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 967.

Where plaintiff testified that he was injured when the train, after stopping for passengers to alight, jerked in some way, throwing him against a seat, the use of the terms "suddenly moved, lurched, and jerked" in a charge on negligence, which were also used in the petition, held not erroneous. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Farris (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 463.

In an action for injuries to a street car passenger thrown from the car while running on a curve, a charge held to properly submit the issue of the negligence of the conductor in permitting the exit door to remain open. Dallas Consol. Electric St. Ry. Co. v. Stone (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 768.

In an action by one thrown off of the steps of a car which he was entering, a charge that plaintiff was entitled to enter if not interfering with other passengers, held not erroneous. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hassell (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 518. Instructions making it to perfect self-condition to suit itself in conduct of an employee's acting on a passenger, that the passenger's prior assault on him had not been provoked by his wrongful conduct, held proper under the evidence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Huddleston (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 704.

An instruction as to the duty of a carrier to a passenger can be given without the use of the word "possible," as in the expression, "the highest degree of care possible." San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Vivian (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 962.

Instructions that passenger riding in freight train assumed risk of dangers arising from ordinary operation of train, but not those arising from negligent operation of train, though not telling jury of the greater dangers normally incident to careful handling of freight trains, held not erroneous. Paris & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Atkins (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 308.

In an action for injuries to a passenger on falling from defendant's street car, instructions that plaintiff could recover if his fall was due to a sudden movement of car held to sufficiently present affirmative defense that there was no such movement. Northern Trans. Co. v. Evans (Sup.) 193 S. W. 1067.

Injuries at railroad crossings.—An instruction, in an action for damages to property from being struck at a street crossing by a train, held not open to the objection that it permitted the jury to find negligence solely upon the ground that standing cars were so placed by defendant as to obstruct plaintiff's view. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Burnett (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 498.

Instruction as to duty of railroad company to maintain watchman at crossing, and liability for failure to do so, held not unintelligible, misleading, or confusing, nor was a reference to the circumstances, conditions, and danger "at and before" the time of the accident erroneous or harmful to the company. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Waits (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 870.

An instruction held not objectionable as imposing a greater burden on defendant than the law imposed. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 886.

In a pedestrian's action for injuries when struck by railway cars, a charge that if the railway had no watchman on the cars and gave no signal by bell or whistle, it was liable, even though casualty in other respects and the plaintiff was adequately warned of the danger in crossing the track, was erroneous. Gulf, C. & S. F.
In action for personal injuries alleged to have been caused by defendant's negligence in blocking signal lights having them upon rails and most was no change instruct when as a whole held not subject to objection that jury is permitted to find for plaintiff upon theory that, even if crossing was blocked for less than five minutes allowed by ordinance, there would be a duty on the part of defendant to anticipate presence of trespassers at or near the point where plaintiff was injured. Houston Belt & T. Ry. Co.
315. Injuries to animals on or near railroad tracks.—In an action for injuries to plaintiff's mule at a railroad crossing, an instruction as to the facts to be found before more favorable to defendant could recover held more favorable than was entitled to.
In an action against a railroad for the killing of cattle, a charge, authorizing verdict for plaintiff, held erroneous under art. 6892, as authorizing verdict against the company for plaintiff was equivalent to charging that they must find defendant negligent before they could find for plaintiff. Stephenville N. & S. T. Ry. Co v. Decatur Cotton Seed Oil
(Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1164.
316. Injuries by fire set out in operation of railroads.—In an action against a railroad company for failure to provide proper culverts, an instruction to find the failure of defendant to properly construct such culverts, sluices, etc., to return finding a verdict for plaintiff was equivalent to charging that they must find defendant negligent
App.) 160 S. W. 651.
317. Injuries in operation of street railroads.—Passengers, see ante, note 311.
An instruction, in an action for decedent's death in a collision between a street car
App.) 162 S. W. 337.
It was error to give a charge making defendant liable, not only if its servants operating the car did in fact discover plaintiff's position before it was too late to stop it, but to the exercise of ordinary care, could have done so in a position of danger." Texas Traction Co v. Wiley (Civ.
/App.) 164 S. W. 1028.
318. Injuries from obstruction or diversion of water.—In an action against a railroad company for failing to provide proper culverts, an instruction to find the failure of defendant to properly construct such culverts, sluices, etc., to return finding a verdict for plaintiff was equivalent to charging that they must find defendant negligent
App.) 160 S. W. 651.
319. Injuries from live electric wires.—In an action against a light company and a city for injury from an electric shock, the company's requested charge, purporting to submit a definition of active negligence, held properly refused. McKinney Ice, Light & 320. Partnership.—An instruction that if the purchase of horses by plaintiff was under an agreement by which the defendant was to have a third interest in paying plaintiff a third of the price, unless he paid within a reasonable time, he would not be a partner, was not erroneous as authorizing a finding that failure to so pay would dissolve the partnership, but a requested instruction submitting the issue of partnership was not given for stating what would constitute a partnership. Coody v. Shawver
(Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 935.
321. Proximate cause.—In an action for injuries to person who attempted to pass between cars of train blocking crossing, instruction held not such as to mislead jury to believe that had he crossed the blocking of the train he would have committed the proximate cause alone or in conjunction with the starting of the train without a signal. Englefield.
Where there was an unreasonable delay in shipping plaintiff's horses, and evidence and their contract "shipping them to cause injury to plaintiff if she refused to pay that there should be a verdict for defendant if the horses were damaged by such disease, without reference to the causes thereof, was properly refused. Houston & T. C. R. Co.
v. Meadors (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 1166.
In an action by a husband for injuries to the wife, in which the wife claimed that she had suffered a miscarriage, a charge that defendant was not liable if a physician had caused the miscarriage is too broad, since it might have been necessary in order to
In an action for damages for the flooding of land, a charge held to sufficiently present the issue that defendant's obstruction of the river bed did not cause the overflow.
Refusal of instruction as to liability of defendant to the other if his act in placing a cover in a sidewalk caught a小孩 was negligent and proximately caused injuries as a pedestrian, held erroneous, since in law, if the placing was negligent, it was the
In an instruction in action for death of a person injured in a railway crossing accident, the words "negligence without which he would not have been injured" mean nagligence proximately causing the injury. Texas & P. Ry. Co v. Miles (Civ. App.) 192
S. W. 1138.
In action for injuries when horse was frightened by steam exhaust, instruction on anticipation of accident that method of construction and operation of cotton gin might probably cause horses of ordinary gentleness to be frightened did not import mere possibility, and was correct. Scott v. Shine (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 964.
In an action for injuries in collision between buggy and defendant's street car, instruction held to sufficiently require jury to find that failure to give warning of street car's approach was proximate cause of injury. Southwestern Gas & 329. Ratification.—Instruction, in action to foreclose a vendor's lien, as to ratification by defendant, a surviving wife and sole heir, of contract of deceased husband for exchange of lands sought to be rescinded for insanity held properly refused, where it omitted the essential element of knowledge of previous conditions. Smith v. Guerre (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 417.
art. 1971

329. Rescission and cancellation.—In an action on purchase-money notes and for the foreclosure of a vendor’s lien, instructions held objectionable, for failing to make the jury understand that unreasonable delay on the part of the purchaser in complaining of fraud was an absolute defense to his demand for rescission. Luckenbach v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 99.

333. Title, ownership, and possession.—In trespass to try title, where plaintiff claimed an interest in land acquired by an attorney under a contract for a conditional fee, and where it appeared that associated attorneys were to share with such attorney, held, that an instruction that plaintiff on recovery should be charged with the share of such associated attorneys was as favorable to defendant as he was entitled to under the facts. Phoenix Land Co. v. Exall (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 474.

In an action by one holding a certificate of purchase for school lands against a subsequent applicant prior to plaintiff’s proof of occupancy, instruction held not to authorize a recovery by defendant without a finding that he actually settled upon and was in good faith residing on the land as a home prior to the date of his application, and a requested instruction as to abandonment by defendant was properly refused, since the only question involved was whether plaintiff was an actual settler. Patrick v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 498.

335. Trusts.—In an action against a testamentary trustee to recover for care of the beneficiary under a trust providing for maintenance for life and expenses of last illness, instruction as to plaintiff’s right to recover held not erroneous, or at least favorable to defendant. McLean v. Breen (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 294.

(C) Damages and Amount of Recovery.

333. In general.—Instruction as to measure of recovery in action to recover the penalty under Rev. St. 1911, art. 6554, of 50 a week for failure to maintain water-closets within a reasonable and convenient distance of a depot held not calculated to induce a conviction. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 164 S. A. Ry. Co. 459 & 462.

338. Double recovery.—An instruction that the jury should allow plaintiff a sum which will compensate him for time lost, and for time plaintiff will lose in the future, and for his decreased earning capacity, if any, and present and future mental suffering held to permit double recovery. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Beasley, 106 Tex. 155 S. W. 183, rehearing denied 106 Tex. 160, 160 S. W. 471.

Instruction as to measure of damages for delay in transportation of cattle held erroneous, as authorizing double recovery for the decline in price. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 901.

In an action against a railroad for damage to a shipment of live stock instructing double recovery was erroneous. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Russell (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 299.

In an action for breach of marriage contract, an instruction held erroneous as authorizing recovery of damages for breach of promise to marry. Huggins v. Carey (Sup.) 194 S. W. 133.

340. Speculative and future or permanent damages.—The rule for ascertaining the amount to be awarded as damages for future impairment of earning capacity is one of law, of which the jury cannot be presumed to know, so that the court should carefully instruct thereon. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Teaxes v. Beasley, 106 Tex. 155 S. W. 183.

An instruction, in a personal injury action, that in estimating damages the jury could consider “the probable effect in the future upon plaintiff’s health was defective for not limiting damages ‘with reasonable probability likely to result.” Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 967.

Where the evidence does not conclusively show that plaintiff has fully recovered, it is not error to give an instruction which submits prospective loss of time as an element of the damages recoverable for the injuries. Davis, Pruner & Howell v. Woods (Sup.) 180 S. W. 100.

Giving instruction that plaintiff could recover compensation “for any loss of time which he * * * will probably sustain * * * by reason of his diminished capacity, if any, to earn money” held not error, though the evidence shows that, excepting for loss of an arm, he has fully recovered. 1d.

A requested instruction to allow no conjectural damages for impairment of physical condition is properly refused, because speculative damages, where the injury is permanent, is necessarily uncertain. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 374.

342. Mitigation of damages and reduction of loss.—An instruction, if plaintiff’s negligence and defendant’s negligence were concurrent proximate causes of the injuries, plaintiff should be diminished in proportion to the amount of negligence attributable to him held not affirmatively erroneous or misleading. St. Louis, E. & M. Ry. Co. v. Vernon (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 81.

An instruction predicking recovery of any damages if plaintiff could have diminished them by fault. Donava v. Power (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 789.

343. Injuries to the person.—A charge that the jury should assess damages at such sum as will reasonably compensate plaintiff for physical pain and the diminution of earning capacity which results from such sum as paid presently will compensate plaintiff for the injuries. Texas & Pacific Coal Co. v. Choate (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1083.

Where evidence as to character and extent of employee’s injuries was conflicting, instruction to allow such sum as would compensate him “for the injuries complained of” held erroneous. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Montello (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 540.
In a miner's action for injuries, a charge after telling the jury specifically and correctly what they might consider in estimating damages, which also stated they might consider other facts in evidence, if any, held not erroneous. Consumers' Lignite Co. v. Grant (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 202.

346. Mental suffering.—An instruction on the question of mental anguish resulting from injury to properly embalm his body as a result of failing to receive an answer to a telegram held not affirmatively erroneous or misleading. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. McFarlane (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 57.

347. Injuries resulting in death.—An instruction, in a father's action for his son's death, held erroneous as preventing the jury from passing upon the amount which would, if now paid, compensate plaintiff for the loss. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 621.

Where, in action for death, court submitted issue as to amount which, paid then, would be equal to the pecuniary benefit, instruction as to ascertaining the present worth of anticipated contributions held not necessary. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 984.

Instruction as to damages for death of infant held erroneous for failure to exclude damages for grief, loss of society, and mental pain and anguish. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Gant (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 745.

349. Breach of contract—Contract of carriage.—In an action for injuries to a shipment of cattle, an instruction that the measure of damages was the difference between their market value as they should have arrived and as they did arrive was erroneous, if there was no market value at the place of destination. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Mulkey & Allen (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 111.

In an action for damages to a piano in transit, that if it was injured by defendant's negligence the jury should find for plaintiff the difference in its cash market value in the condition in which it was delivered to it if delivered in good condition, said piano should have arrived in its cash market value in the condition in which it did arrive at Dallas, held not erroneous because of the quoted part. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas & Western Automatic Music Co. (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 330.

In action against a carrier for damages to cattle by delay, where there was evidence that a train wreck, and consequent delay and confinement for 12 hours, caused depreciation, an instruction that the plaintiff was entitled to recover for extra shrinkage and bad appearance, although he was able to sell immediately upon arrival, was proper. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 811.

In a suit for injury to live stock in transit, a charge to consider the extent of recovery of the cattle from their injuries, and if recovery was complete, to find for the carrier, is not objectionable as confining consideration to complete recovery. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Norton (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1011.

351. Telegraphic and telephonic service.—An instruction, in an action for delay in the delivery of a message, held objectionable as imposing on the company the absolute duty to deliver the message in a reasonable time. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Kersten (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 369, rehearing denied 161 S. W. 1091.

352. Conversion.—There being some evidence that the goods had a market value, an instruction that, if the jury found a market value, such value with interest was plaintiff's damage; otherwise they should allow the value of the goods to plaintiff was proper. Texas Warehouse Co. v. Imperial Rice Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 356.

353. Conversion.—Where an article is in evidence and is libelous per se, the court cannot direct a verdict for defendant for failure to prove damage. Chapa v. Abernethy (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 166.

In an action for damages for publication libelous per se, an instruction that the jury may find plaintiff suffered damages as from the libel to such extent as the jury believed he suffered was proper, but an instruction submitting as special damages items which would properly come under the head of general damages was technical error. Houston Chronicle Pub. Co. v. Wegner (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 45.

III. APPLICABILITY TO PLEADINGS AND EVIDENCE

361. Application of instructions to case in general.—Trial court is never justified in summing up the issues to the jury unless it is raised by both pleadings and proof. Bruns Kimball & Co. v. Amundsen (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 729; Martin v. Stiles (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 836.

Instructions which are not supported by evidence or based on the issues are properly refused. Crass v. Adams (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 510; Ablon v. Wheeler & Mottier Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 527; Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Winkler (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 691; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Kersten (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 369.

Where the instructions were not incorrect or misleading, the fact that they included matters not necessary to decide the cause is no ground for complaint. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Casey (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 729.

An instruction eliminating the grounds of recovery and submitting issues not made by the pleadings nor sustained by the evidence is properly refused. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Smiley (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 86.

A charge on the duty of a railroad company to give the crossing signals prescribed by Vernon's Sayles's Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 6564, is not appropriate in an action for the Pleadings and issues.—An issue not raised by the pleading should not be submitted. World's Special Films Corporation v. Fichtenberg (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 733; Petty v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 224.

Nature of action or issue in general.—Instruction that the undisputed evidence showed that defendant, in an action for fraud, had not guaranteed the solvency of notes was proper, plaintiff for a contract held property refused as not being within the issues. Benton v. Kuykendall (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 438.

The question of estoppel not being raised by the pleadings, an instruction thereon is properly refused. Bankers' Trust Co. of Amarillo v. Cooper, Merrill & Lumpkin (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 541.

In action by former partner for share of commissions on deal completed after dissolution on an issue as to whether deal was pending at time of dissolution definition of "pending" held sustained by the petition. Daniel v. Lane (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 906.

A statement of a contract in plaintiff's petition not being pleaded to by defendant as required by Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 1902, was in the case as admitted, and an instruction submitting its truth or falsity to the jury was not error. American Mfg. Co. v. O. C. Frey Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 296.

Refusal of instruction as to mental capacity at time will not offered for probate was executed held not error. Wolnitzek v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 819.

In proceedings on judgment creditor's motion against constable and sureties on bond to recover thereon amount of plaintiff's judgment, where there were no pleadings upon which to base a requested instruction, the court did not err in refusing it. Sharp v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 599.

Issues withdrawn or otherwise eliminated.—Where in an action, aided by sequence, to recover property and damages, defendant reprieved the property, but at the trial admitted the title was in plaintiff and abandoned claim thereto, the bare legal right of defendant to reprieve was not an issue so as to entitle him to an instruction thereon. Bannister v. Van Dusen (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 102.

In an action to enforce a lien for materials, issue as to whether defendant company had been in possession of the park property on which the material was used, since a certain date held immaterial. Cleburne St. Ry. Co. v. Barber (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 1176.

Actions relating to property and for injuries thereto.—Where a husband, sued for trespass to his wife from whom he had transferred property for her support, alleged fraud in the procurement of the transfer, and asked for its cancellation, instructions that a lien reserved in the contract in favor of defendant's children by another wife, and plaintiff's promise to pay it, were inoperative, and that defendant was still liable for the support of their children, held foreign to the issues. Versyp v. Versyp (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 155.

Where the petition was a suit to set aside a deed, was based on a fraudulent concealment of facts, an instruction submitting the issue as to concealed facts was not misleading, whether the word "concealment" was used in the petition or not. McIndoo v. Wood (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 488.

In an action for conversion of a rice mixer, there being no pleading to support a recovery of charges for rice stored with the machine, an assignment that the court erred in charging that defendant could not hold the mixer for storage charges on other property was unsustainable. Texas Warehouse Co. v. Imperial Rice Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 396.

In replevin, where defendant set up as a counterclaim plaintiff's breach of a construction contract, but did not allege plaintiff's conversion of material deposited on the lot where the building was to be erected, the submission to the jury of the question whether plaintiff was liable for the conversion was erroneous. Gordon v. Ratliff (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 372.

Refusal of instruction on sufficiency of evidence as to line of old grant held not erroneous, where giving it would have nullified the issues submitted and would have been contrary to the evidence in the case. Crosby v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 705.

Contracts and actions relating thereto in general.—In an action upon a collateral agreement for a loan contained in a contract subscribing for stock in an insurance company, an instruction allowing a recovery of the money paid for the stock from the promoters if the company had not accepted the contract in good faith held improper, as submitting an issue not made by the pleadings, which alleged an acceptance of the contract by the company and a refusal thereafter to make the loan. American Home Life Ins. Co. v. Compere (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 79.

Where defendant's was liable only as a surety, it is error to give instructions allowing the jury to find against him either as principal or surety. Willingham v. Brown (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 107.

Where a broker's contract of exchange of property was unconditional and carried out by the purchaser, an instruction that if the purchaser failed to carry out the contract, through no fault of defendant, he could not recover was properly refused. Tevebaugh v. Smith Land Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 664.

In an action for services, instructions held not erroneous under the pleading for failure to prove that if defendant had paid plaintiff for all services rendered under the first contract of employment, he could not recover thereon. Red Mineral Springs Development Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 427.

In an action for breach of contract to keep a road under a bridge free from inflammable material and to indemnify for damage from fire, instructions resting the liability on negligence held erroneous. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Amarillo-St. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1103.

In broker's action for commissions, objection to instruction on ground that the pleadings raised no issue as to failure to consume deal being due to defendants' fault held

In action on contract, even if plaintiff’s testimony showed modification of original contract, the refusal of his requested charge thereon was proper, where there was no pleading by plaintiff authorizing its submission. Tyler Box & Lumber Mfg. Co. v. City Nat. Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 269.

370. — Contracts of carriage.—Where it is alleged that the damage to a shipment of bananas resulted from negligence and delay, followed by specific allegations ascribing the damages to the failure to stop the car as per contract, it is error to submit to the jury, as a matter of law, the failure to ice the car. Houston & T. C. R. R. Co. v. Corsicana Fruit Co. (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 849.

In view of answer and supplemental petition, held that, in an action for damages to shipment, it was not error to define negligence, though original petition was based on breach of Ry. Co. v. Morgan & D. O. Ry. Co. 90 S. W. 941.

In suit for damages to shipment of cattle, defendant, under general denial of its negligence, held entitled to instruction that no damages could be recovered for injuries due to the inherent nature or proper vice of the animals. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Kerr (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1058.

In an action for damages to shipment of live stock, requested instruction that carrier’s receivers were required by federal statutes to give the train crew not less than 10 hours’ consecutive rest was properly refused, because irrelevant to the issues. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Corn (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 807.

371. — Telegraphic and telephonic service.—Where plaintiff claimed damages for defendant’s failure to deliver on the 15th a death message, but asserted no damage for subsequent delay, and the evidence showed that the message did not reach the delivering office for 24 hours, plaintiff if defendant’s agent should find for plaintiff could prove the error in the message after receipt at destination was erroneous because it might have caused the jury to believe that the court was of the opinion that the message arrived on the 15th and the defendant recover a recovery for negligence not counted upon. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Cathey (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 714.

In action for negligent failure to deliver a message, instruction permitting recovery though the message could not have been delivered at the address, on the theory that the sender intended the agent might be at another place, held erroneous, as on an issue not made by the pleadings. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Fabian (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1006.

372. — Contracts of sale and actions relating thereto.—In an action by the purchaser’s seed oat for damages for fraud in misrepresenting the quality and variety agreed to be delivered, a request to charge as to what would constitute a warranty was properly refused. Handy v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 37.

In action for balance of a bill for lumber, furnished to build a house, held that, upon the pleadings, instructions as to defendant’s agent’s waiver or estoppel in respect to the size of the house actually built should not have been given. Scruggs v. E. L. Woodley Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 897.

373. — Actions on insurance contracts, policies, or certificates.—In insurance agent’s action for amount of first premium, wherein defendant did not contend that condition precedent to his acceptance had not been complied with, there was no error in omitting reference thereto in the charge. Just v. Herry (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1012.

In an action on an accident insurance policy, a requested charge as to partial disability was properly refused, where the only issue raised by the pleadings was as to total disability. North Western Accident Ins. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 750.

374. — Actions on notes.—In an action on certain rent notes for a pumping plant and canal, a request to charge that if plaintiff promised to forego rents if salt water appeared at the plant, and salt water did appear, and salt water was used to cultivate the premises without electing to rescind, the jury should find for plaintiff held properly refused as not within the issues. Savage v. Mowery (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 905.

A bank which acted as liquidating agent for another bank, held not entitled, in a suit brought by the stockholders, to recover a note given by the bank to the agent on an instruction which would enable it to recover if the note was held as security merely. Farmers & Merchants’ Bank v. Owens (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 734.

The only real issue being whether a note was delivered on condition that it should not be paid unless B’s note was paid, an issue of whether B’s note was paid, when it clearly was not, unless there was collusion, not claimed, was error. Hamilton v. Hannus (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 938.

375. — Actions for personal injuries in general.—In an action for injury to a pedestrian who fell into a coal hole, error cannot be predicated on the use by the court in an instruction of the word “slipped,” instead of the word “tilted,” as used in the petition, where the evidence showed the nature of the injury was clear, and no prejudice could have resulted. Young Men’s Christian Ass’n v. Jasie (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 857.

376. — Injuries in operation of railroads in general.—In an action for injuries to plaintiff, while crossing a defective railroad crossing over the suggestion of the foreman of defendant’s repair crew, an instruction authorizing a recovery if the foreman’s invitation for plaintiff to cross was negligent, and the proximate cause of the injury, held erroneous, wherein plaintiff’s petition counted exclusively on defendant’s failure to perform its duty to provide a safe crossing as actionable negligence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Evans (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1173.

In an action for injuries from a lump of coal falling from defendant’s trestle into street, a charge to the jury that no particular duty was owed to plaintiff was properly refused. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hendricks (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1158.

A charge on the duty of a railroad company to keep a proper lookout at a crossing, where defendant’s engineers had no knowledge of the existence of the railroad, was properly refused. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Kennon (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 867.
In an action against an interurban electric railroad for injuries in collision at a street crossing, the court, in charging on the issue of negligence, should make any reference to an ordinance relating to speed of steam engines. Texas Traction Co. v. Wiley (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1028.

A requested charge that there was no evidence showing the train was being run at excessive speed was properly refused in an action for killing cattle, where excessive speed was not made a basis of recovery. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Decatur Cotton Seed Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1104.

The issue whether the train was used as a passway held properly submitted, though deceased was lying down when struck, since it had a bearing on whether it was defendant's duty to keep a lookout. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Jaramilla (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1126.

377. Injuries to passengers.—In a passenger's action for injuries from an assault by a fellow passenger, held, that the pleadings and evidence justified an instruction charging that plaintiff could not recover if the assault was so sudden that it could not have been reasonably prevented by the conductor. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Stewart (Sup.) 182 S. W. 892.

Where a passenger alleged that he slipped on a banana peel on the floor at one of the stations, and fell, receiving injuries, submission of the issue whether leaving that particular door unlocked, though another door was open, was an implied invitation to the passenger to leave the car at that door was error; that being immaterial. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Yantis (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 969.

378. Injuries to employés.—In an action by a car repairer for personal injuries from falling into a ditch, held, that on the pleading and the evidence a charge as to defendant's knowledge of the ditch, and its failure to notify defendant thereof was proper. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 635.

In an action for the wrongful death of a servant, killed by an explosion of steam pipes, the petition held to authorize an instruction on the negligence of the master in failing to inspect for defects that necessary repairs could be made. Texas Power & Light Co. v. Bird (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 8.

The petition of a servant, injured by the fall of a scaffold, alleging that the master failed to furnish the servant a safe place in which to work, in that the scaffold was weak and dangerous, having shown evidence as to the state of the scaffold, and insulation furnished was inadequate, the giving of an instruction submitting the issue of the insufficiency of the material was proper. Cooper & Jones v. Hall (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 465.

Defendant's requested instruction, requiring, as a condition to recovery, in an action for injury to a brakeman from the pulling out of a handhold on a car, an affirmative finding that the handhold had not been inspected as alleged, is properly refused; the answer admitted the car had been inspected, and the instruction not being denied. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Dickens (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 835.

In an action for injuries to an employé, refusal to charge on an allegation in the petition held not erroneous. Hamilton Compress Co. v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 474.

An allegation that the master negligently furnished the servant an engine out of repair supports an instruction that it was the master's duty to exercise ordinary care to furnish an ordinarily safe engine, and to have it inspected and repaired, especially where the specific duty was by later instruction specifically defined. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Pence (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1051.

In a telephone lineman's action for injury from wire of an electric light company joined as defendant, its requested charge on its liability was properly refused, where no such issue was raised by the pleadings. Gulf States Telephone Co. v. Evetts (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 399.

379. Contributory negligence.—An instruction on contributory negligence, correct in form, is properly refused, where contributory negligence is not pleaded. Bartley v. Marino (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1156.

Where the master's answer failed to allege contributory negligence of his employé, in suit for wrongful death, and the petition failed to show him prima facie negligent, it was not error to refuse a requested charge on that question. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Lijten (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1194.

Defendant, having specifically pleaded certain acts as contributory negligence, was not entitled to have other acts submitted to the jury as a basis for finding contributory negligence. North Texas Gas Co. v. Medor (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 708.

Where contributory negligence of plaintiff was not pleaded, the matter should not be submitted in the charge. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Vogel (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 229.

Where defendant railroad company, in action for injuries at crossing, did not plead contributory negligence in excuse of crossings, it was proper to refuse to submit that issue. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Starr (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 637.

381. Assumption of risk.—Special charge on assumed risk held properly refused in view of plaintiff's contention as to negligence at time of injury. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Bratcher (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 700.

382. Amount of recovery.—A requested charge in a railroad passenger's action for personal injuries, which excluded traumatic hysteria as an element of recovery when it was an issue, was properly refused. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Coffman (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 145.

Where plea of reconversion alleging that plaintiff had circulated false reports concerning defendant preventing him from marketing a crop of cotton and causing him humiliation, etc., failed to allege and there was no evidence of the amount of his pecuniary loss from his inability to market the cotton, held, that this claim should not have been submitted. Texas (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 937.

Where no actual damages were claimed for the loss of a garnishment, the court properly refused a request to charge that the jury should measure the actual damages by the reasonable market value of the property taken, with legal interest thereon from the time of taking to the time of the trial. Bennett v. Foster (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1078.
A petition for personal injuries, which alleges that plaintiff’s leg was broken by a violent action, and subsequently amputated, that he was confined to his bed for more than four months, that he suffered great pain, and which does not allege that the wound had healed, authorizes a charge permitting a recovery for a physical and mental pain plaintiff may suffer in the future. Waterman Lumber Co. v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 137.

Where, in an action for trespass, no issue was raised as to the rental value of the sawmill operated by defendants on the land, the court properly refused to instruct the jury to not consider such rental value. Fairchild v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 469.

Where the submission of the evidence was insufficient to authorize a charge of aggravation of previous injury. Bulloch v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 898.

On pleadings and evidence, in an action to recover for expenses necessarily incurred in the repair of an automobile, which was damaged by defendant, held, no proof of loss of earnings or net profits during repairs was properly submitted. Galveston-Houston Electric Ry. Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 666.

In an action for damages occasioned the shippers of live stock by delay in transit, where there was no basis in the pleadings for proof of shrinkage in weight after the shipment’s late arrival, or for decline in the market for which the cattle were held over, the court erred in submitting such matters as well as an item for additional feed. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Landa & Storey (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 384.

Under an allegation of injury to an automobile, a charge that measure of damages was the difference in its value before and after the injury is abstractly correct, but where pleading sought to recover the cost of repair, a charge submitting such a measure of damages is erroneous. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. McMeans (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 692.

An charge submitting a mere abstract proposition of law, not warranted by the facts in the case was properly refused. Blount v. Henry (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 418.

Where an issue is supported by evidence, it is proper for the court to charge thereon. Owens v. First State Bank of Bronte (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 798.

384. Sufficiency of evidence to warrant instruction.—Where the evidence was wholly insufficient to show that representations made by defendant were mere expressions of his opinion, the refusal of his requested instruction that, if they were such, plaintiff could not recover was proper. Benton v. Kuykendall (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 498.

385. Evidence excluded or withdrawn or improperly admitted.—In an action for breach of a lease, the court having withdrawn from the jury the issue of mistake in executing the lease without a prohibition defensiance clause, a request to charge on such issue was properly refused. Tabor v. Eyler (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 490.

The refusal of special issues on uncontroverted and immaterial facts is improper. Tinkham v. Wright (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 615.

Where evidence raising an issue was received without objection, though the issue was not presented by the pleadings, Instructions submitting the issue were proper. McKee v. Garner (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 1031.

Refusal of requested charges, based upon testimony withdrawn from the jury, is not error. Buchanan v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 625.

Where the only evidence of agreed boundary line was incompetent, and it was withdrawn from the jury, a charge on such agreed boundary line is improper. Coogrove v. Smith (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 169.

386. Nature of action or issue in general.—Where the evidence did not present the issues of laches and stale demand, it was error to submit such issues, though they were presented by defendants’ pleadings. Norton v. Lea (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 297.

In an action by a stockholder asserting mismanagement by the directors, a charge on the duty of directors held abstract and properly refused. Thomas v. Barthold (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1071.

387. Actions relating to property in general.—In trespass to try title by a vendor against a purchaser, an instruction that the purchaser could not recover for improvements on the land if he had himself failed to perform the contract, and if the vendor was ready and willing to perform, held proper under the evidence. Pollard v. Mc- Crummen (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1148.

A charge on the rule that in arriving at the bounds of a survey courses and distances yield to natural or artificial objects of demarkation, but courses and distances will not be made subordinate to any marked line or unmarked line in an older survey, held not applicable to facts. Dunn v. Land (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 688.

388. Actions for torts in general.—Instruction that every man was responsible for damage occasioned by his stock to the lands of another, unless done under a contract against the owner of the land, held, error, where much of evidence that plaintiff made any contract authorizing the use of her land so as to permanently injure the freehold. Gorman v. Brazelton (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 434.

Instruction authorizing recovery for cattle killed, if right of way was not fenced so as to effectually turn live stock under ordinary circumstances, held justified by evidence as to defective condition of fastening of a gate, through which cattle went on the

392. Negligence in general.—Where there was no evidence that the facts that plaintiff left certain vehicle standing in a city street was a cause of the collision between plaintiff's horse and defendants' automobile, the court properly refused an instruction that permitting the vehicles to stand in the street was negligence. Starn v. Auto Co. Hogg (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 922.

Submission of the issue of the killing of a horse by a train, being caused by failure to ring the bell and sound the whistle, is not justified, in the absence of evidence of proximity of the place to a crossing, or that such signals would probably have prevented the accident, in view of the fact that in one case submitted when no facts are shown on which negligence in not stopping it can be predicated. Interna-

Bandy purchased a railroad company need only exercise ordinary care to equip its engines with suitable spark arresters, yet, where, in an action for loss of property by fire set by sparks, there was no evidence by the company on that issue, it was not reversible error to charge that it was its duty to use suitable spark arresters. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Cook (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 158.

The word "willfully," in connection with "knowingly," in an instruction that, if defendants did a thing willfully and knowingly, etc., they were negligent, authorized the jury to conclude the court was of opinion there was some evidence that defendant did such thing with a bad intent, making the instruction prejudicial; there being no such evidence. Corrigan, Lane & Halpin v. Heubler (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 159.

In action for death of cattle, which went on railroad tracks through gate, instruction that it was not the company's duty to remedy trivial defects held properly refused, in view of the evidence. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Scheer (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1069.

It was error to submit the issue whether defendant's negligence contributed to the injury sustained by plaintiff where there was no evidence on such issue. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Berry (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 125.

In action for destruction of property by fire communicated from boarding cars on defendant's siding, special charges requested by defendant upon immaterial issues and upon matters not raised by the testimony held properly refused. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Moebe (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 128.

In an action for damages caused by defendant's automobile driven by employé, where there was no evidence of incompetence or recklessness, an instruction on that subject held properly refused. Gordon v. Texas & Pacific Mercantile & Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 748.

Under pleading and proof in action for damages to automobile from collision, held, that refusal of instruction on law of accident was not error. Auto Sales Co. v. Bland (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1021.

390. Personal injuries in general.—In a personal injury action, a charge held erroneous as to tending to mislead the jury. Eldridge v. Citizens' Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 375.

Instructions in a personal injury action submitting issues of negligence held erroneous, as not warranted by the evidence. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Sanders (Sup.) 173 S. W. 865, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1181.

The giving of a charge correctly defining implied and apparent authority to consent, on behalf of parents, to an operation on their child, over the objection that there was no evidence to support the charge, held prejudicial error. Riswirth v. Moss (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 843.

In an action to recover for death by electrocution, instructions submitting all issues of negligence raised by the pleadings are erroneous, where all but one were unsupported by evidence. Abilene Gas & Electric Co. v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1016.

391. Personal injuries in operation of railroads in general.—In an action for injury from a lump of coal falling from a locomotive tender on defendant's trestle upon plaintiff's car, jury refused instruction that instruction in the case as to possible means was properly refused in view of the evidence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Hendricks (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1153.

An instruction that, if inspection would not have disclosed the defect, the railroad company would not be liable, to one injured thereby, held erroneous, in the absence of evidence of any inspection. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 378.

Instruction to find railroad company not liable if the engineer was not negligent held properly refused where there was evidence that driver's view of crossing was obstructed by the company's cars on a siding. Texas Midland R. R. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1655.

In an action for injuries to a licensee while in a railroad car, an instruction that the plaintiff could not recover for any defect in the brake was proper, where there was evidence that the brake was defective, but no evidence that there was any attempt to use the brake, since the defect could not have been the proximate cause of the injury. Bead v. International & G. N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 553.

Evidence held not to warrant charge to find for the injured pedestrian if the car had no fender, since it tended to show that there was a fender, and such charge was therefore prejudicial. Galveston Electric Co. v. Swank (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 794.

In a personal injury action, if the jury found the plaintiff was the result of unavoidable accident, is error where there is no evidence suggesting an unavoidable accident. Terrell v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 575.

392. Injuries to passengers.—Where a passenger was shown to have been thrown from an unusual bump in a coach by an uninjured in the carrier was bound to employ skillful and competent agents held supported by the evidence. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 406.

Where, in an action for injuries to a passenger, plaintiff's evidence showed an unwarranted assault by a trainman, while defendant's evidence showed that plaintiff was struck while he was making an assault on the trainmen, there was no issue of the right of self defense in the case, and the court's duty to charge. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Fielder (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 606.

In an action by a passenger for injuries caused by a stray bullet fired by another passenger at a drunken passenger who was making an assault upon him, where all the evidence tending to show self defense, it was error for the trial court to refuse to instruct the jury to construe the question of justification for the shooting. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 1.

In an action by plaintiff's wife caused by an unusual jar to the coach in which she was a passenger, where there was no evidence that she had warned that a coupling was about to be made between coaches, an instruction which predicated a verdict for the plaintiff upon a finding, among other things, that the collision was without notice or warning was not erroneous. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. McNatt (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 89.

In an action for personal injuries to one traveling with a fruit car on a nontransferrable pass issued to his principal, an instruction that plaintiff was a passenger if the conductor consented to his riding thereon is inapplicable to evidence that the consent to his riding was given by the conductor of a train other than the one on which he was when injured. Beard v. International & G. N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 553.

In an action for injuries sustained on the running board of a car held to authorize an instruction on unavoidable accident. Tennakleit v. Galveston Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 72.

In a passenger's action for injuries from an assault by a fellow passenger, held, that the pleadings and evidence justified an instruction that plaintiff could not recover if assault was so sudden that it could not have been reasonably prevented by conductor. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Stewart (Sup.) 182 S. W. 893.

In an action under the separate coach law for injuries to a negro assaulted by a white conductor for blacks, instruction authorizing a finding against the road if its servants knew that a white passenger was in the negro coach held not erroneous on account of testimony. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Baker (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 664.

Instruction in passenger's action for injuries held erroneous for permitting recovery for carrier's negligence in inviting passengers to alight from a certain door independent of the presence of a banana peel on which plaintiff slipped and fell. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Yantis (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 969.

In an action for injuries to a passenger who fell on stepping on a piece of wood in the car, an instruction to find for plaintiff if carrier's employes permitted the wood to be in the car, etc., held not objectionable on the ground there was no evidence of permission. Texas & Pac. Ry. Co. v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 285.

In action for injuries from being struck by a truck on platform, it was not error to refuse charge to find for defendant if plaintiff walked between the truck and the track. Reasonable prudence would have walked between the truck and the depot, it not appearing that route taken was dangerous. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. McMichael (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 186.

In an action for injuries from contracting a cold in defendant's station, where there was no suggestion that plaintiff's physical condition was abnormal, held, that it was not error to submit issue whether station was kept warm to such a degree as would be reasonably comfortable for plaintiff. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Faulkner (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 651.

393. Injuries to servants.—The refusal of a charge that if the jury could not determine what caused the accident they should find for plaintiff held proper, where the evidence was sufficient to show that the negligence of the master was the proximate cause of the explosion, although it did not show the exact reason thereof. Fred A. Jones v. Drake (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 441.

In action by car repairer for personal injuries from falling into a ditch, held, that on the pleadings and evidence, a charge as to defendant's knowledge of such ditch and its failure to notify defendant thereof was proper. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 639.

In an action for a servant's death by being struck by a piece of iron falling in the elevator shaft at the bottom of which he was working, held, that there being no evidence on the subject, the refusal to submit special issues as to how the iron got to the shaft and as to whether it was brought there and negligently or unintentionally allowed to fall was not error. Selden-Breck Const. Co. v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 985.

In an action for the death of a servant, killed by a falling piece of iron, held, on the evidence that the submission of a special issue as to whether his death resulted from negligence on the part of some employé of defendant not a vice principal was properly refused.

In an action for personal injury to plaintiff while performing a service in the barn in the performance of his immediate master to deposit his tools, etc., a charge which referred to his loitering about the barn was improper, though the barn belonged to defendant. Eldridge v. Citizens' Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 375.

A charge submitting a phase of the case in accordance with the testimony of the injured employé is not inapplicable to the facts because the defendant master offered much evidence in contradiction. Planters' Oil Co. v. Keebler (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 120.

In action for death of railway employé, due to slipping on wet paint on brake platform, instruction confining negligence to that of the employé operating a switch train held proper, in the absence of any evidence that it was the switching crew to inspect the cars. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Welshimer (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 373.

Where, in an action for injuries due to defective steel rails from a ship, there was evidence that an inspection made after the tongs had been in use would have disclosed the defect, it was not error to give an instruction authorizing a recovery because of defendant's failure to inspect them. J. H. W. Steele Co. v. Dover (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 898.
In a coal miner's action for injuries from a falling roof, refusal of charge that the mire happening of an accident is no proof of negligence held proper under the evidence. Consolidation Coal Co. v. Grant (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 292.

Evidence in action for injuries to section hand while removing wreck, held not to warrant Instruction as to foreman's negligence, or as to defendant's liability for failure to use section care in selecting competent servants. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Mooney (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 543.

In action against railroad for death of yard clerk, submission of issue of failure to keep lookout was erroneou in the absence of evidence showing connection between such failure and the death. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Fred (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 586.

In a servant's action for injuries, the words "suddenly and unexpectedly" in an instruction, used with reference to the movement of the train at the time plaintiff was injured, held to not coupled them, must necessarily have been understood by the jury as relative, and in that sense is supported by the plaintiff's testimony that the movement was sudden and unexpected in one direction, and he had given the signal to go in the other. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Chatten (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 911.

In action for injuries by servant of lumber company, general charge of court held not erroneous in that it submitted an issue whether log being snaked was pulled against end of log on skids, whereas evidence showed it was not, but was thrown against skids by reason of tongs coming in contact with a stump. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Bratcher (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 700.

Evidence held sufficient to justify Instruction in an action for injury to servant caused by other cars colliding with the car in which plaintiff was working, that the cars were not coupled together, and that it was the employer's duty to keep them coupled. Rule Cotton Oil Co. v. Russell (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 802.

In action for injuries to freight conductor in yards when he stumbled over an object variously described as a stake, stub, or stub, where testimony referred to it in each of these ten of the issue whether the defendant contributory negligence in moving it to a grade stake was not error; the word "stub," which means a small post. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 593.

Where there was testimony that rules of company required foreman of section gang to give warning of approaching trains, and that foreman had specifically told section men to keep eyes on him, and that he would give warning, court did not err in submitting issue of alleged negligence of foreman in failing to give warning. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Mitchum (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 622.

394. — Assumption of risk.—Where there was no testimony in a servant's action for injury raising the question of assumed risk, the court properly refused a special charge thereon. San Antonio Brewing Ass'n v. Gerlach (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 316; Bowden v. Telegraph Co. v. Coffin (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 112.

Where the evidence showed that plaintiff at the time of his injury was not employed as a section hand, but to assist in extinguishing a fire, it was not error to charge that he assumed all the risk while discharging the duties ordinarily "incident to his employment." Instead of "incident to his duties as a section hand." Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Maples (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 426.

In an action for personal injuries to a fireman, a charge on assumption of risk held not erroneous as disregarding an exception to the rule where there was no evidence to support the exception. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 304.

It is not error in freight conductor's action for injuries when he stumbled over a stake in the yards, where the evidence is overwhelming that he did not know of its presence, to refuse requested instructions on assumption of risk. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 593.

395. — Contributory negligence.—In passenger's action for personal injury, where the issue of contributory negligence was not raised by the evidence, there was no error in refusing a special charge thereon. Paris & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Atkins (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 396; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. McNatt (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 89.

Failure to submit defendant's claim that an injured servant went voluntarily upon the car from which he fell was not error, where the undisturbed evidence showed that he was employed by defendant's servant for the specific duties in which he was engaged when injured. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Maples (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 426.

Evidence held insufficient to raise an issue as to brakeman's knowledge of presence of pile of cinders over which he stumbled as he was getting on a moving car. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Geron (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 471.

In an action for the death of a servant caused by cotton seed hulls falling upon him, where there was no direct evidence of contributory negligence, there being no eyewitnesses, the court properly refused to charge on contributory negligence. Industrial Cotton Oil Co. v. Lial (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 40.

In telephone lineman's action for personal injury from electricity from electric light wire to a guy wire, charge, assuming that he knew that electric light wire was charged with electricity was properly refused, where evidence failed to show such knowledge. Gulf States Telephone Co. v. Ewett (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 289.

In action for recovery of personal injuries to an employé, evidence held to raise the issue of discovered peril. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 399.

In car repairer's action for personal injuries, instruction as to duty of defendant's employees in discovering his peril held not without support in the evidence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Walters (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 916, judgment reversed on rehearing 165 S. W. 525.

Where in section hand's action for injuries there is insufficient evidence to show actual knowledge by train crew of plaintiff's peril, submission of issue of negligence of 397. — Contracts and actions relating thereto in general.—A charge requested by the landlord, denying recovery if the tenant could have procured another lease of the same kind, held properly refused under the evidence. Bost v. McCrea (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 561.

In an action on account and note made by a defendant’s father which it was alleged plaintiff agreed to pay, an instruction that verdict should be for plaintiff on his claim on an open account if he was entitled to recover held not proper under the evidence. Thornburg v. Moon (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 959.

In an acceptance of vendor’s offer, subsequent purchaser’s requested instruction that part of the alleged shortage had been in the adverse possession of other parties more than 10 years held properly refused, where there was no evidence of such adverse possession. Orand v. Whitmore (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 347.

In action on contract, where testimony for plaintiff did not show a modification of the contract, plaintiff’s requested instruction on that theory was properly refused. Tyler Box & Lumber Mfg. Co. v. City Nat. Bank of Paris (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 352.

398. — Contracts of carriage.—In an action for wrongful ejection of a passenger, where the evidence was not sufficient to raise the issue of the use of unnecessary force, it was error to instruct that defendant would be liable if it arrested the passenger, and defining “arrest” as any restraint upon his movements, etc. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dice (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 475.

In action for damages to shipment of cattle, instruction as to liability for rough handling held without support in the evidence and prejudicial. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 963.

In action for delay in transportation of cattle instructions submitting issue as to special contract concerning time of shipment held at least misleading under the evidence. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 901.

In suit for damages to shipment of cattle, where there was no evidence of a want of care in loading, instruction that a want of care would be negligence was without support in the evidence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Kerr (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1058.

In an action for damages to a shipment of live stock, where there was no evidence as to whether was an ordinarily reasonable time for transportation between two points, the issue as to reasonable time should not have been submitted. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Corn (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 807.

In action for damages to shipment of live stock, requested charge not to consider any application or order for cattle made at a certain point held properly refused as inapplicable to evidence. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Vaughn (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 142.

Where evidence was undisputed that a train was stopped and a passenger ejected for not paying fare at the station where the train usually stopped, it was not error to refuse to submit to the jury plaintiff’s question whether defendant’s servants rendered the plaintiff and her children such assistance as was required by defendant’s rules and the circumstances of the case. Fleck v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 386.

399. — Contracts for telegraphic or telephonic service.—In an action for damages for failure to deliver telegram, instruction assuming that certain stock had been offered to plaintiff at $25 a head held not at variance with evidence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Gorman & Wilson (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 925.

In an action to recover for contracts and acts of a contractor relating thereto.—Where machinery for irrigation was never installed in accordance with the contract, and the purchasers sought damages for injuries to their crops, a charge on the question of unreasonable delay in installation was unnecessary. Southern Gas & Gasoline Engine Co. v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 529.

In an action for personal property claimed not to have been included in contract of sale, charge that defendant, in reconvention, might recover a stove, was properly refused, where without any support in the evidence. James v. Doss (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 623.

401. — Actions on insurance policies.—A requested charge that, the market value after the fire of the piano insured not having been shown, no recovery could be had, held properly refused, under the evidence. Occident Fire Ins. Co. v. Linn (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 523.

In an action on an employee's indemnity policy, an instruction concerning the intention of the parties held inapplicable to the evidence. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 947.

402. — Bills and notes.—In an action on certain rent notes for a pumping plant and canal, a request to charge that if plaintiff promised to forego rents if salt water appeared in the river at the plant, and salt water did appear, but defendant continued to cultivate the premises without electing to rescind, the jury should find for plaintiff, held properly refused as not within the proof. Savage v. Mowery (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 905.

In an action on a note, where there was no evidence to support the issue as to whether plaintiff had failed to account for collateral, it should not have been submitted. First State Bank of Amarillo v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 295.

403. — Actions for personal services and commissions.—Though an owner could sell the land himself and thus revoke the broker’s authority, the mere fact of a sale by the owner to a purchaser did not est the broker was not est on, and hence it was not error to refuse defendant’s request presenting such issue, nor where there were circumstances tending to show that the terms were changed to defeat the right to commissions, it was not error to submit such issue, nor to charge that a joint owner of land with knowledge of circumstances charging him with notice of the rights.
of a broker, would be equally liable if he consummated the sale with such notice. Webb v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1029.

There was no error in refusing an instruction, in an action for brokers' commissions, that any agreement between plaintiffs and the buyer's agent relative to the exchange would not bind defendant without his consent, where there was no evidence of any such agreement, and no instruction to this effect in the cause. McKinney v. Thedford (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 443.

An instruction as to a broker's right to a commission, where he did not personally conduct the negotiations, was not present when the bargain was closed, and where his principal did not at the time know that he found the purchaser, was not inapplicable to the facts, where plaintiff did not personally negotiate the exchange and was not present when it was made. Id.

In an action by a broker's assignee for commissions on an exchange of lands, an instruction to find for defendant because the evidence showed that a third party was a partner with the broker was properly refused, where the partnership was not a party to the suit, and the broker's authority to transfer the account to plaintiff was not questioned. Anderson v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 54.

In action against railroad ticket agent to recover money converted by him to his own use, where used in the same amount, instruction as to plaintiff's ratification of contract of employment held reversible error, where the evidence did not raise such issue. Stephenville North & South Texas Ry. Co. v. Grier (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 954.

Where there was no evidence that a broker was limited to three months in which to sell, defendant's request seeking to inject such issue into the case was properly refused. Black v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 493.

In an action to recover commissions for sale of land, where there was no evidence of the reasonable value of the agent's services, the trial court was not required to submit the issue of quantum meruit. Witcher v. Adams (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 399.

Fraud, mistake, duress, and undue influence.—In an action against a street railroad company for personal injuries, testimony of 17 claims by plaintiff's relatives against defendant and that plaintiff witnessed a release in one suit will not justify a charge on conspiracy to fabricate claims. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 722.

Release.—Where evidence refuted alleged settlement of plaintiff's claim for defendant's failure to deliver water for irrigation, submission of issue whether settlements were made held properly refused. Orange County Irr. Co. v. Sandefur (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 777.

Extent of injury and amount of recovery.—In an action for personal injuries, an instruction allowing reasonable compensation for necessary artificial limbs already purchased or that might be required was reversible error, where there was no evidence that the amount paid for artificial limbs already purchased was reasonable, and where there was no evidence that the plaintiff suffered any mental anguish, there was no error in refusing to instruct that the jury should not take into consideration any mental anguish suffered by plaintiff. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Wininger (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 851.

In a brakeman's action for injuries, instruction permitting the consideration of the reasonable value of the time lost in consequence of the injury held applicable to the evidence. Ed. Texas v. Martin (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 405.

In a buyer's action for breach of contract to furnish cotton seed hulls, where it could not be said that it was undisputed that the seller's failure to furnish the contract quality was the proximate cause of the injury to the buyer's cattle, the submission of that issue was proper, and where no other verdict than one for the seller could have been returned, there was no error in giving or refusing charges upon his failure to furnish the contract quality and as to whether such failure was the proximate cause of damage to the cattle. Major v. Heffey-Coleman Co. (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 448.

In an action for injuries to a section hand sustaining a rupture while attempting to remove a hand car from a track, the refusal to submit as an issue of proximate cause his weakness or diseased condition held not erroneous under the evidence. Missouri, O. & N. Ry. v. Bering (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 79.

In an action for damages for the destruction of a wagon and seed cotton by fire, submission of an issue as to the market value of the property held error, where there was no evidence thereof. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. v. Wristen & Johnson (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 395.

Where the defense to a purchase-money note was fraud, but there was no evidence as to the market value of the goods, it was error to give an instruction authorizing recovery, for the difference between the value as represented, and the market value. Lankford v. Shell (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 917.

Where there was no evidence that other obstructions caused the backing of the flood waters on plaintiff's premises, refusal of a charge that there should have been no verdict against defendant railroad company whose fills it was charged caused the inundation, where the jury could not determine what damages were caused by them and what by other obstructions was proper. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Vogt (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 84.

There being no evidence that plaintiff's injury was caused by a weakened condition of her arm, though it had previously been broken, a requested instruction predicated on a finding of such fact was properly refused. North Texas Gas Co. v. Meador (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 798.

In an action for injuries, where the plaintiff was earning the same amount after as he had earned prior to the injuries, and there was no evidence that his earning capacity had been affected, the submission of the issue whether plaintiff's future earning capacity had been impaired was error. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 732.

A charge that there could be no recovery if the injury to plaintiff's scrotum was caused by infection from scratching an ulcer held not warranted by the evidence. Burkes v. North Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 429.

In an action against a carrier of live stock for damages caused by delay in transportation, it was error to submit as an element of damage items of feed which plaintiff claimed purchased on the route, in absence of evidence that such amount was necessary or price paid was reasonable, and where there was no evidence showing amount expended for food for stock while unloaded, that issue should not have been submitted to jury. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Atterberry (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1133.

In an action for damages for delay in shipping the delivery of live stock, the submission of the measure of damages based on their market value at a certain point held warranted by the evidence as to their market value at such point. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Vaughn (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 142.

Treason of physician that he made five or six visits to plaintiff, and that $200 was a reasonable charge therefor, is sufficient to warrant an instruction to find for plaintiff the reasonable value of medical services. Houston Electric Co. v. Pearce (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 558.

406. Instructions excluding or ignoring issues, defenses, or evidence.—A requested charge which ignored one of the issues was properly refused. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 853.

Instruction to find for plaintiff under certain circumstances unless the jury found for defendant under other instructions "herein given" held not to preclude consideration of affirmative defenses submitted by special charges requested by defendant. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1055.

An issue raised by the evidence should be submitted to the jury. World's Special Films Corp. v. Flchtenberg (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 733.

The refusal of the request to charge which ignored one phase of the case was not erroneous. First Nat. Bank v. Mangum (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 647.

410. Nature of action or issue in general.—An instruction ignoring the liability of a principal or agent of his agent beyond private instructions, where an apparent general authority was relied on, held error. Bergere v. Parker (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 809.

In suit to enjoin collection of justice's judgment, instruction held properly refused, as ignoring issue as to reliance on promise by justice and opposing counsel to send notice when an judgment was rendered in order that an appeal might be taken. Woodward v. Eskridge (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 568.

In an action for injuries from being struck by an automobile, a requested instruction to find ownership in the driver, if he had agreed to purchase the car, held properly refused, as omitting the element of intention of the parties to the sale. Oils Motor Works v. Churchill (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 785.

A charge that if the jury found that a corporation's manager acting for the corporation, they should find against it, held erroneous under the pleading and evidence as not requiring a finding that the manager was authorized by the corporation. Latham Co. v. Snell (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 917.

Charge as to notice to third persons dealing with mortgaged property, which wholly eliminated constructive notice, held properly refused. Conley v. Dimmit County State Bank (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 271.

Instruction to find for defendant if facts were as hypothesized held properly refused because it covered only one of the grounds of negligence relied on. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Texas & Missouri Valley (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1114.

In an action for the killing of plaintiff's mules at railroad crossing, held, that a charge ignoring question of slowing down train, and as to which there was evidence, was objectionable. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Templeton (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 904.

In an action for killing cattle, an instruction held improper as tending to exclude the defense that the cattle were killed on a public road, where the tracks were not required to be fenced. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Decatur Cotton Seed Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1104.

In an action for value of a horse killed on defendant railroad's right of way, an instruction which, in authorizing a verdict for plaintiff if defendant's acts were as alleged, did not require a finding that such acts were negligent, held erroneous. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Price (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 805.

413. Person's injuries in general.—Person's charge to find for plaintiff if defendant was guilty of either or all of the negligent acts charged in an action for injury when struck by defendant's street car without informing the jury as to the negligent acts charged, and as to which there was testimony, was reversible error. Corpus Christi St. & I. Ry. Co. v. Brow (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 430.

414. Contributory negligence and assumption of risk.—In an action for injuries received while crossing defendant's track at a place not a crossing, where the issue of contributory negligence was clearly raised by the pleadings and evidence, it was reversible error to refuse defendant's request for an affirmative charge upon that issue. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Wimlinger (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 531.

SUPP. VERN. S. CIV. ST. TEX.—54 529

Where a shipper of live stock sought recovery for negligent delay, as well as mishandling, a charge that, if the shipment was forwarded on the first train, there could be no recovery, is erroneous, because disregarding other negligence. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hughey (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 361.

In an action for damages occasioned the shippers of live stock by delay in transit, peremptory instructions for defendants on the ground that the evidence was insufficient as basis for damage on account of the decline in the market price of cattle the day after the cattle arrived late, were properly refused, where the evidence raised the issue of shrinkage in weight. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Landa & Storey (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 384.

In a suit for damages to shipment of cattle based on allegations of negligence in several respects, instruction submitting the converse of the theories on which plaintiff was to recover, omitting one of the issues of negligence, was erroneous. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Kerr (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1065.

An instruction in delivery of a telegram presented in the evening at an office which closed at night and did not open until 8 o'clock, an instruction, allowing recovery if the agent agreed to transmit the message by 6:30 or 7 the next morning and failed to do so, held erroneous, the reasonableness of the hours being an issue. Horn v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Sup.) 194 S. W. 286.

Damages and amount of recovery. Instruction that, if plaintiff's stock recovered from injury received in dipping, no recovery might be had by plaintiff, held properly refused, where it ignored evidence that plaintiff had incurred extra expense in bringing the stock to condition again. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cauble (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 380,*

Where there was no evidence before the jury by which they could correctly measure damages, a peremptory instruction that the undisputed evidence showed the hides to be of a certain value was error. Herrera v. Marquez (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1145.

In an instruction not to exclude injury, instructing which the defendant had agreed to pay in settlement of the plaintiff's claim held misleading and erroneous, where there was evidence of a valid adjustment. Winniboro Cotton Oil Co. v. Carson (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1062.

The term "sheep" including ewes and lambs, requested instruction requiring a finding that there was no decline in market value of sheep, when there was such evidence as to either ewes or lambs, is erroneous. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1097.

IV. CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION

Construction of particular instructions. A charge in a personal injury action against a railroad company by a passenger held to authorize a recovery for injuries not caused by the defendant's negligence, where there was no evidence of such injuries. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Pitkin (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1065.

A charge as to the rights of the parties, after plaintiff's surrender of his ticket to an agent, held calculated to lead the jury to believe that an unauthorized employe was meant. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Short (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 691.

In an action for damages for injuries to plaintiff's wife who was thrown down when entering defendant's train, an instruction held not to require the jury to find that plaintiff's wife was negligent, and was not boarding the train, in order to find against her. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Kruger (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 677.

In an action for slander, a charge that plaintiff stole defendant's property, which was made to one who knew that plaintiff was in possession of defendant's property, and who had no legal right to it or to have it, was properly submitted as a charge of swindling. Burkholder v. Lyons (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 244.

A charge on damages, limiting recovery to such amount as would compensate plaintiff if paid now, meant if paid now in cash. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1129.
In action for slander by defendant's manager, instructions, authorizing recovery if the manager was the agent of defendant acting within scope of employment, did not authorize recovery merely because language was uttered contemporaneously with employment. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Wilkins (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 429.

On cross-bill, general charge to find for defendant what would compensate for personal injury to himself and wife from overturning of car would include all injury, past or future, proximately resulting from the plaintiff's alleged negligence. Roberts v. Houston Motor Car Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 257.

Assignments of error complaining of isolated paragraphs of the charge will be overruled, where such paragraphs, when read with the charge as a whole, are not erroneous. Heumann v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 885.

An instruction is not erroneous, as confusing, if unobjectionable when read in connection with other instructions given. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 311.

425. Errors in general.—In an action by the state to recover a penalty from a railroad company for failing to keep the toilet at its depot, and the grounds adjacent thereto, lighted at night, charge, when construed as a whole, held not erroneous as requiring defendant to keep lighted the toilet and grounds in the daytime as well as at night. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. State (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 338.

426. Omissions in general.—A charge is to be construed as a whole, and when the right of recovery on one issue is submitted generally, its omission from another paragraph presents no reversible error. Glover v. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 1063.

430. Contributory negligence and assumption of risk.—In an action for injuries to a brakeman who was knocked from a dump car by a swinging door, an instruction as to the assumption of risk by the brakeman held not to instruct that the company must fasten the door of the car. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Tune (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 233.

In an action for the wrongful death of a servant, the failure of the court to charge that, in determining the question of contributory negligence, the jury should consider the evidence of plaintiffs, as well as that of defendant, is not error, where other charges summarized the acts which defendant claimed showed contributory negligence, and submitted the question whether they did. Texas Power & Light Co. v. Bird (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 8.

432. Weight and effect of evidence.—Instructions must be read as a whole, and, if so construed they correctly present the law, error cannot be predicated on a portion alone, which might be said to be on the weight of the evidence. Fox v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 352.

435. Error in instructions cured by withdrawal or giving other instructions.—In trespass to try title instruction held not confusing or misleading, in view of a further instruction. Strickland (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 622.

An omission in one part of an instruction may be cured by a proper charge elsewhere. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 621.

Where the entire charge fairly submits plaintiff's case and the facts set up in defense, a charge submitting plaintiff's case is not objectionable as taking defendant's contention from the jury and emphasizing the contention of plaintiff. Watson v. Rice (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 106.

Where the court covered the defense in its charge, a charge calling attention in a brief way to the cause of action, without referring to the defense, was not prejudicial. Dallas Consolidated Electric St. Ry. Co. v. Stone (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 766.

Where correct charges do not refer to or modify an erroneous charge, which is in direct contradiction, the two cannot be reconciled and judgment must be reversed. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Cathey (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 714.

A deficiency in a particular instruction does not constitute error, if such deficiency is supplied in subsequent portions of the general charge referred to. Stockley & White v. Means (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 774.

In action for delay in shipment of cattle in transit, deficiency in main charge held cured by giving special charge. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Miller & White (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 518.
436. — Issues and theories of case in general.—Error in an instruction that under the 10-year statute of limitation the claimant must have paid taxes held not cured by a later instruction that plaintiff might recover upon a showing of peaceable and adverse possession for ten years, since the two charges were contradictory. Gotoskey v. Grawunder (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 249.

An erroneous instruction as to the abstract rule of law concerning the duty of a railroad company to furnish safe means and manner of work for its freight handlers is harmless where it is followed by a charge correctly applying the law to the facts. St. Louis v. T. C. R. Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1042.

Where the petition did not authorize an instruction directing a verdict for plaintiff if defendant was negligent in "inducing" plaintiff to descend from the train, the error was cured by another part of the charge that plaintiff must recover under the allegations of his petition. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Loofis (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 396.

If defendant’s representation as to the value of a mule was an opinion, a charge authorizing a verdict for plaintiff if the jury found the mule not worth the money paid for it by plaintiff was not reversible error, where it was also charged that a verdict was not authorized thereby and defendant not only made this representation, but also falsely alleged that the mule was sound, and any error in charge authorizing a recovery "regardless of defendant’s knowledge" of the unsoundness of a mule, where defendant did not assert, in his statement at the scene and at the sale, was cured so far as I knew," was corrected by defendant’s special charge "that a statement that the mule was sound so far as he knew would not be sufficient to constitute the warranty alleged. Slover v. Goode (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 333.

In an ordinary case, in laying too much weight on the beginning corner of a description was cured, where another paragraph of the charge expressly stated that no one corner had any greater force or dignity than another. Miller v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 251.

In an action on a fire insurance policy, an instruction ignoring the defense of settlement held erroneous, notwithstanding other instructions. Fire Ass’n of Philadelphia v. Richards (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 936.

An instruction, purporting to generally define the rights of the parties, omits defenses, the fact, and other instructions present those defenses will not cure the error. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Decatur Cotton Seed Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1104.

Where it was stipulated that libelous charge of murder was untrue except as to fact of killing, a charge that article was libelous, false, untrue, and unauthorized was not error, where court further charged that defendant had legal right to publish fact of killing. Houston Chronicle Pub. Co. v. Quinn (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 669.

In an action for conversion of automobile alleged by defendant to have been taken under terms of mortgage because it believed its debt insecure, where instructions in several places referred to taking of car, it was sufficiently plain that “legal right” of defendant meant legal right to retake car. Magnolia Motor Sales Corp. v. Chaffee (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 562.

An instruction on rule regarding unascertained lines in former survey and their control over courses and distances erroneous because not applicable to evidence held not cured by other instructions. Dunn v. Land (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 698.

A charge that a mile for a survey to be circumscribed on three sides by waters called for must control proof of a survey inconsistent with such theory, although on weight of evidence when standing alone, held not error in view of other portions of the charge. Id. In buyer’s action for damages, an instruction omitting the essential requirement of mutuality in defining mutual mistake is not reversible error, where another portion of the charge covered the omission. Littlefield v. Clayton Bros. (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 194.

Negligence in general.—The error in permitting a liability of one of several carriers to be based on negligence by itself or by another carrier held cured by a charge that no carrier was liable and defendant liable on account of the negligence of another. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Word (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 375.

Where the court charged that defendant was only bound to exercise ordinary care in keeping his engine in order, it failed to charge him over its tracks, it did not obviate this latter error by the instruction given. Where court charged that defendant would be liable for M.’s negligent operation of such engine over its tracks, and an instruction that it was M.’s duty to use good engines with best-known appliances, etc., to prevent the escape of fire while operated over defendant’s railroad, was not objectionable in not stating that defendant was only liable for damages when it failed to use ordinary care in equipping its engines with the best-known appliances, etc.; the court having otherwise so charged. St. Louis Southern Ry. Co. of Texas v. McGrath (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 444.

An instruction to a brakesman for injuries struck by a switch stand while mounting a switch engine, held not objectionable as placing too great a burden on the railroad company in view of other instructions given. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. of Kansas (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 496.

Error in submitting as negligence, in a passenger’s action for injuries, a sudden jerk of the engine, when the evidence showed that the movement was not unusual, was not prejudicial, where the court charged that the jury could not find for plaintiff because of the operation of the train if it was such as would be proper in the exercise of due care. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1179.

A charge that plaintiff could recover for injuries sustained from his horse running away at a railroad crossing which was torn up, if defendant’s foresman represented that a wagon over the bridge, could cross without danger, was not error, where earlier instructions were a mere expression of opinion, where it was further charged that he could not recover if they were expressions of opinion. St. Louis Southern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brown (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 702.

Instruction to find for plaintiff if freight train’s employees were negligent, if erroneous as failing to state what acts would constitute negligence, held not ground for reversal, 553 where special charges confined and defined the particular acts of negligence upon which the jury could make a finding. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 168.

A paragraph of a charge which is an affirmative presentation of the issue of negligence charged in count 3 of the petition, and which tells the jury that if they believe there were certain respects, which was the proximate cause of plaintiff's injury, to find for him under said count 3, is not objectionable because making no mention of contributory negligence, properly submitted in another paragraph. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Geary (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 291, judgment reversed (Sup.) 172 S. W. 545.

An instruction imposing on defendant employer the duty to inspect tongs held not erroneous, where another instruction submitted to the jury the question whether the tongs were a stranger to the charge, and it clearly appeared that they were not such, as a matter of law. J. H. W. Steele Co. v. Dover (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 899.

In action for damage to shipment of live stock, any error in authorizing verdict against defendant carriers jointly held made harmless by instruction limiting connecting carrier's liability to that resulting from its own acts or default. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 553.

In a brakeman for personal injuries, instructions held not erroneous in view of other instructions given. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Matkin (Sup.) 174 S. W. 1998, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 604.

Instruction containing contradictory statements of railroad's duty relative to child's safety, one of which was erroneous, was not cured by the correct statement therein. Gulf, Tex., & P. Ry. Co. v. Dickey (Sup.) 187 S. W. 184.

438. — Contributory negligence.—A charge to find for plaintiff if the cattle were injured through defendant's negligence will not be held to have led the jury to disregard defendant's plea of contributory negligence, where in another paragraph that plea was expressly submitted and the jury instructed to find for defendant if that plea was sustained. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Swaggerty (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 317.

An instruction that plaintiff was chargeable with notice of that which must "necessarily" have come to his knowledge held not erroneous, where the court further instructed that he was chargeable with notice of defects which were obvious, or which an ordinarily prudent person would have discovered. J. H. W. Steele Co. v. Dover (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 899.

An instruction charging the defendant for liability in negligently maintaining the instrumentality whose injury resulted to plaintiff's the issues of contributory negligence and proximate cause were ignored, although such issues were covered by other proper instructions. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cardwell (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1073.

439. — Assumption of risk.—In a brakeman's action for injuries from slipping from a step on the tender, a charge on the assumption of risk, if objectionable, as stating an abstract proposition of law, held, when considered with a special charge, to correctly submit that issue. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Martin (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 405.

In another's hand's action for injury while removing a wreck, error in the main charge on the question of assumption of risk was not reversible, where a correct charge requested by defendant was given. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Mooney (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 545.

Error, if any, in the charge on assumption of risk in an action for injuries to a fireman, held cured by subsequent portions of the charge and by a charge given at defendant's request. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 304.

440. — Evidence and matters of fact in general.—Where the court charged that the burden was on plaintiff to show by a preponderance of the evidence that the act complained of, as to which the court had instructed the jury to recover, a charge that, if an ordinarily prudent person would have done the act complained of, the verdict must be for the employer did not place on the employer the burden of proving freedom from negligence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 555.

In an action against a bank for money which a depositor claimed was wrongfully paid out, a charge that the depositor had the burden of proving his case was not misleading and did not improperly place the burden of proof on him, where the court charged that the bank had the burden of proving its affirmative defenses of payment with authority and ratification. Ownes v. First State Bank of Bronte (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 798.

In an action to try title, failure to instruct on burden of proof held cured by language submitting issue of limitation, "Do you find from a preponderance of the evidence, etc." City of El Paso v. Wiley (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 601.

An erroneous charge as to rebutting presumption of railway company's negligence in setting fire to cotton held not to have been rendered harmless by a correct instruction inconsistent therewith in not being presumed the correct charge was followed. Nusbaum & Scharff v. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 194 S. W. 1099.

An erroneous as to rebutting presumption of railway company's negligence in setting fire to cotton held not to have been rendered harmless by a correct instruction inconsistent therewith in not being presumed the correct charge was followed. Nusbaum & Scharff v. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 194 S. W. 1099.

441. — Weight and effect of evidence in general.—Where an instruction was not on the weight of the evidence or misleading when read in connection with the general charge, the giving thereof was not error. Good v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 670.

An instruction in an action for injury to a shipment of live stock held not to be on the weight of the evidence, or objectionable as not allowing a finding for defendant, in view of another instruction given. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. De Long (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 874.

442. — Invasion of province of jury.—The error in a charge which was on the weight of the evidence because it assumed facts held cured by others. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 863.

In an action against a carrier for personal injuries, a charge assuming that defendant's employer had passed the station, stopped it and caused plaintiff's wife to leave it, held, in view of another part of the charge thereon, not objectionable as

Where some paragraphs assumed that defendant was negligent, but in others that issue was expressly submitted as a controverted issue, with instructions that, if plaintiff's case had not been made out by a preponderance of the evidence to find for defendant, and the jury were not to consider the exclusive and entire weight of the evidence, the jury will not be held to have been misled. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Swaggerty (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 317.

In trespass to try title, a paragraph of the charge attacked as assuming plaintiff's possession at a certain time should be read and construed in connection with the succeeding paragraphs as to possession. Glover v. Pfefuer (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 584.

That the court left it to the jury whether contributory negligence in driving on a railroad tracks in plaintiff's automobile was a proximate cause of his injury did not cure error in charging that he was negligent when that was a jury question, and negligence by plaintiff was necessarily a proximate cause: nor was such error cured by submitting plaintiff's negligence in stopping upon the track after going there. Adams v. Galveston, R. & S. Ry. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 535.

Where though the first part of instruction was confused as to whether court submitted for jury's determination question whether plaintiff was negligent in riding in cattle car, the latter part of the charge told the jury that it was negligence, the apparent discrepancy held harmless. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1059.

Defendant is not harmed by any error in instructing that deceased was an employee on duty; another instruction requiring, for recovery, that he was where the public or an employe off duty could be. El Paso & SulphurWestern Co. v. La Londe (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 890, writ of error denied (Sup.) 184 S. W. 498.

--- Measure of damages or amount of recovery.---Where the court in one paragraph of the charge submitted specifically the measure and elements of damage recoverable to the jury for the fact that the jury found such damages as seemed to them to be right and proper under all the facts and circumstances in evidence was not erroneous as allowing double damages. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 106.

In an action for a brakeman's death, held, in view of the other issues and instructions, that a charge requiring a finding as to the amount which would "fully compensate" the widow for her pecuniary loss was not objectionable as leading the jury to think that compensation should be large and shot her mental anguish at the loss of her husband's companionship. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Stalcup (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 279.

Failure of paragraph of charge to state that plaintiff could not recover for injuries due to her negligence subsequent to the injury, if error, held harmless, where matter was clearly stated in another paragraph. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Watts (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 412.

--- Definition or explanation of terms.---That an instruction merely defines self-defense is not ground of complaint, another instruction having correctly applied the law to the issue of self-defense as a justification of the act of defendant's brakeman. St Louis Southern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Huddleston (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 704.

Failure of court to define "lucid interval" held not erroneous, in view of the instructions given. Wohltiez v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 819.

--- Withdrawal or correction.---Where two contradictory charges are given, withdrawal of the erroneous instruction is the only possible correction. Nussbaum & Scharff v. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 194 S. W. 1099.

V. OBJECTIONS

466. Necessity and time for making objections.---Under this article the error in a charge is waived, where no objection was presented to the trial court. McKenzie v. Imperial (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 456; Schraeder v. Int'r Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 106.

Where bills of exception to the refusal of special charges recite that "at the proper time" such charges were presented to the trial judge, the recital is sufficient to show that they were presented before the main charge was read to the jury, as required by this article. Hawkes v. Longbotham (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 724.

Objections to the charge of the court cannot be reviewed, where it did not appear

Under this article assignment of error will be considered waived by failure of the record to show any objection below to the portions of the charge on which they were based. Dierori, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 766; Lakeside Irr. Co. v. Buffington (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 21.

Procedure in trial court relative to presentation of objection to charge is made sufficiently to satisfy the instructions, considered. (Civ., 397.)

Noncompliance with this article does not affect right to review rulings on requested instructions; trial being before the act took effect. Fidelity-Phoenix Fire Ins. Co. v. O'Bannon (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 731; Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Francis (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 46.

Under this article, the action of the court in granting certain special charges, in the absence of objection and thereto, could not be considered as fundamental error. Woodruff v. Deshazo (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 256.

Under this article and article 2061, as amended, a defendant, to have the giving of a peremptory instruction reviewed, must except before it is submitted to the jury. Word v. Kaley (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 569.

Under this article, objections to a peremptory instruction cannot be raised for the first time on motion for new trial. J. S. McCall & Sons v. Roemer (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 400.

Under Rev. St. 1911, arts. 1970-1972, to obtain review of charge of court on appeal, objection in particular complained of must be presented to trial court before reading to the jury, and, when such objection is made, complaining party can have error considered by appellate court without reserving formal bill of exceptions to the charge. Gulf, T. & Ry. Co. v. Dickey (Sup.) 187 S. W. 194.

This article applies to peremptory instructions, so that, in the absence of record showing objection to a peremptory charge made before it was read, the objection cannot be raised. Cooper v. Jecosno Valley Bank (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 192.

In view of this article, where record fails to show that peremptory instruction was objected to, Appellate Court will not review ruling. Pearce v. Supreme Lodge, Knights and Ladies of Honor (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1158.

Under this article objection to submitted special issue not urged at trial, but urged for first time in motion for new trial, held waived. Rhino Milling Co. v. Glasgow (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 686.

Where no objections are urged against an instruction when it is given, or on motion for new trial, its propriety will not be reviewed. Witt v. Young (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1019.

Recitals in the record that appellant, prior to the reading of the main charge, excepted thereto as stated, and that, each of the above exceptions to the charge being overruled, appellant excepted, followed by a recital, "Refused," signed by the trial judge, held not to sufficiently raise for review error in the main charge, under this article. Mutual Life Ins. Ass'n v. Donley County v. Rhoderick (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1067.

Under this article, objections waived by not presenting them to the trial court cannot be urged on appeal. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Grutchfield (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 551.

Where evidence tended to show that plaintiff procured W. as purchaser and lessee, while defendant did not and did not hold F. was the real purchaser and lessee, error in charging to find for plaintiff if he procured W. or both or either of them held not reviewable, in the absence of any objection to the charge which could be considered. Saunders v. Thut (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 555.

Under this article and article 2061, only such objections can be considered on appeal as were made at the trial in the manner specified, and then only when preserved by bill of exceptions. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wadsack (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 442.

That an objection to an instruction may be reviewed, the record must show by bill of exceptions that objections were made before the charge was read to the jury, together with the court's action thereon, as provided by Acts 33d Leg. c. 69. Ford Motor Co. v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 80.
Errors in instructions, other than fundamental errors, are waived unless objection is excepted and taken as required by Acts 33d Leg. c. 59, Cooper & Jones v. Hall (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 465.

Under this article and arts. 1973, 2061, assignments of error to the charge and the refusal to charge cannot be considered, where the bills of exceptions do not show that appellant presented his objections to the charge before it was given, and excepted at the time of the refusal of special charges. Id.

Where defendant's requested instructions were refused, but no objection to the charge was made before it was given, under this article and arts. 1973, 1974, 2061, it is to be regarded as approved and as requested by defendant, as regards his right to complain of refusal of the instructions, within the rules of the exceptions, on the same subject, and one of them is given, he cannot complain of the refusal of the other. Cleburne St. Ry. Co. v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 991.

An assignment of error to the giving of a special charge requested by plaintiff could not be considered, where the record failed to show that objections were made to such charge when it was presented to defendant's counsel for examination and objection, in accordance with Rev. St. 1911, art. 1973. Quannah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Chumbley (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1197.

Under Rev. St. 1911, §§ 1971-1973, 2061, plaintiff, not excepting to refusal of his requested special charges, and whose only objection was filed after judgment, held to have approved Moore v. Cooper Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 558.

Under this article, assignments of error complaining of instructions cannot be considered, where the record does not show that exceptions were reserved. Gunter v. Merchant (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 191, rehearing denied 172 S. W. 260.

Assignments of error complaining of the general charge and of refusal of requested charges cannot be considered, unless the record shows a compliance with this article and arts. 1973 and 2061. Texas Midland R. v. Fogelman (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 558.

Assigning the charge cannot be complaining of the charge, if the record does not show by bill of exceptions that objections were presented in time, or that the objections presented were preserved by bill of exceptions. Elliott v. Clark (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 566.

In suit to enjoin collection of judgment, held that instruction authorizing verdict for defendant if plaintiff owed the debt sued on was properly refused, in view of defendant's failure to object to an instruction, assuming that plaintiff had shown he did not owe it. Woodard v. Eskridge (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 888.

Court's memorandum on defendants' bill of exception to the general charge held insufficient as not affirmatively showing that, as required by statute, the objections to the court's charge were presented before its reading to the jury, and before the arguments of counsels. (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1935.

An instruction to which no objection was presented must, under the amended law, be deemed on appeal as approved. Kell v. Ross (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 752.

Under this article and arts. 1973, 2061, refusal of a requested instruction was not waivable by objection, other than by the request, was not error because of the general charge. F. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Alcorn (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 833.

Under this article, defendant, who did not object to the court's charge before it was given or present appropriate charges, waived any errors, and must be considered as having adopted the charge. Gilbert v. Fuehrman (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 51.

Where defendant neither objected to the lack of, nor requested, an instruction submitting the question of market value to the jury, as required by statute, objection to the court's action will be considered waived. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Schwethelm (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 414.

White passengers suing because forced to ride in a coach partly occupied by negroes, not having objected below to instructions which made recovery contingent upon the suffering of actual damages, cannot assert on appeal that they should have been allowed nominal damages in any event. Weller v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 374; Connally v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 376.

Where the court without objection submitted to the jury the issue of contributory negligence, defendant cannot complain that there was no evidence to sustain the jury's finding. Caffarelli Bros. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 223.

In view of this article and article 2061, where plaintiff did not except to refusal of instruction he is in attitude of having approved rulings at trial, and hence assignments of error based thereon will be overruled. Cummins v. Owen Bros. Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 792.

Where no objections are urged against an instruction when it is given, or on motion for new trial, its propriety will not be reviewed on appeal. Witt v. Young (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1019.

A party who prepares and submits a full charge cannot complain that it is not the law or does not cover the case in view of Acts 33d Leg. c. 69, providing that all objections to instructions not made as provided shall be deemed waived. Ross v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 515.

447. Sufficiency of objections.—An objection that a charge was upon the weight of evidence was of no avail, where it was not pointed out in what respect it was on the

The objection to refusal of a request to instruct the jury to return a verdict for defendant, because plaintiff's evidence is insufficient to sustain a verdict, is too general, if it does not point out wherein the evidence is insufficient. Cleburne St. Ry. Co. v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 991.

The objection to a charge during the trial should be as definite as is required of an assignment of error to the giving of the charge. An objection to a charge held not sufficient to sustain a proposition under an assignment on appeal, complaining of the overruling of the objection, and hence, the charge not being fundamentally erroneous, the assignment must be overruled. Eldridge v. Citizens' Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 275.

Objection to a charge, "failing to charge * * * correctly the measure of damages * * * as to difference in market and actual value," held insufficient to show the trial court the error, as required by this article. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Grundy (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 218.

Objections to the court's charge, sufficient to direct the attention of the trial court to the point, will raise it on appeal. Keevill v. Ponsford (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 518.

An assignment of error cannot be predicated on the refusal of a peremptory instruction, where no reason for the objection to such refusal is assigned in the bill of exceptions. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Loyd (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 721.

Objections that an instruction is an incorrect statement of the law, or is a charge on the weight of the evidence, are too general to be considered. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Petersilka (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 79.

In a suit by riparian owners to enjoin a city from removing structures placed in the bed of a river and for damages, an objection to the charge to the court that the definitions of "channel" and "bed" were incorrect was too general to predicate error upon. Petty v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 224.

Objection to charge, made only in inferential and general way by objections presented in trial court, is not a sufficient compliance with this article. Ochoa v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1022.

Objection to instruction because it referred jury to plaintiff's petition for statement of his injuries does not raise point that there was no evidence of some of injuries there alleged. Andrews v. Wilding (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 192.

Objections to the charge relative to lines and boundaries held too general and not to show why the rules regarding relative dignity of calls should not be given in the charge, and an assignment of error based thereon will be overruled. Dunn v. Land (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 693.

448. Necessity of rulings on objections.—Though the record showed an objection purporting to have been made by appellant to the general charge of the court, yet, as the record did not show any ruling on the exception, and appellant's statement did not show the nature of such objection, it could not be considered on appeal. Quannah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Galloway (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 546.

Under this article, where the record does not show the ruling on objections to the charge, they will not be considered. Saunders v. Thut (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 553.

When objections to the court's charge are made to the court, the assignment of error complaining of the charge cannot be considered. Holcomb v. Blankenship (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 918.

449. Necessity of requesting instructions.—Where a party did not challenge the sufficiency of the evidence to raise an issue by asking a peremptory instruction, he could not, on appeal, complain of a charge submitting the issue. Luckenbach v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 99.

Objections to the giving of erroneous charges cannot be made by the medium of special requests, though if special requests are erroneously refused, error may be predicated thereon. Eldridge v. Citizens' Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 375.

A party objecting to a charge given must submit a proper special charge. Wells Fargo & Co. v. Co. of El Paso (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 926.

This article contemplates that requested charges shall be requested in time to enable the court to submit the same if given with the main charge before beginning of argument. Kell v. Ross (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 752.

Notwithstanding this article, requiring all objections to the court's charge to be presented to the opposing counsel and the court before the jury is instructed, it is still necessary to request a special instruction to supply an alleged omission in a charge. Modern Woodmen of America v. Yanowasky (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 723.

The court does not stop the general charge of the court on the grounds that the party to the general charge of the court does not stop a party from requesting instructions and excepting to their refusal since under this article if there is no objection to the general charge, the objection only is waived and the charge is not appealed. Smith v. Smith (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 95.

450. Submitting instructions to attorneys.—Under art. 1973, and in view of this article and art. 2061, held, that a bill of exceptions not affirmatively showing that the special charge had been presented to the court and to opposing counsel within a reasonable time after they had the charge's general charge, could not be considered. W. R. Case & Son v. Cutlery Co. v. Poleson (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1046.

Refusal of special instructions will not be review ed where the record fails to show that they were presented to opposing counsel for examination and objection, as required by art. 1973, and in view of this article and art. 2061. Thell v. Houston (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 616.

This article does not require the submission to opposing counsel of objections made to the charges given. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 761.

Unless contrary is shown it must be presumed that the trial judge would not have passed upon the correctness of any peremptory instruction without requiring its submission to opposing counsel in compliance with this article. Id.

Where court recessed for 10 minutes, prepared its charge in that time, and allowed 30 minutes to counsel for preparation of objections and special charges, the refusal of further time shows no abuse of discretion where objections which appellant wished to prepare are not stated in record, and no showing is made that appellant was injured. Fogleman v. Planters’ Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 1175.

451. Special issues.—The action of the court in directing the jury to return an answer to a special issue is not a violation of this article, requiring the court’s instructions to be submitted to the jury before argument. Richardson v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 566.

452. Waiving statutory requirements.—Agreements to waive the provisions of Acts 33d Leg., c. 58, governing objections and exceptions to the charge, should not be respected by the courts. Needham v. Cooney (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 975.

453. Exceptions.—See arts. 1972, 2061, and notes thereunder.

Art. 1972. [1318] Charge need not be excepted to.—Such charge shall be filed by the clerk, and shall constitute a part of the record of the cause, and shall be regarded as excepted to, and subject to revision for errors therein, without the necessity of taking any bill of exception thereto.

Explanatory.—The above text has not been changed by legislative enactment since the revision of 1911, but it is repeated here for the purpose of correcting an explanatory note contained in Vernon’s ‘Texas’ Civ. St. 1912, relative to supercession of the article. The Supreme Court has held that the article is not superseded. See note below.

Article not repealed as regards general charge.—This article refers to the general charge, and was not repealed by implication by Acts 33d Leg., c. 58, amending Rev. St. 1911, arts. 1972, 2061, requiring exceptions to be taken to rulings on requested instructions. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. v. Dickey (Sup.) 178 S. W. 154; Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 761.

An error of omission in the court’s general charge should be supplied by a request for a correct special charge. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Martin (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 465.

Under this article, the refusal of a special charge cannot be reviewed on appeal, unless the complaining party shows by bill of exceptions that the particular charge was required, and that the refusal of the action was excepted to at the time. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wadsack (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 42.

Where the record does not show any requested peremptory instructions for appellant, an assignment of error to the refusal to give a requested peremptory instruction must be overruled. Chicago, B. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Howell (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 81.

Where the record showed that appellant requested only one instruction that was refused, his assignment of error complaining of the refusal of several requested instructions cannot be reviewed. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 412.
Art. 1973  COURTS—DISTRICT AND COUNTY—PRACTICE IN  (Title 37)

Art. 2061, embodied in chapter 19, tit. 27, and amended by Acts 33d Leg. c. 59, refers to the action of the chapter relating to bills of exceptions, and not to the following articles of the amendatory law, amending articles 1970, 1971, 1973, 1974, of chapter 13 relating to instructions and objections; and the articles as amended govern the exceptions to instructions and refusal of instructions. Heath v. Huffhines (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 974.

Evidence Must not be relied upon after appeal where no special charge was requested. Powell v. Powell (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 111.

Where the record did not show whether a party complaining of refusal of peremptory instruction had previously requested instructions submitting issues, the refusal was not reviewable. Ackerman v. Ackerman (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 974.

The refusal to give requested charges will not be reviewed, where the bills of exception fail to show that the charges were requested and refused and the refusal expected to benefit the charge was read to the jury, as required by Acts 33d Leg. c. 59. McCullough v. Hurt (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 781.

Error in submitting question to jury held not reviewable on appeal, in the absence of any request for submission in proper form. Foster v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1001.

And ask a special charge and take advantage of error in the charge given. Benham v. Tipton (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 510.

Where defendant failed to request that an issue be submitted to the jury, the presumption on appeal is that he consented to the court's finding the fact with reference to the issue. Tilland v. Greenwood (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 517.

Where an instruction is erroneous, appellant need not request a correct charge, but under the statutes the party aggrieved need only except, pointing out the defects and request judgment by proper bill of exceptions. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. v. Russell (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 298.

Objections to a charge as defective or incomplete cannot be considered on appeal, unless request was made on the trial for a special charge correcting the alleged errors. Tuttle v. North (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 879.

Notwithstanding Acts 33d Leg. c. 59, requiring all objections to the court's charge to be presented in writing to the opposing counsel and the court before the jury is instructed, the courts will not present a special charge to the court of error in the charge. Modern Woodmen of America v. Yanowsky (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 728.

2. ISSUES OR THEORIES OF CASE.-Where an instruction did not cover all the issues, the appellant could not complain thereof, in the absence of a request for a further instruction. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Claybrook (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 580; Houston Transp. Co. v. fundraisers (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 252.

Where the court fails to submit a defensive matter to the jury, defendant must request a charge thereon, or he cannot complain on appeal. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Conner (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 655.

An assignment complaining of the submission of the question of limitation could not be considered, where there was no special charge requested embodying the applicable law. Irvin v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1099.

It was not error to submit a charge too restrictive, to tender a charge from which unduly restrictive terms were eliminated, and on its failure to do so, its objection to the charge would be waived. McLean v. Breen (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 394.

Where defendant neither objected to the lack of, nor requested, an instruction submitting the question of market value to the jury, as required by statute, objection to the court's action will be considered waived. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Schwethelm (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 414.

A judgment will not be reversed for failure to submit an issue where no charge embodying the issue is requested. O'Neal v. Bush & Tillar (Sup.) 191 S. W. 1133.

3. EVIDENCE AND MATTERS OF FACT IN GENERAL.—An instruction as to the presumed knowledge of obvious defects in a ladder held to be unnecessary, in the absence of a special request. Conner v. Conner (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 635.

Where a charge correct in law directs a verdict on the finding of certain facts, its defect in embracing more facts than were necessary to support the defense held an omission unavailable in the absence of a requested charge. St. Louis Southwest Ry. v. Martin (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 103.

In an elevator company's action against a carrier to recover an alleged shortage in a shipment of wheat, an instruction requiring plaintiff to show, by a preponderance of the evidence, that there was a shortage, if not sufficiently definite upon the burden of proof, held not ground for a reversal, where no special charge thereon was requested. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Justin Mill & Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 411.

Where the court's charge does not place the burden of proof on either party, a party desiring an instruction on the burden of proof must request it. McKee v. Garner (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1063.

Plaintiff, if desiring a charge that the burden is on her to make out her case, to also state defendant has the burden as to contributory negligence, should request it. Franklin v. International & G. N. Ry. (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 333.

In an action for partnership accounting, wherein defendant denied the existence of the partnership and set up special partnerships in respect to which he asked an accounting, held, that failure to instruct that the burden was on defendant to establish matters respecting which he asked affirmative relief was not error, in the absence of a request. Hall v. Ray (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1135.

In action for destruction of property from fire communicated from boarding cars on defendant's siding, defendant, if it desired a charge on burden of proof should have requested it. Carlin v. Moerbe (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 28.

Plaintiff's failure to request peremptory charge does not preclude consideration of assignments of error that undisputed evidence conclusively shows state of facts entitled him. Horizon v. Pero (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 28.

4. PURPOSE AND EFFECT OF EVIDENCE.—Error cannot be assigned for failure to instruct as to the effect of letters introduced in evidence, where no request for such an instruction was made. McFarland v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 303.

Where declarations of one or several defendants in a suit to set aside certain conveyances for fraud were admissions against him, it was not error to omit to limit their effect, in the absence of a request by the other defendants. Payne v. Snyder (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1152. Defendants could not complain of a failure to limit certain evidence, in the absence of a request by them for such an instruction. Carver v. Power State Bank (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 892.

Where evidence was admissible against part of plaintiff's claim, he cannot complain of its general admission, there being no request to limit its effect to that part of his claim. Francis v. Cornelius (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 947.

In action against promoters of railroad for services in surveys, held that, if declaration of limited to two of the defendants, the third defendant should have made a proper request therefor. Vaugh v. Morris (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 594.

In an action to try title, receiving evidence admissible on the question of appellants' care in not discovering an unrecorded deed to appellant, but inadmissible on the question whether such deed was a mortgage, is not reversible error when no request was made to limit its effect. Alexander v. Conley (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 554.

If defendant desired court to limit evidence as to plaintiffs' property to purpose for which it was admissible, it should have presented a special charge. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Presbitero (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 776.

Where evidence admissible only against the garnishee was admitted at the consolidated trial of the garnishment proceedings and the main action, it was the duty of defendants to have requested a special charge limiting the effect of the evidence if they did not wish it considered against them. Earhart v. Agnew (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1148.

If undated and unsigned statement identified to be that of witness containing statement contrary to his testimony is desired to be limited to impeach him, request to that effect should be made. Kampmann v. Cross (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 497.

7. Nature of action or issue in general.—In an action against an irrigation company, where there was nothing to indicate that the plaintiff requested direction of verdict for damages under contract was holding the water to be prejudiced upon the failure to so direct. Hodge v. Toyah Valley Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 334.

It is the duty of plaintiff, objecting to the charge submitting the issue of implied or apparent authority of their adult daughter to consent to an operation on her minor sister because it did not specifically state that the authority must be based on plaintiff's acts to supply that omission by a special charge. Rishworth v. Moss (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 843.

8. Actions relating to property in general.—In trespass to try title, where the liability of plaintiff to return the purchase money paid by defendant under a void sheriff's deed was not called to the attention of the court during the trial, and where no charge on the question was requested by defendant, it must be presumed that the right to the return of the money was not adjudicated. Lafferty v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 379.

Erroneous charge that plaintiffs could not recover for wrongful attachment if either ground of attachment set out in the affidavit were true held waived by failing to request a special charge. Brady-Neely Grocer Co. v. De Poe (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1135.

In trespass to try title, held, that party desiring issue submitted, or desiring its theory of the case presented, should have requested proper charges. Wichita Valley Ry. Co. v. Somerville (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 671.

It is not error of omission, requiring a request for a special charge, but one of affirmative misdirection, for an instruction, contrary to the law, to make continuance of defendant's homestead right dependent on his occupancy, which had admittedly ceased. Edwards v. Clemmons (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 840.

10. Actions for negligence in general.—Burden is on railroad company to present a special charge as to its defense that it was landowner's duty to maintain gate through which car tracks passed, or that the gate was due to some other agency. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Scheer (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1968.

Defendant desiring a charge on contributory negligence should request it. Andrews v. Viraclio (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 757.

11. Actions for personal injuries.—Where plaintiffs, in an action against a light company for the death of their son from contact with a live wire, pleaded that the persons in charge of defendant's plant were incompetent, but requested no charge on such issue, they could not, on appeal, complain of the court's failure to submit such issue. Bowman v. Farmersville Mill & Light Co. (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 200.

A corporation, when sued for negligent death, must request a correct charge distinguishing between its representatives, for whose negligence it is liable, and those for whom it is not, and it cannot complain of the failure of the court to frame correct instructions in lieu of improper requested ones. American Express Co. v. Parcarello (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 526.

In a personal injury action plaintiff cannot complain that the court's charge did not apply the law of proximate cause to the facts of the case, where no specific charge on that point was requested. Guerra v. San Antonio Sewer Pipe Co. (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 969.

In employee's action for injuries, where the evidence showed that there was no constructive notice to the employee that the employer was a subscriber to the Workmen's Compensation Act, if the employer desired submission of issue of actual notice, he should have requested. Kampmann v. Cross (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1967.

12. Contracts and actions relating thereto.—Where defendant sought to rescind a contract sued on, on the ground of insanity, while plaintiff replied, alleging ratification, the failure to charge on ratification was not error, where no instruction was requested. Smith v. Guerre (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 417.

A plaintiff cannot be deprived of the right to attack an insufficient verdict in an action to enforce vendor's lien notes, where defendant set up a failure of consideration, on the theory that he should have requested a special charge excluding that defense, which was not presented by the general charge. Willingham v. Brown (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 107.
Where defendant denied sale of stock to it, but claimed to be trustee, failure to charge lack of payment was to be made out of collections held not erroneous. Alamo Trust Co. v. Prudential Life Ins. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 737.

In action for recovery of price of automobile and rescission of contract, issue whether put to his ad valorem his right by making subsequent agreement should have been raised by request for submission thereof to the jury, and could not, on appeal, be urged under assignment of waiver by delay. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Rachal (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 418.

13. Definition or explanation of terms.—The failure of the court to define phrases in its instructions is not error, in the absence of a requested definition. Ellerd v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 392.

If defendant desired a definition of "ordinary care," it should have requested an instruction thereon. San Antonio & A. R. Ry. Co. v. Battle (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 2d 389. For failure to define the terms "sufficient" and "secure" as applied to handholds on railroad car held an error of omission, as to which a special charge should have been requested. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Enderle (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 276.

If a party, in instructing adverse possession without defining it is one of omission, and a party failing to ask a special charge may not complain. Ruliff v. Wakefield Iron & Coal Land Improvement Co. (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 188.

Where court failed to define "secure" as applied to handholds on railway cars, held that, if defendant wanted it defined, it should have offered a special charge. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Roemer (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 229.

Where damages were claimed for unreasonable delay in installing irrigating machinery and the seller desired the court to define the term "unreasonable delay," it must, to preserve the error, request a proper charge. Southern Gas & Gasoline Engine Co. v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 529.

In a broker's action for commission, if defendant desired definition of "efficient and procuring cause" he should have requested it. Black v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 403.

14. Damages and amount of recovery.—Any error in not limiting the recovery to a reasonable amount to apprise the defendant to have been, in the petit or main jury, was one of omission of which defendant cannot complain, where he did not ask a special charge correcting such omission. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Blackshear (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 355.

Defendant, after objecting to failure of instruction to exclude improper elements of damages, held not required to prepare and request a special instruction curing the omission. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Gant (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 748.

In an action for breach of warranty, the failure to submit the issue of the value of the product as constructed held not error in the absence of a request. Phillip-Carey Co. v. Manes (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 158.

The plaintiff could not complain of the court's error in defining the measure of damages where he did not make a request for a special charge. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 822.

In an action on a fire policy covering household goods, charge directing the jury to ascertain the value of the goods, instead of the actual cash value, as provided in the policy, was not error, in the absence of a request for a special charge. Commonwealth Ins. Co. of New York v. Finegold (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 833.

In an action for personal injuries defendant cannot complain of the defendant's omission to instruct the jury as to the measure of damages, where he made no request for the instruction. Andrews v. York (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 222.

Where defendants failed to ask for submission of issue as to amount of damages, on appeal they cannot complain of the given charge. Cameron v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 469.

16. Further or more specific instructions.—Where a charge was correct as far as it went, specific instructions were not required on the question of its sufficiency coming up on appeal. Lone Star Canal Co. v. Broussard (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 641; Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Hardin Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 518; Shaller v. Johnson-McQuiddy Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 553.

Where a party thinks it necessary that the jury be instructed more particularly, he should request a special charge to that effect, and cannot complain on appeal if he does not. Grand Lodge, F. & A. M. of Texas v. Dillard (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 1173.

Where the court does not cover all the issues satisfactorily to a party, he should request special charges that do cover them. Schramm v. P. J. Owens Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 1016.

Where any error in the charge was one of omission and not of commission, a charge correcting the omission should have been requested. Good v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 670.

If a more complete instruction than that given by the court was desired by a party, he should have prepared and requested a special instruction covering that phase of the case. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Itule (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1135.
Where an instruction is lacking in fullness, the complaining party should request appropriate additional instructions. Paris & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Atkins (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 306.

A party desiring a more explicit or comprehensive presentation of an issue by the court should request it by appropriate instructions. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Shearin (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 384.

Where the charge given correctly states the law on an issue, but does not apply it to the evidence, either party is entitled to prepare a charge applying law to evidence, and refusal of such a charge is not justifiable. Andrew v. Mace (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 558.

If defendant desired a fuller presentation of issues than covered by charge, requests should have been submitted. First Nat. Bank v. Mangum (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 647.

17. Erroneous or misleading instructions.—Where no correct charge was requested, the giving of a confusing charge is not reversible error. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Kruger (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 677.

18. Issues or theories of case.—Where no charge was requested to cure alleged error in an instruction because not applicable to the pleadings, and no exception was taken to the pleadings, they will be deemed sufficient to permit evidence upon which the instructions as a whole were predicated. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Loefs (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 300.

Where the court fails to give an instruction applying the law to a party's theory of the facts as disclosed by the evidence, the party has a right to prepare and have given a special charge supplying the omission in the general charge. Pullman Co. v. Moise (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 245.

It is not, generally speaking, such affirmative error for the court to fail to state the issues as will require reversal, since if either party is not satisfied with the charge, as not being sufficiently to request an additional charge. Adams & Waugh v. Southern Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 275.

A failure to summarize the pleadings on the issues to be determined is not reversible error, unless the complaining party requests an instruction covering the omission in the general charge; and not an error of commission. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 135.

19. Evidence and matters of fact in general.—In the absence of request for special charge on the subject, an instruction is not erroneous, to the effect that ordinarily a new presumed, and the burden is on the plaintiff, but when the property is injured while in the exclusive custody of the bailee, it is his burden to show that he was not negligent. Mecom v. Vinton (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 763.

20. Nature of action or issue in general.—On judgment creditor's motion for judgment against constable and his sureties for failure to levy execution, if constable desired to have issues with reference to each execution submitted separately, a special charge should have been asked to that effect. Sharp v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 599.

21. Actions for torts in general.—In an action for the destruction of crops by overflow caused by defendant's failure to construct proper culverts, a charge on plaintiff's right to recover the value of crops lost held sufficient so far as it went, so that defendant was required to request a further charge, if one was desired. Stephenville N. & S. T. Ry. Co. v. Walton (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 651.

Where court correctly states law under art. 6484, on authority of railroad company to cut down trees on land of another, defendant, in the absence of request, cannot complain that such instruction does not also embody law of articles 6505, 6530, requiring consent of owner. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1091.

22. Actions for negligence in general.—In action for death of plaintiffs' minor intestate employed by defendant, charge held to sufficiently define degree of care required of defendant, in absence of a request for a special charge. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Presbitero (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 776.

23. Actions for personal injuries.—In an action in an action for injuries to an employee that, if a coemployee had no authority to control or superintend the employee and discharge him, the employer was not liable for the coemployee's negligence and was not affirmatively erroneous, and the failure to submit the issues disjunctively was not erroneous in the absence of a requested charge. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 309.

Any error in an instruction in a personal injury action to find for plaintiff if the jury found that he received "any injuries as alleged in his petition," in that it did not limit plaintiff's right to recover to the injury specifically alleged, was not an error of omission, and defendant cannot complain thereof, in absence of a requested instruction calling the court's attention to the matter. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Coffman (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 145.

Any error of an instruction that deceased did not assume any risk arising from any negligence of defendant in not adding "unless he knew of such negligence," was one of omission, requiring a request for such further instruction. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Gebler (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 406.

Where the instruction on assumption of risk in a railroad employe's action for injuries properly presents assumption of ordinary risks, but does not take into consideration the fact that the particular risk was extrahazardous, defendant should request a charge specifically covering the matter. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Maples (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 426.

Where an instruction in an action against a corporation for negligent death predicated on the negligence of a corporation, but did not define the relationship of a vice principal, as distinguished from a mere agent or employe, the corporation,

In a personal injury action by a servant, defendant held not entitled to complain of a charge, which was a correct statement of law, for it could request amplifying charges if desired. Planters’ Oil Co. v. Keebler (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 129.

Where correct charge was given on contributory negligence in personal injury suit, question of its direct application to the facts will not be determined, in absence of request by defendant for more elaborate charge. Wells Fargo & Co. v. Benjamin (Sup.) 170 S. W. 535.

In the absence of request, it is not reversible error to fail to instruct that plaintiff must show absence of contributory negligence, where plaintiff’s pleading and evidence does not disclose contributory negligence, and where defendant’s requested charge on contributory negligence is given. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1028.

27. Definition or explanation of terms.—Where instructions defining terms were correct, it was the duty of accused, if he desired more full and ample definitions, to request that they be given. Brown v. State, 71 Cr. R. 355, 162 S. W. 392.

28. Definition of instruction.—In an action for wrong garnishment, an instruction, authorizing the jury to allow damages for such actual loss as was the natural, direct, and proximate result of the service of the writs, held not objectionable as failing to give to the jury any rule for measuring the actual damages; it being incumbent on defendants to request further instruction if they desired it. Bennett v. Foster (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1078.

Defendant cannot complain that an instruction as to damages in a personal action was defective, where it did not request a special charge supplying such omission. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Beasley (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 960.

An instruction that, if plaintiff was entitled to recover for failure to deliver a telegram, he should be allowed such damages as were the proximate result of defendant’s default as alleged held proper and sufficient, in the absence of a request for a more specific instruction. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 908.

In broker’s action, instruction authorizing recovery if more than $20,000 was obtained for property held improperly refused; the main charge allowing recovery only if $27,000 was obtained. Graves v. Adams (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 739.

29. Instructions for asking instructions.—Under this article, and in view of arts. 171 and 2061, held, that a bill of exceptions not affirmatively showing that the special charge had been presented to the court and to opposing counsel within a reasonable time after they had the court’s general charge could not be considered. W. R. Case & Sons Cutlery Co. v. Folesom (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1068.

The refusal of special charges will not be reviewed, where the bill of exceptions fails to show that they were requested before the main charge was read to the jury. Tannehill v. Tannehill (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1069.

30. Exceptions.-A refusal of the refusal of a requested charge which fails to show that the charge was presented at the proper time, and that the refusal was excepted to at the time, is not sufficient. Connor v. Uvalde Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 175.

Under this article and arts. 1954, 1970, 1971, 1974, 1984a, 2061, a bill of exceptions complaining of the refusal of a requested charge must show that it was presented in time. Ratliff v. Wakefield Iron & Coal Land Improvement Co. (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 139.

Under this article, assignments of error based on refusal to give requested instructions be wider than where the bill of exceptions showed that such charges were presented to the court after the main charge was read to the jury. Reed v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 968.

Where the bill of exceptions does not enable the appellate court to say that the trial court had an opportunity before reading his general charge to consider a requested charge, the court’s refusal thereof cannot be considered. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Burns- side (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 169.

31. Form and requisites of requests in general.—A special charge should direct the attention of the court and jury to the particular phase of the case sought to be presented. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Delimon (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 789.

Objections to a charge, in an action against a carrier for value of a passenger’s jewelry, stolen by or lost through negligence of employees of the carrier, held not a request for a peremptory instruction. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 619.

Where party requesting charge desires it given only in event more favorable requested charges are refused, a conditional request for its submission should be made. Gestoan v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 696.

Refusal of a requested peremptory instruction will be reviewed only on the ground on which it was requested. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1095.

32. Signing.—It is not error to refuse requested instructions, which are signed neither by the party nor by his counsel. First Nat. Bank of Snyder v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1018.

It is not error to refuse requested charges embodied as far as correct in the instructions given. (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 483; (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 483; W. J. Taylor (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 875; San Antonio, U. & G. Co. v. Hagen (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 854.

Where the charge of the court as supplemented by instructions given at defendant's request sufficiently guarded his rights, defendant cannot complain of the refusal of other requested instructions. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 607.

Requested instructions were properly refused where correct special charges relating to the same issue were given by the court. Sullivan v. Faint (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 113. Where the charge given is not covered by those given, the refusal of the charge imposed a greater burden on the requesting party than the given. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Menefee (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1038.

Where the instructions given fairly submitted the case, a requested charge, which would have been but a repetition, was properly refused. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Justin Mill & Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 411.

Error could not be predicated on the refusal of a requested instruction, where one was given on the same point more favorable to the opposing party. Lone Star Canal Co. v. Broussard (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 649.

The refusal of a requested instruction applied to the facts for finding a substantive issue where not presented in the main charge is error. Higginbotham v. Weaver (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 402.

A requested instruction fully covered in one given was properly refused, especially where the one given came nearer being the law than the one refused. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Moses (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 327. A repeated special charge need not be given; its substance being embraced in the general charge and in another special requested charge given. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Whitsett (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 406.

Charges in no way necessary to the elucidation of the issues raised by the pleadings and proof, after they had been covered by the court's general charge, were properly refused. Steele v. S. L. & W. Ry. Co. v. Manning (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 557.

It is not error to refuse a requested instruction, the law of which is covered in the court's charge. Stephenville North & S. T. Ry. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 863.

Where given charges contain all the issues required, refusal of court to give special charges is not error. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Durrett (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 427.

Where phase of case is sufficiently covered by court's charge, refusal of requested special charge on matter is not erroneous. Tyler v. McChesney (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1115.

It is not error to refuse additions to an instruction the only effect of which would be to satisfy the party's preference of an expression. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 392 S. W. 634.

The refusal of a specific charge is not error, where the issues submitted and the charge given in connection therewith were sufficient to present the issues so as not to be misunderstood by the jury. North American Accident Ins. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 759.

34. Issues in general.—Defendant may demand a special charge grouping the specific facts on which he relies, though the court has made a general and abstractly correct presentation of such issues. J. H. W. Steele Co. v. Dover (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 809.

Where the evidence almost conclusively established a case against defendant, refusal of a special charge presenting the defense, where a general charge had been given, was not prejudicial. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hill (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1028.

35. Evidence and matters of fact.—In suit to recover an extension of lines having been procured by fraud, where the burden of proof was charged upon, there was no error in refusing a special charge that fraud is never presumed. Benham v. Tipton (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 510.

In a servant's action for injuries, where the court, in its main charge, instructed on the burden of proof, the refusal to give a special charge on the subject was not erroneous. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 305.

In action against a newspaper because an employee threw a folded paper against plaintiff, refusal to charge that he was not on the burden of proof held sufficiently covered by the main charge. Houston Chronicle Pub. Co. v. Lemmon (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 347.

37. Affirmative and negative issues.—Refusal of a requested instruction may not be explained off; the matter being substantially covered, both in affirmative and negative form, by another requested instruction, which was given, and by the general charge. Lattimore v. Puckett & Wear (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 951.

There was no error in refusing a special charge submitted, in a negative form, to the question of personal cause of the injury in the court's main charge substantially instructed thereon. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Burk (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 457.

Where it was in issue, in a passenger's action for injuries in alighting, whether the train stopped long enough to allow plaintiff to safely alight, and whether the trainmen announced in plaintiff's car the part of the train from which the passengers should alight, and such issues were submitted negatively for plaintiff, they should on request have been submitted affirmatively for the company. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 987.

A special charge presenting in detail the elements of an affirmative defense should not be denied, though a general charge presents in a general manner the same defense. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hill (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1028.

Refusal to give defendant's specially requested charge, stating the converse of abstract propositions submitted in the main charge, held not erroneous. Southwestern Tele­graph Co. v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 716.

38. Nature of action or issue in general.—In trespass to try title against holder of title bond, which plaintiff claimed had been surrendered, refusal of instruction that the bond could be canceled by delivering it with the intention of canceling the trade if correct held properly refused; the instruction given sufficiently grouping the facts upon which plaintiff's right to recover depended. Wofford v. Strickland (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 623.

Where defendant requested two special charges on the issue as to whether plaintiff's grant ever included the giving of a definite tract, no error. City of MacChesney v. Manning (Civ. App.) 392 S. W. 634.

Rev. in trespass to try title to school lands between two applicants, refusal of instruction that if plaintiff was an actual settler when he made his application, but thereafter left and remained away through a well-grounded fear of death or serious bodily harm, held not error, where the court charged that, if he was an actual settler at the time of his application, it did not matter whether he continued to reside on the land or not. Pat­rick v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 498.

In a boundary suit, a requested charge on the issue of limitations held properly refused, in view of given charges sufficiently stating the law. Hermann v. Schroeder (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 788.

A requested charge as to the effect of the finding of original monuments held not covered by a special issue as to whether the true corner of the tract was established by running certain lines in the manner contended by defendant. Higgens & Weaver (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 622.

In action to try title defended on title by limitation, requested charge as to contiguous possession held properly refused, as it was covered by the general charge. City of El Paso v. Wiley (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 661.
40. Actions for torts in general.—In action for conversion of automobile, an instruction, directing jury to find whether defendant in possession believed that security of its notes against automobile had become insecure sufficiently presented defense under terms of mortgage for taking automobile, and any further instruction was properly refused. Magnolia Motor Sales Corp. v. Chaffee (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 562.

41. Actions for negligence in general.—In action against a railroad negligently failing to construct culverts in an embankment which was grant, ground thereon, onto plaintiff's land, refusal of a charge held not erroneous in view of the instructions given. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Evans (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 93.

42. Personal injuries in general.—In a personal injury action, where the court fully charged on proximate cause, the refusal of a special charge on that issue, which also defined remote cause, was not error. Ft. Worth Belt Ry. Co. v. Cabelli (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1083.

In an action against a light company and a city for personal injury from an electric shock, defendant's requests charged on active negligence, correct its liability in case of accident held properly refused, where the general charge submitted included in the requested charges. McKinley Ice, Light & Coal Co. v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 767.

43. Injuries in operation of railroads in general.—Where, in an action for damages from a crossing accident, the court instructed that the presence of standing cars so as to obstruct the view could be considered only as a circumstance bearing on defendant's negligence, a requested instruction that the presence of the cars could not be considered as an independent ground of negligence was properly refused. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Burnett (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 483.

In action for injuries from being struck by a truck on an unlighted station platform, it was not error to refuse a requested charge held by another given. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. McMichael (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 186.

44. Injuries to passengers.—In a personal injury from a sudden jerk of car on which section foreman was working, instructions to find for defendant, if the train was moving slowly when the jerk occurred, held, in effect, given in an instruction to find for defendant, unless the train stopped, and was started suddenly. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Etter (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 183.

In action for injuries to person riding with car of cattle, instruction to find for defendant if its servants operated the train as men of ordinary caution and prudence would have done held sufficiently embraced by the main charge. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1069.

In a personal injury action by one hurt on entering a train, a requested charge held covered by one given, that its refusal was not erroneous. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hassell (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 518.

45. Injuries to employees.—In a servant's action for injuries from a wagon driven by another servant where the court sustained an exception to defendant's pleas that they were fellow servants, and expressly instructed that defendant was chargeable with the driver's negligence, if any, it was not necessary to instruct that they were not fellow servants. Carter v. South Texas Lumber Yard (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 626.

In an action for an injury to an employee caused by his attempting to step from the engine to the tender, defendant's request that, if it was the custom to move the tender without notifying other employees, it would not be liable, held covered by the court's main charge, and a sufficiently affirmative presentation of the facts. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Overturf (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 639.

In an action by a servant injured by the fall of a scaffold, where the general charge required the jury, in order to find for plaintiff, to find that the proximate cause of the fall was due to the master's negligence, the refusal of special charges that the master was not liable if the fall of the scaffold was due to the fault of other servants was not error. Cooper & Jones v. Hall (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 465.

In a miner's action for injuries from a falling roof, refusal of defendant's special requests held not erroneous; the matter being fully covered by instructions given. Consumers' Lignite Co. v. Grant (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 202.

In servant's action for injury, refusal of defendant's requested charges held not error, being covered by the court's main charge. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Moreno (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 221.

Requested instruction for defendant in action for death of railway engineer, killed when his engine left the track, held properly refused, where it could have added nothing to the charge given and which covered the issue proper to be submitted. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1159.

In a servant's action for injuries, where the court failed to submit certain states of fact as a charge, the refusal of special charges directing that they could not find for plaintiffs upon such states of fact was proper. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 305.

In a miner's action for personal injury, defendant's requested charges were properly refused, where the court had charged generally upon the phases of negligence covered thereby. Gulf States Telephone Co. v. Evetts (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 239.

In a servant's action for injuries from pulley detached by tightening of belt around line so as to tighten pulley on line shaft, given instruction on negligence as used in special issue held as comprehensive as refused requested instruction; hence refusal was not error. Rome Milling Co. v. Glasgow (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 686.

46. Contributory negligence and assumption of risk.—Where the charges given fully covered the issue of contributory negligence, it was not error to refuse a requested charge on that question. Tarrant County Traction Co. v. Bradshaw (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 951; La Grange & Lockhart Compress Co. v. Hart (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 573; International Harvester Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 485; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Templeton (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 504.

A requested instruction as to assumption of risk need not be given where that issue is fairly submitted by the court's charge. Wichita Falls Motor Co. v. Bridge (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1161.

In an action for the wrongful death of a boy who had placed himself in a dangerous position beneath a turntable revolved by his companions, defendant's requested instruction on negligence held harmless, where the court had submitted defendant's alleged negligence and a charge that, even though defendant was negligent in the respects charged, there could be no recovery if deceased was guilty of contributory negligence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 428.

For refusal for injuries to a passenger, while intoxicated, by falling out of the open vestibule of a railroad car, an instruction given as to the care required from plaintiff held to sufficiently cover a request to charge that he was negligent if he went on the platform to drink liquor, or drank liquor there, based on a statute prohibiting the drinking of liquor on railroad trains. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Christian (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1192.

A requested instruction as to contributory negligence in a railroad crossing collision held a presentation of a substantive defense, within the rule of right to a special instruction applying the law, stated generally in the general charge, to specific facts relied on. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Alcorn (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 933.

The refusal of a charge requested by defendant on contributory negligence is not error, where no exception or complaint is made to the court's general charge on that issue. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cardwell (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1073.

Refusal to give perils.—Where the court charged on discovered peril but a requested charge on the same subject was fuller and more accurately expressed the law with reference to the facts, it was error not to give it. Texas Traction Co. v. Wiley (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1023.

In an action for injuries from being run over by train at a depot, held, that it was not error to refuse an instruction on discovered peril where it was substantially covered by one given. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Astor (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1133.

48. Contracts and actions relating thereto.—Where, in an action by a broker for commissions, the court charged that verdict should be for defendant unless the sale was on the very terms authorized, or unless the terms were changed to deprive plaintiffs of commissions, it was not error to refuse defendant's request presenting the issue of the owner's right to sell. Webb v. Harding (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1029.

A broker's right to recover commissions, or recover, it was not error to refuse a request for an instruction that for a verdict for plaintiff there should be a finding that defendant made the alleged representations was cure by defendant's special instruction that the jury could not render the judgment for plaintiff unless it found that defendant, at the time of the sale, made "a direct, positive, and unequivocal statement to plaintiff that the mule was sound." Glover v. Goode (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 333.

There was no error in refusing an instruction that a broker is not entitled to a commission, where the purchaser bought on his own information after negotiating with the owner, but not being influenced by the broker, though the broker made efforts to sell to such purchaser, where the court instructed that the brokers must have been the efficient and procuring cause of the sale, nor was there error in refusing an instruction that, though plaintiff, he is not entitled to a commission. In the absence of a contract of agency, where the same defense was substantially represented in the court's main charge. McKinney v. Thedford (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 442.

A general charge by the court, that if the jury should find that the horse sold to defendant was injured, he could recover, held not error. to refuse a requested charge as to the effect of error in the certificate of registration. National Bank of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, v. Ricketts (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 528.

Where, in action in which there was a dispute as to whether there was a sale of stock, the court defined the term "sale," held, that another abstract definition was unnecessary. Alamo Trust Co. v. Prudential Life Ins. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 787.

In an action by broker for commissions, submission of an issue held not to justify refusal to submit defense that sale was to one of the owner's old customers, and that contract did not contemplate commissions for such sale. Shaller v. Johnson-McQuiddy Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 533.

In a broker's action for commissions, requested charge as to good faith required of broker held improperly refused, not being covered by the charges given. Andrew v. Mace (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 598.

49. Contracts of carriage or for telegraphic or telephonic service.—In an action against connecting carriers for injuries to cattle, a request to charge that the carrier was not an insurer of such freight, but was only required to exercise ordinary care to give the cattle prompt and safe transportation, held covered by instructions given. Missouri Pacific Ry. Co. v. Cheek (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 427.

In an action against a terminal carrier for delay and rough handling of cattle, a requested charge held properly refused because covered by charge given. Houston & T. C. R. Ry. Co. v. Lindsey (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 708.

In action for damages to shipment of live stock where court gave specially requested instructions covering the issues sought by another requested instruction, the refusal of the last instruction was proper. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 138.

51. Amount of recovery.—In an action to recover the cost of feeding cattle after their pasture had been negligently burned, a requested instruction as to the amount of recovery held properly refused as covered by an instruction already given. Chicago, R. I.

The refusal of a special charge as to the measure of damages was not error, where that issue was fully covered by the general charge. Carter v. South Texas Lumber Yard (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 626.

A request to charge, in a personal injury action, not to allow plaintiff any damages for permanent injury unless the jury found that he was probably permanently injured was properly refused, though the charge given did not refer to "permanent" injuries, where it did state all of the proper elements of damage, nor was it error, where the court charged all the other elements, to refuse a requested charge that, in estimating the injury to plaintiff by his diminished capacity to labor and earn money in the future, the jury should consider his age at the time he was injured, which was 56 years. D. & F. Ry. v. Benjamin (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 120.

A requested charge, in an action for injury to land by the construction of railroad terminal yards adjacent thereto, held not defective for not charging that the jury could consider those uses which might in reasonable probability occur in the future as well as present uses; the main charge having so instructed. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 560.

In an action by a tenant on shares for damages resulting from his eviction, a charge requested by the landlord as to the duty to minimize damages held covered by the charge of the court. Boot v. McCrea (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 561.

In an action against a telephone company for failure to transmit a sick message, defendant's requested charge on damages held properly refused, as covered by the charge given. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 574.

Defendant's requested instruction as to recovery of damages, the direct result of plaintiff's wrongful and negligent conduct, held, under the evidence, sufficiently covered by its requested instruction given. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Huddleston (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 794.

In an action for libel, defendant's requested charge on the issue of exemplary damages was properly refused, where the court's main charge thereon was sufficiently full and fair to protect the defendant in all its rights. Houston Chronicle Pub. Co. v. Bowen (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 61.

In action for ejection from train defendant railroad was entitled to requested charge grouping facts depended on in mitigation of damages by plaintiff's offensive language, though general charge might lay down general rule of law applicable. Texas & N. O. R. R. v. McAllister (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 82.

An instruction is not objectionable for failing to discuss an element of damage covered in other portions of the charge. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 311.

In a suit for delay in delivery of telegrams announcing death of plaintiff's mother, refusal of an instruction that plaintiff could not recover for grief occasioned by death of his mother held not reversible error, where court charged as to recoverable damages. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Wilson (Sup.) 194 S. W. 355.

52. Errorneous requests.—Where an instruction is partially bad, it may be entirely refused. Bennett v. Foster (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1078.

The court need not submit an issue specially requested where the definition accompanying the issue was incorrect. Turner v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 204.

Instructions requested en masse should be refused if any one of them is improper or has been substantially given in main charge. Merchants' Ice Co. v. Scott & Dodson (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 418.

On pleading and evidence on cross-bill for damages from personal injury from negligence of one furnished by plaintiff to instruct in operation of automobile, a requested special instruction as to expenditures for doctors and drugs, though to require a submission of instruction on material issue as to such expenditures. Roberts v. Houston Motor Car Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 257.

In action for damages to plaintiff's crop from overflow alleged to have been caused by negligence of railroad company's bridge, refusal of instruction on extent of injury and damages, though containing a clerical error, held reversible error. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 847.

53. On issue omitted from charge as given.—Though a request to charge on a particular issue is subject to criticism, it may nevertheless be sufficient to call the court's attention to the necessity of a charge on the issue so that a failure to give a correct charge will be available error. Stirling v. Bettis Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 915.

The request for an incorrect instruction is sufficient to call the court's attention to its failure to charge on a material issue. Olds Motor Works v. Churchill (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 785.

54. Inconsistent requests.—A requested instruction, not mentioning plaintiff's right to recover for future pain, is properly refused, especially where it contradicts an instruction given at appellant's request, authorizing recovery for such pain. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 374.

55. Presentation in general.—Under Acts 33d Leg. c. 59, a bill of exceptions complaining of the refusal of a charge which fails to show that it was requested in time and submitted to opposing counsel is insufficient. Floegge v. Meyer (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 194.

Assignments of error complaining of the refusal and giving of special instructions not appearing in the record will be overruled under Acts 33d Leg. c. 59. Fuller v. El Paso Live Stock Commission Co. (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 930.

ed. The special charge cannot be overruled, where no bill of exceptions was preserved showing presentation of the charge and exception to the refusal. Houston B. & T. Ry. Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 68.

If appellant desired that a certain numbered charge should be given instead of another charge he ought not to have requested the latter. Hanfle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 138.

56. Examination and inspection of requested instructions.—Under this article, it is for the court, and not the party making the request, to submit them to opposing counsel, and it will be presumed that the court performed its duty. Sanger v. First Nat. Bank of Amarillo (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 77.

Refusal of requested charges will not be reviewed where the bills of exceptions do not show that the charges were presented to the court and submitted to opposing counsel as required by Acts 33d Leg. c. 59. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hargrave (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 509.

Bills of exceptions to refusal of requested special charges must disclose that such charges were submitted to opposing counsel for examination and objection, as required by this article. J. B. Farthing Lumber Co. v. Hilig (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 192.

60. Amendment of part of charges requested.—Where the charge given did not clearly present the defense, the denial of two special charges, either of which would have supplied the omission, is erroneous, though only one of them need have been given. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Jonas (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 415.

When several charges are requested, covering the same phases of the case and questions of law, differing only in wording, the court may give one and refuse the others. Fidelity Phenix Fire Ins. Co. v. Sadau (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 599.

Where a party requests two special instructions on the same issue, and the court selects and gives one, the party cannot complain of the refusal of the other. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Aston (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 1156.

Error cannot be assigned to the failure to give portions of special charges. Rishworth v. Moss (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 863.

62. Refusal of requests.—Where appellees' charge No. 12 was indorsed by the judge as given, while the instruction on No. 12 recited that it was refused after charge No. 12 was refused, held that any alleged error in No. 12 would not be reviewed. Good v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 670.

Under this article and arts. 1971 and 1961, held refusal of a requested instruction was not objected to, other than the request, was not made to the general charge. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Alcorn (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 833.

Where defendants gave three separate notes, two of which were renewal notes, and the court could not determine from the general verdict upon which note it was based, whether the defendant gave charges with reference to the rights of plaintiff under each note was error could not be determined. First State Bank of Amarillo v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 285.

Where the master asked and was refused peremptory instruction, and then requested submission of issue of negligence by qualified motion reciting refusal of peremptory instruction, he could assert on appeal that there was no evidence raising the issue of negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Masqueda (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 328.

Art. 1974. [1320] [1320] Endorsement by judge on special instructions refused; as bill of exceptions; presumption on appeal; endorsement when instruction given or modified.—When a special instruction is requested and the provisions of this law have been complied with and the trial judge refuses the same, he shall endorse thereon; “Refused,” and sign the same officially, and such charge, when so endorsed, shall constitute a bill of exceptions and it shall be conclusively presumed on appeal that the party asking said charge presented the same at the proper time and excepted to its refusal, and that all of the requirements of law have been observed, and the same shall entitle the party requesting such charge to have the action of the trial judge in refusing the same reviewed on appeal without preparing a formal bill of exceptions.

If the trial judge modify such special charge, he shall endorse on said charge: “Modified as follows: (stating in what particular he has modified the charge) and given, and exception allowed plaintiff (or defendant as the case may be)”; and signe the same officially. Such charge when so endorsed shall constitute a bill of exceptions and it shall be conclusively presumed that the party asking said charge presented the same at the proper time, excepted to the modification thereof, and that all of the requirements of law have been observed, and the same shall entitle the party requesting such charge to have the action of the trial judge in modifying the same reviewed without preparing a formal bill of exceptions.” [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, § 100, P. D. 216; Acts 1913, p. 113, § 3; Act April 2, 1917, ch. 177, § 1.]

Decisions prior to amendment of April 2, 1917.—A notation on an instruction following the signature of plaintiff's attorneys “requested after the reading of the main charge and after the court's refusal of plaintiff's request to charge a peremptory instruction in its favor, and given, was not calculated to mislead the jury to defendant's prejudice. Aihon v. Arlington Heights Realty Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1067.

Under the substantially direct provisions of this article and art. 2061, in absence of exceptions in the appellate record to the refusal of instructions, the trial court's action therein is deemed approved. Mutual Life Ins. Ass'n of Donley County v. Rhodric (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1067.

Though this article provides that, when a request is given, the court shall note the same, subscribe his name thereto, and it shall be filed with the clerk and constitute a part of the record, the express provision of article 2061, it must be excepted to, or it will be regarded as approved. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Galloway (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 546.

Under art. 33d Leg. c. 59, § 3, amending this article and arts. 1970, 1971, 1972, the ruling of the trial court in refusing a request will not be reviewed on appeal, where the record does not show any exception thereto at the trial. 1d.

Under this article and arts. 1970, 1971, 1972, 1961, rulings on the giving and refusal of instructions are not reviewable, unless the bills of exceptions show that objections to the general charge and special charges refused were presented before the general charge was read. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. v. Culver (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 514.

Where defendant's requested instructions were refused, but no objection to the charge was made before it was given, under this article and arts. 1971, 1973, 2061, it is to be regarded as approved and as requested by defendant, as regards his right to complain of refusal of and giving of, within the rule that if one requests two different instructions, on the same issue, and one of them is given, he cannot complain of the refusal of the other. Cleburne St. Ry. Co. v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 981.

Where a refused instruction was not excepted to, as provided by this article, it would be proper to have been approved under section 2061, as amended, and it was not sufficient that the refusal was assigned for error in defendant's motion for a new trial, and that the denial of such motion was duly excepted to. Missouri, O. & G. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Love (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 922.

Under this article and art. 2061, and despite article 2062, the refusal of instructions cannot be reviewed on appeal, unless duly excepted to. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Battle (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 198.

Under Rev. St. 1911, art. 2069, a bill of exceptions which referred to charges requested by the defendant by number, which request was marked "Refused" by the judge and filed with the clerk so as to become a part of the record under this article, is sufficient. Sanger v. First Nat. Bank of Amarillo (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1087.

Art. 1972, providing that the charge, after presentation of objections, shall constitute part of record and be regarded as excepted to and subject to revision without necessity of bill of exceptions, was not repealed by implication by Acts 33d Leg. c. 59, amending this article and art. 2061. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. v. Dickey (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 184.

Additional charge.—Under this article the court can answer a written question as to the law propounded by the jury after they had retired to consider their verdict. Hermann v. Schroeder (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 788.

Statute requiring submission of special issues does not repeal statute authorizing the judge on request to give additional instructions, and a party may not complain of an additional instruction, which conforms to correct instructions originally given. Coleman Vitrified Brick Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 860.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN
THE VERDICT

Art. 1977. Must be in writing and signed.
1979. Jury may be polled.
1980. Defective or mistaken verdict.
1981. Not responsive to the issues.
1982. Special verdict defined.
1985. Special verdict, requisites of; failure to submit issue not reversible error unless request, etc.
1985a. Special verdict conclusive.
1985b. Jury to render general or special verdict as directed.

Art. 1988. Verdict to comprehend whole issue or all issues submitted.
1989. Judge, on request to state conclusions of fact and law separately, statement to be filed.
1990. Court to render judgment on special verdict or conclusions, unless set aside, etc.
1991. Exceptions to conclusions or judgment noted in judgment; appeal, etc.; transcript.
1992. No submission of special issues unless requested.

Signature.—This article does not apply to jury trials in county court. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. R. D. Jones Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 588.

Where all the members of the jury in open court acknowledged that the verdict returned was their verdict, it is not necessary that each of the 11 sign the verdict, but the signature of the foreman alone is sufficient. Crosby v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 705.

Where all the members of the jury in open court acknowledged that the verdict returned was their verdict, it is not necessary that each of the 11 sign the verdict, but the signature of the foreman alone is sufficient. Crosby v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 705.

Where all the members of the jury in open court acknowledged that the verdict returned was their verdict, it is not necessary that each of the 11 sign the verdict, but the signature of the foreman alone is sufficient. Crosby v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 705.

Where special interrogatories were submitted to jury, who on its return was questioned by the judge whether answers were severally answers of each juror to the questions, to which they replied in affirmative, the mere fact that after discharge it was discovered that such juror had not signed immediately below questions and answers, did not present reversible error. Calvin v. Neel (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 791.

Statutory requirement that 11 jurors sign verdict when jury is reduced to that number was held error in Griffith v. Ash (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 498.

Objection because verdict was signed only by foreman and not by other jurors is waived, where appellant knew facts when verdict was returned, but made no objection till motion for new trial was presented. Id.

Where a party failed, on rendition of a verdict by 11 jurors, to object to their failure to sign the verdict, it could not, for the first time on appeal, complain thereof, if it was error. Crosby v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 705.

Where no exception was made to verdict signed by foreman alone until after jury was discharged, an objection that verdict was not signed by all jurors was too late. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. R. D. Jones Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 555.

Where special findings signed by foreman authorized judgment for plaintiff, held that failure to sign other findings did not require setting aside of findings. City of Henderson v. Fields (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1008.

Art. 1979. [1325] [1325] Jury may be polled.

Questioning jury after verdict.—It is not error for the trial court to refuse to summon jurors before it, after the verdict, to interrogate them as to whether they correctly understood the instructions. Hermann v. Schroeder (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 788.

Art. 1980. [1326] [1326] Defective or mistaken verdict.

Defective or informal verdicts in general.—A verdict allowing punitive damages without also allowing actual damages is contrary to law. Dees v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 56.

Certainty in general.—In construing a verdict, the appellate court cannot look to the evidence to determine upon what theory it was rendered. Browne v. Fechner (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 461.

Any facts arising by necessary implication from facts found by the jury will be considered as found by them so as to aid the verdict. Id.

A verdict cannot be made void merely because a verdict should be given a liberal construction, the courts should be careful not to usurp the functions of the jury. Id.

The charge may be looked to in order to ascertain the meaning of the verdict. Id.

A verdict is not so uncertain that it will not support the judgment where any uncertainty in its terms is made clear by a reference to the rest of the record. Hammel v. Benton (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 34.

The court cannot look to the evidence to aid the verdict. Waco Cement Stone Works v. Smith (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1198.

When a verdict is too uncertain to support a judgment, the court cannot enter judgment thereon, since to do so would be to make the verdict for the jury. Houston Packing Co. v. Griffith (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 437.

A verdict specifically locating the disputed lines in respect to the lands in controversy held not void for uncertainty. Hermann v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 845.

In a boundary suit, the jury is required definitely to locate the line by its verdict, and its description as being the south line of a certain survey, such south line not being otherwise located, is not such definite location as is required in a verdict. Bonner v. Fitts (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 231.

In suit for dissolution of partnership and accounting, verdict for plaintiff held not insufficient as vague and indefinite. Tyler v. McChesney (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 1116.

The fact that a finding of damages for depreciation in market value to cattle shipped over defendant railway did not state that delay caused cattle to become gaunt and jaded did not render verdict uncertain. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. v. Harp (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 438.

Aider by pleadings.—The pleadings may be looked to in order to ascertain the meaning of the verdict. Browne v. Fechner (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 461.

Amount of recovery.—In an action for a balance due on a contract to furnish stone, and for extra materials furnished, aggregating $782, in which defendant admitted owing plaintiff $546, but counterclaimed for damages for $2,580, a verdict for defendant of $1,900 held uncertain and indefinite. Waco Cement Stone Works v. Smith (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1153.

A verdict, "We, the jury, find for plaintiff damages to amount of $1,732.26, less freight," was held to be the basis of a judgment, since reference to the evidence was required to ascertain freight. Houston Packing Co. v. Griffith (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 431.

Where jury returned verdict against two defendants jointly, and against the third defendant for amounts specified, verdict held not ambiguous, though it stated the total amount as less than the sum of the amounts awarded against the different defendants. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Treadwell & Wilkinson (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1089.

In shipper's action for damages, verdict finding for plaintiff in a specified amount, less freight charges, held insufficient as a general verdict, and not to justify a judgment for plaintiff. Bandy v. M. & N. Ry. (App.) 125 S. W. 494.

Where the flooding of land rendered part utterly worthless and destroyed crops on the whole tract, the jury held not bound to return separate verdicts for each element of damage. Southwestern Port & Terminal Co. v. Keeser (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 661.

The jury's finding, "We believe the plaintiff entitled to $150," was a sufficient finding as assessing the plaintiff's damages at $150. Abilene St. Ry. Co. v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 390.

Designation of parties.—In an action against two defendants for a joint trespass, a verdict rendered that, "We, the jury, find against plaintiff the plea of privilege of the defendant F. G., and in favor of the plaintiff W., in the sum of $510.00," was a finding against both defendants for $150. Fairchild v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 498.

In action for slander against a company and its general manager, held, that a verdict for the manager exonerated him, and also the company. Cummer Mfg. Co. of Texas v. Butcher (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 82.

A verdict for a defendant, silent as to the other defendant, was sufficient to sustain judgment for both defendants. White v. Barrow (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1154.

Apportionment of amount of recovery.—In an action against railroads and the receiver of one, where damages were properly assessable against the receiver as accruing since the appointment, a verdict against the road, including the amount of damages that should have been rendered against the receiver, was erroneous. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. McCommon (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 541; see, also, notes under art. 4794.

Amendment or correction.—Under this article the court had a right, with the jury's consent, to amend a verdict so as to find for the foreclosure of a lien pursuant to a peremptory instruction. Malcolm v. Sims-Thompson Motor Car Co. (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 924.

Where the correct amount stated in the verdict was less than the sum of the amounts awarded against the different defendants, the court properly recalculated the jurors after they had left the court room, and directed them to correct the verdict, and received it. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Treadwell & Wilkinson (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1089.

Where, as the result of a mistake in computation, the jury's verdict was too high, the court was not required to set the verdict aside or render judgment for the amount returned, correct amounts being ascertainable from the agreed facts. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Wall (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 627.

Under this article held that, after verdict for plaintiff and a poll of the jury showing that they had found against defendant on his cross-action, the court properly amended the verdict by showing such finding on the cross-action. W. R. Case & Sons Cutlery Co. v. Folsom (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1068.

Action of court in directing that jury return to room and correct their verdict so as to set off in which they had overlooked and which the undisputed evidence showed defendant to be entitled to held not error. Hall v. Ray (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1135.

Sending jury back to correct special verdict without informing counsel, who is present in open court, of contents will not be held as an error in absence of objection or exception thereto at time. Texas City Transp. Co. v. Winters (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 366.

Art. 1981. [1327] [1327] Not responsive to the issues.

Responsiveness in general.—The verdict must be responsive to the issues. Waco Cement Stone Works v. Smith (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1158.

Failure to find material issue is ground for reversal. Id.

Where answers to previous interrogatories plainly stated that there was a written contract between the parties, an answer to an interrogatory whether there was a written contract and whether it was the one introduced by defendant, that "there was a contract considered for transportation," was not fatally defective as unresponsive. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Wall (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 537.

In trespass to try title, involving a right to damages for pasturing cattle, verdict finding defendants guilty, and assessing the damages, held not insufficient as failing to find as to the ownership, where the petition alleged ownership and an ouster, thereby damaging plaintiff. Wolf v. Lane (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 72.

In action for damages to shipment of stock, a finding allowing recovery of feed bill incurred because of delay was proper, if sustained by pleadings and proof, although not covered by the pleadings. Ft. Worth Ry. v. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. 433.

Several counts or issues.—In an action for conversion, where defendant pleaded an offset, a verdict reciting that the jury found for plaintiff in a given sum, but that the offset cannot be construed as a denial of defendant's offset, and was not considered as charged by defendant, should not be received, being manifestly insufficient because not disposing of all the issues. Pitt Co. v. Cypress Shingle & Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 799.

Where, in an action for injuries against two defendants, both filed cross-pleas to recover over against its codefendant in case of a judgment for plaintiff, a verdict for plaintiff against both defendants but failing to dispose of the cross-pleas was unassailable. Ft. Worth Belt Ry. Co. v. Perryman (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 1131.

In an action upon a note, where defendant set up payment to the members of the firm that to the failure of the jury to dispose of his cross-claim against the members of the firm held to render the verdict insufficient to support the judgment, the failure to find not being an implied finding against defendant's contention. Browne v. Fechner (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 461.

The two counts setting up the same cause of action, but one alleging a specific act of negligence, and the other making a general allegation of negligence, the verdict finding injury. If the two courts is sufficient. Trinity & B. V. Ry.

Co. v. Geary (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 201, judgment reversed (Sup.) 172 S. W. 546.
In an action by the heirs for injuries before death and for the death, where defendant contended that the death resulted from the injuries, and thereby obtained a reversal in the Court of Civil Appeals, it cannot in the Supreme Court object to the verdict for not finding that fact. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Walker (Sup.) 173 S. W.
308, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 199. Motion to retax costs granted (Sup.)
177 S. W. 554.

Is suit on a note and to foreclose a chattel mortgage on a pumping plant, verdict and judgment which did not pass upon plaintiff's cause of action nor defendant's cross-complaint held reversible error. DEMPSTER MILL MFG. CO. v. HUMPHRIES (Civ. App.)
189 S. W. 1110.

Sending the jury back for further deliberation.—Where the verdict in an action on a contract did not dispose of plaintiff's cause of action, but only found for defendant on his counterclaim, the court should send the jury back to correct it. Waco Cement STONE WORKS v. SMITH (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1158.

Constitutionality and construction in general.—This article held mandatory in a cause capable of being determined on special issues. J. M. GUFFEE PETROLEUM CO. v.
DINWIDDIE (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 439.

This article gives to a party the right to have a case submitted on special issues, the charge to be drawn by the court, and any omissions supplied as provided by article

The only exception to this article, which is a mandatory act, is where the nature of the suit is such that it cannot be so submitted. SHAW v. GARRISON (Civ. App.) 174
S. W. 942.

Statute requiring submission of special issues does not repeal statute authorizing the judge on request to give additional instructions. Coleman Vitrified Brick Co. v.
SMITH (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 866.

Submitting or refusing to submit special issues of fact raised by the evidence is not the giving or refusing of special charges, and so not controlled by the rules ap-
W. 626.

Legislature was authorized to enact law permitting judges of district courts to sub-mitt questions to jury on special issue, without being requested to do so. Padgett v.
HINES (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1122.

Under this article the refusal of the court to submit a case upon special issues as requested is reversible error. KILCRO v. GUNDLACH (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1092.

When special issues should be submitted.—Employer's action for injuries caused by falling ladder placed by a defendant with the employer's negligence, assumed risk and a settlement, and plaintiff alleged a lack of mental capacity to execute the contract of settlement to which defendant alleged ratification, held a cause which could be determined on special issues. J. M. GUFFEE PETROLEUM CO. v. DINWIDDIE (Civ. App.)
185 S. W. 439.

The trial court is not justified in refusing to submit on special issues because at the same time requests were made for the giving of special charges. Gordon Jones Const.
Co. v. Lopez (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 987.

It was not a valid reason for refusing to submit a case on special issues that, when the case was so submitted on a previous trial, the jury had disagreed, owing to the involved character of the issues. 1d.

Under this article refusal to submit special issues to the jury held to be error.
SHAW v. GARRISON (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 942.

Where the court would have been justified in peremptorily instructing to find for the plaintiff, there was no error in refusing defendant's request to submit the case on Submitting special issues separately.—The special issue submitted to the jury, "If J. had gotten in telephone connection with  W.,  could he and would he have attended the funeral?" embodies two questions, which should be submitted sepa-

Where, in a case involving capacity of a party executing a contract and a deed and notes 30 days thereafter, it appears that if insane, mental capacity was intermittant, special issues relating thereto should be submitted disjunctively. Smith v. Guerre (Civ.
App.) 175 S. W. 1693.

In personal injury case, a special issue whether plaintiff was knocked down and run over and injured was not objectionable as combining two issues. San Antonio &

In an action for misrepresentations in effecting a sale of lands, the submission to the jury of the extent water was guaranteed by the vendor in a single special issue held to be erroneous. Zavala Land & Water Co. v. Tolbert (Civ.
App.) 184 S. W. 525.

In servant's action for injuries from strain when carrying timber, submission of special issue requesting finding whether plaintiff was required to carry timber with rubish on ground held not error as submitting two questions of fact in the same issue. Rice v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 667.

A submitted special issue, "If the defendant or his foreman did make the requirements or order inquired about in the third special issue, was it negligence of the defendant to do so?" was not objectionable as intermingling one issue with another. Id.

In some instances, a gauze pack may have been left after operation, a submitted special issue held not subject to objections that it submitted separate and distinct issues of fact, or that the issues were not separately submitted. Miles v. Harris (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 839.

Special issues were held not guilty of negligence as alleged, which proximately caused gauze pack to remain in abdomen of plaintiff's wife longer than it should have remained after operation, held not violation of this article. Id.

Explanations and definitions.—The giving, preliminary to the statement of the special issues, of a general charge on the material issues should be avoided, as tending to confuse the jury; but this does not apply to definitions entirely proper in connection with the special issues submitted. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 218.

In servant's action for injury, where the court submitting the case on special issues propounded questions as to whether plaintiff was in law a vice principal, the refusal of the defendant's requested charge defining a vice principal was not error. Winnsboro Cotton Oil Co. v. Carson (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 1002.

Where case was submitted on special issues, a party desiring instructions defining the terms used must request such instructions, or he cannot complain of failure of the court to give them. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Oates (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1014.

No instruction is required as to an issue fully presented in questions propounded by the court, to which no objection is made. Qualls v. Fowler (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 256.

In action for death of plaintiffs' minor intestate employed by defendant, where explanatory portion of charge defined negligence, proximate cause and ordinary care, submission of question, "Do you find that it was negligence to permit said collar to be in said condition?" held not error. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Fresubito (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 776.

When a case is submitted on special issues, the court can give such explanations as in its judgment may be necessary, but it is error to explain the facts so that the jury can judge the effect of their findings. Hovey v. See (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 606.

A portion of the charge accompanying special issues as to assumption of risk, held not objectionable as misleading, or as an incorrect statement of the law applicable to the facts in the case Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Ayres (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 510.

In a suit against a railroad for a death, where the case was submitted on special issues, the refusal of a charge, embodying a declaration of law which could only be applied by the court to the facts found, and could have been of no material aid to the jury in determining the questions of fact submitted, was proper. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Norris (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 261.

Such a charge, which merely stated law which would follow finding of certain facts submitted to jury, and which would not have aided jury in answering proper issues, was properly refused. Colgrove v. Falfurrias State Bank (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 580.

In a suit to set aside a conveyance of land as fraudulent, an instruction that, if presented at time of conveyance, maker or transferor, it would have been a fraudulent conveyance, was a proposition of law which was not essential to aid jury in answering issues of fact, and hence was properly refused. Id.

In freight conductor's action for injuries, requested instruction that, if plaintiff stumbled over a stake in the yards while at work, that alone would not warrant affirmative answer to a special interrogatory, was properly refused as invasion of the jury's province. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 593.

In action wherein defendants set up homestead exemptions and the cause was submitted on special interrogatories, requested instruction as to notice to plaintiff of homestead rights, held properly refused. Calvin v. Neel (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 791.

In action on note secured by trust deed, defendant's right to homestead being submitted on special issues, refusal of instruction on abandonment of homestead, held not error. Id.

Where the case was submitted on special issues as to whether a master had used due care as to the condition of the roof of a mine, refusal to instruct that the employer was not an insurer, and only under duty to use ordinary care, held not erroneous, though the charges were correct as to the law. Consumers' Lignite Co. v. Grant (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 202.

The giving of a special charge requested by defendant held erroneous, where the case was submitted on special issues. Turner v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 294.

In a servant's action for injury, the submission of two special issues as to defendant's negligence sufficiently presented the question suggested by a special charge, and in a form more in accordance with this article. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Dindwich (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 444.

Where a servant's action for personal injury was submitted to the jury on special issues, instructions informing the jury of the facts required to be found to entitle plaintiff to recover, were not erroneous. Id.
Where the case was submitted on special interrogatories, the giving of charges which had the jury found to enable plaintiff to recover held not error. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Casey ( Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 729.

Even where a case is submitted on special issues, the court if requested, should charge the jury with reference to the rules of law applicable to such issues, including a charge on the burden of proof. Sanger v. First Nat. Bank of Amarillo ( Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 1087.

Interrogation of jury.—Court may interrogate jury when it reports as to its answer to special issue in open court and in presence of counsel for both parties. Myers v. Great Western Ry. Co. ( Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 532.

Review by Appellate Court.—See notes under art. 1985.

Art. 1985. [1331] [1331] Special verdict, requisites of; failure to submit issue not reversible error unless request, etc.

Questions or issues to be submitted.—Issues which are on the weight of the testimony in singing out portions thereof are properly refused. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Stuart ( Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 17.

In an action tried on special issues, the refusal of a special issue, which was on the weight of the evidence, and was immaterial, was not error. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Oates ( Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1014.

In action on policy of mutual benefit association, whose secretary was required to notify the purchaser liable to assessment, submission of special issue whether the secretary did notify the insured by postal card held proper. Home Benefit Ass'n of Angelina County v. Jordan ( Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 725.

Submission of special issue whether insured received such notice of assessment at any time before his death held proper. Id.

In a railroad employee's action for personal injuries under Employers' Liability Act, it is the better practice to have the jury find whether plaintiff was negligent, and, if so, find the damages sustained by him and the extent his damages are diminished because of his own negligence. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Vernon ( Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 84.

In an action for injuries to a car repairer by metal flying off the chisel and hammer used in cutting bolts, the court held required to submit the issues whether the employee chose the method of work and whether the injury was the result of an accident. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Denahy ( Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 639.

Where a buyer, sued for price, counterclaimed for breach of contract to furnish all oil required for six months, held, that the court should have submitted the issue whether plaintiff knew that his agent had made such a contract when the oil was shipped. Texas Co. v. Alamo Cement Co. ( Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 62.

In an action for injuries to horses during shipment, the submission to the jury of the question whether contracts limiting liability were valid held proper. Southern Pac. Co. v. Moss & Co. ( Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 883.

Where the court submitted issues on which the evidence was conflicting, and issues not supported by evidence, a general verdict must be set aside. Davis v. Cox ( Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 931.

In action for breach of warranty of materials for silo, defendant held entitled to submission of issue as to value of the silo and value of the materials. Texas-Kalamazoo Silo Co. v. Alley ( Civ. App.) 369 S. W. 621.

Where property, after being sold by defendant, was repleived, held that, where there was nothing to show defendant's insolvency, the submission of the issue of special damages was proper. Taylor v. Jackson ( Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 1142.

In an action for injury to a servant from the slipping of a ladder, a special issue submitting to the jury the question whether plaintiff, before the injury, knew that the ladder was not fastened, is proper. Smith v. Webb ( Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 814.

In an action by a servant injured while mounting a ladder to a fuel oil tank, held, that the question whether the fact that the ladder was unfastened was obvious and should have been discovered was properly submitted. Id.

In a servant's action, held, that the evidence being conflicting, it was proper to submit to the jury the question who was bound to fasten the ladder used by the servant. Id.

Where plaintiff's title depended on whether an early grant included the land claimed, and the boundary of the grant was the north bank of a river, it was not error to submit to the jury the special issue whether, at the time of the grant, the land claimed by plaintiff was on that side of the river, either in whole or in part. Crosby v. Stevens ( Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 705.

In an action by a buyer for nondelivery, he claiming that he was not obliged to pay until after delivery, and the seller claiming that payment was to be made by demand draft, delivered held entitled to refuse to submit special issues to the terms of the contract in this respect and whether the buyer complied therewith. Wolfe City Milling Co. v. Ward ( Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 663.

In action on notes given for an engine sold for defendants' cotton gin, held, on the pleading and evidence, that submission of issue as to whether a subsequent test was merely a demonstration in an effort to settle the differences of the parties was proper.

In action under alleged oral agreement to finish as gas well an oil well bored under written agreement, issue directing jury to find whether defendant directed way in which work should be done after abandonment of oil well was proper. Stine Oil & Gas Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 1109.

In wife's suit to set aside decree of divorce fraudulently obtained by husband, requested special issue as to whether the decree would have been rendered if the clerk had received the jury fee held speculative and immaterial. McConkey v. McConkey (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1110.

On cross-bill for damages for personal injury from the negligence of plaintiff's agent furnished to instruct defendant in operation of automobile, held on the evidence that requested special issues and references for drugs, etc., was properly refused. Roberts v. Houston Motor Car Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 257.

In action for death of plaintiffs' minor intestate employed by defendant, submission of special issue as to whether deceased was at time of his death, acting in course of employment for defendant in defendant's building held not error. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Presbitero (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 776.

Issue calling for finding whether at time deeds were made deceased had mental capacity sufficient to understand that she was conveying land to defendants held proper. Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 366.

When, on trial of a cause, each issue raised by pleadings and evidence is submitted in plain and intelligible questions, which cannot be misunderstood, and, when necessary, appropriate instructions are given to guide jury in determining answers, it is not error to refuse to submit questions to test good faith of jury. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1106.

Refusal to require jury to specify which of several injuries plaintiff suffered is not error. Wilding v. Wilding (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 197.

Refusal of special issues by jury whether defendant's substitute building gin held not error, where it could have been safely built. Scott v. Shine (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 964.

Special issues as to whether plaintiff by exercising ordinary care could have seen a train by keeping a lookout, and whether her failure caused or contributed to the injury, held properly submitted. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Harrell (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 971.

In submitting cases upon special issues, the court should submit the ultimate issue, and not issues evidentiary thereto. Frigid Fluid Co. v. Sid Westheimer Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 334; Texas City Transp. Co. v. Winters (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 366.

In an action for an injury to an employee of a gin company, caused by a defective lever, where the court submitted defendant's negligence in furnishing the gin stand with the lever, it was improper to submit defendant's failure to warn of the defect, that the employee had been changed with the 'defective' machine, that the gin stand lever would be repaired, and that defendant failed to employ a mechanic to keep it in repair; such issues being included in the main issue. Cisco Oil Mill Co. v. Van Geem (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 438.

Where proof of a fact submitted, though evidentiary, is equivalent to proof of the ultimate fact, and carries with it the same legal consequences, there is no objection to its submission. Texas Co. v. Alamo Cement Co. (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 62.

Under this article and art. 1934a, an interrogatory should be framed so as to evoke a finding upon fact issues, and a finding of merely evidential facts is improper. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Dinwiddie (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 439.

In an action for a servant's death from a piece of iron falling in an elevator shaft, where there was no evidence as to how or why it fell, defendant's request to submit special issues as to how it fell, whether negligently or unintentionally, held properly refused, as seeking to elicit the evidence by which the facts were established. Selden-Breck Const. Co. v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 985.

Special issues, which the court refused to submit to the jury, held to relate to evidentiary facts to be considered by the jury. County v. Martin (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 960, judgment affirmed on rehearing, 173 S. W. 1200.

The court properly refused to submit special issues calling for mere details not controlling the disposition of the case, on the answer to which no judgment could have been predicated. The Tex. N. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 488.

In a manufacturer's action against his agent for losses caused by false reports as to the standing of specified purchasers, held not necessary to submit special questions as to the truth of each report and the loss thereby caused. Cooper v. Goding (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 92.

Special issues which related to merely evidentiary matters, most of which were undisputed and some of which were admitted by the pleadings, should not have been submitted to the jury. Turner v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 204.

A special issue as to whether a certain corner of adjoining land not directly affecting the line in controversy was a true corner is an issue for a finding of evidence contrary to this article. Higginbotham v. Weaver (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 322.

Submitting numerous issues on evidentiary facts merely going to prove a real issue

A special issue as to whether a street car ran into a car or whether the cart backed into the car, being an evidentiary question bearing on the ultimate fact of negligence, was not material. Abilene St. Ry. Co. v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 596.

By this article instruction requiring jury to state specifically upon what evidence it based its findings should be refused. Merchants' Ice Co. v. Scott & Dodson (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 418.

In action for injuries at railroad crossing, defendant's special issue as to the distance from the railroad track, was properly on passing through an evidentiary fact. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Durrett (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 427.

In action on accident policy, the issue being whether nail in insured's foot caused death, held proper to refuse an issue whether deceased's sticking a nail in his foot was the sole cause of death, and to submit issue whether death was "caused solely through external, violent and accidental means." Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Hendricks (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 698.

The complexity and seriousness of the questions involved in the proceedings are matters of evidence as to the value of attorney's fees which the jury should not be required by special issue to find. Branham v. Hallam (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 158.

Special issues, which defendant requested to have submitted to the jury, were properly refused, where they sought to establish special facts included in the ultimate fact to be found. North American Accident Ins. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 750.

In action to recover damages from act of doctor in leaving gauze pack in abdomen of plaintiff within an indemnity, question whether acts of defendant held not issues in themselves, but evidence of main fact to be proven, and hence it was not necessary to submit them as special issues. Miles v. Harris (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 838.

In action under Rev. St. 1911, arts. 6935-6934, against a railroad to recover penalties for violation of special relations, defendant's closets at deadly speed not justified to special findings specifying what particular weeks it violated law, where evidence supports findings as to total number of weeks. Beaumont, S. L. & W. Ry. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 955.

All issues to be submitted.—Where there was a question whether the power of an engine sold with guaranty was to be developed at the drawbar or belt, the submission of an issue whether it was to be at the drawbar was sufficient. Southern Gas & Gasoline Engine Co. v. Adams & Peters (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1145.

Where there was a question as to the power of an engine sold with guaranty was submitted, the seller held entitled to an answer whether the workmanship and material were as guaranteed, and whether it had refused to furnish new parts. Id.

In trespass to try title involving boundary dispute, held that court, in addition to submitting issues as to whether fence was on boundary line, should have submitted issue as to the location of the boundary if not at the fence. J. D. Fields & Co. v. Allison (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 274.

When a cause is submitted on special issues, every controverted issue must be submitted, except such as the court is authorized to pass upon under this article. Gardenhire v. Gardenhire (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 726.

In a broker's suit for commission, where the demand was based on the value of the defendant's lands, the submission of the issue of the value of the lands for which defendant was to receive commission to submit the issue of the value of defendant's lands, was erroneous. Hicks v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 792.

In action on a renewal note, held, that the single issue submitted did not embrace the defense made both by the pleading and proof, and that the failure to do so was reversible error. Wis. & P. Ry. v. Wisconsin (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 725.

Evidence held to require submission of special issue whether a very prudent person under the circumstances would have foreseen the plaintiff's act in leaving a train halted at a distance from station and her injury; thecarrier's liability depending on whether by the highest degree of care it could have been anticipated. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Driver (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 981.

In wife's action to vacate decree of divorce fraudulently obtained by husband, failure to submit the issue of fraud or to require a finding thereof held immaterial where it was a necessary inference from the facts actually submitted and found. McConkey v. McConkey (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1100.

--- Issues not material under record or evidence.---Special issues, not supported by evidence, should not be submitted to jury. Texas City Transp. Co. v. Winters (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 365; Rowan v. Hodges (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 547; Bender v. Bender (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 725.

The submission of a requested special issue in trespass to try title, as whether all the taxes on all the land was paid by F. for five consecutive years, was properly refused, where the evidence showed that another, whose title F. held, had also paid taxes for a number of years. B. v. Wiant (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 622.

Where the question in issue was whether a fence was on the boundary line and there was no dispute as to the existence of such fence or how long it had been there, the court properly refused to submit issues as to these matters. J. D. Fields & Co. v. Allison (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 274.

In an action for breach of warranty of a roof, the refusal to submit special issues requested by defendant as to whether the roof could be repaired and made water tight held proper under the terms of the warranty. Phillip-Carey Co. v. Manes (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 164.
In an action by a partnership for a debt, where undisputed evidence showed that a debt was owing in full, the refusal to convert the special issue to which interest of the parties was to what interest such person had owned in the firm was not error. M. Alexander & Co. v. Fletcher & Whitfield (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 314.

Special issues not made by the pleadings are properly refused. San Antonio & A. Ry. v. Sidlar (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 171.

Special issues as to damages, findings under which would be of no practical benefit on the question of whether the verdict is excessive, are properly refused. Id.

In a partnership share of cattle dissolution issue as to whether there was an agreement for share of cattle dissolution, issue as to whether agreement was a proposed refusal of the party was held supported by the evidence. Daniel v. Lane (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 906.

Special issues which were not put in controversy by the evidence were properly refused. Id.

It is not error to refuse to submit special questions to the jury, where the evidence on those questions is undisputed. American Mfg. Co. v. O. C. Frey Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 956.

In a coal miner’s action for injuries, where the evidence was insufficient to justify a finding that plaintiff’s leg was paralyzed or he was otherwise injured as a result of disease, the refusal to submit the issues whether his injuries were the direct result of any cause other than the full coal on his back was proper. Consumers’ Lignite Co. v. Grant (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 262.

Defendant may not have submitted to the jury the question of the oil sold by him being according to sample in broker’s possession, where sale is proved to have been made as a sample, and not according to sample. People’s Ice & Mfg. Co. v. Interstate Cotton Oil Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1163.

In a suit against a railroad for a death, the refusal of an issue as to whether neither an affirmative nor a negative answer would have relieved the road from liability was proper. Kansas & T. Ry. Co. v. Norris (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 260.

In salesmen’s action for compensation under oral contract, where defendant pleaded his employment under a written contract refusal to submit defendant’s requested special issue as to whether defendant mailed a contract to plaintiff, which was immaterial, was not error, though his material special issue as to whether contract should have been submitted. Briggs-Weaver Machinery Co. v. Fratt (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 732.

A special issue, not supported by the record, should not have been submitted to the jury. Foss Gas Engine Co. v. Fairview Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 382.

In an action for damages for conversion of eight bales of cotton, defendant, not having established an alleged gift of two bales, a special interrogatory to the jury assuming conversion of eight bales, if any, and a refusal to submit defendant’s requested special interrogatory as to the number converted, if any, were not improper. Grayson v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 651.

In an action on alleged oral agreement to change an oil well into a gas well, the only issue being the existence of the contract, and the price agreed on, which had been submitted, a requested instruction submitting issue whether or not F. S., as president of defendant, employed plaintiff to make gas well and promised to pay him $50 per day, was properly refused. Stine Oil & Gas Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1069.

In an action on alleged oral agreement, where the only issue of fact was the existence of an agreement, the court was not required to require finding that plaintiff did particular work alleged in his petition was not error. Id.

In lineman’s action for injury from shock from electric light wire in contact with guy wire, the jury was never asked whether it was caused by lowering of guy wire or raising of electric light wire was properly refused, as the issue was immaterial. Gulf States Telephone Co. v. Evetta (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 289.

In action by seller of embalming fluid for purchase price, defendant on the ground of breach of contract refused to submit whether such sale was defective, which special issue was held proper. Special issue on right of the defendant to the use of the fluid was not error, where the fluid was sold for general use. Frigid Fluid Co. v. Sid Westheimer Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 334.

In an action for attorney’s fees, a special issue requested by defendant as to employment not included within the services for which the court allowed a recovery held properly refused. Branham v. Hallam (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 158.

In an action for attorney’s fees, a special issue requested by defendant as to employment admitted by her filed properly refused. Id.

Refusal of court to submit special issue unsupported by evidence or pleadings is not error. Dermott Townsite Co. v. Wooten (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 214.

Where a case was submitted on special issues, if court thought evidence not sufficient on an issue it should not submit the issue, and submission should be so worded as not to cover entire issue. Swarengen v. Swearingen (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 445.

Requests for special finding.—A request to submit on special issues may not be properly denied because of the party’s failure to formulate and request the issues he desired submitted. Gordon Jones Const. Co. v. Lopez (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 987.

The jury was not entitled to receiving the steps the cause was submitted on special issues. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Reek (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 699.

A request to submit an issue should be clear and specific, made before or at the time the issues are submitted, and not confused as an objection to the entry of judgment or to the charge. Foster v. Attir (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 326.

In servant’s action for injury from falling from a ladder on an oil derrick, defendant’s requested submission of its negligence in the construction and maintenance of the steps was an invitation to submit issues as to its negligence in fastening a step and in allowing it to become loose and unsafe. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Dinwiddie (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 444. 559
The trial court is not required to select from a number of special issues those which are proper to be given and those which are not. Federal Life Ins. Co. v. Hoskins (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 667.

Where a request to submit a special issue contained two propositions, one of which was submitted to the jury, the failure to submit the other is not reversible error, in the absence of a request (or a proper request to do so.) Eaton v. Do. (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1091.

Trial court's allowance of an hour or an hour and a half for counsel to prepare and file objections to the special issues submitted and special issues which it desired to have submitted held not an abuse of its discretion. McConkey v. McConkey (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1180.

Request to submit special issues to jury, is properly refused, where made after court had prepared general charge and time had been given for counsel to prepare special charge. Miles v. Ry. & Dry Goods Co. v. Pikay (Civ. App.) 181 Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 596.

It was not reversible error to refuse to submit special issues where the questions were submitted to the trial court in such shape the trial court could not submit one without excluding all of them, and part of the questions were submitted in the main charge. Miles v. Ry & Dry Goods Co. (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1171.

In view of the special issue submitted and defendant's failure to make complaint of finding thereon, held, that the refusal of the court to submit a special issue was not error. Wilson v. Kelsey (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 506.

In action for death of railway engineer, refusal of defendant's requested issue as to whether deceased was exercising ordinary care to run his engine at a safe rate of speed, held proper in view of the other issues submitted. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1159.

In salesman's action for compensation under an oral contract, refusal to submit defendant's requested special issue as to the contract under which plaintiff was employed held not error, where such issue was covered by an interrogatory. Briggs-Weaver Machinery Co. v. Pratt (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 732.

Where some of the requested issues were substantially covered by the main charge, it would have been improper to repeat such issues. Federal Life Ins. Co. v. Hoskins (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 697.

In servant's action for injury, refusal to submit defendant's special issue on assumption of risk held not error, where the issue was sufficiently submitted by a special issue in large. Eucalpice Ice Co. v. Buckloe (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 510.

In servant's action for injuries, special issue submitting defense of contributory negligence being a fair presentation of the issues, there was no error in refusing issue requested by defendant. Rhone Milling Co. v. Glasgow (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 658.

In an action for damages in leaving gauze pack in abdomen of plaintiff's wife after operation, refusal to submit requested special issues substantially embodied in issues submitted held not prejudicial error. Miles v. Harris (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 839.

Combining two issues in one.—See notes under art. 186a.

Preparation, form and construction of interrogatories or findings.—A special interrogatory in an action of trespass to try title brought by S., "Did S. purchase the land in controversy in this suit from G. for S. & Co. or for D., answer "yes" or "no,"" was leading. Sullivan v. Fant (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 612.

A request as to whether an insured had failed to pay his lodge dues and assessments when due submits to the jury only the question whether the payments were made, not whether they were due. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World v. Wagonon (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1082.

A requested special issue calling for all the information given to the agent of defendant telephone company where W. attempted to get in communication with plaintiff, is too general; the only material fact sought being whether the agent was notified that W. expected to tell plaintiff that his sister was at the point of death. Southwestern Telephone Co. v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 324. In an action to rescind a contract of sale held, that the submission of but a single issue was erroneous. Southern Gas & Gasoline Eng. Co. v. Adams & Peters (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1143.

In a suit to compel the school board to receive children without the vaccination which was required by the rules, a special issue submitting the question whether small-pox constituted a menace to the public health in the vicinity was not misleading. Zucht v. San Antonio School Board (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 549.

An issue submitted to the jury in a personal injury case held to include a consideration of diminished earning capacity in the future. Memphis Cotton Oil Co. v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 369.

A special issue, in trespass to try title, whether a wife had abandoned the homestead, held not to cover the issue whether she had separated from her husband. Gardenhire v. Gardenhire (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 726.

A submission of an issue, "Was defendant indebted to plaintiff in the sum of $875 when judgment was entered," held improper as involving a mixed question of law and fact. Watson v. Patrick (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 632.

In an action by one hurt attempting to elevate part of a railroad bridge with a track jack, a special question held not erroneous in assuming that the jack gave way or fell. Missouri, O. & G. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Webb (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 728.
In action for railroad engineer’s death, submission of issue as to whether the unsafe track, if it was unsafe, or the unsafe locomotive, if it was unsafe or both, were the proximate cause of the accident, held not injurious to defendant, as no intelligible jury could have been misled thereby. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1159.

Special issues submitted to the jury though they be leading questions are not improper provided they suggest the answer in such a manner as to require a yes or no answer for an unequivocal answer. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Logan (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 391.

In salesmen’s action for compensation under alleged oral contract, where defendant pleaded employment under a written contract, form of presentation of issues reciting the terms of the oral contract and omitting the terms of the written contract held not confusing or misleading. Briggs-Weaver Machinery Co. v. Pratt (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 732.

Defendants’ plea of privilege being the single issue of fact, the charge, general in form, which involved only such single issue of fact, was sufficient as a submission of the case on special issues, and the jury’s verdict for plaintiff determined such single issue for defendants. Texas Grain & Elevator Co. v. Dyer (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1049.

The jury was sufficient to support by competent evidence the existence of an agreement to Jury, together with an issue to require them to find rate per day agreed upon, held sufficient to cover issues raised by testimony. Stine Oil & Gas Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1099.

An issue, “Did defendants fail to have a competent man stationed at the crossing to give warning?” sufficiently presented the question of whether there was a competent flagman at crossing. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. McMeans (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 692.

In an action for injuries to a roadmaster who ran his motorcar into an open switch, special issues as to rule of a custom to leave the switch open held not to submit issue of assumption of risk under either the Texas or federal court rules. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Finke (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1143.

In an action to determine the ownership of corporate stock, a special issue held not objectionable as placing on plaintiff the burden of proving the fact that the stock originally issued to their ancestor had not been sold by him. Green v. Galveston City Co. (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 182.

On judgment creditor’s motion for judgment against constable and sureties for failure to execute, submission of issues whether either of executions were delivered to and received by the constable, and whether the judgment debtor had any property in the county subject to execution, was simply a submission of the different theories urged by the respective parties. Sharp v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 599.

A question to jury as to exemplary damages held not to assume plaintiff entitled to exemplary damages. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1095.

In an action by the beneficiary of an accident insurance policy, a special issue submitted to the jury and the charge given in connection therewith held sufficiently to submit the issue of the cause of death. North American Accident Ins. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 780.

In suit to enjoin enforcement of an order of Railroad Commission requiring plaintiff to build a station at a designated place on issue as to whether or not plaintiff had designated such place as a depot, it was error to submit two special issues as to whether or not plaintiff had designated depot, naming different place in each, as one question to defendant. Padlock Corp. v. Jones (N. Y. App.) 196 N. Y. 720.

On defendant’s motion for relief from final judgment, special issue submitted, whether plaintiff sustained the injuries or any of them alleged in the petition, held not erroneous in that it does not limit time or place where injuries occurred. Rice v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 657.

In action of negligence in delivering a gauze package in defendant’s wife after operation, a submitted special issue held not subject to objections that it submitted a question of law or a mixed question of law and fact. Miles v. Harris (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 839.

In action for injuries to railroad passenger when alighting, questions eliciting jury’s finding held not confusing and misleading or on weight of evidence in assuming exist-
Sufficiency of verdict or findings in general.—The form of answers to special issues is immaterial if the jury's meaning is clear. Penn v. Briscoe County (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 916.

Buyer, counterclaiming for breach of contract to furnish all the fuel oil required for six months for profits lost while its plant was closed due to the breach, where the special issues submitted did not call for sufficient information, Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 1331, having no application. Texas Co. v. Alamo Cement Co. (Civ. App.) 358 S. W. 82.

A verdict finding that $7,000 would fairly compensate plaintiff for his injuries, that his earning capacity was decreased by his injuries $5,000, and that the first amount should be diminished two-fifths on account of his contributory negligence, is sufficiently certain to warrant judgment (Memphis & C. C. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 406.

Where the jury disagreed as to one special question, though answering another question which in different terms submitted the same matter, the answer will not support a judgment. Denison v. Brown (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 725.

A special verdict damaged to shipment, special finding as to its value, with no finding as to unpaid freight charges, held insufficient to support a judgment for plaintiff. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. McClellan (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 283.

Where the findings made were conflicting and on certain material issues the jury were unable to agree, they did not authorize a judgment. Wright v. Chandler (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1173.

In action for breach of contract to buy cattle, entry of judgment upon verdict, without a finding on the issue of whether the seller had assented to a rescission, held erroneous. Houston Packing Co. v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 634.

Special issue submitted by the court held to substantially present the contentions of the parties, and the jury's answer was sufficiently certain to support the judgment. Wedgewood v. Smith (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 641.

A judgment based partly on the verdict and partly on court's conclusions from the evidence is permitted under this article. Foster v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1091.

In action for breach of irrigation contract, the jury's answer, "B. and E.,” to a substituted interrogatory of defendant company by B., held not objectionable for B.'s want of authority, where H. had authority. Orange County Irr. Co. v. Sandefur (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 777.

In a servant's action for injury, findings that defendant's negligence in the construction of a ladder was the proximate cause of plaintiff's injury, would support a judgment for plaintiff. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Dinwiddie (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 444.

In action for injuries to land by water seeping through defendants' embankment, where court submitted issue as to value of land after acts complained of. The answer, "No immediate market value for agricultural purposes," will not sustain judgment on theory that its value was entirely destroyed. Indiana Co-op. Canal Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 242.

A special verdict in a servant's action for injuries, defended on the ground of contributory negligence awarding him $17,500 where the demand was $50,000, was too indefinite to stand. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Pace (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1061.

Findings on special issues held a sufficient finding of negligence, as to safe place to work, in leaving a plank projecting into a doorway, through which a night watchman had to go. Texas Glass & Paint Co. v. Reese (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 721.

If jury's special findings, when considered with the facts established by the undisputed evidence, failed to recover upon plaintiff's right to be made by the pleadings, judgment is properly rendered for defendant, although the special findings do not dispose of all the issues. Fleck v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 386.

In action on note secured by deed of trust, which recited that maker's homestead was outside a certain city, and their answer pleaded homestead rights within such city, jury's findings that at execution of note and trust deed the premises were not their home, and therefore without, were insufficient, nor were other findings, sustaining judgment denying the homestead right. Calvin v. Neel (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 791.

Where jury specially found that plaintiff's negligence contributed to injury, without finding that it was proximate cause, held, that judgment for plaintiff could not be upheld on presumption that court found such negligence not proximate cause. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Harrell (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 971.

Failure to answer interrogatories or make findings.—See notes under art. 1988.

Inconsistent findings.—Answers to special questions in an action against a railroad company for damages for the maintenance of tracks in the street upon which plaintiff's property abutted held not conflicting, and sufficient to support a judgment for plaintiff. Houston & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Ashe (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 289.

Answers to special interrogatories that defendant agreed to pay plaintiff half the commissions derived by defendant from the sale of any land to persons sent from plaintiffs to defendant held to conflict with answers that the agreement for compensation was merely to make a fair division of the profits. Trice & Ludolph v. Cone (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 587.

A finding that an employer used ordinary care to adopt reasonably safe methods, and a finding that the employer was negligent in failing to use ordinary care to adopt a reasonably safe method to do the work, did not justify a judgment for the employed. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Denahy (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 529.

In action for the death of a railway engineer, killed when his engine left the track, special response held the conduct of the company the cause of the accident held conflicting, and a judgment thereon could not be sustained. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 594.

A special verdict in an action for the price of goods held too contradictory and uncertain to support a judgment. Goldenstein v. Heflin (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 931.

Special findings that plaintiff was suffering from neurasthenia, and that she was not 562.

In trespass to try title against defendant, special verdicts holding conflicting, so as not to support a judgment for the tenant for damages caused by his disposition under writ of possession. White v. Carpenter (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 815.

Where there is an irreconcilable conflict between two special findings, the case must be resubmitted. Royal Ins. Co. v. Okasaki (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 200.

Action of court in directing the jury to again consider a special verdict because the findings were contradictory held not improper. Denison Cotton Mill Co. v. McAmis (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 621.

Where the jury first returned answers to special issues which were inconsistent, it was not error for the court to call their attention to the inconsistency and require them to return to their room and answer both and answer both issues alike. Turner v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 204.

It is the duty of the court, if it can reasonably be done, to reconcile the special findings of the jury. Kramer v. Strommeier (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 860.

Finding in passenger's action for injuries by derailment that a hidden defect in the first rail giving way was not discoverable by the highest care held not in conflict with another finding that defendant had not used a high degree of care to have the rails in a reasonably safe condition. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Bertha (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 187.

In an action to recover for a deficiency in property received in exchange, findings that an agreed value was placed on one property and that no such value was placed on the other were not so inconsistent as to prevent entry of judgment. Foster v. Atlin (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 530.

Findings, in action by employee against railroad, that plaintiff's duties required use of outfitboard on tender, and that proper attention to duties would not inform him of defective condition, held not necessarily contradictory. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Conway (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 52.

A finding that an upward office of wholesale grain dealers was used as an auxiliary to and in connection with the plant which they claimed exempt from a trust deed as their business homestead, is not inconsistent with a finding that the upward office was their principal place of business as wholesale grain dealers. Bowman v. Stark (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 921.

Error cannot be predicated on the alleged conflict in the verdict which found the mother entitled to a divorce and custody of two girls, but not a fit and proper person to have custody of a boy; no actual conflict necessarily following from such findings. Hunter v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 149.

In an action, by finding on a special issue that plaintiff's injury was not directly caused by the fall which was claimed due to defendant's negligence, made their verdict one for the defendant, did not make it conflicting and inconsistent because of a later finding as to the amount of damages suffered. Goodson v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 83.

A special finding by the jury that a wife signed a deed upon condition that she was to have the value of the land does not conflict with a finding that the note therefor was not given to her. Earhart v. Agnew (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1140.

Special findings that the flood was unprecedented, that it was the proximate cause of the injury, but that railroad could have reasonably anticipated the flood, were in conflict, and no judgment could be rendered thereon. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Milam County (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 671.

Jury findings that plaintiff's agent told defendant a tractor would do certain plowing, and that such representation was true, but that the engine failed on plowing, are not fatally inconsistent, where the first two findings were in response to a lengthy and involved special interrogatory. Chamberlin Sales Co. v. Nichols-Shepherd's Fuels Co. (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 20.

In action for damages to goods shipped, evidence that the carrier sold the goods for $145 did not conflict with a special finding of the jury that the goods, when received, had no market value at destination, where evidence of such sale was offered for limited purpose of showing that carrier performed its statutory duty as to goods refused. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Brackin (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 804.

In suit to enjoin enforcement of order of Railroad Commission requiring plaintiff railroad to build a station at designated place, answers to special issues held so ambiguous and contradictory as to require reversal of judgment for defendant, since to support a judgment a verdict as a whole must be plain in meaning and not inconsistent in findings upon material facts. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 778.

In action on a note given for purchase of land where a secret agreement between purchaser's agents and vendor's agents and misrepresentations were claimed, findings on special issues held not inconsistent. Varn v. Gonzales (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1132.

Amendment of verdict.—After a jury was discharged, its verdict could not be reformed by changing the answer to a special issue from "no" to "yes" although the jury appeared and asked the court in writing to make such change. Goodson v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 82.

Construction and operation.—An answer to special issues submitted to try title involving the location of a road with reference to plaintiff's land held to be a finding for defendant as to the effect that the land could not be located by a certain survey, and against plaintiff on the issue of the county's estoppel to define the location of the road. Penn v. Ericksen County (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 916.

Where special findings by the jury as to whether the insured had paid his lodge assessments as well as conflicting, but the undisputed evidence and other findings support the finding that the payments were not made, the jury will be held to have

Where the jury found on one issue that certain assessments were not made by the insured or by any one for him, the finding on another issue as to whether he failed to make such payments when due, reading, "No, no April dues on May 1st, 1912," is a finding that no April dues were due on that date. Id.

Where the jury, in response to the question whether a husband gave to his wife a note as a gift or to reimburse her for money of hers that had been used, found that it was to reimburse her for her money and land used, the finding was a direct finding that the entire note was turned over to her to reimburse her, and not that she was to have only the amount needed to pay her for her property used. Larrabee v. Porter (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 365.

Jury's answer to question as to whether oil was shipped under a verbal agreement or to supply the immediate demands of the buyer in the belief that the buyer would execute a written contract, reading, "One car on verbal contract, two cars on written contract," held not to mean that the last two cars were shipped in acceptance of a written contract which the seller never executed. Texas Co. v. Alamo Cement Co. (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 62.

In an action for personal injury by the servant of a railroad construction company operating a railroad, against the company's negligence in giving signals for letting down rails, held, that the findings amounted to a finding of such negligence, and that a judgment for defendant thereon was properly refused. Texas Bldg. Co. v. Reed (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 211.

In a railroad servant's action for injury from falling from a car load of lumber he was trying to straighten, findings that he knew the danger of attempting to do the work without help and with a dangerous pinch bar held to establish the common-law defense of contributory negligence. Chisholm v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Smallwood (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 292.

Where, under issues submitted, the jury find the whole amount of plaintiff's damages from his injury to be $7,000, and the amount of his damages from diminished earning capacity to be $3,000, the latter being included in the former, such finding was not considered in rendering judgment. Memphis Cotton Oil Co. v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 309.

A street car passenger, injured while alighting, held not entitled to recover on a finding that there was no discovered peril, and that he was guilty of contributory negligence. Darden v. Southern Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 200.

Under this article and arts. 1886 and 1889, held that, on special verdict entitling one of parties to judgment, the trial court must either set aside verdict and grant new trial, or render judgment in conformity with verdict. Crawford v. Wellington Railroad Committee (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1094.

A special verdict in an action for injuries to an employé, held not to show contributory negligence. Ginnett v. McAmis (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 621.

In an action by riparian owners against a city for injunction and damages in the abatement of structures obstructing the stream, the jury's finding that the river was of an average width of 30 feet had the same effect as a finding that it was navigable, so far as the title to riparian lands was concerned. Petty v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 224.

Under Const. art. 1, § 15, art. 5, § 10, and Vernon's Statutes' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 184a, 184b, 185, 4633, the court, where jury has found by special verdict that necessary facts constituting the divorce were wanting, must not grant a divorce and grant a divorce to either party. Grisham v. Grisham (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 959.

In a suit for converting mortgaged property, held, that answers to special issues were sustained by the general verdict, and judgment should be for plaintiff. Farmers' State Bank of Newlin v. Boll (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 922.

Every reasonable presumption must be indulged in favor of the judgment rendered, and a special verdict should be liberally construed in order to sustain it. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. v. Ottawa v. Face (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1051.

Answers to special issues may be construed to include matters resulting by necessary implication from facts expressly found. Penn v. Briscoe County (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 916.

Where a special verdict is ambiguous, the court may look to the record to interpret it. Gibson v. Dickson (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 44.

Refusal of court to render judgment for defendants on special finding that, if plaintiff had stopped, looked, and listened before using a railroad crossing he would not have been injured, held proper, in view of other findings. Hovey v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1025.

In action for rescission of contract of sale of horse, special findings in answer to special questions held to compel a judgment for plaintiff. Hubbs v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 716.

In an action on an order finding that defendant suffered no damage from loss of rentals due to plaintiff's delay meant only that the loss was due to delays for which plaintiff was not liable. Slaughter v. Grisman & Neubit (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 1.

A special verdict that defendant was the natural daughter of decedent held, in view of the pleadings and evidence, a finding that defendant was a legitimate child of decedent. Ginn v. Dickson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 44.

Where plaintiff secured a general verdict in his action for breach of contract, defendant could not defeat recovery for plaintiff's admitted nonperformance; the verdict being tantamount to a finding that the defendant himself prevented performance. Meads v. Meads (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 781.

Finding that plaintiff was injured "in the manner named," held not a finding that she was thrown from a train by a sudden jerk, as alleged, in view of other findings. Bullock v. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 536.
In a passenger's action for injuries by derailment, a finding that a defect, in that one of two broken rails which first gave way, could not have been discovered by the highest care, held not to require a judgment for defendant. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Berthea (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 1057.

A finding upon a special issue submitted to the jury becomes immaterial when other facts have the legal effect to eliminate the issue embodied in such finding. Id.

In trespass to try title affirmative answer to first special issue as to location of block on base line, and as to location of corner of survey, held to make immaterial any issue as to whether the grantor intended that surveys in a block should lie adjacent to another block. McCormack v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 485.

In an action for rescission of an exchange of lands as having been induced by misrepresentations, the jury's answer to a special issue held not insufficient to support judgment for plaintiff. In that it could not be ascertained with presentations considered by the jury were matters of opinion or those supporting an action for fraud. Benham v. Tipton (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 610.

Where specific acts of contributory negligence were pleaded, and jury found plaintiff not guilty thereof, general finding of failure to exercise care held immaterial. Fink v. Brown (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 46.

In an action to foreclose a chattel mortgage, an erroneous special finding of the particular consideration for an alleged release held to control a general finding of consideration, and rendered it a mere legal conclusion. Lee v. Clay, Robinson & Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1061.

In action against railroad for injuries, jury properly answered "Yes" to special issues regarding "was or was not" "plaintiff in peril" "Did or did not" the engineer discover his peril" etc.; jury's intention to state affirmative finding to each question being evident. La Grone v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 98.

Defendants' verdict for entire damage to interstate shipment, where plaintiff proved his damages, and jury found that damages caused by defendant and connecting carriers were $317.85, it was court's duty to enter judgment for plaintiff for $800 sued for, and other special issues submitted were immaterial. Texas-Mexican Ry. Co. v. Swearingen (App.) 189 S. W. 953.

In action against carrier for entire damages to interstate shipment, where court submitted special issues which sought to apportion damage to each connecting carrier, such issues and answers could not destroy specific finding, as to total damage, supported by evidence. Id.

Special findings by the jury in an action in which defendant's wife claimed a note as the proceeds of the homestead, held sufficiently clear and to determine the issue of homestead adversely to the wife. Earhart v. Agnew (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1140.

A judgment that the seller's fraud invalidated a tractor sales contract is not demanded by a special verdict that the tractor was represented to be new. Especially where it could be profitably used for other purposes, and the loss occasioned by its defects was undoubtedly. Varley v. Nichols-Shipley Sales Co. (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 611.

An affirmative answer to special issue submitted, whether plaintiff's contributory negligence "caused or contributed to cause" injury, bars plaintiff's recovery, although such special issue did not use the word "proximately." Behymer v. Mosher Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1148.

Where railroad company which was real party in interest might claim lands under contract for their conveyance, even though not intended for townsites purposes, finding in action for conveyance to effect that company did not intend to use lands for townsites, is immaterial. Dermott Townsite Co. v. Wooten (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 214.

Any duty of the court to determine proximate cause was performed when, on jury's special issue requesting defendant being a special issue of each defendant, it rendered judgment against both. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Packard (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 297.

In an action to set aside a decree of divorce, or to set aside division of property therein, in action to set aside divorce, limited to division of property, finding that plaintiff was not properly served therein immaterial. Swearingen v. Swearingen (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 442.

In action on a note given for purchase of land where a secret agreement between purchaser's agents and vendor's agents and misrepresentations were claimed, judgment for plaintiff held sustained by special findings. Varn v. Gonzales (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1132.

Finding that by exercise of ordinary care plaintiff would have seen approaching train in time to stop before colliding therewith, if she had been keeping a lookout, held a finding of negligence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Harrell (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 971.

Review by appellate court in general—Submission or refusal to submit findings—Plaintiff's failure to except and assign error to the refusal to submit other issues does not prevent a reversal of a decree which fails to give the relief to which he was legally entitled under undisputed facts. Arno Co-operative Irr. Co. v. Pugh (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 991.

The law, requiring reservation of exceptions to the charge and to the giving or refusing of charges, does not apply to the action of the court in submitting, or refusing to submit, special issues of fact to the jury. Tomson v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1141.

Error cannot be predicated on the refusal of the court to submit requested issues, not made subject to proper assignment of error, nor accompanied by proper bills of exception, showing timely and proper application to the court for the submission of the requested issues. Crosby v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 765.

Assignments of error to the manner in which the cause was submitted to the jury on special issues cannot be considered, where there are no bills of exception or statement of facts in the record and no showing of fundamental error. Baugh v. Baugh (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 725.
Under the statute of 1913 the erroneous submission of special issues cannot be reviewed on appeal where no bill of exceptions was reserved below. Southern Gas & Gasoline Engine Co. v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 529.

The action of the trial court in refusing to submit a case upon special issues will not be reviewed on appeal, unless such ruling is excepted to and a bill of exceptions taken. Quann v. B. & P. Ry. Co. v. Galloway (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 546.

Where appellant did not except to the court's failure to submit material questions to the jury, those matters cannot be complained of on appeal. Taylor v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1142.

Unless preserved in bill of exceptions in accordance with Rev. St. 1911, art. 2088, the denial of special interrogatories to the jury will not be reviewed. Texarkana & F. S. Ry. Co. v. Casey (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 739.

A finding cannot be assigned as refusal to submit special issues to the jury, where no bill of exceptions was taken to the charge or such refusal. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Church (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 517.

Where no exceptions were taken as required by statute to refusal of trial court to submit special issues, refusal need not be considered on appeal. Renfroe v. Bruton (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1134.

Where the objection urged to the submission of an issue was too general, an assignment of error in its submission would be overruled. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Corn (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 897.

An objection that the charge was not a submission of the case to the jury on special issues as requested held too general to be considered. Missouri, O. & G. Ry. Co. v. Texas (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 738.

A bill of exceptions to the refusal of the court to submit the case on special issues should show at what point in the trial the request was made. Banks v. Mixon (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 698.

Assignment complaining of refusal of special issues requested, with others substantially given, held not to be considered, where exception was taken to the refusal of all the requested issues. Morris v. McSpadden (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 554.

A general to the refusal to give special charges on refusal will be overruled, where part of them were embraced in the main charge as given. Morris v. McSpadden (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 554.

Assignment complaining of refusal to submit special issues not shown to have been submitted to opposing counsel held not reviewable. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 488.

Sufficiency of evidence to support findings.— Where no exception was taken to the special verdict, the court on appeal may not consider the sufficiency of the evidence to support it. H. Weinstein v. Acme Laundry (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 126.

Where no exception was directed to a special verdict, the appellate court need not refer to the statement of facts to determine whether the evidence was sufficient to support it. West Texas Supply Co. v. Dunivan (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 425.

Where there was evidence to support the jury's finding of contributory negligence generally, but that such negligence was not proximate cause, latter finding held not unwarranted. Pink v. Brown (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 46.

Where appellants did not attack the special findings of the jury constituting the verdict, the Court of Appeals is precluded from considering the sufficiency of the evidence to support the verdict. Essex v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 399.

When a special verdict is returned and no attack is made thereon, a motion for peremptory instructions cannot be held to challenge the sufficiency of the evidence to support the verdict and judgment so as to require the Court of Appeals to examine the statement of facts in detail to determine the question. Id.

Where the trial court found a fact was proved by undisputed evidence, and so instructed the jury, and the report to which the finding was addressed did not reflect the Court of Appeals cannot look into the statement of facts to ascertain what facts were brought forward upon the issue. Commonwealth Ins. Co. of New York v. Finegold (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 533.

To predicate error on the refusal to set aside a finding of the jury, there must be a motion to set aside. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Hooper (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 317.

In the absence of a motion to set aside the jury's findings, an assignment of error based on the insufficiency of the evidence to support them will not be considered. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Weems (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1103.

Where appellant failed to object to the submission of an issue, the sufficiency of evidence to raise the issue could not be considered on appeal. Riedel v. Wenzel (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 366.

Where no objection was made to the submission of a special issue to the jury, nor any motion to set aside the finding thereon, the objection that such finding was not supported by the evidence could not be considered on appeal. Burnett v. Continental State Bank of Alto (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 172.

In an action for injuries to a car inspector, special findings by the jury negating assumption of risk, held not contrary to the evidence showing violation of a rule, but also showing the plaintiff had been instructed not to observe the rule under the circumstances. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Ayers (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 310.

In action for malpractice, evidence held to sustain a verdict for defendant and answers to special issues upon which verdict was based. Miles v. Harris (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 939.

Appellant cannot complain of findings of the jury where he filed no motion to set aside the findings. Messimer v. Echols (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1171.

Issues not submitted found or deemed found by trial court.— Under this article where a transferee's marriage was married to a transferee and was returned the facts and evidence underlying the transferor's as man and wife for many years until the husband's death in 1908, and he recognized children born to as his own, it would be presumed in support of the title derived from the heirs that the transferee's prior marriage to another woman had been set aside. Charters v. Rawls (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 206.

Where there was no complaint of the refusal of the court to submit an issue, and the judgment for defendant was supported by the evidence, the presumption was that the fact properly found on that issue. Paschal v. Hudson (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 911.

The presumption created by this article does not apply where the pleadings of the successful party do not contain allegations which are necessary to support the judgment. Bangor v. Nut (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 953.

Where the evidence on an issue not submitted was practically undisputed, the facts in support of the judgment will be deemed found by the trial court. Bergman Produce Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 554.

A judgment based on a special verdict insufficient in itself will be reversed, unless there is evidence in the statement of facts to complete the verdict. Terrell, Atkins & Harvin v. Proctor (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 996.

Under this article issues not submitted held presumptively found in favor of the judgment. Ford v. Warner (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 585.

Where the court did not request the submission of an issue to the jury, it must, in support of the judgment, be presumed that the trial court decided such issue in favor of plaintiff, for which it rendered judgment. Hamilton v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 173.

Where plaintiffs requested the submission of proper issues as to contributory negligence, which were refused, no presumption on that issue will be indulged in aid of a judgment for the defendant. Turner v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 294.

If the plaintiff's evidence is insufficient to support his conclusion, there is no presumption that the facts not found by the jury will, when authorized by plaintiff's evidence, be found in aid of the verdict. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Penney (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 576.

Where there was testimony authorizing the court to make such additional findings as were necessary, it will not be held that the judgment was inconsistent with the facts not found by the jury were insufficient. Perrow v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 973, rehearing denied 181 S. W. 496.

In an action for delay in the shipment of live stock an assignment of error that the verdict was insufficient in failing to find weight and market value, or what the cattle sold for, will be overruled, where the issue was not requested and the market value was sufficiently proven. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Collier (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 96.

Under this article assignment that court erred in decreeing foreclosure of lien because jury made no finding on that issue held to be overruled. King v. Collins (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 899.

When a special answer does not find all the facts necessary to form the basis of a judgment, it must be made apparent upon all the questions submitted, the court is presumed to have found the omitted facts necessary to support the judgment. Internal & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Berthea (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 187.

Where the issues in an equitable suit are submitted to the jury by special interrogatories, and other issues are waived, the appellate court cannot presume that the court found other issues for the purpose of sustaining the judgment. Capps v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 137.

Under this article absent request by appellants for submission of an issue as to the value of personalty, material in the suit, the Court of Civil Appeals will presume, to support the judgment below, that the trial court estimated the reasonable value of the personalty; that being possible under the evidence. Foster v. Attir (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 230.

When a special verdict, not finding all facts necessary to judgment, but answering all questions submitted, is entered, the presumption is that the court found from the evidence the omitted facts necessary to support the judgment, if the evidence authorizes the presumed finding. Hicks v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 792.

Under this article, where the case is submitted on special issues, an issue, not submitted and not requested by a party, must be deemed to have been found so as to support the judgment, if there was evidence to sustain such a finding. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Norris (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 261.

Where there was sufficient evidence to show the negligence relied on was the proximate cause, judgment will be upheld though jury did not so find and judgment recited it was based solely on their findings. Postex Cotton Mill Co. v. McCamy (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 569.

Under this article error cannot be predicated on the insertion of findings by the court in addition to those of the jury, which were necessary to the judgment. Crosby v. Stev­ens (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 796.

Under this article the trial court can determine an issue specifically excluded from the jury and not requested to be submitted. Fosco Gas Engine Co. v. Fairview Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 352.

In an action for damages for conversion of cotton, held that, there being a conflict in evidence, no issue being submitted or requested upon the bona fides of defendant's action, it will be presumed that the court resolved against the defendant on the issue of good faith. Latimer v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 651.

Under this article the Court of Civil Appeals must presume that trial court's findings, if sustained by evidence, support the judgment, based on answers of jury to special questions. King v. Eannate (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 906.

Under this article the jury's failure in an action against a railroad company for the killing of a cow, to find that the failure of the engineer to keep a lookout was the proximate cause of the injury, is no ground for objection, where the evidence warranted the conclusion, that the court so found. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Oates (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1014.

Where a case is submitted upon special issues, if the facts will warrant a conclusion necessary to the judgment, Court of Civil Appeals must presume trial court so found in support thereof. Collett v. Houston & T. C. B. Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 232.
It will be presumed the court itself determined there was no general market for such articles, to be sold at place of collision, with defendant's train, where there was evidence supporting such a conclusion and the question of market value was not submitted to the jury. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Schwethelin (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 414.

Under this article, if an issue made by pleadings is not submitted to jury, and no request therefor was made, it will be deemed to have been found by court to support the judgment. Myers v. Grantham (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 392.

If the finding is made on a certain point, but the testimony thereto is uncontradicted, a finding in accordance with the testimony will be imputed to the lower court. Corbett v. Allman (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 91.

In support of judgment, the court will be presumed to have found on an issue raised by defendant or specially brought in, not having been made, or requested. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 316.

Where the issues of waiver and estoppel were pleaded, but no request was made for their submission to jury, it must be presumed, in support of the judgment for plaintiff, that court found such issues in his favor, if there was sufficient evidence to support the same. Mechanics' & Traders' Ins. Co. v. Dalton (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 771.

Where a particular issue, on which a finding for plaintiff was necessary to the judgment was not requested to be submitted or submitted to the jury, held that it would be presumed on appeal that the trial court found for plaintiff on such issue. Fidelity Trust Co. v. Rector (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 842.

Where the question of assumed risk was not submitted to the jury and not required by defendant, the issue will be resolved in support of a judgment for plaintiff rendered on special issues found by the jury, if there is any evidence to support such a finding. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Finke (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1143.

Under this article, upon appeal or writ of error, an issue not submitted and not requested in will be deemed of a special verdict will in such manner as to support the judgment, providing there is evidence to sustain such finding. Hill v. Hill (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 726.

In an issue submitted on special issues, trial court, upon request, may file findings of fact which definitely show what facts were found by it in addition to jury's finding, and upon which judgment is based, and, though court cannot be required to make up and file such findings, due consideration can be given to them when made. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Latta & Happer (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1115.

Under this article every issue in case found by trial court must be deemed to have been found so as to support judgment, where plaintiff appellants do not complain of any finding as having no evidence to support it.

If to satisfy as to sufficiency of evidence, it must be resolved in favor of judgment, in absence of request for submission of issue affected. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Rachal (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 418.

If no finding should be improvident to the court in the absence of requested charges submitting the issue, the finding should be in support of the judgment. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 662.

Failure to submit issue not ground for reversal, unless requested.—In an action for an accounting between partners, the failure of the court, in submitting the issue of damages, to submit a particular item of such damage held not to constitute reversible error, under the express provisions of this article. Ramsey v. Bird (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1075.

Under this article, where the court directed the jury not to answer other issues if they found the first against the defendant, a written request for the submission of the other issues was not necessary to raise the question on appeal. Gardenhire v. Gardenhire (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 726.

A special finding whether the collision would have occurred if the train had not been moving faster than six miles an hour was proper in the absence of a request for a more extended instruction. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Eddleman (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 773.

In a shipper's action for damages for Injury to stock, where there was no request to submit to the jury the issue of the amount of damages recoverable, the court had a right to find that fact from the items of damage found by the jury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 902.

Under this article, where defendants failed to plead payment of water rent sued for, or to request submission of that issue to the jury, failure to submit it was not ground for reversal. Bennett v. Rio Grande Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 713.

In wife's action to set aside decree of divorce fraudulently obtained by husband, husband's exceptions to special issues submitted on ground of omissions will be overruled in absence of requests for such special issues embodying additional findings desired. McConkey v. McConkey (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1109.

Under this article a party who permits the submission of a cause on issues framed by the court, without requesting the submission of additional issues, may not complain because other issues were not submitted. Hicks v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 905.

Proper complaint cannot be made of failure to submit an issue to the jury, where no request was made for submission. Fudgett v. Hines (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1132.

Defendant not requesting submission of special issues other than those submitted held in position to complain of the court's refusal to submit them. Wedgeworth v. Smith (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 841.

In this article a judgment for plaintiff on special issues, which did not include assumption of risk, is not improper, where no issue on assumption of risk was submitted by defendant. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Finke (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1143.

Where neither party requested the submission of a special issue as to the right to interest, it will be presumed that both elected to leave that question to the court. Brannam v. Hallam (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 158.
In case submitted on special issues, if form of question is insufficient to require finding, the court, on request in writing, should request facts, and without such request, imperfect submission will not require reversal. Calvin v. Neal (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 791.

Under this article failure of the court to submit to jury issue raised by the pleadings and demand for reversal of a special verdict unless submission was requested in writing. Hill v. Hill (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 726.

If a party desires special issues related upon him by to be submitted to the jury, he must ask the court to prepare, or ask the court for special instruction submitting such issue, and if the instruction is refused, raise the question on appeal through a bill of exceptions. Vaky v. Phelps (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 601.

In the absence of request for separate findings of special damages pleaded, a requirement that the jury find the damages in the aggregate is not erroneous. Scott v. Shire (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 964.

Although special issue submitted was not as full as it should have been, where it was correct as far as it went, parties cannot complain in absence of a request for fuller submission. State v. City of Polytene (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1196.

Conclusiveness of verdict. A verdict is conclusive between the parties until set aside.

On this article and arts. 1985 and 1990, held on, special verdict entitling one of parties to judgment, the trial court must either set aside verdict and grant new trial, or render judgment in conformity with verdict. Crawford v. Wellington Railroad Committee (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1094.

Under this article and art. 1990, party cannot complain of a judgment conforming to a special verdict as unsupported by evidence, where he did not assign error to refusal to set aside. Bilde v. Vaughn (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 709.

While no new attack is made in the brief upon a special verdict, it is conclusive as between the parties under this article until set aside. West Texas Sugar Co. v. Dunvan (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 426.

By direct provision of this article a special verdict is conclusive, as between the parties, as to the facts found. Essex v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 399.

Under Const. art. 1, § 15, art. 5, § 10, and arts. 1984a, 1986, 4633, the court, where jury has found by special verdict that necessary facts constituting legal grounds for divorce are wanting, may not disregard its verdict and grant a divorce to either party. Graham v. Graham (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 959.

In view of this article, assignments of error complaining that special verdict was unsupported by evidence cannot be reviewed; defendant not having assigned as error denial of request for new trial on ground that verdict was unsupported by evidence. First Texas State Ins. Co. v. Burwick (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 165.

While the Court of Civil Appeals takes judicial notice of proceedings on a former appeal and the facts proven on a former trial, neither is nor the trial court is bound by the findings of the jury on the former trial. Hines v. Meador (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1111.

Notwithstanding this article and art. 1990, as to conclusiveness of special verdict on parties and court, such special findings may, in view of articles 1612, 2023, Court of Civil Rules rule 34 (142 S. W. xi), and rule 71a for district and county courts (145 S. W. vii), be evidence in support of grant of new trial, and its refusal reviewed on appeal. Hale County v. Lubbock County (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 678.

Setting aside in part.—The effect of a special verdict under the statute is such that the trial court would have no right to ignore any material portion of same in drawing judgment, unless he found evidence insufficient to sustain such portion, but would have to set aside entire verdict or give effect to all of it. Swearingen v. Swearingen (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 442.

Art. 1987. [1333] [1333] Jury to render general or special verdict as directed.

Discretion of court.—The court need not submit any special issue, unless it submits the case on special issues. Pearson v. Heyman (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 242.

The rule of the Supreme Court for the district and county courts governing the submission of special issues is not a limitation of the power of the court, and the court may under the statute, at the request of either party or on its own motion, submit a case on special issues. Eierd v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 385.

It is within the discretion of the trial judge whether to submit the case on special issues, or to submit it in a general charge. Maxey v. Franklin Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 483.

Where the evidence authorizes the submission of the case to the jury, the court may submit it in a general charge or by special issues. Scarborough v. Wheeler (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 196.

Art. 1988. [1333] [1333] Verdict to comprehend whole issue or all the issues submitted.

Failure to answer or agree on some issues.—Where, in a negligence case, special issues of negligence, contributory negligence, and assumption of risk were submitted, the failure of the party who found upon the issues of contributory negligence, and assumption of risk, there being evidence to support them, was in direct violation of this article, and no final judgment could be rendered on such verdict. Cisco Oil Mill v. Van Geem (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 439.

That some of the issues are not answered does not necessarily render a verdict void or insufficient to support the judgment, where the issues answered decide the merits of... the case and warrant and support the judgment. Coons v. Lain (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 961.

Where the jury find for defendant on the issues of negligence and proximate cause, held, that they need not answer other questions relating solely to defenses pleaded. Martinez v. Medina Valley Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1035.

Where objection was made to a question that, if the jury answered a certain question in the negative, they need not answer questions following, error could not be predicated on failure, after returning a negative answer, to answer such questions. Id.

Where all material findings were in favor of plaintiff, but judgment was rendered for defendant, objection of jury in failing to agree upon findings deciding anything material in favor of defendant, necessary to an adjudication in his favor, was tantamount to a mis-trial. Crawford v. Wellington Railroad Committee (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1004.

A verdict held to be inconsistent with the judge's instructions, submitted to the jury, on which the testimony was conflicting. Levy v. Dunken Realty Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 679, denying rehearing Levy v. Duncan Realty Co., 178 S. W. 984.

In action by transferee of drafts for goods purchased, verdict for defendant on instruction given, held to involve findings against plaintiff's ownership, and his joinder in the seller's fraud on the defendant. Calfee v. Bryant (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 823.

Where finding upon special issue was not essential to proper judgment, inability of jury to answer such issue does not invalidate judgment rendered upon answer to pertinent issue. Reliance Life Ins. Co. v. Beaton (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 743.

That jury disagreed on a special issue submitted which was immaterial is not ground for reversal. State v. City of Polytechnic (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1136.

Responsiveness of general verdict.—See notes under art. 1981.

Art. 1989. [1333] [1333] Judge, on request, to state conclusions of fact and law separately, statement to be filed.

Duty to make and file in general.—The failure of the trial court to file conclusions of fact and law is waived by appellant agreeing to a filing of a statement of facts. Guadalupe County v. Poth (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 919.

Under Rule 62a for Courts of Civil Appeals (149 S. W. x), forbidding reversal except for error shown to have been caused by wrong judgment, held that unexcused refusal of the trial judge to file conclusions of fact and law, as required by this article, was reversible error, although there was in the record a statement of facts agreed to by defendant's counsel. Kyle v. Blount & Co. (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 796.

This article does not apply where the case should have been submitted to the jury. Arlington Heights Realty Co. v. Citizens' Ry. & Light Co. (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1109.

Findings of fact and conclusions of law made by the court without request from either party, held to be conclusive, particularly where it was impliedly conceded by the parties and the court that they were not full but were merely memorandum for the private use of the judge. Sewall v. Colby (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 694.

Failure of the trial court to file its findings of fact and conclusions of law, when seasonably requested to do so, requires a reversal when a statement of facts is not preserved or brought up with the transcript. Edwards v. McGuire (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 477.

Failure, on seasonable request, to file conclusions of fact and law is ground for reversal, where the evidence is conflicting. Peers v. Williams (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 364.

This article and art. 2075, requiring the judge to file findings of fact and conclusions, apply only to trials by the court. Schofield v. Texas Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 506.

The trial court's failure or refusal to file the statutory findings of fact and conclusions of law on seasonable request therefor by appellant, which deprives the appellant of a proper presentation of the case on appeal, is reversible error. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bracken (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 256.

A statement of facts, showing no material conflict in the evidence, takes the place of, and dispenses with the necessity of the filing of, findings of fact and law by the court. Wardlow v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1161.

The court properly refused to make a finding of fact when there was a jury trying the case, whose province and duty it was to pass upon such issues. Abihene St. Ry. Co. v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 399.

In divorce case, where evidence was conflicting upon material issues, failure of court to file findings of fact and conclusions of law upon seasonable request therefor held error. Bloch v. Bloch (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 525.

Where case is tried by jury, court need not file conclusions of law and fact. Padgett v. Hines (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1122.

Under this article and art. 2075, findings of fact and conclusions of law cannot be filed within ten days after subsequent term at which judgment nunc pro tunc was entered, so that request therefor made at trial term was seasonable, and failure to file them was reversible error. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1087.

Facts and conclusions to be found.—It is not error to refuse to make a requested finding which in effect is a mere conclusion. Hollingsworth v. Wm. Cameron & Co. (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 644.

The trial judge is not required in finding facts to go into minute details as to damage at various times to a number of crops, as embraced in 81 submitted questions. San Antonio & A. R. R. Co. v. Mallins (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 787.

Requests for findings.—Under this article where the court had an order reciting verbal request to file request of findings and conclusions of law entered, a written request was not a condition precedent, and court's failure to file them necessitated a reversal. Dennis v. Kendrick (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 693.

Plaintiff's request for the filing of conclusions of law and fact, not made until after the overruling of her motion for new trial, held waived. Overton v. Colored Knights of Pythias (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 472.
In the absence of a showing to the contrary, it will be presumed that the trial court, fillers, and law did so pursuant to request. Todd v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 617.

Where defendants are dissatisfied with the court's general conclusion, they should ask for findings upon specific points. Shaw v. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 574.

Where the record does not show that findings of fact and conclusions of law were not requested, it will, such findings and conclusions having been filed, be presumed that they were requested. Frenjard v. Le Blanc (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 75.

The refusal to make a requested finding was not error where the trial court in another finding fully stated the matter requested to be found. Bogart v. Cowboy State Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 678.

Though a trial court's findings of fact and conclusions of law were somewhat mixed, that is immaterial where the facts found sufficiently appear. Robert Mclane Co. v. Swinemann & Schkade (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 282.

Sufficiency in general.—Oral statements of a party prior to the execution of a written contract were merged therein, and, though received in evidence without objection, could not form the basis of a finding or judgment. Leek v. Citizens' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 526.

Where the court found that a deposit was subject to the payment of checks generally, but did not find that it was understood that the giving of a check should operate as an assignment, the findings warranted the conclusion that a check was not an assignment. First Nat. Bank of Rising Star v. Texas Moline Plow Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 240.

Where the plaintiff sued certain carriers for injury to mules shipped, but the court made an unattacked finding that the mules were not injured during the trip, a judgment for defendants was properly rendered. Dickerson v. San Antonio, U. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1945.

Findings, in suit against contractor and the surety on his bond to recover damages for the breach of a building contract, held to support a judgment for plaintiff. Title Guarantee & Surety Co. v. Barnwell (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 694.

On trial of claim to attached property, findings as to possession, without finding on issues as to whether a possessory interest had been abandoned, held not to support judgment against the claimant. Clifton v. Jolly & Terry (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 562.

A conclusion of law on the merits must be supported by a finding of facts. Bogart v. Cowboy State Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 678.

In an action on a note and to foreclose a deed of trust, where defendants claimed a homestead, the trial court's failure to make findings of fact upon which its conclusion of defendants' abandonment could have been based, made a judgment in accordance with such conclusion erroneous, and it required reversal. Id.

In action for breach of contract for the joint purchase of cattle, in which defendant brought cross-action for damage, a judgment disposing of cross-action adversely to defendant by his taking nothing by his cross-action was a sufficient compliance with defendant's request for a finding of fact and conclusion of law touching cross-action. Eubank v. Hoscik (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 214.

Conformity to pleadings, issues and proofs.—Where the petition alleged that the note was made July 14, 1906, a finding that it was due October 1, 1907, is not irreconcilable to the pleadings, where defendant's answer alleged the later date. Cox v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 694.

Findings of fact not responsive to any material issue in the case are immaterial, as are conclusions of law based thereon. Spencer v. Penchler (Sup.) 180 S. W. 597.

A finding for a drawer of a draft, sued by the payee, who had cashed it for the drawer, that the drawer had a deposit with the payee sufficient to repay it, is unauthorized, in the absence of plea of such fact. First Nat. Bank of Roswell, N. M., v. Browne Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 489.

A plea having been eliminated, by the sustaining of exceptions thereto, will not sustain a finding, and judgment thereon, for defendant. Id.

Failure to find on particular questions.—Judgment against debtor's fraudulent grantee for title and possession of land held not erroneous, though the evidence showed defendant's equitable ownership of the land, where no finding on this question was made or requested, and no exception taken to the failure to find. Landers v. McCutchan (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 940.

Inconsistent findings and conclusions.—A finding that representations by an agent for an insurance company in selling stock involved future contingencies and were speculative and conjectural held not inconsistent with other findings as to what the representations were. Cope v. Pfizer (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 447.

In an action to enjoin a city from claiming land for a street, a finding that the purchasers from plaintiff's ancestor were not informed of his intention that the land in controversy should not be opened for street purposes, held to conflict with a finding that plaintiff never informed all such purchasers that the land was reserved. City of Kaufman v. French (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 831.

Construction and operation.—A finding by the court that the evidence did not show that the defendants executed the note in suit is not a finding of forgery so as to bar a recovery of the original debt, under the principle that one who fraudulently alters a negotiable instrument cannot recover either on the note or the original debt. Cox v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 604.
In a suit by the state over land which it claimed as part of the bed of a navigable stream, held that findings of fact by the trial court, in view of the findings embodied in the judgment, including that the locus in quo was not a part of the bed of the stream at the time a patent to it was granted by the state. State v. Macken (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1160.

Where an answer sets up facts showing partial payment on the note sued on, a finding that plaintiff's assignee was "indebted" to defendant, and a conclusion of law that defendant was entitled to a "set-off" as against such assignee, will be treated as a finding of a partial payment. Ruhe v. Yett (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 50.

That dispenser was not, and finding that testator agreed that his adopted daughter should share in his estate. Masterson v. Harris (Sup.) 174 S. W. 570, answer to certified questions conformed to (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 284.

That defendant verbally promised to pay the debt of another to plaintiff does not appear from the record; that being mere findings of testimony given, and a conclusion of law, declaring it immaterial whether he promised. Nalle & Co. v. Costley (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 625.

In an action for a broker's commission, findings held equivalent to a finding that the broker had procured a purchaser ready, willing and able to buy. Babcock v. Glover (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 710.

In an action for the purchase price of potatoes, a finding held to mean that the buyer believed in good faith that the potatoes belonged to the undisclosed agent. Hudgins Produce Co. v. J. R. Beggs & Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 359.

In a fee's condition of court held not to authorize the conclusion that plaintiff was estopped from claiming invalidity of deeds as against a bona fide purchaser from the grantee. King v. Diffey (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 262.

In action against railroa for carrying plaintiff past a station, held that finding that conductor told plaintiff she would have to change cars, as train did not stop at her destination, but that plaintiff did not so understand it, should be construed as a finding that conductor told plaintiff she would have to change cars for her destination. Texas & N. R. R. Co. v. Lerp (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1890.

Objections, exceptions and review.—Findings of fact and conclusions of law not filed within the time required by law cannot be considered on appeal. Standard Paint & Wall Paper Co. v. Rowan (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 251.

Where findings of fact were not filed within 10 days after the adjournment of the trial court, over objections by Rev. St. 1911, art. 2975, findings made thereafter are not a part of the appellate record. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Ragley-Mo-Williams Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1183.

On appeal from an order denying a motion for the appointment of a clerk pro tem., an allegation in the motion that the court was a party to the suit held insufficient to constitute a finding of that fact of record on appeal. Kruegel v. Williams (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1062.

Findings of fact and conclusions of law, filed by the trial court at the request of a party, are properly part of the record, and will not be stricken from the transcript. Gutheridge v. Gutheridge (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 452.

A stipulation between counsel as to certain evidence held not affected by the court's refusal to embody the facts admitted by the stipulation in the findings of fact but could be considered on appeal as an admitted fact. Hollingsworth v. Wm. Cameron & Co. (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 644.

When conclusions of fact are voluntarily filed by the trial court, neither party is required to the conclusions and no adverse issue of error are required of parties against whom such findings are made to entitle them to attack the judgment on the ground that it is unsupported by the evidence. Le Blanc v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 69.

Under this article, where facts found sustained judgment and there was no exception to any conclusion of fact or request for additional findings, and no finding was attacked for want of evidence, judgment will be affirmed. Landers v. McCutchan (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 969.

If appellant, after requesting written findings of fact, agreed that they need not be filed within the statutory period, he thereby waived his right to have such findings made a part of the record. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Ragley-Mo-Williams Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1183.

Where it is desired to present on appeal the refusal of the trial court to file conclusions of law and fact as requested, the matter must be presented by an appropriate bill of exceptions. Sewall v. Colby (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 694.

Though the record contains a written request to the court to file its written findings of fact and conclusions of law, the court's failure to comply cannot be taken advantage of on appeal without exceptions. Moore v. Moore (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 896.

In action for breach of contract for joint purchase of cattle, in which defendant filed a cross-action and plea in reconvention for damages, on state of record showing no approval of the bill of exceptions thereto, failure of court to make finding and conclusion of law in regard to plea in reconvention held not reversible error. Eubank v. Bostick (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 214.

Plaintiff, not availing himself of admissions in the answer, but resorting to proof of facts at variance therewith, could not complain of findings contrary to the admissions. Commercial Union Assur. Co. v. Gulf Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 874.

Under Rev. St. 1911, art. 1991, it is not a prerequisite to perfection an appeal that the appealing party shall move for a new trial, where the trial below is without a jury. Craver v. Greer (Sup.) 179 S. W. 882.

Under Rev. St. 1911, arts. 1612, 1899-1891, rules 24, 69, for Courts of Civil Appeals (142 S. W. xii, xxi), and rule 71a (145 S. W. viii), held that motion for new trial was prerequisite to the consideration of assignments of error other than those fundamental 572
In character. Craver v. Greer (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 689, certified questions answered (Sup.) 178 S. W. 582; answer to certified questions confirmed to (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 589.

Acts 33d Leg. c. 136, making the assignments of error in the motion for a new trial the assignment, does not change the rule that no motion for a new trial need be filed in cases tried to the court, in which findings of fact and conclusions of law are filed. Dees v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 56.

A motion for a new trial is not a prerequisite to an appeal, where the case was tried by the court and conclusions of fact and law were prepared and filed. Moore v. Rabb (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 85.

Where a cause was tried to the court, and separate findings of fact and conclusions of law were filed, a motion for new trial is unnecessary to entitle the defeated party to assign errors in the court's findings. Cooney v. Dandridge (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 178.

Where the judgment was proper and the conclusions of law were simply comments on the probative force of the facts found, the judgment will not be interfered with on account of errors in the conclusions. Shields v. Perrine (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 223.

All reasonable intentions will be indulged on appeal to support the findings. Bean v. Cook (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1166.

The court on appeal cannot say that the conclusion reached by the trial judge was erroneous upon a statement of facts.

A railroad having the right to fence its right of way is not bound by the finding of the trial judge that the fence was not necessary to the safe operation of its tracks and was an additional servitude on land taken by eminent domain, although it failed to except to the judgment. Coal v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 844.

A finding unexcepted to in the trial court and not challenged on appeal must be taken as conclusive for purposes of the appeal. Texas Co. v. Charles Clarke & Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 351.

Where appellant excepted and filed notice of appeal after the filing of findings of fact and conclusions of law, and after expiration of the term filed an objection to the same, but the matter was not brought to the attention of the trial court, appellant cannot complain of them on appeal. Broussard v. Le Blane (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 78.

Cross-assignments of error filed by appellees, attacking findings of the trial court to which they did not except in the trial court below, could not be considered. Bridgewater v. Hooks (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1004.

A finding of fact not excepted to is conclusive upon appeal. Bancroft v. Emerson-Brantingham Improvement Co. (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 991.

Presumptions in aid of judgment.—In suit against debtor's fraudulent grantee, finding against his claim of equitable ownership, based on his claim that he furnished the consideration for the debtor's purchase, held to be implied from the judgment against him. Landers v. McCutchan (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 969.

Where the trial court found that a life insurance company was ready to issue stock, forming a part of an increase of the capital stock of the company to a subscriber upon his paying the note given for the purchase price thereof, it must be presumed, in aid of the judgment against the subscriber, that the company had complied, or was ready to comply, with the statutory requirements for increasing its capital stock. Cope v. Pitzer (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 447.

In an action against a carrier for injuries to goods, that the court gave judgment for their value and awarded the goods in their injured condition to the carrier did not imply a finding that the injured goods were of any special value. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 386.

Where the court filed no findings of fact or conclusions of law, the court on appeal must indulge every reasonable presumption in support of the judgment. First State Bank of Amarillo v. Jones (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1067, judgment reversed (Sup.) 193 S. W. 874.

Where no findings of fact were filed in trial court, appellate court must assume that all issues of fact were resolved in favor of appellees. Corbin v. Booker (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 605.

Where there is no statement of facts in the record, the court on appeal will presume the facts necessary to the judgment and susceptible of proof on the pleadings to have been proved; but the rule does not apply where the record contains findings of fact and conclusions of law therefrom. Baldwin v. Drew (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 614.

To support a judgment for the insured, it will be presumed that the court found that the insurance company waived the requirement of proof of loss where there was evidence to support such finding. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Huff (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 765.

In a suit tried to the court, where there was competent evidence, it must be assumed that the court based its finding thereon, and not on incompetent evidence. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 892.

Where insufficiency of privilege erroneously found and where there was no presumption of fraud, the court erred in finding that plaintiff's belief held to not be presumed in absence of evidence. Holmes v. Coalson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 628.

Where the court was not bound to the court which did not file any conclusions of fact or law, but rendered general judgment, the appellate court will impute to the trial court findings in support of the judgment if there is any evidence to support them. Southern Wells Sales Co. v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 696.

Where the warrant of a finding of facts sufficient to support the judgment, but no findings of fact sufficient to support such finding, it will be presumed that such facts were found. National Live Stock Ins. Co. v. Warren ( Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 799.

Though, in an action tried to the court, incompetent evidence was received, it will be presumed that the trial court was not affected by such evidence. Broussard v. Le Blanc (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 78.

When the evidence is sufficient to warrant finding by the trial court of a fact justifying the judgment rendered, the Court of Civil Appeals will presume in support of the judgment below that the trial court so found. Wilson v. Avery Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 584.

Art. 1900. [1333] [1333] Court to render judgment on special verdict or conclusions, unless set aside, etc.

Judgment notwithstanding verdict.—See notes under art. 1994, note 89.

Rendering judgment or setting aside verdict.—In view of this article, the findings of the trial judge cannot be contradicted or affected by oral declarations of the judge, though such declarations are embodied in a bill of exceptions. Long v. Smith (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 25.

Under this article and arts. 1985, 1986, held that, on special verdict entitling one of parties to judgment, the trial court must either set aside verdict and grant new trial, or render judgment in conformity with verdict. Crawford v. Wellington Railroad Committee (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1004.

The court had no power to render judgment in disregard of the jury's findings; its power being limited to setting aside the verdict and granting new trial. Postal Telegraph Cable Co. of Texas v. De Kreekko (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 555.

It was error for the court on facts found by the jury to enter against the defendant to disregard the verdict. Hayes v. G. A. Stowers Furniture Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 149.

In an action for destruction of 141/2 acres of growing spinach, where the jury specially found that only 8 and a fraction acres had been destroyed, it is improper for the court to assess damages on the basis of the destruction of the entire crop. Houston & T. C. I. Co. v. Walsh (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 18.

The trial court cannot disregard the findings of the jury upon special issues involving material facts. Essex v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 399.

The court, in a divorce suit, may set aside the verdict of the jury before judgment. Grisham v. Grisham (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 859.

The court, trying a divorce suit, may grant new trial after judgment entered upon the jury's verdict. Id.

Under this article the court could not enter judgment for defendant, notwithstanding the jury's verdict for the plaintiff. Fireman's Ins. Co. v. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 891.

Where jury found that proposed will has been revoked court could not admit will to probate. Palmer v. Logan (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 761.

Where verdict on special issues is unambiguous, judgment must be entered thereon or new trial granted. First Texas State Ins. Co. v. Burwick (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 165.

Under the statute the court must enter judgment in accordance with the jury's findings, whether or not they be correct. Ketchum v. Doggs (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 261.

Review.—Under this article, where facts found sustained judgment and there was no exception to any finding or request for additional findings, and no finding was attacked as wanting is want of evidence, judgment will be affirmed. Landers v. McCutchan (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 960.

Under this article, where facts found by the court sustained judgment, and there was no exception to any finding or request for additional finding, the judgment will not be disturbed for insufficiency of evidence to support findings. Seedig v. First Nat. Bank of Clifton (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 445.

Under this article and art. 1986, party cannot complain of a judgment conforming to a special verdict as unsupported by evidence, where he did not assign error to refusal to set aside verdict. Blackwell v. Vaughn (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 912.

Under Rev. St. 1911, arts. 1612, 1989-1991, rules 24, 69, for Courts of Civil Appeals (142 S. W. xii, xxii), and rule 71a (146 S. W. vii), held that motion for new trial was a prerequisite to the consideration of assignments of error other than those fundamental in character. Craver v. Greer (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 699, certified questions answered (Sup.) 179 S. W. 862, answer to certified questions conform to (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 368.

Notwithstanding this article and art. 1991, requiring judgment to be rendered on separate conclusions of fact by the judge, where there is no statement of facts and there are findings of such findings will support the judgment, although not stating affirmatively every fact necessary to support. Producers' Oil Co. v. Snyder (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 514.

Under this article and art. 1991, authorizing appeals without a statement of facts upon the exceptions on the record in the judgment entry, and Supreme the Court rule 71a (145 S. W. vii), requiring motions for new trial except where not required by statute, a motion for new trial is unnecessary on appeal from judgment entered on a special jury verdict. Varley v. Nichols-Shepard Sales Co. (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 611.

Notwithstanding this article and art. 1991, as to the conclusiveness of special verdict on parties and court, such special findings may, in view of articles 1612, 2023, Court of Civil Appeals rule 24 (142 S. W. xii), and rule 71a for district and county courts (146 S. W. vii), be attack on motion for new trial, and its refusal reviewed on appeal. Hale County v. Lubbock County (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 678.

 Sufficiency of evidence to support findings.—See notes under art. 1985.

Art. 1991. [1333] [1333] Exceptions to conclusions or judgment; appeal, etc.; transcript.

Exceptions and motions for new trial.—Under this article the party excepting to a judgment held entitled to appeal on a statement of facts without having conclusions of fact and law filed and to attack the sufficiency of the evidence as matter of law to support the judgment. Cornellus v. Harris (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 346.

Where appellant, in action to court, has failed to move for new trial, only fundamental errors will be considered, unless he has excepted to the judgment and caused the filing of findings and conclusions or brought up a statement of facts. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Cator (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1074.

An appellant may complain of a judgment because contrary to the findings of fact without excepting to the findings. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Texas Miller & White (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 830.

Under this article it is not a prerequisite to perfecting an appeal that the appealing party shall move for new trial, where the trial below is without a jury. Craver v. Greer (Sup.) 179 S. W. 862, answering certified questions (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 636, and answer conformed to (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 363.

Under Rev. St. 1911, arts. 1612, 1959-1991, rules 24, 69, for Courts of Civil Appeals (142 S. W. xii, xxii), and rule 71a (146 S. W. vii), held that motion for new trial was a prerequisite to the consideration of assignments of error other than those fundamental in character. Craver v. Greer (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 699, certificated questions answered (Sup.) 179 S. W. 862, answer to certified questions conforming to (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 363.

Notwithstanding this article and art. 1990, requiring judgment to be rendered on separate conclusions of fact by the judge, where there is no statement of facts and there are findings of fact, such findings will support the judgment, although not stating affirmatively every fact necessary to support. Producers' Oil Co. v. Snyder (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 614.

Where appellees did not complain of judgment for him on account of its failure to dispose of damages presented by the pleadings, either in lower court or in Court of Civil Appeals, he acquiesced therein. Pitt v. Gilbert (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1157.

Under this article and art. 1990, providing for entry of judgment on special verdicts, and Supreme Court rule 71a (145 S. W. vii), requiring motions for new trial except where not required by statute, a motion for new trial is unnecessary on appeal from judgment entered on a special jury verdict. Varley v. Nichols-Shepard Sales Co. (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 611.

Under this article and art. 1612, and district court rule 71a (145 S. W. vii), motion for new trial held unnecessary in case tried without a jury, where conclusions of fact and law are filed and exception taken. Wilkerson v. Stasney & Holub (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 669.

Under this article a party appealing from the judgment, rendered by the court without a jury, need not file a motion for new trial. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Cator (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1074.

Under this article and art. 1990, the right of appeal attaches in a case tried without a jury, where the trial court files separate findings of fact and conclusions of law, and a motion for new trial is not required. Cooney v. Dandridge (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 177. A cross-assignment of error assigning insufficiency of judgment will not be considered, where record does not show that appellee excepted to judgment and had such exception noted as required by this article. Levy v. Engie Bros. Co. (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 548.

Where record contains statement of facts, court's findings may be attacked under exception to judgment. De Bruin v. Santo Domingo Land & Irrigation Co. (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 654.

An exception to the judgment is sufficient to authorize a challenge of the trial court's findings of fact. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Faline (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1033.

Under this article an exception to the judgment authorizes a review of findings of fact and conclusions of law. Arlington Heights Realty Co. v. Citizens' Ry. & Light Co. (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1109.

An exception to a judgment authorizes the excepting party to assail the finding on which the judgment is based, if not supported by the statement of facts in the record, without an exception to any specific finding. Edwards v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 588; see, also, notes under arts. 1612, 2019, 2068.

Art. 1992. [1333] [1333] No submission of special issues unless requested.

See art. 1984a and notes.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN JUDGMENTS

1. Entry of judgment.—A mere notation by the trial judge on his docket is not a part of the judgment and cannot be relied on as a judgment under the doctrine of res judicata. Cow Bayou Canal Co. v. Orange County (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 173.

Where the record did not show that appellants objected to rendition of judgment on the last day of the term, the objection cannot be urged on appeal. Knight v. England (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 480.

The "rendition" of a court is what the court pronounces; its "rendition" is the judicial act by which the court settles and declares the decision of the law upon the matters at issue; and its "entry" is the ministerial act by which the induring evidence of the judicial act is afforded. Moore v. Toyah Valley Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 550.

4. Sufficiency and certainty of determination in general.—A judgment for the "sum of $—— being the amount or" a replevy bond, was not void for uncertainty, if the bond was in the record and the amount thereof was fixed, under the rule that a judgment is certain which can be made certain. Lester v. Gatewood (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 399.

A decree awarding to individuals the control and possession of property of an irrigation company and restraining the holders of the majority of the stock from voting it held indefinite and uncertain and incapable of performance. Arno Co-operative Irr. Co. v. Pugh (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 991.

That judgment setting apart land describes it as having been rendered in one county, when it was rendered in another, does not prevent the title being a good marketable one. Nelson v. Butler (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 811.

5. In trespass to try title.—In trespass to try title to land which was inclosed by plaintiffs, a verdict for them, which did not accurately describe the land in controversy will sustain a judgment for plaintiffs for the land inclosed, where the verdict could be construed as a finding in plaintiff's favor either on a question of boundary or adverse possession. Schubert v. Voges (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 402.

That the description in a judgment for plaintiff in trespass to try title did not conform to its pleadings held not to require a reversal, where defendants filed a cross-action putting in controversy the title to additional land, and the court decreed that they take nothing in their cross-action. Bundick v. Moore-Cortes Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 1399.

13. Conditions.—On setting aside an exchange of land for fraud, after plaintiff had transferred to a bona fide purchaser notes executed by defendant for the difference in the agreed values, the judgment should provide that execution in favor of defendant should not be a judgment in his favor for the value of the notes transferred until he paid a part thereof. Maddox v. Clark (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 399.

In proceedings against nonresident defendant wherein writ of garnishment is sued out, it is proper to follow general judgment establishing debt against defendant by restriction limiting its execution to property in custody of court. Studebaker Harness Co. v. Gerlach Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 545.

14. Validity and partial invalidity.—In an action against a bank as guarantor of a note, the judgment recited that the bank had made default, although duly cited, though in fact the bank had an answer on file. Held, that as the answer merely pleaded ultra-vires, and as the judgment recited that evidence was introduced to prove the cause of action, the judgment was not invalid on account of such false recital. First Nat.
Bank v. Thurmond (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 164.

A judgment against an insane person is voidable only, not void. Pyle v. Pyle (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 458.

Where infants sued as adults were duly served with process and the proceedings of the trial did not disclose that they were infants, a judgment against them was void-

Judgment against vendor and vendees on notes given the vendor and indorsed over by him was not void because based in part on notes not due. Ochoa v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 102.

In suit against nonresident debtor wherein writ of garnishment was sued out, failure of court to limit execution of judgment in main suit to property reached by garnishment proceedings will not render entire judgment void. Studebaker Harness Co. v. Gerlach Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 646.

In a suit by private citizen under authority of Rev. St. 1911, art. 4674, to enjoin an incorporated club from maintaining a liquor nuisance, where petition does not allege that club permitted playing of cards or games to be played with cards upon its premises, and proof does not show such acts, that part of decree enjoining club from permitting such games on its premises was error. Rowan v. Stowe (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 434.
Where judgment and sheriff's return on citation in a divorce action were sufficient to enable service on defendant therein, it was not void, but merely voidable upon showing by evidence admissible record that it was invalid. Swearingen v. Swearingen (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 442.

15. Construction and operation.—A judgment construed in connection with the court's rulings holds a defendant's denial of personal jurisdiction in cases where the court was misled by the defendant's own statement or representation, and the matter was therefore final. Bowles v. Belt (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 865.

A judgment which recited the appearance, etc., of the parties and that "the court, having heard the pleadings, the evidence, and the argument of counsel, and fully understanding that the law is with the opinion that the matter is with the opinion that the opinion that the opinion of the majority of the court held to have passed upon the defenses raised by defendants. Thomas Goggan & Bros. v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 119.

A judgment in favor of plaintiff on one only of his claims held an implied finding against another of plaintiff's claims. Garrett v. A. G. McDade Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 320.

One against whom a judgment operates cannot, as a rule, be denied the advantage of its operation. In his favor. Masterson v. Harris (Sup.) 174 S. W. 970, answer to certified exceptions conformed to (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 284.

A judgment that plaintiff was not entitled to attached property because the debtor became a bankrupt within four months after attachment is not an adjudication that other creditors were entitled to the property. Dyke v. Farmersville Mill & Light Co. (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 478.

A judgment held not to show on its face that a defendant did not appear at the trial as the record showed he did. Baugh v. Baugh (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 725.

A judgment that both defendants should be jointly liable for costs held not nullified by subsequent provision that in case of deficiency the balance should be collected from one of the defendants. Jones v. Gough (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1197. The defendant, as manager of a theater and agent of another, rendered on petition referring to defendant in the same way, is a personal judgment. Weis v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 34.

In action by irrigation company and its lienor to set aside a judicial sale of the company's property purchaser's assignee against lienor, judgment for assignee against lienor held contradictory and erroneous. Trans-Pecos Land & Irrigation Co. v. Arno Co-operative Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 328.

A judgment based on findings duly made cannot be said to deprive of property without compensation. Christensen v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 161.

Record showing that court "is of the opinion that said plea (in abatement) is not well taken * * * and is overruled" held to show an overruling of plea on its merits and not by virtue of a motion. Schaefer v. Nash (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 469.

18. Service of process.—Process and returns, see arts. 1850-1885, and notes.

Where the judgment recited due service on the principal defendant, plaintiff cannot complain on appeal that such defendant was not cited by the intervenor who sought to foreclose lien superior to that of plaintiff. Neblett v. Barron (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1167. Judgment against nonresident debtor, cited only by publication, would have been void without garnishment proceedings against purchaser of debtor's stock of goods in bulk, because court would have had no jurisdiction either of defendant's person or of any property. Studebaker Harness Co. v. Gerlach Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 456.

20. Collateral attack in general.—In a collateral attack on a judgment for the amount of a rapley bond, the question whether the judgment should have been for the amount of the bond or for the value of the property reapplied cannot be considered. Lander v. Gore (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 352.

A judgment on a determination of a domestic court it will, where the action was within the court's general jurisdiction, be presumed that the necessary jurisdictional facts existed, though they do not appear of record. Ferrell-Michael Abstract & Title Co. v. McCormac (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1081.

21. — Invalidity in general.—A judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction, if it be void, may be collaterally attacked at any time and in any proceeding where it is urged in support of any right. Hill & Jahns v. Lofton (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 67.

A void judgment may be attacked in any proceeding by any one. Bonough v. Brown (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 47.

A judgment, the invalidity of which is apparent upon the record, may be successfully attacked at any time and under any circumstances. McCormant v. McCormant (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1096.

When final judgment in partition shows that commissioners departed from the first judgment and their instructions and substituted other lands for those directed to be partitioned, the judgment is void, and subject to collateral attack. Adkins v. Gillespie (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 275.

3. — Want of jurisdiction.—A judgment rendered at a time when the court had no jurisdiction over the subject-matter is void and open to collateral attack. Waterman Lumber & Supply Co. v. Robins (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 360.

The want of jurisdiction must be ascertained from the record alone. Id.

A presumption in favor of a court of general jurisdiction arising within the ordinary scope of its powers and upon a subject-matter within its jurisdiction arises only as to jurisdictional facts on which the record is silent, but the regularity of a judgment will not be presumed against a record disclosure that the court exceeded its jurisdiction. Hill & Jahns v. Lofton (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 67.

A judgment rendered by a court without legal organization or without jurisdiction of the subject-matter or jurisdiction of the person, or which has lost such jurisdiction, is absolutely void. Id.

The judgment and all other proceedings of a court inherently without power to hear and determine the suit are mere nullities. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Rayzor, 172 S.
A judgment is not void, as to be subject to collateral attack, because rendered without bringing defendant into court, unless the want of authority over him appears in the record. Gallagher v. Teuscher & Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 409.

A judgment obtained in suit by publication has right to show by record, either in direct or collateral proceeding, that there was no service, or such facts as show court did not have jurisdiction, or render the judgment void. Gerlach Mercantile Co. v. Hughes-Bozarth-Anderson Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 784.

A judgment of a domestic court of general jurisdiction, void upon its face for lack of jurisdiction, may be collaterally attacked. Harris v. Wise (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 888.

Where a judgment is silent regarding the method of service, the record on collateral attack may be examined to determine its validity. Stockyards Nat. Bank v. Freemall (Sup.) 194 S. W. 384.

A judgment, upon collateral attack, be held void because defendant was a nonresident, where the record fails to establish such fact. Id.

In a collateral attack upon a judgment, the method of service can be determined only by the record. Id.

23. Rights of parties or third persons to impeach judgment.—Chattel mortgagee held neither party nor privy to action to enforce lien on property of mortgagee; hence he may collaterally attack the judgment by evidence dehors the record. Ferrell-Michael Abstract & Title Co. v. McCormac (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1081.

24. Effect of recitals in record or judgment.—Where a judgment foreclosing a tax lien recited proper process and service, such recital imported absolute verity on collateral attack, and plaintiff in trespass to try title could not show that the recital was erroneous. Hollingsworth v. Wm. Cameron & Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 644.

Where it was alleged that a certain judgment, execution upon which was sought to be restrained, was upon a reprieve bond, and that it stated it was for the amount of the bond, it will be conclusively presumed that the cause in which the judgment was rendered. Lester v. Gatewood (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 389.

In proceeding collateral to judgment, such as a garnishment proceeding, if judgment is void, or jurisdiction, party claiming under or by way of assignee is not required to go further. Gerlach Mercantile Co. v. Hughes-Bozarth-Anderson Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 784.

25. Errors and irregularities.—A judgment, though erroneous for taxing as costs against successful infant defendants the compensation allowed their guardian ad litem, is not subject to collateral attack. Simmons v. Arrim (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 184.

26. Fraud or perjury.—As between parties, and privies, a judgment obtained by fraud is not absolutely void, but voidable. Young v. Bank of Miami (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1102.

In a suit to recover homestead property, if there was an agreement by the husband in the husband's right of the wife, or misstatement of facts by the judgment was not entered in accordance with the true agreement, the judgment could only be set aside in a direct proceeding. Brown v. Foster Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 787.

27. Foreign judgment.—Judgment of a court of foreign jurisdiction can be collaterally attacked for want of jurisdiction by parties or privies, even by evidence dehors the record. Ferrell-Michael Abstract & Title Co. v. McCormac (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1081.

28. What is collateral attack.—Claim that an order appointing an administrator de bonis non, and authorizing the sale of an unlocated balance of a headright certificate was without jurisdiction of the probate court because the estate had been finally closed was a collateral attack on the order. Waterman Lumber & Supply Co. v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 569.

An objection to a copy of an order, authorizing the sale of the assets of a national bank, authenticated by the Comptroller of the Currency, but which does not show that it was ever entered in a court of record, is not a collateral attack upon an order of court. Teuscher v. Booker (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 295.

An attack on a judgment is not necessarily collateral because made by a cross-bill, the parties, court, and subject-matter being the same as in the original suit. Patrucco v. Selkirk (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 625.

Attack by garnishee on original judgment against defendant, amended after term to correct mistake in entry, is a collateral attack. Gerlach Mercantile Co. v. Hughes-Bozarth-Anderson Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 784.

Suit to enjoin execution upon judgment on ground that judgment was absolutely void, which did not pray to vacate judgment, is collateral and not direct attack. Texas Cent. R.R. Co. v. Bowers (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1146.

29. Conclusiveness of judgment in general.—A decision of the court on appeal affirming a judgment for plaintiff suing a city on warrants for current expenses of a fiscal year, that the judgment bears interest, though the city charter provided that warrants should bear interest, is conclusive on the parties in a subsequent action by plaintiff for mandamus to compel the city to pay the judgment and to levy a tax therefor. City of San Antonio v. Alamo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 620.

On application for a receiver of traction company and to require him to carry out a contract, a judgment foreclosing an intervening's lien held not to conclude the question of priority between intervenor's and plaintiff's liens. Arlington Heights Realty Co. v. Citizens' Ry. & Light Co. (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1166.

A former judgment would bar a subsequent action only as to material questions which were the scope of the prior action. Id.

Judgment against plaintiff on his note to the amount of $76 held conclusive against his right to recover for damages to that extent on the ground of fraud in obtaining the note, as such claim could have been interposed. Edwards v. Dennington (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 929.
A judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction, though erroneous, must be given full effect until reversed, set aside, or otherwise annulled. Hill & Jahns v. Lofton (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 67.

A judgment is only conclusive on the issues tendered by the complaint, and does not conclude collateral issues or matters of inference arising in the course of the proceeding. Rice v. Ellington (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 970.

A decree foreclosing mortgage on land to which plaintiffs were not parties held not res judicata of their claim to one-half of the land, which claim was not in issue therein. Id.

A judgment in a prior suit for breach of a contract construing and applying the contract, while not res judicata in a subsequent suit for a further breach, was operative as an estoppel precluding the litigation of any matter or issue determined in the original suit sought to be raised in the subsequent one. Old River Rice Irr. Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 25.

An adverse judgment in a proceeding to enjoin execution against plaintiff and another judgment debtor on the ground that the other judgment debtor had paid the judgment or that it had been satisfied by the application of his deposit in the judgment creditor's bank held conclusive as plaintiff in a subsequent proceeding to enjoin execution on the same ground. Kell Milling Co. v. Bank of Miami (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 46.

A judgment, rendered in a case in which each party should deposit $50 to secure performance, to be forfeited as liquidated damages on default, and on the vendee's refusal of the title to the land sold he assigned his claim to C., who recovered judgment for the deposit, such judgment was res judicata of the vendor's right to damages for the vendee's alleged breach. Goshorn v. Daniel (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1711.

A judgment on the merits is conclusive between the parties and those in privity with them, as to every matter litigated and any matter which might have been litigated. Zimmer v. First Nat. Bank of Pecos (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1016.

A judgment in a suit for breach of a contract operates as a bar to a second suit only when the point in controversy is the same in both suits. Id.

A judgment that funds in possession of a garnishee are exempt, because the proceeds of such funds as less than six months before the service of the writ, bars a subsequent garnishment by the same creditor for the same funds. Id.

It is not always necessary that parties to two suits should be nominally the same in order that one may bar another, but it is generally sufficient if they are substantially the same in interest. Young v. Bank of Miami (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1103.

A judgment or decree of a court having jurisdiction over the parties and the subject-matter of the litigation is final between the parties to the suit covering the cause of action alleged. Beaumont Irrigating Co. v. Delorme (Sup.) 180 S. W. 58.

Even if judgment of a court having jurisdiction over the parties and the subject matter is final as to all questions involving the same cause of action and the defenses thereto which the parties to the suit might have adjudicated therein. Id.

A judgment in favor of garnishees in an action by a railroad company on a guaranty of a bond for construction of the road held not a conclusive adjudication against defendant's liability on a note given to secure construction of the road which was duly transferred to plaintiff's assignor, who had contracted to and did procure construction of the road. Bordenheim v. Cronington (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 540.

In suit against warrantor on his covenant, record of suit between his vendee and third party involving title conveyed, to which warrantor was not a party, held not admissible to show recovery under a paramount title. Miles v. Bodenheim (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 634.

Identity of parties and of causes of action are essentials to create res judicata. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. v. Rice (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1407.

Where, in a suit to procure judgment as a party or privy, he would have been prejudiced had the decision been against him. Village Mills Co. v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 785.

Where vendors by executory contract sued their buyer and his successor upon default to enjoin the buyer and his successor from proceeding to foreclose the buyer's interest. In suit to enjoin execution on judgment held that as record did not show that plaintiff filed original petition and that defendant did not enter appearance, evidence that one on whom citation was served was not agent of defendant was properly excluded. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hoffman (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1140.

31. Jurisdiction.—No judgment of a court is due process of law if rendered without jurisdiction in the court, or without notice to the party. El Paso & S. W. Co. v. Chisholm (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 156.

Where judgment for defendant was not set aside during the term, but the district court, at a subsequent term, rendered a judgment nunc pro tunc and granted a motion to set aside the judgment in said and proceeded with a retrial without objection, held, that the court had jurisdiction to retry the case. Etna Ins. Co. v. Dancer (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 771.

In suit to enjoin execution on judgment held that as record did not show that plaintiff filed original petition and that defendant did not enter appearance, evidence that one on whom citation was served was not agent of defendant was properly excluded. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hoffman (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1140.

32. Dismissal or nonuit.—A judgment sustaining a plea in abatement and dismissing the suit without prejudice to plaintiff's right to file a new suit did not bar a new suit by plaintiff on the same cause of action. Freidenbloom v. McAfee (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 28.

A judgment of dismissal, not on the merits, does not bar a later suit on the same cause of action. Quinlan v. Powers (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 536.

33. Judgment by default.—Judgment by default for the payee in an action on a note is not a bar to a suit by the maker to avoid another note on the ground of fraud in the contract under which both notes were given. Cattlemen's Trust Co. v. Blaisdell (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 574.

Judgment by default for the payee suing on a note, when made final, is a bar to suit by the maker to cancel the note for fraud. Id.
Default judgment against married woman is not open to collateral attack except as to some irregularity defect disclosed on face, and is voidable, even in direct action to set it aside. Akin v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 610.

34. — Finality of judgment.—See notes under arts. 1997, 2078.

In interlocutory order sustaining exceptions to the petition not being conclusive as a judgment with the amended petition satisfied with it, it is not a plea of res judicata, but must urge such exceptions as they deem necessary, and assign error in the action of the court in overruling them. Darby v. White (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 481.

No action can be brought to enforce a judgment which is not final. Willis v. Keator (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 556.

39. — Foreign judgments.—Where a judgment is recovered in one state, if proof is made that it is rendered by a court having jurisdiction of the cause and of the parties, it is not re-examinable upon the merits. Wallace v. Schneider (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 333.

In seeking recovery on judgment of court of limited jurisdiction in another state, it is necessary only to show that the court had jurisdiction of the parties and subject-matter, and that a judgment was rendered, and it is not necessary to prove that the judgment is still in force. Id.

In seeking recovery on the judgment of a court of limited jurisdiction of another state, where the creation of the court, and the fact that it rendered the judgment with jurisdiction of the person is proved, it is on the same plane as if rendered by a court of general jurisdiction. Id.

In spite of Const. U. S. art. 4, § 1, as to full faith and credit, a decree of divorce in a state may be attacked in the courts of another state if plaintiff presented therein, by a showing that the court which rendered it had no jurisdiction. Jones v. Bartlett (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1107.

Where a wife in Texas signed notes as surety, and mortgaged her separate property to secure payment, and the payee sued in Oklahoma, and the wife, by authority of her husband, filed an answer setting up invalidity as a defense, judgment for payee was entitled to full faith and credit. Bray v. Union Nat. Bank of Dallas (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1106.

40. Persons concluded.—The holder of a deed of trust subsequent to a vendor's lien who purchased the land on foreclosure of his deed of trust was not concluded by the judgment in a suit to foreclose the lien to which he was not a party. Standard Paint & Wall Paper Co. v. Rowan (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 251.

Where an attorney, who had acquired an interest in land under a contract for a contingent fee, conveyed such interest to a company holding the legal title for his clients in aid of their defense to a suit, his subsequent participation in the defense of the suit did not estop him from asserting his interest in the land after judgment for the company. Phenix Land Co. v. Escal (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 474.

A judgment is not binding upon one who was not a party to the proceedings, so as to have an opportunity to defend. Johnson v. Hall (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 329.

Where heirs of deceased defendant agreed upon settlement of controversies, and the administrator merely formally agreed to the judgment, heirs held bound by the judgment, whether or not the administrator had power to enter an agreed judgment. Castleberry v. Bussey (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 14.

Where an owner of land agreed on conditions to convey a part to L, judgment in action to recover the land against the owner and L held not conclusive against a grantee of L, which grantee was not a party to the action. Wilson v. Clemmons (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 856.

Guarantors of note reserving right to select their attorney to prosecute it to judgment, and suing thereon, held privies or parties to the judgment so as to be concluded thereby. Young v. Bank of Miami (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1102.

Guarantors of note, who had interest in suit against principal and opportunity to protect their rights, held not entitled to attack judgment collaterally when sued thereon. Id.

Guarantors of note, with direction of suit to reduce to it judgment, after entry of judgment, held concluded thereby and not entitled to set up prior postponement of collection of claim or misrepresentations as to maker's financial standing. Id.

The judgment rendered against a corporation held admissible in an action against the directors to hold them personally liable on the same matter. McCollom v. Dollar (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 876.

The findings, in an action against a corporation in which judgment was rendered against it, are admissible, against its directors, in an action to hold them personally liable on the same matter. Id.

A judgment, conclusively establishing certain land as public property, held not admissible in an action to try title as against a railway taking over the company against which the judgment was rendered, but not purchasing the land in suit from it. Buchanan v. Hwy. & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 625.

Finding that a steamship company was not liable for damages to shipment due to hurricane, under Act Cong. Feb. 13, 1893, § 3, held to prevent a recovery against a connecting railroad carrier. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Erambert (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 274.

Bank, which was delivered as collateral security, which returned it to the pledgor that suit might be brought, one of the bank's attorneys prosecuting the suit to judgment, held bound by the judgment rendered. Finley v. Wakefield (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 755.

Where judgment was obtained by the remote assignee of a claim against the debtor and the immediate assignee, the principle of res judicata does not apply in an action by one of the original assignors against such remote assignee for misappropriating the proceeds of the claim. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. v. Rice (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 194.

A subsequent judgment of this sort of joint stock association giving trustees power to sue and defend suits without joining stockholders, judgment in an action in which the trustees were parties is binding on the stockholders. Village Mills Co. v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas ( Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 785.

"Privies." in sense that they are bound by judgment, are those who acquired interest in subject-matter after rendition of judgment. 1d.

In application of rule of res judicata, it is essential that operation of judgment be mutual. 1d.

A suit prosecuted or defended in good faith by a trustee for beneficiaries with their knowledge and consent, particularly if at their request, will be conclusive on them in its results. 1d.

A judgment is not binding upon persons not parties nor privies thereto. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Stepney ( Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1978.

Subsequent vendee or lienholder is not estopped or bound by a foreclosure decree to which he was not a party, and such decree does not estop or conclude the vendor or superior lienholder as to the sublienholder not a party when the contract of sale foreclosed was executory. Reyes v. Kingman Texas Implement Co. ( Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 450.

A subsequent vendee or lienholder is not estopped or bound by a foreclosure decree to which he was not a party. 1d.

A junior incumbrancer or lienholder, of whose rights the senior lienholder had notice when he sued to foreclose, and who was not joined as a party, is not bound by the judgment. Frazier v. Wagley ( Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 629.

Action by payee of note against makers and judgment rendered therein constitute no bar to an action by defendants against a third person primarily liable for amount of note. Randel v. Webb, Village State Bank ( Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 797.

42. -- Matters concluded in general. A judgment concluded, and held, that there had been prima facie an adjudication that plaintiff was not entitled to recover on one cause of action relied on. Randel v. Barden ( Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1065.

A judgment in favor of estate of a decedent, in suit by a creditor to establish his claim, is binding action by creditor against a purchaser of decedent to set aside a sale of personality as in fraud of creditors. Powell v. Stephenson ( Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 570.

43. -- Matters in issue and essentials of adjudication. A party in whose favor a judgment is rendered is not estopped, in a subsequent suit, from denying findings not essential or material to the judgment. Wod v. Colley ( Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 629.

In an action to recover back a horse or its value, on rescission of a horse trade, a verdict for plaintiff settled the issues, but judgment should direct a return by plaintiff of horse received from defendant. Bobo v. Wright ( Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 929.

Judgment in action on note by assignee against the maker, who gave it for an insurance premium, to which purpose it was never applied, having been converted by the insurance agent, held not a bar to an action by the maker's assignee against the insurer to recover the amount of such note: the causes not being identical. Adams v. San Antonio Life Ins. Co. ( Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 610.

A judgment is not technically conclusive of any matter, if the matter is not such that it had of necessity to be determined before judgment could be given. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. v. Rice ( Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1047.

Where an injunction has been dissolved, complainant by amendment or by supplemental bill may procure a second injunction, but not upon grounds set up in the first bill or which should have been set up therein. Birchfield v. Bourland ( Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 422.

Where a set-off is pleaded by defendant and attempted to be supported by evidence, it will, if neither allowed or disallowed, become res judicata. Trinity County Lumber Co. v. Conner ( Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1692.

45. -- Title or claim to property. A judgment foreclosing vendor's lien notes held a conclusive adjudication against plaintiffs' subsequent claim that they were mortgagees of the land and that their conveyance to the maker of the notes was merely to secure a loan. Sells v. White ( Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 1079.

A judgment for an assignee suing an assignor and the debtor on the account assigned is conclusive as to the ownership of the claim and is binding on the assignor. Day v. Van Horn Trading Co. ( Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 85.

Where plaintiff sought to recover on note as payee and alleged and proved that apparent payee was his agent and named as such by mistake, contention that judgment was erroneous for failure to prove transfer for value held untenable. Ford v. Johnston ( Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 905.

A judgment establishing title of grantor as against a third party does not inure to benefit of grantee in deed under general warranty made and delivered prior to suit in which judgment was rendered, nor does it inure to such grantee's benefit where another deed of same property is made to him by grantor after suit. Village Mills Co. v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas ( Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 785.

A decree in a suit to recover title to land was an adjudication of the rights of all parties in a bar to a subsequent suit to any equitable interests in growing crops on land adjudicated to plaintiff, not set up in the prior suit. Schafer v. First Nat. Bank, Bay City ( Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 555.

In trespass to try title in which the issue was as to a boundary, it was error to allow a witness to testify to location of boundary as shown on a map before jury as established by decision of Supreme Court in another case. Dunn v. Land ( Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 698.

46. -- Rights and liabilities under contracts. --Where the court ruled that the plaintiff could not recover for delay resulting from the negligence of connecting car-rivers, it was not error to exclude evidence of the judgment rendered as to those parties at a previous trial of the same case. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. True Bros. (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 151.

In an action for the value of a vendor's lien note, where the plaintiff alleged in the alternative that the defendant had bought the note but had not paid for it, and that he had signed the note to his own use, to the end of obtaining the note to which both plaintiff and defendant were parties, that the defendant was the owner of the note, was not a bar to the plaintiff's recovery. Cage v. King (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 174.

Where the right to a recovery of money paid as a consideration for a void deed is not adjudicated in an action of trespass to try title, the party entitled to such return may maintain a subsequent action therefor. Lafferty v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 379.

Where a purchaser of real estate secured a quitclaim deed from third persons, then brought trespass to try title against the vendor, who obtained judgment, the judgment was not res judicata in a suit by the purchaser for the specific performance of the contract. Groves v. Whittenberg (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 888.

In suits by creditors to avoid gift by insolvent, creditor's judgment, rendered subsequent to conveyance, creditor's suit, to which grantee was not a party, is admissible to establish indebtedness, being conclusive as to grantor, but merely prima facie evidence as against grantee. Stolte v. Karren (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 606.

In wife's suit against husband's creditor to enjoin sale under execution of land conveyed by her husband, husband can testify to truth relative to indebtedness to creditor, though he is bound by creditor's judgment against him. Id.

Where plaintiff in trespass to try title specially averred that he claimed under the heirs of C., who died leaving a widow entitled to one-half of the community property, he was bound only to recover a half interest of the title to the premises, with exclusive possession of the whole. Chambers v. Rawls (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 268.

In an action to recover for professional services rendered by an attorney for a drainage district, the claim for such services, for which judgment erroneously stricken by the court from the complaint, does not conform to the pleadings. Hidalgo County Drainage Dist. No. 1 v. Swearingen (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 211.

In an action on notes, where there was no plea of fraud or misrepresentation, evidence thereof erroneously admitted could not form the basis for a judgment. Newman v. Buffalo Pitts Co. (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 637.

In an action to foreclose vendor's lien notes, where the plea of intervention filed by the purchaser of the maker's interest was stricken, the court could not in its judgment determine the rights of the intervenor to the surplus, if any, after foreclosure; such determination having no support in the pleadings. Brown v. Bay City Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 23.

Defendant in trespass to try title, who did not urge his claim to a return of money paid for a void sheriff's deed through which he claimed, during the trial thereby waived his right to recover in such action. Lafferty v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 379.

In action against president and vice president of corporation on note for money borrowed by their firm, judgment rendered in their favor against corporation and evidence will not be denied on the ground that its liability was on an implied obligation, the plea not founding their right, as claimed, on the note. Georgetown Mercantile Co. v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 78.

In an action against a railroad company for damages from the construction of its line, damages for trespasses outside of the land contracted for as a right of way cannot be recovered, where plaintiff was not the owner at the time of the trespass, and his petition did not allege any assignment of the right of action. Timpson & H. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 86.

A party, against whom a defendant by a cross-action sought to recover judgment, who did not enter an appearance, was not entitled to a judgment in his favor, if the cause of action alleged against him was not subject to general demurrer. Reserve Loan Life Ins. Co. v. Benson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 266.

Where the petition complains of a defendant in his individual capacity only, a judgment against him can only bind him in that capacity. Pryor v. Krause (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 495.

The court in determining the kind of judgment the pleadings will support may consider the averments of both parties. Law Reporting Co. v. Texas Grain & Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 1901.

In an action to foreclose a lien, defendant's failure to deny specifically under oath facts pleaded in support of the lien does not authorize judgment of foreclosure, if pleading does not sustain the lien. Good v. Smith (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 257.

A money judgment for deficiency in purchase price in favor of purchaser suing to set aside an alleged unauthorized conveyance of land by its officers held without support in the pleadings or evidence. Patterson v. Sylvan Beach Co. (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 515.

In an action to enjoin a city from claiming land for a public street, where the jury found that plaintiff's ancestor intended to dedicate, held that the court, if of opinion that the evidence did not show such intention, could not give judgment for plaintiff, but should have granted a new trial. City of Kaufman v. French (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 851.
In action against a partner, named in the petition as “C. B. B,” served as “C. V. B.” (that is, per local custom, there was no error in disregarding judgment against C. V. B. Browne Grain Co. v. Farmers & Merchants’ Nat. Bank of Abilene (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 942. Where jurisdiction of a suit to cancel vendors’ lien notes is acquired, the court has jurisdiction to act on the plaintiff entitled to cancellation by reason of transfer of the notes to an innocent holder. Wright v. Chandler (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1173.

Pleadings in injunction against an irrigation company held not to sustain a mandatory injunction requiring company to furnish water at given price for 59 years. Toyah Valley Irr. Co. v. Winston (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 677.

Though the amount stated in the ad damnum clause is less, judgment may be rendered according to the testimony calculated to destroy the judgment, as fully described in the petition. McCaulley v. Farmers’ & Merchants’ State Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 728.

Where a shipper testifies without objection to the value of property claimed to have been destroyed, held, that the negligence exists as a basis for a judgment. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 749.

Where plaintiff in trespass to try title pleaded the description of his lands, and defendants pleaded that their contiguous lands were not described as plaintiff alleged, a judgment thereon for plaintiff is not necessarily upheld by allegation and proof. Birge-Forbes Co. v. Wolcott (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 605.

In action on note, judgment against person claimed to have promised to sign the note, but fraudulently failed to do so, held not sustainable. Kelley v. Audra Lodge No. 488, Fraternal Union of America (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 784.

A decree adjudicating title to lands concerning which no issue was raised in the pleadings is erroneous. Arno Co-operative Irr. Co. v. Pugh (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 591. Ordinarily, judgment for half cannot arbitrarily be rendered judgment for the whole, as to indebtedness showed due. Kelsay Lumber Co. v. Rotsky (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 837.

The issues found by the jury should respond to the pleadings, and if they do not the issues so found should be regarded as immaterial, and not be considered in rendering the judgment. McSpadden (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 854.

Contract of sale not containing provision for return of goods held not subject to rescission for breach of warranty, where fraud was not alleged or proved. Texas-Kalamazoo Silo Co. v. Alley (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 821.

Where there was no evidence as to the reasonableness of a charge for repairs other than plaintiff’s testimony, that the charge was reasonable, the court cannot find a smaller sum to be a reasonable charge. W. K. Henderson Iron Works & Supply Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 913.

Judgment for plaintiffs for destruction of grass by defendant's cattle cannot be sustained, there being no testimony supporting the only ground of complaint, that defendant tore down the fence. Matthews v. Sorrells & Seitz (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 918. To sustain a judicial sale of irrigation company, decree of money tendered into court by plaintiffs to the purchaser, who had paid the amount of money, but disclaimed any interest in the land, held erroneous. Trans-Pecos Land & Irrigation Co. v. Arno Co-operative Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 928.

In action to set aside a judicial sale, in a judgment of election as to which of plaintiffs could prosecute held erroneous, where there was no record evidence of such election.

Under this article judgment for plaintiff cannot be reversed on a defense not pleaded or urged below. Bank of Garvin v. Freeman (Sup.) 181 S. W. 157.

Plaintiffs held not entitled to recover for ties sold by them to defendants and rejected by defendants under petition alleging sale by a third party and transfer of the acquired rights. Price v. J. B. Faircloth & Co. (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 734.

Where a buyer of railroad ties was to have the right of inspection, and its inspector refused the ties, the seller could not recover for the ties refused without pleadings and proof warranting such recovery.

A judgment cannot be upheld, where the petition did not state a cause of action against the parties, regardless of what the evidence showed. Seaton v. Majors (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 712.

It is fundamental error for judgment to be rendered on answer of jury which is not responsive to issue without which there is no basis for judgment. Indiana Co-op. Canal Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 243.

In a suit for breach of contract, where plaintiff pleaded no facts entitling her to a personal judgment against a defendant, though the evidence showed that he was personally liable to her, such a personal judgment could not stand. Nalls v. McNeill (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 275.

Brokers, who contracted with landowners to sell for a commission payable in the purchase-money notes if such were taken, to whom the landowners, after sale of the land, tendered the commission in notes, which were refused, were not entitled to recover a money judgment for commission. Patterson v. Kirkpatrick (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 795.

In a suit to require grantee to remove gates on a roadway, the deed stipulating that grantee had leave to open and maintain an east-west roadway 15 feet wide, evidence held to support decree for defendant. Arden v. Boone (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 966.

Where a petition is defective in substance to the extent of failing to show a cause of action, a judgment for the plaintiff is null and void. McCamant v. McCamant (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1096.

In suit on note, held that, in view of original petition, court properly refused to render judgment on original note for the note in suit was given; all mention of such original note being merely descriptive and matter of inducement. Caldwell Nat. Bank v. Reep (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 607.

In a note given on renewal, where plaintiff averred in a supplemental petition that it was owner and holder of all the notes, without any notice of an agreement between defendants, there was no declaration of liability upon the original note, judgment. Id.
In bank's suit on note, held that, in view of allegations of supplemental petition, the court properly refused to render judgment on former notes for which the note in suit was executed. Id.

A petition of general demurrer will not support any judgment. Montgomery v. McCaskill (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 797.
Where one defendant in cross-petition failed to bring in as a party an interested person whom plaintiff impleaded, defendant could not have any relief against such party. Cathey v. Weaver (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 480.

Issues raised by pleadings.—Where the petition, in an action to set aside a partition judgment for fraud by defendant in procuring it, alleged that title did not pass at the partition sale to defendant, or to the purchasers from him, because of such fraud, plaintiff cannot recover damages against defendant for the value of the land, or the price he sold it for. Han v. Dean (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 90.
A petition in an action by a grantor against the grantee assuming the grantor's debts, which seeks to recover the value of the land conveyed, and which does not seek a recovery of any of the debts paid by the grantor and merely sets forth a payment of a debt by the grantor to show a breach of the contract, does not justify a judgment for the grantor for the debt paid. Closner v. Chapin (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 370.
A petition for libel and slander against many defendants which alleged a conspiracy to injure plaintiff and his good name authorizes a recovery against those actually libeling the plaintiff, though no proof is made of the conspiracy. Dickson v. Lights (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 934.
Judgment awarding interest from February 3d to June 2d, as damages from temporary injunction of trust, held not supported by answer alleging that defendants were deprived of the selling price from February 3d to the trial on April 7th. Hicks v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1135.
In action to cancel vendors' lien notes as cloud on title, with intervention by defendant's wife, seeking a cancellation of attachment, etc., where plaintiffs did not plead subrogation they had no right to complain that such relief was not granted. Bludworth v. Dudley (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 561.
In action to try title by cotenants against grantee under unauthorized sale by their cotenants, plaintiffs are restricted to relief as to land described in petition only. Broom v. Pearson (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 895.
Where plaintiff sued on an express contract, no recovery on the quantum meruit can be had. Pictorial Review Co. v. Pate Bros. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 302.
Until their action is called in exercise by pleadings, courts have no more power to render judgment in favor of a person than to render judgment against a person until he has been brought within their jurisdiction. McCamant v. McCamant (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 196.
In an action on a contract by defendants' remote warrantor to perfect title to land, held that, under the contract and pleadings, judgment that title acquired by grantor after contract did not pass under his warranty was improper. Roberts v. Atwood (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1014.
In an action by a lessee for his one-half interest in the proceeds of wheat raised on demised premises, held that, though petition alleged the wheat sold for $3,300, and lessee had not received his half, judgment is not objectionable as based on matters pleaded at hearing on temporary restraining order or lessor, and paid, related, not to sum in controversy, but to wheat in an elevator. Woodley v. Pike (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 746.
Where the payee of a note sued its agent, who had indorsed the note, together with the maker, its suit was on express contract, and it could not recover the commission paid the agent on the sale for which the note was given, since that arose from implied contract. Hackney Mfg. Co. v. Celum (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 868.
Where pleadings put in issue plaintiff's right to recover upon two causes of action, judgment on one, silent as to the other, was prima facie an adjudication that he was not entitled to recover upon other cause, and was res adjudicata as to it. Pitt v. Gilbert (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1157.
In action for price of goods sold on open account, where defendants alleged a contract under which the goods were sold, and the court found that the contract had been made, but broken by defendants, judgment for plaintiff for the reasonable value independent of contract could not be sustained. Cumby Light & Telephone Co. v. Pierce-Fordyce Oil Ass'n (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 170.
In suit for recovery of $2,300 paid for automobile, judgment could not find that there was no market value, where plaintiff stated in his plea that automobile was worth $100. J. C. Cash v. Buckholts Mach. Co. v. Rachal (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 415.
In action on note to which party claiming to own it was made a party, judgment against it for amount collected on the note held erroneous, where such collection was not alleged. Buckholts State Bank v. Harris (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 861.
In action for general relief in general.—If defendant pays in part in general, and shows himself entitled thereto by the evidence, the court may grant it notwithstanding the pleadings of the plaintiff do not request it. Gutheridge v. Gutheridge (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 892.
Where a cross-complainant, in trespass to try title, relied on the theory that her conveyance to the defendant in the cross-action was in trust, such defendant, having pleaded only the general issue, was not entitled to an affirmative judgment for an interest in the land against the cross-complainant. Cox v. Garrow (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 924.
Where plaintiffs, having title to 160 acres by adverse possession, received from the record owner a deed to 200 acres, sold 100 acres, and sued to cancel the deed and vendee's lien, court held not to have erred in rendering judgment in determining the shares of the parties in the purchase price for the 100 acres, though such relief was not asked. Stewart v. Williams (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 781.

A judgment requiring railroad company to use jointly with another express company cars set apart to such other express company held not broader than the relief prayed for. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Empire Express Co. (Chanc. App.) 173 S. W. 222.

Under a prayer for general relief in law and equity in a suit to cancel vendor's lien notes for fraud, the court may award damages. Wright v. Chandler (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1173.

In action on notes given for an automobile and to foreclose a chattel mortgage, defendant, on his answer and cross-bill seeking a rescission of sale and the cancellation of the notes, held not entitled, under his prayer for general relief, to damages sustained to automobile. Rotz v. Houston Motors Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 257.

In action against partnership composed of two partners, where petition concluded with prayer for judgment for amount of plaintiff's debt, interest, and attorney's fee, etc., and "for such other and further relief to which it may show itself entitled," etc., it was error for court to add interest in excess of amount prayed for. crews & Williams v. Gullett Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 793.

50. — Amount demanded.—In suit by land buyer against title abstract company for failure to search for matters affecting title, judgment for $2,118.25 held not erroneous and in favor of, that claimed in petition, which alleged damages at $2,500, not stating items. Decatur Land, Loan & Abstract Co. v. Rutland (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1064.

Under contract for sale of embalming fluid by which seller furnished embalming table free of charge and the court declared rescission for breach of warranty of fluid, judgment for seller for value of the table was erroneous, where purchaser offered return of the fluid. Smith v. Edd Westfall Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 134.

In suit to cancel deed, where pleading only authorized recovery of rent for year 1914 at $150 and an item of $80 for expense, it was error to render judgment against defendant for $580, $300 of which was rent for two years. Pitt v. Gilbert (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1157.

In an action for breach of warranty of a silo, plaintiff could recover its full value as erected had it not cracked, though the pleadings did not allege the amount of cash paid on the silo, which evidence was as evidence entering into its value. Texas Kalamazo Silo Co. v. Alley (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 774.

In an action for breach of warranty of a silo, where there was no pleading for the rental value of the silo for five months, for which the jury found in the sum of $75, neither of the recovery was proper. Id.

In a suit for conversion of automobile, where plaintiff alleged value of automobile and did not ask for interest and jury gave him exact amount alleged in his petition, it was error for court to add interest in excess of amount prayed for. Magnolia Motor Sales Corp. v. Chaffee (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 562.

51. — On counterclaim.—Where defendant, in an action to cancel a deed on the ground of fraud, has paid out money by reason of plaintiff's fraud he may plead that fact and have it adjudicated in case a rescission is decreed. Paschal v. Hudson (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 911.

In note given for part of price of engine, where defendant, alleging fraud, pleaded total failure of consideration, alleging the engine was worthless, he could never recover for over $750, difference between $1,000 paid by him in cash and $250 which the jury found the engine was worth. Bruns Kimball & Co. v. Ampudsen (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 729.

52. Conformity to verdict or findings in general.—A judgment must follow the verdict. Where the verdict finds no recovery and the court awards judgment for recovery, the judgment is contrary to the verdict, and the court's action in so doing is erroneous. Hancock v. Halle (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1053; Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 598; Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 761; Calvin v. Neel (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 791.

Under this article the court cannot render a judgment contrary to the verdict, even if the verdict is not sustained by the evidence, so that it could be set aside. Armstrong v. Hix (Sup.) 175 S. W. 438; Kirkland v. Matthews (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 375.

In trespass to try title where the defense was adverse possession and the jury affirmed the finding that defendants had had adverse possession of only 3 1/4 acres, the judgment thereon must conform to the verdict, and defendants' motion for judgment for the entire tract on the theory of constructive possession was properly refused. Dupont v. Texas & N.W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 195.

While a judgment must conform to the verdict, it need not literally follow the verdict, but must be rendered in accordance with the disposition of the issues made. Brown v. Fuchner (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 461.

Where the jury merely found for defendant on his counterclaim, without disposing of plaintiff's cause of action, it was error for the judgment to recite that plaintiff takes nothing. Waco Cement Stone Works v. Smith (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1158.

Findings that a lodge member was suspended for nonpayment of dues, but that such suspension authorize a judge to cancel the member, since the question of authority for the suspension was one for the court, not for the jury. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World v. Wagnon (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1052.

The nature of trespass to try title, where the jury found for the plaintiff for the quieting of her title and for a sum of money, judgment based upon findings of the court as to incumbrances, not included in the verdict, held improper. Lester v. Hutson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 521.

In an action for wrongful attachment, verdict for plaintiffs in a certain amount "as actual damages over and above the principal and interest of the judgment" held sufficient to warrant the cancellation of the judgment recovered by defendant in the at-

On trial by jury the court has no power to enter judgment upon facts well pleaded and indisputably proven, unless the issue has been found by the verdict in favor of the party for whom the judgment is rendered. Good v. Smith (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 257.

Where the only issue was whether defendants agreed to obtain consent of holders of superior title to sale of land, verdict that they did so agree warrants judgment for plaintiff. Hahl v. McPherson (App.) 176 S. W. 894. In finding if in defendants' favor we established any material matter constituting a defense, judgment for plaintiffs held erroneous. Grove v. Keeling (App.) 176 S. W. 872.

A judgment in trespass to try title will not be reversed as not supported by the verdict, where it appears that both parties attempted to put in issue the title to the land described in the judgment, but made a mistake as to the length of a line. Bundick v. Moore-Cortes Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 1030.

In a suit for a partnership accounting, finding as to funds not divided by agreement held immaterial, notwithstanding agreement having been found and to render judgment on the other findings erroneous. Morris v. McSpadden (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 554.

In an action against railroads and the receiver of one of them, where the jury found against plaintiff for $546, but did not mention the receiver, judgment against him was improper. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. McCammon (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 541.

When the alternative finding of the trial court in a suit for negligence, that either of two acts or omissions of the defendant was negligent, is conditioned upon the insufficiency of the evidence to sustain the first finding, and such first finding is supported by the evidence, the alternative finding cannot be considered in support of the judgment. Texas Co. v. Charles Clarke & Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 351.

Where the special findings showed inconsistent findings on the question of the liability of defendant railroad company for destruction of plaintiff's crops by oil washed thereon from its tanks, judgment for plaintiff cannot stand. Houston & T. C. Ry. v. Walsh (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 18.

Judgment in personal injury action, rendered for plaintiff as to one defendant and for the other defendant, and against both defendants on their cross-petitions against each other, held not invalid for going beyond the verdict which found only for plaintiff as to one defendant and against him as to the other, without finding on the cross-petitions. Young Men's Christian Ass'n v. Jesse ( Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 867.

In suit by assignee of a bank which guaranteed collection against it and its debtor, entry of judgment for plaintiff against the debtor on verdict finding for plaintiff against the bank and further finding for the bank against the debtor held proper. Carver Bros. v. Merrett (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 741.

In suit by realty brokers for breach of a landowner's undertaking to give them exclusive right to sell for a specified time, judgment for defendant held supported by two findings otherwise of fact, no conclusion of law, though the conclusions of law not contracted with plaintiffs was inconsistent with another. Osborne & Beck v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1101.

In a boundary suit, where jury by its verdict does not definitely locate a boundary line it is error for court to do so by its judgment. Bonner v. Pitts (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 231.

53. — Special verdict and findings.—Under this article and arts. 1986 and 1996, the court must conform the judgment to the special findings of the jury. — McSpadden v. Bickerstaff & Ketchum v. Boggs (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 301.

Buyer, counterclaiming for breach of contract to furnish all the fuel oil required for six months, held not entitled to judgment for profits lost while its plant was closed due to strikes submitted directly to the jury for decision; art. 1985 having no application. Texas Co. v. Alamo Cement Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 62.

When a special verdict has been returned, the trial court, in rendering judgment, cannot disregard a finding on a material issue, even though such finding has no support whatever in the testimony. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Smallwood (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 297. Special findings that carriers' only negligence consisted of acts other than those alleged held to entitle the carriers to judgment. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. McClellan (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 251.

Where a special verdict is returned, the court must enter judgment in accordance therewith, however erroneous such verdict may appear; for a judgment must conform to the verdict. — Fitzgerald v. Hohes (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 368.

In broker's sale for commission on sale of a hotel, which, by contract, was not payable unless the purchase-money notes were paid, finding that such notes were "paid in full" held to mean "canceled" on rescission of the sale, so as to render proper the entry of judgment for the defendant. — Id.

In an action to recover for a deficiency in property received in exchange, findings definitely fixing the value of plaintiffs' property, the value of the ranch lands defendants actually conveyed, and the value per acre of the shortage and of the tract to which title fell held sufficient to support judgment for plaintiffs, though elicited by confused questions. Foster v. Atir (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 520.

In suit by seller of land against his own agent and the buyer, court's refusal to render judgment for buyer to a special issue held proper in view of other findings. Stockwell v. Melburn (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 399.

Judgment must conform to the jury's findings on special issues, though the court can afterwards set it aside, as contrary to the evidence. Jackson v. Walls (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 876.

While the court might set aside a verdict for defendant on special issues, it had no power to render judgment contrary thereto. Posey v. Adam Schauf Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 977.
In action for damages to cattle in transit, where jury found that damage proved was $121, the court entered judgment for $116, and the plaintiff's motion to enter judgment for $121 was properly granted. Texas-Mexican Ry. Co. v. Sutherland (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 985.

54. Amount awarded.—In architect's action, verdict held to sustain judgment for 3% per cent. of $60,000. Vaky v. Phelps (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 601.

55. Parties.—Where, in an action against the maker and an indorser of a note, the jury rendered a verdict "against defendants, and in favor of company (the indorser)," judgment was properly rendered against the two defendants jointly and severally, especially as the maker, who complained thereof, was unquestionably liable for the full amount. Lloyd v. American Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 195.

In an action against initial and connecting carriers for delay in transporting stock, a judgment against both held not sustained by the findings. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Miller & White (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 830.

56. Interest and attorney's fees.—It is error to award a successful suitor interest upon the amount of his recovery where submitted to the jury. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 933.

57. Alder of judgment.—Though the verdict, in an action to recover possession of land, in which defendant prayed the cancellation of a deed therefor executed to plaintiff by his fraud, did not specifically find for a cancellation, the judgment properly cancelled the deed where the verdict established fraud warranting cancellation. Maddox v. Clark (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 309.

58. Notwithstanding the verdict.—See art. 1990 and notes.

A judgment non obstante veredicto is not permissible and cannot be sustained, but the court can only set aside a verdict contrary to the evidence. Hayes v. G. A. Slowers Furniture Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 149; Frith v. Wright (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 153; Wellborn v. Wellborn (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1941.

A judgment non obstante veredicto is permissible only when there is undisputed evidence, outside of the facts found by the jury, on which a verdict should have been directed. Mixon v. Wallis (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 997.

In trespass to try title, it is improper for the trial court, after verdict by the jury for plaintiff, to render judgment for defendant upon findings of fact made without the aid of the jury, upon what was claimed to be uncontested evidence. Payne v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 93.

Where a judgment was the only one which could have been rendered upon the verdict, the appellant was not entitled to a judgment non obstante veredicto on the ground that the finding upon an issue was without evidence to support it. Kuehn v. Meredith (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 388.

59. Exhibits.—Exhibits not before the jury to whom the case was submitted are improper for the court's consideration on motion for judgment. Ketchup v. Boggs (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 291.

55. Nonresidents, judgments in suits against.—Process against nonresidents, see art. 1869 et seq. and notes.

60. Foreign judgments.—A money judgment by confession rendered in another state without a suit against the defendant having been filed, as was permitted by the laws of that state, held sufficient as a judgment to which full faith and credit must be given. Tourletot v. Booker (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 293.

A judgment of a foreign court which it was without jurisdiction to render is not entitled to credit anywhere. Banco Minero v. Ross, 172 S. W. 711, 106 Tex. 522.

A foreign judgment against a citizen will only be credited on proof that the court had jurisdiction of the parties and subject-matter, and that there was a full and fair trial by regular proceedings according to a system of civilized jurisprudence, etc. Id.

A full and fair trial, essential to give credit to a foreign judgment, means not a summary proceeding sanctioned by the law of the forum, but an opportunity to be heard on the issues where the cause involves questions of fact, and to have it considered by an unpredjudiced court. Id.

A Mexican judgment against citizens of the United States held not to have been rendered after a full and fair trial, and not entitled to credit in the United States. Id.

Art. 1995. [1336] [1336] For or against one or more plaintiffs, etc.

Joint and several judgments.—In an action against members of a voluntary association, joined and several, either by party or parties by part of the defendants against their codefendants, held, that a judgment might be rendered for plaintiff against the defendants jointly and severally, and a judgment for each defendant over against each other defendant. Hardy v. Carter (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1689.

A judgment, within the pleadings, in action against the members of a voluntary association upon a note on which they were primarily liable as co-obligors, held not objectionable, because the several amounts which plaintiff was to recover against each of the defendants was calculated and entered therein. Id.

Where the original defendant asked to have others made parties defendant, and all of the parties appeared and answered, one, who was not a necessary party, and thereafter defendant's motion to dismiss as to the party not answering was granted, it was held to render judgment for that party. Sanger v. First Nat. Bank of Amarillo (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1387.

Where the verdict found a joint liability against defendants, there was no error in a judgment decreeing a joint and several liability. San Antonio U. & G. Ry. Co. v. Yarbrough (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 523.

Under this article, allowing judgments for or against one or several parties, amendment of petition by joint owners for injury to property so as to leave but one party plaintiff, is immaterial, not subjecting suit as amended to bar of statute of limitations. Baker v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 237.

Judgment for party and third person.—Where plaintiff showed that he held an equitably registered certificate of title to property belonging to defendant in the hands of G., who was not a party, a provision of the judgment for plaintiff that he was entitled to the fund as against G. was a nullity as to G., though such fact did not invalidate the judgment; G. being a proper, though not a necessary, party. McLane v. Hayden (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 1146.

Variances as to causes of action.—The variance between a petition, alleging a joint cause of action in favor of two plaintiffs, and proof of a separate cause of action in favor of each cannot be corrected by dismissing the action as to one plaintiff and rendering judgment for the other. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Reed (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 997.

Art. 1995a. Contribution between tort feasors on payment of judgment.—That from and after the passage of this Act, any person against whom, with one or more others, a judgment is rendered in any suit on action arising out of, or based on tort, except in causes wherein the right of contribution or of indemnity, or of recovery, over, by and between the defendants is given by statute or exists under the common law, shall, upon payment of said judgment, have a right of action against his co-defendant or co-defendants and may recover from each a sum equal to the proportion of all of the defendants named in said judgment rendered to the whole amount of said judgment; provided that if any of the persons co-defendant as above mentioned, be insolvent, then recovery may be had in proportion of such defendants as are not insolvent; and the right of recovery over against such insolvent defendant or defendants in judgment, shall exist in favor of each defendant in judgment in proportion as he has been caused to pay by reason of such insolvency. [Act March 30, 1917, ch. 152, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment.

Essentials of final judgment.—The test of whether a judgment is final so as to be appealable is whether it disposes of the whole matter in controversy as to all of the parties. Havard v. Carter-Kelley Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 932; Wright v. Chandler (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1173; Busby v. Schrank (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 255.

Where a judgment appealed from was final in form, it was reviewable, notwithstanding it was based on a verdict which was defective in that it failed to dispose of certain cross-pleas filed by the defendants. Ft. Worth Belt Ry. Co. v. Perryman (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1151.

Under this article there is no appealable final judgment in an action against several defendants until it is finally disposed of as to all of them. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Atlantic Fruit Distributors (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 294.

Where an action against two defendants and a cross-action against a railway were tried together, there can be no appeal from a judgment against the railway until final judgments were rendered as to both defendants. Id.

Whether dismissal of the cross-action of defendants, as to whom plaintiff dismissed his suit, was rightful, is immaterial, relatively to there having been a disposition of the issue, making the judgment final, and so giving the appellate court jurisdiction. Nunez v. McElroy (App.) 184 S. W. 531.

Disposition of any cross-action pleaded by defendants as to whom he dismissed his suit is essential to finality of the decree or judgment. Id.

Fact that judgment was rendered in part on notes not due at time did not affect validity of registration in county clerk's office of abstract of judgment, and did not impair validity of lien fixed by registration on judgment debtor's property. Ochoa v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1022.

Judgments which are final.—A judgment held final, so that an appeal might be duly perfected therefrom, even though it did not specifically dispose of defendants' counterclaim. Swan v. Price (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 994.

The county court's judgment in a condemnation proceeding awarding a right of way to plaintiff therein, to revert to the owner of the fee upon nonuser within two years came a final judgment upon the adjournment of that term of court, and hence could not be reopened two years afterwards by a motion to declare a forfeiture alleging neither accident, fraud, or mistake as a basis therefor. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Temple Northwestern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1069.

Judgment in partition suit confirming commissioners' report held final as to rights of parties, and the court erred in setting it aside, continuing the question of confirmation, and retrying the cause at a subsequent term. Rogers v. Dickinson (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 865.

From the order of dismissal of plaintiff's suit as to part of defendants and the judgment after trial against defendant N., held, as regards there being a final judgment, giving the appellate court jurisdiction, that dismissal as to all but N. was plainly and necessarily invalid. Nunez v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 631.

There is an implied disposition, by discontinuance or dismissal, of the other defendants' cross-action, in the order that plaintiff's suit was dismissed as to them, "and that this was essential to N.'s suit, as plaintiff, and N. as defendant."

The cross-action of defendant for the land sued for by plaintiff is by necessary implication disposed of and adjudicated against him by the judgment for plaintiff therefor. Id.

Under this article, in an action against contractor and sureties on contractor's bond, a judgment against contractor on admission of liability and sustaining exceptions of sureties to complaint, being a final judgment, to which contractor was not a party, a reversal for error will operate as a reversal as to all parties. Buell Planing Mill Corp. v. Ballard (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 776.

Judgments not final.—A judgment which does not dispose of all the parties and issues is not final. Willis v. Keator (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 556; Bryant v. Moore (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 295; St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Fudge (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 725.

A decree restraining a levee district from completing a levee adjacent to the water works of complainant city held not a final judgment, from which an appeal would lie. Ft. Worth Improvement Dist. No. 1 v. City of Ft. Worth, 106 Tex. 148, 185 S. W. 164, 48 L. R. A. (N. S.) 394.

Where a judgment did not dispose of the action as to all of the defendants and with reference to the entire subject-matter of the litigation, it was not final or appealable. McCarty v. Gray (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1164.

Where a receiver for a railroad originally filed a suit, though the railroad company afterwards filed an amended petition, alleging that it had acquired the claim sued on by assignment from the receiver, and there was no order permitting the holder to be substituted as plaintiff, a judgment which did not dispose of the receiver's interest in the claim was not final, so as to be appealable; nor was it final and appealable, where it did not dispose of either of two defendants. Browne v. International & G. N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 1155.

Where verdict was rendered for several railroads who were defendants, together with a receiver, a judgment, which recited the verdict but failed to provide that plaintiff take nothing against such railroad defendants, was not final so as to give the court of civil appeals jurisdiction. Freeman v. Pacific Ry. & Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 394.

A judgment sustaining exceptions to a plea in reconvenio held not to dispose of the plea, leaving a judgment for plaintiff in the main action interlocutory and not appealable. Lania v. People's Home Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 394.

A judgment with respect to two causes, one to cancel a mortgage and renege another, a judgment awarding plaintiff damages, and dismissing the action as to one of the parties defendant, held not final. Hamilton v. Joachim (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 845.

Where judgment was rendered for CPF & T. Ry. to try title to an interest in and possession in plaintiff, and for damages for converting timber thereon, and the answer merely set up ownership to the timber through conveyance, a judgment which merely awarded plaintiff damages was not final. Havard v. Carter-Kelley Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 722.

A judgment which had been affirmed on condition that plaintiff file a remittitur was not, before a motion for rehearing was overruled, final so as to be subject to garnishment. Dodson v. Wooster Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 99.

A judgment against all the defendants except one, but in no way disposing of him, whose dismissal would have resulted in a dismissal of the defendant partnership, of which he was a member, is not final, and so not appealable. Wichita Mill & Elevator Co. v. Burrus (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 16.

Where defendant filed a plea in reconvenio for more than plaintiff's claim, a judgment for the plaintiff for the full amount of his claim, which did not mention the defendant's cross-action, was not a final judgment from which an appeal would lie. Brown v. Wood (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 764.

Where a judgment of the county court on appeal from a judgment of a justice did not dispose of a plea in reconvenio, the judgment was not final, and the Court of Civil Appeals acquired no jurisdiction on appeal. Anderson, Evans & Evans v. Smith (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 765.

In an action for several years' rent and for money due for the sale of personality, a judgment based on a directed verdict for a small amount, not in controversy, which did not dispose of the issues, cannot be held to have disposed of the verdict, being for only part of the amount in suit, was an implied finding against plaintiff's other claims. Bryant v. Moore (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 395.

A record showing a judgment rendered against two of the parties defendant, but not showing what disposition was made as to a third defendant, failed to show a final judgment, for want of which the appeal will be dismissed. Kolp v. Well Bros. (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1096.

Here, in an action by assignee against debtor and assignor, as guarantor, the issue was whether the debtor was liable to the assignee, a judgment not determining that issue was not final. Carver Bros. v. Merrett (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 929.

Where in suit of interpleader one defendant alleged causes of action for conversion and an accounting against the other, a judgment not disposing thereof held not final, and hence not appealable. Braden v. Rhyne (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 691.

In an action on a note, a judgment not disposing of indorser's prayer for judgment over against his codefendant held not a final appealable judgment. Houston Transp. Co. v. Alpen Iron & Steel Co. (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 442.

Where a judgment did not dispose of certain interveners, nor of the subject-matter sued for by them, and there was no order of dismissal as to them, the judgment would not support an appeal. Moore v. Toyah Valley Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 590.

In a suit brought to quiet title as between several persons plaintiff and defendant, a judgment not disposing of issues between some parties is not final, and not appealable. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Lipper (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 701.

In a suit by corporators to recover title and possession of goods in which interveners claimed, which neither directly nor by implication adjudicated plaintiff's claim, held not a final judgment and not appealable. Finnigan-Brown Co. v. Escobar (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1127.

In suit to recover title and possession of goods, interests being claimed by defendants and interveners as well as plaintiff, judgment failing to adjudicate on plaintiff's claim was not by implication an appealable final determination because the verdict determined such claim. Id. 559
Art. 1997  COURTS—DISTRICT AND COUNTY—PRACTICE IN  (Title 37)

Where on appeal to the county court from justice court a new plaintiff appeared, and judgment was rendered in favor without disposing of the original plaintiff, such judgment is not final, and the appeal will be dismissed. Duke v. Trabue (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 910.

Effect of new trial.—Where judgment for defendant was not set aside during the term but rendered at a subsequent term, it is given a motion for new trial and the parties amended and proceeded with a new trial without objection, held, that the court had jurisdiction to retry the case. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Dancer (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 772.

Of reversal.—Notwithstanding this article, where, in trespass to try title, there are several defendants whose defenses are severable, the judgment against nonappealing defendants will be affirmed, though the judgment in favor of other defendants is reversed. State v. Dayton Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 48.

Of amendment of petition.—Relative to the judgment disposing of all the subject-matter, giving the appellate court jurisdiction, amendment of the petition reducing the land claimed of itself eliminates all other lands. Nunez v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 821.

Art. 1998. [1338] [1338] Judgment may pass title, etc.

Passing of title.—Where a vendor in an executory contract of sale was by judgment restored to his title, the judgment restored the title in him, free from claim of purchaser. Dickev v. Cruise (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 655.

Art. 1999. [1339] [1339] Court shall enforce its own decrees, and may in certain cases do so by contempt process.

Delivery of property.—Although judgment in suit under art. 1999 to recover a cow erroneously required, instead of payment of rent, it was under $50, so that the case was not appealable from the county court, it was not void and subject to direct attack in a proceeding to enjoin its enforcement. Kalmang v. Baumbush (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 897.

2. Action for foreclosure—Condition precedent.—Where, by the terms of a deed of trust given to secure the payment of notes executed contemporaneously therewith, it was provided that all should become due if any remained unpaid for ten days after maturity, an action could be maintained upon all the notes when one was not so paid, though by the terms of the notes they were not due. Ward v. San Antonio Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1943.

5. Distinction between mortgage and conditional deed.—See notes under art. 1197.

9. Findings authorizing foreclosure.—Where the cross-complainant claimed land under conveyances made to him by his defendants subsequent to the execution of a deed of trust, a finding that the deed of trust should be foreclosed necessarily negatived all claims asserted by defendant, and authorized the judgment of foreclosure. Rushing v. Creditors of Plaingood (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 469.

10. Foreclosure of several liens.—Under this article, a judgment foreclosing two vendor's lien notes on two separate parcels of land for the entire indebtedness held erroneous. McPhaul v. Byrd (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 644.

13. Parties.—See notes to art. 1898.

One having a prior lien upon property in the hands of a receiver was not a necessary party to an action by a subsequent lienor to foreclose his mortgage. Arlington Heights Realty Co. v. Citizens' Ry. & Light Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1109.

Where, in a suit to foreclose a mechanic's lien, it was averred that the land was owned by "A. & L. August, by said A. August and by said L. August," a judgment foreclosing the lien on the land of A. August was proper. August v. Gamer Co. (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 1197.

In action on vendor's lien notes it was not error to establish a lien in favor of one who had furnished the money to take up two similar notes inferior to that of the payee. Braun v. Hickman (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 879.

In a suit to foreclose a mechanic's lien for improvements made by defendant's lessee, a personal judgment against defendant was not authorized. Cleburne St. Ry. Co. v. Barber (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1176.

Plaintiff, in a suit on notes and to foreclose a chattel mortgage, may join as parties defendants those liable on the different notes if secured by the same chattel mortgage, though the mortgage is not executed by all the defendants. Coleman Nat. Bank v. Cath­ey (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 661.

14. Personal and foreclosure judgments.—Where a purchaser of a part of a tract subject to a vendor's lien did not assume payment of the debt, the holder of the vendor's lien notes could not recover a personal judgment. Rynard v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1086.

Though a landowner mortgaged part of his estate to secure a debt, his whole estate was later liened for. Sanchez v. Lasater (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 706.

In action to enforce claim for material, notes not purporting to be the obligations of defendant company held not to authorize personal judgment against it. Cleburne St. Ry. Co. v. Barber (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1176.

Where it was found that a secret agreement existed between purchasers' agents and vendor's agents by which one-half of consideration was to be returned, the judgment
15. Priority of liens.—In a proceeding to enforce a chattel mortgage, in which the landlord intervened, claiming a lien upon the mortgaged property, the mortgagee cannot contest the judgment in favor of the landlord on the ground that there was other property out of which the landlord might satisfy his lien, where the judgment required that to be first exhausted. Neblett v. Barron ( Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1167.

Where a judgment foreclosing a mortgage was procured by fraud of the mortgagee and the mortgagor, the court property was the lien established by the judgment as against the other owners. Clarke v. A. B. Frank Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 492.

A judgment foreclosing a senior mortgage, notwithstanding payment of the debt, with intent to defraud creditors of the mortgagor, does not affect the right of a junior lienholder who was not a party to the suit; and by such payment the junior lien becomes a first lien.—3d.

17. Requisites and validity of judgment.—Where defendant guaranteed part of a series of notes, and by judgment the entire series was held due, the judgment was void, and defendant was not liable thereon. Mattox v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 1113.

Where befugger and third person in instructing a joint and several judgment for covenant against them. Rhoads v. Harris ( Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 621.

180. S. W. the App.) by order of the judgment in lien Clarke such landlord Cole signed of which a v. and on of foreclose of in complaint the price, Ellerd v. Stephenson (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 121.

In a case in which the court in mortgage foreclosing proceedings, if the court did not describe the land by a special lien, the judgment was void. Williams v. McComb (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 654.

A judgment in an action on vendor's lien notes, violating this article, constitutes fundamental error, reviewable in absence of assignments of error in the record. McPhaul v. Byrd ( Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 644.

A default judgment foreclosing a vendor's lien on several tracts of land, omitting a call for the west side of one of the tracts, was defective. Gilles v. Miners' Bank of Carlisle, Mo. ( Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 284.

Under this article, a judgment of foreclosure which did not provide for the issuance of an order of sale, nor direct the sheriff to seize and sell the property as under execution, it appearing that the land was never sold under the judgment held insufficient. Rudolph v. Hively ( Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 721.

In suit by vendor of lands to city to foreclose implied lien on part of them for part of price, description of lands, in judgment foreclosing lien, as 'above high-water mark,' held sufficient. City of Ft. Worth v. Reynolds ( Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 561.

20. Conformity of judgment to pleadings, proof and verdict.—Where the petition in an action to foreclose chattel mortgages against the mortgagor and his assignee and for general relief contained no allegation that the mortgages were duly filed for record, a personal judgment against the assignee as for a conversion held erroneous except as to costs. Marshall v. G. A. Stowers Furniture Co. ( Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 230.

A petition by a transferee of vendor's lien notes, which merely prayed that the land be awarded to him, held not to support a judgment awarding the land to him. Smith v. Tipps ( Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 816.

In suit on note, where plaintiff asked foreclosure of lien on defendant's insurance policy, but it was alleged and proved that defendant had no beneficial interest therein, court proceeded to foreclose such lien. Ehrler v. Speckels ( Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 348.

In suit to foreclose mechanic's lien based on house-building contract signed by defendant alone, judgment for plaintiff was error where the complaint failed to allege plaintiff's performance of the contract. Benson v. Ashford ( Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1093.

21. Judgment for judgment.—The holder of a deed of trust subsequent to a vendor's lien who purchased the land on foreclosure of his deed of trust was not concluded by a judgment in a suit to foreclose the lien to which he was not a party. Standard Paint & Wall Paper Co. v. Rowan ( Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 251.

A decree foreclosing mortgage on land in a suit to which plaintiffs were not parties held not res judicata of their claim to one-half of the land, which claim was not in issue therein. Ellerdt v. Ellison ( Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 876.

Where a husband and wife executed a mortgage of the wife's separate property, a judgment foreclosing such mortgage after the death of the wife was not binding upon the heirs of the wife; they not being parties. Vanderwolx v. Matthaei ( Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 304.

A judgment foreclosing vendor's lien notes held a conclusive adjudication against plaintiffs' subsequent claim that they were mortgagors of the land and that their conveyance to the maker of the notes was merely to secure a loan. Sells v. White ( Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1019.

A judgment in foreclosure suit in which mortgagors and junior mortgagees were joined, distributing proceeds of sale, held res judicata of the correctness of such distribution. Freeman v. Kiner ( Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 543.

22. Revocation of power of sale.—See notes under art. 3789.

23. Sales under foreclosure.—Where, in a lien foreclosure suit, part of property was ordered sold to a person, and judgment for third person in instructing a joint and several judgment for covenant against them. Rhoads v. Harris ( Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 621.

Where in foreclosure suit for protection of third person, part of the land was ordered first sold, and thereafter judgment debtor gave a mortgage for an unsecured indebtedness and the amount of the judgment which the mortgagee paid, taking a transfer thereof, and after debtor's death mortgagee had property sold by administrator for more than the amount of the judgment, held that equity would apply the proceeds in the manner decreed in the foreclosure, and hence the part of the land to be sold last was free from any lien. Id.

When a mortgagor makes successive sales of different portions of the mortgaged premises, and subsequent purchasers have either actual or constructive notice of prior sales, equity will require the tracts of land to be sold in the inverse order of their alienation when the mortgage lien is foreclosed. Powell v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 572. judgment modified on rehearing 164 S. W. 1058.

Upon foreclosure of a mortgage upon an entire tract of land, held, that intervenor who had acquired vendor's lien notes given by the first purchaser was entitled to demand that the last land sold should be first sold to satisfy the mortgage. Id.

When a mortgagor reacquires a portion of the land which he had sold, those who have purchased from him after he sold the land so reacquired have the right to have the reacquired tract first sold in satisfaction of the mortgage. Id.

Where the owner of land subject to a mortgage sold part of the tract which was reconveyed to him upon condition that vendor's lien notes be extinguished, the fact that, at the time he agreed to transfer the notes to appellant, the deed was of record and that her money was not used to redeem the notes, held not to affect her right to demand that land subsequently conveyed should first be sold to extinguish a common mortgage. Id.

In a suit to foreclose a chattel mortgage, in which a claimant of the property was made a defendant, an action would not lie against a clerk of the court on a judgment directing him to pay over to plaintiff the proceeds of a sale of the property until the issue of ownership as between plaintiff and claimant was determined. Wills v. Koester (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 556.

24. Validity.—Where assignee of judgment foreclosing vendor's lien agreed to release owner and husband from liability, in consideration of husband's agreement not to bindedly repudiate, blinded such agreement, owners held not entitled to have the sale vacated for fraud. Moore v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 398.

Art. 2000. [1344] [1343] Judgments against executors, etc.

See art. 1863 and note.

Cited, Dunn v. Epperson (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 837.

Art. 2006. [1347] [1346] Against partners when all not sued.

See art. 1863 and notes.

Citation against partners.—Where an action against a partnership and the three members thereof was dismissed as to one partner for failure to procure service, no judgment could be rendered against the firm. Tramel v. Guaranty State Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 65.

Where action against partnership and members is unqualifiedly dismissed as to a member because not served and insolvent, judgment cannot be against firm, but only members. Heidelberg Amusement Club v. Mercedes Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1122.

Art. 2007. [1348] [1347] Confession of judgment.

See art. 1863 and note.

Injunction of judgment.—Where consent judgment provided that trustee might sell lands for best price obtainable within his discretion for part paid and balance secured by vendor's lien notes, court cannot read into judgment provision for sale at reasonable market value. Evans v. Williams (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 181.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

REMITTER AND AMENDMENT OF JUDGMENT

Art. 2016. Miscreitals, etc., corrected in vacation or term time in certain cases.

Art. 2017. Correction made in vacation to be certified to clerk, etc.

Art. 2018. Correction or remitter operates to cure errors.

Article 2012. [1353] [1351] Remitter of excess in verdict.

Power of court.—It is within the power of the trial court to permit a remittitur, rather than grant a new trial. Texas Bldg. Co. v. Reed (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 211.

Curing excessiveness.—Error in awarding an agent an excessive judgment for compensation incurred by requiring him to file a remittitur of the excess. Channell Chemical Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 704.

Curing error by remittitur.—In a servant's action for personal injury, judgment re- ceiving that it appeared from the findings that the court had rendered a double verdict.
Art. 2014. [1355] [1353] Remitter in vacation.

Effect of remitter.—Where, after appeal, appellee remitted damages improperly awarded, the judgment, under this article will be affirmed, though the costs will be taxed against the appellee. Atchison, T. & S. Ry. Co. v. Boyce (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1084.

Authority to reform or enter nunc pro tunc judgment.—While a justice, under Rev. St. 1911, art. 2374, has no authority to grant a new trial after ten days from the judgment, or by this article correct a mistake so as to make it speak the truth. Dickensheets v. Hudson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 1097.

Where, through mistake, the judgment entered was not in accordance with the agreement for its rendition, and plaintiffs were not guilty of any negligence, they are entitled to have it corrected. Weir v. W. T. Carter & Bro. (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1112.

Under this article and arts. 1337 and 1538, petitioner held not entitled to the correction of a final judgment entered on a default. Mallory v. Mantius (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 692.

A succeeding judge may make the record speak a fact actually existent in a judicial proceeding, and which should be a part of the record. Hamilton v. Eiland (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 260.

If first entry of judgment was mistake, and was not judgment of court, it was its right and duty to correct entry in minutes to speak truth. Gerlach Mercantile Co. v. Hughes-Bozarth-Anderson Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 784.

Purpose of a nunc pro tunc entry is to correct an entry previously made, but not entered at proper time. Finigan-Brown Co. v. Escobar (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 256.

In view of art. 853, and under the inherent power of the court and this article, held, that the court had jurisdiction to render nunc pro tunc a judgment rendered after conviction at a previous term, but erroneously entered. Bennett v. State (Cr. App.) 194 S. W. 148.

— Judgments and mistakes which may or may not be corrected.—A court has no jurisdiction by order nunc pro tunc at a subsequent term to amend a judgment to include matter which should have been, but was not, passed on in fact at the prior term. Hamilton v. Joachim (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 645.

When an appeal is perfected during a term of the trial court, that court, during its term, can make orders in the case and alter or revise a final judgment from which the appeal was interlocutory order, or an application for a temporary writ of injunction, the trial judge cannot change his order or exercise any jurisdiction whatever over it. Boynton v. Brown (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 897.

When the parties, though duly cited, made default, the judgment for plaintiff was properly amended so as to include them though the verdict failed to mention them. A. J. Birdsong & Son v. Allen (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 1177.

In a suit to correct an order entered on the minutes, showing that a motion for a new trial was overruled, while in fact it was granted, the court held authorized to grant relief by the entry of a nunc pro tunc order showing the granting of the motion. Moore v. Chapman (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 6.

Court held to have authority to correct its minutes to make judgment dispose of the rights of all parties, as was done by the judgment as actually rendered. Moors v. Toyah Valley Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 550.

If first entry of judgment was mistake, and was not judgment of court, and there were no facts of which the court was to decide as to date of service, the mistake could be corrected. Gerlach Mercantile Co. v. Hughes-Bozarth-Anderson Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 784.

Where appeal from judgment entered upon answers of the jury to special issues was dismissed for want of finality in the judgment, the trial court upon return of the case could not properly correct a judgment made at varying times from the prior judgment. Finigan-Brown Co. v. Escobar (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 256.

Evidence justifying correction.—Entry of a judgment nunc pro tunc is not authorized, unless there is an affirmative showing that the court actually rendered the decision which is sought by the nunc pro tunc entry to formally enter on the records of the court. Hamilton v. Joachim (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 648.

While a decree can only be modified on record evidence, such as a verdict or written instruments contained in the record of the suit in which the decree was rendered, the allegations of the petition as set out in a motion to correct a decree so as to make it adjudicate property sued for instead of a half interest in it, taken with the docket entry and judgment, held to furnish sufficient record evidence to authorize the correction of the decree as prayed. Yarbrough v. Etheredge (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 998.

In a suit to correct the entry of a judgment by agreement, parol evidence is admissible to show that the judgment entered by mistake did not comply with the agreement. Weir v. W. T. Carter & Bro. (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1113.

A party seeking to correct the record of a judgment by proceedings authorized by this article has the burden of showing that the record does not speak the truth. Mallory v. Mantius (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 692.

A trial court may, after adjournment for the term, make its records speak the truth, by order nunc pro tunc or otherwise, though no written memorandum of the proceedings can be found. Hamilton v. Eiland (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 260.

If there is simply a general verdict in a case, with failure to announce a judgment or a correct judgment thereon, such verdict alone authorizes the entry of a nunc pro tunc judgment, but entry of a nunc pro tunc judgment, without evidence showing the same judgment had been in fact previously rendered, and with refusal of evidence offered to show that the proposed entry evidence a judgment which in fact was not rendered, was error. Finnegan-Brown Co. v. Escobar (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 256.

A judgment nunc pro tunc should not be entered unless some proper and sufficient evidence be adduced to show that the court had in fact announced or rendered the judgment with the purpose of the nunc pro tunc entry to correctly evidence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1087.

Time for application.—Where defendant in a suit by a tenant in common for contribution was found to have no interest in the land, but his name was omitted from the judgment of dismissal by mistake, the district court had the right, at any time before final judgment in this court, to correct the mistake and render such judgment nunc pro tunc as should have been rendered. Stephenson v. Luttrell (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 666.

Under this article and arts. 2016 and 2573, a justice of the peace could amend the entry of an judgment so as to show the disposition that was made of the cause as to two parties not mentioned therein, though an appeal was pending in the county court. Thompson v. Field (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1115.

Under this article and art. 2016, held that, where judgment as entered did not dispose of rights of certain parties, correction to conform to judgment rendered could not be made in vacation. Moore v. Toyah Valley Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 550.

By virtue of continuing power of court over its records, it may correct them and cause entry of judgment to speak truth at time subsequent to term at which it was rendered. Gerlach Mercantile Co. v. Hughes-Bozarth-Anderson Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 784.

Art. 2016. [1357] [1355] Misrecitals, etc., corrected in vacation or term of cases.

Amendments allowable.—Under the direct provisions of this article, a judgment following the verdict may be amended in case of miscalculation, where it can be done by reference to the record. A. J. Birdsong & Son v. Allen (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 1177.

Amendments in vacation.—Under this article and art. 2015, held that, where judgment as entered did not dispose of rights of certain parties, correction to conform to judgment rendered could not be made in vacation. Moore v. Toyah Valley Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 550.

Pending appeal.—Under this article and arts. 2015 and 2573, a justice of the peace could amend the entry of a judgment so as to show the disposition that was made of the cause as to two parties not mentioned therein, though an appeal was pending in the county court. Thompson v. Field (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1115.

Appellate courts, amendments by.—Though judgment was reformed as to computation as could have been corrected in the court below under this article and art. 2016, costs will be taxed against plaintiff in error, who was not otherwise successful. Rake v. Clayton (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 498.

Attack on or appeal from corrected judgment.—Action of the trial court as to its own record, or as to its own entry of a judgment so as to show the disposition of the matter of the nunc pro tunc entry to correctly evidence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1087.

In absence of affirmative showing on face of proceedings that there was no notice to defendant of motion to amend original judgment to correct mistake in entry, in garnishee's collateral attack on such judgment court is not authorized to hold it void. Gerlach Mercantile Co. v. Hughes-Bozarth-Anderson Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 784.

Art. 2017. [1358] [1356] Correction made in vacation to be certified to clerk, etc.

Reformation by appellate court.—Though judgment was reformed as to computation as could have been corrected in the court below under this article and art. 2016, costs will be taxed against plaintiff in error, who was not otherwise successful. Rake v. Clayton (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 498.

Art. 2018. [1359] [1357] Correction or remitter operates to cure error.

Cure by remitter.—Any impropriety in the jury in striking an average amount by dividing the aggregate of the individual amounts favored by each juror and taking the quotient, $13,600, and in afterwards agreeing by a majority vote upon a $14,000 verdict, held cured by accepting plaintiff's proffered remittitur of $1,000. Peos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Cotton (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 148.

Excessiveness in verdict held not cured by remittitur of $1,500 required by trial court, where the excess was so great as to indicate that it was the result of passion or prejudice. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Craighead (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1199, denying rehearing 175 S. W. 482.

In an action for breach of marriage promise, requiring a remittitur of the amount found by the jury as special damages held not to cure the error in an instruction authorizing recovery of double damages for the seduction of plaintiff. Huggins v. Carey (Sup.) 194 S. W. 133.
CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

NEW TRIALS AND ARREST OF JUDGMENT

Article 2019. [1370] [1368] New trials, etc., may be granted.
Cited, Rogers v. Dickson (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 966.

II. GROUNDS FOR NEW TRIAL

8. In general.—A judgment rendered against a lunatic by a court, in ignorance of his insanity may be set aside either by an action brought for that purpose, or by an application for a new trial. Pyle v. Pyle (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 488.
An objection that the petition in an action for conversion of mortgaged cotton did not allege the value of the cotton could not be raised for the first time on a motion for a new trial. Houssel v. Coe & Hampton (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 864.

9. Discretion of court.—Where the trial was by the court, it has more latitude in considering a new trial for newly discovered evidence than it would have had in a jury case. Henry v. Fligo (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 972.

The power of the trial court to prevent probable wrong by granting new trial should be freely exercised. Coward v. Sutfin (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 378.

A motion for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence is addressed to the trial judge’s sound discretion. Feagins v. Texas Machinery & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 961.

10. Absence of party.—Where the lower court, in overruling defendant’s motion for a new trial, must have held defendant negligent in failing to be present at the trial, and there is nothing to show an abuse of discretion, the case will not be reversed for that reason. First Nat. Bank v. Thurmond (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 184.

Denial of new trial for the absence of defendant, who failed to show why he did not notify his counsel or the court of his absence, though he knew that his case would be called, held within the court’s discretion. Muldoon v. J. E. Bray Land Co. (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1037.

11. Absence of witness.—Defendant’s motion for new trial on account of its inability to obtain the testimony of witnesses summoned by plaintiff, and excused in good faith by him, who remained within reach by automobile, but to secure whose attendance defendant asked no process or continuance or delay of trial, held properly denied. Texas City Terminal Co. v. Pettiford (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 19.

12. Misconduct of parties or others.—In a switchman’s action for injuries, where his deposition was on file, it was not erroneous to bring him into courtroom upon a stretcher without showing that he could only reach the courtroom that way, since he had a right to use the deposition or to testify as a witness. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. of Texas v. Anthamauer (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1090.

13. Misconduct of trial judge.—Where appellant’s counsel was present and made no objection to the court in retiring the jury after its request to be discharged, his objection to the error came too late in motion for new trial made a week later. Hunter v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1049.

14. Surprise in respect to evidence.—In a suit upon a note wherein an alleged forged receipt was introduced, a new trial held properly granted for surprise, although the evidence was cumulative. Horne v. Stockton (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 992.

A party, having been served with an abstract which showed a deed to the other party to part of the land in controversy in trespass to try title, could not rely thereon where the correct and complete deed was recorded, and, when he did rely thereon, was not entitled to new trial on the ground of surprise when the correct deed was introduced. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Wm. M. Rice Institute (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 413.

15. Insufficiency of evidence.—If the verdict is not supported by evidence, or is against the great preponderance of the evidence, it should grant a new trial. Fecon & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Whelchier (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 265.

A verdict unsupported by evidence should be set aside on motion for new trial. Bender v. Bender (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 735.

16. Denial of continuance.—In action by insurance agent for bonus on business written, where defendant company had duplicate set of books of agency in its home office, refusal of postponement to enable company to further investigate agency’s books was not ground for new trial. Reliance Life Ins. Co. v. Beaton (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 743.

17. Newly discovered evidence.—Where the maker of notes given to a loan company, which advanced a part of the price of certain land, claimed a shortage as a partial failure of consideration, newly discovered evidence of a division of commissions between the vendor's broker and one who secured the money from the loan company was insufficient to entitle the vendee to a new trial after verdict for the loan company on the note. Roberts v. Prather (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 789.

In a personal injury action brought by a switchman against a railroad company, a new trial was granted on defendant's motion for newly discovered testimony of the yardmaster, who was with the towerman at the time of his alleged negligence in sending a switch engine into an open switch. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Barlett (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1039.

Discovery after trial that a surveyor, who testified for the plaintiff, would testify that he had found the trees of a certain corner not in controversy to be as claimed by the defendant held not to require the granting of a new trial to the defendant, where the testimony was not given at the trial because of the defendant's failure to ask for it. Moore v. Lehmann (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 81.

The trial court in condemnation proceedings properly refused to grant a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence; no legal excuse being presented why such evidence was not offered at the trial. City of Ft. Worth v. Charbonneau (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 337.

In an action against a city for compensation for the furnishing of water, held that the city was not entitled to a new trial for newly discovered evidence. City of Co­manche v. Hoff & Harris (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 135.

Certain newly discovered evidence held not to authorize a new trial. Id.

Where it was not shown on appeal that newly discovered evidence came within the rules, but an order for a new trial on account of it, its refusal was not an abuse of its discretion. Hudgins v. Hammers (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 986.

In coal miner's action for injuries, refusal of new trial on the ground of newly dis­covered evidence held not an abuse of the court's discretion. Consumers' Lignite Co. v. Grant (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 202.

Where supporting affidavits excluded negligence on part of moving party, held, that new trial would have been granted for new evidence disinterested witness. Lockney State Bank v. Bolin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 553.

35. Materiality and admissibility.—Evidence held material within the rule as to newly discovered evidence. Harlan v. Texas Fuel & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1142.

Alleged newly discovered evidence, which was immaterial, would not authorize a new trial. Vaca­reaza v. Realty Investment Co. (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 516.

In an action on an alleged promise of a landlord to pay for groceries furnished his tenant, newly discovered evidence held not so material to the issue, though tending to discredit plaintiff's testimony, as to render the refusal of a motion for new trial reversible. Chilson v. Oheim (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1074.

A new trial will be granted on newly discovered evidence, although the moving party knew at the time of the trial that he could prove the facts set out in his motion by the witnesses named, where the materiality of such testimony was not known to him until the trial was in progress. Horne v. Stockton (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 962.

New trial cannot be had on the ground of newly discovered testimony, where the testimony only introduced the same facts adduced at the former trial, but it must appear that the evidence would, on another trial, produce a different result. Bain v. Polasek (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 279.

Where plaintiff testified that his injury resulted when his horse kicked, being fright­ened by a car, newly discovered evidence that the horse began to plunge and kick when the breeching fell on his legs before the car approached, is material as to war­rant new trial, if diligence is shown. Tarrant County Traction Co. v. Bradshaw (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 951.

It is not an abuse of discretion to refuse new trial in action to try title to wife's separate property, because of newly discovered evidence of admissions made by her hus­band, not in her presence, after the conveyance under which appellants claim. Qualla v. Fowler (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 256.

The trial court correctly denied a motion for new trial based upon an affidavit that the lever to a stump puller, for whose purchase price the note sued upon was given, was about 20 feet long, instead of 18 feet, as stated at the trial. Jenkins v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1091.

A new trial will not be granted for newly discovered evidence tending to establish agreement which was unenforceable for want of consideration. Boerger v. Vandegrift (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 948.

Evidence of a subsequent judgment covering a phase of the litigation held newly discovered evidence entitling him to a new trial, not being cumulative of evidence at trial as to materials furnished by the materialman. Harlan v. Texas Fuel & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1142.

Denial of a motion for a new trial for newly discovered evidence held not shown to have been an abuse of the trial court's discretion; the evidence being only corrob­orative and diligence not being shown. Deggs v. Loving (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 3.

A new trial will not be granted for newly discovered evidence which is cumulative in its character, and which would probably not have changed the result. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Barlett (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1039.

Newly discovered evidence of a witness of an accident, who was more advantageous.

Chap. 17) COURTS—DISTRICT AND COUNTY—PRACTICE IN Art. 2019

37. Impeachment of witness.—Ordinarily newly discovered evidence, designed merely for impeachment, will not require new trial. Quals v. Fowler (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 286; Glover v. Pfeuffer (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 584.

38. Where evidence claimed by adverse possession, plaintiff's manager testified that, when defendant told him that he would not claim the land, H. was present, alleged newly discovered evidence that, if any such conversation occurred between the manager and defendant, H. did not hear it held not ground for a new trial. Allison v. Arlington Heights Realty Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1033.

In an action to try title by wife, against vendees claiming more land conveyed than that conveyed by the husband, not in wife's presence, acreage deemed conveyed to the acreage would merely tend to discredit the husband. Quals v. Fowler (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 596.

Ordinarily, newly discovered testimony of a cumulative and impeaching character cannot form the basis of a motion for new trial. Kersh v. Matthews (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 783.

In an action for breach of marriage promise, newly discovered evidence, which tended to impeach plaintiff's testimony but also to establish that plaintiff had not given birth to a child, held sufficient to require the granting of a new trial. Huggins v. Carey (Sup.) 194 S. W. 133.

39. Credibility and probable effect.—It was not an abuse of discretion to deny a motion for new trial for newly discovered evidence where it did not appear that the newly discovered evidence would have produced a different result. House v. Filgo (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 173.

A new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence will not be granted where such evidence could not change the result. First Texas State Ins. Co. v. Hare (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 282.

In an action for delay in delivering telegram, newly discovered evidence that time-table admitted in evidence was not in force was not ground for new trial, where plaintiff could have taken an earlier train, and did reach destination in time for funeral services shown to have been taken place. Mansell v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1178.

New trial will not be granted for newly discovered evidence, unless it is likely that the evidence would produce a different result upon a new trial. Brady v. Cope (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 678.

40. Harmless error.—In action on accident policy, where evidence as to cause of death was conflicting, though letters in evidence contained expressions as to the cause of death, and as to sending a small draft in full for all claims which were not strictly admissible, held, that such expressions were not sufficiently prejudicial to require a new trial. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Co. v. Hendricks (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 1007.

III. Right to new trial and prerequisites to granting thereof

42. Estoppel.—The sufficiency of the evidence to warrant the submission of the question of negligence to the jury cannot be questioned on motion for new trial, where the defendant requested a charge defining negligence at the trial of the case. Be Candy Mfg. Co. v. Maibbaum (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 575.

According to affidavit, losing party is not precluded from moving for new trial on ground of the insufficiency of evidence because previously to verdict he made an unsuccessful attempt to have a judgment rendered contrary to it. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 761.

A deposition had long been on file and disclosed the names of the witnesses whose affidavits were relied upon to show false testimony in the deposition. A motion for a new trial for newly discovered evidence was properly denied for want of diligence. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Keith (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 192.

Denial of a new trial for newly discovered evidence held not an abuse of discretion, where it did not appear that it could not have been found before by ordinary diligence. Schramm v. P. J. Owens Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1016.

New trial for newly discovered evidence, consisting of testimony of witness, held properly denied, where it did not appear what effort the moving party made to find the witness, or that he could not have found him before the trial if he had tried. Id.

A motion for new trial for alleged newly discovered evidence was properly denied, where defendant knew of the evidence before the trial but did not produce it, and his only excuse was that it "slipped" his memory. Clemmons v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1103.

Defendant is not entitled to a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence, a deed of trust, of which the circumstances put him on inquiry. Ablon v. Wheeler & Motter Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 527.

This article and art. 2023, requiring motions to set aside judgments and for new trials to be made within two days after rendition of judgments, are directory only, and it is within the court's discretion to grant a motion thereafter. First Nat. Bank of Ft. Worth v. Henwood (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 5.

New trial will not be granted for newly discovered evidence except upon showing of good reason why the evidence was not discovered prior to trial and produced thereon. Brady v. Cope (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 678.

Where the materiality of facts could not be anticipated before the trial because of change of claim of the successful party after the trial began, newly discovered evidence of such facts entitled the unsuccessful party to new trial. Delano v. Delano (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 972.

In action on railroad for damages to automobile in crossing collision, held, that for want of diligence trial court properly overruled defendant's motion for new trial for newly discovered evidence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Cummins (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 161.

V. REVIEW BY APPELLATE COURTS

55. Review of discretion of trial court.—The refusal of new trial for newly discovered evidence will be reversed, unless an abuse of discretion is shown. Kersh v. Matthews (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 785; House v. Fligo (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 373.

The trial judge's action on a motion for a new trial for newly discovered evidence will not be reviewed unless it affirmatively appears that he has abused his discretion. People v. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 18 Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 182.

Where the evidence was conflicting as to whether the jury were influenced, by improper motives, a finding by the trial court that they were not, is conclusive on appeal. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Hagen (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 554.

Court of Civil Appeals Rules 24, 25 (142 S. W. xii), providing that a ground of error not distinctly set forth in the motion for new trial will be deemed waived unless fundamental, and District and County Courts Rule 71a (145 S. W. vii), requiring a motion for new trial except where the statute does not require it, require a motion for new trial in all cases except where the statute does not require it. Cooney v. Dandridge (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 177.

A party could not complain of the trial of a cause at the term to which it was continued, although the time of holding such term was changed without his knowledge, where he did not contest before the judgment of the court the sufficiency of the reasons for his absence, and that his defense was meritorious. Guerra v. Guerra (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 191.

Under rules 24 and 25 (142 S. W. xii) and 71a (145 S. W. vii), requiring specification of errors and motion for new trial to perfect an appeal, the filing of such a motion is a prerequisite to the consideration of assignments of error complaining that the judgment is contrary to the law and the evidence. Moore v. Moore (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 856.

In the absence of a statement of fact, bills of exception, and motion for new trial, a judgment will be affirmed, unless fundamental error appears on the face of the record proper. National Aéroplane Co. v. McCormick (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 375.

The determination that the defense of the issues of the suit is not waived by failure to raise it on motion for new trial. Campbell Banking Co. v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1012.

Notice of appeal in the court below and a motion for a new trial therein are not required, where the case is brought up by petition and writ of error. McPhaul v. Byrd (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 644.

If a judgment could not properly have been rendered as it was rendered, the error was such as to require a new trial. Smith v. Michelson (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 235.

In an action for specific performance, where the pleadings alleged a written contract, submission to the jury of whether defendant was entitled to recover on a verbal contract of sale, which can be raised in the motion for new trial. Loop Land & Irrigation Co. v. Ogburn (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 914.

Where the record contained no assignment of error, motion for new trial, or bill of exceptions, and no fundamental error is suggested or observed, the judgment will be affirmed. Simpson v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 10.

Sufficiency of service will not be considered on appeal where new motion to set aside as a default nor in the answer. Miller v. First State Bank & Trust Co. of Santa Anna. (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 614.

Plea of privilege to be sued in county of defendant's residence held not waived by failure in motion for new trial to reserve the right to insist on such plea if the motion were granted. Johnson v. Waggoner (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 836.

Errors not brought to attention of trial court in motion for new trial cannot be considered, unless they are fundamental errors apparent from record. Vaky v. Phelps (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 691; see, also, notes under arts. 1255, 1254, 1252, 1251, 1215.

57. — Trial by court.—A motion for a new trial is not a prerequisite to an appeal, where the case was tried by the court and conclusions of fact and law were prepared and filed. Moore v. Rabb (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 55; Cooney v. Dandridge (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 178.

Under Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 2023, and District Court Rule 71a (145 S. W. vii), where the trial court filed its conclusions of fact and law in time and in time to permit appellant to allege error therein by a motion for a new trial, his failure to include such objections in his motion was fatal to their review. Head v. Altman (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 135.

Under Acts 33d Leg., c. 138 (Vernon's Styles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 1612), requiring assignments of error to be filed, and making the assignments of error in a motion for a new trial, that where findings of fact and conclusions of law were not filed by the trial court, and plaintiff in error did not file a motion for a new trial therein, there were no assignments of error which could be considered. Pollard v. Allis v. Sims (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 382.

Rule 24 of the Supreme Court (142 S. W. xii) must be construed together with other court rules, including 71a (145 S. W. vii), and when so construed does not require a motion for a new trial in cases tried to the court, nor does the right to have an appeal considered in such cases, without filing a notice for new trial, depend on the trial judge of his conclusions of fact or law. Craver v. Greer (Sup.) 175 S. W. 862, answering certified questions (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 695, and answer conforming to (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 365.

Where a case is tried without a jury, motion for new trial is not prerequisite to perfection of appeal. Rockdale Mercantile Co. v. Brown Shoe Co. (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 281.

58. — Sufficiency and scope of motion.—Under District Court Rule 71a (145 S. W. vii), requiring a motion for a new trial as a prerequisite to an appeal or a writ of error, an error is not set forth in the motion, unless it is not apparent where it is not otherwise apparent after it was too late to file the motion. Head v. Altman (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 125.

The purpose of Courts of Civil Appeals rules 24 and 25 (142 S. W. xii) was to confine the grounds of error set up in the motion for new trial. Smallvay v. Grand Lodg. of O. U. W. (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1041.

60. — Review of rulings on pleadings.—A motion for a new trial is not necessary to present error in the sustaining of exceptions to the answer. May v. Waniger (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1198.

Petitioner's objection that a divorce petition was insufficient for failure to deny charges of indolence alleged will not be considered on appeal, where not raised in pleadings or motion for new trial. Hill v. Hill (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 726.

63. — Review of rulings on instructions.—Under arts. 2061, 2062, providing that error in instructions shall be regarded as excepted to in all cases, and that, where error appears otherwise of record, a bill of exceptions is not necessary, the Court of Civil Appeals ruled that error not set forth in the motion for new trial should be considered waived, does not require that a ruling in giving or refusing instructions be included in the motion for new trial. Brewer v. A. M. Blythe & Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 786; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Beasley, 196 Tex. 160, 155 S. W. 2d 256; Moses v. Houston Oil Co. v. Drumwright, 196 Tex. 156, 156 S. W. 471.

A ruling giving or refusing instructions need not be included in the motion for new trial to preserve the ruling for review. Lee v. Moore (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 437; Houston Oil Co. v. Drumwright (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1011.

Plaintiff cannot complain of appeal of a special charge given for defendant, where it was not excepted to or assigned as error in the motion for new trial. Ross v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 513.

Where no objections are urged against an instruction when it is given, or on motion for new trial, its propriety will not be reviewed on appeal. Witt v. Young (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1019.

Under Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 1996, providing for entry of judgment on special verdicts, article 1991, authorizing appeals without a statement of facts upon noting exceptions on the record in the judgment entry, and Supreme Court rule 71a (148 S. W. vii), requiring motions for new trial except where not required by statute, a motion for new trial is unnecessary on appeal from judgment entered on a special jury verdict. Varie v. Nichols-Shepard Sales Co. (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 611.

65. — Review of amount of recovery and the awarding of costs.—Error in rendering judgment for the purchaser in an executory contract for the difference between the contract price and the market value, on failure of title is reviewable without motion for new trial. Yzaguirre v. Garcia (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 139.

Whether there is a cause of action, or a reason to justify judgment for some amount, the fact that the judgment was for an amount greater or less than facts required, or was rendered for that sum because of improper evidence, presents no fundamental error which would warrant a reversal, in absence of specifications of error in motion for new trial. Levy v. Engle Bros. Co. (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 548.

66. — Exceptions and objection in trial court.—The objection that the statement of a newly discovered witness attached to a motion for new trial was acknowledged, but not sworn to, which was not raised in the trial court or in the brief in the Court of Appeals, cannot be raised in Supreme Court. Huggins v. Carey (Sup.) 194 S. W. 133.

VI. OPENING DEFAULT JUDGMENTS

68. Right to vacation in general.—To justify the court in setting aside a judgment by default, the defendant's motion therefor must negative the want of diligence on its part, and show that he had a good defense to plaintiff's demand. Order of Asteca v. Noble (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 623.

A default judgment, reciting that there was proof of the matters alleged in plaintiff's petition, without any record showing that it was rendered without proof thereof, will not be set aside as rendered without proof. Id.

Where trial was not actually delayed, a default taken for defendant's failure to file its answer within time should be set aside; defendant's counsel having made an effort to have the answer filed, though the diligence was very slight. International Travelers' Ass'n v. Bryan (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1106.

Motion to set aside default judgment by defendants, arriving at court a few minutes after judgment was entered, held to show diligence, and hence motion should have been granted. Trust Co. of Santa Anna v. Eubank (Sup.) 186 S. W. 614.

A petition to open default stating that defendant held a release of plaintiff's claim, and that in telephone conversation with parties claiming to be attorneys of plaintiff they stated the case would go no further, held good against a general demurrer. Keller v. Young (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 405.

A judgment by default when an answer was on file will not be set aside, where the defendant did not call the trial court's attention to the answer or move to set the judgment aside during the term at which it was rendered. Wood v. Love (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 226.

A default judgment cannot be set aside for lack of proper service if a person of ordinary prudence would have discovered the judgment in time to have filed a motion for new trial during the same term of court. Kimmell v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 385.

Default judgment will not be disturbed unless clearly shown that a party has been prevented by fraud, accident, or the opposite party's acts from making a valid defense. Martin v. Clements (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 477.

Refusal to set aside a default judgment on the ground of the absence of defendant's attorney held within the court's discretion. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Stearns (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1197.

Setting aside a judgment by default is largely within the discretion of the court, but an appellate court will revise exercise of court's discretion when it is clear it has been abused, although a stronger case, showing abuse of discretion, is required for reversal than where trial on merits has been denied. Combination Fountain Co. v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 407.

Excuse for default.—A default judgment cannot be set aside unless there is a good excuse for failure to answer at the proper time. Delawaro Ins. Co. v. Hutto (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 73.

A corporation, seeking to vacate a default judgment rendered against it, held not to have excused its failure to present its defense in time. 1d.

Where defendants were induced not to appear by the misstatements of their attorneys that the case was settled and either had or would be dismissed, such misrepresentation was not mere negligence on part of the attorneys, but constituted fraud in law entitling defendants to have a default judgment entered against them set aside in equity, and where, at the appearance term in an action against nonresidents, plaintiff changed the proceedings from one in personam to an action in rem without notice, defendants were relieved of the imputation of negligence in permitting such default. Connell v. Nickey (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 313.

Evidence of a statement of the district judge to one of the complainants held not to justify complainants in refusing to come to court in response to the summons of their counsel so as to justify the vacation of a default judgment in equity. Irvin v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1093.

In a suit to set aside a default judgment, any evidence having a tendency to establish mental weakness on complainant's part such as would excuse his failure to appear at the time the case was called was admissible. 1d.

A defendant cannot procure the setting aside of a default judgment for failure of his attorney to perform the services for which he was employed. Shipp v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 598.

Where defendants not only showed a meritorious defense, but offered an excuse for default in filing their answer, the default should be set aside and a new trial granted, where they agreed to go to trial at once. R. R. Dancy & Co. v. Rosenberg (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 831.

Absence of defendant's counsel at the time he had requested trial, by reason of engagement in unfinished case, held excusable, so that denial of new trial on judgment by defendant for adverse party was error. Hovey v. Halsey-Arledge Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 897.

On motion for new trial on ground of absence of defendant's counsel when case was called, absence was excused, held, that the duty devolved on plaintiff to call his defendant to new trial after default judgment. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Imboden (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 990.

Where no legal service is had upon defendants, a default judgment may be set aside without showing a sufficient excuse for failure to appear. Miller v. First State Bank & Trust Co. of Santa Anna (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 614.

Where a default judgment which is not void is sought to be vacated, an excuse for failure to answer on the original suit must be shown. Hester v. Baskin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 726.

Whenever a plaintiff or his attorney, by an act or agreement, causes defendant to relax diligence, which is otherwise required, the failure of defendant to present a defense cannot be urged as a sufficient reason for denying opening of judgment entered upon such default. Keller v. Young (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 405.

Trial court did not abuse discretion in vacating default judgment against defendant, taken because an attorney requested to represent him, failed to understand the request. Combination Foun. Co. v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 407.

Where defendant on account of misunderstanding with his attorney and owing to father's fatal illness was defaulted, a new trial was properly refused; no fraud or undue advantage being shown. Martin v. Clements (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 427.

Meritorious cause of action or defense.—A default judgment will not be set aside unless there is a meritorious defense. Delaware Ins. Co. v. Hutto (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 78.

On direct attack of a default judgment, as based on a defective citation, defendants need not allege the nature of their defense to the action; the rule of meritorious defense being confined to collateral attacks. McCaulley v. Western Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1009.

Denial of motion to vacate default judgment not void on the face of the record, which did not show diligence and a meritorious defense, was proper. Western Lumber Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 644.

To set aside a default judgment the motion must show a meritorious defense as well as a failure to answer and appear. Miller v. First State Bank & Trust Co. of Santa Anna (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 614.
VII. OPENING AND VACATING JUDGMENTS

74. Authority of court.—The trial court may during term time set aside a decree of divorce and grant a new trial. Linnwilser v. Linnwilser (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1135.

A judgment in a case was not void, because the decree was not made after the final judgment. State v. O'Fallon (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 929.

75. Judgments which may be vacated.—A judgment of the county court awarding a right of way to owner of the fee. If not used within two years, could not be reopened by motion to declare a reversion on the ground of nonuser, since such motion was in the nature of an independent action to determine title to the easement, dependent upon a future contingency, and not involved in the original suit. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Temple Northwestern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1973.

76. Persons entitled to relief.—Judgment against husband in favor of creditor was final judgment forever determining that husband was indebted to creditor, so far as they or their privies were concerned, and wife, stranger to suit, could not in direct proceeding have judgment. Stolte v. Karcher (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 609.

77. Persons who may be granted relief.—In an action to set aside a partition judgment for fraud in procuring it, and want of service on infant defendants, the rights of the holders of notes given in part payment of the land at the partition sale, who were not parties to the action, cannot be determined. Dean v. Dean (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 96.

Where, if citation was not served upon minor defendants in partition, the judgment would be invalid on direct attack as to the parties to the judgment, bona fide purchasers from such parties will be protected where the judgment recites service, though the judgment be invalid for want of service. Id.

78. Failure to resort to other remedies.—Equity will not set aside judgment where, after rendition, there was a compromise and settlement, and, in violation thereof, execution issued and judgment was satisfied by sale to a third person; the remedy then being an action at law for damages for the wrongful taking. Steger v. Lumber Co. v. McSwain (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 292.

80. Persons against whom relief may be granted.—In an action to set aside a partition judgment for fraud in procuring it, and want of service on infant defendants, the rights of the holders of notes given in part payment of the land at the partition sale, who were not parties to the action, cannot be determined. Dean v. Dean (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 96.

While, if citation was not served upon minor defendants in partition, the judgment would be invalid on direct attack as to the parties to the judgment, bona fide purchasers from such parties will be protected where the judgment recites service, though the judgment be invalid for want of service. Id.

81. Grounds for relief in general.—Where intervention was filed in a suit to foreclose a chattel mortgage to assert the superiority of intervener’s lien on the property, plaintiff having recovered judgment without reference to the plea of intervention, the judgment would not be set aside on a bill of review to determine the question of priority. Nocoma Nat. Bank v. Goin (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 189.

A judgment is conclusive between the parties, except on appeal, unless the judgment debtor establishes grounds for equitable relief, and shows that it was through no fault or lack of diligence on his part that the grounds on which he bases his claim to vacate the judgment were not presented at the trial. Patrucio v. Selkirk (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 656.

It is no ground for relief against a judgment recovered against a party that it was obtained by reason of a mistake or negligence of his attorney; such mistake or negligence being imputed to the client. Fisher v. Hemming (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 913.

In a suit to set aside a judgment at a subsequent term, complainants are entitled to relief on showing a meritorious defense which they were prevented from establishing by accident, fraud, or mistake, and not by their fault or neglect. Irwin v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1059.

82. Laches.—Where no application to set aside a judgment for fraud was made until after the expiration of 12 years, the debtor’s application will not be entertained without a sufficient explanation of the delay. Patrucio v. Selkirk (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 656.

Where complainant, on being served with process and petition seeking to charge him personally with the payment of vendor’s lien notes, filed a general denial and paid no further attention to the suit, he was guilty of negligence and could not maintain a suit to set aside a judgment recovered against him on the ground that he was not personally liable. Fisher v. Hemming (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 913.

Neither lapse of time nor laches affect the right to sue to vacate a judgment void on its face. McCamant v. McCamant (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1696.

83. Vacating judgments upon appeal.—Where intervention was filed in a suit to foreclose a chattel mortgage to assert the superiority of intervener’s lien on the property, plaintiff having recovered judgment without reference to the plea of intervention, the judgment would not be set aside on a bill of review to determine the question of priority. Nocoma Nat. Bank v. Goin (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 189.

A judgment is conclusive between the parties, except on appeal, unless the judgment debtor establishes grounds for equitable relief, and shows that it was through no fault or lack of diligence on his part that the grounds on which he bases his claim to vacate the judgment were not presented at the trial. Patrucio v. Selkirk (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 656.

It is no ground for relief against a judgment recovered against a party that it was obtained by reason of a mistake or negligence of his attorney; such mistake or negligence being imputed to the client. Fisher v. Hemming (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 913.

In a suit to set aside a judgment at a subsequent term, complainants are entitled to relief on showing a meritorious defense which they were prevented from establishing by accident, fraud, or mistake, and not by their fault or neglect. Irwin v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1059.

84. Allegations of motion to have a judgment foreseeing a vendor’s lien and the sale made thereunder set aside held, as against a general demurrer, to state a cause of action entitled the moving party to have the judgment set aside. Smith v. McDaniel (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1070.

An agreement by plaintiff’s attorney to dismiss held within the scope of his authority, so that defendant could have a judgment thereafter obtained without notice vacated. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1069.

Though the refusal of a district court to permit the filing of a motion for a new trial and to allow same could not be adequately presented on appeal, it would furnish cause for direct proceeding to set aside the judgment. Cooney v. Isaacs (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 901.

A judgment must be set aside, where the record shows that the court was without jurisdiction of defendant, without showing as to a good defense. San Bernardo Townsite Co. v. Hocker (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 644.
Before a judgment against defendant in divorce on two grounds, entered on appearance day in the absence of his counsel, should be set aside, defendant must show a meritorious defense, setting up the facts upon which each of the defenses rests, and show that a different result would be reached on another trial. Wade v. Wade (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 443.

That judgment was obtained in violation of an oral agreement for postponement, held ground for equitable relief. Medlin v. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 899.

A party prevented from prosecuting his suit or making his defense by mistake can bring an equitable action after close of term to reopen and dispose of the case on its merits. Hester v. Baskin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 726.

If judgment is rendered by a court of competent jurisdiction, error therein does not render the judgment void, or order to set aside, except for fraud, accident, or mistake, but where the amount in controversy is so small as to prevent appeal. Kalmans v. Baumbush (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 697.

A judgment will not be set aside for defects or insufficiency in the pleadings, especially where the alleged defect was amendable or had been waived by joining issue and by going to trial. McCamant v. McCamant (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1096.

When judgment attacked is valid on its face, seeking its annulment must show, not only want of citation or appearance, but a good defense. Walker v. Chatterton (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1085.

Where judge who dismissed cause was disqualified by having acted as counsel, motion filed at subsequent term to set aside judgment should have been granted. Kruegel v. Williams (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 665.

Fraud, perjury, or other misconduct.—A party prevented from prosecuting his case or making his defense by fraud can bring an equitable action after the close of term to reopen and dispose of the case on its merits. Hester v. Baskin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 726.

Court of equity will not set aside judgment obtained through accident, fraud, or mistake, unless defendant in judgment has meritorious defense to action, which must be fully set forth and clearly proved. First Nat. Bank v. Hartzog (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 353.

If the plaintiff has fraudulently procured a decree of divorce which may be set aside on the ground that property was obtained by fraud, or for the purpose of obtaining property not otherwise subject to the decree, the judgment should be set aside. Baumbush v. Baumbush (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 353.

Court of equity will not set aside judgment obtained through accident, fraud, or mistake, unless defendant in judgment has meritorious defense to action, which must be fully set forth and clearly proved. First Nat. Bank v. Hartzog (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 353.

If judgment is rendered by a court of competent jurisdiction, error therein does not render the judgment void, or order to set aside, except for fraud, accident, or mistake, but where the amount in controversy is so small as to prevent appeal. Kalmans v. Baumbush (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 697.

A judgment will not be set aside for defects or insufficiency in the pleadings, especially where the alleged defect was amendable or had been waived by joining issue and by going to trial. McCamant v. McCamant (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1096.

When judgment attacked is valid on its face, seeking its annulment must show, not only want of citation or appearance, but a good defense. Walker v. Chatterton (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1085.

Where judge who dismissed cause was disqualified by having acted as counsel, motion filed at subsequent term to set aside judgment should have been granted. Kruegel v. Williams (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 665.

84. Fraud, perjury, or other misconduct.—A party prevented from prosecuting his case or making his defense by fraud can bring an equitable action after the close of term to reopen and dispose of the case on its merits. Hester v. Baskin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 726.

Court of equity will not set aside judgment obtained through accident, fraud, or mistake, unless defendant in judgment has meritorious defense to action, which must be fully set forth and clearly proved. First Nat. Bank v. Hartzog (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 353.

Where claimant obtained a decree reforming a deed to his wife, since deceased, to her separate property, on the ground that the consideration in fact was community property, a petition for a new trial, alleging on information and belief only that the consideration was in fact the wife's separate property, held insufficient. Strickland v. Baugh (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 181.

Defendants' motion for new trial held properly refused, where it was improperly verified, stated no meritorious defense, and was made so late in term that its granting would have made necessary a continuance. Cunningham v. Gaines (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 148.

Motion for new trial alleging defendant's reliance on his attorney to file answer was defective for not showing employment was effective. Martin v. Clements (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 457.

Allegations of motion for new trial may be controverted and evidence heard as to their truth. Id.

Specification of errors.—Under district and county court rule 68, grounds of motion for new trial so as to make it conform to new facts then presented; its only right being to set aside judgment, in case the new evidence would probably be a different result on the second trial. Swan v. Price (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 94.

Where complainant had obtained a decree reforming a deed to his wife, since deceased, to her separate property, on the ground that the consideration in fact was community property, a petition for a new trial, alleging on information and belief only that the consideration was in fact the wife's separate property, held insufficient. Strickland v. Baugh (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 181.

Defendants' motion for new trial held properly refused, where it was improperly verified, stated no meritorious defense, and was made so late in term that its granting would have made necessary a continuance. Cunningham v. Gaines (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 148.

Motion for new trial alleging defendant's reliance on his attorney to file answer was defective for not showing employment was effective. Martin v. Clements (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 457.

Allegations of motion for new trial may be controverted and evidence heard as to their truth. Id.
Errors assigned in sustaining general and special demurrers to the petition need not be in a portion of the new trial, particularly where the new trial, substantially. Stein Double Cushion Tire Co. v. Wm. T. Fulton Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 1012.

If the statement of facts will not support the findings and judgment, the motion for new trial must point out wherein the statement is insufficient. Edwards v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 288.

Under this article and rule 68 (142 S. W. xxii), a motion for new trial because court erred in directing a verdict for plaintiff for any amount held too general to require consideration. Hamilton Land & Water Co. v. Houston Motor Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 638.

Plaintiff's motion for new trial, "because on the face of the pleadings and the undisputed testimony plaintiff was entitled to recover," and "in finding that the facts and evidence in the case were not such as to estop the defendant to deny the amount claimed," held too general to support assignments of error. Sullivay v. Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1041.

Statements in the motion for new trial that the judgment was contrary to the evidence and the law are too general. Stevens v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 972.

Where defendants filed a joint motion for a new trial, claiming that the verdict is against the weight of the evidence, the motion will be overruled, if the evidence supports the verdict as to any of the defendants. Martin v. Burr (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1044.

Amended and supplemental motions.—The filing of an amended motion for new trial has the effect of eliminating the original motion, and no part of it not in the amended motion can be considered. Walter v. Rowland (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 981.

Affidavits and other evidence.—On motion for new trial, testimony of witnesses presented therewith held to show probable merit in defense so as to entitle defendant to new trial, if the absence of its attorney was excusable. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Imboden (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 900.

Where on appeal from a judgment overruling a motion for a new trial, the record shows new trial was not supported by affidavits accompanying the motion, it will be presumed that the court was correct in overruling the motion. Crosby v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 795.

Allegations of fact, in a motion for a new trial supported by affidavit, need not be answered, denied, and will not be taken as confessed. Id.

A motion for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence, not accompanied by the affidavit of the witness stating what his testimony would be, was insufficient. Chaffin v. Shirley (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 641.

Affidavit for new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence held sufficient to show due diligence. Tarrant County Traction Co. v. Bradshaw (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 951.

Motion for new trial based on affidavits of jurors that they had known effect of answers. Affidavits they would have answered differently was properly refused. McIntosh v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 285.

Hearing on motion.—A motion for new trial, not involving a trial upon the merits of the case, is properly disposed of in a summary manner, either upon the face of the record or upon affidavits of the parties and their supporting witnesses. Hester v. Baskin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 726.

Irrelevant matter.—Trial court, while authorized to eliminate from motion for a new trial, any irrelevant and scurrilous matter, held not authorized, by reason of such matter, to strike out the entire motion. Peck v. Murphy & Bolanz (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 542.

Opening default.—On motion to open default, held, that answer filed therewith, though verified on information and belief, might be considered in determining whether it showed a meritorious defense. Miller v. First State Bank & Trust Co. of Santa Anna (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 614.

Art. 2021. [1371] [1369] Misconduct of jury, etc., as ground of motion; evidence.

Disqualification of jury.—That juror misstated he had never been represented by attorney for plaintiff was not ground for setting aside verdict for plaintiff or for granting new trial, in absence of some showing that defendant was injured by accepting the juror. Galveston Electric Co. v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 533.

Misconduct of jury.—That a jury, examining a public record book, considered a second deed of trust on the property in controversy, which had not been introduced in evidence, and which the parties did not know was recorded in the book, held error requiring a new trial. South Texas Mortgage Co. v. Dozier (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1061.

In an action against a railway company for the negligent firing of plaintiff's sawmill, held, that new trial should be granted where a juror received information from the effect that plaintiff's witnesses testified falsely. Id.

Where jurors were not told not to visit a railway crossing involved in the action, and in so doing did not intend to disobey any order, or violate any rule of decorum, held, that their verdict should not be set aside merely to rebuke them and enforce discipline. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Waits (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 870.

Under this article, it is unnecessary for the court, in determining whether a verdict was procured by misconduct, to hear evidence, to the extent the fact was not otherwise established. Id. (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 93.

A showing that jurors agreed to the verdict because of the argument of other jurors, or the amount of the attorney's fees held to entitle defendant to a new trial. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. McKinnell (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1091.

Right to object to misconduct of jurors held waived, where plaintiff knew of such alleged misconduct and failed to call same to the court's attention. Williams v. Phelps (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1100.
Jurors who, during the deliberations of the jury, narrated their personal experience, and one of them expressed his leg to show the effects of a disease thereon, held guilty of misconduct. Guttenston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Brassil (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 522.

Where there was no agreement that quotient should be the verdict, and it was not in fact adopted, division of aggregate of amounts fixed on by individual jurors held not to require new trial. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 488.

Under this article, a verdict will not be set aside on the ground that it was determined by lot in the absence of an agreement beforehand to abide by the result. Weatherford, M. W. & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 822.

It is misconduct of the jury in a personal injury case to discuss or consider the fees of plaintiff’s attorney. San Antonio, B. & G. R. Co. v. Vaydym (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 852.

It is improper conduct for a jurymen to remark to the jury that he had friends on both sides, and therefore wanted the ballot to be secret, where it did not appear that the verdict was in any way improper. Crosby v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 765.

During deliberations as to alleged false representations, the statement of one juror to the others of his knowledge of a "bogus check law," as bearing upon the deliberations, which statement probably influenced the jury, is conduct necessitating reversal. Pridgen v. Cook (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 713.

New trial should be granted for the taking into the jury room, contrary to Rev. St. art. 1957, of a pleading in another case, not in evidence, influencing one juror, at least, to agree to a higher award. City of Ft. Worth v. Young (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 983.

An agreement by jurors to write upon separate papers the amount for which each juror desired to find and to use such papers merely as a working basis is not improper. Andrews v. York (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 338.

Where jury agreed that each should state in writing amount of damages he thought plaintiffs entitled to recover, and that sum of amounts should be divided by 12, which was done, but jurors thereafter further discussed result and finally agreed upon amount as verdict, verdict was proper. Marshall Traction Co. v. Harrington (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1165.

Burden of proof.—Under this article, a litigant impeaching a verdict by the testimony of the jurors has the burden of showing, not only that the matters of which he complains amount to misconduct on the part of the jury, but also that they operated to his prejudice. Kaker v. Parrish (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 517.

Admissibility of evidence of misconduct or to impeach verdict.—Assignments of error based upon affidavits given by jurors impeaching their verdict must be overruled. Williams v. Brown (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 107.

The verdict of the jury cannot be impeached by affidavits or evidence of the jurors that there was a mistake of fact entering into the verdict. Crosby v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 765. Under a statute authorizing the trial court to consider misconduct of the jury as ground for a new trial and requiring proof thereof to be made in open court, ex part affidavits of jurors cannot be considered. Fox v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 862.

Sufficiency of proof.—Testimony of jurors held insufficient to show that they arrived at a verdict at a trial of personal injury case where evidence was presented in the charge. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Higginbotham (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 482.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain the order of the trial court refusing a new trial on the ground of misconduct of the jury. Fox v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 852.

Where one juror stated at the hearing on the motion for new trial that the jury agreed to render a quotative verdict, but his statement was denied by the other eleven jurors, there was no error in overruling a motion for new trial. Andrews v. York (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 338.

Discretion of court and review.—Review of the trial court’s discretion under this article in denying new trial for misconduct of jury is confined to cases where it clearly appears the rights of the parties have been disregarded. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Geary (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 488; Virginia Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 487; Kaker v. Parrish (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 517.

The determination of a motion for new trial requested on the ground of the misconduct of a juror is not conclusive, unless an abuse of discretion be shown, even though this court may have exercised its discretion in granting motions. R. G. Andrews Lumber Co. v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1194.

Under this article, denial of new trial because jurors visited premises involved held not reversible where the record did not show whether the court heard evidence in support of the motion or, if so, what the evidence showed. City of Ft. Worth v. Curry (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 134.

Discretion in granting or refusing a new trial for misconduct of the juror under this article, is of the same nature as the discretion vested in the trial court in other cases, and that court can reach a safer conclusion on the question by examining the jurors than can the appellate court from the record. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Coffman (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 145.

The denial of a new trial on the ground that one of the jurors disclosed material facts which had not been introduced upon the trial will not be reviewed on appeal where the trial court heard evidence in accordance with this article, and no abuse of discretion is shown. Texas Co. v. Earles (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 29.

Under this article, ruling on motion for new trial, because jury visited scene of acob-

Where the foreman of the jury, after it had retired, was entertained over night by a defendant, plaintiff was entitled to new trial, notwithstanding this article, relating to the discretion of the court. First Nat. Bank v. Hix (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1095.

Since the law does not set forth an exact rule, the discretion of the court will not disturb the discretion of the trial court in denying a new trial asked on that ground, unless there was clearly an abuse of discretion. City of Ft. Worth v. Charbonneau (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 387.

Abuse of discretion, on overruling motion for new trial for improper communication to jury, will be overruled, where record contains affidavit attached to motion setting forth communication made, but there is no bill of exceptions showing that evidence was heard on motion, as required by this article, and setting forth such evidence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Paris & N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1188.

The discretion of the trial court to refuse a new trial for documents not in evidence being taken into the jury room is subject to revision. City of Ft. Worth v. Young (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 893.

Under a statute giving a trial court discretion to set aside a verdict and allow a new trial for misconduct of jury, the action of the court will not be reviewed unless there has been an abuse of discretion. Fox v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 852.

In action for breach of marriage promise, held that a juror's statement that he thought defendant was the man who had ruined another woman was not so prejudicial as to make the refusal of new trial an abuse of trial court's discretion, nor was fact that jury discharged plaintiff武士 would have such misconduct as made the trial court's refusal of a new trial an abuse of its discretion. Kaker v. Parrish (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 517.

A verdict by lot for an amount substantially the same as that awarded held not such misconduct as to make the refusal of a new trial on that ground an abuse of the trial court's discretion. Id.

Where trial court fully investigates alleged misconduct of jury, and finds it was not such as to require the jury in returning verdict, his action in overruling motion for new trial for such alleged misconduct will not be disturbed. Galveston Electric Co. v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 533.

In limine's action for injuries, refusal of new trial on ground of alleged misconduct of jury in fixing the amount of the verdict held not an abuse of trial court's discretion. Gulf States Telephone Co. v. Evetts (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 289.

In servant's action for injuries, trial court held not to have abused discretion in denying defendant's motion for new trial on ground of jury's misconduct in returning larger verdict than defendant was insured and plaintiff's attorneys were entitled to part of recovery. Marshall Mill & Elevator Co. v. Scharnberg (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 229.

The determination whether misconduct of jurors vitiates their verdicts rests in the discretion of the trial judge, and, unless an abuse of such discretion appears, the appellate courts have no authority to interfere therewith. Andrews v. York (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 333.

Under this article, refusal to grant a new trial because jury saw plaintiff in a swoon after they had retired to deliberate, and one of the jurors said he knew her, and that she was injured as she claimed to be, is not an abuse of discretion where jurors testify that they considered only evidence adduced at trial in arriving at their verdict. Houston Electric Co. v. Pearce (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 558.

Art. 2022. [1452] [1448] New trials granted where damages too small, etc.

See notes under arts. 767, 4694, 6648.

Wrongful sequestration, see art. 7097 and notes.

Power of court.—Where the trial court believed that the verdict was excessive, he had jurisdiction to grant a new trial on account thereof. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Goodwin (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1164.

A verdict cannot be set aside because excessive, unless it appears that passion or prejudice influenced the jury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 374.

Verdict of $1,000 in action against testamentary trustee for services in caring for a beneficiary during her last illness, held not excessive. McLean v. Bris (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 394.

Verdict for $75 exemplary damages for the tenant for wrongful suing out of a distress warrant by the landlord held not excessive under the evidence. Streetman v. Lasser (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 939.

Where plaintiff was 46 years of age, earning $125 a month, as general manager of a telephone company, and had been recently reduced from $175 a month, because company was not making money, verdict of $8,500 held not excessive. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Durrett (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 427.

If being impossible to say as matter of law that conclusions reached in a moderate verdict for mental suffering from a wrongful ejecment, approved by denial of new trial, were wrong, they will not be disturbed on appeal. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Darrah (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 293.

A $10,000 verdict does not indicate prejudice and passion on jury's part requiring reversal because exceeding amount claimed by $150. Houston Chronicle Pub. Co. v. Lemmon (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 347.

A verdict, fixing the damages to the land not taken, held not so excessive as to indicate prejudice, though it was nine times the greatest award by the commissioners. Jefferson County Traction Co. v. Wilhelm (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 448.

Where there was sufficient evidence to support a verdict of $300 for plaintiff's personal injuries, it will not be disturbed as inadequate. Morris v. Galveston Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 490.

Where no accurate rule of damages exists, and no improper motive in estimating amount is shown, and amount awarded does not indicate such fact, a verdict will not be disturbed. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Stear (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 637. See, also, notes under art. 1371 relating to particular matters.

In general.—Under this article, and District Court Rule 71a (145 S. W. vi.), where the trial court filed its conclusions of fact and law in term time, and in time to permit appellant to allege error therein by a motion for a new trial, his failure to include such objections in his motion was fatal to their review. Head v. Altman (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 125.

A motion for a new trial, filed, without any affidavits, on the day before the court closed, held not to give the opposite party an opportunity to answer so that it might be overruled on that ground. Glover v. Flesher (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 894.

There is no statutory authority for granting a new trial after the term. Rogers v. Dickson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 865.

Failure to file motion for a new trial within 2 days after verdict being an informality relating to the manner of appeal which was waived by not filing the motion within 30 days after the filing of the transcript, the motion for a new trial, even if filed too late in the court below, is in the record for consideration for all purposes. Winsboro Cotton Oil Co. v. Carson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1002.

Notwithstanding Vernon's Scales' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 1888, 1890, as to conclusiveness of special verdict on parties and court, such special findings may, in view of this article, art. 1612, Court of Civil Appeals rule 24 (142 S. W. xii.), and rule 71a for district and county courts (145 S. W. vii.), be attacked on motion for new trial, and its refusal reviewed. Hale v. Huesca (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 585.

Discretion of court.—Refusal of a motion to set aside a default, not filed within the two days required by statute, was within the court's discretion. Southern Benev. League v. English (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 659.

This article and art. 2019, requiring motions to set aside judgments and for new trials to be made within two days after rendition of judgments, are directory only, and it is

No sufficient excuse being shown why defendants were not represented on the trial or why they did not file their motion for new trial in the two days prescribed by statute, there is no abuse of discretion in denying the motion. Wisenhunt v. Park (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 297.

Petition or bill of review.—The petition in a suit in the nature of a bill of review to set aside the judgment in an action, relying on matters known at the time of, but not alleged in, the motion for new trial in the action, which was denied, held subject to general demurrer. McKenzie v. Connery (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 342.

A losing litigant may obtain a rehearing after the term when it is shown that the judgment was obtained by fraud, mistake, or accident, that he has a meritorious cause of action or defense, and that he was not negligent in failing to present his case, and that unless the judgment be set aside, he will sustain irreparable injury. Smith v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1070.

Function of bill of review is to review cases in the trial court when judgment is the result of fraud, accident, or mistake, and is no greater where judgment is rendered against a minor legally served and represented by guardian ad litem regularly appointed; the remedy against a judgment voidable because against a minor not represented by a guardian ad litem, the fact of infancy appearing on the face of the record, being by writ of error, and not bill of review. Kidd v. Prince (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 725.

A bill of review based on fraud must allege facts supporting the charge of fraud, show that, if true, complainant would have had judgment in the original action but for fraud of his adversary, and explain the failure to urge at the trial the falsity of alleged or testimony. Id.

On bill of review it will be presumed the judgment was based on the one of two facts alleged which would support it, and that it was established by evidence. Id.

Art. 2025. [1374] [1372] Determined when.

Time for hearing and decision in general.—Under this article, a Court of Civil Appeals has no authority or jurisdiction to require a district court to hear a motion for new trial after the term of court in which judgment was entered has expired. Cooney v. Isaacks (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 901.

Judgments may be modified or set aside after the term only in a separate suit, in the nature of a bill of review, and for a new trial, not acted upon during the term at which judgment is rendered, is by operation of law overruled by the expiration of such term, so that a judgment in partition suit confirming commissioners' report was final as to rights of parties, and the court erred in setting it aside, continuing the question of confirmation, and retrying the cause at a subsequent term. Rogers v. Dickson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 886.

The trial court properly refused to consider a motion to set aside a default judgment rendered at a previous term, and where it was in error in setting aside a default judgment after term, properly vacated the order on motion, leaving the default judgment as rendered at the previous term stand as originally entered. Hester v. Baskin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 726.

This article is mandatory. Grubbs v. Marple (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 597.

Cited, Brazoria County v. Padgitt (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1170; Mabee v. McDonald (Sup.) 175 S. W. 676.

Applicability of statute in general.—A bill of review does not lie to set aside a judgment where the judgment defendant neglected to make use of a legal remedy to vacate the judgment. Ferguson v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 782.

Judgments may be modified or set aside after the term only in a separate suit, in the nature of a bill of review. Rogers v. Dickson (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 865.

Parties.—Jointly represented defendants served with process in a previous suit held unnecessary in bill of review, brought under this article. Wiseman v. Cottingham (Sup.) 174 S. W. 281, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 817.

Cumulative remedy.—Under this article, remedy given is cumulative or additional to an appeal. Davenport v. Rutledge (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 988.

Grounds for relief.—This article merely extends the time within which a motion for a new trial may be made; "good cause" being largely within the discretion of the court governed by rules which control similar motions filed within the term. Strickland v. Baugh (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 181.

Award of new trial, under this article, held justified, where defendants could have defeated plaintiff's claim by tender of the amount due on the note given by their ancestor in payment for land. Wiseman v. Cottingham (Sup.) 174 S. W. 281, affirming Judgment (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 817.

Satisfactory showing of injury to complaining party and rendition of judgment by fraud, accident, or mistake, or the act of the opposite party, held necessary to support modification or vacation of judgment after the term. Rogers v. Dickson (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 865.

Under this article, defendant was entitled to a bill of review and to be heard upon merits of an action in a justice court against her on service by publication requiring her to appear at the second term, in which judgment was rendered by default at first term, although she had actual notice of suit, and facts might warrant another judgment. Davenport v. Rutledge (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 988.
CHAPTER EIGHTEEN
COSTS AND SECURITY THEREOF

Art. 2031. Each party liable for costs incurred by him.

Art. 2033. May put bill of costs with officer for collection, when; same has force of execution; appeal not to prevent execution for costs.

Art. 2034. Levy for costs; costs demanded of attorney; fees for collecting, when allowed.

Article 2031. [2491] [2427] Each party liable for costs incurred by him.

In general.—Under this article and arts. 2032-2034, the clerk of the district court cannot, before the final disposition of the appeal, issue execution against an appellant to collect for the furnishing of a transcript after the perfection of his appeal. Connellee v. Blanton (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 407.

In civil cases the general rule is that, when an appellant obtains judgment on the merits, he also obtains judgment for all the costs; but, if no costs can be collected from the adverse party, the appellant is liable to court officials for costs incurred by him. Doss v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 296.

Art. 2033. [1423] [1420b] May put bill of costs in hands of officer for collection, when. Same to have force of execution. Appeal not to prevent issuance of execution for costs.

Execution, issuance of.—Under this article and arts. 2031, 2033, 2034, the clerk of the district court cannot, before the final disposition of the appeal, issue execution against an appellant to collect for the furnishing of a transcript after the perfection of his appeal. Connellee v. Blanton (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 407.

Art. 2034. [1424] [1420c] Officer to levy for costs, when. Costs demanded of attorney when. Fees for collecting costs, when allowed.

Execution for costs.—Under this article and arts. 2031-2033, the clerk of the district court cannot, before the final disposition of the appeal, issue execution against an appellant to collect for the furnishing of a transcript after the perfection of his appeal. Connellee v. Blanton (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 407.

Art. 2035. [1425] [1421] Successful party to recover of his adversary.

2. Persons entitled to costs.—Where in trespass to try title to certain surveys, defendant admitted plaintiff's title to such surveys, but denied that a fence was on the boundary, and the jury found that the fence was not on the boundary, costs held properly taxed to plaintiff. J. D. Fields & Co. v. Allison (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 274.

The award of costs in favor of the widow of an employé of a railroad company who ultimately recovered judgment under the federal Employers' Liability Act, as his personal representative, not the railroad company prevailed in the re-election instituted by the widow as such. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 512.

Where plaintiff recovered against only one of the defendants, the costs of the successful defendant should be assessed against plaintiff. San Antonio, U. & G. Ry. Co. v. Storey (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 188.

Where defendant recovered both in respect to the general partnership set up by plaintiff and the special partnership set up by himself, he was entitled to recover all costs, though plaintiff recovered some items in controversy in the accounting. Hall v. Ray (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1135.

Under this article, the successful party is entitled to costs. Thornton v. Goodman (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 926.

3. Stakeholder.—In a suit by certain employees and materialmen against a railroad subcontractor, the railway company and the contractor are not entitled to attorney's fees as stakeholders, where they did not pay into court, but contested, the amount found due from them to the subcontractor. Texas Bldg. Co. v. Collins (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 404.

4. Persons and funds liable for costs in general.—Where, in trespass to try title by married woman's grantee, he sought a recovery against the husband and wife on the warranty of title, and they offered to rescind, judgment for plaintiff for title and possession held to have properly awarded him costs as against the husband and wife. Morton v. Calton (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 430.

A grantee of land subject to vendor's lien notes held liable for costs of the suit foreclosing the lien. Jones v. Gough (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 1107.

Where plaintiff promised his grantor to pay vendor's lien notes on the land he was primarily liable, and, in a suit to foreclose the notes, costs might be awarded against him. Id.

Taxation to defendants of costs incurred by unsuccessful plaintiffs held error. Ayers v. Snowball (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 257.
Where the only relief given plaintiffs in trespass to try title was not prayed for, defendant being unaware that it was demanded, and the only issue being decided for him by the jury, and plaintiffs not requesting the submission of others, the adjudging of costs against defendant was erroneous. Dewees v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 396.

Where case is abated in district court upon hearing of defendant's plea in abatement after reversal and remand by the Court of Civil Appeals on plaintiffs' appeal, costs in district court will be taxed against plaintiffs. Street v. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 725.

In action against several carriers for damages to shipment of live stock, all the costs of trial could not be charged against the defendant against whom judgment was had, in the event that other defendants were dismissed from the cause. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 765.

8. Injunction.—Where an injunction was finally denied, having already been moulded on motion, held improper, under this article and art. 2048, to tax costs up to the time of modification against defendant in the injunction suit. Cohen v. Strange (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1107.

13. Tender.—Where plaintiff's, suing on notes, did not admit as correct the amount demanded, plaintiff's claim, had been a tender thereof before suit, plaintiffs could recover costs, though admitting a small credit, and so recovering less than sued for. Bybee v. Austin & Riley (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 287.

14½. What constitute costs in general.—Expenses incident to litigation, which are properly attributable thereto, are always considered as costs. McClung v. Watson (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 532.

15. Attorney's fees as costs.—Plaintiff in garnishment held not entitled to recover attorney's fees against the garnishees; the only attorney's fees allowable being those authorized by statute to the garnishee. Waggoner v. Briggs (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 50.

A fraternal insurer, which paid the proceeds of a certificate into court and required the claimant, in error, to reimburse it for attorney's fees so expended. Wright v. Grand Lodge K. P., Colored (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 370.

An insurer, which, when sued in the county court, paid the money into court and asked that court to determine the owner, held not entitled to attorney's fees for the filing of a bill of interpleader in the circuit court. Bank which delivered to M. money and notes placed with it in escrow on his guaranty against loss held properly allowed an attorney's fee when sued with M., notwithstanding the guaranty. American Nat. Bank v. Warner (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 882.

22. Apportionment of costs.—Under this article and art. 2048, it is not an abuse of discretion for the trial court to award costs in the proportion which the recovery bears to the claim, where the recovery was less than asked for. Havard v. Carter-Kelley Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 756.

24. Discretion and review.—Under this article and art. 2048, in action for accounting, the court properly exercised its discretion in taxing all costs against defendant partner who fraudulently or negligently had kept books so that appointment of an auditor was necessary to determine amount of personal funds defendant had mingled with firm funds, Navarro v. Lamanna (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 922.

Art. 2038. [1428] [1424] Costs of motions.

Appeal from justice court.—Appellant, attempting to appeal to the county court from a judgment of a justice's court void and not appealable, held the losing party, liable to the costs of appeal, which the county court, under this article, might award him. Parker v. Watt (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 718.

Art. 2041. [1431] [1427] Costs of several suits, etc.

Art. 2042. [1432] [1428] Where demand reduced by payments, etc.

Reduction by set-off.—Under this article, where the judgment in the county court was reduced by set-off to $78.30 and costs, with foreclosure of a mortgage lien, the defendant, on motion, should have been allowed his costs. Tatum v. Small (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 214.

Art. 2046. [1436] [1432] On appeal and certiorari.

Costs on appeal or writ of error in general.—The court, awarding costs otherwise than as prescribed by this article, must, as required by art. 2048, state in the record the ground for its action, and its failure so to do renders the judgment as to costs irregular, constituting a reversal. Nall v. Wolfe City Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1166.

The costs of a former appeal, determined at a time when a corporation alone was defendant in the action, cannot be taxed against the stockholders, who were subsequently joined as defendants. Stauecke v. Routledge (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 444.

A successful appellant, having the case reversed and remanded, is entitled to recover the costs of such appeal in a proper proceeding in a proper tribunal. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 350.

Where petition to enjoin sale of realty under execution presents a good cause of action, at least as great as a general demurrer, the costs of the trial court should be adjudged, on appeal, against defendants in that court, but where erroneous order of nonresident district judge, continuing injunction against execution until modified or vacated by further order of his court, justified prosecution of appeal, costs on appeal would be adjudged against appellee. Wooten v. Odell (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 742.
Amount of recovery as affecting right to costs.—A plaintiff, obtaining a judgment in the court of justice, may recover more or less than in sum less than the costs assessed against defendant. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 540.

In action against administrator on claim, where plaintiff had judgment below, with costs taxed against defendant, and defendant, in appeal, plaintiff's costs were allowed, this article, and not article 3451, applies, and defendant was entitled to recover costs of county court. Morrison v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1084.

Affirmation as affecting costs.—Although a judgment was affirmed after allowing a remittitur, and after appeal, costs of appeal will be taxed against the appellee. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. McMeans (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 692.

Modification as affecting costs.—Where, after appeal, appellee remitted damages improperly, after the judgment, under art. 194, will be affirmed, though the costs will be taxed against the appellee. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Boyce (Civ. App.) 371 S. W. 1094.

Where through errors in computation a judgment for plaintiff was too large, and all of the excess except 30 cents was cured by remittitur, costs of appeal by defendant will be taxed against him, though appellate court reduces judgment. Fatherree v. Pickens (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 947.

Where the judgment was reformed and affirmed and appellees recovered a less amount than in lower court, costs were adjudged against appellees. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Brackin (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 894.

Reversal as affecting costs.—Plaintiff, in an action to foreclose vendor's lien notes, who was not in any way responsible for an adjudication that two parties defendant take nothing by their respective cross-actions against each other, should not on reversal of that judgment be charged with the costs of a defendant's writ of error. Swift v. Beemer (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 899.

Acts or omissions of parties affecting right.—In specific performance, where the decree erroneously failed to require the vendor to return the purchaser a deposit, costs of the action should not be taxed against the plaintiff, and where the motion for new trial did not call that error to the attention of the lower court. Burnett v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 808.

Where a party appeals to the county court from a judgment of the justice of the peace rendered against him at his own request, the costs in the county court should be taxed against the appellant, though he is successful in that court. Cage v. King (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 174.

Where plaintiff purposely failed to prove a case before a justice and appealed to the county court, where he was successful, the costs of the latter court should have been taxed against him. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. King (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 847.

Where appellant made no effort in the trial court to obtain correction of the judgment, which was erroneous only as to two items, and the trial court made no request for new trial, the costs of appeal would be reduced or abated. Soto v. State (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 779.

Where a judgment is reformed and affirmed, and the costs of appeal will be taxed against appellant, it is doubtful whether the objectionable feature which the trial court had its attention been called thereto. Soto v. State (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 779.

The costs of an appeal on which only a portion of the judgment for plaintiffs was reversed must be assessed against appellant, where they did not correct the error after new trial. San Antonio, U. & G. Ry. Co. v. Storey (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 185.

Though judgment was reformed as to computation as it could have been corrected in the court below under arts. 2016 and 2017, costs will be taxed against plaintiff in error, who was not otherwise successful. Ralke v. Clayton (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 498.

Where appellant, in his motion for new trial, failed to point out the particular error for which the judgment was reformed on appeal, and such error was so patent as that it would probably have been corrected if pointed out, he must pay costs on appeal. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 24.

Expense of record.—Under Rules 84, 85, for the District Courts (142 S. W. xxiii), providing what the record on appeal shall include, the original and amended petitions, which were subsequently amended, need not be set out in the statement of facts, if they appear in the transcript, even though introduced in evidence, and although error was assigned to overruling a motion to dismiss the suit on the changed cause of action in the amended petitions, nor need the motion to dismiss, which is set out in full in the bill of exceptions, be copied in the transcript. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Porter (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 694.

Rule 85 for the District Courts (142 S. W. xxiii), providing that counsel may agree upon the omission of unnecessary papers in the record, requires appellant to endeavor to make such an agreement. Id.

That the fact that the appellees agreed to a statement of facts does not estop them from asserting that it was unnecessarily prolix. Id.

Taxation of costs on appeal or error.—Where appellees, in a motion for rehearing, after the costs had been taxed against them, did not object to the items, a motion to re-tax the costs made after adjournment of the term at which the case was decided and the rehearing denied will not be considered. Zarate v. Villarreal (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 573.
Art. 2048. [1438] [1434] Court may otherwise adjudge costs.

Power of court in general.—The court, awarding costs otherwise than as prescribed by article, must, accorded by this article, state in its order, its reasons for its action, and its failure so to do renders the judgment as to costs irregular, necessitating a reversal. Naft v. Wolfe City Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1166.

Where, after a sworn answer is filed showing changed conditions that no longer entitle complainant to the temporary restraining order, it is dissolved, costs so far as necessary to give complainant the relief to which she is entitled may be taxed against defendant. Ross v. Veltmann (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1073.

Under this article and art. 2045, the county court could, on appeal from the justice court, adjudge all costs to appellant though its judgment was less than that of the justice court, where the difference was due to a miscalculation by the justice, and the error was not called to his attention. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Pires (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 665.

Under this article and art. 1943, where the court appointed a guardian ad litem for infant defendants, the court could, without further representation or service on them, allow compensation to the guardian and tax the same as costs against the successful infant defendants. Simmons v. Arnim (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 184.

In a permanent injunction was finally denied, having already been modified on motion, held improper under this article and art. 2035 to tax costs up to the time of modification against defendant in the injunction suit. Cohen v. Strange (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1197.

Taxation of costs of an appeal to Court of Civil Appeals is within the discretion of the court, and Supreme Court will not reverse it where not inequitable. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Walker (Sup.) 177 S. W. 954, granting motion to re tax costs (Sup.) 173 S. W. 208, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 199.

Under this article and art. 2035, it is not an abuse of discretion for the trial court to award costs in the proportion which the recovery bears to the claim, where the recovery was less than asked for. Havard v. Carter-Kelley Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 756.

The matter of taxing costs is ordinarily one of discretion with the trial court not subject to review unless abused. Thomas v. Meadow (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1111.

The matter of taxing costs is ordinarily one of discretion with the trial court. Id.

Apportionment of costs.—Under this article and art. 2035, in action for accounting, the court properly exercised its discretion in taxing all costs against defendant partner who fraudulently or negligently had kept books so that appointment of an auditor was necessary to determine amount of personal funds defendant had mingled with firm funds. Navarro v. Lamanna (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 922.

The costs of a suit necessary to determine the interest of devisees and for the benefit of all parties alike will be adjudged against all parties in the proportion of their interests in the property affected. Cox v. George (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 326.

In suit to foreclose vendor's lien, prior mortgagees, ordered to set up their claims, held improperly required to pay share of costs of receivership in excess of the cost of independent suits, nor were their rights affected by facts that they received money distributed among mortgagor's creditors under arrangement between mortgagor and mortgagor's grantee, and that a considerable portion of the costs was for taxes. Hooven-Owens-Rentschler Co. v. T. Schriver & Co. (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 339.

Where plaintiff, in action to recover cotton seed, was decreed possession thereof, but required to pay bank, claiming account against him, amount of such claimed account, which he had refused to pay, thus requiring suit and interpleading of other parties, adjudged costs against the bank against it and all other costs against the plaintiff was not unjust. Guitar v. First State Bank of Hermleigh (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 890.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Objections to allowance for review on appeal.—The allowance to witnesses of certain fees and mileage could not be reviewed on appeal, where it was not called to the attention of the trial court by a motion to re tax the costs, or otherwise. Guerra v. Guerra (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 151.

Where the improper allowance of costs was not raised by motions for new trial or to re tax costs, it cannot be raised on appeal. Dupont v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 195.

In proceeding to foreclose a mortgage, in which property was sequestered, plaintiff cannot complaint that the costs of the sequestration were assessed against him, where there was no motion to re tax the costs, and the record showed that the only sequestration had was sued out by plaintiff. Nebbitt v. Barron (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1167.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

BILLS OF EXCEPTIONS AND STATEMENTS OF FACTS

Art. 2058. Exceptions to rulings taken, when.
2059. Requisitions of bills of exceptions.
2060. May refer to statement of facts.
2061. Charges regarded as approved unless excepted to.
2062. No bill of exceptions where ruling appears of record.
2063. Bill to be presented to the judge.
2064. Submitted to opposing counsel, etc.
2065. If found incorrect.
2067. Bystander's bill, how obtained.
2068. Statement of facts, how prepared.
2069. When the parties disagree.
2070. Statement of facts prepared from transcript of official shorthand reporter, when and how, etc.; in duplicate; filed; original sent up; reporter to prepare on request, etc., fees, proviso.

Article 2058. [1360] [1358] Exception to rulings taken, when.
1. Reservation of exceptions.—In the absence of fundamental error, errors assigned cannot be considered on appeal unless promptly called to the attention of the trial court, with exception taken in the proper manner. Goodhue v. Fuller (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 176.
3. Office of bill of exceptions.—The findings of the trial judge cannot be contradicted or affected by oral declarations of the judge, though such declarations are embodied in a bill of exceptions, in view of Rev. Clv. St. 1911, art. 190. Long v. Smith (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 365.
2. The office of a bill of exceptions is to make that a part of the record which otherwise would not be. Holmes v. Coalson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 628.
5. Necessity of bill of exceptions, statement of facts, or conclusions of law and facts.—Bill of exceptions or statement of facts.—Where an order overruling a plea of privilege recited that evidence relating thereto was heard, it will be presumed, in the absence of any bill of exceptions or statement of facts, that the evidence was insufficient to establish such plea. Guerra v. Guerra (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 191.
7. In the absence of a statement of fact, bills of exception, and motion for new trial, a judgment will be affirmed, unless fundamental error appears on the face of the record proper. National Aérophane Co. v. McCormick (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 376.
9. In the absence of any bill of exception or statement of facts in the record, the denial of an appeal for filing bills of exception and statement of facts cannot be reviewed. Baugh v. Baugh (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 725.
10. Where there was no statement of facts or bill of exceptions showing the request, an affidavit that appellant requested findings of fact did not present the request as part of the record. Hamilton v. Bland (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 260.
11. That no statement of facts or bills of exceptions are brought up with record precludes reversal of judgment except for fundamental errors appearing on face of record, but does not affect right to appeal. Lauraine v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 709; Same v. Virginia (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 712.
8. Conclusions of law and facts.—Where the rights of the parties may have depended on whether a deed by an administrator passed title to the grantee, and, if so, whether defendants were bona fide purchasers, the court's failure, to make findings of fact within the statutory time was prejudicial error. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Ragley-McWilliams Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1183.
10. Where the court filed no findings of fact and conclusions of law, the judgment for a party relying on two grounds will not be disturbed unless unsupported on either ground. Whitaker v. Shenault (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 302.
11. In the absence of findings of fact by the trial court, the special findings cannot be reviewed. Morris v. Burrows (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1108.
9. Decisions not reviewable without bill of exceptions—In general.—Where bills of exception have been stricken out so that there are no exceptions in the record to support the assignments, the court is without power to consider such assignments. Cotton v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 455.
12. An assignment of error that the judgment appealed from was void because a judge was disqualified could not be sustained where there was no bill of exceptions in the record. Waggoner v. Briggs (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 50.
Under rules 54 and 55 for the district and county courts (142 S. W. xxii), no objection to the refusal to appoint a physician to examine the plaintiff in injury action can be reviewed, where the matter is not presented by a bill of exceptions. Weatherford, M. W. & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 130.
Assignments of error complaining of rulings of the court to which there is no bill of exceptions in the record will not be considered. Norton v. Lea (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 267. An exception to refusal to consolidate actions, on the answer or motion of party complaining, must be preserved, or the ruling will not be reviewed on appeal. Trabue v. Guaranty & Union Bank (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 612.

Where the judgment was within the court's jurisdiction and within the pleadings, error, to be available, must have been called to the court's attention. Stephenville, N. & S. Ry. Co. v. Wheat (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 974.

Where the statement of facts and bills of exception were stricken from the record, assignments challenging the sufficiency of the evidence or the propriety of the charge cannot be considered. Cook v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 623.

In the bill of exceptions to action of court considering a plea of want of jurisdiction or in taking the issue from the jury, the ruling cannot be considered. Day v. Mercer (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 764.

Under rules 55, 56 (142 S. W. xxii) for district and county courts, held that an order overruling a motion to quash an affidavit in a garnishment could not be considered on appeal without a bill of exceptions. Dixon v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 695.

Where a codefendant was not cited as a cross-action and did not appear thereto, the question of jurisdiction was fundamental, and might be considered on appeal, though not raised below. Ivey v. Davis (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 972.

The overruling of exceptions is not subject to review, unless it is excepted to at the proper time. Pierce-Fordyce Oil Ass'n v. Woods (Civ. App.) 380 S. W. 1181.

Where the record contained no assignment of error, motion for new trial, or bill of exceptions, and no fundamental error is suggested or observed, the judgment will be affirmed. Simpson v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 10.

In the absence of a bill of exceptions challenging the judgment of the trial court that no evidence was offered by either party and that plaintiffs' counsel demanded judgment upon the pleadings without evidence, such finding must be accepted as true. A. G. Schwab & Co. v. Norwood (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 897.

11. Rulings as to pleadings.—If a defendant desired to amend his motion against a sheriff before the court sustained defendant's demurrer thereto, he should have requested court's permission to amend, and upon refusal should have reserved a bill of exception. Peck v. Murphy & Bolanz (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 542.

12. Denial of plea of privilege.—An order overruling a plea of privilege, though not exception, is not reviewable in the absence of a bill of exceptions disclosing the facts on which the court acted. United Benevolent Ass'n of Texas v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 713.

14. Interlocutory proceedings. Where a motion to reinstate a case was not verified, and there was no averment of facts or bill of exception showing that evidence to sustain its averments was offered, a judgment overruling motion will be affirmed. Chattanooga Medicine Co. v. Ligon (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 571.

To review rulings on merits of plea in abatement, all evidence before trial court upon which it ruled on the plea, should appear in record either by proper bill of exception or in statement of facts. Southwestern Gas & Electric Co. v. Duke (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1010.

Under court rule 55 (142 S. W. xxii), providing that the rulings upon motions for continuance can be reviewed only when exception is reserved and presented in a proper bill, the denial of continuance cannot be considered where it was only preserved in the minutes of the court. Darby v. White (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 481.

Where not presented by bill of exceptions, as required by rule 70 (142 S. W. xxii) for the district courts, the question of the denial of a continuance cannot be reviewed. Hanover Fire Ins. Co. of New York v. Huff (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 465.

Unless the denial of defendant's motion for continuance is presented by an appropriate bill of exceptions, the matter will not, under rule 55 for district and county courts, be reviewable. Texas City Terminal Co. v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 797.

17. Rulings regarding jurors. Assignment, on overruling motion for new trial for improper communication to jury, will be overruled, where record contains affidavit attached to motion setting forth communication made, but there is no bill of exceptions showing that evidence was heard on motion, as required by Rev. St. 1911, art. 5021, and setting forth such evidence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1188.

18. Conduct of trial. Where there was no bill of exceptions reserved to the misconduct of spectators during the trial, and nothing to verify the unsworn allegation thereof in the motion for new trial, the matter could not be reviewed. Buckingham v. State, 73 Cr. R. 101, 164 S. W. 4.

Where no bill of exceptions was reserved covering a comment of the court in excluding evidence, an assignment of error to such comment could not be considered. First State Bank of Pickrell v. Knox (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 581.

Where improper argument was not preserved by bill of exceptions, and only the pleadings containing reflections on appellants were before the appellate court, the matter cannot be reviewed on appeal, as it could not be determined by the pleadings. Broussard v. Vos (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 76.

Assignments complaining of improper argument of counsel cannot be reviewed, where the argument was not shown by bills of exception or the record proper. Clampp v. St. Louis, Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 942.

An assignment of error complaining of the rejection of evidence cannot be reviewed on appeal, where the evidence was not preserved by a proper bill of exceptions. Houston Transp. Co. v. San Antonio R. Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1055.

An assignment of error as to a ruling on evidence must be overruled, where the bill of exception preserving the objection is not contained in the record, and it does not appear that the objection was preserved and shown in the statement of facts. Malcolm v. Sims-Thompson Motor Car Co. (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 924.

Error in excluding evidence cannot be reviewed on appeal, where appellants' brief fails to show that the ruling has been preserved by bill of exceptions. First State Bank & Trust Co. v. Texaco & Construction Equip. Co. (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 521.

Failure to admit parol testimony to vary provisions of trust deed will, though not presented by bill of exceptions, be reviewed as fundamental error. McLeod v. McCall (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 283.

Plaintiff can take advantage of the court's refusal to permit him to introduce evidence in support of his case only by excepting to such refusal at the time, which exception must be shown by a bill of exceptions, duly approved by the trial judge, and properly filed in the trial court. A. G. Schwab & Son v. Norwood (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 807.

The action of the court, upon motion to strike out evidence, should be presented by bills of exception in order to be reviewed. Crews v. Fowers (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 361.

The action of the court in excluding answers to questions except on cross-examination will not be reviewed in the absence of the bill of exceptions showing what the answers would have been. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 1156.

20. Depositions.—Alleged error in admitting a deposition cannot be reviewed where the contents thereof are not preserved in bill of exceptions or otherwise under Supreme Court rule 62a (149 S. W. 2d), confining reversals to errors probably causing an improper judgment. Varley v. Nichols-Shepard Sales Co. (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 611.

Where, under rule 62a as above cited, the contentions as to the admissibility of a deposition was preserved in the records, error could not be shown from the statement of facts. Unless in accordance with this article, the denial of special interrogatories to the jury will not be reviewed. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Casey (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 729.

21. Instructions.—Where the record shows a special charge and the refusal thereof is certified in the record, the rulings thereon can not be reviewed in view of this article and art. 2061. Heath v. Huhffines (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 974; City of Ft. Worth v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 976; Taylor v. Butler (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 1004.

Error assigned as to a question alleged to have been propounded by the jury to the court, and answered, not supported by bill of exceptions taken as provided by law, cannot be considered. Copeland v. Porter (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 915.

Under Rev. St. 1911, arts. 2068—2060, and article 2061, assignments of error, complaining of charge, cannot be considered, though plaintiff in error filed objections when charge was submitted in accordance with art. 1971, but reserved no bills of exception. Leob v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 378. See, also, arts. 1974, 2061.

23. Verdict or Findings.—Where a finding that plaintiff in action for negligence in driving a railroad was not guilty of contributory negligence was not challenged, and the contrary that judgment for him was erroneous inasmuch as his guilt of contributory negligence would be overruled. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 903.

In action for breach of a building contract, finding and conclusion of trial court that no material change from the contract was made, to which no objection was taken, held conclusive. Title Guaranty & Surety Co. v. Barnwell (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 694.

In absence of bill of exception or statement of facts showing evidence before trial court that could have been shown at trial, asking that judgment of new trial be reversed, on the ground that judgment for defendant be set aside because citation was served in less than ten days before return day, it must be assumed court found and was warranted in finding service was perfect, as shown by return. Dawson v. George (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 485.

26. Failure to file conclusions of law and fact.—An appellant, who failed to secure a bill of exceptions and assign error upon the failure of the court to file findings of fact and conclusions of law within the time prescribed, is not entitled to a reversal for such failure. Elise v. San Antonio School Board (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1176.

In the absence of a bill of exceptions, it will be presumed that the trial judge was not aware of a request for findings and conclusions. Hamilton v. Eiland (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 280.

Where no bill of exceptions was taken to court's refusal of defendant's timely request for conclusions of fact and law, and there was no verified statement in record that defendant or his counsel were misled or prevented from presenting bill of exceptions, defendant may not have case reversed because no conclusions of fact and law were filed. Ainsworth v. Doran (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 604.

27. Motions for new trial.—The denial of a motion for a new trial cannot be reviewed, where the record does not contain the evidence nor any bills of exceptions. Jackson v. State (Cr. App.) 159 S. W. 846.

28. Substitutes for bill of exceptions.—A recital in the judgment that defendant excepted to the ruling of the trial court on the application for a continuance cannot be treated as a substitute for a proper bill of exceptions. Texas City Terminal Co. v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 707.

29. Reserving exceptions in statement of facts.—That bills of exception are included in the statement of facts, and not brought up in the record thereof, does not prevent consideration of the assignments of error. 178 S. W. 536.

A statement of fact approved by the trial court, of presentation of objections and of exceptions, relative to requested instructions, all before submission of the general charge, is sufficient, and as a bill of exceptions. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Whorton (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 494.

30. Requisites, contents, and sufficiency of bill.—In an action for negligence, where defendant objected and reserved a bill of exceptions to plaintiff's testimony that defendant had insurance he was not required to ask that the same be withdrawn from the jury and continued. Carter v. Walker (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 483.

An exception embodied in an order overruling a motion for a new trial is sufficient to authorize a review of the judgment, without a special exception to the judgment. Connell v. Mickey (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 511.

Certain exceptions in a statement of facts, together with an order entered on the minutes, held not to constitute a "bill of exceptions" to the charge given. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. v. Cave (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1097.

Under arts. 2063-2066, 2062-2067, bill of exceptions to a refusal of the court to submit special issues to the jury held sufficient. Shaw v. Garrison (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 942.

33. Waiving absence of bill of exceptions.—Under rules 40 and 41 for Courts of Civil Appeals (142 S. W. xiv), held that, where a party did not object, in his brief or before motion for rehearing, that there were no bills of exception in the record to the action of the court complained of in the assignments, he would be deemed to have waived such objection. Southern Gas & Gasoline Engine Co. v. Adams & Peters (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 118.

Art. 2059. [1361] [1359] Requisites of bills of exceptions.

Requisites and sufficiency of bill of exceptions.—In general.—Under Courts of Civil Appeals rules 33, 41 (142 S. W. xxi), a bill of exceptions complaining of the argument of counsel and the exceptions thereto, and of the failure of the court to take any action thereon, is sufficient to raise the point on appeal. American Express Co. v. Parcarello (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 926.

In a proceeding to enforce a claim to property attached as the property of claimant's brother, he excepted to the remark about the court's reversal of the testimony of their mother held not sufficient to require a review of alleged error in excluding her testimony. Taylor v. Butler (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 1094.

An exception complaining that an instruction did not charge the jury raising the issue of "assumed risk as developed by the evidence," held insufficient to present the objection that the court failed to specifically instruct on the issue of assumed risk. J. H. W. Steele Co. v. Dover (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 899.

Objections that a charge permits a double recovery is not presented by an exception: "It is not the law; there is no pleading and no evidence to support the issue." Memphis Cotton Oil Co. v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 369.

Bill of exceptions, together with statement of facts, to an argument of counsel, held sufficient to present the error to the court as ground for reversal. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Cave (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 572.

The bill of exceptions held insufficient to show error in refusal to permit a physician to examine for defendant, outside the courtroom and the presence of the jury, plaintiff's alleged injury. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bukowsky (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 477.

Where bill of exceptions did not show whether an order admitted in evidence was as the bill recited, and there was no citation to statement of facts identifying order as that recited in bill, assignment of error to its admission and to admission of notice of such election and levying of tax therefor will be overruled. Clark v. State (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 84.

In view of art. 1653, bill of exceptions on which was based an assignment of error complaining of remarks in presence of jury held sufficient to show that remarks were made. Bostick v. Bryant (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 228.

A bill of exceptions to the admission of parol testimony changing written contract between parties, which did not show particular testimony objected to or that court had an opportunity to determine whether it was subject to objection made, was insufficient. Fubank v. Bostock (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 214.

Certainty and definiteness.—An assignment of error complaining of the admission in evidence of certain instruments held not reviewable, where it did not appear from the bills of exception or otherwise that instruments were objected to. Rollal v. Giron (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 638.

Under this article, a bill of exceptions which referred to charges requested by the defendant by number, which request was marked "Refused" by the judge and filed with the clerk, was no part of record under art. 1094 is sufficient. Sanger v. First Nat. Bank of Amarillo (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1087.

Under this article and art. 2061, an exception to an instruction that defendant "in open court excepted and here now excepts" held too general to support an assignment of error. Weatherford, M. W. & N. R. Ry. Co. v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 328.

Instructions, except reasonable care, on the ground that it was not correct, and that charge presented plaintiff's theory of the case, but excluded defendant's theory, are too general to warrant consideration. San Antonio, I. & S. Ry. Co. v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 17.

Scope and contents in general.—Where a bill of exceptions to the admission of opinion evidence fails to state facts showing want of qualification of the witness, it will be presumed on appeal that the witness was qualified. Kelley v. Fain (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 869.

A bill of exceptions, by which appellant complained that the court failed to prepare and to rule on the jury before argument as required by law, held not defective in failing to show that appellant did not waive the provisions of the statute.

Where bill of exceptions showed exclusion of opinion of defendant's witness as to damages, the court would be excused that the consent testimony to prove damages. Jefferson Cotton Oil & Fertilizer Co. v. Bridgen & Congleton (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 739.

In the absence of statements to the contrary in the bill of exceptions, it will be presumed that the court by proper inquiries satisfied itself as to the competency of witnesses before allowing them to give expert testimony. Hanover Fire Ins. Co. of New York v. Huff (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 465.

Where it does not appear from bill of exceptions that defendant was not notified to produce original check, or that he did not have such check in court, assignment of error that plaintiff had, over objection, been permitted to testify as to the check, will not be considered. Stine Oil & Gas Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1098.

Where a bill of exceptions contained no statement that the grounds of objection to incorporation of school district were in fact true, the presumption will be to the contrary. Clark v. State (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 84.

- Showing prejudice to appellant.- In an action against a sheriff and his bondsmen for damages in failing to file a record of attachment, exception to exclusion of the writ and amended return held not to show the materiality of the excluded evidence, so that it would not be considered. Neville v. Miller (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1106.

- Error, if any, in excluding testimony of plaintiff's manager as to value of piano covered by policy and as to plaintiff's profit, held not reviewable error, where bill of exceptions showed that manager did not know what plaintiff gave for piano, and did not show that he could or would have stated the profit. Fireman's Ins. Co. v. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 691.

In action to enjoin illegal sale of liquor, admitting evidence that temporary injunction against defendant was in force is harmless error where bill of exceptions does not show upon what grounds it was procured. Aetna Club v. State (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1106.

Where a bill of exceptions, complaining of the admission in evidence of a letter, is insufficient to present for review the admission of parol evidence. Standard Milling Co. v. Imperial Rice Co. (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 637.

An assignment of error to the exclusion of evidence, not supported by the bill of exceptions applicable to the assignment, does not raise any question on appeal. Ellerd v. Campfield (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 392.

Where the bills of exceptions fail to disclose an objection to evidence, the action of the trial court in relation thereto cannot be reviewed. Gaal v. Camp (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1070.

Upon a bill of exceptions to evidence admitted, only such objections as were presented in the trial court and as stated in the bill will be considered on appeal, and this applies as well to evidence excluded. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Corsicana Fruit Co. (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 489.

Bills of exception to the giving and refusal of charges held to present matters for review, though grounds of objection are not stated, where the trial court understood the grounds of objection. Eaton v. Klein (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 331.

Objections, in an assignment of error, which the bill of exceptions does not show were made on the trial, are not reviewable on appeal. Buchanan v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 625.

- Incorporating evidence in general.- Where bills of exception to the admission of evidence merely show that the defendant objected to certain medical witnesses testifying in the case as to the condition of plaintiff, but do not show what the evidence objected to was, there is nothing for the court to consider. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 639.

Error could not be predicated upon the admission of the testimony of witnesses claimed to be inadmissible under the pleadings, where neither the brief nor the bill of exceptions showed what the witnesses testified. Underwood v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 88.

Bills of exceptions complaining of the admission of testimony, not showing what testimony was objected to, were too indefinite to be considered. Stone & Webster Engineer­ ing Corporation v. Goodman (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 19.

In disposing of assignment of error complaining of admission of testimony, appellate court is confined to testimony as stated in bill of exceptions. Boerger v. Vandergrift (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 949.

- Setting forth exception excluded.- A bill of exceptions to the exclusion of evidence must show, what the witness would have testified if permitted to do so. Woods

A bill of exceptions complained of the exclusion of testimony "offered to prove" certain facts, it was not fatally defective on the ground that it did not show that the witnesses would have testified to the matters "offered to be proved." Hartfield v. Greber (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 692.

A statement in the bill of exceptions, to the exclusion of evidence, that "defendant offered to prove" the facts stated is equivalent to a statement that witness would have testified according to the offer, so that the bill is not objectionable on the ground that it does not state what the witness would have testified. Northern Irr. Co. v. Dodd (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 946.

A bill of exceptions to the exclusion of testimony contained in an offer of proof should show the proof that exceptant could have made, had he been permitted to do so. Edwards v. McGuire (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 477.

Where offered testimony as to damages was not set out in the bill, its exclusion cannot be reviewed. Jefferson Cotton Oil & Fertilizer Co. v. Fridgen & Congleton (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 729.

Where a bill of exceptions stated that one party offered to prove certain things by a witness, that was sufficient as an allegation that the witness would have so testified. Thatcher v. Matthews (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 816.

A bill of exceptions to the exclusion of evidence, reciting merely what the evidence would have been, is insufficient, where it fails to show the materiality of the testimony, which is apparently unconnected with the issues. Lester v. Hutson (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 268.

Assignments to sustaining of objections to questions on direct examination will not be considered where the bills of exceptions do not show the testimony to be elicited, but the rule that bills of exceptions must show the testimony expected to be elicited does not apply to questions on cross-examination or to motion to strike testimony. Yeatts v. St. Louis, S. & S. F. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 626.

Necessity of specific exception.—Where a bill of exceptions to the admission of evidence did not show that declarations of the testator, including an inadmissible statement subject to a distinct objection, were separately objected to, but merely disclosed an objection to the entire declarations, there was no reversible error in receiving the inadmissible testimony; but such rule did not apply to entire declarations, subject only to single objection. Scott v. Townsend, 166 S. W. 1135, 106 Tex. 322, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 342.

A bill of exceptions to evidence not separating the inadmissible from the admissible, evidence will be overruled. Lester v. Hutson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 321.

One general exception to the refusal to give several requested instructions held not entitled to consideration on appeal, where any one of them was properly refused. Hovey v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1025.

Where bill of exceptions does not point out any specific testimony to which definite objection was applied, error in the admission of evidence is not reviewable. Burnett v. Continental State Bank of Alto (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 173.

Insertion of documents.—Where error was assigned to the overruling of a motion to dismiss the suit on the ground of changed cause of action in the amended petitions, the original and amended petitions should be set out in the transcript, but need not be in the bill of exceptions. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Porter (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 624.

An order denying a motion for a continuance cannot be reviewed, where plaintiff's bill of exceptions did not contain the application, nor the substance thereof, and it could not be ascertained from the bill itself whether the application was sufficient. Smith v. Huff (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 422.

The bill of exceptions to admission of a copy of a letter not setting it out, and the brief not referring to the statement of facts showing its admission, the matter is not properly presented for consideration. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Graham (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 472.

Operation and effect of bill.—Where the bill of exceptions as approved by the trial judge expressly based the exclusion of evidence on the ground that it was a self-serving declaration, although reciting other reasons which might have been urged for exclusion, it will be inferred that the trial court found that other objections were not sufficient. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Drumwright (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1011.

Art. 2060. [1362] [1360] May refer to statement of facts.

Reference to statement of facts.—Evidence which is set out in full in the bill of exceptions need not be repeated in the statement of facts, under this article, and it is the appellant's duty to try to obtain a written agreement for the omission of such evidence from the statement. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Porter (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 564.

Agreed statement of facts, not approved by the trial judge or referred to in the bill of exceptions approved by him, held not entitled to consideration in connection with the bill of exceptions. Jones v. Doty (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 15.

Exception to admission of evidence need not be preserved by bill of exceptions, but, by provision of this article, may be reserved and noted in the statement of facts, but one relying on the right, under this article, to have his objections and exceptions noted in the statement of facts, must present the grounds of his objections clearly. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Cavanaugh (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 619.

The bill of exceptions to admission of a copy of a letter not setting it out, and the brief not referring to the statement of facts showing its admission, the matter is not properly presented for consideration. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Graham (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 472.

COURTS—DISTRICT AND COUNTY—PRACTICE IN (Title 37)

Bill of exceptions must stand or fall by its recitals, and reference to statement of facts is not permissible. Alling v. Vander Stucken (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 443.

Art. 2061. [1363] [1361] Charges regarded as approved unless excepted to.

Under arts. 1970-1972, complaining party can have error considered by appellate court without reserving formal bill of exceptions to the general charge; for art. 1972, providing that the charge, after presentation of objections, shall constitute part of record and be regarded as excepted to and subject to revision without notice or repetition by Impl. Acts 1911 c. 1335, amending this article and art. 1974, since such act refers only to requested instructions. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. v. Dickey (Sup.) 187 S. W. 184.

Note this article and art. 1971 does not affect right to review of rulings on requested instructions; trial being before the act took effect. Fidelity-Phoenix Fire Ins. Co. v. O'Bannon (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 731.

Statutory provision as to objections to charge and failure to charge held one the Legislature had a right to enact, and one which the courts can neither ignore noremasculate. Vinson v. State (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 574.

Although the Court of Appeals considers exceptions to rulings on requested instructions necessary, yet an assignment of error without such exception will be considered waived unless the complaining party can show the Court's action in granting or denying the necessity of exceptions doubtful. Hill v. Staats (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1039.

Chap. 19) COURTS—DISTRICT AND COUNTY—PRACTICE IN

Court of Civil Appeals rule 24 (142 S. W. xii), providing that a ground of error not distinctly set forth in the motion for new trial shall be waived, unless fundamental, held in this article and art. 2053, so that assignments of error relating to the charge and refusal to charge are to be considered, whether a motion for rehearing is filed including them. Benton v. Kuykendall (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 438.

It is essentially direct provisions of this article and art. 1974, in absence of exceptions in the appellate record to the refusal of instructions, the trial court’s action thereon is deemed approved. Mutual Life Ins. Ass’n of Donley County v. Rhoderick (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1067.

Though art. 1974 provides that, when a request is given, the court shall note the same, subscribe his name thereto, and it shall be filed with the clerk and constitute a part of the record of the case, yet, under the express provisions of this article, it must be excepted to, or it will be regarded as approved. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Galloway (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 546.

Where no objection was made and no objection taken to a charge, the giving of the charge must, as required by this article, be regarded as approved, and appellant cannot complain. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. McCall (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 2062.

This article refers to the articles of the chapter relating to bills of exceptions, and to the foregoing articles of the amendatory law, amending articles 1970, 1971, 1972, 1974, of chapter 13, relating to instructions and objections; and the articles as amended govern the exceptions to instructions and refusal of instructions. Heath v. Hutchines (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 974.

Under Acts 33d Leg. c. 59, defining the time and manner of submitting instructions and making exceptions thereto, the rulings on instructions must be proved by a proper bill of exceptions taken at the time. George W. Saunders Live Stock Commission Co. v. Kincaid (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 977.

Under this article and arts. 1971-1975, plaintiff, not excepting to refusal of his required charge, and whose objection was filed, where only objection, held to have approved the charge. Moore v. Cooper Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1094.

The court’s action upon oral objections to a charge should be presented on appeal by a bill of exceptions, as required by rule 53 for district and county courts (142 S. W. xxi). Jefferies v. Briland & Co. (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 627.

Where no exception was presented to a charge which affirmatively excluded a recovery upon the issue of discovered peril, plaintiff, under this article, will be held to have approved such instruction. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. West (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 287.

Trial court’s refusal of appellant’s special charge must be treated as approved by him, where he failed to except thereto as required by this article, so that his assignment of error thereon would be overruled. Orndor v. Whitemore (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 347.

There being no formal bill of exceptions, and the record showing merely that when the case was called appellant presented to the court certain written objections to the charge, and requested a special charge, and the court indorsed on both documents his signature after the word “refused,” held, under the act of 1913 (Acts 33d Leg. c. 139), that appellant waived his objection to the charge and the refusal. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Downs (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 864.

Under this article defendants in trespass to try title who had failed to except to counterclaim and to its refusal to give their special charge, as held to have approved such rulings, and to be bound thereby. Hume v. Carpentier (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 707.

In view of this article and art. 1971, where plaintiff did not except to refusal of instructions, he is in attitude of having approved rulings at trial, and hence assignments of error based thereon will be overruled. Cummins v. Owen Bros. Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 792.

PEREMPTORY INSTRUCTIONS.—Acts 33d Leg. c. 59, declaring that objections or exceptions to the charge of the court not made in the trial court shall be deemed to be waived and that to apply to peremptory instructions, such as to the direction of a verdict. Owens v. Corsicana Petroleum Co. (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 192.

In the absence of a proper bill of exceptions, a defendant is presumed to have ap-

Under Acts 33d Leg. c. 59, error in giving a peremptory instruction, even if fundamental, is waived by failure to except in the manner prescribed. Needham v. Cooner (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 979.

This article applies to a peremptory instruction for one of the parties, which was given in writing. Id.

Under Act March 29, 1913 (Acts 33d Leg. c. 59), error as to the granting of peremptory instruction will not be considered in the absence of exception taken below. King v. Gray (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 783.

Under Act March 28, 1913 (Acts 33d Leg. c. 59), where appellant had failed to present a peremptory instruction, assignment of the judgment was not sustained by the evidence and was contrary to the undisputed facts could not be considered. Id.

An assignment of error complaining of refusal of a peremptory instruction not excepted to cannot be considered. Denison Cotton Mill Co. v. McAmis (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 621.

Under this article and art. 1971, a defendant, to have the giving of a peremptory instruction reviewed, must except before it is submitted to the jury. Walker v. Haley (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 559.

An assignment of error in giving a peremptory instruction will not be considered where the record fails to show that an objection was made and exception reserved in the trial court, as required by the statute. Donaldson v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1106.

Where a record fails to show that a bill of exceptions was taken to a peremptory instruction as required by this article, or that appellant's objections thereto were overruled, or that exception was taken by appellant to such overruling, the instruction will not be reviewed. Harwell v. Hood (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 766.

The giving of a peremptory charge does not present a fundamental error, or one apparent on the face of the record, which can be reviewed without a sufficient bill of exceptions. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Bryant (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 579.

An assignment of an instruction. The giving not raised by the pleadings is fundamental error which can be reviewed, though the appellant did not reserve his exceptions in the trial court as required by Acts 33d Leg. c. 59. Cooper & Jones v. Hall (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 465.

There being evidence and pleading to support the verdict and judgment, rendition of the judgment presents no error in law apparent on the face of the record, or fundamental error, requiring reversal, though not assigned, and though no exception was taken to the peremptory charge. Dees v. Crane (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 485.

Under this article, the action of the court in granting certain special charges, in the absence of objection and exception thereto, could not be considered as fundamental error. Woodruff v. Deshazo (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 250.

Though the matter was not presented by appropriate exceptions to the refusal of a special charge that a lease contract by a railroad company was void, held, that the contention that it was void as interfering with trade and stifling competition presents fundamental error which may be considered. Stephenson v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 568.

Where not presented by bills of exception, errors in charge, though they be fundamental, cannot, under this article, be considered on appeal, unless jurisdictional. Loeb v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 578.

Special issues.—Under this article, an objection that the submission of a special defense was error could not be considered, where defendant did not except to the instructions or request an instructed verdict. Elser v. Putnam Land & Development Co. (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1052, rehearing denied Id. 1200.

Error could not be predicated on refusal of instructions, submitting an issue, where no provision for refusal was taken to the charge on the issue of defendant's liability. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. v. Dickey (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1097.

Where the record did not contain a bill of exceptions, as required by the amendment to the Practice Act, enacted by Acts 33d Leg. c. 59, presenting the trial court's refusal to submit the issue of res judicata, such refusal could not be reviewed. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hood (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1129.

Error as to a specific issue held not reviewable, where requested generally with immaterial issues, and rejected as a whole without exceptions. Foster v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 1001.

The law, requiring reservation of exceptions to the charge and to the giving or refusing of charges, does not apply to the action of the court in submitting, or refusing to submit, special issues of fact to the jury. Tomson v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1141.

Under this article, appellant cannot complain of the refusal of a special issue which it tendered, where no exceptions were taken below. First Nat. Bank of Garner, Iowa, v. Vail (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 862.

Under this article, failure of court to submit an issue will not be considered on appeal in absence of exception to the charge for failure to submit such issue. Hill v. Hill (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 726.

Motion for new trial.—Under this article and art. 2002, the Court of Civil Appeals rule 34 (142 S. W. xli), providing that error not set forth in the motion for new trial should be considered waived, does not require that a ruling in giving or refusing instructions be included in the motion for new trial. Brewer v. A. M. Blythe & Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 780; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Blythe, 105 Tex. 124, 160 S. W. 153, rehearing denied, 106 Tex. 100, 160 S. W. 471; American Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Rowell (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 170.

Where a refused instruction was not excepted to, as provided by art. 1974, it would be presumed to have been approved under this article, and it was not sufficient that the refusal was assigned for error in defendant's motion for a new trial, and that the denial of such motion was duly excepted to. Missouri. O. & G. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Love (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 206.

Under this article and art. 1971, providing exceptions to charge not made before it is read are waived, exceptions first made in an amended motion for new trial are insufficient. Jones v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 373.

Sufficiency of exceptions.—Under this article and art. 1971, only such objections can be considered on appeal as were made at the trial in the manner specified, and then only when preserved by bill of exceptions. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wadsock (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 42.

An assignment complaining of the giving of a special charge could not be considered, where the bill of exceptions did not show that the charge was in fact given and failed to point out the particulars in which it was objectionable. Cleburne St. Ry. Co. v. Dickey (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 476.

Notice in bill of exceptions that instructions were requested in accordance with the statutes, and that the defendant duly excepted, etc., held sufficient to show request made and exceptions reserved before charge was read to the jury. Hovey v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1025.

A bill of exceptions as to the refusal of eight requested charges held sufficient to show an exception to the refusal of a specific charge so as to comply with the requirements of Act 33d Legislature. National State Bank of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, v. Ricketts (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 828.

Where an instruction is erroneous, appellant need not request a correct charge, but under the statutes the party aggrieved need only except, pointing out the defects and reserve objection by proper bill of exceptions. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Russell (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 299.

A statement of facts approved by the trial court, of presentation of objections and of exceptions, relative to requested instructions, all before submission of the general charge, form exceptions, as well as a bill of exceptions. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Whorton (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 949.

Where appellant submitted specific grounds embodied in a peremptory charge why it should be submitted to the jury, and asserted a proposition on appeal to sustain charge upon another and different ground not presented in the trial court, it would not be considered. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Vaughn (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 142.

Portions of the charge, to which no exceptions are taken and preserved by bill, as required by the statute, cannot be reviewed. Bullock v. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 826.

A charge not having been excepted to as authorizing a double recovery, objection to it on that account is waived under the law with reference to charges as amended by Acts 33d Leg. c. 654. Memphis Cotton Oil Co. v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 399.

Where an instruction embodies several propositions of law, some of which are accurate and not subject to objection, a general exception is insufficient to raise the propriety of a particular portion of the instruction. Lester v. Hutson (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 286.

Where bills of exception to the refusal of special charges recite that "at the proper time" such charges were presented to the trial judge, the recital is sufficient to show that they were presented before the main charge was read to the jury, as required by art. 1971, Hawks v. Longbotham (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 734.

Where the bill of exception did not show that the court's attention was called to objections to charges or requests offered, before the main charge was submitted, assignment based thereon will not be considered. Heard v. Bowen (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 234.

An order overruling objection is an order reserved to an order. Where the order failed to show that the objections were made before the charge was given, the propriety of the charge could not be considered on appeal. Bennett v. Rio Grande Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 713.

Court's memorandum on defendants' bill of exception to the general charge held insufficient as not affirmatively showing that, as required by statute, the objections to the court's charge were presented before its reading to the jury, and before the arguments of counsel. Hovey v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1025.

Under Acts 33d Leg. c. 59, the fact that objections to the charge were made before it was read to the jury must be preserved by a bill of exceptions approved by the judge. Ross v. State, 75 Cr. R. 58, 170 S. W. 305.

A statement in the transcript embodying what purports to be exceptions and objections to the charge held not to show that objections were made before the charge was given, as required by this article and arts. 1971, 1973, and assignments of error to the charge cannot be considered. Heath v. Huffines (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 974.

Where bills of exception and arts. 1970, 1971-1974, rulings on the giving and refusal of instructions are not reviewable, unless the bills of exceptions show that objections to the general charge and special charges refused were presented before the general charge was read. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. v. Culver (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 514.

A charge cannot be reviewed, where there is no approved fact in the record showing whether the objections were presented before or after the charge was given, and no preservation of exceptions to the overruling of such objections. Robers v. Dyer (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 114.

Where a statute required exceptions to the action of the trial court in giving or refusing instructions, an indorsement by the court of defendant's objection on a requested instruction, and on a written objection to the charge, constituted substantial compliance. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ragsdale, Price & Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 654.

Under this article and art. 2059, an exception to an instruction that defendant "in open court excepted and here now excepts" held too general to support an assignment of error. Styron v. Mt. W. Ry. Co. v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 832.

A bill of exceptions to the court's charge which contains a certificate of the trial
Art. 2061 COURTS—DISTRICT AND COUNTY—PRACTICE IN

Judge showing the specific objections relied on only by reference to the motion for new trial, and not on the trial, is raised by Texas v. Hall (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 548.

Under this article and Court of Civil Appeals rule 31 (142 S. W. xiii), requiring appellant's brief to contain references to the record, etc., an assignment of error not showing where the bill of exceptions to the charge complained of can be found in the record will not be considered. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Huffstutler (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 458.

Effect of failure to except.—Under this article, where in a will case proponent took no exception to a charge that execution of a revoking holographic will could be proved by less than two witnesses, they are estopped from contending on appeal that execution of a subsequent will must be proved by two witnesses. Palmer v. Logan (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 761.

A party who fails to except to an erroneous charge given, or to request a correct charge, acquiesces in the given charge, and cannot thereafter have the verdict set aside for the reason which was sufficient under the given evidence, which was, although he should be moved for peremptory charge. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Huffstutler (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 458.

Where defendant, by not excepting to a charge, was to be considered as having approved it, as provided by art. 1971, he was in no position to ask an additional charge, presenting more fully the issues embraced in the charge given. Roberts v. Houston Motor Car Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 257.

Under this article, defendant, who did not except to an incorrect charge, cannot complain of the refusal of a correct charge which conflicted therewith. International & G. N. Ry. v. Bartek (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 537.

Where defendant's requested instructions were refused, but no objection to the charge was made before it was given, under this article and arts. 1971, 1973, 1974, it is to be regarded as approved and as requested by defendant, as regards his right to complain of refusal of the instructions, within the rule that if one requests two different instructions, on the same subject, he cannot rely on the refusal of the other. Cleburne St. Ry. Co. v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 991.

In an action against connecting carriers for injury to cattle the failure of defendants to except to the refusal to give a request to apportion the damages was a waiver of an objection to the general charge on the same point, under this article. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Galloway (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 546.

Waiving statutory requirements.—Agreements to waive the provisions of Acts 33d Leg. c. 59, governing objections and exceptions to the charge, should not be respected by the courts. Needham v. Cooney (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 979.

Art. 2062. [1364] [1362] No bill of exceptions where ruling appears of record.

In general.—Court of Civil Appeals rule 24 (142 S. W. xii), providing that a ground of error not distinctly set forth in the motion for new trial shall be waived, unless fundamental, held in conflict with this article and art. 1961, so that assignments of error to rulings apparent on record are to be considered, whether a motion for rehearing is filed including them. Benton v. Kuykendall (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 438.

Under this article, rulings on demurrers and exceptions are sufficiently presented for review where shown in the judgments; but this does not preclude their presentation by bills of exceptions. Childress v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1172, denying rehearing Mitchell v. Robinson, 162 S. W. 443.

The ruling of the trial court upon defendant's plea of privilege being a part of the record, rule 53 (142 S. W. xxx), governing and controlling, in district and county courts, be shown by bill of exceptions. Crowell Independent School Dist. v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 339.

Under this article and arts. 1827, 1820, 1822, 1833, 1893, and District Court Rules 55, 56 (142 S. W. xxii), bill of exceptions to overruling of plea of privilege held unnecessary. Holmes v. Coalson (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 628.

Necessity of motion for new trial.—Under this article and art. 1961, the Court of Civil Appeals rule 24 (142 S. W. xii), providing that error not set forth in the motion for new trial should be considered waived, does not require that a ruling in giving or refusing instructions be included in the motion for new trial. Brewer v. A. M. Blythe & Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 786; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Beasley, 106 Tex. 160, 165 S. W. 158, rehearing denied 106 Tex. 160, 160 S. W. 471.

Under this article and art. 1961, held that it was not necessary to a review that an exception to sufficiency of petition be made ground of motion for new trial in court below. American Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Rowell (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 170.

Art. 2063. [1365] [1363] Bill to be presented to the judge.

Necessity of allowance and signature by judge.—It is the duty of accused on appealing from a conviction to follow up his bills of exceptions and have the judge approve and sign them and present them to the judge within the time prescribed by law, and he is not relieved from this duty by presenting them to the judge. St. Clair v. State, 72 Cr. R. 37, 160 S. W. 365.

Documents purporting to be bills of exception, not approved by the trial judge, will be stricken out on motion. Gerrate v. State, 71 Cr. R. 531, 160 S. W. 695.

Plaintiff in error's objection that he did not obtain a fair statement of facts could not be considered when presented by a bill of exceptions, which was refused by the trial court. Austin Fire Ins. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 974.
Under the statute only the judge who tried a criminal case could approve a bill of exceptions and statement of facts, and his successor could not do so. Porter v. State, 75 Cr. R. 71, 160 S. W. 1194.

Bills of exception to the charge of the court not filed until after adjournment present no question for review, not being presented to or approved by the trial judge. Stoner v. State, 72 Cr. R. 482, 162 S. W. 836.

Where matters of exception are presented in a motion for a new trial, exceptions to the charge, though not approved by the trial judge, are considered as grounds of the motion. Law v. State, 72 Cr. R. 277, 162 S. W. 564.

Bills of exceptions, not approved by the judge trying the case, but by his successor, cannot be considered on appeal. Allen v. State, 72 Cr. R. 277, 162 S. W. 568.

Bills of exceptions which were accepted with an indorsement of the trial court’s refusal to approve them, without any attempt to prove the bills, cannot be considered. Daily v. State, 72 Cr. R. 531, 162 S. W. 1152.

Denial of a motion for judgment nunc pro tuneci will not be reviewed, where the record contains a bill of exception not approved by the trial judge. Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 482.

Under this article, objections to the charge appearing in the record could not be treated as a bill of exceptions, where they did not appear to have been presented to the judge and there was nothing to show that the court’s attention was ever called thereto. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Tate (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1061.

A paper, in the record on appeal, which purports to be exceptions, cannot be considered as a bill of exceptions when not approved or certified to by the trial judge. Gunter v. Merchant (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 191, rehearing denied 172 S. W. 260.

Bills of exceptions taken to the exclusion of evidence could not be considered on appeal, where they were not signed by the presiding judge. Hall v. Ray (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1135.

An assignment of error must be overruled, the bill of exceptions not appearing in the record to have been approved by the trial judge, or to have been filed in trial court. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Samford (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 857.

A bill not exonerated by the trial court’s approval, cannot be considered. Holloman v. Black (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 973.

Where bill of exceptions is not approved by trial judge, objection to consideration of assignment of error is valid. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Faulkner (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 651.

Judgment held not to be reversed because death of trial judge deprived appellant of approved bill of exceptions, where no excuse appeared for failure to secure its approval before the judge’s disability. City of Henderson v. Fields (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1093.

Under this article, alleged misconduct of counsel held not reviewable, where bill of exceptions complaining thereof was not approved. Id.

Sufficiency of approval.—Objections or mere statements of the ground of objection in the bill of exceptions is not a certificate of the judge that what is stated is true. Best v. State, 72 Cr. R. 291, 164 S. W. 996.

In a bill of exceptions complaining of error in a portion of the main charge, a certificate of the trial judge which did not show what ruling the court made when the objection was presented, is insufficient under Acts 33d Leg. c. 59. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 548.

Conclusiveness of approved bill.—A bill of exceptions accepted by the appealing party binds him, and statements therein as to the status of the pleadings must be taken as true. Nacogdoches Compress Co. v. Hayter (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 506.

Qualification or correction of bill.—Litiugant charged with the duty to reduce his bill of exceptions to writing under this article held not entitled to complain of the overruling of his motion to correct bill, in the absence of allegation in such motion that the bill was defective as the result of fraud, mistake, or imposition practiced upon his attorney or the judge. Dunn v. Epperson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 729.

Under this article and art. 2067, where plaintiff in error presents bills of exceptions, court has no right to qualify it, but must either sign it, or if not correct indorse his refusal to do so and file a proper bill, leaving plaintiff in error to his remedy of a bill by bystanders if not satisfied. Jolley v. Brown (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 177.

Art. 2064. [1366] [1364] Submitted to opposing counsel, etc.

Art. 2065. [1367] [1365] If found incorrect.

Qualifying of bill.—Where appellant accepts a bill of exceptions as qualified by the trial judge, he is bound thereby. Hilles v. State, 73 Cr. R. 17, 163 S. W. 717; Creech v. State, 70 Cr. R. 239, 163 S. W. 277; Boyd v. State, 72 Cr. R. 521, 163 S. W. 87.

Where accused accepts a bill of exceptions with a qualification by the court which shows that the facts on which the objections are based are not true, the bill will not be reviewed. Stanton v. State, 70 Cr. R. 518, 163 S. W. 984.

The Court of Civil Appeals is bound by the trial court’s statement of the circumstances set forth as a qualification to the bill of exceptions. Yellow Pine Paper Mill Co. v. Lyons (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 959.

The court could not qualify bills of exception by stating facts dehors the record; it being necessary that he testify to such facts like any other witness. Graham v. State, 72 Cr. R. 8, 160 S. W. 714.

In the absence of bills of exceptions proved as required by statute, only the bills as qualified by the trial judge will be considered. Glover v. Peiffer (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 984.

Qualifying statements, appended to bills of exceptions by the court when approving the same, are controlling as to the facts stated therein. Texas, G. & N. Ry. Co. v. Berlin (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 62.
Where the qualifications of a witness as an expert were elicited before he was allowed to testify, it was not error to qualify a bill of exceptions to his testimony by setting forth the facts upon which the ruling allowing the witness to testify was based. Texas Midland Co. v. Ray (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 1013.

On the court's qualification of an assignment that the remark of counsel was not made in the hearing of the jury, it will be presumed that it was not made in their hearing. Jefferson Cotton Oil & Fertilizer Co. v. Frigden & Congleton (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 739.

Where a qualification of a bill of exceptions to evidence states that the statements were not true, it will not be held to be an exception reserved, and no error thereon will be overruled. First State Bank of Blackwell v. Knox (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 884.

Facts stated in trial court's qualification to bill of exceptions to exclusion of testimony must be taken by Court of Civil Appeals as correct. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Plainview v. Slaton (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 742.

Statement by trial judge upon bill of exceptions that findings by him that claims of parties to action were simulated, etc., which rendered testimony immaterial, held not qualified, but an explanation by court of its ruling excluding the evidence. Jolley v. Brown (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 177.

That court qualified bill of exceptions to exclusion of testimony by stating that it did not appear what witness would have testified does not prevent consideration of the ruling on appeal. Walton v. Walton (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 158.

Statement of judge relative to bill.—Bill of exceptions held not impeachable by the trial judge's certificate that he was misled into signing it, but that the proper proceeding was to have the record corrected in the trial court. Neville v. Miller (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 135.

Striking out bill.—Under Courts of Civil Appeals rule 8 (142 S. W. x), relating to the filing of motions, a motion to strike bills of exceptions contained in the transcript, not filed within 30 days after the transcript was filed, held waived. Tyler v. Sowders (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 236; Neville v. Miller (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 316.

The district court in vacation may entertain a motion to strike out bill of exceptions. Neville v. Miller (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1109.

Necessity of filing bill.—An assignment of error must be overruled, the bill of exceptions not appearing in the record to have been approved by the trial judge, or to have been filed in trial court. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Sumford (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 857.

Art. 2067. [1369] [1367] Bystanders' bill, how obtained.

Bystanders' bill.—Under this article, the term "bystander" defined, and held not to include attorneys for either party and hence that a bill attested by attorneys could not be considered. Glover v. Peiffer (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 984.

Approval by bystanders of bill of exceptions disallowed by court held in compliance with the statute, and the bill to be taken as true where it was not contested as authorized by statute. Hemphill v. State, 72 Cr. R. 635, 165 S. W. 462, 51 L. R. A. (N. S.) 914.

Under this article, the bill must be prepared, sworn to, and filed at the time of the occurrence of the matter to which it relates. Kenedy Mercantile Co. v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 1094.

When not contested by affidavits, as authorized by statute, a bystander's bill, prepared under this article, imports absolute verity and cannot be questioned otherwise. Marshall v. State, 76 Cr. R. 589, 175 S. W. 154.

Under this article and art. 2063, where plaintiff in error presents bill of exceptions, court has no right to qualify it, but must either sign it, or if not correct indorse his refusal to do so and file a proper bill, leaving plaintiff in error to his remedy of a bill by bystanders if not satisfied. Jolley v. Brown (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 177.

Art. 2068. [1379] [1377] Statement of facts, how prepared.

1. Not repealed.—This article and art. 2069, relative to making up of statement of facts, being held or repealed by Acts 31st Leg. & 32d, c. 38, notwithstanding the proviso which is incorporated in Rev. St. 1911, art. 1921. Camden Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 816.

5. Necessity of statement of facts.—In general.—Where there was no motion for new trial, and the record contains no statement of facts, the court on appeal can consider only fundamental matters. Lane v. Miller & Vidor Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 100.

7. — Statement of facts or bill of exceptions.—In the absence of any bills of exception or statement of facts in the record, the denial of an extension of time for filing bills of exception and statement of facts cannot be reviewed. Baugh v. Baugh (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 725.

A bill of exceptions cannot supply the office of a statement of facts, however full its recital of the facts. Holmes v. Coalson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 628.

Where there was no statement of facts or bill of exceptions showing the request, an affidavit that appellant requested findings of fact did not present the request as part of the record. Hamilton v. Eiland (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 280.

8. Decisions not reviewable without statement—in general.—In the absence of a statement of facts, it cannot be determined whether error was committed in the refusal to instruct a verdict for defendants, failure to submit, the issue of any consideration for the creation of a contract or the paragraph of the charge did not correctly state the issues raised and was on the weight of the evidence. C. A. Elmen & Co. v. Godsey (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 1178.

Statement of defendant's counsel in his argument was a liar cannot be said to be error in the absence of a statement of facts. Fulkreave v. Griffith & Griffith (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 292.

Assignments of error attacking a verbal agreement for want of consideration, and answers of jury to special issues as against the evidence, and submission of special issues as irrelevant cannot be considered in absence of statement of facts. Allen v. Reed (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 544.

9. — Relating to venue.—Error in overruling a plea of privilege by defendant to be heard in another county cannot be reviewed in the absence of statement of the evidence adduced on the hearing of such plea. Mallow v. Raynes (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 23.

11. — Rulings on pleadings.—Without a statement of facts or finding of facts in the record, the appellate court cannot review alleged errors in overruling special exceptions to the pleadings. Alaxs v. Hubard Co. v. Hubbard Co. (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 548.

13. — Interlocutory proceedings.—To review ruling on merits of plea in abatement, all evidence before trial court, upon which it ruled on the plea, should appear on record either by proper bill of exception or in statement of facts. Southwestern Gas & Electric Co. v. Duke (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1010.

14. — Admissibility of evidence.—In the absence from the record of any statement of facts supporting new trial, the court will not be reviewed, there being no way to determine whether the admission was error. Hunter v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1649.

15. — Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—In the absence of a statement of facts, an objection that the court’s findings are not supported by the evidence will not be reviewable. Connell v. S. Hickey (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 115.

In the absence of a statement of facts, it must be presumed on appeal that there was evidence sufficient to support the verdict. Wedgeworth v. Smith (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 641.

An assignment of error that the evidence was insufficient to support the judgment rendered cannot be considered where there is no statement of facts in the record. Dixon v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 655.

An assignment of error that the judgment was unsupported by the evidence will be overruled where the record contains no statement of facts. Hill v. Rinslclose (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 155.

16. — Questions involving evidence.—A citation showing that one of the parties therein was not served and that one was dead held not evidence for the consideration of the Court of Civil Appeals, unless it came up in a proper statement of facts. Bastrop & Austin Bayou Rice Growers’ Ass’n v. Cochran (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 294.

Where the court heard evidence as to the reasonableness of compensation for garnishment wrongfully sued out, allowance will not be disturbed, in the absence of a statement of facts. Heh v. Mullins, Jr., (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1166.

Assignments of error relating to the action of the court, the correctness of which depended upon the evidence, cannot be reviewed without a statement of facts. Lingo Lumber Co. v. Garvin (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 561.

18. — Submission of issues.—In the absence of a statement of facts, an assignment of error to the ruling, withdrawing from the jury the issue raised by defendant’s plea of limitations, must be overruled. Maple v. Smith (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 1196.

Assignments of error to the manner in which the cause was submitted to the jury on special issues cannot be considered, where there are no bills of exception or statement of facts in the record and no showing of fundamental error. Baugh v. Baugh (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 725.

19. — Instructions.—In the absence of a statement of facts, the appellate court could not pass on assignments of instructions since, though the instructions are shown in the record, it will be presumed that the evidence, if any, was the same which rendered them harmless. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Hughston (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 42.

Even if a charge submitted a theory of plaintiff’s case not authorized by the allegations of the petition, it cannot, in the absence of a statement of facts, be held this was “reasonably calculated to cause and probably did cause the rendition of an improper judgment,” so as, under Court of Civil Appeals Rule 62 (149 S. W. 1), to authorize a reversal. C. A. Elmen & Co. v. Godsey (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 1178.

In the absence of a statement of facts, assignments of error to the court’s refusal to give requested charges will not be considered. Bastrop & Austin Bayou Rice Growers’ Ass’n v. Cochran (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 294.

Where the record contains no statement of facts, the correctness of instructions given or refused cannot be reviewed. Wertheimer v. Hargreaves Printing Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 282.

In absence of statement of facts, court cannot review alleged error in overruling motion for peremptory instruction for plaintiff or in refusing special charges, requested by plaintiff, propriety of which depended on evidence. Bruns Kimball & Co. v. Amandsen (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 729.

A finding held conclusive as against objection that it was based on hearsay evidence, where there was no statement of facts in the record. Martin v. Reid (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 1964.

Where it is desired to present on appeal the refusal of the trial court to file conclusions of law and fact as requested, the matter must be presented by an appropriate bill of exceptions. Sewall v. Colby (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 694.

Where a judgment appealed from is supported by the findings of the court and jury, it will be assumed on appeal, in the absence of the statement of facts, that the findings are supported by evidence. Dickerson v. San Antonio, U. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1645.

Objections to findings of law and fact by the trial judge and to his refusal to find additional facts, cannot be reviewed in the absence of a statement of facts. Dickerson v. San Antonio, U. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1645.

Where all assignments of error relate to conclusions of law which are dependent upon the facts and there is no statement of facts or findings of facts in the record, the judgment must be affirmed. Bliss v. San Antonio School Board (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1176.

Where the evidence, a finding of the value of improvements put on land cannot be disturbed on appeal. Bean v. Cook (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1136.

The court on appeal cannot say that the conclusion reached by the trial judge was erroneous in the absence of a statement of facts. North American Ins. Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 307.

Where there is no statement of facts in the record, the findings of fact filed by the trial judge are conclusive. Lyon-Gray Lumber Co. v. Nocona Cotton Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 633.

21. — Verdict or judgment.—In absence of statement of facts, held, that the court could not determine that a judgment was erroneous because based on a finding on the theory of negligence submitted. Martinez v. Medina Valley Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1055.

Without a statement of facts or finding of facts in the record, the appellate court cannot determine that a judgment on contested issues is erroneous. Ajax-Grieb Rubber Co. v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 568.

25. Decisions reviewable without statement.—In a switchman's action for personal injuries alleging a defective roadbed, a charge taking the question of negligence from the jury and declaring such condition to be negligent was so apparently erroneous as to leave no doubt but that it must have influenced the jury and was reviewable though the record contained no statement of facts. Trinity & Brazos Valley Ry. Co. v. Lunsford (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 877.

To entitle a party to a review of rulings upon the admissibility of testimony, in the absence of a statement of facts, it must appear with reasonable certainty that error has been committed resulting in substantial injury and hence in action for the price of a trial, as the judge, in the exclusion of error, as a breach of warranty was entitled to consider upon its merits. Clark & Schaeffer v. Gaar-Scott & Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 651.

26. Form and content of statement—in general.—A statement of facts should be typewritten, but if the parties be unable to meet the expense of typewriting it must be prepared in neat hierarchical form, and is insufficient when disfigured by erasures, interlineations, and pasters. Raley v. D. Sullivan & Co. (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 99.

It is the duty of appellant to see that the statement of facts is properly prepared. Pugh v. Pugh (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 312.

A statement of facts should only contain the testimony that was admitted and the objections thereto, and evidence sought to be introduced, objections thereto, and the sustaining of the objections may be stricken from motion. Id.

The statement of facts need not show the value of the property in controversy when the trial court's judgment recites that fact. Dunlap v. Squires (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 438.

31. — Setting forth evidence in general.—The Court of Civil Appeals is justified in refusing to reverse a case where the plaintiff in error brings up a statement of facts which fails to show what the testimony actually was. Thatcher v. Matthews (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 810.

32. — Excluded evidence.—In the bill of exceptions and not in the statement of facts, is the proper place to show that testimony was excluded, when the party complaining desires to have the ruling reviewed on appeal. Pugh v. Pugh (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 312.

34. — Agreement of parties as to evidence.—Rule 85 for the District Courts (142 S. W. xxiii), providing that counsel may agree upon the omission of unnecessary papers in the record, requires appellant to endeavor to make such an agreement, nor does fact, that the appellees agreed to a statement of facts setop them from asserting that it was unnecessarily prolix, and evidence set out in full in the bill of exceptions need not be repeated in the statement of facts, under art. 2650. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Porter (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 594.

Documents following the statement of facts preceded by an agreement that they should be considered as part of the statement of facts cannot be considered, where the agreement was not signed by one of the parties or any one for it, though approved by the trial judge. Hoffman (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1149.

35. — Copying written instruments, etc.—Under this article and art. 2070, and district court rules 72-74 (167 S. W. xxxv), prescribing the manner of preparing statements of facts, instruments or parts of them bearing on a question presented should be copied into the statement of facts, and the original instrument should not be attached to it. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. McCall (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 925.

Exhibits of maps and photographs of the land in controversy called for by the statement of facts must be included, where the appellant desires a review of the sufficiency of the evidence. Perrow v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 572, reviewing denied 181 S. W. 496.

Where it is sought to review testimony consisting largely of references to maps, the statement of facts should show the maps in connection with the references thereto. Kincheon v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 92.

Where both parties pleaded a special law by giving its title and the date of its approval, as authorized by art. 1825, and the entire act was before the court, it must be considered as part of the record on appeal, although not copied into the statement of facts. Alteig v. Gutzke (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 220.
Under district and county court rules 72-76 (142 S. W. xxii), it is unnecessary to copy deeds and acknowledgments in full in statement of facts, where there is no question as to validity or correctness in form or record of such instruments. Hornbeck v. Barker (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 276.

37. Sufficiency of statement in general.—Bill of exceptions, together with statement of facts, is not held sufficient to prevent error, held so far as to ground for reversal. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Cave (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 872.

Under this article, the agreed statement of the parties used at trial cannot be considered as a statement of facts on appeal, though approved by the trial judge, the various instruments and exhibits introduced by agreement being brought up separately. Lingo Lumber Co. v. Garvin (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 561.

Rule 48 for the Court of Civil Appeals (142 S. W. xv), relating to statement of facts where the case was tried on agreed facts, is invalid so far as it may conflict with the statutes. Id.

38. Execution and approval—in general.—A statement of facts in the record will not be considered when not signed by the attorneys or approved by the court. Mayes v. State, 72 Cr. 381, 162 S. W. 520.

A purporting statement of facts made up entirely of questions and answers, and not approved either by counsel or the trial judge, though certified to be correct by the official stenographer, cannot be considered. King v. State, 72 Cr. 394, 162 S. W. 890.

An unsigned document, purporting to be the statement of facts, included among the papers in the case, cannot be considered. Ft. Worth & D. Ry. Co. v. Wells (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 815.

39. — Signature of parties or attorneys.—It was not necessary for certain defendants to sign the statement of facts, where their interest was not affected by the appeal, and appellant does not complain of the judgment as to them. Amicable Life Ins. Co. v. Kenner (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 462.

A statement of facts not presented to a party's counsel on a date leaving sufficient time for examination of same could not be considered in so far as it related to such party. Hermann v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 865.

40. — Approval and signature of Judge.—A statement of facts not approved by the trial judge cannot be considered for any purpose. Stewart v. State (Cr. App.) 162 S. W. 517; Gray v. State, 71 Cr. 415, 159 S. W. 1183; Humphries v. State, 71 Cr. 551, 160 S. W. 488; Bradford v. State, 72 Cr. 76, 160 S. W. 1185.

A purported statement of facts in the record signed by the attorneys, but not approved by the judge, cannot be considered. Taylor v. State, 73 Cr. 192, 164 S. W. 844; First Nat. Bank of Ft. Worth v. Henwood (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 5.

A statement of facts which has neither been signed nor filed in the trial court should not be copied in the transcript. St. Clair v. State, 72 Cr. 37, 160 S. W. 553.

Document purporting to be a statement of facts, not approved by the trial judge, will be stricken out on motion. Gerrate v. State, 71 Cr. 531, 160 S. W. 695.

A statement of facts not approved by the judge trying the case, but by his successor, cannot be considered on appeal. Allen v. State, 72 Cr. 277, 182 S. W. 865.

The trial judge must sign the statement of facts. Kaufman v. State (2 cases) 72 Cr. 465, 163 S. W. 74.

Where counsel neither notified the trial judge, who was on his vacation, nor took the statement of facts to him for approval within 30 days and they were not served within that time, held, that they could not be considered. Jones v. State, 74 Cr. 350, 163 S. W. 75.

Document purporting to contain a statement of facts but not approved by the trial court, is not entitled to consideration, since no statement of facts can be considered unless so approved. Graham v. State, 73 Cr. 28, 163 S. W. 735.

An agreed statement in the trial court cannot, under this article and art. 1349, be considered as a statement of facts on appeal, where not showing the approval of the trial judge. Lingo Lumber Co. v. Garvin (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 561.

41. — Waiver of approval.—Under Supreme Court rules 8 and 9 (142 S. W. xi), delay in filing motion to strike statement of facts held to waive informality in trial court's certification. McLane v. Haydon (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 1197.

42. — Mandamus to compel approval.—A party can, by mandamus, compel the trial judge to approve a statement of facts when the judge wrongfully fails or refuses to approve it. Houghton v. T. C. R. Co. v. Hughton (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 42.

A judge of an inferior court should not be compelled to prepare a statement of facts, unless it appears that it was the duty of such judge to prepare the statement. Dobie v. Scott (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 286.

43. — Operation and effect of statement—in general.—While statement of facts might be consulted to sustain judgment where issue had not been submitted to jury, it cannot be done where the issue was submitted. Indiana Co-op. Canal Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 242.

Where the bill of exceptions stated that evidence, the admission of which was assigned to witness’s redirect examination, while the agreed statement of facts disclosed that it was developed upon his cross-examination, the agreed statement controlled. Southwestern Casualty Ins. Co. v. Heisterman (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 1055.

Where bill of exceptions attacking refusal to allow witness to testify was contradicted by statement of facts which showed that witness did answer, statement will control. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Washburn (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 580.

A statement of facts properly certified is conclusive as to what evidence was introduced on trial, and cannot be modified by any bill of exceptions. Teel v. Brown (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 319.

Where there was a bill of exceptions that the court erred in allowing plaintiff to offer parol evidence to support written contract, but agreed statement of facts does not disclose that any such evidence was offered, such statement of facts will control bill of exceptions. Eubank v. Bostick (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 214.

59. Amendment or correction of statement.—A supplemental statement of facts held not proper matter for consideration in addition to the statement of facts filed and approved in time. Texas Fidelity & Bonding Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1125.

The court, in exercising its inherent power to prevent fraud, might allow a motion to correct statement of facts, though not filed within 30 days. Trans-Pecos Land & Irrigation Co. v. Arno Co-operative Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 928.

60. Alterations of statement.—Parties cannot, by agreement without the approval of the presiding judge, make any material change in the statement of facts approved by the judge. Eaton v. Klein (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 331.

61. Striking from record—in general.—Appellee, who agrees to a statement of facts, is not thereby stopped from moving to strike it out for failure to comply with the law and the rules regulating statements of facts. Pugh v. Pugh (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 312.

Under rule 8 (143 S. W. xi), statement of facts held to be considered, appellee having made no motion to strike it out or proper objection to its consideration. Holmes v. Coalition (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 626.

62. Grounds in general.—Under this article, a statement of facts not signed through the inadvertence of the judge must be stricken, though appellant may, under article 3974, file a signed statement pending motion to strike, on showing excuse for not discovering the judge’s failure. Rea v. Fields (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 191.

63. Effect of striking out.—Where the statement of facts and bills of exception were stricken from the record, assignments challenging the sufficiency of the evidence or the propriety of the charge cannot be considered. Cook v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 636.

64. Effect of absence of statement—in general.—Under Rules 40 and 41 for Courts of Civil Appeals (142 S. W. xiv) where the record contained no statement of facts or evidence or briefs for appellees, court could decide case on issues presented by appellants’ brief. Davis v. W. Davis Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 175.

Where the record contains nothing but the pleadings and the order denying the injunction, there being no statement of facts, etc., the question whether denial of a temporary injunction was warranted must be determined on the pleadings. Spencer v. Fencler (Sup.) 180 S. W. 691.

In the absence of statement of facts, only assignments needing no reference to the facts for determination can be considered. First State Ins. Co. v. Sharp (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 792.

In the absence of a statement of facts, the appellate court may consider only such matters as specifically appear from the record. Webster v. International & G. N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 175.

The no statement of facts or bills of exceptions are brought up with record precludes reversal of judgment except for fundamental errors appearing on face of record, but does not affect right to appeal. Lauraine v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 708; Lauraine v. Vaughn (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 712.

65. Presumptions.—Where an order overruling a plea of privilege recited that evidence relating thereto was heard, it will be presumed, in the absence of any bill of exceptions or statement of facts, that the evidence was insufficient to establish such plea. Guerra v. Guerra (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 191.

Where there was no statement of facts in the record, it will be presumed that proof was made that the plaintiff exercised its option to declare a note due for default in the payment of interest, if such proof were necessary to support the judgment. Shearer v. Chambers County (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 999.

In the absence of a statement of facts, the appellate court must presume that in an action on a note the proof sufficiently described the note upon which the lower court rendered judgment. Cox v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 604.

Where there is no statement of facts, every material allegation in the petition necessary to sustain the judgment is presumed to have been proven in plaintiff’s favor. Swift v. Beemer (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 899.

Where there was no statement of facts, it must be presumed that a judgment recital that evidence of defendant’s employment was true, and that all the parties were before the court, to authorize judgment, as provided by law. Bastrop & Austin Bayou Rice Growers’ Ass’n v. Cochran (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 284.

Where there is no statement of facts in the record, the court on appeal will presume the facts and the evidence susceptible of proof on the pleadings to have been proved; but the rule does not apply where the record contains findings of fact and conclusions of law therefrom. Baldwin v. Drew (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 614.

In an action on an account, though the transcript disclosed an insufficient account, in the absence of a statement of facts, it must be presumed that evidence was sufficient to support the judgment. Ahrep v. James A. Dick Co. (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 269.

Where there is no statement of facts in the record, it must be presumed that the evidence justified the verdict. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Elias (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 312.

Where the record contains no statement of facts, the findings of the trial court must be taken as true. DeWitt v. Brown (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 47.

In absence of statement of facts, court must assume that the evidence raised the issues submitted by the trial court, and that no other issues, even if raised by the pleadings, were sustained by the proof. Brunz Kimball & Co. v. Amundsen (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 728.

Upon appeal from judgment for plaintiff, where there is no statement of facts, necessary allegations of complaint will be presumed to have been established by proof. Crews & Williams v. Gullett Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 793.

In absence of statement of facts, reviewing court will presume that the facts proven on trial support finding of jury and judgment. Benton v. Benton (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 192.

Submitting to the jury a question whether defendant buyer knew of alleged defects in a tractor when he paid a purchase price note thereon is not reversible error in absence of a statement of facts, being presumably warranted by the evidence. Varley v. Nichols-Shepard Sales Co. (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 611.

Where contributory negligence was pleaded as proximately causing the injury and there was judgment for defendant upon answers to special issues, it will be presumed, in the absence of a statement of facts, that the fact that the contributory negligence proximately caused his injury was found by the court and supported by the evidence. Behney v. Missouri Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1148.

In the absence of a statement of fact showing the evidence, it will be conclusively presumed on appeal that the evidence supported the judgment. Webster v. International & G. N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 170.

In absence of bill of exception or statement of facts showing evidence before trial court on hearing for new trial, asking that judgment by default against defendant be set aside because citation was served in less than ten days before return day, it must be found and was warranted that service was perfect, as shown by return. Dawson v. George (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 495.

Where court has found that plaintiff was a bona fide resident entitling her to sue for divorce, it will be presumed on appeal, in absence of a statement of facts, that all jurisdictional allegations were sustained by ample proof. Hill v. Hill (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 729.

Where there is neither a statement of facts nor findings of the trial judge, the appellate court should presume in favor of the judgment that every fact essential to its correctness was proved. Cumby Light & Telephone Co. v. Pierce-Fordyce Oil Ass'n (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 170.

In absence of statement of facts, every fact necessary to support judgment will be presumed to exist, unless fundamental error appears on the face of the record proper. National Aéroplane Co. v. McCormick (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 375.

Where a statement of facts cannot be considered, so as to make it appear that error complained of in appellant's brief was committed, the judgment must be affirmed. Pugh v. Pugh (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 312.

Where there is no fundamental error nor statement of facts, the judgment will be affirmed. Smith v. Loewents (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 725.

Where a motion to reinstate a case was not verified, and there is no statement of facts or bill of exception showing that evidence to sustain its averments was offered, a judgment overruling motion will be affirmed. Chattanooga Medicine Co. v. Ligon (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 571.

71. Reversal because of inability to secure statement,—Under Rule 62a for Courts of Civil Appeals (149 S. W. x), forbidding reversal except for error calculated to cause a wrong judgment, held that unexuded refusal of the trial judge to file conclusions of fact and law, as required by Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1957, art. 3552, was reversible error, though there was in the record a statement of facts agreed to by defendant's counsel. Kyle v. Blanchette (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 796.

Where the attorney for defendant and the county attorney agree on a statement of facts and present it to the county judge, the judge should approve it if correct, and, if not, prepare and file one, and his failure to do so is ground for reversal. Sims v. State, 72 Cr. R. 533, 162 S. W. 1154.

Where defendant has been deprived of a statement of facts, material to his appeal, without fault or negligence of himself or counsel, he is entitled to reversal, but where it is apparent from affidavits filed by appellant and statements in his brief that he made no effort himself to prepare statement of facts under this article, upon stenographer's refusal to do so for a pauper appellant, such for a pauper, such statement to a county judge, the county judge prepared, is not entitled to reversal because of stenographer's refusal. Joachim v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 251.

Affidavit filed in trial court held sufficient to show appellant and counsel did all possible to procure statement of facts in accordance with statute, and were deprived of such statement by arbitrary action of trial judge, and appellant's remedy was mandamus to compel trial judge to discharge his statutory duty, and not to have judgment reversed on appeal. First Nat. Bank v. Herrell (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 797.

72. Scope of review of agreement statement.—In an action non.divide in a teleogram, the company cannot on appeal question its liability on the ground of a stipulation limiting liability for an unrequited message, where such provision did not appear in the statement of facts. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 512.

73. Use of statement in subsequent trial.—On the second trial of an action, testimony of witness at former trial, since deceased, could not be proved by a certified copy of the statement of facts upon the former appeal, not shown to have been made up from notes, and no other proof of its verity being made. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 701.

Art. 2069 [1380] [1378] When the parties disagree.

1. Statement of facts prepared by judge.—In general.—Where the prosecuting officers failed to agree to a statement of facts in time, or return the same, defendant's counsel should present a statement to the judge and request that he prepare and file a statement, if the one presented was not correct. Jovanovich v. State, 72 Cr. R. 126, 161 S. W. 98.

Rev. St. 1911, arts. 2068, 2069, relative to making up of statement of facts, held not superseded or repealed by Acts 51st Leg. (1st Called Sess.) c. 39, notwithstanding the proviso which is incorporated in Rev. St. 1911, art. 2072. Camden Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 816.

Under Rev. St. 1911, art. 2069, providing that, where parties cannot agree upon a statement of facts, the judge shall certify a correct statement from statements furnished by the parties and from his own knowledge, held, that a statement of facts in an injunction suit, based in part upon recollection of a bystander, is not reversible error, where the record contains a stipulation that the statement so prepared is correct. Commissioners' Court of Trinity County v. Miles (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 378.

2. Statement in a judge's certificate.—Recital in a judge's certificate to a statement of facts that he had prepared the same from the statements of the parties, the "stenographer's notes," and his own recollection held not a sufficient statement that an official stenographer served in the case. Edwards v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 289.

Art. 2070. Statement of facts prepared from transcript of official reporter, when and how, etc.; in duplicate; original sent up; reporter to prepare on request, etc.; fees.

7. Preparing statement from stenographer's report—In general.—Under art. 1924, providing for an official transcript of testimony, this article, and art. 2072, permitting statements of facts to be made independent of the official transcript, held, that appellant could not require appellee to agree to a statement of facts prepared by him independently of the official transcript, which statement would not be considered as a statement of facts. Buffalo Bayou Co. v. Lorentz (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1052.

Under this article and arts. 1926 and 2072, an appellant may, without procuring the reporter's transcript of the proceedings, prepare a statement of facts, though the appellee did not consent thereto. Ft. Worth Pub. Co. v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1113.

9. Preparing in duplicate.—A statement of facts prepared by the trial judge, upon a disagreement between counsel in reference thereto, need not be prepared in duplicate with the clerk, if only be filed, where the case was tried, as part of the record of the cause. Austin Fire Ins. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 973.

11. Execution and approval.—Recital in a judge's certificate to a statement of facts from the statements of the parties, the "stenographer's notes," and his own recollection held not a sufficient statement that an official stenographer served in the case. Edwards v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 289.

12. Sufficiency.—Where there were what purported to be two statements of facts, one marked "original" with only the certificate of the court stenographer and no agreement of the parties, or approval of the judge indorsed thereon, and the other not marked either "duplicate," or "original," with no certificate of the clerk, neither will be considered as a statement of the facts on appeal. Hunker v. Estes (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 470.

13. Operation and effect.—Under this article and arts. 1924 and 2072, where appellant had the official stenographer prepare a narrative form of a statement of facts from the shorthand notes, the reporter acted as appellant's agent, and the statement so prepared was a statement of facts, independent of the transcript of the reporter's notes, permitted by article 2072. Canode v. Sewell (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 271.

14. Condensation.—Where testimony of jurors on motion for new trial was lengthy, held, that it should have been put in narrative form, agreed to by the attorneys, and approved by the judge. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 888.

15. Questions and answers.—A stenographic report of a trial, made out in the form of questions and answers and including the objections and argument of counsel, together with the rulings of the court, cannot be considered as a statement of facts. Criner v. State, 71 Cr. R. 369, 159 S. W. 1059.

Under this article and art. 1924, the statement of facts must be reduced to narrative form, and a statement in question and answer form cannot be sanctioned. Moody v. State, 73 Cr. R. 121, 164 S. W. 828.

Documentary evidence.—Under this article and art. 2068, and district court rules 72 and 72-B (proscribing the manner of procuring statements of facts, instruments or parts of them bearing on a question presented should be copied into the statement of facts, and the original instrument should not be attached to it). Texas Cent. R. Co. v. McCall (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 925.

19. Striking and time for filing.—Where no official county court stenographer is appointed, and the statement of facts is prepared by the litigants, the statutes do not require that a duplicate copy thereof shall be filed in the office of the county clerk. Security Trust & Life Ins. Co. v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 108.

20. Striking.—Where no official court stenographer was appointed, the omission of the duties of the official stenographer as to the manner of transcribing the evidence, making and certifying to the transcript, and filing the transcript and statement of facts in the trial court, is not ground for striking from the record the statement of facts prepared by the litigants. Security Trust & Life Ins. Co. v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 108.

Under this article and art. 1924, a statement of facts prepared from the stenographer's notes, no transcript of which had been filed, should be stricken, where the parties have not agreed to a statement as authorized by article 2072. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Prasak (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 859.

This article and arts. 1924 and 2072 must be construed together, and, where the parties appeal have agreed to a statement of facts by virtue of article 2072, they lose the right to object that this article and art. 1924 have not been complied with. Id.

Under this article, statement covering about 30 pages of record, and containing less than one-half page of evidence in form of questions and answers, held not to show such flagrant violation of statute and rules as to require it to be stricken. Hornbeck v. Barker (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 276.

Art. 2071. Transcript for party appealing without bond; affidavit; falsity; punishment.—In any civil case where the appellant or plaintiff in error has made the proof required to appeal his case without bond, such appellant or plaintiff in error may make affidavit of such fact, and upon the making and filing of such affidavit, the Court shall order the stenographer to make a transcript as provided in Section 5 [art. 1924, Vernon's Sayles' Civ. St. 1914] of this Act, and deliver same as herein provided in other cases, but the stenographer shall receive no pay for same; provided, that should any such affidavit so made by such appellant or plaintiff in error be false he shall be prosecuted and punished as is now provided by law for making false affidavits. [Acts 1911, p. 264, § 8; Act April 3, 1917, ch. 189, § 1; Act May 19, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 27, § 1.]

Explanatory.—See art. 1926 and note thereunder. The provision relating to false affidavit, though seemingly more appropriate for the Penal Code, has not been severed from its context for the reason that it seems to have no operative effect; there being no provision for punishment for "making false affidavits" in judicial proceedings. Cited, Joachim v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 251.

Enforcement of article.—This article held mandatory, and enforceable by mandamus against district or circuit court refusing to order the stenographer to prepare such transcript. Roberts v. State (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 251.

Where affidavit in forma pauperis, under this article was never presented or acted upon, by court, and where no reason appeared why a statement of facts could not have been made out within the time allowed by law, a purported statement of facts would not be considered. Lewis v. State (Cr. App.) 177 S. W. 972.

The court which tried a murder case committed no error when it refused to entertain defendant's affidavit, praying that the official stenographer be required to prepare a statement of facts for him without charge, as for a pauper appellant, which was filed before sentence and pending motion for new trial, and while it is the duty of the court to make an order requiring the stenographer to make out a statement, yet a conviction of murder on second trial would not be reversed for the court's failure to do so where defendant took no steps to protect his rights beyond praying an order to that effect. Herrera v. State (Cr. App.) 159 S. W. 1097.

Court of Civil Appeals has power, under art. 1925, to order official stenographer of county court to prepare transcript for pauper appellant, as required by this article, and it is the duty, compulsory by mandamus, of a judge of a county court, who found that plaintiff had filed sufficient affidavit of inability to pay the costs of appeal, to order the stenographer appointed under Acts 35d Laws 11th to act in a single case, who did so for three days, receiving his pay of $15, to prepare a transcript for the plaintiff free of charge. Otto v. Wren (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 350.
Art. 2072. Laws repealed; not to prevent preparation of statements of fact by parties.

Repeal. — Arts. 2068 and 2069, relative to making up of statement of facts, held not superseded or repealed by Acts 31st Leg. (1st Called Sess.) c. 90, notwithstanding the provisions incorporated in this article. Cundeen Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 816.

Preparation of statement in general. — That the delay in the preparation of the statement of facts was occasioned by sickness of the stenographer's wife was not a sufficient excuse for not filing a statement in time, as appellant should have man­ damused the stenographer, or his attorneys should have prepared a statement as permitted by this article. Roberts v. State, 168 S. W. 95, 74 Tex. Cr. R. 294.

Under arts. 1924 and 2070, where appellant had the official steno­ grapher prepare a narrative form of a statement of facts from the shorthand notes, the reporter acted as appellant's agent, and the statement so prepared was a statement of facts, independent of the transcript of the reporter's notes, permitted by this article. Canode v. Sewell (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 571.

This article and art. 1924 and 2070 must be construed together, and, where the parties on appeal have agreed to a statement of facts by virtue of this article, they lose the right to object that articles 1924 and 2070 have not been complied with. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Frnak (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 859.

Under arts. 1924 and 2070, a statement of facts prepared from the stenographer's notes, no transcript of which had been filed, should be stricken, where the parties have not agreed to a statement as authorised by this article. id.

Under art. 1924, providing for an official transcript of testimony, art. 2070, requiring a statement of facts, and this article, held, that appellant could not require ap­ pellee to agree to a statement of facts prepared by him independently of the official transcript, which statement would not be considered as a statement of facts. Buffalo Bayou Co. v. Lorents (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1052.

Under this article and arts. 1924 and 2070, an appellant may, without procuring the reporter's transcript of the proceedings, prepare a statement of facts, though the ap­ pellee did not consent thereto. Ft. Worth Pub. Co. v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 1113.

Under the statute, appellant, without consent of appellee, may without the re­ porter's transcript prepare a statement of facts on appeal, and have it approved by the judge. J. E. Farthing Lumber Co. v. Illig (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1992.

Art. 2073. Time for preparing and filing statements of fact and bills of exceptions; judge may extend, provided, etc.; when parties fail to agree on statement, etc.; proviso.

3½ Certification by attorney. — Under this article, statement of facts held not to be stricken because appellant's attorney, when presenting it to trial court for approval, after failure of parties to agree, did not certify to it. McLane v. Haydon (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 1197.

4. Filing with clerk. — A statement of facts prepared by the trial judge, upon a disagreement between counsel in reference thereto, need not be prepared in duplicate but need only be filed with the clerk of the court, where the case was tried, as part of the record of the cause. Austin Fire Ins. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 973.

5. Statement of facts, bearing no file marks and not showing when it was filed in the trial court, cannot be considered on appeal, but where the clerk of the trial court certified that he erroneously omitted the file marks from the transcript, the statement of facts must be considered on appeal. Nolen v. State, 72 Cr. R. 460, 162 S. W. 908.

The statement of facts should be sent up to the Court of Civil Appeals separately, and should not be incorporated in the transcript. Staley v. Colony Union Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 381.

This article applies to the manner of filing the statement of facts and the time therefor when the cause is taken to the appellate court by petition in error. McLane v. Haydon (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 1197.

Agreement by appellee's counsel that the statement of facts might be filed out of time could not relieve appellant of the duty and necessity of filing such statement in the trial court. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Reek (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 699.

5. Time for filing — in general. — Where no bill of exceptions was filed on the over­ ruling of a challenge to jurors, showing the testimony heard on the motion, until near­ ly 20 days after court adjourned, it was too late. Hall v. State, 70 Cr. R. 590, 158 S. W. 272.

Bills of exception filed more than 20 days after the adjournment of court cannot be considered. Stephens v. State, 71 Cr. R. 268, 158 S. W. 531, 532.

When a term of court which lasted at least three months, a statement of facts, not filed until 95 days after the overruling of his motion for new trial, held, in view of Rules 1 and 2, adopted by the Supreme Court for the Court of Criminal Appeals (142 S. W. xvii), and this article, not to be considered. Fowler v. State, 71 Cr. R. 1, 158 S. W. 1117.
Where accused was convicted at a term of court which lasted three months, bills of exceptions were not filed until 90 days after adjournment of the court, and the appeal was not heard until the expiration of 90 days after adjournment of the court, the judgment may be reversed upon the ground that the record contains no order authorizing the filing of such bills of exceptions. Archer v. State, 73 Cr. R. 15, 163 S. W. 442. Where the term of court may continue more than 8 weeks, bills of exception must be filed within 30 days after adjournment, unless the court shall, by order entered of record, extend the time for filing. Sewall v. Colby (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 624.

A statement of facts relating to evidence heard on motion for a new trial will not be considered if not filed in term time. Forester v. State, 73 Cr. R. 61, 163 S. W. 87. Where a statement of facts heard on a motion for a new trial was not filed or considered, it could not be considered. Hoskins v. State, 72 Cr. R. 197, 163 S. W. 436. Where a statement of facts was not filed until more than 20 days after adjournment of court, and the bills of exceptions were filed 2 days thereafter, the bills could not be considered, and matters set up in a motion for new trial could not be reviewed. Joiner v. State, 72 Cr. R. 620, 163 S. W. 436. Where bills of exceptions were not filed until more than 90 days after adjournment of the court, the judgment may be reversed upon the ground that the record contains no order authorizing such filing. Archer v. State, 73 Cr. R. 15, 163 S. W. 442. Where bills of exceptions were not filed until after adjournment of the term, the record contained no order authorizing the filing of such bills of exceptions. Archer v. State, 73 Cr. R. 15, 163 S. W. 442. Where the term of court was adjourned, no new trial was ordered when the record did not contain any order authorizing the filing of such bills of exceptions. Archer v. State, 73 Cr. R. 15, 163 S. W. 442.
Art. 2073  COURTS—DISTRICT AND COUNTY—PRACTICE IN

Statements of facts showing the evidence heard on motions for new trial, in order to be considered by this court, must be filed within term time.  Graham v. State, 73 Cr. R. 28, 163 S. W. 746.

It is the duty of defendant to see that his bills of exception are filed within the time fixed by law, and even after delivery to the trial judge in time it is his duty to have them filed.  Gowan v. State, 73 Cr. R. 31, 165 S. W. 850.

On appeal from the county court, a statement of facts filed within 30 days after adjournment could not be considered, where no order was entered allowing the filing after adjournment.  Powell v. State, 75 Cr. R. 146, 164 S. W. 852.

As a rule, bills, filed in the trial court September 19, 1913, and in the Court of Civil Appeals on September 17, 1913, was too late, and will not be considered, where judgment was rendered May 24, 1913, and the order overruling the motion for new trial was filed May 30, 1913.  (Civ. App.) Powell v. Moore (Civ. App.) 166 W. 670.

Under this article, where the only order in the record granted defendant 30 days after adjournment, a bystanders' bill filed 38 days thereafter will not be considered.  Hicks v. State, 75 Cr. R. 461, 171 S. W. 755.

In this article, a statement of facts filed July 17th, case having been tried at term of county court adjourned March 21st, was filed in time.  McLane v. Hayden (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 1187.

The court, in exercising its inherent power to prevent fraud, might allow a motion to correct statement of facts, though not filed within 30 days.  Trans-Pecos Land & Irrigation Co. v. Arno Co-operative Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 923.

A statement of fact filed within 12 months after final judgment was rendered, is in time in case of writ of error.  Kirby Lumber Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1068.

Better practice is to take bill of exceptions, have it approved and filed during trial at time an adverse ruling is made.  Jolley v. Brown (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 177.

Under the government of district courts, the adjournment of the court by Inman's court, providing that rulings on application for continuance may be reviewed only through bills of exception, held, that assignment of error to denial of continuance cannot be sustained, where bill was filed after term without order extending time.  M. Plochaty & Sons v. Wyche (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1146.

6. Filing within time for filing transcript.—This article applies to writs of error as well as to appeals, and hence a statement of facts filed at any time within 12 months after judgment is in time in case of a writ of error.  Louisiana-Rio Grande Canal Co. v. Quinn (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 151.

Under this article, an accused person has 90 days in which to file his statement of facts.  Romero v. State, 72 Cr. R. 106, 160 S. W. 1193.

A statement of facts filed before the transcript is required to be filed is filed in time, though not filed within the time specified by the trial court.  Conn v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (C Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 590.

Under this article, irrespective of Courts of Civil Appeals rule 8 (142 S. W. xii), statement of facts, filed before expiration of time for filing transcript in Court of Civil Appeals, held duly filed.  Tyler v. Sowders (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 205.

Under this article, bills of exception must be filed within the time extended by the court, and cannot be considered though they are filed within 30 days after the adjournment of the district Court.  Leob v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 378.

8. Extension of time.—Where, on the overruling of a motion for new trial on August 26th, the court granted accused 30 days' additional time in which to file his bills of exception and statement of facts, statement of facts and bills of exception not filed until the last of November cannot be considered.  Harrison v. State, 71 Cr. R. 40, 158 S. W. 1150.

This article, providing that any statement of facts filed before the time for filing the transcript in the appellate court shall be considered as having been filed within the time allowed by law, has no reference to bills of exception, and will not justify an extension of the time of filing.  Louisiana-Rio Grande Canal Co. v. Quinn (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 151.

Whether a court ordered bills of exception not filed as of a date long prior to the actual filing and approval, that will not give them added sufficiency, and they will be considered as filed on the date they actually were.  id.

The county court in a misdemeanor case is not authorized to allow longer than 30 days after the adjournment for filing the statement of facts.  Butler v. State, 72 Cr. R. 81, 160 S. W. 1191.

Where, in a misdemeanor case, the only authority to file a statement of facts after term time was a verbal order of the judge, a statement filed within the time as so extended could not be considered.  Smith v. State, 72 Cr. R. 200, 162 S. W. 835.

Neither the trial judge nor any other person has authority to antedate bills of exception or statements of fact.  Gowan v. State, 73 Cr. R. 322, 164 S. W. 6.

9. Time of granting extension.—An order extending time to file bills of exceptions may be made after the time for filing previously given has expired, whether the court be one whose terms are more or less than 8 weeks.  General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. McCurdy (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 796.

This article does not impose on trial judge absolute duty to extend time for filing, or approve statement of facts, if found correct.  Or, if not, to prepare one himself, after 30 days after adjournment, but gives him discretion, which cannot be controlled by any other court.  Dobie v. Scott (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 285.

This article grants to the trial judge as to allowing statement of facts filed after 30 days after adjournment, it is immaterial whether parties acted with all possible diligence, if the statement was offered too late.  id.

This article was filed August 25th without a statement of facts, and on October 2d the clerk refused to file an offered statement without an order of the court, but no request therefor was made until the case was submitted the following February, permission to file the statement will be denied.  Hill v. Kincard (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 185.

12. Excuses for failure to file in time.—Where one convicted of a crime did not file his bill of exceptions within the time required by statute, through no fault of his own or of his attorneys, and thereafter the judge receives and certifies the bill to be correct, the non-party may consider it, and where a deficiency is due diligence to obtain a statement of facts in time, but falls through no fault of his own, the judgment should be reversed. Johnson v. State, 71 Cr. R. 391, 159 S. W. 848.

That the county court in a misdemeanor case allowed 30 days for filing statement of facts; the defendant’s counsel, after several attempts at renewal had made several applications by the county attorney, held that accused did not show due diligence in having it filed, so that it cannot be considered. Laws v. State, 73 Cr. R. 256, 164 S. W. 1015.

Statement of facts filed late in the trial court will be considered when the late filing is properly excused in the motion for rehearing by showing difficulty of counsel in getting the statement prepared. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Reek (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 699.

13. Effect of failure to file in time—in general.—A motion for a new trial, though insufficient because not filed within the time prescribed by this article, may nevertheless be considered to determine whether it is sustainable as a bill of review to set aside a judgment. Nocona Nat. Bank v. Goin (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 182.

The time for filing bills of exception held to relate to formalities in bringing a case to appellate review—piping appeals rule of Civil Appeals rule 3, Art. 49, Sec. 1, C.C.S.L., so that failure to file in time is waived where a motion to strike is not filed and docketed within 30 days after the filing of the transcript. Conn v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 530.

Courts of Civil Appeals will notice a failure to file a statement of facts in time, although the question be not raised by the appellee. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Reek (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 699.

14. Not considered.—A bill of exceptions, not filed until more than 90 days had elapsed from the adjournment for the term, cannot be considered. Richardson v. State, 71 Cr. R. 111, 158 S. W. 517.

Where one convicted of a crime did not file his statement of facts within the time required by statute, through no fault of his own or of his attorneys, and thereafter the judge receives and certifies the statement to be correct, the Court of Criminal Appeals may consider it. Johnson v. State, 71 Cr. R. 391, 159 S. W. 848.

Unless the county court in misdemeanor cases allows 20 days or more after adjournment for filing bills of exceptions, neither bills of exceptions nor statements of facts filed after adjournment may be considered. Harris v. State, 162 S. W. 765.

Bills of exception filed 183 days after the adjournment, with no excuse for the delay, cannot be considered. Bradford v. State, 72 Cr. R. 5, 160 S. W. 651.

Statement of facts filed 150 days after adjournment, with no excuse for delay, cannot be considered. Id.

Where accused complained of the misconduct of the jury, a statement of facts as to the evidence, on the motion for new trial, which motion was overruled, cannot be considered where not filed until after the adjournment of court. Johnson v. State, 71 Cr. R. 626, 160 S. W. 695.

Where accused on motion for new trial offered evidence of the improper conduct of the jury, his statement of facts preserving the evidence cannot be considered unless filed in term time. Maithew v. State, 71 Cr. R. 374, 160 S. W. 1195.

A statement of facts, not filed within the statutory time, cannot be considered. Lisenbee v. State, 72 Cr. R. 494, 162 S. W. 1190.

A statement of facts showing the evidence introduced on a motion for a new trial for newly discovered evidence could not be considered where it was not filed until long after the adjournment of the term. Jones v. State, 74 Cr. R. 350, 163 S. W. 75.

Bills of exception or statements of fact not presented for approval or filed within the time allowed be considered, Gowan v. State, 154 S. W. 659.

Where the statement of facts is not filed within the 90 days after adjournment allowed by statute, and there is no showing why it was not done, it cannot be considered. Armstrong v. State, 72 Cr. R. 658, 164 S. W. 381.

Where a bill of exceptions is not filed within the 90 days after adjournment allowed by statute, and there is no showing why it was not done, it cannot be considered. Id.

Bill of exceptions to denial of new trial filed, nearly two months after adjournment of court, held not to be considered. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 448.
A purported statement of facts, filed in the Court of Civil Appeals, which statement had not been filed below within 90 days of perfecting the appeal, as required, could not be considered. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Reek (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 690.

Filing of statement of facts In Court of Civil Appeals held not to preclude such court from refusing to consider such statement because it was not filed below. Id.

A bill of exceptions not filed within the time given by statute, or any extension thereof, cannot be considered. Pearce v. Supreme Lodge, Knights and Ladies of Honor (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1156.

15. — Striking out.—A statement of facts not filed in the county court until more than 30 days after adjournment will be stricken on motion. Collins v. State, 72 Cr. R. 44, 161 S. W. 115.

A purported statement of facts, not filed in the trial court until six months after adjournment, will be stricken. Arrisman v. State, 72 Cr. R. 45, 161 S. W. 118.

Bill of exceptions not filed in the trial court until the sixtieth day after adjournment for the term, and after appellant had, within 30 days allowed for filing a statement of facts and bills of exceptions, attempted to extend the time for another 30 days, were filed too late, and will be stricken on motion. Boyd v. State, 72 Cr. R. 190, 161 S. W. 459.

A statement of facts and bill of exceptions, not filed until 60 days after the adjournment of court in a misdemeanor prosecution will be stricken on motion, in view of the Stenographer's Act of 1911 (Acts 32d Leg. c. 119). Phillips v. State, 72 Cr. R. 160, 161 S. W. 459.

A statement of facts and bill of exceptions not filed within 90 days after the adjournment of the term at which accused was convicted will be stricken. Dosh v. State, 72 Cr. R. 239, 161 S. W. 978.

Statement of facts and bills of exceptions filed more than 20 days after the adjournment of the term at which the trial was had will be stricken on motion. Ferguson v. State, 72 Cr. R. 494, 163 S. W. 55.

A statement of facts not certified, approved, and filed within the time allowed by law will be stricken from the record. Gowan v. State, 73 Cr. R. 222, 164 S. W. 6.

Under this article, the statement of facts, not filed within the time for filing the transcript of a criminal case, tried at a term which continued more than 8 weeks, must be stricken. Williams v. State (Cr. App.) 177 S. W. 971.

Art. 2074. [1382] [1379a] Statement of facts not filed in time, when considered by court.

Judge's failure to sign statement.—Under art. 2068, a statement of facts not signed through the inadvertence of the judge must be stricken, though appellant may, under this article, file a signed statement pending motion, on showing excuse for not discovering the judge's failure. Rea v. Fields (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 191.

Art. 2075. Time for judge to file conclusions, etc.

Applicability of statute.—Where a criminal prosecution is tried by the court, it is not authorized to file conclusions of fact and law, as in a civil action. Morris v. State, 73 Cr. R. 67, 163 S. W. 700.

This article and art. 1989 apply only to trials by the court. Schofield v. Texas Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 506.

Time for filing.—Where the judge filed his conclusions of fact and law within ten days after the adjournment of the term as permitted by this article, it was not material that they were not reduced to writing and filed during the term. August v. Gamer Co. (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 1197.

Under the statutes allowing the court 10 days after adjournment in which to file findings of fact and conclusions of law, an order of court allowing itself 30 days after adjournment in which to file such findings and conclusions which order did not file them after the prescribed 10 days. Alsworth v. Reppert (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1998.

Under this article, additional findings cannot be filed after the 10-day period. De Bruin v. Santo Domingo Land & Irrigation Co. (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 634.

Filing after time allowed.—Findings of fact and conclusions of law not filed within the time required by law cannot be considered on appeal. Standard Paint & Wall Paper Co. v. Rowan (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 261; Dennis v. Kendrick (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 693.

The findings of fact and conclusions of law filed by the trial court more than 10 days after the adjournment of the term are a nullity. Bliss v. San Antonio School Board (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1176; International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Mudd (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 688.

Where findings of fact were not filed within 10 days after the adjournment of the trial term, as required by this article, findings made thereafter are not a part of the appellate record. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Bagley-McWilliams Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 1183.

Conclusions of law and fact not filed for over two months after the trial come too late and cannot be considered for any purpose. Sewall v. Colby (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 694.

Conclusions of fact and law filed by the trial court 28 days after adjournment of court cannot be considered by the appellate court: they not being a part of the record. First Nat. Bank of Wichita Falls v. Zundelowitz (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 49.

Findings of fact and conclusions of law, filed at a date later than allowed by law, are a nullity and not part of the record on appeal. Averill v. Wierhauzer (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 704.

Reversal for failure to file in time.—A judgment will be reversed for failure of the trial judge, when duly requested, to file findings of fact and conclusions of law within the time limited by this article. Bruce v. Stark (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 795; Averill v. Wierhauzer (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 794.

Under this article and art. 1989, findings of fact and conclusions of law cannot be filed within ten days after subsequent term at which judgment nunc pro tunc was entered, 636 so that request therefor made at trial term was seasonable, and failure to file them was reversible error. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1057.
Review.—Where findings of fact and conclusions of law are filed and there are no exceptions or request for additional findings, the only question reviewable on appeal is whether the pleadings justify the judgment. Pugh v. Werner (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 698.
Under rule 101 for Courts of Civil Appeals, as amended June 25, 1912, held that object of rule is to permit assignments of error to action of court after final judgment, and findings filed by court after adjournment, under this article, can be assailed on appeal on ground that evidence will not support them without exception thereto being first filed, though there was no motion for new trial. Goodman v. W. B. Peck & Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 785.
Waiver or estoppel to raise objection.—If appellant, after requesting written findings of fact, agreed that they need not be filed within the statutory period, he thereby waived his right to have such findings made a part of the record, but evidence held not to show that appellant so agreed. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Ragley-McWilliams Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1183.
Where plaintiff requested written findings of fact and conclusions of law, and the same being prepared by defendant and signed by the judge were presented to plaintiff’s counsel within the time allowed, plaintiff’s counsel, having neglected to file them with the clerk, cannot complain that they were not filed in time. Teal v. Lakey (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 769.
Art. 2076. Where term of office expires before adjournment, etc.
Filing conclusions after expiration of term of office.—Under this article, the statement must be approved and signed by the presiding judge, though his term of office has expired. Richardson v. State, 71 Cr. R. 111, 158 S. W. 617.
The trial judge is the judge who must sign the bills of exception required by this article; a bystander's bill being necessary if the bill cannot be signed and approved by the trial judge. Kaufman v. State (2 cases), 72 Cr. R. 455, 193 S. W. 74.
Under this article, that the bill of exceptions may be considered, it must be signed and approved by the trial judge; he being accessible. Morgan v. State (Cr. App.) 180 S. W. 610.

CHAPTER TWENTY
APPEAL AND WRIT OF ERROR

Art.
2078. Appeals, etc., to the courts of civil appeals, allowed in what cases.

2113. Transcript must contain, what.
2114. Clerk's certificate and Indorsement.
2115. Brief filed in court below, and notice given.

Article 2078. [1383] [1380] Appeals, etc., to the courts of civil appeals, allowed in what cases.
2. Statutory provisions and remedies.—Statutes relating to appellate jurisdiction do not affect a cause wherein a writ of error had been applied for before such statutes became operative. Spence v. Fenclcher (Sup.) 180 S. W. 597.
3. Proper mode of review.—Where, in an action against the clerk, the court refuses to grant a motion to appoint a clerk pro tem., plaintiff's remedy is by mandamus, and not by appeal. Kruegel v. Williams (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1052.

Error in rendering judgment against a minor without a guardian, appearing on the face of the record, may be taken advantage of by appeal or writ of error. Kelly v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 686. And hence a bill of review will not lie. Kidd v. Prince (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 725.

4. Successive proceedings for review.—That the unsuccessful party below perfected an appeal by filing a superseded bond will not preclude him from subsequently suing out a writ of error, so long as the adverse party did not secure an affirmation of the appeal on certificate. Louisiana-Rio Grande Canal Co. v. Quinn (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 151.

A cause in error being another mode of appeal, the petition in error, by which, presumably, the same cause is brought up, will, there being a review and remand on the appeal, be dismissed. Trammell v. Rosen (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 518.

A party to a judgment, foreseeing a vendor's lien on real estate, might abandon an attempted appeal and bring the judgment to the Court of Civil Appeals by writ of error; no motion to affirm on a certificate having been made in the meantime. Smith v. McDaniel (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1076.

5. Grounds of appellate jurisdiction—In general.—Under this article, authorizing appeals from final judgments, an appeal must be dismissed, where the transcript contains no judgment entered on the verdict, because of want of jurisdiction of the appeal. Southwestern Traction Co. v. Melton (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 265.

8. Existence of actual controversy.—On motion by the state to dismiss an appeal taken by defendants from a temporary injunction in an action to abate a public nuisance, the suit will be dismissed, where defendants had sold the property conducted as a disorderly house, although costs were involved. Ansley v. State (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 477.

Where, pending appeal from denial of an application for mandamus to compel a district clerk to issue an execution, respondent ceases to be clerk, the cause will be dismissed. Murphy v. Balch (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 107.

Where the controversy between the parties has been settled pending appeal, the appeal will be dismissed. A. A. Fielder Lumber Co. v. Gamble (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 82.

Where injunction judgment appealed from has expired by its own limitation, leaving nothing but question of costs to be adjudicated, the Court of Civil Appeals will not entertain jurisdiction. Sanders v. Bledsoe (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 296.

The appeal of a railroad for which, at the instance of its bondholder, a receiver has been appointed, from the order of appointment, will not be dismissed as moot because subsequently another receiver is appointed by a United States court, and the road does not appeal from, and apparently acquiesces in, the second appointment. Houston & S. V. Ry. Co. v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 23.

9. Jurisdiction of lower court.—Where justice and county courts were without jurisdiction, Court of Civil Appeals is without jurisdiction, and can make no order other than to reverse judgment of county court and dismiss case. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 691; Knight v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 418; City Nat. Bank v. Watson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 657; Goodman v. Schwind (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 282.

Where the district court had no jurisdiction over an appeal from justice court, the Court of Civil Appeals has no jurisdiction over an appeal from district court, and it should reverse the judgment, dismiss the case, and direct a transfer to the county court. Turnbow v. J. E. Bryant Co. (Sup.) 151 S. W. 696; Studebaker Harness Co. v. Gerlach Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 431.

Where, on appeal from a judgment of the county court, it did not appear from the record that the county court had jurisdiction, the judgment will be reversed, and the cause remanded. Rogers v. Peck (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1012.

Upon appeal from a judgment of the county court, which was without jurisdiction, the appeal will not be dismissed, but the cause will be reversed and remanded to enable that tribunal to dismiss the action. F. T. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Mathews (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1053.

An order denying a motion to set aside the judgment at a former term, the trial court being without jurisdiction to entertain it, was not appealable. Banks v. Blake (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 514.

Where the amount demanded by plaintiff in justice's court exceeds its jurisdiction, the county court is without jurisdiction, and an appeal from the county court must be dismissed. Vickers v. Tharp (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 949.

Where the amount in controversy in the county court was $150, the record must show that the cause was appealed from a justice court, and, if it fails to make such showing, the appeal must be dismissed unless the record is perfected. Rhodes v. Coleman-Fulton Pasture Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 355.

Finding of trial judge on appeal from justice that suit was filed and tried in justice court, and an appeal duly perfected to the county court, held not to supply omission of justice court's transcript, and not a sufficient showing that county court acquired appellate jurisdiction. Texas Glass & Paint Co. v. Darnell Lumber Corp. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 965.

The Court of Civil Appeals has no jurisdiction in an appeal from the county court where the amount involved is $60, such amount being below jurisdiction of county court. American Disinfecting Co. v. Freestone County (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 440.

10. Consent of parties.—Jurisdiction of county court may be made an issue for the first time on appeal in the Court of Civil Appeals. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 593; Fuller Hanna & Co. v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 322.

Under art. 1833, an order sustaining a plea of privilege to be sued in another county is appealable before trial. Hickman v. Swain, 106 Tex. 431, 167 S. W. 269.

Under art. 1833, a judgment of district court sustaining a plea of privilege to the venue held reviewable in Court of Appeals. Woelfel v. McKeen, Eilers & Co. (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 478.

So far as right of appeal from final judgment perpetuating injunction was concerned, held, that it was immaterial that it was rendered outside the county, especially in view of art. 1714. Traysham v. State (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 646; Anderson v. State (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 648.

No appeal lies to the Court of Civil Appeals from an order of the judge of the county court not made at a regular term of court in a proceeding in the nature of a habeas corpus to obtain custody of a minor child. Rosamond v. Murff (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1067.

Where an appeal does not lie from an interlocutory order, a party may complain thereon from appeal from the final judgment. Holmes v. Coalson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 628.

With certain statutory exceptions, no appeal can be prosecuted until a final judgment disposing of all the issues, has been rendered. Wooton v. Jones (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 380.

An appeal from an order denying a temporary injunction is interlocutory. Spence v. Fenchler (Sup.) 180 S. W. 597.

16. Nature and scope of decision.—A decree restraining a levee district from compelling the owners of land to make the levee works to the water lines of their property failed to be a final judgment from which an appeal would lie. Ft. Worth Improvement Dist. No. 1 v. City of Ft. Worth, 106 Tex. 148, 153 S. W. 164, 48 L. R. A. (N. S.) 994.

Where verdict was rendered for several railroads who were defendants, together with a special verdict in favor of the plaintiff, which recited that the plaintiff had been damaged for trespass and damages to their property for laying tracks, the judgment, which recited that the plaintiff took nothing against such railroad defendants, was not final so as to give the court of civil appeals jurisdiction of an appeal therefrom. Freeman v. Miller (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 126.

A judgment sustaining exceptions to a plea in reconvention held not to dispose of the plea, leaving a judgment for plaintiff in the main action interlocutory and not appealable. Lanus v. People's Home Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 304.

Where the petition in trespass to try title prayed for an adjudication of title and possession in plaintiff, and for damages for converting timber thereon, and the answer merely set up ownership to the timber through conveyance, a judgment which merely awarded plaintiff damages was not final. Havard v. Carter-Kelley Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 922.

17. Judgment in habeas corpus proceeding to obtain custody of child held not final or appealable because question of permanent custody was left to the trial court to settle with trial court to settle. Herron v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 650.

In suit for foreclosure of judgment lien against an infant, by praying that it be sold and proceeds be applied to pay a vendor's lien balance to plaintiff, judgment for plaintiff against a defendant for the vendor's lien was not appealable. Phillips v. Faircloth (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 486.

In an action against the owner of a corporation to recover for breach of contract for sale of property, the judgment denying defendant's plea in abatement was not appealable. Soulker v. Cierny (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 560.

18. Judgment in suit to enjoin sale or foreclosure, which did not attempt to dispose of defendants' plea seeking to recover penalties against mortgagees for usury, held not final. Wooton v. Jones (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 350.

An order of court sustaining a joint plea in abatement for misjoinder of causes of action as to one defendant, and overruling it as to other defendant, not being a final judgment disposing of the controversy, is not appealable. Phillips v. Faircloth (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 747.

In suit to cancel deed on ground of fraudulent representations inducing it, where defendant tendered a deed of land received in exchange, judgment for plaintiff, though not disposing of the tender, held a final appealable judgment. Pitt v. Gilbert (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1737.

19. Finality as to all parties.—Where a judgment did not dispose of the action as to all of the defendants and with reference to the entire subject-matter of the litigation it, was not final or appealable. McCarty v. Gray (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1154.

An order for possession and to cancel one decree, and to reinstate another, a judgment awarding plaintiff damages, and dismissing the action as to one of the parties defendant, held not final. Hamilton v. Joachim (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 646.

A judgment against all the defendants except one, but in no way disposing of him, whose dismissal would have resulted in a dismissal of the defendant partnership, which... he was a member, is not final, and so not appealable. Wichita Mill & Elevator Co. v. Purvis (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 167.

A judgment which did not dispose of a party to the suit is not a final judgment. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Tudle (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 757.

A record showing a judgment rendered against two of the parties defendant, but not showing it was made to a third defendant, for a final judgment, for want of which the appeal will be dismissed. Kolp v. Well Bros. (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1006.

The judgment in consolidated causes is not final unless it disposes of the litigation as to all parties to the suit. Wright v. Chandler (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1173.

Where in suit of interpleader one defendant alleged causes of action for conversion and an accounting against the other, a judgment not disposing thereof held not final, and hence not appealable. elel's assignee, as to defendant. Wright v. Chandler (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1175.

In an action on a note, a judgment not disposing of indorser's prayer for judgment over against his codefendant held not a final appealable judgment. Houston Transp. Co. v. Feden Iron & Steel Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 443.

Where a judgment did not dispose of certain intervenors, nor of the subject-matter sued for by them, and there was no order of dismissal as to them, the judgment would not support an appeal. Moore v. Toyah Valley Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 550.

In an action having several parties plaintiff and defendant, a judgment not disposing of issues between some parties is not final, and not appealable. J. L. Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Lipper (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 701.

Where an appeal to the county court from justice court a new plaintiff appeared, and judgment was rendered in his favor without disposing of the original plaintiff, such judgment is not final, and the appeal will be dismissed. Duke v. Trabue (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 910.

Where an action against two defendants and a cross-action against a railroad were tried together, and an appeal, railway; judgment against the latter was rendered as to both defendants. Gulf C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Atlantic Fruit Distributors (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 294.

Disposition of any cross-action pleaded by defendants as to whom he dismissed his suit, is essential to finality of the decree or judgment. There is an implied disposition, by discontinuance or dismissal, of the other defendants' cross-action, in the order that plaintiff's suit was dismissed as to them. "and that cause stand for trial with M. as plaintiff, and N. as defendant," and such cross-action is by necessary implication disposed of and adjudicated by the judgment for plaintiff. Nunez v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 531.

A judgment for certain plaintiffs for specific amounts, declaring alleged liens void, and by agreement of parties appointing a receiver to take possession of and keep defendants' property, subject to order of court, until sold under execution or by receiver, held, a final and appealable judgment, determining all rights of parties. Beene v. National Liquor Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 86.

20. Determination of controversy.—Where a receiver for a railroad originally filed a suit, though the railroad company afterwards filed an amended petition, alleging that it had acquired the claim sued on by assignment from the receiver, and there was no order permitting the holder to be substituted as plaintiff, a judgment which did not dispose of the receiver's interest in the claim was not final, so as to be appealable; nor was it final and appealable, where it did not dispose of either of two defendants. Brown v. International & G. N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1155.

Where a judgment appealed from was final in form, it was reviewable, notwithstanding it was based on a verdict which was defective in that it failed to dispose of certain cross-pleas filed by the defendants. Ft. Worth Belt Ry. Co. v. Perryman (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1181.

The test of whether a judgment is final so as to be appealable is whether it disposes of the whole matter in controversy as to all of the parties. Havard v. Carter-Kelley Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 922.

A judgment held final, so that an appeal might be duly perfected therefrom, even though it did not specifically dispose of defendants' counterclaim. Swan v. Price (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 924.

Where defendant filed a plea in reconvention for more than plaintiff's claim, a judgment for the plaintiff for the full amount of his claim, which did not mention the defendant's cross-action, was not a final judgment from which an appeal would lie. Brown v. Wofford (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 764.

Where a judgment of the county court on appeal from a judgment of a justice did not dispose of a plea in reconvention, the judgment was not final, and the Court of Civil Appeals acquired no jurisdiction on appeal. Anderson, Evans & Evans v. Smith (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 765.

A judgment which fails to dispose of all the issues raised by the pleadings is not a final judgment. Bryant v. Moore (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 395.

In an action for several years' rent due for the sale of personalty, a judgment based on a directed verdict for a small amount, not in controversy, which did not dispose of the other issues, cannot be held a final judgment on the theory that the verdict, being for only part of the amount in suit, was an implied finding against plaintiff's other claims. 13d.

Where, in an action by assignee against debtor and assignor, as guarantor, the issue was whether the debtor was liable to the assignee, a judgment not determining that issue was not final. Carver Bros. v. Merrett (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 929.

In an action in equity by corporation to recover title and possession of goods in which intervenors claimed, which neither directly or by implication adjudicated plaintiff's claim, held not a final judgment and not appealable. Finnigan-Brown Co. v. Escobar (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1157.

In suit to recover title and possession of goods, interests being claimed by defendants and intervenors as well as plaintiff, judgment failing to adjudicate on plaintiff's claim was not by implication an appealable final determination because the verdict determined such claim. 13d. • 640.
Relative to the judgment disposing of all the subject-matter, giving the appellate court jurisdiction, an amendment of the petition reducing the claim of itself eliminated all other lands. Nunes v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 531.

A judgment, which did not specifically dispose of a set-off and counterclaim pleaded by defendant, held a final determination of those issues as against defendant and appealable. Fricke v. Lumbermen's Co. v. Conner (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 308.

21. — Collateral matters and proceedings.—Whether dismissal of the cross-action of defendants, as to whom plaintiff dismissed his suit, was rightful, is immaterial, relatively to there having been a disposition of the issue, making the judgment final, and so giving the appellate court jurisdiction. Nunes v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 531.

In suit for supplies furnished, with a distress warrant against defendant, a garnishment proceeding against a third party was a distinct suit from the original suit, and the garnishment proceeding was a final judgment, Walton & Stockton v. Corpus Christi Natl. Bank (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 369.

23. Amount in controversy.—See art. 1589 and notes.

A Court of Civil Appeals has no jurisdiction, under art. 1589, subd. 3, of an appeal from a judgment of the county court, rendered on appeal from a justice's court, where the amount in controversy and the judgment of the county court are for less than $100. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Fricke & Boyd (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 6.

Neither the judgment appealed from nor the amount in controversy exceeding $100 can be treated as interest and costs, the Court of Civil Appeals has no jurisdiction. Cox v. W. A. Chanslor & Son (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 126.

Where plaintiff in justice's court, demanding judgment for $104, recovered judgment for $176, and on appeal filed in the county court an amendment reducing the demand to $78, the Court of Civil Appeals had no jurisdiction of an appeal from a judgment for that amount. Globe Loan Co. v. Betancourt (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 308.

A petition held sufficient to warrant a recovery of $116 and confer jurisdiction on the Court of Civil Appeals, especially where defendant urged a counterclaim for $154. Mahaney v. Lee (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1093.

Where the basis of garnishment was a judgment for over $100, Court of Civil Appeals held to have jurisdiction of appeal involving controversy over sum in garnishee's hands amounting to $100. Childress v. Harmon (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 154.

26. — Interest.—Under art. 4977, touching allowance of interest on written contracts ascertaining the sum payable when no rate is agreed, the Court of Civil Appeals had no jurisdiction of an appeal from the judgment of a county court in an action for a disability indemnity of $100, on which plaintiff prayed interest. Great Eastern Casualty Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 802.

The Court of Civil Appeals has jurisdiction on appeal from a judgment of the county court in an action begun before a justice of the peace to recover $55 and general relief under which interest exceeding $5 could be awarded. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 725.

In an action against a carrier for injury to a mule, held, that allegations in the petition of $98.50 of the county court, rendered on appeal from the justice's court, did not constitute interest, nor did the amount of the controversy over $100, giving the Court of Civil Appeals jurisdiction on appeal. Ft. Worth & G. R. Ry. Co. v. Albin (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 647.

The Court of Civil Appeals has no jurisdiction of an appeal where the amount in controversy does not exceed $100 exclusive of interest. Dowell v. Rettig (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 231.

27. — Attorney's fees.—Where plaintiff sued for $100 and for reasonable attorney's fees not to exceed $50 under art. 2178, the attorney's fees constituted a part of the controversy, and the case was within the jurisdiction of the Court of Civil Appeals under arts. 1589, 2078. Wichita Valley Ry. Co. v. Leatherwood (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 262.

28. — Reduction or remission.—The Court of Civil Appeals has jurisdiction of an appeal from a county court judgment for the amount of interest which would amount to more than $100, though plaintiff waived a portion of interest. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 725.

29. Persons entitled to right of review.—In an action by the widow and minor child for the death of the husband and father, an engineer, the defendant could not allege error, in that plaintiffs had the authority to sue without joining the father and mother of deceased, who were adjudged to have no right to recover, and that it was unnecessary to join them, since any error in so doing did not concern the defendant. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1171.

Where plaintiff's indorser was made a party defendant to the suit and failed to appear, the makers of the note could not complain of the judgment finding that the indorser had transferred his interest to plaintiff. Webb v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 152.

In a proceeding to foreclose a chattel mortgage, the mortgagee cannot complain on appeal that the intervenor who sought to enforce a landlord's lien on the same property did not serve citation upon the defendant. Neblett v. Barron (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1167.

Where an intervenor neither appealed nor assigned errors, the effect of the decision of the appellate court on his rights cannot be considered, though he filed a brief asking that judgment for plaintiff be affirmed. Brown v. Bay City Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 23.

In trespass to try title, where plaintiff counted on adverse possession, and defendant set up the property was deemed to her as trustee, and she held for the beneficiary, plaintiff cannot complain that the court allowed the beneficiary to intervene, setting up the same facts as those alleged by defendant; the rights of the beneficiary under the deed inuring to his claim. Ratcliff v. Cox (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 71.

In an action against two connecting carriers for injuries to cattle, where judgment was rendered against the second carrier, it may complain of error in an instruction.
Art. 2078  COURTS—DISTRICT AND COUNTY—PRACTICE IN that the evidence did not warrant a finding that the cattle had been roughly handled by the first carrier. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Hawkins & Nance (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 190.

Where the allegations of defendant's cross-action did not justify a default judgment against a third party, it could not complain of a judgment in favor of the third party in the ground that he had not answered. Reserve Loan Life Ins. Co. v. Benson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 266.

In an action for damages to a shipment of goods, held, that the railroad company could not recover the seller of the goods as against the shipper and claimant of the recovery, though he was not a proper party. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Rathbun (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 751.

Vendor held not entitled to complain of judgment in purchaser's favor for the land, on the ground that the purchaser had sold a part to a third person. Stewart v. Williams (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 761.

Where purchasers of minerals in and under described land obtained the benefit of a partial payment on the price made by a copurchaser, he was the only person who could complain of a judgment for the balance against the purchasers, including himself, and where he did not appeal, the judgment would not be disturbed. Whited v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 812.

In an action against a bank for negligence in making a deposit, where plaintiff did not set up any claim against a second bank impelled by the defendant, plaintiff, who was defeated below, cannot complain that the court also found in favor of the impelled bank. First Nat. Bank of Shreveport v. City Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 415, certified questions answered by Supreme Court 166 Tex. 597, 166 S. W. 639.

Defendants, whose separate appeals had been dismissed for delay in filing briefs, held not entitled to review on a subsequent appeal prosecuted by its codfendant. Kansas City Ry. Co. v. Cave (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 247.

A judgment in sequestration will not be reversed as against the principal for error against the surety on his replevin bond who did not appeal. Hawkins v. First Nat. Bank of Canyon, Tex. (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 165.

In an action at law against a corporation and its stockholders, where the stockholders alone appeal, they cannot assign error to a part of the judgment affecting only the corporation. Staacke v. Routledge (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 444.

A judgment against the widow and heirs of a contractor and a county to foreclose chattel mortgages on machinery sold to the contractor, but claimed by the county, held, that county, which alone appealed, could not object to the judgment against it on the ground that the contractor's widow and heirs were improperly made parties. Dolan v. Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 798.

Where a party defendant assigned no error and did not appeal either against plaintiff or its codfendant, the appellate court could not review judgment against it. Le Master v. Hailey (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 818.

In an action against the bank from which the depositor deducted the amount of a voucher issued by a school district taken for collection, cannot complain because the district was thereafter garnished. Lawrence v. Box & Leediker (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 883.

Plaintiff, found not to have been a creditor of defendant when he levied on mules claimed to be covered by his mortgage from defendant, could not complain on appeal that the mules had been left by another, who claimed them, in defendant's possession for more than two years so as to be subject to the mortgage under Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 3969. Hudgens v. Hammers (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 886.

In action against corporation on its notes, and against its president as surety thereon, where the surety sought no relief against the corporation, he could not question the validity of the default judgment against it because the record showed no service on him. Jones v. Gowars (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 896.

In action on a note by endorsor and to foreclose a mortgage on chattels in possession of a third person made a defendant, the third person held not entitled to complain of judgment for plaintiff against him though the payee intervened. Fawcett v. Maunfield (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 111.

In an action on a note for the purchase price of a silo brought by a bank to which it had been negotiated, the bank having been defeated, cannot on appeal complain that judgment was in favor of the buyer against the impelled seller; the seller not complaining. First Nat. Bank of Garner, Iowa, v. Smith (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 882.

A judgment against several will not be disturbed as regards those defendants who did not appeal. Sweeten v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 693.

Errors in the judgment, prejudicial to defendants who did not appeal, will not be reviewed. Pictorial Review Co. v. Pate Bros. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 309.

Where one of parties plaintiff against whom judgment was rendered, though jury did not return verdict against him, as directed, did not complain, defendant cannot complain. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Gahreth (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 961.

In action by seller against purchaser and carrier, where judgment was rendered against purchaser on theory that title passed upon delivery to carrier, held, that purchaser who had filed no cross-action against carrier could not complain on appeal that judgment was rendered in favor of seller against the carrier. Robert McLane Co. v. Swennenmann & Schdale (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 282.

Mortgagees who sued payees and indorsers of notes on which the mortgaged mules were pledged as collaterals, could not appeal from the judgment against certain indorsers and payees, establishing the lien of another payee as superior to theirs. T. W. Marse & Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1027.

In action for breach of contract against original contractor and parties who assumed liability held, that such parties could not complain of jury's failure to find against original contractor, who pleaded over against them, but against whom they asked no relief. Roberts v. Abney (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1101.

Where two parties join in claiming personal property upon its sequestration and both parties cannot maintain some of them, is not error of which plaintiff may complain. Dawedoff v. Hooper (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 522.

Sureties on a replevin bond cannot maintain an appeal from a judgment against their principal without joining him where the judgment is not against them. Carr v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 623.

In suit for partition and accounting, where court decreed all land to plaintiffs to satisfy in part damage done them by defendants' wrongful acts in cutting timber, defendants could not complain of action of court in allowing plaintiffs to make division of the lands themselves. Stuart v. Texas.

In suit on vendor's lien notes, claim of defendant who made cross-claim against defendant appellant, but who recovered no judgment and has not appealed, need not be considered. Rhoads v. Harris (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 621.

The right of appeal of claimant of a garnished fund, proceeds of a draft drawn in claimant's favor by defendant, who would ultimately bear loss if fund is declared to be property of defendant, held not affected by fact that it merely sought a release of fund, but held in usual manner instead of praying that it be paid direct. West Texas Nat. Bank v. Wichita Mill & Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 885.

Where claimant of garnished fund prayed for general and special relief, thus entitling him to a payment of fund if that were proper, it was entitled to appeal from a judgment that fund belonged to defendant in case. Id.

31. — Interest in subject-matter.—Parties adjudged to have no right or interest in trust fund held not entitled to complain of allowance of attorney's fees from the fund. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. v. Mallock (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 162.

Plaintiff, found not to have been a creditor of defendant when he levied on mules claimed to be covered by his mortgage from defendant, could not complain on appeal that the mules had been left by another, who claimed them, in defendant's possession for more than two years so as to be subject to the mortgage under art. 3969. Huddin v. Hammers (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 986.

The vendor of realty, who had no interest in the insurance money payable the purchaser for burning of the house, could not complain of the amount of recovery allowed against insurance company in the suit for garnishment proceeding against it. Stratton v. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. of New York (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 4.

A decree against a defendant who did not appeal will not be disturbed on the appeal of the other defendants not interested in that particular. Ferrell-Michael Abstract & Title Co. v. McCormac (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1981.

In a suit for partition, defendant, who held without interest, entitling him to complain of the judgment, Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 366.

32. — Parties or persons injured or aggrieved.—In trespass to try title, where each of the plaintiffs was entitled to 160 acres out of the larger survey, the fact that the 160 had been less than 320 acres, and was located with due regard to the defendants' right to an equitable partition, in no way injured defendant, and hence they could not complain of a judgment on that ground. Davis v. Collins (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1128.

An appeal, by a nominal party, who is not affected by the judgment, will not be considered. Style v. Lantrip (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 786.

In suit against a bankrupt on the unsatisfied portion of the debt, and also against his guarantor, any error in overruling the bankrupt's demurrer to the suit against him was harmless to the guarantor. Neblett v. Cooper Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1192.

In suit for partition, where one defendant admitted that he had conveyed his interest and title in property to another, and there was no evidence to show either that other defendants were purchasers or have any claim upon land except a deed for an interest for which court gave them judgment, held, that they show no injury from the judgment. Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 366.

In action for rent, if defendant corporation did not claim damages, judgment against a codefendant's cross-action did not injure it. Bond-Reed Hardware Co. v. Walsh (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1148.

34. Waiver of right of review—In general.—In an action by a materialman against contractors for surety on his bond, where the contractor admitted liability, and exceptions of sureties were sustained, plaintiff's election to take judgment against contractor held not to prevent him from seeking relief by appeal. Buell Planing Mill Corp. v. Bullard (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 776.

An agreement in an action begun by attachment in justice court, that the attachment shall be quashed and the court shall enter such judgment as might be just held not to preclude defendant from asserting on appeal his claim for damages for wrongful attachment. Johnson v. Tindall (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 461.

35. Recognition of or acquiescence in decision.—One who became a defendant to an action upon a policy of insurance where a judgment was rendered against him in favor of the insurance company, which he did not appeal, was precluded from challenging the judgment in a suit thereon in which the judgment in the first action was received in evidence, and could not have acquiesced therein. Hicks v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 792.

In view of Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 1906, held that, though one of 643 the original parties to a judgment of partition who had conveyed her interest was not party to a proceeding to revive it, defendants having consented to revive, cannot complain of error. Teel v. Brown (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 319.

Where it was agreed in trial court that plaintiffs owned junior survey except as it conflicted with senior surveys, defendants cannot assert on appeal that the junior survey was not a part of the land. Miles v. Dayton Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 953.

37. Acceptance of benefits.—Where plaintiffs sued to cancel deed to 200 acres reserving vendor's lien, on the ground that they had held to 160 acres by adverse possession, held, that defendant, having recovered judgment for his share of the purchase money for 100 acres sold by plaintiffs, could not complain of the judgment in plaintiff's favor. Willis v. Newberry (Sup.) 217 S. W. 280.

38. Pursuing other remedy.—Where appellant excepted and filed notice of appeal after the filing of findings of fact and conclusions of law, and after expiration of the term filed an objection to the same, but the matter was not brought to the attention of the trial court, appellant cannot complain of them on appeal. Broussard v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 78.

Where defendants by their answer sought partition of the land in suit, they cannot on appeal attack their own pleadings, as insufficient to warrant partition. Gutheridge v. Gutheridge (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 892.

Where defendant railroad set up contributory negligence, and the court charged on that issue, defendant's request of a special charge on that question will not, upon the theory of invited error, preclude it from attacking the sufficiency of the evidence to warrant any verdict for plaintiff. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 961.

Where the court submits the issue of defendant's negligence as requested by defendant, and it does not appear that they were requested on condition that the peremptory cause be excepted to the court answered, the charge, off the court's charge, is not reversible error, in the submission of the issue of negligence, being invited, could not be complained of by defendant. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Maples (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 426.

The giving of a charge which submitted a ground of negligence not pleaded was not reversible error, where it was given in explanation of a charge given at the request of defendant. Texas Power & Light Co.v. Bird (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 8.

Defendant held not responsible for the admission of plaintiff's improper testimony as to defendant's statement that he had insurance, though his counsel interrupted before the answer was given and told him not to tell what any one but defendant said. Carter v. Walker (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 485.

Where special instructions given at appellant's request were not correct, the conflict between such instructions and the court's charge which correctly declared the law is no ground for reversal. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Withers (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 5.

Where appellants requested the submission of an issue, they cannot be heard to assert that there is no evidence to sustain the finding. Gosh v. Vrana (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 767.

Defendant could not complain of the admission of testimony developed in response to questions propounded by its counsel on his cross-examination of plaintiff. Southwestern Casualty Ins. Co. v. Heisterman (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 1095.

The trial court having met a party's objection to a charge that it did not contain certain facts or supplying them, he may not complain of it because it contained them. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Dickens (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 835.

Error, if any, in the admission of evidence of the contents of a telegram, brought out by appellant on cross-examination, held not error of which appellant could complain. Chicago Cotton Oil Co. v. Goode (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 908.

Where plaintiff alleged perfect health, except a slight weakness incident to an operation, she could not complain of an instruction that the car should be heated sufficiently for a person in normal health. Bulloch v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 908.
Defendant having proved that the hydrostatic test was the best to ascertain defects in defendant's oil well, plaintiff, a servient owner, failed to prove the same fact and relied on defendant's failure to apply the test as a ground for actionable negligence. National Ry. of Mexico v. Ligarde (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1146.

Error could not be predicated on instruction assuming a fact in conformity with the evidence, agreement of the parties, pleading, and a requested instruction of the contending parties. Herrmann v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 865.

Where defendant surety company did allege, in conformity with art. 4947, the materiality or contributory nature of untrue statements in the application, it cannot control lack of support to the court's evidence that they were not material. National Surety Co. v. Murphy Walker Co. (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 297.

Where defendant requested charges permitting jury to pass on issues of fact which he claimed entitled him to judgment, he could not urge on appeal that there was no evidence to justify their submission. Just v. Herr (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1012.

A litigant on appeal will not be heard to complain of an error he himself invited, since to do so would be to permit him to assume inconsistent positions. King v. Gray (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 765.

A party given opportunity to substitute papers desired by it, but refusing to substitute, cannot complain of the action of the court. Trinity County Lumber Co. v. Conner (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 911.

Defendant held not entitled to complain that court submitted defense set up by him, even though it was not a legal defense. Boswell v. Pannell (Sup.) 180 S. W. 693.

Where plaintiff by writ of sequestration had secured an automobile alleging that it was worth $1,600, he could not thereafter question the correctness of the court's finding of him as to what it was worth only $500, though there was evidence to show that it was worth only $600. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Lipper (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 236.

A defendant urging on the trial that a question was in issue may not on appeal complain because the trial court submitted that issue. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Cole (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 137.

Where plaintiff on cross-examination of impeaching witnesses elicited testimony as to a fact, defendant cannot complain that the court did not instruct the jury on the subject of the same. Young v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 636.

In an action for libel, defendant cannot complain of error in permitting plaintiff to prove facts as to a fact, where defendant introduced in evidence a newspaper published by it stating substantially the same facts. Houston Chronicle Pub. Co. v. Quinn (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 669.

Defendant, who had proved the contents of a letter of its witness before it was offered by plaintiff to show witness' bias toward plaintiff, could not complain of its admission on the ground of its irrelevancy. Briggs-Weaver Machinery Co. v. Pratt (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 732.

Admission of defendant purchaser of land pending partition that he had notice thereof, made in action to revive judgment in partition, held binding on appeal. Teel v. Brown (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 319.

On appeal a party cannot question a ruling of the trial court made at his suggestion, such as incorporating special requested issues in the general charge instead of submitting them as special charges. Federal Life Ins. Co. v. Hoskins (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 607.

Where defendant's requested issues were submitted to jury in language of defendant, if there was error, defendant held no position to assail them. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Sheppard (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 799.

Defendant, which accepted jurors without protest after they heard claimed improper remarks from plaintiff's counsel in an argument the court's refusal to permit them to complain of it. Marshall Mill & Elevator Co. v. Sarnberg (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 229.

The error in a charge, submitting the issue of implied and apparent authority to consent for parents to an operation on their child, held not invited by a requested charge, defining implied and apparent authority, in the absence of a showing that the order for exception and request prescribed by arts. 1971, 1973, as amended was not followed. Rishworth v. Moss (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 543.

Special requests to charge on doctrine of assumption of risk hold not to invite court to charge the subject of assumed risk under state law instead of federal law, so as to waive the right to object to court's charge and to have case tried under federal doctrine. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. De Bord (Sup.) 192 S. W. 767.

Where in a divorce proceeding defendant admits that plaintiff is a bona fide inhabitant, failure to submit issue of inhabitancy cannot be urged on appeal. Hill v. Hill (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 726.

40. — Estoppel to allege error. — Where the issue of unavoidable accident in a servant's action for injuries was for the jury and plaintiff offered a special charge defining such an accident, but did not offer it after the refusal of or subject to the refusal of a peremptory charge not to consider the issue, he was estopped from claiming that the issue should not have been submitted. Carter v. South Texas Lumber Yard (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 626.

51. Supersedeas. — Under arts. 2078, 2084, 2097, 2101, giving a right to appeal from any final judgment in Civil Cases, and providing for bonds, a prohibitory injunction may be suspended during appeal by supersedeas bond, and it is the duty of the trial court to fix the amount of such bond, and it may be enforced by mandamus. Zetna Club v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 971.
Art. 2079. [1383] [1380] Appeal from interlocutory order appointing receiver, or trustee, etc.

Order appointing receiver.—Arts. 2079, 2080, held not to authorize an appeal from an order refusing an application to appoint a receiver, and for alimony in a suit to set aside a divorce granting complainant a divorce and alimony, Swearingen v. Swearingen (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 16.

In absence of statute, no appeal lies to Court of Civil Appeals from Interlocutory order of county court appointing a receiver, this article authorizing an appeal from an interlocutory order of the district court, not applying. Muela v. Moyle (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 331.

Setting aside appointment.—No appeal can be taken from an order denying motion to vacate the appointment of a receiver; but the appeal must be from the order making the appointment. Williams v. Watt (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 296. But see art. 2079a, post.

Where a receiver was appointed and subsequently on an amended petition the order of appointment was vacated, but was followed by a later order of reappointment, no appeal from the order lies, under this article. Hart-Parr Co. v. Alvin-Japanese Nursery Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 697.

Order denying appointment of receiver.—No appeal lies from an interlocutory order denying the appointment of a receiver, though this article authorizes an appeal from an order appointing a receiver. Tipton v. Railway Postal Clerks' Inv. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 562; Leary v. International Coal & Wood Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 666.

Appeal from part of order.—Where an order dissolves a temporary injunction and denies the application for the appointment of a receiver, the part of such order relating to the receiver is not appealable under this article. Gulf Nat. Bank v. Bass (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 1019.

Under arts. 2079, 2080, plaintiff held to have the right to appeal from a judgment dissolving a temporary injunction, although the court refused to appoint a receiver. Driskill v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 715.

Notice of appeal.—No notice is necessary on appeal from an interlocutory order appointing a receiver. Abline Independent Telephone & Telegraph Co. v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 356.

Filing transcript.—Under this article and article 1628, providing for the filing of a transcript within 90 days in appeal cases, held that the defendant had 90 days from the time the appeal was perfected from an order appointing a receiver to file a transcript of the record, in view of the history of legislation as shown by articles 2084, 2085, 2106, 2108, 2114, 2144, 2401, and chapter 20 of title 27. Simpson v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 552.

Stay of proceedings.—Under this article, an appeal on an ordinary appeal bond, covering probable costs of appeal, taken from an interlocutory order appointing a receiver, did not stay the proceedings in the trial court, so that the receivership might be continued there. Abline Independent Telephone & Telegraph Co. v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 356.

Art. 2079a. Appeal from interlocutory order overruling motion to vacate order appointing receiver or trustee, etc.—An appeal shall lie from an interlocutory order of the district court overruling a motion to vacate an order appointing a receiver or trustee in any case, provided such appeal be taken within twenty days from the entry of such order appealed from. An appeal in such cases shall take precedence in the appellate court; but the proceedings in other respects in the court shall not be stayed during the pendency of the appeal, unless otherwise ordered by the appellate court. [Act March 30, 1917, ch. 168, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The act amends ch. 20, tit. 37, Rev. Civ. St. 1911, by adding thereto a new article to be known as art. 2079a, to read as above. Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment. See notes under art. 2079.

Art. 2080. Appeals from interlocutory orders granting or dissolving temporary injunctions.

Art. 2084. [1387] [1387] Appeal perfected, how.

Time to appeal in general.—Under arts. 1608, 1610, 2084, held that, where no excuse was shown for failing to file the record in the trial court or in the Court of Civil Appeals in time, the motion to affirm the judgment upon certificate would be granted. Mott v. Scurlin (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1016.
Interlocutory orders.—No notice is necessary on appeal from an interlocutory order appointing a receiver. Abilene Independent Telephone & Telegraph Co. v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 256.

The court held to have jurisdiction to review an original order granting an injunction, although the notice of appeal recited that it was taken from the order dissolving the injunction; no notice of appeal as required by this article in ordinary cases being necessary under arts. 4643, 4644. Birchfield v. Bourland (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 432.

Under arts. 2078, 2084, 2097, 2101, giving a right to appeal from every final judgment in Civil Cases, and providing for bonds, a prohibitory injunction may be suspended during appeal by supersedeas bond. Aetna Club v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 971.

Under arts. 2078, 2084, 2097, 2101, it is the duty of the trial court to fix the amount of supersedeas bond on appeal from a prohibitory injunction and it may be enforced by mandamus. Id.

Notice of appeal.—Necessity. — Appeals must be prosecuted by giving the necessary notice of appeal in open court as required by this article. Kolp v. Shrader (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 454.

Under arts. 3631 and 3632, and despite this article, notice of an appeal from a judgment will not be deemed necessary, the giving of the bond being sufficient. Beveradoff v. Dienger (Sup.) 174 S. W. 576, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 533.

Notice of appeal in the court below and a motion for a new trial therein are not required, where the case is brought up by petition and writ of error. McPhaul v. Byrd (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 444.

Sufficiency.—A notice of appeal, given in the term in connection with the order overruling a motion for new trial, after notice of appeal had been given when judgment was reversed, having control of the judgment during the term. Robson v. Moore (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 995.

A paper which in no way identifies the case, whether by its style, file number, or the description of any judgment or order, and which is not signed, though filed with the clerk of court, does not constitute notice of appeal. Russell v. Koennecke (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 253.

Entering of record.—Where the transcript shows that no notice of appeal was given in open court, the Court of Civil Appeals has no authority to consider the case. Russ v. Koennecke (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 253.

Dismissal for failure to file or file in time.—Under this article appellant, whose notice of appeal was not given before the last day of the term, and who filed no appeal bond, did not perfect his appeal so as to give the Court of Civil Appeals jurisdiction, and it will be dismissed. Elkins v. Houlihan (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 94.

Time for filing bond or affidavit.—Under this article, when motion for new trial after judgment was overruled April 4th and the term ended April 6th, but no appeal bond was filed until June 12th, the appeal will be dismissed. Bolton v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 1194.

Appeals must be prosecuted by filing the necessary bond within 20 days after the expiration of the term, or within 20 days after giving notice of appeal as required by this article. Kolp v. Shrader (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 454.

Under an order of the commissioners' court, authorized by Const. art. 5, § 28, as to the terms of the county court, a term for civil and probate business held, regarding time for filing appeal bond, to end when the next term for criminal business began. Wells Fargo & Co's Express v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 818, reversing judgment on rehearing 165 S. W. 153.

Under this article, appellate court held to have no jurisdiction where appeal bond was not filed within 20 days after adjournment of term by law could continue only five weeks. Hartsough-Stewart Const. Co. v. Harty & Vogelsang (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1.

Nonresident of county.—Under this article an appeal bond must be filed within 20 days after the adjournment of the trial court, where appellant is a nonresident of the county, and the record does not show that the judgment term could have continued in session for more than eight weeks. James v. Golson (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 896.

Where an appeal bond was not shown to have been filed until more than 20 days after the order overruling the motion for a new trial, it was not filed in time, and the appeal will be dismissed. Spaulding Mfg. Co. v. Kuykendall (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 371.

Thirty days allowed nonresident appellant to file appeal bond under this article held to apply only to terms which may continue longer than eight weeks and to run from date of judgment. Hartsough-Stewart Const. Co. v. Harty & Vogelsang (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1.

A husband, by going to another county, held not to make himself and wife nonresidents, and they could not, by affidavits, change their residence, as fixed by the record, to gain additional time to file appeal bond. Sale v. Gersdorff (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 574.

Effect of failure to file in time.—Where the appeal bond was not filed within 20 days after adjournment, as required by this article, the appellate court acquired no jurisdiction. Underwood v. Midland Furniture & Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 86; Dilworth v. Ed. Steves & Sons (Sup.) 174 S. W. 279, dismissing writ of error Dilworth & Green v. Ed. Steves & Sons (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 630.

Where the requirement of this article that an appeal bond be filed within 20 days after the term at which the judgment was rendered is not complied with, the appeal will be dismissed. Trim v. Planters' Cotton Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 103; Le Blanc v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 69.

A writ of error will be dismissed, where plaintiff in error neither filed an appeal bond nor made proof of her inability to pay the costs on appeal, as authorized by art. 2088. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 29.

Where the term of the court rendering the judgment appealed from continued more than eight weeks, as authorized by Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 20, subd. 68, and the bond was not filed within 30 days after notice of appeal, as required by this article, the appeal will be dismissed. Texas Seed & Floral Co. v. Chicago Seed & Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 731.

Time for filing transcript.—See Simpson v. Alexander (Clv. App.) 153 S. W. 852, citing this article.

Effect of transfer to appellate court.—Where the appellate court has acquired jurisdiction by filing of an appeal bond by two appellants, pursuant to arts. 2084, 2089, one appellant cannot defeat such jurisdiction by thereafter erasing his name from the bond. Scott v. Fields (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 133.

Art. 2085.  [1388]  [1388]  By parties of whom no appeal bond is required.

Appeal perfected by notice.—Under this article written statement filed with clerk, not brought to attention of court, does not amount to notice of appeal in open court. Russell v. Koennicke (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 255.

Art. 2086.  [1389]  [1389]  Writ of error sued out, when.

Time for suing out writ of error.—This article, in requiring petition for writ of error to be filed within 12 months from the time final judgment is rendered, means 12 months from the time the judgment was rendered, and not from the time the motion for a new trial was overruled. Evans v. San Antonio Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 408.

Where no appeal has been taken, a writ of error may be prosecuted under this article at any time within 12 months after final judgment, provided at the time of the filing of the petition a bond or affidavit in lieu thereof is filed as required by article 2089. Klop v. Shrader (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 464.

Under this article, and notwithstanding the amendment (Acts 33d Leg. c. 136; Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 1612) and Supreme Court rule 24 (142 S. W. xii), a writ of error held too late, though filed within 12 months after denial of new trial. St. Louis v. State (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1090.

Filing of petition for writ of error and bond gave Court of Appeals jurisdiction, where the petition and bond were filed in one year from date of judgment, whether together or not. Rounds v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 640.

Dismissal for failure to sue out writ in time.—Where a petition for a writ of error was not filed within 12 months from the time final judgment was rendered, as required by this article, the writ will be dismissed, since the requirement is jurisdictional. Evans v. San Antonio Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 408.

When affidavits show that plaintiffs in error filed a petition and bond, and their attorney took the papers to his office to issue citation to the state but failed to issue it for over a year, the writ of error will be dismissed. Cruz v. State, 76 Cr. R. 32, 172 S. W. 255.

Art. 2087.  [1390]  [1390]  By petition.

Notice of appeal and motion for new trial.—Notice of appeal in the court below and a motion for a new trial therein are not required where the case is brought up by petition and writ of error. McPhaul v. Byrd (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 644.

Art. 2088.  [1391]  [1391]  Requisites of petition.

Requisites of petition,—In general.—Under this article, a statement as to the particular district to which the case shall be taken is surplusage, and, if incorrect, does not affect the validity of the writ. J. M. Radford Grocery Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 453.

Where Court of Civil Appeals refused to consider assignments of error, motion for rehearing and petition to Supreme Court for writ of error held not defective because they complained only of the "overruling" of the assignments. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Pemberton, 106 Tex. 463, 181 S. W. 2, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 85.

Rehearing denied 107 Tex. 463, 188 S. W. 128.

Names and residences of parties.—Where a prayer for a citation incorrectly states the first initial of the defendant in error, but the initials are correct elsewhere in the petition, and the citation was issued in the correct name, the error was a clerical one, which does not require a dismissal of the writ. J. M. Radford Grocery Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 453.

Waiver of defects.—Under this article, a petition for a writ of error may be waived by the parties. Farmers' State Bank of Newlin v. Bell (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 922.

Parties to writ of error.—Necessary parties.—A codefendant not adversely interested to plaintiff in error need not be joined in the petition. McPhaul v. Byrd (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 644.

Dismissal for failure to join necessary parties or for defects in petition.—When a party adversely interested to plaintiff in error is not joined in the petition, failure to file a motion to dismiss does not necessarily confer jurisdiction, as the court may dismiss its own motion. McPhaul v. Byrd (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 644.

A mistake in the description of land specified in the judgment in a petition in error held not ground for dismissal of the writ. Id.

Art. 2089.  [1392]  [1392]  Error bond.

Time for filing bond.—Under Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 2088-2090, governing the error bond and citation in error, the petition for writ of error and the...
Art. 2090. [1393] Citation in error.
Citation in error.—Under Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 2585, 2606, governing the error bond and citation in error, the petition for writ of error and bond for costs must be filed before issuance of the citation, and where citation and service thereof were defective because citation issued before filing of the error bond, the Court of Appeals is authorized to strike the appeal from its docket. Rounds v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 640.

Art. 2091. [1394] Form and requisites of citation.

Necessity of service.—A court of Civil Appeals has no jurisdiction to entertain a writ of error, unless citation has been legally served on the defendant in error or service accepted. Webster v. International & G. N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 295.

Manner of service.—Under arts. 2002, 2005, held, that the appellate court was without jurisdiction where, without any showing that the officer was unable to serve the defendants in error, citation was served directly on their counsel. Mims v. Foster (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 513.

Art. 2095. [1398] Service on the attorney of record.

Service on attorney of record.—Under this article, service of citation in error upon party's attorney, instead of upon the party who resided in the county where the case was tried, was invalid and did not confer jurisdiction upon the Court of Civil Appeals. First Nat. Bank of Knox City v. Lester (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 584.

When attorney may be served.—Under Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 2002, 2006, held, that the appellate court was without jurisdiction where, without any showing the officer was unable to serve the defendants in error, citation was served directly on their counsel. Mims v. Foster (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 513.

Art. 2096. [1399] Service in other modes.

Art. 2097. [1400] Cost bond on appeal or writ of error.

1. Necessity of bond.—Where the appellee did not perfect an appeal by executing an appeal bond as to certain defendants, appellee's cross-assignment attacking the judgment in favor of such defendants against him cannot be considered. Wright v. Boll (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 369.

Though the statute authorizes an appeal from an interlocutory order refusing an injunction, the appellate court cannot consider appeal from such order, where the defendants are not named as payees in the appeal bond. Barker v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 748.

8. Obligees.—Under a petition, for a partnership receiver, showing that the individual defendants are the real parties in interest, an appeal bond in the firm name of defendants, but not in their individual capacity, is insufficient. Style v. Lantrip (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 736.

12. Amount of bond.—A writ of error bond should be double the amount of the probable costs, as fixed by the clerk. Rounds v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 640.

Under arts. 2078, 2084, 2097, 2101, it is the duty of the trial court to fix the amount of supersedeas bond on appeal from a prohibitory injunction, and it may be enforced by mandamus. Aetna Club v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 571.

14. Sufficiency of bond—in general.—A cost bond on appeal becomes inoperative on the dismissal of the appeal and on payment of the costs, and it cannot be treated as a bond on writ of error, though the sureties present affidavits reciting that they intend the bond to be operative on writ of error. Kolp v. Shrader (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 464.

Clerical error as to the number of the judicial district of a county named in which the action is pending do not deprive the appellate court of jurisdiction to hear the appeal. Birchfield v. Bourland (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 422.
Art. 2098. [1401] [1401] Appeal, etc., by party unable to give cost bond.

Proof before county judge or court in session.—Where appeal is taken on a pauper’s oath and the record fails to show that proof thereunder was made to the county judge while the court was in session, the appeal will be dismissed. Rhodes v. Coleman-Fulton Pasture Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 356.

Requisites and sufficiency of affidavit.—An affidavit in lieu of an appeal bond stating the style and number of suit, the date of the judgment, and the court wherein it was rendered is sufficient in form to give jurisdiction. Ford v. Johnston (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 424.

Defendant sued on a note, and to foreclose a mortgage, was not legally required to appeal from the judgment in favor of his codefendant and against himself for conversion of the mortgaged property, and his failure to do so would not make his pauper’s oath insufficient on appeal from the judgment for plaintiff against himself. Id.

Affidavit of appellant’s inability to pay costs on appeal, made by her attorney before a notary public, held insufficient, under this article. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 29.

Where attempt is made to perfect appeal after the term at which judgment is rendered, the pauper’s oath must be made before the judge of the county court wherein the appellant resides, and, if the court trying the case is in session, proof must be made before the court and not the judge. Rhodes v. Coleman-Fulton Pasture Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 355.

Where a case was tried in county court, affidavit that appellants were unable to pay costs of an appeal or give security, made before judge who tried case, during term of court, held sufficient, though the court was not in open session. Morrison v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1994.

An affidavit held not insufficient because sworn to by only one of two appellants. Id.

Proof of inability.—An affidavit for an appeal in forma paupereis executed before a notary public to which was attached no oath of the judge trying the case showing proof of inability to pay the costs, was not a sufficient compliance with this article. Missouri Fac. Ry. Co. v. Cheek (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 427.

A writ of error will be dismissed, where plaintiff in error neither filed an appeal bond nor made proof of his inability to pay the costs on appeal, as authorized by this article. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 29.

Under this article, nonresident seeking to appeal as pauper must make proof of inability to give required security before trial court, and certificate of county judge of another state is of no legal value. Ridling v. Fannin County (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 261.

Contest.—Where nonresident seeking to appeal as pauper did not prove inability to give security before trial court, as required by this article, defect is fundamental, of which Court of Appeals is required to take notice without action by opposing party. Ridling v. Fannin County (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 261.

Art. 2099. [1402] [1402] Appeal or writ of error, perfected, when.

The filing of a petition for writ of error and bond with the clerk of the lower court causes the case to be pending in the appellate court from that date. Cruz v. State, 76 Cr. R. 32, 172 S. W. 235.

Effect of transfer to appellate court—in general.—The deposition of a witness whose conviction for murder was suspended by appeal at the time of the taking of the depositions becomes incompetent for use at a trial after such conviction has been affirmed. Burns v. Godwin (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 39.

— Powers and proceedings of lower court.—Where defendant in a suit by a tenant in common for contribution was found to have no interest in the land, but his name was omitted from the judgment of dismissal by mistake, the district court had the right, at any time before final judgment in this court, to correct the mistake and render such judgment nunc pro tunc as should have been rendered. Stephenson v. Luttrell (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 666.

When an appeal is perfected during a term of the trial court, that court, during its term, can make orders in the case and revoke the judgment from which the appeal was taken. Boynton v. Brown (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 897.

When an appeal is perfected during a term of the trial court, that court, during its term, can make orders in the case and alter or revise the judgment from which the appeal was taken. Id.

After appeal from an interlocutory order on an application for a temporary writ of injunction, the trial judge cannot change his order or exercise any jurisdiction whatever over it. Id.

The district court has jurisdiction to correct the record, notwithstanding an appeal has been perfected and the transcript filed in the Court of Civil Appeals. Neville v. Miller (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1109.

An appeal held to deprive the trial court of jurisdiction, so that an unsuccessful defendant could not procure an injunction in the trial court preventing enforcement of the judgment. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sterling (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1128.

An appeal or writ of error clothes the appellate court with exclusive jurisdiction of the case, and the lower court cannot make any orders in reference thereto excepting those necessary to protect the subject of the appeal. Birchfield v. Bourland (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 422.

Abandonment of appeal.—Where the appellate court has acquired jurisdiction by filing of an appeal bond by two appellants, pursuant to arts. 2084, 2099, one appellant cannot defeat such jurisdiction by thereafter erasing his name from the bond. Scott v. Fields (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 139.

Service of citation on attorney.—See Jolly v. Brown (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 972, note under art. 2095.

Art. 2099a. Revival against successor of officer against whom judgment in mandamus or injunction has been rendered and appeal perfected; motion to make successor a party.—That hereafter when any suit in mandamus or injunction is brought against any person holding any public office, in this State, in his official capacity, and after final trial and judgment in the trial court, and notice of appeal to the Court of Appeals or Supreme Court has been given in such cause, and if such person for any reason should vacate such public office, such suit shall not abate but his successor to such office may be made a party thereto by a motion setting out such facts and showing in such motion that he has demanded such successor to such office to do or to refrain from doing such official act as such suit is based upon and such successor has failed or refused to comply with such demand and duly verified, by any person or his attorney, who is a party to such suit, and file the same in the court in which such suit is pending, giving the name and location of such successor. [Act March 30, 1917, ch. 158, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 4 repeals all laws in conflict. Sec. 5 is the emergency clause, and reads as follows: “Sec. 5. That the fact there is no law now in this State after a cause of mandamus or injunction against any person holding any public office, in his official capacity, to compel him to do some official act or to prohibit him from doing the same, and after such cause has been finally tried and on appeal to the Court of Appeals or Supreme Court, and should such person vacate his office during such appeal, by expiration, resignation, death or otherwise, to make his successor a party to such suit, but the courts of this State have in such cases held that such suit abates; and the further fact that most public officers of this State have two year terms, unless re-elected, and on account of the such short term of office, and on account of the crowded conditions of the Court of Appeals and Supreme Court of this State being so far behind, and that justice demands that some law should be enacted whereby such suits against public officers should not abate, but being an official act, his successor should be made a party to such suit and the same may be prosecuted and determined right and justly to all parties, and that right and justice may be done, creates an emergency and an imperative public necessity that the constitutional rule requiring bills to be read on three several days be suspended, and this Act take effect and be in full force from and after its passage, and it is so enacted.” The title of the act reads as follows: “An Act providing that in all suits of mandamus and injunctions against any person holding any public office in this State, and in his official capacity, after final trial and judgment in the trial court and after notice has been given of appeal to the Court of Appeals or the Supreme Court, should such person vacate his office such suit shall not abate; providing that his successor to such public office may be made a party by motion, and regulating same; providing for charging court costs and creating an emergency.” A reading of this act as a whole seems to create some doubt as to the extent of its operation. It is not certain whether the proceedings for revival are to take place in the trial court or in the appellate court. The title of the act, which is the test of its operation, confines the remedy to a case in which judgment has been rendered and notice of appeal given. The act cannot apply, therefore, to original proceedings commenced in the appellate courts. If the revival proceedings are to take place in the appellate court after the final judgment, then this act would seem to properly belong to this chapter. On the other hand, if such proceedings are to be taken in the trial court, it would be more appropriate to place the act in chapter 7 of title 37, relating to abatement of causes in the district and county courts. Took effect 90 days after March 31, 1917, date of adjournment.

Art. 2099b. Clerk shall cause motion to be served on parties.—That in all such cases when such motion is filed the clerk of the court shall immediately proceed to have same duly served on all parties to such suit as in motion of other cases, unless same is waived. [Act March 30, 1917, ch. 158, § 2.]

Art. 2099c. Court shall proceed to determination of case and render judgment and enforce same; costs.—That in all such cases, after service is duly perfected or waived by the parties, the court in which such suit is pending shall proceed to hear and determine same, and render such judgment, order or decree as may be right and proper, and same as if such successor was the original official party thereto, and such judgment, order or decree, shall be enforced by the court and such successor shall be bound thereby; provided that such successor in such cases shall not be liable for any costs in such cause that has accrued prior to the time he was made a party thereto. [Act March 30, 1917, ch. 158, § 3.]

Art. 2100. [1403] [1403] Appeal, etc., on cost bond or affidavit does not suspend execution.

Payment of proceeds of sale to party.—Where after judgment decreeing certain moneys in the hands of the clerk to one of the parties the other appeals and files his cost bond, and the same are allowed, and it is ordered that the bond be referred to the referees and the amount therefrom be paid to the plaintiff, it is the duty of the clerk to pay over the money to the successful party as directed, and in a suit to foreclose a chattel mortgage, an appeal without supersedeas held not to excuse the clerk from paying the proceeds of the property to one of the defendants as directed by a judgment of dismissal, though the lien of the mortgage attached to the proceeds in the hands of the clerk. Willis v. Keator (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 556.

Art. 2101. [1404] [1404] Supersedes bond.

Right to supersedeas.—Under arts. 2078, 2084, 2097, 2101, giving a right to appeal from every final judgment in Civil Cases, and providing for bonds, a prohibitory injunction may be suspended during appeal by supersedeas bond. Abilene Club v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 971.

Amount of bond.—Under Rev. St. 1911, arts. 2078, 2084, 2097, 2101, it is the duty of the trial court to fix the amount of supersedeas bond on appeal from a prohibitory injunction, and it may be enforced by mandamus. Abilene Club v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 971.

Execution of bond.—Signers of the supersedeas bond on condition that other signatures should be obtained before it was filed, having delivered the bond to the appellant without condition, held estoppel to the condition of the validity of the bond because it was filed without performing the condition. Rushing v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Plainview (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 337.

That a married woman who was a party could not legally sign the supersedeas bond did not affect its validity if the sureties were sufficient. Duller v. McNeill (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 45.

Quashing supersedeas bond.—Under art. 1593, the Court of Appeals, on an application by sureties on a supersedeas bond to quash the same, has power to hear proof dehors the record as to the validity of the bond. Rushing v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Plainview (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 337.

Accrual of liability on bond.—Upon decree foreclosing lien on land, with a money judgment against certain defendants, but not against appellants, supersedeas bond under this article, partaking to some extent of the nature of a cost bond under article 2097, and the supersedeas bond under article 2102, held insufficient, where money judgment exceeded the penalty denominated. Doolen v. Hulsey (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1009.

Extent of liability.—Evidence, in action on bond staying execution of judgment of foreclosure mortgage on fraction engine held to sustain finding that its actual value and sale price at time of sale was greater than at time sale was stayed. The measure of damages, if any, recoverable on such bond is the difference between the amount the property would have sold for when bond was given and amount it did sell for, and where no interest was sought to be recovered, eo nomine, plaintiff was not entitled to interest from execution of bond. Port Huron Engine & Thresher Co. v. McGregor (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 818.

Where supersedeas bond for appeal from judgment foreclosing chattel mortgage was conditioned to perform judgment of Court of Civil Appeals, and judgment was affirmed, sureties are liable only for costs. Ferrell-Michael Abstract & Title Co. v. McCormac (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1081.

Under this article, appellants, where the bond is in statutory form, are not necessarily required to pay the judgment in event of defeat, as the bond is merely one of indemnity, and not one of penalty for the amount of the money judgment. Doolen v. Hulsey (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1009.

Art. 2102. [1405] [1405] Supersedes bond, where judgment is for land or other property.

See Doolen v. Hulsey (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1009; note under art. 2101.

Scope and effect as stay.—An appeal under a supersedeas bond from an interlocutory order appointing a receiver stays all further proceedings in the trial court and suspends the functions of the receiver. Abilene Independent Telephone & Telegraph Co. v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 356.

Though no order was entered below on dissolving a temporary restraining order suspending the judgment, the injunction was not in force pending appeal, where a supersedeas bond in the ordinary form was filed. Rogers v. Ivy (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 728.

Art. 2104. Amendment of appeal bond.

Amendment or substitution of bond.—In general.—Where the clerk's failure to copy the appeal bond and transcript was not discovered until appellee moved to dismiss for that reason, the motion was not filed within 30 days from the time the record was filed, as required by Court of Civil Appeals Rule 9 (142 S. W. x1), so as to make it impossible for appellant to move to amend within the time required by Rule 8 (142 S. W. x1), held that the Court of Civil Appeals would permit the bond and transcript to be filed as the court held. Tompkins v. Pendleton (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 268.

This article does not permit the filing of a bond in the appellate court for the first time, and there must be at least an attempt to comply with the statute, and when that is done a defective bond may be remedied by leave of court. Kolp v. Shrader (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 464.

Under this article, held that, on filing of defective appeal bond giving Court of Civil Appeals jurisdiction, appellee should have filed timely motion pointing out defect, whereupon appellant might have amended. Crawford v. Wellington Railroad Committee (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1094.

Where a bond for appeal from a judgment of justice court did not appear to have been filed or approved, it is not a defective bond within this article, which may be corrected by amendment or for which a new bond may be substituted. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Midland Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 270.

Does not apply to pauper affidavits.—This does not authorize the filing of a new bond in place of an appeal bond, where the one filed with the petition in error is defective. French Piano & Organ Co. v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 29.

Art. 2105. [1407] [1407] State, county, etc., not to give bond.

Head of department.—That appellants, who were personally enjoined, filed a personal bond, though, as agents of the commissioner of insurance, they could appeal under this article, without bond, is no ground for dismissal. Collier v. Smith (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1108.

Art. 2106. [1408] [1408] Of executors, etc.
Appeal in individual capacity.—Under arts. 2106, 2633, held that, on an appeal by one in her individual capacity, the transcript was filed in time when filed within 90 days after she filed the appeal bond, though more than 90 days after notice of appeal, wherein she erroneously stated that she appealed as administratrix as well as in her individual capacity. Reeves v. Fuqua (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 34.

Art. 2107. [1409] [1409] Executor, etc., may take appeal or writ of error.
Appeal by administrator.—Under this article, where insane person was represented at trial by guardian who was satisfied with judgment against her, and did not appeal, administrator of such insane person, latter having died, within a year after the judgment was authorized to sue out writ of error. Lauraine v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 178.

Art. 2108. [1410] [1410] Transcript to be made out and delivered.

Art. 2109. [1411] [1411] Transcript to contain all proceedings, except, etc.
3. Matters to be shown by transcript—in general.—Where the transcript fails to disclose any order overruling exceptions, the appellate court will only consider the question of fundamental error. Pierce Fordyce Oil Ass'n v. Woods (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1181.

Appellee's motion, to strike a paper filed in the Court of Civil Appeals, purporting to be the conclusions of fact and of law of the trial court, but not made a part of the transcript, will be granted. Hester v. Easkin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 736.

Under arts. 2109, 2110, transcript on appeal from default judgment against sureties on replevin bond held not to show the facts necessary to authorize the judgment, and hence to make no case on appeal. Palomas Land & Cattle Co. v. Good (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 695.

7. Scope and contents of transcript.—A motion to dismiss a suit, which is set out in full in the bill of exceptions, need not be copied in the transcript. Pecos v. N. T. Ry. Co. v. Porter (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 564.

Where error was assigned to the overruling of a motion to dismiss the suit on the ground of changed cause of action in the amended petitions, the original and amended petitions should be set out in the transcript, but need not be in the bill of exceptions. Id.

10. Clerk's certificate and indorsement.—Under arts. 2109 and 2114, a certificate that the transcript is a correct copy as "per order filed" is defective. Gutheridge v. Gutheridge (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 452.

A certificate that a transcript is a "true and correct" copy is not defective for failing to state that it is a "full" copy under arts. 2109, 2114, and district and county court rule 94 (142 S. W. xxiv), providing for the requisites of a transcript and certificate. J. M. Radford Grocery Co. v. Reeves (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 883.

Under this article a certificate which states that the transcript contains all the proceedings, except the injunction bond, is defective. Id.

11. Effect of omissions.—Where the transcript did not show that any default judgment was ever rendered, the Court of Appeals cannot review an assignment complaining of an order vacating the default. Johnson v. Conger (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 405.

Though the transcript is silent, the citation issued by the justice is not necessarily regarded as the pleading on which the cause is submitted to the inferior court. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Gludish (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 585.

Where a motion to dismiss an appeal from the district court in a proceeding brought in the probate court does not complain that the file marks of the district clerk are not noted on the transcript, and that a certificate of the clerk of probate court that certain proceedings were had in that court is lacking, such omissions will be deemed waived. Reeves v. Fuqua (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 34.

Finding of court that suit was tried in justice court and appeal duly perfected to county court held not to supply omission of transcript of proceedings on appeal to Court of Civil Appeals. Patrick v. Pierce (Sup.) 183 S. W. 441.

The requirement of arts. 2109, 2110, as to the transcript on appeal, cannot be supplied by the recitation in the judgment. Palomas Land & Cattle Co. v. Good (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 805.

15. Correction of transcript.—Under Court of Civil Appeals rules 1 and 8 (142 S. W. xii), concerning the amendment of a transcript, the court may permit an appellant to withdraw a transcript, which is defective for not containing the bond, for correction. J. M. Radford Grocery Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 453.

Court of Civil Appeals Rules 8 and 11 (142 S. W. xi) requiring motions to amend the transcript and by bringing the case into the appellate court to be filed within 30 days after the case is filed in the Court of Civil Appeals, should not be arbitrarily construed so as to defeat the ends of justice. Tompkins v. Pendleton (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 290.

Where the clerk's failure to copy the appeal bond and transcript was not discovered until appellant moved to dismiss for that reason, which motion was not filed within 30 days from the time the record was filed, as required by Court of Civil Appeals rule 9 (142 S. W. xii), so as to make it impossible for appellant to move to amend within the time required by Rule 8 (142 S. W. xii), held that the Court of Civil Appeals would permit the bond and transcript to be filed as a part of the record. Id.

Appellate courts may not make corrections in the record, and any application for correction in that respect must be made to the trial court and a proper transcript brought to the appellate court. Eaton v. Klein (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 331.

Under rules 8 and 11 of the Courts of Civil Appeals (142 S. W. xi), held, that motion to correct record would be denied because too late and as showing no necessity for correction. Crawford v. Wellington Railroad Committee (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1684.

Under Court of Civil Appeals rule 22 (142 S. xii), each party to an appeal must see that the transcript is properly prepared, and after submission the court will not permit a correction of the record. City Nat. Bank v. Watson (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 657.

Even where there is a record to correct, an application must be made to the appellate court to correct. Johnson v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 260.

Under Court of Civil Appeals rule 1 (142 S. W. x), and rule 22 as amended (142 S. W. xii), appellant should be apprised of omission from transcript of proceedings on appeal from justice court and given opportunity to correct record. Patrick v. Pierce (Sup.) 183 S. W. 441.

Under Court of Civil Appeals rule 1 (142 S. W. x), and rule 22 as amended (142 S. W. xii), appellee should be apprised of omission from transcript of proceedings on appeal from justice court and given opportunity to correct record. Id.

Opportunity should be given for correcting the record before reversing the judgment of the county court for failure to show it obtained jurisdiction on appeal from a justice. Hamilton v. Hannus (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 928.

Under rule 1, and rule 22, as amended (142 S. W. xii), appellant should be given an opportunity to perfect the record before ruling that county court had no jurisdiction of appeal from justice court. Texas Glass & Paint Co. v. Darnell Lumber Corp. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 965.

Motion to amend the record presented the day preceding submission of the case with no excuse offered for the delay will be overruled under rule 22 for Courts of Civil Appeals (142 S. W. xii), where parties should see before submission that the record is properly prepared, etc. Huling v. Moore (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 188.

16. Conclusiveness and effect of transcript.—On error to review judgment by default against a surety, where judgment recites surety filed no answer, but transcript contains an answer, marked as having been filed before rendition of judgment, recital in judgment was conclusive. Shaw v. Southland Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 915.

20. Presumption as to matters not shown.—See notes under art. 3687, rule 12, notes 77-105.

Art. 2110. [1412] [1412] Citation and return omitted, when.

Omission of citation and return.—A default judgment against a defendant will be reversed where the record fails to show service of citation other than by the recital thereof in the judgment. Stone Oil Co. v. Gaines (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 428.

Where the record contains no citation showing due service or an appearance by defendant, judgment by default will be reversed on appeal, though the judgment contains a recital that defendant was duly served. Gilles v. Miners' Bank of Carterville, Mo. (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 284.

Art. 2111. [1413] [1413] Omission of unimportant proceedings, when.

Cited, Gutheridge v. Gutheridge (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 452.

Presumption of agreement.—Under this article, held that an appeal from the district court should not be dismissed because the record failed to contain a certified transcript from the county probate court, the presumption being that the omission was by agreement. Reeves v. Fuqua (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 34.

Art. 2112. [1414] [1414] Agreed statement of pleadings and proof.

Art. 2113. [1415] [1415] Transcript must contain what.

Scope and contents of transcript.—Copy of final judgment.—Under art. 2078, transcript on appeal from county court must show a final judgment. Cisco Oil Mill v. Shepherd (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 822; Southwestern Traction Co. v. Melton (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 363.
Where there is no copy of the transcript from the justice's court in the record, or of the record of the court of civil appeal, the record does not show jurisdiction in the county court. Freeman v. Miller (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 126.

If the transcript contains no judgment or record entry showing a ruling on a demurrer to the petition, the ruling cannot be reviewed, though shown by a bill of exceptions reserved to the appellees. Fred v. Peters (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 296.

Where the transcript contained no copy of the final judgment, as required by this article, an appeal from an interlocutory order striking or dismissing the plea in reconvention was insufficient. Beardeas v. Smith (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 692.

The transcript on appeal from the county court in a case originating before a justice should show rendition of judgment and giving appeal bond in justice court, necessary for jurisdiction of county court. Hamilton v. Hannus (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 915.

Appeal bond.—Under this article, an appeal from an order denying a temporary injunction must be dismissed where the transcript shows no appeal bond and none was filed within 15 days from the order. Baker v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 907.

Assignment of errors.—Under arts. 1607, 1615, 2113, held, that a transcript not containing copy of assignment of errors and not disclosing reversible error on its face required an affirmation. English v. Allen (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1172.

Under rule 101 District and County Courts (159 S. W. xii), cross-assignments of error need not be copied in the transcript, and an objection that they were not filed in the trial court without other showing is not sufficient to prevent their consideration. Yates v. Watson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 548.

Art. 2114. [1416] [1416] Clerk's certificate and indorsement.

Clerk's certificate and indorsement.—Under arts. 2105 and 2114, providing for the contents of a transcript of record, and that the certificate thereof should state whether the transcript was prepared under articles 2110, 2111 and 2112, providing for a partial transcript in certain circumstances, a certificate that the transcript is a correct copy as "per order filed." Gutheridge v. Gutheridge (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 565.

A certificate that a transcript is a "true and correct" copy is not defective for failing to state that it is a "full" copy under arts. 2109, 2114, and district and county court rule 94 (142 S. W. xxiv), providing for the requisites of a transcript and certificate. J. M. Beddor Grocery Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 483.

Under Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 2109, requiring a transcript to contain a full and correct copy of all of the proceedings, a certificate which states that the transcript contains all the proceedings, except the injunction bond, is defective. id.

Art. 2115. [1417] [1416a] Briefs filed in courts below and notice given.

Time for filing.—Where a case on appeal was set for submission on April 1st, and appellant, in violation of the court rules, did not file its brief until March 23rd, nor deliver a copy to appellee until March 24th, appellee was not required to brief the case within the limited time, but could have the appeal dismissed. Weston v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 1194.

 Sufficiency of filing.—Under this article and rule 39 of the Court of Civil Appeals (142 S. W. xlii), where appellant presented a folded paper not indorsed to the clerk of the county court for the file mark on January 27th, but took it away and did not return it to the clerk's office until March 23rd, notice being given appellee on March 26th, the case being set for hearing April 5th, there was not a sufficient compliance with the statute, and a motion to dismiss the appeal will be sustained. Harwood-Barley Mfg. Co. v. McCulloch (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 266.

Notice of filing.—In Court of Civil Appeals, appellee is not required to notify appellant that his brief has been filed. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Derden (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 489.

Excuse for failure to file in time.—Where plaintiff in error did not file briefs in accordance with the statute, though it sent a copy to defendant, its motion, made the day before submission, for leave to file briefs should be denied. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Cave (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 985, 1201.

Under this article, defects in appellee's brief were not excusable because of the submission of the case shortly after it was filed. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 488.

Failure of appellant to file briefs within the time prescribed by this article, thereby depriving appellee of rights granted by articles 1915, 1616, held not excused. Goodhue v. Leach (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 847.

This article is directory, so that delay for good cause, prejudice not resulting, will not cause dismissal. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1068.

Waiver of filing or time of filing.—Although agreements of parties for a time, beyond that allowed by the law or the court, to file their briefs is not binding on the court, yet they are binding upon the parties to the extent at least of preventing either from asking for a dismissal on the ground that the other's brief was not filed within the time allowed. Alexander v. Garcia (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 1102.

Where parties by an agreement on file in court abrogated rules with regard to the filing of briefs, and the appellant did not object to the filing of appellee's brief not presented within time agreed, the clerk would be directed to file the brief as of the date when presented. Crawford v. Wellington Railroad Committee (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1094.

Effect of failure to file or file in time.—See Helman v. State, 70 Cr. R. 450, 158 S. W. 276, and see notes under art. 1914.

In view of a postponement granted to the appellee and of the absence of any allegation of injury or want of time to file a brief after service of appellant's brief, held, that a motion to dismiss on the ground of delay would be denied. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Walters (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 916, judgment reversed on rehearing. 165 S. W. 525.

Where, though the parties stipulated on June 5th that appellant should have 90 days in which to file briefs and that appellees should then have 90 days to file their briefs, appellees did not file their briefs until December 8th, nine days before the appeal was set for submission, the appeal will be dismissed. Brown v. Wm. Cameron & Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 425.

An appeal will be dismissed where, from press of business, appellant's counsel did not file briefs within the time prescribed by this article and rule 39 for the Courts of Civil Appeals. See Rule 7 (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 1197.

Under Court of Civil Appeals rule 39 (142 S. W. xii), where appellant failed to file briefs in time required by this article, did not file briefs in appellate court until two days before the day for submission, and withdrew and retained transcript until day for submission, on motion, appeal must be dismissed. Pagach v. First Nat. Bank of Rosebud (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 50.

Where an appellant failed to file his brief in the district court within the time limited by this article, the appeal will be dismissed on motion, if the appellant fails to give a sufficient excuse. Anderson v. Ineeda Laundry & Dye Works (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 32.

Where plaintiff in error did not comply with this article, and district court rule 165 (142 S. W. xxiv), the briefs must be stricken. Knight v. Simons (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 1018.

 Unless waived, Court of Civil Appeals should not, under this article and rule 39 for the Courts of Civil Appeals (142 S. W. xii), without good cause be shown, consider an appellee's brief, where not filed in the court below. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Cave (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 988, 1201.

Where appellant's failure to file a copy of his brief before taking out the transcript, as required by this article, was not injurious to appellee, the appeal would not be dismissed therefor. Speev v. Rushing (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1012.

Where appelleants failed to file briefs within the time provided in a stipulation, and no error was shown, therefor. Richardson v. Feden Iron & Siding Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 544.

Under rule 8 (142 S. W. xi) motion to dismiss for failure to file briefs in time not filed within 30 days after filing the transcript is too late. Hamlet v. Lelcht (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1004.

Under this article and rule 39, Rules for the Courts of Civil Appeals (142 S. W. xii), where appelleants offer no excuse for failure to file copy of brief in district court, appeal must be dismissed. Hensley v. Fena (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 247.

Where plaintiff in error presented no excuse for not filing briefs within time required by statute, not giving defendant in error time to file briefs, cause will be dismissed under Rule 39 Court of Civil Appeals (142 S. W. xii). Sheppard v. Evans (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 485.

RECORD AND PROCEEDINGS NOT IN RECORD

1. Matters to be shown by record—Jurisdiction of lower court.—See art. 2078, note 3.

2. Presentation and reservation of grounds of review.—See art. 1638, note 7, and other articles relating to particular matters.

3. Refusal of an alleged request to charge cannot be reviewed, where the record fails to show that such a request was made. Pate v. Vardeman (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1183.

Where the record does not show any ruling on a demurrer and exceptions to the petition, nor that any demurrer or exceptions were filed, an assignment complaining of the refusal to sustain a demurrer and special exception cannot be considered. Clarke v. A. B. Frank Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 492.

4. Under this article and rule 39, Rules for the Courts of Civil Appeals (142 S. W. xii), where appelleants did not show that an exception was ever presented and ruled upon in trial court, it would not be considered on appeal. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. King (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 960.

Assignments of error complaining of the court's overruling of exceptions cannot be considered on appeal unless the exceptions were called to the attention of the court. Oliver v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 765.

Where record does not show appelleant requested directed verdict, it cannot be urged as error that such direction was not given. Village Mills Co. v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 796.

Where it does not appear except by bill of exception that a plea in abatement for nonjoinder of necessary parties was called to attention of court or action taken thereon, it cannot be reviewed. First Nat. Bank v. Herrell (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 797.

5. Under articles relating to particular matters.

6. Proofs of error complained of on appeal are inadmissible, and on motion, the court will not adjudge the same as evidence. See art. 2078, note 3.

7. Record of intermediate courts.—See art. 2078, note 9, and art. 213.

8. Scope and contents of record.—Interlocutory orders.—Where record in suit to enjoin obstruction of alley by owners contained no order to abate pending determination of a similar suit, the assignments of error for failure to sustain motion would be overruled. Boatner v. Machir (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 763.

9. Evidence.—Where photographs were in evidence and a map was drawn on the floor in front of the jury, the record on appeal should bring up the photographs and make the testimony as to the map intelligible. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Thayer (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 968.

10. Defects, objections, amendment, and correction.—Effect of defects in general.—Motions to strike on ground that findings were not prepared as findings and had been expunged by trial court held to be overruled, as such matters should be brought before the court by cross-examination. Price v. J. B. Faircloth & Co. (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 761.

Failure to file motion for a new trial within 2 days after verdict, if any inadmissibility relating to the manner of appeal which was waived by not filing of the motion within 30 days after the filing of the transcript, the motion for a new trial, even if filed too late in the court below, is in the record for consideration for all purposes. Winnisboro Cotton Oil Co. v. Carson (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1092.
28. — Amendment in appellate court.—See art. 2106, note 18.

An adjudication of a justice foreclosing, in an action on a lien on furniture, cannot be attacked on the ground that value of furniture was beyond the justice's jurisdiction, where the record on appeal to the county court showed that its value was less than $150. Robertson v. Balkam (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 553.

30. — Conflict in record.—A recital in a judgment dismissing one defendant that such defendant had no lien was conclusive against the file mark on a paper in the record purporting to be the answer of such defendant. Sanger v. First Nat. Bank of Amarillo (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1087.

Upon direct attack by appeal or writ of error a recital in the judgment that defendant was "duly served" does not carry the return on the citation in the record showing affirmatively he was not duly cited. Grubbs v. Marple (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 597.

31. — Impeaching or contradicting.—A record, showing an appearance by a defendant, cannot be charged by an affidavit of plaintiff's counsel, which was first called to the attention of the Court of Appeals on motion for rehearing. Baugh v. Baugh (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 725.

32. — Questions presented for review—Errors on face of record.—See notes under art. 1607.

33. — Jurisdiction of lower court.—See art. 2978, note 9.

34. — Venue.—An order made in May, overruling appellant's plea of privilege, will not be reviewed, where the only pleadings shown by the record are the first amended original petition filed in July and those filed afterwards, and the only evidence before the court on appeal is that introduced upon the trial of the case in July. Wolfe City Milling Co. v. Ward (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 663.

35. — Conduct of trial or hearing.—Assignments complaining of improper argument of counsel cannot be reviewed, where the argument was not shown by bills of exception or the record proper. Clampitt v. St. Louis Northwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 342.

36. — Admissibility of evidence.—Where the entire record is not before the court, it is unable to say whether the exclusion of material testimony was injurious. Clark & Schaeffer v. Gazr-Scott & Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 681.

An assignment of error in excluding testimony must be overruled, where the only thing in the record with reference thereto is the testimony of the witness on voir dire, which the record does not show was offered to the jury, or that the court refused to allow it to go to the jury, or, if so, that appellant excepted to such ruling. Graves v. Sansom & A. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1059.

Where the record on appeal does not show the materiality of excluded evidence, its admissibility cannot be passed on by the appellate court. Texas Power & Light Co. v. Burger (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 680.

In absence of any record showing of the facts alleged as a basis of an objection to depositions, the appellate court cannot say that the court erred in its ruling. Kolp v. S. F. Scatteredgood & Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 529.

40. — Verdict, findings, or decision.—Finding that wife did not receive more property than she was entitled to as her community interest held not to be disturbed, where value of land part of which was devised to her for life did not appear. Payne v. Parley (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 783.

41. — Matters not apparent of record—Matters not included or shown in general.—The appellate court will not go outside of pleadings properly before the court, and which cannot affect the questions involved. Brown v. Uhr (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 381.

It not appearing how long the deposition had been on file, right to object at trial to form and manner of taking it is not apparent. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Packard (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 397.

47. — Matters appearing otherwise than by record.—Under Court of Appeals Rule 63 (192 Tex. xii, 143 S. W. xxii), the sustaining of an exception to an allegation in the answer cannot be reviewed, where it appears only by bill of exceptions, and not in the record proper. Iseng v. Carter (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1163.

Affirmance of an appeal from a judgment of a justice will not be dismissed, though the record did not show that the district court, to which the action was appealed, had jurisdiction, where the defects are supplied by certified copies. Ortiz v. Walker (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 821.

Where suit was instituted against city and others to enjoin payment of certain city warrants, and an amended petition was filed and original petition discarded, court could not be aided by reference to original petition where it did not appear on record. City of Aransas Pass v. Usher (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 157.

48. — Evidence relating to question involved.—See notes under art. 1593.

An ex parte document not made a part of the appellate record cannot be considered. Moore v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1034.

An affidavit of counsel for the plaintiff as to the dismissal of another suit cannot be considered on appeal, being no part of the appellate record. Thomas Goggan & Bros. v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 119.
CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE
CERTAIN INTERLOCUTORY PROCEEDINGS, ETC.

1. MOTIONS

Article 2118. [1456] [1452] Motion docket.
Authority of clerk.—Court held to have no right to interfere with its clerk's statutory duty to file papers, and, under this article, to docket all motions. Cooney v. Isaacks (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 901.

Article 2123. [1461] [1457] Disposed of, when.
Argument of motion.—The action of the court in sustaining a demurrer to a motion without argument and refusal to allow argument as to exceptions to a special answer will not be reviewed, unless abuse of discretion is shown. Peck v. Murphy & Bolanz (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 542.

2. RECEIVERS

Article 2128. [1465] When receivers may be appointed.

1. Applicability of statute in general.—The preference given to judgments and claims for causes of action arising during receivership over the mortgage lien by arts. 2128, 2143, applies only to the lien of the mortgage to foreclose which suit was brought under this article. Gulf Pipe Line Co. v. Lasater (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 773.

2. Nature of remedy.—Where a receiver of a corporation was obtained at the instance of the holder of a junior mortgage, art. 2128, and articles 2138, 2128, subd. 2, did not confer any authority on the court to conduct such receivership to the prejudice of the security of the first mortgagee, who was not a party to the proceedings so as to render him or the mortgaged property subject to receiver's costs and expenses to the lessening of his security. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Clint (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 499.

A "receiver" is an indifferent person between the parties to a cause, appointed by the court to receive and preserve the property or fund in litigation pendente lite. Koker v. Roos (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 505.

3. Remedy incidental to other relief.—A petition by a partner held insufficient to authorize the appointment of a receiver for the firm, where it did not ask for any ultimate relief. Style v. Lantrip (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 786.

A bill which has for its sole object the appointment of a receiver will not be entertained. Continental Trust Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 930.

The appointment of a receiver for an insolvent railroad in a bondholder's suit, alleging waste and mismanagement, in which his petition expressly showed that a suit on the bonds and for foreclosure would be premature, was improper, the receivership not being sought as an ancillary remedy, despite this article, authorizing appointment in cases of insolvency. Houston & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 22.
The appointment of receivers is an ancillary remedy, and a suit therefor cannot be maintained where that is the primary object, and no cause of action or equitable relief is otherwise stated. Republic Trust Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 772.

Prayer for receiver is merely ancillary to cause of action pending between parties in which judgment by one may be obtained by the other, and a receiver should not be appointed for a corporation if no cause of action is pending on which a judgment could be predicated. Kokernot v. Roos (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 566.

The power of a court to appoint a receiver of property proceeds from its jurisdiction of a corporation and is limited to the necessities of the corporate business. Ashb v. Ashb (Sup.) 191 S. W. 563.

4. Pendency and condition of cause.—Where plaintiff's petition in divorce had been dismissed when the court appointed a receiver, and defendant had withdrawn his answer, in so far as it prayed for a divorce, only leaving that part which prayed for a division of the property, plaintiff's reply to the answer, in which she renewed her prayer for a divorce, was before the court, so that there was a suit pending when the receiver was appointed. Crawford v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 115.

5. Existence of other remedy.—Courts of equity will not appoint a receiver of a corporation at the suit of a stockholder on the ground of fraud, mismanagement, etc., on the part of the corporate authorities, but will merely enjoin or forbid the wrong complained of. Williams v. Watt (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 266.

Where a valid garnishment merely reaches a debt due by the garnishee, the writ will not be aided by the appointment of a receiver, or the issuance of injunction restraining the assignment of the debt. Gulf Nat. Bank v. Bass (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 1019.

6. Persons entitled to receiver.—Under this article, a stockholder of a corporation is not entitled to the appointment of a receiver on the ground that it is insolvent, or in imminent danger of dissolution, unless he has a right of action independent of his stockholder's interest. Williams v. Watt (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 266.

A minority stockholder of a corporation, not in imminent danger of insolvency, held not entitled to a receiver, especially where the officers of the corporation administered its affairs. Continental Trust Co. v. Cowart (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 72.

A receiver of a corporation should not be appointed on the application of minority stockholders, except on a clear showing that their rights imperatively demand it, and that they are in danger of irreparable loss. Id.

Under Arts. 1503, 2128, 175 suit by minority stockholders for receivership of going corporation, not shown to be insolvent or in imminent danger of insolvency, held not maintainable. Toomey v. First Mortgage Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 539.

Stockholder applying for receiver of corporation must do under art. 2154, his right to a receivership on his own, without the article defining circumstances under which receiver may be appointed. Kokernot v. Roos (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 506.

7. Discretion of court and review.—Appointment of receiver under proper pleadings held within and discretion of court, and not to be granted unless circumstances fully demand it. Toomey v. First Mortgage Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 539.

8. Jurisdiction of court.—That the federal court, which appointed a receiver of the property of a railroad company, reserved jurisdiction over claims presented, on discharge of the receiver does not give it jurisdiction over claims not presented. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Latham (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 717.

Where the federal court appoints a receiver for a railroad company, such court acquires jurisdiction of all claims presented by petition or intervention, and the discharge of the receiver does not itself release such jurisdiction. Id.

9. Grounds of appointment.—An application by junior lienholder for the administration of an insolvent corporation’s assets through a receivership should not be entertained, where the assets are insufficient to pay more than the first lien. Houston Ice & Bro. v. Clint (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 499.

A receiver held properly appointed for an insolvent corporation pending litigation. First State Bank of Hubbard v. Hubbard Farmers’ Oil & Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 118.

To show grounds for receivership of a corporation, equities must appear in behalf of complainant which require that relief independent of a showing of insolvency. Floore v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 787.

That defendants, in a suit for receivership, would collect attorney’s fees and trustee’s fees provided for in notes and trust deeds of corporate property, alleged to be unreasonable, is not an equitable ground for a receivership. Id.

Under this article, the court held authorized to appoint a receiver to wind up the affairs of an insolvent corporation which has forfeited its rights to do business for non-payment of its franchise tax. Canadian Country Club v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 833.

That the managers of a corporation notified its creditors that the corporation would become insolvent if they should foreclose held not to constitute collusion for the purpose of covering up the debts of the corporation by the appointment of a receiver. Hart-Parr Co. v. Alvin-Japanese Nursery Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 697.

The mere fact that a corporation is insolvent is not sufficient ground for the appointment of a receiver on the ground of showing of some equity in favor of complainants. Continental Trust Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 939.

The fact that the creditor of a corporation attempts to assert an unjust debt and to charge payment of the appointment of a receiver. Id.

Where the assets of a debtor were about to be placed beyond a creditor’s reach, his right to a receiver need not rest alone in equity, but also exists under the express provision of this article. Bond-Reed Hardware Co. v. Walsh (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 248.

When the revolving fund as agent is held in trust for plaintiff was insolvent, so that no judgment against him could be collected on execution, the court, at plaintiff’s instance, should have appointed a receiver. Driksell v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 715.

It is not necessary, to constitute grounds for the appointment of a receiver of a corporation, to show that petitioner’s claim has been merged in a judgment, or that it has.

11. Application for appointment, requisites of.—A receiver should have been appointed, though the creditors did not specifically ask judgment on their claim. First State Bank of Hubbard v. Hubbard Farmers' Oil & Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 112.

A receiver may be appointed on the court's own motion. Crawford v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 115.

Relief in stockholders' suit, alleging fraud, etc., or ultra vires acts of directors or corporation, held limited to the specific wrongs charged, and receiver will not be appointed. Hart-Parr Co. v. First Mortgage Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 599.

Petition in action in which receiver of corporation was sought held insufficient; it stating no cause of action and seeking no relief except the appointment of a receiver. Forest Oil Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 636.

A petition for the appointment of a receiver to conserve timber held insufficient to show the necessity of such appointment. Masterson v. Cavin (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 662.

A petition for the appointment of a receiver to take charge of a sawmill and personal property held insufficient to show necessity for appointment. Petition for appointment of receiver held to state a cause of action under this article, authorizing such appointment where defendant corporation is in imminent danger of insolvency. Hart-Parr Co. v. Alvin-Japanese Nursery Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 657.

In proceedings for the appointment of a receiver for a corporation, on the verge of insolvency, petition held not to show that certain creditors were attempting to hinder the collection of debts of others. Id.

A bill for the appointment of a receiver praying for time in which to pay indebtedness held not to state ground for appointment. Continental Trust Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 839.

Under art. 2128, § 3, allegations in petition for a receiver, verified by plaintiff's attorney to the effect that they were true as alleged, held sufficient to justify appointment of a preliminary or temporary receiver. Abilene Independent Telephone & Telegraph Co. v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 356.

12. Notice of application.—While notice of an application for the appointment of a receiver is not required by statute, notice should be given, save in case of emergency. Williams v. Watt (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 266.

Though a petition did not warrant the appointment of a receiver without notice, such appointment will not be vacated on appeal for that reason, where an answer was filed. Id.

In a suit by the state for the forfeiture of the charter of a railroad corporation on the ground of insolvency, held that there was no such emergency as warranted the appointment of a receiver under this article, without notice. Texas-Mexican Ry. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 298.

It is not enough to authorize appointment of receiver without notice to allege that party applying therefor is entitled to possession of real or personal property involved and that it is being wasted, but petition must further show that applicant will probably suffer irreparable injury if receiver is not appointed with immediate necessity in giving notice to opposite party. Simpson v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 355.

14. Proof, nature and sufficiency of.—Affidavit accompanying petition, but claimed to be not attached to and made a part thereof, held properly considered in passing upon application for appointment of receiver. Forest Oil Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 636.

Allegations of petition to which no answer was filed must be taken as true on hearing a motion to appoint a receiver. Simpson v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 285.

15. Order of appointment—Description and inclusion of property.—A judgment, recovered against a railroad company while its properties are in the hands of a receiver, should be presented to the court in which a receivership is pending as evidence of the claim and for approval and payment. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 829.

18. Duration of receivership in general.—So long as a court of equity has jurisdiction of a cause giving it the right to take possession of property through a receiver, it has the power to continue the receivership. Lauraine v. Ashe (Sup.) 191 S. W. 562.

Whether a receivership should be continued is to be governed by the necessities of the case as related to the rights of the parties. Id.

In possession of property of a debtor, of receiver appointed in her lifetime, does not pass on her death to administrator, by virtue of art. 3235, as to administrator's right of possession, in absence of showing of loss of jurisdiction of court appointing receiver. Id.

20. Validity and partial invalidity.—An order appointing a receiver is not invalidated by an error in the exercise of the court's power to make such appointment. Lauraine v. Ashe (Sup.) 191 S. W. 563.

21. Operation and effect of appointment in general.—Appointment of receiver pending action to compel railroad corporation to construct its road through a county seat, as required by Const. art. 10, § 9, held not ground for abatement, dismissal or suspension of such action. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Texas (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 561, judgment reversed, 196 Tex. 298, 163 S. W. 582. The propriety or legality of a receiver's appointment cannot be questioned, nor can his eligibility be attacked in any subsequent proceeding. New Britain Mach. Co. v. Watt (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 624.

The appointment of a receiver and his administration of the affairs of a railroad company impounds the property of the company, so that while it remains in the custody of the court, the receiver's possession cannot be disturbed by any other court. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Latham (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 717. Over the property in hands of receiver could incur debts and give lien on property to secure them valid as against any interest the owners had left in the property after the payment of all prior claims allowed in the receivership proceedings. Lauraine v. Master­son (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 708.

Person interested.—The sheriff held not a "person interested" within this article, so as to prevent his appointment as a receiver in a divorce action. Crawford v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 115.

Art. 2133. [1470] Receiver's power.

1. Property and rights vesting in receiver.—Where corporation receiver proved that a stockholder took title in his own name for the benefit of the corporation which paid the consideration, he was entitled to recover the land in an action of trespass to try title. Texas Rice Land Co. v. Langham (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 473.

5. Authority of receiver in general.—An order of the court authorizing receivers to extend the railroad along a certain street does not authorize an excavation along that street between the tracks and the abutting property. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Weaver (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 582. Unpaid subscriptions for capital stock of a corporation, which has become insolvent, become a trust fund for benefit of the creditors of corporation, and may be sued on and collected by receiver for such purpose, even though such creditors did not know of such unpaid subscriptions at time debts were incurred. Mitchell v. Porter (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 981.

In an action by a stockholder to cancel notes and deed of trust given for stock which were void for that reason, held, that receiver representing creditors is in no better position to enforce collection of such notes or invoke defense of estoppel than is corporation itself. Id.

9. Contracts, authorization or ratification.—A receiver may contract without the sanction of the court, binding himself personally to another for debts incurred by himself expressly or by accepting services which he is bound to perform and which otherwise would be a charge against the property. Allen v. Kittrell (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 397.

 Receivers can bind the property in their hands only by acts which the court may authorize or approve, and, to charge the property after its redelivery by receivers, the claimant must plead and prove the authority of the receivers. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Weaver (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 591.

10. Sales—Validity.—Where after the court had postponed the confirmation of a receiver's sale of property worth $106,000 for $10,000, without further advertisement, it permitted the bidder to raise his bid to $15,000, and then confirmed the sale to him, the sale was void. Arlington Heights Realty Co. v. Citizens' Ry. & Light Co. (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1109.

14. Vacation.—The sale of property by a receiver may be set aside for fraud and misrepresentation; it would be a void sale of fraud for a receiver to purchase in person, or to be interested in purchasing at his sale of the property. New Britain Mach. Co. v. Watt (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 624. Allegations in motion to set aside a receiver's sale held to form a sufficient basis for the introduction of evidence on the issue of the inadequacy of price. Id.

21. Liability of receiver in general.—Petition, in an action for the value of a mule killed by a train, held to state a cause of action against the receiver of the railroad company, based on the ground that the injury occurred after he became receiver. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Knowles (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 245.

Where receiver of railroad contracted to transport shipment within state, freight charges payable at destination, and before delivery of shipment destination was changed and bill of lading issued for transportation of shipment beyond state, the receiver was liable as final carrier of interstate commerce; it being within his authority to so modify original contract. Andrews v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 569.

Arts. 6501, 6802, giving right of recovery against a railroad for allowing Johnson grass to go to seed on its right of way, does not render liable its receivers for allowing it. Int. & N. R. Co. v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1145.

23. Acts of agent.—Receiver of two persons' property who had knowledge of and directed performance of services by the wife of one of them, but who did not agree to pay therefor, held not personally liable. Allen v. Kittrell (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 237.

Judgment cannot be had against a receiver for wrongs of his alleged servant without proof of appointment and that the servant was employed by the receiver. Beaumont, S. L. & W. Ry. Co. v. Daniel (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 383.

25. Liability of property or funds for payment of claims.—Receiver for purchaser of railroad stock or real property in hands of receivers, or of receiver for wrongs of his alleged servant without payment of the purchase price. Continental Trust Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 393.

Receiver for corporation held to have no right to compel the vendor, under an executory contract with the corporation for the purchase of land, to deliver possession without payment of the purchase price. Id.
20. Order of distribution, conclusiveness of.—An order directing the payment and distribution of the funds in the possession of a receiver cannot be collaterally attacked.

Art. 2135. [1472] Application of funds in hand of receiver and claims preferred.

Priority of claims in general.—Where receiver of the assets of a corporation was appointed at the instance of a junior lienholder, and the assets were insufficient to pay more than the first mortgage, and did not produce an income, it was improper to continue the receivership, but that the proceeds of the assets should be applied to the payment of the costs of the action to foreclose the first lien, then to the payment of that debt and interest, and the balance to be expended by the receiver as directed by the court.

Hubbard v. Interior & Brewing Co. v. Clint (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 390.

The provision of this article giving a preference to certain claims out of moneys coming into the hands of the receiver which are earnings of the property gives no preference lien over prior liens on the corpus of the property, where there were no earnings. Gulf Pipe Line Co. v. Laaster (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 772.

Expenses of receivership.—Where a receiver of a corporation was obtained at the instance of the holder of a junior mortgage, art. 2135, and articles 2135, 2128, subd. 2, did not confer any authority on the court to conduct such receivership to the prejudice of the security of the first mortgagee, who was not a party to the proceedings so as to render him or the mortgaged property subject to receiver's costs and expenses to the lessening of his security. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Clint (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 409.

Where receivership proceedings were instituted against a corporation not shown to be of a public character, under a junior mortgage, the court could not postpone the lien of a prior mortgage to the expenses and costs of the receivership. Clint v. Houston Ice & Brewing Co., 169 S. W. 411, 106 Tex. 508.

The holder of a vendor's lien on the property of a corporation for which a receiver was appointed, over the lienholder's protest at the suit of subsequent creditors not entitled to preference under arts. 2135, 2138, and 2142, cannot be compelled to pay the costs of the receivership. Gulf Pipe Line Co. v. Laaster (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 772.

Expenses of continuance of business by receiver.—Where the court takes charge of quasi public corporations, operating them through a receiver, it may make the necessary debts of operation a prior lien upon the income or the property itself. Craver v. Greer (Sup.) 179 S. W. 562, answering certified questions (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 599, regarding sale, to art. 2102 of Civ. App. 182 S. W. 285.

Without some element of estoppel, vested liens on property of a private corporation or individual cannot be postponed to the receiver's operating expenses, and that one is a party to the receivership suit is insufficient to produce that result. Id.

Plaintiff, in a suit to foreclose a mortgage, in which a receiver was appointed to continue the business on application of intervening creditors, held entitled to priority for his mortgage over the receiver's operating expenses. Id.

One furnishing current supplies to a quasi public corporation, an irrigation company, is entitled to priority over other unsecured creditors in funds in receiver's hands earned before receivership. First Nat. Bank v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 197.

Where a receiver is appointed for a public service corporation in order to perform its duties and to protect the interests of the corporation, the expenses of operation by the receiver are given preference over a lien on the property held by one who did not institute the action in which the receiver was appointed. Gulf Pipe Line Co. v. Langer (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 773.

The expense of auditing the books of a public service corporation during receivership proceedings is not an expense necessary for the operation of the plant which would be entitled to preference over a lien, but is taxable against the plaintiffs as costs. Id.

A vendor who has abandoned his right to rescind the sale and recover the land, and has elected to sue for his debt and foreclose his lien, has merely a mortgage, not a legal title, and his lien is subject to the expenses of the operation of a public service plant by a receiver. Id.

Debts incurred prior to receivership.—It was error to sustain exception to receivers' answer alleging injury before appointment, since if plaintiff could recover, he could recover against the railway company although receiver was a proper party. Schaff v. Nash (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 490.

Receiver's certificate.—Where receiver of an insolvent corporation was appointed at the instance of a junior lienholder and issued certificates of indebtedness, the lienholders thereof were not entitled to a prior lien as against a first mortgagee of the corporation's property, who was not a party to and had no knowledge of the receivership proceedings until the property had been taken by the receiver. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Clint (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 409.

On foreclosure of a mortgage on the plant of a private corporation, the court cannot give priority to receivers' certificates and expenses of a receivership, obtained by a junior mortgagee first mortgagee of the plant. Hubbard v. Hubbard Farmers' Oil & Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 1015, rehearing denied 183 S. W. 112.

Liability of parties for whom receivers have been appointed.—A corporation, owning a railroad, is not liable for injuries to a passenger while traveling by receiver's negligence. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Ballou (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 337.

Judgment against a railroad company, held not reversed to plaintiff in error by circuit court, where evidence shows that railroad was being operated by receiver at time of judgment. Id.
contract of shipment was made as well as at time of trial, but such judgment can be rendered in favor of receiver. Andrews v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 396.

A railroad is not liable for penalty for allowing Johnson grass to go to seed on its right of way after its property had passed into the possession and control of a receiver. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1146.

Art. 2137. [1474] When property in the hands of receiver subject to execution.

Issuance of execution.—A judgment recovered against a receiver of an insolvent corporation cannot be enforced by seizure of the corporation’s assets under an execution. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Clint (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 499.

Art. 2138. [1475] Judgments a first lien on property, and property charged with lien after receivership.

Priority of liens.—See Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Clint (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 499; note under art. 2135.

The holder of a vendor’s lien on the property of a corporation for which a receiver was appointed, over the lienholder’s protest at the suit of subsequent creditors not entitled to preference under arts. 2135, 2138, and 2143, cannot be compelled to pay the costs of the receivership. Gulf Pipe Line Co. v. Lasater (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 773.

The preference given to judgments and claims for causes of action arising during receivership over the mortgage lien by arts. 2135, 2142, applies only to the lien of the mortgage to foreclose which suit was brought under article 2128. Id.

Art. 2139. [1476] Persons to whom property delivered liable for debts.

Grounds of liability.—A shipper of live stock, suing for damages thereto while the property of the railroad was in the hands of receivers, must allege and prove that the receivers had been duly appointed and discharged, and that its property delivered back was equal in value to the amount of the shipper’s claim, or that such claim was made a condition of redelivery, and also by what court the receivers were appointed and discharged. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Russell (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 299.

Art. 2141. [1478] Property redeemed by receiver without sale still liable for debts; suits do not abate, but new party may be made.

Liability for unpaid debts and claims.—No act of a receiver could relieve a party from obligations arising from a valid contract, made before the receivership. Arlington Heights Realty Co. v. Citizens’ Ry. & Light Co. (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1195.

Discharge of receiver of railroad company pending action against him held to bar further liability and to require dismissal of the action against him. Freeman v. W. B. Walker & Sons (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1133; id., 465.

Under an application for and an order for the return of the property of a railroad company which had been in the hands of a receiver, held, that the company assumed claims against the receiver arising out of negligence in the operation of the road. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Latham (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 717.

Where receivers were not personally liable, and had been discharged, they are not necessary parties to an action against a railroad company for damages for negligent injury to a shipment during the receivership. Id.

In an action not a railroad company for a nuisance, the inquiry of the jury should have been limited to the acts complained of occurring before the date the railroad went into receivership. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 829.

Railroad is liable for damages occurring while it was operated by receiver who diverted current earnings by placing them in permanent improvements or turned them over to road without a sale. Id.

In suit against railroad for loss of goods in hands of receiver, facts must be shown creating liability on road, which is not prima facie liable for acts of receiver. Id.

Railroad, which purchased its former property from the purchaser at a sale by federal receiver pursuant to order of court without assuming liability for claim against the receiver for loss of goods, held not liable. Id.

In action against railroad, for receiver’s negligence in losing goods in transit, brought after receiver has sold property and current assets by order of court, it must be pleaded and proven that the road in some manner has assumed the liability. Id.

In an action against a railroad company after it had resumed possession of its property held not to show that the acts of the receivers for which damage was claimed were authorized or approved by the court appointing them. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Weaver (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 591.

Federal court receivership.—Under this article a shipper whose claim arose while the property of a railroad company was in the possession of a receiver appointed by a federal court, may, after termination of the receivership and return of property to the railroad company, sue the railroad company. The railroad company was liable for claim based on negligence in operating the road, though the federal court certified jurisdiction as to matters not determined. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Latham (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 717.

Where damage to a shipment of live stock occurred while the carrier was in the hands of a court appointed by a federal court, such carrier will be treated as in the hands of the federal courts when the injury occurred, and the shipper cannot recover.

Under this article, a railroad redelivered by receivers appointed by the federal courts held liable in the state courts in an action begun against the receivers for damages caused by the receivers' acts regardless of the terms of the decree or redelivery. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Weaver (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 991.

Art. 2142. [1479] Judgments and unsued claims have preference over mortgage.

Priority of claims.—See Gulf Pipe Line Co. v. Lasater (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 773; note under art. 2138.

Art. 2143. [1480] Receiver and person to whom property is delivered both liable and may be sued for unpaid claim.

Liability of receiver.—Petition, in an action against receivers of a railroad company after the receivers had committed torts, held not to be demonstrable notwithstanding this article. Hovey v. Weaver (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1089.

Art. 2144. [1481] Receiver to give bond on appeal.
Cited, Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Clint (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 409.

Art. 2146. [1483] Receiver may sue or be sued without leave; effect of judgment against.

Application in general.—In view of the article a master had not power to order all claimants to be served within 20 days of the receiver within the凭借着 Arlington Heights Realty Co. v. Citizens' Ry. & Light Co. (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1190.

Action by receiver.—Under art. 4654, a receiver is not entitled to an injunction restraining the sale of property in custodia legis without depositing the proper bond.

Action against receiver.—Where a receiver has been appointed for a railroad company, so that it is legally impossible for it to comply with mandamus from a district court, requiring it to construct a line through a county seat and maintain a depot thereon, it should be suspended until conditions so change as to put it in the power of the corporation to obey. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. State, 196 Tex. 249, 163 S. W. 582, modifying judgment (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 561.

Where a receiver of the assets of an insolvent corporation was appointed at the instance of a junior lienholder, other creditors were entitled to sue the receiver and recover judgment on their claims, without leave of the court appointing the receiver, by this article. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Clint (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 409.

An order of a federal court giving the receiver of a railroad authority to defend certain suits held not to authorize a suit in a state court against the receiver to recover damages to a shipment of cattle occurring before the appointment of the receiver. Andrews v. King (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 862.

An action in a state court for injuries to a shipment of horses may not be brought without leave against a receiver of a railroad appointed in a federal court, where the claim arose two or three months before the receiver was appointed, as such claim is not within Act March 3, 1911, § 66. Id.

Absence of permission of the federal court, which appointed him, a receiver of a railroad cannot, under the federal statute, be sued in a state court for an injury caused by the road before his appointment. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Vivian (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 562.

Judgment against the receiver for a tort of the railroad, committed before his appointment, is unauthorized, absent permission of the federal court appointing him to sue him. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Knowles (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1146.

By arts. 2146, 2147, it was intention of Legislature, in granting permission to receivers to sue or be sued without permission of appointing court, to permit suits only in venue prescribed, article 2146 granting general permission to bring suits without leave, and article 2147 fixing venue. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Bowles (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 611.

Art. 2147. [1484] Suits against receiver, where brought.

Venue.—By arts. 2146, 2147, it was intention of Legislature, in granting permission to receivers to sue or be sued without permission of appointing court, to permit suits only in venue prescribed, article 2146 granting general permission to bring suits without leave, and article 2147 fixing venue. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Bowles (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 611.
Where officers of Arizona corporation resided in Ft. Worth, Tarrant county, Tex., and where office were proceeded all company's business, county was seat of principal office of company in Texas within meaning of general venue statute (art. 1830), and also special statutes applicable to receiverships for corporations and suits against receivers (articles 2146, 2147, 2150). Id.

Suits against receivers, venue for which is prescribed by this article, come within terms of article 1830, subd. 30, providing that whenever in any law authorizing any particular character of action the venue is expressly stated, suit shall be commenced in court to which jurisdiction may be so expressly given. Id.

Under art. 1830, subds. 14, 24, 28, and 30, and this article, held, that a suit against the receiver of a foreign corporation to cancel deed of trust and a note given for stock was properly brought in county where land was situated. Mitchell v. Porter (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 981.

Art. 2149. [1487] Jurisdiction to appoint receiver confined to courts of this state in certain cases.

Foreign receiver.—A foreign receiver has no extraterritorial jurisdiction, so that, where no ancillary proceedings for the appointment of a receiver are commenced in this state, title to property here does not vest in him. Nesom v. City Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 715.

Art. 2150. [1488] Receiver of corporation, where applied for.

Art. 2151. [1489] Where there are betterments, general creditors have rights to be protected.

Necessity of showing of betterments.—In an action for damages caused by receivers of a railroad, where property has been redeployed to the owners, plaintiff must show that receivers expended the revenue in betterments. Hovey v. Weaver (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1089.

Art. 2152. [1490] Judgments and other claims have preference over mortgage.

Applications in general.—Under this article, held, that the claims of creditors secured by mortgage stood on the same footing as an unsecured claim. Gaupel v. Lakeside Sugar Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1038.

This article subordinates the mortgage only of the person who instituted the action to the expenses of running the business by the receiver. Gulf Pipe Line Co. v. Lasater (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 773.

Art. 2154. [1492] Application for receiver, by whom made.

Persons entitled to apply for appointment.—The prohibition in this article of application by a corporation for a receiver applies to its directors acting in its behalf. Flores v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 737.

Under this article, it is not essential that stockholder seeking receivership should have judgment or an express lien against property of corporation, though he must have a claim, and hence suit not brought on any claim, but for a receivership to delay a defendant's collection of first lien debt against it could not be maintained. Kokernot v. Roos (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 936.

Stockholder applying for receiver of corporation must do so under this article; his right to a receiver depending on whether he brings himself within article 2128, and subdivisions defining circumstances under which receiver may be appointed. Id.

Cited, Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Clink (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 409; Forest Oil Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 626.

Costs on discharge.—The appointment of a receiver for a public service corporation held improvidently made, though the corporation had been losing money, so that a court did not abuse its discretion in taxing the receivership costs against the plaintiffs. Gulf Pipe Line Co. v. Lasater (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 773.

4. MASTERS IN CHANCERY

In general.—The court properly submitted all the matters it saw fit to a master, where there was reserved to the parties the right to except to his findings of fact or law, and to have the questions of fact decided by jury. Arlington Heights Realty Co. v. Citizens' Ry. & Light Co. (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1109.

In view of this article and art. 79, it is within the power of the court to appoint a master in chancery by consent of parties. San Benito Cameron County Drainage Dist. v. Farmers' State Charitable Bank (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1146.

Proceedings before master.—Evidence held not to sustain a finding that the master set down all claims of whatever character against defendant for hearing before him on a date named. Arlington Heights Realty Co. v. Citizens' Ry. & Light Co. (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1109.

Report of master.—Where a case referred to a master involved the construction of contracts and no parol evidence was offered, a proper practice would be for the court to

Where plaintiff's exceptions to a master's report made it ineffectual for any purpose, a motion to quash it because of certain deficiencies was unnecessary, unless pertinent on the question of costs. 10.

Upon exceptions to a master's report, all matters of fact excepted to should be tried de novo by a jury, and the court should construe the contract and determine all questions of law passed upon by the master. 11.

Where the parties to a suit agree that a master in chancery shall be appointed and that exceptions to his report must be filed within 60 days, they are bound by such agreement, and cannot file exceptions after a greater time has expired. San Benito Cameron County Drainage Dist. v. Farmers' State Guaranty Bank (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1145.

5. Substitution of Lost Records and Papers

Art. 2157. [1498] [1475] Lost records and papers supplied, on motion.

Necessity of substitution.—Where it appears that the injunction bond has been lost from the files of the court below, it should be substituted in the record by proper proceedings in that court so as to be brought up to the Court of Civil Appeals. J. M. Radford Grocery Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 453.

Where respondent's counsel, who lost the clerk's transcript of the record after it was filed in the Court of Civil Appeals, failed to have certified a substitute transcript offered by them, held, that the motion to substitute would be overruled, and the statement of the case and statements supporting the assignments of error in appellant's brief will be treated as correct. Patterson v. Sylvan Beach Co. (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 515.

Records and papers which may be supplied.—Under arts. 2157-2163, a motion to substitute lost papers and for certiorari to perfect record will not lie where the papers were missing in court below. Browne Grain Co. v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank of Abilene (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 242.

Art. 2161. [1502] [1479] Adverse party may supply.

Art. 2163. [1504] [1481] Substituted copies constitute record.

Operation and effect in general.—In view of arts. 1812, 2157, et seq., relating to pleadings and lost pleadings, held that, where corrected transcript contained copy of lost pleading sufficient to support judgment, it would be assumed that the pleading was before court at its rendition of judgment. Wiggins v. First Nat. Bank of Denton (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 735.

Irregularity in proceedings.—Where the justice lost the original appeal bond filed with him, and a new bond identical with the original, was executed, filed with and approved by him, though not substituted as required by statute, it should have been recognized by the county court in the absence of objection by the appellee, or, if it was defective, appellant should have been allowed to file a new and sufficient bond. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Burris (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 381.

6. Deposit of Money, etc., in Court

Art. 2164. [1462] [1458] Custody of money and other articles deposited.

Sufficiency and effect of tender.—The cash payment called for by a contract for the sale of land need not be actually paid into court when payment is tendered by the pleadings, in a suit for specific performance. Beaton v. Fussell (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 458.

Disposition of deposit.—Where, in a suit to foreclose a mortgage, the purchaser at a mortgage sale intervened and made a deposit to secure the delivery of the property by the receiver, he could not complain of the payment of plaintiff's claim from such deposit. Sweetwater Cotton Oil Co. v. Birge-Forbes & Co. (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1125.

Stipulations

Construction and operation in general.—A stipulation held insufficient to show that a will was inadmissible because an appeal had been taken from the judgment admitting it to probate. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Drumwright (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1011.

In trespass to try title to land, a portion of which defendant claimed by limitation, held that, by the different agreements of the parties, it was admitted that, when plaintiff's predecessor in title took possession before limitations had run in defendant's favor, he was the owner of the record title. Combes v. Stringer, 167 S. W. 217, 166 Tex. 457, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 668.

In action to recover value of land, admission in agreed statement held to support judgment, though there was an admission therein that at one time certain attorneys had an interest in the land. White v. Love (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 913.

To try title, where held not an admission that plaintiff had title by a regular chain from the sovereignty of the soil. Rotge v. Simmier (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 614.

Where it was agreed between the parties that appellant's bond should be considered as proved, recovery cannot be defeated because the statement of facts showed plaintiff merely "offered" the bond in evidence. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Harper (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1156.

Where parties agreed that each might read from records title papers and plaintiffs should furnish list with book references 10 days before trial, and the original powers of

Under this article, allowance of $20 fee for collecting a $75 item on claims to recover $215 damages for killing three head of cattle held erroneous. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 850.

The court and jury do not judicially know what would be a reasonable attorney's fee which this article authorizes plaintiff to recover in action on bona fide claim for stock killed. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Price (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 605.

Allegations that plaintiff promised his attorney a certain fee are insufficient to authorize recovery under this article, allowing reasonable attorney fees. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 356.

Proof and allowance.—Where the evidence on appeal from justice court authorized a verdict for the wages sued for, judgment allowing attorney's fees under this article and punitive damages without evidence to support such allowance would be modified by permitting remittitur of the fees and punitive damages. Trinity County Lumber Co. v. Conner (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 911.

Under this article, allowing recovery of attorney's fees in action on bona fide claim for stock killed, plaintiff must offer evidence of facts authorizing recovery of attorney's fees and as to what would be reasonable attorney's fee under circumstances. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Price (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 805.

Under this article, court should require that verdict determine facts as to whether attorney's fees were recoverable and what would be reasonable amount. Id.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Article 2180. [1447] [1443] Process, requisites of.

Sufficiency of attestation.—Under this article, a citation held sufficiently attested when signed by the clerk officially with the seal of the court, though the word “tested” was not used. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 666.

Article 2182. [1454] [1450] Suits consolidated, when.

Trial of cases together.—In action against receiver of insurer, and against a railroad for damages from fire communicated from cars, there was no error in hearing the two cases together. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Moerbe (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 128.

Actions which may be consolidated.—Where the several suits involved similar facts, but a judgment in one would not necessarily be conclusive in another, consolidation to avoid a multiplicity of suits will not be required. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Liberal Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 255.

The court did not err in consolidating two suits in trespass to try title, where the parties and issues in both were the same. Ferguson v. Dodd (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 391.

Operation and effect of consolidation.—Under this article, where three suits were consolidated, held that jurisdiction of Court of Civil Appeals was determinable according to the sum of the amounts involved in the three suits. Rust v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 180 S. W. 95.

Articles 2191–2198.

Note.—Acts 1907, p. 137, §§ 1–8, constituting the above articles of the Revised Civil Statutes, were also carried into the Revised Criminal Statutes as arts. 1197–1204 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The latter articles were amended by Acts 1913, ch. 112, §§ 1–10, thus working a supercession of the articles of the revised Civil Statutes above referred to. The act as amended appears in Vernon’s Code of Criminal Proc. as arts. 1197–1204.

Applicable only to boys.—See Townson v. State (Cr. App.) 182 S. W. 1104.

Jurisdiction.—See McCallen v. State, 76 Cr. R. 353, 174 S. W. 611; Ex parte Bartee, 76 Cr. R. 285, 174 S. W. 1561.

Note.—Acts 1907, p. 137, ch. 65, § 9, from which the above articles were constructed, was amended, prior to the revision of 1911, by Acts 1909, ch. 55, p. 101, and the revisers carried the amendatory act into the revised Code of Criminal Procedure as art. 1298. The latter article was expressly repealed by Acts 1913, ch. 112, § 13. This repeal would seem to work a supercession of arts. 2199, 2200. Revised Civil Stat.

CRIMINAL DISTRICT COURTS

CHAPTER TWO

DALLAS CRIMINAL DISTRICT COURT

Article 2234. [1531f] Terms of court; grand jury.—Said court shall hold four terms each year for the trial of causes and the disposition of business coming before it; one term beginning the first Monday of January; one term beginning the first Monday of April; one term beginning the first Monday in July; and one term beginning the first Monday of October, respectively. The grand jury shall be empaneled in said court for each term thereof unless otherwise directed by the judge of said court; and the procedure for drawing jurors for said court shall be the same as is now or may hereafter be required by law in district courts and under the same rules and regulations. [Acts 1893, p. 118; Act March 29, 1917, ch. 136, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The act amends art. 2234, Rev. Civ. St. of 1911. Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment.

CHAPTER THREE

CRIMINAL DISTRICT COURT NO. 2 OF DALLAS COUNTY

Article 2235b. Criminal district court of Dallas county and court No. 2 to exercise concurrent jurisdiction; transfer of causes, etc.

Note.—This section of the act is amended by Act March 22, 1915, ch. 86, § 1. See Vernon's Code Criminal Procedure 1916, art. 971f.

Since the compilation of the Civil Statutes in 1914 the legislature has passed a number of acts relating to the Criminal District Courts. Where those acts are not amendatory of Articles of Revised Civil Statutes of 1911, they have been placed in title 2, chapter 3A, of Vernon's Code of Criminal Procedure 1916, and the corresponding title and chapter in this supplement.

Transfer of causes.—See General Bonding & Casualty Co. v. State, 73 Cr. R. 649, 165 S. W. 615.
TITLE 40
COURTS—COMMISSIONERS'

CHAPTER ONE ORGANIZATION

Art. 2236. Election and term of office of county commissioners.
Art. 2237. Court composed of whom and the presiding officer thereof.

Article 2236. [1532] [1509] Election and term of office of county commissioners.

Inconvenience invalidating division of county into precincts.—Under the act creating Dunn county (Acts 53d Leg. [1st Called Sess.] c. 35), the division of such county into commissioners' districts, justice's districts, and voting precincts held so manifestly wrong, in view of the comparative size and comparative number of voters and the inconvenience to residents of two of the three largest towns in reaching the polling place and justice's court, as to require the holding of an election in such precincts to be enjoined. Dubose v. Woods (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 3.

Vacancy in office of county commissioner.—Under Const. art. 5, § 18, article 16, § 17, and Rev. St. 1911, arts. 2236, 2240, 3030, 3032, county commissioner's term expired when result of election was required to be declared, and if no commissioner was elected there was a vacancy, and defendant's subsequent qualification was not premature. Tom v. Klepper (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 721.

Art. 2237. [1533] [1510] Court composed of whom and the presiding officer thereof.

Personal liability for damage arising from official acts.—Officers, to whom is committed the power of acting in a judicial or quasi judicial capacity, are not personally liable for an honest, though mistaken, exercise of their powers. Comanche County v. Burks (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 470.

Art. 2239. [1535] [1512] Oath and bond of county commissioners.

Liability on bond.—Under Sp. Acts 25th Leg. c. 25 (Special Road Law for San Augustine County) § 1, sureties on official bond of a county commissioner held not responsible for his illegal drawing or receiving money from the county as ex officio road commissioner. Slaughter v. Knight (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 539.

Action on bond.—Under this article, petition against county commissioner for amounts collected for services to county in which he could not be interested, failing to show that they were collected other than for real owners, did not state cause of action, and did not show liability of sureties on official bond. Folk v. Roebuck (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 513.

Art. 2240. [1536] [1513] Vacancy in office of commissioner, how filled.

CHAPTER TWO
POWERS AND DUTIES

Art. 2241. Certain powers of the court specified.

Article 2241. [1537] [1514] Certain powers of the court specified.
1. Limitation of jurisdiction to county business.—Under Const. art. 5, § 18, the commissioners' courts are courts of limited jurisdiction, having no authority except as expressly or impliedly conferred. Von Rosenberg v. Lovett (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 508.

Relative to the question of a fight between defendants and S., who was taking sand from their land, being an affray, a county commissioner could not authorize him to take sand from the road. Havens v. State (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1114.

2. Establishment of county and precinct boundaries.—Under the act creating Dunn county (Acts 33d Leg. [1st Called Sess.] c. 58), the division of such county into commissioner's, justice's, and voting precincts held so manifestly wrong, in view of the comparative size and comparative number of voters and the inconvenience to residents of two of the three largest towns in reaching the polling place and justice's court, as to require the holding of an election in such precincts to be enjoined. Dubose v. Woods (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 3.

Under the general power given by this article to "build bridges and keep the same in repair," general discretion is vested in members of commissioners' courts to determine when and where bridges shall be constructed in their county. Moore v. Coffman (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 94.

A commissioners' court may not deprive itself of the power to determine the location for bridges to be built. Id.

6. Contracts in general.—The commissioners' court has charge of the business affairs of the county, and it alone has authority to make contracts binding upon the county. C. v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 509.

The commissioners' court alone has authority to make contracts binding upon the county. American Disinfecting Co. v. Freestone County (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 440.

A county is not bound to pay for disinfectants purchased and used by sheriff, where the court did not authorize or ratify the purchase or use. Id.

County is not liable on equitable principles for new typewriters and postage stamps used by county clerk, in conducting his office, where commissioner's court did not authorize or consent to supplies being acquired. Sparks v. Kaufman County (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 605.

County clerk has no authority to acquire new typewriters, by purchase or exchange, or expend money for postage stamps, although such supplies are necessary in conducting his office. Id.

9. Delegation of authority to construct court house.—A justice of the peace has jurisdiction of a suit to recover a deposit of $200 made to secure performance of a contract to exchange lands wherein no interest was asked for, and interest allowed dated only at the suit of Strickland & Duffe (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 422.

Justice court held without jurisdiction of action against railroad by shipper of horses for $197.50 damages and for attorney's fee of $20, under Rev. St. 1911, art. 2175, for delay in paying or satisfying claim. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 261.

30. Allowance of claims.—The lack of merit in a sheriff's claim against a county, and want of proper form in the account as it was presented to the commissioners' court, did not impair the jurisdiction and authority of the court to pass on the claim and allow or reject it as it deemed proper. Jeff Davis County v. Davis (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 291.

31. Conclusiveness of order allowing claim.—Where items of account allowed to sheriff by commissioners' court could not, under any circumstances, have been proper charges against county, want of authority on part of commissioners' court to allow them was jurisdictional, so that its action in so doing had no conclusive effect. Jeff Davis County v. Davis (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 241.

Under Rev. St. 1911, art. 2241, subd. 8, as amended by Acts 32d Leg. c. 116 (Vernon's S. A., Am., 1914, art. 2241, as amended, 1924, art. 2241), commissioners' court shall settle all accounts presented by sheriff for jail guard hire, and its action in rejecting or paying them was conclusive, and not to be reviewed except by district court under its appellate jurisdiction. Id.

In action by a county against sheriff and his sureties to recover amounts of county moneys paid sheriff, the orders of the commissioners' court allowing the sheriff's claims and ordering them paid were conclusive, though procured by false and fraudulent representations made by the sheriff to the court. Id.

32. Collateral attack.—Under this article, decisions of commissioners' court relating to settlement of accounts against county are conclusive, and not subject to collateral attack, if court has jurisdiction, but not otherwise. Polk v. Roebuck (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 513.

A judgment of the commissioners' court of a county allowing certain accounts of the sheriff could not be collaterally impeached merely because it was based on a mistake of fact and because the court acted without knowledge of the law. Jeff Davis County v. Davis (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 291.

34. Dismissal of holding sessions of court.—See Edwards v. McGuire (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 477; note under art. 2239.

Art. 2242. [1538] Power to levy taxes.

Limitation of levy.—In view of Const. art. 8, § 3, setting the limits of levies for various purposes, Vernon's S. A., Am. 1914, art. 1448, does not authorize the commissioners' court to transfer into the road and bridge fund such amounts as to make possible an expenditure for roads and bridges in excess of the constitutional limit. Williams v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 29.

Const. art. 8, § 3, authorizes counties to levy 50 cents on the $109 for roads and bridges, and 25 cents on the $100 for streets and other permanent improvements, does not authorize the levy of 55 cents on the $100 for roads not within the corporate limits of a city or town. Id.

Provision for payment of debts.—A contract for the drilling for a county of an artesian well on the courthouse square, executed when there was not sufficient revenue on hand or to be collected for the year with which to pay the price, creates a debt within Const. art. 11, §§ 5, 7, and, when no provision is made for the payment of the debt, the contract is void. 'Toole v. First Nat. Bank of Hemphill (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 423.

Where a fund for the payment of a county debt has been provided for by statute, no provision for the payment of such debt under Const. art. 11, § 5, need be made by county officers when contracting it. Boesens v. Potter County (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 182.

A debt incurred by a county for publishing its delinquent tax list held to be such a current expense of the municipality that the provisions of Const. art. 11, § 5, had no application. Id.

A county warrant for courthouse lots, payable out of the revenues for the second year thereafter, held a “debt,” for payment of which Const. art. 11, § 7, requires provision at time of creation. Rodgers Nat. Bank v. Marion County (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 284.

Within Const. art. 11, § 7, requiring provision, at time of creation of a county debt, for a tax for its payment, a warrant for its payment out of the general fund for the second year thereafter is not “provision.” Id.

Diversion of funds.—Under Const. art. 8, § 9, specifying limits of county levies for various purposes, the expenditure in any fund, whether directly or indirectly as by transferring funds raised for one purpose into another fund, creating an excess over the constitutional limitation on such fund, is unconstitutional. Williams v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 26.

Const. art. 8, § 9, authorizing a levy for roads and bridges and a levy for county purposes, does not permit the use of county purpose funds for roads and bridges of the county. Id.

Art. 2244.  [1540]  [1517]  Tax shall not be levied, except, etc. Laws directory.—Laws naming the time for the levy of taxes are merely directory, and legal taxes can be levied whenever the necessity arises. Cadena v. State (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 367.

Art. 2254.  [1547c]  May issue bonds for such bridge purposes. Cited, Coleman-Puloton Pasture Co. v. Aransas County (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 312.

Art. 2256. Stationery, etc., may contract for. Purchase of typewriters.—Authority to acquire new typewriters by purchase or exchange for county clerk's office is vested, if in any one, in commissioners' court under this article. Sparks v. Kaufman County (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 606.

Art. 2268a. Commissioners shall not make contracts in excess of $2000 without submission to competition; exception.—The Commissioner's Court of this State, shall make no contract calling for or requiring the expenditure or payment of Two Thousand ($2000) dollars or more out of any fund or funds of any county, or subdivision of any county, without first submitting such proposed contract to competitive bids; notice of the time and place, when and where such contract will be let, shall be published in some newspaper published in said county or subdivision once a week for two weeks prior to the time set for letting such contract; or if there is no newspaper published either in said county or said subdivision, then notice of the letting of said contract shall be given by causing a notice thereof to be posted at the Court House door of such county for fourteen days prior to the time of letting such contract; provided that in case of public calamity, where it becomes necessary to act at once to appropriate money to relieve the necessity of the citizens or to preserve the property of the county, this provision may be waived; provided, that all contracts made by or with said court calling for or requiring the expenditure of any amount of money less than Two Thousand ($2000) dollars and exceeding five hundred ($500) dollars, shall be let by competitive bids at a regular term of court, except in case or urgent necessity or present calamity; provided, that the provisions of this Act shall not apply to any work or service under direct supervision of the County Commissioners and paid for by the day. [Act March 30, 1917, ch. 141, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment.

Art. 2268b. Contracts made without compliance with act void; injunction; repeal.—A contract made by the Commissioner's Court without complying with the terms of this Act shall be void and shall not be enforceable in any court of this State, and the performance of same and the payment of any money thereunder may be enjoined by any citizen of such county or subdivision. This Act shall not be construed so as to repeal any part of Title 29, Chapter 2, Revised Statutes of 1911, and shall be cumulative to said title and chapter. [Id. § 2.]

CHAPTER THREE

TERMS AND MINUTES OF THE COURT

Article 2274. [1552] [1525] Regular terms of the court; more than one session each quarter not mandatory; adjournment.

Article 2275. [1553] [1526] Special terms of the court.

Article 2276. [1554] [1527] Minutes of the court.

In general.—Under this article a contract for the transportation of road materials need not be in writing, provided it was made by the commissioners' court acting as a municipal body, but it can be proved only by the written proceedings of the court. Marshall v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 89.

In mandamus proceedings against a county commissioner, ex officio road commissioner for his precinct, to compel him to open a second class road, a finding that the commissioners' court of the county made no order that the road be opened was justified, where no such order was shown by the minutes. Rankin v. Noel (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 883.

Sufficiency of minute entry.—An entry of an order of the commissioners' court, made on April 8th, approving a written contract which recited that it was the reduction to writing of an oral contract made on March 3d, is sufficient to establish the existence of the oral contract by the records of the court. Marshall v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 89.

Under this article, the fact that the tabulated returns of a stock law election were recorded in a book in which the result of all elections were recorded, and not in the minutes of the court, did not invalidate the election, since the minutes of the court need not necessarily be kept in one book. Bishop v. State, 167 S. W. 363, 74 Cr. R. 214.

Failure to enter order.—Though the clerk of the commissioners' court should fail to record the tabulated returns of a stock law election in the proper book, it would not invalidate the whole election, where every other essential was complied with, and there was no doubt that the election was carried. Bishop v. State, 167 S. W. 363, 74 Cr. R. 214.

Where, after an enlarged school district had been surveyed and the field notes filed, they were adopted and the order enlarging the district passed on by the commissioners' court, the proceedings were not void because the order was not formally entered on the court's minutes, as provided by this article. Where such order was inadvertently omitted from the court's minutes, the defect could be cured by a nunc pro tunc order. Woods v. Eberling (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 832.

Contracts made by municipalities are valid and binding only when entered upon the minutes, except that where order of commissioners' court of county has been passed, omission of clerk to record it will not render it void. Rankin v. Noel (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 883.

Varying effect of by parol.—In view of this article a contract between the county commissioners' court and a third person embraced in a written proposal and acceptance cannot be varied by parol. Douglass v. Myrick (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 422.
TITHE 41

COURTS—JUSTICES'

CHAPTER ONE
ELECTION AND QUALIFICATION OF JUSTICES

Article 2283. [1560] [1533] Justices, election, bond and term of office.

Liability on bond—Unofficial acts.—Where defendants paid their account to a justice of the peace, to whom a verified statement thereof was transferred for suit, they cannot recover against the justice's sureties, for defendants are discharged, if the payment was to the justice in his official capacity, and, if not, the sureties are not liable. Bray-Robinson-Curry v. Freeman & Sons (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 107.

In view of this article and under article 2322, a justice to whom a verified statement of an account was transferred for suit is not authorized to collect the account, and his collection is not an official act discharging the debtor. 1d.

CHAPTER TWO
POWERS AND JURISDICTION

Art. 2291. Jurisdiction in civil cases.

Art. 2293. To punish contempts.

Article 2291. [1568] [1539] Jurisdiction in civil cases.

1. In general.—A satisfaction of a lessor's action for the possession of the property brought in the district court, or a satisfaction of his action of forcible detainer brought in the justice court, would be a satisfaction as to both remedies. Hartzog v. Seeger Coal Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 186.

An action by a city against a railroad company for the penalty imposed by art. 1068, for failure to place its roadbed over a street in a proper condition for travel, is for a money judgment within the jurisdiction of a justice's court. City of San Marcos v. International & G. N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 822.

The jurisdiction of the justice court over the subjects committed to it by the Constitution is as general and exclusive as that of the district courts. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Gladish (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 863.

Under Const. art. 5, §§ 16, 19, and Rev. St. 1911, arts. 1767, 2291, 6624, 6625, on appeal to county court in action against receiver of railroad, plaintiff held entitled to bring in purchaser of the railroad's property and franchises. Freeman v. W. B. Walker & Sons (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 863.

2. Pleading jurisdictional facts.—Plaintiff's only pleading in a justice court being the citation, stating items of damages aggregating over $200; it was without jurisdiction. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1053.

3. Actions involving title to real property.—An action for $137 rent due from defendant, as plaintiff's tenant, is within the jurisdiction of the justice court; the rule estopping a tenant from disputing the title of his landlord rendering the question of title immaterial. Standley v. Currey (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 416.

3½. Forcible entry and detainer.—Jurisdiction of a forcible detainer suit is in the justice's court and not in the county court. Benavides v. Benavides (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 250.

5. Amount or value in controversy.—Where the petition stated a cause of action for the recovery of $200 delivered to defendant under an agreement that he should repay on demand, the jurisdiction of the justice court is not ousted by the general averment of $500 for defendant's refusal to pay. Willett v. Herrin (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 26.

Suit to cancel a note for $65 secured by a chattel mortgage on property valued at more than $200 with plea of a former judgment on the note for $75 and a reply seeking damages in the amount of such judgment held a suit for damages to the amount of the judgment, within the original jurisdiction of the justice's court. Edwards v. Dennigson (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 329.

That the amount in controversy was only $1.61 over $200, the jurisdictional amount of a justice court, cannot be considered in order to give it jurisdiction of the action.

Wilson v. Ware (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 768.

Therefore the suit was for conversion of a soda fountain, value of which was pleaded at $350, the justice court was without jurisdiction. Jeans v. Liquid Carbonic Co. (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 643, judgment modified on rehearing 180 S. W. 634.

The amount claimed in the pleading fixed the amount to be recovered as to determine the jurisdiction of the court. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Gladish (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 868.

Under arts. 2291 and 2391, amount claimed held to give jurisdiction to justice's court and a judgment, though judgments were in excess of $200. Freeman v. W. B. Walker & Sons (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1133, 456.

A justice's court had jurisdiction of suit for conversion of soda fountain alleged to be worth $50, where plaintiff alleged his damage to be only $198.50, where by reason of his indebtedness to the defendant, plaintiff's damage, if any, was less than $50. Jeans v. Liquid Carbonic Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 634, modifying judgment on rehearing 173 S. W. 643.

As a justice court has no jurisdiction of suits for the recovery of more than $200 under Const. art. 5, § 15, where a suit was for exactly $200, a judgment of the county court on appeal from justice court for the principal and a penalty and items exceeding that amount was invalid. North American Ins. Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 807.

If suit primarily is for an amount within the jurisdiction of a justice's court, the court retains jurisdiction, although pending suit damages accrue beyond that amount. Sulzberger & Sons Co. of America v. Hille (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 111, where citation, as contained in record, indicates that plaintiff's demand in a justic-e court action was less than $200, the jurisdiction of the justice court is established. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Derden (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 489.

6. Attachment and garnishment.—Under arts. 7773 and 7778, the constable's ap-prentice may attach personal property claimed at a value less than $200 is conclusively against the justice's jurisdiction. Fuller, Hanna & Co. v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 322.

7. Enforcement of liens on personal property.—In suits in a justice's court to foreclose a lien on personal property, the value of the property is the measure of the court's jurisdiction. City Nat. Bank v. Watson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 657.

Justice court is without jurisdiction of a proceeding to enforce a laborer's lien on property of a value exceeding $200, since value of property and amount, cont'red. Ferrell, Michaud & Abstract & Title Co. v. McCormac (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1081.

A judgment of a justice, showing on its face that the value of property on which a chattel mortgage was foreclosed exceeded his jurisdiction, was void. Parker v. Watt (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 718.

9. Interest, costs, and attorney's fees.—Where plaintiff agreed with defendant to represent him in a suit for a certain sum, the receipt for a part of which contained a memorandum of the contract, which receipt was accepted by defendant, held, that the contract determined the sum payable within art. 4977, so that interest was recoverable under the contract, and was not a part of the amount in controversy affecting the jurisdiction of Holmes (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 39.

Where a justice's court had jurisdiction of a cause when filed, jurisdiction was not defeated by the accrual of interest thereon thereafter, but it could not render judgment beyond the jurisdiction of its jurisdiction. Adair v. Stallings (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 146.

Where the principal and interest of the note sued on, when added to the 10 per cent. attorney's fee provided for in the note, amounted to $201.61, a justice's court did not have jurisdiction in the action. Wilson v. Ware (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 706.

Suit for conversion held to be without jurisdiction of the justice court, where damages and interest for conversion aggregated more than $200. Jeans v. Liquid Carbonic Co. (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 643, judgment modified on rehearing 180 S. W. 634.

In a suit wherein plaintiff filed no written pleadings and the citation showed that the suit was on an account for $188.65, held, that the justice had jurisdiction though his docket, after statement that the suit was for $188.65 with interest, contained the entry “attorney's fees —%.” Lucas v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 74.

11. Reduction of amount to give jurisdiction.—Where defendant set up a counterclaim alleging several amounts, the total of which exceeded $200, the counterclaim was beyond the jurisdiction of the justice, even though defendant prayed for a recovery of only $300. Willett v. Herrin (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 26.

Where the amount in controversy is in excess of the court's jurisdiction, a portion thereof cannot be remitted to bring the matter within the jurisdiction of the court. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Gladish (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 868.

When the amount which the plaintiff is entitled to recover appears from his allegations to be a fixed sum, he will not be permitted to enter a fictitious credit for the sole purpose of giving jurisdiction. Wells Fargo & Co. Express v. Crittenden (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 296.

13. Judgment.—Collateral attack.—Judgment against owners of land in justice court, in favor of one who had supplied materials to contractors working on such land, held conclusive upon failure of the owners to appeal therefrom, and not open to collateral attack, as by having its enforcement enjoined in suit to enforce mechanics' liens by the contractors against the owners and materialman. Waples Painter Co. v. Ross (Sup.) 176 S. W. 45; reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1027.

A justice's judgment foreclosing a laborer's lien cannot be collaterally attacked by parties or privies, the record not showing the value of the property on which the lien was sought, upon the ground that it exceeded the amount of the justice's jurisdiction. Ferrell-Michael Abstract & Title Co. v. McCormac (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1081.

20. — Presumption of jurisdiction.—Upon collateral attack on a judgment of a domestic court it will, where the action was within the court's general jurisdiction, be presumed that the necessary jurisdictional facts existed, though they do not appear of record. Ferrell-Michael Abstract & Title Co. v. McCormac (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1081.

Art. 2293. [1570] [1541] To punish for contempts.

CHAPTER THREE

TERMS OF THE COURT

Article 2299. [1576] [1547] Times and places of holding.
Necessity of designation.—Under Const. art. 5, § 19, and Rev. St. 1911, arts. 2241, 2299, it is the duty of county commissioners on the organization of a justice's court to designate the time and place for holding the same, and failure to do so is fatal to the justice's jurisdiction, though it is not necessary to fix the time and place on the incoming of each new incumbent. Edwards v. McGuire (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 417.

CHAPTER FOUR

DOCKETS, BOOKS AND PAPERS

Article 2302. [1579] [1550] Justice's docket.
Effect of docket entries.—In a suit wherein plaintiff filed no written pleadings and the citation showed that the suit was on an account for $188.68, held, that the justice had jurisdiction though his docket, after statement that the suit was for $188.68 with interest, contained the entry "attorney's fees —%." Lucas v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 74.

Failure to enter pleadings.—A failure to note the pleadings of the parties upon the docket cannot be taken advantage of to procure reversal of a judgment of the court on appeal from the justice court. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 749.

Judgment as evidence of nature of action.—In a suit to enjoin execution under a judgment of the county court, held that, under arts. 758, 759, 2902, 2927, 2936, judgment of justice court wherein suit was begun is not admissible as part of the record or pleading to show nature of the action. James McCord Co. v. Rea (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 649.

CHAPTER FIVE

VENUE

Art. 2308. Suits to be brought in the county of defendant's residence, except, etc. Art. 2309. Residence of single man.
2312. Where justice is disqualified.

Article 2308. [1585] [1556] Suits to be brought in the county of defendant's residence, except, etc.—Every suit in the court of a justice of the peace shall be commenced in the county and precinct in which the defendant, or one or more of the several defendants, resides, except in the following cases and such other cases as are or may be provided by law:

(1) Cases of forcible entry and detainer must be brought in the precinct where the premises, or a part thereof, are situated.

(2) Suits against executors, administrators, and guardians as such must be brought in the county in which such administration or guardianship is pending, and in the precinct in which the county seat is situated.
(3) Suits against counties must be brought in such county and in the precinct in which the county seat is situated.

In the following cases the suit may, at the plaintiff's option, be brought either in the county and precinct of the defendant's residence, or in that provided in each exception.

(4) Suits upon a contract in writing promising performance of any particular place, may be brought in the county and precinct in which such contract was to be performed, provided that in all suits to recover for labor actually performed, suit may be brought and maintained, where such labor is performed, whether the contract for same be oral or in writing.

(5) Suits for the recovery of rents may be brought in the county and precinct in which the rented premises, or a part thereof are situated.

(6) Suits for damages for torts may be brought in the county and precinct in which the injury was inflicted.

(7) Suits against transient persons may be brought in any county and precinct where such defendant is to be found.

(8) Suits against non-residents of the State, or persons whose residence is unknown, may be brought in the county and precinct where the plaintiff resides.

(9) Suits for the recovery of personal property may be brought in any county and precinct in which the property may be.

(10) Suits against private corporations, associations and joint stock companies may be brought in any county and precinct in which the cause of action or a part thereof arose, or in which such corporation, association or company has an agency or representative, or in which its principal office is situated.

(11) Suits against railroad and canal companies, or the owners of any line of mail stages or coaches, for any injury to person or property upon the road, canal or line of stages or coaches of the defendant, or upon any liability as a carrier, may be brought in any precinct through which the road, canal or line of stages or coaches may pass, or in any precinct where the route of such railroad, canal, stages or coaches may begin or terminate.

(12) Suits against fire, marine, or inland insurance companies may also be brought in any county and precinct in which any part of the insured property was situated; and suits against life and accident insurance companies or associations may also be brought in the county and precinct in which the persons insured, or any of them resided at the time of such death or injury.

(13) Suits against the owners of a steamboat or other vessel may be brought in any county or precinct where such steamboat or vessel may be found, or where the cause of action arose or the liability was contracted or accrued. In every suit commenced in a county or precicint in which the defendants or one of them may reside it shall be affirmatively shown in the citation or pleading (if any) that such suit comes within one of the exceptions named in this Act. [Act Aug. 17, 1876, p. 156, § 8; Act March 29, 1917, ch. 124, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The act amends art. 2308, ch. 5, title 41, Rev. Civ. St. 1911. The title of the act purports to amend said article "by adding thereto at the end of subdivision 4 thereof, 'Providing that in all suits to recover for labor performed or any kind of personal service rendered may, at the option of plaintiff, be brought and maintained where such labor is performed or personal service rendered,' and declaring an emergency." The last sentence of subdivision 13, beginning with the words "In every suit commenced," was added by the amendment, but the title of the act does not seem to be broad enough to cover it. The act took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917; date of adjournment.

Hurst (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 448.

In general.—Subsequent purchasers of property which had been mortgaged to secure a note payable in a county in which neither the maker nor the purchasers resided are entitled to be sued before a justice of the peace in the county of their residence, although the maker may be sued in the other county, under this article. Noble v. Broad (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 1.

In view of arts. 1903, 2308, articles 1831-1833 authorize the transfer, on defendant's plea of privilege, of a case pending in the justice court in one county, to such a court in another. Dalhart Ice & Electric Co. v. Tinsley (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 619.

In suit against partnership on account, giving of check or any fact tending to show an alleged partner's interest in the business are merely evidentiary facts, going to question of liability, and do not destroy alleged partner's right to be sued in county of his residence, and are not competent to meet his plea of privilege. Neal v. Barbee (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1056.

Contracts.—Under subd. 4, held that, where feed was sold and the sellers attached drafts to the bill of lading, suit before a justice for shortage might be maintained in the county where the drafts were paid and the buyer acquired possession. Harris v. Salvato (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 803.

Where a party elects to sue on a contract, rather than for his damages for fraud, trespass, or conversion in relation thereto, he waives the tort as a fact fixing the venue of his suit. Neal v. Barbee (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1059.

Fraud.—Under this article venue of action on itemized account for debt was properly changed to county of defendant's residence, though plaintiff charged fraud, conversion, and a swindle perpetrated upon him in another county by defendant; article 1830, subd. 7, 9, having no application. Neal v. Barbee (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1069.

Jurisdiction—Waiver of objections to.—A defendant, in an action before a justice of the peace, who filed no plea of privilege until after judgment against him, and he had appealed to the county court, waived his right to be tried in the county of his residence, Leventhal v. Hollamon (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 6.

Plea of privilege.—See Anderson, Clayton & Co. v. Terry (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 1; and notes under arts. 1903, 1859, 1909.

Art. 2309. [1586] [1557] Residence of a single man.

Art. 2312. [1589] [1560] Where justice is disqualified.
Not applicable to non-resident.—See Dalhart Ice & Electric Co. v. Tinsley (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 619.

CHAPTER SIX
SECURITY FOR COSTS

Article 2319. [1596] [1566] Rules of district courts, etc., apply as to security for costs.

Security for costs on defendant's appeal.—A defendant appealing from an adverse judgment of justice's court held not entitled to compel plaintiff to give a cost bond. Trinity County Lumber Co. v. Conner (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 911.

CHAPTER EIGHT
PROCESS AND SERVICE

Art. 2322. Citation to be issued, when.

Article 2322. [1599] [1569] Citation to be issued, when.

Authority to make collections generally.—In view of art. 2383, and under this article, a justice to whom a verified statement of an account was transferred for suit is not authorized to collect the account, and his collection is not an official act discharging the debtor. Bray-Robinson-Curry Woolen Mills v. W. F. Walker & Son (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 107.

Art. 2323. [1600] [1570] Citation shall contain what.
Requisites and sufficiency of citation.—Under arts. 2322, 2323, held, that it affirmatively appeared that interest on the judgment only was sought, and that amount in controversy was within jurisdiction of justice's court. Freeman v. W. B. Walker & Sons (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1133, 456.

In justice court it is sufficient if the citation states the nature of the demand, under this article. Vaughan Lumber Co. v. Bybee & Wood (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 827.
CHAPTER NINE
PLEADINGS

Art. 2326. [1603] [1573] Pleadings oral but entered on docket.

Pleadings in general.—Pleadings are as essential to make an issue in the justice court as in a court of record. Young Men's Christian Ass'n of Dallas v. Schow Bros. (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 931.

In justice court, and on appeal therefrom to the county court, may be oral. Wertheimer v. Hargreaves Printing Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 292.

Under this article, pleadings need not, even if written, be so particular or full as in other courts. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Huffstutler (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 465.

In a justice court action, if from all that is stated orally or written, the court can ascertain what rights the plaintiff asserts or what defense the defendant interposes, the pleading is sufficient. Vaughan Lumber Co. v. Bybee & Wood (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 327.

— Petition or complaint.—A petition held to state a cause of action on contract, and the claim, being for interest so nomine and not as damages, does not oust the jurisdiction. Willett v. Herrin (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 26.

Under arts. 2322, 2326, held, that it affirmatively appeared that interest on the judgment only was sought, and that amount in controversy was within jurisdiction of justice's court. Freeman v. W. H. Walker & Sons (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 133, 456.

An allegation by a plaintiff, suing on an insurance policy, that he had “duly performed all the conditions required of him by the terms of said policy,” was sufficient in justice’s court. National Live Stock Ins. Co. v. Gomillon (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 1030, rehearing denied 179 S. W. 671.

Failure of petition in justice's court for loss of profit on resale contract due to failure to transmit prepaid message to allege the special damage does not render it demurrable; allegations of general damage being sufficient. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Huffstutler (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 465.

Since under this article justice court pleadings are oral, it is sufficient if the plaintiff lodges a claim or demand with the justice. Vaughan Lumber Co. v. Bybee & Wood (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 827.

— Conclusiveness of written pleading.—When parties to action in justice court have filed written pleadings, issues are confined to those made by such pleadings, if no other pleadings are noted upon the docket. Sharp v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 599.

Docket entry of pleadings—Necessity and sufficiency.—Where the notation of the pleadings of an action begun in justice court made on the docket in accordance with this article did not show whether the amount in controversy would give jurisdiction on an appeal from the county court, the Court of Civil Appeals may, under article 1993, inquire into the facts to ascertain whether it has jurisdiction. A. J. Birdsong & Son v. Allen (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 46.

Art. 2327. [1604] [1574] Pleadings to be in writing and under oath.

See art. 1606, as amended, relating to controverting of plea of privilege, including pleas in justice court.

CHAPTER ELEVEN
APPEARANCE AND TRIAL

Art. 2330. [1607] [1577] Appearance day.

Setting aside judgment on appeal.—Under this article, a judgment by default at first term after publication, whether void or voidable, will ordinarily be set aside on appeal. Davenport v. Rutledge (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 988.
CHAPTER THIRTEEN

THE JUDGMENT

Article 2366. [1643] [1613] Judgment.

Void judgments.—A judgment of a justice, showing on its face that the value of property on which a chattel mortgage was foreclosed exceeded his jurisdiction, was void. Parker v. Watt (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 718.

Where a justice of the peace had jurisdiction of the parties and the subject-matter, his judgment is not void. Vaughan Lumber Co. v. Bybee & Wood (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 827.

Res judicata.—Where a justice's judgment without jurisdiction adjudged against a lienor's right to a lien, and thereafter was corrected so as to state that the court had no jurisdiction to foreclose the alleged lien, the judgment as corrected was not res judicata of such issue. Dickensheets v. Hudson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 1097.

Art. 2370. [1647] [1617] No judgment without citation, unless.

Hartley's Digs. art. 1719, and Laws 1848, ch. 127, cited, Mabee v. McDonald, 197 Tex. 139, 175 S. W. 676.

Art. 2373. [1650] [1620] Same rules as govern district courts, etc.

Amendment of judgment entry.—Under arts. 2015, 2016, 2373, a justice of the peace could amend the entry of a judgment so as to show the disposition that was made of the cause as to two parties not mentioned therein, though an appeal was pending in the county court. Thompson v. Field (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1115.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

NEW TRIALS, ETC.

Article 2374. [1651] [1621] Judgments by default, etc., may be set aside.

In general.—While a justice, under this article, has no authority to grant a new trial after ten days from the judgment, he can by article 2015, correct a mistake in the record of the judgment so as to make it speak the truth. Dickensheets v. Hudson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 1097.

A justice, under this article, has no authority to grant a new trial after ten days from the judgment. Id.

Vacating judgment.—Under this article, a default judgment cannot, after the expiration of ten days, be set aside by a justice of the peace. Irwin v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 986.

A justice having rightfully set aside a judgment by default, the case is properly before him for further proceedings. Barton v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 365.

Bill of review.—Defendant, against whom a justice of the peace judgment had been rendered, held not to have exercised due diligence to sue out certiorari, and therefore not to be entitled to a bill of review. Ferguson v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 782.

Art. 2375. [1652] [1622] New trials may be granted.

Authority to set aside judgment.—A justice's judgment being void, he can set it aside at any time; the statutes prescribing the conditions on which a justice may set aside a judgment and grant a new trial having no application. Barton v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 365.

Trial and judgment after setting aside former judgment.—A justice could try the cause, and render judgment, at the term at which it properly declared a judgment rendered at the preceding term void, because sufficient time after the service had not elapsed. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wilshire (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 43.

Art. 2378. [1655] [1625] Where motion granted, cause continued, unless, etc.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN
EXECUTION

Article 2381. [1658] [1628] Execution.
Validity as affected by designation of nature of writ.—That an execution on a justice's judgment to enforce a lien on attached land was called an order of sale did not affect its validity as an execution. Rule v. Richards (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 386.

Art. 2384. [1661] [1531] Execution to issue after ten days.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN APPEAL

Article 2391. [1668] [1638] Appeal may be taken.
Cited, Harper v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 311; see, also, art. 1767 and notes.

In general.—In determining the jurisdiction of the county court upon an appeal from the justice's court, averments in plaintiff's supplemental petition, filed in answer to defendant's plea to the jurisdiction first filed in the county court, cannot be considered. Standley v. Currey (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 416.

Injunction does not lie to restrain the enforcement of a void judgment of a justice, where the right of appeal has not expired. Robinson v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 577.

Under arts. 2391 and 2393, the county court has no authority on appeal from a justice's court in absence of appeal bond. City Nat. Bank v. Watson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 657.

On appeal to county court a plaintiff, by amending his pleadings, may enlarge the cause of action asserted in justice court, but cannot set up a new cause of action. Dowell v. Rettig (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 281.

A judgment of county court upon the question of its jurisdiction of an appeal from justice court, although erroneous, is conclusive of that issue until set aside in a proper proceeding. Farmer v. Witcher (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 293.

Final judgments.—When a judgment nunc pro tunc is entered by a justice of the peace, it becomes the final judgment of the court, and an appeal may be taken there-from, and a revival of the entire proceedings had. Southwestern Land Corporation v. Neese (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1090.

Where a judgment of a justice's court did not dispose of a plea in reconvention, the county court had no jurisdiction on appeal. Anderson, Evans & Evans v. Smith (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 765.

A judgment in a justice court in favor of plaintiff, though it fails to expressly dispose of defendant's cross-action, or plea in reconvention, is yet a final judgment which will support an appeal. Parker v. Emerson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 146.

A judgment in a justice court in favor of plaintiff, though it failed to expressly dispose of the defendant's cross-action or plea in reconvention, held a "final judgment," which will support an appeal. First Nat. Bank v. Herrell (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 797.

Where plaintiff in justice court claimed only $152, an amendment on appeal claiming $350 additional should have been stricken. McKinely v. Beatty (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 18.

Where, in a suit by the assignee of wages, the debtor and the employer filed a counterclaim for $80 usurious interest alleged to have been paid by the debtor to plaintiff, the counterclaim gave the county court jurisdiction on appeal, and its judgment for the employer was not subject to injunction, however erroneous. Cotton v. Rhode, 106 Tex. 250, 163 S. W. 2.

The county court has jurisdiction of an appeal from a justice's judgment for less than $20, where the matter in controversy exceeds that amount. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Fricker & Boyd (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 6 (following Brazoria County v. Calhoun, 61 Tex. 223).

Where the set-off pleaded in a cross-action in justice's court was not within the jurisdiction of that court, the county court could not acquire jurisdiction thereof on appeal. Dromgoole Bros. v. L. A. Epstein & Co. (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1096.

Where, on appeal to the county court, the demand of plaintiff within the justice's Jurisdiction is by amendment increased beyond that amount, the county court is without jurisdiction. Vicars v. Tharp (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 949.

Under arts. 2391, 2392, amount claimed held to give jurisdiction to justice's court and county court on appeal, though judgments were in excess of $200. Freeman v. W. B. Walker & Sons (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1153; Id., 456.

Plaintiff filing a petition in county court on appeal from a justice's court may not raise therein, as a ground, authorizing recovery of more than $200. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Berry & Slauter (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 1187.

The county court held not ousted to jurisdiction render judgment for less than $200 because after appeal from a justice the petition was amended to ask more because of accrual of interest pending the action. Klabunde v. Vogt Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 715.

As a county court has no jurisdiction of suits for the recovery of more than $200 under Const. art. 6, § 19, where a suit was for exactly $200, a judgment of the county court on appeal from justice court for the principal and a penalty and items exceeding that amount was invalid. North American Ins. Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 307.

Where interest from the time of accrual is claimed as damages, to ascertain whether the amount sued for does not exceed the jurisdiction of the trial court there must be added to the amount sued for the interest calculated to the time of filing the pleading. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 593.

Where a case was removed from justice court to county court for trial de novo, and there the petition was amended and recovery exceeding the justice's jurisdiction was asked, the county court was without jurisdiction to render a judgment for the excess. Id.

The justice court being without jurisdiction, because of the aggregate amount of damages there pleaded as sustained exceeding $200, the county court was without jurisdiction on appeal, though an amendment was there filed reducing the claim. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. O. Orman (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 1063.

Right of appeal.—Under this article, the plaintiff, who had requested a justice of the peace to render judgment for the defendant, may appeal from that judgment to the county court. Cage v. King (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 174.

Art. 2392. [1669] Taken to district court, when.

Effect of statute increasing jurisdiction of county courts pending appeal.—Where Acts 1911, 41st Leg., 2nd sess., giving county courts the civil jurisdiction of ordinary county courts, and repealing the act of Twenty-Third Legislature, took effect while an appeal from justice court was pending in district court, the jurisdiction of the district court terminated. Studebaker Harness Co. v. Gerlach Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 481.

Art. 2393. [1670] [1639] Bond for appeal; appeal perfected.—The party appealing, his agent or attorney, shall, within ten days from the date of the judgment, file with the justice a bond, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the justice, in double the amount of the judgment, payable to the appellee, conditioned that appellant shall prosecute his appeal to effect, and shall pay off and satisfy the judgment which may be rendered against him on appeal. When such bond has been filed with the justice, the appeal shall be held to be thereby perfected and all parties to said suit or to any suit so appealed shall make their appearance at the next term of court to which said case has been appealed without further notice. [Acts 1883, p. 91; Act March 23, 1915, ch. 113, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The act took effect 90 days after March 23, 1915, the date of adjournment. The act amends “article 2393, chapter 17, of the Acts of 1911” so as to read as above.

Bond on appeal.—Necessity.—Where plaintiffs' cause of action was dismissed and the only judgment against them was for costs, no bond is required to perfect an appeal to the county court; and hence a defect in the bond given was not ground for dismissal. Willett v. Herrin (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 26.

Under arts. 2391 and 2393, the county court has no authority on appeal from a justice's court in absence of appeal bond. City Nat. Bank v. Watson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 657.

Under this article, plaintiff, who was defeated in justice court and against whom judgment was rendered on defendant's counterclaim, must file the required bond in order to perfect his appeal to the county court. Dupree v. Massey (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 698.

Where the appeal bond did not appear to have been filed or approved as provided under this article, held, that the county court has no jurisdiction over an appeal from justice court. Midland Mercantile Co. v. Midland Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 270.

If an appellant did not file an appeal bond or affidavit in lieu thereof as required by

Where county court did not acquire jurisdiction of an appeal from justice court because an appeal bond was not filed, property distrained in that suit should have been delivered to owner thereof, and its detention by constable was unlawful. Id.

An appeal in proper form and filing.—Under this article, an appeal is perfected when the bond is presented to the justice, and he promises to approve and file it, and his mere failure to endorse approval and file it does not affect its validity. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Burris (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 381.

Effect of invalidity of judgment.—Where proceedings in a justice's court were a nullity because in excess of jurisdiction, and afforded no ground for the county court's appellate jurisdiction, the filing of an appeal bond in the justice court did not avoid its invalidity.

Liability on bond.—Where defendant, against whom judgment was recovered in justice court, appealed, and was then adjudicated a bankrupt and discharged, so that on appeal judgment went for him, sureties on his appeal bond were also protected. Cisco Oil Mill v. Shepherd (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 18.

Decisions reviewable.—Under arts. 747, 2398, order of justice's court more than two years after judgment refusing to enter nunc pro tunc order setting aside the judgment, and granting new trial, held not appealable. Southwestern Land Corporation v. Neese (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1090.

Art. 2395. [1672] [1639b] When appeal perfected on affidavit.

An appeal from a justice to the county court abrogates the judgment of the justice's court and puts the case in the county court for trial de novo. Harper v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 211.

Although, when an appeal from a justice to county court has been perfected, judgment of justice court is superseded, and is thereafter unenforceable, if case be one of which appellate court cannot take cognizance or if appeal was not legally perfected, judgment of the justice remains undisturbed. Farmer v. Witcher (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 293.

Where county court failed to acquire jurisdiction of an appeal from justice court, and constable turned over distrained property to plaintiff and appellant in suit, both constable and such plaintiff were guilty of a conversion and liable to owner of property for damages. Dupree v. Massey (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 790.

Where justice court did not acquire jurisdiction of an appeal from justice court, failure of constable to return property distrained in suit to owner was not excused by an order of county court directing sale of property as perishable, since, as county court acquired no jurisdiction in the cause, its acts ordering sale was void. Id.

Art. 2396. [1673] [1640] Duty of justice in case of appeal.

Transcript—Amendment.—A justice of the peace, in amending the entry of a judgment pending an appeal to show the way the cause was actually disposed of, had the right to certify an amended transcript to the county court, which properly refused to strike it out, or dismiss the appeal, because no final judgment was shown. Thompson v. Field (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1115.

Necessity of introducing in evidence.—Transcript of proceedings in justice court on file with clerk of the county court held to give that court appellate jurisdiction without introducing transcript in evidence. Grisham v. Connell Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1197.

Compelling transmission or perfecting of record.—A suit in the county court for mandamus to compel a justice of the peace allowing judgment for $79.65 to grant an appeal and to make a transcript of the case to the county court, if treated as a suit invoking the original jurisdiction of the county court, is not within its jurisdiction. Knight v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 448.

Where transcript of justice's court appeal to county court showed what issues were joined and concluded on the docket, court entries on properly refused certiorari. Trinity County Lumber Co. v. Conner (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 911.

Art. 2397. [1674] [1641] Transcript, etc., to be transmitted to county court.

Dismissal.—Under arts. 795, 2396, 2387, held, that motion to dismiss writ of certiorari for defect in bond was properly filed in the county court term succeeding that in which the justice had failed to file his transcript. Beck v. Arkansas Motor Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 942.

DECISIONS RELATING TO APPEAL IN GENERAL

2. Pleadings in justice's court—Evidence of.—An amended petition in justice's court not praying for a foreclosure of a chattel mortgage nor withdrawing the original prayer...
Art. 2397. COURTS—JUSTICES

for foreclosure held not to show an abandonment by plaintiff of his claim to foreclosure, so as to confer jurisdiction on the court. City Nat. Bank v. Watson (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 657.

4. Pleadings on appeal.—The strict rules of pleading in force in the district court are not applicable to an appeal from a justice to the county court. McSpadden v. Eads (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 634.

Plaintiff's pleading in an action, originating in justice court, for injury to automobile, held to justify evidence of the item of damage for rent of a team during repair. Wells Fargo & Co. Express v. Keeler (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 926.

Pleadings in the justice court, and on appeal therefrom to the county court, may be oral. Wertheimer v. Hargreaves Printing Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 322.

Where, in an action originating in a justice court, the pleadings were oral, the parties could orally replead in the county court, and the pleadings need not be as full as if the case originated in the county court. Nacogdoches Compress Co. v. Hayter (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 506.

While technical rules of pleading do not apply on appeals from a justice court, yet where plaintiff states the issues, he is confined to his pleadings. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 556.

5. Amendments in general.—Either party to an appeal from a justice to the county court may plead new matter not presented to the justice, so long as a new cause of action is not set up by the amended pleading. McSpadden v. Eads (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 634.

A plaintiff suing in justice's court may on appeal to the county court amend his petition so as to conform to the evidence at the trial. Barnard & Moran v. Williams (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 919.

Where, on appeal from a judgment of the justice of the peace, the defendant claimed that the pleadings were insufficient, and plaintiff was allowed to amend merely to make explicit the ground of recovery, there was no prejudice to the defendant by reason of irregularities in pleading in the justice court. Vaughan Lumber Co. v. Bybee & Wood (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 827.

6. New cause of action.—See art. 759 and notes.

An amendment of the petition on appeal from a justice to the county court, which merely amplifies the statement of the cause of action alleged, is not objectionable as pleading a new cause of action, McSpadden v. Eads (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 634.

It merely appearing that there was an amendment of the petition, in the district court on appeal from a justice, to meet a special exception, of the particular train killing plaintiff's cow, and the time of day of the killing not being alleged, it cannot be said the amendment was equivalent to bringing a new action, on the theory of the original petition stating no cause of action. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Crutchfield (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 551.

Where the amended account, filed in the county court on appeal from a justice's judgment, only amplified and enlarged the grounds of negligence originally alleged as a ground for recovery, and the county court determined that all the matters presented by the amended account had been orally pleaded in justice's court, refusal to strike out the amended account was proper. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Cook (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 158.

On appeal from a judgment of a justice for services rendered at an agreed compensation, an amendment alleging employment without an agreed compensation sets up a new cause of action, contrary to art. 759. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ryan (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 858.

That an amendment of pleadings on appeal from a justice, which changed the cause of action, does not authorize the Court of Appeals to disregard the statutory rule against such amendment. Id.

On appeal to county court a plaintiff, by amending his pleadings, may enlarge the cause of action asserted in justice court, but cannot set up a new cause of action. Dorrell v. Retting (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 291.

On appeal by plaintiff from justice court, an amendment to his complaint alleging false and malicious defense in justice court entitling him to additional damages is demurrable as the assertion of a new cause of action. Id.

Where the original cause of action was on contract of a carrier to transport cats between two points, on appeal to the county court after judgment of the justice court for plaintiffs, an amended petition showing a second contract for shipment between the original destination and a third point set up a new cause. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 433.

7. Names of parties.—A railroad company appealing to the county court from an adverse judgment may amend its pleading and allege that at the time of injuries its railroad was operated by a receiver. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Ballou (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 237.

9. New defenses.—On appeal to the county court held, that plaintiffs could plead as defense to cross-action for breach of warranty, settlement of the controversy as to breach of warranty by arbitration, though such defense was not presented in the justice court. Holcomb v. Blankenship (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 918.

12. Demurrers or exceptions on appeal.—A petition, in an action in justice's court, which states cause of action on a written contract and in addition thereto, a cause of action based on a subsequent oral contract, is not subject to exceptions in the county court on appeal. Barnard & Moran v. Williams (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 910.

13. Evidence.—On the trial of a case in a county court on appeal from a justice of the peace, the fact that judgment was rendered by the justice for plaintiff was not admissible. Kelley v. Pain (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 599.

In an action for the conversion of a soda fountain, the reasonable value of which was alleged to be $360, evidence of its actual or intrinsic value was admissible on appeal from a justice court. Jeans v. Liquid Carbonic Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 634, modifying judgment on rehearing 173 S. W. 648.

15. Dismissal on appeal.—Where an appeal bond did not vacate a void justice's judgment, and the county court had no appellate jurisdiction, its order would be construed merely as a dismissal or a striking from the docket of the appeal as such. Parker v. Watt (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 718.

19. Dismissal of appeal—Effect of dismissal.—Where the county court dismissed an appeal from a justice because no final judgment had been rendered, the dismissal left the case in the justice's court, and he could proceed to trial thereof. Harper v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 311.

23. Harmless or immaterial error.—Where defendant's counterclaim was beyond the jurisdiction, defendant cannot complain that the county court improperly allowed plaintiffs to interpose a defense thereto not pleaded in the justice court. Willett v. Herrin (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 26.

26. Determination of cause on appeal.—Where judgment is rendered on appeal from the justice of the peace against the appellant, it may be also rendered against the sureties on the appeal bond. Trinity & H. V. Ry. Co. v. Voss (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 663.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Article 2399. [1676] [1643] Duty of justice on service of writ of certiorari.

Motion to dismiss.—Under arts. 754, 2399, 2397, held, that motion to dismiss writ of certiorari for defect in bond was properly filed in the county court term succeeding that in which the justice had failed to file his transcript. Beck v. Arkansas Motor Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 942.

DEPOSITORIES

STATE DEPOSITORIES

Article 2425. Deposit of bonds to secure state deposits; value; surety bond in lieu of deposit of securities; personal sureties; suit on bond; liquidated damages.—The State Treasurer shall also require the deposit as collateral security for such deposit required, United States, state, county, independent school district, common school district, and road improvement district, or municipal bonds, in an amount equal to the sum deposited with and received by each such bank or banking institution, which depository shall not be required, however, to receive on deposits more than fifty thousand dollars at any one time; but before any State, county, independent school district, common school district, road improvement district, or municipal bonds shall be received as collateral security in such cases, they must be registered with the Comptroller and approved by the Attorney General of the State of Texas, under the same rules and regulations as are now required for bonds in which the permanent school funds of the State are to be invested; provided, that the State Treasurer may accept such State, county, independent school district, common school district, road improvement district, or municipal bonds at their reasonable market value, said market value to be determined by the State Treasurer; and, provided, further, that the State Treasurer shall not accept any such bonds in which the permanent school fund of the State cannot be invested under existing laws.

Provided, however, that deposits in State depositories may be secured by bond executed by the depository bank in favor of the State Treasurer and his successors in office, for the use and benefit of the State of Texas, conditioned that the depository will pay over all funds due, or to become due, the State under the depository law, and in all respects comply with said law; such bond to be in form drawn by the Attorney General, and shall be due and performable in Travis County, Texas; it shall be in the usual form of such instruments and embrace within its terms the obligation imposed by law upon State depositories and the law governing State depositories, whether expressed in said bond or not, shall nevertheless become and be considered a part of the obligation.

Said bond shall be signed as surety by not less than one surety company, chartered under the laws of Texas, or having a permit to transact business under the laws of Texas. By “surety company” is meant a corporation having authority to become a surety on bonds of this character. Any one surety company shall not become a surety on the bond or bonds of any one depository for any bond or bonds aggregating a larger amount than ten per cent. of the pair-up capital and surplus of such surety company.

If any such bond or bonds be in proper form, in a company shown to be authorized to transact such business in Texas, either as a domestic or foreign company, and shown to be solvent, then the State Treasurer may approve the same and designate the applicant giving the same as a State depository.
It is further provided, however, that the aforesaid bond may be made by not less than three personal sureties, instead of a surety company or companies; and where such bond is made by personal sureties they shall own unencumbered real estate, other than city property, in the county in which such proposed depository is located of not less than twice the value of the amount of the bond. If a bond is tendered with such personal sureties there shall be tendered therewith full and sufficient proof that such personal sureties have the kind, character, quantity and value of real estate stated aforesaid.

In the event it should be necessary to bring suit on any bond given under this Act, the State shall recover in each and every instance, in addition to the amount found to be due thereon, an additional amount of ten per cent. thereof, as liquidated damages. [Acts 1905, p. 388, § 6; Acts 1911, ch. 3, § 1; Acts 1911, 1st C. S. ch. 15, § 1; Acts 1913, p. 330, § 1; Act March 1, 1915, ch. 30, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1915, ch. 30, § 1, amends sec. 1 of ch. 15, general laws, first called session, 32nd Leg., approved Aug. 31, 1911, amending sec. 6, ch. 3, general laws, regular session, 32nd Leg., approved Feb. 2, 1911. Sec. 6 of ch. 3, above referred to, amended sec. 6 of ch. 164, general laws, regular session, 29th Leg., approved May 1, 1905, which latter section was carried into the revision of 1911 as art. 2444. Art. 2445 of the Revised Civ. St. was amended by Acts 1913, p. 330, § 1.

COUNTY DEPOSITORIES

Art. 2440. Commissioners' court to receive proposals from banks; advertisement.—The commissioners' court of each county in this State is authorized and required at the February term thereof, next following each general election to receive proposals from any banking corporation, association, or individual banker in such county that may desire to be selected as the depository of the funds of such county. Notice that such bids will be received shall be published by and over the name of the county judge, once each week for at least twenty days before commencement of such terms, in some newspaper published in said county; and if no newspaper be published therein, then in any newspaper published in the nearest county; and, in addition thereto, notice shall be published by posting same at the courthouse door of said county. [Acts 1905, p. 392; Acts 1907, p. 208, § 20; Act Feb. 12, 1917, ch. 11, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The act amends arts. 2440 to 2445, inclusive, and adds art. 2443a. Became a law Feb. 12, 1917.

Art. 2441. Bids when and how presented; to state what; deposit; failure to comply with bid.—Any banking corporation, association or individual banker in such county desiring to bid, shall deliver to the county judge, on or before the first day of the term of the commissioners' court at which the selection of a depository is to be made, a sealed proposal, stating the rate of interest that said banking corporation, association, or individual banker and deposit offers to pay on the funds of the county for the term between the date of such bid and the next regular time for the selection of a depository. Said bid shall be accompanied by a certiified check for not less than one-half of one per cent. of the county revenue of the preceding year as a guarantee of the good faith on the part of the bidder, and that, if his bid should be accepted, he will enter into the bond hereinafter provided; and upon the failure of the banking corporation, association or individual banker in such county that may be selected as such depository, to give the bond required by law, the amount of such certified check shall go to the county as liquidated damages, and the county judge shall readvertise for bids. [Acts 1905, p. 392, § 21; Act Feb. 12, 1917, ch. 4, § 1.]

See note under art. 2440.

Art. 2442. Bids to be opened when; award of contract; interest how computed and paid; disposition of proceeds; return of deposits.—It shall be the duty of the commissioners' court at 10 o'clock a. m., on the first day of each term, at which, by Article 2440, bids are required to be received, to publicly open such bids and cause each bid to be entered upon the minutes of the court, and to select as the depository of all the funds of the county the banking corporation, association or individual banker offering to pay the largest rate of interest per annum for said funds; provided, the commissioners' court may reject any and all bids. The interest upon such county funds shall be computed upon the daily balances to the credit of such county with such depository, and shall be payable to the county treasurer monthly, and shall be placed to the credit of the county fund or to such funds as the commissioners' court may direct. When selection of a depository has been made, the checks of bidders whose bids have been rejected shall be immediately returned. The check of the bidder whose bid is accepted shall be returned when his bond is filed and approved by the commissioners' court, and not until such bond is filed and approved. [Acts 1905, p. 392, § 22; Act Feb. 12, 1917, ch. 11, § 1.]

See note under art. 2440.

Art. 2443. Bond of depository; surety company; substitute security; venue of suits.—Within five days after the selection of such depository, it shall be the duty of the banking corporation, association or individual banker so selected to execute a bond or bonds, payable to the county judge and his successors in office, to be approved by the commissioners' court of said county, and filed in the office of the county clerk of said county, with not less than five solvent sureties, who shall own unincumbered real estate in this State not exempt from execution under the laws of this State of as great value as the amount of said bond (or of as great value as the amount of all of said bonds when more than one bond); and said bond or bonds shall in no event be for less than the total amount of revenue of such county for the next preceding year for which the same are made; provided, that nothing herein shall prevent the making of such bond or bonds by a surety company or companies, as provided by law, and payable as herein provided. And provided further, that the commissioners' court may accept in lieu of such real estate or surety company security, bonds of the United States, or of the State of Texas, or of any county, city, town or independent school district in the State, which shall be deposited as the commissioners' court may direct, the penalty of said bond or bonds not to be less than the total amount of the annual revenue of the county for the years for which said bond or bonds are given, and shall be conditioned for the faithful performance of all the duties and obligations devolving by law upon such depository, and for the payment upon presentation of all checks drawn upon said depository by the county treasurer of the county and that said county funds shall be faithfully kept by said depository and accounted for according to law. Any suits arising thereon shall be tried in the county for which such depository is selected. [Acts 1905, p. 393; Acts 1909, p. 165, § 23; Act Feb. 12, 1917, ch. 11, § 1.]

See note under art. 2440.
Art. 2443a. Additional or special bond; failure to furnish; substitution of bonds.—Whenever, after the creation of a county depository as this chapter provided, there shall accrue to the county or any subdivision thereof, any funds or moneys from the sale of bonds or otherwise, the county commissioners' court of such county at its first meeting after such special funds shall have come into the treasury, or depository of such county, or so soon thereafter as may be practicable, may make written demand upon the duly accredited and established depository of the county for a special and additional bond as such depository in a sum equal to the whole amount of such special fund, to be kept in force so long as such fund remains in such depository, provided that such extra or special bond may be canceled and a new bond contemporaneously substituted therefor as such special fund may have been reduced, provided that such special bond shall at all times be sufficient in amount to cover such special fund then on hand, and provided that upon the failure of such depository to furnish such additional bond within thirty days from the date of such demand, the county commissioners' court may cause such special funds to be withdrawn upon the drafts of the county treasurer from such depository, and cause the same to be deposited in some solvent national bank or state bank whose combined capital stock and surplus is in excess of such special fund, and to leave the same or so much thereof as may not have been expended with such National bank or State bank of last deposit, until such time that such county depository may have filed with the county commissioners' court the required additional bond, when such special fund or so much thereof as shall not have been expended shall be forthwith returned to and deposited with such county depository; provided that the requiring of such additional or special bond shall be optional with such county commissioners' court; provided that any depository bond made under the provisions of this Act may be substituted for any prior existing depository bond at the time in operation or existence wherever the same may be agreeably done by and between such depository and the securities on such other existing depository bond. [Act Feb. 12, 1917, ch. 11, § 2.]

Explanatory.—The act provides "that there be added to article 2443 article 2443a," to read as above.

Art. 2444. Order designating depository; period; transfer of funds; penalty; deposits by tax collectors; interest; liability on bond of depository; effect of deposit of funds; what are "county funds."—As soon as said bond be given and approved by the commissioners' court, and the State Comptroller of Public Accounts, an order shall be made and entered upon the minutes of said court designating such banking corporation, association, or individual banker, as a depository of the funds of said county until sixty days after the time fixed for the next selection of a depository; and, thereupon, it shall be the duty of the county treasurer of said county, immediately upon the making of such order, to transfer to said depository all the funds belonging to said county, as well as all funds belonging to any district or other municipal subdivision thereof not belonging to any depository, and immediately upon the receipt of any money thereafter, to deposit the same with said depository to the credit of said county, district and municipalities; and, for each and every failure to make such deposit, the county treasurer shall be liable to said depository for ten per cent, upon the amount not so deposited, to be recovered by civil action against such treasurer and the sureties on his official bond in any court of competent jurisdiction in the county. And thereupon, it shall also be the duty of the tax collector of such county to deposit all taxes collected by him, or under his authority, for the State and such county and its various districts and other municipal subdivisions, in such depository or depositories, as soon as collected, pending the preparation of his report of such collections and settlement thereon, which shall bear interest on daily balances at the same rate as such depository or depositories have undertaken to pay for the use of county funds, and the interest accruing thereon shall be apportioned by the tax collector to the various funds earning the same. The bond of such county depository or depositories shall stand as security for all such funds. If the tax collector of such county shall fail or refuse to deposit tax money collected as herein required, he shall be liable to such depository or depositories for ten per cent upon the amount not so deposited and shall in addition be liable to the State and county and its various districts and other municipal subdivisions for all sums which would have been earned had this provision been complied with, which interest may be recovered in a suit by the State.

Upon such funds being deposited as herein required the tax collector and sureties on his bonds shall thereafter be relieved of responsibility for its safe-keeping. All moneys subject to the control of the county treasurer or payable on his order belonging to districts or other municipal subdivisions, selecting no depository are hereby declared to be “county funds” within the meaning of this chapter and shall be deposited in accordance with its requirements and shall be considered in fixing the amount of the bond of such depository. [Acts 1905, p. 393, § 24; Act Feb. 12, 1917, ch. 11, § 3.]

Art. 2445. If no bids, etc., funds deposited, where; interest; bond.
—If for any reason there shall be submitted no proposals by any banking corporation, association or individual banker to act as county depository, or in case no bid for the entire amount of the county funds shall be made, or in case all proposals made shall be declined, then in any such case the commissioners’ court shall have the power, and it shall be their duty, to deposit the funds of the county with any one or more banking corporation, association or individual banker, in the county or in adjoining counties, in such sums and amounts and for such periods of time as may be deemed advisable by the court, and at the such rate of interest, not less than one and one-half per cent per annum, as may be agreed upon by the commissioners’ court and the banker or banking concern receiving the deposit, interest to be computed upon daily balances due the county treasurer; and any banker or banking concern receiving deposits under this article shall execute a bond in the manner and form provided for depositories of all the funds of the county, with all the conditions provided for same, the penalty of said bonds to be not less than the total amount of county funds to be deposited with such banker or banking concern. [Acts 1905, p. 393, § 25; Act Feb. 12, 1917, ch. 11, § 3.]

Descent and Distribution

Art. 2461. Where intestate leaves no husband or wife.

Art. 2462. Where intestate leaves husband or wife.

Art. 2467. Advancement brought into hotchpotch.

Article 2461. [1688] [1645] Where intestate leaves no husband or wife.

Inheritable estate.—An "equity of redemption" is an interest in the land which will descend to the heir. Hawkins v. Stiles (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1911.

Art. 2462. [1689] [1646] Where intestate leaves husband or wife.

Art. 2467. [1694] [1651] Advancements brought into hotchpotch.

Advancement.—Deed from father and mother to daughter, reciting that land conveyed was part of the daughter's interest as an heir, held an advancement in spite of formal recital of consideration. Lindley v. Lindley (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 732.

Distribution before death held an advancement precluding plaintiff, heir of her mother, from sharing in other property belonging to the mother. Teal v. Lakey (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 753.

In a deed conveying the fee simple title to an heir of grantor, the recital of consideration of cash paid, and also that grantee's stepdaughter should receive the same interest in land as his own children, was not contractual, and for that reason conclusive against another heir of grantor of the fact that the conveyance was not an advancement within this article. Delano v. Delano (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 772.

Art. 2468. [1695] [1652] Per capita and per stirpes.

Per capita.—A devise to wife of life estate with power of disposition and division of remainder, "if any," into moieties for his "heirs" and her "heirs," referred to as "heirs" living at wife's death, being a contingent remainder, and distribution under this article, to be per capita. Craig v. McFadden (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 203.

Art. 2469. [1696] [1653] Rule as to community estate.

Rights of children or heirs.—In view of arts. 1, 2, 5, relating to the adoption of children and giving the adopted child all the rights and privileges in law and equity of a legal heir, etc., held that the children of an adopted child may take the same as natural children under this article, providing that upon the death of either spouse intestate, the community property shall go one-half to the survivor and one-half to surviving children or their descendants. Harle v. Harle (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 674.

Under arts. 2469, 2473, an illegitimate child of a married woman, her only surviving issue, inherits his mother's share of community property. Lee v. Frater (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 325.

Rights of survivor.—As to community property, the title to which is cast on survivor by this article, the surviving widow is not an "heir" within article 3690, relating to testimony as to transactions with persons since deceased, and hence in an action against the widow to declare a trust in favor of plaintiffs as against an absolute deed to the deceased husband, both parties may testify. Briggs v. McBride (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1123.

Art. 2471. [1698] [1655] Jus accrescendi abolished.

Art. 2473. [1700] [1657] Bastards inherit from mother.

Inheritance from mother.—Under arts. 2469, 2473, an illegitimate child of a married woman, her only surviving issue, inherits his mother's share of community property. Lee v. Frater (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 325.

Inheritance as between bastard children of same mother.—Under this article children of the same mother inherit from each other without regard to whether their parents were legally married. Perkins v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 915; Yates v. Craddock (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 276.
TITLE 47
DRAINAGE

CHAPTER ONE
DRAINAGE BY COUNTIES, SEPARATELY, OR CO-OPERATING, ASSESSMENTS

Article 2477. Commissioners' court authorized to construct drains, etc.

Constitutionality.—As Const. art. 3, § 52, merely secures to the people of a drainage district the right to vote on whether to issue bonds, Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 2477-2625r, prescribing the method of issuing drainage bonds, are not invalid, a vote being provided for. David v. Timon (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 88.

CHAPTER TWO
DRAINAGE BY COUNTIES, SEPARATELY—TAXATION

Article 2511. Commissioners' court authorized to construct drains, etc., within any of the counties of the state.

Constitutionality.—As Const. art. 3, § 52, merely secures to the people of a drainage district the right to vote on whether to issue bonds, Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 2477-2625r, prescribing the method of issuing drainage bonds, are not invalid, a vote being provided for. David v. Timon (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 88.

CHAPTER THREE
DRAINAGE BY DISTRICTS, INCLUDED IN ONE OR MORE COUNTIES—BONDS

Article 2542. County commissioners' court may establish drainage districts, to be included in one or more counties; incidental powers; election for bonds.

Constitutionality.—Const. art. 3, § 52, relating to creation of drainage districts, held not to invalidate a statute empowering the commissioners' court to issue drainage district bonds and levy taxes when authorized by the voters of the district. Holt v. State (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 749.

As Const. art. 3, § 52, merely secures to the people of a drainage district the right to vote on whether to issue bonds, Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 2477-2625r, prescribing the method of issuing drainage bonds, are not invalid, a vote being provided for. David v. Timon (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 88.

Article 2561. Specifications for bids; advertisement; contract.

Time of execution of contract.—Although a drainage ditch was completed before execution of a construction contract calling for a complete drainage system, the drainage district obtaining the benefit of such ditch is liable to the contractor where the contract provided that its value should be estimated by the engineers. San Benito Cameron County Drainage Dist. v. Farmers' State Guaranty Bank (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1146.

Art. 2570. Findings of commissioners’ court and record of same.

Art. 2571. If finding for petitioners, civil engineer appointed; assistants; pay.

Art. 2572. Survey and location of canals, drains, etc.; designation of streams, etc.; report.

Art. 2573. Hearing before county commissioners; notice; objections.

Art. 2574. Action of court on report.

Art. 2575. Drainage bonds; order for issuance; amount.

Art. 2576. Bonds; validation of bonds issued under former acts; issuance of bonds not sold.

Art. 2577. No suit contesting validity of district or bonds, except, etc.; invalidity of this not to affect other provisions.

Art. 2578. Sale of bonds, and disposition of proceeds; issuance of unsold bonds at discount.

Art. 2579. Bond of county judge before sale; compensation.

Art. 2580. Construction and maintenance fund; interest and sinking fund; expenses how paid; defeat of proposition affecting payment.

Art. 2581. Tax for interest, sinking fund, and expenses; reports and estimates; sale of remaining bonds; readjustment of funds; investment of sinking fund.

Art. 2582. Assessment, equalization, and collection of taxes; lien; when due; penalty.

Art. 2583. Contracts, how made.

Article 2567. Drainage districts established, how; scope; may make improvements; bonds for.

Constitutionality.—As Const. art. 3, § 52, merely secures to the people of a drainage district the right to vote on whether to issue bonds, Vernon’s Slayes’ Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 247—2625r, prescribing the method of issuing drainage bonds, are not invalid, a vote being provided for. David v. Timon (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 86.

Purposes of creation.—A statute, providing for the creation of drainage districts, authorizes the creation of a district to straighten and develop streams and construct levees. Holt v. State (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 743.

Territory which may be included.—Const. art. 3, § 52, providing for drainage districts, authorizes the creation of a drainage district out of any defined territory. Holt v. State (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 743.

Art. 2568. Petition for drainage district; requisites; notice; fees.

Contest of validity of established district.—In a contest of a bond election held under arts. 2560, 2581, the validity of the established drainage district under articles 2568—2571, 2573, 2576, 2577, cannot be questioned. Hebert v. Scurlock (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 711.

Art. 2569. Hearing of petition; contest; exclusive and final jurisdiction of commissioners’ court over subject matter, except, etc.

Cited, Hebert v. Scurlock, 178 S. W. 711.

Jurisdiction of district court over contest.—Under Const. art. 5, § 8, and Rev. St. 1911, art. 3685, touching jurisdiction of contested elections, district court of county had jurisdiction of contest of election for establishment of drainage district, despite this article. McFarlane v. Westley (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 261.

Art. 2570. Findings of commissioners’ court and record of same.

Art. 2571. If finding for petitioners, civil engineer appointed; assistants; pay.

Art. 2573. Hearing before county commissioners; notice; objections.

Art. 2574. Action of court on report.

Art. 2578. Election to be ordered after approval of engineer's report.

Constitutionality.—Constat. art. 3, § 62, relating to creation of drainage districts, held not to invalidate a statute empowering the commissioners' court to issue drainage district bonds and levy taxes when authorized by the voters of the district. Holt v.
State (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 742.

Power to issue bonds.—Constat. art. 3, § 62, vests in the voters of a drainage district power to determine whether bonds shall issue and issuance of bonds and levy and collection of taxes may be done as authorized by the Legislature. Holt v. State (Civ.
App.) 178 S. W. 743.

Issuance of bonds not conforming to proposition submitted.—Where drainage bonds were not issued by vote of taxpayers, the commissioners' court cannot Qualifications of voters.—Under Rev. St. 1911, art. 2550, one who is in fact a property owner within a drainage district is entitled to vote at a bond election, though not shown by the tax rolls to be a property owner. Hebert v. Scurlock (Civ. App.) 178 S.

W. 711.

Art. 2581. Same subject.

Validity of election.—An election for the issuance of drainage bonds is not invalid because the oath required by Rev. St. 1911, art. 2551, was not taken by electors. Hebert

Resident taxpayer of proposed drainage district, not permitted to vote at election on formation on account of nonresidence, who did not offer to make affidavit of residence, required by Acts 234 Leg. c. 118, § 15, while judges would not have permitted him to make affidavit, or to vote, had he made it, was wrongfully prevented

Where one offering to vote at election on formation of drainage district showed he did not know whether he resided within district, and so could not have made affidavit of residence, required by Acts 234 Leg. c. 118, § 15, refusal of ballot was not wrong he could complain of, or requiring election to be set aside. Id.

Ballot cast at election on formation of drainage district held insufficient expression of voter's intention, and properly refused consideration. Id.

178 S. W. 711.

Art. 2589. Drainage commissioners may employ counsel, etc.

Cited, Kerbow v. Wooldridge, 184 S. W. 746.

Employment of attorney.—In an action by an attorney for compensation for services under a contract entered into between him and a drainage district with the approval of the county judge, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that the attorney made the contract solely for himself, and not jointly with or as a partner of the county judge. Hidalgo County Drainage Dist. No. 1 v. Swearingen (Civ. App.)
158 S. W. 211.

Drainage Act of 1907, §§ 43, 44, post, arts. 2612, 2613, requiring contracts by drainage commissioners to be reduced to writing, do not apply to contracts for the employment of attorneys, which are governed by section 51 of the act (this article). Id.

Where the county judge was present at a conversation between an attorney and the commissioners, at which an oral contract was made for the employment of the attorney on behalf of the district, and was then approved by the judge, it was not necessary for him thereafter to make a formal approval thereof. Id.

In an action upon an oral contract, for attorney fees against an irrigation district, evidence held sufficient to show intent of the parties that the contract should be binding without being reduced to writing. Id.

Art. 2590. Right of eminent domain; outlets beyond boundary, etc.

Necessity of payment of compensation in general.—While drainage laws give the commissioners' court jurisdiction over the establishment of drainage districts, such courts do not have jurisdiction in adopting the specifications for a drain to authorize the taking of private property without due compensation. Matagorda County Drainage Restraining construction.—The construction of a drain which would overflow private property will be enjoined, where there is no provision for compensation to the owner, and the drainage district has no funds to make compensation. Matagorda County

Where the construction of a drainage ditch would destroy a dam on plaintiff's property, greatly to his injury, and the drainage district had not and was unable to make contrary bonds for the injury, the work will be enjoined. Matagorda County Drainage

Art. 2595. Drainage bonds; order for issuance; amount.

Limitation of indebtedness.—Under Const. art. 3, § 52, and Rev. St. 1911, art. 2595, the aggregate indebtedness of any one territory for the two purposes of drainage and road building cannot exceed 25 per cent. of the assessed valuation of such territory's real estate. Munson v. Looney (Sup.) 172 S. W. 1102, rehearing denied 177 S. W. 1193.

Art. 2596. Bonds; validation of bonds issued under former acts; issuance of bonds not sold.—All bonds issued under the provisions of this Act shall be issued in the name of the drainage district, signed by the County Judge and attested by the Clerk of the County Court, with the seal of the county commissioners' court affixed thereto. Such bonds shall be issued in denominations of not less than one hundred dollars and not more than one thousand dollars each, and shall bear interest at a rate not to exceed six (6) per cent per annum, payable annually or semi-annually. Such bonds shall by their terms provide the time, place or places, manner and conditions of their payment, the rate of interest thereon and its payment, as may be determined and ordered by the County Commissioners' Court, provided that none of such bonds shall be made payable more than forty years after the date thereof. Provided, however, in all drainage districts heretofore created, and which have issued and registered bonds with the State Comptroller, under the provisions of Chapter 40 of the Acts of the Thirtieth Legislature of Texas, approved March 23rd, 1907, and under the Acts of the Thirty-first Legislature, Chapter 13, House Bill No. 89 [Rev. Civ. St. 1911, arts. 2567-2625. See Vernon's Sayles' Civ. St. 1914, arts. 2567-2625] that all proceedings had and done under such laws in connection with and leading up to the creation of such drainage districts, and the issuance of such bonds so registered, except such bonds as were issued and registered with the State Comptroller under Chapter 40 of the Thirtieth Legislature of Texas, which were in excess of the estimate considered by the County Commissioners' Court when the election was ordered and held, be and the same are hereby held, deemed and declared to be and to have been regular, valid and legal proceedings under the full intent and purpose of the law; and all such bonds so issued thereunder are hereby held, deemed and declared to be valid and binding obligations upon such drainage district or districts so issuing the same.

Provided further that where any district has authorized the issuance of drainage bonds providing for a rate of interest less than hereinbefore provided, which said bonds have not been sold, when so authorized by an election held for that purpose in such drainage district, the County Commissioners' Court may issue such bonds to bear interest at a rate not to exceed six (6) per cent per annum. [Acts 1911, p. 345, § 24; Act March 5, 1915, ch. 33, § 1.]

Art. 2597a. No suit contesting validity of district or bonds, except, etc.; invalidity of this not to affect other provisions.

Constitutionality.—Despite Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 2597a, a citizen taxpayer may, on his own initiative, attack the constitutionality of drainage laws, or enjoin an officer from issuing drainage bonds where he has not complied with the law. David v. Timon (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 88.

Collateral attack on validity of drainage district.—Under this article validity of a drainage district cannot be questioned in an action for the collection of delinquent drainage district taxes. Holt v. State (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 743.

Suit in district court to contest election.—Under art. 3077, and this article resident of county can bring suit in district court to contest election on formation of drainage district. McFarlane v. Westley (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 301.

Art. 2600. Sale of bonds; disposition of proceeds; issuance of unsold bonds at discount.—When such bonds shall have been registered, as provided for in the preceding sections of this Act, the County Judge shall, under the direction of the County Commissioners' Court, advertise and sell said bonds on the best terms and for the best price possible to be obtained, but in no event shall said bonds be sold for less than the face par value thereof together with the accrued interest thereon, and as said bonds are sold, all moneys received therefor shall be turned over and paid by the County Judge to the County Treasurer or to the Treasurer of such drainage district as the case may be and shall be by him placed to the credit of such drainage district in the construction and maintenance thereof; provided, that where drainage districts already organized have authorized the issuance of bonds bearing interest at a rate not exceeding five per cent, the county judge may sell said bonds at not less than ninety per cent of their par face value and accrued interest. [Acts 1911, p. 245, § 28; Act March 5, 1915, ch. 33, § 1.]

Constitutionality.—Under Const. art. 1, § 16, Acts 34th Leg. c. 33, providing that bonds already authorized to be issued might be sold at 90 per cent. when they were voted under a law providing for sale at par, is invalid. David v. Timon (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 88.

Under Const. art. 1, § 16, Acts 34th Leg. c. 33, providing that bonds already authorized to be issued might be sold at 90 per cent. when they were voted under a law providing for sale at par, is invalid, being retrospective. Id.

Provision mandatory.—Rev. St. 1911, art. 2606, forbidding sale of drainage bonds below par, is mandatory, and an agreement contemplating that a drainage district contractor shall sell drainage bonds and pay the difference between the market and par values is illegal. Wilson v. Hebert (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 881.

Art. 2601. Bond of county judge before sale; compensation.

Necessity of bond.—Unless the county judge has given the bond required by Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 2601, he may be enjoined from disposing of drainage bonds. David v. Timon (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 88.

Art. 2602. Construction and maintenance fund; interest and sinking fund; expenses how paid; defeat of proposition affecting payment.—All legal and just expenses, debts, and obligations arising and created, after the filing of the original petition with the County Commissioners' Court and necessarily incurred in the creation, establishing, operation and maintenance of such district organized under the provisions of this Act, other than that of the bonds and the interest thereon, shall be paid out of the "Construction and Maintenance Fund" of such district which said fund shall consist of all money, effects, property and proceeds received by such district from any and all sources whatsoever, except that portion of the tax collections which shall be necessary to pay the interest on the bonded indebtedness as it shall fall due and the cancellation and retirement of the bonds as they shall mature, which said funds shall be placed into and paid out of the "Interest and Sinking Fund" of such drainage district.

Provided, that should the proposition of the creation of such drainage district and the issuance of the bonds be defeated at the election called to vote upon the same, then all expenses created up to and including said election shall be paid in the following manner: When the original petition praying for the establishing of a drainage district is filed with the County Commissioners' Court, it shall be accompanied by ($200.00) Two Hundred Dollars in cash, which shall be deposited with the Clerk of said Commissioners' Court and by him held until after the result of the election is officially made known. Should the result of such election be in favor of the establishment of said district, then the said $200.00 shall be by said clerk returned to the petitioners, their agent or attorney; but should the result of such election be against the establishment of such drainage district, then the said clerk shall pay out of the said $200.00 upon vouchers approved and signed by the County Judge, all costs and expenses pertaining to said proposed district up to and including said election, and the balance thereof, if any, shall be returned to the petitioners, their agent or attorney. [Acts 1911, p. 245, § 30; Act March 5, 1915, ch. 33, § 1.]

Return of deposit.—Mandamus lies to compel clerk of commissioners' court to return deposit made with original petition for the establishment of a drainage district, in accordance with the provisions of the statute. Jefferson v. McPadden (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 714.

Mandamus held not to lie in such case where the signer of the petition, at whose request plaintiff made the deposit, were not parties respondent. Id.

Plaintiff not the signer to a petition for the establishment of a drainage district, but who, at the return of requesters thereto, made such deposit held entitled to its return. Id.

Art. 2603. Tax for interest, sinking fund, and expenses; reports and estimates; sale of remaining bonds; readjustment of funds; investment of sinking fund.—Whenever any such drainage district bonds shall have been voted, the County Commissioners' Court shall levy and cause to be assessed and collected taxes upon all property within such drainage district whether real, personal or otherwise, and sufficient in amount, annually, to pay the interest on such bonds as it shall fall due, together with an amount to be annually placed in a sinking fund with which to redeem and retire such bonds as they shall mature, and said taxes when so collected shall be placed in the "Interest and Sinking Fund" for such district. And in all drainage districts heretofore created, or that may hereafter be created, under the provisions of this law, the County Commissioners Court shall at the same time levy and cause to be assessed and collected, taxes upon all property within such district, whether real, personal or otherwise, sufficient in amount to maintain, keep in repair, and to preserve the improvements in such district so made and constructed and to pay all legal, just and lawful debts, demands and obligations, if any, against such district, which said levy shall never, in any one year, exceed one-half of one per cent on the total assessed valuation of such district for such year and such taxes when so collected shall be placed in the "Construction and Maintenance Fund" for such district. Provided, however, that the Commissioners of such drainage district shall annually, on or before the first day of July in each year prepare and file with the County Commissioners' Court a full detailed report of the condition of the improvements heretofore made in such district, with an estimate of the probable cost of maintenance and needed repairs during the ensuing year, together with an inventory of all funds, effects, property and accounts belonging to such drainage district, and a list of all lawful demands, debts and obligations, if any, against such district, which report shall be verified by the drainage commissioners, and shall be carefully investigated and considered by the County Commissioners' Court before any levy of taxes shall be made as herein provided.

Provided further, that should there remain any of the bonds so voted and issued by such district and which are not required for the completion of the improvements so made or to be made in such district, then in that event, by and with the consent of the County Commissioners' Court duly made of public record, such remaining bonds or a portion thereof, may be sold for the purposes herein named and the proceeds from the same thereof placed in the "Maintenance and Construction Fund" of such district to be used for the maintenance and preservation of the improvements therein. Provided, further that any such drainage district where any money in either the "Maintenance and Construction Fund" or the "Interest and Sinking Fund" has been improperly paid out for the benefit of either of the funds of such district, the County Commissioners Court may cause the County Treasurer to make proper transfer of such amount in the accounts of such district, to the end that each of said funds shall be held for the purposes for which it was created. The sinking fund may, from time to time, be invested in such bonds and securities as shall be approved by the Attorney General of the State of Texas, for the benefit of such district. [Acts 1911, p. 245, § 31; Act March 5, 1915, ch. 33, § 1.]

Power to levy taxes.—Const. art. 3, § 82, does not prohibit the levy and collection of drainage district taxes on property in a city or town which has previously issued bonds in the full amount permitted by other constitutional provisions. Holt v. State (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 748.

When levy should be made.—Where drainage bonds were voted during the middle of the year, held that, under Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 2663, taxes should be levied immediately, and the assessment cannot be questioned on the ground that it was for only part of the year. David v. Timon (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 88.

A petition, in an action for delinquent drainage taxes and exhibits attached thereto, held to sufficiently describe the land. 10.

Art. 2603a. Assessment, equalization, and collection of taxes; lien; when due; penalty.—In the assessment and collection of the taxes authorized by this Act, and in all matters pertaining thereto or connected therewith, the County Tax Assessor and the County Tax Collector shall have the same powers and shall be governed by the same rules, regulations and proceedings as are provided by the laws of this State for the assessment and collection of County and State Taxes, unless otherwise provided for in this law. And the County Commissioners’ Court shall constitute a board of equalization for such drainage district or districts, and all laws governing boards of equalization for county and State taxing purposes shall govern such board or boards for drainage districts.

The taxes authorized to be levied and collected under the provisions of this Act shall be a lien upon all property against which the same are or may be assessed, and it shall be the duty of the County Commissioners’ Court and said court shall have the authority, to fix the time and determine the date when such taxes shall become due and payable, otherwise such taxes shall become due and payable at the same time as State and county taxes mature and fall due. And upon the failure to pay such taxes when due, the penalty provided by the laws of Texas for failure to pay State and County Taxes at maturity shall in every respect apply to the taxes herein authorized to be levied, assessed and collected. [Act March 5, 1915, ch. 33, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The title of this act purports “to amend sections 24, 28, 30 and 31 of chapter 115,” etc., while the first section following the enacting clause declares that the sections above enumerated are amended as set forth, “and by adding thereto section 51a to read” as above set forth. The act became effective 90 days after adjournment, which occurred March 20, 1915.

Art. 2612. Contracts, how made.
Application.—Drainage Act of 1907, §§ 43, 44, requiring contracts by drainage commissioners to be reduced to writing, do not apply to contracts for the employment of attorneys, which are governed by section 51 of the act. Hidalgo County Drainage Dist. No. 1 v. Swearingen (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 211.

Approval of contract.—Where the county judge was present at a conversation between an attorney and the drainage commissioners, at which an oral contract was made for the employment of the attorney on behalf of the district, and was then approved by the judge, it was not necessary for him thereafter to make a formal approval thereof. Hidalgo County Drainage Dist. No. 1 v. Swearingen (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 211.

CHAPTER FIVE
Dissolution of Drainage Districts

Art. 2625a. Drainage district may dissolve; frequency of elections.

Art. 2625a. Drainage district may dissolve; frequency of elections.—Any drainage district heretofore organized, or that may hereafter be organized, under the General Laws of this State, may voluntarily abolish its corporate existence in the manner hereinafter provided; provided, however, that when an election has been or may be held in the manner hereinafter provided for, which has resulted, or may result, in the failure to abolish such drainage district, no other election shall be held in said district under the provisions of this chapter seeking the dissolution of the same within two years after the results of such election shall have been declared. [Acts 1913, S. S. p. 41, § 1; Act March 22, 1915, ch. 75, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 2 repeals laws in conflict. The act took effect 90 days after March 20, 1915, the date of adjournment of the Legislature.

Constitutionality.—Acts 33d Leg. (1st Called Sess.) c. 28, authorizing an election to determine whether a drainage district once established may be abolished, is not void or unconstitutional. Wharton County Drainage Dist. No. 1 v. Bowen (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 513.

Art. 2625o. Trustee may employ counsel, etc.

Performance by attorney of contract for services.—Evidence showing that an attorney for a drainage district performed without complaint or cause for complaint all services required of him under the contract is sufficient to support a finding that he complied with the terms of his contract, regardless of the quality or value of the services rendered. Hidalgo County Drainage Dist. No. 1 v. Swearingen (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 211.
TITLE 48
EDUCATION—PUBLIC

CHAPTER TWO
AGRICULTURAL AND MECHANICAL COLLEGE

Art. 2676d. Board of Directors to appoint State Forester; salary; duties.—That there shall be appointed by the Board of Directors of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas a State Forester, who shall be a technically trained forester of not less than two years' experience in professional forestry work; his compensation shall be fixed by said board at not to exceed three thousand ($3,000) dollars per annum, and he shall be allowed reasonable traveling and field expenses incurred in the performance of his official duties. He shall, under the general supervision of said board, have direction of all forest interests and all matters pertaining to forestry within the jurisdiction of the State. He shall appoint, subject to the approval and confirmation of said board, such assistants and employes as may be necessary in executing the duties of his office and the purposes of said board, the compensation of such assistants and employes to be fixed by the said board. He shall take such action as may be deemed necessary by said board to prevent and extinguish forest fires, shall enforce all laws pertaining to the protection of forest and woodlands, and prosecute for any violation of such laws; collect data relative to forest conditions, and to co-operate with land owners as described in Section 2 of this Act [Art. 2676e]. He shall prepare for said board annually a report on the progress and condition of State forestry work, and recommend therein plans for improving the State system of forest protection, management and replacement. [Act March 31, 1915, ch. 141, § 1.]

Explanatory.—See arts. 4443, 4880. The act took effect 90 days after March 20, 1915, date of adjournment. Sec. 7 repeals all laws in conflict.

Art. 2676e. Same; co-operation with municipalities, etc.—That the State Forester shall, upon request, under the sanction of the Board of Directors, and whenever he deems it essential to the best interests of the people of the State, co-operate with counties, towns, corporations or individuals in preparing plans for the protection, management and replacement of trees, woodlots and timber tracts, under an agreement that the parties obtaining such assistants pay at least the field expenses of the men employed in preparing said plans. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 2676f. Same; gifts; purchase of land.—That the Governor of the State is authorized, upon the recommendation of the Board of Directors, to accept gifts of land to the State, same to be held, protected and administered by said board as State forests, and to be used so as to demonstrate the practical utility of timber culture and water conservation, and as refuges for game. Such gifts must be absolute except for the reservation of all mineral and mining rights over and under said lands, and a stipulation that they shall be administered as State forests.

The Board of Directors shall have the power to purchase lands in the name of the State, suitable chiefly for the production of timber, as State forests, using for such purposes any special appropriation or any surplus money not otherwise appropriated, which may be standing to the credit of the State forestry fund.

The Attorney General of the State is directed to see that all deeds to the State of land mentioned in this section are properly executed before the gift is accepted or payment of the purchase money is made. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 2676g. Same; proceeds of sale of products.—That all moneys received from the sale of wood, timber, minerals or other products from the State forests, and penalties for trespassing thereon, shall be paid into the State Treasury, and shall constitute a State forestry fund, and the moneys in said fund are hereby appropriated for purposes of forestry in general, under the direction of the Board of Directors. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 2676h. Appropriation.—That for the maintenance, use and extension of the work under the Board of Directors, and for forest fire protection, there is hereby appropriated the sum of ten thousand ($10,000) dollars annually out of any moneys in the State Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be placed to the credit of the State forestry fund. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 2676i. Co-operation with federal authorities.—That the Board of Directors may co-operate with the Federal Forest Service under such terms as may seem desirable. [Id., § 6.]
John Tarlton Agricultural College

Art. 2676\(\frac{1}{4}\). College established.—That the John Tarlton College, located at Stephenville, in Erath county, is hereby taken over by the State, under the terms and conditions set forth elsewhere in this Act, and the same established as a Junior Agricultural College, to be known as the John Tarlton Agricultural College, a coeducational State institution of agriculture and home economics. [Act Feb. 20, 1917, ch. 33, § 1.]

See arts. 2724a–2724i, post. Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment.

Art. 2676\(\frac{1}{4}\)a. Government of college.—The government and direction of policies of said John Tarlton Agricultural College shall be vested in the Board of Directors of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas. The said Board is hereby given authority to accept such lands, buildings and gifts of money as may be made a consideration in the acceptance of said college, and it is understood that this Act shall not become effective until the conditions set forth in the following sections have been accepted and complied with. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 2676\(\frac{1}{4}\)b. Donations.—The donations and conditions referred to in Section 2 are as follows: The citizenship of Stephenville and Erath county hereby donate to the State of Texas what is known now as the John Tarlton College, consisting of a main or administrative building, a dormitory for girls, and a Fine Arts building; all modern new brick buildings and estimated to be worth, including the equipment, $85,000; and also a campus of forty acres of land, located in about 400 yards of the railroad station at Stephenville, and within less than one mile of the court house of Erath County, valued at approximately $40,000; also 500 acres of land located near the campus of the John Tarlton College, nearly all tillable and now cultivated and being good farming land within one mile of the town of Stephenville, and valued at approximately $50,000.00; also the sum of $75,000 to be used by the Board of Directors of the Agricultural and Mechanical College as a student loan fund to be lent to students who cannot otherwise attend said college, at a rate of interest not to exceed 5 per cent per annum, on such terms and conditions as may be deemed advisable by said governing board. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 2676\(\frac{1}{4}\)c. Acceptance of donations.—The Board of Directors of the Agricultural and Mechanical College is hereby given authority to accept the land, money and buildings referred to in Section 3 [Art. 2676\(\frac{1}{4}\)b], and it shall be the duty of the citizens of Stephenville and Erath county to furnish a good and merchantable title to all of said property, and the said Board is hereby given authority to sign and execute all deeds and other official papers necessary in connection with the acceptance of the offer of the citizens of Stephenville and Erath county, and when all of said formalities have been complied with it shall be the duty of the Board of Directors of the Agricultural and Mechanical College to make an official report to the Governor of this State, setting forth the fact that all promises and pledges of said citizens of Stephenville and Erath county, have been complied with, and on receipt of said report the Governor of this State shall formally accept, in writing, the said John Tarlton Agricultural College as a Junior Agricultural College as a part of the educational system of Texas. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 2676\(\frac{1}{4}\)d. Rank of college; courses of study; students.—The said John Tarlton Agricultural College shall rank as a Junior Agricultural College, which for the purposes of this Act is designated as an institution offering four year courses, beginning with the Junior year of a four year High School and extending to and including the Sophomore year of a standard four year college, provided that nothing in this Act shall preclude the offering of such preparatory courses or short courses as may be deemed advisable. The said John Tarlton Agricultural College shall be co-educational and instruction shall be offered in Agriculture, including the arts and sciences connected therewith; and home economics, including the arts and sciences connected therewith. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 2676 1/4e. Power of eminent domain.—The Board of Directors of said College, as constituted by Section 2 of this Act [Art. 2676 1/4a], is hereby vested with the power of eminent domain to acquire for the uses of said College such lands as may be necessary or proper for carrying out its purposes, by condemnation proceedings, such as are now provided for railroad companies by Articles 6506 to 6530, inclusive, of the Revised Statutes of Texas of 1911. [Id., § 6.]

GRUBB'S VOCATIONAL COLLEGE

Art. 2676 1/2. College established; donations.—That there is hereby established a Junior Agricultural, Mechanical and Industrial College, to be known as the Grubb's Vocational College, to be located at or near the town of Arlington, Tarrant county, Texas, provided the citizens of said town and county shall first donate to the State for the use and benefit of said college at least one hundred acres of good tillable land with perfect title, together with the college property, known as the Carlisle Military School property, with all buildings, dormitories, barracks, etc., belonging thereto. [Act March 26, 1917, ch. 97, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 11 makes an appropriation. Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment.

Art. 2676 1/4a. Shall be under direction of directors of Agricultural and Mechanical College; local board of managers.—Be it further enacted that said Junior Agricultural, Mechanical and Industrial College shall be under the direction of the board of directors of the present Agricultural and Mechanical College in connection with a local board of managers composed of five members to be appointed by the Governor by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, who shall serve for two years from the date of their appointment. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 2676 1/2b. Vacancies in board of managers.—In all cases of vacancy in said local board of managers the appointment shall also be made from time to time as provided in the Sections of this Act, provided that if the Legislature shall not be in session, the Governor may fill such vacancy by appointment until the next session of the Legislature, when if the Senate shall not confirm the appointment some other person shall be named. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 2676 1/2c. Board of managers subject to approval of directors of Agricultural and Mechanical College.—That the board of local managers hereinbefore provided for shall be subject to the approval of the board of directors of the Agricultural and Mechanical College, with which this Junior College shall be closely affiliated, perform all the duties required in the efficient and successful management of said institution in like manner as other governing boards of the same character. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 2676 1/2d. Organization of board of managers.—That the board of managers shall meet as soon after their appointment as convenient at Arlington, Texas, and organize by the election of a presiding officer, a Secretary and a Treasurer, whose duties shall be the same as the officials of other similar boards in this State, except that their action in all matters and especially in the formulation of courses of study, shall be subject to approval, modification or rejection by the Board of Directors of the Agricultural and Mechanical College. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 2676 1/2e. Powers of board of managers; purposes of school.—That the board of managers shall have and possess all powers necessary subject to the supervision of the board of directors of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas as to accomplish and carry out the provisions of this Act the establishment of a Junior Agricultural, Mechanical and Industrial College for the education of white boys and girls in this State in the arts and sciences in which such boys and girls may acquire a good literary education of academic grade, at least, together with a knowledge of agriculture, horticulture, floriculture, stock raising and domestic arts and sciences, including the several branches and studies usually taught in the established institutions of like character with such limitations as may be imposed by the governing board of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, having in view the training of the youth for the more important industrial activities of life, while acquiring facilities for the acquirement of a good practical literary education not below the academic grade. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 2676¾f. Faculty of institution; tuition; courses of instruction; rules, etc.—That the board of managers in connection with the board of directors of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, shall appoint a president and professors of the Grubbs Vocational College and such officers as they may think proper and necessary to put the same into successful operation and to make such rules and regulations for the government of said officers and the proper management of said institution as they may deem advisable. They shall regulate rates of tuition with the course of discipline necessary to enforce the faithful discharge of the duties of all officers, professors and students. They shall in connection with the faculty divide the courses of instruction into departments so as to secure a thorough education of the academic grade and the best possible industrial training, selecting careful and efficient professors in each department, giving preference to Texas teachers, if available, and shall adopt all such rules, by-laws and regulations as they may deem necessary to carry out all the purposes and objects of said institution. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 2676¾g. Compensation of board of managers.—The board of managers shall receive such compensation as may be determined upon by the board of directors of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 2676¾h. Entrance requirements.—The terms upon which pupils may be admitted, including the entrance requirements, shall be determined by the board of managers and the board of directors of the said Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, and in that respect they are empowered to fix or remit tuition, fees and charges as they may deem best for said institution and the people for whose benefit it is established.
[Id., § 9.]

Art. 2676¾i. Salaries of officers, professors, and employés.—The board of managers and the board of directors of the Agricultural and Mechanical College shall determine and fix the salary of each officer, professor and employé, provided that the salaries of professors in any department shall not exceed that which is now fixed for the professors of the Agricultural and Mechanical College or the College of Industrial Arts, with which this institution is closely affiliated. [Id., § 10.]

Repealed Acts Creating Branch Colleges

Act Feb. 20, 1917, ch. 29, created the West Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College, to constitute a branch of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas. This act was repealed by Act Oct. 11, 1917, 3d C. S., 33th Legislature, which annulled and canceled all acts, contracts, etc., growing out of the former act.

Act April 9, 1917, ch. 294, created the North-East Texas Agricultural College, to constitute a branch of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas. This act was repealed by Act Oct. 11, 1917, 3d C. S., 33th Legislature, which annulled and canceled

Note.—Act March 22, 1915, c. 96, p. 150, makes an appropriation for the erection of temporary buildings to replace those destroyed by fire.

CHAPTER SEVEN A

SOUTH TEXAS STATE NORMAL COLLEGE AND STEPHEN F. AUSTIN STATE NORMAL COLLEGE

Art.

2717¼a.  Colleges created.
2717¼b.  When ready for reception of students.
2717¼c.  Locating committee; local claims and donations.

Art.

2717¼d.  Duties of attorney general.
2717¼e.  Construction of buildings.
2717¼f.  Control and regulations of colleges.
2717¼g.  Appropriations; disbursements.

Article 2717¼a.  Colleges created.—That two State Normal Schools for the education of white teachers are hereby established at places in Texas located as follows: One in the territory composed of all of that part of the State of Texas lying south of the twenty-ninth parallel of latitude with the counties of Kinney, Uvalde and Medina added, and the name of said Normal School shall be “South Texas State Normal College;” the other in the territory composed of all that part of the State of Texas lying east of the ninety-sixth meridian, and the name of said Normal College shall be “Stephen F. Austin State Normal College.” [Act April 4, 1917, ch. 191, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, the date of adjournment of the legislature. This act evidently supersedes Act March 22, 1915, ch. 66, p. 118, establishing three state normal colleges, including the two above named, and another to be known as the Central West Texas Normal College.

Art. 2717¼b.  When ready for reception of students.—Said two Normal Schools shall be created and ready for reception of students on October 1st, 1918. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 2717¼c.  Locating committee; local claims and donations.—The Governor of Texas, the State Superintendent of Public Instruction and the State Normal School Board of Regents are hereby designated a locating committee to locate the said two normal colleges; provided that if any one member of this said committee resides within the territory in which either of these normals is to be located that member shall not take part in the locating of said normal in the territory in which he lives. The majority of said committee shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, and no member of said committee who has material or pecuniary interest of any kind in any town or place offered for the location of said normals shall be qualified or authorized to act on said committee.
Provided that if any member of said locating board shall die, resign or refuse to act before both of said Normal Colleges are located, the Governor shall be, and is hereby authorized and empowered to appoint any person or persons on said committee, who shall become members thereof, and are hereby authorized and empowered to assist the remaining members of said committee in the locating of said Normal Schools.

In considering the claims of any place that may apply for the location of either of said colleges, said committee shall consider the healthfulness, accessibility, general physical conditions and environments, together with the general moral tone, educational system and social qualities of the people of said place. No donation or bonus of any kind or character shall be considered by said locating committee of either of said colleges, except such donations of land as may be offered by any place as a site for the building or buildings of said colleges, and in no event shall a building site of less than fifty (50) acres be considered or accepted. After the passage of this Act, any city or town within either of said Normal School Districts named in Section One of this Act [Art. 2717½a], desiring the location of said college in that respective district, may file its application with the chairman of said locating committee, together with the description of the land it has to offer, requesting the committee to view the site; and it shall be the duty of said committee to visit said cities or towns making such requests, and to view the sites they have to offer, and as soon as practical after said committee shall have viewed all sites offered, such locating committee shall meet and select a location for each of said normal colleges; provided that said locating committee shall locate said normal colleges not later than August 1st, 1917, and for the purpose of traveling expenses and other expenses of said Board, including clerk hire, there is hereby appropriated out of the funds of the treasury, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars. Such committee may employ a clerk at a salary not to exceed one hundred ($100.00) dollars per month, for such services as may be needed. Said Committee, as soon as the locations are made for said colleges, shall make a full report of all of its actions in carrying out the provisions of this Act in regard to location, including an itemized statement of all moneys paid out, and also an itemized descriptive list of all donations of land made and accepted for said normal colleges. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 2717½d. Duties of Attorney General.—It shall be the duty of the Attorney General of the State of Texas, to examine and approve all abstracts of title, to be furnished by the owner, to any and all real estate, that may be donated either for the site for the buildings of said colleges or for any other purpose, and the abstracts of the title to the real estate of the building sites of such colleges which may be selected by said locating committee shall be so examined by the said Attorney General, and approved by him before any location is finally made; provided, however, that nothing herein shall prevent said locating committee from selecting a location and announcing same conditioned upon the approval of the title thereto, by the Attorney General. After examination and approval of the title to the lands donated for said colleges the Attorney General shall cause to be prepared and duly executed proper deed or deeds of conveyance to said land selected, which deed or deeds shall be held in escrow by the State Treasurer conditioned upon the erection and opening of said colleges. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 2717½e. Construction of buildings.—As soon as funds are available under proper appropriation, the State Normal School Board of Regents shall proceed to secure plans and specifications for a building or buildings and equipment of each of said colleges, which building or buildings and equipment of each college shall be sufficient to accommodate at least four hundred pupils, and to let the contract for such building or buildings and equipments to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders; said State Normal School Board of Regents shall meet October 1st, 1917, or as soon thereafter as practical for the purpose of receiving said plans and specifications for said building or buildings and equipments to be completed on or before October 1st, 1918, on which date the said colleges shall be opened and ready for the reception of students. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 2717½f. Control and regulations of colleges.—The control and regulation of said colleges is hereby vested in the State Normal School Board of Regents under the law now in force governing said Board, or which may hereafter be enacted, and such Board of Regents shall meet as soon as practical after the first day of January, 1918, and make rules and regulations for the organization and maintenance of said colleges, and to elect such officers and teachers and instructors and employés as may be necessary for properly carrying out the work of said colleges. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 2717½g. Appropriations; disbursements.—The sum of one hundred and fifty thousand ($150,000.00) dollars is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the State Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be expended in the payment of accounts legally contracted in constructing and equipping the building or buildings of said South Texas State Normal College; and the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand ($150,000.00) dollars is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the State Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be expended in the payment of accounts legally contracted in constructing and equipping the building or building of said Stephen F. Austin State Normal College; said accounts to be paid upon warrants issued by the Comptroller of Public Accounts after the accounts shall have been audited and approved by the State Normal School Board of Regents, and the sum of thirty thousand ($30,000.00) dollars is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the State Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the maintenance of said South Texas State Normal College for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1919; and the sum of thirty thousand ($30,000.00) dollars is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the State Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the maintenance of said Stephen F. Austin Normal College for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1919; and the Legislature shall, after the taking effect of this Act, from time to time, and after the fiscal year ending August 31st, A. D. 1919, make such appropriation for the maintenance and government of said colleges as may be necessary, which shall be paid out upon vouchers drawn in such manner as may be approved by the laws now in force governing the State Normal School Board of Regents, or which may hereafter be enacted. [Id., § 7.]

Note.—The expenditure of the appropriation made hereby is postponed by Acts 1917, 27th C. S., ch. 32.

CHAPTER SEVEN B

EAST TEXAS NORMAL COLLEGE

Art. 2717½b. Management and control.
2717½c. Expenditure of appropriation.

Article 2717½b. Purchase of college.—That the State Normal School Board of Regents is hereby authorized and empowered to purchase the aforesaid property of said East Texas Normal College insofar as the appropriations herein made provides for a purchase, in the event said Board shall find the facts stated herein substantially true, and that said property including said five acres of land and brick dormitory thereon, is reasonably worth the said sum of $175,000.00. But if in the opinion of said Board said property is not reasonably worth said sum of $175,000.00, then they are authorized in their discretion to purchase said property by paying therefor such pro rata part of $80,000.00 as the value of said property, as they may determine it, shall bear to said sum of $175,000.00, provided, that said citizens of Commerce shall donate to the state of Texas, for and as part of said Normal school said five acres of ground and the city of Commerce shall enter into a valid contract to furnish free of charge to the state for said Normal school all water used by said institution. In the event said purchase of said property, said Board shall cause the title thereto to be examined by the Attorney General, and if approved, then shall take deeds covering all of said land and bill of sale covering said Library and other personal property belonging to said East Texas Normal College, in which deeds and bills of sale, said property shall be conveyed to the Governor of the State of Texas, and his successors in office for the use and benefit of the State of Texas, and said school. [Act April 4, 1917, ch. 195, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment. The act is preceded by the following preamble:

Whereas, there is in existence and being maintained and operated at Commerce within this state an independent and privately owned normal college known as the ‘East Texas Normal College’ which has been in existence some 23 years and has educated many thousand women of the State and particularly during said period of time has had in attendance upon it many thousand young men and young women who have taken the examinations provided for teachers of the State in obtaining certificates, and among others, 7,463 who, during the last ten years have attended the summer sessions of this school alone, and taken the examinations for teachers’ certificates, which said record in the education of teachers compares favorably with the various normal schools of the State for the same period of time jointly and severally, and,

Whereas, said school is one already equipped for educational purposes, having, among other properties, the following to wit: 30 acres of land for campus and school purposes of the reasonable value of $15,000.00; a 3 story brick administration building with concrete foundations and basement of the reasonable value of $50,000.00; a 3 story girl’s dormitory of reasonable value of $50,000.00 containing 180 outside rooms, together with a dining hall capacity, and which has furnished a dining capacity of 600 students at one time; a 3 story brick boy’s dormitory of similar construction with 115 outside rooms, of the reasonable value of $30,000.00; a 3 story frame dormitory furnishing sufficient room occupancy for 60 students valued at $5000.00; said three dormitories having a capacity to care for 560 students; a 3 story brick science hall commodious and ample for instruction and experiments in the natural sciences sufficiently to accommodate an average student body of 1000 students, of the reasonable value of $10,000.00; a library of 10,000 well selected volumes, well housed and accessible in the administration building, and physical and chemical laboratory furnishings and apparatus, which with the library aforesaid is of the reasonable value of $15,000.00; making a total valuation of said educational plant in the sum of $175,000.00, and, the citizens of Commerce do hereby pledge to purchase and themselves, the State, ten acres of land either joining said campus of said East Texas Normal College, or of such proximity to the said campus, as to be of use to the said institution as a part of the campus, making forty acres as the total amount of land in said campus, and,

Whereas, the growth and success of said school has demonstrated the necessity for its existence and the utility of its location, and,

Whereas, the citizens of Commerce have proposed to the Legislature the donation of said school to the State as a normal school, provided, the Legislature will pay therefor, the sum of $90,000.00 to the founder of said school who has his life savings invested therein and,

Whereas, the citizens of said town of Commerce own a plot of ground consisting of about five acres on which there is a three-story brick dormitory, also owned by the citizens of said town of Commerce which they propose to donate to the State for use by the Normal College hereinafter referred to, and, the said five acres above referred to being a part of the land herein referred to as the campus of said institution, and,

Whereas, citizens of Commerce have proposed to the Legislature a donation of said property herein above described; provided, that the state will pay therefor the sum of $90,000.00 to the founder of said school, and who is now owner thereof, except the said five acres of land and the brick dormitory thereon, now therefore.

Art. 2717½a. Creation of college; name.—There is hereby created a normal school to be one of the State Normals of this state to be located at Commerce, in Hunt County, Texas, and to consist in original equipment of the properties and buildings, and furnishing and equipment to be purchased as herein provided from the owners of the East Texas Normal College heretofore referred to. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 2717½b. Management and control.—Said normal college shall be conducted as the other State Normals of this State are conducted;
shall be under the management and control of the State Normal School Board of Regents, and all laws of this state applicable to State Normal schools, both in creating rights and prescribing limitations, and in all other respects shall be applicable to the said East Texas Normal College. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 2717½c. Expenditure of appropriation.—The appropriation herein provided shall not be paid over in the consummation of the purchase of the properties here referred to prior to the 31st day of August A. D., 1918, nor shall the properties referred to become the property of the State until the deeds are received after the date above named and the money paid therefor. It is further provided, that the said Board, after the purchase of said property as aforesaid, shall have authority to permit the school to continue under its present management and as a private institution under the direction of the State Normal School Board of Regents; and the citizens of Commerce obligate themselves to pay for the maintenance of said institution under its present management until the 36th Legislature makes an appropriation for its support and maintenance, at which time the Board of Regents shall then take complete charge and operate the same as the State’s school. [Id., § 4.]

Sec. 5 makes an appropriation of $80,000.

CHAPTER SEVEN C

SUL ROSS NORMAL COLLEGE

Art. 2717¾a. Duties of attorney general as to examination and approval of title. That there shall be established at Alpine, in Brewster County, Texas, a normal school to be known as “Sul Ross Normal College,” provided, that citizens of Brewster County shall, within sixty days after this Act takes effect, convey or cause to be conveyed to the State of Texas, by an immediate and perfect title, a building site, to be located somewhere within three miles of the county court house of said county, which tract of land shall be located and designed by the State Normal School Board of Regents of the State of Texas. No donation or bonus of any kind or character shall be considered by said State Normal School Board of Regents, except such donations of land as may be offered as a site for the buildings or building of said college, and such buildings as may be located on the land donated, and in no event shall a building site of less than one hundred (100) acres be considered or accepted, provided, that if the donation and proposition mentioned herein is not fully complied with by the citizens of Brewster County to the satisfaction of the State Normal School Board shall be open to such other places in the Twenty-fifth Senatorial District as the State Normal School Board of Regents may deem most satisfactory and advantageous to the State. [Act April 4, 1917, ch. 197, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 31, 1917, date of adjournment.

Art. 2717¾a. Duties of Attorney General as to examination and approval of title.—It shall be the duty of the Attorney General of the State of Texas, to examine and approve all abstracts of title, to be furnished by the owner of any and all real estate that may be donated, either for a site for the buildings or said college or for any other purpose in connection with the establishment of said school, the abstracts of title to the real estate of the building site of said college which may be selected by said State Normal School Board of Regents shall be so examined by the Attorney General and approved by him before any location is finally made; provided, however, that nothing herein shall prevent said State Normal School Board of Regents from selecting a location and anouncing same conditioned upon the approval of the title thereto, by the Attorney General. After examination and approval of the title to the lands donated for said college, the Attorney General shall cause to be prepared and duly executed proper deed or deeds of conveyance to said lands selected, which deed or deeds shall be held in escrow by the State Treasurer conditioned upon the erection and opening of said college. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 2717%4b. Erection of buildings.—As soon as funds are available under proper appropriations, the State Normal School Board of Regents shall proceed to secure plans and specifications for a building or building, and equipment of said State Normal College, which building or buildings and equipment shall be sufficient to accommodate at least five hundred pupils, and to let the contract for such building or buildings and equipment to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders; said State Normal School Board of Regents shall meet October 1, 1917, or as soon thereafter as practical for the purpose of receiving said plans and specifications for said building or buildings and equipment to be completed on or before October 1, 1918, on which date the said Sul Ross Normal College shall be opened and ready for the reception of Students. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 2717%4c. Control and regulation of college.—The control and regulation of said Sul Ross Normal College is hereby vested in the State Normal School Board of Regents under the laws now in force governing said Board, or which may hereafter be enacted, and such Board of Regents shall meet as soon as practical after the first day of January, 1918, and make rules and regulations for the organization and maintenance of said college, and to elect such officers and teachers and instructors and employés as may be necessary for properly, carrying out the work of said college. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 2717%4d. President of college.—It shall be the duty of the State Normal School Board of Regents to elect a president of the Sul Ross Normal College at any time after sixty days after the location of such Normal College shall have been made; provided, that he shall be elected at least six months before the date fixed for the opening of said normal college; and he shall draw his salary from the date of his acceptance of said election. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 2717%4e. Appropriations.—The sum of two hundred thousand ($200,000) dollars is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the State Treasury, not otherwise appropriated, to be expended in the payment of accounts legally contracted in constructing and equipping the building or buildings of the Sul Ross Normal College; said accounts to be paid upon warrants issued by the Comptroller of Public Accounts after the accounts shall have been audited and approved by the State Normal School Board of Regents, and the sum of forty thousand ($40,000) dollars is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the State Treasury, not otherwise appropriated, for the maintenance of said Sul Ross Normal College for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1919, and for the payment of the president’s salary for the year August 31, 1918; and the Legislature shall, after the taking effect of this Act, from time to time after the fiscal year ending August 31, A. D. 1919, make such appropriations for the maintenance and government of said Sul Ross Normal College as may be necessary which shall be paid out upon vouchers drawn in such manner as may be approved by the laws now in force governing the State Normal School Board of Regents, or which may hereafter be enacted. [Id., § 6.]

Note.—The expenditure of the appropriation made hereby is postponed by Acts 1917, 3rd C. S., ch. 32.

CHAPTER EIGHT A

JOHN TARLETON COLLEGE OF STEPHENVILLE, ERATH COUNTY, TEXAS

Articles 2724a—2724i.

Note.—By Act Feb. 26, 1917, ch. 32, the "John Tarleton College, located at Stephenville, in Erath county," is made a junior agricultural college, to be known as the John Tarleton Agricultural College. See ante, arts. 2676½—2676¼e.

CHAPTER NINE

AVAILABLE PUBLIC FREE SCHOOL FUND

Art. 2726a. State aid appropriation.—For the purpose of promoting the country public school interests of the State and of aiding the people in providing adequate school facilities for the education of their children, $1,000.00, or such part thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any money in the State Treasury not otherwise appropriated for the school year ending August 31, 1918, and $1,000,000, or such part thereof as may be necessary, for the year ending August 31, 1919, to be used in accordance with the provisions of this Act in maintaining country schools. [Act March 15, 1917, ch. 80, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The above act, though limited in its operation for the two fiscal years covered by the appropriation, is set forth in this compilation for the reason that it appears to be the policy of the state to renew the aid from year to year under substantially the same requirements as contained herein. A similar act was passed at the first called session of the 24th Legislature, chapter 19, page 22, in which the appropriation for each of the two years ending Aug. 31, 1916, and Aug. 31, 1917, is fixed at $500,000. In the present act the evident intent of the Legislature was to fix the annual appropriation at $1,000,000, but by a clerical error the appropriation for the year ending Aug. 31, 1918, is made "$1,000.00" instead of $1,000,000. The act took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment. Act May 14, 1917, ch. 6, 1st C. S., 26th Leg., corrects the error as to the amount appropriated for the year ending Aug. 31, 1918, by adding an appropriation of $999,000.00.

Art. 2726b. Distribution of aid.—The State Board of Education is hereby authorized and directed to supplement the State apportionment to any district coming within the provisions of this Act with an amount not more than $500 in any one year, the amount to be determined by the Board upon the merits and needs of the school.

All applications for State aid under this Act shall be made upon the form prescribed by the State Board of Education and furnished by the State Department of Education. Before any application is presented to the State Board of Education for its consideration, the State Superintendent shall make careful investigation regarding its completeness, and his certificate that each district applying for State aid meets substantially the requirements of the law shall be required by the Board before aid in any amount is granted. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 2726c. Standards and requirements.—Any school district meeting the following standards shall be entitled to receive State aid:

(1) Location. Each such school receiving State aid shall be well located on a plot of ground not less than one acre in extent, properly drained and suitably laid out.

(2) School House. There shall be provided a suitable school house, erected in accordance with the school house building law of Texas, or meeting substantially the requirements thereof.

(3) Equipment. Each such school shall be provided with necessary desks, seats and blackboards; and with such library, books, maps and globes as recommended in the State course of study, as in the opinion of the State Superintendent said school may be able to purchase.

(4) Teachers. Teachers employed in country schools shall furnish to the State Superintendent satisfactory evidence of professional training to their credit, and all teachers must render efficient service of a high grade.

(5) Attendance. In order to receive State aid, the school district must not have a scholastic enrollment of more than three hundred pupils, exclusive of transfers, and the attendance record of all such districts for the previous year must not be less than fifty per cent of the entire time that the school was in session, and said district must maintain an attendance record during the year in which it receives such aid of at least sevexty-five per cent, unless it can be shown to the satisfaction of the State Board of Education that the non-attendance is due to one or more of the following causes: (1) attendance elsewhere; (2) completion of the course; (3) extreme poverty of the family; (4) physical or mental incapacity; (5) lack of transportation facilities beyond a two and one-half mile limit; and provided that no school receiving aid under the provisions of this Act shall be located in a town or city having more than one thousand population according to the last Federal census.

(6) Local Tax. The school district must have levied and be collecting a local school tax of not less than fifty cents on the one hundred dodlars valuation; and that in no case shall the assessed valuation be less than the valuation of the county assessor, as a requirement before the district can derive benefits from this fund; provided, that for the school year 1917–1918 any district which having voted the required tax, whether being collected for that year or not, shall be entitled to receive the benefits of this Act; provided, that the State Board of Education shall, when it is necessary to extend the term of school, for one time only, apportion any amount not to exceed two hundred dollars, whether any tax has been levied or not, and State aid may be continued upon condition that the district levy and collect the required local tax.

(7) Subjects. Each country school shall teach the common school subjects as prescribed by law. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 2726d. General power of State Board of Education.—The State Board of Education shall be authorized and it shall be their duty to make such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with the terms of this Act, as in its opinion may be necessary to carry out the provisions and intentions of this Act. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 2726e. Duties of Superintendent of Public Instruction.—It shall be the duty of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to go in person or to send one of the rural school supervisors authorized by this Act to assist the school communities who may desire the privileges of this Act in their efforts to meet the necessary requirements in order that they may participate in the distribution of the funds herein appropriated.
Before approving any application he shall make a thorough investigation in person or through his representative of the grounds, buildings, equipment and possibilities of each school applying for State aid by appropriation from the State Board of Education. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 2726f. Second aid.—Before State aid shall be granted a second time to the same district, it shall be necessary that all reports as required
Art. 2726g

EDUCATION—PUBLIC

of the school officials of said district shall have been received and approved; that the State Superintendent of Public Instruction or one of the rural school supervisors shall have visited said district and the State Superintendent of Public Instruction has advised the State Board of Education that in his judgment the school officials of such district have made diligent efforts to meet the requirements and standards as set forth in this Act, that the district receiving State aid has made satisfactory progress under existing conditions, and that, in his opinion further aid would prove a good and desirable investment for the State in promoting the educational interests of the people of such district, provided that no school shall be granted State aid a second time until all applications on file for first aid from schools entitled to aid under this Act shall have been acted upon. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 2726g. Warrants and reports.—Warrants for all money granted under the provisions of this Act shall be transmitted by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to treasurers or depositories of school districts to which State aid is granted in the same manner as warrants for State apportionment are now transmitted, and it shall be the duty of all treasurers or depositories to make annually itemized reports under oath to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction of the expenditure of all money granted under the provisions of this Act. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 2726h. Apportionment privileges.—Country schools shall be entitled to share in the distribution of State and county available school funds, and in all other school funds in the same manner as other school districts; and in case high school grades are maintained the community schools shall still be entitled to participate in the distribution of any State aid that may be extended by the Legislature of Texas for vocational or industrial purposes to high schools of the State, though it accept the provisions of this Act. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 2726i. Rural school supervisors.—For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this Act in a businesslike manner and in order that State aid may be administered judiciously to the schools of the State, the State Board of Education is hereby authorized to appropriate four thousand dollars annually out of the appropriation herein provided to pay the salaries to rural school supervisors, who shall be appointed by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction because of their special fitness to help, aid and assist rural communities in meeting the requirements and maintaining the standards set forth in the provisions of this Act; and the State Board of Education is further authorized and directed to appropriate four thousand dollars additional, or such part thereof as may be necessary, out of the appropriation provided for in this Act to defray the traveling expenses of the rural school supervisors in making personal visits to communities applying for State aid and in performing the supervisory duties made incumbent upon the Department of Education by the provisions of this Act. [Id., § 9.]

Art. 2726j. Conflicting laws and opinions.—All laws or parts of laws in conflict with this Act are hereby repealed, and in case it is held that any section or provision of this Act is unconstitutional, such ruling shall not impair other parts and provisions of this Act. [Id., § 10.]

COUNTY SCHOOL TRUSTEES

Art. 2749a. Powers of trustees; election; tenure; appointment by commissioners court in certain counties; duties of State Superintendent of Public Instruction as to elections.—The general management and control of the public free schools in each county of the State shall be vested in five county school trustees elected from the county, one of whom shall be elected from the county at large by the qualified voters of the common school districts of the county, and one from each commissioner's precinct by the qualified voters of each commissioners' precinct, who shall hold office for a term of two years, or until their successors are elected or appointed and qualified. The time for the election of county school trustees shall be the same as that for the election of trustees of the common school districts, the first Tuesday in April of each year; the order for the election of county school trustees to be made by the county judge at least thirty days prior to the date of said election, and there shall be one voting place designated by the order for each common school district. The election officers appointed to hold the election for trustees in each common school district shall hold the election at the same place therein for the county school trustees. The county school trustees now in office shall continue in office for the terms for which they were chosen and qualified. The first election under this Act shall be held on the first Tuesday in April, 1916, at which time there shall be elected two county school trustees for a term of two years, and the second election under this Act shall be held on the first Tuesday in April, 1917, at which time there shall be elected in each county three county school trustees; and each year thereafter there shall be elected alternately two county school trustees and three county school trustees in each county. If there be any county in Texas at the time of the taking effect of this Act which has no county school trustees as provided for in Chapter 26, Acts of the Thirty-second Legislature, Regular Session [Vernon's Sayles' Civ. St. 1914, arts. 2849a-2849o], the county commissioners court thereof shall appoint five county school trustees, two to serve until the election and qualification of their successors in 1916 and three to serve until the election and qualification of their successors in 1917; and the qualified electors of the common school districts of each county shall annually thereafter elect county school trustees as are required under the provisions of this Act. The State Superintendent of Public Instruction is hereby directed and required to prepare a proper form of the ballot to be used in the election of county school trustees, and such other explanation of the laws as, in his judgment, may be necessary, and transmit the same to the county judge of each county at least sixty days prior to the date of the election of county school trustees. [Act March 5, 1915, ch. 36, § 2.]

Explanatory.—The above act amends chapter 26 of the Acts of the Regular Session of the 23rd Leg. (Vernon's Sayles' Civ. St. 1914, arts. 2849a-2849o). As the powers of the county school trustees are clearly extended beyond the management and control of the public high schools in common school districts, provisions relating to its functions in the management of the schools in general are placed under a separate chapter. The provisions of the amendatory act relating specifically to high schools are classified to chapter 15A of this title in accordance with the former disposition of the act amended. Took effect 90 days after adjournment of Legislature on March 29, 1915.

Submission of question of annexing territory to popular vote.—Under Acts 34th Leg. c. 36, giving county school trustees general control and management of free public schools in each county, question of annexing territory of a school district abolished to other districts need not be submitted to a vote of districts to be affected, in absence of a specific requirement. Price v. County School Trustees of Navarro County (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1140.

Mandamus to control discretion.—Under Acts 34th Leg. c. 36, giving county school trustees general control of public free schools in each county, held, that county school trustees have a broad discretion, and trustees of a district could not prevent proposed abolishment of district and its annexation to other districts by writ of mandamus. Price v. County School Trustees of Navarro County (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1140.

Art. 2749b. Classification of schools; course of study for schools.—It shall be the duty of the county school trustees to classify the schools of the county in accordance with such regulations as may be prescribed by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction into elementary schools and high schools for the purpose of promoting the efficiency of the elementary schools and of establishing and promoting high schools at convenient and suitable places. In classifying the schools and in establishing high schools the county school trustees shall confer and advise with the County Superintendent of Public Instruction and the school trustees of each district at interest, and shall give due regard to schools already located, to the distribution of population, and to the advancement in their studies. The county trustees shall not so classify any school as to deprive any child of scholastic age of its right to receive instruction in the grades to which it belongs in the public school of the district in which it resides, unless arrangements are made by the county school trustees for the said child to attend a school of proper classification free of charge in another district which is within reasonable walking distance of the home of said child; that is, a school of proper classification which is not more than three miles from the home of said child; the distance to be computed according to the route or road commonly traveled in going from the home of said child to the school building, or unless the county school trustees shall arrange for the free transportation daily of said child to and from the school of proper classification, in which case the expense of such transportation shall be paid for by the district trustees out of the funds of the district in which the child actually resides; and it is hereby made the duty of the County Superintendent of Public Instruction and of the county school trustees to see that every child of scholastic age is properly provided for as herein required, and the State Superintendent of Public Instruction is hereby directed and required to transmit definite and specific instructions to the County Superintendent of Public Instruction, the county school trustees and the district school trustees with respect to the proper observance and administration of this law, to the end that no child shall be deprived of its right to attend school. The county school trustees shall, in co-operation with the County Superintendent of Public Instruction, prescribe a course of study for the public schools of the county conforming to the law and the requirements of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. [Id., § 3.]

Free transportation of pupils.—Acts 34th Leg. c. 56, does not authorize free transportation of children to and from common schools. Jennings v. Carson (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 562.

Art. 2749c. Subdivision of county into school districts and change of district lines; annual meeting of district school trustees; call of other meetings; consolidation of common school districts; record of proceedings; duties of state superintendent; transfer of school children.—The county school trustees are authorized to exercise the authority heretofore vested in the county commissioners court with respect to subdividing the county into school districts, and to making changes in school district lines. The county school trustees shall call an annual meeting of the district school trustees of the county, to be held at the county seat at some convenient season in August or September of each year, at which meeting shall be considered by the said county school trustees and the district school trustees in joint meeting, presided over by the chairman of the county school trustees, questions dealing with the location of high schools and the teaching of high school subjects, the classification of schools and such other matters as may pertain to the location, conduct, maintenance and discipline of schools, the terms thereof and other matters of interest in school affairs of the county, and the county school trustees shall be guided in their action by the result of the deliberation of such meeting, not inconsistent with law. The county school trustees may also call other meetings of the district school trustees, when deemed necessary by them, or on the petition of a majority of such district school trustees. The county school trustees shall have authority to consolidate two or more common school districts into a larger common school district where a majority of the qualified electors of each common school district at interest shall petition the county school trustees for consolidation in order that a high school may be established for the children of high school advancement in the common school districts so consolidated. The County Superintendent, as secretary of the county school trustees, shall keep an accurate and complete record in a well-bound book provided for that purpose, the field notes of all changes made in school district lines, and of all proceedings of the county school trustees, including the consolidation of school districts. A certified copy of such change in a school district line and also of the record in effecting the consolidation of school districts shall be made and transmitted by the County Superintendent to the county clerk, and it shall be the duty of the county clerk to record the field notes and certified copy of such change in a well-bound book to be designated as the “Record of School Districts.” It is hereby made the duty of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to prepare and transmit all necessary instructions and forms for use of the county school trustees and the people of common school districts in effecting the consolidation of school districts for high school purposes. In providing better schooling for the children and in carrying out the provisions of Section 2 of this Act [Art. 2749a] the County Superintendent of Public Instruction shall, on the recommendation of the county school trustees, transfer children of scholastic age from one school district to another, and the amount of funds to be transferred with each child of scholastic age shall be the amount to which the district from which the child is transferred is entitled to receive. [Id., § 4.]

See art. 3315 and notes.

Grounds of objection to change of districts.—That a maintenance tax has been voted in a common school district does not affect the power of the county trustees to reduce the district's area. Oliver v. Smith (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 525.

The fact that the value of property would be lessened by a change in the lines of a common school district, although possibly admissible to show result of proposed change, cannot be the basis of an objection if for best interests of schools. Price v. County School Trustees of Navarro County (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1140.

Remedy of taxpayers and other persons interested.—Under Const. 1876, art. 5, § 8, as amended in 1931, Acts 33d Leg. c. 129, § 1 (Vernon's Statutes Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 2381) and Acts 34th Leg. c. 36, § 34th, the district court can supervise the action of school trustees in refusing to create a new district. Jennings v. Carson (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 662.

Taxpayers, not having objected to order creating school district, cannot, after taxes have been assessed, have the order creating district declared void on ground that it was not formed for convenience of scholars; but the validity of the order can only be questioned by quo warranto against the trustees in accord with acts 34th Leg. c. 36, declaring them a corporation. Minear v. McVea (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1048.

Any power of the court to correct abuse of discretion of county school trustees, in changing territory of one school district to another, can be exercised only in quo warranto instituted by a proper party. Oliver v. Smith (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 528.

Art. 2749d. Supervisory powers of district court.—The district court shall have general supervisory control of the actions of the county board of school trustees in creating, changing and modifying school districts. [Id., § 4a.]

Constitutionality.—This article is not void because not expressed in the preamble. Jennings v. Carson (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 562.

Power of court to compel action.—This article does not give the district court authority to compel the school trustees to create a new district, but under Const. 1876, art. 5, § 8, as amended in 1931, Acts 33d Leg. c. 129, § 1 (Vernon's Statutes Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 2381), and art. 2749e, the district court can supervise the action of school trustees in refusing to create a new district. Jennings v. Carson (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 562.

Direct appeal from order of trustees.—Under this act appeals to the district court may be made directly from action of the county board of school trustees in consolidating districts. Clark v. Hallam (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 964. See, also, Jennings v. Carson (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 562.

In view of this article and art. 2749h, post, and Vernon's Statutes Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 4509, 4510, held that appeals from action of school trustees may be made to district court, since appeal provided by art. 2749h has reference to administrative acts. Collin County School Trustees v. Stiff (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 216.

This article held not controlled by section 10 of the act, post, art. 2749h, providing for appeals to state superintendent, and thence to state board of education. Price v. County School Trustees of Navarro County (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1140.

Restraining action of trustees.—Under this article district court had jurisdiction of a petition to enjoin action of county school trustees in abolishing a school district and annexing it to two other districts. Price v. County School Trustees of Navarro County (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1140.

Art. 2749e. Trustees as body corporate; powers; title to school property.—The county school trustees of each county shall constitute a body corporate, by the name of the county school trustees of —— County, State of Texas, and in that name may acquire and hold real and personal property, sue and be sued, and may receive bequests and donations or other moneys or funds coming legally into their hands, and may perform other acts for the promotion of education in the county. The title to any school property belonging to the county, the title of which has heretofore been vested in the county judge and his successors in office, or any school property that may be acquired, shall vest in the county school trustees and their successors in office for public free school purposes. [Id., § 7.]

See Minear v. McVea (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1048.

Art. 2749f. County school superintendent as secretary and executive officer; record of proceedings.—The county school trustees shall designate the County Superintendent as their secretary and executive officer, and it shall be the duty of the County Superintendent to keep a true and correct record of all the proceedings of said county school trustees in a well-bound book, which shall be open to public inspection. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 2749g. Apportionment of school funds.—Upon receiving notice from the State Superintendent of Public Instruction of the amount of State available school funds apportioned to the county, exclusive of all independent districts having each more than one hundred and fifty school districts, it shall be the duty of the county school trustees, acting with the County Superintendent, to apportion all available State and county funds to the school districts as prescribed by law. [Id., § 9.]
See art. 2755, post.

Art. 2749h. Appeals.—All appeals from the decisions of the County Superintendent of Public Instruction shall lie to the county school trustees and from the said county trustees to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and thence to the State Board of Education. [Id., § 10.]
See arts. 2752, 4509, 4510, as to appeals to and from superintendent.

Appeals to district court.—Under Acts 34th Leg. c. 36, amending Acts 32d Leg. c. 26 (Vernon's Sayers' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 2849a-2849b) §§ 4, 4a, 8, 10, a party aggrieved by the act of school trustees in creating districts may seek relief from the district court without first appealing to the state superintendent and board of education. Jennings v. Carson (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 562.

In view of this article and art. 2749d and Vernon's Sayers' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 4509, 4510, held, that appeals from action of school trustees may be made to district court, since appeal provided by this article has reference to administrative acts. Collin County School Trustees v. Stiff (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 216.

Art. 2749d, giving district court general supervisory control over action of county school trustees in creating, etc., school districts, held not controlled by this article or Vernon's Sayers' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 4509, 4510, providing for appeals to state superintendent, and thence to state board of education. Price v. County School Trustees of Navarro County (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1140.

Art. 2749i. Meetings; compensation.—The county school trustees shall hold meetings once each quarter, on the first Monday in August, in November, in February and in May, or as soon thereafter as practicable, and at other times when called by the president of the county school trustees or at the instance of any two members of the county school trustees and the County Superintendent, the meeting place to be at the county seat and in the office of the County Superintendent of Public Instruction. Each county school trustee shall be paid three ($3.00) dollars per day for the time spent in attending meetings provided for in this section, such payments to be made from the general fund of the county by warrants drawn on order of the commissioners court, after approval of the account, properly sworn to, by the president of the county school trustees; provided, that no county school trustee shall receive more than thirty-six dollars for any one year. [Id., § 11.]

Art. 2749j. County superintendent to keep record of terms of office of trustees of common school districts; qualifications of county school trustees; election; oath; organization.—The County Superintendent of Public Instruction, as secretary of the county board of education, shall be required to keep an accurate record of the terms of office of the school trustees of each common school district and of the county school trustees, and shall furnish to the county judge at least sixty days prior to the date of the election of district and county school trustees the number of trustees to be elected in each common school district and the number of county school trustees to be elected from each commissioners precinct or in the county at large, as the case may be. The county school trustees shall be qualified voters of the precinct or county from which they are elected, and four of them shall reside in different commissioners' precincts. They shall be of good moral character, able to read and speak the English language, shall be persons of good education, and shall be in sympathy with public free schools. The county school trustees shall be elected as prescribed in Section 2 of this Act [Art. 2749a], and the returns of the election for county school trustees shall be made to the county clerk within five days after such election shall have been held, to be delivered by him to the commissioners court at its first meeting thereafter to be canvassed and the results declared as in cases of other elections; and the county clerk, on behalf of the commissioners court, shall issue to the county school trustees their commissions and impress thereon the seal of the said court. The oath of office prescribed by the Constitution of the State for State and county officers must be taken by the county school trustees before the commission shall be issued, the said oath of office to be filed in the office of the county clerk. At the regular meeting in May, and after the qualification of new members the county school trustees shall organize by electing one of their number president. [Id., § 12.]

Art. 2749k. Vacancies; quorum.—All vacancies in the office of county school trustees shall be filled by election by the remaining county school trustees. Three of the county school trustees shall constitute a quorum, and all questions shall be decided by a majority vote. [Id., § 13.]

Art. 2749l. Repeal; partial invalidity.—All laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act are hereby repealed, and in case it is declared by the courts that any part of this Act is unconstitutional, such decision shall not impair other parts and provisions of this Act. [Id., § 15.]

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT AND OTHER OFFICERS

Art. 2752. Shall have immediate supervision of schools.

Art. 2755. Shall apportion funds among school districts.

Art. 2756. Shall approve contracts and vouchers.

Art. 2759. Authority of county superintendent as to transfers.

Art. 2760. Application of parent or guardian.

Art. 2761. To district in adjoining county.

Art. 2752. Shall have immediate supervision of schools.

Note.—By Act March 5, 1915, amending Act 1911, p. 34 (art. 2749h, ante), all appeals from the decisions of the county superintendent shall lie to the county school trustees and from such trustees to the state superintendent, and thence to the State Board of Education.

Art. 2755. Shall apportion funds among school districts.

See art. 2749f.

Art. 2756. Shall approve contracts and vouchers.

See post, art. 1513h, Penal Code.

Approval of contracts and vouchers.—Under this article the county superintendent's power as to teachers' contracts is not confined merely to a revision of the matter of salary, but he has full discretion to examine and decide as to the propriety of every such contract, and to approve or reject same as his sound judgment may direct. Thomas v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 129.

It was not an abuse of discretion for the county judge, as ex officio county superintendent, to reject a contract between trustees of a school district and a teacher, where it appeared that the teacher was under criminal charges for misappropriating school money, and that the contract employed him for nine months while the other teachers were employed for only eight, and that it gave him a salary which the judge deemed excessive. Id.

Failure of teacher to compel by mandamus approval of her contract by county judge held an acquiescence in the refusal, and there was no valid contract to teach. Boyles v. Potter County (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 210.

Existence of valid contract between trustees of a school district and a teacher is a condition precedent to right to issue vouchers and of county treasurer to pay them. Id.

Where a bank received money of a school district and paid the same out on warrants for the benefit of the district, that the county superintendent did not approve the warrants as provided by this article did not authorize the district to recover the money. Moody v. Chesser (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 22.
Art. 2759. Authority of county superintendent as to transfers. Forgery of check for school funds.—Under Pen. Code 1911, arts. 924–926, 929, 931, 963, Rev. St. 1911, arts. 2759–2761, Act March 6, 1911, art. 2549a et seq., post, the county superintendent who drew a check for school funds and then wrongfully signed the name of the payee, held guilty of forgery. Carrell v. State (Cr. App.) 184 S. W. 217.

Treasurers of School Funds

Art. 2769. Depository shall keep accounts.

Art. 2771. Treasurer of independent district: best bidder of interest on average daily balances; tenure; bond.—In an independent district of more than 150 scholastics, whether it be a city which has assumed control of the schools within its limits or a corporation for school purposes only, the treasurer of the school fund shall be that person or corporation who offers satisfactory bond and the best bid of interest on the average daily balances for the privilege of acting as such treasurer. The treasurer when thus selected shall be required to serve until his successor shall have been duly selected and qualified, and he shall be required to give bond in double the estimated amount of the receipts coming annually into his hands. Said bond shall be made payable to the president of the board and his successors in office, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the treasurer’s duties and the payment of the funds received by him upon the draft of the president of the school board drawn upon order duly entered of the board of trustees. Said bond shall be further conditioned that the treasurer shall safely keep and faithfully disburse all funds coming into his hands as treasurer, and shall faithfully pay over to his successor all balances remaining in his hands. It shall be approved by the school board and the State Department of Education shall be notified of the treasurer by the president of the school board filing a copy of said bond in said department. [Acts 1905, p. 263, § 154a; Act March 30, 1917, ch. 160, § 1] Explanatory.—The act amends art. 2771, tit. 48, ch. 12, Rev. Civ. St. 1911. Took effect 90 days after March 31, 1917, date of adjournment.

Art. 2772. Purposes for which funds may be expended.

Payment to principal as janitor.—This article does not authorize payment from free school fund to principal as janitor. Dodson v. Jones (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 253.
Employment of attorney.—Under arts. 2722, 2822, 2823, 2856, 2882, as to school districts and powers of school trustees, trustees of an independent school district incorporated by the Legislature could employ and pay from the special maintenance fund an attorney to sue to cancel a teacher’s contract. Arrington v. Jones (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 361.

Art. 2773. Treasurers shall make reports.
See Penal Code, art. 1515b, post.

Scope of act.—This article embraces all treasurers of school funds, including the treasurer of an independent school district organized under article 2851. Hall v. State (Cr. App.) 188 S. W. 1092.

Decisions Relating to Subject in General

Actions for funds.—Where the legal depository of county funds refused to sue for money deposited elsewhere by former trustees of a school district, the existing trustees themselves may maintain the suit. Moody v. Chesser (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 917.

The oath of office prescribed by the Constitution of the State for State and county officers must be taken by the county school trustees before the commission shall be issued, the said oath of office to be filed in the office of the county clerk. At the regular meeting in May, and after the qualification of new members the county school trustees shall organize by electing one of their number president. [Id., § 12.]

CHAPTER THIRTEEN
SCHOLASTIC CENSUS

Article 2774. Time and manner of taking census.—The County Superintendent of Public Instruction shall, and the Board of Trustees of the independent school districts, on the first day of January of each year, or as soon as practicable thereafter, appoint one of the trustees of each school district, or some other qualified person, to take the scholastic census, who shall be known as the census trustee of the district. "It shall be the duty of the census trustee to take, between the first day of March and the first day of April, after his appointment, a census of all the children that will be over seven and under eighteen years of age on the first day of the following September," and who are residents of the school district on said first day of April, and to make report under oath to the County Superintendent on or before the first day of June next thereafter. In taking the said census he shall visit each home, residence, habitation and place of abode, and shall, by actual observation and interrogation, enumerate the children thereof in the following manner: He shall use for each parent, or guardian or person having control of any such children, a prescribed form showing the name, color and nationality of the person rendering such children, the name and number of the school district in which the children reside, and the name, sex and date of birth of each child of which he is a parent or guardian, or of which he has control, and which child will be over seven and under eighteen years of age on the first day of September next following. The census trustee shall require such form to be subscribed and sworn to by the person rendering the children, and he is hereby authorized to administer oaths for this purpose. When the census trustee visits any home or house or place of abode of a family, and fails to find either the parent or any person having legal control, it shall be the duty of the census trustee to leave the prescribed census blank for the use of parents at such home or place of abode, with a note to the parent or guardian having legal control of such child or children, requiring that the form be filled out, sworn and subscribed to before the census trustee, or any officer authorized to administer oaths, and that the blank, when so filled out, shall be delivered by the parent or person having legal control of the child or children to the census trustee. [Acts 1903, p. 263, § 89; Act March 22, 1915, ch. 121, § 1.]
Took effect 90 days after March 20, 1915, date of adjournment.

COMPULSORY EDUCATION

Art. 2779a. Attendance requirements and provisions.

Art. 2779b. Exemptions.

Art. 2779c. Public aid to indigent parents.

Art. 2779d. Excuses for absences.

Art. 2779e. Attendance officers; election; appointment in independent school districts; salary; performance of duties by other officers.

Art. 2779f. Powers and duties of attendance officer.

Art. 2779g. Duties of school superintendents; list of school children; forms and blanks; reports by teachers.

Art. 2779h. Repeal; partial invalidity.

Article 2779a. Attendance requirements and provisions.—Every child in this State who is eight years and not more than fourteen years old shall be required to attend the public schools in the district of its residence, or in some other district to which it may be transferred, as provided by law, for a period of not less than sixty days for the scholastic year.
beginning September 1, 1916, and for a period of not less than eighty days for the scholastic years beginning September 1, 1917, and for the scholastic year 1918–19, and each scholastic year thereafter a minimum attendance of 100 days shall be required. The period of compulsory school attendance at each school shall begin at the opening of the school term unless otherwise authorized by the district school trustees and notice given by the trustees prior to the beginning of such school term; provided, that no child shall be required to attend school for a longer period than the maximum term of the public school in the district where such child resides. [Act March 13, 1913, ch. 49, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after adjournment of legislature on March 20, 1915.

Validity of ordinance.—In view of Acts 34th Leg. c. 49, held, that ordinance of municipality requiring vaccination of children as condition precedent to their attendance at school cannot be sustained under article §38, giving municipality power to enact health legislation, or on the ground that there were Mexicans and others in the vicinity who were subject to and carried smallpox. Waldschmit v. City of New Braunfels (Civ.

Computation of age.—The provision that every child of 8 years and not more than 14 years old shall be required to attend public schools, etc., held not applicable to child whose fourteenth birthday came October 12th; school term in district of his residence not beginning until October 30th. Butler v. State (Cr. App.) 194 S. W. 166.

Art. 2779b. Exemptions.—The following classes of children are exempt from the requirements of this Act:

(a) Any child in attendance upon a private or parochial school or who is being properly instructed by a private tutor.

(b) Any child whose bodily or mental condition is such as to render attendance inadvisable, and who holds definite certificate of a reputable physician specifying this condition and covering the period of absence.

(c) Any child who is blind, deaf, dumb or feeble-minded, for the instruction of whom no adequate provision has been made by the school district.

(d) Any child living more than two and one-half miles by direct and traveled road from the nearest public school supported for children of the same race and color of such child, and with no free transportation provided.

(e) Any child more than twelve years of age who has satisfactorily completed the work of the fourth grade of a standard elementary school of seven grades, and whose services are needed in support of a parent or other person standing in parental relation to the child, may, on presentation of proper evidence to the County Superintendent of Public Instruction, be exempted from further attendance at school. [Id., § 2.]

Cited, Odam v. State (Cr. App.) 194 S. W. 829.

Art. 2779c. Public aid to indigent parents.—If any parent, guardian or custodian of any child or children who are not exempt from attendance by some of the foregoing provisions of this bill shall make satisfactory proof to the board of trustees that they are financially unable to furnish such child or children with the necessary books with which to attend school, the County Superintendent of Public Instruction of the county where such parent, guardian or custodian resides, shall furnish, upon the recommendation of the district trustees, text books for such purposes to such child or children, which books shall be furnished and paid for upon the certificate of such officers by the board of county commissioners of the county in which such child or children reside, and which said payment for books shall be made out of the general fund of the county. [Id.,
§ 3.]

Art. 2779d. Excuses for absences.—Any child not exempted from the provisions of this Act may be excused for temporary absence due to personal sickness, sickness or death in the family, quarantine, severe storm which has destroyed bridges and made the regular means of travel dangerous, or for unusual causes acceptable to the teacher, principal or superintendent of the school in which said child is enrolled; provided that the excuses are in writing and signed by the parent or guardian of said child; but any case so excused may be investigated by the authorities discharging the duties of attendance officer for the school from which said child is so excused. [Id., § 4.]

Note.—Sec. 5 of the act makes it an offense to employ children under 14 who are not excused from attendance on school, and is set forth in Vernon's Pen. Code 1916, as art. 1513f.

Art. 2779e. Attendance officer; election; appointment in independent school districts; salary; performance of duties by other officers.—The county school trustees of any county having a scholastic population of more than three thousand may elect a school attendance officer for said county upon petition of at least fifty resident freeholders of said county setting forth reasons good and valid in the judgment of the county school trustees why said county shall have an attendance officer; provided, that a public hearing shall be had on said petition after due notice of such hearing shall have been given by publishing said notice in a newspaper published at the county seat for three consecutive weeks, if there be such a newspaper, and if there be no such newspaper, then by posting written or printed notices in at least three public places within the county, one of which notices shall be posted at the courthouse door of said county, and if, after said hearing of said county board of trustees, in their judgment said county board of trustees believe that a school attendance officer is necessary to the proper enforcement of the provisions of this Act, and that the schools of said county will be benefited by having said attendance officer, the said board may elect such officer as herein provided.

The board of trustees of any independent district having a scholastic population of more than two thousand may, after being petitioned and having hearing on said petition, as provided in this section for election of county attendance officer, elect an attendance officer for said independent district, if, in the judgment of said board of trustees, said attendance officer is necessary to the proper enforcement of the provisions of this Act.

Any attendance officer that may be elected by the county school trustees of any county, or by the board of school trustees of any independent school district, may have his salary paid from the available school funds belonging to said county or district, not exceeding two dollars per day for the time actually employed in discharging his duty as such attendance officer; and in any county or independent district where such attendance officer is not elected as provided for in this section, the duties of said attendance officer shall devolve upon the school superintendents and peace officers of such county or district who shall perform the duties of such attendance officer without additional pay. Counties or independent school districts which may avail themselves of the option to elect school attendance officers may elect the probation officer or some officer or officers of the juvenile court of said county to serve as such attendance officer for said county or for said independent district or independent districts located in said county. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 2779f. Powers and duties of attendance officer.—The person or persons performing the duties of attendance officer or officers for any county or district shall have power to investigate all cases of unexcused absences from school, to make and file in the proper court complaint in due form against any person or persons violating the provisions of this Act, to administer oaths and to serve legal process, to enforce the provisions of this Act, to keep records of all cases of any kind investigated by him in the discharge of his duties, and to make reports of his work as the State Superintendent may require, providing that nothing in this Act shall be construed to authorize any attendance officer to invade or enter without permission of the owner or tenant thereof, or the head of any family residing therein, any private home, or private residence, or any room or apartment thereof, except to serve lawful process upon any parent, guardian or other person standing in parental relation to any child affected by this Act, or to forcibly take corporal custody of any child anywhere without the permission of the parent or guardian thereof, or other person standing in parental relation to such child, except in obedience to valid process issued by a court of competent jurisdiction, and provided that otherwise than as hereinbefore provided, such attendance officer shall have the power to enforce the provisions of this Act. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 2779g. Duties of school superintendents; list of school children; forms and blanks; reports by teachers.—It shall be the duty of the County Superintendent of Public Instruction to furnish to the Superintendent of Schools of each school district in the county, and to the principal of the school in case there be no superintendent, a complete list of all children of scholastic age belonging in said district, as shown by the last scholastic census and the record of transfers to and from said district. The superintendents and principals of the various schools of said county shall, within five days from the date that the provisions of the compulsory attendance act applies to said school, report to said County Superintendent the names of all children subject to the provisions of this Act who have not enrolled in said school, and it shall be the duty of the Superintendent, principal or other official of private, denominational or parochial schools to furnish to said County Superintendent a list of all children of scholastic age enrolled in the school presided over by said official and the district in which said child was enumerated in the public school census. From the reports received from the Superintendents and principals of the public schools and from the officials of the private, denominational and parochial schools, the County Superintendent shall make up a complete list of all children within scholastic age enrolled in the various districts of said county who have not enrolled in some school and are complying with the compulsory attendance act, and said list shall be furnished to the authorities to whom has been delegated the power to enforce the provisions hereof for said county or district, which authorities shall proceed to carry out their respective duties as prescribed in Section 6 of this Act [Art. 2779c]. All notices, forms and blanks to be used by any of the Superintendents, principals or officials of any school shall be prescribed by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. It shall be the duty of any teacher giving instruction to any child within compulsory attendance age to report promptly to the attendance officer or other person acting in his stead as herein provided, any unexcused absences, for his action. [Id., § 8.]

Note.—Sec. 9 of the act makes it a misdemeanor for any parent to fail to comply with the act, and is set forth in Vernon's Pen. Code 1916, as art. 1513g. The section further provides for proceedings in the juvenile court to compel compliance with the act, and this provision is set forth in Vernon's Code Cr. Proc. 1916, as art. 1207e.

Art. 2779h. Repeal; partial invalidity.—All laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act are hereby repealed, and in case it is declared by the courts that any section or provision of this Act is unconstitutional, such decision shall not impair other sections or provisions of this Act. [Id., § 10.]

TEACHERS' CERTIFICATES AND EXAMINATIONS

Art. 2780. Shall present valid certificate.
2783. Prescribed studies; summer normal schools and county teachers' institutes. 2814. Cancellation of certificate; appeal; reinstatement.
2784. Shall keep records and make reports. 2814. Cancellation of certificate; appeal; reinstatement.
2786. County board of examiners, etc.

Article 2780. Shall present valid certificate.

Validity of contract.—Under arts. 2780 and 2781, and Pen. Code 1911, art. 1512, first-grade certificate granted by county superintendent and not by the state superintendent held void, and where teacher, when contracting, had no other certificate, the contract was void, though he subsequently obtained a first-grade certificate from the state superintendent. Richards v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 50.

Where court found that contract to pay $75 a month to relator as school principal and $50 a month as janitor was made to evade arts. 2780, 2781, and that another was employed as janitor, vouchers for the additional salary as janitor were properly rejected. The act took effect 90 days after March 20, 1915, date of adjournment.

See art. 2749b.

Art. 2784. Shall keep records and make reports.

See Penal Code, art. 1515b, post.

Art. 2786. County board of examiners, etc.

Validity of contract.—Under art. 2780, Pen. Code 1911, art. 1512, and this article, first-grade certificate granted by county superintendent and not by the state superintendent held void, and where teacher, when contracting, had no other certificate, the contract was void, though he subsequently obtained a first-grade certificate from the state superintendent. Richards v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 50.

Art. 2806. Teachers' certificates; classification of schools.—A teacher's diploma conferred by the University of Texas upon a student who has satisfactorily completed at least four full courses in the Department of Education, and who has satisfied the requirements for the degree of Bachelor of Arts, when presented to the State Department of Education with satisfactory evidence of having done the required work in education, shall entitle the holder to receive a State permanent certificate valid for life unless cancelled by lawful authority.

A person who has satisfactorily completed four full courses in the College of Arts and one full course in the Department of Education of the University of Texas, or in any college or university, or in any junior college in Texas ranked as first class by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, upon the recommendation of the State Board of Examiners, shall, upon presentation of satisfactory evidence of having done the required work, be entitled to receive from the State Department of Education a State first-grade certificate valid until the fourth anniversary of the thirty-first day of August of the calendar year in which the certificate was issued, unless cancelled by lawful authority.

Any school applying for approval under the provisions of this Act shall pay a fee of twenty-five dollars, and each applicant for teacher's certificate on college credentials shall pay a fee of one dollar to cover the expenses of inspection and standardization of approved colleges.

It shall be the duty of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to appoint a suitable person or persons of recognized college standing, who shall make a thorough inspection of the equipment and standards of instruction maintained in each school applying for approval under this Act, and who shall make a detailed report to the State Board of Examiners for their consideration before any recommendation is made to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction for his approval.

The State Superintendent shall have each school receiving the benefits of this Act thoroughly inspected from year to year as to its standards and facilities of instruction, and he shall have authority to suspend any school from the benefits of this Act which fails for any reason to maintain the approved standards of classification. [Acts 1911, p. 189, § 1 (116); Act Feb. 2, 1917, ch. 8, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The act amends sec. 116, ch. 96, Acts Regular Session 32nd Leg., so as to read as above. The act took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment.

Art. 2811. State kindergarten certificates; state permanent kindergarten certificates.

See arts. 2909 1/2-2909 1/2b, and note thereunder.

Art. 2814. Cancellation of certificate; appeal; reinstatement.—Any certificate may be cancelled for cause by the authority issuing it; and the State Superintendent of Public Instruction shall have power to cancel any certificate upon satisfactory evidence that the holder thereof is conducting his school in violation of the laws of the State or is a person unworthy to instruct the youth of this State; provided, if any teacher holding a certificate to teach in the public schools of this State, shall enter into a written contract with any board of trustees to teach in any public school of this State, and shall, after making such contract and without the consent of the trustees, abandon said contract, except for good cause, such abandonment shall be considered sufficient grounds for the cancellation of said teacher's certificate, and the same may be cancelled upon the complaint of said trustees, or either of them; provided, that before any certificate shall be cancelled, the holder thereof shall be notified, and shall have an opportunity to be heard, and he shall have the right of appeal from such decision to the State Superintendent, and the State Board of Education; provided, that when the State Superintendent shall have cancelled the certificate, the appeal shall be to the State Board of Education; and provided further that the State Superintendent shall have the authority, upon satisfactory evidence being presented, to reinstate any teacher's certificate theretofore cancelled under the provisions of this Article, and upon a refusal of the Superintendent to so reinstate such certificate, the applicant shall have the right of appeal to the 2841. Levy of bond tax.

2842. Tax must be levied until bonds are paid.
2848. Expenditure of proceeds of bonds.

SCHOOL PROPERTY
2844. Trustees to contract for building.
2845. Lien may not be acquired.
2846. Sale of school property.
2847. Control of school property.
2849. Title to property.

Article 2815. Establishment of districts.

Note.—The authority given to the Commissioners' Court by this article is conferred on the county school trustees by Act March 5, 1915 (art. 2749c, ante).

Change of lines in general.—Under this article, the commissioners did not abuse their discretion in transferring 2,500 acres of land from one school district to another on a petition of citizens interested, after a hearing of the people from both districts. Chastain v. Hoskins (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 421.

Effect of existence of bonded indebtedness.—Vouchers issued by the trustees of a school district for the erection of a school were not "bonded indebtedness" within Rev. St. 1911, art. 2815. Inhibiting a reduction of the area of a school district where a bonded indebtedness exists. Chastain v. Hoskins (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 421.

Petition as prerequisite.—The power conferred upon county commissioners by this article, to alter or subdivide school districts, is very general, and a petition of citizens is not a prerequisite to its exercise. Chastain v. Hoskins (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 421.

Shape and extent of district.—Taxpayers and residents of a school district consolidated by the county commissioners with another to form one so large as to violate this article, held entitled to temporary injunction restraining the commissioners from issuing bonds, etc. Cleveland v. Gainer (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 593.

Under this article, consolidation, in a county of less than 10,000 population, of two districts, to form one 30 miles in length and 16 in width, held illegal. Id.

A common school district as established by the county school trustees by adding territory so that the farthest line thereof is more than four miles from its center, contrary to this article, can have no legal existence. Oliver v. Smith (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 538.

Recognition of districts.—Retrospective curative provision of Acts 33d Leg. c. 129 (Vernon's Savies' Ann. Civ. St. 1911, art. 2815), validating previously formed school districts, which became effective in July, 1913, held not to apply to an illegal consolidation of two school districts effected February 11, 1915. Cleveland v. Gainer (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 593.

A curative act validating school districts previously established and recognized will not be construed to validate the action of county commissioners, in consolidating two districts illegally, which was a fraud upon residents and taxpayers in one of them. Id.

Though order of commissioners' court attempting to transfer 1,000 acres from school district No. 44, to No. 51, was void as former contained less than nine square miles, it was validated by Acts 33d Leg., c. 129 (Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 2815).

An exercise of power by county commissioners under this article is not reviewable except where there is an abuse of discretion. Chastain v. Hoskins (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 421.

An injunction against the issuance of school bonds which, under Acts 33d Leg., c. 129, § 1 (Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 2815), would prevent alteration of the district and a mandatory injunction for the creation of a new district held proper. Jennings v. Carson (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 582.

Taxpayers, not having objected to order creating school district, cannot, after taxes have been assessed, have the order creating district declared void on ground that it was not formed for convenience of scholars; but the validity of the order can only be questioned by quo warranto against the trustees in accord with Acts 24th Leg., c. 96, arts. 2749c, 2749e, declaring them a corporation. Minear v. McVea (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1048.

Art. 2815a. Common county line districts.—The boards of county school trustees of the several counties of the State of Texas shall have full power and authority to create common school districts, to contain territory within two or more counties of this State. In creating a common county line school district the boards of county school trustees of each county having territory in the school created, shall each pass an order describing the territory desired to be created into such school district by metes and bounds, giving the course and direction with the exact length of each line contained in such description and locating each corner called for upon the ground, and shall also give the acres of each survey and parts of survey of lands contained in such district, together with a map showing the conditions upon the ground as described in the field notes, giving the number of acres of land contained in each survey and parts of survey contained in each county; also showing the exact position and location of the county line in the territory created into a common county line school district. The said order of each board of county school trustees shall also designate and name some one of the counties having territory included in the description of such common county line school district to manage and have control of the public school in such common county line school district.

The said common county line school district shall have no authority or power until the said order of the board of county school trustees has been passed by the board of county school trustees of each county having territory included in such common county line school district; provided, that no common county line school district shall be created with a less area than nine square miles, and shall be laid out in as near the shape of a square as possible, and in no event shall the length of such district be greater than the width plus one-half of the width of such district. [Acts 1909, ch. 12; Acts 1911, p. 200, § 50a; Act April 4, 1917, ch. 196, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The act amends sec. 50a, ch. 109, Acts 32nd Legislature. Sec. 2 repeals all laws in conflict and provides that the act shall not affect litigation pending growing out of county line boundaries.

Art. 2815b. Rights, powers and privileges of common county line districts; management; taxes; bonds, etc.

Art. 2815c. Land taken into city or town constituting independent school district shall constitute part of city district; adjustment of bonded indebtedness and property rights.—Whenever the limits of any incorporated city or town within this state, which city or town constitutes an independent school district, shall be so extended or enlarged, or shall have been so extended or enlarged, as to embrace within the limits of such incorporated city or town the whole or any part of any independent or common school district adjacent to such incorporated city or town, that portion of such adjacent independent or common school district so embraced within the corporate limits of such incorporated city or town, shall thereafter become a part and portion of the independent school district constituted by such incorporated city or town.
Provided, however, that if such independent or common school district so brought, in whole or in part, within the limits of such incorporated city or town, shall have an outstanding bonded indebtedness, then such incorporated city or town shall become bound and liable for the payment of such proportion of the bonded indebtedness of such independent or common school district, as the assessed value of the portion of such independent or common school district so brought within the incorporated limits of such city or town, shall bear to the whole assessed values of such independent or common school district, so encroached upon, as such assessed values are shown upon the last preceding county tax assessment rolls, and thereafter such incorporated city or town shall pay, either directly or through the officers of such independent or common school district, the proportion of the interest and principal of such bonded indebtedness for which they so become liable.

If within the portion of such independent or common school district so brought within the limits of an incorporated city or town, there should be situated any real property belonging to such independent or common school district, such city or town may acquire the same upon such terms as may be mutually agreed upon between the city council of such city and the authorities of such independent or common school district. [Act May 19, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 28, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The act amends ch. 15, tit. 48, Rev. Civ. St., by adding thereto, after art. 2815b, a new article to read as above. The act contains another section, designated 1a, embraced within the title of the act, and set forth below as art. 2815d. Became a law May 18, 1917.

Art. 2815d. Town or village incorporated for free school purposes only shall be liable for proportion of bonded indebtedness of part of common school district within its limits.—In all cases where any town or village has heretofore been incorporated or may hereafter be incorporated for free school purposes only and which shall include within the limits thereof any portion or portions of any common school district which has an outstanding bonded indebtedness, than such town or village incorporated for school purposes only shall become bound and liable for the payment of such proportion of the bonded indebtedness of the common school district as the assessed value of the portion of such common school district included within the limits of the district so incorporated for free school purposes only shall bear to the entire assessed value of the common school district from which the same was taken, as such assessed values are shown upon the last preceding county tax assessment roll; and thereafter such incorporated town or village shall pay either directly or through the officers of such common school district the proportion of the interest and principal of such bonded indebtedness for which it is liable. [Id., § 1a.]

See note under art. 2815c.

Art. 2816. Commissioners' court may change district lines.

Note.—The authority given by this section to the commissioners' court is conferred on the county school trustees by Act March 5, 1915 (art. 2749c, ante). Cited, Price v. County School Trustees of Navarro County (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1140.

Art. 2817. Court shall give metes and bounds of each district.

Cited, Oliver v. Smith (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 528. See notes under art. 2815.

Order establishing boundaries.—Where order establishing school district described its boundaries, stating acreage of each survey, fact that territory was taken out of district as originally constituted and allotted to other districts, without describing them by metes and bounds, does not render invalid order creating district. Minear v. McVea (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1045.

Art. 2817a. Validation of districts.—All common school districts in this State heretofore laid out and attempted to be established by the proper officers of any county and heretofore recognized by said county authorities as school districts of said county are hereby validated in all respects as though they had been duly and legally established in the first instance. [Act June 4, 1915, 1st C. S., ch. 28, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after May 28, 1915, date of adjournment.

Trustees

Art. 2819. Election officers; returns; compensation; notice of election; appointment of substitutes; eligibility of school trustees.—The board of trustees of the common school district shall appoint three persons, qualified voters of the district, to hold such election and shall make returns thereof to the board of trustees of the common school district within five days after such election shall have been held. The three persons holding said election shall receive as compensation for their services the sum of one dollar each, to be paid out of the general fund of the county in which said election was held. The board of trustees, when ordering such election and appointing persons to hold election, shall give notice of the time and place where such election will be held, which notice shall be posted at three public places within the district at least twenty days prior to the date of holding said election. If, at the time and place for holding such election, any or all of the persons so appointed to hold such election are absent or refuse to act, then the electors present may select of their number a person or persons to act in the place of those absent or refusing to act. No person shall be eligible to service as a school trustee who cannot read and write and has not been a resident of the school district for six months prior to the election held for trustee. [Acts 1905, p. 263, § 68; Act March 30, 1915, ch. 132, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The title of the act purports to amend articles 2819, 2820, chapter 15, title 48, and articles 2887 and 2889, chapter 18, title 48, Rev. St. 1911, Sec. 1, after the enacting clause, follows the title, except that the number "2819" is erroneously stated as "2818," though the correct number is employed in setting forth the article in its amended form. Sec. 2 repeals all laws in conflict. The act took effect 90 days after March 28, 1915, date of adjournment.

Art. 2820. Returns of election.—The returns of the election of the trustees to be elected as heretofore provided for the control and management of the schools of the district shall be made to the board of trustees where such election is held, and the board of trustees shall meet and canvass the returns of said election within five days after returns have been made and declare the result of said election and issue to the persons so elected their commissions as such trustees, and shall notify the county judges or the county superintendent, if the county has a superintendent. [Acts 1905, p. 263, § 93; Acts 1907, p. 204; Act March 30, 1915, ch. 132, § 1.]

See note under art. 2819.

Art. 2821. Qualifications of trustees; suit to remove trustee not qualified; appointment of temporary trustee; vacancy.—The trustees elected must be able to read and write intelligently the English language, and read, comprehend and interpret the laws of the State of Texas relating to the public school system; and in the event of trustee elected, in the opinion of the county superintendent or the county judge, who is ex officio county superintendent, is not qualified to serve under the provisions of this article, it shall be the duty of the county superintendent, or such county judge who is ex officio county superintendent, to refuse to recognize such person who has been so elected as such school trustees, and to make written request within twenty days after such election, of the county attorney, or district attorney in case there be no county attorney, to institute and prosecute with dispatch such suit, in the name of the State of Texas, for the removal of such trustee, in the district court of the county where such trustee resides, at the option of the county attorney or district attorney in case there be no county attorney; provided it shall be lawful under the provisions of this Article, upon good cause shown within the discretion of the court where such suit is pending, to enjoin and restrain such person from acting as such trustee during the pendency of such suit for his removal. It shall be lawful under the provisions of this Article to summon such trustee so elected before the court in the trial of such cause, and there make examination of him as to his qualifications to serve as such trustee as defined by this Article, and, in case such trustee, after having been duly cited to answer in said cause and summoned as herein above provided to appear for examination, shall fail, neglect or refuse to obey said summons and fail to appear for the purpose of examination, and fail or refuse to submit to such examination, such failure, neglect or refusal shall be prima facie evidence of his disqualification under the terms of this Article, and because thereof the court trying such case, shall be authorized to render thereupon judgment by default against such trustee so defaulting removing him from his said office of school trustee, and declaring the same vacant. It shall be the duty of the county board of education of the county where such trustee has been elected to appoint some suitable person, who is qualified as herein defined, to act as such trustee during the pendency of such suit to remove such trustee so elected, if he shall be enjoined from so acting, and, in case such trustee so elected shall be removed by such suit brought by the county attorney, or district attorney in case there be no county attorney, then such trustee, so appointed by the county board of education of said county, shall continue to serve until the next regular election of school trustees for such district; provided, however, that such trustee so appointed may be removed for the causes and in the manner provided by this Article.
In case of vacancy in said office of trustee, by resignation or otherwise, the county board of education of the county shall appoint a suitable person qualified under the provisions of this Article to so act as such trustee until the next regular election of school trustees for such district; and in case such county board of education, under the provisions hereof, should appoint some person not qualified, suit for his removal shall be brought by the county attorney, or district attorney in case there be no county attorney, of the State, in the name of the State of Texas, in the manner and upon the same terms and conditions as has been herein provided for in case of the election of persons who are not qualified to act as such trustees. [Acts 1905, p. 263, § 93; Acts 1907, p. 204; Act April 4, 1917, ch. 199, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The act amends art. 2821, tit. 48, ch. 15, Rev. Civ. St. Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment.

Art. 2822. District trustees a body corporate.

App.) 186 S. W. 589.

Employment of attorney.—Under arts. 2772, 2822, 2823, 2856, 2892, trustees of an independent school district incorporated by the Legislature could employ and pay from the special maintenance fund an attorney to sue to cancel a teacher's contract. Ar-Reversion of school building to grantor of land.—See Allen v. Franks (Civ.

App.) 186 S. W. 584.

Actions.—Under this article making school districts bodies politic and corporate, with power to sue and be sued, it was necessary to join the district as a party to a suit to restrain the collection of a special tax levied for a school district. Renshaw v.
Arnott (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1197.

Under this article a school district may be sued in other courts than those of its domicile, under circumstances authorizing defendants in general to be thus sued.
W. 878.

As this article makes trustees of school district a body corporate, they are necessary parties to suit to declare organization of district void. Minear v. McVea (Civ.
App.) 186 S. W. 1048.

To proceedings to declare invalid common school districts, as established by county school trustees through change of boundary, the trustees of the districts, by this article, constituted bodies corporate, are necessary parties. Olivier v. Smith (Civ. App.) 177 S.
W. 622.
Art. 2823. Shall have management and control of schools.

See art. 2749a. See Pen. Code, art. 1513e.

Judicial supervision.—Where the aggrieved patrons of a school district appealed to all the school authorities for relief against alleged illegal action of the trustees, the district court had jurisdiction to supervise the acts of the trustees if they abused their discretion. Barton v. Vickery (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1103.

Art. 2824. Make contracts for the district.

Indebtedness.—A petition, showing that school district trustees intend to spend unnecessarily school funds in buying a new site, which would inconvenience a majority of patrons, and which was not at the population center, and that the trustees acted for their own pecuniary advantage, warrants the court in granting a stay of proceedings at least. Barton v. Vickery (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1103.

Under this article empowering trustees of school districts to fix times and terms of school, held, that the trustees could not by making an eight-months contract fix the length of term without regard to the funds of the district. Jones v. Dodd (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1134.

Art. 2825. Contracts with teachers.

Remedies of teachers.—A teacher may not resort to the courts to recover for services rendered without first resorting to the remedies provided in the school law. Boyles v. Potter County (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 219.

LOCAL TAX

Art. 2827. Special tax authorized.

Retroactive operation.—Laws authorizing taxes are not retroactive, so far as the year in which they are authorized is concerned. Cadena v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 867.

Assessment of property.—Under art. 2862, an independent school district, having its own assessor and collector of taxes, could assess property for school taxes at a valuation other than made by the county assessor for state and county purposes; this article having no application. Avery v. Cooper (Sup.) 180 S. W. 734, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Cooper v. Avery, 168 S. W. 412.

Amount of tax.—Acts 31st Leg. c. 12, which repealed the second proviso in Acts 29th Leg. c. 124, § 57, held to remove from independent school districts the inhibition against assessing property at a rate in excess of that fixed for state and county purposes. (Civ. App.) Cooper v. Avery, 168 S. W. 412, judgment affirmed (Sup.) Avery v. Cooper, 180 S. W. 734.

Art. 2828. Petition for tax election.

Order for election.—Failure of order for school district election to vote on levying tax to state the purpose of the tax or designate the points at which the election was to be held held not to invalidate the election. Mecaskey v. Ratliff (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 115.

Notice of election.—Under Acts 31st Leg. c. 12, § 1, amending Acts 29th Leg. c. 124, § 58, the validity of an election to vote on a school tax to supplement the state school fund may be attacked for failure to give the statutory notice in a suit to enjoin the collection of the tax. Cochran v. Kennon (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 67.

Said act held neither strictly nor substantially complied with by posting two notices within the district and one notice outside the district. Id.

In suit to enjoin collection of such tax burden held on defendants to show that all or a substantial majority of the qualified voters had actual knowledge of the election. Id.

Where one of the notices of election was posted outside the district, subsequent annexation of territory, including the place where it was posted, to such district, held not to render the notice sufficient. Id.

Art. 2829. Presiding officer; ballots.

Form of ballot.—Under this article, school district election to determine whether special tax should be levied held not invalidated because ballots cast were for or against the tax instead of reading for or against school tax. Mecaskey v. Ratliff (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 115.

Returns of election.—Where the only returns of a school election were placed in paper boxes tied with cotton strings, which contained the ballots and list or tally sheet, held that the failure to comply with arts. 2829, 3024, 3027, and 3031, did not invalidate the election. Mecaskey v. Ratliff (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 115.

Art. 2831. Who entitled to vote.

Ownership of property.—In view of Const. art. 8, § 1, a person who owned any property subject to taxation was a property tax payer within this article. Lane v. Herring (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 779.
A thing without value is not subject to taxation, and therefore its ownership does not make the owner a property tax payer qualified to vote at a school bond election. Id. Improper rejection and acceptance of votes.—Property owners of school district could have successfully contested election to determine whether special tax should be levied and collected on property in district, resulting in affirmative vote of 24 to 22, by proving that negative votes of two qualified voters were illegally thrown out, and that another qualified voter was not permitted to vote. Robertson v. Haynes (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 735.

Art. 2833. Election to abrogate, increase or diminish tax.

When election may be held.—Where a school district had voted a 20-cent school tax in 1902, and in June, 1913, voted an additional tax of 30 cents on the $100 valuation, an election could not be held to abrogate the tax of 1902 until two years after the June, 1913, election, as provided by this article. Beeman v. Mays (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 368.

Art. 2835. Form of ballot for increase.

Form of ballot.—Where a petition requested an election to determine whether an additional school tax should be levied, ballots printed "for school tax" and "against school tax," though not in conformity with this article, prescribing the form to be "for increase of school tax" and "against increase of school tax," were not so misleading as to invalidate the election. Beeman v. Mays (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 358.

Art. 2836. Levy of tax.

Provision directory.—Laws naming the time for the levy of taxes are merely directory, and legal taxes can be levied whenever the necessity arises. Cadena v. State (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 397.

SCHOOLHOUSE BONDS

Art. 2837. Election for issuance of bonds.

Validity of contract.—A contract by the officers of an independent school district to pay for plans of a schoolhouse held unenforceable, where it was made before authorization and sale of bonds and without available funds out of which to make such payment. Board of Trustees of Alpine Independent Dist. v. Jacob (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 795.

Art. 2838. Ballots.

Validity of contract.—See Board of Trustees of Alpine Independent Dist. v. Jacob (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 795; note under art. 2837.

Art. 2839. Issuance and sale of bonds.

Validity of contract.—See Board of Trustees of Alpine Independent Dist. v. Jacob (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 795; note under art. 2837.

Under Const. art. 7, § 3, and Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 2839, 2842, 2853, the trustees of an independent school district cannot, until bonds are sold, enter into a valid contract for the erection of a school building with the proceeds of the bonds. Bone v. Black (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 971.

Art. 2841. Levy of bond tax.

Levy on whole or constituent part of enlarged district.—Under this article the trustees of an enlarged school district not authorized by taxpayers of that district to levy a tax on all the property to pay the bonds of an included district should levy on the property of the included district the tax theretofore authorized to make such payments. Love v. Rockwall Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 659.

Where the property of a former school district included in an enlarged district was subject to tax to pay the bonds thereof, the amount levied against that property for the maintenance of schools should be reduced so that the total levy thereon would not exceed the constitutional limit of 50 cents on each $100 of valuation fixed by Const. art. 7, and this article. Id.

The directors of a consolidated or enlarged school district when authorized by vote of the taxpayers can levy a tax on all the property of the district for the interest and sinking fund of bonds issued by an included district. Id.

Art. 2842. Tax must be levied until bonds are paid.

Independent districts including territory in bonded district.—In view of this article, articles 2850 and 2851 do not authorize incorporation of independent school districts except where territory of proposed district contains town or village of 200 inhabitants or over, and do not authorize incorporation of independent district including territory already embraced in bonded common school district, bonds of which are unpaid. Ferguson v. Leigh (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 206.

Art. 2843. Expenditure of proceeds of bonds.

Validity of contract.—Under Const. art. 7, § 3, and Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 2839, 2845, 2853, the trustees of an independent school district cannot, until bonds are sold, enter into a valid contract for the erection of a school building with the proceeds of the bonds. Bone v. Black (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 971.
School Property

Art. 2844. Trustees to contract for building.

See arts. 2904b—2904q, 6394f—6394j, post.

Bond of contractor.—A materialman held not entitled to sue on a bond, given by contractors for a school building to complete the building free from liens. Garrett v. A. G. McAdams Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 326.

Where a contractor for a school building gave a bond conditioned to keep the building free from mechanics' liens, and a materialman, who could never acquire a lien upon the property, sued the contractor and the district, the district is not entitled to attorney's fees for defending the suit. Id.

That the Thirty-Third Legislature (Vernon's Sayles' Civ. St. 1914, art. 6394f) enacted a law requiring any person contracting with a school district for the building to give a bond to pay for labor and material did not prove want of previous authority to require such a bond. N. O. Nelson Co. v. Stephenson (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 61.

Rev. St. 1911, tit. 48, c. 15, authorizing the trustees of a school district to contract for the construction of school buildings carried with it authority to require bond for faithful compliance with the contract, and incidentally to protect the laborers and materialmen. Id.

A school building contractor's bond to the school district and all parties furnishing labor or materials, for the payment of all debts incurred, inured to the benefit of the laborers and materialmen, any of whom could sue thereon in his own name. Id.

Liability of district for improper payments to contractor.—School district which, after notice of materialman's claim, approved by building contractors, paid more than the amount thereof on junior claims or to the contractors, held liable to the materialman. Rice Common School Dist. No. 2 v. Oil City Iron Works (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1121.

Reversion of school building to grantor of land.—See Allen v. Franks (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 384.

Art. 2845. Lien may not be acquired.

See Vernon's Sayles' Civ. St. 1914, art. 6394f et seq.

Reversion of school building to grantor of land.—See Allen v. Frank (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 384.

Art. 2846. Sale of school property.

Liability on covenant of warranty.—A school district is not liable on covenants of warranty contained in a deed executed without authority by county officers conveying a school site which had been deeded to the district under a conditional limitation which had been abandoned for school purposes. Stewart v. Blair (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 236.

The county judge and commissioners are not personally liable on the covenant in a deed executed by them conveying an abandoned schoolhouse site. Id.

A county is not liable on the covenants in a deed executed by the county judge and commissioners conveying an abandoned schoolhouse site in the absence of authority to bind the county by such covenants. Id.

Art. 2847. Control of school property.

Removal of school house.—Under arts. 2822, 2844, 2845, 2847, 2849, where school building was erected with contributions from citizens of the community on land conveyed on condition that it should revert to the grantors when the land ceased to be used for school purposes, held, that the building did not so revert, though the contributors and trustees intended it to remain permanently on the land, and it could be removed by the trustees. Allen v. Franks (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 384.

Art. 2849. Title to property.

Reversion of school house to grantor of land.—See Allen v. Franks (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 384; note under art. 2847.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN A

PUBLIC HIGH SCHOOLS IN COMMON SCHOOL DISTRICTS

Art. 2849b. Classification of high schools. Art. 2849d-2849o. [Amended.]

2849bb. Subjects of study in high schools.

Article 2849b. Classification of high schools.—In accordance with the provisions of this Act, the public high schools of the State shall, upon satisfactory evidence, be ranked by the State Department of Education as high schools of the first class, high schools of the second class and high schools of the third class. A high school of the first class shall be a high school which maintains at least four years or grades of work above the seventh grade or years, may include in its curriculum the first seven grades or years of work, shall employ at least two teachers to teach high school subjects, who shall each hold a State first grade certificate or certificate of higher grade, and shall be maintained for not less than eight scholastic months during each school year. A high school of the second class shall be a high school which maintains at least three years or grades of work above the seventh grade or year, may include in its curriculum the first seven years or grades of work, shall employ at least two teachers to teach high school subjects, who shall each hold a State first grade certificate or certificate of higher grade, and shall be maintained for not less than eight scholastic months during each school year. A high school of the third class shall be a high school which maintains at least two years or grades of work above the seventh grade or year, may include in its curriculum the first seven years or grades of work, shall employ at least one teacher to teach high school subjects, who shall hold a State first grade certificate or certificate of higher grade, and shall be maintained for not less than seven scholastic months during each school year. Each class of high schools herein defined shall be entitled to receive a certificate of approval or classification from the State Department of Education. High schools which fail to come up to the standard herein prescribed as to teachers, number of grades or years of work and length of annual session, shall not be prohibited by this Act, but such high schools shall not be entitled to receive a certificate of approval, or classification from the State Department of Education. A grade or year of work as herein mentioned shall consist of not less than thirty-two weeks of five days each. [Acts 1911, p. 34, § 2; Act March 5, 1915, ch. 36, § 5.]

Art. 2849bb. Subjects of study in high schools.—Besides the subjects prescribed by law to be taught in the public schools of Texas, such additional subjects as agriculture, manual training, domestic economy or other vocational branches shall be included in the course of study in all high schools provided for herein which are located outside of incorporated towns and cities, and special attention shall be given to teaching said subjects. [Id., § 6.]

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

INDEPENDENT DISTRICTS

Art. 2850. Application to county judge for elections. Art. TAXES AND BONDS

2850. Application to county judge for elections.
2857. Local taxes; bonds.
2851. Board of trustees.
2858. Election to be ordered by trustees.
2853. Powers of the board.
2859. Collection of taxes.
2855. Districts validated.
2860. Assessment and collection of taxes by county officer.
2856. General laws apply to all districts.
2860b. Change or abolition of district.

Article 2850. Application to county judge for elections.

Inclusion of territory in bonded district.—In view of art. 2842, articles 2850 and 2851 do not authorize incorporation of independent school districts except where territory of proposed district contains town or village of 200 inhabitants or over, and do not authorize incorporation of Independent district including territory already embraced in bonded common school district, bonds of which are unpaid. Ferguson v. Leigh (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 206.

Validity of special act.—As Acts 33d Leg. c. 35, § 7, creating the Clifton independent school district, does not conflict with any provision of the Constitution, it is not invalid, though its passage was procured by fraud, and it is unfair, nor is it in violation of Const. art. 3, § 36, prohibiting local or special laws creating offices in school districts. Glass v.Foeh, 166 S. W. 375, 106 Tex. 206.
Art. 2851. Incorporation.

See Penal Code, art. 1512h, post.

Powers of district and its officers.—A board of education has only such powers as are given it in the express powers. Royse Independent School Dist. v. Reinhardt (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1010.

An independent school district may, in analogy to a municipal corporation, permit school property not then necessary for school use to be used for private purposes so long as such use will not affect its use as school property. Id.

Where an independent school district, in consideration of the baseball club fencing the school property and maintaining the same, allowed part of its grounds not then needed for school purposes to be used as a ball field during vacation, such use was not unauthorized. Id.

Valuation for assessment.—Under arts. 2851-2853, 2862, held, that the trustees of such a district, when assessing and collecting their own taxes, may assess property at a higher rate than it is assessed for state and county purposes. Cooper v. Avery (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 395, judgment affirmed Avery v. Cooper (Sup.) 180 S. W. 734.

Reports by treasurers.—Art. 2773, requiring treasurers of school funds to make reports, embraces all treasurers of school funds, including the treasurer of an independent school district organized under article 2851. Hall v. State (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1002.

Pen. Code 1911, art. 1580, does not embrace the treasurer of an independent school district authorized by this article, and his failure to report as required by art. 4517, is not punishable thereunder. Id.

Inclusion of territory embraced in bonded district.—See Ferguson v. Leigh (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 306; note under art. 2850.

Collateral attack on organization.—Order of county commissioners’ court declaring result of an election to determine whether school district should be incorporated was on collateral attack prima facie proof of fact that it was duly incorporated, in the absence of any contrary contention. Clark v. State (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 84.

Art. 2852. Board of trustees.

Valuation for assessment.—See Cooper v. Avery (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 412, judgment affirmed Avery v. Cooper (Sup.) 180 S. W. 734.

Art. 2853. Powers of the board.

Cited. Avery v. Cooper (Sup.) 180 S. W. 734.

Power to require vaccination of pupils.—The school board of an independent school district authorized by the act creating it to make rules for the protection of health may require vaccination to prevent the spread of smallpox, even though the danger from the disease was equally great in places under the control of the city where no such regulation was imposed. Zucht v. San Antonio School Board (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 840.

Power to contract before issuance of bonds.—A contract by the officers of an independent school district to pay for plans of a schoolhouse held unenforceable, where it was made before authorization and sale of bonds and without available funds out of which such payment was to be made. Rev. St. 1911, arts. 2837-2839, 2855. Board of Trustees of Alpine Independent Dist. v. Jacob (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 795.

Under Const. art. 7, § 3, and Vernon’s Scales’ Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 2639, 2843, 2853, the independent school district cannot, until bonds are sold, enter into a valid contract for the erection of a school building with the proceeds of the bonds. Bone v. Black (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 971.

Liability on contract.—School board was not bound by contracts of party secured by bonds. Lyon-Jacob independent school building company had been surety, nor was party himself bound by school board’s contract with bonding company: contracts, though made with reference to other, being independent undertakings between different parties. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. McQuerry (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 589.

Levy of tax as condition precedent to liability.—Under arts. 2853, 2857, a petition against a school district to recover for the construction of school buildings failing to allege the levy of a tax by the trustees or the existence of a fund held insufficient. Cowell Independent School Dist. v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 399.

Valuation for assessment.—See Cooper v. Avery (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 412, judgment affirmed Avery v. Cooper (Sup.) 180 S. W. 734; note under art. 2851.

Board of equalization.—Under this article—charging independent school districts with all the duties of city councils in respect to taxation, and article 948, providing that cities shall have a board of equalization, an independent school board having appointed a board of equalization, could not adopt the finding of the county board. Vance v. Miller (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 838, judgment reversed Miller v. Vance (Sup.) 180 S. W. 723.

Under arts. 945, 947, 965, 2853, 2862, an independent school district whose taxes are collected by county officials need not have any board of equalization. Miller v. Vance (Sup.) 180 S. W. 739, reversing judgment Vance v. Miller (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 838.

Acceptance of building.—Acceptance of new school building with exceptions noted in the contract, was not an act of the building committee, work of contractor. Lyon-Gray Lumber Co. v. Wichita Falls Brick & Tile Co. (Civ. App.) 394 S. W. 1167.

Taking possession of unfinished building with consent of builder and with understanding that it shall not operate as waiver of any right to insist on completion according to contract is not a waiver of any condition. Id.
Liability of surety on building contractor's bond.—Defendant surety for defaulting contractor for school building, employing plaintiff to complete work, held liable for the agreed price, though the work was not done within the time as extended by the school board, which was shorter than the time allowed by the contract with plaintiff. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. McQuery (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 898.

Art. 2855. Districts validated.

Art. 2856. General laws apply to all districts.

Application.—A school bond election held governed by special act March 16, 1909, and not affected by this article, adopted February 28, 1909. Hall v. Trotter (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 978.

Art. 2856b. Change or abolition of district.

TAXES AND BONDS

Art. 2857. Local taxes; bonds.
Cited, Board of Trustees of Alpine Independent Dist. v. Jacob (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 796; Bone v. Black (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 971.

Constitutionality.—Under the constitutional provision authorizing additional taxes for the erection of free public schools, Rev. St. 1911, art. 2857, authorizing the imposition of such additional taxes for the purchase of sites and the issuance of bonds for that purpose, is valid. Glass v. Pool, 166 S. W. 375, 106 Tex. 266.

Levy of tax as prerequisite to construction of building.—Under arts. 2853, 2857, a petition against a school district to recover for the construction of school buildings falling to allege the levy of a tax by the trustees or the existence of a fund held insufficient. Crowell Independent School Dist. v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 339.

Purpose of tax.—In view of this article a vote of the taxpayers of an enlarged school district authorizing the levy of a tax for the maintenance and support of the schools does not authorize a levy for interest and sinking fund on bonds issued by one of the included districts. Love v. Rockwall Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 659.

Construction of special act.—Under act creating Benavides independent school district, approved March 22, 1915, effective June 19, 1915 (Loc. & Sp. Acts 34th Leg. c. 54), held, that trustees of the district were authorized to levy a maintenance tax for the year 1915. Cadena v. State (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 367.

Art. 2858. Election to be ordered by trustees.

Time for presentation of petition.—Where a petition for an election to determine whether bonds should be issued by an enlarged school district was not presented to the county judge, whose duty it was to call the election, until after the new district had been created, it was immaterial that it was signed prior to that time. Woods v. Eberling (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 932.

Art. 2861. Collection of taxes.
Cited, Avery v. Cooper (Sup.) 180 S. W. 734.

Art. 2862. Assessment and collection of taxes by county officers.

Valuation.—Acts 51st Leg. c. 12, which repealed the second proviso in Acts 29th Leg. c. 124, § 57, ante art. 2857, held to remove from independent school districts the inhibition against assessing property at a rate in excess of that fixed for state and county purposes. Cooper v. Avery (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 412, judgment affirmed Avery v. Cooper (Sup.) 180 S. W. 724.

Under this article an independent school district, having its own assessor and collector of taxes, could assess property for school taxes at a valuation other than made by the county assessor for state and county purposes; article 2827 having no application. Avery v. Cooper (Sup.) 180 S. W. 724, affirming judgment Cooper v. Avery (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 412.

Equalization.—Under arts. 945, 947, 965, 2853, 2862, an independent school district whose taxes are collected by county officials need not have any board of equalization. Miller v. Vance (Sup.) 189 S. W. 729, reversing judgment Vance v. Miller (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 888.

CITY SCHOOL TAXES

Art. 2876. Election for levy of annual tax for maintenance and buildings; discontinuance of tax.—The city or town council or board of aldermen of any city or commission of any city, town or village, whether incorporated under any act of the Congress of the Republic or the Legislature of the State of Texas, or under any act of incorporation whatever, shall have power by ordinance to annually levy and collect such advalorem taxes for the support and maintenance of public free schools and for the erection and equipment of public free school buildings in the city or town where such city or town is a separate and independent school district; provided that no such tax shall be levied until an election shall have been held, at which none but property tax payers, as shown by the last assessment rolls, who are qualified voters of such independent school districts shall vote and a majority of those voting shall vote in favor thereof. The proposition submitted may be for such a rate of advalorem tax not exceeding such per cent as may be voted by a majority vote of all votes cast at any such election. One election and no more, shall be held thereafter in any one calendar year to ascertain whether a school tax shall be levied. If the proposition is carried the school tax shall be continued to be annually levied and collected for at least two years, and thereafter, unless it be discontinued at an election held to determine whether the tax shall be continued or discontinued, at the request of fifty property tax payers of such independent school district. When the tax is continued no election to discontinue it shall be held for two years; when the tax is discontinued no election to levy it shall be held during the same year. [Acts 1905, p. 263, § 141; Act March 30, 1917, ch. 169, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The act amends arts. 2877, 2878, 2879, and 2880, ch. 17, tit. 48, Rev. Civ. St. 1911, so as to read as set forth above and in the four following articles. The legislative scheme was to repeal art. 2876 as it appears in the Revised Civil Statutes, and to move up articles 2877, 2878, 2879, and 2880 so that they would bear, in their amended form, the numbers 2876, 2877, 2878, and 2879, leaving 2889 as the repealing article. Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment.

Art. 2877. Levy of tax.—If the vote of the taxpayers is in favor of said tax, then it shall be the duty of the council or board of aldermen, annually thereafter, to levy upon the taxable property in the limits of such district, in accordance with the usual assessment of taxes for municipal purposes, such additional tax as may be necessary for the support and maintenance of the public schools and for the erection and equipment of public school buildings for nine months in the year not to exceed the rate of tax voted. [Acts 1905, p. 263, § 142; Act March 30, 1917, ch. 169, § 1.]

See note under art. 2876.

Art. 2878. Levy in city or town assuming exclusive control of schools.—In a city or town that has assumed the exclusive control of the public free schools within its limits and has decided under the laws providing therefor, that a special tax shall be levied for the support and maintenance of such public free schools and the erection and equipment of public free school buildings, the mayor and council or board of aldermen of such city or town shall annually assess and levy such tax by ordinance duly passed and approved in the same manner as is required in the assessment and levy of taxes for general purposes in such city or town. In a city or town which has voted upon and directed the levy of a special tax the mayor or council or board of aldermen or commission of such city or town shall annually levy such rate of tax for public school purposes and for the erection and equipment of public school buildings not exceeding the rate of tax voted for the support and maintenance of the public free schools and for the erection and equipment of public school buildings for the term as required by law; but in a city or town that has voted upon and decided at an election held for that purpose that a specified rate of tax shall be assessed and levied in such city or town for the support and maintenance of its public free schools, and for the erection and equipment of public school buildings the mayor and council or board of aldermen or commission of such city or town shall have no discretion in fixing the rate at which such tax shall be levied, but shall assess and levy the same at the rate fixed in the proposition as submitted and adopted by the qualified voters of such city or town at the election held for that purpose. [Acts 1905, p. 263, § 143; Act March 30, 1917, ch. 169, § 1.]

See note under art. 2876.

Art. 2879. Levy in city or town constituting independent school district.—In a city or town that may now or hereafter constitute an independent school district, and where a special tax for school purposes has been voted by the people or provided by special charter, it shall be the duty of said board of trustees to determine what amount of said tax, within the limit voted by the people or fixed by special charter will be necessary for the maintenance and support of the school and for the erection and equipment of public school buildings for each current year; and it shall become the duty of the city council, board of alderman or city commission upon the requisition of the said board of trustees to annually levy and collect said tax, as other taxes are levied and collected; and said tax, when collected, shall be placed at the disposal of the said school board, by paying over monthly to the treasurer of said board the amount collected for the support and maintenance of the school and for the erection and equipment of public school buildings in such district, to be used for the maintenance and support of the public free schools and for the erection and equipment of public school buildings in such district. [Acts 1905, p. 263, § 138; Act March 30, 1917, ch. 169, § 1.]

See note under art. 2876.

Art. 2880. Repeal.—All of Article 2876, Chapter 17, Title 48 of the Revised Civil Statutes of the State of Texas, 1911, is hereby repealed. [Acts 1905, p. 308, § 168; Act March 30, 1917, ch. 169, § 1.]

See note under art. 2876.
Art. 2883. Extension of city limits for school purposes.
Levy and collection of tax.—Under Const. art. 7, § 3, independent school district annexed to existing common school district under this article, might collect 20-cent tax applicable to land in common school district before the annexation. Davis v. Payne ( Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 60.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN
INDEPENDENT DISTRICT SCHOOL TRUSTEES

Art. 2887. Board of school trustees shall order elections; election officers; compensation; election, how held; canvass.

Article 2887. Board of school trustees shall order election; election officers; compensation; election, how held; canvass.—All elections shall be ordered by the board of trustees of each independent school district; and such order shall be made at least ten days before the date of election; and a notice of the order shall be posted at three different places in the district. The board of school trustees, at the time of ordering such election, shall appoint three persons to hold the election, and shall designate the places where the polls shall be open. And each of said members of such election board so appointed shall receive as their compensation the sum of one dollar each, to be paid out of the general fund of the county in the same manner as other claims are paid. All such elections shall be held in accordance with the State law governing elections; and returns of such elections shall be made to the board of school trustees in the same manner as election returns are made under such State law. The board of school trustees shall canvass such returns, declare the result of such election, and issue certificates of election to the persons shown by such returns to be elected. [Acts 1905, p. 263, § 164; Act March 30, 1915, ch. 132, § 1.]

See note under art. 2819.

Art. 2889. Term of office of school trustees.—The terms of office of the seven trustees chosen at the first election shall be divided into two classes, and the members shall draw for the different classes; the four members drawing the numbers one, two, three and four shall serve for one year or part thereof; that is, until the first of April thereafter, and until their successors are elected and qualified; and the three members drawing the numbers five, six and seven shall serve two years; that is, until the second of April thereafter, and until their successors are elected and qualified; and regularly thereafter on the first Saturday in April of each year, four trustees and three trustees, alternately, shall be elected for a term of two years, to succeed the trustees whose term shall at that time expire. [Acts 1905, p. 263, § 163; Act March 30, 1915, ch. 132, § 1.]

See note under art. 2819.

Art. 2892. Board shall adopt rules and regulations.

Employment of attorney.—Under arts. 2772, 2822, 2823, 2856, 2892, as to school districts and powers of school trustees, trustees of an independent school district incorporated by the Legislature could employ and pay from the special maintenance fund an attorney to sue to cancel a teacher's contract. Arrington v. Jones ( Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 361.
CHAPTER NINETEEN
GENERAL PROVISIONS

Art. 2896. School shall not be sectarian.

Art. 2899. Where children may attend school.
Requiring vaccination.—A regulation requiring vaccination before children could attend school is not in violation of arts. 2899, 2900, declaring that all children of school age shall be entitled to school privileges. Zucht v. San Antonio School Board (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 840.

Art. 2900. Scholastic age.
Requiring vaccination.—See Zucht v. San Antonio School Board (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 840; note under art. 2899.

Art. 2903a. History of Texas shall be taught.—That on and after the third day of September, 1917, the history of Texas shall be taught in all public schools of this State, which history shall be taught in the history course of all public schools in this State, and in this course only. [Act March 28, 1917, ch. 112, § 1]
Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment.

Art. 2903b. Same; number of hours per week; notice to local superintendents.—The said history course shall be not less than two hours in any one week and as much more time as the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, in his discretion, thinks is necessary. The State Superintendent of Public Instruction shall, within ten days after this act goes into effect, notify the different county and city school superintendents as to how said history course shall be divided. [Id., § 2]
Explanatory.—Sec. 3 imposes a criminal penalty for violation and is set forth post as art. 1513i. Penal Code.

Art. 2903c. Acquisition of land for playgrounds; agricultural tracts, etc.—That the County School Trustee shall have the power to purchase and lease real property for all the Common Schools Districts, and the Independent School District of their County having less than 150 scholastics, and the Trustees of all Independent School Districts, having 150 scholastics or more shall have power to purchase and lease real property for their District, for the purpose of supplying playgrounds, agricultural tracts and sites upon which to build school houses and such other buildings as are necessary for the schools of said Districts, and to acquire such real property and easements therein, by condemnation proceedings in the manner prescribed by the present law authorizing a condemnation of right of way of railroads. [Act March 29, 1917, ch. 125, § 1]
Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment.

CHAPTER NINETEEN A PUBLIC SCHOOL BUILDINGS

Art. 2904b. Windows not to face pupils.

Art. 2904n. Building permits.
Effect of invalidity of contract.—Invalidity of a contract for the construction of a school building under Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 2904n, 2904o, does not defeat recovery by a materialman on the contractor's bond given as required by articles 6394-6394j. Kerbow v. Wooldridge (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 746.

There can be no recovery on express or implied contracts with reference to a school building constructed without the permit required by Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 2904n, 2904o. id.

Under Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 2904e compliance with the requirement of article 2904n cannot be presumed in a suit on a school building contract. id.

A contract for the erection of a school building cannot be enforced, where it did not appear that the plans and specifications provided for the lighting, heating, and sanitation of the building, as required by this article. Bone v. Black (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 971.

Art. 2904o. Payments before permit unauthorized.

Effect of invalidity of contract.—See Kerbow v. Wooldridge (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 746; notes under art. 2904n.

CHAPTER NINETEEN B

FREE TEXT BOOKS IN SCHOOL DISTRICTS

Art. 2904r. Election in common and independent districts.

2904s. Same; ballots.

2904t. Same; notice; election officers.

Article 2904r. Election in common and independent districts.—

When ten per cent of the qualified property tax paying voters of any common or independent school district that has or may have at the time the petition hereinafter mentioned shall be presented, voted a special school tax for the purpose of supplementing the State school fund apportioned to said district in the support and maintenance of the public free schools in said district, shall petition the county school trustees, if a common school district, or the board of trustees if an independent school district, they shall order an election in the school district from which the petition came to determine whether or not a majority of the legally qualified property tax paying voters of that district desire that text books required by the pupils within the scholastic age attending public free school in said district shall be furnished to said pupils by the trustees of said district free of charge and be paid for out of said school tax that has theretofore been voted by said district. Said election shall be ordered, held and the returns counted and published in accordance with the laws of this State. [Act March 30, 1915, ch. 134, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 20, 1915, date of adjournment.

Art. 2904s. Same; ballots.—Whenever it has been found lawful for any such board of school trustees to order an election on said subject of furnishing free text books as provided herein, said board of school trustees shall prepare proper ballots for use in said school district election and the said school district shall bear the expense of having such ballots printed. Each person who favors the furnishing of said free text books as herein provided shall have written or printed on his ballot "For the Free Text Books," and each person opposed to the furnishing of said free text books shall have written or printed on his ballot "Against the Free Text Books." [Id., § 2.]

Art. 2904t. Same; notice; election officers.—The said board of school trustees shall give notice of such election by placing notices of same in three different public places in said district at least twenty days before said election, which notices shall state the time, place or places of the holding and purpose of the election, and the said board of school trustees shall appoint the presiding officer or officers to hold said election; and said presiding officer or officers shall appoint the necessary judges and clerks to assist in holding same. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 2904u. Right to vote; returns of election.—All persons who are legally qualified voters of this State and of the county of their residence and who are resident property tax payers in said district shall be entitled to vote in said school district election, and if at such election a majority of those voting shall vote for the furnishing of such free text books it shall be declared by the said board of school trustees to have carried in said district, and shall be entered upon the records of said trustees to have been carried, and in all cases the returning officer shall make a full and complete return, as in other elections, to said trustees, and within five days after said election is held said returns shall be opened and counted at a meeting of said trustees and the result declared.

[Id., § 4.]

Art. 2904v. Trustees to purchase books.—As soon as it is practicable after said school trustees shall have declared said proposition to have carried, as set out in Section 4 of this Act, it shall be the duty of the trustees of said district to purchase the required text books for the said pupils of said district and pay for same out of said local tax fund of said district by warrants drawn in the same manner as is now provided by law for paying claims out of said funds, and the said trustees shall continue to furnish said books, as needed, to said pupils in the same manner.

[Id., § 5.]

Art. 2904w. Purchase of free text books otherwise not prohibited.—Nothing in this Act shall be construed to prevent school trustees of school districts from furnishing free text books to pupils in their own discretion without an election, as herein provided, under the power given in Article 2772, Chapter 12, Title 48, of the Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, 1911. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 2909u. Books to be manufactured in Texas; price.

Art. 2909v. Same; permit to manufacture outside of state where cost is substantially lower.
Article 2909a. Name of commission; how constituted; appointment; eligibility; vacancy; meetings; appearance of representatives of publishers before commission.—That a permanent Textbook Commission for the State of Texas is hereby authorized and styled "The Texas State Textbook Commission." The Commission shall be constituted as follows: The State Superintendent of Public Instruction, The President of the College of Industrial Arts and the President of the South West Texas State Normal, The President of the University of Texas, The President of the A. and M. College, acting together as a committee shall at a date not later than the 1st day of August 1918, and biennially thereafter not later than the 1st day of August, submit to the Governor of this State the names of 15 teachers, five of which shall be women, of recognized scholarship and professional standing who have been actively and continuously engaged in teaching or supervising in the public schools of this State for the past five years and who have primary permanent or permanent certificates, said 15 teachers shall represent as nearly as possible every phase of the public school work, and it shall be the duty of the Governor to select seven therefrom who shall with the Governor and the Superintendent of Public Instruction constitute the text book commission of this State: provided, that at least two of those who are selected to serve on the Board shall be women; and provided further that one member of said Board shall have had at least three years' experience in teaching in the schools of Texas below the High Schools within the past five years. The term of office or the appointive members shall be for a period of not more than two years and shall be concurrent with the term of office of the official making the appointment. No person who has acted as a textbook agent for any author or publishing house, or who has been an author or associate author of any book published by any house, or who has directly or indirectly been concerned in the authorship of any text book or in any publishing house shall be eligible to appointment on the Textbook Commission, any vacancy occurring on said Board from any cause shall be filled by appointment by the Governor, from the list of teachers submitted under the provisions of this Act. The Commission shall meet at such times and places as may be designated by the chairman, and it shall adopt such rules and regulations for the transaction of its business as it may deem proper, not contrary to the provisions of this Act; provided, that no legal representative or temporary employé or other special agent employed by any author or publisher shall be allowed to present the merits of a book to the members of the Commission, individually or collectively, except as hereafter defined, and any contract entered into by said Commission when so represented shall be void; but the Commission may allow the authors of books or publishers or any regular or permanent employé to appear before the Commission and represent the merits of books when said Commission is in session, and not otherwise, and under such restrictions and regulations as are provided by the State Textbook Commission and are in accord with the provisions of this Act. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 1; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after May 17, 1917, date of adjournment.

Art. 2909b. Members of Commission to make affidavit of disinterest.—Each member of the Commission, before entering upon his duties as a member of the Commission, shall make out and file with the Secretary of State an affidavit that he is not and has not been directly or indirectly interested in, or connected with, or employed by, any publishing house, person, firm or corporation submitting any books for adoption, or in any books offered for adoption, or in any books adopted, nor is he connected in business with any person or agent representing such house, person, firm or corporation to whom any contract may be awarded by said Commission during the term and duration of said contract, and that he is not connected in any business with any person or agent representing such house, firm or corporation, and that he will not become so interested and will not accept any position as agent or representative of any person, firm or corporation who may submit any books for adoption or two whom any contract may be awarded by said Board during the term and duration of said contract. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911,
S. S., p. 88, § 3; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 2.]

Governor as chairman of Commission; secretary; meetings; minutes of proceedings; public inspection.—The Governor shall be chairman of the Commission, and the State Superintendent shall be its secretary, who shall keep a complete record of all proceedings of the Commission.
The Commission shall meet at such times and places as may be design-nated by the chairman for the purpose of considering and extending contracts, the making of new adoptions, and the keeping and operation of a complete system of uniform textbooks for the public free schools of this State in accordance with the provisions of this act. The Commission shall keep a minute book for its proceedings and on every action of the Commission an “aye” and “no” vote of the members thereof shall be required, and such minute book shall be kept in the office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, and shall be open to public inspection, and no adopted text at any time shall be superseded or substituted except by the affirmative vote of two thirds of the members of the Commission present and voting. [Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 3.]

Time of meeting; continuance of present contracts; consideration of advisability of change; terms of new contract; investigation of publications; frequency of changes.—It shall be the duty of the Commission to meet not later than September 1, 1918, and as often thereafter as may be necessary, for the purposes of considering the advisability of continuing or discontinuing at the expiration of all current contracts any or all of the State adopted textbooks in use in the public schools of Texas, and of making such adoptions as are provided for in Section 5 of this Act. Before making any change in the adopted series, however, the Commission shall, upon thorough investigation, satisfy itself that a change is desiraable in the interests of the children in the schools, and if in the judgment of the Commission, no text on any subject or subjects is offered that is better suited to the requirements of the schools than the present adopted text or texts, then it shall be lawful for the Commission to renew any contract for such period of time as may be deemed advisable, not to exceed a period of six years; provided no book or books in the present list of State adopted Textbooks shall be changed if the contractor furnishing same will when said Commission meets agree to enter into contract and bond to continue to furnish such book or books at the price and of the quality and upon the conditions specified in the current contract for a period of time not less than one year and not more than six years, as may be determined by the Commission. If no text or texts on any prescribed subject or subjects are submitted by any particular publisher or publishers that meet the requirements of the schools, as may be determined by the Commission, then it shall be the duty of the chairman of the Com-mision to instruct the secretary of the Commission to investigate the book markets for the purpose of securing bids with a view to providing at the most reasonable price or prices possible the best available texts, on any and all subjects that are to be adopted by the Commission for the schools of Texas. Provided, that it shall not be lawful for the Textbook Com-mision hereby created to change the books in more than one subject or text, in any one year; and provided further, that persons holding present contracts shall continue to furnish said books of as good quality and as low price, as at present, and upon the same conditions as contained in existing contracts. [Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 4.]
Art. 2909bb. Uniform system of text books; branches covered; character of books; dead languages; applicable to all public schools in state.—The Textbook Commission authorized by this Act shall have authority to select and adopt a uniform system of textbooks to be used in the public free schools of Texas, and the books so selected and adopted shall be printed in the English language and shall include and be limited to textbooks on the following subjects: Spelling, a graded series of reading books, a course in language lessons, English grammar, English composition, oral English, history of English Literature, history of American literature, geography, arithmetic, mental arithmetic, physiology, and hygiene, civil government, algebra, physical geography, history of the United States (in which the construction placed on the Federal Constitution by the fathers of the Confederacy shall be fairly represented), history of Texas, agriculture, a graded system of writing and of drawing books, plane geometry, solid geometry, physics, chemistry, general history, and Latin; provided that the series of readers adopted by the Commission shall have a full page cut of the manual alphabet as used by the Texas School for the Deaf; provided that none of said textbooks shall contain anything of a partisan or sectarian character, and that nothing in this Act shall be construed to prevent the teaching of German, Bohemian, Spanish, French, Latin or Greek in any of the public schools as a branch of study, but the teaching of one or more of these languages shall not interfere with the use of textbooks herein prescribed; and the study of a language known as a dead language, such as Latin or Greek, shall never be made compulsory as a requirement for the completion of any regular course of study in use in any public school in this State without providing an equivalent course for graduation equal in all other respects to such a course, containing such dead language or languages, which shall not include the same; provided, however, that nothing here in shall be construed to prevent the use of supplementary books as herein provided. The Commission as herein provided for shall adopt text books in accordance with provisions of this Act for every public free school in this State, and no public free school in this State shall use any text book unless same has been previously adopted or approved by this Commission; and the Commission shall prescribe rules under which all text books adopted or approved shall be introduced or used by or in the public free schools of the State. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 4; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 5.]

Art. 2909c. Supplementary books; when to be used.—The Textbook Commission shall have authority to adopt a series of supplementary readers for the elementary grades and such other supplementary books as it may deem advisable for use in the public free schools of the State. Each bidder presenting such book or books shall state at what price it or they are offered, provided, however, that no supplementary books shall be purchased and used to the exclusion of the books prescribed under the provisions of Section 5 [Art. 2909bb] of this Act, but full use must be made in good faith of the books selected by said Commission under Section 5 before any of the supplementary books provided for in this Section shall be required to be purchased and used; and no other supplementary readers shall be required to be purchased and used in good faith. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 5; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 6.]

Changes and additions to list of books adopted; reservation in contract; exchange terms.—The textbook commission may at any time require such changes, amendments or additions to the book or books adopted as in their judgment will be for the best interest of the public schools of this State; and contracts for books under the provisions of this Act shall be made upon the distinct condition that the commission provided for in this Act may, during the time for which books are adopted under this Act, upon giving one year's previous notice to the publishers thereof, order such changes, amendments and additions to the book or books so adopted as such textbook commission may determine; provided, also that if in the judgment of the commission such changes or revisions make it impractical for the revised books to be used in the same class with the old books, the publishers will be required to give the same exchange terms as were given when the books were first adopted, and such exchange period shall extend two years from the time the revised books are first put into use in the schools; provided, that nothing in this Section shall be construed so as to give said commission power or authority to abandon any book or books originally contracted for. [Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 7.]

Art. 2909cc. Advertisement for bids; requisites of bids; deposit; forfeiture.—When books are to be selected and adopted under the provisions of this Act the chairman of the commission shall for thirty days by notices in the public press and by written notices mailed to all persons, firms or corporations in whose behalf such notices may be requested, in which notices the time and place of such selection shall be set out and thus advertised that sealed bids will be received at the time and place fixed in said notice and not later than September 1, 1918. Each bid shall state specifically at what price each book will be furnished, and shall be accompanied by specimen copies of each book offered, and it shall be required that each bidder deposit with the treasurer of the State of Texas such sum of money as the commission may require, to be not less than five hundred dollars, nor more than twenty-five hundred dollars, according to the value of the books each bidder may propose to supply. Such deposits shall be forfeited to the State absolutely if such bidder so depositing shall fail to make and execute such contract and bond as herein required within such times as the commission may require, which time shall be specified in the notice advertised. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 6; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 8.]

Art. 2909d. Sealing and opening of bids; affidavit as to payment of taxes; affidavit of bidder as to disinterest of members of Commission.—All bids submitted under Section 8 [Art. 2909cc] of this Act shall be sealed and deposited with the chairman of the commission to be delivered by him in the commission in session and for the purpose of considering the same, and shall be opened in the presence of the commission; provided that the commission shall not consider a bid of any publisher of school books who has failed to pay the tax due and payable the State of Texas under Chapter 148 of the Acts of the Twenty-ninth Legislature, and who has failed to make the affidavit required by this Act. Each individual, firm or corporation submitting bids to the commission for its consideration, or presenting books for adoption under the provisions of this Act, shall file with the Secretary of State an affidavit giving the names of all people employed to aid in any way whatsoever in securing the contract, and that no member of the commission is in any manner interested, directly or indirectly, in such individual, firm or corporation. If the fact should be disclosed that any member of the commission is so interested, it shall work a disqualification of such member of the commission, and he shall not be permitted to serve on the commission; or if it should further be disclosed that any member of the commission is or has been interested in any book or series of books as the author or associate author, or in any way pecuniarily interested in any book or series of books published by any house bidding for this contract, or offered for use in the public schools of this State, or that any member of the commission is interested in any such book or series of books in any manner, such fact shall likewise work as a disqualification of such member, and he shall not be permitted to serve upon the commission. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 7; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 9.]

Art. 2909dd. Meeting for consideration of bids; investigations; adoption of books; postponement of selection.—It shall be the duty of the commission to meet at the time and place mentioned in the notice and advertisement, and it shall then and there open and examine the sealed proposals received; and it shall be the duty of the commission to make a full and complete investigation of all the books and bids accompanying the same. The textbooks shall be selected and adopted after a careful examination and consideration of all books presented and the books selected and adopted shall be those which in the opinion of the commission are most acceptable for use in the schools, quality, mechanical construction, paper, print, price, authorship, literary merit and other relevant matters being given such weight in making its decision as the commission may deem advisable. The commission shall proceed without delay to adopt for use in the public schools of this State textbooks on all the branches hereinbefore mentioned; provided, that if the bid submitted to said commission should not be satisfactory to said commission, they may postpone the selection of such books or a part thereof to such time as they may select, and after the same is readvertised new bids may be received and acted on by such commission as provided for in this act; provided, that no textbook shall be adopted until it has been read and carefully examined by at least a majority of the commission. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 8; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 10.]

Art. 2909ee. Stipulations of contract as to exchange of books.—The commission shall stipulate in the contract where a change shall be made from the books in use that the contractor or contractors shall take in exchange the respective books adopted by the commission then in use in part payment for the new books; and all bidders under this Act shall specify what allowance they will make for the said respective books adopted by the State and then in the hands of the patrons of the public schools when offered in exchange for the new books adopted under this Act; provided, that said allowances and condition for the exchange of the old books shall be enforced only during the two scholastic years following a change in books, and no book shall be taken in exchange which was not in use in the public schools during the scholastic year next preceding the change, or which was not so purchased by book dealers for the session next preceding such exchange; and provided that the commission shall prescribe and promulgate the conditions of exchange, and upon failure to comply with such conditions by any contractor, suit shall be instituted against such contractor in accordance with Section 28 of this Act, and that said conditions of exchange shall be made a part of each contract authorized under this Act. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 9; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 11.]

Art. 2909f. Stipulations in contract as to changes, amendments and additions.—Every contract entered into with a publisher for the adoption of any book or books shall contain a provision that the commission herein provided for may, during the life of the contract, upon giving one year's previous notice to the publishers of such book or books, order such changes, amendments and additions to the book or books so selected and adopted as in the discretion of said commission shall keep them up to date and abreast of the times; provided that such revisions shall not be made oftener than once in two years. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 10; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 12.]
Art. 2909f. Bond of contractor; duties of Attorney General; deposit and performance of contract; suits on bond; new bond.—The bidder to whom any contract may have been awarded shall make and execute a good and sufficient bond payable to the State of Texas in the sum of not less than twenty thousand dollars for each book adopted under the provisions of this Act; provided further that the commission is hereby given authority to require bond in such further and additional sum as it may deem advisable, said bond to be approved by the commission, such bond to be conditioned that the contractor shall faithfully perform all the conditions of the contract. The contract and bond shall be prepared by the Attorney General and shall be payable in Travis County, Texas, and be deposited in the office of the Secretary of State. The bond shall not be exhausted by a single recovery thereon, but may be sued upon from time to time until the full amount thereof is recovered, and the Texas State Text Book Commission may at any time upon twenty days' notice require a new bond to be given, and in the event the contractor shall fail to furnish such new bond the contract of such contractor may at the option of the Texas State Text Book Commission be forfeited. [Acts 1907, 1 S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 11; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 13.]

Art. 2909ff. Prices to be paid for books; discrimination; liquidated damages; recovery at suit of Attorney General.—The commission shall not in any case contract with the publisher for any book or books to be used in the public schools of this State at a price in excess of the lowest price at which said publisher or publishers furnish or have offered to furnish and distribute the same book or books under contract with any other State, county or school district in the United States, and all contracts with publishers for the furnishing of books hereunder shall further stipulate and bind such publishers that they will not hereafter during the life of the respective contracts furnish or offer to furnish and distribute the same book or books under contract with any other state, county or school district in the United States at a lower price than that at which said publishers agree to furnish and distribute the same books under the contracts executed pursuant to this act, unless such publishers respectively shall immediately give such lower price to the beneficiaries of the contracts executed hereunder, provided, that in the event any such contract is made it shall be the duty of the Attorney General to institute suit upon the bond hereinabove provided for, for a recovery on behalf of the State of the liquidated damages due under and as provided for in Section 28 of this Act, and proof of a violation of this provision in any particular shall be prima facie evidence of liability in any such suit brought hereunder, and in case that any contractor who has a contract to furnish a book or books for the State under the provisions of this Act shall at any time during the period of this adoption contract with any other State, county or school district in the United States to furnish and distribute the same book or books at a lower price than fixed in accordance with the provisions of this Act, under similar conditions of sale and distribution as may be decided by the Texas State Text Book Commission such lower price shall immediately be given to the State of Texas, and for the breach of any of the conditions and stipulations contained herein or in the respective contracts, the contract may be forfeited and the contractors shall be liable to the State of Texas in liquidated damages in the full amount of the bond; and it shall be the duty of the Attorney General to bring suit on the bond of such contractors for such liquidated damages as provided for in Section 28 [Art. 2909n] hereof. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 12; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 14.]

Art. 2909g. Disqualification of contractor violating anti-trust law; affidavit and statement; filing copies of agreements with other publishers.—No book or books shall be purchased from any person, firm or corporation who is a member of or connected with any trust; and in the event it be established that this provision has been violated, such violation shall be held to be fraud and collusion as contemplated under Section 28 of this Act, and the Attorney General shall bring suit upon the bond of such person, firm, or corporation and upon proof of such violation shall recover the liquidated damages as provided in said Section 28 hereof, as defined by the laws of this State, and a sworn affidavit that said person or corporation is not connected either directly or indirectly with a trust shall be required, and said affidavit shall be filed with said commission. Before proceeding to adopt books as provided under the provisions of this Act, the commission shall require all persons, firms, and corporations bidding for a contract to file with the commission a sworn statement on or before the date selected by the commission for receiving sealed bids, stating whether said person, firm, or corporation is interested, or whether said person, firm or any member thereof or any individual stockholder of such corporation is interested or acting as a director, trustee or stockholder, either directly or indirectly or through a third party, in any manner whatsoever, in any other publishing house, and this statement shall be sworn to by such person, a member of such firm or the president, secretary, and each one of the directors of said corporation. All firms or persons bidding for a contract for supplying books shall present a sworn statement signed by all its members showing the names of all members of said firm, and whether any other person, firm or corporation has any financial interest in said firm, and also whether any individual member or members of said firm have any financial interest in any other publishing firm or corporation of publishers; provided further, that the commission shall require all corporations, or person, or firms to file with the governor attested copies of all written agreements entered into and existing between them and others engaged in the publishing business, and if in the opinion of the commission such written agreements or other facts adduced are violations of the anti-trust law of the State of Texas, or opposed to public policy, the bids of such houses shall not be considered by the commission. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 13; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 15.]

Art. 2909gg. Contract to stipulate against liability of state.—It shall be a part of the terms and conditions of every contract made in pursuance of this Act that the State of Texas shall not be liable to any contractor thereunder for any sum whatsoever, but all such contractors shall receive compensation solely and exclusively from the proceeds of the sale of school books as provided in this Act. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 14; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 16.]

Art. 2909h. Execution of contract; duplicate; record.—Each contract shall be duly signed by the publishing house or its authorized officers and agents; and if it is found to be in accordance with the award and all the provisions of this Act, and if the bond herein required is presented and duly approved the commission shall approve said contract and order it to be signed on behalf of the State by the Governor in his capacity as chairman. All contracts shall be made in duplicate, one copy to remain in custody of the Secretary of State and be copied in full in the minutes of the meeting of the commission in a well bound book, and the other copy to be delivered to the company or its agent. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 15; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 17.]

Art. 2909hh. Disposition of deposits made by bidders.—When any person has been awarded a contract and he has filed his bond and contract with the commission and the same has been approved, the commission shall make an order on the Treasurer of the State reciting such fact, and thereupon the Treasurer shall return the deposit of such bidder to him; but if any successful bidder shall fail to make and execute the contract and bond as hereinbefore provided, the Treasurer, shall place the deposit of such bidder in the State Treasury to the credit of the available school fund, and the commission shall readvertise for other bids to supply such books which said bidder may have failed to supply. All unsuccessful bidders shall have their deposit returned to them by the State Treasurer as soon as the commission has decided not to accept their bids.

Art. 2909i. Proclamation as to letting of contract; custody of standards adopted.—As soon as the State shall have entered into the contract for the furnishing of books for use of the public schools of this State under the provisions of this Act, it shall be the duty of the commission to issue its proclamation of such facts to the people of the State; and the State superintendent of public instruction shall carefully label and file away the copies of the books adopted as furnished for examination to the board; and such copies of such book shall be securely kept and the standard of quality and mechanical excellence of the book or books so furnished under this Act shall be maintained in said books so furnished under contract authorized by this Act during the continuance of the contract. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 17; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 19.]

Art. 2909ii. Circular letter to local school officers.—As soon as practical after the adoption of the textbooks provided for in this Act, the superintendent of public instruction shall address a circular letter to the county superintendent and to the president of the school boards in independent school districts, which circular letter shall contain a list of all the books adopted with their respective prices, together with such other information as he may deem advisable. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 18; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 20.]

Art. 2909j. Contractor to maintain stock of books within state at convenient distributing points; agencies; mode of distribution; failure to furnish books; penalty; unorganized counties.—All parties with whom the contract have been made shall establish and maintain in some city in the State a depository where a stock of their goods to supply all immediate demands shall be kept; all contractors not maintaining their own individual or separate State agencies or depositories shall maintain a joint agency or depository to be located at some suitable and convenient distributing point, at which general depository each contractor joining in said agency shall keep on hand a sufficient stock of books to supply subdepositories, and every contractor shall establish and maintain in every county in the State having an enrollment of five hundred pupils or more in the public schools as shown in the last preceding report of the county superintendent, on file in the office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, one or more agencies, one of which shall be at the county seat. At each county seat, as above provided, and in every city in the State containing five hundred inhabitants or over shall be maintained an agency of each contractor carrying a sufficient stock of all books contracted for to supply all immediate demands; provided, that in all counties not entitled to a depository under the conditions as provided for in this Act contractors shall supply such adopted books under such rules and regulations as may be approved by the Texas State Text Book Commission. Any person, dealer or school board in any county in the State may order from the central agency, and the books so ordered shall be furnished at the same rate and discount as are granted to agents at the county seat; provided that the price of books so ordered shall be paid in advance. Upon the failure of any contractor to furnish the books as provided in the contract, and in this Act, the county judge in the county wherein such books have not been furnished shall report the fact to the Attorney General, and he shall bring suit on account of such failure in the name of the State of Texas in the district court of Travis County, and shall recover on the bond given by such contractor for the full value of the books not furnished as required, and in addition thereto the sum of one hundred dollars, and each day of failure to furnish the books shall constitute a separate offense, and the amounts so recovered shall be placed to the credit of the available school fund of the State. Any unorganized county shall be furnished from the same agency as the county to which said unorganized county is attached for judicial purposes in the same manner as such organized county. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 19; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 21.]

Art. 2909jj. Price to be marked on books.—The contract price of each book shall be plainly printed on the back of each book, together with the following notice "The price marked hereon is fixed by the State, and any deviation therefrom should be reported to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction." First two years of the contract for new books the exchange price of each book shall be printed thereon, also. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 20; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 22.]

Art. 2909k. Use of books compulsory; exception; restriction as to authorship.—The books adopted by the Commission under the provisions of this Act shall be introduced and used as textbooks to the exclusion of all others in public free schools of this State for such period of years as may be determined by the commission, not to exceed six years in any case; provided nothing in this Act shall be construed to prevent or prohibit the patrons of the public schools throughout the State from procuring books in the usual way in the event that no contracts are made. Provided that said Commission shall not contract for any book of which any member of the nominating committee, or any member of said Commission is, or may be author. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 21; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 23.]

Art. 2909kk. Superseded by Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., c. 44.

Art. 2909n. Cancellation of contract; suit on bond of contractor.—The State may at its election cancel any contract entered into by virtue of the provisions of this Act for fraud, or collusion, or material breach of contract upon the part of either party of the contract, or any member of the commission, or any person, firm or corporation or their agents making said bond or contract; and for the cancellation of any such contract the attorney general is hereby authorized to bring suit in the proper court of Travis County, and in case of the cancellation of any contract as provided for, the damages are fixed at not less than the amount of said bond, to be recovered as liquidated damages in the same suit cancelling said contract; and on account of the difficulty of determining the damages, that might accrue by reason of such fraud collusion or material breach, and cancellation of such contract, the full amount of the bond given by the contractor shall be considered as liquidated damages to be recovered out of said bond by the State at the suit of the attorney general, and every contract that shall contain a clause to this effect. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 26; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 28.]

Art. 2909nn. Designation of Secretary of State to receive service of process.—Any person, firm or corporation with whom a contract has been entered into under the provisions of this Act shall designate the secretary of state of Texas as its or their agent, upon whom citation and all other writs and processes may be served in the event any suit shall be brought against such person, firm or corporation. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 27; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 29.]

Art. 2909o. Compensation of teachers acting as members of Commission; appropriation; employment of stenographer.—The teachers selected upon said commission under the provisions of this Act shall receive as compensation for their services the sum of five dollars per day each while on active duty and actual traveling expenses in going to and from the place of meeting, and in attending to the business of the commission, to be paid upon warrants drawn by the comptroller under the direction and approval of the chairman of the commission; and the sum of four thousand dollars for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1918, and one thousand dollars for each year thereafter, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of the general revenue of this State, not otherwise appropriated, for the purpose of paying the same and cost and expense of putting into effect the provisions of this Act; provided, that the superintendent of public instruction be and is hereby fully authorized to employ one stenographer to assist in the clerical work of the State Text-book Commission, the pay of said stenographer to be paid out of the appropriation herein made. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 28; Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 30.]

Art. 2909oo. Effect of adoption of constitutional amendment.—In the event the proposed amendment to Article 7 of the Constitution of Texas, to be voted on in November 1918, is adopted and thereafter put into actual operation and effect before the expiration of any textbook contracts awarded hereunder, or if for any other reason before the expiration of any textbook contracts awarded hereunder, it is decided to furnish free textbooks by the State of Texas for use in the Public Schools the books covered by such contracts shall be continued in use until the expiration of such contracts at the prices contracted for and under all the other terms and conditions of this Act, and in submitting any bid or bids under the terms of this Act every bidder shall agree that the books embraced in said bid shall be sold and delivered to the State of Texas at the prices offered in said bid and that the State shall receive the same discount from such prices that the Central Depository is allowing any subdepository in the State of Texas at the time that the State takes over the furnishing of free books for use in the Public Schools. [Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 31.]

Art. 2909ooo. Books to be manufactured in Texas; price.—That on and after this Act shall become effective, all text books which shall be hereafter adopted or contracted for by the Text Book Board of the State of Texas, for use in the public schools of Texas, under the provisions of Chapter 11, of the General Laws of the Thirty-second Legislature, passed at the First Called Session thereof, and approved August 31, 1911, be and the same are hereby required to be printed, bound, completed and finished within the State of Texas; and, provided further, that all typesetting and other mechanical labor connected with the printing of said books or revision or new edition thereof shall be performed within the State of Texas; provided, that no text book shall be adopted or contracted for by said board at a higher price than a similar book of equal or better quality would cost if manufactured elsewhere. [Act March 23, 1915, ch. 112, § 1 (§ 30).]

Explanatory.—It would seem that this act is superseded by Act June 5, 1917, ch. 44, ante, arts. 2909n-2909oo. The act in its title and enacting part purports to amend ch. 11, Acts 22nd Leg., 1st Called Sess., by adding thereto sections 30, 31, and 32. The enacting part, however, adds sections 30 and 30a only reading as set forth in articles 2909ooo and 2909oooo.
The title declares the subject of the proposed legislation to be "in substance that if this act becomes effective all text-books hereafter adopted or contracted for by the state text-book board for use in the public schools shall be printed, bound, completed, and finished within the state of Texas, and that all typesetting and other mechanical labor connected with the printing of said books or revision or new edition thereof shall be performed within the state of Texas; providing further that any person, firm, or corporation who at the time this act shall become effective shall be publishing or furnishing any text-books for use in the public schools by virtue of any such contract shall have said contract extended for a period of two years from the date of expiration thereof; provided such persons, firms, or corporations shall file with the secretary of state, state of Texas, on or before July 31, 1915, a supplementary agreement to be attached to such contract providing that on and after January 1, 1916, such publisher will print, bind, complete, and finish within the state of Texas all text-books furnished for use under the provisions of such contract; providing also certain duties of the governor with reference to the extension of such contract and regulating the execution of bonds relative thereto and the giving of new bonds under certain conditions." The act took effect six months after May 29, 1915, the date of adjournment.

Art. 29090000. Same; permit to manufacture outside of state where cost is substantially lower.—Provided, that the Governor and Text Book Board shall be authorized to permit publishers of adopted, or presented for adoption, books to contract for the printing, binding and completion of such books outside of the State when said publishers present satisfactory proof to said board that they can contract for editions of equal size and quality at a substantially lower price outside of the State, and contractors within the State will not substantially meet said competitive prices. [Id. (§ 30a).]

See note under art. 29090000.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO FREE KINDERGARTENS

Art.
290914a. Establishment; petition; school census and apportionment of school funds not affected; expense, how paid; part of school system. 290914a. Employment of teachers.
290912b. Repeal; partial invalidity.

Article 290914a. Establishment; petition; school census and apportionment of school funds not affected; expense, how paid; part of school system.—The trustees of any school district in the State of Texas, upon the petition of the parents or guardians of twenty-five or more children under the scholastic age down to and including five years, residing within said district, shall establish and maintain a kindergarten as a part of the public free schools of said district, for the training of children under the scholastic age down to and including five years, residing in said district, and shall establish such courses of training, study and discipline, and such rules and regulations governing such kindergartens as said trustees shall deem best. Provided that any such petition for the establishment and maintenance of a free kindergarten shall be presented to the trustees of said district between the First day of June and the First Day of August in any year. Provided further, that nothing in this Act shall be construed to change the law relating to the taking of the scholastic census, or the apportionment of State and County school funds among the several Counties and districts in this State. Provided, further, that the cost of establishing and maintaining such kindergartens shall be paid from the special school tax of said districts. Said kindergartens shall be a part of the public school system and shall be governed, as far as practicable in the same manner and by the same officers as is now, or may hereafter be, provided by law for the government of the other public schools of the State. [Act March 29, 1917, ch. 122, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The title of the act purports "to amend article 3811, chapter 14, title 48, Revised Statutes of Texas 1911, empowering the trustees of any school district, upon petition of parents or guardians, to require said trustees to establish and maintain free kindergarten, for the training of children under the scholastic age down to and including five years, and to provide for trained kindergarten teachers." In view of the provisions of section 2 of the act, post, art. 290914c, it seems obvious that an "amend-
Art. 2909½a. Employment of teachers.—The trustees shall be empowered to employ to teach such kindergartens only those who hold State Kindergarten Certificates, provided for in Section No. 121, of Chapter 96, of the Acts of the Thirty-second Legislature of the State of Texas [Art. 2811]. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 2909½b. Repeal; partial invalidity.—All laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act are hereby repealed, and in case it is held by the courts that any part of this Act is unconstitutional, such decision shall not impair the other parts and provisions of this Act. [Id., § 3.]

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

Article 2909¾. Acceptance of Act of Congress relating to vocational education.—That the State of Texas, hereby accepts the provisions of the Act of Congress, approved February 23, 1917, entitled, "An Act to provide for the promotion of vocational education; to provide for the promotion of vocational education; to provide for cooperation with the States in the promotion of such education in agriculture and the trades and industries; to provide for cooperation with the States in preparation of teachers of vocational subjects; and to appropriate money and regulate its expenditure." The good faith of the State is hereby pledged to make available through appropriations for the several purposes of said Act funds sufficient at least to equal the sums allotted, from time to time, to this State for the appropriations made by said Act and to meet all conditions necessary to entitle the State to the benefits of said Act. [Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 45, § 1.]

Art. 2909¾a. Custody of funds.—The State Treasurer is hereby designated custodian of all funds allotted to this State from the appropriations made by said Act, and he shall receive and provide for the proper custody and disbursement of the same in accordance with this Act. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 2909¾b. Administration of fund by State Board of Education. —That the State Board of Education is hereby designated and authorized, and is hereby given all necessary power, to cooperate, as provided in and required by the aforesaid Act of Congress with the Federal Board of Vocational Education in the administration of the provisions of said Act; and to do all things necessary to entitle the State to receive the benefits thereof. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 2909¾c. Appropriation.—That there is hereby appropriated out of the money in the State Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the scholastic year 1917-18, $29,950.00, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be used for salaries of teachers, supervisors, or directors of agricultural education in the public schools; $11,000.00, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for salaries of teachers, supervisors, or directors of trade, home economics and industrial subjects in the public schools; and $21,200.00, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for training of teachers of vocational subjects in the public high schools and colleges of the State, to be conditioned upon receiving a like sum from the Federal Board for Vocational Education to be used for similar purposes; and for the scholastic year 1918–19 $44,925.00, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for salaries of teachers, supervisors, or directors of agricultural education in the public schools; $16,500.00, or so much thereof as may be necessary for paying salaries of teachers, supervisors or directors or trade, home economics and industrial subjects in the public schools; $29,680.00, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for training of teachers of vocational subjects in the public high schools and colleges of the State, to be conditioned upon receiving a like sum from the Federal Board for Vocational Education to be used for similar purposes. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 2909%e. State appropriation to be compensated by school appropriation.—It is hereby expressly provided that all appropriations by local school boards for the purposes of this Act, and all appropriations by the State in its educational budgets that come within the provisions of this Act shall be allowed to compensate for the appropriations herein provided; and that the appropriations in this Act are simply a guarantee of good faith on the part of the State in the administration of the Federal Vocational Education Act; and are to be actually distributed in whole or in part by the State Board of Education only in case of necessity to preserve the good name of the State. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 2909%f. Plans for expenditure of fund to be approved by Federal Board for Vocation; applications for aid.—That in order to secure the benefits of the appropriation for the purposes specified in this Act, plans shall be submitted to the State Board of Education showing the kinds of vocation for which it is proposed that the appropriations shall be used; the kinds of schools and equipment; courses of study; methods of instruction; qualifications of teachers; and in the case of agricultural subjects, the qualifications of supervisors or directors; plans for the training of teachers; and in the case of agricultural subjects, plans for the supervision of agricultural education, as provided in the Federal Act. Such plans shall be prepared under the supervision of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction upon the form prescribed by the State Board of Education, and approved by the Federal Board for Vocation, and approved by the Federal Board for Vocational Education. It shall be the duty of the State Superintendent as secretary of the State Board of Education, to make a thorough investigation of such application submitted for aid under this Act, and the State Board of Education shall require his certificate that each school applying for aid under this Act meets substantially the requirements of the law before aid in any amount is granted. [Id., § 6.]
ELECTIONS

TIME AND PLACE OF HOLDING ELECTIONS

Art. 2910. Elections, general, time for holding.

Art. 2911. Precinct election, formed how and when; publication.

Art. 2912. Uniformity of election times.

Art. 2913. Precincts, election, formed how and when, publication.

Voting precincts how established.—The voting precincts of a new county should be so established as to embrace only territory situated in one commissioner's precinct and one justice's precinct in order that the vote for precinct officers may be determined. Dubose v. Woods (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 3.

Convenience of voters to be considered.—Under the act creating Dunn county (Acts 33d Leg. [1st Called Sess.] c. 35), the division of such county into commissioner's, justice's, and voting precincts held so manifestly wrong, in view of the comparative size and comparative number of voters and the inconvenience to residents of two of the three largest towns in reaching the polling place and justice's court, as to require the holding of an election in such precincts to be enjoined. Dubose v. Woods (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 3.

A division of a county into election districts when not for the convenience of voters, but to give the county commissioners continued control of county politics, will not be upheld. Williams v. Woods (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1031.

Art. 2916. [1732] [1689] Voters shall vote in precinct where they reside.

Evidence supporting rejection of ballots.—Where votes of two Mexicans were questioned, testimony that the precinct in which they lived was sparsely settled, that no other Mexicans lived there and that such persons had not resided there for sufficient time to vote, is admissible and will support a finding rejecting their ballots. Aldridge v. Hamlin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 602.

Art. 2919a. Use of public buildings for holding elections.—In all cases where it is practicable so to do, all elections shall be held in some school house, fire station or other public building within the limits of the election precinct in which such election is being held, and no charge shall be made for the use of such building, except that any additional expense actually incurred by the authorities in charge of such building on account of the holding of the election therein shall be repaid to them by the party who would be liable for the expenses of holding the election under the existing law, and provided that if there be no building available for the purpose of holding such election in the election precinct in which the election is being held, then such election may be held in some other building. [Act March 30, 1917, ch. 149, § 2.]

Explanatory.—The act amends ch. 1, tit. 49, Rev. Civ. St. by adding thereto art. 2919a. Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment.

OFFICERS OF ELECTION

Article 2922. Disqualifications for being judges, etc., or members of executive committees of parties.
Cited, Gilmore v. Waples (Sup.) 188 S. W. 1037 (in dissenting opinion).

Art. 2928d. Certain offenses of officers and supervisors.
Evidence as to intimidation.—Evidence in election contest held to show that a voter was deterred from voting by talk as to his having trouble if he voted and an opinion of the county attorney as to voting rights. Abshier v. Aiken (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 766.
Evidence in election contest held to show that a certain voter was neither influenced by intimidation nor an adverse opinion by the county attorney on his voting rights. Id.

CHAPTER THREE
ORDERING ELECTIONS, ETC.

Article 2936. [1805] [1754] In case of a tie another election shall be held.
Prevention of vote which would have resulted in tie.—Where a voter was restrained from voting by threatening talk and an adverse opinion by the county attorney, and his vote would have tied the result as between two candidates, the vote as between these candidates should be determined a tie. Abshier v. Aiken (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 766.

CHAPTER FOUR SUFFRAGE

Art. 2938. Qualifications for voting—who not qualified.

Art. 2946a. Tax receipt not to be delivered to agent.

Art. 2949. Poll tax receipt shall show what.

Art. 2950. Poll tax receipt, form of.

Art. 2952. Poll tax receipt, etc., in case of removal to another county or precinct, proviso.

Article 2938. Qualifications for voting; who not qualified.
Conviction of felony.—Where a voter had been convicted of felony and his sentence suspended under Acts 23d Leg. c. 44 (art. 866b, Vernon's Code Cr. Proc. 1918), which was held unconstitutional, the suspension was void, and the voter was not qualified, not having been pardoned. Aldridge v. Hamlin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 602.

Art. 2939. [1731] Qualifications for voting; voting by absentees.
—Every male person subject to none of the foregoing disqualifications who shall have attained the age of twenty one years, and who shall be a citizen of the United States, and who shall have resided in this state one year next preceding an election, and the last six months within the district or county in which he offers to vote, shall be deemed a qualified elector; and every male person of foreign birth, subject to none of the foregoing disqualifications, who has, not less than six months before an election in which he offers to vote, declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States, in accordance with the Federal Naturalization laws, and shall have resided in the state one year next preceding such election and the last six months in the county in which he offers to vote, shall also be deemed a qualified voter; and all electors shall vote in the voting precinct of their residence; provided that the electors living in an unorganized county may vote at an election precinct in the county to which such county is attached for judicial purposes; and provided further, that any voter who is subject to pay his poll tax under the laws of the state of Texas or ordinances of any city or town in this state, shall have paid said tax before he offers to vote at any election in this state, and holds a receipt showing the payment of his poll tax before the first day of February next preceding such election; and, if he is exempt from paying a poll tax and resides in a city of ten thousand inhabitants or more, he must procure a certificate showing his exemption, as required by this or, if such voter shall have lost or misplaced his tax receipt, he shall be entitled to vote, upon making affidavit before any officer authorized to administer oaths that such tax was actually paid by him before said first day of February next preceding such election at which he offers to vote, and that said receipt had been lost. Such affidavit shall be made in writing and left with the judge of the election. Provided, that in any election held only in a subdivision of a county for the purpose of determining any local question or proposition affecting only such subdivision of the county, then, in addition to the foregoing qualifications, the voter must have resided in such subdivision of the county for six months next preceding such election.

Any qualified elector as defined by the statutes of this state, who expects to be absent from the county of his residence, and at any other place in this State, on the day of his election may vote subject to the following conditions, to-wit:

At some time not more than ten days nor less than three days prior to the date of such election such elector shall make his personal appearance before the county clerk of the county of his residence, and if personally unknown to such clerk, shall be identified by at least two reputable citizens of such county, and shall deliver to such clerk his poll tax receipt or exemption certificate, entitling him to vote at such election, and said clerk shall deliver to such elector one ballot which has been prepared in accordance with the law for use in such election, which shall then and there be marked by said elector apart and without the assistance or suggestions of any other person, in such manner as said elector shall desire, same to be voted, which ballot shall be folded and placed in a sealed envelope and delivered to said clerk who shall keep same so sealed, and who shall also keep said poll tax receipt or certificate open to the inspection of any person who may wish to examine or see same until the second day prior to said election, and said clerk shall on said second day place the said poll tax receipt or certificate together with the said sealed envelope containing said marked ballot in another envelope which shall be by said clerk then mailed to the presiding judge of the voting precinct in which said elector lives. The postage for the entire correspondence herein made necessary to be provided by said elector. In the presence of the election officers provided by law, and on the day of such election and between the hours of two and three o'clock the said presiding judge of same in the precinct of the residence of said elector shall open the envelope containing said poll tax receipts and marked ballots and publicly announce that the ballot of such named elector is proposed to be cast, at which time any person who desired to challenge said vote and the right of same to be cast, shall be heard to present such challenge, and if there be no challenge of same, said vote shall be cast and counted according to the law; but if there by any challenge of such vote legal cause same shall be heard and decided according to the law provided in the case of challenge; and in case no challenge is made, such poll tax receipt, after same is marked, "Voted" as provided by law, shall be mailed back to the said county clerk. But in case of challenge, if challenged, such poll tax receipt together with affidavits relating thereto shall be mailed by said judge of election to the county clerk of such county who shall keep same for thirty days and if no demand be made for the production of same before any body or person in authority within said time, said county clerk shall deliver such receipt to the owners thereof. When voted the judge of election shall mark opposite the name of such absentee voter the word "Absentee" * * * ; provided this Act shall apply to any and all primary elections only. [Acts 1905, 1 S. S., p. 520, § 2; Act May 26, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 40, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The act amends art. 2939, ch. 4, tit. 49, Rev. Civ. St. 1911. Took effect 90 days after May 17, 1917, date of adjournment. The omitted part, as shown by asterisks, creates an offense, and is set forth post as art. 221a, Penal Code.

Poll tax.—Where an elector of the 1st day of January, 1912, was subject to payment of a poll tax and failed to pay the same, his vote at an election October 15, 1913, is properly rejected. Aldridge v. Hamlin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 605.

Residence.—That a voter voted at a school election in another state and paid poll taxes there, held not to preclude him from voting in the county of his residence. Aldridge v. Hamlin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 605.

Where one whose ballot was rejected owned a farm in county and intended to return there whenever he could find some one who would live with and care for him, ownership of the farm did not constitute a residence, as he actually was in another county.

Where a voter waiting to get a house in Texas removed to adjacent New Mexico town, his temporary residence, etc., will not, it appearing that he returned, deprive him of his right to vote in Texas. Id.

That a voter temporarily removed from the county but intended to return and resume business, does not, where he retained his home in the county, work a loss of residence, depriving him of the right to vote. Id.

That one owned a farm in the county and resided there, temporarily removed during season of drought, but returned, does not deprive him of his residence in the county and he may vote therein. Id.

That a resident of a county, in discharge of his duties with a railroad company, temporarily removed, held not to deprive of him his residence in the county and of his right to vote where he retained his family home. Id.

That a voter, who had resided in the county and state for a sufficient length of time, intended ultimately to return to a distant state, does not deprive him from acquiring a legal residence and the right to vote. Id.

A voter who managed a business in Texas but took his meals in a town across the state line in New Mexico, held resident of Texas where he slept and kept his effects in that state. Id.

That a man's wife and children resided on their homestead fixed his residence there, although he may have taken but one meal a day and spent the rest of his time on another farm. Marsden v. Troy (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 949.

As residence is largely a matter of intention, and absence will not alone destroy a residence once fixed, that a voter had been abroad and out of state a great deal, nothing being shown with regard to his intention, will not destroy his right to vote. Id.

Repetition of vote after removal of disqualification.—A voter should not be allowed to repeat his vote because he violated law in casting first one. Abshier v. Alken (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 766.

Evidence.—In an election contest where a voter's ballot was questioned, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that he had acquired residence in the county. Aldridge v. Hamlin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 605.

In an election contest, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that a challenged voter had a residence in the county and was entitled to vote. Id.

Evidence held sufficient to warrant the rejection of a voter's ballot on the ground that he resided in another state. Id.

Evidence in election contest held not to show conclusively that a voter did not live and pay his poll tax in the county in which he voted. Abshier v. Alken (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 766.

Art. 2942. Poll tax collected from whom; when paid; receipt.

Duty of collector to receive and receipt for poll tax.—Under arts. 2942, 2944, 2949, where a poll tax is tendered in proper time, the collector has no discretion but to receive it and receipt therefor, though he may be in doubt as to the right of the payer to vote, and if for any reason the receipt is not issued prior to February 1st, it is the collector's duty to issue it thereafter; notwithstanding Pen. Code 1911, art. 324. Parker v. Busby (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1942.

Where poll taxes are tendered to the collector before the time for payment has expired, performance of the collector's duty to issue a tax receipt may be compelled by mandamus. Id.

Art. 2944. Mode of paying poll tax.

Duty of collector to issue receipt.—See Parker v. Busby (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1042; note under art. 2942.

Art. 2945a. Tax receipt not to be delivered to agent, etc.

Art. 2949. Poll tax receipt shall show what.

CHAPTER SEVEN

MANNER OF CONDUCTING ELECTIONS AND MAKING RETURNS THEREOF

Art. 2995. Judges may administer oaths; powers of presiding judge.

Right of election judge to carry arms.—Under Const. art. 5, §§ 12, 15, making judges conservators of the peace, and this article, giving the presiding officer of elections the powers of the district judge to preserve order and keep the peace, held, that an election judge may lawfully carry a pistol. Hooks v. State, 71 Cr. R. 269, 158 S. W. 808.

Art. 3005. Ballot; delivery by voter; deposit, etc.

Art. 3012. [1741] [1697] Ballots which shall not be counted.

Art. 3024. [1743] [1698] Return of elections, how and to whom made.

Irregularities not invalidating election.—Where the only returns of a school election were placed in paper boxes tied with cotton strings, which contained the ballots and list or tally sheet, held that the failure to comply with arts. 2829, 3024, 3025, and 3031, did not invalidate the election. Mecaskey v. Ratliff (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 115.

Art. 3027. [1747] [1702] Ballots, etc., to be placed in a box and delivered to county clerk.

Clerk to safely keep ballots.—Under arts. 3027 and 3028, the contestants may presume that the clerk will preserve the ballots and need not take steps for preservation of the ballots. Doss v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 260.

Effect of destruction of ballots.—Under arts. 3027, 3028, where election contest is brought, although no notice is served on the clerk to preserve ballots, destruction of ballots by a janitor after bringing the contest and more than a year after the election is illegal. Doss v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 260.

Irregularities not invalidating election.—See Mecaskey v. Ratliff (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 115; note under art. 3024.

Art. 3028. [1748] [1703] Ballots, etc., shall be burned, when.

Duty of clerk to preserve ballots.—See Doss v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 260; note under art. 3027.

Effect of destruction of ballots.—Where ballots are illegally destroyed the returns of the election officials tabulated and declared by the commissioners' court are not an official adjudication as to the true result of the election in contest for illegal voting. Doss v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 260.

Art. 3030. [1753] [1705] County commissioners shall open returns, when.

Vacancy in office on failure to elect successor.—Under Const. art. 5, § 18, article 16, § 17, and Rev. St. 1911, arts. 2236, 2240, 3030, 3032, county commissioner's term expired when result of election was required to be declared, and if no commissioner was elected there was a vacancy, and defendant's subsequent qualification was not premature. Tom v. Klepper (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 721.

Art. 3031. [1754] [1706] Returns shall not be estimated, unless, etc.

Irregularities not invalidating election.—Where the only returns of a school election were placed in paper boxes tied with cotton strings, which contained the ballots and list or tally sheet, held that the failure to comply with Rev. Civ. St. 1911, arts. 2829, 3024, 3027, and 3031, did not invalidate the election. Mecaskey v. Ratliff (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 115.

Art. 3032. [1755] [1707] Certificates of election to county and precinct officers.

Vacancy on failure to elect successor.—Under Const. art. 5, § 18, article 16, § 17, and Rev. St. 1911, arts. 2236, 2240, 3059, 3032, county commissioner's term expired when result of election was required to be declared, and if no commissioner was elected there was a vacancy, and defendant's subsequent qualification was not premature. Tom v. Klepper (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 721.

Art. 3044a. Uniform date for qualification of all county and precinct officers.—That after each general election in this State, those who are elected to the various county and precinct offices in the State shall qualify, by taking the oath of office and giving bond and assuming the duties of their respective offices, as prescribed by law, on the first day of December following such general election, or as soon thereafter as possible. And all those officers holding office at the time of such general election, shall surrender their offices to their successors accordingly on such date, or as soon after said date as their said successors shall have qualified and be ready to assume the duties thereof. All laws and parts of laws that may be in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [Act March 30, 1917, ch. 143, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment.

CHAPTER EIGHT

CONTESTING ELECTIONS

Art. 3060. Other contested elections than for officers.

Art. 3061. Notice of contest.

Art. 3062. Fraudulent votes not to be counted.

Art. 3063. Election to be declared void, when.

Art. 3067. Costs, how taxed.

Art. 3071. Who may take depositions.

Art. 3077. Other contested elections.

Art. 3078. Parties defendant under preceding article.

Article 3050. [1797] Other contested elections than for officers.

Grounds of contest.—An election cannot be contested on the ground that the law authorizing it was void; but only for matters that would impeach the fairness of the result. Bassel v. Shanklin (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 105.

Under Const. art. 5, § 8, Legislature cannot confer jurisdiction to determine election contest upon any court or tribunal other than district court. Id.
Art. 3051. [1798] Notice of contest.
Application.—The giving of notice of contest required by this article, held under articles 3077, 3078, necessary for contest of an election for acceptance of a city charter, Bassel v. Shanklin (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 106.

Sufficiency of notice.—Service of a copy of the petition in a contest of an election for the issuance of school district bonds with a written notice of contest within the time required by statute, though the petition was filed before the notice was served, held a compliance with this article. Dunne v. Sayers (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 505.

Procedure in general.—A contest of election is not a civil suit, and so cannot be tried by methods prescribed therefor, but must proceed according to statutory provisions authorizing it. Bassel v. Shanklin (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 106.

In an action to contest an election, a petition held sufficiently definite in naming the precincts in which the class of voters was excluded and officers who announced that class was declared excluded. Marsden v. Troy (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 960.

Remedy given by statute relative to election contests for irregularities, such as illegal throwing out of votes or denying to qualified voters right to vote, is exclusive, Robertson v. Haynes (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 776.

Evidence.—Where ballots are illegally destroyed the contestants may question illegal votes as to how they voted, under this article. Doss v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 260.

Notice in election contest held to show that a voter was deterred from voting by talk as to his having trouble if he voted and an opinion of the county attorney as to voting rights. Absher v. Alken (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 766.

Evidence in election contest held to show that a certain voter was neither influenced by an adverse opinion by the county attorney on his voting rights. Id. issues and proof.—In an action to contest an election, an allegation in petition held sufficient to form a basis of proof that members of a class were prevented from voting without naming the voters of the class. Marsden v. Troy (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 960.

Art. 3062. [1804e] Fraudulent votes not to be counted.
Result how determined.—Under Const. art. 16, § 20, and Rev. St. 1911, arts. 3062, 5720, 5723, held that result of an election on question of prohibition is determined by a majority of qualified voters voting. Marsden v. Troy (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 960.

Rejection of ballots.—Where from practical considerations a voter had changed his mind as to his vote on the question of change of the county seat, his vote will not be rejected because of subsequent attempts to coerce him to vote as he did. Aldridge v. Hamlin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 602.

Art. 3063. [1804f] Election to be declared void, when.
Acts invalidating election.—As Const. art. 6, § 2, designated a special class, if a proclamation by election officers that no man not born in United States, unless he had final naturalization papers, would be permitted to vote in an election to prohibit sale of intoxicating liquors in a county was made known, and a sufficient number to overcome majority was prevented from voting, although they did not present themselves at polls, the election was void. Marsden v. Troy (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 960.

Distinction between quo warranto and statutory contest.—In quo warranto by the state under Rev. Civ. St. 1911, arts. 6398-6404, the only judgment permitted is of ouster from office and the installation of the relator, while the contest of the election under articles 3046-3078 may result in the contestant obtaining a certificate of his election or in a declaration of the illegality of the election and the ordering of another. Cole v. State (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 353.

Art. 3067. [1804] Costs, how taxed.
Liability of successful contestant.—In view of this article, where contestant secures a judgment on appeal, although the costs cannot be collected against the contestants, the contestant can be taxed only with the costs incurred by him. Doss v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 296.

Art. 3071. [1804n] Who may take such depositions.

Art. 3077. [1804t] Other contested elections.

Proper remedy.—If an election for acceptance of city charter is void for preliminary questions not being submitted by the council to the voters, a contest is not necessary; but injunction or quo warranto is a proper remedy. Bassel v. Shanklin (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 105.

Who may contest election.—Under this article, and Acts 322 Leg. c. 118, § 34, ante art. 2591a, resident of county can bring suit in district court to contest election on former sale of drainage district, McFarland v. Westley (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 261.

Notice of contest.—The giving of notice of contest required by art. 3051, held under articles 3077, 3078, necessary for contest of an election for acceptance of a city charter. Bassel v. Shanklin (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 105.

Art. 3078. [1804u] Parties defendant under preceding article.
Notice of contest.—The giving of notice of contest required by art. 3051 held under articles 3077, 3078, necessary for contest of an election for acceptance of a city charter. Bassel v. Shanklin (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 105.

Under arts. 3151, 3078, requiring notice of election contests and service thereof on the county attorney, such notice and service are jurisdictional and may not be waived by the county attorney. Moore v. Commissioners' Court of Titus County (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 865.

Employment of attorney.—Under art. 1042 et seq., and this article, an incorporated town had no authority to employ an attorney to contest an election by which it was voted to abolish the corporation or to bind the town for the fees for such services. Tharp v. Blake (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 540.

Decisions Relating to Subject in General

Political question.—Canvassing returns and declaring result of election involves political question not cognizable by court of equity. Fuller v. McHaney (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1159.

CHAPTER TEN

NOMINATIONS—BY PRIMARY ELECTIONS AND OTHERWISE

Art. 3137. Place for state convention, fixed how.

Art. 3135. Mandamus to compel performance of duties.

Art. 3151. Certificate and printing name on ballot, on decision by committee, unless appeal.

Art. 3154. Review of certificates of nomination, by district court; procedure.

Art. 3158. Appeal to court of civil appeals in what cases; advanced.

6. MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Art. 3172. Nomination declined, how; vacancy how filled, etc.; posters used when, etc.

Art. 3173. No executive committee to nominate, except.

1. Nominations by Parties of One Hundred Thousand Votes and Over

Article 3084. Candidates of parties of 100,000 votes and over to be nominated by primary election.

Jurisdiction of Court of Civil Appeals.—Under arts. 3154, 3156, 3158, in proceeding to contest nomination for congressman at large, no appeal lies to the Court of Civil Appeals; that office not being a state office, especially in view of this article. Lane v. McLemore (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1073.

Art. 3090. Judges of primary election, powers and duties.

Right of election judge to carry arms.—Under Const. art. 5, §§ 12, 15, making judges conservators of the peace, and this article, giving the presiding officer of elections the powers of the district judge to preserve order and keep the peace, held, that an election judge may lawfully carry a pistol. Hooks v. State, 71 Cr. R. 269, 158 S. W. 809.

Art. 3093. Qualifications for voting; poll tax in cities of 10,000 and over; additional qualifications, etc.

Art. 3094. Expenses of primary election, how met.

Art. 3104. No candidate placed on ballot who has not paid pro rata expenses.

Cited, Waples v. Marrast (Sup.) 184 S. W. 180.

Art. 3136. District conventions; notice; report by executive committee; canvass of votes at primary; certification; single candidate; duty of county clerk.—On the fourth Saturday in August succeeding each general primary, there shall be held in each district within the State in which any candidate or candidates for any district office are to be elected at the succeeding general election, a district convention, which shall be composed of delegates from the county or counties composing such district, selected in the manner herein provided; notice of the time and place of holding such convention shall be given by the executive committee of such district at least ten days prior to such meeting. Before such convention assembles, the executive committee of such district shall meet and elect a chairman of such committee, shall prepare a list of the delegates from the various counties composing such district which have been certified to the district committee by the chairman of the various county committees, shall tabulate the vote cast in the various counties for each candidate for district office, which has been certified to such committee as provided in this chapter and shall also prepare a statement, showing the number of convention votes which each county in such district is entitled to cast in said convention upon the basis set forth in Article 3142, and shall present such list of delegates, tabulated vote and convention vote to the convention when it assembles. The district convention shall then canvas the returns of the votes cast in all of the counties of the district for each candidate as presented to them by the district committee, and shall declare the person found to have received the largest number of votes at the primary in the district for such office the nominee of the party for such office; and the chairman and the secretary of the convention shall forthwith certify such nomination to the Secretary of State, who shall certify all district nominations to the various county clerks. But, in the event there is only one name on the ballot for a district office without an opponent, the district chairman shall, as soon as practicable after the primary election, certify that the person on the ballot is the nominee of the party and that there shall be no convention held for the purpose of declaring the result; provided further that it shall be the duty of the county clerk of each county of this state to certify to the Secretary of State on or before the fourth Saturday in August succeeding any general primary the total vote cast in his county for each and every district officer, and in the event no district convention be held as herein provided for, the Secretary of State shall ascertain from the returns so certified who has received the largest vote for such office, and shall certify such fact to each county clerk in such district not later than October 1st of such year. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 547; Acts 1907, p. 329; Act Feb. 18, 1915, ch. 16, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The act amends art. 3136, ch. 10, tit. 49, Rev. Civ. St. 1911. Took effect 90 days after March 20, 1915, date of adjournment.

Art. 3137. Place for state convention, fixed how.
Cited, Gilmore v. Waples (Sup.) 188 S. W. 1037 (in dissenting opinion).

Art. 3143. Mandamus to compel performance of duties.
Cited, Gilmore v. Waples (Sup.) 188 S. W. 1037 (in dissenting opinion).

Art. 3151. Certificate and printing name on ballot, on decision by committee, unless appeal.
Waiver of notice of contest.—Under arts. 3151, 3078, requiring notice of election contests and service thereof on the county attorney, such notice and service are jurisdictional and may not be waived by the county attorney. Moore v. Commissioners' Court of Titus County (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 805.

Art. 3154. Review of certificates of nomination by district court; procedure.

Appeal to Court of Civil Appeals.—Under arts. 3154, 3156, 3158, in proceeding to contest nomination for congressman at large, no appeal lies to the Court of Civil Appeals; that office not being a state office, especially in view of article 3084. Lane v. McLemore (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1073.

Appeal to Court of Civil Appeals.—See Lane v. McLemore (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1078; note under art. 3154.

Art. 3158. Appeal to court of civil appeals in what cases; advanced.
Appellate jurisdiction.—Under arts. 3154, 3156, 3158, in proceeding to contest nomination for congressman at large, no appeal lies to the Court of Civil Appeals; that office not being a state office, especially in view of article 3084. Lane v. McLemore (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1073.
6. MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Art. 3172. Nomination declined, how; vacancy how filled, etc.; posters used when, etc.

Judicial supervision.—Political parties have authority to make nominations for elective officers, and, while the method may be regulated, it cannot be absolutely inhibited, and where a proposed action by the executive committee of a political party affects only a political right, the matter will be remitted to the party forum. Gilmore v. Waples (Sup.) 188 S. W. 1037.

Statute as measure of powers.—Where before his term of office expired an incumbent died, the state executive committee of a party cannot, under arts. 3172, 3173, make a nomination; such nomination not being expressly authorized, and all others being prohibited. Gilmore v. Waples (Sup.) 188 S. W. 1037.

Application of statute.—Where after a primary election an official died, causing a vacancy for which no nomination was made, arts. 3172, 3173, as to powers of party executive committee to fill vacancies caused by declaration or death of nominee, do not apply, and the committee could nominate as it chose, in accordance with party rules. Waples v. Gilmore (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 122.

Art. 3173. No executive committee to nominate, except.

Judicial interference.—Where the state democratic executive committee was proceeding to make a nomination in violation of this article, to the injury of plaintiff, the matter is one of which the courts will take cognizance—legal, and not merely political, rights being involved, and where plaintiff was entitled as member of Democratic party to run as a Democrat for office of state railroad commissioner, nomination by state Democratic executive committee would be enjoined. Gilmore v. Waples (Sup.) 188 S. W. 1037.

That one party so predominates as to assure its nominee of election is no ground for interference by the courts with the nominating machinery of such party, where the question of nominations is unprovided for in law and wholly political. Waples v. Gilmore (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 122. See, also, notes under art. 3172.

CHAPTER TEN A

ELECTION OF UNITED STATES SENATORS BY DIRECT VOTE

Art. 3174a. Election of United States senators; time of holding; qualification of voters.

Cited, Beene v. Waples (Sup.) 187 S. W. 191.

Art. 3174w. Officers at primary elections; compensation.

Constitutionality.—This article is not unconstitutional as violating Const. art. 3, § 52, relating to use of public funds and credit, Const. art. 8, § 3, requiring taxes to be levied by general laws, and for public purposes only, Const. art. 1, § 3, relating to equal rights, or Const. art. 1, § 19, providing for due course of law. Beene v. Waples (Sup.) 187 S. W. 191.

Construction.—This article and the General Primary Election Law, are to be construed together as one act. Beene v. Waples (Sup.) 187 S. W. 191.

Compensation how paid.—Under this article, election officers at primaries for nomination for United States Senator are to be paid out of funds provided by reasonable assessments against candidates for party nominations as provided by general primary election law. Beene v. Waples (Sup.) 187 S. W. 191.

Assessments against candidates.—In absence of constitutional or statutory restrictions, authorities of political party may reasonably regulate nominations, including assessments against candidates. Beene v. Waples (Sup.) 187 S. W. 191.

CHAPTER ELEVEN
NATIONAL CONVENTION, STATE CONVENTION TO SELECT DELEGATES TO

Article 3175a. Nomination of candidates for president and vice-president and party presidential electors, and election of party delegates to national conventions.

Constitutionality.—The Presidential Primary Act, applying only to political parties polling 50,000 votes for Governor, is not invalid because it applies at present to only the Democratic party. Waples v. Marrast (Sup.) 184 S. W. 180.

The Legislature has authority to require the holding of a primary election by the parties of the state to enable their members to vote for party nominees for state or national elective offices, or for delegates to party conventions. Id.

That the Presidential Primary Act is impracticable, unworkable if literally observed, and deficient for failing to provide for the legal number of presidential electors does not render it unconstitutional. Id.

The Presidential Primary Act, providing that the expenses of the election shall be paid out of the county treasury, held violative of Const. art. 8, § 3, providing that taxes shall be levied for public purposes only. Id.

TITLE 50
ELECTORS OF PRESIDENT AND VICE-PRESIDENT

Article 3184. [1819] [1768] Governor shall issue proclamation, etc.

ESCHEAT

Article 3197. [1831] [1780] Writ of seizure and proceedings thereunder.

Sale of property.—Escheat proceedings vest title in purchaser, and heirs, devisees, or legatees must assert their claim against the proceeds. Unknown Heirs of Buchanan v. Creighton-McShane Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 914.

Recitals in sheriff's deed and in order of confirmation of sale in escheat proceedings held to show valid order of sale. Id.

Issuance of order of sale provided for in this article, need not be noted in the execution docket to be valid. Id.

Under Acts 16th Leg. c. 139, notice of sale under escheat proceedings need not be published. Id.

Title 52

CHAPTER ONE

JURISDICTION

Article 3206. [1840] [1789] Probate jurisdiction of the county court.

Jurisdiction—In general.—Even if the probate court had jurisdiction of the question of title to land and such title had been put in issue by pleadings therein, its judgment that the fee-simple title therein vested in decedent's widow would not be binding on a surviving brother and heir who was not a party to that suit. Perkins v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 915.

An order of the county court in a guardianship proceeding reciting that land belonged to the community held not a conclusive adjudication that the surviving parent was entitled to one-half of the property; the court having no jurisdiction. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 892.

Notwithstanding Const. art. 5, § 16, the probate court does not acquire jurisdiction of a trust for a minor because the original testamentary trustee died, but the district court has jurisdiction and will appoint a trustee to carry out the purpose of the trust. Kent v. McDaniel (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1006.

The Constitution confers, not only general probate jurisdiction upon the county court, but also an auxiliary and ancillary equity jurisdiction upon the district court over questions affecting administration. Lauraine v. Ashe (Sup.) 191 S. W. 565.

Exclusive.—In an original proceeding, a suit to set a will aside, the district court cannot forestall action of the county court and deprive it of its original jurisdiction to determine validity of the will. Milner v. Sims (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 784.

The county court has exclusive jurisdiction in proceedings to recover the homestead or allowance in lieu thereof, and also to partition and distribute real estate. McMahan v. McMahan (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 157.

The probate court has exclusive, original jurisdiction in a pending administration of claims and liens against the estate, and the remedy upon the administrator's rejection of a lien is in that court, and the district courts have no jurisdiction over the management of the estate, except on appeal. Ralston v. Stainbrook (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 413.

Under Const. art. 5, § 16, and this article and art. 3207, held, that county court had exclusive original jurisdiction of claim against administrator of deceased principal in a note signed by sureties and secured by mortgage, in view of art. 1848, giving right to sue sureties alone, though one of the sureties was dead, and administration was pending on his estate. Putney v. Livingston (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 259.

Under this article and art. 3207, a district court had no original jurisdiction over probate of a will. Daniel v. Finley (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 955.

Collateral and direct attack.—Final judgments of the county court rendered in matters within its probate jurisdiction can only be attacked directly, and set aside only for want of jurisdiction or for mistake or fraud. White v. Bedell (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 624.

Presumptions as to.—Probate courts are courts of general jurisdiction in probate matters, and all presumptions in favor of their jurisdiction in such matters will be indulged. Reeves v. Fuqua (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 652.
Art. 3207. [1841] [1790] Probate jurisdiction of district court.

See notes under art. 1706.

Jurisdiction of district court.—Under this article and art. 3206, a district court had no original jurisdiction over probate of a will. Daniel v. Finley (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 968.

Art. 3209. [1843] [1792] In what counties wills shall be probated and letters granted.

Non-residents.—An assignee of the father and mother of one who died in New Mexico unmarried and without issue need not allege that there was no administration in New Mexico, in view of this article. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Porter (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 98.

As a general rule, for the purpose of founding administration, simple contract debts, and tort actions, are assets of the domicile of the debtor, and where a switchman was injured in interstate commerce on a Texas railroad operating wholly within the state and was entitled to recover under Act Cong. April 5, 1910 (1916 U. S. Comp. Stats. Ann. §§ 8657-8665), but died pending suit, an administrator was properly appointed in the Texas county where deceased sued. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Smitha (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 237.

RECORD BOOKS

Article 3216. [1850] [1799] Shall be evidence.

In general.—Under this article, an applicant for letters of administration de bonis non can read orders from the books themselves in evidence. Kimmons v. Abraham (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 256.

In trespass to try title, a certified copy of a sale and probate proceedings in the settlement of the estate of a decedent under whom a party claims is properly received in evidence. Magee v. Paul (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 325.

———

CHAPTER THREE

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Art. 3218. [1852] [1801] Decisions, etc., of court shall be rendered in open court, etc.

After adjournment for the day.—The appointment of a permanent administratrix without a formal reopening of the court after adjournment for the day is not void under this article. Reeves v. Fuqua (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 682.

Art. 3219. [1853] [1802] And shall be entered of record.

Cited, Reeves v. Fuqua (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 682.

Art. 3227. [1861] [1809] County judge may enforce orders, etc., of previous court.

Cited, Spence v. Fenchler (Sup.) 180 S. W. 597.

Art. 3235. [1869] [1817] In whom property vests upon death of testator or intestate.

Cited, Lane v. Miller & Vidor Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 100.

Will as evidence of title.—Until a will is probated, it is no evidence of title. Milner v. Sims (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 784.

Right of possession.—This article does not authorize an administrator to assume possession of property not in the possession or right to possession of decedent at his death. Lauraine v. Ashe (Sup.) 191 S. W. 662.

Right of possession, to property of a debtor, of receiver appointed in her lifetime, does not pass on her death to administrator, by virtue of this article, as to administrator's right of possession, in absence of showing of loss of jurisdiction of court appointing receiver. Id.
Liability of devisees, heirs, etc., for debts.—Under Const. art. 16, §§ 50, 52, this article, and art. 3, § 11, a homestead, on sale of land, is insufficient to pay debts, though the probate court failed to set aside the homestead under art. 3413, notwithstanding art. 3787, declaring that the proceeds of a voluntary sale shall not be subject to forced sale within six months after such sale. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan, 166 S. W. 1132, 116 Tex. 306.

Under Const. art. 16, §§ 50, 52, this article, and arts. 3418, 3419, and 3421-3428, inclusive, the homestead, whether decedent's estate is solvent or insolvent, descends to his heirs, subject to the rights of the widow and minor children, exempt from liability for the decedent's debts, and this status is not affected by a subsequent voluntary sale or abandonment. Hoefling v. Hoefling, 167 S. W. 210, 116 Tex. 350.

Under this article and arts. 3422, 3427, 3428, the amount received from a sale of the homestead by the heirs is not liable for the debts of the decedent. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 771, certified question answered by Supreme Court 165 S. W. 1132, 116 Tex. 306.

The surviving wife of the deceased maker of a note is not personally liable thereon, but the creditor should proceed against the property of the decedent in her hands. Hamlet v. Leicht (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 1004.

Heirs may sue to recover property, when.—In suit by divorced wife to recover of bank money which buyers of community property from husband paid in for him, legatees and heirs of husband, interpleaded, who failed to allege and prove that there was no administration upon his estate in Texas, and no necessity for administration, could not recover nor complain of judgment, but divorced wife could sue bank, though administration was still pending on his estate and all claims had not been finally adjusted. Baber v. Galbraith (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 345.

In action on policy, failure of petition to allege any administration of plaintiff's deceased father, the original beneficiary under whom she claimed, held error of law apparent upon the face of the record and fundamental. Modern Woodmen of America v. Yanowsky (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 723.

For an heir to sue a debtor of his ancestor's estate, he must allege and prove there was no administration and none necessary. Freeman v. Klaerner (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 543.

Donation certificate.—A donation certificate issued by the state to the heirs of one who fell at the Alamo in 1836, being a mere gratuity, did not belong to his estate. Moody v. Bonham (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 1029; id. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 670.

Art. 3236. [1870] [1818] Any person interested in an estate may file opposition, etc.

Pleading.—Where a will is contested for alleged undue influence, it is not necessary that contestant allege what the arguments were, or in what form the importunities charged against the person alleged to have influenced testator were presented. Mayes v. Mayes (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 919.

Art. 3241. [1875] [1822a] Annual exhibits required; final settlement, when.

Art. 3242. [1876] [1823] Twenty days notice of filing exhibit shall be given, etc.

Art. 3245. [1879] [1826] Titles made by executor, etc., valid although, etc.

Bona fide purchasers.—A purchaser of land at an administrator's sale may be an innocent purchaser regardless of the form of the deed, if it was the intention to sell the land, as distinguished from a mere change of title, and the purchaser intended to buy the land and was without notice of an adverse claim, but an administrator's deed only purporting to convey the interest of the estate in the property is prima facie a quitclaim only and insufficient to support a plea of innocent purchaser, and where an administrator's deed purported to convey only the estate's interest, which was nil, to the knowledge of the grantee, a subsequent purchaser was charged with notice and could not occupy the position of an innocent purchaser. Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 537.

Confirmation of grant by heir.—A grantee in a bond for title executed by the sole heir of the deceased owner held to acquire title at a subsequent administrator's sale, ordered and confirmed by the court. Word v. Colley (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 629.

CHAPTER FOUR
APPLICATIONS FOR THE PROBATE OF WILLS AND FOR LETTERS

Article 3247. [1880] [1827] Application for letters must be filed within four years after death of testator, or intestate, exception.
Cited, Lane v. Miller & Vidor Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 100.

Art. 3248. [1881] [1828] Will shall not be probated after lapse of four years, unless, etc.
Cited, Lane v. Miller & Vidor Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 100.

In general.—Where more than four years after testator's death a will is admitted to probate on application of parties not in default, those in default are, under this article and art. 3274, entitled to the benefit of the probate. Masterson v. Harris (Sup.) 174 S. W. 678, answer to certified questions conformed to (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 284.
Under this article, the probate of a will at the instance of one not in default under that statute inures to the benefit of all of the heirs. Michanlis v. Nance (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 785.

Applicant held in default.—Where proponent was advised of the contents of a will within a month after testator's death, and waived its provision in favor of a verbal agreement made with other beneficiaries, pursuant to which the estate was administered, the fact that the other parties refused to carry out the agreement was not an excuse for not applying for probate within four years from testator's death, as required by this article. Armendariz de Acosta v. Cadena (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 555.

Applicant held not in default.—Under this article, evidence that delay in discovering and offering for probate a holographic will was due to intrusting possession of testator's papers to another of his children held not insufficient as a matter of law to prove that the proponent was not in default. Michaelis v. Nance (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 785.

Probate as muniment of title.—A party claiming to be a devisee under a will which he alleges defendants wrongfully suppressed, but who is not an heir of testator, cannot sue to recover land under provisions of said will before its probate. Daniel v. Finley (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 955. See Jung v. Petermann (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 202.

Article 3251. [1884] [1831] Application for probate of written will produced in court shall state what.

Pleadings.—Where the replication of the proponent asked that a subsequent will be admitted to probate in connection with proponent's alleged will, the pleadings were sufficient to authorize probate of the subsequent will. Maris v. Adams (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 475.

Article 3253. [1886] [1833] What the application shall state where the will cannot be produced in court.

Destruction of will.—The destruction of a will does not prevent its being probated. Daniel v. Finley (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 955.

Article 3263. [1896] [1843] Administration may be prevented, how.
Cited, Rowe v. Dyess (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 531.

CHAPTER FIVE
PROBATE OF WILLS

Article 3267. [1900] [1847] How a written will which is produced in court may be proved.
Witness' testimony as to date of will.—In view of this article, providing that, where subscribing witnesses are dead, a will may be probated by proof of two witnesses as to their handwriting. It was immaterial that a subscribing witness could not remember exact

Effect of will not probated.—A will not probated does not constitute a cloud on title.

Art. 3271. [1904] [1851] Facts which must be proved.
See art. 7855 and notes.

Presumptions and burden of proof—Testamentary capacity.—A general demurrer filed by proponent of a will has the effect of requiring proponent to prove the mental capacity of testator, even if, in the absence of a contest, such proof is not required by this article. Baker v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 456.

In a will contest, the burden is on the proponent, under this article, to show testamentary capacity. Navarro v. Garcia (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 723.

There is no presumption in Texas of testamentary capacity on the part of the testator.

Fraud and undue influence.—Where an antecedent fiduciary relation exists between testator and the beneficiary, a court of equity will presume confidence placed and influence exerted, but otherwise such relation and influence must be proved by the contestant, and where there was such fiduciary relation as to raise presumption of undue influence by a granddaughter, the sole beneficiary, the burden of establishing undue influence was on the contestant, nor did fact that testatrix lived with her grand­ dughter and her husband, and the husband looked out for land on which she had filed established such a fiduciary relation as to raise a presumption of undue influence by the

Where influence in execution of will, contestants have burden of showing opportunity with respect to time and place, and that the condition of testator's mind would subject him to undue influence, and that undue influence was in fact exerted, and affected the will. Clark v. Briley (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 419.

Undue influence in execution of a will cannot be presumed or inferred from opportunity or interest. Id.

Admissibility of evidence.—In a proceeding for the probate of a will the erroneous admission in evidence of a deposition of the testatrix taken in another suit which she instituted, stated that the proponent was the exhiphan of her will, held prejudicial, where the evidence was conflicting. Rucker v. Carr (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 632.

Declarations of the testator made before or after the date of the will, and relating to its execution, not a part of the will, are not admissible and declarations of a testator at the time of executing a will that he "already had Adams and Henry fixed" were not admissible to establish the execution of a prior will, nor to identify a note claimed to have been found with a letter asking the payees to accept "this," in a sealed envelope, inscribed "Notes" as one of the notes referred to on the envelope.
Maries v. Adams (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 475.

Declarations of a testator that the will was produced by undue influence, or that it was not his will or an act of like nature, held incompetent to prove the fact of undue influence or as direct evidence that it produced the will, and where undue influence, as distinguished from mental incapacity, is in issue and is independently proved, testator's declarations, expressive of a mental state produced by such influence, whether made contemporaneously with the execution of the will or within a reasonable time before or after its execution, are admissible on the question of his free agency in executing it, and in a will contest on the ground of undue influence exercised by the contestee, the wife of testator, to the exclusion of a daughter, testator's declaration, expressive of affection for her daughter and an intention to provide for her in his will, held admissible, but testator's declaration that his wife had always wanted him to make his will and had always manifested a hostile or unfriendly attitude toward his daughter held hearsay in character and inadmissible to show the effect of such influence on testator's mind.
Scott v. Pownsend, 166 S. W. 1313, 166 Tex. 322, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 342.

Declarations made by testatrix at or about the time of the alleged execution of a will offered for probate, disclosing unfriendly feeling towards persons who were beneficiaries under the will, were relevant and material in a contest challenging fraud, as tending to show that testatrix did not knowingly and willingly make the bequest.
Sockwell v. Sockwell (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 1185.

In a will contest by a disinherited son on the grounds of testamentary incapacity, evidence that another son had unlawfully deprived contestant of property was inad­

The financial condition of the beneficiary, especially where the facts show that testatrix knew or should have known thereof, in case dependent upon circumstances to establish the beneficiary's undue influence, is admissible. Rounds v. Coleman (Civ. App.)
159 S. W. 1086.

Where contestants claimed will was not act of testator, evidence that testator submitted will to lawyer for his opinion as to its validity was admissible. Berryhill v.
Berryhill (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 218.

Sufficiency of evidence—Testamentary capacity.—Evidence held to show that one making a will did not possess sufficient mental capacity. Holt v. Guergelin (Civ. App.)
156 S. W. 2d 68. Reversed 137 Tex. 695, 152 S. W. 2d 598, 128 S. W. 2d 1186.

Evidence held not to sustain a finding that the execution of either of two wills was the result of an insane delusion upon the part of testatrix, since, though testatrix had an insane delusion that she had been told that a daughter whom she disinherited, would poison her, yet, as testatrix stated she did not believe it, and ate meals prepared by the daughter, the delusion could not have influenced the bequest to the daughter, nor did fact that testatrix made an inaccurate statement in her will in giving her reason for making a bequest constitute evidence of insanity or insane delusion. In re Bartel's Estate (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 869.
Evidence in a will contest held not to sustain a finding by the jury that the testatrix did not possess testamentary capacity at the time of the execution of either of two wills. Id.

Proof of the making of an unnatural will is some evidence of testamentary incapacity, but is insufficient alone to establish it. Navarro v. Garcia (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 723.

Fraud and undue influence.—Evidence held to show that a will was procured by undue influence. Holt v. Guerguin (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 581; judgment reversed 196 Tex. 185, 183 S. W. 10, 50 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1136.

Evidence in a will contest held to sustain a finding of the jury that the execution of the will was procured by undue influence. Scott v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 845; judgment reversed 106 Tex. 322, 166 S. W. 1138.

In proceedings to probate a will, evidence held insufficient to justify a finding that it was the result of undue influence. People v. Coly (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 919.

In a will contest, evidence held not sufficient to raise the issue of undue influence. In re Bartels' Estate (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 850.

Proof of the making of an unnatural will is some evidence of undue influence, but is insufficient alone to establish it. Navarro v. Garcia (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 723.

Evidence showing that will was properly executed and witnessed, and that testator had provided for omitted children by previous deeds, held sufficient to justify direction of verdict for proponent. Berryhill v. Berryhill (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 215.

That two children were paid small sums to release their interest in their mother's estate and that two others released their interest without payment, although evidence of motive for excluding the first children from participation in the father's estate, and fact that testator lived ten years after executing his will without revoking it would not be conclusive against contestants on the issue of undue influence. Clark v. Erley (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 419.

Effect of finding of jury as to revocation.—Where jury found that a will proposed has been revoked, until that finding was set aside, court could not admit will to probate, however well its execution is established. Palmer v. Logan (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 761.

Art. 3274. [1907] [1854] Order shall be entered, will, etc., shall be recorded, when.

Effect of probate.—A judgment of probate is, as a rule, binding on the whole world; the proceeding being one in rem, and where more than four years after testator's death a will is admitted to probate on application of parties not in default, those in default are, under this article and art. 3249, entitled to the benefit of the probate. Masterson v. Harris (Sup.) 174 S. W. 570, answer to certified questions conformed to (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 284.

Art. 3276. [1909] [1856] Will probated in another state or country may be filed and recorded in this state.

Necessity of filing and recording.—An attempt by a foreign executor to act as such in the state, without first complying with this article, is without authority of law. Lane v. Miller & Vidor Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 100.

Necessity of probating will.—An executor could not convey land located in Texas, though the will was recorded in the deed records, if it was not regularly probated in this state. Sparkman v. Davenport (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 410.

CHAPTER SIX GRANTING LETTERS

Art. 3279. When administration shall be granted.

Art. 3281. Order in which letters shall be granted.

Art. 3282. Certain persons entitled to letters may waive right in favor of another, how.

Art. 3283. Executor of will proved in another state entitled to letters within this state, when.

Further administration shall be granted, when.

What facts must appear before granting letters testamentary.

Order of court granting letters.

Article 3279. [1912] [1859] When administration shall be granted.

Renunciation of trust by testamentary trustees.—Testamentary trustees possess the unrestricted power and right to refuse for any reason to act when unaccompanied by any species of intermeddling amounting to mismanagement, and, although probate court is without authority to accept resignation of testamentary trustees, it has authority to hear testimony of renunciation, in view of this article, and where testamentary trustees renounced their trust to the court, he accepting the same and appointing an administrator, the renunciation is final. Lednum v. Dallas Trust & Savings Bank (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1127.
Art. 3280. [1913] [1860] Administration shall not be granted unless, etc.

Necessity.—Appointment of an administrator may be refused if there is no necessity for administration, there are no debts, the widow is in possession of the homestead, and the other matters, partition and allowances to the widow, may be had in a pending suit by her for partition, for where the ground for refusal is fairly sustained by the evidence, and where everything may be adjusted in the pending suit for partition, the refusal will not be disturbed. Hart v. Hart (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1071.

Estate of decedent leaving widow and minor children, consisting only of a homestead, held not subject to administration by administrator de bonis non under Rev. St. 1911, tit. 55, cc. 17, 18, especially articles 3411, 3413, 3422, 3427. Kimmons v. Abraham (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 671.

In view of Acts Cong. April 22, 1908, § 1, and April 5, 1910, § 2 (1916 U. S. Comp. Stats. Ann. §§ 8657, 8665), providing that interstate carriers are liable in damages to injured servants or their survivors, and that the right of action shall survive to their personal representatives, such right is an estate on which administration may be granted. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Smitha (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 237.

Art. 3281. [1914] [1861] Order in which letters shall be granted.

Cited, Kimmons v. Abraham (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 256.

Art. 3283. [1916] [1863] Certain persons entitled to letters may waive right in favor of another, how.

Place of filing.—Under this article, a waiver filed with the clerk of the district court is admissible on trial de novo of the application for appointment as administrator in that court on appeal from the county court. Kimmons v. Abraham (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 256.

Art. 3289. [1922] [1869] Executor of will proved in another state entitled to letters within this state, when.

Necessity of qualification within state.—In suit by divorced wife for funds paid into bank for husband in payment for community property, executors named in such husband’s will, one qualified in another state, but neither in Texas, had no standing to sue for the fund. Baber v. Galbraith (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 346.

Art. 3291. [1924] [1871] Further administration shall be granted, when.

Administrator de bonis non, appointment.—A final order discharging administrators held insufficient to negative the power of the probate court to appoint an administrator de bonis non. Waterman Lumber & Supply Co. v. Robins (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 360.

Executor’s abandonment of office.—Under this article and art. 3342, though an executor named in a will qualified by taking required oath he abandoned his office where he failed to take possession of any of the property, to give bond, or in any way act as such executor and is contesting the will. Huth v. Huth (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 523.

Art. 3295. [1928] [1875] Order of court granting letters.

CHAPTER SEVEN
TEMPORARY ADMINISTRATION

Art. 3297. County judge may appoint temporary administrator, when.

3298. Appointment may be made without application, etc.

Art. 3301. Pending contest, the county judge may appoint temporary administrator.

Article 3297. [1930] [1877] County judge may appoint temporary administrator, when.

Power of appointment.—Under this article and art. 3298, probate court had authority to appoint deceased railroad brakeman’s widow temporary administratrix to sue for her husband’s death under federal Employers’ Liability Act (1906 U. S. Comp. Stats. Ann. §§ 8657-8665); appointment being made October 18, 1918, and suit tried November 24th, before next meeting of probate court. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 679.

Void appointment.—An allowance of claim on approval by a permanent administratrix is valid, though it was previously allowed on approval by the same person acting under a void appointment as temporary administratrix. Reeves v. Fuqua (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 682.

Art. 3298. [1931] [1878] Appointment may be made without application, etc.

Art. 3301. [1934] [1881] Pending contest the county judge may appoint temporary administrator.

Duty to appoint mandatory.—Under this article, held, that a county judge not only may but must appoint a temporary administrator, to preserve an estate from waste pending the contest of a will. Huth v. Huth (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 523.

CHAPTER TEN

INVENTORY, APPRAISEMENT AND LIST OF CLAIMS

Art. 3332. [1965] [1912] Inventory and appraisement.

Conclusiveness and effect.—That the appraisers of an estate appraised certain land as decedent's separate estate would not be binding upon a purchaser of any interest which decedent's wife in fact had in the land. Sparkman v. Davenport (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 419.

Art. 3338. [1971] [1918] Order of approval.

Effect on land titles.—Title to land does not pass by an order of probate court, where it was not owned by decedent. Pryor v. Krause (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 498.

Art. 3343. [1976] [1923] Erroneous inventory or list may be corrected.

Effect and conclusiveness of correction.—An order of the county court in guardianship proceedings, if valid as a correction of an inventory under this article and art. 4120, held only prima facie evidence that land owned by a deceased parent was community property. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 882.

Art. 3346. [1979] [1926] New appraisement stands in place of original.

Necessity of seeking correction before suit.—Under this article and arts. 3442, 3452, 3450, 3457, and 3458, administrator's refusal to recognize a lien upon a part of land, if a money claim had been allowed, did not authorize claimant to sue in district court to subject the land to payment of claim. Ralston v. Stainbrook (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 412.

Conclusiveness and effect of inventory.—The act of an executon in placing property on the inventory returned is only prima facie evidence of title in the estate, which may be rebutted by proof that the title was not in testator, and does not estop the executor from suing to recover the property in his individual capacity. Pryor v. Krause (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 498.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

CERTAIN RIGHTS, DUTIES AND POWERS OF EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS

Art. 3351. Duty in regard to plantation, manufactory or business.

Art. 3352. Action of executor, etc., in regard to plantation, etc., may be controlled by court.

Article 3351. [1984] [1931] Duty in regard to plantation, manufactory or business.

Estate liable for expenses in carrying on.—Cost of replenishing the stock, where administratrix, under authority of this article, carries on decedent's business, is "expenses of administration," entitled, under articles 3458 and 3460, to priority of payment over general claims. Stoughton Wagon Co. v. S. G. Dreyfus Co. (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 703.

Art. 3352. [1985] [1932] Action of executor, etc., in regard to plantation, etc., may be controlled by court.

CHAPTER TWELVE ADMINISTRATION UNDER A WILL

Art. 3358. Directions in will to be executed, unless, etc.

Art. 3359. Executor without bond may be required to give bond, when.

Art. 3362. Testator may provide that no action be had in court, except probate of will, etc.

Art. 3363. Creditor may sue executor in such case.

Article 3358. [1991] [1938] Directions in will to be executed, unless, etc.

Nature of proceedings to annul.—Under this article, after a will has been probated, a proceeding to annul it must be commenced as a separate proceeding, but the district court has no jurisdiction to annul the probate of a will by a county court; its jurisdiction in such cases being acquired by appeal or certiorari to the county court. Hilgers v. Hilgers (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 851.

Art. 3362. [1995] [1942] Testator may provide that no action be had in the court, except probate of will, etc.

Words necessary and sufficient to withdraw.—To create an independent administration under this article depends upon the testator’s intent as ascertained from the entire instrument, and a will held not to create an independent administration, and hence the probate court had jurisdiction of proceedings involved in the administration. McMahan v. McMahan (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 157.

Jurisdiction of court.—The administration of a will by an independent executor does not deprive the probate court of jurisdiction of the estate of a minor devisee, and it may, when necessary, appoint a guardian to take charge of such estate. McAdams v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 59.

An executor acting under an independent administration is free from the control of the probate court. McMahan v. McMahan (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 157.

Removal of temporary administrator.—Where a will appointing the testator’s wife an independent executrix was admitted to probate, one appointed temporary administrator cannot complain of an illegal order removing him; the wife being entitled to administer the estate. Hall v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 642.

Executor’s abandonment of office.—Under this article and art. 3291, though an executor named in a will qualified by taking required oath he abandoned his office where he failed to take possession of any of the property, to give bond, or in any way act as such executor and is contesting the will. Guth v. Guth (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 823.

Art. 3363. [1996] [1943] Creditor may sue executor in such case.

In general.—A suit to foreclose on land which the maker of the trust deed had conveyed will not be abated as a suit on a claim against the estate of the maker who died before foreclosure, and which could not be maintained under this article and art. 3362, within a year from probate of will. Wood v. Friddy (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1099.

In trespass to try title, judgment in a previous suit against plaintiffs tending to show title in defendants’ predecessor held not inadmissible in evidence as not purporting to be against such plaintiffs in their representative capacity as executors, under this article and art. 3362. Dunn v. Epperson (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 837.

Art. 3364. [1997] [1944] Executor without bond may be required to give bond, when.

Independent executor.—The fact that a will appoints an independent executor will not deprive the probate court of jurisdiction of the administration of the estate, so that it may annul a provision of the will, or require the executor to give bond while he acts. McAdams v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 59.

Art. 3374. [2007] [1954] Executor may sell property without order of court, when, etc.

Cited, American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan, 106 Tex. 206, 186 S. W. 1122.

Will construed.—A will devising half the property to testator’s children and half to his wife, making her executrix, and providing that all transfers by her to the children or any other person shall be good, without the intervention of any court or authority, constitutes her a trustee with power of sale, so that a conveyance thereof by her alone gives good title. Joyce v. Hagelstein (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 256.

Marriage of executrix.—The power of an executrix, testator’s widow, under a will to convey land, does not cease on her remarriage. Holman v. Houston Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 588.

Art. 3375. [2008] [1955] Personal property reserved from sale by will.

Cited, American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan, 106 Tex. 206, 186 S. W. 1132.

WITHDRAWING ESTATES FROM ADMINISTRATION

Art. 3384. Persons entitled to estate may cause executor or administrator to be cited, etc.
3384. Persons entitled to estate may cause executor or administrator to be cited, etc.
3385. May give bond to pay debts of estate, etc.

Article 3384. [2017] [1964] Persons entitled to estate may cause executor or administrator to be cited, etc.

Withdrawning estate from administration.—Upon compliance with this article and art. 3386, an estate may be withdrawn from administration and the court will under article 3392 discharge the administrator so that attorney's services in resisting the discharge are not a liability of the estate. Dyess v. Rowe, 177 S. W. 523. And the assignee of an heir complying with this article and art. 3385 held entitled to have an estate withdrawn from administration. Rowe v. Dyess (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 521.

Article 3385. [2018] [1965] May give bond to pay debts of estate, etc.

Withdrawning estate from administration.—Upon compliance with arts. 3384 and 3386, an estate may be withdrawn from administration and the court will under article 3392 discharge the administrator so that attorney's services in resisting the discharge are not a liability of the estate. Dyess v. Rowe, 177 S. W. 523. And the assignee of an heir complying with this article and art. 3385 held entitled to have an estate withdrawn from administration. Rowe v. Dyess (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 521.

Article 3386. [2019] [1966] Bond shall be filed and recorded and order of court thereon.

Cited, Rowe v. Dyess (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 521.

Article 3389. [2022] [1969] Creditor whose claim has been allowed, etc., may sue on bond.

Article 3392. [2025] [1972] Order discharging executor or administrator and closing estate.

Attorney's services.—Upon compliance with arts. 3384, 3386, an estate may be withdrawn from administration and the court will under this article discharge the administrator so that attorney's services in resisting the discharge are not a liability of the estate. Dyess v. Rowe (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 523.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

REMOVAL OF EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS

Article 3394. [2027] [1974] In what cases may be removed with notice.

Illegality of removal order cannot be questioned.—Where a will appointing the testator's wife an independent executrix was admitted to probate, one appointed temporary administrator cannot complain of an illegal order removing him; the wife being entitled to administer the estate. Hall v. Davison (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 642.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

ALLOWANCE TO WIDOW AND MINOR CHILDREN

Article 3411. [2044] [1991] Allowance to be paid in preference to other debts or charges, except, etc.

Reasonableness.—The reasonableness of allowances to the widow from the estate of the deceased husband is not affected by the question whether the estate will ever be sufficient to pay them. Jones v. Bartlett (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1107.

Administrator de bonis non.—Estate of decedent leaving widow and minor children, consisting only of a homestead, held not subject to administration by administrator de bonis non under Rev. St. 1911, tit. 52, cc. 17, 18, especially this article and arts. 3411, 3423, 3427. Kimmons v. Abraham (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 671.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

SETTING APART THE HOMESTEAD AND OTHER EXEMPT PROPERTY TO WIDOW AND CHILDREN

Art. 3413. Court shall set apart exempt property, etc.

3. Property exempt in general.—Where the fund due upon certificate of insurance is exempt property, it is not subject to administration. Modern Woodmen of America v. Yanowski (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 728.

5. Homestead.—Estate of decedent leaving widow and minor children, consisting only of a homestead, held not subject to administration by administrator de bonis non under Rev. St. 1911, tit. 52, cc. 17, 18, especially this article and arts. 3411, 3422, 3427. Kimmons v. Abraham (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 671.

Wife's partition of separate tracts owned by husband and wife at husband's death held to have the effect of designation as part of homestead of certain tracts. Compton v. Woodward (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 272.

10. Conveyance or abandonment of homestead.—Under Const. art. 16, §§ 50, 52, and this article and arts. 3235, 3414, and 3421-3428, inclusive, the homestead, whether decedent's estate is solvent or insolvent, descends to his heirs, subject to the rights of the widow and minor children, exempt from liability for the decedent's debts, and this status is not affected by a subsequent voluntary sale or abandonment. Hoefling v. Hoefling, 106 Tex. 350, 167 S. W. 210.

14. Priority.—Mortgage creditor of deceased who gave the mortgage before marriage and in which the wife did not join after marriage, held not entitled to lien superior to her right to an allowance under this article and arts. 3414, 3420, 3422, 3428. Newnomen v. Hedeman (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 298.

18. Necessity of order of court.—Under Const. art. 16, §§ 50, 52, and arts. 3235, 3422, 3427, 3735, 3786, a homestead, on the death of the owner, vests in his heirs free from debts, and the proceeds of a voluntary sale are also free from debts, though the probate court failed to set aside the homestead under this article, notwithstanding article 3785, declaring that the proceeds of a voluntary sale shall not be subject to forced sale within six months after such sale. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan, 106 S. W. 1132, 106 Tex. 306.

Where the homestead is clearly defined, so that its identity can be determined, the actual setting apart of the homestead of an insolvent decedent by the probate court, under this article, is not essential to the vesting of the title thereto in the heirs. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 771, certified question answered by Supreme Court, 166 S. W. 1132, 106 Tex. 306.

Mortgage lien.—Mortgage creditor of deceased who gave the mortgage before marriage and in which the wife did not join after marriage, held not entitled to lien superior to her right to an allowance under this article and arts. 3413, 3420, 3423, 3425. Newnomen v. Hedeman (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 298.

Sale or abandonment of homestead.—Under Const. art. 16, §§ 50, 52, and this article and arts. 3235, 3413, and 3421-3428, inclusive, the homestead, whether decedent's estate is solvent or insolvent, descends to his heirs, subject to the rights of the widow and minor children, exempt from liability for the decedent's debts, and this status is not affected by a subsequent voluntary sale or abandonment. Hoefling v. Hoefling, 106 Tex. 350, 167 S. W. 210.

Art. 3419. [2052] [1999] Sale to raise allowance, when.

Art. 3420. [2053] [2000] Property on which liens exist shall not be set aside.—No property upon which a lien or liens have been given by an unmarried person, or by the husband and wife acknowledged in a manner legally binding upon the wife, or upon which a vendors lien or other lien or liens existing at the date of acquisition of property exists, shall be set aside to the widow or children as exempted property or appropriated to make up allowances made in lieu of exempted property, or for the support of the widow or children, until the debts secured by such liens are first discharged, and provided that this article shall apply to all estates regardless of whether solvent or insolvent. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 106; Act Feb. 22, 1917, ch. 34, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment.

Decisions under prior act—Insolvent estate.—This article does not apply when the estate is insolvent. Newnorn v. Hedeman (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 298.

Lien given before marriage.—Mortgage creditor of deceased who gave the mortgage before marriage and in which the wife did not join after marriage, held not entitled to lien superior to her right in an allowance under this article and arts. 3413, 3414, 3422, 3428. Newnorn v. Hedeman (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 298.

Art. 3421. [2054] [2001] When estate proves to be solvent.

Sale or abandonment of homestead.—Under Const. art. 16, §§ 50, 52, and arts. 3235, 3413, 3414, and 3421-3428, inclusive, the homestead, whether decedent's estate is solvent or insolvent, descends to his heirs, subject to the rights of the widow and children, exempt from liability for the decedent's debts, and this status is not affected by a subsequent voluntary sale or abandonment. Hoefling v. Hoefling, 167 S. W. 210, 106 Tex. 350.

Art. 3422. [2055] [2002] When estate proves to be insolvent.

Construction and application.—Under Const. art. 16, §§ 50, 52, and this article and arts. 3235, 3427, 3785, 3786, a homestead, on the death of the owner, vests in his heirs free from debts, and the proceeds of a voluntary sale are also free from debts, though the probate court failed to set aside the homestead under article 3413, notwithstanding article 3757, declaring that the proceeds of a voluntary sale shall not be subject to forced sale within six months after such sale. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan, 158 S. W. 1132, 106 Tex. 306.

Surviving spouse, regardless of solvency or insolvency, held entitled to use homestead exempt from forced sale for the payment of his own debts, which right ends upon the abandonment of the homestead. Hoefling v. Hoefling, 167 S. W. 210, 106 Tex. 350.

Under this article and arts. 3235, 3427, 3428, the amount received from a sale of the homestead by the heirs is not liable for the debts of the decedent. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 771, certified question answered by Supreme Court, 166 S. W. 1132, 106 Tex. 306.

Estate of decedent leaving widow and minor children, consisting only of a homestead, held not subject to administration by administrator de bonis non under Rev. St. 1911, tit. 52, cc. 17, 18, especially this article and arts. 3413, 3415, 3457. Klimmons v. Abraham (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 671.

Under this article, express liens on homestead give way to rights of widow and children upon abandonment of the homestead, and in the absence of facts of factum, may affect interest in homestead. Investors' Mortgage Security Co. v. Newton (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 291.

Mortgage creditor of deceased who gave the mortgage before marriage and in which the wife did not join after marriage, held not entitled to lien superior to her right to an allowance under this article and arts. 3413, 3414, 3420, 3428. Newnorn v. Hedeman (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 298.

Art. 3424. [2057] [2004] When homestead shall not be partitioned.

In general.—Const. art. 16, § 52, determines the disposition of a homestead after the death of the owner, and determines who shall take it and their respective interests, but not the conditions which may be imposed on the inheritance. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan, 158 S. W. 1132, 106 Tex. 306.

Occupancy by widow.—Since, under Const. art. 16, § 52, a surviving wife is entitled to the use and occupation of the homestead for life, the deceased husband's brothers and sisters took their interest therein subject to the wife's right. Allen v. Allen (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1049.

The court, in a partition suit for the children of a deceased husband and his surviving wife, must set aside the homestead for the use of the wife and her minor children. Meyers v. Riley (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 955.

Though plaintiff failed to establish defendant's abandonment of his homestead right, and hence was not entitled to partition, it was proper for the court to determine the issue of defendant's asserted title to all the property, so that a judgment decreeing title to each of the parties, but denying plaintiff's right to partition so long as defendant might occupy it as a homestead, was proper. Perkins v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 915.

Proceeds of homestead.—Under Const. art. 16, §§ 50, 52, and arts. 3235, 3423, 3427, 3785, 3786, a homestead, on the death of the owner, vests in his heirs free from debts, and the proceeds of a voluntary sale are also free from debts, though the probate court failed to set aside the homestead under article 3413, notwithstanding article 3757, declaring that the proceeds of a voluntary sale shall not be subject to forced sale within six months after such sale. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan, 166 S. W. 1132, 106 Tex. 306.

Under Const. art. 16, §§ 50, 52, and arts. 3235, 3413, 3414, and 3421-3428, inclusive, the homestead, whether decedent's estate is solvent or insolvent, descends to his heirs, subject to the rights of the widow and minor children, exempt from liability for the decedent's debts, and this status is not affected by a subsequent voluntary sale or abandonment. Hoefling v. Hoefling, 167 S. W. 210, 106 Tex. 350.

Selection of homestead.—A surviving wife may select her homestead, not to exceed 200 acres, in any shape that she may see proper, provided she selects such lands as have been improved with the homestead character and lands contiguous thereto. Meyers v. Riley (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 955.

Mortgage foreclosure.—Notwithstanding Const. art. 16, § 53, a mortgage on a home­stead dedicated by a surviving widow, who had minor children, may be foreclosed. Spencer v. Schell (Sup.) 173 S. W. 867, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 111.

Art. 3425. [2058] [2005] When homestead may be partitioned.
Abandonment of homestead.—A widow's offer to sell the property, or fact that she was not living on the property was not an abandonment of her homestead rights, where she had not acquired another home. Perkins v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 915.

Art. 3426. [2059] [2006] No distinction between separate and community homestead.

Wife's forfeiture of homestead rights.—Where a wife, without fault of the husband, voluntarily separates from him and leaves the homestead, which is his separate property or community property, she forfeits her homestead right therein. Gardenhire v. Gardenhire (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 726.

Art. 3427. [2060] [2007] Homestead not liable for debts, except, etc.

In general.—The exemption provided for by Const. art. 16, § 50, applies to the homestead while the head of the family is living, but furnishes no rule for its distribution after his death. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan, 166 S. W. 1132, 106 Tex. 306.

Under Const. art. 16, §§ 50, 52, and this article and arts. 3235, 3422, 3785, 3786, a homestead, on the death of the owner, vests in his heirs free from debts, and the proceeds of a voluntary sale are also free from debts, though the probate court failed to set aside the homestead under article 3413, notwithstanding article 3787, declaring that the proceeds of a voluntary sale shall not be subject to forced sale within six months after such sale. Id.

Under Const. art. 16, §§ 50, 52, and arts. 3235, 3413, 3414, and 3421–3425, inclusive, the homestead, whether decedent's estate is solvent or insolvent, descends to his heirs, subject to the rights of the widow and minor children, exempt from liability for the decedent's debts, and this status is not affected by a subsequent voluntary sale or abandon­ment. Hoefling v. Hoefling, 167 S. W. 219, 106 Tex. 506.

Under this article and arts. 3235, 3423, 3426, the amount received from a sale of the homestead by the heirs is not liable for the debts of the decedent. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 771, certified question answered by Supreme Court, 166 S. W. 1132, 106 Tex. 306.

Estates of decedent leaving widow and minor children, consisting only of a homestead, held not subject to administration by administrator de bonis non under Rev. St. 1911, tit. 52, cc. 17, 18, especially this article and arts. 3411, 3413, 3422. Kimmons v. Abraham (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 671.

Art. 3428. [2061] [2008] Other exempt property, liable for what debts.

Cited, American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan, 166 Tex. 306, 166 S. W. 1132; see, also, notes under article 3427.

Mortgage debt contracted before marriage.—Mortgage creditor of deceased who gave the mortgage before marriage and in which the wife did not join after marriage, held not entitled to lien superior to her right to an allowance under this article and arts. 3413, 3414, 3420, 3422. Newnorn v. Hedeman (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 296.

Where the only community property was the homestead, which the husband sold for payment of debts of the community, such sale was not a necessary sale in a legal sense, since the homestead in no event was subject to payment of the debt. Friddy v. Tabor (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 111.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

PRESENTMENT, ETC., OF CLAIMS AGAINST AN ESTATE

Art. 3435. Claims shall be postponed if not presented in twelve months; proviso.

3436. Claims for funeral expenses and of last sickness to be presented in sixty days.

3439. Affidavit to claim.

3441. Affidavit made before whom.

3442. Allowance or approval without affidavit, void.

3443. Memorandum of allowance of rejection.

3446. Claims shall be acted upon by the court.

Art. 3447. Action of the court upon claims.

3449. When claim has been rejected the owner may bring suit.

3451. Costs of suit to be adjudged against claimant, when.

3452. Action of court on claim a judgment, etc.

3455. Provisions of this chapter do not apply to certain claims.

3457. Judgment shall not be rendered in favor of claim which has not been presented and rejected.

Article 3435. [2068] [2015] Claims shall be postponed, if not presented within twelve months; proviso.

Claim for personal services.—Where personal services are rendered during lifetime of a decedent without express agreement, bar of limitations would be determined by law applicable to claims generally against estates of deceased persons. Henderson v. Davis (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 288.

Art. 3436. [2069] [2016] Claims for funeral expenses and of last sickness to be presented in sixty days, or, etc.

Art. 3439. [2072] [2018] Affidavit to claim.
Cited, Reeves v. Fuqua (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 682.

Art. 3441. [2074] [2020] Affidavit made before whom.
Cited, Reeves v. Fuqua (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 682.

Art. 3442. [2075] [2021] Allowance or approval without affidavit, void.
Cited, Reeves v. Fuqua (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 682.

Art. 3443. [2076] [2022] Memorandum of allowance or rejection.
Suit in district court.—Under this article and arts. 3446, 3452, 3450, 3457, and 3488, administrator's refusal to recognize a lien upon a part of land, if a money claim had been allowed, did not authorize claimant to sue in district court to subject the land to payment of claim. Ralston v. Stainbrook (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 413.

Art. 3446. [2079] [2025] Claim shall be acted upon by the court.

Art. 3447. [2080] [2026] Action of the court upon claims.
Approval of claim.—An allowance of claim on approval by a permanent administrator is valid, though it was previously allowed on approval by the same person acting under a void appointment as temporary administrator. Reeves v. Fuqua (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 652.

Garnishment of claim.—Under this article and arts. 3447, 3452, 3459, 3464, 3465, 3466, 3467, 3470, an order allowing and classifying a claim of the second class held not to subject the executor to garnishment during the 12 months allowed for payment, though it be alleged the estate is solvent. Gulf Nat. Bank v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 337.

Art. 3449. [2082] [2028] When claim has been rejected the owner may bring suit.

Sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence in action against decedent's estate held insufficient to show execution of alleged oral contract to pay for care of deceased the sum of $30 per month, as alleged. Lans v. Bristow (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 970.

In an action against estate of a decedent for personal services, evidence held insufficient to support a finding disallowing part of plaintiffs' claim. Morrison v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1094.

In an action against estate of decedent, evidence sufficient to show that personal services rendered by plaintiff during lifetime of decedent were not rendered gratuitously, with evidence of value, would support a judgment for compensation. Henderson v. Davis (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 358.

Art. 3451. [2084] [2030] Cost of suit to be adjudged against claimant, when.

Costs on appeal to county court.—In action against administrator on claim, where plaintiffs had judgment below, with costs, and on appeal to county court plaintiffs had judgment for a smaller amount, art. 2046, and not this article, applies, and defendant was entitled to recover costs of county court. Morrison v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1094.

Art. 3452. [2085] [2031] Action of court on claim a judgment, etc.
Cited, Reeves v. Fuqua (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 682.

Suit in district court.—Under this article and arts. 3443, 3446, 3450, 3457, and 3488, administrator's refusal to recognize a lien upon a part of land, if a money claim had been allowed, did not authorize claimant to sue in district court to subject the land to payment of claim. Ralston v. Stainbrook (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 413.

Garnishment of claim.—Under this article and arts. 3447, 3452, 3459, 3464, 3466, 3467, 3470, an order allowing and classifying a claim of the second class held not to subject the executor to garnishment during the 12 months allowed for payment, though it be alleged the estate is solvent. Gulf Nat. Bank v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 337.

Art. 3455. [2088] [2034] Provisions of this chapter do not apply to certain claims.
Cited, Rowe v. Dyess (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 521.

Art. 3457. [2090] [2036] Judgment shall not be rendered in favor of claim which has not been presented and rejected.

Jurisdiction of suits on claims.—Under this article and arts. 3443, 3446, 3452, 3450, and 3488, administrator's refusal to recognize a lien upon a part of land, if a money claim had been allowed, did not authorize claimant to sue in district court to subject the land to payment of claim. Ralston v. Stainbrook (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 413.

Under Const. art. 5, § 18, this article, and art. 3206, held, that county court had exclusive original jurisdiction of claim against administrator of deceased principal in a note signed by sureties and secured by mortgage, in view of art. 1843, giving right to sue sureties alone, though one of the sureties was dead, and administration was pending on his estate. Putney v. Livingston (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 269.

CHAPTER TWENTY
CLASSIFICATION AND PAYMENT OF CLAIMS

Art. 3458. Classification of claims.

Cited, Rotan Grocery Co. v. Pate (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 378.

Funeral expenses.—Others than the widow or next of kin of a deceased person may lawfully incur expenses for the interment of his body and recover the amount of such expenses from his estate, provided they are not mere interlopers, and the expenses are reasonable and suitable to the estate, but where an undertaker procured and placed a dead body in a casket more expensive than the wife of deceased desired, and she immediately repudiated his action, and caused the body to be buried by other undertakers in another casket, the expensive casket being stored by such other undertakers, the first undertaker was not entitled to recover from the estate the price of the casket furnished by him. Wright v. Harned (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 855.

Expenses of administration.—Cost of replenishing the stock, where administratrix, under authority of art. 3351, carries on decedent’s business, is “expenses of administration,” entitled, under this article and art. 3465, to priority of payment over general claims. Stoughton Wagon Co. v. S. G. Dreyfus Co. (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 705.

Garnishment of executor.—Under this article and arts. 3447, 3463, 3459, 3464, 3466, 3467, 3470, an order allowing and classifying a claim of the second class held not to subject the executor to garnishment during the 12 months allowed for payment, though it be alleged to be estate is solvent. Gulf Nat. Bank v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 337.

SALES

Article 3480 [2113] [2059] No sale without order of court.

Jurisdiction of probate court.—Only the probate court has jurisdiction to sell, for the payment of debts, the property of a decedent whose estate is being administered, even where a sale of property is made necessary by a judgment of the district court in the exercise of its auxiliary, probate jurisdiction. Lauraine v. Ashe (Sup.) 191 S. W. 563.

Article 3488. [2121] [2067] Order for sale of property mortgaged, etc.

Suit in district court.—See note under art. 3482.

Rights acquired by sale.—Where in foreclosure suit for protection of third person, parts of the land were ordered first sold, and thereafter judgment debtor gave a mortgage for an unsecured indebtedness and the amount of the judgment which the mortgagee paid, taking a transfer thereof, and after debtor's death mortgagee had property sold by administrator, under this article, for more than the amount of the judgment, held that equity would apply the proceeds in the manner decreed in the foreclosure, and hence the part of the land to be sold last was free from any lien, and purchaser acquired all title of the debtor, but took subject to the third person's rights under the foreclosure decree. Cole v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 180.

Article 3491. [2124] [2070] Citation in such case.

Rights of wife and heirs.—Neither a wife nor her heirs can be made parties to a sale of her interest in the common property by her husband's legal representative, unless it is rightfully taken to pay community debts, and if disposed of for any other purpose she is not bound thereby. Waterman Lumber & Supply Co. v. Robins (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 571.

Article 3496. [2129] [2075] Sale may be public or private for cash or part credit; minimum cash payment; lien; adequacy of price; security.

—When it shall appear to be to the interest of the estate, the county judge may order a sale of real estate to be made at public or private sale for cash, or for part cash and part credit, and if so for part cash and part credit, then upon terms to be determined by the judge of said court; provided, that one-fifth of the purchase price must be paid in cash, and the executor or administrator shall retain a lien upon said premises to secure the payment of the deferred payment. It must be shown, in addition to the other requirements of the statutes of the State of Texas, that said sale was made for a fair price, and no personal security shall be required of the purchaser of said property, unless the county judge shall deem it necessary. [Act Aug. 1876, p. 112, § 81; Act March 12, 1915, ch. 46, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 2 of the act repeals all laws in conflict. The act took effect 90 days after adjournment on March 29, 1895.

Article 3501. [2134] [2080] Order of court for sale of property.

Description of property.—As regards validity of the administrator's deed, the description in the probate court's order of sale and confirmation of the sale, "818 acres, N. Hayden survey, S. A. county," is sufficient. Holman v. Houston Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 586.

Article 3504. [2137] [2083] Executor or administrator shall not purchase property of the estate.

Purchase by administrator.—Where certain land of a decedent was partitioned by the probate court, the administrator was not bound to pay the taxes thereafter, and could purchase the land set apart to one of the heirs at a tax sale, and such records of administration as were not destroyed by fire held to support a finding that the administrator was closed before the administrator so purchased the land. Griswold v. Comer (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 423.

Article 3505. [2138] [2084] Bidder failing to comply with his bid shall be liable, etc.

Completion of sale.—A sale ordered by a probate court is not completed until the purchaser accepts the deed and complies with the conditions of sale. Ennis & Dale v. Cator (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 947.
Art. 3506. [2139] [2085] Public sale may be continued from day to day.

Postponement order made in vacation.—Under Acts 12th Leg. c. 81, § 250, providing that if the administrator shall fail to sell realty, ordered to be sold, at the time specified in the order, he shall report the facts to the court or judge, who may appoint another day for the sale, and so on from time to time until the property is sold, an order postponing an administrator’s sale was valid though made in vacation. Vineyard v. Heard (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 22.

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

REPORT OF SALES, ETC.

3512. Sale shall be set aside, when.

Article 3511. [2144] [2090] Action of court on report of sale.

Art. 3512. [2145] [2091] Sale shall be set aside, when.

Purchaser’s refusal to complete sale.—An order, confirming an administrator’s sale and allowing a broker a commission, may at a subsequent term by direct proceeding by the administrator be vacated on the purchaser refusing to complete the purchase. Ennis & Dale v. Cator (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 947.

Art. 3513. [2146] [2091a] Conveyance of property sold.

Art. 3514. [2147] [2092] Conveyance of real estate.

Estate conveyed, etc.—A purchaser of an estate’s interest in land at an administrator’s sale held to have acquired no title, where he knew at the time of the sale that the intestate had conveyed the land long prior to his death by a deed of record. Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 537.

An administrator’s deed of a certain number of acres in a survey in which the estate has several tracts, embracing more, conveys an undivided interest, but not all the acreage the estate owns therein, merely because the administrator thought it owned no more than sold, and the figures “2,031” in the order of confirmation of sale and the administrator’s deed will be considered a clerical error, where the application and order for sale were for 2,081 acres. Waterhouse v. Gallup (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 773.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

ENFORCING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACTS

Article 3518. [2151] [2096] Proceeding to enforce specific performance of bond, etc.

Variance.—In suit under this article, for specific performance of a contract for sale of land by defendant’s testatrix, where the petition alleged a misdescription in the contract and stated a correct description, and such allegations were shown by evidence, there was no variance. Bender v. Bender (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 735.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

PARTITION AND DISTRIBUTION

Art. 3537. Application for partition and distribution.
3556. Surviving husband or wife may have partition of common property.

Article 3527. [2154] [2099] Application for partition and distribution.

Jurisdiction.—The county court has exclusive jurisdiction in proceedings to recover the homestead or allowance in lieu thereof, and also to partition and distribute real estate. McMahan v. McMahan (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 157.

SUPP.VERN.S.CIV.ST.TEX.—50 785
Estates of Decedents

Parities.—Where the whole estate had been converted into money as directed by the will, which was an "independent will," and the determination of the amount to which each legatee was entitled was a mere matter of calculation, it was not necessary that all persons entitled to parts of the fund be made parties to an action for a legatee’s interest, notwithstanding this article. Wells v. Margraves (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 881.

Ratification of defective partition.—Where the report of commissioners appointed by the probate court to partition land was not recorded, filing and recordation of report under a nunc pro tunc order secured nearly 50 years after report was made did not add any legal force to action theretofore had, but where interested parties had by recognition and ratification of the defective partition established equivalent of oral partition, such proceedings of probate court and actions of parties are not, after nearly 50 years, subject to collateral attack, and evidence held to show that the partition had been recognized and ratified by deeds and acts of ownership. Adams v. Adams (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 717.

Art. 3556. [2183] [2128] Surviving husband or wife may have partition of common property.
Power of temporary administrator.—Under this article, held that a temporary administrator appointed pending contest of a will has the power, when so given by the court in his order of appointment, to take possession of all common property of the estate and hold same in trust for benefit of those entitled until such contest is determined. Huth v. Huth (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 523.

Art. 3557. [2184] [2129] Action of court and bond in such case.
Duty to partition.—Under this article and art. 3560, upon application for partition by owner of a joint interest with estate of a decedent in any property in which administration is pending, it is the duty of court to make partition between applicant and estate of deceased. Huth v. Huth (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 523.

Art. 3559. [2186] [2131] Common property shall be held by executor, etc., until, etc.
Constitutionality.—Appointment of a temporary administrator to take charge of all of community property belonging to plaintiff and estate of his deceased wife made under this article, held not unconstitutional. Huth v. Huth (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 523.

Art. 3560. [2187] [2132] Joint owners with estate may have partition.
Duty to partition.—See note under art. 3557.

Decisions Relating to Subject in General

Who may sue.—Where plaintiff by patrol partition accepted a tract of land in 'full as his interest in his father's estate, he had no further interest in such estate, and could not recover in trespass to try title involving other lands of the estate. Moore v. Reid (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 245.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

ADMINISTRATION OF COMMUNITY PROPERTY

Art. 3592. Community property liable for community debts, etc.
Art. 3593. Indebtedness, sworn to and returned, etc.
Art. 3594. Where there is a child survivor holds subject, etc.
Art. 3595. Application for community administration.
Art. 3597. Inventory, appraisement, and list of persons entitled to estate may have partition, when.

Articles 3592. [2219] [2164] Community property liable for community debts, etc.

6. Sale and conveyance of property.—A surviving husband can convey community property to pay community debts, even without administration, if he is sane and the transaction is free from fraud. Pyle v. Pyle (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 488.

A husband, after the death of his wife, held entitled to convey the undivided one-half interest of her son in lands which constituted part of the community estate, in consideration of an assumption of the debt to the state for purchase money due. Morgan v. Lomas (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 869.

Evidently it appears there was a surplus of the community property after payment of community debts and expenses of administration. Hales v. Peters (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 386.

A widow has power to sell or mortgage the community estate to pay off purchase-money note for which the property, which she represents as survivor, is liable, but she cannot give notes for $600, and interest, secured by mortgage on the land and payables in cash, to pay the purchase-money notes executed by her husband for less than $565, payable in cash, or cotton in the alternative. W. C. Belcher Land Mortgage Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 278.

7. Homestead.—A surviving husband may convey the community estate in payment of the community debts; this right extending even to the homestead and autorizing, although the proceeds realized from the sale are greatly in excess of the debts. Morgan v. Lomas (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 669.

The power of the surviving spouse to sell the property to pay community debts or to reimburse for sums paid on the debts applies to the homestead as well as other property. U. S. Peters v. Hettig (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 290.

8. Validity of conveyance.—A judgment confirming a conveyance of community property in ostensible payment of community debts by the surviving husband, who was insane, is not binding upon the children, where neither the court nor their guardian ad litem knew of the husband's insanity. Fyle v. Pyle (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 488.

Abstract of title showing that the land has been conveyed to a husband and wife, and that subsequently the former, when a widower, conveyed, does not show clear and merchantable title. Gaut v. Dunlap (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1609.

14. Rights and liabilities of purchasers in general.—One who purchased land from the community administrator, knowing that the heirs claimed a half interest therein, and agreed to settle with them for their interest, in effect agreed, upon purchasing, to pay such heirs the reasonable value of their one-half interest in the land, and the children could either proceed against the community bond or against defendant on his agreement without first seeking a partition, and the other children were not necessary parties to an action by a part of the children on defendant's agreement. Hales v. Peters (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 388.

15. Bona fide purchasers.—Where a town conveyed certain land in controversy to a husband, his wife's interest was equitable only, so that her heirs by a former husband inherited no such interest in the land as would defeat the rights of an innocent purchaser for value from the husband after the wife's death. Loomis v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 305.

16. Termination of power to convey.—Where a husband died leaving community property to the widow, and children, who had no separate estate, and debts of various classes; the fact that the widow was entitled to sell community property as a survivor of the community, and made an assignment thereof for the benefit of her husband's creditors, did not bar her right, as administratrix thereafter appointed, to recover the property for administration from the assignee and her vendee. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Faye (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 357.

17. Rights of children.—If property belonging to the community was sold by the husband, acting as community administrator, and the proceeds invested in other land, the children could claim the same interest in the land purchased as in the original land, and were not bound to sue on the bond of the community administrator to obtain their rights in the community property. Hales v. Peters (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 386.

Where the survivor of a community estate paid the full value of the personal property to settle community debts, an heir of the deceased spouse could not recover anything from the survivor on that account. Suggs v. Singley (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 241.

Where a widow continued to live on community property, which was the homestead, after the death of her husband, so long as her husband existed, the children could claim no homestead rights, and their interests were therefore subject to sale on execution. Johnston v. Rockhold (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 283.

A son in whose name one to defraud his wife takes title to property bought with community funds, to participate in partition of the community estate, must account for the present value of the whole land deeded, and not merely half of it. Krems v. Stromeyer (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 178.

21. Payments to children.—A daughter having received certain real property on the death of her mother from her father as survivor of the community, and acquiesced in a family settlement, was presumed advancements for interests of such children in such property, and evidence held to sustain finding of jury that such deeds were accepted in settlement of rights of grantees in the community estate of their parents, and made an equitable partition of the parents' community estate between such children. Nowlin v. Clary (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 571.

22. Contracts.—A contract by defendant, upon purchasing land from the community administrator, which was the property of the community, to pay the children the value of their interest in the community land so sold held not too uncertain to be enforced. Hales v. Peters (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 386.

Where a man and wife, having no children, acquired a community interest, by part payment on land contract, the notice required of vendor's intention to rescind, after the husband's death could legally be given to his widow, as survivor of the community. Hughes v. Burton Lumber Corp. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1022.

23. Community and separate debts.—On the death of the husband the interest of the widows of the community and the entire debts of the community may be enforced. Under Pasch. Dig. art. 1368. Waterman Lumber & Supply Co. v. Robins (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 360.

The survivor can be sued and property in his hands as such subjected to payment of community debts of the husband, which is also liable for payment of such debt, cannot be reached in suit against surviving wife. First Nat. Bank of New Boston v. Daniel (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 747.
30. Reimbursement of expenditures and adjustment of equities.—Right of surviving husband to appropriate community property to reimburse him for paying community debts, not being a claim against minor children, may be exercised by suit to divest title out of them, though administration of their estate be pending, but expenditure by surviving husband for support of his children is not a "community debt" for which he can appropriate the community property to reimburse himself. Kidd v. Prince (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 728.

31. Administration on death of both spouses.—A sale of land by an administrator of a wife, who was also executor of the husband, was valid, and conveyed the interest of both the husband and wife, where part of the money received from the sale was used in paying community debts and the children accepted the proceeds of the property. Vineyard v. Heard (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 22.

Art. 3594. [2221] [2166] Where there is child, survivor holds subject, etc.
Sales by husband.—As surviving member of a marital partnership, a husband, on death or insanity of a wife, may, to pay community debts, sell community property under this article, without giving bond provided for on administration. Pierce v. Gibson (Sup.) 184 S. W. 502.

Under this article, and Const. art. 16, § 50, a deed of the husband during wife's insanity granting the homestead, though in consideration of debts of the community, without a showing of necessity thereof, is invalid. Friddy v. Tabor (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 111.

Art. 3595. [2222] [2167] Application for community administration.

Limitations.—Under art. 5704, suspending limitations until qualification of administrator, a community administratrix authorized under articles 3595-3598 and 3592-3614, to manage community estate, held not an "administratrix," so that order for her management did not start running of statute. First Nat. Bank of New Boston v. Daniel (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 747.

Art. 3597. [2224] [2169] Inventory, appraisement, and list of indebtedness, sworn to and returned, etc.

Art. 3598. [2225] [2170] Bond of survivor.
Cited, Pierce v. Gibson (Sup.) 184 S. W. 502.

Limitations.—See note under art. 3596.

Art. 3599. [2226] [2171] Action of court upon inventory, etc.

Effect of administrator's qualification upon children's rights.—The qualification of the husband as community administrator, upon his wife's death did not divest the one-half interest in the community property which vested absolutely in the children, subject to payment of community debts. Hales v. Peters (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 386.

Art. 3612. [2238] [2183] Persons entitled to estate may have partition, when.

Art. 3614. [2238b] Duty of guardians in such cases.

Limitations.—See note under art. 3596.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

COSTS

Article 3623. [2247] [2192] Shall be allowed expenses, etc.

Attorney's fees.—An administrator held not entitled to an allowance for fees paid attorneys who represented him in contest over administration and in establishing a claim against the estate. Dyess v. Rowe (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 525.
CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

APPEALS TO THE DISTRICT COURT

Art. 3631. [2255] [2200] Right of appeal.

Necessity of appeal.—Under this article, a person aggrieved by the decision of a county court relating to administration of community property in which he has a joint interest with decedent must appeal to district court of county in which administration is pending and cannot restrain enforcement of such decision of county court. Huth v. Huth (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 523.

Necessity of notice.—Under this article and art. 3632, and despite article 2084 notice of an appeal from a judgment admitting a will to probate is unnecessary, the giving of the bond being sufficient. Beversdorff v. Denger (Sup.) 174 S. W. 576, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 533.

Failure to offer evidence.—Where appellants did not sue to establish a will, but were made parties to a suit brought by appellee to probate a will, when they alleged the making of a subsequent will to that sought to be probated, appellants' failure to offer any evidence would not prevent them from appealing from the judgment of probate under this article. Wolnitzek v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 963.

Art. 3632. [2256] [2201] Appeal bond; requisites of.

Necessity of bond.—See note under art. 3631.

Sufficiency of bond.—The appeal bond in probate proceedings is payable to the county judge, as such, and hence the fact that an appeal bond was made payable to the county judge of the county, who was disqualified to try a probate case instead of to the special judge appointed in his place, was immaterial, since the special judge would be held to be the 'county judge.' Wolnitzek v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 363.

Art. 3633. [2257] [2202] Bond not required of executor, etc., unless, etc.

Time for filing transcript.—Under this article and art. 2106, held that on an appeal by one in her individual capacity, the transcript was filed in time when filed within 90 days after she filed her appeal bond, though more than 90 days after notice of appeal, wherein she erroneously stated that she appealed as administratrix as well as in her individual capacity. Reeves v. Fuqua (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 34.

Art. 3634. [2258] [2203] Affidavit that party is too poor to give bond.

Sufficiency of affidavit.—Where one of two parties appealing from a decree admitting a will to probate made affidavit under this article, of inability to give a cost bond, but failed to state diligent effort to secure a bond, and the affidavit was not signed by the other, such defects were not jurisdictional, and in any event were waived by failure to raise them in the court below. Clark v. Eriley (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 419.

Art. 3635. [2259] [2204] Duty of county clerk to make and transmit transcript, etc.

Art. 3637. [2261] [2206] Duty of district clerk who receives transcript, etc.
Cited, Reeves v. Fuqua (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 34.

Art. 3638. [2262] [2207] Appeals shall be tried de novo in regular order upon the docket.

Nature of proceeding in district court.—The district court, on appeal from the county court in proceedings for the probate of a will, tries the case de novo, and may probate the will or declare it void. Holt v. Guerguin (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 581, judgment reversed, 106 Tex. 155, 163 S. W. 19, 50 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1136.

District court had only appellate jurisdiction to revise, declare void, or set aside orders of county court, sitting in probate, relative to sale of land of minors on their guardian's application, and had no authority to consider facts of innocent purchasers, question of title, etc. Goodman v. Schwind (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 282.

DECISIONS RELATING TO APPEAL IN GENERAL

Presentation of question in county court.—Error in admitting the alleged will in evidence may be reviewed, where the objections to its introduction on the ground of failure to prove that the attesting witnesses were credible and over 14 years of age, was not specifically pointed out. Tompkins v. Pendleton (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 290,

759
Art. 3640 EVIDENCE (Title 53)

TITLE 53
EVIDENCE

Chap. 1. Personal attendance of witnesses.
2. Depositions of witnesses.

CHAPTER ONE
PERSONAL ATTENDANCE OF WITNESSES

Art. 3640. Witnesses subpoenaed.

Art. 3647. Party may be examined as a witness.

In general.—By express provision of this article a party may, like any other person, be examined as a witness by the opposing party. Campbell v. Peacock (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 774.

CHAPTER TWO
DEPOSITIONS OF WITNESSES

Art. 3649. Depositions of witnesses may be taken, when.

Art. 3650. Notice and service thereof.

Art. 3653. When suit has not been commenced.

Art. 3663. Depositions by oral examination and answer.

Art. 3676. Objections to depositions.

Art. 3677. Depositions to be read in evidence, subject, etc.

Article 3649. [2273] [2218] Depositions of witnesses may be taken, when.

In general.—Application for a continuance for absence of a nonresident witness not being a statutory application under this article and art. 1918, the discretion of the court will not be disturbed in the absence of abuse. Kansas City Southern Ry. Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 115.

Under this article and art. 3677, deposition of witness resident in county of trial held admissible in evidence. Rhea v. Cook (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 892.

Art. 3650. [2274] [2219] Same subject; notice and service thereof.

Art. 3653. [2277] [2222] When suit has not been commenced.

Art. 3663. Depositions by oral examination and answer.

Art. 3676. [2289] [2235] Objections to depositions.

Application of article.—The statutory rule that objections to the manner and form of taking depositions, not made by motion to quash prior to the trial, are waived cannot be invoked against one who is offering the evidence. Putnam Land & Development Co. v. Elser (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 199.
Time for objection.—Objections that answers to questions in a deposition are not responsive must be taken before announcement of ready for trial. E. R. & D. C. Kolp v. Brazer (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 899.

When not urged by motion before announcing ready for trial, an objection that answer to a question in a deposition was not responsive was waived. Hanover Fire Ins. Co. v. Chatterton (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 450, Huft (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 509.

Enumeration of objections.—An admission by a party in an ex parte deposition is not as binding as an admission in pleading, but may be explained by showing that the witness was insane when his answers were taken, without raising the issue of insanity by any pleading, or first moving to suppress the deposition, etc. Kelner v. Randle (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 599.

Grounds of objection.—The fact that depositions were sworn to as true to the best of deponent's knowledge and belief, instead of absolutely, held no ground for suppressing the depositions, especially where the answers themselves were direct and positive statements, and in no sense the opinion of the witness or based on hearsay. Senter v. Teague (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1046.

A deposition will not be suppressed because counsel for the adverse party was not present at the taking of the deposition, where it does not appear that any harm thereby resulted to such party. Leventhal v. Hollamon (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 6.

Under this article, a motion to suppress depositions on the ground that notice of the filing of interrogatories for the purpose of taking depositions was not served with the citation could not be denied, where not made until the second term after the depositions were filed. Missouri, O. & R. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Browning (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 34.

A deposition cannot be excluded from evidence merely because it was in the possession of the officers of the court at the time of the taking of the deposition. Arno Co-operative Irr. Co. v. Fugh (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 995.

The giving of exhibits to a deposition in a personal injury case, but were unnecessary to a proper understanding of the deposition, it was not error to refuse to suppress such depositions on the ground that they were unintelligible without them. Williams v. Stuart & P. Ry. Co. v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 621.

It is not ground for suppressing a deposition that the attorney of the party taking it, before doing so, merely submitted to the witness certain private interrogatories and had him put his answers in writing. Da Moth & Rose v. Hillsboro Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 407.

Disqualification of officer.—That an officer taking depositions had represented deponents as attorney in other suits is not ground for quashing them. Jones v. Nix (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 685.

Certificate of officer.—The absence of the seal on the envelope in which depositions were returned for suppressing the depositions; the seal being impressed where the officers certified to the deposition proper. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 621.

Failure of witness to answer, unresponsive answers or failure to take answers of all witnesses.—Where cross-interrogatory is not answered, deposition should be suppressed, whether omission is fault of witness or of officer taking deposition, and hence evidence of notary taking deposition that, if any question were not fully answered, it was due to his own inadvertence, was inadmissible. Rote v. Simmler (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 614.

Failure of witness to answer a cross-interrogatory is ground for suppressing the deposition if the question is important. Da Moth & Rose v. Hillsboro Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 407.

Withdrawal of deposition for correction.—The court may refuse to strike a deposition or to strike any part of it to the extent of making it conform to the facts and the law. National Surety Co. v. American Compound Door Co. (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1177.

Discretion of trial court.—Denial of a motion to suppress a deposition will not be reviewed on appeal, in the absence of a showing of abuse of discretion. Missouri, O. & G. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Love (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 922.

Art. 3677. [2290] [2236] Depositions to be read in evidence, subject, etc.

In general.—A party taking a deposition, on its being offered in evidence by the adverse party, is not estopped from objecting to answers to interrogatories. Magee v. Paul (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 226.

Where a deposition is offered in evidence, it is evidence of the party offering it, though taken at the instance of the adverse party. Id.

In a suit on a vendor's lien note, in which the holder of a companion note intervened, the depositions of the vendee and intervener showing the facts as to the indentures and transfers of intervener's note were properly admitted; there being nothing to show that the trial court considered the depositions of one of the parties as against the other. Smith v. Cooley (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1050.

Under this article and art. 3649, deposition of witness resident in county of trial held admissible in evidence. Rhea v. Cook (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 892.

Where testimony by deposition was not material under the allegations of the petition in the deposition was taken, but found support in the allegations of an amended petition thereafter filed, the rejection of the testimony was not called for, Houston Packing Co. v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 634.

Where exhibits to depositions are identified with certainty, they are admissible, although not inclosed with the depositions. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 17.

That an answer to an interrogatory is responsive does not render admissible that portion of the answer which is hearsay. Fox v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 847. 791
Under this article and articles 7775, 7779, as to trial or right of property, depositions taken by claimants held to be in claimant’s suit, although entitled in original suit, Dawedoff v. Hooper (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 522.

Witness present at trial.—Unless an abuse of the discretion of the trial court appears, a refusal to quash a deposition because the witness whose deposition was taken was present will not be reviewed. Holt v. Guerguin, 106 Tex. 185, 163 S. W. 10, 50 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1186, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 551.

Former suit.—Under Rev. St. 1895, arts. 2273, 2290, a deposition of the alleged testatrix taken before her death in a suit to set aside a deed cannot be read in a proceeding for the probate of her will. Rucker v. Carr (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 632.

A deposition taken in a suit was not admissible in a suit other than the one in which it was taken. Castleberry v. Ussey (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 14.

Cross-interrogatories.—It is not ground for objection to a cross-interrogatory, eliciting an opinion, that it did not state sufficient facts on which to base an opinion; all the facts having been stated and the witness qualified in the direct interrogatories. Da Moth & Rose v. Hillsiboro Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 437.

CHAPTER THREE
DEPOSITIONS OF PARTIES

Article 3679. [2292] [2238] Party may take his own deposition.

Interrogatories must be written.—Under tit. 53, c. 3, written interrogatories must be filed as a prerequisite to taking the depositions of a party to the suit. Farmers’ & Merchants’ Nat. Bank of Abilene v. Ivey (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 706.

What not ground for suppressing.—The fact that the plaintiff, who was subpoenaed by the defendant, disobeyed the subpoena is not sufficient ground for the suppression of his deposition, where no attachment was requested. Leventhal v. Hollamon (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 6.

Article 3680. [2293] [2239] May take deposition of adverse party.

Bill of discovery.—Vernon’s Sayles’ Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 3679–3686, giving a party the right to examine the opposite parties as witnesses to secure information for maintaining an action or defense, superseded the bill of discovery as known to equity practice. Farmers’ & Merchants’ Nat. Bank of Abilene v. Ivey (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 706.

 Examination of party.—Where plaintiff claimed under a conveyance of land which a debtor received in exchange for his homestead, made within six months after exchange, and defendant claimed by purchase at a sale under a judgment against the debtor, plaintiff may be interrogated as to whether he holds the land for the debtor. Witt v. Test (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 392.

Article 3685. [2297] [2243] Refusal to answer, etc.

Cited, Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Sherer (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 404 (In dissenting opinion). Taking interrogatories as confessed.—Where complainants did not refuse to answer certain interrogatories as certified by the notary, the court did not err in permitting complainants to testify, and in not regarding the interrogatories as confessed. Connell v. Nickey (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 313.

Under this article answers to oral interrogatories cannot be taken as confessed because of party’s failure to answer them. Farmers’ & Merchants’ Nat. Bank of Abilene v. Ivey (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 706.

EVIDENCE

I. Competency of Evidence in General

1. Nature and source of evidence in general.—Testimony of a witness that a conversation between buyer and seller, whom he could not positively identify, when the contract was made, was substantially as testified to by the seller, held improperly excluded. Stafford v. Patterson & Nelson (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1096.

3. Results of tests, examinations and experiments.—A party seeking to introduce in evidence public documents showing results of experiments must show that the conditions under which the experiments were made were similar to the conditions involved in the case. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Graham & Price (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 297.

4. Evidence, in a passenger's action for injuries as to experiments by witness under substantially similar conditions, held admissible. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Yantis (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 969.

2½. Telephone conversations.—In an action on a fire policy, evidence of a telephone request upon the agent of the insurer to change the location of the policy held admissible. Delaware Ins. Co. v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1130.

In action on assigned policy, evidence that insured telephoned office of insurer's agent and told some person there of the transfer held competent, though the witness did not know to whom insured was taling. Northern Assur. Co., Limited, of London v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 411.

Statements made over the telephone, by the driver of an automobile which struck plaintiff, that he had bought the car, held admissible as to his intention to purchase it. Oids Motor Works v. Churchill (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 785.

3. Testimony by a witness as to his intent, motive or condition of mind.—In an action for damages for mental anguish caused by the negligent failure to deliver a telegram to plaintiff's sister, which prevented the sister from being present with plaintiff immediately after his death, evidence by plaintiff of mental condition when the message was sent was admissible on the question of the necessity of her sister's presence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Mooney (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 315.

Where newspaper market quotations were admitted in evidence to prove market value, witnesses were properly permitted to testify that they relied upon such newspaper quotations; it being admissible upon the issue of the credit to be given the quotations. Houston Packing Co. v. Griffith (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 451.

On the issue of abandonment of homestead by moving to another place, the owner may testify as to his intention to return. Parker v. Schrimsher (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 165.

4. Execution and delivery of contracts and conveyances.—On the issue whether a deed absolute in form is, in fact, a mortgage, the grantor may testify whether the deed was executed to secure a debt, but not that he did not intend to execute a mortgage. Kidd v. Sparks (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 739.

A conveyance by defendant canal corporation of its canal bed, not being ipso facto an abandonment of such land, testimony of its officers that there was no intention to abandon was admissible. Lawson v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 600.

In suit on note executed by defendant to own order and indorsed in blank, evidence of defendant that he never intended to put it into circulation at all was admissible against plaintiff, who took after maturity. Kenamam v. Cahagan (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 619.

Where defendant fire insurance company claimed that a policy had been canceled by mutual consent in a conversation between its agent and assured, the assured's explanation that he understood the policy was void only during certain foreclosure proceedings is admissible where the conversation was somewhat ambiguous. Glens Falls Ins. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1026.

10½. Testimony of agent as to agency.—Testimony of agent is competent to prove parol agency, or to establish nature and scope of authority. Alamo Live Stock Commission Co. v. Heimer (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 501.

11. Testimony as to character or reputation.—Where the only reputation plaintiff had in any particular locality was formed in a certain county, evidence of his reputation there four or five years before trial was not incompetent, especially where there was nothing to indicate that his reputation had since changed for the better. Clark v. Hendricks (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 57.

12. Evidence admissible by reason of admission of similar evidence of adverse party with objection, testified to a matter pertinent to the issue, it was not error to permit another witness for plaintiff to testify to the same matter. Lattimore v. Puckett & Wear (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 261.

In an action against a physician for malpractice, it was not an abuse of discretion to refuse to permit defendant's witnesses to illustrate with a manikin, the proper method of delivering a child, though similar evidence, offered by plaintiff, had been previously admitted. Lee v. Moore (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 437.

In an action for injury to property by the construction and operation of railroad yards, in which a witness for defendant was asked why the house was vacated, and replied that he was told that they wanted too much rent for it, defendant's counsel could ask whether the witness was told why they wanted too much rent for it. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. v. Crison (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 549.

Where, in an action for injuries to a brakeman, defendant offered proof that he was discharged by his former employer for intoxication, plaintiff was entitled to introduce a service letter given him by such employer, reciting that he had resigned and that his services were generally satisfactory. Missouri, O. & G. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Love (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 922.

Where the question of a parol trust was in issue, one party, having introduced evidence of declaration by deceased grantor, cannot complain that the other introduced similar evidence. Hambleton v. Southwest Texas Baptist Hospital (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 574.

Where a telegraph company made a telephone company its agent for delivery of a message between such agent and employees of the companies, it was not necessary to particularize the conversations. The Federal Telegraph Co. v. Smiley (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 507.

III. Demonstrative Evidence

37. Wounds and other injuries.—Exhibition of injured leg to the jury held proper to show the extent of the injuries. Texas Traction Co. v. Scoggins (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1126.

38. Compelling person injured to submit to examination by physicians.—Where plaintiff removed dark glasses from his eyes and submitted them to the inspection of
IV. Documentary Evidence

47. Admissibility of public or official records and certificates in general—Notice of view by jury—Maps.—A map from the land office was admissible in an action to define boundaries, though made subsequent to the beginning of the action. Thatcher v. Matthews (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 819.

Recently made maps and plats of lands are of no value in determining a boundary existing 60 years before, such boundary being the bank of a river shown to have shifted since the grant. Crosby v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 705.

50. Judicial acts and records in general.—Where defendant asserted plaintiff's title was divested by a sale by their guardian during their minority, evidence of the minutes of the probate court and the deed of the guardian are admissible. Shields v. Perrine (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 232.

In suit by heirs for recognition as stockholders, documentary evidence that shares issued to plaintiffs' ancestor was among assets of New Orleans decedent and had been sold pursuant to order of court, held admissible on issue whether plaintiffs' ancestor disposed of stock. Condit v. Galveston City Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 395.

52. Records of justices of the peace.—In an action on a note, held error to admit as evidence the bond upon appeal from the justice's court. Wilson v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 773.

55. Records and returns of surveyors.—Field notes of subsequent surveys by a surveyor, not shown to have had any knowledge of the location of the original lines or corners, are inadmissible to show by their calls for the original surveys the location of the lines and corners thereof. State v. Dayton Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 391.

Field note book admitted by agreement of parties, so far as it related to certain surveys, should have been considered by the court in passing on the issues. Crews v. Powers (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 363

It was error to admit against objection, as evidence of a boundary line, a report to commissioners' court of a survey, where neither objector nor any one under whom he claimed had anything to do with the report. Petty v. Williams (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 631.

In a boundary dispute, action of trial court in permitting plaintiff to read from a memorandum book of the county surveyor, containing data of applications to purchase school lands, nexus for an inspecting examiner to purchase portions of sections, which was the register provided for in articles 3894 and 3896, Rev. St. 1879, held erroneous. Id.

56. Records kept by United States officers in general.—In an action for conversion by carrier on refusal of the shipper to pay an excessive freight rate, the award of the Interstate Commerce Commission, determining the proper rate for the shipment, was admissible in evidence. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Porter (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 98.
62. Admissibility of transcripts and certified copies.—Ancient instrument.—Certified copies of ancient instruments are entitled to the same weight as the ancient instruments themselves. Huling v. Moore (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 188.

63. — Judicial records and proceedings in general.—A copy of an order of a court authorizing the receiver of a national bank to sell the assets of the bank, together with the accompanying instructions of the Comptroller of the Currency, as required by U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 669, § 884, but which order was never recorded or made a minute in any court, is inadmissible to establish such order as an order of a court of record. Tourtellot v. Booker (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 293.

64. Records of the courts of a sister state may be proved by copies thereof authenticated as required by U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 677, § 965, or by copies duly examined by some witness, but it must first be shown that an order has been entered of record before proof thereof can be made in any of these forms. Id.

65. In an action of an uninsured proprietor to partition land held in common, in connection with other evidence in trespass to try title, to show partition, Robertson v. Talmadge (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 627.

66. Admissibility of private writings and documents in general.—In action on accident policy, physician's certificate that death was caused by paralysis of the heart due to tetanus held admissible to show compliance with requirement of policy as to furnishing notice of the accident, with full particulars thereof. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Co. v. Hendricks (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 1097.

67. Corporate records and proceedings.—In an action against a corporation for the balance due on its own stock purchased from plaintiff, where the defense was ultra vires, held, that the corporate records as to the written authority of its president to purchase the stock were admissible as showing whether authority had been given to him, but not as a conclusive circumstance on that issue. W. R. Case & Sons Cutlery Co. v. Folsom (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1066.

68. In an action for wood sold f. o. b. cars at A., in the absence of evidence as to the amount of bills of the railroad to the number of cords of wood on arrival at H., the exclusion of such bills was proper. McLoughlin v. Terrell Bros. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 932.

69. In suit to enforce materialman's claim against corporation, exclusion of its by-laws specifying powers of its president, who made the contract sued on, held erroneous. Cleburne St. Ry. Co. v. Barber (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1176.

70. Admissibility of conveyances, contracts and other instruments.—In action for commission by party employed to sell land, where owner did not deny he executed deed to purchaser procured by plaintiff, and evidence was sufficient to show delivery, such deed was admissible to show owner accepted purchaser procured by plaintiff and delivered a deed to him. Black v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 493.

71. In trespass to try title, where plaintiff claimed under a deed which had previously in a record been held valid, the description of which applied on the ground to the land sued for, the deed was admissible. Hay's v. Hinkle (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 153.

72. — Relation to matters in controversy in general.—In action for broker's commission, deeds which would not disprove anything testified to by the purchaser procured by plaintiff, and had no tendency to show that plaintiff was not the procuring cause of sale, held properly excluded. Black v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 493.

73. Recitals of fact in general.—A deed contained in an abstract of title which recites that grantors are the only heirs of the immediate preceding grantee and title holder upon the public records would not be a sufficient showing that the purported heirs are in fact heirs. Sparkman v. Davenport (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 410.

Recitals as to payment of the purchase price in deeds under which defendants claimed might be considered in connection with other circumstances as tending to show payment. Hart v. Rice (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 612.

A statement in a deed, such as that the grantor was a married woman, held admissible for the purpose of identification, and to establish relationship, pedigree, etc. Hill & Bros. v. Lofton (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 67.

A statement in a deed, such as the grantor was a married woman, held admissible for the purpose of identification, and to establish relationship, pedigree, etc. Hill & Bros. v. Lofton (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 67.

Where, in trespass to try title, the issue involved was the location of the old bed of a river, and defendant claimed under a town to which a grant was made, bounded by the old bed, a statement in a deed executed by the town with reference to the location of the old bed was admissible. Stevens v. Crosby (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 62.

A recital in conveyance by a husband that the land in question was not his homestead is competent evidence to show that at the time of the conveyance it had not been claimed by him as such. Johnson v. Conger (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 405.

Recitals in proof of loss of land certificate and in an instrument transferring such certificate held admissible to prove that vendor claimed to own the land. Dunn v. Ep­ person (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 837.

Such recitals held admissible to prove title of plaintiffs' predecessor. Id.

In action to recover for cars of wood sold f. o. b. A., exclusion of original freight bills of railroad to show number of wood cars received in each car by defendant at H. held proper. McLaughlin v. Terrell Bros. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 933.

A deed held under a supposed trust deed of land sold under a mortgage in which provided that trustor's deed should be evidence that trustor had legally executed trust, the deed established prima facie the posting of necessary notices. Adams v. Zel­ ner (Sup.) 185 S. W. 1143.

An ancient deed is not proof of the fact recited of the grantor qualifying as survivor of the marital partnership; this presumably being a matter which can be shown by the court records of the proper county. Ketchum v. Boggs (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 201.

74. — Nature of instruments in general.—In suit against attorney to recover amount realized from notes entrusted to him for collection, defendant, in former suit, instrument, signed by plaintiff in former suit, which purported to "give, grant and will" notes to daughter, defendant in such suit, a plaintiff herein, held admissible. Padgett v. Hines (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1122.

A purported will which was never probated is inadmissible in evidence. Jung v. Peter­ mann (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 203.
85. Documents insufficient or incomplete when standing alone.—Where a deed showed no ambiguity on its face, held error to exclude it on the assension of counsel that there was no survey, plat, or streets, such as those given in the description; the burden of proving these facts being on subsequent purchasers claiming that the deed was insufficient. Young v. Gharis (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 796.

86. Admissibility of books of account.—Where, in an action for gravel sold and delivered, App. 1944 S. W. 472, it appeared that the books of the seller were kept in such a manner that the number of pounds per cubic yard agreed on, and defendant showed that the witness had stated that the gravel was contracted for at a specified number of pounds to the cubic yard, the books were admissible. Richard Cooke & Co. v. New Era Gravel & Development Co. (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 988.

87. Character of books in general.—In an action against a railroad for goods lost in the burning of a store, a ledger, whose correctness showing the amount of cash sales and credit sales from the first of the year to the date of the fire was testified to by plaintiff, was properly admitted. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 442.

Where it was shown that written slips, statements, and accounts constituted all the bookkeeping in plaintiff's business, and that they were regularly kept by himself and his clerk, it was error to exclude those made by the clerk. Elias v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 417.

In an action for the price of lumber sold, plaintiff's daybook, or journal, containing the first permanent entry of sales items taken from slips made out by yardmen, held admissible as a book of original entry. Scruggs v. E. L. Woodley Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 597.

In action for price of lumber, addition to name of party charged of the word "resi­dential," held sufficient to render plaintiff's account book in admissibility. Id.

Books of account are not admissible under the rule admitting accounts kept by the parties, where they do not contain items and charges made in the regular course of business. Id.

92. Entries made from memoranda or other information.—Entries in books on information received from third person were not admissible in evidence. Thrift & Edwards v. Holland (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1189.

93. Purposes of proof in general.—In partner's suit for dissolution and accounting, court properly refused to permit defendants to offer in evidence trial balance made from the firm's books, which would simply show they were in balance or out of balance, and not properly show net profits. Tyler v. McChesney (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1115.

94. Admissibility of private memoranda and statements in general.—In a bank's action on a draft drawn by contractors on a school district for the balance due under a contract, held, that the architect's final estimate was properly admitted in evidence. Crowell Independent School Dist. v. First Nat. Bank of Bennington (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 625.

A railway equipment register as to the dimensions of cars being admissible, it was proper to admit a memorandum, condensing the information desired, from the book. Money v. Terrell Bros. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 922.

In action on life policy written by fraternal order, held, that court properly excluded certificates of plaintiff, attending physician, and coroner, furnished insurer by plaintiff under policy, offered to show cause of death. Brotherhood of American Yeomen v. Hickey (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 143.

97. Items of property and value thereof.—In an action against a railroad for a stock of goods lost in the burning of a store, a tabulated statement or summary, prepared by plaintiff, showing the value of the goods, etc., was properly admitted; it being based upon testimony before the jury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 442.

98. Admissibility of letters, telegrams, and other correspondence.—A letter from an insurance company cancelling a policy for failure to pay the premium, which was shown to the agent who had accepted a note for the premium and agreed to pay the amount to the company, was admissible in evidence against him in an action against him by the policy holder for damages. Newman v. Tarwater (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 396.

In trover for conversion of a rice mixer, so much of a letter written by plaintiff to defendant as demanded possession of the machine and gave notice of possible damages flowing from refusal to deliver held admissible. Texas Warehouse Co. v. Imperial Rice Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 936.

Where the holder of an equitable interest in land wired defendants, who had already paid the purchase price to the agent of the vendor, to assist her in establishing her title and that she would protect them, but defendants refused, the telegram was inadmissible in a suit by the holder of the equitable title. Meador Bros. v. Hines (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 915.

In action for damages to shipment, letter written connecting carrier's claim agent held to show that notice of the claim was given as required by the contract. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Itule (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1123.

In action to recover on defendant's promise to pay for part of plaintiffs' wheat crop which had been ground at a mill and delivered to defendant, letters from the mill to defendant and from him to the mill, properly proven, held material and relevant. Mendola v. Garza Bros. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 391.
99. Maps, plats, and diagrams.—In suit by the buyer of lands for false representations of title, as to the quantity, a map furnished the buyer by the agent held admissible. Vaden v. Buck (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 318.

In a suit to enjoin enforcement of an order of Railroad Commission requiring plaintiff to build a station at a designated place, if plaintiff's road was in fact, if not in name, built and owned by another railroad company, a map issued by immigration department of such other railroad showing place indicated by Railroad Commission as a station on plaintiff's road was admissible. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 779.

101. Photographs—Physical appearance and identity of persons.—Photograph tracings showing the pulsation of the heart of one suffering from personal injuries, as well as photographs showing his impairment of vision and injuries to other organs, when shown to have been taken with scientific accuracy, are properly received in evidence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Heacker (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 261.

Explanation of evidence of physician attending plaintiff switchman, injured while in the employ of the defendant, by X-ray photographs of plaintiff's anatomy after injury, is admissible, if preliminary evidence has established the correctness of the photographs. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Winkler (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 691.

102. — Condition of premises.—In an action for death of plaintiffs' decedent at a railroad crossing, photograph held admissible in evidence, although in a certain position it showed a car different from the car which stood there at the time of the accident. Hovey v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1025.

103. Books and other printed publications.—A published tariff, not affecting an initial carrier, may be considered in determining the through rate on an interstate shipment from a combination of the local rate of the initial carrier and the published rate of the other carrier. Wichita Falls & W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Asher (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1114.

In an action for the price of wood in which defendant claimed shortage, a copy of the American Railway Equipment Register, with testimony to its general use, was admissible as to the capacity of freight cars. McLaughlin v. Terrell Bros. (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 932.

In an action for damages for negligent transportation of stock, it is not error to exclude government reports of tests of shrinkage, where there is nothing to show that they are accurate, authentic, or that the tests embraced therein were made under similar conditions. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dale Bros. Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 958.

In an action for delay in delivering telegram, preventing addressee from attending funeral, the admission of a timetable of a railroad in force at the time was not error. Mansell v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1178.

108. Compelling production of documents—Nature of document and relation to issue.—Where suit of shipper of live stock for damages from negligence in handling was not based on written contract, the court did not err in failing, without any request, to require plaintiff to produce bill of lading or other written contract. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Sutherland (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 575.

109. — Notice in general.—Where an original letter was in the hands of the addressee, notice to defendant who had no right or control thereof was insufficient to obtain substitution of view. Holiday v. St. Ector v. Hutson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 321.

110. — Examined copies of records.—In an action to recover on a judgment of another state, proof by witness of the attached copy as a compared copy of the judgment on the original docket of the court of such state is admissible. Wallace v. Schneider (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 333.

117. Preliminary evidence for authentication in general.—A recital therein to the identity of the signer of a waiver relinquishing a widow's right to administer is not sufficient to make it admissible. Kimmons v. Abrahim (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 256.

Where the original instrument is an archive of a foreign government and it is not possible to determine its genuineness by any record or other evidence within the jurisdiction of the court, some extrinsic evidence of the execution or genuineness of such instrument will be required before admitting it in evidence. Sullivan v. Pant (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 612.

A copy of a record of birth kept in a foreign country is inadmissible in evidence without proof of the existence of a law in the foreign country requiring the keeping of such records. Guerra v. San Antonio Sewer Pipe Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 659.

A record of birth kept in a foreign country is inadmissible in evidence, where there is no proof of the genuineness of the original record or of the copy. Id.

120. — Proof of authority to execute.—An assignment of a judgment executed by an agent of the judgment creditor is not admissible in evidence until the authority of the agent is approved. Needham v. Cooney (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 979.

Where undisputed evidence of a managing partner showed that he had express authority to execute note sued upon, there was no error in admitting note as evidence, although defendants had denied its execution. Hill v. First State Bank of Oakwood (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 904.

126. — Form and sufficiency in general.—The opinion of the Supreme Court of a sister state, not published as an opinion of the court, is admissible in evidence only as a record and judicial proceeding of the Supreme Court, and must be authenticated as prescribed by Rev. St. U. S. § 906 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 677). White v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 812.
In an action for negligent death, a written statement found near the place of the accident, describing the accident as a statement by the deceased, against the objection that it had not been properly identified. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 880.

Under Rev. St. U. S. § 882, and Act Cong. July 26, 1892, § 3, a copy of a part of the approved roll of Seminole freedmen, within Act May 27, 1908, § 3, not authenticated by any seal, is inadmissible. Id.

A land certificate is not inadmissible because it fails to show the seal of the officer taking the acknowledgment, or his recital that he affixed the seal. Huling v. Moore (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 188.

131. Books of account.—The correctness of an account for supplies and labor on an automobile can be proved by a witness who did not make the entries, and who neither claimed nor had any personal knowledge thereof. Randle v. Barden (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1063.

The correctness of an account for supplies and labor on an automobile could not be proved by a witness, whose testimony was based on the fact that he was superintendent of the shops where the car was repaired, and that the time slips from which entries were made were made out and signed by men under him who actually did the work, delivered to the witness, and by him delivered to the office. Id.

133. Memoranda and statements.—An inventory of a stock of goods, made jointly by plaintiff and his wife, was properly admitted in evidence, where plaintiff testified as to its correctness; it not being necessary for the wife to testify. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 442.

Time slips made by mechanics repairing an automobile could only be admitted on the theory that the shopbooks in which they were entered or the bookkeeper are not available, and it was error to admit them on the testimony of the foreman, identifying them as the slips turned over to him for delivery to the office. If he had signed them and made the entries, they would have been admissible. Randle v. Barden (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1063.

134. Letters, telegrams and other correspondence.—An indorsement on a letter, sent by an insurer’s state agent to his home office, of the words, “Received June 11, 1906,” was not of itself evidence of the receipt of the letter, in the absence of connecting proof that the instrument represented the insurance company, and had authority to make it. Security Trust & Life Ins. Co. v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 396.

136. Maps, plats and diagrams.—A plat of land is not admissible as independent evidence on the mere testimony of a witness that he saw the surveyor make it, but did not know of his own knowledge that it was correct. Kelley v. Fain (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 809.

It was a proper mode to prove the correctness of a survey as to a portion of which the surveyor had to rely on the notes of a county surveyor to have such county surveyor swear that his notes so used were correct, while the other also swore that his were correct. Ashley v. Holland (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 625.

Alleged plat of town site based on survey not made from sufficient data or copied from another plat, the authenticity of which was not shown and the absence of which was not accounted for, held inadmissible. Joyce v. City of Mt. Vernon (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 636.

Copy of plat not shown to be original or correct plat of town site or not to be producible, held not admissible, except to show that land had been laid off into lots. Id.

139. Determination of question of admissibility.—Where a writing was properly received under the evidence offered, the fact that subsequent evidence attacked the identity and genuineness thereof did not affect the ruling. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 880.

141. Conclusiveness and effect—Judicial and other records.—A verified petition for probate reciting that testatrix was the widow of R. S., together with a former deed to her reciting that she was then the wife of R. S., held sufficient to show that the husband had predeceased her. Hill & Jahn v. Lofton (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 67.

The court admitting in evidence copies of records of a sister state, duly authenticated, cannot give effect to the records accorded to them by the laws of the sister state, unless the laws are proved. Newsom v. Langford (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1063.

142. Private contracts and other writings.—Recitals of consideration in deeds on a resale by the grantees in a deed given as security, though admissible as a circumstance to show the value of the land, were not conclusive. Norton v. Lea (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 267.

In action of trespass to try title on the ground of nonpayment of balance evidenced by a note, where there was no evidence save a recitation in the deed of the land to contradict defendant’s testimony that the note was not part of the consideration, but that the recitation was fraudulently inserted in the deed, unknown to defendant, the probative force of the recitation was so weak that it should not be considered as any evidence in contradiction of the otherwise undisputed testimony of defendants. Miller v. Pouleur (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 105.

144. Books and other printed publications.—A pamphlet or other document, purporting to have been used by the government or under the authority of some department of the, no more weight as prima facie, nor greater authenticity or verity, than documents issued by other authority. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dale Bros. Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 935.

145. Effect of introducing part of document or record.—In an action by shippers of live stock for delay in transit, where plaintiffs read in evidence part of the contract of shipment, the clause that the stock were not to be transported within any specified time, etc., not contrary to the federal statute touching the watering, etc., of stock

In transit, and not an attempt to contract against defendants' negligence, was admissible as showing the entire contract. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Lands & Storey (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 354.

V. Reception of Evidence at Trial

150. Necessity and scope of proof—Matters not controverted at trial.—Where, in trespass to try title, defendant pleaded that a deed made by plaintiff conveyed a half interest, and plaintiff did not overrule or demur, the deed was fraudulent and without consideration, unless construed to convey more than a half interest, there was no error in refusing to permit plaintiff to testify that he only intended to convey a half interest. Pearce v. Heyman (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 242.

152. Placing witnesses under the rule.—There was no abuse of discretion in refusing to permit a witness to testify after he had been released from the rule on the grounds that he would not be used as a witness. Weatherford, M. W. & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 822.

153. Offer of proof.—Where the court asked counsel for defendant whether he had any testimony to offer, and the counsel replied that he rested, an assignment that the court, over the objection of defendant, made defendant rest his case before introducing all his testimony was without merit. Pope v. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 1195.

155. Evidence admissible in part or for particular purpose.—Where a single declaration of a testator on the issue of undue influence was offered as a whole and was inadmissible in part, it should have been excluded upon objection. Scott v. Townsend, 166 S. W. 1138, 166 Tex. 322, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 342.

158. Where, in an action for the price of machinery, the buyer relied on a breach of warranty, a letter by the buyer's manager to the seller with reference to the working of the machinery was admissible only to show notice to the seller of the defective machinery. A. S. Cameron Steam Pump Works v. Lubbock Light & Ice Co. (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 258.

159. Where testimony, inadmissible in part, is offered as a whole, error cannot be predicated upon its rejection. Colorado County v. Travis County (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 546.

160. Where a contract is offered in evidence as a whole, and part is illegal, and tendered to establish a pleaded defense, rejection of it is authorized. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Winn Bros. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 697.

161. Testimony tending to establish one of two issues on trial incompetent or irrelevant as to the other issue is not inadmissible for such reason, as the duty is on the party against whom it is offered to request its limitation to the issue on which it is admissible. Wilson v. Avery Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 884.

165. Where certain parts of excluded testimony were hearsay, it could not be held that the court erred in excluding it as a whole. Nevill v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 388.

166. Application of personal knowledge of jurors.—Alleging and proving physical and mental condition which would necessarily result in loss of earning capacity is sufficient pleading and proof of diminished earning capacity, which may be ascertained by the jury from their common knowledge of men. Memphis Cotton Oil Co. v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 390.

168. Cumulative evidence in general.—That other persons have testified to the same effect does not warrant exclusion of testimony as cumulative, when the other witnesses were subject to the criticism of interest and the proposed witness was not. Hovey v. See (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 606.

159. Right to object to evidence.—Where appellant failed to test accuracy of witness as to stated percentage of depreciation, it could not complain on appeal. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Miller & White (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 819.

160. Estoppel or waiver.—Where a party withdrew his objection to certain evidence which has been excluded, he did not thereby waive his right to object to leading questions asked the witness, when he was recalled to testify. Yellow Pine Paper Mill Co. v. Lyons (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 968.

Chap. 4) EVIDENCE (Introductory) Art. 3687

Any error in admitting evidence that board was replaced and fastened after accident held waived, where photograph made after the accident was introduced, and witness testified with reference thereto. Decatur Cotton Seed Oil Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 401.

In a switchman's action for injuries against his employing railroad, the defense waived the right to object to a hypothetical question to a medical witness, as to whether the accident to plaintiff could or probably would result in paralysis, by its failure to object to other like testimony. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Sherer (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 404.

170. Time for objection.—Where a party failed to object to a question asked a witness before answer, he could not, on appeal, urge his objection to the answer. Glens Falls Ina. Co. of Glens Falls, N. Y., v. Melott (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 700.

In tenant in common's action for contribution, objection to testimony concerning improvement of adjacent street not alleged in the petition held interposed in time, and not waived. Stephenson v. Luttrell (Sup.) 179 S. W. 269.

Objection to shipper's testimony as to damage to stock shipped, not made until after he had fully testified, was too late to afford ground of exception. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Vaught (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 143.

A party in error in admitting evidence, not seasonably objected to, cannot be considered on appeal. Niles v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 748.

171. Sufficiency and scope of objection.—An objection to a question as calling for an opinion as to the fact in issue does not support an assignment that the witness was not qualified to express an opinion. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Francis (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 46.

In an action for negligence, where defendant objected and reserved a bill of exceptions to plaintiff's testimony that defendant said he had insurance, he was not required to ask that the cause be withdrawn from the jury and continued. Carter v. Walker (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 463.

Objections to testimony should be made to questions or by motion to exclude answers, giving reasons, so that trial court may rule on objections made. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Durrett (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 437.

A party objecting to evidence should state his objections clearly and specifically, that they may be understood by the court and obviated by the opposing party. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. James (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1136.

172. General or specific.—In an action for negligence, violence of cattle, error in the admission of evidence for plaintiff of difference in the value of cattle when loaded and on their arrival was not sufficiently presented by the general objection that evidence "of any difference in value" between time of loading and of arrival would be incompetent. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. James (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1136.

173. Statement of grounds.—District Court Rule 57 (142 S. W. xxi), providing that exceptions to the admission of evidence shall not be sustained where no reason is assigned for objecting thereto, if the evidence is competent, does not permit dragnet objections which do not specify the objections to the evidence offered. Tompkins v. Pendleton (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 290.

An objection that offered evidence is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial is not sufficiently specific unless the real nature of the objection is so plain that the general phrase is sufficient to indicate it. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Fielder (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 606.

Error in admitting a letter in evidence will not be reviewed, where the bill of exceptions stated the basis for objection which was given for its introduction. Draughon's Practical Business College v. Dorsett (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 495.

The exclusion of evidence rejected on one objection cannot on appeal be justified on a ground not raised. King County v. Martin (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 960, judgment affirmed on rehearing, 173 S. W. 1290.

Error cannot be predicated on the admission of testimony of value, no reason for its inadmissibility having been given in the objection thereto. Mendiola v. Gonzales (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 389.

174. Scope and questions raised.—Testimony that, after the services were rendered to defendant's married daughter, defendant orally promised to pay if the daughter's husband did not, while objectionable because showing a contract in contravention of the statute of frauds, was properly received over objection that the promise, having been made after the services were rendered and not being in writing, was not binding on defendant. Johnson v. Tindall (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 407.

In a personal injury action by a railroad brakeman, evidence tending to show his freedom from contributory negligence held admissible on general objection, as against the contention that it showed negligence of defendant not pleaded. Pf. Worth Belt Ry. Co. v. Cabell (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1683.

Objections to the admission of evidence not urged in the court below cannot be urged on appeal. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Drumwright (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1011.

Where evidence is offered as a whole, while a part of it is incompetent and objected to on the ground of incompetency of such part, and no offer is made to introduce the remainder only, it is not error to exclude the evidence in its entirety. Magee v. Paul (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 325.

In a will contest on the ground of the contestee's undue influence over the testator, contestee's declaration of ill feeling toward the contestant, or of an intention to induce testator to exclude her from a share in his estate, held admissible in toto, where the objections were valid only to parts of such declarations. Scott v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 342, judgment reversed 16 Tex. 322, 166 S. W. 1138.

A general objection to the admission in evidence of deeds was properly overruled where no instrument was held to have been excluded but merely to have their consideration limited to the issue upon which they were admissible. Sullivan v. Fant (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 612.

General objections to the admissibility of a deed in evidence in trespass to try title were properly overruled if the deed were admissible as to any of the parties upon any issue. Id.

In action for injuries, testimony of physician as to examination of plaintiff held properly admitted over the objection, made to it as a whole, that it was based on information furnished by plaintiff, as some of the facts detailed were not necessarily derived from that source. Paris & G. N. R. Co. v. Flanders (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 98.

A general objection that the testimony is not admissible at all should not be sustained, where it is material and admissible for any purpose. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Co. v. Hendricks (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 1007.

Where objections to report of acts of state surveyor went to the whole report and did not call the objectionable matter consisting of argument and opinions, the court held not required to exclude such objectionable matter. Denton v. English (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 248.

Error cannot be predicated on objection to the admission of two instruments, where one was admissible. Crowell Independent School Dist. v. First Nat. Bank of Benjamin (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 878.

It was not error to overrule an objection which did not point out the particular part of an objection to, and to, which the objectionable portion from the part admissible. Smith v. Guerre (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1093.

Where evidence was in part material, a general objection of immateriality will not warrant its exclusion. Hahl v. McPherson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 804.

In a law suit as to his qualifications, over the average man, in regard to knowledge of the human body and its injuries, held properly admitted over the objection that it was argumentative, where only part of it was objectionable. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Sherer (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 404.

An objection to evidence admissible in part should separate the admissible evidence from that which is inadmissible. Briggs-Weaver Machinery Co. v. Pratt (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 752.

Where part of a question and answer was admissible, and part inadmissible, the inadmissible part should have been segregated and proper objection made thereto. Street v. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 728.

Admission of testimony of physician that plaintiff was very nervous, restless, and could not sleep at nights, over the objection that it was hearsay, was not error, the only portion that was hearsay being the reference to sleeping at nights. Caffarelli Bros. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 223.

A assignment of error to the admission of testimony which was admissible only to impeach a witness cannot be sustained where only the general objection was made and no special charge limiting its effect was requested. Earhart v. Agnew (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1140.

176. Motion to strike out—Grounds and purpose in general.—A collateral oral contract to pay the debt of another being within the statute of frauds (Vernon's Soles' Civ. St. 1914, art. 2365), testimony by plaintiff that defendant made such an agreement is incompetent to show an indebtedness on defendant's part and should be stricken. Johnson v. Tindall (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 401.

Where evidence when received was admissible under the issues as then disclosed by the pleadings and the proof, but thereafter the evidence became immaterial because of the withdrawal of the issue under which it was admissible, the remedy was by motion to strike out the evidence. Missouri, O. & G. Ry. Co. v. Boring (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 76.

178. Necessity of previous objection.—When evidence is not objected to when offered, unless good reason for the delay is shown, the court has a wider discretion in passing upon its admissibility upon motion to strike out. Sockwell v. Sockwell (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 1183.

180. Statement of grounds.—An objection to evidence and a motion to strike out the answer failing to state the ground of objection is insufficient. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Fielder (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 606.

181. Evidence admissible in part.—Where evidence was in part admissible, a general objection that it was a conclusion cannot be sustained. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Galsbreath (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 901.

Objection to whole answer, though part of it is competent, held sufficient, where opinion of a witness as an expert is sought on an improper subject, and the parts of the answer are difficult to separate. Da Moth & Rose v. Hillsboro Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 457.

There is the part of the testimony objected to as a whole was not hearsay, the objection was ineffectual to reach any part of the evidence to which it might be pertinent. Wichita Falls Traction Co. v. Berry (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 418.

Effect of failure to object or except.—In an action on a benefit insurance certificate, no objection was made at the trial to the manner of proving the loss of the certificate and its contents, no question could be raised thereto on appeal. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World v. Ruedrich (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 170.

In an action against a railroad for a penalty for overcharge, plaintiff's testimony that defendant's agent told him that $8 was the highest rate permitted by the Railroad Commission, not objected to, was sufficient to establish the fact of the rates fixed by the Commission, though not the best evidence thereof. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Stowers (App.) 183 S. W. 276.

A party who fails to object to a deed, when it is introduced in evidence, waives any objection to it. Coleman v. Luetckc (App.) 164 S. W. 1117.

Where inadmissible testimony was received without objection, and there was no motion to strike it out, the refusal to charge the jury not to consider the testimony was not erroneous. Texas Power & Light Co. v. Burger (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 680.

The admission of the testimony of witnesses called by the court on its own motion is not reviewable, where no objection was urged to the testimony at the time of its introduction. Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 463.

The uncontradicted statement of the conclusion of a railway agent as to an inter-state rate, admitted without objection, is sufficient proof of the rate. Wichita Falls & W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Asher (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1114.

Assignments of error in admitting certain evidence cannot be considered, where there is nothing showing that appellant objected to the testimony. Jefferson Cotton Oil & Fertilizer Co. v. Priddgen & Conleston (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 739.

The overruling of an objection to testimony cannot be reviewed, where no exception to the court's action appears to have been taken. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Moore (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 904.

Where there was no objection below that hypothetical question did not correctly present the evidence, error therein, if any, was not ground for reversal. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 603.

Admission of evidence to which an objection was not made and exception saved to the overruling thereof is not reviewable. Unknown Heirs of Buchanan v. Creighton-McShand & Co. (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 914.

Failure to raise the objection of insufficiency of evidence to sustain the verdict in the trial court precludes raising the objection for the first time on appeal. Hayes v. G. A. Stower Furniture Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 149.

Whether a record of one county of the certified copy of a deed taken from the records of another county is admissible is not raised where no objection was made to its introduction or any ground thereof. Vann v. George (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 555.

Failure to object to certain testimony furnishes no ground for admission of similar testimony properly objected to: a proposition which is a rule for the trial court. Slayden v. Palmo (Sup.) 194 S. W. 1103.

Harmless error.—In eminent domain, the exclusion of evidence admissible as an admission by plaintiff that his land was not of the value asserted held prejudicial. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Orenbaum (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 531.

Compensation for shipment of cattle, and error in allowing witness to testify as to condition of market, based on a telegram not originally admissible in evidence, held not ground for reversal. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 953.

Admissibility of Evidence at Former Trial or in Other Proceeding

Death or disability of witness.—On second trial of a case, the testimony of a witness on the first, since deceased, is admissible on behalf of either party, when properly proved. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 701.

Absence of witness.—Under exception to hearsay rule, witness being beyond the court's jurisdiction, his testimony given on the first trial on substantially the same issue, where there was opportunity for cross-examination, is admissible on a new trial. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Geary (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 458.

Identity of parties and issues.—Issues on two trials held substantially the same, relative to admissibility on second trial of testimony given on first by witness since beyond court's jurisdiction. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Geary (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 458.

Mode of proof.—One who heard a witness, since deceased, testify on a former trial, may prove the former leave for the purpose of the cross examination. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 701.
RULE 1. WITNESS MAY BE SWORN AND EXAMINED, HOW

I. Examination of Witnesses in General

4. Questions assuming facts.—Question asked accused by his counsel as to what he meant if he made a certain statement held properly excluded, where he denied making such statement and had not withdrawn his denial. Hiles v. State, 73 Cr. R. 17, 163 S. W. 717.

Questions as to accused's abortion, etc., held objectionable as assuming facts. Harrison v. State (Cr. App.) 191 S. W. 548.

5. Leading questions.—Questions as to what deceased and accused were talking about at the time of the killing, and whether deceased attempted to strike his wife and was prevented by accused, are not leading. Rodriguez v. State, 71 Cr. R. 108, 138 S. W. 537.

The state should not, as a rule, be permitted to ask leading questions. Fox v. State, 71 Cr. R. 515, 158 S. W. 1141.

A question to the prosecutrix as to whether she would have yielded to defendant but for his promise to marry her was not objectionable as leading. Black v. State, 71 Cr. R. 621, 160 S. W. 720.

An objection that a question is leading is addressed to the trial court's discretion. Norton v. Lea (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 267.

The counsel for the state should never by his questions suggest an answer to a friendly witness. Carter v. State (Cr. App.) 170 S. W. 738.

In an action for fire set by defendant's locomotive, a question to a witness, "Was there any other means known to you by which the fire could have caught, except from that passing train?" was not objectionable as leading. Arey v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 802; judgment affirmed St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Arey (Sup.) 178 S. W. 860.

Question to a witness whether his husband prior to his death acquired the interests of his brothers and sisters in the land in controversy by deed or deeds claimed to have been held not objectionable as leading. Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 337.

A leading question is one which may be answered in the affirmative or negative, and suggests the desired answer in a matter material to the issue. Hill v. State, 76 Cr. R. 969, 172 S. W. 1022.

Questions of prosecuting attorney in a murder trial whether deceased stopped running before he was killed held not leading. Taylor v. State (Cr. App.) 180 S. W. 242.

And the question whether witness saw the parties all the time before deceased was killed held not leading. Id.

In an action for commission for effecting a sale of land, it is improper to allow leading questions to the plaintiff broker as to whether defendant did not promise under stated circumstances to pay the commission. Britain v. Rice (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 84.

In prosecution for seduction, it was not improper to permit such questions as, "State whether or not you loved the defendant," "State whether or not you would have submitted to the defendant that night if you had not loved him." Gleason v. State (Cr. App.) 153 S. W. 881.

Questions as to witnesses' knowledge of accused's abortion, etc., held objectionable as leading. Harrison v. State (Cr. App.) 191 S. W. 548.

A question which does not suggest the answer, although it may be answered "Yes" or "No,"" Marston v. State (Cr. App.) 193 S. W. 226.

Permitting leading questions is within sound discretion of the trial court, and, in the absence of a showing of abuse of discretion, is no ground for reversal on appeal. Id.

Leading questions are proper where it is difficult for the witness to understand the English language. Id.

A witness having testified that when defendant was arrested he had blood on his clothes and that he saw defendant the night before the arrest in a saloon lighted with three lamps, it was not leading to ask if the blood found on him when arrested was on him when he was in the saloon. Id.

A witness having testified that he was within about three feet of defendants in a building lighted with electric lights, a question whether he observed any blood on either of them was not leading. Id.

Asking a witness to state the cause of a shed falling and how it was caused to fall, held not leading. Southern Pac. Co. v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 471.

8. — Children and weak-minded or ignorant persons.—In a prosecution for rape on a girl under 15 years of age, leading questions eliciting details held properly admitted, where she was slow to understand questions otherwise put. Graham v. State, 73 Cr. R. 28, 163 S. W. 726.

In trial for rape of accused's daughter, it was not error to permit the prosecutor to ask other children of accused leading questions and call their attention to their written and signed testimony before the grand jury and also before the county attorney; witnesses being hostile to the state. Marion v. State (Cr. App.) 190 S. W. 499.

9. — Unwilling or hostile witnesses.—Where prosecutrix in rape trial was a hostile and unwilling witness for state, it was proper to allow state to lead her. Carter v. State (Cr. App.) 181 S. W. 472; Jones v. State, 72 Cr. R. 504, 163 S. W. 51; Atkinson v. State (Cr. App.) 182 S. W. 1999.

10. Repetition of questions.—In a prosecution for rape on a girl under 15 years of age, where a witness had testified fully as to his knowledge of the general understanding in the family that prosecutrix would be 17 her next birthday, a further question to him as to the rumor as to her age held properly excluded as a repetition. Magee v. State, 168 S. W. 96, 74 Cr. R. 296.
Court properly refused to permit defendant to propound questions involving matters as to which the witness had already testified. De Arman v. State (Cr. App.) 189 S. W. 145.

11. Examination by court.—It is not error for the court to propound questions to witnesses in order to obtain a clearer idea of the merits. Davis v. State, 70 Cr. R. 563, 153 S. W. 283.

13. Responsiveness of answer.—An answer to a question asked a party as to what he thought was being done, or as to what he thought was being said, is responsive. In re Meyer (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 194.

Testimony not responsive to the questions should be excluded. Hambleton v. Southwest Texas Baptist Hospital (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 574.

That an answer is not responsive to the question is not ground for its exclusion. If it is competent evidence in the case. Jones v. State, 76 Cr. R. 398, 174 S. W. 1071.

19. Refreshing memory—Memoranda or other writings which may be used.—In a prosecution of a private banker for receiving deposits while insolvent, the cashier having testified that he kept the books and that they were correct, it was proper for him to testify from the books the amount, character, and value of the bank's resources and liabilities when it ceased business. Brown v. State, 71 Cr. R. 553, 162 S. W. 339.

A witness who made a memorandum from a tab sheet of the time that the burglary was called to his attention as an officer could refer to such memorandum to refresh his recollection as to the date of the burglary. Daly v. State, 72 Cr. R. 531, 162 S. W. 1153.

In an action for an injunction by a lessor under a verbal lease, the lessor's written promise to make a written lease held admissible as a memorandum to refresh the memory of the witness who had drawn it, Edwards v. Old Settlers' Ass'n (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 423.

A school teacher who testified that she always made a correct record of the age of the children in her room as furnished by them, but that she had no independent recollection of children, could testify to the age of the child by referring to the memorandum made by her. Sorell v. State, 167 S. W. 356, 74 Cr. R. 100.

Prosecuting attorney, in examining a witness, held properly permitted to read to him his testimony on preliminary hearing to refresh his memory. Perryman v. State, 76 Cr. R. 174, 178 S. W. 1185.

The memory of a witness may be refreshed by propounding questions to her and exhibiting to her her testimony given at the coroner's inquest. Taylor v. State (Cr. App.) 173 S. W. 112.

In an action against a commission merchant and his surety for the proceeds of a shipment of cattle, the surety could not complain that the merchant was allowed to examine an account of sales where the merchant, after his memory was refreshed, testified to the sales. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Harper (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1156.

One who loaded cars with goods sold and shipped, and furnished the memorandum thereof to the bookkeeper, may refresh his memory from a statement drawn from the books, and testify to its correctness. Cobb v. Riley (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 517.

21. Admissibility of writing as evidence.—Where plaintiff used copies of invoices received from wholesale dealers after a fire to refresh his memory in testifying as to the different items of the stock of goods, the invoices were properly admitted in evidence to assist the jury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 442.

22. Testimony from memoranda or other writings.—A witness testifying as to property destroyed may propound a written copy of the list attached to the proof of loss as a correct list of the property in the building burned. Hanover Fire Ins. Co. of New York v. Huff (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 465.

6. Right to cross-examine and re-examine in general.—The right of cross-examination is a valuable one, and its denial upon a material matter is reversible error. Rich v. Park (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 184.

28. Scope and extent of cross-examination in general.—Great latitude is allowed in cross-examination of witnesses, and the admissibility of such examination is not to be determined by its weight or probative force, but by its competency. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Yantis (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 969; Christian v. State, 71 Cr. R. 566, 161 S. W. 101.

It is not error for the court to sustain an objection on cross-examination to a question whether witness came from the same community as another, when he had testified that he had known the other for 15 years, and the offer was to show he had not been in the community that long and had not known the other before. Creech v. State, 70 Cr. R. 299, 158 S. W. 277.

One who testified that a person standing near a church could not fire a gun and hit a certain post held properly asked, on cross-examination, if it was infrequent in shooting a shotgun for the course of a stray shot to take an angle that is unaccounted for, to which witness answered that several shots usually go a considerable distance from the main body. Fox v. State, 71 Cr. R. 318, 158 S. W. 1141.

When an officer was attempting to show that the killing was a sudden affair, without any pre-existing unfriendly feeling between accused and his family and decedent, the state could show on her cross-examination that she did not inquire as to dein the user's request. The document appears to be a legal text, possibly a case analysis or a collection of case summaries, discussing various scenarios involving witness testimonies and permitted or prohibited cross-examination. The text seems to be a compilation of legal precedents from different courts and jurisdictions, covering various aspects of evidence law, such as the introduction of evidence, the admissibility of self-defense testimony, and the admissibility of evidence involving prohibited matters.

to the husband of prosecutrix and had received a fourth thereof, but there was no agreement in part of the damages received by prosecutrix in a civil action, a question whether he thought he was entitled to any part of such damages was properly excluded. Borge v. State, 167 S. W. 63, 73 Cr. R. 506.

A question on cross-examination as to how many persons witness had run over held calculated to prejudice the jury against the woman another was a careful driver. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Loyd (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 721.

31. Cross-examination as to writings.—In a prosecution for bigamy, where letters from defendant to the first alleged wife were not introduced, but where her mother was permitted to testify that she had received them, defendant had the right to cross-examine her as to how she knew the letters were written by him. Harris v. State, 72 Cr. R. 117, 161 S. W. 125.

32. Cross-examination of witness to character of party.—Reputation witnesses may be asked on cross-examination as to the source of their knowledge. Clark v. Hendricks (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 57.

Where defendant was entitled to show specific communicated acts of violence on defendant's part, the state, on cross-examination, was entitled to show that they were justified. Bullock v. State, 73 Cr. R. 410, 165 S. W. 196.

Where defendant in homicide case put his reputation as a moral man in issue and called witnesses to prove it, cross-examination asking if, in forming their opinion of defendant's reputation, they had considered a report that he was unduly intimate with Mexican women, was permissible. Duhig v. State (Cr. App.) 190 S. W. 252.

It was not error to permit plaintiff to ask leading questions of defendant on cross-examination. Day v. Hunnicutt (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 134.

34. Questions on cross-examination.—Leading questions.—The allowance of leading questions is not improper in cross-examination of a witness. Finch v. State, 71 Cr. R. 235, 168 S. W. 510.

Exclusion of leading and suggestive question on cross-examination relative to matter not covered by direct examination held not error, especially where the witness did testify in effect that he did not know. Englefield v. International & G. N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1033.

Where a witness is called for plaintiff, defendant may propound leading questions to him in cross-examination, though the witness was not examined in chief as to the matter made the subject of the questions. Zavala Land & Water Co. v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 23.

37. Repetition of questions and questions calling for repetition of answers.—Cross-examination of witness held properly excluded, where she had already fully testified. Abernathy v. State, 76 Cr. R. 252, 174 S. W. 358.

Where witness had testified in detail on cross-examination as to how she came in possession of the child and why she kept him, exclusion of defendant's question as to her right to its custody was not error. Carrol v. State (Cr. App.) 178 S. W. 331.

The trial court has a wide discretion over the examination of witnesses, and may restrict unnecessary repetition in cross-examination. Grimes v. State (Cr. App.) 178 S. W. 533.

39. Redirect examination.—Where it was sought to show, on cross-examination of a state's witness, that he testified at the examining trial and had been induced by another to testify as he did at trial, it was not error to permit him to state on redirect that his testimony at the trial was true. Gomez v. State, 75 Cr. R. 239, 170 S. W. 711.

In a personal injury action, testimony as to whether plaintiff would consent to a physical examination held proper on redirect examination. Missouri, K. & G. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Webb (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 728.

Question on redirect examination of witness, who claimed that he, and not accused, assaulted the prosecuting witness, as to whether he had ever testified on oath about this, held immaterial, in view of his cross-examination. Vinson v. State (Cr. App.) 179 S. W. 574.

Where sheriff, testifying to bad reputation of defendant's house, stated on cross-examination he could not remember who complained about it, question on redirect examination as to whether certain persons complained held properly permitted to aid recollection. Bennett v. State (Cr. App.) 181 S. W. 197.

40. Explanation of testimony.—Where a witness for the state was asked on cross-examination whether he did not tell accused's sister that he had done her brother wrong, and that he would get out of the way for $10, he was properly permitted on redirect examination to tell what did occur. Smith v. State, 71 Cr. R. 661, 160 S. W. 1184.

Where a witness to an assault testified on cross-examination that he had not interfered or promptly reported the offense, he was properly permitted on redirect to state the reason therefor. Hooper v. State, 72 Cr. R. 82, 160 S. W. 1187.

Where the defense had attempted to show in cross-examination of a witness for the prosecution that the witness was a spotter or detective, the state on redirect examination can show that the witness was a bonded deputy sheriff. Clark v. State, 169 S. W. 595, 74 Cr. R. 464.

Where witness, testifying about bad reputation of defendant's alleged disorderly house, was asked on cross-examination about signing local option petition, question on redirect examination as to why he signed it held proper. Bennett v. State (Cr. App.) 181 S. W. 197.

In a prosecution for homicide where defendant, on cross-examination, had introduced testimony that one of state's witnesses had complained against him at the place at which he was working, it was not error to permit the state, on redirect examination, to explain to the witness the reasons for his complaint. Satterwhite v. State (Cr. App.) 181 S. W. 445.

In a prosecution for manslaughter, where defendant, cross-examining deceased's widow, proved by her that she ran a hotel after her husband's death, and sought to have the impression on the jury that her character was not good, the widow's testimony that she kept her no property and she ran the hotel to make a living, was admissible. Mansell v. State (Cr. App.) 182 S. W. 1137.

41. New matter on cross-examination.—Where, in a prosecution for homicide claimed to have been committed because of a difference regarding a debt, accused attempted to prove on cross-examining his daughter as a witness that the debt had been paid, the state could show, on redirect examination, what she knew concerning the transaction of her own knowledge. Ward v. State, 70 Cr. R. 393, 159 S. W. 272.

Where, in a perjury case, defendant, in questioning a state's witness as to having appeared against a relative of his in the commissioners' court, elicited the fact that other citizens had also appeared for the same purpose, it was not error to permit the state's attorney on redirect to ask about these other citizens. Poulter v. State, 72 Cr. R. 140, 161 S. W. 476.

In a prosecution for incest, where the defense, in cross-examining the prosecuting witness, attempted to show that her statement that the act occurred while the parties were standing and that conception resulted was unreasonable, it was proper for the state to show on redirect examination that defendant and witness had previously intercourse on numerous occasions. Vickers v. State, 75 Cr. R. 12, 165 S. W. 699.

42. Repetition of testimony on direct or cross-examination.—Telephone conversation between plaintiff's attorney and defendant's president, already covered on direct examination, held properly excluded on redirect. Magnolia Motor Sales Corp. v. Charles (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 563.

46. Answer tending to subject witness to criminal prosecution.—See C. C. P. art. 4, and notes.

In general, a witness may decline to answer any question which tends either directly to criminate him, or which may indirectly produce such result. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 658.

The privilege of refusing to answer questions on the ground that it would tend to incriminate the witness cannot be put forward for the purpose of concealing facts in the interest of some third person.

The rule that a person cannot be compelled to give incriminating testimony against himself applies, not only to criminal cases, but to civil cases. Sovereign Camp of Woodmen of the World v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 167.

49. Witness of privilege.—A witness in a civil case, to be relieved from answering a question, on the ground that it will incriminate her, must swear that it will do so. Campbell v. Peacock (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 774.

50. Persons entitled to claim privilege.—Where a witness unequivocally stated that to answer statements might incriminate him, the court properly refused to compel him to answer such questions, though on cross-examination he became confused as to the incrimination. Sovereign Camp of Woodmen of the World v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 167.

II. Credibility of Witnesses

52. Credibility of witnesses in general.—An instruction that if the prosecuting witness had been impeached on a material issue in the case, his testimony could not be considered for any purpose was erroneous and properly refused. Brown v. State, 72 Cr. R. 33, 160 S. W. 374.

It would not discredit the testimony given at the trial by a state's witness that he was not called as a witness at the examining trial. White v. State, 76 Cr. R. 612, 177 S. W. 93.

53. Testimony of party.—The jury need not believe the testimony of an interested witness, though it is not contradicted; especially where it might appear unreasonable. Gannison v. Gannison (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1159.

The testimony of a party to an action is not binding on the jury, where there are circumstances contradicting the testimony. Groves v. Whittenberg (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 389.

The jury are not bound to accept the testimony of the parties to the cause. A. J. Birdsong & Son v. Allen (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 1177.

In determining whether defendant's possession of land was under a claim of right or title, court held at liberty to disregard defendant's testimony, he being an interested witness. Nunez v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 829.

In buyer's action for damages from seller's false representations as to a thrasher, buyer's contradicted evidence that he had written and mailed letter notifying of defects held sufficient to show that notice had been given the seller. Rumely Products Co. v. Moss (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1084.

That one party to a contract testified to by the other party testified that the contract was not made, did not conclusively show that the contract was lacking in mutuality. O'Neil v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 133.

In an action between partners for an accounting, the court could refuse credence to defendant's statement, totally uncorroborated, that he made a disbursement. Navarro v. Luna (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 925.

In trespass to try title, the unsupported testimony of a defendant was legally sufficient to sustain a verdict that the tract of land involved part of a larger tract conveyed to defendant and by him, with the exception of the tract in litigation conveyed to plaintiffs, did not belong, by way of a trust agreement, to plaintiffs under their agreement with defendant. Dewees v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 396.
In an action on a note and to foreclose a deed of trust, where the defendants claimed a homestead exemption as part of the land, and the trial judge was not bound to believe their statements. Bogart v. Cowboy State Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 678.

In an action for damages for misrepresentations in effecting a sale of land, finding by the jury as to the actual value of the land held warranted under the evidence, though not in accordance with the exact estimates of the parties. Zavala Land & Water Co. v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 523.

54. Testimony of interested persons.—Testimony of an interested witness cannot be disregarded merely because he is interested when there is nothing in his testimony or that of any other witness or any act or physical fact casting suspicion on its truthfulness. Malone v. National Bank of Commerce of Kansas City, Mo. (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 369.

The credibility of the maker of a note signing the name of a third person, on the issue whether the third person was liable as maker or surety, is unaffected by his knowledge of the law. Connor v. Uvalde Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 175.

III. Impeachment and Corroboration of Witnesses

55. Grounds of impeachment in general.—Accused, on the cross-examination of a witness, may show any fact affecting his credibility. Burge v. State, 167 S. W. 63, 73 Cr. R. 566.

If the witness testified as to a statement of prosecutrix that she was over 17 at the time of an alleged rape, and that such statement had been made in the summer time, it was proper for the state on cross-examination to show that the witness had been in Oregon that summer. Magree v. State, 185 S. W. 55, 74 S. Wr. 50.

An objection to a question to a witness as to why he resigned the office of justice of the peace held properly sustained. Echols v. State, 76 Cr. R. 369, 170 S. W. 786.

The state held entitled to show by one of defendant's witnesses that he had not disclosed the existing officer, but had first told the defendant's attorneys, who had been his own attorney, and to ask him whether he had been indicted for a felony. Latham v. State, 75 Cr. R. 675, 172 S. W. 797.

Evidence that plaintiff had not set up the claim before suit held admissible to impeach plaintiff as showing fabrication of the claim. Bailey v. Look (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1010.

In prosecution for slander for asserting sexual relations, held proper to exclude a question to prosecuting witness on cross-examination as to whether she would submit to medical examination. Robison v. State (Cr. App.) 179 S. W. 1157.

Testimony that deceased's wife, who was an important witness for the defense, did not visit her husband's body for some time after his murder, is admissible. Baker v. State (Cr. App.) 187 S. W. 349.

In prosecution for murder, evidence that one of accused's witnesses failed to attend his wife's funeral is inadmissible. Stanley v. State (Cr. App.) 193 S. W. 151.

56. Corroboration of unimpeached and uncontradicted witness.—Where a state's witness testified as to the furniture in a room where a crime was committed, it was permissible for the state to show in corroboration by officers that they examined the room, and that there was a table and bed therein, as testified to by the witness. Wilson v. State, 70 Cr. R. 657, 153 S. W. 515.

Where the defendant claimed that he did not intend not to live with his wife until after his father informed him that she had stated she was going to send him to the penitentiary, it was proper for the father to testify that he so informed his son. Qualls v. State, 71 Cr. R. 67, 158 S. W. 539.

In a prosecution for violating the local option law, where the prosecuting witness, who testified to the unlawful sale, was not impeached by proof of contradictory statements, evidence of his statements to third persons that he had bought alcohol from accused was inadmissible. Walker v. State, 72 Cr. R. 534, 163 S. W. 71.

It is error to admit evidence sustaining a witness' reputation, if such witness has not been impeached. Wells Fargo & Co. v. Benjamin (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 120.

Evidence of good reputation of prosecuting witness held inadmissible, where such reputation had not been attacked. Soils v. State, 76 Cr. R. 230, 174 S. W. 343.

Where accused took the stand and contradicted the prosecutrix, he cannot, his reputation for veracity not having been attacked, show that he told other witnesses of statements by the prosecutrix which tended to corroborate his testimony. Hart v. State, 76 Cr. R. 335, 175 S. W. 436.

In a prosecution for murder, cross-examination of a witness for the state held not an impeachment justifying the introduction of evidence at the inquest in corroboration. Satterwhite v. State (Cr. App.) 177 S. W. 859.

The state cannot introduce testimony of the general reputation for truth of its witness, merely because the testimony of defendant's witnesses directly conflicts with his. Clay v. State (Cr. App.) 180 S. W. 277.

In trial for murder, where testimony of defendant's impeaching witness was shaken on cross-examination, although not impeached, the defendant could not introduce testimony in corroboration of such witness. Ingram v. State (Cr. App.) 182 S. W. 290.

In a prosecution for murder, the testimony of a witness that neither of her daughters, and also witnesses, had told her after a former trial that they intended to change their statements because they could not see the defendant imprisoned, was inadmissible. Carter v. State (Cr. App.) 183 S. W. 851.

Where accused denied being left at home on the day of the offense, and a witness who testified that he had visited a neighbor he saw and conversed with accused was not impeached, the state cannot prove that the witness visited the neighbor. Taylor v. State (Cr. App.) 184 S. W. 224.
Art. 3687 (Rule 1)  EVIDENCE

(Telease 53

In action for injuries permitting physician, witness for plaintiff, to testify that he had been consulted for similar railroad accidents, was error. Kansas City, M. & O.

57. Right to impeach witness in general.—See C. C. P. arts. 788-795, and notes.

It is not error to permit impeachment of witnesses for defendant in a prosecution

Any witness cannot be impeached on an immaterial matter. Beaumont, S. L. & W.

58. Right to impeach one's own witness.—See C. C. P. art. 815, and notes.

62. Right to impeach impeaching witness.—Where witnesses for accused, who filed a plea for suspended sentence, testified that accused's reputation for truth, veracity, and honesty, and as a law-abiding citizen was good, the state on cross-examination could ask them whether they had not heard of his being charged with violations of law, though such violations did not involve moral turpitude. Williamson v. State, 167 S. W.
386, 74 Cr. R. 280.

63. Impeachment of capacity of witness.—The state may, to impeach the creditibility of a witness for the defense, establish by cross-examination that the witness had been adjudged insane, and that said judgment had never been set aside. Mason v. State, 168 S. W. 115, 74 Cr. R. 256.

64. Impeachment of knowledge or recollection of witness.—Where, in an action involving a disputed boundary, a witness for defendant testified that he went with the county surveyor, as to office required, was permissible. Id.

Where a witness had testified that defendant was not present on date false note was signed, exhibition to witness, on cross-examination, of various notes and documents not offered in his behalf, which he had written, and questions concerning his recollection of their dates held not improper. Ferguson v. State (Cr. App.)
187 S. W. 476.

Where defendant's character witness testified that he had never heard anything charged against defendant, it was proper to cross-examine him as to whether he was present when defendant was tried for perjury. Cox v. State (Cr. App.) 194 S. W. 138.

65. Cross-examination to test reliability of witness.—To test the credibility of one who had testified that deceased's reputation for chastity was good, the question, to him, on cross-examination, if it was not common report that deceased was keeping certain women, was proper. Davis v. State, 72 Cr. R. 49, 163 S. W. 442.

66. Cross-examination to discredit witness or disparage testimony in general.—
Where witnesses had testified that accused's reputation for truth was good, the state could show, on cross-examination, that such witnesses had heard that accused had testified in a trial that he had been on a certain train and witnessed a certain accident, and that three men who were on the train swore that accused was not there. Fox v.
State, 71 Cr. R. 318, 158 S. W. 1141.

Great latitude is allowed on cross-examination, and a witness may be asked anything which may have a tendency to affect his credibility. Curry v. State, 72 Cr. R. 463, 162 S. W. 551.

Where an ex-sheriff testified for defendant that prosecutrix had told him that defendant was not guilty, cross-examination as to whether he informed the prosecutor of his investigation, was permissible. Id.

Where a witness for accused stated that he was a church clerk, the state is entitled on cross-examination to ask him whether he was removed from that office and expeled from the church because of his attitude toward the prosecutrix and her family. Id.

In a prosecution for engaging in the business of selling intoxicating liquor, it was not error to exclude a question by accused as to whether the state's witness had bought whisky from any other person than accused, though asked for purposes of impeach-

In an action for injuries at a railroad crossing, statement of a witness, made immediately after accident, that he would be likely to lose his job for making a flying switch, held proper matter for cross-examination, as affecting weight to be given his direct testimony that such switches had been customary since he had been in the yard.

Defendant justifying on ground deceased had ruined his sister, where defendant introduced brother to show deceased had been guilty, court properly permitted state to draw from such brother, on cross-examination, statement that he and defendant had discussed, before the killing, alleged improper relations between another brother and their

In a prosecution for illegally selling liquor, where a witness for the state testified that he had seen whisky in defendant's room on only one occasion, it was proper cross-examination to elicit the admission that such witness on another occasion subsequent to the offense charged had seen liquor in defendant's room. Matthews v. State (Cr.
App.) 189 S. W. 491.

Permitting cross-examination, "Don't you know that if you, * * * as inspector of the track, * * * swore they were in bad condition, you would lose your job?", held not an abuse of court's discretion. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Johnson (Cr. App.) 193 S. W. 725.

67. Competency of impeaching evidence in general.—Where defendant relied on re-cipt, which plaintiff claimed was without consideration, photographic copy of a forged receipt, on which defendant at one time relied, held properly admitted, as showing attempt by defendant to fabricate evidence. Richards v. Osborne (Civ. App.) 164 S.
W. 392.

810
Where defendants relied on a receipt, and there was evidence that one of them at one time relied on a receipt claimed to be forged, bank checks bearing an admitted signature held admissible on the question of forgery. Id.

Where a party testified that a witness had made a statement to him, the testimony of a third person that in conversation with him the witness had made a contrary statement was inadmissible as impeaching the testimony of the witness. Richard Cocke & Co. v. New Era Gravel & Development Co. (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 968.

In an action on stock subscriptions, evidence held admissible to impeach a witness' credibility. Dick v. (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 184.

In a prosecution for homicide it was not error to refuse defendant permission to prove that the wife of a state's witness had sought to employ defendant's attorney to bring suit for divorce against the witness, such testimony being inadmissible to impeach the witness or for any other purpose. Satterwhite v. State (Cr. App.) 181 S. W. 462.

In a prosecution for murder, the fact that a witness after testifying was seen talking to his mother and sister in a "suspicious attitude," without showing something that was said or done that would reflect on his testimony, was inadmissible to impeach the testimony of the witness. Carter v. State (Cr. App.) 183 S. W. 881.

In a prosecution for assault to rape, where only prosecutrix, who was about 14, and her younger brothers and sisters, testified, evidence of her father's attempt to extort money as compensation from accused's father for dismissing prosecution held admissible; the girl's father having control of all the children. Odel v. State (Cr. App.) 184 S. W. 208.

Any evidence tending to affect credibility of witness is relevant and competent, and hearsay evidence affecting credibility is admissible if otherwise competent. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Yantis (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 969.

A witness may not be impeached by proof that his general reputation was that of a professional gambler, and that he gambled every time he was in town and had money. Mares v. State, 71 Cr. R. 803, 158 S. W. 1130.

Where, in a prosecution for seduction, the district attorney asked one of defendant's witnesses if he had not left another county because he carried a pistol, and if he had not so stated to a third party, it was error to permit the attorney to call such third party to contradict the witness; such evidence not being admissible for impeachment. Capshaw v. State, 166 S. W. 737, 73 Cr. R. 609.

Exclusion of evidence to show the character of state's witness, that she had been divorced for connection with other men, is not error. White v. State, 76 Cr. R. 612, 177 S. W. 93.

Where accused attacked a witness by evidence of statements that he was going to volunteer to testify, though he knew nothing of the case, the witness might be corroborated by evidence that his name was furnished to the prosecution by another. McCue v. State, 75 Cr. R. 137, 170 S. W. 289.

Where accused sought to show that a state's witness was taking an active interest in the prosecution, the court could permit the state to show the reason of the witness' interest. Ward v. State (Cr. App.) 179 S. W. 1175.

97. Evidence to show want of interest or freedom from bias.—Where accused, in cross-examining the state's witness, endeavored to show that he was not placed under the rule merely that he might hear the other testimony before he testified, and attempted to show bias, the witness was properly permitted to testify that, while he was interested in the case, he did not feel sufficiently interested to testify falsely. Ward v. State, 70 Cr. R. 393, 159 S. W. 272.
Where the state on the cross-examination of a witness for accused showed that the witness was biased in favor of the accused, accused was permitted to show the witness and decedent supported the same candidate at an election. Edwards v. State, 75 Cr. R. 647, 172 S. W. 227.

98. Inconsistency of statements as ground of impeachment.—In a prosecution for assault with intent to rape step-daughter, defendant's statement that prosecutrix on the day of the alleged offense had not come to him and been asked by her if defendant had not ruined her and that witness had not told S. of the assault shortly thereafter, S. was properly permitted to testify to the contrary; the court having instructed that the evidence could be considered only as bearing on the mother's credibility. Grimes v. State, 71 Cr. R. 614, 160 S. W. 659.

In a prosecution for procuring an abortion where the mother of the girl testified for the defense, testimony as to her contradictory statements to witnesses held admissible as affecting her credibility. Link v. State, 72 Cr. R. 92, 164 S. W. 297.

In a prosecution for procuring an abortion, testimony of the mother of the girl that her husband, the girl's stepfather, had been arrested as an accomplice after she had made certain statements to the prosecution, and subsequent to her testimony at the trial to a different state of facts, held admissible as tending to show her interest, feeling and bias. Id.

A witness may be impeached by proof of statements in conflict with his testimony, by laying a proper foundation, and by calling as witnesses the persons to whom the conflicting statements were made. Cyrus v. State, 169 S. W. 679, 74 Cr. R. 437.

If a witness is present, and, though under no duty to speak, the facts discussed were of such a nature and the circumstances such that he would, in the natural order of things, have mentioned facts within his knowledge, his failure to do so bears sufficiently on the question of his veracity to entitle it to admission. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Yantis (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 969.

A witness may be impeached on laying the proper predicate by proving statements by him in conflict with his testimony. Longoria v. State (Cr. App.) 188 S. W. 988.

The state may impeach defendant's witness by proving that she had made declarations prior to her testimony different from what she made along the same line at another time. Popp v. State (Cr. App.) 190 S. W. 479.

In action to rescind purchase price of land, testimony of defendant's conversation with witness held admissible as contradictory of defendant's testimony. Barbian v. Grant (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 785.

99. — Nature of former statement in general.—A grantee having denied assuming a certain debt and also any knowledge of its existence, evidence that, after the conveyance and before interest payments on the state debt had matured, he stated to witness that it would soon be time for him to "dig up" the interest money due the state was admissible. Alston v. Fersan (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1465.

Where the state's witness testified that an unlawful sale of intoxicants was made at one time, he may be cross-examined as to contradictory statements of the time of sale made out of court. Wade v. State, 75 Cr. R. 531, 171 S. W. 713.

In a murder trial, evidence in rebuttal of statements purporting to have been made by wife of deceased as to his character held admissible. Barnett v. State, 76 Cr. R. 555, 176 S. W. 580.

Where one of accused's witnesses who confessed to participating in the robbery stated that accused was not a participant, he may be contradicted by proof of contradictory statement, although such evidence is limited to the contradiction. Collins v. State (Cr. App.) 178 S. W. 345.

In a prosecution for violation of local option law, evidence for defendant to support his statement that deputy sheriff had said that he found only one whisky case when he searched defendant's house held admissible on the weight to be given the deputy's testimony. Bryson v. State (Cr. App.) 185 S. W. 842.

Where defendant's witness testified that she believed the deceased was unconscious when she saw defendant inflict injury on defendant, testimony by the witness to the physician who attended deceased, prior to so testifying, were admissible to impeach her. Thompson v. State (Cr. App.) 187 S. W. 204.

In prosecution for murder, testimony of state's witnesses as to statements of defendants' witness at the time wife of one of defendants was lying dead, to the effect that defendant had had her killed, held admissible to impeach defendants' witness. Id.

Declarations by defendant subsequent to his claimed transfer of a note to his wife, held admissible to contradict his testimony showing a gift. Earhart v. Agnew (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1146.

101. — Written statements or instruments.—Where, in an action to cancel a contract for the sale of land, one of defendant's witnesses testified on cross-examination that he thought defendant's officers were good men, plaintiff could not contradict him by introducing a letter, written by the witness, in which he referred to defendant's officers as a gang of cut-throats. South Texas Mortgage Co. v. Dozier (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1051.

In an action for damages and for an injunction against breach of a contract for the sale of a livery business and its good will, in which defendant testified that a certain building he intended to buy was to be used as a livery stable held admissible as impeaching evidence. Kennedy v. Winfrey (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1018.

When a surveyor had introduced a map of the locus in quo in a boundary line dispute, showing the nonexistence of a set-off as claimed by plaintiff, other maps showing such locus, signed by the witness, but made by him from field notes of others in his enploy; were admissible for impeachment. National Biscuit Co. v. Block (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 392.

Where, on the trial of accused for the murder of his son-in-law, his daughter, de­ cendant's wife, testified to acts of cruelty by decedent, and that prior to the homicide she had informed accused thereof, a letter written by her to decedent, two days before the homicide, in which she disclosed affection for him and a desire to live with him, was admissible to impeach her. Roberts v. State, 158 S. W. 100, 74 Cr. R. 150.

Declarations in a petition not made with plaintiff's knowledge, authority, or acquiences, in suits against other persons, are not admissible to impeach plaintiff's testi­

Census report signed by witness before motive to swear falsely arose, held admissible to impeach her testimony concerning the ages of her children. Hopkins v. State (Cr.
App.) 180 S. W. 1094.

It was proper for the state to introduce for impeaching purposes a written statement of a witness which contradicted some of his testimony on the trial; the proper predicate having been laid. Porter v. State (Cr. App.) 190 S. W. 159.

File marks, excerpts, etc., of plaintiff's former pleadings, containing no admission or declaration against his interest or contradicting anything to which he has testified, are not competent for purposes of impeachment. Texas City Transp. Co. v. Winters (Civ.
App.) 193 S. W. 366.

Written statement identified and proved to have been made by witness contrary to his testimony on trial is admissible to impeach him, though undated and unsigned.

102. — Former testimony of witness.—A witness may be impeached by proof of his statements before the grand jury in conflict with his testimony given on the trial.
Link v. State, 73 Cr. R. 82, 164 S. W. 987; Perrett v. State, 73 Cr. R. 215, 162 S. W. 892.

Where a witness for plaintiff deposed that he had heard a conversation between plaintiff and defendant as to which defendant would make him out a deed for which, his former deposition that he had heard "the latter part" of the conversation held not to impeach

In prosecution for murder, impeachment of defendant's witnesses by proving their inconsistent testimony at coroner's inquest and former trial held proper, although de­ defendant had not been present at the inquest. Bolden v. State (Cr. App.) 178 S. W. 533.

In an action by shippers of live stock for delay in transit, testimony of a plaintiff, on cross-examination as to his testimony in another action, tending to show that it would take a longer time to make a shipment from the shipping point to destination than was testified to by him, was admissible. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Landa & Storey
(Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 384.

In trial for seduction, where testimony of witness for defendant tended to show that prosecutrix was not a virtuous and chaste female, it was proper to allow testimony showing his contrary statements on the former trial. Gleason v. State (Cr. App.) 183 S. W. 831.

Written statement taken at examining trial could be used to impeach witness stating what he testified to at such trial. De Arman v. State (Cr. App.) 189 S. W. 145.

104. — Statements by others in presence or with the sanction of witness.—A letter by claimant's attorney, stating the facts as different from those testified to by claimant at the trial, is inadmissible to impeach claimant's testimony. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v.
Spann (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 608.

105. — Witnesses who may be impeached by inconsistent statements.—A party cannot impeach a witness called by him by showing statements made by the witness contrary to his testimony where there is no claim that the witness misled or deceived the party. Irrelevant, (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 716.

Plaintiff did not have right to impeach his own witness by showing inconsistent statements, or to lay a predicate for his impeachment, where plaintiff was not sur­

106. — Irrelevant, collateral or immaterial matters.—Where a witness is cross­ examined on collateral matters, his answer cannot be subsequently contradicted by the

It is proper to cross-examine a witness as to collateral and immaterial matters for the purpose of contradicting him by other evidence, if such collateral matters pertain to motive, interest, or animus of a witness. Id.

A witness cannot be impeached on an immaterial issue. Evans v. State, 76 Cr. R.
66, 172 S. W. 786.

109. — Laying foundation for proof of inconsistent statements.—Ordinarily no witness can be impeached by showing that he has made a statement contrary to his testimony without first examining him on the subject and giving him an opportunity to deny or explain. Curry v. State, 72 Cr. R. 463, 163 S. W. 551.

On cross-examination of a witness for the defendant, the state could ask him, for impeachment purposes, whether, on the day following the alleged theft, he had made a written statement to the city attorney as to what occurred at the scene of the theft.

Permitting the county attorney, on cross-examination to lay a predicate for impeachment, to ask a witness for defendant whether he did not make certain statements before the grand jury held not error. Id.

To impeach a witness by proof of a contradictory statement it is necessary to call the attention of the witness to the statement. Parker v. Schrimsher (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1045.

Prosecutrix cannot be impeached by proof of inconsistent statements out of court unless proper foundation is laid. Walton v. State (Cr. App.) 178 S. W. 355.

SUPP.VERN.S.CIV.ST.TEX.—52
110. Admission or denial by witness of making of inconsistent statements.—A witness who admits that he had made a contradictory statement, while testifying on a former trial may not be impeached by introducing the former statement. Parker v. Schrimsher (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 105.

In a prosecution for homicide, a witness cannot be compelled to say what her testimony was at a prior trial, where she states that she does not remember. Taylor v. State (Cr. App.) 180 S. W. 242.

111. Competency of evidence of inconsistent statements in general.—Testimony as to statements made by a witness, offered to impeach his testimony, is not objectionable hearsay. Taylor & F. Spann v. Co. v. Spann (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 606. Evidence, though hearsay, showing failure of a witness to disclose facts in discussion of accident in suit, cannot be excluded as hearsay, or irrelevant or immaterial, as it goes to the credibility of the witness. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Yantis ( Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 969.

112. Proof of written statements or instruments.—Proof that witness, sought to be impeached as to ages of children, signed census blank, held to authorize its introduction though the answers therein were written by the census taker. Hopkins v. State (Cr. App.) 185 S. W. 1094.

The admission in evidence of the only part of a letter written by defendant's bookkeeper to its president which was contradictory of her testimony was proper. E. Alkemeyer Co. v. McCardell (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 416.

In prosecution for murder, where a witness for defense testified at variance with statement made on the day of the murder, it was proper for the district attorney, who elicited such statement, to testify that he wrote it as nearly in the witness' language as he could, using narrative form, and that he explained the nature of the inquest before taking the statement, which witness signed after he read it to her. Short v. State (Cr. App.) 187 S. W. 965.

113. Proof of former testimony of witness.—A statement by a witness before the grand jury, reduced to writing, identified by the assistant county attorney and signed by the witness, was admissible to impeach the witness, where a proper predicate had been laid v. State, 75 Cr. R. 339, 171 S. W. 1104.

Testimony of a grand juror called to show discrepancies in the testimony of a witness for defendant, that he had translated her testimony to the grand jury, held not objectionable because he was not sworn in the grand jury to make such translation. Merkel v. State, 171 S. W. 725.

In a prosecution for murder, it is not necessary that testimony of a witness at a former trial, and used to impeach him, be reduced to writing or sworn to, if it can be otherwise proven. Taylor v. State (Cr. App.) 189 S. W. 242.

114. Rebuttal of evidence of inconsistent statements.—Where evidence of contradictory statements has been introduced to impeach a witness, his general good reputation may be proved, but merely laying a predicate for proof of such statements does not justify proof of good reputation. Thompson v. State, 187 S. W. 345, 74 Cr. R. 145.

115. Evidence as to statements consistent with testimony.—Accused having sought to impeach prosecutrix by proving contradictory statements, the state was authorized to support her testimony by proving a prior similar statement to a physician. Northcutt v. State, 70 Cr. R. 577, 155 S. W. 1004.

Where a witness for the state was impeached by proof of contradictory statements, the state could show that he had made subsequent statements, consistent with the testimony, prior to the alleged contradictory statements. Smith v. State, 75 Cr. R. 521, 165 S. W. 574.

Replies of a witness to inquiries concerning the accident held admissible in corroborating his credibility was attacked by showing inconsistent statements. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Petersilka (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 70.

Where the state impeaches a witness by proof of contradictory statements, he may prove statements similar to those on trial, made before the motive for falsification existed. Blackburn v. State (Cr. App.) 186 S. W. 268.

Where defendant sought to impeach the state's witness by showing that she had made a statement before trial different from that at the trial, the court properly permitted state to introduce her testimony at examining trial. Cozby v. State (Cr. App.) 189 S. W. 297.

Where on the third trial of a case one party impeached witness by showing that on a former trial he had testified to facts in conflict with his testimony on the third trial, it was error to permit for corroboration a showing that on another former trial he testified as he did on the third trial. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 739.

117. Explanation of inconsistency.—Evidence of plaintiff as to circumstances surrounding the giving of a statement and as to its falsity was admissible to rebut the statement given to contradict plaintiff's testimony. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Winkler (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 691.

119. Contradiction of testimony of witness.—The testimony of a witness on cross-examination that he is not a professional gambler is conclusive and cannot be contradicted by the cross-examiner. Mares v. State, 71 Cr. R. 303, 158 S. W. 1120.

If a witness denies anything showing a motive for testifying against one party, those facts may be shown by other witnesses and independent facts. Curry v. State, 72 Cr. R. 463, 162 S. W. 851.

Certain evidence held admissible to affect a witness' credibility. City of Comanche v. Hoff & Harris (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 138.

In an action for depreciation of value of real estate through railroad construction, evidence, in rebuttal of testimony by a witness who lived across the street from plain-
Right to contradict testimony of one's own witness.—A party in a civil action may contradict the testimony of his own witness even though he is not surprised thereby. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Vickery (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 792.

Where a witness testified that he borrowed a quart of whisky from accused and did not bar it, the county attorney, by cross-examining the witness as to his payment of a dollar to accused when he got the whisky, did not make the witness own his case, so as to prevent him from disproving the witness' statement that the dollar that he paid accused was not for the whisky, but to pay a debt for witness' brother. Howard v. State 78 Cr. R. 624, 158 S. W. 489.

Disproving facts testified to by witness.—In a prosecution for statutory rape, where accused introduced witnesses who testified that at the time the alleged act of intercourse was charged to have taken place on the banks of a branch, he was visible, and the prosecutrix was not present, it is proper for the state to introduce evidence that from the position of accused's witnesses, they could not have seen him. Hamilton v. State, 168 S. W. 536, 74 Cr. R. 219.

Where one of accused's witnesses testified that he did not sign a written statement concerning the crime and could not write his name, he may be impeached by contradictory evidence. Collins v. State (Cr. App.) 178 S. W. 345.

It is always competent for a party to contradict his adversary's witness by showing the facts to be otherwise than as testified to by him, and so discredit the witness. Briggs-Weaver Machinery Co. v. Pratt (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 732.

In a homicide case, where accused's witness testified to communicating statements by deceased's wife and daughter, the state may prove by deceased's wife and daughter that they made no such statements to the witness. Sanford v. State (Cr. App.) 185 S. W. 22.

Testimony subject to contradiction in general.—Where a physician testified by deposition as to the cause of plaintiff's injuries, held, that he could not be impeached by proof that his statement was false to his examination as to the cause of his injuries, Texas Traction Co. v. Pearse 202 S. W. 751.

In murder case, where court adjourned for witness who testified she was ill, her cross-examination not seriously assailing or questioning her testimony, refusal to permit defendant to introduce evidence to prove she was really sick was proper. De Arman v. State (Cr. App.) 159 S. W. 146.

Where a state's witness was asked on cross-examination by defendants' attorney whether or not she was a common prostitute, and she denied that, none of the officers could testify that her reputation was that of a common prostitute. Sapp v. State (Cr. App.) 190 S. W. 489.

If witness should deny alleged conspiracy between state's witnesses and officials, whereby such witnesses fabricated testimony against accused, it would form a subject of impeachment. Jones v. State (Cr. App.) 194 S. W. 1199.

Irrelevant, collateral or immaterial matters.—In an action for personal injuries, plaintiff's denial on cross-examination that he was allowed to resign from a third party's employ on account of his drinking related to a collateral matter, and could not be contradicted. Paris & G. N. R. Co. v. Flanlers (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 98.

Evidence held inadmissible to contradict a witness, her testimony not being pertinent to the issue involved. Houston B. & T. Ry. Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 68.

A state's witness in a murder case could not be impeached by disproof of the reason she gave for her admittedly bitter feeling toward defendant. Herrera v. State (Cr. App.) 180 S. W. 1097.

Competency of contradictory evidence.—Where, in a homicide case, a witness had testified that deceased had made a threat against defendant, and stating that he then had in his pocket a marriage license to marry defendant's divorced wife, evidence of the date of the issuance of the license was admissible as tending to discredit the witness. Kirklin v. State, 78 Cr. R. 251, 164 S. W. 1016.

In a prosecution for perjury, evidence of statements by a man with whom it was claimed the prosecutrix admitted improper relations, offered to contradict one of accused's witnesses, held inadmissible. Cox v. State, 76 Cr. R. 326, 174 S. W. 1067.

Where mother of prosecutrix, whose age was contested, testified concerning age of younger daughter, testimony that all of the girls went to school and were within the scholastic age at a certain time, held admissible to impeach the mother. Hopkins v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 1094.

In suit by the buyer of lands for false representations of the seller's agent as to the quantity, a map furnished the buyer by the agent was admissible to contradict the agent's testimony. Vaden v. Buck (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 318.

Predicate for contradiction of witness based on statement from deposition of one who also testified orally held proper and sufficient. Briggs-Weaver Machinery Co. v. Pratt (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 732.

In impeaching a witness by contradiction he should be asked the direct question and not to draw an inference from an inference. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 728.

Corroboration of impeached or contradicted witness.—Where a state's witness testified that she saw accused strike at decedent, and accused offered evidence that there was a hill between such witness' vision and the place of the difficulty, evidence was furnished to the state that witnesses were familiar with the location, and that one standing where witness was could plainly see decedent at the time. Ward v. State, 70 Cr. R. 296, 150 S. W. 272.
Where plaintiff's witness denied the authenticity of a written statement purporting to have been made by him, and contrary to his testimony, could testify that he was present, and that such witness did not make the purported statement. T. B. Allen & Co. v. Shook (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 1091.

Where a physician, who testified to examining plaintiff at the time of an injury while working for another railroad company, was contradicted by plaintiff, the contradiction was not such an impeachement as to authorize the introduction of the report by the physician as corroborative evidence. Ft. Worth Belt Ry. Co. v. Cabell (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1062.

That two witnesses contradicted each other, in that one testified that he was at an office at the time of the shooting, which another witness denied, would not entitle the witness stating the affirmative to show that he had made statements which corroborated his testimony, where he could show by other evidence that he was at the office at the time testified. Bain v. State, 166 S. W. 606, 73 Cr. R. 528.

In an action for fraudulent misrepresentations, where a witness for the plaintiff testified that defendant kept a false account book as to the receipts of the property which he leased to plaintiff, testimony that others had seen and examined a similar book, which contained false entries of the amounts, was admissible to corroborate the witness. Loftus v. Sturgis (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 14.

When one unlawful sale of intoxicating liquor contended that the prosecuting witness was so intoxicated as to have no recollection of the transaction, the prosecution may show that the witness, although somewhat under the influence of intoxicating liquor, was not drunk. Clark v. State, 169 S. W. 896, 74 Cr. R. 464.

Where accused's witnesses were contradicted, but not in any other way attacked, they could not be corroborated by proof of their general reputation for veracity. McCue v. State, 75 Cr. R. 137, 170 S. W. 289.

Where a witness is a stranger, and discrediting facts have been developed in his cross-examination, he may be corroborated by proof that his general reputation for truth and veracity is good. Id.

Where the age of prosecutrix was in question, held, that a school certificate signed by the principal before the prosecution was admissible to corroborate the mother's testimony as to her age. Walton v. State (Cr. App.) 178 S. W. 358.

Where defendant cross-examined state's only material witness to lay the predicate to impeach him, the state could support the witness by corroborating the testimony. Leach v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 132.

Where the defendant in a prosecution for murder attempted to impeach one of the state's witnesses it was not error to permit the state to support its witness by other testimony. Satterwhite v. State (Cr. App.) 181 S. W. 462.

In an action for damages for conversion of cotton, where defendant introduced witnesses to impeach plaintiff's testimony, testimony of witnesses in corroborating plaintiff's statement that he did intend to return and gather the cotton held admissible. Grayson v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 681.

In lessee's action for damages for lessee's wrongful refusal to consent to subletting, where plaintiff attempted to discredit defendant's testimony as to his offer to release the lessee, corroborating testimony thereof was admissible. A. Harris & Co. v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 366.

128. — Testimony subject to corroboration.—Admission of testimony of foreman of the grand jury which indicted accused relative to the giving of testimony before the grand jury by the state's impeaching witness held error; it not being permissible to corroborate the impeaching witness in this manner. Venn v. State (Cr. App.) 325 S. W. 315.

129. — Competency of corroborative evidence in general.—In a prosecution for robbery occurring at the time of an assault, certain evidence as to prosecutor's actions after the assault held admissible, in view of cross-examination on the theory of fabricating evidence. Phillips v. State (Cr. App.) 193 S. W. 1004.

That a witness testifying that a person was her own daughter, and that she had given her to another, was impeached, did not render evidence of general reputation that the person was the daughter of the witness admissible. Gibson v. Dickson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 44.

Report of defendant railway's investigator on condition of a car coupling in operating which plaintiff was injured is not admissible to corroborate the testimony of the investigator, unless made before motive for concealing defects arose. Peoples & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Winkler (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 691.

State held improperly permitted to support testimony of witness as to ages of her children by census blank signed by her after the return of the indictment. Hopkins v. State (Cr. App.) 180 S. W. 1094.

In bank's suit on note for $150, passbook showing deposit as of date of loan of $125, held admissible in corroborating of defendants' testimony that only $125 was borrowed, by one of them, from the bank. Farmers' & Citizens' Sav. Bank v. Smith (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1026.

130. — Former statements corresponding with testimony.—Admission of evidence that the state's witness, after he had seen defendant and deceased's wife in flagrant delicto, had told a certain named person, where the state offered no other witnesses to bolster up his testimony, held not error. Lane v. State, 73 Cr. R. 296, 164 S. W. 378.

Where the defendant introduced evidence that plaintiff's wife made no complaint of the injuries for which recovery was sought, to show that her claim was a recent fabrication, defendant's testimony introduced simultaneously, was admissible as to the occurrence of the accident and the injury. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Fox, 196 S. W. 693, 106 Tex. 317, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 922.

Statements made by the injured person in rebuttal of defendant's contention that plaintiff's claim was a recent fabrication should be confined to statements as to the occurrence of the accident and the resulting injuries. Id.
In a prosecution for statutory rape, where accused attempted to impeach prosecutrix by her statements to others as to having intercourse with him, evidence that immediately after the act of intercourse prosecutrix admitted it to her sister is admissible in

Where accused attacked the credibility of a state's witness, the witness might be Corroborated by evidence that, shortly after the killing, he made statements identical with those given at trial. McCue v. State, 75 Cr. R. 127, 170 S. W. 230.

In RELEVANT evidence that a state's witness the state could support the witness' testimony by proof that before the trial he made statements similar to his testimony to others. Gonzales v. State, 171 S. W. 1145, 74 Cr. R. 468.

Evidence of prior statements consistent with plaintiff's claim, corroborative of his testimony, held admissible to rebut an inference of fabrication. Bailey v. Look (Civ.
App.) 174 S. W. 1010.

In action by employer of lumber company for personal injuries, testimony that witness had on prior occasion made statement to certain person was inadmissible; it being improper to permit plaintiff to test the testimony of witness showing his prior witness statements consistent with testimony. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Youngblood (Civ.
App.) 192 S. W. 1106.

RULE 5. EVIDENCE MUST RELATE TO FACTS IN ISSUE AND TO RELEVANT FACTS

1. Relevancy and importance in general.—In habeas corpus by a father for the custody of his child, evidence that the father was willing to abide by the decision of the arbitrators to make certain payments to his wife for the child's benefit would have been but slight if any, aid in determining the issues, and there was no error in excluding it.

In an action for injury to a brakeman struck by a switch stand while mounting a switch while assisting the run, evidence of a bulletin of the company, which recited that engines would pick up crews, was admissible on the issue of his right to board the engine. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bryant (Civ. App.) 162
S. W. 400.

Where a bank loaned plaintiff money to purchase a mortgaged printing plant and paid off such mortgages with the proceeds of the loan, the mortgages were immaterial as evidence in an action by the bank to recover its loan. Power v. First State Bank of Crowell (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 416.

Where defendant pleaded that plaintiff was negligent in not having an operation performed, testimony of physician that an ordinary man was inclined to shrink from operation, and that nearly every man knew he was running some risk therefrom, held

In an action for injury to plaintiff's automobile driven by the plaintiff's father, evidence that he had made a living properly admitted. Id. 162 S. W. 1173.

In an action on a note, evidence that the cashier of plaintiff bank the day before the note was due told the maker he could not find the note held admissible on the question whether the note was acquired before maturity. First Nat. Bank v. Chapman (Civ.
App.) 164 S. W. 900.

In a suit to enjoin enforcement of a justice's judgment on the ground that it was satisfied by the satisfaction of certain other judgments, the pleadings in such suit were admissible to determine whether the justice's judgment was involved in the Evidence having no probative force on the issue held properly excluded. Needham

v. Conley (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 973.

In an action for poisoning stock, evidence was admissible that defendant called plaintiff a rascal, when first informed that plaintiff charged him with committing the act. Sands v. Sedwick (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 894.

In an action on a destroyed note bought by defendant from Y., to whom the plain-tiff's agent had delivered it, held not error to admit evidence to show the nature of Y.'s dealings with such agent, Allen v. Rettig (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 215.

Where plaintiff was entitled to recover expenses incurred in the repair of his automobile, showing different parties, while permissible to show what he had paid for repairs, were not evidence as to the reasonableness of the charges. Galveston-Houston Electric Railway Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 666.
Evidence which conduces, in any reasonable degree, to establish the probability or improbability of the fact in controversy is relevant. Bell v. Swim (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 859.

In an action on a policy insuring a mule alleged to have died of overheat, it was not error to permit witness to testify that he had treated the mule kindly. National Live Stock Ins. Co. v. Gomillion (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 1059, rehearing denied 178 S. W. 671.

In trover and conversion, testimony as to market value of certain grass seed held admissible as being too weak to be considered. First Nat. Bank of Plainview v. McWhorter (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1147.

In a suit to enforce claim for materials, supplemental contract, between defendant company's lessee or agent and the company, changing terms of original lease, and evidence that defendant's president had expressed his pleasure with the improvements held inadmissible. Cleburne St. Ry. Co. v. Barber (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1176.

The exclusion from evidence of parts of a letter from defendant's bookkeeper to his president, relating to matters foreign to the issues, and not contradictory of the bookkeeper's testimony, was proper. E. Alkemeier v. McCordell (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 416.

Where parol evidence showing a verbal gift of a right of way is not admissible to establish an easement, it is admissible to show that one using such easement did so adversely. Heard v. Bowen (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 224.

In an action for death of plaintiff's minor intestate employed by defendant, where it was alleged that defendant was not insured in accordance with the Employers' Liability Act, allowance of question whether defendant posted notices that it carried such insurance held not error. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Freshittero (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 776.

Evidence which is incapable of affording any reasonable presumption or inference as to the principal matter in dispute should be excluded. Graham v. Kesseler (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 239.

In action for wrongful death, evidence that railway company did not produce conductor and brakeman who were present at accident, is not subject to objection that it is immaterial. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1051.

The attorney's suit against administrator to cancel notes because decedent promised to cancel them in consideration of rendition of legal services, whether decedent promised to embody his agreement in his will was immaterial. Bright v. Briscoe (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 156.

2. Certainty.—Admission of testimony of witness in trespass to try title that, to the best of his recollection, the vendor's lien on which title depended had been transferred by the former owners of the property before it was made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, held not error, in view of the lapse of time and other circumstances. Etheridge v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1144.

3. Remoteness.—Evidence for contestant of her father's will on the ground of undue influence, forming a part of a chain of circumstances tending to show a long-standing and continuously pursued purpose by contestee to induce testator to exclude contestant from a share in his estate, held not objectionable for remoteness. Scott v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 342, judgment reversed 166 Tex. 322, 168 S. W. 1138. Declarations of contestee previous to the execution of the will, showing a hostile intention toward contestant, testator's daughter, were not objectionable for remoteness, in view of other evidence tending to show a continuation of the same feelings and intentions up to and after the execution of the will. Id.

In an action for injuries to an expert saw flier, it was not error to permit plaintiff to testify, as against an objection of remoteness, that for the last 20 or 25 years, "taking it right through," he had earned about $8 a day. Wells Fargo & Co. v. Benjamin (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 129.

The admission of testimony by a witness for the defendant on cross-examination that it was conceivable that plaintiff's wife had received the injuries of which she complained, although he found no such injuries when he examined her for life insurance after the accident, was erroneous as permitting plaintiff to show a possibility of injury as a basis for recovery. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Fox, 186 S. W. 690, 16 Tex. 317, reversing Judgment (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 922.

In action against testamentary trustee to recover for services rendered as part of the expenses of a devisee's last illness, evidence as to the condition of the devisee's health, etc., though remote, held admissible. Mclean v. Breen (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 394.

In an action for personal injuries to a railroad's lineman riding in an engine cab to inspect wires and struck in the forehead while passing bridge, testimony that there were swaying scaffolds in the bridge for purposes of painting a day before the accident was not too remote from the time of his injury for submission to the jury as to what caused such injury. Detro v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 517.

In action for breach of timber-sawing contract, testimony of plaintiff that he was compelled to sell his mule was inadmissible as too remote. McKinnon v. Porter (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1112.

4. Tendency to mislead or confuse.—In action to recover plaintiff's compensation as editor of a paper under a contract with defendant, plaintiff's testimony that defendant took money out of the business to buy beer should have been excluded; there being no allegation of defendant's mismanagement, and such testimony being calculated to produce prejudice. Graham v. Kesseler (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 102.

5. Negative evidence.—Evidence that, from the time of the fire until plaintiff found large coal clinders along the track, no other trains than the ones alleged to have caused the fire had passed there was admissible. Arey v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 822, judgment affirmed St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Arey (Sup.) 179 S. W. 880.

6. Circumstantial evidence of facts in issue.—In trespass to try title, a certified copy of a notary's record held admissible as a circumstance to show the existence of a lost deed, although the record misdescribed the original grantee and gave no description of the land. Houston v. Massie (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 335.

Fraud may be proved by circumstances. McIntee v. Wood (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 488.

A lost deed may be shown to have existed by circumstantial and other evidence other than that specified by statute. Wilmot v. Fore (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 1014.

Where an administrator's deed in plaintiff's chain of title was lost, a certificate of the administrator, reciting a sale and conveyance of the land as property belonging to the intestate to the alleged grantee in the deed, was admissible as a circumstance to show a conveyance from the patentee to the intestate. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Sudduth (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 554.

In an action for poisoning stock, evidence that a tin bucket was found on defendant's premises containing a mixture of sulphur and white powder, similar to that found in plaintiff's pasture, held admissible. Sands v. Sedwick (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 894.

In an action for poisoning stock, evidence that tracks were seen leading from defendant's premises to plaintiff's pasture, where stock was found dead, and returning, held admissible. Id.

The delivery or execution of a lost deed may be established by the entry of acknowledgment, coupled with the grantor's nonclaim for many years and failure to deny execution. Pipkin v. Ware (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 505.

Proximate cause may be shown by circumstantial evidence, but cannot be presumed. Galveston, H. & F. Ry. v. Fred (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 196.

The fact or extent of agency may be established by circumstantial evidence. Jackson v. Walls (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 676.

The existence and execution of a deed may be proved by circumstances where proper title papers were made or where no objection is made that such predicate is lacking. Yann v. George (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 585.

In a suit by heirs to obtain recognition as stockholders in a corporation in which their ancestors had purchased stock, the corporation was entitled to show by circumstances that their stock was not then owned by them, but showing that it is now held and claimed by some one else, although there is no record of transfer upon the books of the company. League v. Galveston City Co. (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 330.

8. Matters explanatory of facts in evidence or of inferences therefrom.—In an action against a bank for amount claimed by depositor, evidence was admissible to explain charges against depositor's account. Owens v. First State Bank of Bronte (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 798.

Proof by defendant of circumstance explaining why its witness had not testified on former trial, such failure to testify being shown by cross-examination of the witness, held improperly excluded. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 615.

Where the failure of witness to testify on a former trial was for reasons unknown to him, explanatory evidence to rebut the unfavorable inference therefrom could be supplied by evidence other than his own testimony. Id.

In suit for compensation by a store's department manager, plaintiff's testimony that while he was engaged with defendant it was worth from $125,000 to $175,000 was admissible, where defendant claimed plaintiff had delayed making any demand for accounting, while plaintiff testified he did not because he thought defendant was good. E. Alkemeyer Co. v. McCardell (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 416.

In a suit to recover on ground of fraudulent representations, exclusion of evidence to explain why plaintiff continued his payments thereon after discovering that defendant was not complying with its promises held, not error. Jackson v. Houston Hot Well Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 247.

Carrier, having introduced testimony that its train customarily stopped several minutes, where passenger was injured, could not complain of his rebuttal that it customarily stopped for so short a time as to require passengers to be on platform ready to alight before actual stop. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Comstock (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 106.

In a boundary case, where a witness had made a map on which alternate surveys were marked "state" which was introduced in evidence by defendant, plaintiff could ask him to point out on his map to show that land in question was blanketed by state surveys. Dunn v. Land (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 699.

9. Evidence irrelevant unless preceded or followed by other evidence.—In a personal injury action, where the only evidence of the value of medicines used was the testimony of plaintiff that he paid a lump sum for the medicine, there can be no recovery therefor; it not appearing that the charge was reasonable. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Hodnett (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 678; judgment reversed 196 Tex. 190, 196 S. W. 106.

Where, in a suit upon notes, the answer averred that the notes had been paid off and discharged by contracts entered into with agents of the owner of the notes, defendant was permitted to contract with plaintiff to obliterate as defendant there being some proof tending to show that they were the agents of the owner with authority to make the contracts. Holderman v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 67.

Where the evidence was not sufficient to show that the railroad company has mis routed a shipment of cattle, evidence as to damages occasioned thereby was inadmissible. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. True Bros. (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 355.

Evidence as to finding a bottle of whisky in the debris of the wagon after the accident was properly excluded for lack of sufficient evidence that the driver was intoxicated or addicted to drink within a reasonable time before the accident. Texas Midland R. R. v. Nabholz (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 355 and testimony that the place of the accident he found a pint whisky bottle one-third full in the debris of plaintiff's wagon is not competent, standing alone, to show intoxication. Texas Midland R. v. Wiggins (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 445.

In an action for damages for an elevator operator's death by the negligence of another operator in suddenly starting the machine down and crushing decedent, who was in the door, in which it appeared that the elevator bell rang about the time decedent entered the elevator, evidence whether decedent knew what the ringing of the bell meant was admissible upon showing that he could have heard the bell. Modern Order of Protolarians v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 17.

Where there was no evidence of market value, either in the injured condition of cattle when delivered, or in the condition in which they should have arrived, evidence that the cattle were worth $5 per head than they would have been had they been transported without negligence held inadmissible. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Shank & Dean (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 1088.

In an action for damages for the destruction of property by fire from defendant's alleged negligence held that before its actual value could be shown it must be shown that there was no market value. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. v. Wristen & Johnson (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 395.

In an action for the breach of a contract to sell a portion of a house to plaintiff, evidence that the receiver offered to complete the sale held inadmissible to mitigate the damages, in the absence of proof that the plaintiff could then complete the purchase, and that his buyer was still willing to accept delivery from him. Ramsey v. Bird (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1071.

Testimony concerning an operation performed on plaintiff is inadmissible in the absence of evidence that it was made necessary by the injuries. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. McKinnell (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1081.

Where an explosion was not shown to have been caused by a crack in the dome cap of a locomotive, whether plaintiff had equal or superior opportunity to know of such crack with defendant's other officers, etc., was immaterial. National Ry. of Mexico v. Lipshutz (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1146.

In an action against railroad for killing stock, evidence tending to show that stock was killed by passing trains held admissible, without proof of negligence on part of those operating train. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 850.

Evidence of value of live stock, injured in transit, would have been if uninjured at destination, held admissible, without proof as to what their condition would have been if transported with proper care. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Cave (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 872.

Where a piano was insured against fire, evidence in an action on the policy as to the cost of repolishing the piano which was damaged and repairing its internal mechanism was improperly received, where there was no showing of that sort of damage. Occident Fire Ins. Co. v. Linn (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 523.

In trespass to try title, where the court properly excluded a certified copy of the deed under which plaintiffs claimed, and without which they would fail in the suit, their testimony to prove their heirship under the grantee and their other evidence was properly excluded as being immaterial. Emory v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 821.

In a suit to own order and indorsed in blank, the note was admissible, though evidence failed to show to whom it was to have been delivered or to whom made payable. Kanaman v. Gahagan (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 619.

In an action for the death of plaintiff's child while surgeons were operating on her, where defendant had conceded that plaintiff was not negligent and no emergency was pleaded or proved, expert testimony as to condition of the child's health and the advisability of the operation is inadmissible. Rishworth v. Moss (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 843.

In trespass to try title, a sheriff's deed whose description was insufficient without aid of extrinsic evidence should have been excluded, where such extrinsic evidence was not offered. Leal v. Moglia (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1121.

10. Identity.—In suit for recognition as stockholders, instruments, admitted for defendants, tending to show that after plaintiff's ancestor purchased he had sold a share of the stock, held admissible as sufficiently identifying stock referred to as being certificate in controversy. Condit v. Galveston City Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 395.

13. Character or reputation.—Where, in an action for injuries, defendant claimed that plaintiff was malingering, evidence that plaintiff's general reputation in the community was good was admissible, though his character had not been otherwise impeach- ed. Quannah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 406.

Where the regularity of a notary's acts in taking the acknowledgment of a deed is attacked, evidence concerning the notary's reputation is admissible. Irvin v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1059.

Plaintiff, in a libel action, may introduce proof of good character, if the libelous publication attacks his character, or such attack is made in defendant's pleadings, or the action of the action involves his character. Houston Chronicle Pub. Co. v. Tierman (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 542.

In an action for damages for the breach of a promise of marriage, where there was no attack upon the character of the defendant's present wife, evidence for defendant that her general character was above suspicion was inadmissible. Kaker v. Parrish (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 517.

14. Honesty and integrity.—The court did not err in rejecting evidence of the reputation of certain persons for honesty, where there had been no effort to impeach their reputations for veracity or honesty. Wilmot v. Fore (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 1014.

Where defendant claimed that he had executed the note in reliance upon the fraudulent misrepresentations of the payee, and that plaintiff had not acquired it in good faith, evidence of the payee's general reputation is inadmissible on the question of plaintiff's purchase in good faith. First Nat. Bank v. Chapman (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 900.

Where the issue of fraudulent representations made by a vendor to a purchaser could have been determined by the credit to be given to the testimony of the parties as to whether representations were made, and whether they were true or false, evidence of the general reputation of the vendor for truth and veracity was inadmissible. Luckenbach v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 99.

In an action for damages for unlawful arrest and incarceration on a charge of larceny, evidence as to plaintiff's reputation for honesty is properly admitted; the injury to reputation being the principal one. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 8.

15. Chastity and temperance.—In a suit by a wife for divorce on the ground of cruelty consisting of the husband making charges against the wife, evidence of the wife's bad reputation for chastity was admissible on the issue whether the charges made by the husband so wounded her feelings as to render further living with him impossible or supportable. Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 452.

In an action on a note, evidence was properly excluded that plaintiff drank considerably, and sometimes got drunk while working for the maker of the note. Rhea v. Cook (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 592.

17. Pecuniary condition.—Whether plaintiff was rich or poor was not material to right of action or measure of damages. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Long (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 421.

18. Motive, intent and good faith.—Where, in a suit to restrain enforcement of the railroad contract by the installation of an oil rig, complainant alleged that the people of the town were actuated by spite in building it, evidence as to why it was built, and that complainant's manager said he would spend a million dollars to destroy the town, was admissible. Crosbyton-South Plains R. Co. v. Railroad Construction Co. (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1088.

Plaintiff held properly permitted to testify that money taken from a cash drawer in plaintiffs' store immediately before the attachment was used to pay bills owing when the attachment was levied for the purpose of showing that there was no intent to defraud creditors. Brady-Neely Grocer Co. v. De Foe (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1135.

Evidence as to the particulars of the trade between the parties and as to the agreement showing how payments had been made and in what way the balance due was to have been paid held properly admitted. Id.

On the question of intention by a deed to convey 60 acres only of a survey, or all the grantor's land in it, a deed by his grandfather held competent evidence. Holman v. Houston Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 886.

In buyer's action for seller's false representations, evidence that buyer had written and sent seller a note was admissible to show his good faith and diligence. Rumely Products Co. v. Moss (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1084.

In a broker's action for compensation, evidence of the purchaser's statement that the broker had abandoned any effort to sell to him and proposal to negotiate directly with the owner, held inadmissible to show the owner's good faith. White v. Holman (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 236.

Evidence that a landowner, after some negotiations with purchaser first interested by a broker engaged to sell, sold the property directly to the purchaser making a deduction for defect in title, is inadmissible to show the owner's good faith. Id.

In an action by attorneys on a contract of employment, evidence of their expression of opinion as to probability of reversal of judgment secured by them is admissible upon the issue of their good faith in making contract increasing compensation. Laybourne v. Bray & Shifflett (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1159.

19. Knowledge or notice.—In a broker's action for commissions, a telegram sent by the broker to a joint owner who had listed the land asserting the broker's claims for commissions was properly admitted upon the issue of knowledge of the other joint owners of the broker's claims; there being further evidence that all the owners knew of the telegram. Webb v. Harding (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1029.

Evidence that the manager had stated that the machine at which plaintiff was injured was warped because of having been in another mill which was burned, and that he had dealt with a knot from the machine, held admissible to show defendant's knowledge of the defects. T. B. Allen & Co. v. Shook (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1051.

In an action for wrongful garnishment arising out of plaintiff's signing certain notes of A. executed in a deal for the purchase of corporate stock, evidence held admissible as tending to show knowledge on the part of the defendant that L. was acting as their agent in the sale of the stock. Bennett v. Foster (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1078.
Art. 3687 (Rule 5)  EVIDENCE  (Title 53)

In a personal injury action prosecuted by attorneys, assignees of one-half thereof, after a judgment was rendered, the client was permitted to testify in a conversation with defendant's agent at the time of the compromise, in which he informed him of the attorneys' interest; it tending to show defendant's knowledge of the assignment. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 734.

On a motion to summarily vacate the judgment, whether the land in controversy, had knowledge of an outstanding title, evidence that its manager expressed a fear of litigation, and ordered a removal of the timber as quickly as possible, and that there was no evidence that the company's agent was defective, was inadmissible. Conn v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 539.

In action for land in fee by defendants, as heirs of a grantee of a purchaser in an executory contract, evidence held admissible to show that the grantee knew that the purchaser could not convey good title. Dioken v. Cruse (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 655.

In servant's action for injury, where there was other evidence of defects in engine, statement of defendant's employee that engine was defective and his request to superintendent to repair it, was admissible to show that defect was brought to knowledge of superintendent. Burrell Engineering & Construction Co. v. Grisler (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 102.

22. Statements and conduct of parties.—Where plaintiff sued defendants for interfering with his contractor in the construction of a residence, evidence that one of the defendants told the contractor not to permit his material to remain on the ground until night was admissible. Day v. Hunnicutt (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 134.

In an action for commission for securing a purchaser for land, the broker is not entitled to show that he offered to arbitrate the controversy, but defendant refused; such testimony tending to prejudice defendant before the jury. Britain v. Rice (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 84.

23. Customs and course of business.—Custom among lumbermen, when lumber delivered was not up to grade, to make out a claim and forward it to the shipper and pending settlement hold the lumber subject to the shipper's order, held not inadmissible as evidence in contradiction of law. Continental Lumber & Tie Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 227.

24. Value of services.—In determining the right of a real estate broker to compensation on the quantum meruit, the value of the property involved is material, for the compensation depends not only on the labor and time expended by the broker, but on the benefit to defendant. Bond v. Hancock (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 660.

In suit by superintendent against insurance company for wrongful discharge, testimony of plaintiff as to amount he would have made under his contract of employment, held admissible. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Van Dusen (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 634.

In broker's action for commission for effecting lease for term, fact that such services had procured a lessee who had paid seven months' rent might be considered by jury in estimating reasonable value of the services of plaintiffs' employe. Brady v. Rice & Casey (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 508.

In action for death of a 15 year old boy, his father's testimony, showing the boy's capability for work and his earning capacity, was admissible. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Starr (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 637.

25. Value or market price of property.—In a suit for the value of converted property, plaintiff held entitled to testify as to what the property was worth to him. McCarthy v. Blackwell (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1163.

In an action by a vendee, upon his vendor's warranty, for an alleged deficiency in a lot, the amount deducted by the vendee on a resale was not admissible to prove either the alleged shortage or the value of the land. Kelley v. Fain (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 669.

The broker in an action for loss of his personal clothing and household goods, may testify to their value, the loss to him in money; market value of secondhand goods not being the measure of damages. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Grundy (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 318.

Where the evidence was conflicting whether any definite oral agreement to exchange properties was made, evidence of the market values of the properties was properly admitted. Williams v. Phelps (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1106.

Where personal property covered by a fire policy had no market value at the time of a loss, the intrinsic value could be shown. State Mut. Fire Ins. Co. of Texas v. Cathey (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 187.

Where plaintiff valued his property higher than the other witnesses, evidence of the amount at which he listed the property for taxation is admissible in a suit to condemn. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Orenbaum (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 531.

Relative to damages for conversion of secondhand goods, evidence of value held sufficient to sustain the judgment. Wright Bros. v. Leonard (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 780.

To show market value of land after water seeping through defendants' embankment had soaked into it, defendants should be allowed to show that the land had regained its former condition. City of Indianapolis Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 245.

Where the real value of plaintiff's property was proper to be determined, there was no error in submitting testimony of facts and conditions tending to prove its intrinsic value. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Schwethelm (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 414.

To prove a fire in a silo, where defendant offered evidence that the silo was of no value, evidence of cost of repairing all defects in silo held admissible. Ames Portable Silo & Lumber Co. v. Gill (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1130.
26. — Time and place of valuation.—In an action for conversion of a rice mixer, evidence as to the market value of such machine after two years’ use torn down held admissible. Texas Warehouse Co. v. Imperial Rice Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 396.

Testimony of the value of land in 1902 was admissible on the question of its value in 1906, where the witness testified that there was no material change during such time. Norton v. Les (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 397.

Where horses, when converted, were worth only $10 a head, plaintiff was limited to such value, and could not recover at the rate of $15 a head, on evidence that such was their value some two years after the conversion. Hancock v. Haile (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1053.

Where the only evidence as to the value of bonds given for the difference on the exchange for real estate was the amount agreed upon by the parties at the time of the exchange and their value some months after the exchange, no damages for decrease in value could be allowed, the value at a subsequent date not being a proper measure of damages. Moore v. Peakley (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 380.

In an action for injuries to a shipment of horses, evidence of their actual value at the point of destination is admissible, where they had no market value at such point. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. McMillen (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 773.

In an action for damages for depreciation of real estate, evidence of the cost of a house three years before held admissible for the jury to consider in connection with other testimony to establish market value. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 829.

Where the pleadings recovered the cost of repairs to automobile damaged, evidence of the market value of the automobile just before and after the accident held inadmissible. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. McMeans (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 692.

In action for injuring cattle shipped, to be placed on pasture in ranches near the point of destination, testimony as to their market value in that section of the country held improper. H. & B. Ry. Co. v. Kirkpatrick (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 784.

In determining the value of land actually taken as well as damages to the remainder, the evidence should be confined to the market value of the land as it existed when possession was taken by plaintiff. Jefferson County Truction Co. v. Wilhem (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 448.

27. — Appraisal of property.—In action against contractor for value of lumber, estimate by superintendent of building showing amount and value of the lumber used, held admissible upon the issue of value. Dean v. A. G. McAdams Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 762.

29. — Crops.—In an action for damages to crops, including the destruction of rose bushes, held that plaintiff could testify as to the number of roses raised per bush and the value per blossom. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Kezer (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 661.

31. — Cost of property and amount received in general.—In an action for injuries to secondhand personal property, evidence of the original cost of the property in the market, the manner, time, and place of its use, its appearance before and after the injury, and its relative usefulness and physical condition is competent. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Vallraven (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 116.

In trover for the conversion of a machine, whether it had a market value being for the jury, evidence as to the cost thereof to plaintiff was admissible. Texas Warehouse Co. v. Imperial Rice Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 396.

In determining the value of a railroad passenger’s wearing apparel at the time of its loss, its quality, its use and its condition at the time of its loss should all be considered. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Kirkpatrick (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 500.

Where the market value of an animal injured in shipment at the place of delivery is not shown, the intrinsic value of the animal is the measure of damages, and may be shown by the price paid therefor, but otherwise if market value is shown. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 273.

In suit to enjoin collection of taxes after assessment had been raised, evidence of what owner paid for the land was admissible. Brundrett v. Lucas (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 613.

32. — Cost of production.—In a suit for damages for breach of warranty of a hollow clay tile silo not to crack or bulge if erected on a suitable foundation, defendant having sold the material for the silo which was constructed by plaintiff, the value of the silo could be predicated upon its cost, including the cost of material as well as of labor entering into its construction. Texas Kilamazoo Silo Co. v. Alley (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 774.

33. — Rental value.—In an action for depreciation in rental value of a railroad the evidence of the depreciation of the railroad was admissible. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 907.

37. — Amount for which property will sell.—In broker’s action involving dispute as to value at which land was taken as payment, evidence as to amount defendant had been offered therefor held improperly admitted. Crass v. Adams (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 610.

Evidence as to selling price of wood delivered in cars and cost of so delivering it, held admissible to prove its market value at place where it was destroyed by fire. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Brune (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 14.

In suit to enjoin collection of taxes after assessment had been raised, evidence of standing offer of a certain amount per acre for land was admissible. Brundrett v. Lucas (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 613.
40. Animals.—In an action against a carrier for injuries to a shipment of cattle, evidence held to show that there was a market value for the animals at the place of destination. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Mulkey & Allen (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 111.

The intrinsic value of stock killed on a railroad right of way is provable where there is no market value. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 486.

52. Residence.—On an issue concerning the residence of an entryman on school land, and his transferee, evidence as to where they resided during the time in question was inadmissible. Chambers v. Rawls (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 208.

56. Partnership and partnership transactions.—In an action for an accounting between partners upon breach of the agreement by defendants, evidence of the amount lost by defendants in a purchase of live stock from the partnership at a fixed price held admissible. Fuller v. El Paso Livestock Commission Co. (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 890.

Testimony of attorney who had acted for both parties and was familiar with their dealings with each other that he did not know or hear of plaintiff's ownership of the land in controversy held admissible in a partnership accounting. Hall v. Ray (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1135.

Where, in action for partnership accounting, defendant denied existence of the general partnership, and claimed that he and plaintiff had been interested in several land trade contracts, held, that defendant's testimony relative to such trades and division of profits was admissible. Id.

60. Boundaries.—In a suit to establish a boundary, evidence that no two surveyors could run a line and reach the same point was properly excluded, since it would not have tended to prove a consideration for the agreed boundary. Ware v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 846.

In a boundary case, in which defendant claimed under a Mexican grant, and plaintiff under a grant from state, evidence that other land had been taken up in that vicinity by settlers under the state since the litigation arose held irrelevant. Dunn v. Land (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 695.

61. Indebtedness.—Where an unlocated balance of a headright certificate was ordered sent by an administrator de bonis non, evidence by the deceased's personal clerk that no claims were filed against the estate during his term of office, while inadmissible to impeach the appointment of an administrator de bonis non, was competent to show there were no community obligations at the time of the appointment. Waterman Lumber & Supply Co. v. Robins (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 360.

64. Loan or sale.—Evidence of the value of the land when the deed was executed held admissible on the issue whether the deed was intended as a mortgage. Norton v. Lea (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 267.

Evidence of an agreement between one grantor and the grantee before execution of the deed on a circumstance to prove it was executed in accordance therewith, but was not conclusive evidence thereof. Id.

65. Payment.—In a suit upon promissory notes, where the defense pleaded was payment, it was error to admit evidence of the volume of business of the owner of the notes. Holderman v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 67.

In an executrix's action on a note in which defendants pleaded payment, evidence that testatrix made no considerable deposits in any of the banks where she did business about the time of the alleged payment was properly admitted. Richards v. Osborne (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 392.

In an action on a note, with an allegation of an agreement that certain collateral should be divided between the note and another, evidence of a defendant's objection at the time of making such agreement to any switching of the collateral to protect the other note was admissible. First State Bank of Amarillo v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 295.

69. Lien and waiver thereof.—In an action for the price of brick, in which defendant filed a cross-action against the surety of his contractor, claiming that mechanics' liens exceeded the unpaid part of the contract price, evidence was admissible to support such claim as to the amount and value of labor and material furnished by certain witnesses for the building. Harlan v. Texas Fuel & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1142.

70. Liabilities on bonds.—In an action on a bond to indemnify against the default of a contractor and to indemnify plaintiff, who made a deposit to assist the contractor, evidence that plaintiff was not an owner of the house, but merely advanced the money, was admissible to establish plaintiff's interest. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Bankers' Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 45.

73. Validity of notes.—A deposit slip, given by the plaintiff bank when the draft sued on was delivered to it, held admissible to show that a consideration was paid for the draft, and that the transaction was a bona fide transfer. Crowell Independent School Dist. v. First Nat. Bank of Benjamin (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 878.

79. Employment in general.—Where, in an action for broker's services in selling lots during 1910, defendant claimed termination of the contract for plaintiff's lack of diligence, evidence of notice to plaintiff by defendant's president or another at his direction that the contract was terminated was admissible. Putnam Land & Development Co. v. Elser (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 190.

Where a broker had testified that he had been appointed as agent to sell certain land, proof that he had put up a sign advertising the land was admissible to show that he had acted as agent. Marland v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 302.

On the issue of the consideration for an exclusive agency for the sale of land, evidence that the agent painted and put up a sign advertising the land is relevant. Id.
In an action for the purchase price of coal furnished an alleged agent, certain evidence held admissible to show the relation of principal and agent. Kohler v. Aubrey & Semple (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 828.

In action for commission by party employed to sell realty, testimony of the plaintiff that she had been offered by a third person 5 per cent. to sell the land, and that defendant had sold it to her and would give the 5 per cent., was not improper. Black v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 492.

80. Authority of agent.—In an action for the purchase price of an automobile, where the plaintiff claimed delivery to the children of defendant as her agents, testimony as to the allowance made of the car and the price paid with the connection that the payments were authorized. Owens v. First State Bank of Bronco (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 798.

A power of attorney held admissible to show the authority of insured's agent to make purchase of automobile. Young v. Hanover Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 466.

In a principal's action against an agent for losses sustained by alleged fraudulent reports and as to purchasers' credit, evidence of transactions similar to those sued upon was inadmissible, but the agent's evidence that he followed principal's directions was admissible. Semple v. Daniel (App.) 176 S. W. 92.

Evidence that alleged agent told tenant, relative to repairs, that he had better do the work and that such agent would O. K. the bill, held admissible on question of whether he did in fact do the repairs. Texas Mfg. Co. v. Fitzgerald (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 891.

In suit by purchasers at sale to satisfy lien claimants to recover land reconveyed by original purchasers' trustee to original grantor, who had reserved right to have three acres upon repayment of part of purchase money, testimony touching the agreement, though not admissible as to the grantee's title, was admissible as to the collateral circumstance to show authority of plaintiff's trustee to reconvey, etc., and that the reconveyance was in recognition of the previous oral arrangement when the original grantor conveyed. King v. Lane (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 392.

81. Contract in general.—Where a partnership operating a bank transferred its assets to a new firm consisting of one of its members and others, representations of such continuing member as to the collectibility of the paper of the bank, made to one of the retiring partners, held admissible on the issue of his guaranty of the assets of the bank. Yoc v. Bank of Miami (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 486.

In a suit by stockholders to cancel a note given by plaintiffs to defendant to secure a debt of the corporation, on the ground that defendant breached an agreement to remain with the corporation and conduct its business, evidence of the breach of such agreement is admissible to establish a failure of consideration for the note. Martin v. Daniel (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 17.

In an action on a life policy, claimed by the company not to have become effectual because the policy was signed while insured was confined, and testimony that insured was a man of considerable wealth was material on the question whether the agent extended credit to him for the premium, as claimed by plaintiff. Amariillo Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 668.

Evidence that defendant had expressly promised plaintiff to pay the debt sued on, which was owing to plaintiff by defendant, held admissible. Bell v. Swim (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 880.

In suit to determine a boundary, where it was agreed that the only issue was whether the parties' predecessors had made an agreement as to the boundary line, the exclusion of evidence that plaintiff's predecessor, when he sold to plaintiff's grantor, pointed out the fence on the line contended for by plaintiff as the boundary, was proper. Taylor v. Valley (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 290.

In an action on a note for the amount paid by plaintiff as premiums on defendant's policy and to enforce collateral security, testimony as to defendant's promise to pay in any event held admissible on the issue of his promise to pay made after his discharge in bankruptcy. Underwood v. First Nat. Bank of Galveston (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 395.

82. Execution of contract.—In purchaser's action for damages for vendor's failure to perform contract of sale, vendor's deed executed for purpose of performance held admissible to establish contract. Longinotti v. McShane (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 598.

83. Mistake in contract.—In an action for the price of a preparation to kill grass and weeds, where the buyer's general manager knew the number of applications necessary, but did not inform his subordinate, evidence that the subordinate would not have purchased it had he had such information held material. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Interstate Chemical Co. (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1126.

Testimony as to the grantee's conversations with attorneys who drew a deed to her, held admissible on the issue of mutual mistake regarding the grantor's source of title. Smith v. Jones (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 756.

On an issue of mutual mistake in a deed, the grantors' power of attorney giving authority to dispose of their entire interest in the property was admissible. Id.

Evidence that the grantee had inventoried certain property as her deceased husband's separate estate was admissible to show that she had concurred in a mutual mistake regarding the source of title to such property. Id.

85. Construction of terms of contract.—Whether a maker signing the name of a co-maker knew at the time that the parties were equally liable held immaterial in determining the liability of the co-maker to the payee. Connor v. Uvalde Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 175.

Where the issue was whether a maker whose name was signed by a co-maker was liable as maker or as surety, a question asked co-maker as to the difference between the liability of a principal and surety was immaterial. Id.
Evidence held admissible, as tending to show that plaintiff might have made the loan which the note in suit was alleged to have been given to secure. Rhea v. Cook (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 892.

In action on account for goods sold, the defense being that buyers of the business assumed it, a telegram from defendant's attorney, authorizing plaintiff to accept the buyers' note, was admissible as showing that plaintiff's giving the buyers such additional time was an accommodation to the debtor and not a novation. Wilson v. J. W. Crowdus Drug Co. (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 194.

86. Performance or breach of contract.—As a circumstance to be considered with other material facts and work on fixtures, maintenance and installed by plaintiff for defendant, plaintiff may show that while they were being installed, under defendant's constant observation, he made no complaint with respect to them. Banner v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 102.

87. Contract of employment.—Where a contract of employment authorized defendant to cancel orders at its discretion in case it believed the buyers were irresponsible, evidence that plaintiff always made diligent inquiries as to the responsibility of buyers and in no event in orders unless he thought the parties good was immaterial. Iowa Mfg. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 171.

In an action by brokers for a commission, on the theory that under their contract they were entitled to it, though the sale was made by the owner, evidence of efforts made by them to sell and expenses incurred by them in so doing is inadmissible. Bomar v. Munn (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1136.

88. Contract of insurance.—In action on accident policy to recover stipulated amount in case of death, evidence as to sending of draft for disability claim held admissible as tending to show a refusal to pay the death claim. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Co. v. Hendricks (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 1007.

In an action on an accident certificate for death due to apoplexy claimed to have been caused by excitement, evidence that decedent suffered great pain in his head, and that he talked about the exciting cause, would get very much excited, would gesticulate with his arms, and on one occasion tried to get out of bed, held relevant. International Travelers' Ass'n v. Branum (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 389.

Evidence in an action on a life policy that several years before a brother of insured was tried for murder and another brother charged with his murder fled, has no bearing on the issue of insured having committed suicide. De Garcia v. Cherokee Life Ins. Co. of Rome, Ga. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 153.

89. Contract of sale.—In an action for the purchase price of a preparation sold to kill grass and weeds, defended on the ground of an implied warranty that one application would be sufficient, photographs shown to the buyer before the sale showing that more than one application was necessary held admissible. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Interstate Chemical Co. (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1120.

In an action to rescind a contract for the sale of a traction engine for breach of guaranty as to material, etc., evidence that the seller, on sending a magnet to the buyer, had not told its agent to refuse to deliver it, unless the buyer should sign purchase money notes, held inadmissible. Southern Gas & Gasoline Engine Co. v. Adams & Peters (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1145.

In an action for breach of warranty of a roof, evidence that defendant's salesman formerly attempted to sell roof paint to plaintiff held inadmissible. Phillip-Carey Co. v. Manes (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 158.

Evidence that the person charge of a rice crop was a good farmer held admissible, where the purchaser of machinery to irrigate such crop claimed that the seller's failure to properly install it prevented irrigation and resulted in crop failure. Southern Gas & Gasoline Engine Co. v. Richelson (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 529.

Where purchasers of irrigating machinery claimed that it was never properly installed and for that reason their crops failed, and the seller pleaded that the plant was properly installed, but through the purchaser's negligence it was not put in operation successfully, improper installation was also held inadmissible. Id.

Where a seller agreed to deliver to the buyer in a certain county oil of a certain grade, which it failed to do, it is immaterial what grade it delivered to the carrier in another county. People's Ice & Mfg. Co. v. Interstate Cotton Oil Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1163.

In action upon notes given for an engine for a cotton gin plant, wherein defendants set up its failure to develop the guaranteed speed, testimony of customer that the turnout from bales ginned by defendant was poor held inadmissible. Federal v. Texas Machinery & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 961.

90. Contract of carrier.—Evidence that cotton ginner had purchased 65,000 pounds of cotton seed in excess of that shipped out and sold, excluding a shipment for the conversion of which he was suing, held admissible to support his claim that such shipment of 65,478 pounds was delivered to the carrier. Ellas v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 417.

Testimony that delay in transportation and rough handling of cattle complained of was all along the route held admissible. Texas Midland R. R. v. Becker & Cole (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1024.

Admission of evidence over plaintiff's objection that stock had been shipped to Ft. Worth before delivery to defendant railroad for transit from that place held error; the stock being conclusively shown to be in good condition at Ft. Worth. Rodgcrs v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1117.

In an action against a carrier for delay in transporting cattle, some of which were sold at Ft. Worth, and the balance at Kansas City, evidence of the condition of the cattle at Ft. Worth, if properly handled, held admissible. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Graham & Price (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 297.

In action against initial carrier for nondelivery to connecting carrier, evidence of dispute between the two carriers, causing initial carrier to hold freight for charges, held properly excluded. Quanah, A. & F. Ry. Co. v. R. D. Jones Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 856.

In an action against railroad for loss of household goods by flood, evidence for plaintiff that according to the history of the stream the flood in question was not unprecedented in its magnitude. Houston & Int. M. Ry. Co. v. Penney (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 870.

In an action against an interstate carrier on an alleged oral agreement to furnish cars, evidence that defendants' dispatcher immediately advised the agent with whom plaintiff talked that the cars could not be furnished on the day required by plaintiff, held admissible. Addressed, W. S. F. Ry. Co. v. Smyth (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 70.

In an action against a carrier for damages to shipment of live stock, a paragraph of shipping contract, releasing carrier from loss by delay in transportation by storms or flood, held properly excluded as immaterial. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Atterbury (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1126.

92. Conveyance.—While mere nonclaim and nonpayment of taxes will not result in a loss of title save by limitations, such facts are evidence of a grant. Pipkin v. Ware (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 808.

The terms of the deed, the adequacy of the price or other circumstances, are admissible to show whether the purchaser bought the land or merely the chance of title. Priggen v. Cook (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 712.

93. Establishment and execution of lost deeds.—On an issue as to the execution of an alleged lost deed to land by the patentee to E., under whom plaintiffs claimed deeds from F. and from the patentee to other portions of the same survey, which had been recorded many years, all of the parties having been long since dead, were admissible. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Sudduth (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 556.

In an action against subscribers to corporate stock, it is improper to exclude evidence of the property delivered by the subscribers to the corporation. Id.

101. Title and possession.—Evidence that the husband was in possession of certain lands before marriage was admissible as tending to show that he had a legal or equitable claim thereto at that time, so that the property remained his separate property. Gamespace v. Gamespace (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1169.

In an action to recover an interest in land, where plaintiff relied upon her intestate's possession, evidence that defendant had borrowed money thereon to pay off his notes to prevent suit by intestate held admissible. Lester v. Hutson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 321.

Evidence that land allotted in partition to plaintiff was absorbed in conflict with a lease grant held admissible. Robertson v. Talmadge (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 627.

An agreement of the maker of a note with B., after B. acquired the note, held admissible on the question of whether B. acquired it for himself or for the maker, relative to the maker's right to recover of the payee the penalty for usury paid. Braly v. Connally (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 916.

103. Conversion.—In an action by a corporation against its former president to recover the proceeds of shingles which it alleged he had converted to his own use, evidence that a check given by him to a third person was in payment of shingles which the third person said he had disposed of with his property was admissible. Pitts v. Cypress Shingle & Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 799.

In an action by a bank for the conversion of chattels upon one-half interest in which it held a second mortgage, testimony of the bank officers that they demanded the entire amount of the excess of the first mortgage as a condition of releasing their mortgage was immaterial. First Nat. Bank v. Dunlap (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 592.

When plaintiff's mule was frightened by a train on an overhead crossing, based on failure to give signals in approaching the crossing, it was error to admit testimony that, had signals been sounded while the train was on the crossing, it would have increased plaintiff's danger. Terrell v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 575.

The survivor of a locomotive engineer left alive on switch engine while he was inspecting a locomotive, his survivors should have been allowed to show that he had driven the locomotive he was inspecting and that his mission was to see that it had been rendered safe. Hovey v. See (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 606.

On issue whether railway company was negligent in not discovering position and condition of tree before it fell onto its track, evidence that track was straight for a distance of 200 yards north of where tree stood is admissible. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1092.

In action by employé of lumber company for injuries received in service, testimony that plaintiff, just before doing work in which he was injured, had drunk a pint of whisky, was admissible on issue of his negligence, also as bearing on weight of plaintiff's testimony as to his conduct. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1196.

Refusal to permit conductor to testify that he warned engineer at certain stations not to run at high speed was proper, the issue being as to speed at time of accident. Mckinney & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 728.

107. Place of accident.—In an action for the killing of cattle on railroad tracks, evidence as to where they were struck, based on the evidences found on the ground, is admissible. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Decatur Cotton Seed Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1394.

108. Independent contractor.—A contract by a firm with a county to do work, providing against the firm subletting without the written consent of the county, in connection with evidence that there with such a contract, is admissible on the issue of one doing part of the work for the firm, being an independent contractor. Corrigan, Lee & Halpin v. Haubner (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 159.

111. Failure to send or deliver message.—Evidence, that the half-sister was dearer to plaintiff than his full sisters, held improper. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 218.
Testimony of plaintiff as to his calling up the company's operator and asking as to whether she had received a call for him held admissible, over objection of incompetency, irrelevancy, and immateriality. Id.

In an action for malicious prosecution based on alleged theft of bale of cotton, issue as to whether plaintiff had landlord's lien, to satisfy which he sold the bale, was collateral, and could be considered by the jury only on question of defendant's probable cause in bringing criminal complaint. Rainey v. Old (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 265.

117. Libel and slander.—Plaintiff, in a libel suit, may call as witnesses those acquainted with the circumstances to state that, on reading the libel, they concluded that it was aimed at plaintiff. Chapa v. Abernethy (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 166.

In an action for libel by publication including what took place in plaintiff's room when he was arrested on suspicion that he might be guilty of murder in another state, it was permissible for plaintiff to show untruth of the publication by testimony as to what actually occurred then. Houston Chronicle Pub. Co. v. Bowen (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 61.

In action for slander, where defendant's manager had said that plaintiff and another had men in their room at night, and plaintiff stated to the manager that she was as pure as the manager's wife, the manager's statement in reply that if plaintiff were a man he would slap her downstairs was competent. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Wilkins (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 429.

Malice, as an essential ingredient of libel, may be proven directly, or by inference from the character of the libelous document, or by circumstantial evidence. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Edmundson (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 402.

120. Fraud and fraudulent conveyances.—A large latitude is permitted in the admission of evidence of fraud, and evidence of facts which do not themselves directly in issue is admissible where they are relevant to the issues made by the pleadings. Foix v. Moeller (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1048.

In an action for fraud inducing a purchase of stock of a mining corporation, evidence that, after the termination of the rights of the corporation to the mine, an officer procured an inspection which he could not avoid himself of because led to a discovery in the foreign country in which the mine was located, held inadmissible. Id.

On an issue as to the fraud of plaintiffs' agent in obtaining defendants' signature to a lease on misrepresentation that it contained a prohibition debarre clause, evidence that he agreed to insert such clause, and that defendants thought from his representations that it was in the contract, held admissible. Faler v. Eyler (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 490.

Where in an action for breach of a lease of premises to be used as a saloon, defendants alleged fraud in that plaintiffs' agent procured their signatures on false representations that the lease contained a prohibition debarre clause, evidence as to the rental value of the premises for other than saloon purposes held admissible. Id.

In a suit on a note where the maker set up the payee's fraud, evidence that the payee agreed to keep the note and not to transfer it was admissible on the issue of fraud. First Nat. Bank v. Chapman (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 900.

Where defendant claimed that he had been induced to execute the note in suit in reliance upon the fraudulent misrepresentations of the payee, evidence that the payee had offered to sell the note for a ridiculously low figure is admissible only on the question of his fraud, and could not affect any one except him or his coconspirator. Id.

In an action for fraudulent misrepresentations as to the receipts from theaters which plaintiffs leased from defendants, testimony by plaintiffs' manager that he had quit plaintiffs' employ because of the improper management by plaintiffs' held material on the issue of the truth of the representations. Loftus v. Sturgis (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 14.

Evidence that a witness, who testified as to the truth of representations made by the defendant which were alleged by the plaintiff to be fraudulent, which tended to show that the witness did not and could not know what the statements were, affects the weight of the testimony, but not its admissibility. Id.

Testimony of such witness that the statements of defendant as to the expenses were true held to refer to the statements made by defendant before the execution of the lease. Id.

Testimony by a witness for defendant that the statements by defendant as to the expense of conducting such theaters were correct held material. Id.

In an action upon a banknote certificate, defendant on the ground that the insured falsely stated in her application that she had never had malaria, evidence that insured completely recovered from the attack within a few days was admissible upon the issue whether the false statement was material to the risk. Evidence of the finding of a dead mule, held inadmissible to show misrepresentations as to the soundness of the mules sold, because it did not clearly appear that the dead mule was one of those sold, or that its condition when sold was the cause of its death. Latham Co. v. Snell (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 917.

Where, in an action on instruments given for the price of an automobile, the defense was, that the instrument was procured by false representations as to statements made by defendant's wife to plaintiff's agents, defendant's wife was properly permitted to detail the conversation between herself and such agents when they showed her the car with a view of selling it to defendant. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Webb (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 853.

In an action for damages for alleged misrepresentations in the sale of land for bonds, testimony of the plaintiff that he relied on the fact that the bonds were issued by a Baptist university and purported to be secured by a first mortgage, was immaterial. Moore v. Beasley (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 389.

In suit on note representing loan procured by maker by false representations that he owned insurance policy worth $500, evidence of officer of insurer held admissible to show maker's fraud and to contradict his statements to lender. Ehlinger v. Speckels (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 348.

In suit by grantee of land to restrain sale on execution against the grantor, evidence that plaintiff had undervalued residence property held relevant on issue of good faith in him and grants in exchanging properties. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Plainview v. Sinton (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 742.

In suit by the grantee of land to restrain sale on execution against the grantor, defendant had undervalued the plaintiff had an interest in tending to prove he had overvalued barn given in exchange for the property involved. Id.

In suit based on consent judgment appointing trustee to sell lands, in which judgment creditors alleged fraud by trustee in making sale, evidence as to value of land sold was admissible on issue of fraud. Evans v. Williams (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 181.

In action to recover money deposited with defendant bank for credit of proposed bank, evidence that six days after deposit depositor applied for bank charter is admissible on question of good faith in representing that deposit was for proposed bank. Cozart v. Western Nat. Bank of Ft. Worth (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 644.

121. Undue influence and mental incapacity.—In a suit for the probate of a will disinherit an insane son of testatrix, on the ground of undue influence, evidence that about five years before the making of the will the husband gave directions for the disposition of the property showing that he did not wish to disinherit the son was admissible. Holt v. Guerguin (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 581, judgment reversed 196 Tex. 155, 163 S. W. 10, 60 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1136.

In a suit for probate of a will disinherit an insane son of testatrix, on the ground of mental incapacity, evidence that some years before the making of the will the husband gave directions for the disposition of the property showing that he did not wish to disinherit the son was admissible. Id.

The fact that a will was never revoked, although testator lived two years after its execution, was admissible as a circumstance tending to refute the claim of contestant, a daughter, that its execution was the result of undue influence. Scott v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 342, judgment reversed 196 Tex. 322, 163 S. W. 1138.

In an action to set aside a will for undue influence by the contestee, testator's wife, whom in another suit, a daughter, had begun to estray, evidence that will was the result of undue influence, evidence of efforts of the contestee to have the testator make a will excluding the contestant, her discussion of the will a short time before it was made, and her remark that she did not think contestant should have anything held admissible. Evans v. Williams (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 181.

Evidence tending to show contestant's hostile feelings toward the contestant held admissible. Id.

In a will contest on the ground of the undue influence of contestee, the wife of testator, to the exclusion of contestant, a step-daughter, evidence that contestee was urging the execution of some important paper by the testator, which he was reluctant to execute, though such paper was not identified as his will, and that she had several times threatened to take their minor son from him unless he signed such paper, held admissible. Scott v. Townsend, 166 S. W. 1138, 106 Tex. 322, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 342.

In a will contest on the ground of undue influence by the contestee, testator's wife, to the exclusion of a daughter, held that the fact of the contestee's hostility toward the daughter, and her design to exclude her from benefits under the will, was admissible. Id.

In a will contest on the ground of undue influence whereby the contestee, testator's wife, sought to obtain benefits for herself and her son, innocent of any collusion, to the exclusion of her step-daughter, held that the contestee's declarations of hostility toward the stepdaughter were admissible, even though they would inevitably affect the interest of the son. Id.

In a will contest, where the issue was whether the proponent procured it by fraud and deception, a letter written by proponent to his uncle, seeking to borrow money, and stating which is coming, and I know which is coming, I know which is coming, I know which is coming, I know which through my work I think you would remember me," was properly admitted. Stockwell v. Stockwell (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 1188.

In a will contest by a disinherited son on the grounds of undue influence exerted by another son, evidence that the latter had unlawfully deprived contestant of property was inadmissible. Kell v. Ross (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 752.

Evidence that plaintiff was in great pain, out of his head, and did not know anything.
or anybody when signing release was evidence of mental incapacity. Turner v. Ontiberos (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 1885.

123. Damages.—In an action for damages to cattle, where they were fed for three or four months after the injury and then were sold, testimony as to whether the owner received the full market value should be excluded, because tending to carry the inquiry into speculative and speculative issues. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Mulkey & Allen (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 111.

In an action against a carrier for negligent injuries to a shipment of live stock, where it appeared that they were fed for three or four months after the shipment, and the owner, upon the market, evidence as to whether the owners received full market value for them was not admissible as tending to lessen the damages because not furnishing a correct basis for determining the injury. Id.

In action for价值 of land appropriated for railroad and damages to adjoining land, where owner testified that property was damaged $1,500, admission of further testimony that the land taken was worth $500 and the other damaged $1,000 held not erroneous. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 373.

In an action for setting fire to barn containing corn, evidence as to the time it took certain corncribs to burn to show that there was not as much corn in the barn as claimed. Marshall & E. T. Ry. Co. v. Killingsworth (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1184.

Where a landlord was charged with unlawful entry, and a subsequent groundless suit of ouster, evidence that the landlord had been shown receipts for the rent, and notwithstanding brought the suit for ouster, was relevant to an issue of exemplary damages for unlawful entry, although the petition did not authorize a recovery on the ground of the wrongful entry. Hibby v. Kirksey (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 315.

In an action on a note, plaintiff's evidence as to the solvency of one of the defendants, that, if he had anything, plaintiff had never heard of it or seen it, was material, as showing that the other defendant sustained no loss by plaintiff releasing an account where he had a solvent defendant. S. S. W. 707.

Where a landlord converted hay belonging to his tenant, the measure of damages is the market value of the hay, and so evidence that the tenant had agreed to sell the hay at an agreed price is inadmissible, where the landlord had no notice of such contract. Jackson v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 413.

In an action for slander, the character of the plaintiff and business transactions between him and the defendant and other parties affecting the rights of the defendant may be considered by the jury in mitigation of damages, even though they did not justify the accusation. Burkhisser v. Lyons (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 244.

A broker who handled plaintiff's shipment alleged to have been damaged en route, held properly permitted to testify as to what efforts he made to sell the goods in their damaged condition and that he obtained the best price possible for them. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Bracht (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1116.

In an action to recover for damages sustained, evidence of the expenses incurred by the one suing for the injuries as to a railroad company's refusal to grant facilities to express company equal to those afforded another express company, contracts which the express company had offered to execute held properly admitted. Id.

In determining whether a stipulation for payment of $10 per day for delay by contractor was liquidated damages or penalty, testimony that the builder sustained no damage, held irrelevant. Walsh v. Methodist Episcopal Church South, of Paducah (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 241.

In an action for injury to cattle by dipping in crude oil, general evidence as to tendency to injure, and stock held the best price possible for them. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cauble (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 850.

Where a landlord reprieved hay claimed by his tenant, evidence of the price at which the tenant had contracted to sell the hay held admissible on the question of his special damages on his plea in reconvention. Taylor v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1142.

A tenant suing for damages for the wrongful issuance and levy of a distress warrant by the landlord could not testify over objection that after service of the distress warrant he could not rent another place in the county, and that he and the members of his family were in bad health, that being evidence of damages too remote and speculative. Streetman v. Lasater (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 930.

The carrier when sued for injuries to cattle in transit may offer evidence of improvement of such cattle or recovery from their injuries, to show the extent of the injury at the time of their arrival and the resulting damages. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Norton (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1011.

In action for damages to shipment of cattle, evidence as to temporary damages and the damage which they would have recovered by shipping was admissible upon the real injury and as affecting question of damages. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Vaughn (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 142.

In action by consignee for damages to goods, his testimony that firms refused to buy the goods held admissible to show his efforts to minimize damages. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Brackin (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 804.

124. — Personal injuries.—In an action against a railroad company for injuries to a female plaintiff, evidence that the injury might have continued latent for a long time held admissible. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 222, judgment reversed 166 Tex. 317, 166 S. W. 893.

Where the railroad company claimed that a brakeman's failure to jump from wild cars was contributory negligence, evidence that it would have been dangerous to have... jumped, under the circumstances, was admissible. Ft. Worth Belt Ry. Co. v. Cabell (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1032.

Evidence that deceased was industrious and energetic, had purchased a home for his mother, the plaintiff, and her children, and that he was their sole support, was admissible on the issue of reasonable expectancy of pecuniary benefits which plaintiff would have received had he lived. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Keith (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 142.

Evidence that a hernia produced by traumatism could have been, and that the witness expected it was, caused by the injury was properly admitted over objection that it was remote and immaterial. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brown (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 283.

It is competent to show the probable occurrence of future ill effects that may arise from an injury. Id.

In railroad switchman's action for injuries, evidence that physical test was required of railroad employees held admissible as bearing on the consequences of plaintiff's im-

In an action for death of engineer from the explosion of a boiler, evidence as to defective condition of water glass three months before the accident held admissible, in view of the other evidence on the question of notice; it not appearing that it had subsequently been repaired. Southern Pac. Co. v. Vaughan (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 986.

Where defendant, in an action to recover upon an interstate shipment, evidence that plaintiff, about three years prior to such shipment, had secured a lower rate held irrelevant to the correct rate at the time of shipment. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Dickson Bros. (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 33.

In an elevator company's action to recover for a shortage in cars delivered by a carrier, where the testimony indicated that certain scales were often tested with plaintiff's wagon scales, and that the two were always balanced, evidence that such wagon scales were correct in said and admissible to show that the other scales were correct early in February, 1911. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Justin Mill & Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 411.

Evidence of other fires is inadmissible, unless on or about the same time as the fire in question. Arey v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Va., 170 S. W. 809 (Civ. App.) judgment affirmed St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Arey (Sup.) 179 S. W. 880.

In an action for injuries in attempting to board a train, evidence held properly excluded that in October during a fair people boarded trains at the particular station from both sides, when the accident happened in July. Reed v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 986.

In action on indemnity policy conversations years before the date of the policy which were the basis of the renewal policies, held admissible on the issue of misrepresentation and concealment. Liverpool & London & Globe Ins. Co. v. Lester (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 602.

In an action by a county against others to locate school lands, a junior survey held inadmissible in evidence to locate an earlier one locating such lands. Colorado County v. Travis County (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 845.

Testimony as to the condition of the insured property more than 8½ months after the fire is inadmissible. In an action on a fire policy, without a showing that the condition was the same then as immediately after the fire. Occident Fire Ins. Co. v. Linn (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 523.

In a servant's action for injury when his hand was caught in the exposed cogwheels of a bull conveyor, evidence that nine days after he was injured he found the bolts loose, and that it was in apparently the same condition as when he was injured, was admissible to show its condition at the time of his injury. Winnisboro Cotton Oil Co. v. Carson (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1062.

In action against railroad company for fire loss, testimony that witnesses had seen other of defendant's engines emitting sparks at different times and places was inadmissible as too remote. Nussbaum & Scharff v. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 194 S. W. 1099.

--- Associated or explanatory transactions.---In an action for injuries to a female passenger, who claimed to have had a miscarriage as a result thereof, evidence of statements showing a resolution by her, prior to former miscarriage, to resort, in case of pregnancy, to means to produce abortion held admissible. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Killett (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 979.

In an action to recover money paid for an alleged defective engine, where plaintiff's evidence tended to show that the engine was constructed on a wrong mechanical principle, so that it was worthless, defendant's evidence that other buyers of like engines found them satisfactory was admissible. Wilson v. Avery Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 884.

Similar wrongful acts.—Where there was nothing to show a settled system on the part of plaintiff of maintaining fictitious claims, an isolated instance of a fictitious claim by him for damages for personal injury is inadmissible to show that plaintiff was simulating his present injuries. Ft. Worth Belt Ry. Co. v. Cabell (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1032.

Evidence, in an action for the killing of a horse by a train, that animals of a third person had been killed by the train near there, and the company had always paid him therefor, is irrelevant and prejudicial. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Bandy (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 341.

In an action for a railroad engineer's death claimed to have been caused by bad track, evidence that the day before the engineer had run his engine at a high rate of speed some 12 or 14 miles from the place of the accident was inadmissible. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 621.

In an action for an injury to plaintiff's wife caused by being run over on a city street by defendant's automobile driven by his 11 year old son, the issue of the boy's carelessness and incompetency being raised, the court properly permitted a witness to testify that he had on two occasions met the boy with the automobile on the public road and he had on each occasion refused to give him any part of the road. Allen v. Bland (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 35.

In an action for the destruction of plaintiff's house by fire from defendant's locomotive, said locomotive had set fire on the right of way the day before held properly excluded. Moose v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 75. Writ of error granted (Sup.) 180 S. W. 225.

In action for damages from fire, evidence as to fire started by sparks from different held admissible to contradict testimony that sparks could not be thrown through spark arrester. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Brune (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 547.

In action for damages from fire, evidence as to fire set by another railway engine, held admissible to show negligent operation or negligence in permitting combustible material to remain on the track. 1d.

In action against railroad company for damages from fire, evidence as to fire set by another engine, held admissible to contradict testimony that sparks would go out before reaching the ground. Id.

In an action on note claimed to have been forged by G., evidence as to G.'s alleged forgery of checks held inadmissible without further evidence to show that it was part of a system. Lokey State Bank v. Bolin (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 54.

Evidence of other fires set on defendant's right of way was admissible to rebut testimony of defendant's master mechanic that all defendant's locomotives were properly constructed with proper appliances to prevent escape of fire, and that so equipped fire could not escape. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wood (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 512.

Evidence that a day or two before fire occurred a live cinder from one of defendant's locomotives then passing plaintiff's sawmill fell on floor thereof held admissible. 1d.

Similar transactions.—In a principal's action against an agent for losses sustained by alleged fraudulent reports as to purchasers' credit, evidence of transactions similar to those sued upon was inadmissible, but the agent's evidence that he followed principal's directions was admissible. Cooper v. Golding (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 92.

In suit to enforce mechanic's lien against a corporation, refusal to allow defendant to introduce as evidence a report of the corporation regarding the value of equipment leased to it was error. Kleps v. Bank of America (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 851.

Exclusion as res inter alios acta.—Where the question was whether insured had received timely notice of assessments, evidence that other members had received notices mailed at the time plaintiff's notice was alleged to have been mailed held inadmissible. State Division, Lone Star Ins. Union v. Blissengame (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 6.

In an action for work done, defended on the ground that the charges were excessive and the work inefficient, evidence that similar work done by plaintiff for others was inefficient and the charges excessive, is inadmissible. Randle v. Barden (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1063.

Where a deed was executed to carry out a written contract to convey land of the same as the deed, the contract merged in the deed, and, being neither acknowledged nor recorded, was res inter alios acta, and inadmissible as between third persons. First State Bank & Trust Co. v. Southwestern Engineering & Construction Co. (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 886.

In an action against a landlord on a promise to pay for goods furnished his tenant, that the landlord had given checks to the tenant to buy groceries with is res inter alios acta. Chilson v. Oehlem (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1074.

In suit to set aside a deed for fraudulent representations, a witness' testimony as to statements made to him similar to the alleged misrepresentations relied on held inadmissible, where such statements were not made in plaintiff's presence or communicated to her. Orient Land Co. v. Reeder (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 939.

In broker's action involving dispute as to value at which land was taken in payment, communication between attorney and purchaser held hearsay and res inter alios acta. Crass v. Adams (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 510.

It is not error to exclude from evidence a letter written to defendant by its agent in regard to plaintiff's claims for damages, for the letter is res inter alios acta. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. A. B. Want & Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 998.
In an action for damage to a shipment of bananas which a carrier had agreed to place in a roundhouse on request of the messenger who traveled with the train, as to roundhouse on other roads than those of the contracting carriers was inadmissible. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 369.

In an action for breach of timber-sawing contract, defense being that plaintiff sawed nonmerchantable timber, evidence as to character of timber admissible as to other parties by plaintiff was inadmissible. McKinnon v. Porter (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1112.

Similarity of conditions.—Upon the issue of the value of lands in condemnation proceedings, the court properly permitted a witness to testify as to the gross receipts from tracts of land which, though located at different points, was similar to the land in controversy. City of Ft. Worth v. Charbonneau (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 387.

Where carriers claimed damages to shipment of cattle were due to plaintiff's negligence in unloading and dipping them under quarantine regulations, evidence that the same treatment was accorded other cattle which were not injured held properly excluded, in the absence of a showing that they were in the same physical condition. Good v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 670.

In an action to recover freight overcharges on an interstate shipment of live stock, evidence as to the rate on a shipment based upon two local rates and not upon a through shipment at a through rate held inadmissible. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Dickson Bros. (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 33.

Evidence that train of 18 cars took a siding to wait for a through freight of only 13 cars offered to show that carrier was negligent in not handling plaintiff's shipment of cattle as a through shipment held improperly admitted for failure to show similar conditions. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Causey (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 359.

In an action for damages to a roundhouse, evidence that the cattle consumed by the plaintiff was the same as the cattle consumed by former shippers by plaintiff over defendant's road should not have been admitted where the conditions were not shown to be the same. Id.

In an action to rescind the sale of a traction engine, evidence that another engine of a different make, with a different number of plows, pulled a greater number of plows held inadmissible. Southern Gas & Gasoline Engine Co. v. Adams & Peters (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 1143.

Evidence that the interest charged on the deferred purchase money for school land was less than the usual rate held inadmissible. In suit to vacate sales, where the conditions were the same. King County v. Martin (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 960, judgment affirmed on rehearing 177 S. W. 1290.

In an action for damages to plaintiff's crop through defendant's irrigation company's failure to supply water, evidence based on damage caused to adjoining crop, conditions being shown to have been similar, held admissible. Lone Star Canal Co. v. Broussard (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 649.

Upon proper predicate that the situation, improvements, etc., of the lands are similar, the value of one parcel may be given in evidence on the value of the other. Foster v. Atir (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 520.

In an action for damages to land, it is not error to exclude evidence of the leasing value of adjoining land where it is not proved that the grass on such land is of as good quality as the grass on plaintiff's land. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Hargood (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1075.

In an action against a carrier for damage to cattle by delay, in the absence of evidence that other shipments by the plaintiff were subjected to the same conditions, evidence of the result to those shipments was inadmissible. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 311.

Where defendants claimed that the engine bought of plaintiff failed to develop the power to pull a freight train, evidence as to the power of plaintiff's engine in another gin plant, the same in all essential particulars, held admissible, subject to the court's discretion. Pegasins v. Texas Machinery & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 961.

In a servant's action for injury, testimony of a witness who examined the machinery before plaintiff's injury was admissible if it appeared that there had been no change in its condition since the accident, subject to the trial court's discretion with respect to the lapse of time. Winnsboro Cotton Oil Co. v. Carson (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 992.

In action for damages to shipment of live stock from delay, etc., evidence as to time in which witness had made a shipment over the same roads to a certain point was admissible where the testimony showed that the conditions connected with the shipments were similar. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Vaughn (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 142.

Similar conditions not being shown to exist in streams, evidence of strength of a bridge spanning one was not admissible in an action by a county for damages to its bridge across the other caused by failure of railway company's bridge to withstand flood. St. Antonio & S. P. Ry. Co. v. Milam County (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 751.

Evidence that bridges spanning the same stream below and above the one in question withstood floods, where conditions of bridge and water are not shown to be similar, is inadmissible to show strength of the bridge in question. Id.

Showing physical or mental condition.—Testatrix's state of mind at times other than that at which the will was executed has no probative force, except to show her state of mind at that time. Navarro v. Garcia (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 723.

Showing intent or malice or motive—Fraud.—In an action for fraudulent misrepresentations, by which the plaintiffs were induced to enter into a lease, evidence that similar representations were made to other parties by the same and that the time they were made to plaintiff was admissible. Loftus v. Sturgis (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 14.

Evidence that defendant made other fraudulent conveyances and was being sued at the time he made the conveyance under which intervener claimed is admissible to show fraudulent intent. First State Bank of Blackwell v. Knox (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 894.

Customs of business and part of series showing system or habit. — On plea of contributory negligence in that the deceased did not awake and get off, evidence of a custom written was admissible as explaining the subsequent status on the train and as tending to show that he was not necessarily in fault in having failed to alight. Pt. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Keith (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 142.

Where provision of contract requiring plaintiff riding on freight train with cattle to stay in the caboose while the train was moving was not pleaded, evidence as to his custom to ride in the caboose car if the train started while he was therein held properly admitted. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1065.

Where a lessee of a farm on shares claimed part of the hay grown after the failure of a specified crop, evidence that landlords in the vicinity allowed their tenants to harvest hay grown after the failure of usual crops, is admissible on the question whether the landlord agreed to allow the lessee to harvest such hay. Jackson v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 413.

In an action for injuries to a street car passenger falling from the car running on a curve, testimony of plaintiff that she never at any time got off the car at the site of the accident held admissible to contradict the testimony of the conductor that plaintiff deliberately walked to the car door and stepped off and fell. Dallas Consol. Electric St. Ry. Co. v. Stone (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 768.

In an action for the price of sound and healthy orange trees which however were frozen before delivery, evidence that the term “sound and healthy” meant, among nursery men, such condition as was certified to by inspectors from the department of agriculture, held inadmissible. Alsworth v. Reppert (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 1095.

In action for damages from seller's delivery of inferior goods, evidence of a custom of the buyer to furnish shipping directions held inadmissible, since a violation of such custom did not induce the seller’s breach of contract. Rhone Milling Co. v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 891.

Where a contract of sale provided that no conditions, except those mentioned therein, should be claimed, evidence that it was customary for a buyer to give directions held inadmissible. Id.

Customs of trades and provisions not repugnant to express statutes or rules of law have the force of law. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Ryon (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 526.

Evidence held to justify a finding that custom of trade required parties to contract by telephone conversations to make memoranda of contract completed by conversations. Walker Grain Co. v. Denison Mill & Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 555.

In the absence of a specific rule forbidding employes to make couplings by going between the cars, evidence of employes of a railroad that regard is admissible to rebut contributory negligence. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Winkler (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 691.

Customs and usages applicable to the letting of farms which are certain, uniform, and not discontinued, and long continued in the locality, are binding on parties to a lease of farm lands, and they are presumed to know them. Taylor v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1142.

Caution should be used in enforcing special customs and usages varying a contract. Id.

Where a tenant, by virtue of a custom, claimed part of a crop of Colorado grass hay grown on the land evidence of the custom in the locality, though not in the immediate vicinity, is admissible. Id.

Where a farm tenant showed a custom of tenants to retain part of the Colorado grass hay grown on the land, rebutting testimony that there was no such custom and that the landlord's other tenants did not claim the hay is admissible. Id.

As a custom practiced its patrons of notifying the lines did not read into a contract a custom which would require the company to notify a patron of a break in his private line which he was obliged to keep in repair. Josey v. Beaumont Waterworks Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 26.

In action for delay in transporting cattle, testimony, to rebut imputation of road's negligence in failing to have employes ready to make heavy repairs, that other roads operating where delay occurred kept no such employes on hand at night, was admissible. Id.

In action for damages to shipment of live stock, evidence of carrier's former custom to unload stock on arrival at certain place was incompetent as against carrier on issue of its negligence in not unloading stock upon arrival there. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Pavillard (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 998.

Testimony of custom of carrier to unload live stock at certain point held incompetent to abrogate the express terms of a shipping contract requiring the shipper to unload the stock on its arrival. Id.

In a railroad servant's action for injuries, where there was a written rule requiring a flag to be stationed when making repairs, evidence of custom in defendant's yards of doing light repair work without flags, held admissible on the question of contributory negligence. Texas & Pac. Ry. Co. v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 737.

In the raised issue whether the rule had been abandoned, evidence that a custom prevailed of doing light repair work without flags held admissible. Id.
In a railroad servant's action for injuries, evidence that it was customary for defendant's car inspector to exercise control over repairers and ordered plaintiff to go between cars, held admissible. Id.

In action by railroad servant for injuries, where on cross-examination plaintiff was questioned as to having stated his age incorrectly in application for employment it was proper to exclude his testimony as to his age in such circumstances. Kennedy v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1114.

Showing methods of preventing injury.—The admission of testimony that a witness was familiar with compresses, and that he had never seen one in which a specified part of the machinery was guarded by railing, held erroneous. Lawson v. Hamilton Compress Co. (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1029.

Other injuries or accidents from same or similar causes.—In a passenger's action for the loss of an eye, due to a particle of metal coming through the opening of an open toilet and embedding itself in his eye, the testimony of railroad workmen that they had never heard of such accident before did not show that the accident should not have been anticipated by defendant. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 984.

In an action for burning plaintiff's goods, where defendant's witnesses testified that the engines were equipped with the best spark arresters, plaintiff can show that the engines threw sparks and started fires. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Benjamin (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 379.

As bearing on the alleged negligence, in a servant's action for injury from the coming off of a belt while he was putting it on, that it was too short, evidence that on a subsequent attempt to put it on the same pulley it came off is admissible. Memphis Cotton Oil Co. v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 309.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff's mule at a cattle guard, evidence that stock frequently passed over cattle guards like the one in question was admissible. Stephenville N. & S. T. Ry. Co. v. Schrank (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 471.

In an action for injuries to a shipment of live stock in several cars, evidence of the condition of animals in a car as to which no notice of damage was filed held admissible to show the condition of animals in other cars; all animals being commingled at destination. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. McMillen (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 773.

In an action to which plaintiff claimed resulted from unventilated car, evidence that green peanuts, if confined before sufficiently dry, would necessarily be damaged is admissible. Cleburne Peanut & Products Co. v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1079.

Showing value—Sales of other property in general.—In an action against a carrier for damages to rough rice delayed in transportation, evidence of the consignee's account sales of the rice after it had been milled and more than three months after delivery was insufficient proof of the market value of the rice in its condition when it reached its destination. Gulf Coast Transp. Co. v. Dillard (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 635.

Testimony as to what plaintiff and other witnesses with property similarly situated would take for their property was inadmissible upon the issue of market value. Stanley v. Sumrell (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 697.

In an action for fraud in the sale of certain land, testimony of one of plaintiff's witnesses on cross-examination that witness had sold a 40-acre tract similar to plaintiff's, and situated near it for $100 an acre should have been permitted on the question of damages. Zavala Land & Water Co. v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 28.

While it is permissible, on the issue of the value of lands sought to be condemned, to show sales of similar lands in the vicinity at about the time of the condemnation, the court properly rejected testimony of a witness that he had sold 139 acres for $40 per acre, where no similarity of condition was shown. City of Ft. Worth v. Charbonnet (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 387.

In an action for breach of contract to deliver corn at points in Texas, published market reports of the Kansas City market held admissible. Walker Grain Co. v. Denison Mill & Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 555.

Difference in location of other property.—As evidence of the value of land, held, that court properly excluded testimony as to previous sales of land several miles distant and varying from the lands in controversy in different respects. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Plainview v. Slaton (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 742.

Value of other property.—In an action for damages from a railroad, evidence of the price paid and of a price subsequently offered for other property in the same block is properly excluded, where the matters entering into the values of the two properties are very dissimilar. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Dooley (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 594.

Newspaper market quotations could not be rejected as evidence of the market value of the cattle in controversy because referring to a different class, there being evidence that the class of cattle in controversy were as valuable as the class referred to in the newspapers. Houston Packing Co. v. Griffith (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 421.

In an action for value of steers killed by a locomotive, evidence of what plaintiff paid for a yoke of steers not so good as those killed was admissible. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 486.

In an action for depreciation of value of real estate by the construction of railroad tracks, exclusion of evidence as to value of adjoining property was not erroneous, where such property was dissimilar to that of plaintiff. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 997.
RULE 9. THE BEST EVIDENCE IS TO BE PRODUCED

1. Necessity and admissibility of best evidence—Existence of better evidence as ground of exclusion.—In a suit to recover money furnished to take up a note executed by a bank in liquidation, the rule that a written instrument is the best evidence of its contents was not available to plaintiff to exclude testimony that the debt evidenced by the note was created before the liquidation, and that it was the last of several renewals. First Nat. Bank of Merkel v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 873.

2. Authority of an agent has been conferred in writing, testimony as to statements by the agent as to his authority held inadmissible. White Sewing Mach. Co. v. Sneed (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 560.

3. Admissibility of best evidence.—In a suit to enjoin execution on judgment of the county court, held, that where the pleadings presented two phases, the judgment of the justice before whom the action was begun could be inquired into to show the theory of action. James McCord Co. v. Rea. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 649.

4. Exclusion of documentary evidence as inferior to oral evidence.—In a proceeding to enforce a landlord's lien for supplies, oral testimony that supplies were furnished the tenant's employee upon his written orders is admissible; the orders themselves not constituting any better evidence than the positive testimony of a witness having knowledge of the facts. Neblett v. Barron (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1167.

5. In an action for wrongful death, a witness who had sufficient acquaintance with deceased to estimate his earning capacity may testify as to his estimate, where they were not based upon any books, and it did not appear that deceased kept any books showing his earnings. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Penington (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 494.

7. Contents of writing, and facts or transactions described in or evidenced thereby—Payment or release.—While payment of taxes may be shown by the tax receipts or by evidence of the payor or payee or any one knowing of the payment, the tax collector cannot testify or show by certificate facts which are shown by the tax rolls; the rolls or certified copies thereof being the best evidence of their contents. Sullivan v. Pant (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 612.

8. Ownership, possession or control.—Testimony of defendant, sued for amount paid for note purporting to be secured by vendor's lien, that the first information he had of the defect in the vendor's title was from plaintiff held not incompetent as parol testimony prior to proof of real estate. Young v. Barcroft (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 598.

9. Defendant's ownership of the premises, in a suit to enjoin use therefor for a bawdyhouse, need not be proved by a deed, but direct testimony, admissions, or an act like rendering it for taxation, is competent. Campbell v. Peacook (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 714.

10. Judicial acts, proceedings and records.—To make a witness incompetent on the ground that he has been convicted of a felony, and not pardoned, such facts should have been shown by the court records; but it could be shown by other evidence, if it was sought to be shown for impeachment only. Daly v. State, 73 Cr. R. 531, 162 S. W. 1152.

11. Oral proof that a witness has been convicted of a felony and not pardoned, so as to make him incompetent, is competent to prove that fact, in the absence of timely objection that it be proved only by the judgment of conviction. Matthews v. State, 72 Cr. R. 464, 163 S. W. 723.

12. Where a judgment foreclosing a vendor's lien did not authorize a writ of possession and no such writ is found with papers in suit or on clerk's record, admission of testimony of sheriff, in suit to try title to the land, that he had dispossessed party in possession under writ of possession and order of sale was error. Jolley v. Brown (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 177.

13. In action to enjoin illegal sale of intoxicating liquors, district attorney's testimony that temporary injunction against defendant was in force is inadmissible. Zona Club v. State (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1106.

14. Corporate acts, proceedings and records.—The active officers of a corporation in charge of its affairs may testify as to the acts, purposes, and intentions of the corporation and conduct of its business personally known to them, proof of such facts not being confined to the resolutions of its board of directors. Lawson v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 699.

15. Conveyances, contracts and other instruments.—When the terms of an agreement are reduced to writing and signed by the parties, the writing is merely the evidence by which the contract can be proved, and, in the absence of fraud, accident, or mistake, is the best evidence. Edwards v. Old Settlers' Ass'n (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 423.

16. In an action for broker's commission, where plaintiff knew whether she had sold to a particular party, and whether defendant had authorized her to sell, he admitting that he had employed her to sell, she was properly allowed to testify to such facts. Black v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 493.

17. Books of account, private memoranda, statements and correspondence.—In an action for broker's commissions for sales for defendants, their ex-agent with whom the transactions were had held properly permitted to testify that he sent letters confirming sales to the purchasers on receipt of plaintiff's telegrams that sales had been made to them. E. R. & D. C. Kolp v. Brauer (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 859.
Testimony of expert who had examined voluminous books and accounts as to the 15. Fact of making or existence of writing.—The issuance of the stock of the corporations to its subscriber should be established by the stock itself, which should be produced as the best evidence, and parol evidence as to the issuance of such stock is inadmissible.
16. Writings collateral to issue.—The conveyance not forming the basis of plaintiff's cause of action, but which is merely a collateral matter, may be proved by parol with-
Where a bulletin prescribing speed of railway train was merely collateral to the main issue, the rule that the paper itself is the best evidence did not apply. Missouri, K. & T.
21. Original writing as best evidence—Copies in general.—Public records or documents.—A copy of a copy of the “expediente” issued to the original grantee of land by the Spanish Crown was not admissible in evidence. Sullivan v. Fant (Civ. App.) 186 S.
W. 612.
A vellum tracing of a map of a city addition was an original, and not a copy. Spencer Where, in a suit to foreclose a judgment lien, no reason was assigned for not producing the original execution claimed to have been issued within the statutory time, the entries on the justice court docket were not admissible to establish the fact. Spaulding
22. Grounds for admission of secondary evidence.—That admission of parol gives opportunity for perjury which might be avoided if the documents testified to were introduced, affords no ground for departing from the rule that if the document is destroy-testimony to prove existence of note which was shown not to be within jurisdiction of Where court found note was placed beyond its jurisdiction by acts of defendants, they could not be heard to demand its production before resort to secondary evidence to prove its contents. Id.

25. Preliminaries to admission of secondary evidence—Proof as to existence of primary evidence.—Before secondary evidence of contents of alleged deed is competent, proof must be made of its existence, execution, delivery, and acceptance. Village Mills Co. v.
Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 785.
In trespass to try title, recording of deed and an original receipt for it by clerk of county court held sufficient evidence of its existence as preliminary to admission by secondary evidence. Id.
26. — Proof as to destruction of loss of and search for primary evidence.—Before secondary evidence of contents of deed is competent, its loss or absence must be satisfactory explained. Village Mills Co. v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 785.
In suit to quiet title, proof of the destruction by fire of justice court records of a precinct in a county laid a proper predicate for the introduction of secondary evidence to prove the existence of such a judgment and execution issued thereon under which the land was sold. Brady v. Cope (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 678.

RULE 10. SECONDARY EVIDENCE OF THE CONTENTS OF A WRITING IS ADMISSIBLE WHEN THE PAPER IS IN THE HANDS OF THE OPPOSITE PAR-TY AND NOTICE TO PRODUCE IT HAS BEEN GIVEN

Proof as to possession or control of primary evidence.—In an action on an assigned insurance policy, evidence as to the mailing of a letter by the assignee to the insurer's agent, telling him of the assignment, held sufficient to justify the admission in evidence
162 S. W. 411.
Where, in suit to foreclose vendor's lien, plaintiff alleged the original deed was in defendant's possession, and that the latter had been duly notified to produce it and had failed, there was a proper predicate for secondary evidence of its contents. Stewart v.
Thomas (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 886.
Notice to produce primary evidence—Necessity in general.—Where a purchaser of land kept no copy of a letter which he wrote to the agent of vendors rescinding the contract on account of the fraud of their agent and had given the vendors notice to produce the letter, he had a right thereafter to testify as to its contents. Sargent v. Barnes (Civ.
App.) 159 S. W. 366.
Plaintiff having given defendants notice to produce correspondence and papers, and they having failed to do so, plaintiff was entitled to introduce carbon copies of letters
App.) 161 S. W. 899.
In an action for commissions for the sale of cattle, evidence held to show that the possession of a letter evidencing the contract was wrongfully obtained by defendant, thus rendering secondary evidence of the contents thereof admissible without notice to defendant to produce the original. Prieto v. Hunt (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 1.
In an action on account of fraud in copies of letters written by plaintiff to one of the defendants held erroneous; no notice to produce the originals being given. Walsh v. Methodist Episcopal Church South, of Paducah (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 241.
When the terms of which were in controversy, were in possession of appellant's counsel, and it was not produced pursuant to notice, parol evidence of its terms is admissible. Denman v. James (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1157.

RULE 11. WHEN A WRITTEN INSTRUMENT IS LOST, DESTROYED OR MUTI-LATED, OR IS OUT OF REACH OF A SUBSEQUENT POSSESSOR, SEC-ONDARY EVIDENCE IS ADMISSIBLE.

Mutilation, destruction or loss of primary evidence—By party offering secondary evidence.—Secondary evidence of a suit wherein defendants' predecessor in title, since deceased, was adjudged to have no title held properly admitted in trespass to try title, where the records of the suit had been burned. Martin v. Reid (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1094.

The introduction of letters must be shown before a witness can testify as to their contents.
Houston Packing Co. v. Griffith (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 431.

Writings in general.—If a reasonable effort has been made to obtain an original document, and there is no suspicion that the copy offered might differ from the original, the Judicial papers.—Where a probate order was attacked for want of jurisdiction over the subject-matter, and the records of the proceedings had been destroyed, parol evidence was admissible to show the contents of the destroyed record, but not to show the proceedings taken in the administration of the estate. Waterman Lumber & Supply Co.

v. Robins (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 360.

Where an original attachment and a return thereon was lost, secondary evidence of the contents of the attachment and return was admissible. Rule v. Richards (Civ. App.)
195 S. W. 336.

If the pleadings in county court, being written, were lost or destroyed, their contents in a suit established by judgment may be established from whom the cause was appealed. James McCord Co. v. Rea (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 469.

Orders, warrants and negotiable instruments.—Secondary evidence of contents of note held admissible on proof having been made of its destruction, though such destruction was not pleaded. Allen v. Rettig (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 215.

Proof as to destruction or loss of and search for primary evidence—Method of proof.
—In an action to recover an interest in land, where the address of a letter from plain-tiff's intestate gave evidence that he thought that the letter read to him was a copy of the original which he thought he had and which if found he would attach to his deposition, but which plaintiff did not lay a proper predicate for the introduction of the Contracts and assignments.—Where a carrier did not contend that it did not issue contracts for return transportation of a shipper who lost them, he could testify to

Letters and telegrams.—A telegram received in response to a letter mailed to the adverse party is properly received in evidence as against the adverse party who purported to have signed the telegram, where the original telegram had been destroyed.

Primary evidence beyond the court's jurisdiction.—Testimony as to the contents of certain letters and telegrams was admissible where they were shown to be without the

RULE 12. THE BURDEN OF PROOF LIES ON THE PARTY ASSERTING A FACT ESSENTIAL TO HIS RIGHT OF ACTION OR DEFENSE AND PUT IN ISSUE
BY THE PLEADINGS OF THE ADVERSE PARTY

I. Presumptions in General

1. Inference from facts proved.—Where, in trespass to try title, the evidence showed that any title acquired by plaintiff for S., who was then trustee for defendant, inured to defendant's benefit, and that the land was recovered by defendant in an action against S., when an accounting of the trust estate was had, it is presumed plaintiff, who was a party to the other action, was then reimbursed for the amount paid for the land so that defendant herein was not bound to show a tender of the sum paid by plaintiff for the Circumstances establishing that a person was killed by a train at a public crossing through the negligence of the railroad's servants must be shown by direct evidence and cannot be inferred from other circumstances. Luten v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 798.

A "presumption of fact" is a probable inference which common sense, enlightened by human knowledge and experience, draws from the connection, relation, and coincidence of facts and circumstances with each other, being always to be drawn by the jury. Id.

4. Presumption on presumption.—On the issue whether a person bought a piano, testimony that at the time of the alleged transaction a third person hailed to the house of the piano held inadmissible under the rule against introducing one inference on

845
The basis of the county court's decision could not be established by the judgment of the justice before whom suit originated. James McCord Co. v. Rea (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 649.

Presumption cannot be based on presumption to make out a case. Clampitt v. St. Louis Southern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 342.

5. Identity of persons and things.—In the absence of evidence casting suspicion upon, or being evidence to contradict or to support a similar deed or identity of name held prima facie evidence of identity of persons. Hill & Jahns v. Lofton (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 67.

6. Nature and condition of property or other subject-matter.—When the word "dollars," is used in testimony in an American court, the presumption is that American money, the same as in Motolin v. Gonzales (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 259.

7. Health and physical condition.—In ascertaining when children of a class not otherwise determined shall be ascertained, it is presumed, under the common law, that a man or woman is capable of having issue until death. Reeves v. Simpson (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 68.

8. Love of life and avoidance of danger.—A freight brakeman is presumed by law to have acted with ordinary care in switching to protect himself from being thrown from the car by the usual and ordinary force incident to such work, and which he should have reasonably anticipated. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Stalcup (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 279.

In an action on a fraternal benefit certificate, it is not presumed that insured committed suicide, which did not. Sovereign Camp of Woodmen of the World v. McCulloch (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1154.

9. Mental capacity in general.—A child over 14 years old is presumptively competent to testify. Douglas v. State, 73 Cr. R. 385, 165 S. W. 933.

10. Intent.—Knowledge of vendor and purchaser that the lien of a purchase-money note could not be removed might well raise the presumption that it was not contemplated that it should be removed, rebuttable, however, by proof to the contrary. Riggins v. Post (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 210.

Where an act of conversion is unauthorized by the owner, the intent to convert will be conclusively presumed. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Pratt (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 103.

It must be presumed that testator knew the legal effect of the provisions of his will when he executed it. Hagood v. Hagood (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 220.

The shipper of an interstate shipment is charged with knowledge of the law, a written bill of lading will be issued, which will include all terms and conditions of the transportation, that there were tariff rates fixed, and that they must include the rate for the entire transportation, and that there was a lower and a higher rate. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Smyth (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 70.

12. Continuance of fact or condition.—There is no presumption that property, when delivered to the carrier for carriage, was in the same condition as when delivered to the consignee, where there was evidence that it was in good condition when delivered to the company and was damaged when delivered to the consignee. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Western Automatic Music Co. (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 386.

Under the rule that the continued existence of a status is presumed, it will be presumed that one who was unmarried when he left home when between 17 and 21 years of age, and who was not afterwards heard of, remained unmarried until he died. Wells v. Margraves (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 881.

When assail of land is shown to exist, the presumption is that it continues to exist until the contrary is shown. Hill & Jahns v. Lofton (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 67.

A domicile once acquired is presumptively retained until otherwise shown. International N. Ry. v. Anderson County (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 390.

Where a person was insane on a certain date, there is a presumption, in the absence of proof, that the condition continues. Rowan v. Hodges (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 847.

When a power is shown to have existed, it will be presumed that it continues, and that third parties, without notice of a revocation thereof, are Justified in so presuming. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Dickey (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 69.

Evidence that carrier waived rule requiring advance payment of freight held to raise presumption that value of goods was the same at conversion as at time of storage eight months previously. Whitley v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 56.

Ordinarily a custom once shown to exist is, in the absence of testimony showing its abrogation, presumed to continue. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Pavillard (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 998.

Where plaintiff's business has existed for more than a year, and has steadily increased and was profitable the court will presume that plaintiff would continue in business. Grand Prairie Gravel Co. v. Joe B. Wilis Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 680.

Ordinarily a custom once shown to exist is, in the absence of testimony showing its abrogation, presumed to continue. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Pavillard (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 998.

Where plaintiff's business has existed for more than a year, and has steadily increased and was profitable the court will presume that plaintiff would continue in business. Grand Prairie Gravel Co. v. Joe B. Wilis Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 680.

Evidence that parents of deceased were living in 1913 did not show that they were living in 1915. San Antonio Portland Cement Co. v. Gschwender (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 599.

13. Regularity of course of business or conduct of affairs.—In action for damages to shipment which carriers claimed was illegal, because shipped at a lower rate than that specified in its tariff sheets, held that, in the absence of evidence, it would be presumed that the carriers' agent at destination collected the scheduled rate. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Commons (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 1107.

Where the deed of a trustee was an ancient document, held, that it would be presumed that he compiled with the provisions of the trust deed. Wacasee v. Rockland Savings Bank (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 737.
In seller's action for conversion of cotton by compress company, which was to weigh it, it would be presumed that draft attached to bill of lading was promptly presented by seller's bank and by buyer before delivery to compress company. Shippers' Compress & Warehouse Co. v. Cumby Mercantile & Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 744.

Lapse of 30 years since the execution of a deed by a county judge without record evidence of its authorization held insufficient to create a presumption that he was given authority. Spencer v. Levy (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 550.

Under art. 25040 compliance with the requirement of article 2504n cannot be presumed in a writing for building contract. Kerbow v. Woolbridge (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 746.

At the trial of condemnation proceedings after plaintiff had taken possession and constructed its road, it will be presumed that the road was properly and skillfully constructed and that whatever was done was necessary and proper. Jefferson County Trac­tion Co. v. Wilhelm (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 448.

20. Making, validity, and genuineness of writings.—The execution of a deed may be proved by circumstances, or by the presumption from the existence of such muniments of title as are necessary to give lawful origin to a title long openly asserted on one side, with acquiescence in such claim on the other. Le Blanc v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 60.

Where it appears more probable that a deed or other muniment of title in question had been executed than that it had not been, the jury will be authorized to presume that it had been so executed. Id.

The rule that parol evidence cannot be offered over objection to prove a sale of land in this state has no application to a case where circumstances are relied on to support a presumption of a deed. Id.

The presumption of the execution or existence of a deed from the facts and circumstances shown is a presumption of fact. Id.

The execution of a deed or other muniment of title may be presumed from mere silence or failure to object to another's known assertion of title, without any corroborating act tending to acquiescence. Id.

21. Mailing and delivery of mail matter.—Notices of assessments, if mailed, would be presumed to have been received. State Division, Lone Star Ins. Union, v. Blissengame (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 6.

An indorsement on a letter, sent by an insurer's state agent to its home office, of the words, "Received June 11, 1906," was not of itself evidence of the receipt of the letter, in the absence of connecting proof that the party making the indorsement represented the insurance company, and had authority to make it. Security Trust & Life Ins. Co. v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 356.

In suit against buyers of stallion by contract stipulating for return by certain date, evidence of defendants' counsel held presumptive evidence that letter offering to return horse had been received by sellers. First Nat. Bank of La Fayette, Ind., v. Fuller (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 320.

22. Corporate acts and records.—In a suit to enjoin a telephone company from using the streets for its line, it will be presumed that it had attempted in good faith to incorporate under the law, and actually exercised its franchise thereunder; these elements of a de facto corporation being presumed. Roaring Springs Township v. Paducah Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 50.

Where a deed from a corporation to its president recited that it was authorized by resolution of the board of directors, and it was signed by the president and attested by the secretary under the seal of the corporation, it will be presumed that the officers were acting under the authority of the corporation. Coleman v. Luetke (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1117.

It must be presumed that one member of board of trustees of church, who with the others, was plaintiff in garnishment suit, had full authority to make application on behalf of all of them for writs of garnishment and to make statutory affidavit. Queen Ins. Co. v. Keller (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 355.

If church trustees are joint, it will be presumed that one of them who made application for a half of all the writs of garnishment was authorized by all jointly to do so, since, if they were corporation trustees, they had power of corporation management, and, if they were trustees of an unincorporated church, they will be presumed to have the same powers as corporation directors. Id.

On allegation in suit to recover of railway sum paid by plaintiff as switching charges from his gravel pit to another railway, which defendant failed to absorb, it would not be presumed that defendant absorbed a greater amount of charges for competing gravel pits. White Rock Gravel & Sand Co. v. International & G. N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 250.

It will be presumed that the sale of property of a public service corporation was made under the statute authorizing such sale until the contrary affirmatively appears. Gulf Pipe Line Co. v. Lasater (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 773.

In determining whether a power has been granted to a municipality, the presumption is against grant, but in determining whether it is properly exercising power, presumption is in favor of propriety, and to enjoin such exercise it must appear that corporation is abusing its discretion. Waldschmidt v. City of New Braunfels (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1077.

23. Evidence withheld or falsified.—The failure of a party to produce evidence within his control raises the presumption that if produced it would operate against him. London v. Halcomb (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1098; Hazelrigg v. Naranjo (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 310.

In action for damage to railroad, false statement of company. Ship­pers' Compress & Warehouse Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 793.

The failure of a defendant to produce evidence particularly within his knowledge raises a presumption against him only when a plaintiff, having the burden of proof on the point, has produced evidence sufficient to raise an issue as to the truth of his claim. Thomas v. Clarke & Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 951.

Where a plaintiff did not seek to contradict defendant's testimony denying the whole basis of his cause of action, the presumption arose that he had no testimony to controvert it. Miller v. Poulter (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 106.

In an action on policy of fraternal insurance by beneficiary named, failure of defendant to produce at trial certificate of and application for insurance, delivered to it with proofs of death, held circumstance against it tending to weaken its defense that the insured had in her application falsely represented her age to be under 45 years. Collins v. United Brothers, Fraternity & Sisters (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 900.

24. — Failure of party to testify or giving evasive answers.—Failure of plaintiff for personal injury to wife, to testify as to material facts directly under his observation, allows a presumption against him. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 717.

In action on policy of fraternal benefit insurance in which defendant alleged that insured committed suicide, and it appeared that insured was killed by "pistol shot, self-inflicted," failure of plaintiff, who saw alleged suicidal act, to testify warrants inference that she knew truth would not help her case. Knights of Maccabees of the World v. Hair (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 801.

A party's failure to testify on a point as to which he must have knowledge raises a strong presumption against him. Day v. Williams (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 239.

25. — Failure to call witness.—In the absence of some prima facie showing of defendant's knowledge of plaintiff's peril, no inference in his favor could be drawn that defendant's failure to introduce its trainmen as witnesses. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. West (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 387.

Where the defendant master had in its employ at the time of trial servants who witnessed the accident, but failed to produce them, it will be presumed that their evidence was not favorable to the master. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Blair (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 669.

Evidence of claim under deed and subsequent transfers making claim of title depending on it sufficiently shows its acceptance as preliminary to admission of secondary evidence of deed. Village Mills Co. v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 785.

In a foreman's action for injury from fall of hoisting elevator, defendant's failure to introduce its engineer as a witness created no presumption that his testimony on that issue, if produced would be unfavorable to the defendant. Burrell Engineering & Construction Co. v. Grisier (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 102.

26. — Suppression or spoliation of evidence.—Where the evidence in an action for the death of a railroad engineer showed that he was ordered to pass another train, and defendant might have rebutted the presumption that the order was written in a certain way, arising from the fact that both the conductor and the engineer read it in that way, its failure to produce it strengthened the presumption. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1171.

27. Laws of other states.—In the absence of allegations and proof to the contrary, it will be assumed that the laws of another state are the same as the laws of the forum. Ogg v. Ogg (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 912; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Schoonmaker (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 263; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 519.

Where, in an action against a telegraph company for mental anguish for delay in the delivery of a message and for the price paid for transmission, the company proved, but where an action was for mental anguish alone the law of the forum controlled, the court correctly indulged in the presumption that the law of New Mexico was the same as the law of the forum. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 905.

A contract which is valid in Texas is presumably valid in a sister state. Whited v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 812.

In the absence of proof of the laws of another state, it will be presumed they are the same as an issuance of stock or mortgage, to prohibit issuing stock for money paid, labor done, or property actually received. Farmers & Merchants' State Bank v. Falvey (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 823.

That the county court, by proper orders, continued the temporary administration of plaintiff, so long as necessary for the purpose of the appointment, will be presumed. El 40% Custody of children. — While the best interests of a child should determine the question of its custody, there is a presumption in favor of the surviving parent, and, in the absence of evidence of his disqualification, he has a paramount right to custody. State v. Dowdell (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 2.

41. Negotiable instruments. — It is presumed that a check would have been paid if diligently presented. Dorchester v. Merchants' Nat. Bank of Houston, 106 Tex. 201, 163 S. W. 56; L. R. A. (N. S.) 542.

Where a negotiable instrument is shown to have been indorsed in blank, there is a presumption that it was so indorsed and transferred before maturity. Daniel v. Spaeth (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 509.

A third party's indorsement of draft drawn by defendant, payable to plaintiff bank, held presumed to have been a part of the original transaction. Harper v. Winfield State Bank (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 627.

Where it is shown that notes were put in circulation fraudulently, there is no presumption that the indorsee is an innocent holder. National State Bank of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, v. Ricketts (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 528.

As under Rev. Stat. 1911, art. 588, the validity of an indorsement of a note cannot be attacked unless it is specially questioned in the pleadings, there is a presumption that an indorsement in blank was made before maturity, and the holder is presumed to be the owner. First Nat. Bank of Garner, Iowa, v. Smith (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 862.

42. Boundaries. — In the absence of evidence to the contrary, it will be presumed that the surveyor in locating an original survey of state land actually ran and established all

The text continues with more citations and legal principles.
In trespass to try title, held, that the presumption was that bearing trees at points called for by field notes were there once, and, even in their absence, the boundaries of the survey would be fixed in accordance with the notes. Goodrich v. West Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 341.

44. Contracts.—If the vendor examined the contract of sale and did not rely on any representations of the purchaser as to its contents, the minds of the parties are presumed to have met in executing it, in absence of fraud. Wright v. Bott (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 360.

Provision that purchaser was to eliminate an indebtedness against east half of the tract tended to raise a presumption of the exclusion of other indebtedness. Riggins v. Post (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 210.

In an action for fraud in representing the value of bonds given for the difference on an exchange of realty, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, it must be presumed that the parties put the true value on the property they exchanged. Moore v. Beakley (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 389.

In absence of contrary evidence, it will be presumed that farm rentals are not due until the crop is gathered. J. B. Parthuring Lumber Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 453.

45. Damages.—In an action against a carrier for damages to rice delayed in transportation, the burden was on plaintiff to show, not only that the damage occurred in transit, but to show the market value of the rice as it should have been delivered to the consignee, and also its market value in the condition in which it was delivered. Gulf Coast Transp. Co. v. Dillard (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 625.

Mental suffering from personal injuries will be presumed in the case of an insane person to be of such abnormal duration, until such party from experiencing mental suffering is proved. Tweed v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Sup.) 166 S. W. 696, affirming judgment Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Tweed (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1155, and rehearing denied Tweed v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Sup.) 177 S. W. 367.

Damages, which must be actual or liquidated, are presumed to flow from a breach of contract. Reinhardt v. Borders (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 791.

46. Death.—It will be presumed that one is dead who, when last heard of was shot and carried to a hospital. Wells v. Margraves (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 831.

Where mutual wills, were frozen to death in the same snowstorm, with no evidence as to which died first, there was no presumption as to survivorship or simultaneous death. Fitzgerald v. Ayres (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 289.

47. Delivery of deed.—That a deed was recorded raises presumption of its delivery. Village Mills Co. v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 785.

That a deed was recorded raises presumption of its delivery which is sufficient proof of delivery preliminary to admission of secondary evidence of deed. Id.

A delivered instrument plainly amounting to a deed of gift should operate by presumed assent until a dissent or disclaimer appears. Taylor v. Sanford (Sup.) 133 S. W. 661.

48½. Domicile.—The presumption that every man has a fixed domicile applies as well to a single as to a married man. Marson v. Troy (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 960.

50. Judicial sales.—Where a widow's interest in community property was sold to pay debts, it would not be presumed that it was necessary to sell the same to pay community debts, where there was an agreement of the parties to the contrary. Waterman Lumber & Supply v. Robins (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 360.

Where an administrator in August, 1850, recited that, some time in 1843 or 1844 he conveyed the land in controversy to S. In consideration of his claims against the intestate's estate, it would be presumed, the deed being lost, that the conveyance was subsequent to the last will dated June 2, 1843 (Gammel's Laws, p. 99); Hartley's Dig., art. 1076, and was therefore based on legal authority. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Sudduth (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 556.

58. Marriage.—Where a transferee of a school land entryman was married to A., and they lived together as man and wife for many years until the husband's death in 1908, and he recognized children born to A. as his own, it would be presumed in support of the title derived from the heirs that the transferee's prior marriage to another woman had been set aside under Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 1985. Chambers v. Rawls (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 208.

59. Mortgages.—Where chattel mortgage to secure future advances authorized mortgagees to make advances to excess of those stipulated, it will be presumed agreement for advances in excess of amount stipulated was made after amount stipulated had been furnished. G. M. Carleton Bros. & Co. v. Bowen (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 732.

60. Negligence in general.—Neither negligence nor causal connection between it and the injury will be presumed from the fact of injury alone. Stone & Webster Engineering Corporation v. Brewer (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 35.

Theft of bailed property is not presumptive evidence of the bailor's negligence. Stanley v. Colony Union Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 381.

61. — Proximate cause.—Where defendant's foreman was occupying a boarding car in which originated, the presumption was, in the absence of testimony tending to sustain a different conclusion, that it began through some act or failure to act on his part or on the part of other employees. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Moerbe (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 128.
Contributory negligence.—Contributory negligence cannot be presumed. Wells Fargo & Co. v. Benjamin (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 120.

In the absence of contrary evidence, it must be assumed that plaintiff conducted himself as a prudent person should have done under the circumstances. Id.

Where an employee fell 52 feet, and the concussion and injury were such that the circumstances were a blank to him, held, that it would be presumed that he was exercising due care, in the absence of circumstances pointing to the contrary. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Dinwiddie (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 459.

In the absence of evidence whether decedent looked or listened for train, the presumption was that he did both in the exercise of ordinary care. Hovey v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1025.

In an action against railroad for death of its yard clerk, it cannot be presumed that decedent was guilty of negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Fred (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 896.

A child of very tender years may be presumed as matter of law not to have sufficient discretion to appreciate dangers obvious to one of mature age; there is no such presumption as to a boy 14 years old. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 491.

Carriage of goods.—Where live stock sustains injuries while being transported with ordinary care, it will be presumed that they were caused by the inherent nature or proper vice of the animals, and not by any negligence of the carrier. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Berry (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 125.

Where the shipper accompanied cattle and was as well placed as the carrier to know the cause of injuries, there is no presumption that injuries were caused by the delivering, instead of the initial carrier. San Antonio, U. & G. Ry. Co. v. Storey (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 188.

In an action against a connecting carrier, evidence held sufficient to rebut the presumption that the cattle were received by defendant from the initial carrier in good condition. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 273.

Partnership.—Promoters of a railroad working together in furthering whatever scheme they had, in the absence of proof to the contrary, would be presumed to be partners. Vaughn v. Morris (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 564.

Payment.—Where notes are taken for a precedent debt, it will not be presumed that they are taken as payment, and the burden is on the party asserting it. Russell v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Plainview (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 460.

Possession by the maker of a note is prima facie evidence that it has been paid. Smith v. Cross (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1050.

A recital in a release executed by the president of a mortgagee bank that the note secured by the mortgage had been paid in full while the bank was the owner thereof supports a finding of payment. First State Bank of Amarillo v. Jones (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1956, judgment reversed (Sup.) 183 S. W. 874.

Where principal maker of note executed a renewal, but original was not delivered to him in exchange, there is a presumption that it was not the intention of the parties to discharge original by delivery to payee of the new note. Jackson v. Home Nat. Bank of Baird (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 283.

For the vendor or one succeeding to his rights to rescind for nonpayment of vendor's lien note, after waiting over 20 years, he must pay back, with interest, the cash payment made. Wall v. Cruise (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1033.

Where a judgment for a claimed owner of land decreeing him title on condition that he pay another claimant a certain sum, which was entered in 1881, and the abstract further showed a conveyance by such person within three months of the judgment, it will be conclusively presumed in 1912 that the required payment was made and the title was good or marketable. Strickland v. Duffie (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 622.

Failure to foreclose deed of trust for 25 years after maturity of the debt raises a presumption that the debt had been paid, in the absence of production of the note or of evidence that it had not been paid. Mensing v. Fidelity Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 205.

Existence of agency and extent of authority.—On motion to quash sequestration, the court will presume the authority of plaintiff's agent who signed the bond. Hawkins v. First Nat. Bank of Canyon, Tex. (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 163.

Custom or usage to enlarge scope of agent's authority must exist long enough to become generally known so as to warrant presumption of silent inclusion by principal. Holmes v. Tyner (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 887.

Agency when once shown to exist is presumed to be general, and not special. Hazzard v. Naranjo (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 516.

Where corporation's bond is offered in evidence without objection, presumption is, in absence of evidence to contrary, that officer who signed was duly authorized. Eastern Texas Traction Co. v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 502.

Where an unrecorded land certificate was transferred many years ago pursuant to a power of attorney recited in the conveyance, the transfer will be presumed to have been executed under sufficient authority. Huling v. Moore (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 188.

Ownership and possession.—The rule that possession of a note is prima facie evidence of title does not apply to a note payable to order not transferable by delivery. Hollowell v. Gilmore (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1089.

A finding that plaintiffs had no title by limitation does not destroy the presumption of title, raised by proof, that their grantors had prior possession of the property. Buis v. Penn (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 647.
Unexplained possession of defendant raises presumption of fee-simple title, which must be overcome by showing he has no title, or that plaintiff has title as against the world. Randell v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 735.

Where defendant in trespass to try title is in possession, there is a presumption of title in him, authorizing recovery against persons failing to make affirmative showing of title. Speed v. Berry (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 781.

In action for value of horse killed on defendant railroad's right of way, it would be presumed that all cars operated on defendant's line were operated by it. Quannah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Price (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 865.

76. Public lands.—Where land was sold by the governor of a Mexican state, now within the state of Texas, the approval of the Mexican government, required by its acts and regulations, held to be presumed. State v. Gallardo, 166 S. W. 294.

In the absence of an agreement to deliver goods sold at a particular place, the presumption is that delivery is to be made at the place of sale, and in such case, though sale is by sample, acceptance need not be shown. Robert McLane Co. v. Swernemann & Schkade (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 282.

73. Validity of statutes.—A statute will not be declared invalid unless its invalidity is beyond reasonable doubt. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Empire Express Co. (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 217; Judkins v. Robison (Sup.) 169 S. W. 685; Ex parte Francis, 73 Tex. 190, 105 S. W. 167; State v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 491; Glass v. Pool, 106 Tex. 269, 186 S. W. 376; Ex parte Mode (Cr. App.) 190 S. W. 708.

It will be presumed that the Legislature knew when it enacted the Employers' Liability Act, that contributory negligence would bar a recovery by employee. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Vernon (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 84.

In testing the constitutionality of a statute, the language must receive such construction as will conform it to any constitutional limitation or requirement, if it be susceptible of such interpretation. Glass v. Pool, 106 Tex. 269, 186 S. W. 376.

It will not be presumed that the Legislature intended an act to be so construed as to render it unconstitutional. State v. Post (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 401, certified questions answered by Supreme Court (Sup.) 169 S. W. 497. Judgment reversed 106 Tex. 500, 171 S. W. 707.

A law will be recognized as valid if, by reasonably fair construction, it appears that the Legislature was empowered to enact it. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Griffin, 171 S. W. 703, 106 Tex. 477, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 683.

Where there could have existed a state of facts justifying the classification made by a statute, the courts will assume that it existed. Bruce v. City of Gainesville (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 41.

II. Presumptions on Appeal or Writ of Error

The court on appeal, to sustain the judgment, may, in the absence of anything in the record to the contrary, presume that proof of an essential fact was made. Delaware Ins. Co. v. Hutto (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 73.

Where the record is silent as to the appointment of an official court stenographer, the presumption on appeal is that none was asked for or appointed. Security Trust & Life Ins. Co. v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 108.

In a purchaser's action for the vendor's breach, evidence as to the purchaser's readiness, ability, and willingness to comply with the contract held to be viewed in the light most favorable to the judgment. Cornelius v. Harris (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 346.

Where the trial court found that a telegraph company regularly closed its offices from 8 p.m. Saturday until 10 a.m. the following morning, yet did not find that such closing hours were reasonable, and there was no statement of facts in the record, the Court of Civil Appeals could not imply a further finding that such office hours were reasonable. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 903.

In action for death of a railway employee, claimed to have been caused by slipping on brake step of platform, held, that it could not be assumed, in the absence of other evidence, that the jury found point on the brake platform admitted in evidence, or indications evidencing a slip thereon. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Welshimer (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 265.

Where the record of a case does not show whether the stock law prohibiting horses and other animals from running at large was in force, the court on appeal will presume that it was not in force. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Lovell (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1111.

Where the record shows only part of the proceedings, every presumption will be indulged in favor of the court's ruling. Hamilton v. Eiland (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 266.

Where, it being uncertain in whose possession the property was when seized, the record does not show that the court directed which party should assume the burden of proving right of possession will be presumed the burden was on the writ plaintiff. Dawudoff v. Hooper (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 522.

78. Burden of showing error.—One attacking the findings of the trial court has the burden of affirmatively establishing error on appeal. Crawford v. Woods (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 667; Burlington State Bank v. Marlin Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 499.

Appellant, complaining of the absence of any petition to support the judgment rendered, failed in establishing the fact upon which he relied. Wiggin v. First Nat. Bank of Denton (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 785.

An order overruling a motion to vacate a default held to reasonably show that no evidence was heard, so that one appealing need not show any evidence was heard. International Travelers’ Ass’n v. Peterson (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1196.

79. Grounds and forms of action of defense.—Where the court found that there were places provided for watering the stock in transit by the keeper in charge, but that he negligently failed to do so, it would be presumed that the contract imposed on such keeper the duty of watering the mules. Dickerson v. San Antonio, U. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1045.

80. Jurisdiction.—Suit held presumed to have been filed in time to stop the running of limitations, where the record did not show when it was filed and trial court found against the claim of title by limitation. Rio Grande & E. P. R. Co. v. Kinkel (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 314.

A presumption in favor of a court of general jurisdiction acting within the ordinary scope of its powers and upon a subject-matter within its jurisdiction arises only as to jurisdictional facts on which the record is silent, but the regularity of a judgment will not be presumed against a record disclosure that the court exceeded its jurisdiction. Ginn v. Lofton (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 67.

Where the record does not affirmatively show want of jurisdiction in the trial court, such jurisdiction will be presumed. Reeves v. Fiquia (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 34.

Grounds of jurisdiction, judgment of justice on note and foreclosing lien on furniture cannot be attacked on appeal from county court on ground that value of furniture was beyond jurisdiction of justice; such value not being shown by justice's record. Robertson v. Balkam (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 583.

81. Venue.—In determining, on appeal, whether a plea of privilege to be sued in the county of defendant's residence was properly sustained it will be presumed that the allegations of the petition which are material for the purposes of determining the proper venue are true. Theodore Keller Co. v. Mangum (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 19.

On appeal from district court of T. county, to which sequestration suit had been taken by certiorari, held that, in the absence of the writ of certiorari from the record, it would be presumed to support the judgment, that claimant residing in D. county had admitted that the property was in defendant's possession when levied on. Josey v. Masters (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1134.

When a verdict found defendant's residence in accordance with plaintiff's claim, and the court entered judgment for plaintiff without mentioning the plea of privilege, the Court of Civil Appeals will regard the action as overruling the plea. Littlefield v. Clayton Bros. (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 194.

82. Parties.—Where, in trespass to try title by an independent executor, the record of the proceedings showing the appointment and qualification of the executor was introduced, and there was nothing to show that the estate had been wound up by the probate court, it will be presumed that the executor was acting executor, and as such could maintain the suit. Purinton v. Broughton (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 227.

On appeal from a judgment sustaining exceptions to a motion to reinstate a cause dismissed for prosecution, it could not be presumed that all of the defendants were given notice of the motion, where the judgment recited that certain defendants were not served with notice. McAllen v. Crafts (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 3.

83. Process and appearance.—Where the court found plaintiff's full claim to be a laborer's lien upon property in the possession of defendant, notwithstanding plaintiff had extended the time of payment of a part, it cannot be presumed that the legal process by which defendant acquired possession, or the lien it asserted, was valid. Carthage Ice & Light Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 12.

Where the record shows merely that the cause was continued after answer filed without notice thereof, it cannot be presumed that plaintiff requested or agreed there-to, and the continuance does not operate as an appearance by plaintiff. Smith v. Carr (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 602.

There is no presumption, on appeal from a default judgment, that process was served the requisite statutory time before the term at which default was entered. McCouley v. Western Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1000.

Where the record showed nothing to the contrary, held, that it will be presumed on appeal, defendants being served in a county other than that of their residence, that they were served with an alias writ. Pierson v. Beard (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 785.

84. Pleading.—Where, in an action for usurious interest paid, the record does not show when the petition was filed, but that the answer was filed September 5, 1911, and that practically all of the interest was paid in less than two years before the appellate court will presume that the petition was filed within two years subsequent to payment. Cotton v. Sanderson (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 658.

Where the original answer which alone set up defendant's plea of privilege was not in the record, it will be presumed that the plea was properly denied. Hambleton v. Southwest Texas Baptist Hospital (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 574.
In view of Rev. St. 1911, arts. 1812, 2157, et seq., relating to pleadings and lost pleadings, the corrected transcript of lost pleading was used to support judgment, it would be assumed that the pleading was before court at its rendition of judgment. Wiggins v. First Nat. Bank of Denton (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 735.

In the absence of pleadings in the record, it must be presumed that they were sufficient. The rulings of the court theretofore are correct, especially where it does not appear that any exceptions were called to the attention of the court and ruled upon. Wertheimer v. Hargreaves Printing Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 382.

While appellate court may presume that pleadings were filed by interveners, held that the pleadings where it was assumed that such pleadings in record showed that interveners were entitled to priority over the original garnishor. Reinertsen v. E. W. Bennett & Sons (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1027.

Where plaintiff's pleadings before a justice were oral and there was no memoranda thereof in record from the county court, allegations in his petition will be presumed to have been consistent with the rulings of trial judge. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Goodman (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 326.

Court of Civil Appeal must presume other oral pleading in justice court on behalf of plaintiff, not inferable from statement thereof in charge, necessary to sustain county court's judgment, if consistent with the charge, but cannot presume allegations contradictory to statement thereof in written charge. Id.

Where the trial court has sustained a general demurrer, the Court of Civil Appeals ordinarily will presume that the litigant against whom the ruling was made will not feel called upon to amend his petition as called for by some special exception, intended to reach informality only, though the special exception is well taken. Anderson v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 336.

85. — Demurrer.—Where the record does not show that demurrors or exceptions to the petition were ever presented to court ruled upon by the trial court, they will be presumed upon to have been waived. Cotton v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 977; Gillett v. Holligan (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 967; Halea v. Peters (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 386; Teques v. Texas Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 246; Earles v. Richey. (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 769.

Where the record shows no ruling on defendant's general demurrer, or that any was requested, it will be presumed that the demurrer was waived. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 412.

86. Interlocutory proceedings.—On appeal from an order quashing a writ of garnishment, when severance of objections were urged, it will be presumed that all were sustained, in the absence of record showing to the contrary. Dickinson v. First State Bank of Blackwell (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 674.

Where the record showed that the county judge entered his disqualification, whereupon the plaintiff and defendants agreed upon another judge, held a conclusive presumption on appeal that all the defendants agreed to such judge. Pariss v. Beaville Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1159.

90. Conduct of trial.—In an action for the conversion of a mortgaged property, where there is no contention on appeal concerning an independent promise made by the purchaser to the mortgagee, it will be presumed that there was no such contention in the trial court, even though there was evidence of such promise. First Nat. Bank v. Dunlap (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 502.

91. Admissibility and reception of evidence.—Where a case was submitted to the court, it will be presumed that the judgment was based on that portion of the testimony which was admissible and competent. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Currie (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 656.

On a trial to the court, it would be presumed that letters, cards, etc., showing the market price of millet seed, were not considered as evidence of market value, but only as bearing on the weight of the testimony of witnesses as to the market. Barteldes Seed Co. v. Bennett-Sims Mill & Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 399.

Where there was sufficient legal evidence to establish a fact, the court on appeal will presume that the trial court disregarded improper evidence to show such fact. Keennon v. Burkhardt (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 483.

It is presumed that the trial court's ruling on the evidence was correct. Johnson v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 1015.

Under an assignment of error in the admission of testimony of a witness as to a reasonable commission for effecting a lease, not objecting that the witness had not qualified himself to state his opinion on that matter, it would be assumed that he was duly qualified. Brady v. Richey & Casey (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 948.

Where there is sufficient competent evidence to support the finding, it will be presumed that inadmissible evidence received over objection was not considered. Mallow v. Raynes (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 23.

Where it did not appear what examination was made to test qualifications of witness testifying as to value of automobile, the presumption was that court satisfied itself by proper inquiry as to competency of evidence, which was not overcome by mere statement that witness had not qualified. Taylor Bros. Jewelry Co. v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 340.

Where bill of exceptions to admission of expert testimony does not show what examination, or that no examination, was made, presumption is that court made proper inquiry as to competency of witness to testify as expert. Magnolia Motor Sales Corp. v. Chaffee (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 562.

92. Dismissal or direction of verdict.—Where there are both valid and invalid grounds for dismissal, it will be presumed on appeal that the dismissal was upon valid grounds. H. J. Morrell & Co. v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 532.

In suit on endowment policy issued by fraternal order, held, that Court of Civil Appeals will assume that undisputed evidence justified court in taking from jury, and resolving in favor of defendant, as matter of law, question whether insured had ever been suspended from his lodge. Grand Lodge, Colored Knights of Pythias, v. Horace (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 298.

The record containing no charge, and the transcript being certified to contain a true and correct copy of all the proceedings had in the cause, as they appear on file and on record in the clerk's office, it cannot be presumed any instruction, eliminating the effect of prejudicial evidence improperly admitted, was given. Bomar v. Munn (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1186.

Where the transcript contains a requested charge by appellant, but does not show that it was given, the court may not assume that it was given. White Sewing Mach. Co. v. Seed (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 560.

In the absence of any information enabling it to determine error in the refusal to charge, the presumption must be in support of the judgment. First State Bank of Amarillo v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 295.

On plaintiff's appeal from a verdict for defendant, in determining whether it was error to fail to submit an issue to the jury, the evidence on such issue will be taken at its strongest in favor of plaintiff. Smith v. Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 586.

In action for libel, refusal to strike part of petition setting up publication as libelous held not error, where the court told the jury they could not predicate libel thereon, since, without any showing to the contrary, it would be presumed that the jury obeyed the instruction. Houston Chronicle Pub. Co. v. Wegner (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 45.

It will be presumed on appeal that the jury followed instructions as to what they must find before finding verdict against defendant. Cattlemen's Trust Co. v. Blasingame (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 574.

Unless contrary is shown it must be presumed that the trial judge would not have passed on motion for peremptory instruction without requiring its submission to opposing counsel in compliance with art. 1711. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 751.

Where issue was submitted without objection in form required by statute, it raises presumption on appeal that appellant waived objection that evidence was insufficient to support instruction. Vaky v. Phelps (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 501.

95. Verdict.—The appellate court cannot presume, in an action for damages by causing plaintiff's rafted logs to be lost, that the verdict included damages for the loss of cypress logs, when the evidence did not show that any cypress logs were lost, where there is sufficient evidence to sustain a larger verdict than that rendered without including any cypress logs among those for which damages were awarded. Burr's Ferry, B. & C. Ry. Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 787.

In an action against a carrier for damages to cattle by wreck and delay, it will be assumed on appeal, the facts warranting that the jury in estimating damages for cost of feeding from Saturday to Monday took into account a custom among shippers to feed at least once immediately upon arrival at their own expense. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 311.

Where no special issues are submitted and the jury returns a general verdict, it is presumed that the jury found in favor of appellee on every issue to sustain the judgment. Southern Traction Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 536.

It must be presumed on appeal, from the fact that the court submitted the case on general instruction, that a request therefor had been made by one or both parties. La Grone v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 99.

In an action for negligently firing her household goods, held that judgment based on verdict for plaintiff should be upheld on theory that jury presumably found that she was occupying premises with consent of defendant, the owner. Blount-Decker Lumber Co. v. Martin (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 232.

In action under federal Employers' Liability Act for death of brakeman, where no special charge was requested as to reduction of recovery by decedent's contributory negligence, and no complaint is made as to amount of verdict, which was general as to amount, Court of Civil Appeals will presume that jury found whatever was necessary to sustain verdict. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 579.

96. Findings of court.—A Court of Civil Appeals is authorized to presume, in support of the judgment below, that the trial court made findings proper under the facts. Lofland v. Greenwood (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 517.

In a suit to restrain the maintenance of a fence along the right of way near a station, where judgment was for the railroad, held that, in the absence of special finding on the degree of care required if there was no fence, it must be presumed that such issue was decided for the railroad. Craig v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 944.

A judgment for defendants after claim of estoppel was interposed by plaintiffs, though not specifically referring to the plea, implies a finding adverse to the plaintiffs thereon. Id.

Where, without evidence erroneously admitted, the other evidence sustained the findings it will be presumed that such findings were based on the competent evidence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 24.

If it is a controlling issue whether deed of husband alone, during wife's insanity, granting community property was for necessities of the community, and there in evidence to sustain finding that the sale was not necessary, and the court without making such finding, declared the sale invalid, such finding would be presumed in aid of the judgment. Priddy v. Tabor (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 111.
Although failure of court to file conclusions of law and fact was not shown by bill of exceptions, where judgment contained rescipient court to make and file such findings, and transcript does not contain them, held that appellate court will assume none were filed. Ainsworth v. Dorsey (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 594.

Where the trial judge filed no conclusions of fact, the appellate court must presume what facts which there was sufficient evidence necessary to sustain the judgment was found. Galveston-Houston Electric Ry. Co. v. Jewish Literary Society (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 324.

The rule as to presumption in favor of judgment is not applicable to conclusions of law, since an appeal from them alone is possible. Cumby Light & Telephone Co. v. Pierce-Fordyce Oil Ass'n (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 170.

In action for breach of warranty of silo, where no issue was submitted whether the container was killed and silo was worthless, and plaintiff by trial amended alleged fraud, but the evidence was insufficient to authorize submission of such issue to the jury, the court on appeal cannot assume in support of the judgment that the trial court so found. Potter v. Mobley (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 205.

97. Order granting or refusing new trial.—Although during a trial the trial judge was held to have erred, where there is no admission in the bill of exceptions or proof that he was too ill intelligently to pass upon a motion for new trial, it will be presumed that he was not. Crosby v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 708.

98. Amount of recovery.—Where the court cannot determine whether the party claiming was entitled to a credit, or, if entitled thereto, whether he has not received a credit, the judgment will not be disturbed on the theory of the disallowance of the credit. Trimble v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 1021.

Where the verdict was under a general charge, it cannot be presumed that the entire amount was awarded so as to sustain a claim of damage, since the award on that issue was excessive. San Antonio, U. & G. Ry. Co. v. Storey (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 188.

Where the jury assessed a lump sum for cattle killed and cattle injured during shipment it cannot be assumed that for the cattle killed the jury awarded an amount greater than their value as shown by the proof. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Vasbinder (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 763.

In favor of the judgment it will be presumed plaintiff's automobile, when fitted with pneumatic tires, after injury, was not of greater value than when fitted with hard rubber tires, before the injury. Wells Fargo & Co. Express v. Keefer (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 926.

In suit for wrongful death against receiver and railroad with judgment against railroad alone, refusal to give peremptory instruction in favor of receiver who had been discharged, held not reversible error as there is no presumption that the amount of the verdict was increased by the fact that there were two defendants. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Shoed (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 703.

Where the verdict was general, and it appeared that, as to some of the claims of recovery, plaintiff was not entitled, it will be presumed on appeal that no part of the recovery was on account of such claim. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 361.

In suit for damages tried by court, it will not be presumed on appeal that court improperly allowed plaintiff's profits as damages, where there was no evidence to show that profits were actually lost to him. Quinlan, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 322.

On appeal any uncertainty as to the proper amount of recovery should be resolved in favor of the judgment of the court below. Goodman v. W. S. Feck & Co. (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 780.

99. Judgment.—Where a tenant in common asked no finding as to whether the land could be partitioned, it will be presumed that a decree of partition was founded upon sufficient evidence. Stephenson v. Luttrell (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 666.

In a case tried by the court, in which there are no conclusions of fact, the court on appeal must presume that the conflicts in the evidence on the issues were resolved in favor of the successful party, and that every fact necessary to support the judgment was found by the trial court. Davidson v. Lee (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 414.

Plaintiff held presumed to be a corporation, as against the objection first made on appeal that the judgment was void because rendered for a company without naming the parties composing it. Grisham v. Connell Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1107.

Where a petition to enjoin the execution of a judgment alleged that the judgment originally read for "—being the amount of" a replevy bond, but had been altered by the insertion of the figures 15,000 in the space left blank, it will be presumed that the bond was for a fixed amount, and that the amount thereof was the same as that inserted in the judgment. Lester v. Gatewood (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 389.

In a garnishment proceeding, where all the execution docketts during the life of the judgment against the debtor were not offered in evidence, it would be presumed that an execution on the judgment had been issued, so that the judgment was not dormant. Citizens Bank & Trust Co. v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 258.

In the absence of something in the record to the contrary, the Court of Civil Appeals must assume that a judgment of a justice was rendered upon proper grounds. Farmer v. Witcher (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 283.

The issues properly presented by the pleadings would be presumed to have been disposed of by judgment, though silent thereon, unless it appears otherwise from face of judgment itself. Pitt v. Gilbert (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1157.

100. Orders and proceedings after judgment.—Where the record shows that a motion for new trial on the ground that service was not in time for a valid default was denied by the court on the ground that it was presented at the succeeding term, it must be presumed that the court did not find as a fact that the service was in time. Grubbs v. Marple (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 597.

In garnishment proceedings under amended original judgment, court should presume on appeal that if notice of amendment was not waived by judgment debtor, garnishment would have proven fact either by record or alliance evidence. Gehrach Mercantile Co. v. Hughes-Bozarth-Anderson Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 784. Where neither the transcript nor the statement of facts disclosed the action of the court on motion for new trial, but the record disclosed subsequent proceedings, including final judgment, the court will assume that the motion was sustained. Johnson v. Waggoner (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 835.

Where record does not show what evidence was introduced, on hearing of motion for new trial, it will be presumed that the court's discretion in overruling the motion was not abused. Martin v. Clements (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 437.

102. Taking and perfecting appeal or other proceeding for review.—Where the trial court, authorized on good cause shown to continue the time for the filing of bills of exception, extended the time, the court on appeal will presume that good cause was shown. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Strayhorn (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 901.

Where a transcript was filed during vacation, it cannot be presumed that the clerk filed it by order of the court. Robson v. Moore (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 908.

In the absence of a direct appeal from the striking of appellant's bill of exceptions and the substitution of another bill, it would be presumed that the order was properly made. Neville v. Miller (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1169.

Where, at the time affidavit of inability to pay costs was made, motion for new trial was pending, and no notice of appeal had been given, it must be presumed that the affidavit was presented to the trial judge off the bench and certified to by him. Rhodes v. Coleman-Pulton Pasture Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 365.

103. Making and contents of bill of exceptions, case or statement of facts.—Where the evidence, upon which a court based a conviction for contempt, is not before the court in the proceedings, it will be presumed that it authorized the judgment. Ex parte Ellerd, 71 Cr. R. 285, 158 S. W. 1146, Ann. Cas. 1916D, 361.

Where the statement of facts was made up by the court after the parties to agree, it will be presumed that the bill of exceptions properly recites the facts. Streetman v. Passner (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 586.

On appeal in partner's suit for dissolution and accounting, where defendant's exceptions, to refusal to permit them to offer trial balance from books of firm, fails to incorporate handwriting of partner. Court of Appeals cannot presume from affidavits that firm have thrown light on net profits of firm. Tyler v. McChesney (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1118.

It will be presumed by appellate court that qualification of bill of exceptions presented by plaintiff in error was made with his consent. Jolley v. Brown (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 177.

104. Appeal from justice court.—Though the citation issued by the justice was ambiguous, held, in the absence of written pleadings, that it would be presumed that the oral pleadings authorized judgment for an amount only within the justice's jurisdiction. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Gladish (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 883.

Where the judgment entered stated that all matters of fact and law, the introduction of evidence, and the argument of counsel, were submitted to the justice court, every presumption will be indulged to support the judgment; such recitals being decisive. Vaughan Lumber Co. v. Bybee & Wood (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 827.

105. Appeal from intermediate court.—Where a case was appealed from the county court to the intermediate court, and on appeal in the proceedings in the county court were not made a part of the record, every presumption must be indulged in favor of the validity of the judgment of the district court. Maris v. Adams (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 475.

On appeal from the county court, where there is nothing in the record to show what were the pleadings in the justice court, it will be presumed that they were the same as in the county court. Hufstuddle v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1088.

On appeal from the county court, it will be presumed that the oral pleadings in the justice court were in conformity with the account sued on and the citation issued thereon.

In the absence of a transcript showing to the contrary, the presumption is that the judgment of the county court rendered on appeal from justice court is correct. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Gladish (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 883.

III. Res Ipsa Loquitur

106. The fact speaks for itself.—That plaintiff's horse was found with its legs broken near defendant's track in its switchyard, and that the train by which the horse was probably struck passed through the town at high speed without sounding the bell, held, presumption of negligence, requiring defendant to offer exculpatory evidence. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Matthews Bros. (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1048.

The res ipsa loquitur doctrine will raise a presumption of negligence by defendant railroad company, where plaintiff while plowing in his field about 50 feet from the track was struck by a spike "picked up" by a passing freight train and thrown with great force into plaintiff's field. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Blackshear (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 366.

In an action by a passenger who fell while alighting from a train from her dress catching upon something, where there was no showing that it caught on any projection upon the platform, the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur does not raise an inference of negligence, Bolton v. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 506.

In an action by a passenger who fell while alighting from a train by which the fire was caused by the negligence of a specified person, and such finding was sustained by the evidence, the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur could not be applied to uphold the court's alternative finding of negligence generally on the part of defendant.

In an action for injuries due to explosion of a locomotive, held that proof that the explosion was caused by excessive steam pressure did not demand a verdict for plaintiff, because there was no showing that such pressure was chargeable to defendant's negligence.

Explosion of a locomotive boiler in charge of defendant's servants held to have presumably been due to defendant's negligence, though there was no direct proof thereof.

The expression "res ipsa loquitur" is a shorthand method of showing that the circumstances attendant upon an occurrence are of such a character as to speak for themselves in inferring the negligence and the cause of the disaster.

The circumstances of an accident to an employé may themselves furnish proof of the employer's negligence.

Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cassady (Sup.) 184 S. W. 139.

Where a railroad employé was injured when a trunk fell or was thrown from a stack on a platform and the trunks if properly piled would not have fallen, the fact that a trunk fell is in itself sufficient to show negligence.

In action for value of cotton destroyed by fire while in transit, upon establishment of plaintiffs' prima facie case that cotton was destroyed while in defendant's possession, burden was on defendant to show want of negligence.

Where a carrier accepts uninjured cattle for shipment and delivers them injured, negligence is presumed.

While mere fact of injury is not of itself proof of negligence, yet, where the moving cause is under the employer's management, and the accident is such as does not usually happen if proper care is used, it is reasonable evidence of negligence in the absence of explanation.

Consolidated Kansas City Smelting & Refining Co. v. Dill (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 439.

In an action for injuries by a falling window screen, burden was on defendant to show how it was negligently fastened, and that it had fallen from other cause.

Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Sheppard (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 799.
Where the bailee has sole custody, mere fact of injury imputes negligence, and the bailee has the burden of showing that he was not negligent. Mecom v. Vinton (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 785.

That a railway brakeman, walking on top of a furniture car in discharge of his duties, was struck by a telephone wire above the track, alone was evidence that the wires were not in a safe zone, from which jury might infer negligence. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1777.

Where goods in a warehouse are destroyed by fire, the burden of showing negligence is on the bailor, and is not presumed from occurrence of fire. American Express Co. v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 411.

IV. Burden of Proof in General

107. Nature and scope in general.—The rule as to the burden of proof is important and indispensable in the administration of justice, and should be zealously guarded by the courts. Boswell v. Pannell (Sup.) 189 S. W. 555.

108. Party asserting or denying existence of facts.—Generally the burden of proof lies upon the party asserting a fact essential to his right of action or defense and put in issue by the pleadings of his adversary. Texas Midland R. R. v. Ray (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 1015; Texas Power & Light Co. v. Bird (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 8.

Plaintiff, suing for chattels in the possession of defendant, alleging in an amended petition that she had not consented to a third person's pledge, and denying the effect of a bill of sale, did not thereby assume the burden of proof. Killman v. Young (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1965.

In action to recover value of cotton seed and lint cotton delivered to defendant in excess of what he was entitled to under contract, and an excess credit allowed in settlement, plaintiff had the burden of establishing the excessive deliveries and the excessive credits. Merchants' Gin Co. v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 821.

The burden is on the defendant to establish his defenses to the plaintiff's alleged cause of action. Boswell v. Pannell (Sup.) 189 S. W. 555.

In a taxpayer's action to restrain the commissioners' court from transferring from the county purpose fund into the road and bridge fund sums which would make possible from the latter an expenditure in excess of the constitutional limit, where plaintiff showed an excess in the road and bridge fund for several years, the burden was on defendants to prove that such excess was only seeming, on account of authorized expenditures for streets in municipalities. Williams v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 29.

The burden of proof to show that the action would result in road and bridge expenditure beyond the constitutional limitation of 30 cents on the $100 valuation, held on plaintiff. Id.

The burden of proving that a creditor's debt was duly scheduled in the debtor's bankruptcy proceeding, and that the creditor had either statutory or other actual notice of the proceeding, rested upon the bankrupt. Bogart v. Cowboy State Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 678.

In suit to enjoin execution on a judgment which plaintiff claims was barred by his discharge in bankruptcy, the burden is on plaintiff to plead and prove the discharge, and that the debt involved was not within any class which the Bankruptcy Act excepts from the discharge. Bunting Stone Hardware Co. v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1152.

Where, in an action to try title, defendants alleged that claims of other parties were simulated, and the only evidence was a denial of one of such parties of such allegation, his denial left allegations unsustained by any testimony, as a pleading is not evidence. Jolley v. Brown (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 177.

110. Extent of burden in general.—The burden of proof never shifts, but is upon plaintiff throughout the trial to establish by a preponderance of the evidence the affirmative of the issues relied on for a recovery. Boswell v. Pannell (Sup.) 189 S. W. 555; Powell v. Powell (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 111.

113. Accord and satisfaction.—Accord and satisfaction must be proved as any other agreement. Myers v. Grantham (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 532.

114. Limitations and adverse possession.—Burden of proving adverse possession is on the one who sets it up and claims under it. Village Mills Co. v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 785; Billingsley v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 373.

An agreement of the parties in trespass to try title, which stipulates that it was agreed that the defendants claiming under junior patents have such title as was vested in the parties claiming under senior patents, relieves defendants of the burden of establishing the consecutive links in their respective chains of title, and satisfies the requirement of the three-year statute of limitations that there shall be color of title from the sovereignity. Campbell v. Gibb (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 430.

The burden of proof rests upon one asserting a prescriptive right of way over another's land to show that the owners of the servient estate were free from legal disability during the prescriptive period. West v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 679.

In an action to recover land claimed by adverse possession under the 10-year statute of limitations, is on plaintiff to show peaceable and adverse possession, either actually or constructively, for such time as would give title. Williamson v. Miller-Vidor Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 809.

In trespass to try title, the burden is on a defendant, relying on title by adverse possession, to prove facts giving such title. Hall v. Shoemake (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 893.

In trespass to try title against mother and son, both living on the land, mother held 859.
to have burden of showing her possession under a claim of exclusive ownership. Wichita

Rule that one asserting right of way over another's land by prescription has burden of establishing negative fact that owners of servient estate were free from legal disability during prescription period applies only where prescription is claimed against those who are not servitees. Galvin v. Walters (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 218.

In trespass to try title, defendant, claiming by adverse possession, has the burden of proving that he was in peaceable and adverse possession for ten years prior to the time when suit was brought, when it was agreed that the record title was in the plaintiffs,

Parties claiming title by adverse possession have the burden of showing either con-inuous occupancy of the land, or that any break in their possession was only for a reasonable purpose. Taylor v. Dunn (Sup.) 193 S. W. 661.

The only question submitted to the jury in trespass to try title being whether defendant's house was on the section, paper title to which was shown in plaintiff, but which defendant claimed under the ten-year statute, it was error to instruct, in effect, that the burden of proof was on plaintiff on the question. Miller-Link Lumber Co. v. Thompson
(Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 223.

115. Alteration of Instruments.—The burden is on one offering an altered or mutilated writing to explain its condition before it is admissible in evidence. Kerbow v. Wooldridge (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 746.

117. Attorney and client.—Burden was on attorney to show that a new contract for increased compensation, after the relation of attorney and client had commenced, was fairly made and was reasonable and without undue advantage. Laybourne v. Bray & Shifflett (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1169.

119. Bills and notes.—Where fraud in the execution of a note is shown, the burden is on one claiming to be a good-faith holder to prove his good faith; and hence, where plaintiff did not appear or testify, it would be presumed that they had notice

In an action upon a note, the burden was upon defendant to show the falsity of alleged

Where, in an action by an indorsee of a note, plaintiff proved that it had paid value for the note before maturity, and there was no evidence of bad faith, the burden was on defendant to show notice to plaintiff of equities sought to be proven in defense. Malone

In an action on a destroyed note, held that the burden was on defendant to establish his contention that he bought the note from Y. in good faith, in the usual course of trade, without knowledge that Y. had no right to sell same. Allen v. Retting (Civ. App.) 177
S. W. 215.

In action on lien note given in payment for land, brought against original purchaser and subsequent purchaser, subsequent purchaser held to have the burden of proving that plaintiffs were parties in privity between original vendor and original purchaser was as he

120. Bona fide purchasers.—A junior purchaser attempting to defeat the title of a holder of a prior unrecorded deed from the same grantor must show, outside the recitals of his conveyance, that he purchased for a valuable consideration without notice. Rule
v. Richards (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 386.

The burden of proof does not shift from one claiming as a purchaser for value with-

Parties asserting an equitable title as against a purchaser for value have the burden of proving that he had notice of all the facts constituting their title. Le Blanc v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 60.

Where plaintiff sued on notes given for the price of land, and transferred to him before maturity, and defendants pleaded fraud and want of consideration, the burden was on plaintiff to show that he was a bona fide purchaser for value. Ruth v. Cobe (Civ.
App.) 165 S. W. 530.

One asserting an equity in land against the purchasers of the legal title has the burden of proving that such purchasers were not bona fide purchasers without notice. Mea-

An innocent holder of a note as collateral, to which there is a valid defense against the payee, has the burden of showing that his debt is unpaid, and the amount due thereon, and the recovery must be restricted to the amount so shown. Iowa City State Bank v.
Fttrar (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 261.

In an action by an indorsee of a note who took it before maturity, the maker has the burden of proving that the indorsee received it without consideration and that he took it with notice that the consideration therefor had failed. Daniel v. Spaeth (Civ. App.) 168
S. W. 509.

The maker first has the burden of proving the fraud or illegality, and thereupon the indorsee must show that he paid consideration before maturity, whereupon the maker is bound to show that he took the note with knowledge of the fraud or illegality. Id.

Where a maker of a note seeks to defeat recovery by indorsee on the ground that the consideration failed, he must show that the indorsee at the time he received the note had notice of failure of consideration. Id.

The maker of a note sued by its indorsee, denying plaintiff bought it before maturity for value, and alleging and giving evidence that the payee fraudulently put it in circulation, plaintiff has the burden of proving that it was a bona fide purchaser. Word v.
Bunting & Menard (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 846.

That the payee of a note put it in circulation, contrary to agreement with the maker, is such fraud, as, being proved by the maker sued by an indorsee, shifts to plaintiff the burden of proof as to his being a bona fide purchaser. Id.

Where notes were evidently without consideration and fraudulently put in circulation, the burden is upon an indorser to prove that he is a bona fide holder. El Fresnal Irrigated Land Co. v. Bank of Washington (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 701.

The holder of an equitable title has the burden of showing that a subsequent purchaser invested with the legal title is not an innocent purchaser. Delay v. Truitt (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 735.

Parties claiming under a subsequent deed, as against a prior deed of their grantor, have the burden of showing that they are innocent purchasers. Id.

The possession of a vendor’s lien note, together with its indorsement by the vendor “without proof upon the purchaser of proof,” is not such as to show that the assignee was not an innocent transferee of the note. Biswell v. Gladney (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1168.

Where a wife held the legal title to lands and conveyed, the burden was on the heirs of her husband, asserting their equitable title in trespass to try title, to show that the purchasers of the legal title were not innocent. Ferguson v. Dodd (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 391.

One claim to a beona fide holder of a note has the burden of showing that it was not the note before maturity. First Nat. Bank of Garner, Iowa, v. Smith (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 862.

In an action by the transferee of drafts given by defendant for goods bought, evidence that the transferor defrauded the defendant in the sale placed upon the transferee the burden of proving that he took the drafts before maturity in good faith and for a valuable consideration. Calfree v. Bryant (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 223.

To recover land of one having the legal title under purchase from patentee, plaintiff must show he purchased with notice of its equitable title, or was not a purchaser in good faith for value. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1068.

In view of art. 5655, the burden was on the purchasers from a mortgagee of mules to show that their dealing with the mortgaged property was in good faith. Maloney v. Greenwood (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 228.

In suit on note by one in possession, his ownership not being questioned, burden was on defendant maker to prove holder did not pay valuable consideration, if he sought to defeat holder’s right to recover on theory that he was not purchaser for value. Davis v. Converse (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 677.

One claiming to be a bona fide purchaser has the burden of proving it. Niles v. Houston Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 748.

Since title by adverse possession is legal, and not equitable, the burden of proof was not upon plaintiff claiming adversely to show that defendant claiming under deed was not an innocent purchaser without notice. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Ainsworth (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 614.

Where title asserted is equitable, the burden is upon him claiming to be a purchaser for value without notice to prove it by preponderance of the evidence. Id.

In action by purchaser of silo for breach of warranty, where seller counterclaimed for notes given for purchase price, and his wife set up her separate ownership of the notes, the burden of proving that she was a bona fide holder was not on the defendants. Potter v. Mobley (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 265.

121. Boundaries.—A plaintiff has the burden of establishing the location of the ancient grant under which he claims, so as to include the land sued for. Campbell v. Gibbs (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 430.

Where the evidence, in trespass to try title, showed that defendant’s senior deed to 200 acres from a common source covered at least a part of the land claimed by plaintiff, the burden was upon plaintiff to show what part of the tract claimed by him was not included within defendant’s conveyance. Masterson Irr. Co. v. Foote (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 642.

In trespass to try title to a strip of land lying between the plotted part of a survey and one of the boundary lines thereof, the plaintiff had the burden of showing the true location of such line, and of furnishing testimony by which the court could ascertain and by its judgment fix such line. Harkrider v. Gault (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 164.

He who buys land by virtue of a grant from the state, when the boundaries are in issue, must prove the location of such boundaries and that the land in controversy is included therein. State v. On a shipment of cattle, where shipper accompanies them, and, under the special conditions of their going, is in duty to care for them, if the cattle are injured by lack of feed and water, the burden is upon shipper to show negligence. F. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 765.

In action for negligent carriage of cattle, where defendant pleaded and proved that plaintiffs' contract gave them special charge of the cattle in transportation, the burden was on plaintiffs to exonerate themselves for any negligence, effecting injury to the cattle. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. James (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1136.

Negligent fires.—In an action for the firing of plaintiff's barn from a spark from defendant's engine, plaintiff has the burden of proof and the refusal of a charge to that effect. Texas Midland R. R. v. Ray (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1013.

Where fire was shown to have escaped from one of defendant's locomotives, burden was on defendant to show that its communication to plaintiff's property was not result of lack of care on part of its employees in charge of locomotive. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wood (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 812.

Killing or injuring live stock.—Where plaintiffs' horse was killed by defendant railroad company at a point within the switch limits of a town, plaintiffs could not recover without proof that defendant was negligent and that such negligence was the proximate cause of the death. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Matthews Bros. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 184.

In an action for killing plaintiff's mule, the burden was on plaintiff to establish negligence and to show that such negligence was the proximate cause of the accident. R. G. Ry. v. D'Olive (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 106.

In an action against a railroad for injuries to stock driven on its right of way, plaintiff held to have the burden of showing that the trainmen saw the stock, and realized its peril in time to stop or slacken the train before collision. Irving v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 615, affirming judgment 167 S. W. 722.

Where a horse was killed upon the right of way, it is presumed that defendant's train ran him down, and it has the burden of proving that the train was owned and operated by another company. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Porter (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 37.

The burden is on the owner to show negligence by the trainmen resulting in injury to stock on the track, and not on the railroad to show exoneration. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Leuschner (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 445.

One suing a railroad company for injuries to an animal on the right of way has the burden of proving that the animal was struck by a train. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Tabb (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 868.

In an action for killing a mule, held, that the burden was on defendant to prove that the place where the mule went upon the right of way was within the necessary switch and depot limits, where a fence was not required. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Knowles (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 245.

Plaintiff, whose horse was killed in a town where defendant's railroad was not required to fence, held to have the burden of proof as to negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Long (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 329.

In an action for damages for a horse killed by defendant's engine, the burden was on defendant to show that it could not fence its track at the point where the injury occurred.
occurred, even though within the switch limits. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Holbert (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1180.

Where there was nothing to show that defendant railroad could not have fenced its tracks at point where plaintiff's horse was killed, though within its switch limits, without inconveniencing the public, it was unnecessary for plaintiff to show negligence to recover. Id. mere killing being enough. Id.

In action against railroad company for killing of stock, burden is on the company, place of accident not being fenced, to show that it was not permitted by law to fence such place so as to do so would endanger or inconvenience public. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Decatur Cotton Seed Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 392.

201. Injuries to third persons by acts of servants and independent contractors.

—Although proof that automobile causing injury is being driven by servant raises inference that driver was engaged in master's business, burden of proof as matter of law remains upon plaintiff to establish material allegations upon which right of recovery rests. Gordon v. Texas & Pacific Mercantile & Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 745.

In an owner's suit for destruction of his oil barge by fire, where the person was shown whose negligence in carrying a lighted lantern near the oil caused the fire, the burden was on plaintiff to show that such person was defendant's servant acting within the scope of his employment in going upon the barge with the lighted lantern. Texas Co. v. Charles Clarke & Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 351.

V. Sufficiency of Evidence to Sustain Burden of Proof in First Instance

202. Prima facie case. — In action for damages for nickels put in diamond by defendants, evidence held sufficient to make prima facie case that diamond was damaged while in possession of defendants. Joy v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 537.

A. Where a bond that one had left it better from the principal stating that he was sick, but expressing willingness to come to trial, and that for two years the principal had not been heard from, did not present the issue of his death. Helman v. State. 70 Cr. R. 480, 188 S. W. 276.

Where in a negligence case that defendant indorsed the notes sued on, was supported indisputably by the evidence and there was nothing in the pleadings or the evidence that would justify the court in refusing to render judgment on the prima facie case thus made, it was error for the court not to give judgment against the indorse. Henderson v. Wilkinson (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1045.

An instruction that if plaintiff's evidence showed that defendant's engines had caused the fire in question by the emission of sparks, such proof made a prima facie case of negligence, sustaining a recovery unless rebutted by evidence that the engine was properly equipped with approved spark arresters, etc., held proper. Roman v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 431.

A broker's evidence that he made the contracts held to establish a prima facie case without proof by each of the purchasers. E. R. & D. C. Kolp v. Brazer (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 890.

Where, in an action for delay in the transportation of cattle for sale at stock markets, market reports covering the time involved were received in evidence without objection, and the shipper testified to the classes and condition of the cattle in the several shipments, and gave market prices at several periods, stating that the shipments would be included in the range of such prices, a prima facie case of market values was shown. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 366.

Proof that sparks escaped from a railroad engine and destroyed property by fire established a prima facie case of actionable negligence of the railroad company, and to escape liability it must show that the engine was equipped with proper spark arresters, or that the same were in good repair, and that the company exercised reasonable care to keep the same in good repair. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Cook (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 158.

Plaintiff's testimony that her fall was caused by a sudden lurch of the street car, after it had slowed down for a stop at the street crossing, and while she was proceeding to get off, is sufficient, prima facie, to support a finding of negligence, in the absence of evidence to the jerk being usual or unusual. Cleburne St. Ry. Co. v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 991.

A municipal ordinance, or a regulation passed by a quasi municipal corporation as a school board, is prima facie valid. Zucht v. San Antonio School Board (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 840.

Proof of a subscription and a valid call upon stockholders makes out a prima facie case in an action to recover on stock subscriptions. Rich v. Park (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 134.

In suit by heirs to recover land from one party, who took title from purchaser at partition sale, partition proceedings having included only part of ancestor's lands, proof of heirship established plaintiff's prima facie right of recovery to extent of land not involved in partition suit. Darden v. Vanlandingham (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 297.

A deed conveying lands bounded by courses and clauses and testimony as to a calculation of the acreage thereby embraced is prima facie sufficient to establish the quantity conveyed. Seureau v. Frazer (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1003.

In suit by wife, grantee of husband's lands, to restrain sale under execution by creditors of husband, the execution before secured, executed judgment, makes prima facie case in her favor. Stoile v. Karren (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 696.

Unproved evidence of City Charter, c. 14, §§ 7, 8, 10, 15, in suit on improvement certificate, reciting that legal prerequisites, etc., had been complied with, such recital was at most prima facie proof of performance by city of essential steps to fix lien upon abut-
VI. General Rules as to Weight and Sufficiency of Evidence

203. Weight and conclusiveness in general.—Where plaintiff alleged that the explosion causing her injury was due to excessive steam pressure of the locomotive which exploded, and that such pressure was created by defendant's negligence, the burden was on her to prove this allegation by facts rather than by mere speculation. McGraw v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 417.

An injured servant need not prove "with reasonable certainty" that his condition resulted from the heat of a furnace in which he alleged he worked with resultant injury. Consolidated Kansas City Smelting & Refining Co. v. Dill (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 498.

205. Positive and negative evidence.—Testimony of witnesses that they did not hear the bell on an engine has probative force, provided they were so situated that in the ordinary course of events they would have heard the bell had it been rung. Paris & G. N. R. Co. v. Lackey (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 540.

Although there are cases in which negative testimony might sustain verdict against positive testimony, yet in such cases not only must comparative credibility of witnesses be placed in balance, but there must be something by which the means of knowledge can be weighed. Barker (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 237.

206. Circumstantial evidence.—The existence of undue influence may be established by circumstantial testimony as to the condition of testator's mind, surroundings attending the execution of the will, the opportunity for the exertion of undue influence, the confidential relations between testator and beneficiary, and the unnatural character of the will. Holt v. Guerguin, 166 S. W. 831; judgment reversed 196 Tex. 153, 163 S. W. 10, 50 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1136.

Agency may be established by circumstantial evidence. Sargent v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 366.

Circumstantial evidence is sufficient to justify setting aside a will for undue influence only when all the circumstances produce in the ordinary mind a reasonable belief that undue influence has been exerted in procuring the will. Mayes v. Mayes (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 919.

That a survey was merely an office survey may be established by circumstantial evidence. McSpadden v. Vannerson (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1073.

A material fact or issue may be established as well by circumstantial as by direct evidence. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Dinwiddie (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 444.

In a suit on a note, the issue of the plaintiff's bad faith in the purchase of the note is an issue of his assignor's fraud in obtaining the note, could be established by circumstantial evidence. Landen v. Holcomb (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1996.

The fact that a minor, who is claimed to have ratified his previously made contract after attaining majority, had knowledge that it was not binding upon him may be shown by circumstantial evidence. Fletcher v. A. W. Koch Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 501.

207. Credibility of witnesses.—The jury may disregard testimony of either party or his witnesses. Blount-Decker Lumber Co. v. Martin (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 232.

In a trial of right of property attached in the hands of a tenant and claimed by the landlord as security, the jury might properly reject the testimony of both tenant and landlord on ground of interest, and answer, as to a portion of the goods attached, that the tenant still had possession thereof. Riley v. Hallmark (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 134.

A juror is not required to believe a witness, although he makes a plain statement of what is not impossible and is neither impeached nor contradicted by direct evidence, but may discredit him on account of the manner of testifying and attendant circumstances. Wichita Falls Traction Co. v. Berry (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 415.

While a jury is not compelled to accept as true the evidence of corporation's servants because they are such, the jury has no right to disbelieve such evidence for that reason. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1028.

In action for death of railroad's brakeman, jury were not bound to believe testimony of road's conductor, as he was an interested witness. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 578.

Though witness is contradicted, jury has right to pass on his credibility and accept his version to exclusion of conflicting evidence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Bursey (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 899.

In an action for breach of contract between plaintiff and defendant for the joint purchase of cattle, although defendant offered only testimony on his cross-action for damages for an alleged loss by reason of annoyance by plaintiff while defendant was selected as defendant was an interested witness, court had right to disregard his testimony. Eubank v. Bostick (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 214.
207.2. Conclusiveness as to party introducing.—In a suit to set aside a conveyance of real estate, where plaintiff introduced a deed in evidence to show that it had its inception in fraud, he was not bound by any of its recitals. Colgrove v. Falfurrias State Bank (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 580.

Where plaintiff introduced in evidence the defendant’s answer without limitation, plaintiff’s were concluded thereby. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Patterson & Robert (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 555.

In trespass to try title by party to whom general land office awarded forfeited lands, where no objection was urged to defendant’s hearsay testimony on that ground, court properly considered it as tending to show application by him to have his rights re- stated, and a tender v. interest due. Speed v. Sadberry (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 781.

210. Uncontradicted evidence.—Where the evidence tends to establish a fact which it is within the power and to the interest of the opposing party to disprove, if false, his failure to attempt to disprove it strengthens the probative force of the evidence tending to prove it. Sullivan v. Fant (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 612.

Where testimony of station agent that he had authority to arrange for reshipment was not contradicted, finding that agreement with him for reshipment was not binding held. Whiteley v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 392.

Although the entire testimony as to the instructions given a chauffeur which were depended upon to show the scope of his employment came from defendant and his wife, yet their uncontradicted testimony cannot be disregarded. Hill v. Staats (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1059.

A jury is not required to believe a witness, though he makes a plain statement of what is not impossible, and is neither impeached nor contradicted, but may discredit him upon the manner and attendant circumstances. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Decatur Cotton Seed Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 392.

Where the only evidence offered by plaintiff was the unimpeached testimony of defendant, which was directly opposed to plaintiff’s contention, judgment for plaintiff was improper. Seed v. Wren & Berry (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 363.

211. Degree of proof in general.—Absolute certainty in proving the amount of damages, in actions for injuries to land from overflow, is not required. City of Ft. Worth v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 863.

212. Sufficiency to support verdict or finding.—Where a shipper testifies without objection to the value of property claimed to have been injured through the carrier’s negligence, finding there is sufficient basis for a judgment. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 749.

To support a verdict there must be more than a scintilla of evidence; there must be evidence sufficient to warrant a reasonable belief of the existence of the fact sought to be inferred. Canode v. Sewell (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 421.

213. Preponderance of evidence.—A verdict sustained by the testimony of one witness and contradicted by several witnesses is not necessarily contrary to the preponderance of the evidence. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Budgett (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 893.

A finding of fact in a case tried to the court without a jury may be based upon the positive testimony of one witness, though it was contradicted by that of another. Ratcliff v. Ratcliff (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 30.

Ordinarily and in the absence of statute, the party having the burden of proof in a civil action need only make proof by a preponderance of the evidence. Gameason v. Gameson (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1169.

215. Particular facts or issues.—In an action on a mutual benefit certificate, evidence held sufficient to show the loss of the certificate and its contents. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World v. Ruedrich (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 170.

In an action by a brakeman for personal injuries, evidence held insufficient to show that a disease of the kidneys from which the brakeman was suffering was the result of his fall from the train. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cole (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 146.

In an action on a note transferred by the payee to plaintiff, evidence held sufficient to show that a letter negotiating the transfer and offered in evidence, showing that the transfer was to be without recourse, was duly received. Security Trust & Life Ins. Co. v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 396.

In an action to recover an interest claimed under a will, evidence held to sustain a finding that one of the legatees was dead. Wells v. Margraves (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 881.

In an action to recover a legatee’s interest under a will, which gave the proceeds of the estate to certain persons and their children, and, if any of them died without children, gave their interest to the other legatees, evidence held not to show that the daughter of a certain legatee was dead or died without issue. Id.

Evidence for plaintiff’s injury to plaintiff’s personal injury to plaintiff’s wife from falling while alighting from a car, in which defendant claimed that plaintiff was deliberately attempting to cause, was sustained. Held to sustain a verdict for defendant. Breyling v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 826.

In an action for the purchase price of coal claimed to have been furnished to defendant’s agent, evidence held insufficient to show the relationship of principal and agent. Köhler v. Aurbry & Semple (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 825.
Evidence, in a bank's action on the fidelity bond of its cashier, held to show that the bond did not include such warranties as evidence held to show that there was no shortage, and as to monthly examinations and reports as to his accounts. Southern Surety Co. v. First State Bank of Montgomery (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 853.

In a suit to rescind the purchase of an automobile, because of false representations, evidence held to show that purchaser did not know that a dealer in automobiles was not defendant's agent, but that defendant, by its conduct, led him to believe that such agent had authority to sell the automobile, and that there was then no shortage, and as to monthly examinations and reports as to his accounts. Southern Surety Co. v. First State Bank of Montgomery (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 853.

Evidence held insufficient to establish a conspiracy between an insurance company and B. to terminate plaintiff's employment by the insurance company and to charge him with improper conduct in the padding of his expense account. Oklahoma Fire Ins. Co. v. Ross (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1062.

That persons who made false representations approached plaintiff as to trade of property owned by defendant held not sufficient evidence that they were defendants' agents. Kirkland v. Rutherford (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1031.

Evidence held sufficient to show that plaintiff's condition was the result of the accident complained of. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas & Smith (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 760.

Evidence in a libel suit held not to show malice, so as to support a verdict for exemplary damages. Houston Chronicle Pub. Co. v. McDavid (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 487.

Evidence held sufficient to show that his earning capacity in some lines of business had been diminished held not over by proof that he received his pay while laid off and a larger salary on resuming work. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. McKinnell (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 937.

Evidence in action for malicious prosecution for having broken and entered defendant's cars and stealing therefrom held sufficient to show that one making the arrest and prosecuting charge acted within his authority as employee of agent of defendant. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Craddock (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 965.

In a suit for unpaid price, evidence held not to show a rescission by the buyer. Champion Hardware Co. v. Jennings (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 563.

In an action against defendant on a draft drawn by his store manager, evidence held insufficient to show that defendant authorized such draft. Simon v. Temple Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 851.

In an action by an automobile dealer to recover the value of a car bartered by a demonstrator, evidence held insufficient to show authority to barter. Holmes v. Tyner (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 857.

Evidence, in an action for the value of an automobile sold by one representing himself as agent for plaintiff, held insufficient to support finding of agency. Id.

Testimony in an action to recover for repairs, that some one over the telephone represented himself as plaintiff's manager and agreed to a certain price, held insufficient to establish that fact. W. K. Henderson Iron Works & Supply Co. v. Wilkins (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 913.

In father's action for loss of minor son's services, due to injuries, evidence held to sustain finding that minor son's capacity to perform manual labor had been destroyed or greatly impaired. Acme Laundry v. Welstein (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 498.

Evidence for the value of services in cleaning and repairing the premises was lost, evidence held insufficient to support a finding that the one who ordered the work done was the agent of the owner of the land to contract for the work, or for any other purpose, or that he purposed to act as such. Eardley Bros. v. Burt (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 721.

Evidence held to show that supplies were furnished on the defendant's credit at the instance of his agent who acted within the scope of his authority. Daggett v. Avis Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 20.

In a switchman's action for injuries against his employing railroad, evidence held sufficient to support a finding that plaintiff sustained permanent injuries to his back and spinal column resulting in paralysis of his legs and certain organs. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Sherer (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 494.

Where plaintiff testified that he lost a certain sum on account of defendant's refusal to perform their contract, and defendant failed to show on cross-examination the basis on which such sum was figured, plaintiff's testimony was a sufficient basis for judgment for the amount testified to, especially where it was a mere mathematical computation. Bain v. Polasek (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 279.

In a suit for the price of horses, where defendant claimed plaintiff was bound to accept horses paid for on the animals, evidence held to warrant a finding that defendant's brother, to whom the duties were paid, was defendant's agent authorized to receive payment. Hazelrigg v. Naranjo (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 316.

In an action by a contractor for a house against the owners for a balance, evidence held sufficient to support finding that there was no proof that the building could have been rented from the time it was contracted to be finished until it was actually finished. Kaufman v. Christian-Wathen Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1045.

Evidence in buyer's suit for loss of profits from defendant's refusal to deliver a quantity of wire to terminate his contract, held to show that the seller's agent was authorized to bind him by the contract of sale. Kolp v. S. F. Scattergood & Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 329.
Evidence that plaintiff sent for a doctor and accepted his services, together with the doctor's statement that his services were of the reasonable value of $25, if plaintiff could pay it, is sufficient to sustain an award of that amount. Tarrant County Traction Co. v. Bradshaw (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 951.

Where the defense to suit upon a note and to foreclose a land lien securing it was that the agent of plaintiff had accepted a conveyance of the land in payment of the debt, evidence held insufficient to show that the agent had the authority to accept such conveyance as payment. Peck v. Loux (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 955.

The connection between a note and guaranty contract not being shown, it cannot, on evidence, at most merely raising a surmise, be held that the consideration of the note failed, defeating recovery thereon, on the cancellation of the contract. Baker v. Brown (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 813.

A finding that a road contractor knew that certain warrants were given him in full payment were sustained, where he appeared before the authorities and protested against such limitation before cashing the warrants. Clopton v. Caldwell County (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 400.

In suit for automobile wrongfully attached and sold as property of another, testimony held not to constitute such proof of reasonable market value when taken as to afford basis for judgment. Taylor Bros. Jewelry Co. v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 340.

In garnishment proceedings on account of goods sold to garnishee in violation of Bulk Sales Law, evidence held sufficient to warrant trial court in inferring that garnishee had disposed of goods, especially in absence of evidence to contrary. Gerlach Mercantile Co. v. Hughes-Bozarth-Anderson Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 784.

Felonious killing of insured by beneficiary, rendering policies void, is not shown by finding of coroner, or newspaper accounts of homicide. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Veith (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 605.

RULE 13. PUBLIC OFFICERS ARE WHAT THEY ARE REPUTED TO BE

De facto officers in general.—A de facto officer can demand pay for his services, so that a vote to give him such compensation would not have the effect of appointment, confirmation, and qualification. Uhr v. Brown (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 379.

A de facto officer can demand pay for his services. 14.

RULE 14. THE REGULARITY OF OFFICIAL ACTS IS PRESUMED

In general.—Under Interstate Commerce Act, § 6, when schedules adopting the Interstate joint rate for freight under the Hepburn Act were printed and filed with the Commerce Commission and approved, publication of the new rates prior to approval would be presumed, and a road could recover such rates without proving such publication. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 663.

In the absence of allegation and proof to the contrary, officers are presumed to do their duty. Riley v. Coleman County (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 745.

The presumption is that the officer charged with issuing a permit to a foreign corporation on its filing of an affidavit showing its deposit of $100,000 with the state treasurer did his duty. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Hill (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 247.

Of officers in land department.—Under art. 5306, requiring surveyors to make plats and the sketches thereof in the general land office, maps from the land office would be presumed to be a reproduction of such plats and sketches, etc. McCormack v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 485.

Under art. 5306, it would be presumed that when a patent issued in the case of a blank for any subdivision thereof to the grantee, the land commissioner had not only the field notes, but the plat returned with the field notes before him. 14.

Of clerks of courts.—In action against title abstract company for failure to make diligent search for matters affecting title to land bought, court could presume the county clerk without delay recorded and noted a trust deed in index of the Record of Mortgages and Trust Deeds of the county, as required by arts. 6790, 6792, 6793. Decatur Land, Loan & Abstract Co. v. Rutland (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1064.

Of sheriffs and constables.—There is a presumption that the sheriff who served a writ of sequestration seized the property mentioned in the writ. Hawkins v. First Nat. Bank of Canyon, Texas (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 163.

Of surveyors.—In the absence of proof to the contrary, it must be presumed that surveyors, in making a survey, did their duty and marked the corner thereof with some object of reasonable permanence, and the presumption is that the original survey was actually made on the ground. Harkrider v. Gau (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 164.

It will be presumed that a surveyor marked a corner which his notes state he established on a tree locating it. Goodrich v. West Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 341.

Under art. 1931, art. 5340, as to notice of surveyor's running division line between two occupants, where such survey is proved, it will be presumed, in the absence of proof to the contrary, that the notice was given. Bivins v. Lanier (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 779.

The law presumes that surveys were made as stated in field notes approved by the General Land Office. Nanny v. Vaughn (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 499.
RULE 15. COURTS WILL, WITHOUT PROOF, TAKE NOTICE OF FACTS OF A PUBLIC OR GENERAL NATURE

2. Matters of common knowledge in general.—The court could not judicially know, nor could the jury from common knowledge say, that mud and water two inches deep was injurious or uncomfortable to hogs during summer months. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Atterbury (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1189.

4.5. Qualities and properties of matter.—The court cannot judicially know that oil escaping from a pipe line is poisonous, and will cause the death of cattle drinking it. Texas Co. v. Earles (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 23.

The court will take judicial cognizance of the fact that rails and ties left on a railroad right of way will ultimately become worthless if they remain unused. Enid, O. & W. Ry. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 498.

Court will take judicial cognizance of fact that standard time at Dallas, Tex., is the actual time along nineteenth degree of longitude west from Greenwich, that Dallas is approximately on longitude 95° 51' 30" west from Greenwich, and that there is a difference of four minutes in time for every degree of longitude. Walker v. Terrell (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 75.

9. Historical facts.—The Court of Civil Appeals knows as a matter of history that the Civil War actually closed in Texas in May, 1865, when the Confederate forces surrendered to the federal government. Fiedler v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 48.

Judicial notice will be taken that Palafox was established as a town by the Spanish government. Alexander v. Garcia (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 376.

12. Facts relating to human life, health, habits, and acts.—The court, in a negligence case, could not take judicial notice that a young man, had such a life expectancy that if $10 per month be allowed for the remainder of his life for permanently diminished capacity to labor the amount so claimed would give an aggregate of more than $500. State Oil Mill v. Van Genn (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 619.

The courts will take judicial notice that vaccination is, in the common belief, a preventative of smallpox. Hence, where it was contended that a school regulation requiring vaccination of the pupils was invalid, it is unnecessary for the jury to find that vaccination is a preventative of smallpox. Zucht v. San Antonio School Board (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 840.

The courts can take judicial notice that the danger of contagion from smallpox is equally great in theaters and street cars as in the schools. Id.

14. Weights, measures, and values.—The court will take judicial notice that a gallon of water weighs 8 1/3 pounds. Decatur Cotton Seed Oil Co. v. Belew (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 957.

The court cannot, in construing a deed, take judicial notice that the recited consideration of $500 for the fee in 1,579 acres of land was inadequate, so as to construe the deed to be a quitclaim only. Baldwin v. Drew (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 614.

It is immaterial that the value of a reasonable amount of pasture land when sold in connection with a farm has a higher market value than when sold otherwise. City of Ft. Worth v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 863.

The court and jury do not judicially know what would be a reasonable attorney's fee which art. 2175, authorizes plaintiff to recover in action on bona fide claim for stock killed. Quannah, A. & F. Ry. Co. v. Price (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 805.

15. Management and conduct of occupations.—Courts cannot take judicial notice that the business of keeping and selling nonintoxicating malt liquors under a federal license is not calculated to disturb the peace and good order of society or injuriously affect the public welfare so as to preclude the regulation thereof by the exercise of the state's police power. Johnson v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 965.

Judicial notice will be taken that when lands are rented under the farm tenant system by the year the rent is due until a reasonable time has elapsed for harvesting the crops. J. B. Farthing Lumber Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 453.

16. — Railsroads.—Courts can take judicial notice of the fact that engines and cars extend outside the rails upon which they run. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 525, reversing judgment on rehearing 161 S. W. 916.

The court judicially knows that trains do not run at all times on any railroad in the state. City of Waxahachie v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 611.

The state courts will take judicial notice that practically all of the railroads in the state are engaged in interstate commerce. State v. Beaumont & G. N. R. R. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 120.

19. Matters relating to government and its administration in general.—The Court of Criminal Appeals knows as a matter of common knowledge that the fire limits in a city include the thinly settled and business parts of the city. Ex parte Bradshaw, 70 Cr. R. 165, 159 S. W. 259.
The Court of Civil Appeals takes judicial notice that the purchase of public free school lands from the state is upon a condition of occupancy which is more or less onercous. Sears v. Ainsworth (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 60.

The courts will take judicial notice that the state was originally the owner of all lands not granted prior to the organization of the state. State v. Post (Civ. App.) 169 S.
W. 401. certified questions answered by Supreme Court 169 S. W. 407, and judgment reversed 171 S. W. 707, 106 Tex. 500.

The court judicially knows that the proper representative of the state could have been served with a citation on appeal within a day or two after the issuance of cita-

22. Foreign governments.—The court judicially knows the existence of a revolution and anarchy in Mexico, and the consequent powerlessness of its courts. Mendiola

21. Laws of the state.—Public statutes.—Sp. Laws 1909, pp. 601-611, will not be considered by the courts, in the absence of proof of its existence; there being no provision therein making it a public act and requiring the courts to take judicial notice of it.

24. — Private statutes.—The court cannot take judicial notice of a special law not made a public act by its own provisions. Altgelt v. Gutzeit (Civ. App.) 187 S.
W. 220.

26. Municipal ordinances.—The courts do not take judicial notice of municipal ordinances, but they must be averred and proved like other facts. Woodruff v. Deshazo
(Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 260.

27. Laws of United States.—The courts will take judicial notice that before statehood the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States were the law of the land in the territory of New Mexico. Stamp v. Eastern Ry. Co. of New Mexico (Civ. App.)
161 S. W. 465.

The courts of a state will take judicial notice of federal statutes. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 905.

28. Laws of other states.—The courts do not take judicial notice of the laws of other states. Ogg v. Ogg (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 912; Western Union Telegraph Co. v.
White (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 905.

The full faith and credit clause of the federal Constitution, article 4, § 1, does not require one state to take judicial notice of the laws of another state. Tourtelot v.
Booker (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 293.

A foreign law must be proved. Stamp v. Eastern Ry. Co. of New Mexico (Civ.
App.) 161 S. W. 450.

A telegraph company, sued in Texas for mental anguish due to its failure to de-deliver a message received in New Mexico for transmission to one temporarily in Texas, has the burden of proving the laws of New Mexico on the issue of the right to recover for mental anguish. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 906.

31. Terms of courts.—Judicial notice will be taken by the Court of Civil Appeals of the terms of the district court in Harrison county. Sanders v. Bledsoe (Civ. App.) 173
S. W. 539.

Court judicially knows there are four terms of district court held in Potter county annually, that suits for collection of delinquent taxes have precedence on trial of causes, when executions could have been issued on judgments, and when sales could have been

32. Rules and procedure of courts.—Court judicially knows there are four terms of district court held in Potter county annually, that suits for collection of delinquent taxes have precedence on trial of causes, when executions could have been issued on judgments, and when sales could have been made. Potter County v. Boessen (Civ. App.)
191 S. W. 787.

33. Judicial proceedings and records.—The district court could take judicial notice

The Court of Civil Appeals will take judicial notice of the opinion and record on a former appeal of the same action. Good v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 166 S.
W. 670.

Upon transcript on appeal, held that the court could not judicially know that judgment was rendered upon an agreement to arbitrate, or upon an award, and hence could not consider an assignment of error therein. Hamilton v. Eiland (Civ. App.) 121 S. W.
260.

It was the duty of the district judge to take judicial cognizance of the fact that his order appointing a temporary receiver had been appealed from, and it was the duty of the appellate judges to take judicial cognizance of its own records in such appeal.
Abilene Independent Telephone & Telegraph Co. v. Southwestern Telephone &
Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 556.

In an action for killing of a cow begun in justice court, appealed to county court, and finally appealed to Court of Civil Appeals, the court may take judicial notice that an award of $15 as attorney's fees was not excessive. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of

While a garnishment suit is docketed separately from the main suit, it is ancillary to and a part of the main suit, and the court on appeal from judgment in the garnishment suit will take judicial notice of the proceedings in the main suit. Studebaker

The Court of Civil Appeals will take judicial notice of the record on a former appeal
Art. 3687 (Rule 15) EVIDENCE

The court will not take judicial notice of its records in another case until offered in evidence. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1020.

The court will not take judicial notice of a lease of the operating part of a railroad, although authorized by the Railroad Commission under a statute. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Chatten (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 911.

RULE 16. ANCIENT WILLS, DEEDS AND OTHER INSTRUMENTS MORE THAN THIRTY YEARS OLD, WHEN OFFERED IN EVIDENCE, UNBLEMISHED BY ALTERATIONS AND COMING FROM SUCH CUSTODY AS AFFORDS A REASONABLE PRESUMPTION IN FAVOR OF GENUINENESS, WITH OTHER CIRCUMSTANCES OF CORROBORATION, WILL BE ADMITTED IN EVIDENCE WITHOUT PROOF OF THEIR EXECUTION

In general.—The execution of a power of attorney under which an ancient instrument purports to have been made will be presumed. Huling v. Moore (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 188.

Deed.—Where the deed of a trustee was an ancient document, held, that it would be presumed that he complied with the provisions of the trust deed. Wacaser v. Rockland Levee Ass'n (Sav. App.) 172 S. W. 737.

Lapse of 30 years since the execution of a deed by a county judge without record evidence of its authorization held insufficient to create a presumption that he was given authority. Spencer v. Levy (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 560.

Deed of a railroad company under which neither the grantee nor his heirs had asserted any claim for more than 50 years held inadmissible as an ancient instrument on the ground that the property under which it purported to have been executed would be assumed. Emory v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 831.

That deeds are admissible to prove sale of personalty, such as corporate stock, without showing of possession under recited transfer, assertion of title thereunder, or enjoyment of property transferred. Condit v. Galveston City Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 396.

Where county records are shown to have been destroyed by fire, recitals in sheriff's deed nearly 40 years old, which was ancient instrument, are sufficient to show that sale was made on execution under valid judgment, and deed cannot be excluded on ground that it was only secondary evidence of facts recited. Kenley v. Robb (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 375.

That deed is ancient one will not justify admission of record book showing record of deed. Alling v. Vander Stucken (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 442.

Land certificates.—Ex parte affidavits on file in the Land Office are not admissible to prove the facts therein recited on the ground that they are ancient instruments, though they have been on file for more than 30 years. Magee v. Paul (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 325.

A bill of sale of an unlocated duplicate land certificate, which has existed for more than 30 years and which has been recorded for more than 25 years, is properly admitted in evidence, id as an ancient instrument.

Maps and plats.—That a map of a city addition had been hanging in the county clerk's office for 30 years, and its correctness not questioned during that period, was strong evidence that it was correct. Spencer v. Levy (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 560.

Letters.—A letter addressed to the Commissioner of the General Land Office and forming a part of the records of the Land Office is admissible as an archive when more than 30 years old. Robertson v. Talmadge (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 627.

RULE 17. THE EXISTENCE OF A DEED MAY BE PRESUMED FROM POSSESSION UNDER CLAIM OF TITLE CORROBORATED BY OTHER CIRCUMSTANCES

In general.—To sustain a presumption of the existence or execution of a deed from circumstances, actual possession is not necessary, but open claim of ownership and acquiescence by the holder of the adversary title with knowledge of his interest held essential. Le Blanc v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 60.

RULE 18. A GRANT MAY BE PRESUMED IN SUPPORT OF A JUST AND LEGAL CLAIM, FROM LONG AND UNINTERRUPTED POSSESSION

In general.—To sustain a presumption of the existence or execution of a deed from circumstances, actual possession is not necessary, but open claim of ownership and acquiescence by the holder of the adversary title with knowledge of his interest held essential. Le Blanc v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 60.

In trespass to try title, in which both parties claim under grants from sovereignty, and the only issue is as to boundary, doctrine of presumed grant invoked by defendant had no applicability; hence a charge that evidence could not be considered as establishing an adverse claim was not reversible error. Dunn v. Land (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 698.

RULE 19. A FACT MAY BE INFERRED FROM THE PROVED EXISTENCE OF A RELEVANT FACT IN THE ABSENCE OF OPPOSING EVIDENCE.

In general.-The mere fact that plaintiff knew that the superintendent did not have authority to allow him to take his wife to live with him in railroad bunk cars will not support the theory that plaintiff knew the superintendent was without authority to allow his young sons to accompany him. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 652.

Direct evidence is not required by law, and juries may indulge all reasonable inference from the facts shown by the evidence, or which unaided and rational minds can properly deduce from the facts proved. Cotton v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 597.

A deed and a bill of sale of personality with the grantee’s simultaneously executed mortgage and the payment of the purchase price held proof that the purchase money was not fully paid at the time of the conveyance. Vinson v. W. T. Carter & Bro. (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 49, writ of error denied, 106 Tex. 373, 156 S. W. 363.

Proof that the common law prevails in New Mexico does not show that damages for mental anguish occasioned by a delay in delivering a message are not recoverable there. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 905.

Where there were only a few instances of the crossing of defendant’s right of way by herds of cattle, it could not be presumed that defendant had knowledge thereof. Irving v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 910, affirming judgment on rehearing 157 S. W. 752.

Where it could be equally inferred that a car door which struck a brakeman came open because defective latch or because latch had not been fastened, the jury could not choose the inference that it was because of the defective latch, as an inference of negligence cannot be adopted unless it is more reasonable than the inference of its absence. Kansas City Southern Ry. Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 115.

An opinion in itself tends to show that an injured servant did not, as he claims, sign a release. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Moya (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 698.

In an action for death of one on a switching track, suggested inferences held to amount to no more than surmises or conjectures which could not reasonably be given any probative force. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. West (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 287.

That a deed by a town to which land had been granted included only to a certain line is not conclusive that the deed to the town was of the same extent, although it may be inferred that effective Crosby v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 705.

In action against railroad for death of yard clerk, ignorance of decedent of approach of train which killed him cannot be inferred from fact he was killed. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Fred (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 896.

In suit against buyers of stallion by contract stipulating for return by certain date, evidence of defendants’ counsel held presumptive evidence that letter offering to return horse had been received by sellers. First Nat. Bank of La Fayette, Ind., v. Fuller (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 880.

Proof evidence that locomotive was properly equipped with spark arrester and carefully operated, but that emission of sparks was observed, it might be inferred that arrester was out of order. Nussbaum & Scharff v. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 194 S. W. 1599.

F. Fraud and conspiracy.—That defendants withdrew their cross-actions, and plaintiff’s attorney stated that he represented them and that they made no defense, was not evidence of a conspiracy to pervert the course of justice. Varn v. Gonzalez (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1132.

RULE 20. PAROL OR EXTRINSIC EVIDENCE IS GENERALLY INADMISSIBLE TO CONTRADICT, VARY OR ADD TO THE TERMS OF A WRITTEN INSTRUMENT.

4. Judicial records and proceedings—Affecting jurisdiction.—Where a judgment adjusting property rights between an infant and his guardian does not show on its face that it was void because the infant was represented only by the guardian, parol evidence that no issue was made between the parties, and that the infant was not in court to settle any dispute with the guardian, was admissible to show that the judgment was void. Van Scoy v. Homan (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 245.

8. Wills.—Where the language of an instrument disposing of property does not clearly express the intention of the maker as to whether it is a deed or a will, parol evidence is admissible to determine intention. Low v. Low (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 590.

In absence of ambiguity in terms of will, previous conversations and other matters in parol will not be considered to ascertain testator’s intent. Hagood v. Hagood (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 230.
11. Deeds—Description of premises.—Where the description in a deed is indefinite and certain, parol evidence that other land than that described was intended to be conveyed, is not admissible in trespass to try title. Lewis v. Bennette (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 225.

14. — Time of taking effect.—In trespass to try title, where court, in submitting question, properly assumed delivery of deed to plaintiff by owner of land, legal effect of execution and delivery of deed could not be changed by jury finding that owner did not intend to convey by his deed until his death, since his deed of death is shown, deed defines its purpose, and cannot be contradicted except upon ground of fraud, accident, or mistake. Johnson v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 201.

19. Contracts in general.—In view of art. 2376, providing for the keeping of the minutes of the court of county commissioners, a contract between the county commissioners’ court and a third person embraced in a written proposal and acceptance cannot be varied by parol. Douglass v. Myrick (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 422.

Where the terms of a contract are reduced to writing, parol evidence is not admissible to add to or vary its terms, in the absence of fraud, accident, or mistake. Benton v. Kuykendall (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 428.

Where the contract sued on was plain, and was not attacked for fraud, accident, or mistake, statements by either party after its execution, not amounting to a new contract, were inadmissible to contradict, vary, or impeach its terms. Dr. Koch Vegetable Tea Co. v. Malone (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 662.

One signing a stock subscription contract which recites that no representation by the person taking the subscription shall annul the contract, unless reduced to writing, may not, in the absence of fraud, accident, or mistake, show by parol an agreement not embodied in the contract. Cattlemen’s Trust Co. v. Beck (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 753.

Parol testimony is inadmissible to vary a written instrument, in the absence of fraud inducing its execution. Parker v. Schrimsher (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 165.

A written contract, altered, or contract not to be varied by parol, except for fraud, accident, or mistake. Lummus Cotton Gin Sales Co. v. Farmers’ Co-op. Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 894.

In the absence of fraud, accident, or mistake, oral evidence is not admissible to contradict or vary the terms of a written instrument. Adams v. First Nat. Bank of Waco (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 933.

20. — Completeness of writing and presumption in relation thereof.—It is presumed that a written contract embodied the whole contract, and previous statements or representations of the parties cannot be brought into the contract by parol evidence, except where the contract consisted of distinct parts, only part of which was reduced to writing, or something was omitted by fraud, accident, or mistake, in which case parol evidence is admissible. South Texas Mortgage Co. v. Cee (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 419; Texas Mortgage Co. v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 422.

Where a writing is couched in such terms as to be plain and without any uncertainty as to the object or extent of the agreement, it is conclusively presumed that the whole agreement was reduced to writing. James v. Doss (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 622.

22. Contracts for buildings and other works.—Under a contract binding defendant to contribute to the drilling of a test oil well and providing that the contribution should not be paid until operations began, the well could be drilled in the customary way by using such tools as would be most advantageous to the drillers, so that it could not be shown in an action on the contract that the agreement was to drill with "cable tools." Herron v. Allen (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 1046.

23. Contracts of sale.—In an action for the agreed price of machinery sold under a written order stating the price, evidence that the machinery in good condition was worth less than half the price held inadmissible. A. S. Cameron Steam Pump Works v. Lubbock Light & Ice Co. (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 256.

Evidence that the form of the contract of sale of a traction engine was a form used for stationary engines held inadmissible. Southern Gas & Gasoline Engine Co. v. Adams & Peters (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1143.

A seller may by written contract limit his warranty of the article sold, and, in the absence of fraud, accident, or mistake, parol evidence is not admissible to vary or contradict this contract. Bolt v. State Savings Bank of Manchester, Iowa (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1119.

25. Bills and notes.—In the absence of an allegation of fraud, accident, or mistake, parol evidence was not admissible to alter a note. Baldwin v. W. H. Coyle & Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 426.

28. Contracts of insurance.—Parol negotiations and agreement for insurance preceding execution of the policy, cannot be shown to vary or contradict its terms. Great Eastern Casualty Co. v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 553.

Oral evidence to establish fact disclosed by policy itself which was unambiguous is properly excluded. First Texas State Ins. Co. v. Burwick (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 165.

29. Contracts of carriage.—In an action against an initial carrier for loss of goods, plaintiff was entitled to testify that certain notations appearing on a copy of the shipping papers had been written thereon after she signed the original. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Gould (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 13.

31. Memoranda or writing not constituting contract or disposition of property.—A certificate issued by a bank showing the deposit of drafts with bills of lading attached.

being merely a receipt, plaintiff could testify as to the arrangement on which the drafts were executed. Olympic Nat. Bank of Olean v. Mangum (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 1125.

Writing incomplete on its face.—Where a contract for the sale of land contained an equivocal expression, evidence of declaration made by the second agent of the vendor is admissible, where, until he signed the contract, it was not binding, though signed by another agent. Zavala Land & Water Co. v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 525.

34. Evidence extrinsic to writing in general.—Where a telegram was addressed "to Calvin Stewart, Parmer, La., care Frank Johnson, phone," it does not contradict the telegram to show, by parol testimony, that the company accepted it and undertook to deliver it, and to telephone same from its office at Bernice to the addressee at the residence of Frank Johnson. Stewart v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1004.

41. Matters not included in writing or for which it does not provide—Contracts in general.—Where a check was given as part of a more comprehensive transaction, the terms of which were not attempted to be expressed in writing, parol evidence of the terms of the transaction in which the check was given and of the mode provided for the check's discharge is admissible. Rahe v. Yett (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 30.

Where no specific date of payment is named in the note, it is permissible to prove parol evidence, and especially by a notation in the margin of the note, the date agreed upon by the parties. Walker v. Flanary (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 992.

In action for breach of timber sawing contract, it was error to exclude evidence that it was contemplated by both parties that green timber only was to be made into lumber; the contract not specifically covering the point. McKinnon v. Porter (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1112.

43. — Contracts of sale.—Evidence held insufficient to show that written transfer of partner's interest in business purporting to express only a part of the transaction so as to authorize parol proof of a transfer of the claim sued on. City of Brownsville v. Tunstall (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1107.

44. — Contracts of carriage.—In an action against an initial carrier for loss of goods, there being no valuation in the shipping contract, plaintiff was entitled to prove its value. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Gould (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 13.

45. Parties to instrument or obligation.—A deed is a contract under seal, and parol evidence to prove that the grantee's partner, not named therein, was interested, was inadmissible on notes giving the price for the land by the grantee, and thus to vary the deed. Manley v. Noblitt (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1154.

A contract of reinsurance, being unambiguous parol evidence, was inadmissable to show an intention to contract for the benefit of insured. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Stein in Double Cushion Tire Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1165.

48. Existence of condition or contingency—Deeds—Contracts of sale.—On an order for the sale of goods to be shipped at the seller's earliest convenience, the verbal agreement of the seller's salesman that the order should not be delivered to the seller within 60 days was binding upon the seller, and the contract was avoided by a violation of the agreement. National Novelty Import Co. v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 883.

49. — Bills and notes.—The terms of a promissory note are conclusive of the contract, and cannot be changed by parol evidence of an understanding that it was never to be paid. Lockney State Bank v. Damron (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 552.

53. Nature and extent of liability.—Evidence contradicting a written agreement with respect to whether the liability thereunder was joint or several was properly excluded. Galveston Electric Ry. Co. v. Statuts (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 11.

55. — Bills and notes and indorsement thereof.—Whatever the apparent relation of parties to a note, their true relation as between themselves may be shown by parol evidence. Shepherd v. Mott (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 128.

Where one not the payee of a note indorsed it at the time of its inception without words defining his undertaking, parol evidence may not show that the payee or indorser of the note knew of the indorsement. Brooks v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 30.

56. — Contracts of guaranty.—Where a contract of guaranty which was part of the same transaction as a note does not show in its face that the liability of the defendant on the note was only that of guarantor, that fact may be shown by parol if it was known to the payee. May v. Waniger (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1106.

57. — Principal or surety.—One not the payee, who signs his name on the back of a note at date of its inception without explanatory words, may show by parol whether his liability is as promisor or surety. Cleverenger v. Commercial Guaranty State Bank (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 58.

58. Effect of writing as to persons not parties thereto or privies.—Evidence that, at the time of the purchase, the purchaser was notified that a house on the lot was not a part of the realty, and not intended to be conveyed, by the deed, was not inadmissible as contradicting the legal effect of the deed; the owner of the house being a stranger to the deed. Clawson v. Philiopp (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 117.

59. Writings collateral to issues in general.—In an action for the purchase price of coal furnished a party having charge of the heating and lighting of a hotel, where the question was whether such purchaser was an independent contractor or the agent of the hotel proprietor, the purchaser may testify that a note given by him in connection with his business was really the obligation of the proprietor, and that it was understood the proprietor should discharge it, without violating the parol evidence rule. Kohler v. Awbrey & Semple (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 828.

60. Evidence for purpose other than varying rights or liabilities dependent upon terms of writing.—Where plaintiffs claimed under the 10 years' limitation and not under a deed, evidence by plaintiff that the lots, which included what defendants claim is an alley, were not under fence when he bought them, and that he had possession thereof for 12 years, was not objectionable as varying the terms of the deed which contained a reference to a plat and map referring to an alley. Guadalupe County v. Poth (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 1059.

In an action prosecuted by attorneys, assignees of one-half the cause of action, after their client had compromised, where the written contract between the client and the attorneys expressed only the agreement to pay one-half the recovery and not the fact of the assignment, the client was properly permitted to testify to a conversation with defendant's agent at the time of the compromise, in which he told the agent of the interest of the attorneys; it not varying the written contract. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 784.

Where a buyer sought to recover the purchase price of motor truck on the ground that it was secondhand and wholly defective, evidence that the seller agreed to furnish a mechanic to put the truck in condition held admissible to show good faith of the buyer in requesting that a mechanic be sent, and not as contradicting the warranty of sale. Avery Co. v. Texas v. Staples Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 42.

61. Declarations, representations, and expressions of opinion preceding contract.—Oral statements of a party prior to the execution of a written contract were merged therein, and, though received in evidence without objection, could not form the basis of a finding or judgment. Lock v. Citizens' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 536.

Where a written contract for the sale of land provided for drilling of a well and guaranteed water, evidence that vendor's agent just before signing said the well would produce enough water to irrigate the land was admissible. Zavala Land & Water Co. v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 523.

64. Discharge without performance.—Notwithstanding a written contract of partnership, it could be avoided by parole, for the purpose of showing that no partnership in fact existed, that one of the parties ignored and disregarded the contract and wholly failed to furnish his contribution to the partnership capital. Rush v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 698, denying rehearing 190 S. W. 319.

65. Estoppel or waiver.—In action on policy on stock of lumber which insurer claimed to be sold for want of valuable inventory required by policy, evidence that before its issuance insurer's agent told insured what inventory should contain, that he followed such instruction, and that his inventory was approved by agent held admissible. Camden Pyre Ins. Co. v. Yarbrough (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 66.

RULE 21. CONTEMPORANEOUS WRITTEN AGREEMENTS RELATING TO THE SAME SUBJECT ARE TO BE CONSTRUED TOGETHER, AND SEVERAL DISTINCT STIPULATIONS ARE TO BE CONSTRUED SO AS TO GIVE EFFECT TO ALL. A PRIOR OR CONTEMPORANEOUS PAROL AGREEMENT CONSISTENT WITH AND FORMING A PART OF THE CONTRACT IS TO BE CONSTRUED WITH THE WRITTEN PART THEREOF

1. Connection of contemporaneous writings.—In an action to set aside a contract for the sale of land for fraud of the agent who negotiated the sale, a memorandum of sale prepared by the agent but never signed was admissible over the objection that there was a subsequent written contract entered into between the parties where it tended to show the agency and corroborated the testimony of the purchaser. Sargent v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 356.

Where land held in trust was sold, all of the parties interested joining in the conveyance which created a trust of the proceeds, the original instrument cannot be considered in construing the second trust instrument, where it distinctly stated that all former agreements were abandoned. Barnett v. Elliott & Co. (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 752.

A deed and a bill of sale of property with the grantee's simultaneously executed mortgage and notes to secure payment of the purchase price, construed together, held to show an executory contract for a conveyance of land; the superior title to remain in the purchase price. Vinson v. Houston & Tex. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 49, writ of error denied 106 Tex. 272, 166 S. W. 383.

Contemporaneous instruments relating to the same subject-matter may be read together as forming parts of one transaction. Rankin v. Rhea (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1056.

A provision of a land contract that vendor will not be responsible for statements made regarding its property, except as stated in its printed literature or letters signed by its officers, left its liability for representations not incorporated in the contract the same as if the provision had not been inserted, so that it would not be bound to open and unconditioned a street, though its printed advertisement stated that it would do so. South Texas Mortgage Co. v. Coe (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 419; South Texas Mortgage Co. v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 422.

Where a contract of sale was made by correspondence, a letter from the seller containing a warranty must be considered in determining the contract, though the buyer's letter ordering the goods was subsequently written. A. S. Cameron Steam Pump Works v. Lubbock Light & Ice Co. (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 256.

Provision of a contract for the sale of goods that no statement by the salesman should be a part thereof unless written in the original order held to refer only to verbal statements; and hence a written agreement attached to the contract by the salesman that the seller would furnish the buyer with an indemnity bond was a part of the contract. National Indemnity Co. v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 85.

In an action for goods sold under a contract providing that no statement by the salesman should be part thereof unless written in the original order accepted by the seller in which defendant set up a condition attached to the contract by the salesman that the seller would give an indemnity bond to the buyer, evidence for defendant was to the cir cstances under which such agreement was made, and as to its nonperformance, held admissible. Id.

A deed, bill of sale, notes for part of the purchase price, and a mortgage on the property conveyed, executed simultaneously, must be construed as but one and the same agreement. Mitchell v. Cruze (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 655.

A letter accompanying a contract which contained statements additional to the warranties in the contract is inadmissible in an action for breach of warranty. Phillip-Carey Co. v. Manes (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 158.

Where warranty of buyer's interest is simultaneously executed as part of contract of sale, held to exclude any warranty not therein contained, as well as evidence of fraudulent representations. Bolt v. State Savings Bank of Manchester, Iowa (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 1119.

Where, pursuant to his contract to convey, the vendor of land executed a deed to the buyer alone, not mentioning such buyer's partner, such partner was not liable on notes executed by the grantee alone, for the price, since all the antecedent negotiations and executory contracts were merged in the deed as written. Manley v. Noblitt (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1164.

A stock subscription agreement, a note, and an agreement attached thereto to hypothecate the stock subscribed, all simultaneously delivered, constitute but a single subscription contract. Cattlemen's Trust Co. of Ft. Worth v. Turner (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 428.

Two deeds executed at the same time between the parties thereto, both referring to the same subject-matter, are to be taken as parts of the same contract, and as forming one agreement. Ferguson v. Dodd (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 391.

In construing simultaneous contracts, the court should seek the intention from the words, the subject-matter, and the purpose of the contracts, reconciling conflicting clauses, and consider the instruments in the light of circumstances to give them fair and customary construction. Id.

A deed, expressly referring to the land as a part of a designated survey, made it proper to resort to the field notes of that survey to ascertain its location, form, and area. Diffie v. White (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1065.

Two or more writings, executed contemporaneously between same parties and as to same subject-matter, must be deemed as forming the same contract. Wadsworth v. Powell (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 169.

3. Prior and contemporaneous collateral parol agreements in general.—Where a telegram was addressed "to Calvin Stewart, Bernice, La.," parol testimony is admissible to show that the company agreed to deliver the message by telephone from Bernice to the addressee, six miles in the country. Stewart v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1034.

A written contract may not be varied by proof of oral contemporaneous or other agreements. Chapman v. Witherspoon (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 281.

Evidence of prior or contemporaneous parol agreement or understanding is frequently admitted where such agreement is consistent with writing in question and it is apparent that instrument was not intended as a complete embodiment of the undertaking. Id.

10. Sale of personal property.—Where a written contract of sale provided that no statement by the seller's agent should be considered a part of the contract unless written and signed by the seller's agent and not a part of the contract did not bind the seller. Blackstad Mercantile Co. v. J. W. Porter & Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 216.

In an action upon a contract by defendant to subscribe a certain sum for the drilling of a test oil well, it could not be shown that the other party to the contract agreed to construct a oil well for the sum of money, where defendant, especially where such amount was contributed in the form of an interest in realty. Herron-Robins v. Allen (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1046.

For action for the price of a secondhand traction engine, sold under a written contract excluding such machinery from the operation of warranties and stating that the agent had no authority to change its provisions as to warranty unless authorized in writing by plaintiff, evidence for defendant as to a warranty made by such agent held properly excluded. Clark & Schaeffer v. Gaar-Scott & Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 681.

Where a clause in a written contract for the sale of cattle provided that the purchaser would not have to take any cattle that did not get fat, parol evidence was not admissible to show that there was a parol agreement that the purchaser was to be the sole judge whether they were fat, since this would materially vary the written contract. Houston Packing Co. v. Griffith (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 431.

Where a sales agent had no authority to make warranties other than those contained in the written contract signed by the purchaser, which declared that it should contain all of the agreements between the parties, a parol warranty by the sales agent is not binding, unless ratified by the seller. First Nat. Bank of Garner, Iowa, v. Smith (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 882.

Without pleading and proof of fraud or false representations, a purchaser of a silo who signed a written contract providing that it should contain all the written agreements between the parties, cannot in gaunt upon the contract a contemporaneous parol agreement. Id.

Where parties made two written contracts, one concerning the purchase of a stallion, and the other concerning a stallion taken in exchange for him, the date for exchange specified by each contract controls any prior oral agreement. First Nat. Bank of Lafayette, Ind. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 830.

11. Bills and notes or indorsement thereof.—Where plaintiffs, stockholders of a corporation, executed a note to defendant to secure a debt of the corporation, evidence of a contemporaneous parol agreement by defendant not to negotiate the note, but to carry it until certain of the corporation's debt was paid. This was inadmissible to vary the expressed terms of the note. Martin v. Daniel (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 17.

A contemporaneous parol agreement that a maker and an indorsor of a note will relieve composers from liability as surety is admissible to prove a parol contract of indemnity. Clevenger v. Commercial Guaranty State Bank (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 65.

In a suit on a note payable unconditionally at a time certain, a contemporaneous agreement the time of payment of the note could not be proved by parol, notwithstanding art. 539. Hendrick v. Chase Furniture Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 277.

In action by buyer of engine to cancel purchase-money notes, testimony that the engine was taken on trial, subject to satisfaction, etc., held not inadmissible as contradicting the written order and the notes. Street v. J. L. Case Threshing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 725.

In an action on notes transferred as part consideration for an exchange of property under a written contract agreeing to sell and convey notes, parol evidence held inadmissible to prove terms either additional to or different from those contained in writing. Borschov v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 202.

Where plaintiff executed notes for unpaid purchase price of land, parol agreement that, if he should pay notes in reasonable time, he should receive rebate of $500 from $50 commission, held not inconsistent with notes, and therefore not inadmissible as tending to vary their terms; such notes not being intended as complete embodiment of transaction. Chapman v. Witherspoon (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 281.

19. Completeness of writing—Contracts of sale.—Where a grantor sues on notes given for the price and for a foreclosure of the vendor's lien retained in the deed, the notes and deed evidence a completed written contract, and all prior negotiations are merged therein, and they cannot be proved by parol. Luckenbach v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 99.

22. Relation of oral agreement to writing.—Where an action was founded on a written contract and on a subsequent oral contract, proof of the oral contract not contradicting the written contract was admissible. Barnard & Moran v. Williams (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 910.

Where oral negotiations were by agreement or custom tentative only, a contract held not made until reduced to writing and accepted. Walker Grain Co. v. Denison Mill & Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 555.

In an action for verbal misrepresentations of the agent of the seller of a piano, in absence of evidence of the terms of the written contract later made between the parties, plaintiff's evidence tending to prove the terms of the agent's verbal representations, was not improper as varying the terms of a writing. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1185.

The rule that where there is a verbal contract and part of it is reduced to writing, parol evidence may be offered to show that which was not contained in the writing, applies only when it is collateral, and relates to a subject distinct from that to which the written contract applies. James v. Doss (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 623.

Where initial carrier furnishes cars for stock without requiring a written contract of the shipper and presents one before the cars are to start, which the shipper signs without reading and to secure passage, the contract is not binding on him. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 714.

The written contract by which the owner of land agrees to pay broker commissions on subsequent sales, by whichever of them made, being substantially the same as an existing parol contract between them, takes effect as of the date of the parol contract. Daugherty v. Smith (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1191.

23. Inducement to make writing.—Where shippers of live stock orally contracted for shipment, knowing that a written contract was not in contemplation, and did so, they are bound by its terms. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Smyth (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 70.

Under the Interstate Commerce Act, §§ 1, 6, and 30, and other sections making furnishing a part of "transportation," contract or bill of lading fixing conditions of liability for failure to furnish cars pursuant to previous oral agreement held controlling, and the parties cannot substitute a special agreement, so that plaintiff cannot recover on the alleged previous oral contract. 1d.

Where the soliciting agent represented that the annual premium would be a certain sum, whereas the by-laws, by reference incorporated in the policy, provided for assessments, the fact that the representation was oral and preceded delivery of the policy which was accepted without objection, is of no serious consequence. Illinois Bankers' Life Ass'n v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 992.

24. Merger of separate agreements.—If a verbal contract of shipment was partly executed by loading the stock when the written contract was presented to the shipper, the verbal contract would control, unless the shipper afterwards assented to the rule that prior negotiation: written contracts are merged into a subsequently executed written contract not applying. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Sparks (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 942.

Where the agent of a carrier verbally contracted with a shipper, the carrier is liable on such contract, though a written bill of lading was subsequently drawn up and accepted, unless the shipper at the time of making the verbal contract knew he would be required to sign the written contract. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Gilliam & Jackson (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 66.

Where a carrier undertook to bed cattle cars before the cattle were loaded or the shipping contract signed, it could not rely on a provision of the contract subsequently executed to relieve it from liability for a failure to provide proper bedding. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Boger (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 655.

Where produce was transported in interstate commerce under an oral contract, a written contract, not signed until the shipment had started, would not prevail, unless the shipper had knowledge of its contents and agreed thereto. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Bracht (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1116.

One having a verbal contract should not be deprived of his original security by the acceptance of an additional contract in writing, binding other parties, especially where such security is accepted at the instance and for the protection of the original parties. Pierce Fordyce Oil Ass'n v. Woods (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1181.

Damages are recoverable against a railroad company for breach of a verbal contract to furnish stock on a day certain, though a bill of lading is subsequently executed. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Stinson (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 526.

As the Carmack Amendment did not deprive shippers of remedies under the existing laws, a shipper of live stock may, where the written contract was not binding, recover under an oral contract. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1.

Where the contract for an interstate shipment of cattle was oral, but just before the train started the shipper was required to sign a written bill of lading which he did not have time to read and could not have understood, the oral contract was not supplanted, the contract contained in the bill of lading not being mutual. Id.

Shipper of live stock who knew that carrier was relying upon a written contract and who was required to sign it, and who did not read contents including a limitation of six months for actions for damages to stock, held not relieved from the effect of such provision. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 714.

In an action against a carrier for breach of an oral agreement to furnish cars for an interstate shipment of live stock, a provision of a subsequent written contract pleaded in the answer that the recovery be had until the value of the stock be reduced below $30 per head, held not to defeat a recovery of damages for injury to the cattle, or to support the contention. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Smyth (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 70.

In an action against a carrier of live stock for breach of an oral agreement to furnish cars, a plea alleging a written contract merging all previous negotiations, and providing stipulation for notice, and that suit should be brought within six months or actions should be barred, set up a good defense in the absence of a showing of want of consideration, duress, fraud, or mistake. Id.

The written contract for an interstate shipment, contemplated by Carmack Amendment, being free from fraud, prevails over the precedent oral contract, so that provision of the latter for notice of claim of damages, if reasonable, controls. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1097.

Damage from decline in market price during delay in transportation of live stock is not within the provision of the contract of shipment for notice of claim for loss or injury to stock during transportation. Id.

RULE 22. WHERE THE MEANING OF THE WORDS IS A WRITTEN INSTRUMENT ARE UNAMBIGUOUS IT MAY BE READ IN THE LIGHT OF SURROUNDING CIRCUMSTANCES, AND PAROL EVIDENCE OF CUSTOM AND USAGE IS ADMISSIBLE TO SHOW ITS MEANING.

A written contract, not signed until the shipment had started, would not prevail, unless the shipper had knowledge of its contents and agreed thereto. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Bracht (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1116.

Where a debit is ambiguous, evidence of the attendant circumstances is admissible to determine its meaning. Cook v. Smith (Sup.) 174 S. W. 1094, reversing judgment Smith v. Cook (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 28.

Where an instrument is ambiguous in some of its expressions, testimony by those who drew it is admissible to aid in its construction. Hahl v. McPherson (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 804.

In case of ambiguity, the situation of the testator at the time of executing the will should be considered. West v. Gilason (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1042.

While extraneous circumstances attending execution of a will may be considered, the principle is never so extended as to substitute new words for those used, or to add terms not inferable from the writing. Hagedorn v. Hagedorn (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 330.

Parol proof will be received where there is ambiguity or uncertainty either in terms of a will itself or because of existence of some extraneous fact. Id.

2. Nature of ambiguity or uncertainty in instrument in general.—An instrument creating a trust of money held so ambiguous as to warrant the admission of parol evidence to explain its terms. Barnett v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 671.

Where a debit is ambiguous, evidence of the attendant circumstances is admissible to determine its meaning. Cook v. Smith (Sup.) 174 S. W. 1094, reversing judgment Smith v. Cook (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 28.

Where an instrument is ambiguous in some of its expressions, testimony by those who drew it is admissible to aid in its construction. Hahl v. McPherson (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 804.

In case of ambiguity, the situation of the testator at the time of executing the will should be considered. West v. Gilason (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1042.

While extraneous circumstances attending execution of a will may be considered, the principle is never so extended as to substitute new words for those used, or to add terms not inferable from the writing. Hagedorn v. Hagedorn (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 330.

Parol proof will be received where there is ambiguity or uncertainty either in terms of a will itself or because of existence of some extraneous fact. Id.

Clause of testator's will making absolute device to his wife, providing that on her death whatever might be left should be divided among their relatives, giving her full power of disposition, was not such a legal limitation upon the estate previously granted the wife as to create an ambiguity in the will to admit evidence of the maker's intention. Feggles v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 10.
Ambiguity is an uncertainty of meaning or expression used in a written instrument, was (being) clearness or definiteness; difficult to comprehend or distinguish; of doubtful import. San Antonio Life Ins. Co. v. Griffith (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 325.

Where testator's will devised all his property to two of his brothers and one of them predeceased him, there was no ambiguity in the will or because of the existence of extraneous facts. Hagedoorn v. Hagedoorn (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 329.

Where mortgages were of doubtful meaning, it was not error to admit parol testimony as to the mutual understanding at the time of their making in aid and explanation of them. T. W. Marse & Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1027.

4. Contracts in general.—A contract of employment between an insurance company and an employee consisting of two written or oral agreements, in that one contract spoke of agents' compensation as a salary, and the other as an advance against commissions, so as to warrant parol evidence in explanation. Generes v. Security Life Ins. Co. of America (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 386.

A genuine contract is one obscure in meaning through indefiniteness of expression or having a double meaning. Tom v. Roberson (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 695.

5. Contracts of sale.—A paragraph of a contract requiring each party to furnish to the other complete abstracts of title to each tract of land, each abstract to show a good record title thereto, held not of itself ambiguous. Riggins v. Post (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 216.

7. Contracts of insurance.—Where contract between its superintendent and an insurance company provided in a typewritten clause that it should remain in force for five years and in a printed clause that the company could discharge at pleasure, such contract was ambiguous, and parol evidence admissible to show intention. American Indemnity Gen. Ins. Co. v. Barker (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 653.

9. Patent ambiguity.—If an alleged will, consisting of a writing asking B. and A. to accept “this,” and a note to them, both signed by V., and inclosed in a sealed envelope, inscribed “Notes,” was ambiguous on account of the use of the words “Notes” and “this,” it was a patent ambiguity, which could not be explained by parol evidence. Maring v. Adams (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 475.

In a deed of land described as “420 acres out of the northeast portion of the Robert Hill survey,” the uncertainty of description, if any, appeared upon its face, and extraneous evidence was inadmissible to supply what was lacking. Diffie v. White (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1965.

A patent ambiguity in an instrument is an uncertainty that arises at once on the reading; is one produced by the uncertainty, contradictoriness, or deficiency of the language of the instrument. San Antonio Life Ins. Co. v. Griffith (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 336.

10. Latent ambiguity.—When the uncertainty in the description in a deed does not appear upon its face, but arises from extraneous facts, parol evidence is admissible to explain or remove it. Young v. Gharis (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 796.

Where the general description of a deed recited an amount of land intended to be conveyed less than the specific boundaries given therein included, parol evidence was not admissible to alter the calls given in the description of the land to include only the recited amount, although it is admissible to explain a latent ambiguity. Standerfer v. Miller (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1149.

Under assignment of lease and option to purchase requiring assignor to proceed at once to establish boundaries within three years from April 20, 1910, it cannot be determined whether he must proceed at once or within three-year period. Corbin v. Booker (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 496.

A “latent ambiguity” arises when a deed expresses more than one method for identifying the lines or corners of a grant, and which do not harmonize when applied to either method. The description is such that it may without contradicting or ignoring its terms, be applied to more than one tract of land. Diffie v. White (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1965.

Where there is no conflict in the terms of the description of a deed, and it fits one tract of land and no other, there is no “latent ambiguity” admitting extrinsic evidence. Id.

11. Custom controlling construction.—Contract for completion of school building in 90 working days held to exclude freezing weather in view of usage or custom as to meaning of “working days” where use of brick or cement enters into work. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. McQuery (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 385.

Where a draft with bill of lading attached was negotiated through several banks, a custom among banks in accepting drafts with reference to charging bank to its immediate indorser or customer, amount of funds for which credit had been given on receipt of draft in event it is not finally paid would not change character of the transaction and destroy effect of successive deliveries of draft as constituting an assignment of funds. West Texas Nat. Bank v. Wichita Mill & Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 835.

13. Meaning of words, phrases, signs or abbreviations.—Parol evidence is not admissible to show that the parties to a contract used language in a sense different from its ordinary meaning. O’Connor v. Camp (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 909.

It is not permissible to show that the word “estate” used in a contract purporting to sell land as agents of the estate whether it was intended to be used for the word “heirs” or that heirs were included therein.

In an action to rescind a contract of sale of a traction engine guaranteed to develop 20 horse power, parol evidence whether it was to develop such power at the belt or at the draw bar held admissible to explain what is meant by scientific or trade terms. Southern Gas & Gasoline Engine Co. v. Adams & Peters (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1143.

It was not error to exclude testimony by defendant’s bookkeeper, as to the meaning of the entry in the corporate books, marking the note sued on as "paid." Latham Co. v. Proctor (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 920.

Parol evidence held admissible to explain the meaning of a provision in a written contract, employing a life insurance agent, that the company would "handle" premium notes. San Antonio Life Ins. Co. v. Griffith (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 333.

Where a contract will be given their ordinary meaning when used in a special sense, and parol evidence is frequently permitted to show they were so used. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. McQuerry (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 588.

The word "securities" used in subscription contracts is ambiguous only, that it embraces different kinds of such evidences, parol evidence is admissible to explain what was intended by parties to the contract. Mitchell v. Porter (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 381.

15. Identification of parties.—Where a contract recited that it was executed by M. and others, acting for a bank, "and hereinafter called the second party," and it was evident that the term "second party" sometimes referred to the bank and sometimes the individuals signing for the bank, there was an ambiguity authorizing parol evidence as to which was intended in a certain provision. First State Bank of Archer City v. Power (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 352.

19. Identification of subject-matter—in conveyances, contracts and writings in general.—A writing executed by an express messenger in settlement of his claim against defendant railroad for personal injury releasing the company from the consequences of injury at A. and from all manner of actions, suits, debts, and sums of money was uncertain as to what causes of action were meant, so that parol evidence was admissible to establish the intention of the parties. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Fielder (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 325.

Evidence as to terms of a contract for construction of a dam across a creek to form a fishpond, held sufficient to sustain a finding that it did not require the contractor to build a foundation of such depth and nature as to prevent the water escaping below it. Latiff & Wear (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 257.

In an action for compensation due under a broker's contract which prohibited plaintiff from selling lands in the territory of any other agent but did not specify plaintiff's territory, parol evidence as to plaintiff's territory is admissible. Denton v. Holbert (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 261.

20. Of real property in general.—Where a vendor contracted to sell his place in a certain town, parol evidence was admissible to show that he owned but one place in that town, and also to show of what particular property that place consisted. Beaton v. Russell (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 465.

21. Application of description to subject-matter.—In an action for a vendor's breach of contract, a letter offered to identify the land, but which added nothing to the description as contained in other letters which constituted the contract, was irrelevant. Spaulding v. Smith (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 257.

Where a deed did not on its face identify with certainty the 160 acres of a survey claimed thereunder, the identification might be made by extrinsic evidence. Brown v. Foster Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 707.

22. Property or interest included.—In an action by the buyer of land by the acre for a deficiency, the issue of whether such deficiency exists is, under appropriate pleading, a question of fact allured the deed for the determination of court or jury. Ashley v. Holland (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 625.

Where the records of the probate court ordering and confirming a sale of infants' property were ambiguous, referring to different sections, held that parol evidence was admissible to identify the part of the section sold and to show that the infants owned only property. Shields v. Perrine (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 269.

Parol testimony held admissible to aid the written description of a chattel mortgage. Conley v. Dimmitt County State Bank (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 271.

23. Boundaries.—Even though there is no apparent ambiguity upon the face of a grant, parol evidence is admissible to locate the calls upon the land, and to show whether they include the land in controversy. Roberts v. Hart (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 473.

Where all the calls of a description lead to the same result, there is no ambiguity, but, if the calls lead to different results, there is a latent ambiguity, which requires the following of some calls and the rejection of others. Id.

Parol evidence held inadmissible to resolve any ambiguity in a deed, the descriptive calls of which were clear and unambiguous, identifying the land as a certain survey, though the field notes of such survey in fact did not place it within the calls. McPadden v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 306.

A conflict between the surveyor's maps and the field notes required the court to resort to parol evidence to ascertain if possible the footsteps of the surveyor. McCormack v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 485.

Where a call in field notes of a survey does not refer to objects on the ground indicating the surveyor's footsteps, such call cannot be controlled by parol evidence of such footsteps, except in actions to correct mistake; but evidence of facts extraneous to the call is admissible, in aid of a call found in field notes, to remove an ambiguity, and determine which of two or more conflicting calls shall prevail. Goodrich v. West Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 341.

Where the calls of a deed were made by mistake, correction of the instrument under the rules of pleading in such cases is the proper remedy, and not the introduction of parol evidence as to the correct calls in an action to recover part of the land conveyed. Vevey v. Standford & Miller (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1149.

25. Reference to other instruments.—A sheriff's deed on execution for "two hundred acres more or less, in the southwest half of the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section eight, Bluff League, being a part of tract sold by H. to H."

26. In sale of personal property.—Parol evidence held admissible to explain a bill of sale which guaranteed defendant against all claims against the business. Modern Agr. v. Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 642.

27. Of debt or obligation collateral to security.—Parol evidence of surrounding circumstances is admissible in determining whether a written guaranty is continuing or affects merely a single credit. Self v. Albany Nat. Bank of Albany (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 522.

28. Showing intent of parties as to subject-matter.—Where an assignment of part of a series of vendor's lien notes declares them to be prior incumbrances upon the land, parol evidence is inadmissible to show that the assignor did not intend to confer priority upon the assigned notes over the notes retained by her. Martin v. Gray (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 118.

29. In construction of deeds in general.—Where a conveyance which purported to fix the rights of the several grantees to the proceeds of the property was ambiguous, parol evidence is admissible to explain the intention of the parties. Barnett v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 671.

30. In description of property.—Where an oil lease merely gave plaintiffs such land as was necessary to operate wells, they cannot show an understanding that for each well opened they should be entitled to an acre of land. Moore v. Decker (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 816.

31. Showing purpose of writing.—Where a deed of trust in favor of a bank is delivered to one of its officers, defendants claiming that it was to be held by him and never delivered, parol evidence is admissible to explain the purpose of depositing the instrument. Rushing v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Plainview (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 460.
RULE 23. BLANKS IN WRITTEN INSTRUMENTS LEFT FOR NAMES MAY BE FILLED, AND THE TRUE DATES WHEN INCOMPLETE MAY BE SHOWN

Date of instrument.—Where the date of a promissory note is left blank by the maker, the presumption is that any holder has implied authority to insert the true date. Landon v. Foster Drug Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 494.

RULE 24. PAROL EVIDENCE IS ADMISSIBLE TO CONTRADICT THE RECITAL OF PAYMENT IN A DEED, RECEIPT, OR OTHER INSTRUMENT, AND TO SHOW THE AMOUNT ACTUALLY PAID OR THE REAL CONSIDERATION

What constitutes receipt in general.—A certificate issued by a bank showing the deposit of drafts with bills of lading attached being merely a receipt, plaintiff could testify as to the arrangement on which the drafts were received. First Nat. Bank of Gorman v. Mangum (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 1197.

Deeds in general.—Parol evidence to show the real consideration for a contract is admissible, though contradicting the recited consideration. Watson v. Rice (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 106.

Oral testimony is admissible to explain or add to the consideration recited in a deed. Ballard v. Fournais Bros. (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 259.

Assumption or payment of debts or incumbrances.—Parol evidence of grantees' agreements to assume and pay an incumbrance held admissible to explain the consideration of a deed, independent of the issue of mistake in omitting the covenant from the deed. Alston v. Pierson (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1165.

In suit by the original vendor of land against the purchaser and the latter's grantee whose deed recited that he bought "subject" to the vendor's lien note, the testimony of the purchaser that his grantee assumed the debt as part consideration was not inadmissible as varying the deed. Ballard v. Fournais Bros. (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 289.

Acknowledgment of payment in deed.—In action for rent against lessee and person claiming the rent by assignment from a former owner, plaintiff held properly permitted to testify as to the true consideration for his deed, though different from that recited in the deed. Robinson v. Clymer (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 107.

As between the parties to a deed, parol evidence is admissible to vary or controvert recitals as to the nature or amount of the consideration. Miller v. Poulter (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 105.

The recital of a paid consideration in a deed is not conclusive on the parties thereto, but may be disproved by parol. Delano v. Delano (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 972.

In a deed conveying the free simple title to an heir of grantor, the recital of consideration of cash paid, and also that grantee's stepdaughter should receive the same interest in land as his own children, was not contractual, and for that reason conclusive against another heir of grantor of the fact that the conveyance was not an advancement within Rev. St. Art. 2467. 1d.

In suit for rescission of purchase of land, held, that defendant should have been required to answer question if it was not true that consideration mentioned in deed to him for land was not in fact paid by transfer of interest in mortgage holder patented to him, in which the two other defendants had an interest. Barbian v. Grant (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 789.

Consideration recited in a deed may always be attacked, no matter by whom introduced in evidence. Delano v. Delano (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 930.

Contracts in general.—In an action for a partnership accounting, where the written partnership agreement stated the consideration to be furnished by the defendant, but not that to be furnished by the plaintiff, parol evidence was admissible on behalf of plaintiff to show the consideration furnished by him. Ramsey v. Bird (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1075.

Parol evidence of the real consideration of a written contract is admissible, although it contradicts the consideration named in the contract. Blair & Hughes Co. v. Watkins & Kelley (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 539.

In a creditor's action against the debtor and his guarantor's executor, it was competent to prove by parol evidence that, when the debtor delivered collateral to the creditor, it was in consideration that the creditor should discharge the guarantor. Nebbett v. Cooper Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1162.

Contracts of sale or exchange.—Where a guaranty of a vendor of water for irrigation was a part of the consideration for the purchase-money notes executed by the purchaser, the guaranty was a contractual one, and could not be proved by parol in a suit on the notes and for the foreclosure of the vendor's lien retained in the deed. Luckenbach v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 99.

A written contract for the sale of goods at the invoice price is not varied by parol evidence that the invoice price on one article was less than represented by the seller and paid by the buyer. Midgley & Curtisinger v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 301.

A contract fixing the consideration for a conveyance of land cannot be varied by parol evidence of an additional consideration. Matheson v. O-B Live Stock Co. (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 734.

Consideration in contract for sale of real estate may be shown by parol, and statute of frauds does not apply thereto. Whaley v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 409.
RULE 25. PAROL EVIDENCE IS ADMISSIBLE TO SHOW THAT A WRITTEN INSTRUMENT IS VOID FOR ILLEGALITY, WANT OR FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION, OR ON ACCOUNT OF FRAUD OR MISTAKE

Grounds for admission of extrinsic evidence.—Where, through mistake, fraud, or negligence, the knowledge or consent of a person to whom the writing was not shown, is necessary to incorporate into the writing the real agreement between the parties, parol evidence was admissible to show the true contract. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Howell (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 51.

Matters affecting validity in general.—A map which is an archive of the land office may be shown by parol evidence to be incorrect. Stevens v. Crosby (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 62.

Want or failure of consideration.—In a suit on a note, given for bank stock, by the payee, parol evidence showing that the note was conditional upon the payee's not electing to retain his stock within 30 days, and that he so retained it, was admissible to show that the note was without consideration. Hawkins v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 588.

Mistake.—Where transfer of partner's interest in business was not intended to cover only part of the transaction, and omission of a transfer of claims resulted from mistake, held that such transfer could not be shown by parol. City of Brownsville v. Tumlinson (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1107.

Omission of part of the oral agreement from the written contract is not by mistake where one of the parties at the time of signing knows that all the agreement is not embraced in the contract. Tom v. Roberson (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 698.

Fraud.—Fraudulent representations need not be embodied in the contract in order to be ground for rescission, notwithstanding the rule that oral evidence is not admissible to vary the terms of a writing. South Texas Mortgage Co. v. Cook (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 419; South Texas Mortgage Co. v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 422.

The rule excluding parol evidence to vary written instruments has no application, where it is sought to avoid a contract, the execution of which is alleged to have been induced by false and fraudulent representations. Hackney Mfg. Co. v. Celum (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 888.

In contracts in general.—Evidence held not to show fraud or mutual mistake in the execution of the contract resulting in the omission of a provision for forfeiture of the sum paid, upon failure to pay the balance within a certain time. Wright v. Bott (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 360.

A husband and wife relying on the invalidity of a mortgage by the husband alone may not, in the absence of fraud, show that he did not know that the mortgage recited that the property was not homestead. Parker v. Schrimsher (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 165.

In contracts of sale.—A buyer, who by false representations is induced to purchase machinery sold under a written contract containing certain warranties, is not restricted to action on written contract, but can sue on antecedent fraud by which it was procured. Rumely Products Co. v. Moss (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1084.

Statements by the seller's agent as to a guaranty in the written contract held such fraud as to render admissible parol evidence to show the real terms of the agreement. Lummus Cotton Gin Sales Co. v. Farmers' Co-op. Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 394.

Parol evidence of fraudulent representations inducing an order for goods held admissible, although the order stipulates that all its conditions appear upon its face. Blair & Hughes Co. v. Watkins & Kelley (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 580.

A warranty executed as part of contract of horse sold to exclude any warranty not therein contained, as well as evidence of fraudulent representations, Bolt v. State Savings Bank of Manchester, Iowa (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1119.

Purchaser sued for purchase price, in support of plea of failure of consideration, held entitled to show by parol material misrepresentations. Id.

Buyer of 267 acres of land for $65 an acre, the tracts being represented orally and in deed to contain so much, the seller knowing that such was not the case, could prove by parol and recover for a 0-acre deficiency. Ashley v. Holland (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 655.

Evidence that plaintiff's agent had made false representations to defendant prior to the sale held properly admitted, notwithstanding a provision of the sale contract that the seller should not be bound by any undertakings, promises, or warranties of their agents beyond those expressed in the contract. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Webb (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 553.

Where purchasers of automobile truck were deceived into believing it was new when it was secondhand, the fact that the contract of sale contained a written guaranty only of workmanship and materials would not, under the parol evidence rule, preclude them from recovering for the fraud. Avery Co. of Texas v. Staples Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 43.

In bills and notes or indorsement thereof.—Where fraud is alleged in the answer to an action on a note with respect to the plaintiff's representation as to the application of collateral, parol evidence of the agreement was admissible. First State Bank of Amarillo v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 265.

In subscription to corporate stock.—Where a stock subscription contract was obtained by fraud, evidence of the fraud was not objectionable as varying a provision of the contract that no conditions, representations, or agreements other than those printed
RULE 25. PAROL EVIDENCE IS ADMISSIBLE TO ESTABLISH A TRUST OR TO SHOW THAT A WRITTEN INSTRUMENT WAS INTENDED AS A MORTGAGE, TRUST OR CONDITIONAL SALE

Mortgage or conditional sale.—Where a deed, absolute in form, was a mortgage at its inception, no subsequent parol agreement could change its character. McLemore v. Bielert (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 536.

Where it is sought to ingraft a parol trust on an absolute deed and show it is intended as a mortgage, the evidence must be clear and certain. De Shazo v. Eubank (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 389.

Trust.—In an action to enforce a trust in land purchased by defendant, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding of oral agreement between plaintiff and defendant that if either bought the land it was to be for the benefit of both. Sachs v. Goldberg (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 92.

A parol trust in lands may be established by the evidence of one witness, if it is such as to sustain the conclusion that equitable relief should be administered. Ellerd v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 876.

Where the trustee is dead, a parol trust should not be ingrafted upon a deed to land without clear and satisfactory evidence thereof, and such evidence is not satisfactory where the party suing to establish a trust withstands the best evidence on the question. Robson v. Moore (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 98.

In a suit to enforce a resulting trust, evidence held admissible to show that the consideration for the property was community property, though the deed recited that it was the separate property of complainant’s wife. Strickland v. Baugh (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 181.

Evidence of declarations of the grantor introduced to show a parol trust held admissible, though the witness could not give the exact language or exact date. Hamleton v. Southwest Texas Baptist Hospital (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 574.

While a parol trust may be ingrafted upon a deed, absolute on its face, the evidence must be clear and satisfactory. Id.

The feeling of a grantor towards her granddaughters, who claimed that they were entitled under a parol trust, held admissible. Id.

Testimony of the payment of bills of the grantee in New York and Hot Springs is not relevant to a claim that the land was subject to a parol trust. Id.

Evidence of what a grantee said she would do with land is not admissible to charge the property with a parol trust. Id.

Evidence of the grantor’s intention, many years before conveyance of land, is admissible to show that a conveyance absolute on its face was subject to a parol trust. Id.

Evidence of the poverty of the alleged beneficiaries is inadmissible in a proceeding to establish a parol trust. Id.

A letter held admissible to rebut a claim of a parol trust. Id.

Evidence that the grantor made presents to one of the alleged beneficiaries is inadmissible to establish a parol trust upon a conveyance absolute on its face. Id.

Evidence that a grantor had supported the grantee is inadmissible in a proceeding to charge the property conveyed with parol trust. Id.

Where plaintiff furnished money to agent with which to purchase lands, and agent took title in his own name, in action by plaintiff to restrain execution sale by creditor of agent, parol evidence was admissible to show facts leading up to and constituting entire transaction. Hornbeck v. Barker (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 276.

RULE 28. A WRITTEN INSTRUMENT, FAILING THROUGH FRAUD, ACCIDENT OR MISTAKE, EITHER OF MATTER OF LAW OR OF FACT, TO REPRESENT THE TRUE AGREEMENT, EITHER OF MATTER OF LAW OR OF FACT, TO REPRESENT THE TRUE AGREEMENT, OR CONTAINING TERMS CONTRARY TO THE COMMON INTENTION, WILL BE CORRECTED OR REFORMED IN EQUITY

Fraud, accident or mistake in general.—The rule that when a mistake is not mutual courts will not relieve the party making it, does not apply where the party accepting an offer knows of the mistake and seeks to take advantage of it. Barteldes Seed Co. v. Bennett-Sims Mill & Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 389.

Instrument will not be reformed for mistake of one of the parties unless superinduced by fraud of other. Yantis v. Jones (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 572.

Before equity will change the terms of a written instrument as not expressing the real agreement, it must appear that they were inserted through accident, fraud, or mutual mistake, or, if the mistake be unilateral, it must be material going to the substance of the contract. Arden v. Boone (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 995.
A mistake, to justify reformation of instrument or deed, must have been participated in by all parties in interest.

Darden v. Vanlandingham (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 297.

Deeds.—A deed which, by mutual mistake of the parties, conveys the entire tract of land intended by the parties to convey only an undivided half interest will be reformed to express the intention of the parties.

In an action to reform a deed on the ground of mistake, whereby more land was conveyed than was intended, evidence held to show that a mutual mistake existed.

Harris v. Parr (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 42.

That a grantor did not read the deed, or did not know of the mistake in the description at the time of its execution, would not bar his right to a reformation of it, on account of mistake or fraud.

A deed cannot be reformed by the addition of a stipulation therein, unless the stipulation was omitted by fraud, accident, or mistake.

Luckenbach v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 56.

It was not error to refuse to correct a deed of trust running to defendants as to a misdescription, where it did not appear that a mutual mistake as to such description had been made.

A correction of mutual mistake in description of property in a conveyance does not create a new contract, but merely makes the written evidence of the contract speak the truth and conform to the intention of the parties.

Where party executed preliminary contract and accepted deed providing for his keeping open a permanent roadway, in the absence of showing of fraud or excuse for failure to read the two instruments, reformation thereof could not be had on the ground of accident, fraud, or mistake.

Where all heirs inheriting land are free from disability and join in a conveyance, property, for which they receive pay, and which they receive is by mistake omitted from their deed, authorizes a court of equity to reformat it, or to grant such relief to purchaser as correction would confer.

Darden v. Vanlandingham (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 297.

Where 184.6 acres were conveyed instead of 157.3 as intended, the excess was such as equity will correct, if made by mutual mistake.

Seureau v. Frazer (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1903.

Evidence held to sustain a jury finding that the parties to a deed made a mutual mistake regarding the source of grantor's title, although the grantors did not testify and the grantees read the deed before accepting it.

Where the parties to a deed make a mutual mistake regarding the source of the grantor's title, equity will reform the deed or grant other appropriate relief.

Contracts in general.—Where the parties to a contract discovered before its execution that a stipulation was omitted therefrom, but they believed, on the advice of an attorney, that the stipulation was binding, the contract would not be reformed to include the stipulation, unless either party was misled by the other, or by the intentional misrepresentation of the attorney.

In the absence of fraud, mistake, or some special reason, the courts will not reform a binding contract.

Where, through mutual mistake, a chattel mortgage misdescribed the note securing the debt, equity will award reformation.

Bailey v. Culver (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1083.

Where a release reciting payment of entire debt did not purport to release all of the lands subject to the deed of trust, held, that such recital could not overcome abundant other evidence showing that it was made through mutual mistake.

Where a release of a deed of trust through mutual mistake recited payment of the entire debt and erroneously released more of the land than was intended, the instrument will be reformed by a court of equity.

Where through mutual mistake a chattel mortgage failed to include a debt which the parties agreed should be secured, the instrument will be reformed.

Equity will reform a chattel mortgage in case of mutual mistake between the parties so as to make it express the true intent, and third parties cannot complain of the reformation unless they plead and prove that they are subsequent lienholders or purchasers in good faith.

Equity will relieve from the terms of a contract for unilateral mistake only if it arises through no want of ordinary care or diligence on complainant's part.

Contracts of Insurance.—Evidence in an action for the reformation of an insurance policy, naming L. as the insured and K. as mortgagee and payee in case of loss, held sufficient to support a judgment reforming the policy by inserting plaintiff's name in the mortgage clause, on the ground of mistake.

RULE 20. PAROL EVIDENCE IS ADMISSIBLE TO ESTABLISH A SEPARATE ORAL AGREEMENT CONSTITUTING A CONDITION PRECEDENT TO AN OBLIGATION CLAIMED TO ARISE ON A WRITTEN AGREEMENT

Contracts in general.—Evidence of a condition precedent to the liability of an obligee on a bond held admissible.

That a written contract of employment of a broker to procure a purchaser of land was on a condition may be proved by parol to show it did not become operative. Farrar v. Holt (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 618.

Contracts of sale and deeds.—An obligation to convey lands, independent on its face, may be shown by parol evidence to be dependent upon a consideration not expressed in the obligation or instrument declared on. Johnson v. Mansfield (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 927.

Parol evidence held inadmissible to show that a deed delivered directly to the grantee, and the notes given for the price, were intended to take effect only on conditions. Holt v. Gordon (Sup.) 174 S. W. 1097.

In an action on purchase-money notes and to foreclose the vendor’s lien, parol evidence is not admissible to prove a previous agreement that the sale should become effective only on the happening of a condition. Holt v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 902.

Vendor held entitled to show by parol that contract delivered to third party was not to take effect unless he was able to procure a conveyance of the land from another party. Nelson v. Boggs (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 1065.

In an action for goods sold and delivered on the buyer’s order to the seller’s salesman, parol evidence was admissible to show that the written order was not to be delivered to the seller to be filled within 30 days. National Novelty Import Co. v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 858.

Bills and notes or indorsement thereof.—A buyer of an interest in a machine, who seeks to recover from the seller the sum paid to bona fide indorsees of purchase-money notes, may prove by parol the agreement under which the notes were given and show that the seller agreed to return the notes if the buyer within 90 days expressed dissatisfaction. Watson v. Rice (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 106.

Parol evidence of the terms and conditions on which a negotiable instrument has been delivered to the payee and of the understanding between the parties is admissible. Id.

Where defendant executed a premium note, parol evidence that it was agreed that it should not be paid if defendant would assist in procuring other insurance, held inadmissible. Security Life Ins. Co. of America v. Allen (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 131.

In a suit on a note, given for bank stock, by the payee, parol evidence was admissible to show that such note was conditional on the payee’s not electing to retain his stock within 30 days, and that he so elected. Hawkins v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 563.

As between the parties to a note, the oral condition on which it was delivered, that it should be payable only on a happening of a certain event, is valid. Hamilton v. Hannon (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 938.

RULE 30. PAROL EVIDENCE IS ADMISSIBLE TO SHOW THAT A WRITTEN AGREEMENT HAS BEEN RESCINDED, MODIFIED, EXTENDED OR WAIVED BY A SUBSEQUENT VALID AGREEMENT

In general.—Evidence of a parol agreement, made after written authority to the broker to sell, that defendant should pay no commission on an exchange of properties, unless the exchange was fully consummated, held properly admitted. Williams v. Phelps (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1100.

A written contract may be abrogated or altered by a parol agreement subsequently made, and proof of such subsequent agreement is not inadmissible as an attempt to vary a written instrument by parol evidence. Lone Star Canal Co. v. Broussard (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 649.

A local insurance agent, authorized to waive conditions and forfeitures contained in a fire policy, may waive them by parol. New Jersey Fire Ins. Co. v. Baird (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 558.

The rule excluding parol evidence varying writings does not prevent the introduction of an oral modification of the written contract made subsequent to the execution of the written contract. Ross v. Moore (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 853.

Written contract can be rescinded by parol. Taylor v. Wentworth & Curtis (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 158.

The rule forbidding admission of parol evidence to alter or contradict a written instrument does not prohibit establishment by parol of an agreement between parties to a writing entered into subsequent to execution of written instrument changing or altogether abrogating written contract. Eubank v. Bostick (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 214.

RULE 32. A RECITAL IN A DEED BINDS THE PARTIES AND THEIR PRIVIES IN SUITS FOUND UPON SUCH INSTRUMENT OR GROWING OUT OF THE TRANSACTION IN WHICH IT IS GIVEN

I. Creation and Operation of Estoppel in General

1. Nature and elements in general.—To estop one by deed it must be proved that there was a consideration paid the grantor, or that he was guilty of fraud or gross negligence, and that the party relying on the estoppel did not know the facts. Ford v. Winkler (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 885.

A party relying on estoppel by deed is chargeable with knowledge of the state of the title shown by the record. Id.

As a grantor in a deed, absolute in form but in fact a mortgagee, signing as a witness a deed to a grantee of the mortgagee, was not stopped to assert that it was a mort-

A conveyance by plaintiffs' brothers and sisters, who were tenants in common, of a particular tract of land, held to bar plaintiffs from recovering that parcel; the grantee having made improvements, and the whole tract being of similar character. Ramirez v. Laster (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 706.

Though before a husband's judgment creditor, who had levied on community lands, deeded them to the wife, the husband had executed a quitclaim deed to the lands to the wife, the judgment creditor's deed did not vest title in the separate estate of the wife. Emery v. Barfield (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 395.

Where a deed to land was duly recorded and in the chain of title when a company concluded its contract to buy such land and accepted conveyance, the grantor in the deed, which was procured by fraud, was estopped from recovering her interest in the land from the company. Collett v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 232.

A wife, having sold part of a tract of land subject to a lien, and consented to a release of the lien on that part, is estopped from asserting against the holder of the lien the right to have the land sold made subject to lien before the homestead. Loe v. Heilgardt (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 714.

4. — Defective, inoperative or invalid instruments and transactions.—The rule that a tenant in common may recover possession of the entire tract as against a trespasser did not apply as against defendant, claiming under a deed which the grantors and their heirs for more than 50 years had recognized as valid, and which was insufficient only in the certificate of acknowledgment. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Sidduth (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 556.

5. Recitals in deeds, mortgages, and mechanic's liens as grounds of estoppel.—The holder of a bond or title claimant, who had been surrendered an canceled bond not estopped by mortgages given vendor for supplies, describing the land as belonging to the vendor, though this was evidence to be considered with the other testimony. Woford v. Strickland (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 623.

Where a mechanic's lien on a homestead, executed to secure a building loan, recited that it was agreed that all work already done on the building and all material furnished had been paid for, the borrower was estopped to thereafter deny the truth of such statement in order to avoid the lien. Melcher v. Higbee (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 478.

Mere declaration of one in a deed of land which is his actual residence that it is not his homestead will not estop him to claim it as such against execution of a third person. Pierce v. Jones (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1137.

7. Persons estopped in general.—Recital, in a deed to complainant's wife, that the consideration was her separate property did not preclude complainant, after her death, in a suit to reform the deed, from testifying that such recital was erroneous, and that the consideration was the community property of himself and wife. Strickland v. Baugh (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 181.

11. Persons acting in particular character or capacity.—One who, as trustee of a lodge, executed a deed to certain lots, is estopped from claiming a portion thereof against the grantee by adverse possession for any period prior to the execution of the deed. Crump v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 559.

12. Matters precluded.—In a suit to establish a disputed boundary line, plaintiff held not estopped, by certain deeds calling for the line as located by defendant, to claim that the limenons were properly located. Clemmons v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 1198.

A trustee joining cotrustees in executing a blanket deed of trust as trustees held not estopped from suing for the recovery of the property on offering to do equity by offering to pay the proper proportion of the moneys borrowed by the trustees. Pryor v. Krus (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 485.

A surety upon a replevin bond in garnishment held estopped from asserting a lien upon moneys paid to one of the garnishers as attorney for the principal defendant. Amarillo Nat. Bank v. Sanborn (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1975.

Where an attorney purchases property adversely to his client, he cannot contend as against the client that his vendor's title was void. Morris v. Brown (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 265.

II. Estates and Rights Subsequently Acquired

15. Instruments operating on title subsequently acquired—Conveyances with covenants.—Where purchaser from state conveyed by warranty deed, and after forfeiture for nonpayment of interest again purchased from the state and procured a patent, title held not to pass by estoppel. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Reese-Corrifcner Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 745.

17. Grounds of estoppel.—A chattel mortgage upon property not in existence may become operative if the property covered subsequently comes into the possession of the mortgagor or the equitable principle of estoppel rather than on the principle that the execution of the mortgage then creates a valid lien upon the thing mortgaged. Ivy v. Pugh (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 393.

18. Persons to whom estoppel is available.—A tenant in common's purchase of an outstanding hostile title inures to benefit of his cotenants. Rogers v. White (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1001.
RULE 33. THE ADMISSIONS OF A PARTY OR HIS AGENT ARE ADMISSIBLE IN EVIDENCE WHEN OFFERED BY THE ADVERSE PARTY

I. Nature, Form and Incidents in General

10. Judicial admissions in general.—In an action to rescind a contract alleged to have been induced by defendant’s false representations that it had been held legal by the courts and made, and pleaded guilty and offered the deed, the indictment and his plea of guilty held admissible. Coons v. Lain (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 981.

In an action for the rent of grazing lands, the admissions of defendant as to the pasturing of his cattle thereon, made in another suit between him and another party, were admissible in evidence. Warburton v. Wilkinson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 721.

11. Pleadings—Admissibility in same proceedings.—In a suit for partition and accounting of rents and profits, the court properly permitted so much of defendant’s answer as alleged a receipt for rent, to be admitted in evidence as an admission of defendant. Bennett v. Jones (Civ. App.) 256 S. W. 337.

In an action by a client to recover payment for services rendered, plaintiff produced a document which defendant admitted as his signature, but refused to admit its authenticity. Stolte v. Harbor (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 624.

12. Same or different parties.—In an action for conversion of cattle by levy of attachment, a paragraph contained in a bill of equity between the same parties was admissible against the plaintiff as admission in another suit, First Nat. Bank of Hereford v. Hogan (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 880.

Avemers in a pleading are competent evidence in a subsequent suit against the party making them, and the fact that the averments are made on information and belief is not fatal to the admissibility. Id.

13. Pleadings superseded, withdrawn or abandoned.—Admissions in contestants’ original answer for which an amended answer was substituted are not sufficient to identify the signer of a waiver of the right to administer where the original answer was not put in evidence. Kimmons v. Abraham (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 256.

In an action for personal injuries to plaintiff’s wife, defendant railroad company may introduce abandoned pleadings of plaintiff wherein he contended that part of the injuries were due to the negligence of other railroad companies. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1087.

Where a complaint in libel counted only on original publication and not on answer setting up truth, afterwards abandoned by amendment, held error to admit such answer in evidence. Ft. Worth Pub. Co. v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 554.

In an action for libel, seeking only actual damages, answer setting up truth superseded by amendment held not admissible in evidence. Id.

In an action for fraternal insurance, defendant’s original answer containing admissions of relevant issues, held admissible, but open to explanation or contradiction like other admissions. Carr v. Grand Lodge, United Brothers of Friendship of Texas (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 510.

17½. Declarations after execution of gift deed.—In wife’s suit to restrain sale on execution of land conveyed to her by husband, declarations of husband, made after execution of the gift deed, consisting of his confession, by suffering default, of the truth of admissions in the execution creditor’s petition that the conveyance was void, were inadmissible as against the wife, who was not a party to the suit. Stolte v. Karren (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 600.

19. Testimony.—In an action against two for the overflow of land, plaintiff’s testimony as a witness in that his opinion the overflow was caused by the fill made by appellants or the interposing of a dike, was not an admission of negligence. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Kezer (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 661.

20. Offers of compromise or settlement.—Where letters between attorneys and a client showed merely an effort to compromise a dispute, as to the attorneys’ compensation by accepting less than they thereafter sued for, they were all properly excluded. Hunter v. Holt (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 805.

In trespass to try title, evidence that plaintiff offered to purchase a deed from defendants to the property held inadmissible, for that fact will not affect plaintiff’s title, being a mere attempt to remove a possible cloud. Zimmermann v. Baugh (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 945.

In an action for wrongful garnishment, it was not error for the court to permit an admission in plaintiff’s petition that he made an effort to compromise the debt before the garnishment was issued to remain, and to permit proof thereof. Bennett v. Foster (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1078.

A letter from defendant’s attorneys prior to suit on a note in question held not objectionable as a whole as an offer to compromise. Sanford v. John Finnigan Co. (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 624.

When any fact stated in an offer of compromise can be separated from the offer and still convey the idea in the writer’s mind, it is admissible. Id.

A mere offer to pay in compromise on a condition not accepted an item claimed to be owed was not an admission of such item being owed. Tabet Bros. Co. v. Higginbotham (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 118.

An offer clearly one of compromise, involving no admission of liability, should not be admitted in an action on a note; the defense being that it was delivered on an oral condition of payment not satisfied. Hamilton v. Hannus (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 985.

In a servant’s action for injury, his unaccepted offer to compromise his claim was properly withdrawn from the jury. Winnebago Cotton Oil Co. v. Carson (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1002.

21. What constitutes offer.—In action on accident policy to recover death claim, admission of draft or voucher for the amount of a disability claim, sent after the insurer knew that plaintiff was making claim for the death, held not to violate the rule against evidence as to offer to compromise. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Co. v. Hendricks (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 1097.

A request for settlement, made before the other party had denied liability or there had been a disagreement as to the amount, is not inadmissible as an offer to compromise. Taulman v. F. Ry. Co. v. Spann (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 609.

22. Admissions made without prejudice.—In order to exclude distinct admissions of facts as offers of compromise, they must have been made without prejudice, and into which the party might have been led by the confidence of effecting a compromise. Sanford v. John Finnigan Co. (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 624.

24. Statements in writing.—In servant’s action for injury, where defendant claimed that plaintiff was a vice principal, declarations contained in plaintiff’s proof made to the insurer might be considered in the capacity in which he was employed. Winnsboro Cotton Oil Co. v. Carson (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1002.

25. Letters.—In an action on a note, a letter from the president of the payee to one claiming to be a surety was admissible to show the payee’s knowledge of the fact that the party claiming to be surety had not a principal. Central Bank & Trust Co. of Houston v. Hill (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1099.

A letter, written by a life insurance company to its agent, held competent as an admission of the meaning of its written agreement to handle premium notes. San Antonio L. & Griffith Co. v. Ernav (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 222.

27. Oral statements.—Statements of a party to a witness as to the matter in controversy are admissible against him. Mendiola v. Gonzales (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 389.

In an action against livery stable keepers for value of horse, owner was properly permitted to testify that “defendant told him that in his (defendant’s) opinion it was not necessary to have a veterinary surgeon to treat the horse for the injury.” Attaway v. Schmidt & Madigan Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1010.

In suit to rescind purchase of land for fraud, testimony that defendant stated in presence of another defendant that land was rich and good agricultural land, and was north of a certain town, which was not the case, was admissible as in nature of admission against interest. Barbivan v. Grant (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 789.

28. Acts or conduct.—In an action for injuries to plaintiff’s mule at a cattle guard, evidence that the railroad had substituted a different kind of guard at another place held admissible as an admission. Stephenville N. & S. T. Ry. Co. v. Schrank (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 471.

Evidence of changes or repairs subsequent to an injury, or as to subsequent precautions to avoid recurrence of injury, is not admissible as showing negligence or as an admission of negligence, though there are several exceptions to the rule. Winnisnoro Cotton Oil Co. v. Carson (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1002.

Where a railroad defended an intended passenger’s action for injuries on the ground that it was necessary to operate its signal to maintain the rod which the passenger struck, at the height at which it was maintained, evidence that after the accident it was raised 1 foot is admissible to show that it was not necessary to maintain the rod where it was. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Truss (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 249.

It is ordinarily the rule that evidence of repairs after an accident is not admissible to prove antecedent negligence. Id.

In action by buyer to recover excess of price paid for cotton, refusal of defendant to take back cotton sold by him at the same price he received for it, notwithstanding an earlier agreement, was competent as an admission, as tending upon his claim that the grade and classification at which it was sold were the correct ones. Townsend v. Pilgrim (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1021.

In a boundary case in which defendant was claiming under a Mexican grant, a deed and patent to defendant from state dated after a former case concerning the land held not admissible as showing purchase of adverse title, Dunn v. Land (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 698.

29. Suppressing testimony.—In an action for fraudulent misrepresentations, testimony of a witness for the plaintiff that defendant had induced him to leave the state in order to prevent his testifying was admissible. Loftus v. Sturgis (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 14.

30. Compromise or settlement.—In a personal injury action prosecuted to a conclusion by attorneys, assignees of one-half interest therein, after their client had compromised the action with the client’s insurance company, held improper to explain, to show an admission of negligence upon the part of the railway. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 784.

Agreement between holder of vendor’s lien and certain defendants, in the nature of a compromise and admission, that the lien was valid as against such defendants held improperly excluded. Zeigal v. Magee (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 631.

31. Acquiescence or silence.—In an action for injuries sustained by plaintiff’s wife while a passenger on defendant’s train, evidence that the plaintiff had made no demand for injury or injury sustained before instituting suit in C. Ry. Co. v. Fox, 166 S. W. 633, 106 Tex. 317, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 922.

Failure of railroad superintendent, discussing the widening of a subway, to assert street railroad’s contract liability for burning bridge over it, held not an admission that the street railroad was not so liable. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Amarillo St. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1103.
II. By Parties or Others Interested in Event

34. Parties of record.—In a will contest on the ground of contestee’s undue influence over the testator, her husband, evidence that she had declared that contestant, his daughter, need not be looking to see what she could get out of testator, because declarant would see that she did not get any more than she had, was admissible as showing an intention to defeat contestant’s rights in the estate. Scott v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 342, judgment reversed 106 Tex. 322, 168 S. W. 1138.

37. Joint interest.—While declarations of a legatee are inadmissible as against other legatees, to prove that the execution of the will was procured by undue influence, yet, declarations of a contestee, charged with undue influence, made in the absence of testator, her husband, and showing ill will toward contestee, were admissible in corroboration of the evidence showing conversations with her husband, amounting to attempts to influence the disposition of his property, which contestee denied. Scott v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 342, judgment reversed 106 Tex. 322, 168 S. W. 1138.

III. By Grantors, Former Owners or Privies

38. Privies and former owners in general.—In a lessee’s action for an injunction, the lessor’s declarations against interest held admissible against defendant, who claimed under him with full notice that plaintiff was in possession. Edwards v. Old Settlers’ Ass’n (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 423.

Prior to an execution sale, the record owner told the purchaser that the judgment debtor owned the land and the debtor confirmed it. Held, the debtor’s statement was admissible on the issue of title, where appellant claimed under a prior unrecorded deed of the record owner. Alexander v. Conley (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 264.

40. Grantors, vendors or mortgagees of real property—Before conveyance or transfer of title. Declarations of a grantor, made before execution of the deed, that he did not claim the land, are admissible as against his grantee. Rayner v. Posey (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 246.

Declarations of a grantor prior to sale in disparagement of his title, though admissible against the grantee, are not admissible against an innocent purchaser. Id.

41. After conveyance or transfer of title in general.—The testimony of a grantor that before the execution of the deed he, with the grantee’s agent, went on the ground, and pointed out the boundary, is inadmissible against a subsequent purchaser relying on the deed duly recorded. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 872.

In an action for the conversion of cotton which a mortgagee claimed under a mortgage made by a landowner before he conveyed to defendants, a letter written by the landowner, explaining that he had sold the land, and was renting from his grantee, on shares, and that defendants were to take the first cotton, is admissible only against the writer. A. J. Birdsong & Son v. Allen (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 1177.

Where a purchaser of land sold all of his interest to defendants, who assumed payment of the unpaid purchase money, the purchaser’s admissions that he did not rely upon his grantor’s representations as to the quantity of land conveyed, etc., are binding only upon himself and not upon defendants. Brown v. Yoakum (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 803.

Declarations of a grantor that he claimed the land and contemplated improving and living upon it, made after his conveyance, and not in his grantee’s presence, are inadmissible. De Shazo v. Eubank (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 369.

In wife’s suit to restrain sale on execution of land conveyed by her husband, declarations of husband made after his execution of the gift deed, were inadmissible. Stolte v. Karren (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 600.

A purported will which apparently affected title to land was inadmissible where the land involved had been conveyed nine years before. Jung v. Petermann (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 202.

43. Showing fraud.—Declarations of one after taking title in his son’s name of property bought with community funds, made in the son’s absence, that he did so to defraud his wife, being against interest, are after his death admissible against the son. Krenz v. Strohmeier (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 178.

50. Donors.—Declarations by defendant subsequent to claimed gift of a note to his wife held not admissible to show his ownership of the notes. Earhart v. Agnew (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1140.

53. Testators and Intestates.—A statement made by an injured engineer to an ambulance doctor on the way to the hospital absolving the railroad from all blame is admissible in an action by the widow against the railroad for his wrongful death, as an admission against interest. Hovey v. See (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 606.

Under arts. 4694, 4695, there is such privity between the injured servant and his survivor that an admission made by the injured servant is admissible in his survivors’ action for wrongful death. Id.

IV. By Agents or Other Representatives

54. Authority in general.—Declarations by the children of the buyer of an automobile showing a delivery of the car to them as their mother’s agents are inadmissible in an action against the buyer for the purchase price, in the absence of proof of the agency aside from the relationship and the declarations of the children. Lange v. Interstate Sales Co. (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 900.
55. Interest of party or representative.—Garnishee company, whose general manager was president of debtor's stock in bulk, held the lien on the demands against debtor under Bulk Sales Law, was not bound by his declarations. Gerlach Mercantile Co. v. Hughes-Bozarth-Anderson Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 784.

57. Agents or employés in general.—In action for price of engine sold for defendants' cotton gin, statements of defendants' bookkeeper, present at a test of the engine with defendants' knowledge and consent, that the fuel consumed by it was less than that guaranteed, held admissible. Fenzigs v. Texas Machinery & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 961.

Testimony as to statement of defendant's managing agent in conversation with plaintiff's attorney held competent in rebuttal of manager's testimony offered by defendant on issue of plaintiff's abandonment of contract in suit. Slayden v. Falmo (Sup.) 194 S. W. 1103.

59. — Scope and extent of agency or employment.—An agent authorized merely to collect a note cannot bind his principal by a declaration that the note, which is secured by a lien on real estate, has been paid, and thereby estop the principal from foreclosing the lien, nor can any agreement by such agent to assume the payment thereof bind the principal. Thompson v. Keys (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1196.

60. — Admissions before or after transaction or event.—Where plaintiff selling feedstuff for defendants would wire orders to defendants' agent, who would write letters of confirmation to the purchasers—sending carbon copies to plaintiff and to defendants—such letters were acts and declarations of defendants through their agent, and admissible to bind them in an action for plaintiff's commissions. E. R. & D. C. Kolp v. Brazer (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 599.

Agent's disclaimer to be admissible must be made concerning act within his authority, and if made before or after such act is not admissible. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Amarillo St. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1102.

62. Corporate officers, agents and employés.—In an action for damages for injuries sustained in an automobile accident, where the machine was being driven by one furnished by the seller to instruct the buyer in its operation, evidence of declarations by the driver to the effect that he would remain until the buyer understood the operation of the machine held admissible. Buick Automobile Co. v. Weaver (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 154.

In suit to enforce claim for materials against corporation, testimony of its lessee, to whom it was furnished, as to conversation with company's president, held inadmissible without predicate showing president's authority to authorize agent to give lien or an estoppel against the company, S. & R. Ry. Co. v. Barber (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1176.

In garnishment proceedings to reach effects of judgment debtor which he sold to garnishee in violation of Bulk Sales Law, on showing that the general manager of garnishee corporation bought for his company what he said while negotiations were in progress, was admissible as part of transaction. Gerlach Mercantile Co. v. Hughes-Bozarth-Anderson Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 784.

64. — Officers, agents or employés of carriers.—Evidence of an agent of a terminal carrier that he delivered the goods not lost to plaintiff, and located the loss on the line of another railroad, was competent to show that witness' company handled the goods, St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Gould (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 13.

In action for delay in transporting live stock, testimony of witness as to what conductor told him concerning the rules of the company held improperly admitted for failure to show that he had authority to bind the company, Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Cagle (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 369.

Declarations by an engineer the day following his striking with his engine a fellow employé were inadmissible. Paris & G. N. R. Co. v. Lackey (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 540.

67/4. Guardian ad litem.—In an action to set aside a judgment confirming a conveyance by property by an insane surviving husband, the fact that the guardian ad litem of the children in the former proceeding testified at the subsequent trial that he was of the opinion that the grantor was sane does not affect the right of the children to have the deed set aside. Fyle v. Fyle (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 488.

68. Husband or wife.—Admissions of divorced wife in pleadings and evidence that goods purchased during marriage were necessary held not conclusive against the husband. Trammell v. Neiman-Marcus Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 271.

In an action to try title by wife, with her husband, against vendees claiming more land conveyed than grantors claim was intended, admissions by the husband, not in the wife's presence, after the conveyance, as to the acreage deemed conveyed, do not bind her. Quals v. Fowler (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 256.

69. Partners.—In action against promoters for services in surveying railroad, statement of one of defendants and plaintiff to another defendant concerning agreements between other defendants and prospectus showing a third defendant as officer of railroad, held admissible against the first two defendants. Vaughn v. Morris (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 564.

In a broker's action for commission against the seller, the court properly rejected statements made by partner of purchaser, which could not bind plaintiff. Black v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 493.

70. Principal or surety.—An account prepared by the principal, showing his liability and being admissible against him, may be received to establish prima facie the surety's liability. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Harper (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1186.

72. Insured or beneficiary.—Under art. 4832, evidence that deceased, when asked by witness to make assessment, said that he did not keep it up, or did not want to keep it up, held admissible against the beneficiary. Cole v. Knights of Maccabees of the World (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 699.
73. Conspirators and persons acting together.—Where, in an action for fraud inducing plaintiff to become a lessee of a business, the petition charged a conspiracy between the owner and a third person, in possession under a prior lease for a term which had not expired and the conspiracy was shown, statements by the third person as to the reason for ceasing to operate under the lease were admissible against the owner. Loftus v. W. R. (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 476.

In suit to recover automobile wrongfully attached and sold as property of another, upon prima facie showing of conspiracy between plaintiff and such other so that plaintiff might hold it, such other's acts or statements would be admissible. Taylor Bros. Jewelry Co. v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 340.

V. Proof and Effect

75. Preliminary evidence—Existence and extent of agency or authority.—Testimony of plaintiff to a conversation which he heard between the conductor of his train and some employees of the road's receivers, relative to the cause of the wreck which delayed the shipment of live stock, was inadmissible, where the conductor was not shown to be authorized to make such statements. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Corn (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 807.

77. Explanation or limitation.—On second trial of an action for personal injuries, where defendant introduced plaintiff's abandoned pleadings as an admission conceding the liability of others, plaintiff may introduce evidence to explain such admissions, but cannot introduce the charge of the court directing a finding in favor of the other defendant to the refutation of the admission. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1087.

An admission by a party in an ex parte deposition is not as binding as an admission in pleading, but may be explained by showing that the witness was insane when his answers were made without raising the issue of insanity by any pleading, or first moving to suppress the deposition, etc. Kellner v. Randle (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 509.

In an action for fraternal insurance, defendant's original answer containing admissions of relevant issues, held admissible, but open to explanation or contradiction like other admissions. Carr v. Grand Lodge United Brothers of Friendship of Texas (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 510.

80. Construction.—In action on note, admission by defendant to secure privilege of opening and closing held to carry with it proof of all of the facts to support a recovery for the amount of the note, with interest and attorney's fees, except as defeated by pleas in reconvention. Russell v. Rhone (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 611.

81. Conclusiveness and effect.—Testimony of witnesses as to declarations of an agent of admissions of his principal is admissible as to the weight to be given testimony of the principal. Newsom v. Langford (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1026.

Admissions of a party as to a transaction are specially valuable in evidence. Lester v. Hutson (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 258.

There is no rule which prevents a party from denying testimony of admissions alleged to have been made by him. Id.

82. As to particular facts in general.—Statements in stock condition reports signed by a shippers as an accommodation to the conductor, and without having been read, and only to indicate that the shipment had reached the terminus of the carrier's line, are not binding on the shipper. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. McCall (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 295.

In a suit for injuries to crops because of defendant's breach of a contract to furnish water to irrigate same, plaintiff's admission that the crops raised were of the value of $500, considering that the value was less, did not prevent defendant from showing that the crop raised was of greater value. Old River Rice Irr. Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 25.

83. As to indebtedness.—The mere fact that the plaintiff in selling goods entered an account on the books as against a partnership did not change the liability of the defendant. Id., in which defendant's liability was held extended, that being a mere circumstance explainable and not conclusive as against the plaintiff. Daggett v. Avis Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 20.

The introduction of an admission by defendant to show an agreement to make advances does not preclude plaintiff from showing an agreement to make larger advances than admitted. San Antonio Life Ins. Co. v. Griffith (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 335.

Where the tenant claimed a set-off of certain amounts against the landlord, who admitted payment on an item of $4.50, instead of $4.97, as claimed by the tenant, the court should have allowed the amount so admitted as a credit in favor of the tenant. Harris v. McGuffey (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1024.

84. As to title or possession.—In trespass to try title to land conveyed by deed claimed to be a mortgage, evidence as to declarations by defendant that plaintiffs' father bought the land held insufficient to support a verdict for plaintiffs. Yates v. Caswell (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1104.

In trespass to try title, defendant's admission held to warrant directed verdict in favor of plaintiff; it overcoming the defense set up in the answer. Workman v. Ray (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 291.

Although plaintiff alleged that the defendant had used a way for telephone lines across plaintiff's land for more than two years, that was not such an admission of plaintiff's acquiescence as to establish the prescriptive right in defendant. American Cement Plant Co. v. Acme Cement Plant Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 257.

86. Judicial admissions.—Buyer of gasoline engine, sued on note given for part of price, held not precluded from having a rescission and cancellation of the contract of sale by admissions in his cross-bill relative to his having retained the engine after he discovered its defects. Bruns Kimball & Co. v. Aronstien (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 725.

RULE 34. DECLARATIONS ARE GENERALLY INADMISSIBLE, BUT MAY BE SHOWN AS PART OF THE RES GESTAE WHERE MADE BY A PARTY OR BY THIRD PERSONS AT THE TIME WHEN AN ACT IS PERFORMED AND AS PART OF THE TRANSACTION

I. Declarations in General

Evidence as to acts and statements of president of corporation, when bill for repairs was presented, held admissible on the question of an alleged agent’s authority to contract for the repairs. Texas Mfg. Co. v. Fitzgerald (Cliv. App.) 178 S. W. 891.

3. Statements showing physical or mental condition.—In a will contest on the ground of contestee’s undue influence, whereby contestee was excluded from any material participation in her father’s estate, declarations of testator indicative of affection for contestant held admissible, as tending to show the state of his mind at the time of making his will. Scott v. Townsend (Cliv. App.) 159 S. W. 342, judgment reversed 166 Tex. 322, 166 S. W. 1138.

Declarations of testator after the execution of a will, showing affection toward contestant, were admissible to show that but for the efforts of contestee he would have revoked it. Id.

Evidence that testator had declared that contestee desired him to make a will was not within the hearsay rule, but was admissible as showing his state of mind and the effect of contestee’s influence. Id.

Testimony that, long after the alleged accident the alleged injured party stated she had been hurt, is inadmissible as a self-serving declaration. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. V. Robinson (Cliv. App.) 188 S. W. 1025.

5. Statements showing intent, motive or nature of act—Statements by persons since deceased.—Where one of the parties claimed under a purported deed which stated in the habendum clause, “delivery hereof not to occur until my death,” evidence was admissible by the scrivener that the grantor said he did not wish to make a will, but prepared the conveyance in such a way that he could retain control of the property during his lifetime, and did not say anything about delivery of the deed. Stevens v. Halie (Cliv. App.) 163 S. W. 1025.

6. — Statements by persons transffering property.—Where plaintiffs and G., who were interested in property held in trust for G. for life, remainder to one of the plaintiffs, conveyed the property, declarations by G. as to what was to be done with that part of the proceeds kept in trust for her benefit are admissible, where it was shown that these statements were brought to the knowledge of plaintiffs before they signed the conveyance. Barnett v. Elliott (Cliv. App.) 190 S. W. 671.

Evidence of declarations made by the grantor after conveyance, is inadmissible to establish a parol trust. Hambleton v. Southwest Texas Baptist Hospital (Cliv. App.) 172 S. W. 574.

In action on note claimed to have been forged, admission of notice from bank as to maturity and testimony that defendant in conversation with cashier denied signing the note. Ledbetter v. Bolin (Civ. App.) 166 Tex. 598.

In will contest, contestant’s declaration to proponent when she first saw will that it did not look like her mother’s handwriting was not evidence that it was not her handwriting. Senate’s declaration could not prove that by self-serving declarations at some other time or place. Rounds v. Coleman (Cliv. App.) 189 S. W. 1086.

9. — Statements by partners, joint contractors or codefendants.—Declarations in a contract of sale of a business, drawn up and signed by B., in the absence of W., that they were partners, are inadmissible against W. Eagle Drug Co. v. White (Cliv. App.) 192 S. W. 278.

11. — Statements as to intent, motive or nature of act.—A declaration by a husband that he intended to move back on a homestead was self-serving on the issue of whether there was an abandonment. Parker v. Schrimsher (Cliv. App.) 172 S. W. 185.

12. — Statements as to terms or meaning of contract.—Statements between plaintiff and his attorney in defendants’ absence are inadmissible on the question of the agreement of the parties. Eagle Drug Co. v. White (Cliv. App.) 183 S. W. 378.

In suit against realty broker by owner of land to recover difference between selling price and price at which he accounted, testimony that broker stated when he deposited $1,000 in bank, and on same day, that he had just bought property from owner, etc., held inadmissible as self-serving. Barton v. McGuire (Cliv. App.) 183 S. W. 317.

In action against realty broker by owner of land to recover difference between price at which broker sold and price for which he accounted, conversation between broker and attorney, wherein broker told latter he had made telephone contract with owner to buy land himself, held self-serving. Id.

13. — Statements as to title.—In trespass to try title, in which defendant claimed under a lost deed, statements by defendant’s grantor, claiming that he had a deed, offering to produce the same, held admissible to show the existence of his claim to own

A statement of a husband prior to the incurring of a debt that certain personal property belonged to his wife was admissible in a contest between the creditor and the wife to determine the ownership of the property. Wofford v. Lane (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 130.

In a proceeding to enforce a claim to property attached as the property of claimant's brother, W., evidence of an agreement between the claimant, W., and another that the contents of the controversy should belong to the claimant when grown, made when defendant was not present, held inadmissible, as being the unsworn declarations of interested parties in their own favor. Taylor v. Butler (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 1004.

14. — Time of making statement in general.—A statement by plaintiff, suing for a personal injury, made several hours after the accident to a night watchman in explanation of his having a lamp burning, that he had been injured, that his injuries were pulling him, and he kept the lamp burning to apply a liniment, is self-serving. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. v. Culver (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 514.

The testimony of a witness that plaintiff, suing a railroad company for a personal injury, told her a few days after the accident that he was hurt on the railroad, was inadmissible as self-serving. Id.

Where letter from G. concerning note which defendant claimed G. forged was introduced by defendant, his subsequent statements to G. that he never signed the note and knew nothing about it held self-serving and incompetent. Lockney State Bank v. Bolin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 553.

An agent cannot be established by the declarations of the agent alone, but they will be considered in connection with other evidence, including proof of like acts ratified by the principal, for the purpose of establishing agency. D. Sullivan & Co. v. Ramsey (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 580.

Where alleged agents of railroads were found transacting business where such agents usually are, their statements that they were agents were admissible. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 979.

The acts and statements of an alleged agent made while negotiations are pending for the sale of land are admissible in an action to rescind the contract for misrepresentations by the agent in connection with direct testimony of the acts and statements of the principal and direct testimony establishing agency. Sargent v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 591.

In an action by the indorsee of a premium note, a letter written to defendant by its state agent seeking such indorsement held admissible to show that the agreement between the parties was that the note should be indorsed without recourse. Security Trust & Life Ins. Co. v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 396.

In an action on note given insurance agent and transferred by him to plaintiff, in which defendant asked judgment over against the insurance company, the agent's declarations that he was the company's agent held admissible; this being proved by other evidence and, in effect, admitted by the company in its answer. Reserve Loan Life Ins. Co. v. Benson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 266.

In an action for the purchase price of coal claimed to have been delivered to defendant, agent, testimony by the agent as to conversations with defendant's husband which fixed his status held admissible. Kohler v. Awbrey & Semple (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 828.

Evidence as to M.'s conversation over telephone with person answering it in response for company's president, held admissible on question of M.'s agency for the company. Texas Mfg. Co. v. Fitzgerald (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 891.

In an action on account, a declaration of plaintiff's agent that he did not intend to release defendant by accepting notes of other parties was not inadmissible as self-serving, where it was part of a conversation wherein defendant's attorney admitted defendant did not claim a release by acceptance of such notes. Wilson v. J. W. Crowdis Drug Co. (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 194.

17. — Statements by husband or wife.—In a consolidated action for the probate of a will and to set aside a deed by testatrix and her husband to the proponent, the testimony of proponent's husband as to what he told a third person, not in the presence of the grantor in the deed, as to what the latter meant by a statement held self-serving. Holt v. Guergiu (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 581, judgment reversed 106 Tex. 185, 165 S. W. 19, 56 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1136.

In an action for personal injuries to plaintiff's wife while a passenger on defendant's train, declarations by plaintiff to others that his wife had been injured on a trip were hearsay. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Fox, 166 S. W. 693, 106 Tex. 317, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 922.

20. — Statements by persons since deceased as to title or possession.—In an action to try an interest in land, self-serving and hearsay declarations of plaintiff's intestate contained in a letter to a third person held incompetent as against the defendant. Lester v. Hutson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 321.

21. — Written statements in general.—An ancient deed, although containing self-serving declarations in favor of the grantor, held admissible in evidence to show that he had received a conveyance to the land in question. Houston Oil Co. v. Drumwright (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1011.

Where petitioners, in mandamus to compel a tax collector to deliver to them poll tax receipts, had paid their taxes through an agent appointed by sworn powers of attorney, containing recitals alleged to show that petitioners were qualified voters, such powers of attorney were insufficient to prove that petitioners were qualified voters, and so entitled to receive receipts. Parker v. Busby (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1042.

22. — Letters.—A letter written by plaintiff, in which he stated that defendant had made the promise sued on, held admissible when limited to the purpose of rebutting defendant's claim of recent fabrication of plaintiff. Grant v. Alalfa Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 536.

In an action on an award of arbitrators, and on the merits of the original controversy, arising upon a building contract, letters of plaintiff to defendant and defendant's architect held self-serving declarations, and inadmissible. Slaughter v. Crisman & Nesbit (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 1.

A letter written by an owner revoking a broker's authority to make a sale to one whom the broker had interested in the land, is a self-serving document, and is inadmissible to show that the broker had withdrawn from that transaction. White v. Holman (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 236.

25. Declarations against interest in general.—In a servant's action for injuries, if offered testimony is against the interest of the party making the statement, its exclusion is error. Hovey v. See (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 606.

26. Declarations of person in possession or control as to title or possession.—Declarations of title under which the claim was not binding on one claiming title under adverse possession through the tenants, especially where the declarations were made after ten years from the commencement of adverse possession. Enid v. Waggon (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 2.

Where one of the parties claimed under a deed providing for delivery on grantor's death, evidence of grantee's daughter that she heard her mother mention the deed on the night her father, grantor, died, or the next night, held admissible to show that grantor knew of the existence of the deed before grantor's death together with testimony tending to show where the deed was kept and possession of it by grantee. Stevens v. Haile (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1025.

In an action for damages and to enjoin a breach of contract of sale of livery stable and its good will, statements of defendant in his answer to action of a third person that a certain building was to be used as a livery held admissible as a declaration that the building was his. Kennedy v. Winfrey (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 1018.

In an action in the nature of trespass to try title, where the issue was whether the possession of claimant's intestate was that of owner or tenant, the fact of his possession and claim of ownership and his declarations with reference to improvements, to his efforts to borrow money on security of the land, though self-serving and hearsay, were admissible, but his declarations as to his purchase, the balance due, etc., were not admissible to show an equitable title. Lester v. Hutson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 321.

Where newspaper market quotations were offered as evidence of market value and it was shown that the quotations were based upon information furnished by one dealer, the quotations should have been rejected as mere individual hearsay. Houston Packing Co. v. Griffith (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 431.

Letters from two commission merchants were not admissible as evidence of market value. Id.

29. — Repute as to facts in general.—In action against railroad for damage to land from floods caused by embankments retarding flood waters of a river, hearsay testimony concerning former floods, reputed to have been greater than those involved, was admissible to show history of stream. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Starnes (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 646.

30. — Ownership.—Evidence as to talk in the family that defendant’s grantor had acquired the title of his brothers held admissible as bearing upon the knowledge of the grantor’s claim on the part of the brothers’ heirs. Le Blanc v. Jackson, (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 60.

Plaintiff’s testimony that, if one of the defendants had any property, he had never heard of it was not objectionable as hearsay, where plaintiff was in a position to have known if such defendant owned any property. Senter v. Teague (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1045.

In a will contest, testimony of witnesses that a son of testator was the purchaser and reputed owner of real estate described in the will, reciting that the same had been advanced to the son, held incompetent. Kell v. Ross (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 752.

II. Pedigree, Relationship, Marriage, Death, Age and Boundaries

32. In general.—Evidence as to result of inquiries made by witness in the counties where a certain person once lived and was last heard of, with reference to whether he was dead, etc., was inadmissible as hearsay. Wells v. Margraves (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 851.

Evidence, in an action for a legatee’s interest, that a certain person who was not a witness had written letters inquiring about an alleged deceased legatee, and found no one who remembered that such legatee had ever lived in the place to which the letters were addressed, was incompetent. Id.

34. General and family reputation.—Relationship of one person to another cannot be proved by declarations of neighbors. Gibson v. Dickson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 44.

3. Conversations concerning contracts.—In broker’s action for commission for effecting a lease, the lessee was required to testify to the facts with regard to what occurred between himself and the broker’s employé, instead of his conclusion. Brady v. Richey & Casey (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 608.

4. Knowledge of other person.—Promoter of corporation may, over objection that it was his conclusion, testify that defendant corporation understood the plan of organization the promoter having organized two allied companies in one of which plaintiffs bought stock. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Curry (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1.

Testimony that one of the ways in which bankers discovered that checks had been forged was that their customers afterwards would come in and state that they had given no such checks was incompetent. Lockney State Bank v. Bolin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 553.

5. Motive and intent.—In an action for fraudulent misrepresentations as to the receipts from theaters which plaintiffs leased from defendants, testimony by plaintiffs’ manager that he had quit plaintiffs’ employé because of the improper management by plaintiffs held not a conclusion of the witness. Loftus v. Sturgis (App.) 167 S. W. 14.

Testimony by insured as to the purpose for which a room inside of another was built held admissible being a statement of fact. Hanover Fire Ins. Co. of New York v. Huff (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 465.

6. Ability to see or hear.—Railroad employé accustomed to heeding railroad signals, and that he was not many cars from the engine, held properly permitted to testify that he could have heard the engine whistle had it been blown. St. Louis W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brown (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 283.

9. Bodily appearance or condition.—In a personal injury action, testimony that witness had seen plaintiff using crutches when they were of no assistance to him held the conclusion of the witness and properly excluded. Ft. Worth Belt Ry. Co. v. Cabell (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1083.

An answer that the health of one of defendants was in a precarious condition, and that he probably could not attend the trial, was objectionable as a conclusion. Jines v. Astle (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1081.

When a passenger claimed that exposure on a train resulted in a cold and tuberculosis, a witness may testify that since the trip the least exertion tired him out. Id.

In an action for personal injuries received by a railroad employé in a derailment, his testimony that he could never run an engine again, though he had been able to before the injury, is admissible. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Rasmussen (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 212.

9½. Mental condition or capacity.—The mere general declaration of a witness as to the correctness or incorrectness of another’s ideas of values, without further testimony as to the conditions, was not proper testimony to prove such other’s insanity. Smith v. Guerre (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 417.

Testimony of persons who knew plaintiff before and after his injury that thereafter they noticed a changed condition in his ability to talk connectedly, relating what they observed, is not opinion evidence as to his mental condition. Memphis Cotton Oil Co. v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 309.

Due care and proper conduct.—Testimony of a hostler’s helper that a freight train “was moving pretty fast,” and that it stopped “unusually hard,” considered with other testimony as to the fall and death of a brakeman, held a statement of fact. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Stalcup (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 279.

When testified that he knew that during the running time made with cattle shipments between two points and that if a shipment took a given time the run was a bad one, such testimony did not involve conclusion of law. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Parke (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 597.

The statement of deceased to an ambulance surgeon on the way to the hospital from the place of the accident that he himself was to blame, and not the railroad, was not such an expression of opinion as warranted its exclusion. Hovey v. See (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 606.

12. Customs and usages.—Evidence that a railroad engine was throwing more sparks at a particular time than was usually thrown by other engines passing in that direction held not objectionable as a conclusion. Missouri, O. & G. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Browning (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 34.

The usual or customary time required for the run may be testified to directly by a witness as matter of fact, which the question of reasonable time is not. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bogy (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 577.

13. Nature, condition and relation of objects.—Evidence that, in coupling an engine to a car, it was necessary to push the drawhead over so as to make the coupling by impact held not objectionable as a conclusion. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Wagner (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 24.

It was not error to permit witnesses in an action for injury to furniture who described its condition and appearance, in doing so, to state, in effect, that they considered it. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 599.

In action against a railroad company for killing of cattle, witness familiar with locality may, though not an expert as to operation of trains, testify that place where cattle were killed had not for several years been used for switching of cars. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Decker (Cotton Seed Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 323. 909
14. Value.—A question, asking plaintiff from the management of his business his experience, etc., would be his reasonable income for the next three years, held objectionable as calling for a conclusion. Bennett v. Foster (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1078.

In an action for damages to a stock of shoes by water, testimony of a witness fixing value held to fix value at the place where the shoes were. Ara v. Rutland (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 992.

Testimony by experienced brakeman as to the time it would have taken a competent brakeman to stop a car rolling down incline, held admissible over objection that it was conclusion on law and facts. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Galbreath (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 901.

17. Cause and effect.—In an action for injuries caused by fire set by defendant's locomotive, a question to a witness, "Was there any other means known to you by which the fire could have caught, except from that passing train?" called for a statement of fact. Arey v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 802, judgment affirmed St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Arey (Sup.) 179 S. W. 890.

Where plaintiff's land was inundated by flood waters and filled under the railroad trestles retarded the escape of the waters, testimony that plaintiff would have lost only part of his crops had there been no fill is improperly received, being a conclusion of the witness. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Vogt (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 841.

Evidence of statements by brakeman who was killed, as to his injuries and as to the cause of the accident, held not objectionable as conclusions of deceased. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Galbreath (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 901.

In an action for injuries alleged to have resulted from severe cold contracted while waiting in defendant's station, testimony of plaintiff that she caught cold in depot held inadmissible, where she gave facts upon which she based such opinion. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Faulkner (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 651.

17½. Performance or breach of contract.—In an action for broker's services, testimony of defendant to carry out his contract did not concern as an opinion. Putnam Land & Development Co. v. Elser (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 190.

18. Title and ownership.—Declarations of both husband and wife since deceased as to real property in controversy was the separate estate of the husband held incompetent as mere legal conclusions. Wauhop v. Sauvage's Heirs (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 185.

A question whether witness' husband had obtained a conveyance of the interests of his brothers and sisters in the land in controversy, which conveyances were claimed to have been lost, held not objectionable as calling for a conclusion. Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 557.

A claim to establish a parol trust that the property was controlled the property until her death held inadmissible, being the conclusion of the witness. Hambleton v. Southwest Texas Baptist Hospital (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 572.

Statements as to who is the owner of property are not necessarily legal conclusions, but are statements of facts. Campbell v. Peacock (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 774.

The testimony of officers of defendant corporation that it owned the land in controversy was their opinion, and inadmissible. Lawson v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 660.

In trespass to try title by plaintiff claiming under forfeiture and award of lands to him by general land office, certificate of acting commissioner that lands "were forfeited" held inadmissible. Speed v. Sudberry (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 741.

In boundary where a witness was permitted to testify to facts concerning his occupancy and possession of land, court properly refused to let him state his conclusion that such possession was exclusive. Dunn v. Land (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 698.

18½. Ownership and sale in due course.—A statement of a witness that he became the owner of an original land certificate in due course as a dealer in land certificates for value held to be inadmissible. Speed v. Sudberry (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 741.

A question whether he who was permitted to testify to facts concerning his occupancy and possession of land, court properly refused to let him state his conclusion that such possession was exclusive. Dunn v. Land (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 698.

19. Contractual relation.—In an action for broker's commissions, a statement of a witness that plaintiff paid certain parties was not objectionable as an opinion. E. R. & D. C. Kolp v. Brazer (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 899.

On issue whether a witness bought a piano from plaintiff or a third person, testimony of witness that she bought from third person, and that a representative of plaintiff delivered the piano, held not a conclusion. J. W. Carter Music Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 1014.

In an action on a note, where one of the issues of fact and law was whether one M. was a principal or a surety, his statement that he was a surety involved a legal conclusion. Ferguson v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 285.

A question inquiring of defendant whether he had any agreement with plaintiff whatever, or gave him any right to the property in controversy, was not objectionable as calling for a conclusion. Hall v. Ray (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1135.

20. Construction and effect of contracts or instruments.—In trespass to try title, testimony that the property by his father and his brothers and sisters of the parents' community property were intended as gifts, and were not accepted in settlement of children's interests in estate, held inadmissible as merely conclusion of witness. Nowlin v. Clary (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 571.

21. Agency in general.—The testimony of a witness that an employe hired employees and discharged employed was a statement of fact. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 309.
The testimony of a corporation's agent to the effect that he had full authority to contract with any person with respect to the company's titles, which in his judgment was best for the company's interest, and that he represented the company in Texas as though he were the sole officer, etc., were not conclusions of the witness, but statements of fact. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Payne (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 886.

It was error to permit the general manager of a corporation to testify that the duties of his office were such as the title signified, and as were usually exercised by the manager of a corporation, because a conclusion. Id.

Pledgor's testimony that he did not authorize pledgors to transfer or deal with pledged collateral in any other way than as collateral security held a statement of fact, and not a mere conclusion. Featherston v. Greer ( Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 912.

Where the issue was whether a maker whose name was signed by the comaker was liable as maker, clearly, the question whether comaker had any authority to make the maker a surety held to call for a conclusion. Connor v. Uvalde Nat. Bank ( Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 175.

Testimony that it was a matter of common knowledge that defendant's agent had no authority to sell spot cotton, is inadmissible as a conclusion in a suit to recover on a contract to purchase cotton for future delivery. Mann v. Bell ( Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 529.

22. Partnership.—In partner's suit for dissolution and accounting, held, that court properly excluded general question to a defendant as to what book of firm's accounts he would look to to ascertain amount of cash received and paid out. Tyler v. McChesney ( Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1115.

26. Damages.—In an action for breach of contract between plaintiff and defendant for joint purchase of cattle, in which defendant's cross-action alleged damages by reason of annoyance by plaintiff while defendant was selecting the cattle, his testimony that he had suffered loss of $1 per head was a conclusion of the witness, and not a statement of a fact. Eubank v. Bostick ( Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 214.

II. Subject of Opinions of None xperts

30. Matters directly in issue.—The opinion of a witness in proceedings for the custody of a child, as to which of two places was the better for the child to be reared, was properly excluded. Long v. Smith ( Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 25.

Evidence was not admissible, in garnishment proceedings, that the garnishee did not have actual possession of the live stock garnished where that was the principal issue. McClung v. Watson ( Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 582.

A party cannot testify that he owned certain property where the ownership of the property is in issue. Id.

In a proceeding to enforce a claim to property attached as the property of another, held, that claimant's statement that he was the owner of the property in controversy was inadmissible, since his ownership was a conclusion for the jury. Taylor v. Butler ( Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 1094.

In an action on a note, where one of the issues of fact and law was whether one M. was a principal or a surety, his statement that he was a surety invaded the province of the jury. W. & M. Oil Co. v. Smith ( Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 295.

33. — Due care and proper conduct.—A question asked witnesses as to the safety of the place in which a deceased employé was working, held objectionable as calling for a conclusion as to the fact which the jury was to determine. Hodges v. Swastika Oil Co. ( Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 368.

In action for destruction of property by fire communicated from boarding cars on defendant's siding, testimony as to whether everything was done to save the property was properly excluded, as invading province of jury. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Moerbe ( Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 128.

In action for damage to live stock in transit, shipper's testimony as to how cars were bedded, what would have been proper bedding, etc., held not inadmissible as expression of opinion on mixed question of law and fact. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Timberlake ( Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 356.

34. — Mental condition or capacity.—The opinion of a family physician as to mental capacity to make a will or deed is inadmissible. Milner v. Sims ( Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 784.

Plaintiff who testified to his familiarity with conditions and knowledge of the market value held competent to testify as to the market value of his property, though he became confused on cross-examination as to the difference between market and actual value. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Vogel (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 268.

In action for delay in transporting cattle, testimony of cattleman who had inspected stock at destination, as to difference between their value and what it would have been had shipment been made on without delay, was made upon opinion of law and fact. Fl. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Gatewood (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 932.
In an action against a carrier for failure to deliver goods could not testify as to their market value at point of destination in the absence of testimony showing his qualification. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. McKie (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 576.

In garnishment suit against purchaser of stock of goods in bulk, held that, in view of circumstances, general value of goods may render witness competent to give opinion. An error was justified in being allowed, and is not such testimony than in case where amount of recovery or decision would depend on exact valuation. Studebaker Harness Co. v. Gerlach Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 545.

A witness who stated that he was familiar with the market value of cattle at the place where they were killed is competent to testify as to the value, unless further interrogation developed facts showing that he did not know the value of the cattle. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Decatur Cotton Seed Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 205.

57. Damages.—In an action for breach of contract to furnish electric current for plaintiff's theater building, plaintiff, in testifying to his loss of profits, was not bound to estimate his loss for each night separately. City of Brownsville v. Tumlinson (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1197.

58. Bodily appearance or condition.—In an action against a carrier for personal injury, testimony that when witnesses called pending the suit, and in the absence of any of defendants' agents, plaintiff "looked awful bad, that she was down in bed," held admissible. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Claybrook (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 580.

Question asked nonexpert witness as to the apparent health or sickness of the injured person at the time of trial held not objectionable. Yeatts v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 636.

In action against carrier for injuries to plaintiff's wife, plaintiff's testimony, in answer to question whether from her appearance she was getting better or worse, that she was getting worse, was not improper. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1028.

59. Mental capacity or condition.—A witness was negotiating with a foreigner through an interpreter may, where it appears that the negotiations had been continued for a considerable length of time, give his opinion whether the foreigner made intelligent replies. Guenther v. San Antonio Sewer Pipe Co. (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 669.

A witness may give his opinion as to the mental or physical condition of a party after relating the facts upon which such opinion is based. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Gilcrease (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 714.

60. Due care and proper conduct.—Testimony that there was no danger for a lineman to go upon a pole after hearing the foreman say that it was all right, or that this statement would satisfy witnesses that there was no danger, held inadmissible. Tweed v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Sup.) 166 S. W. 696, judgment affirming Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Tweed (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1158, and rehearing denied Tweed v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Sup.) 172 S. W. 697.

In action for delay in transporting cattle, it was error to permit shipper, a veterinary surgeon, and another to testify that the cattle should not have been held side-tracked in cars for more than an hour while cars were being repaired. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Gatewood (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 932.

62. Quantity.—In garnishment proceedings on account of goods sold by judgment debtor to garnishee in violation of Bulk Sales Law, testimony of experienced witnesses as to amount of goods left after auction sale, held admissible. Gerlach Mercantile Co. v. Hughes-Bozarth-Anderson Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 784.

63. Value—Real property.—Evidence as to the value of real property must necessarily be a matter of opinion. Day v. Hunnicutt (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 134.

64. Personal property.—Plaintiff's opinion as to the value of the loss of the use of wearing apparel constituting his baggage as admissible, in an action against a carrier for delay in delivery. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Hirsch (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 436.

In an action for injuries to cattle, an opinion by the plaintiff as to the reasonable value of the cattle if they had been transported to their destination within a reasonable time and with ordinary handling involves both a question of law and fact and is inadmissible. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Hawkins & Nance (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 190.

Question as to what shipment of cattle would have been worth if handled in the usual manner and with customary diligence held improper as involving mixed question of law and fact, since the witness could give no intelligent answer without giving an opinion as to what would constitute diligence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Hamon (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 613.

Where defendant's breach of contract delayed plaintiff in opening her millinery business, she may give opinion evidence as to amount for which she could have disposed of her stock had it not been for the delay, and its value after change in style. Texas Power & Light Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 225.

A witness' competency to testify regarding the actual value of goods rests largely in the trial court's discretion. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Powell (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 47.

In garnishment proceedings on account of goods sold by judgment debtor to garnishee in violation of Bulk Sales Law, testimony of experienced witnesses as to value thereof held admissible. Gerlach Mercantile Co. v. Hughes-Bozarth-Anderson Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 784.
Art. 3687 (Rule 36)  EVIDENCE  (Title 53)

In action for negligent carriage of cattle, testimony that the difference in value of the cattle was $5 a head on account of their actual appearance on arrival compared with what they would have been if they had arrived after a run if reasonable time was inadmissible, being an answer on a mixed question of law and fact. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. James (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1136.

In action for damage to bulls in transit, shipper held properly allowed to state market value of crippled bulls on arrival at market, his testimony showing he was apparently qualified, and his qualification not being challenged. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Timberlake (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 356.

76. Time.—It is improper for one not qualified as an expert to testify as to what was a reasonable time for a shipment of fruit and vegetables to arrive at its destination. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Gray (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 484.

Plaintiff's testimony as to the usual time of transportation of live stock between certain places, in the absence of objection as to his qualification to express such opinion, held admissible, not coming within the rule forbidding the opinion of a witness on a mixed question of law and fact. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Drain (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 330.

In an action for delay of a shipment of cattle, testimony by a witness that he thought the run was a "very slow run" is not objectionable as opinion evidence. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Gilliam & Jackson (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 706.

In action for damages due to a delayed shipment of live stock, a witness qualified might testify as to the time it usually took to make the trip between the point of shipment and destination. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. MuU (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 669.

78. Cause and effect.—It is within the common knowledge of a layman that a rundown, weakened, and nervous condition resulting from a severe injury could produce certain physical consequences. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1123.

A landlord, having testified to depreciation in rental value, held entitled to testify that the proximity of the railroad interfered with the renting of his houses. Houston B. & T. Ry. Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 68.

III. Subjects of Expert Testimony

83. Matters directly in issue.—Evidence by the motorman, whose car struck deceased's automobile, that, after he saw deceased was about to turn his automobile across the track, the street car could not have been stopped, by the use of any means within the motorman's power, in time to have avoided the accident was not admissible; that being the question for the jury's determination. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 387.

In an action against a corporation for the price of its own stock purchased from plaintiff, where the defense was ultra vires, opinion of counsel for defendant, that it had no authority to purchase the stock, held inadmissible. W. R. Case & Sons Cutlery Co. v. Folsom (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 1066.

In an action for injuries to live stock in shipment, testimony by the shipper as to the ordinary shrinkage of cattle under proper shipment, if they were properly handled, is not an opinion on a mixed question of law and fact. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Core (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 778.

In an action for injuries to cattle in shipment, an expert witness cannot give his conclusion as to the unusual depreciation suffered by rough handling; that being a question for the jury. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Holmes (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 565.

84. Matters of common knowledge or observation.—The testimony of a brakeman that a car door came open because part of the lever used in fastening it had broken off, being an accident resulting from an omission, was a mere opinion upon a matter of which one man could judge as well as another, and did not call for the opinion of an expert. Kansas City Southern Ry. Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 115.

Whether a person is well treated by his wife and family does not call for the opinion of an expert. Smith v. Guerre (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1093.

The opinion of a witness, although he may be competent to testify as an expert, is inadmissible as to matters in the ordinary experience of men. Great Eastern Casualty Co. v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 172.

86. Bodily condition.—In an action upon an accident policy, the court properly refused to allow a physician to state that, in his opinion, the insured had not lost the entire sight of his eye. International Travelers' Ass'n v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 421.

In a personal injury action, a medical expert may testify that plaintiff's burned leg was susceptible to infection and probably subject to blood poisoning or erysipelas. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Aganessian (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 512.

Testimony of doctors as to what was found by their first examination of plaintiff, as well as what they found in last examination to make comparisons, not based on statements or voluntary acts of plaintiff, was admissible. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Durrett (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 437.

In action for personal injuries, evidence by a physician that there was such a thing as exaggeration of injuries, especially where they occurred as a result of railroad accidents, held properly excluded. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Finke (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1143.

87. Mental condition or capacity.—On an issue as to contracting capacity, an expert's opinion that he does not believe the party was ever capable of making a good trade because of his mental condition and his implicit confidence in people is admissible.

Smith v. Guerre (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1092.

On an issue as to contracting capacity an expert's opinion that he does not believe the party was ever capable of making a good trade because of his mental condition and implicit confidence in people, did not state a legal conclusion. Id.

98. Cause and effect.—Ordinarily even an expert witness cannot state what in his opinion might possibly ensue from a given state of facts, but is confined to those things which are reasonably probable. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 932. Judgment reversed 160 Tex. 217, 66 S. W. 692.

99. Injuries to the person.—Evidence that a hernia produced by traumatism could have been, and that the witness expected it was, caused by the injury was properly admitted over objection that it was not a subject of expert testimony. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brown (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 383.

Physicians who had examined an injury were properly permitted to testify whether, in their opinion, the injury was such as could be caused by the accident as described. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Overturf (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 639.

That the effect of a partial dislocation of the hip is improper, where there is no evidence that plaintiff has such injury. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. McKindell (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1061.

In a personal injury action, a medical expert may testify that plaintiff's irregular heartbeat might have been caused by the injury. Missouri, O. & G. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Webb (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 728.
In action on life policy, witnesses' testimony that they were familiar with motorcycles, and that defendant's accident and death could or could not have occurred from colliding with a yearling calf, was inadmissible. Great Eastern Casualty Co. v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 172.

101. Damages.—A shipper of cattle of long standing was properly permitted to testify what the shrinkage in the weight of cattle would be on an ordinary run as usually made, without any bad treatment. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Rich (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 1194.

A witness, who had long experience and who was familiar with defendants' locomotive engines, may testify whether defendant's locomotive was equipped with proper spark arresters. Texas Midland R. & Ry. Co. v. Ray (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 1915.

In an action for damages to a stock of shoes by water, plaintiff to recover held entitled to show by expert testimony the amount of depreciation. Ara v. Rutland (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 969.

An expert on the condition of shipments of vegetables held properly allowed to testify that when he opened the car in question he found it had been roughly handled. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Bracht (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1118.

Testimony of a witness qualified to express an opinion as to the amount of shrinkage per animal in a shipment of live stock caused by delay held not a conclusion. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Martin Bros. (App.) 176 S. W. 707.

The damage to a crop by failure of an irrigation company to supply water therefor was a proper subject for expert testimony. Lone Star Canal Co. v. Broussard (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 649.

IV. Competency of Experts

103. Knowledge, experience and skill in general.—It is not always necessary to show that a doctor is a graduate from an institution of learning in order to qualify him as an expert. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1077.

106. Machinery and mechanical devices and appliances.—In an action for the death of a servant, killed by an explosion of a "T" joint in a steam pipe, a witness who was not an expert as to the tensile strength of iron was competent to testify, from his observation and experience with such joints, as to the comparative safety of one fastened with bolts and one screwed into the main pipe. Texas Power & Light Co. v. Bird (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 8.

107. Construction and operation of railroads.—Plaintiff, a railroad brakeman, hold qualified to testify, as an expert, that at the time of his injury, while coupling an engine to a car, it was necessary to push the drawhead over in order that the coupling might be made by impact. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Wagner (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 24.

Where an injured engineer testified to an experience with engines covering more than 35 years, it is not error to permit him to testify that he did not believe a sand pipe could be displaced with a blow of the foot, since in so testifying he might be regarded as an expert. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Pace (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1051.

In an action for injuries to a shipment of peanuts, claimed confined too long in an unventilated car, testimony that the shipment could be made in a given length of time, if diligently handled, held inadmissible. Cleburne Peanut & Products Co. v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1079.

In action for negligence of carriage of cattle, an experienced cattleman may qualify to testify what the condition of cattle would be if confined in cars from 49 to 43 hours without unloading, although such witness has never accompanied a shipment of cattle. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. James (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1136.

In personal injury and health policy, where deceased was shot, in the course of employment, one who had made experiments with pistols in determining how far weapon would have to be from object to powderburn it, may testify as to that fact, having tested a number of pistols of different calibers. First Texas State Ins. Co. v. Eurwick (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 185.

In a boundary dispute, testimony of a witness that during the years he had been an abstractor in county he had been familiar with the old land titles in county should have been excluded. Dunn v. Land (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 698.

110. Value.—Witnesses engaged in buying, feeding, and selling cattle and familiar with the market value of cattle generally could give their opinion as to the value of a shipment of cattle which was damaged, although they testified that they had never known of sales of cattle injured as they were, and did not know just what such cattle would have brought on the market. Chicago, R. L & G. Ry. Co. v. Swaggerty (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 317.

In an action for breach of a contract of sale of cattle, plaintiff was properly permitted to express an opinion as to market value of cattle in Houston, where he had full knowledge of the market at Ft. Worth and had made comparison of the two markets. Houston Packing Co. v. Griffith (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 431.

Where a witness had no knowledge of the local market except the market quotations in the newspapers, he was not qualified to express an opinion as to such value, yet, as he dealt in the cattle business, he was qualified to express opinion of the comparative value of the class of steers in controversy and the class referred to in the market quotations. Id.

The knowledge necessary to qualify one to testify, as to market value need not be derived from his personal sales on the market or from his presence and hearing. Burr's Ferry, B. & C. Ry. Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 878.

In an action for the overflowing of his land and destruction of his crops, plaintiff held by the court to testify as to the value of the crops destroyed, Southern Portland Cement Co. v. Kezer (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 661.

A witness engaged in wholesale buying and selling of horses and mules held qualified to testify that value of a shipment of live stock was greater at destination than at the point of origin of the shipment. Texas & P. R. Co. v. De Long (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 874.

In an action for the wrongful death of a manager of a newspaper, a witness held qualified to testify as an expert to the market value of deceased's managerial services. Southern Traction Co. v. Hubert (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 551.

A practicing physician was improperly allowed to testify as to the market value of bananas at the shipping point, where he could not say he had ever seen the bananas and did not know how many were in a car or their grade. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 369.

A skilled witness who is familiar with services connected with some particular profession, trade, or calling may estimate their value, and it is not required that he should be intimately acquainted with the nature of the services which he is appraising but he may know them in a very general way. Brady v. Richey & Casey (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 505.

In action for value of a lost picture, witness held not qualified sufficiently to make her opinion admissible. Wells Fargo & Co. v. Long (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 330.

In action for value of lost water color painting, witness with experience in selling such paintings held qualified to testify as to its value. Id.

In action by consignee for damages to potatoes shipped, his testimony that they had no market value when received was not open to objection that he knew nothing about the market value of damaged potatoes at that place, it appearing he had been shipping potatoes for 20 years. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Bracklin (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 594.

111. Damages.—A witness who knew the market value of cattle, and who was qualified by reason of his wide experience to give his opinion of the rate of decline in value of cattle because of their state and drawn condition, caused by a delay in their transportation, was competent to give his opinion of the aggregate amount of damages to cattle delayed in transportation. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 366.

A shipper of cattle held competent to give his opinion as to the amount of extra shrinkage of cattle by delay in transportation. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Martin Bros. (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 707.

An experienced shpper of cattle held competent to testify as to their condition at destination due to delay and rough handling. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lindsey (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 708.

In an action for damages for depreciation of real estate, testimony of a witness who had bought and sold real estate in the vicinity was admissible. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 829.

112. Cause and effect.—Opinion of physician as to cause of injured person's condition held admissible, notwithstanding his difficulty in determining whether that was his opinion or merely a suspicion. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Roemer (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 239.

An expert civil engineer held entitled to testify as to the cause of an overflow. Southern Portland Cement Co. v. Keter (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 661.

A civil engineer who was a railway expert was competent to express his opinion as to whether condition of tracks and ties would cause derailment. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 726.

V. Examination of Noneexperts

113. Determination of question of competency.—The exercise of the trial court's discretion in admission of evidence of the opinion of a nonexpert witness will not be disturbed unless it clearly appears that such discretion has been abused. Guerra v. San Antonio Sewer Pipe Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 669.

The question of the admission of evidence of the opinion of a nonexpert witness rests largely in the discretion of the trial court. Id.

114. Examination in general.—In action for delay in shipment of live stock, question to plaintiffs as to difference in market on Thursday and on Tuesday "when you should have gotten there" held improper as calling for expression of opinion and conclusion on mixed question of law and fact. St. Louis Southernwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Miller & White (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 819.

115. Facts forming basis of opinion.—While a nonexpert witness cannot ordinarily give opinion testimony which does not rest upon facts stated by him, or is not acquired through the use of his senses, the witness need not always state the facts upon which his opinion rests; it being sufficient that he had the means and opportunity for knowledge, for many matters of evidence are incapable of expression except in terms of opinion. Guerra v. San Antonio Sewer Pipe Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 669.

Where, in an action upon a benefit certificate, defendant had shown that he had had an attack of malaria, contradicting her statement to the contrary, in her application, plaintiff, her husband, was properly permitted to testify that, in his opinion, she recovered in a few days; he stating the facts upon which the opinion was based. Modern Brotherhood of America v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 794.

To qualify the owner to testify as to the value of his wearing apparel and household goods, lost by defendant, he need not state their cost and the period of their use and their condition. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Grundy (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 318.

In action for balance due on a construction contract, opinion of witness as to the amount of damage suffered because of facts which may or may not have existed was inadmissible. Jefferson Cotton Oil & Fertilizer Co. v. Frigden & Congleton (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 739.

A nonprofessional witness cannot give his opinion as to sanity unless he states the facts upon which the opinion is based. Jones v. Nix (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 655.

In action for damages for the failure to deliver telegram addressed to plaintiff, published representative sales held admissible to show on what plaintiff based his opinion as to market value of cattle. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Gorman & Wilson (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 925.

Testimony of a witness as to contracting capacity of a party that in talking to him he would pause, look off in a staring way, and continue to do so, reach in his pocket for tobacco, and again begin conversation, and that he saw him do things seemingly uncalled for and unreasonable, held not basis for an opinion. Smith v. Guerre (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1093.

In action for damages from fire, facts testified to by plaintiff held sufficient as a basis for his opinion that the fire was burning away from and not towards a railroad track. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Brune (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 547.

A witness, though he be not an expert, may give his opinion when he also states the facts upon which his opinion is based. Mabry v. Albert (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 81.

It was claimed that flood waters under railroad trestles caused flood waters to inundate plaintiff's land, testimony that the water was higher on the upper side of the fill than it was on the lower, is not subject to objection that the witnesses attributed the depth of water solely to the fill. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Vogt (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 841.

Opinion as to mental or physical condition may be given before or after testimony of the witness as to the facts upon which his opinion is based. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Glouse (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 714.

In action for delay in shipping cattle, plaintiffs held properly allowed to testify as to difference in market value of cattle on Tuesday and Thursday, rather than stating what the market value was on such dates, and leaving to jury question of difference. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Miller & White (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 818.

116. Cross-examination and re-examination.—One testifying to the genuineness of a signature from his knowledge of the signer's handwriting cannot be cross-examined as to the genuineness of signatures of another. Cow Roy State Bank & Trust Co. v. Roy (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 647.

VI. Examination of Experts

117. Preliminary evidence as to competency.—Where a witness' capacity as an expert regarding insanity had not been attacked, evidence to prove him capable was irrelevant. Tweed v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Sup.) 165 S. W. 696, affirming judgment and Tweed v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1156, and rehearing denied Tweed v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Sup.) 177 S. W. 957.

Witnesses testifying as experts must show their qualification to so testify, or their testimony may be disregarded. Blackwell v. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 53.

The admission of opinion evidence cannot be held erroneous, though the witness did not qualify on direct examination, where his cross-examination showed that he was qualified. Portland Cement Co. v. Kester (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 661.

Where two witnesses testified to oculist's reputation as a first-class specialist, and the doctor testified that he had been an oculist for eight years, sufficient predicate was laid to admit his testimony as an expert. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1777.

A witness testifying as an expert must be cross-examined to the extent of the testimony of a physician in another case could not be used as a basis of the physician's competency to testify in the case on trial. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Wagner (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 24.

A witness who qualifies as an expert is a question for the trial court, within its sound discretion. Hovey v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1035.

119. Mode of examination in general.—In an action for delay in transportation of a shipment of live stock, evidence as to the effect of a 24-hour delay was improperly admitted, where there was no evidence of such delay. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Cauble (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 369.

Testimony as to the time for transportation in action for injuries to peanuts damaged by the witness' knowledge of base on the witness' knowledge of base on a railroad company's trains, is inadmissible. Cleburne Peanut & Products Co. v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1070.

In the action for commission for effecting a lease, it was not error to permit him to estatic in question as to reasonable value of such services, his construction of terms of lease upon which defendant might inquest thereon upon his construction. Brady v. Ritchey & Casey (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 663.

120. Questions and answers based on personal knowledge of expert.—Testimony by physicians, relative to an examination of plaintiff made subsequent to his injury and for the purpose of testifying as witnesses to his condition, and based on objective and subjective examinations, was admissible. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 689.

121. Questions and answers based on testimony of others.—A physician, who had never seen plaintiff after he was injured, but based his testimony on the depositions of two experts, was improperly allowed to testify that a competent masseur in treating plaintiff would be able to observe symptoms of paralysis or grave physical defects; the witness not having himself observed plaintiff's condition. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Coffman (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 145.

In a railroad employé's action for injuries, testimony of a medical expert that, if plaintiff fell from the top of the car and struck the ground on his back, the blow would have been sufficient to result in paralysis, was properly admitted, in view of other testimony that plaintiff testified he did not know how he struck the ground. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Sherer (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 404.

122. Hypothetical questions and answers.—If witnesses as to difference in market value of corn before and after the injury are experts, they may give their opinions upon hypothetical questions. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 593.

123. Form and sufficiency of questions.—Counsel may embody in their hypothetical questions the facts which, in their judgment, the evidence proved, and are not compelled to embrace therein facts which the opposing litigant contends to be established. Order of United Commercial Travelers of America v. Roth (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 176.

A hypothetical question must embrace and be based upon the facts in evidence relating thereto. Sargent v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 366.

A hypothetical question is properly excluded where based upon a premise contrary to the evidence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Delimon (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 796.

Opinion evidence elicited upon a hypothetical question which made a slightly erroneous assumption of fact held not inadmissible. Decatur Cotton Seed Oil Co. v. Belew (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 607.

A hypothetical question embracing counsel's theory of case is not objectionable because it does not cover full range of evidence and embrace facts contended by opposing counsel to be established by evidence. Merchants' Ice Co. v. Scott & Dodson (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 418.

A hypothetical question having basis in the evidence of the party propounding it is warranted, though it disregards the evidence of the adversary party. City of Ft. Worth v. Burton (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 228.

124. Scope and sufficiency of answers.—The answer of an expert that plaintiff's injury "could" have necessitated a mastoid operation, which he had undergone, held not objectionable as stating a possibility as distinguished from a probability. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1139.

In an action for injuries, testimony of a medical witness, when asked if he could give any definite opinion as to whether or not plaintiff's injuries were permanent, that the unexpected might happen, but that there was no authentic history of any case of the nature recovering, was not improper as argumentative and involving extraneous matters. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Sherer (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 404.

125. Cross-examination and re-examination.—In an action against a railroad company for damage for injuries to a female plaintiff, certain questions to an expert held proper to test his skill and knowledge. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 922, judgment reversed, 106 Tex. 317, 156 S. W. 693.

Question asked a physician who had testified frequently for plaintiff in personal injury suits as to his custom relative to proportioning his fees to the amount of recovery held properly excluded as immaterial. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1059.

126. Evidence as to reputation.—Where the professional skill or reputation of physicians who testified was not sought to be impeached, evidence was not admissible to show that they had the reputation of being skillful physicians. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Burk (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 457.

127. Contradiction.—Where, in an action for a stock of goods set on fire and burned by a passing train, experts had testified that cinders, escaping from locomotive equipped as defendants' was would not go beyond the right of way, plaintiff was properly allowed to show, in rebuttal, that cinders had, on several different occasions, started fires beyond the right of way. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 442.

VII. Comparison of Handwriting

131. Competency of expert.—Witness, who had worked as bank clerk and had taught in writing schools and commercial and business schools, held a handwriting expert for the purpose of testifying to the genuineness of the signature to a note. Rhea v. Cook (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 892.

132, 133. Standard of comparison.—Persons who are experts on the question of handwriting may not testify to the genuineness of a signature of an officer to papers submitted to them for comparison with signatures on other papers not filed in the case. Robertson v. Talmadge (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 627.

VIII. Effect of Opinion Evidence

135. Opinions of witnesses in general.—Plaintiff's opinion as to the value of the loss of the use of wearing apparel constituting his baggage in an action against a carrier for delay in delivery may be disregarded by the Jury if unreasonable. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Hirsch (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 426.

The mere opinion of witness as to damages suffered by defendant from plaintiff's defective performance of construction work would not be a sufficient basis for a finding for defendant on that issue. Jefferson Cotton Oil & Fertilizer Co. v. Pridgen & Congleton (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 739.

A jury are not concluded by opinion evidence, but may apply their own experience and knowledge in solving the question. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Vogel (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 268.

That plaintiff's attending physician qualified his statement that the reasonable charge for his services was $25 by the clause, "if the patient were able to pay it," would not necessarily limit or destroy its weight as a statement of their reasonable value. Tarrant County Traction Co. v. Bradshaw (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 961.

136. Testimony of experts.—The testimony of a lawyer of the territory of New Mexico as to the course a case would take under the laws of the territory, and what, in his opinion, was the court of final resort, is not binding on the trial court, when the matter depends on federal statutes. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 965.

Where the Mexican Civil Code and evidence of an alleged expert were introduced to prove a matter of Mexican law, the trial judge was not bound by the expert's opinion, but could construe the Code provisions himself. Banco Minero v. Ross, 172 S. W. 711, 106 Tex. 522.

The jury is not in all cases bound by the opinion testimony of experts. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. McMurray (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 929.

The weight of expert testimony is for the jury. Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Joiner (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 806.

In an action by an inexperienced shipper of live stock for damages in transit, where he was permitted to testify as an expert as to the shipment, his inexperience went only to the weight of his testimony. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Curtis (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 837.

A court can construe a county building contractor's bond, and Acts 1911 Ark. p. 462, under which it was given as not requiring suit thereon in Arkansas, notwithstanding testimony of an attorney from that state that the law of that state contained such a requirement. American Surety Co. v. Huey & Philip Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 617.

The jury is not confined to the estimates of value by experts, where facts are established from which the jury may reach a reasonable conclusion tested by common knowledge and experience. City of Ft. Worth v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 863.

RULE 37. A PARTY IS ESTOPPED FROM DENYING A FACT WHICH HE HAS DIRECTLY AND WILLFULLY, BY HIS WORDS OR CONDUCT, INDUCED ANOTHER TO BELIEVE, AND TO ACT ON THE BELIEF SO AS TO ALTER HIS OWN PREVIOUS CONDITION, AND WHO WOULD BE PREJUDICED IF THE ADMISSION OF THE FACT WAS RETRACTED

I. Nature and Essentials of Equitable Estoppel in General

1. Nature and elements of estoppel in pais.—Where the president of a corporation without authority executed two notes without consideration, and later the notes were produced to secure a debt partly owed by him, there was no element of estoppel against the corporation. El Peral Irri gated Land Co. v. Bank of Washington (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 746.

The essential elements of an estoppel are a false representation or concealment of a material fact, made with the knowledge of the fact to one ignorant of the truth of the matter with intent that he should act upon it and which induces him to act upon it. Hume v. Carpenter (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 707.

2. Intent.—If the owner of real estate should put in circulation a letter reciting a conveyance of the land, intending that a purchaser from a third person should rely thereon, he would be estopped to assert his title. Dillard v. State (Cr. App.) 177 S. W. 99.

3. Knowledge of facts.—Where, in an action for breach of a lease, made by plaintiffs' agent as their attorney in fact, defendants had no knowledge of any limitation on his authority, they were not estopped to claim that the plaintiffs were bound by the agent's acts at the time defendants signed the lease; it contained a prohibition defiance clause. Taber v. Eyler (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 490.

Husband, though in plaintiff's store when wife purchased alleged necessities, held not to be estopped from asserting his liability, if he was willing to admit her being charged to him. Trammell v. Neiman-Marcus Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 271.

4. Reliance on adverse party.—Where an attachment creditor did not change its position to its detriment in any way in consequence of the attachment debtor's statement that property was not his, but took such property under the attachment, the debtor was not estopped by his statement, and could bring suit for the wrongful attachment of such property. Carroll v. First State Bank of Denison (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 622.

In a suit to recover land, defendants were not estopped to assert that they had not conveyed the land, by establishment of lines and plats, where the purchase was not made in reliance thereon. Ware v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 846.

Statement by secretary of investment company to county attorney to effect that company had been dissolved and that he did not know who held the title to lots, not wholly relied upon by the attorney in instituting tax proceeding, held not to estop subsequent purchaser from the company from claiming that record title was then in company. Hume v. Carpenter (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 707.

5. Acts done or omitted, and change of position.—In trespass to try title, a finding that intervener would have purchased the property anyway, as appeared from plaintiff's conveyance to a corner, eliminated that it was not a case of an estoppel in pais in favor of intervener. West v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 679.

Where it did not appear that defendant held out an independent contractor as her agent, or that plaintiffs were induced to extend him credit for that reason, defendant cannot be held liable for his debts on the theory of estoppel. Kohlberg v. Ambrey & Semple (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 828.

An assumption by one of the parties to an exchange of lands of an indebtedness of the other does not prejudice the other, nor is it a waiver of the right to rescission by the debtor, where the intervener has not agreed to accept the undertaking. Boles v. Aldridge (Sup.) 175 S. W. 1052, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 373; Maddox v. Clark (Sup.) 175 S. W. 1063, affirming Judgment (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 309.

That one buying an automobile was not damaged by false statements that the buyer's wife desired him to make the purchase held not to prevent the buyer from setting up such misrepresentations as a defense in the seller's action. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Webb (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 863.

Buyer held not entitled to rescind contract for purchase of a motor truck, unless he was injured by fraud, if any, in seller's representations as to its capacity. Alamo Auto Sales Co. v. Herms (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 740.

6. Reappointment of agent.—That intervener would have purchased the property anyway, as appeared from plaintiff's conveyance to a corner, eliminated that it was not a case of an estoppel in pais in favor of intervener. West v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 679.

An assumption by one of the parties to an exchange of lands of an indebtedness of the other does not prejudice the other, nor is it a waiver of the right to rescission by the debtor, where the intervener has not agreed to accept the undertaking. Boles v. Aldridge (Sup.) 175 S. W. 1052, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 373; Maddox v. Clark (Sup.) 175 S. W. 1063, affirming Judgment (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 309.

That one buying an automobile was not damaged by false statements that the buyer's wife desired him to make the purchase held not to prevent the buyer from setting up such misrepresentations as a defense in the seller's action. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Webb (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 863.

Buyer held not entitled to rescind contract for purchase of a motor truck, unless he was injured by fraud, if any, in seller's representations as to its capacity. Alamo Auto Sales Co. v. Herms (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 740.

7. Prejudice to person setting up estoppel.—A carrier, not misled nor induced to rely or act upon representations, the performance of which would have placed it in a better condition, cannot rely on estoppel to bind a shipper of live stock to condition reports signed by him. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. McCall (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 925.

Where the court, in the absence of evidence of any fraud or deceit, held that the creditor, disagreeing with the opinion of the court, had not agreed to the contract, but believed the contract was void, the creditors did not act in reliance thereon. Ward & Co. v. Wemack (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 453.

An equitable estoppel cannot be invoked except to protect the party claiming its benefit from some loss resulting if the true facts control. McMenemy v. Bickerstaff (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 536.

8. Default or wrongful act of person setting up estoppel.—When fraudulent misrepresentations are shown by which a person was induced to enter into a contract, it is always the duty of the injured party to assert that he has known the truth by further inquiry; the defendant being estopped from so asserting want of caution. Benton v. Kuykendall (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 438.

Where defendants, who were indebted to a bank, executed a deed of trust to secure their indebtedness in compliance with a demand of the directors of the bank for security, but agreed with the vice president that he should retain the deed and never deliver it to the bank, they are estopped from setting up their fraudulent agreement, and the court may properly treat the deed as delivered. Rushing v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Plainview (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 490.

One who undertakes to discover the truth of representations made to him is charged with the knowledge of everything which a proper investigation would disclose, and would not be estopped in acting upon fraudulent representations merely because they were made to him. Newman v. Lyman (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 336.

One induced by fraudulent representations to enter into a contract is not barred from
II. Grounds of Estoppel

11. Inconsistency of conduct and claims in general.—Signers of the superesteced bond on condition that other signatures should be obtained before it was filed, having delivered the bond to the appelleant without notifying the clerk of the condition, held estopped to deny the validity of the bond because it was filed without performing the condition. Beason v. Citizens' National Bank, 99 Tex. 333. 87 S. W. 696.

A trustee who wrongfully purchased the title to the cestuit yet trust cannot claim that he is not estopped to assert such title unless he be reimbursed for the money paid for the land in his efforts to deprive his beneficiary of title. Sullivan v. Fant (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 612.

Where the deed to land which they had contracted to purchase was rejected on account of alleged defects in the title, the purchasers cannot thereafter claim specific performance of the contract. Marshall v. Bezon (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 76.

12. Assumption of capacity or authority.—An agent delivering a deed, executed by his principal in violation of such restrictions, and who, by his conduct, denied that title passed, and was liable to the principal for damages. Tyler Building & Loan Ass'n v. Biard & Scales, 171 S. W. 1123, 106 Tex. 554, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 542, and rehearing denied 171 S. W. 1306, 106 Tex. 554.

13. Assertion of title or right in general.—A contract to convey real estate may be specifically enforced at the suit of the purchaser, though, subsequent to the contract, he obtained an outstanding title. Groves v. Whittenberg (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 889.

14. Possession or acts of ownership under title or claim.—Where a railroad company accepted and recorded a conveyance restricting the location of its depot and purchasers of other land from the same grantor bought in reliance on such restriction, the railroad company was estopped to set up a prior unrecorded conveyance, containing no restrictions. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Mosel (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1183.

Alliance against estate of deceased maker of claim on a note secured by a lien on certain land, held not to preclude plaintiff from asserting superior title to such land subsequently acquired. Wiseman v. Cottingham (Sup.) 174 S. W. 281, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 817.

Insurance company sued on a policy, which, after judgment in its favor, failed to deny that the trial court's decree of retrial, held estopped to deny the court's jurisdiction to retry the case. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Dancer (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 772.

16. Claim inconsistent with previous claim or position in general.—Action of defendant in garnishment in instructing garnishee not to set up the exemption that the credit was the proceeds of a homestead, and to let the claim go to judgment, held to

Chapter 4) Evidence (Rule 37) Art. 3687

19. Position inconsistent with previous assertion of title in another in general.
   — Where defendant replieved a bank deposit, which had been garnished under art. 279, held, that he and a surety on the replevy bond were estopped to claim that title to the deposit was in the surety and not in the defendant. Davis v. McFall (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 453.

   Judgment defendant and sureties on his bond to obtain the release of the garnishment lien on a garnished debt held estopped to assert the indebtedness was owing, not to the judgment defendant, but the firm of which he was a member. Sellers v. Puckett
   (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 629.

   That a surviving husband, as guardian of his children, inventoried an interest in the community property as their property, does not estop him to appropriate it to reim-

   Plaintiff's acquisition of a vendor's lien note, given by grantor by defendants, who received a quiet title deed to land which was previously conveyed to plaintiff, held not, despite her foreclosure of the same, to estop her from asserting her superior title to

21. Pleadings. — Where plaintiff, after exceptions had been sustained to some items of damage laid in its original petition, filed an amended petition, alleging greater damages, defendant could then plead in abatement that plaintiff fraudulently misstated the amount of the damage to give the court jurisdiction, notwithstanding its previous answer to the original petition. — L. Grief & Bro. v. Texas Cent. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S.
   W. 345.

   Where a deed of trust was invalid for want of written authority of the attorney in fact executing it, an answer of the landowner that it was given for a valuable consideration and was ratified was effective to create an estoppel of record which validated the deed, not only as against the landowner, but as against the holder of a subsequent deed in which Texas Moline & Pico Co. v. Klappbroth (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 399.

   In action against attorney in fact and one to whom he wrongfully conveyed, petition held not to show election to claim the property deeded to the attorney's wife, so as to require plaintiff to take it burdened with a vendor's lien. White v. Love (Civ.
   App.) 174 S. W. 285.

   Citizens' committee of subscribers to railroad by its pleadings repudiating liability upon any of its aid notes held not entitled to recover for any further failure of performance on part of railroad. Crawford v. Wellington Railroad Committee (Civ. App.)
   174 S. W. 1004.

22. Stipulations. — A stipulation between senior and junior patentees held not to estop the senior patentee from claiming the land within his patent. Kelly v. Kelly
   (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 686.

23. Failure to assert title or right. — Where a defendant, a purchaser of land, who knew that such land was an estoppel to subject plaintiff in a sale of the land by plaintiff to said vendor, asked plaintiff immediately before the purchase if she objected to his buying, and plaintiff gave her consent, plaintiff was estopped to question defendant's good faith.
   Neff v. Heimer (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 140.

   In an action to recover the amount of a policy on plaintiff's homestead, in which the insurance company alleged that such amount had been garnished, evidence held not to show an estoppel to claim the money by showing that plaintiff knew of the garnishment proceedings in time to have objected to the garnishment of the fund on the ground that it was the proceeds of his homestead. Johnson v. Hall (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 399.

   Plaintiff's failure to assert his claim by intervention in the receivership proceedings coupled with slight delay thereafter, held not to prevent subsequent assertion against the insolvent railroad company after discharge of the receiver. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Any right of the vendor to declare an option contract forfeited because of failure to promptly make a payment was waived where negotiations were continued for several

25. Clothing another with apparent title or authority. — Agency. — Where the president and cashier of a bank undertook to deal for it in sale of notes indorsed in blank, and the buyer thereof understood that he dealt with the officers on behalf of the bank, and delivered a check for the price to the bank, it was estopped to deny that the officers acted for it, and it was liable for their fraudulent representations. Washington County State Bank v. Central Bank & Trust Co. of Houston (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 456.

   Defendant by its acts and conduct, in connection with the sale of an automobile, held estopped against the purchaser to deny that dealer was its agent, and assert that there was a sale of the car to the dealer, and a resale to the purchaser. Half Co. v.
   Jones (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 906.

   Agency by estoppel of manager of defendant's store to draw a draft for defendant could not be established by showing that such manager had previously issued two checks in defendant's name, unknown to and unauthorized by defendant. Simon v. Temple

   Acceptance of draft, drawn by manager of defendant's store, by plaintiff lumber company, who parted with nothing, merely depositing it, in payment of debt from another concern in which the manager had formerly been interested, held not to result in defendant's liability on the draft by estoppel. Id.

   Liability of principal for act of servant based upon estoppel arises when a third person put his faith in good faith on words or conduct of the principal indicating authority in the agent to do such act. Holmes v. Tyner (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 887.
Art. 3687 (Rule 37) EVIDENCE

26. — Real property.—Where joint owners deal with common property so as to create inference of an agreement for division, a purchaser from one will be given the benefit of the inference. Broom v. Pearson ( Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 895.

Occupant of lands sold for taxes, by agreement with county attorney, held estopped from asserting any title by limitation against one claiming under the purchaser at the sale. Woods v. Moore ( Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 623.

27. — Personal property.—Holder of bills of lading for cotton by intrusting them to another for a particular purpose held not to have estopped itself to deny its right to sell the cotton. B. W. McManah & Co. v. State Nat. Bank of Shawnee ( Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 405.

Where a principal, with knowledge, actual or constructive, of a rule of the Cotton Exchange, consigns cotton to a factor to sell, he is estopped to deny the binding effect of such rule. Wm. D. Cleveland & Sons v. Jamison ( Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1175.

The owner of a note, who allowed it to be taken in the name of a third person and permitted such third person to exercise dominion, is estopped from setting up his rights as assignee without notice to the one who took it after maturity. Western Nat. Bank of Hereford v. Laughlin ( Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1101.

Partial owner of claim, who assigned with other owners for collection, the assignee transferring to a bank, which sued the debtor and the assignee, held not estopped to claim his portion of the proceeds because he did not protest or ask to be made a party to the bank’s suit. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. v. Rice ( Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1047.

28. — Rellying and acting on apparent title or authority.—Under rule that, when one of two innocent parties must suffer, he who placed wrongdoer in a position to defraud must suffer, a wife, who allowed her husband to take title to land in his own name, thus enabling him to dispose of it to bona fide purchasers without knowledge of her equity, must suffer. Hines v. Manor ( Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1111.

29. — Dealing with person asserting title or exercising authority.—Agreement of vendors with defaulting purchasers that they would act as agents of the purchasers in selling to other parties held a waiver of vendors’ right to rescind and to retain liquidated damages previously paid. O’Neal v. Bush & Tillar ( Sup.) 173 S. W. 889, reversing judgment ( Civ. App.) Bush & Tillar v. O’Neal, 140 S. W. 242. Judgment reversed on rehearing O’Neal v. Bush & Tillar ( Sup.) 177 S. W. 953.

30. — Contracts.—Where a pledgor elects to assert that the relation still exists notwithstanding a sale of the property, the pledgee is estopped to say that it has ceased and that he is the owner of the property. King v. Boerne State Bank ( Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 433.

In an action for damages for defendant’s breach of its contract to sink an oil well, defendant could not be heard to say that plaintiff would have derived no benefit from a contract to Head v. Henry Oil Co. 924.

That the payee of notes, secured by trust deed providing that all should become due if any remained unpaid for ten days after maturity, promised to notify a party in another county, who had assumed the notes, when any should become due, did not estop him from maintaining an action after default. Ward v. San Antonio Life Ins. Co. ( Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1949.

Where claimants, in order to transfer a note secured by a deed of trust, were required to guarantee payment, and thereafter were released to the extent of $1,200, and were compelled to pay the balance of the debt, they were estopped to claim, as against the assignee, that their claim for the amount so paid was secured by a first lien on the security. Slaughter v. Boyce ( Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 259.

Agreement whereby widow, children, and legatee of testator agreed to withhold the will of testator, and that certain shares therein held not to estop the parties from claiming under the will after its probate by purchasers from the estate. Masterson v. Harris ( Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 284, conforming to answers to certified questions ( Sup.) 174 S. W. 570.

Agreement by holder of note for extension of time for payment of installment of interest held to estop him and his assignee from declaring the entire note due, under its provisions, for failure to pay the installment when due. Cofer v. Beverly ( Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 608.

31. — Recognition of rights.—A subscriber to a list for a fund in aid of railway construction will not be permitted to deny a contract authorizing trustees to contract with the railway company, where the subscription list recites that such contract was attached. Quannah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Dickey ( Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 69.

32. — Contracts relating to real estate.—A mere contract of sale does not estop the purchaser to deny the vendor’s title, but a purchaser obtaining possession on the faith of the contract may not deny the vendor’s title. Groves v. Whittenberg ( Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 889.
Where, in action involving title to land, one of the heirs of the deceased defendant, with authority from the others, entered into a written agreement settling the controversy, which was acquiesced in by all of the heirs, held, that they were estopped thereby, whether or not the agreed judgment settling the suit was valid. Castleberry v. Bussey (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 14.

Plaintiff and defendant, two claimants for a tract of land, entered into a compromise agreement, whereby they agreed to sell the disputed tract and divide the proceeds, plaintiff could recover under the agreement, though it was afterwards determined that the tract belonged to defendant. Baker v. Heney (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 10.

Defendant, employing plaintiffs to sell land with provision for division of purchase money notes, held precluded from denying that time for settlement had arrived, though notes were to be held by third party as collateral security. Plummer v. Sims (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 189.

Plaintiff claiming title to school lands by purchase and settlement held not estopped to claim against defendant, to whom patent had issued, by his knowledge of and participation in fraudulent agreement in violation of law by which defendant was to acquire the land. Perry v. Martin (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1148.

Relying or acting on contract.—Where a bank took two renewal notes for the debt evidenced by a single note, its attempt to enforce one of the renewal notes held not to estop it from asserting its right to collect the balance of the debt under the old note. Rushing v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Plainview (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 460.

A bank's use of a renewal note held not to estop it from relying on the original note which was retained. Id.

Representations.—A bank held estopped to deny plaintiff's right to a note payable to one whose debt to the bank plaintiff had paid. Citizens' State Bank v. McShan (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 565.

Ownership of property.—The heirs of an administrator, who sold a donation certificate issued to the heirs of his intestate on representations that it belonged to the deceased and was not subject to any interest therein, estopped the subsequent purchaser from claiming that title. Moody v. Bonham (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 1020; Moody v. Bonham (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 670.

Admissions and receipts.—Receipt, signed by some of purchasers of land to vendors for commissions for selling land, does not estop purchasers to deny that vendor's title was imperfect. Alling v. Vander Stucken (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 443.

Assent to or ratification of acts of others in general.—Purchaser of conditional certificate in administration of grantee's estate held, by acquiescence in patent to assignee, of certificate on land in A. county, precluded from asserting against the state assignee's successors any prior valid right to land which he had relinquished. Bailey v. McLain (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 922.

Foreign insurance company cannot assail the constitutionality of art. 4876, since by the terms thereof it is deemed to have consented to its provisions. Reliance Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Dalton (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 966, rehearing denied 180 S. W. 668.

Presence of mortgage creditors at a receivers' meeting at which a receivership to continue the business was decided on, held not to estop them to assert the priority of their liens over the receiver's operating expenses. Craver v. Groer (Sup.) 179 S. W. 862, answering certified questions (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 699, and confirmed to in (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 368.

Bank which was instrumental in procuring the appointment of a receiver to continue the business of a lumber concern held not entitled to object to the postponement of its mortgage to the receiver's operating expenses. Id.

Where a broker employed to sell lands in Arizona carried on a selling campaign in person or by agent a year and then turned the matter over to subagents, the broker is not estopped to claim compensation; the owner after objections acquiescing. Denton v. Holbert (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 351.

Where defendant, who was disposing of a large tract of land located in Texas, admitted that he made no objections to plaintiff broker's handling other Texas lands, the broker's right to compensation for sales made cannot be defeated on that ground. Id.

In an action by a broker for commissions for sales effected through subagents, evidence held to show that the sales were made by defendant directly through the subagents, but that he recognized such agents as being agents for the broker. Id.

In a suit for compensation for sales of land, evidence held not to show that defendant discharged the broker or his subagent, but that defendant recognized the continuing validity of such agents. Id.

While as a general rule ratification partakes of the elements of estoppel, where that is not the case, something must have been done which, if ratified, would create liability. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Ragsdale, Price & Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 654.

A railroad is not estopped to maintain a fence along its right of way near a station cutting off access to plaintiff's business by the fact that it permitted him to give access to the railroad right of way, since permissive use across uninclosed land does not ripen into a right, however long existing. Craig v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 944.

Contracts.—Where a building contract provided that the work should be done to the satisfaction of an architect and that no payment under the contract should be conclusive of full performance, and that weekly payments should be made on estimates, and they agreed that a third person should make estimates without authority to supersede the architect's or estimate weekly payments as approved by the surety of the contractor from recovering expenses in overhauling and rebuilding defective work. Welsh v. Warren (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 106.
Where the amount payable under a contract to subscribe to the sinking of a test oil well was payable at the beginning of operations and defendant did not make any objection to the delay in beginning to drill, he waived any delay in beginning to drill. Herron-Robbins v. Allen (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1046.

Where defendant carrier had notice of plaintiff's claim for damages to cattle, and, through its agent, conferred with plaintiff with reference thereto, a provision in the shipping contract for a written notice within 91 days was waived. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Wall (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 527.

One who authorized another to make contracts as agent for the sale of corporate stock cannot deny the agent's authority to make the particular contract entered into, where it ratified the form of the contract, and sought to recover on it in a cross-action, when sued for payments made under it. Amicable Life Ins. Co. v. Kenner (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 462.

Where a seller recognized a verbal contract by its agent for the sale of fuel oil, and shipped a part of the oil pursuant thereto, it was bound by the contract, whether the agent had authority to make the contract or not. Texas Co. v. Alamo Cement Co. (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 62.

There was no ratification by E. of the unauthorized act of S. in signing for both of them a contract with T., where, as soon as he knew what the contract was, though not as soon as he knew one had been signed, he repudiated it, and informed T. thereof. Texas Produce Exchange v. Sorrell (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 74.

Where an agent of a corporation secured plaintiff's subscription to the corporation's stock by fraudulent representations, and the corporation, with knowledge of the fraud, retained plaintiff's money and notes, it became an active participant in the fraud, and, on being asked to recover them, could not recover over against, or as agent. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Bomar (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1060.

Though the engineer permitted some of the gravel delivered for government work, to be used by addition of cement, held that the buyers were not stopped from denying that the gravel tendered by the seller was not up to specifications. Ball-Carden Co. v. Ridgell (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 509.

Under a contract for gravel according to the specifications of a government contract, held that the government engineer could not permit the furnishing of gravel not up to specifications, and require the contractor to use additional cement so as to compel the buyers to accept gravel not up to specifications. Id.

The act of a subagent in furnishing automobiles to another dealer outside of his agent's territory, if a violation of his sales agency contract, entitling the principal to stipulated damages, was caused by the principal's failure to immediately terminate the contract and by its conduct in permitting the subagent to represent it. Doering v. Denison (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1018.

Where plaintiff relied on a contract whereby he was to exchange a certificate of stock for a set of tools, and it appeared that he offered to deliver the stock, but was told by defendant's agent to wait until demand was made, plaintiff was entitled to recover, though there had been no delivery. West Texas Supply Co. v. Dunivan (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 425.

There can be no ratification of an unauthorized contract by a principal binding him, unless the ratified contract was made by one purporting to act as agent at the time. Eardley Bros. v. Burt (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 721.

Where a party, who had contracted to exchange realty, believing time had expired in which another party could require him to accept an assignment, nevertheless accepted it, submitting it to attorney for examination, he waived time limit for furnishing it. Gaut v. Dunlap (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1020.

45. Accounts or settlements.—That defendant executed the note sued on to plaintiff for money advanced to pay for drilling a well for plaintiff, without mentioning his obligation for damages for delay caused by plaintiff's refusal to point out where the well was to be drilled, would not estop defendant from claiming such damages especially where they were not considered in the settlement made between the parties. Ross v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 513.

46. Acceptance of benefits.—Surviving parents of a deceased who are entitled to a right of action for his wrongful death cannot complain that, under art. 4996, which is part of the act providing for actions for wrongful death, the widow has brought an action for the benefit of all, on the ground that it would deprive them of their rights without due process, for they take the right subject to the remedy. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pennington (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 464.

A city incorporated more than a year after art. 1680 et seq., became effective, could not complain because it was denied right to contest claims against the dissolved city. Young v. City of Colorado (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 986.

A city availing itself of the statute allowing the dissolution of the former city, by reincorporating the same territory, may not invoke the Constitution against the statutes. Id.

A city which has been organized under a statute, and which has proceeded to do business and has received benefits under it, cannot assert its invalidity. Id.

Principal held not entitled to retain advantage secured by agent's fraud and accept benefits without adopting the means employed by him, though unknown to the principal. Lockney State Bank v. Damron (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 552.

Owner of land, suing broker to recover difference between price at which broker sold and what he bought, who had no notice of broker's conduct, held not estopped to sue broker by accepting from him money for an excess acreage, etc. Barton v. McGuire (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 317.
49. Contracts.—The purchaser of an automobile, by keeping and using it after he knew that it was defective could not, for want of reserving the right to rescind the contract because of such defects, leave it as his only remedy an action for damages. Houston Motor Car Co. v. Brashear (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 233.

Where plaintiffs accepted a lease negotiated for them by B., who obtained defendants' signatures by falsely representing that the lease contained a prohibition defensiveness clause, the court properly charged that B. was plaintiffs' agent, and that they could not ratify the lease so far as it was to their advantage, and repudiate B.'s authority to make the defenses. Worley v. Eyler (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 496.

A buyer of cotton seed hulls for fattening cattle for market, who accepted those furnished with knowledge that they were damaged, inferior in quality, and unsuitable for his purpose, could not recover for damage to his cattle from feeding such hulls. Major v. Henke-Coleman Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 448.

Where a buyer under a trial guaranty does not, within a reasonable time, manifest his dissatisfaction, that fact is strong evidence of satisfaction, and where, after the expiration of a reasonable time, he retains the machinery, he is estopped from setting up damages for breach of warranty. A. S. Cameron Steam Pump Works v. Lubbock Light & Ice Co. (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 256.

The buyer of a traction engine, who discovered in January, 1913, that it would not produce the warranted power, and who kept and used it until July, held to thereby waive his right to rescind for breach of the guaranty. Southern Gas & Gasoline Engine Co. v. Adams & Peters (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1143.

Where a purchaser has partly performed his contract, the vendor must give him reasonable notice of his intent to rescind for nonperformance. Moore v. First State Bank of Teague (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 231.

Retention of liquidated damages by vendors of real property on breach of the contract by purchasers held to preclude them from rescinding the contract for such breach. O'Neal v. Davidson, reversing judgment of 173 S. W. 385, 173 S. W. 422. Judgment reversed on rehearing O'Neal v. Bush & Tillar, 177 S. W. 954.

One extending credit to an agent in ignorance that he is acting as such may, on discovery of undisclosed principal, hold such principal, especially where he has accepted benefits under contract. Dallam County v. S. H. Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 728.

Failure of buyers of cement mixer to reject for breach of warranty of capacity within the ten-day period stipulated in the chatel note securing the price held to waive their right to reject later for such reason. Braden-Zander Const. Co. v. Seng (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1103.

Persons, accepting the benefit of an agreement giving purchasers of preferred stock of a corporation right to demand redemption of same in land, held estopped to claim that the agreement was unauthorized, where they accepted the benefits with full knowledge of its terms. Rowan v. Texas Orchard Development Co. (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 871.

The owner of cattle, whose brother rented grazing lands therefor, and who repaid all the benefits of the contract, ratifying it by repaying the brother the sum paid on the contract, was liable for the rent. Warburton v. Wilkinson (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 711.

A principal whose agent secured credit for him when he was authorized only to draw upon the principal could not complain or avoid liability for the credit extended, although the agent actually exceeded the authority given. Daggett v. Avis Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 20.

Where a motor truck was sold under a warranty of materials and workmanship for one year, the buyers' failure to repudiate the contract as soon as it was discovered that the truck was useless will not bar recovery, where the contract was repudiated within a year. Avery Co. of Texas v. Staples Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 43.

A warranty, even of seller, fraudulently represented to, after using for six or seven months and negligently and recklessly injuring it, had no right to rescind. Alamo Auto Sales Co. v. Herms (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 746.

Where the payee of a note for the price of property transferred the note to plaintiffs as collateral, and after the payee's bankruptcy maker and payee deeded and gave possession of the property to plaintiffs in consideration of cancellation of note, although plaintiffs subsequently purchased property and note from payee's trustee in bankruptcy, they were estopped to deny agreement by which the maker was released from liability. H. C. Denny & Co. v. Lee (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 294.

Buyer of gasoline engine, who, when sued for part of price, filed cross-bill seeking to recover amount he was induced to pay by fraud of plaintiff, held entitled to recover, though cross-bill alleged that after he discovered defects of engine he retained it. Bruns Kimball & Co. v. Amundsen (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 729.

That principal received benefit of transaction is not alone sufficient to make him liable for agent's undertaking in own name. Borschow v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 202.

Where two defendants in suit for rescission by buyer of realty participated with another defendant in acquisition of plaintiff's property, they could not retain fruits of other defendant's fraud, if any, on ground that individually they made no representations. Barbian v. Grant (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 789.

A buyer's acceptance of part of the calves enumerated in a sales contract does not estop him from suing for nondelivery of the remainder. Littlefield v. Clayton Bros. (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 194.

A buyer's acceptance of goods without protest constitutes an estoppel or waiver as to defects then known. Id.

Where buyer retained a tractor nearly three years after knowing it was unsatisfactory, and that seller would make no further repairs, he cannot rescind. Bancroft v. Emerson-Brantingham Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 991.

50. Sale and conveyance or mortgage of property.—A principal who ratifies the actions of his agents in making false representations inducing a purchase of property, by taking the proceeds of the sale, except the commissions payable to the agent, is estopped to rescind.
from denying the agent's authority to make the representations. Foix v. Moeller (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1048.

In the absence of positive fraud, a married woman is not estopped from denying the validity of her conveyance of an easement in her separate property, on the ground that she did not acknowledge the conveyance, by having received money or other benefit under the same. King v. Driver (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 118.

Plaintiff, who exchanged lands with defendants, held not entitled to rescind the contract where, after discovering the fraud on him, he mortgaged the land he received in the exchange. Hubbs v. Kjellman (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 719.

In a suit for the rescission of an exchange of land, evidence held to show that plaintiff mortgaged the property which he received by the exchange, before he knew that the land which he parted with had been conveyed to a bona fide purchaser. 16.

Heirs who received the full benefit of a sale of property by an administrator are estopped to deny the validity of the sale. Vineyard v. Heard (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 22.

Where the owner of a note directed its delivery to her brother-in-law, who transferred it without authority, the fact that she received a portion of the proceeds, not knowing the money was from such source, did not estop her to deny the brother's authority. Sloan v. Gilmore (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 198.

Plaintiff, after discovering the fraud in its sale, attempted to sell or trade it, and attempted to use it, held not to destroy his right of rescission. Hubba v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 716.

51. Permitting improvement or expenditures—Erection of buildings.—Oral agreement by father's grantees of land with daughter to whom he had previously made an advancement to waive conflicting claims and divide the land equally, on 80% of which the daughter paid her share of the cost of defending a suit did not give her title to her aliquot share by estoppel. Lindley v. Lindley (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 782.

52. Construction of railroad.—An abutting owner held estopped to claim damages for the construction of a railroad past his property by subscribing to a fund to induce the construction and for relinquishment of damages therefor. Quannah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Dickey (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 69.

53. Improvements and expenditures by purchasers of land.—In an action in the nature of an action of trespass to try title, held, that defendant, by allowing plaintiff's intestate to remain on the land and improve it under a claim of right after the time fixed by their agreement, waived such time limit. Lester v. Hutson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 321.

54. Knowledge of facts.—In an action on a claimant's bond to recover title and possession of an automobile, held, that judgment for plaintiff for the automobile will be charged with the value of beneficial repairs made with plaintiff's knowledge and before he asserted his claim. Van Velzer v. Stryker (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 723.

55. Permitting sale or mortgage of property.—Any right of one having a contract for purchase of land to recover the earnest money paid by him thereon, because of the vendor's selling the contract to others, was waived; he knowing of and acquiescing in it. Joyce v. Hagelstein (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 358.

The fact that one who had received a sheriff's deed to 200 acres of land subsequently took an acknowledgment of a conveyance of another tract by the owner, and read the description in such subsequent conveyance and knew of the conflict between that and the land conveyed by the sheriff's deed, would not estop him from asserting title under his own deed as against the subsequent conveyance. Masterson Irr. Co. v. Foote (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 642.

In an action to recover payments on a contract to buy land on account of flaw in the title thereto, the heir who permitted a foreclosure and sale upon the lien which constituted the flaw constitutes no defense. Fordtran v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 212.

In trespass to try title by cotenants against grantee under sale by their cotenant, evidence held insufficient to show plaintiffs' acquiescence in sale and estoppel. Broom v. Pearson (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 895.

56. Public or Judicial sale.—A purchaser of a house at execution sale, whose deed was unrecorded, held estopped to claim the fixtures against a mortgagee thereof, who bought them at foreclosure sale, and removed them, having been attorney for the former owner in the foreclosure suit, and given no notice of his purchase. Wright Bros. v. Leonard (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 780.

57. Silence.—Plaintiff waived right to recover, for defect in the title, the earnest money paid on a contract for purchase of land; he, with knowledge of the title, claiming his option and endeavoring to sell it, and not objecting to the title when refusing to consummate the contract. Joyce v. Hagelstein (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 366.

Where a purchaser, with knowledge that a well, guaranteed by the vendor to supply the necessary water for irrigation, flowed so poorly that irrigation on all but a small part of the land had to be abandoned, made improvements on the premises and partial payments of the price and interest without objections, he could not compel a rescission. Luckenbach v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 39.

Purchaser of land remaining on it after discovery of false representations as to area and capacity of well thereon, making improvements, paying interest, and trying to sell it, held, as matter of law, to have waived right to rescind. Winters v. Coward (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 946.

Assured's acquiescence in an insurance agent's mistaken statement that contemplated foreclosure proceedings voided the policy does not estop him from denying that the policy was canceled by mutual consent, where there is no proof that his silence misled the insurer. Glens Falls Ins. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1036.

Unless a party is bound to speak, his silence cannot work an estoppel. Texas Life Ins. Co. v. Huntsman (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 455.
Where defendant, who rented a farm from plaintiff, which she represented was free from Johnson grass, discovered that it was sodded with Johnson grass, either at entering into possession or before execution of the lease and mortgage to secure rent, he waived right to damages. Klyce v. Gundlach (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1092.

58. Negligence.—Insured, induced to sign an application by agent's false representations, that it provides for the policy agreed upon, when, in fact, it provides for a materially different policy, is not estopped from recovering, even though inexcusably negligent in not informing himself. Federal Life Ins. Co. v. Hoskins (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 667.

Where negligence is relied upon as ground of estoppel, it must not only influence the action of some one to his injury, but must reasonably have been expected that it would have such effect, though he exercised ordinary care. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Meeks (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 651.

Where a sales contract was dictated principally by defendant after several days' negotiations, plaintiffs' negligence in failing to discover a mutual mistake would not estop them from later seeking relief. Littlefield v. Clayton Bros. (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 194.

III. Persons Affected

60. Persons estopped.—Plaintiff, not having joined or acquiesced in the request of other citizens that defendant build a dam to impound water which it had diverted, is not estopped, because thereof, to claim damages to his land from the escape of water therefrom. Texas & F. Ry. Co. v. Fraser (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1161.

61. Purchasers from person creating estoppel.—Sale of note, given to secure advancement of the purchase of land, by the assignee of the original payee, with the understanding that the suit instituted by the assignee should be dismissed, and its dismissal, did not annul the assignee's election to declare the note due for nonpayment of interest, or estop the buyer from such election. Finley v. Wakefield (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 755.

Statement of former secretary of investment company to county attorney prior to his institution of tax sale proceeding against certain lots as the property of unknown owners, held not to estop subsequent purchaser from the company from claiming that the title theretofore was in the company. Hume v. Carpenter (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 707.

IV. Matters Precluded

64. Rights and liabilities under contracts.—Though in negotiations nothing was said of rules of an association, the parties receiving and retaining the broker's memorandum of sale, stating contract was made subject thereto, they are bound thereby, there being no fraud or misrepresentation. People's Ice & Mfg. Co. v. Interstate Cotton Oil Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1163.

Act of party, who had contracted to exchange reality, in accepting abstract believing that time had expired in which other party could require him to accept, though waiver of time limit for furnishing abstract, was not waiver of requirement that it show clear title. Gault v. Dunlap (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1020.

65. Remedies.—While retention and use of a horse, after discovery of the fraud by which the sale was induced, precludes a rescission, it does not prevent a recovery of damages resulting therefrom. Hubbs v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 716.

Art. 3688. [2300] [2246] Color or interest does not disqualify.

In general.—On the issue of abandonment of homestead by moving to another place, the owner may testify as to his intention to return. Parker v. Schrimsher (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 155.

Art. 3689. [2301] [2247] Husband or wife not disqualified, except, etc.

Confidential communications.—In an action by the wife on a policy on her husband's life, her statement as to what the husband said when he delivered to her the policy, as to the time when the premium would be due, is not objectionable as a confidential communication. Illinois Bankers' Life Ass'n v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 992.

Art. 3690. [2302] [2248] In actions by or against executors, etc., certain testimony not allowed.

3. Actions in which testimony is excluded—Representative capacity or title or interest of party.—Where the daughters of deceased tenant in common did not claim the land as her heirs, other tenants in common may testify to conversations concerning the re-pudiation of their interest by deceased. Williams v. Randall (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 255.

In an action on a benefit certificate issued to plaintiff's husband, in which she was named as beneficiary, so that upon his death in good standing she became at once entitled to the moneys due, she was a competent witness to testify as to conversations with
In this case, the plaintiff, who was the administrator of the deceased, filed a suit against the defendant, who was the surviving spouse of the deceased, alleging that the defendant had interfered with the administration of the deceased's estate. The defendant argued that she was entitled to a share of the estate as a result of the deceased's will, which had been admitted to probate. The court ruled that the defendant was not entitled to a share of the estate because she had neither legal nor equitable standing to contest the appointment of the plaintiff as administrator. The court also ruled that the defendant's testimony regarding the deceased's mental capacity was inadmissible as it was based on a medical report that had not been introduced into evidence. The court held that the defendant was not entitled to a share of the estate and that the plaintiff had properly administered the estate. The defendant was ordered to pay the plaintiff's attorney's fees and costs incurred in the suit.
That a transaction with deceased was had in his representative capacity for a corporation does not affect the rule as to admission of testimony regarding it, since it is never held to be a transaction with one deceased, which is always inadmissible.

Plaintiff may, in action to obstruct a way, testify to conversation with his deceased grantor, though defendant derived his title through warranty deed from same grantor, since grantor's administratrix is not a party to such action. Miles v. Bodenheim (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 632.

[...] suit against corporations to remove cloud on title by one claiming under parol gift from a deceased, testimony of plaintiff as to transactions with and statements by such deceased showing the gift hold admission. First State Bank & Trust Co. v. Abilene v. Walker (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 724.

As to community property, the title to which is cast on survivor by Rev. St. 1911, art. 4623. This is not his "property" and hence in an action against the widow to declare a trust in favor of plaintiffs as against an absolute deed to the deceased husband, both parties may testify. Briggs v. McBride (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1123.

Defendant in suit to enjoin obstruction of alley could not render inadmissible testimony otherwise admissible by joining as party administratrix of one who had conveyed land to him by warranty deed. Miles v. Bodenheim (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 693.

22. — Party as to whom person deceased acted in representative or fiduciary relation.—The statutory rule touching testimony of conversations with persons since deceased does not apply where the person deceased was superintendent of a corporation. Texas & Pac. Ry. Co. v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 737.

25. Subject-matter of testimony—What constitutes transaction in general.—In a suit to partition land of a decedent, the testimony of a defendant that she claimed the land in controversy by gift from the decedent was properly excluded. Tannehill v. Tannehill (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1060.

A deal by an interested party that he had a certain transaction with deceased is evidence of a transaction, and inadmissible. Lester v. Hutson (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 268.

26. Occupancy of land and delivery of property.—In an action to recover an interest in land, where plaintiff relied on the possession of her intestate, testimony of defendant, that before he purchased the land in question intestate was in possession, and that since then he had been in possession, held not objectionable as a transaction between defendant and petitioned. Lester v. Hutson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 321.

27. Contracts.—In an action to recover an interest in land, testimony of defendant that there was no agreement for its sale and the application of the proceeds to the obligation of plaintiff's Intestate, as asserted, held based on a transaction with decedent and inadmissible. Lester v. Hutson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 321.

Under this article plaintiff claiming as heir, defendant may not testify to a purchase from deceased. Yates v. Craddock (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 276.

28. Services and value thereof.—In an action against estate of decedent on an alleged implied contract for personal services, plaintiff may testify as to what he did in service of decedent when latter was not present or a party to transaction. Henderson v. Davis (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 338.

30. Payment or transmission of money.—Under this article, plaintiff seeking to charge the estate of a decedent with a constructive trust cannot testify that decedent received the proceeds of the sale of plaintiff's farm, and that none of them were paid over to plaintiff. Swan v. Price (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 994.

In an action to charge the estate of a deceased person with a constructive trust, plaintiff cannot, under this article, testify that decedent never paid over to her certain money which he collected as her agent. Id.

Under this article, in attorney's suit against administrator to cancel notes agreed to be cancelled by decedent, attorney's testimony that he had never been paid for his services by decedent held inadmissible. Bright v. Briscoe (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 156.

31. Physical condition and mental capacity.—The statutory rule excluding evidence as to statements by, or transactions with, a deceased person did not prevent evidence of the statements of a deceased person for the purpose of showing his mental condition in an action in which his competency to contract was involved. Smith v. Guerre (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 417.

32. Transactions between persons other than witnesses and persons subsequently deceased or incompetent.—Defendant cannot testify to an agreement made between his deceased grandfather, his predecessor in title, and plaintiff's deceased predecessor in title fixing an agreed boundary line. Cosgrove v. Smith (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 109.

34. Admissions or other statements by person subsequently deceased.—In a railroad servant's action for injuries, plaintiff's testimony that he applied to defendant's superintendent for work and was refused was admissible under this article, though superintendent was dead at the time of the trial, since no attempt was made to bind the corporation in regard to the matter to which this conversation related. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 737.

Testimony of deceased's daughter, in partition suit in which she was a defendant that deceased stated no one could take away from his wife certain land he had deeded to her, is inadmissible. Richards v. Hartley (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 478.

40. Effect of calling or examination as witness by adverse party.—Under this article held that, when a deposition of the opposite party was taken by the representative of decedent, such party might cross-examine the witness and bring out matters favorable to his interest. Lester v. Hutson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 321.
Where a witness is called by an administrator, his disqualification to testify against decedent is waived, and his testimony elicited by deposition or otherwise is admissible. 1d.

Under this article held that a party so called and whose deposition had been taken could not testify to matters not testified to or inquired about in the deposition. 1d.

The heir of plaintiff's intestate incompetent as witness against defendant administrator, unless called by her, held not so called where plaintiff prepared and filed interrogatories, though defendant propounded cross-interrogatories and procured issuance of commission. Wyatt v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 16.

41. Objections to admissibility, and exclusion.—Administrator of decedent, joined, in suit by executor of title, defendant claimed to land in which plaintiffs asserted easement, alone had right to object to admission of testimony that it concerned statement of her decedent and was against her. Miles v. Bodenheim (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 693.

Art. 3694. [2306] [2252] Copies of records of public officers and courts to be prima facie evidence.

Documents of record in general.—The assessor's abstract, being a public record within this article, was admissible in evidence. Randolph v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 647.

Under this article, where contracts between railroad and express companies were competent evidence, certified copies thereof, as filed with the Railroad Commission pursuant to a rule requiring them to be filed, were admissible. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Empire Express Co. (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 222.

Where public documents are admissible, but cannot, without inconvenience to the public interest be removed from their place of custody, certified copies or copies verified by some person who has seen the original are admissible. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Graham & Price (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 297.

Probate record.—Under this article, in trespass to try title, certified copies of orders of probate court in administration of decedent's estate, offered in rebuttal of defendant's claim of title, held admissible. Woods v. Moore (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 625.

Orders of commissioners' court.—The putting in force of prohibition within the territory may be proved either by the minute book, where the orders are entered in the minutes of the commissioners' court, or by properly certified copies thereof. Howard v. State, 72 Cr. R. 824, 162 S. W. 429.

Under this article, art. 6397, and the article providing that books, papers, etc., required to be kept in any executive department shall constitute a part of the archives thereof, report of state surveyor of survey made by him held admissible in trespass to try title between private parties, though portions of report consisting of argument and opinions are not admissible. Denton v. English (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 248.

In trespass to try title, certified sketches and maps from the land office were competent to show, at least prima facie, the location of surveys outlined there. McCormack v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 485.

Statement of facts.—On the second trial of an action, testimony of witness at former trial, since deceased, could not be proved by a certified copy of the statement of facts upon the former appeal, not shown to have been made up from stenographer's notes, and no other proof of its verity being made. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 701.

Art. 3696. [2308] [2253] Copies and certificates from certain officers are evidence.

Land office.—Certified copies of ex parte affidavits on file in the Land Office, made to procure the issuance of a duplicate land certificate, which, under the law in existence at the time, could be issued direct to the person claiming the original instead of to the grantee alone, are admissible to identify the duplicate and original, though not admissible to prove the facts therein recited. Magee v. Paul (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 325.

Although a map was made subsequent to the bringing of an action to define boundaries, a copy of such map certified from the land office was admissible in the action. Thatcher v. Matthews (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 810.

In action on note secured by trust deed to premises to which defendant claimed homestead right, where he previously left such premises, and he claimed intent to return, his certified copy from general land office of his application to purchase land, reciting by affidavit that he desired to purchase land to make a home, was admissible. Calvin v. Neel (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 791.

Art. 3697. [2309] [2254] Notarial acts and copies thereof are evidence.

Cited, Pipkin v. Ware (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 808.

Art. 3698. [2310] [2255] In suits against delinquent officers, transcript from comptroller's office is evidence.

Art. 3700. [2312] [2257] Recorded instruments admitted in evidence without proof, when.

Application of article in general.—Articles of incorporation, under Rev. St. 1911, art. 5002, may be proved, as authorized by article 3707, by a copy certified by the secretary of state, and article 3700 has no application. McKenzie v. Imperial Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 406.

An original recorded chattel mortgage, having been declared on in the petition, and its execution and delivery proven, need not be filed with the papers in court as a predicate for its admission; the statute having no application. Denman v. James (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1167.

Under this article, a recorded chattel mortgage is admissible in evidence without proof of execution by parol; the record taking the place of proof of execution, which was necessary at common law. Id.

Act April 23, 1907 (Acts 29th Leg. c. 185), held to relate only to the admissibility in evidence of deeds not properly acknowledged, and not to the sufficiency of a married woman's conveyance, where a proper acknowledgment was necessary to convey the title. Delay v. Truitt (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 732.

Acknowledgment in general.—Though acknowledged before one not authorized to take acknowledgments, a copy of a deed which was on record for more than ten years without assertion of any claim adverse to the one evidenced by the deed was admissible. Sullivan v. Fant (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 612.

What are recorded instruments.—In an action to recover reality, the record of a deed which was a link in the chain of defendant's record title was inadmissible, where the body of the recording the purported copy was one used for recording conveyances in a county which never had any constitutional existence, and where it did not purport to have been proven before the proper officers of such district, or other legal officer, within Act Jan. 1, 1844 (2 Gammel's Early Laws of Texas, p. 922), but was acknowledged before a notary public, who then had no authority to take acknowledgments of deeds. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Goodrich, 236 Fed. 434, 141 C. C. A. 284.

Certified copy.—Under this article and art. 3703, a certified copy of a deed of trust not questioned for over 20 years held admissible in evidence. Wacaser v. Rockland Savings Bank (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 737.

In trespass to try title, held error to admit a certified copy of a deed where issue was raised as to the genuinefulness of the original and there was failure to account for its nonproduction, or at least the issue should have been submitted to the jury. Niles v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 748.

Under this article, in action by vendors to enforce specific performance of contract to purchase land, record of deed was properly rejected, where there was no affidavit of loss, and no certified copy or notice given to opposite party. Alling v. Vander Stucken (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 448.

Filing before trial and notice.—In a prosecution under Pen. Code 1911, art. 500, relative to keeping of disorderly houses, held error to admit in evidence record of a deed, where a certified copy had not been filed and notice given. Speers v. State (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 164.

Affidavit of loss, mutilation or inability to procure.—Under this article, evidence of a witness on a stand to inability to produce the original deed held equivalent to the statutory affidavit, and to authorize the introduction of a certified copy. Hill & Jahne v. Lofton (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 67.

In trespass to try title, a finding of title is sustained where the place of a missing deed was not supplied by proof that it was recorded in a county whose records were subsequently burned. Vann v. George (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 535.

Under this article, necessity of affidavit of loss might possibly be dispensed with, if evidence of witnesses was offered who testify to diligent search and inquiry made of proper officers and in proper places. Alling v. Vander Stucken (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 448.

Affidavit of forgery.—This article, held not to permit introduction of deed recorded for more than 10 years as against affidavit of opposite party that he believed it a forgery. Emory v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 381.

In trespass to try title, where defendant filed an affidavit of forgery, age of deeds, registration, certified copies of original recorded in two counties, and evidence of long and continuous assertion of claim thereunder, with presumption of Innocence, held sufficient to meet burden of proof of genuineness cast on plaintiff by affidavit. Village Mills Co. v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 788.

In an original recorded chattel mortgage where plaintiff had record in proof of genuineness cast on plaintiff by affidavit, claim by defendant, and defendant's deed, to establish genuineness of notes and indorsements as against the affidavit. Rudolph v. Hilvely (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 721.

In trespass to try title, filing by plaintiffs of affidavit of forgery of deed through which defendants derived title put upon defendants the burden of proving the execution of the deed. Niles v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 748.

Ancient documents.—Ex parte affidavits on file in the Land Office are not admissible to prove facts therein recited on the ground that they are ancient instruments, though they have been on file for more than 30 years. Magee v. Paul (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 325. 933
A bill of sale of an unlocated duplicate land certificate, which has existed for more than 30 years and which has been recorded for more than 25 years, is properly admitted in evidence as an ancient instrument. 1d.

A defectively acknowledged bond for title held inadmissible as an ancient document under this article as against one claiming under an attachment of the property as that of the grantor where the latter’s rights were returned within a year after the recording of the bond for title. Rule v. Richards (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 386.

The record of a deed purporting to have been executed 35 years before, but recorded only five years before, is not admissible as an ancient instrument as proof of recitals in it. Ketchum v. Boggs (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 201.

Art. 3703.  [2319]  [2263] Transcribed records, certified copies of, evidence, etc.

In general.—Under this article, and art. 3700, a certified copy of a deed of trust not questioned for over 30 years holds in evidence. Wacaser v. Rockland Savings Bank (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 737.

Art. 3707.  [2315]  [2259] Certified copies from heads of departments, evidence.

In general.—Articles of incorporation, under Rev. St. 1911, art. 5002, may be proved, as authorized by article 3706, by a copy certified by the secretary of state, and article 3708 has no application. McKenzie v. Imperial Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 495.

Art. 3708.  [2316]  [2260] Assessment or payment of taxes may be proven, how.

In general.—Under this article, and arts. 7743, 7745, 7746, comptroller’s certificate of assessment and payment of taxes held admissible in trespass to try title, though not contained in abstract of title offered after demand. Hays v. Hinkle (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 193.

Art. 3710.  [2318]  [2262] Execution of notes and other instruments presumed, unless, etc.

See note under art. 1906.

Foundation of action or defense.—Where defendants pleaded payment, and not the receipt evidencing it, plea of non est factum held not necessary to enable plaintiff to attack the genuineness of the receipt. Richards v. Osborne (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 392.

Necessity of plea of non est factum and verification thereof.—In suit on a note, a plea of non est factum is inapplicable where defendants admitted signing the instrument, and there is no evidence of any alteration after execution. Farmers’ & Citizens’ Sav. Bank v. Smith (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1026.

In a suit on a note, an unworn plea of non est factum did not have effect of demanding proof of execution of note until sworn to. Braxton v. Voyles (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 965.

What constitutes plea of non est factum.—A plea that by the false representations of plaintiffs’ agent that a lease, for breach of which the action was brought, contained a defeasance clause providing for termination on an event which happened, and that defendants’ signatures were secured by the agent’s misrepresentation that the clause had been inserted, held not a plea of non est factum requiring verification. Taber v. Eyler (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 490.

Effect of plea non est factum.—In an action on a renewal vendor’s lien note, where one of the defendants filed a plea of non est factum, the burden of proving that he signed the renewal note was on the plaintiff. Spearman v. Connor Bros. (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 478.

Where defendant proves the execution and delivery of deeds under which possession is had and the mental capacity of the grantor, the deeds are admissible as evidence as against the affidavit of plaintiff as to forgery. Wentzell v. Chester (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 304.

In action against corporation as maker of notes, there being a plea of non est factum, direct proof of authority of defendant’s officers to execute notes is not required, but such authority may be shown by circumstantial evidence. Galveston-Houston Interurban Land Co. v. Dow (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 353.

Notes are inadmissible in evidence in face of plea non est factum without proof of their execution. Id.

Instruments the execution of which must be denied.—Petition against a carrier for non-delivery held to charge that bill of lading was in writing, under Rev. St. 1911, art. 710, and carrier not denying under oath its execution under article 196, subd. 8, and article 3710, may not question it. Quannah, A. & F. Ry. Co. v. H. D. Jones Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 888.

Art. 3712.  [2323]  [2266] Suit on sworn account.

What constitutes open account.—An account for numerous articles of merchandise purchased at single date held an “open account” subject to proof by ex parte affidavit. Rockdale Mercantile Co. v. Brown Shoe Co. (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 281.
Account for merchandise sold defendant, not itemized as contemplated by the statute, is not such an account as when sworn to would be admissible to prove itself, although there was no denial under oath to any item. A. Harris & Co. v. Grinnell Willis & Co. (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 753.

An action on account for goods sold held founded on open account, and hence the sworn statement of account constituted prima facie evidence under the statute. Padgett Bros. v. Dorsey (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1124.

Accounts not within article.—Verified account held insufficient to support default judgment, under this article; many of the items consisting merely of dates and amounts. Wall & Carr v. J. M. Radford Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 785.

Action on implied agreement to pay for labor performed and contract to pay commission for procuring buyer for land is not on open account, and pleadings need not conform to statute as to open accounts. Myers v. Grantham (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 832.

Effect of affidavit to account.—Under this article, one sued on a verified account may, under appropriate pleadings, show that his liability for the account was condition-al, and that the condition fixing the liability had not arisen. Alexander Bros. v. Wroe & Geppert (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1055.

Verified account under this article, containing charges of interest, held no proof of written agreement to pay interest at the rate of 10 per cent. Wall & Carr v. J. M. Radford Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 785.

In a suit on sworn account for merchandise sold, the burden was on plaintiff to make out his case; and until he had done so the Court of Civil Appeals cannot consider defendant's attitude as to its defense, if it had any. A. Harris & Co. v. Grinnell Willis & Co. (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 753.

Where an account is properly verified under this article, it is admissible as prima facie evidence, in absence of a sworn denial by defendant that it was not true, etc., as required by such statute. Wilson v. J. W. Crowduis Drug Co. (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 194.

Sufficiency of counter affidavit.—Under this article, denial of verified account alleging that it was not correct and true, that it was not due, and that defendant did not owe it or any item thereof, held sufficient. Continental Lumber & Tie Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 927.

Failure to file counter affidavit and effect thereof.—Where plaintiff sued on a verified open account in compliance with this article, defendant, not denying any items under oath, as required by article 1906, could not object to the items. Green v. Hoppe (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1117.

Under this article, defendant's failure to deny the justness of a verified account or any item thereof is equivalent to an admission of its correctness. Bay Lumber Co. v. Artman & Buettmer (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 279.

Art. 3713. [677] [601] Records of corporation are evidence.

Foreign corporations.—In an action against a foreign insurance company on its policy, the record of an assessment passed at a meeting, signed by the president and secretary, is admissible in evidence under this article, and in view of the presumption, that the statute of the corporation's domicile was the same as prevailed in Texas. Illinois Bankers' Life Ass'n v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 922.

In a suit on the policy of a foreign insurance corporation, a certificate signed by the president and secretary as to passage of an assessment at a meeting is admissible without proof that the signers were the president and secretary or that the signatures were theirs. Id.
Article 3714. [2324] [2267] Execution on judgment of district and county court, issued when.

Final judgment.—Where a judgment on a cross-bill determined all the issues except defendant’s claim to exemplary damages, which was not referred to, such issue was impliedly determined against defendant, and the judgment was a final one, sufficient to sustain an execution. Stockwell v. Melbern (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 405.

A judgment in an action against two persons against one of the parties only held not a final judgment so as to authorize an execution. Busby v. Schrank (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 295.

Taxation of costs.—Under this article, if clerk, before execution, taxes costs without their amount having been fixed by the court, held, that the amount stands as a judgment, unless the court, on motion, adjudges that the items are not proper. Beaumont Irrigating Co. v. De Laune (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 514.

Art. 3717. [2326a] When judgment shall become dormant.

Revival of judgment—Evidence.—In action to revive judgment where evidence introduced by defendant attacking judgment would not require a different judgment from that originally rendered, refusal of trial court to consider such evidence after hearing it was not error. Walker v. Chatterton (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1085.

Art. 3723. [2332] [2275] On death of defendant, no execution for money.

Dissolved corporation.—Under this article, and arts. 3725, 5504, subd. 2, a sale of land under execution against a corporation after its dissolution by the sale of its franchise, etc., was void. Allison v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1021.

Foreclosure sale after death of judgment debtor.—In view of this article, no title passes under a sale ordered in a foreclosure suit after the death of the judgment debtor. Cole v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 180.

Art. 3725. [2334] [2277] Terms “plaintiff” and “defendant” defined.

In general.—Under this article, and arts. 3723, 5504, subd. 2, a sale of land under execution against a corporation after its dissolution by the sale of its franchise, etc., was void. Allison v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1021.

Art. 3729. [2338] [2281] Requisites of an execution.

Validity in general.—That an execution on a justice’s judgment to enforce a lien on attached land was called an order of sale did not affect its validity as an execution. Rule v. Richards (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 356.
EXECUTION

Art. 3743

Names of parties.—Where the names of parties defendant appear on the face of the execution, and the name of plaintiff in the judgment on the back as an indorsement, the execution sufficiently shows the names of the parties. Simmons v. Arnim (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 184.

Description of judgment.—An execution held to sufficiently describe the judgments on which it was issued. Simmons v. Arnim (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 184.

Conformity to judgment.—An execution held to conform to the judgment so as to be sufficient to pass title on a sale. Simmons v. Arnim (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 184.

Direction as to return of execution.—Execution from the county court of Houstoncounty, directing the officer to make return "before said court at the courthouse thereof in Houston within 60 days," etc., was not void for the omission of "county" after "Houston." Collin County Nat. Bank v. Satterwhite (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 338.

Art. 3730. [2339] [2282] Returnable, when.

No return day specified.—An execution placed in the hands of an officer is returnable under this article in 30, 60, or 90 days if so directed, and if no return day is specified, is returnable on first day of next term of court whence it issued. Peck v. Murphy & Bolanz (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 542.

Former statute.—The law in force on February 6, 1844, when an execution was issued which required that it be returned before the next term of court, meant the next regular term of court, so that it was not returnable to a special term authorized by a statute passed after the execution. Masterson Irr. Co. v. Foote (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 642.

Art. 3735. [2344] [2287] Levy of execution.

Several writs.—Where plaintiffs and defendants in each execution were the same, sheriff might levy on land to satisfy three different executions. Kenley v. Robb (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 375.

Art. 3736. [2345] [2288] Failure of defendant to designate property.

Property subject to execution.—Where an owner of land incumbered conveyed by mistake the entire tract, while intending to convey only an undivided half interest, and the mistake was mutual, the undivided half interest intended to be retained was subject to execution, and the purchaser at execution sale acquired the interest subject to the incumbrance. Fullen v. Weatherford (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 1174.

The interest of a child in residuary real estate given testator's wife for life with remainder to the children, and providing that wife should manage the property and might sell or incumber it with consent of a majority of the children, is subject to execution, since will creates no trust relation. Ward v. Capes (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 816, judgment affirmed Capes v. Ward (Sup.) 173 S. W. 556.

A judgment against a city in an action against it for a nuisance should order execution against it, in the absence of any statute forbidding it. City of Clarendon v. Betts (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 958.

A vested remainder is subject to execution against the remaindermen. Capes v. Ward (Sup.) 173 S. W. 556.

Property not subject to execution.—A judgment against a school district cannot be enforced by execution; mandamus being the proper remedy. Crowell Independent School Dist. v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 339.

Correction deed after levy of execution.—A correction deed may be given by grantor when a levy has been made on the land before execution, if the creditor had notice of the rights of the original purchaser. Hodges v. Moore (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 415.

Art. 3740. [2349] [2292] On personal property.

See Needham v. Cooney (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 979; note under art. 254.

Personal property—Possession.—Under this article possession upon levy of execution should be such that but for the protection of his writ, the officer would be trespasser, though manual possession or removal is not necessary, if he has the property in his view or control. Burch v. Mounts (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 889.

Under this article sheriff's acts in levying upon cattle held a sufficient taking of possession to constitute a valid levy. 1d.

Third party entitled to possession.—Under this article levying on and sale under execution of property in which the debtor has merely an interest, without right to exclusive possession, is made by giving notice to the person entitled to the possession, and a levy by taking actual possession cannot stand as legal on the ground that the debtor had an interest in the property, though not exclusive. Kimbrough v. Bevering (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 403.

Art. 3743. [2352] [2295] Interest of partner.

Effect of levy.—The levy of an execution upon the interest of a partner in partnership property works no change in the possession of the property. J. M. Radford Grocery Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 911.

The levy of an attachment on the interest of a partnership property does not inter-
Art. 3744. [2353] [2296] Goods pledged or mortgaged.

In general.—Both at common law and under this article mortgaged chattels are subject to execution and sale thereunder on a judgment recovered against the mortgagor. Wilkerson v. Stanny & Holub (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1191.

Right of possession.—Under this article where a tenant pledged his cotton crop to his landlord to secure advances, a judgment creditor of the tenant was not entitled to possession of the cotton or to any interest therein by levy and sale to himself under execution, unless he complied with the conditions of the pledge. Kimbrough v. Bevering (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 460.

Notice of lien to purchaser.—Under this article, it is unnecessary that an officer disposing of mortgaged animals, which mortgage was recorded, notify purchasers of the existence of the mortgage. Wilkerson v. Stanny & Holub (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1191.

Priority of lien.—Despite this article, mortgagee, who made advances after part of the mortgaged property was sold under execution, has priority over the purchaser at execution sale, though at time of purchase the other property was sufficient to have discharged debt. Law Sprinkle Mercantile Co. v. Hause (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 727.

Art. 3746. [2355] [2298] Duty of officer as to property in his hands.

Release of levy.—Fact that sheriff left live stock in a lot over night after making levy of execution, until arrangements could be made to care for it, did not release or invalidate levy. Hoping v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1119.

Art. 3748. [2357] [2300] Defendant may give delivery bond and keep property.

Discharge of sureties.—Sureties on redelivery bond under this article, are not discharged by bankruptcy of principal debtor, under Bankruptcy Act. Evans v. Rea (Sup.) 191 S. W. 1133.

Art. 3750. [2359] [2302] Forfeited delivery bond.

Effect of forfeiture.—When sheriff released levy of execution upon judgment debtor's goods and indorsed forthcoming bond "forfeited," the right of plaintiff in judgment as against sureties on bond became fixed. Evans v. Rea (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 707.

Art. 3751. [2360] [2303] Real property sold, how.

In general.—A finding that a trustee in a trust deed complied with this article and arts. 3757, 3759, by posting the proper notices of sale held authorized. Adams v. Zellner (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 983, writ of error denied (Sup.) 183 S. W. 1143.

Art. 3757. [2366] [2309] Notice of sale of real estate.

A finding that a trustee in a trust deed complied with this article and arts. 3751, 3759, by posting the proper notices of sale held authorized. Adams v. Zellner (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 983, writ of error denied (Sup.) 183 S. W. 1143.

Where no personal judgment was rendered against plaintiff, and a judgment foreclosing vendor's lien notes upon land was an adjudication that she had no interest therein, notice of the sale to satisfy the lien need not be given to her. Sells v. White (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1079.

Failure to advertise.—Under this article, which requires a sale of land under execution order of sale or other process to be advertised for 20 days in a newspaper published in the county where the land is situated, the failure to so advertise the land renders the sale void. United States v. Sinclair, 209 Fed. 612, 126 C. C. A. 606.

Notice to defendant.—Necessity and sufficiency.—Under this article, the posting in the United States mail of a properly addressed and stamped notice of sale to defendants in execution held sufficient, whether the notice is received or not. South Texas Lumber Co. v. Burleson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 961.

Where proper notice was given of sale under only one of three executions levied on land, in which parties were the same, sale was valid, though notice was not given under other executions. Kenley v. Robb (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 375.

Vacation for inadequacy of price.—Plaintiffs, who were adjudicated to have no interest in land, held not entitled to have vacated for inadequacy of price a sale of the property. Sells v. White (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1079.
Art. 3759. [2369] [2310a] Sales of real estate under powers conferred by deed of trust or other contract lien; land situated in more than one county; notice; sales how made; land in unorganized county.—All sales of real estate made in this State under powers conferred by any deed of trust or other contract lien shall be made in the county in which such real estate is situated, unless such real estate be situated in more than one county, in which event, notices as herein provided shall be given in both or all of such counties, providing and giving notice that such sale will be made of such real estate in that one of said counties in which the greater portion of the real estate may be situated; if equal quantities of said land to be sold lie in different counties, said notice shall designate in which of said counties the sale is to be made. Notice of such proposed sale shall be given by posting written notice thereof for three consecutive weeks prior to the day of sale in three public places in said county or counties, one of which shall be at the court house door of the county in which such sale is to be made, and if such real estate be in more than one county, one at the court house door of each county in which such real estate is situated, or such notice may be given as required by statute in case of judicial sale, or such notice may be given in either of said methods, or as may be provided for in said deed of trust or contract lien; and such sales shall be made at public vendue, between the hours of 10 o'clock a.m. and 4 o'clock p.m., of the first Tuesday in any month provided; that when such real estate is situated in an unorganized county, such sale shall be made in the county to which such an unorganized county is attached for judicial purposes. [Acts 1889, p. 143; Act March 12, 1915, ch. 43, § 1; Act June 3, 1915, 1st C. S., ch. 15, § 2.]

Explanatory.— Took effect 90 days after May 25, 1915, date of adjournment. The act amends art. 3759, title 54, Rev. Civ. St. 1911, as amended by regular session of 34th Legislature so as to read as above.

Act March 12, 1915, ch. 43, § 1, referred to provides as follows: “All sales of real estate made in this state under powers conferred by any deed of trust or other contract lien shall be made in the county in which such real estate is situated, unless such real estate be situated in more than one county, in which event notices as herein provided shall be given in both or all of such counties, providing and giving notice that such sale will be made of such real estate in that one of said counties in which the greater portion of the real estate may be situated: If equal quantities of said land to be sold lie in different counties, said notice shall designate in which of said counties the sale is to be made. Notice of such proposed sale shall be given by posting written notice thereof in three public places in said county or counties, one of which shall be at the court house door of the county in which such sale is to be made, and if such real estate be in more than one county, one at the court house door of each county in which said real estate is situated, or such notice may be given as required by statute in case of judicial sales or such notice may be given in either of said methods as provided for in said deed of trust or contract lien; and such sales shall be made at public vendue, between the hours of 10 o'clock a.m. and 4 o'clock p.m. of the first Tuesday in any month; provided, that when such real estate is situated in an unorganized county, such sale shall be made in the county to which such unorganized county is attached for judicial purposes.”

The emergency clause in the act of March 12, 1915, recites that the fact that by the decisions of this state, sales under deeds of trust have been construed to refer back and be governed by the law that existed in 1889, thus creating confusion and litigation as to the method to pursue in making sales under deeds of trust, creates an emergency, etc. This act took effect 90 days after adjournment of the legislature on March 20, 1915.

4. Power as authority for sale in general.—In making a sale under a deed of trust, the trustee must comply with the terms of the deed, but incidental matters outside of its terms are left to his discretion. Zeiss v. First State Bank (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 524.

The maker of a trust deed containing power of sale may impose on its exercise any limitations he desires, and they must be strictly followed, and the power admits of no substitution and of no equivalent. Michael v. Crawford (Sup.) 193 S. W. 1070.

5. Commencement, suspension or termination of power.—Where a trust deed secured a debt authorized the trustee to sell on maturity of the debt and default at the request of the creditor, the creditor having made such request, his death pending injunction proceedings to restrain the sale did not deprive the trustee of a power to sell on termination of the injunction proceedings. Todd v. Bemis (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 182.

Failure of a trustee to sell mortgaged property on the first day available after the dissolution of an injunction restraining the sale did not affect the continued existence of the power, which, having been once conferred, remained until executed. 1d.
A sale by a trustee under a power of sale in a deed of trust, made after the note was barred by limitations and after the power could be exercised, is void. Rudolph v. Hively (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 721.

Where a trustee in a trust deed was authorized to sell only on the mortgagee's request, such power remained dormant until the proper request was made, and he could not give a valid refusal to act to any one but the mortgagee. Rawlings v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 784.

7. Rights of junior incumbrancers.—A junior mortgagee is not injured by a private sale under a senior mortgage, which called for a public sale where the property could not be sold for the debt secured. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Albrecht (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 819.

8. Authority to execute power and execution of power in general.—Where a deed of trust made it the duty of the trustee to sell on the debtor's default at the request of the beneficiary, it did not limit such request to the particular beneficiary named in the deed, but authorized a sale at the request of the owner of the debt. Todd v. Bemis (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 182.

9. Substitute trustee.—Where attorney of assignee of notes secured by trust deed requested trustee to refuse to act so that the attorney might sell the property as substituted trustee, this was not a request by mortgagee to act and refusal by the trustee, as required by the trust deed before substituting another trustee; the holder of the notes having no such power under the deed. Rawlings v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 784.

Where trust deeds securing notes, authorized the trustee to sell on default of payment at mortgagee's request, and gave mortgagee power to appoint a substitute trustee upon the trustee's refusal to act, the transferee of the notes had no authority to appoint a substitute trustee, and the deed of trustee substituted by him conveyed no title.

The power to appoint a substitute trustee for the execution of a power of sale in a trust deed can be exerted only through express authority of the instrument. Michael v. Crawford (Sup.) 193 S. W. 1070.

Under a trust deed granting to holder of note secured power to sell, and to substitute a trustee in case of death or failure to act, the holder alone could appoint a substitute trustee, and he could not make such appointment through an agent.

12. Place of sale.—Under statute of 1889, a new promise by a widow to pay notes secured by joint deed of trust by herself and husband will not authorize sale under the deed of trust, except in the county where the land lies. W. C. Belcher Land Mortgage Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 278.

14. Notice of sale.—A finding that a trustee in a trust deed complied with this article and arts. 3751, 3757, by posting the proper notices of sale held authorized. Adams v. Zeilner (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 933, writ of error denied (Sup.) 183 S. W. 1143.

Recital in deed executed by trustees that notice of sale was made by posting a public notice on the courthouse door does not render the deed void for want of notice, but the purchaser may prove that proper notice was given.

Notice to the debtors of the sale of the land under a trust deed prior to such sale is not a prerequisite to a valid sale. McCullough v. Hurt (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 781.

15. — Publication or other constructive notice.—A trustee in a deed of trust held to advertise a sale in compliance with this article and Rev. St. 1875, art. 2300. Roe v. Davis, 172 S. W. 708, 106 Tex. 537, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 950.

A trustee's sale cannot be set aside because the trustee did not select the public places where notice should be posted; it appeared that, though another selected them, notices were duly posted. Titterington v. Deutsch (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 279.

Where by terms of a mortgage, notice of sale must be published in a newspaper, if notice cannot be given because no newspaper is published in the county, the trustee cannot sell under power without recourse to a court. Rudolph v. Hively (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 721.

16. Sale in parcels.—Where a trustee under a trust deed had authority to sell the whole of the property for nonpayment of the debt, his failure to do so did not affect the validity of a sale of a part thereof. Todd v. Bemis (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 152.

18. Persons who may purchase.—Purchasers of land, who assumed the mortgage and later sold it to others, taking second vendors' lien notes, can purchase the land at the sale on foreclosure of the first mortgage as against the holders of the second lien notes by indorsement without recourse. Doolen v. Hulsey (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 364.

19. Setting aside sale.—In a suit by the grantee to recover land sold by a trustee under a trust deed to secure a loan, where the sale was regular, evidence of the value of the land was immaterial. McCullough v. Hurt (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 781.

There is no constructive fraud on the part of the grantor in a deed of trust or in setting aside of the trustee's sale, for the trustee, unknown to such grantor, to accept employment by the beneficiary to collect the secured note. Thornton v. Goodman (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 926.

A sale by a trustee under a deed of trust for $1,000 was for an inadequate price, whether the property was worth, as found, $5,800, or $1,000 less. Id.

Where trust deed did not give grantor right to notice or to be present at foreclosure sale, refusal of trustee to delay sale for a few minutes until the grantor could arrive with inadequacy of price will not warrant vacation; there being no showing that grantor would or could have protected his interest. Zeiss v. First State Bank (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 524.
A sale by a trustee of a deed of trust will be set aside if there is proof of undue advantage. Id.

21. Title and rights of purchaser.—The purchaser of land at auction sale by the trustee under deed of trust cannot claim the growing crop, having agreed to a severance, by the trustee, at his request, announcing, at the sale, that the crop had been sold, and would not pass under sale of the land. Stamps v. Ezell (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 944.

Rights acquired by purchase of the land at the sale on foreclosure of the first mortgage by those who had sold the property subject to the mortgage and indorsed without recourse vendors' lien notes received by them do not inure to the benefit of the holder of those notes. Doolen v. Hulsey (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 364.

22. Operation and effect.—A trustee's deed is void and conveys no title when the sale is under a deed of trust which the mortgagor had no authority to execute. W. C. Belcher Land Mortgage Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 278.

Art. 3759a. Judicial confirmation of foreclosure sales of property owned by soldier or sailor.—In all cases of sales of real property of soldiers or sailors serving in the armies or navies of the United States during the continuance of the war with Germany, under and by virtue of deeds of trust or of mortgages where such sales are made without foreclosure suits, before the execution of any conveyance by reason thereof or the delivery of the property, or before such property is taken possession of, there shall first be filed in a court of competent jurisdiction a suit for the confirmation of such sale and for the authority to make conveyance of and delivery of the property; in such suits service shall be had on any soldier or sailor as is provided by law in such cases, and such suit shall be subject to all laws of this State applicable; on the final trial of the case if the court finds that it is proper and lawful to confirm such sale he shall do so and order a conveyance and delivery of the property, and all sales, not made in compliance with this Act and other Acts on the subject shall be null and void. Provided that on the final trial and before judgment of confirmation is entered by the court, the defendant may file an answer setting up any defense he may have to the merits of the case. [Act Sept. 17, 1917, ch. 4, § 1.]

See art. 1868a, ante.

Art. 3759b. Same; not applicable when.—Nothing contained in this Act shall in anywise affect or apply to existing laws governing the foreclosure of any deed of trust, mortgage or other lien upon any real property, not owned by such soldier or sailor at the time of his enlistment and subsequently conveyed to him encumbered by such deed of trust, mortgage or other lien. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 3760. [2370] [2311] Sale of personal property.

Excuse for failure to comply.—Under Rev. St. 1911, arts. 3760, 3762, requiring personal property taken under execution to be present at sale when it is susceptible of being exhibited, presence of property is only excused when its nature prevents it from being exhibited and not because of nature of premises or remoteness thereof. Hopping v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 1119.

Art. 3761. [2371] [2312] Notice of sale of personal property.

Art. 3762. [2372] [2313] Personal property present at sale, except.

Failure to comply—in general.—In a suit by surety on a secured note, as assignee of note after payment, seeking payment from maker and to establish a lien on chattels mortgaged, evidence held to warrant a finding that neither mortgagor nor plaintiff waived statutory requirement that property taken under execution must be present and exhibited at sale. Hopping v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1119.

—— Excuse.—Under this article and art. 3760, requiring personal property taken under execution to be present at sale when it is susceptible of being exhibited, presence of property is only excused when its nature prevents it being exhibited and not because of nature of premises or remoteness thereof. Hopping v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1119.

—— Liability.—Where a sale of chattels taken on execution was void because of failure to comply with statute requiring presence of property at sale, sheriff and pur-

Art. 3765. [2375] [2316] Conveyance to purchaser.

Description of property.—A description in a sheriff's deed is sufficient if it may be made certain by extrinsic evidence identifying the property. Welles v. Arno Co-operative Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 985.

A deed to purchaser at judicial sale is not void for uncertainty, unless on its face the description cannot by extrinsic evidence be made to apply to any definite land. Waterhouse v. Gallup (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 773.

Recitals.—Recitals in a sheriff's deed that the same was executed pursuant to a sale by virtue of an order of sale held insufficient to show a sale under a valid judgment and execution, which the holder was required by show by other evidence. Rule v. Richards (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 386.

Title acquired by purchaser.—Where a judgment of foreclosure of vendor's lien note is void for want of jurisdiction, a sale thereunder passes no title to the purchaser. Moon v. Sherwood (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 286.

Art. 3768. [2378] [2318] Purchaser deemed innocent.

Bona fide purchaser in general.—A purchaser at an execution sale has a superior title to the heirs of a grantee who claim under a prior unrecorded deed. Gosch v. Vrana (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 757.

One who purchased one-half of a tract of land sold under execution without notice of defendant's equitable title to one-half of the tract takes his purchase free from defendant's equities. Cettl v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 986.

Recitals in mortgage as to vendor's lien held not admissible against persons claiming under sale under execution against the mortgagee. Zielger v. Magee (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 631.

Liens and incumbrances on property—Vendor's lien.—A purchaser of property under execution sale took title subject to the incumbrance of vendor's lien notes secured by a valid vendor's lien on record against the property. Lane v. Kempner (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1090.

Art. 3770. [2380] [2320] Officer or deputy shall not purchase.

Art. 3774. [2384] [2324] Money to be paid over.

In general.—Where execution was in regular form duly authenticated, held that it was sheriff's right and duty to collect amount of the writ and pay it over to execution creditor. Sanders v. Waghalter (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1053.

Art. 3775. [2385] [2325] Failure to pay over money.

Penalty will not be enforced, when.—That a deputy sheriff, after the return of an execution unsatisfied, agreed with the debtor that a debt owed to him by the deputy should be applied by him in payment of the judgment would not make the sheriff liable for failure to pay over money collected on execution, where none was actually collected, though the deputy did not apply the debt as agreed. Matthews v. Perminter (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 1189.

Art. 3776. [2386] [2326] Failure to levy or sell, penalty for.

Failure to levy—When duty arises.—Where a sheriff received an execution, and specific land is pointed out to him, it is his duty to levy, regardless of what he might believe as to the title. Wilson v. Dearborn (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 296, rehearing denied 179 S. W. 1102.

What will excuse officer.—On motion for judgment against constable for failure to levy execution, held, that it was too late to urge objection to his indemnity bond that solvency of sureties was not certified by any officer of the county of their residence. Sharp v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 599.

Remedy.—Mandamus held not to lie to compel sheriff to levy execution issued upon money judgment, as adequate remedy is provided by this article by action against sureties. Seagraves v. Scarborough (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1154.

Limitations.—An action by assignee of judgment under this article and art. 3777, to recover the amount thereof from sheriff and his sureties for failure to levy and return execution thereon, was barred by five-year statute of limitations. Peck v. Murphy & Bolanz (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 542.

Procedure.—On judgment creditor's motion for judgment against constable and his sureties for failure to levy execution, paragraphs of charge, submitting issues whether either of executions were delivered to and received by the constable and whether the judgment debtor had any property in the county subject to execution, were not merely interrogatories and misleading and confusing. Sharp v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 599.
Art. 3777. [2387] [2327] Failure to return execution.

What will excuse officer.—Where a deputy sheriff returned an execution to the attorney of plaintiff in execution by his directions, the deputy or his principal would not be liable under this article and 1911, art. 3776, as for failure to return an execution, the attorneys having power to control the execution. Matthews v. Perminter (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1189.

Limitations.—An action by assignee of judgment under this article and art. 3776, to recover the amount thereof from sheriff and his sureties for failure to levy and return execution thereon, was barred by five-year statute of limitations. Peck v. Murphy & Bojans (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 542.

Art. 3779. [2389] [2329] Return of execution.

Conclusiveness.—In a suit by surety on a secured note, as assignee of note after payment, seeking payment from maker and to establish a lien on chattels mortgaged, plaintiff, not being a party to a judgment under which execution was levied on the mortgaged property, may attack return on execution and show that there was no levy or sale thereunder. Hopping v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1119.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT OF TITLE IN GENERAL

1. Indemnity to officer.—Where bond to indemnify constable levying execution was made out on blank used for purpose, failure to describe any property, where none had been pointed out by the judgment creditor, and the constable had never requested him to do so, did not affect his validity. Sharp v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 599.

Failure to erase the word "sheriff," where the two words "constable" and "sheriff" appeared on a blank for a bond to indemnify a constable, was a clerical mistake not affecting the validity of the bond; execution being delivered, not to a sheriff, but to a constable. Id.

4. Rights of highest rejected bidder.—A judgment creditor whose higher bid was wrongfully rejected by the sheriff may recover the property from the lower bidder to whom it was sold. Needham v. Cooney (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 979.

5. Who may purchase at sale.—That an attachment against the judgment creditor might be levied upon money received by the sheriff at the execution sale does not defeat the creditor's right to bid in the property and give credit on the judgment. Needham v. Cooney (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 979.

5a. Payment.—The sheriff on execution sale should accept a bid from the judgment creditor accompanied by a tender of credit on the judgment and payment of costs in cash. Needham v. Cooney (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 979.

A judgment creditor who purchases at execution sale is not entitled to pay his bid by credit on the judgment, where there are other liens on the property of equal dignity with his lien or a contest over the proper disposition of the proceeds. Id.

6. Grounds for setting aside sale.—Courts generally refuse to set aside an execution sale for irregularities as shown by the record, where such sale is not shown to be void by reason of fraud or because of irregularities. Trans-Pecos Land & Irrigation Co. v. Arno Co-operative Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 928.

Judicial sale or foreclosure sale by a judicial officer or his assigns by order of the court. Id.

Mere inadequacy of price is not sufficient ground for setting aside a sale otherwise valid. South Texas Lumber Co. v. Burleson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 961.

Where the testimony showed the value of the land to be between $500 and $1,000, and it was sold on execution for $126, the price was inadequate. Graham v. Canoler (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 856.

8. — Inadequacy of price combined with other objections.—Courts generally will not set aside judicial sales for inadequacy of price, where other things are regular, or where the irregularities, if any, are not such as to vitiate the sale. Trans-Pecos Land & Irrigation Co. v. Arno Co-operative Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 858.

Inadequacy of price at execution sale with facts showing irregularities or other circumstances calculated to prevent the property from bringing approximately its reasonable value will avoid the sale. Graham v. Canoler (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 856.

Where the judgment describes judgment on which it is entered as of the day when it was rendered without referring to the fact that it was not entered until much later nunc pro tunc, where plaintiff pointed out property levied upon and sold, and defendant was not permitted to point out other property subject to execution, though he could have done so, and land was not properly described in return on execution notice of sale or deed, and because of these irregularities property was sold at an inadequate price, the sale is invalid and will be set aside. Id.

13. Actions to set aside sale—Tender.—A judgment creditor suing to set aside a sale may tender a lower bidder need not offer to return the amount paid by the bidder, which was still retained by the sheriff. Needham v. Cooney (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 979.

18. Collateral attack on sale.—A collateral attack on the validity of an execution sale by intervening in trespass to try title could not affect its avoidance for irregularities and defects not apparent on the face of the proceedings, and such right of intervention does not prevent a suit to restrain seizure on writ of sequestration. Lane v. Kempner (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1090.

A void execution sale can be collaterally attacked. Bonougli v. Brown (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 47.

20. Title and rights of purchaser in general.—In a suit to partition land and establish title, where plaintiffs traced their title through a purchase at execution sale, the order of sale and return of the sheriff showing levy upon the property is properly received in evidence. Cetti v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 966.

Where judgment, execution, and sheriff's sale are shown, mere irregularity in issuance or return of execution does not affect the title of the purchaser. South Texas Lumber Co. v. Burleson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 961.

The purchaser of chattels under void execution sale and officer conducting sale, being wrongdoers, are not in a position to demand that the assignee of a mortgagee of property taken look to other property of mortgagor or to the mortgagor's personal responsibility. Hopping v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1119.

24. Wrongful execution.—For an unauthorized levy of execution against a tenant farmer on cotton which the latter had sold to the landlord, the landlord was entitled to recover the value of all cotton appropriated by virtue of the execution and levy, whenever and by whomsoever the appropriation was made. Kimbrough v. Bevering (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 403.

24 1/2. Liability of officer.—Where a justice court docket showed that no judgment was entered against accused, and the writ of execution showed that it was not directed against his property, the fact that the writ recited that there was a judgment against accused will not warrant a constable in levying upon accused's property, and, if he does so, he is a trespasser. Lassiter v. State, 73 Cr. R. 35, 163 S. W. 710.

Where an officer proceeded under a writ of execution, which was void as to accused, the fact that the officer thought that the writ entitled him to take accused's property will not increase his rights. Id.

That a sheriff, having a due and regular writ of execution, promised to hold money paid to him until execution debtor could get a judgment and execution corrected held not to est title, because the sheriff appropriated the property, where the money was not paid by debtor until return day of execution. Sanders v. Waghalter (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1083.

A sheriff may safely obey a writ of execution fair and regular on its face, and is not bound to judge of it by facts within his knowledge which may be supposed to invalidate it. Id.

25. Liability of plaintiff in execution.—Since the levy of an attachment upon the interest of a partnership in partnership property does not interfere with the possession of the partnership nor its members, latter cannot, after quashal of the writ recover for conversion of property or for trespass. Jones & Nixon v. First State Bank of Hamlin, 106 Tex. 572, 173 S. W. 202, affirning judgment (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 116.

30. Damages in general.—Where exempt property of a debtor was wrongfully levied upon and sold by creditor, the debtor was entitled to interest on the value thereof from the date of the conversion. Seedig v. First Nat. Bank of Clifton (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 445.
TITLE 55
EXEMPTIONS

PROPERTY EXEMPT FROM FORCED SALE

Article 3785. [2395] [2335] Property exempt from, to every family.

8. Family—Persons divorced or living apart.—Plaintiff, who had been divorced from his wife, who was given the custody of the issue of the marriage, held not the head of the family within the purview of the exemption laws, where the wife and child never resided within the state, and, though plaintiff contributed to their support, it appeared, that the judgment of divorce dissolved the bonds of matrimony absolutely, although neither party was at liberty to remarry. Hammond v. Pickett (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 174.

That a husband and his wife were temporarily or permanently residing in different parts of the state did not destroy the family and deprive it of its exemptions. Smith v. McBryde (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 234.

12. Implements of husbandry.—Under this article it is not necessary to the exemption of agricultural implements that they be used in the cultivation of a homestead, or that the owner own a homestead. Smith v. McBryde (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 234.

Implements of husbandry and other articles were exempt, though the owner may have been engaged in other work besides farming. Id.

Agricultural implements, used by farmer directly or by his tenants and employés, held exempt. Id.

13. Tools and apparatus belonging to trade or profession.—Pool tables used in running a pool hall and the proceeds of insurance thereon are exempt from garnishment; the business being a “trade or profession,” within the meaning of this article. Harris v. Todd (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1189.

Conducting a butcher shop held a trade, notwithstanding the sale of the meats cut up or butchered. Hammond v. McFarland (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 47.

Cash register and refrigerator held not tools or apparatus belonging to a butcher’s trade. Id.

That one who conducted a moving picture show in a leased building was removing his appliances therefrom at the expiration of the lease did not show an abandonment of the business so as to remove the appliance from the protection of the exemption statute. Campbell v. Honaker’s Heirs (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 74.

One conducting a moving picture show is engaged in a trade or profession within this article. Id.

Apparatus producing moving pictures are exempt from execution as tools or apparatus, but chairs used by the audience are not exempt. Id.

That one was operating an opera house and a moving picture show at the same time in different parts of rented premises did not prevent him from claiming the appliances used to produce the moving pictures as exempt. Id.

One conducting moving picture show who did not show for two or three weeks, but who then opened up for two or three nights to some prospective purchaser, and then closed, abandoned the business, the appliances were subject to execution. Anthony v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 857.

A threshing outfit held not exempt property as “tools of trade,” or “apparatus of trade,” Comer v. Powell (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 88.

Oil driller’s well-drilling rig, consisting of boiler, engine, rotary, pumps, and other parts of complicated machinery, held not a “tool” or “apparatus” exempt from execution sale. Thresher v. McEvoi’ (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 150.
Art. 3785

EXEMPTIONS

Title 55

14. Printer and publisher.—This article held to exempt the presses, engine, and other articles of a newspaper publisher necessary for the conduct of his business. Harris v. Townley (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 334.

15. Horses and wagon.—The cart owned by a farmer in which he rode to his farm and the harness used in connection therewith were exempt. Smith v. McBryde (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 334.

16. Carriage.—Under this article reserving to every family exempt from attachment and execution one automobile and buggy, a family automobiles exempted, being a carriage within the purview of the statute. Ann. v. Pickett (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 774.

17. Wages.—Proceeds of a claim under an accident insurance policy for loss of wages by the insured while he was incapacitated from illness held not “current wages,” exempt from garnishment by Const. art. 16, § 33, this article and art. 3785, though the premiums on the policy were paid by exempt wages. Mitchell v. Western Casualty & Guarantee Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 610.

18. Wrongful levy on exempt property.—A party whose horses, mares, and mules, including those exempt, are attached and sold, may recover the value of any two horses, mares, or mules, but not more. Smith v. McBryde (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 334.

Where a judgment creditor levies upon and sells exempt property, and the debtor recovers a judgment, the creditor cannot, as against such judgment, offset his own judgment. James McCord Co. v. Rea (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 649.

Art. 3786. [2396] [2336] “Homestead” defined.

1. But one homestead allowed.—While the owner of a business may have the right to elect, if he is engaged in two businesses, which he will hold as his business homestead, a finding of the jury that his principal place of business was one and not the other shows an election. Bowan v. Stark (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 921.

One is not entitled under the law to a mixed homestead, part urban and part rural. Taylor v. Ullmann, Stern & Krause (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 746.

Where land was purchased with declared purpose and intention to use such property as a homestead, accompanied by improvements and preparations to so occupy it, such property was not exempt from an attachment and sale as a homestead, while husband and wife were still occupying and using an existing homestead, and fact that proposed homestead was occupied under a lease preventing them from taking immediate possess­ion was immaterial. Pierce v. Langston (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 745.

3. Estate or interest sustaining homestead right.—Where a donee of land accepted the gift with the understanding that the property should be his homestead, and he began to improve the property and erect a house thereon with intent to occupy it as a home, and the improvements were completed and occupied, the property was his homestead. Wilkerson & Satterfield v. McMurry (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 275.

In the absence of evidence that plaintiff had made valuable improvements or resided on land under a parol contract for its purchase, he was not vested with a legal or equitable title to sustain a claim to homestead. Page v. Vaughan (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 541.

An equitable title founded upon a conveyance in which an express lien is retained to secure unpaid purchase money may be the subject of a homestead, and exempt from the payment of ordinary debts. Stratton v. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. of New York (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 4.

When a guardian’s sale of land to husband and wife was confirmed by the county court, and the purchasers, who, before the sale of deeds by the guardian and a ward acquired such an interest that they could impress a homestead upon it. Finley v. Wakefield (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 755.

Where property has been conveyed by deed subject to vendor’s lien, purchaser has title to support homestead, and, though vendor’s lien may be greater than value of property, and superior to homestead right, property does not lose its status as a home­stead. Pierce v. Langston (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 745.

8. Tenants in common.—A tenant in common and his wife held to have acquired a homestead on the common property. Ward v. Walker (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 539.

10. Intent to acquire homestead.—Where a divorced woman occupied as a home premises set apart to her as a homestead, and then married one who intended to make the homestead the common homestead, actual occupancy held not essential. Blackwell v. Vaughn (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 912.

While actual residence is not necessary to fix the homestead character upon land, the mere intention to hold the land as a homestead, when unaccompanied by affirmative acts evidencing the intention, is insufficient to create a homestead. Taylor Feed Pen Co. v. Taylor Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 534.

11. Use and occupation as homestead necessary.—When a homestead dedication has not been effected by actual occupancy, such effect must be accorded to ownership and visible acts of preparation to use it for a home. Miller v. Flattery (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 253.

Instruction that one lost his homestead if he ceased to use or ceased to occupy the premises is erroneous; either use or occupancy being sufficient to maintain it. Edwards v. Clemmons (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 840.

12. Character and mode of use or occupancy.—Use of lots, on which plaintiff and his family did not reside, for agricultural purposes and to provide a residence for plaintiff's son, who paid no rent, held insufficient, as a matter of law, to establish that the property was homesteaded. Franklin v. Smith (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 501.

Evidence that the property conveyed was part of the land each party used and a part of it for pasture is sufficient to authorize a finding that he was continuing to make a homestead use of it. Edwards v. Clemons (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 440.

15. Purpose of occupancy and use—Business homestead.—The essentials of a business homestead to exempt it from the lien of a trust deed of the owner's property are that the owner and his family have a dwelling or business to which the place is adapted and reasonably necessary. Bowman v. Stark (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 291.

Where the findings of the jury import that the place of business claimed exempt as a business homestead from the lien of a trust deed is not used as the principal business, but only as an incident thereto, the holder of the trust deed is entitled to a judgment on the findings foreclosing the mortgage lien. Id.

17. Character of homestead as urban or rural—Extent and value of homestead.—The word "lot" or "lots," as used in Const. art. 16, § 51 (Rev. St. 1911, art. 3786), relating to urban homesteads, held to mean merely a piece of ground and not an artificial subdivision of a city, and hence a homestead may be claimed on the fractional part of a lot. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Trabue (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 689.

20. Separate tracts or lots.—One hundred acre tract situated four and a half miles from the ten-acre tract on which a husband and wife lived, the products of which were used to support the family, held a part of the homestead where they were entitled to a rural as distinguished from an urban homestead. Cotten v. Friedman (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 780.

Tracts owned by husband and wife at husband's death, held sufficiently impressed with homestead, in addition to 100-acre tract on which they resided, to designate an additional 100 acres out of any of tracts. Compton v. Woodward (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 271.

Use of mortgaged tract about one-fourth to one-half mile away from land on which homestead was used for stock pasture, etc., held such as would impress upon it a homestead character. Taylor v. Ullmann, Stern & Krause (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 746.

22. Time of acquisition of homestead.—Where a judgment debtor bought land for a homestead, and took possession as soon as possible, property was not subject to execution levied upon the land before there was any use of it by debtor as a homestead. Alsworthy v. Dorsey (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 594.

23. Change of homestead.—A husband, to acquire a new homestead, so as to enable him to mortgage the old one, may acquire a new home in land owned at the time of the abandonment. Parker v. Schrimsher (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 168.

After the wife's insanity, the husband may abandon the homestead and in good faith acquire a new one. Pierce v. Gibson (Sup.) 184 S. W. 562.

24. Evidence of homestead right.—Evidence held to warrant a finding that premises were impressed with a homestead status at the time of their conveyance by plaintiffs. Miller v. Flattery (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 553.

Evidence, in an action on notes, held sufficient to sustain a finding that property conveyed therefor by the payee was not his business homestead. Flynn v. J. M. Radford Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 902.

In an action to recover land which a husband had conveyed without the consent of his wife, evidence held not to show that it was the wife's homestead. Ragley-McWilliams Lumber Co. v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 785.

Evidence, in action on notes secured by a deed of trust on 64-acre tract about one-fourth mile away from smaller tract on which mortgagor lived, held to sustain a finding that smaller tract was the urban homestead of mortgagor. Taylor v. Ullmann, Stern & Krause (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 746.

27. Abandonment of homestead.—That the owner of a business homestead, who was appointed postmaster, did not carry on the postal business in his homestead, but used another building, will not warrant an inference of abandonment; public officers being entitled to retain their business homesteads, so that on going out of office they may resume business. McDowell v. Northcross (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 13.

The abandonment of a homestead is a question of intention. Randleman v. Cargile (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 336.

Where complainant on one portion of lot erected a house in which he and his family resided, the subsequent construction of another house on another portion of the lot and the building of a division fence did not constitute an abandonment of the homestead character of that portion of the property so as to render it subject to execution. Turnbaugh v. Sickey (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 1184.

Suit to partition homestead by a widower was such an election no longer to use or occupy it as homestead that he could not, by amendment of his petition to one of trespass to try title, resume, as against answering defendants, the right he had abandoned. Berry v. Godwin (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 26.

29. Absence from homestead and other acts.—If a husband and wife remove from their homestead after the execution of a conveyance thereof by the husband alone.
with the fixed intention not to again return to it as a home, they thereby abandoned it as a homestead, irrespective of whether they have since acquired another homestead.

Removal coupled with intent never to return constitutes abandonment of homestead.

Husband’s abandonment of wife without cause, continuing until her death, forfeits all his claim of homestead which she owned at her death, though the property is community property. Hollar v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1091.

30. Intent to return to homestead.—The mere intention to again resume business in a business homestead at an indefinite time in the future, dependent upon a contingency which may not happen, does not constitute the previous homestead character of the property. McDowell v. Northcross (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 13.

Where the owner of a homestead sold part of the tract and removed to another locality, his mere intention to return at some indefinite time and take up his homestead upon the unimproved quarter section which he retained will not sustain a claim of a homestead exemption. Johnson v. Conger (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 405.

Temporary absence of husband and wife with intent to return was not abandonment of the homestead. Schrimsher v. State (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 165.

A farm occupied as a homestead does not lose that character when abandoned by the owner partly on account of ill health, with the intention of returning at a later date. Bogart v. Cowboy State Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 678.

31. Acquiring other residence or homestead.—Occupation by husband and wife of a new homestead, to constitute an abandonment of the old one must be with intention of permanently residing thereon. Parker v. Schrimsher (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 165.

Where the owner of a life estate in a homestead moved from the state and became a citizen of California, there was an abandonment of the homestead rendering it subject to his widow. Johnson v. Frankel (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 407.

A homestead may be abandoned notwithstanding another has not been acquired. Derry v. Harty (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 343.

While temporary absence from home or renting it without intention to abandon will not deprive owner of homestead rights, moving away with intention of making a new place a homestead and adoption as such, destroys homestead rights in the first premises. Calvin v. Neel (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 791.

32. Conveyance or sale.—A general assignment by the owner of the business homestead is not an abandonment where he retained his homestead, and carried on his business subsequent to the assignment. McDowell v. Northcross (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 13.

Conveyance of homestead property to third person to enable grantor to borrow money from bank and which was not intended to vest beneficial right in third person, held not abandonment of homestead. Alsworth v. Dorsey (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 294.

33. Renting or leasing.—Where defendant made a general assignment, and his assignee sold his business homestead, and the person in possession paid only one month’s rent to the purchaser, holding the remaining rent until the right to the homestead should be determined, there was no question of abandonment by lease or other contract. McDowell v. Northcross (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 13.

Lease of land, including part which had been used for homestead for five years, when no other homestead had been acquired, held a temporary renting, which, under the express provisions of Const. art. 16, § 51, did not change the character of the homestead. Bogart v. Cowboy State Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 678.

While temporary absence from home or renting it without intention to abandon will not deprive owner of homestead rights, moving away with intention of making a new place a homestead and adoption as such, destroys homestead rights in the first premises. Calvin v. Neel (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 791.

34. Evidence.—The court’s finding that a wife did not abandon her homestead, but merely left her husband temporarily to earn a living for herself and her minor child, held supported by the evidence. Gutheridge v. Gutheridge (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 882.

Evidence held to support finding that land sold under deed of trust had been abandoned as a homestead prior to the execution of the deed of trust. Bradshaw v. Kearby & Kearby (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 439.

Certain and conclusive evidence of abandonment with no intention to return and claim the exemption is required before a homestead once occupied as such can be subjected to a forced sale. Bogart v. Cowboy State Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 678.

In the absence of any evidence from the husband as to their purpose in leaving and their intention to again occupy a homestead, the wife’s statement as to such purpose and intent was competent. Farmers’ & Merchants’ Nat. Bank of Abilene v. Ivey (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 796.

In action by widow to recover title and possession of a lot as a homestead, evidence of removal and declarations held to support finding of abandonment. Derry v. Harty (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 343.

Evidence held sufficient to show abandonment of homestead by defendant in action on note secured by trust deed to the premises in question. Calvin v. Neel (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 791.

35. Estoppel to claim homestead.—So long as the owner is in possession of his homestead, no conduct on his part can estop him to claim the exemption. McDowell v. Northcross (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 13.

A husband and wife may be estopped from asserting homestead rights by representations made to induce conveyance of, or incumbrance on, the property, where such premises are not occupied at the time as a homestead. Calvin v. Neel (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 791.
37. Conveyance or incumbrance of homestead.—See art. 1135 and notes.

A business homestead, if exempt at the date of a general assignment, does not pass to the assignee by virtue of that instrument. McDowell v. Northcross (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 13.

Neither a business nor a residence homestead, though afterwards abandoned as such, will remain exempt, if not abandoned subsequent to the date of the assignment or conveyance. A mortgage on the homestead to secure a debt not within the constitutional exceptions is void as against mortgagee knowing the facts. Stockton v. Jones (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 559.

Under Const. art. 16, § 50, any attempt to create a lien upon a homestead to secure a debt is void. Wadsworth v. Powell (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 169.

40. — Sale.—Contract for sale of homestead occupied as such, though not enforceable, held not unlawful, and enforceable upon abandonment of the home or the death of the wife. Pitts v. Kennedy (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 1916.

42. — Mortgage.—In an action to cancel a deed claimed to have been intended as a mortgage, on the ground that it covered homestead property, evidence held to sustain a finding of notice to the mortgagee that the property was homestead property. Mitchell v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 883.

Whether land claimed as a homestead is exempt from the operation of a trust deed must be determined by the conditions existing when the deed was given. Bogart v. Cowboy State Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 678.

In action on notes and to foreclose vendor's lien upon defendants' homestead, evidence held to show that defendants' deed and notes to plaintiff and plaintiff's reconveyance reciting the consideration of notes were intended to create mortgage on homestead. Wadsworth v. Powell (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 169.

In suit to cancel deeds as a mortgage upon homestead, it was for plaintiff to allege facts and circumstances pursuant to which there was one notice provision on that subject (Const. art. 16, § 50). M. Kangera & Bro. v. Willard (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 195.

44. — Effect of abandonment or termination of homestead right.—There was no completed sale of a homestead prior to the delivery of a deed to the purchaser, so that if the homestead was abandoned prior to the delivery it became subject to a judgment against the grantor. Texas Moline Plow Co. v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 414.

47. — Estoppel to deny validity.—Vendor, whose homestead had been conveyed to a purchaser in fraud of her right to have the entire consideration paid in cash, held estopped to deny that a subsequent purchaser, after the first purchaser had been in peaceable possession, collecting the revenues for several months. Miller v. Flattery (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 253.

Where, during a temporary absence by a husband and wife from the homestead, the husband executed a mortgage thereon reciting that it was not the homestead, the wife held not estopped, unless she induced the mortgagee to accept the mortgage. Parker v. Schrimer (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 165.

A husband and wife, representing that property mortgaged by the husband alone was not homestead, held estopped from asserting the contrary. Id.

Where husband and wife executed their warranty deed to secure a loan conveying part of homestead tract, and the grantee executed a deed thereof to defendant with the knowledge of the husband and wife, the surviving wife was not thereby estopped from suing to cancel both deeds and to remove the cloud from the title. Bailey v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 364.

Art. 3787. Proceeds of sale of homestead exempt for six months.

In general.—The assignor of lien notes had no claim thereto as exempt property on the paper, in view of the fact that his assignment of them was made with the purpose of applying the proceeds to pay a debt due upon his business homestead. Baker v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 326.

Money paid upon an insurance policy upon a house not the insured's homestead is not exempt from garnishment for payment of his debts. Stratton v. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. of New York (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 4.

Proceeds of exempt property.—Voluntary sale or exchanges.—Under Const. art. 16, §§ 50, 52, and Rev. St. 1911, arts. 3235, 3422, 3427, 3785, 3786, a homestead, on the death of the owner, vests in his heirs free from debts, and the proceeds of a voluntary sale are also free from debts, though the probate court failed to set aside the homestead under article 3413, notwithstanding article 3755, declaring that the proceeds of a voluntary sale shall not be subject to forced sale within six months after such sale. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan, 186 S. W. 1182, 106 Tex. 306.

Where three of four tracts were impressed with homestead character, surviving wife occupying 100-acre tract might maintain her residence thereon and exchange interest in other two tracts for another tract equally susceptible of being used for homestead purposes. Compton v. Woodward (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 271.

Involuntary conversion.—Under Vernon's S yles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 4155, 4150, probate court, which ordered sale of particular land of wards by guardian, held to have power to direct application of proceeds to payment of wards' debt, despite article 617, sections 14 and 15. Murphy v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 266.

Proceeds of Insurance.—A husband could not be deprived of his constitutional exemption in the insurance money coming from the destruction of the homestead by a proceeding to which he was not a party; such proceeds being protected by the constitutional provision exempting the homestead itself, while the proceeds from its voluntary sale would be exempt from payment of debts only for a limited statutory period. Johnson v. Hall (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 399.
Since insurance money received for the loss of a homestead is personalty, its transfer is not subject to the restrictions placed upon the alienation of a homestead. 1d.

Insurance money on a homestead, occupied as such, when insured by the purchaser, under express reservation of a vendor's lien, without agreement to insure for the benefit of the vendor, was not subject to payment of the vendor's foreclosure judgment against the purchaser. Stratton v. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. of New York (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 4.

— Property exchanged for homestead.—Land taken in exchange for a homestead is exempt from attachment for a period of six months, though owner does not reside on it, and the owner's conveyance within that period, although made with the intent to defraud his creditors, passes good title. Wirt v. Teat (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 302.

Where levy of execution upon land exchanged for homestead of the judgment debtor is made within six months after the exchange, sale thereunder will be restrained by injunction, although the six months has expired; the levy made within such time being wholly ineffectual. American Nat. Bank of Ft. Worth v. Strong (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1014.

Art. 3788. [2397] [2337] Property exempt to others than families.

Cited, American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 1132; McFerrland v. Hammond (in dissenting opinion) 106 Tex. 579, 173 S. W. 645.

In general.—Proceeds of a claim under an accident insurance policy for loss of wages by the insured while he was incapacitated from illness held not "current wages," exempt from garnishment by Const. art. 16, § 28, this article, and art. 3785, though the premium on the policy were paid by exempt wages. Mitchell v. Western Casualty & Guaranty Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 630.

Where two mules were the property of an unmarried man at the time of levy thereon to satisfy judgment against him and his brother, one of such mules was exempt. Hawkins v. Longbeath (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 724.

Art. 3791. [2400] [2340] Public libraries.

Cited, American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 1132.

Art. 3792. [2401] [2341] Homestead exemption does not apply, when.

Purchase money.—If a lot intended as a residence and thereafter occupied as a homestead was purchased with 20 other lots for a lump sum, vendor's lien held enforceable against it for the full price of all the lots. Trammell v. Rosen (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 145.

If a lot intended and used as a homestead was purchased prior to other lots, all conveyed at the same time, possession taken, and improvements made thereon, held that it was impressed with a homestead character, and the husband could not give a lien thereon to secure payment for the other lots. 1d.

Where vendor's lien notes were given for part of the price of land, and renewal notes were subsequently given reserving a lien, that the land subsequently became the homestead of the purchaser and his wife did not prevent the foreclosure of the lien. Duller v. McNeill (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 636.

Neither a vendee nor his grantee can acquire homestead rights as against a vendor's lien reserved in a note given by the purchaser. Wood v. Smith (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 471.

A deed of trust as further security for the payment of a vendor's lien note is not voided by the fact that the property was occupied as a homestead when the deed was executed and delivered. 1d.

A purchaser of land holding under a deed expressly retaining a lien for part of the purchase money cannot hold the land as a homestead against the vendor holding vendor's lien purchase-money notes. Stratton v. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. of New York (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 4.

The wife of the purchaser is not a necessary party to action to enforce the vendor's lien, though the purchaser has used the property as a homestead. Waldon v. Davis (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1096.

If vendees conveyed land to satisfy purchase-money debt, leaving deficit, and a parcel was reconveyed to them under agreement that the lien reserved was for the original price, the amount thereof would attach, though the parcel was occupied as a homestead. Jenkins v. Guaranty State Bank of Palestine (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 314.

To the extent that the consideration expressed in notes secured by mortgage on a homestead represents the original purchase-money debt due on the homestead, they express a valid lien on the homestead. M. Kangerga & Bro. v. Willard (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 195.

— Other security.—Where debt against homestead was secured by vendor's lien thereon and assignment of judgment against third person, the lienholder, as against setoff in favor of judgment debtors accruing subsequent to assignment, was required by law to apply judgment to payment of debt at debtor's request before selling homestead under the lien. Pease v. Randle (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 566.

Loans and advances for purchase money.—If the debt owed to one for his payment of the purchase money on a homestead is extended by giving him new notes, the old lien may be perpetuated without loss of validity. M. Kangerga & Bro. v. Willard (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 195.

Improvements.—A subcontractor cannot claim an equitable lien on a homestead for labor or material where the statutory lien has not been secured by written contract as

Under Const. art. 16, § 50, as to mortgage on the homestead for improvements, that part of a mortgage which represented material furnished for improvements put on the premises after the homestead right had attached and prior to the mortgage was not a valid lien for such improvements. M. Kangeras & Bro. v. Willard (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 195.

Loans and advances for improvements.—Under Const. art. 16, § 50, as to mortgage on the homestead for improvements, that part of a mortgage which represented money furnished for improvements put on the premises after the homestead right had attached and prior to the mortgage was not a valid lien for such improvements. M. Kangeras & Bro. v. Willard (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 195.

Art. 3818. [2404] [2343] Provisions cumulative. 3817. Personal property may be designated.

Article 3794. [2403] [2343] Voluntary designation of, and who may set aside homestead.

Designation of rural homestead out of part of larger tract.—Where a debtor, who was the head of a family, and resided upon a large tract of land, conveyed it in fraud of his creditors, he is entitled, upon the setting aside of the conveyance, to select and hold 200 acres as his homestead. Cobern v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 207.

A husband may designate a homestead of 200 acres out of a larger tract, and in so doing is not limited to the method prescribed by this article and art. 3795; subject only to the limitation that the land selected includes his residence and the land actually used as homestead. Hughes v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 847.

Art. 3795. [2404] [2344] Mode of setting it apart.

Necessity and sufficiency of designation.—A husband may designate a homestead of 200 acres out of a larger tract, and in so doing is not limited to the method prescribed by this article and art. 3794; subject only to the limitation that the land selected includes his residence and the land actually used as homestead. Hughes v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 847.

Art. 3817. [2426] [2366] Provisions of this chapter cumulative.

Selling under trust deed.—Where an urban homestead claimed on two lots is excessive as to part of the second lot, the excess may be sold under a trust deed, by selling an undivided interest. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Trabue (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 699.

Art. 3818. [2427] [2367] Personal property may be designated, etc.

In general.—A debtor has the equitable right to have a chattel mortgage debt satisfied first from the proceeds of the sale of the unexempt mortgaged property before resorting to the sale of the debtor's exempt property. Pugh v. Whitsitt & Guerry (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 242.
TITLE 56

EXPRESS COMPANIES

Article 3821. [2430] Penalties against, and railroad commission to enforce.

Penalties not enforceable.—An individual cannot recover from an express company for extortion and discrimination in rates the penalty prescribed by the railroad act. Helm v. Wells Fargo & Co. Express (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 194.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Negligence in general.—Evidence held to warrant a finding that the ice on which an express company's employé had slipped had formed from water which leaked from a gutter on the station. Wells Fargo & Co. Express v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 496.

Liability for delay in transportation.—Parties extorting money by duress held not entitled to complain that express company's delay in transmitting money to them allowed the party from whom it was extorted to garnish it. American Express Co. v. North Ft. Worth Undertaking Co. (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 908.
Suing in own name.—A cotton factor, who engaged in repeated transactions with the defendant in behalf of his principal, could maintain action in his own name for a conversion of the principal's cotton stored with defendant by such factor. Nacogdoches Compress Co. v. Hayter (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 596.

Construction of contract.—A contract to furnish rubber tires "on consignment" to be sold, and all sales settled for, any tires remaining unsold at the end of the year to be bought by the consignor, is clearly a consignment on commission rather than a sale, and constitutes the consignee the factor or agent of the manufacturer, though the tires were billed as though sold to the consignee. Stein Double Cushion Tire Co. v. Wm. T. Fulton Co. (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1013.

Intention of parties held controlling factor in construing contract as to whether it amounted to a sale of automobiles or consignment to plaintiff as agent for defendants for sale. Overstreet v. Hancock (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 217.

Contract by plaintiff to sell automobiles in certain territory held not a purchase of cars by him, but a consignment to him as agent for sale. Id.

Duty and liability in general.—Where an uninstructed factor endeavors to secure the fair market value, he is not liable in damages, though he sells for less than the market value. Wm. D. Cleveland & Sons v. Jamison (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1175.

Factor commission merchant or broker receiving property from his principal and selling same under latter's instruction, and paying him proceeds of sale, is guilty of conversion if his principal has no title to property, and no right to sell, and is liable in trover to real owner for its value; his good faith and want of knowledge or notice of owner's title being no defense. Alamo Live Stock Commission Co. v. Helmer (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 591.

Plaintiff sold cattle to one representing himself to be defendant's cattle buyer, received check drawn on defendant, and cattle were delivered to defendant, a commission merchant, who sold them and applied proceeds to payment of indebtedness of cattle buyer. Held, that regardless of agency relationship of defendant and buyer, defendant was liable to seller as a factor or commission merchant for proceeds of cattle. Id.

Advances.—In the absence of an agreement or direction to the contrary before advancements made, a factor who has made advancements may, over his principal's objection, sell enough of the goods to reimburse himself. Wm. D. Cleveland & Sons v. Jamison (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1175.

Factors, who had advanced approximately the value of cotton consigned to them for sale, held authorized to sell the cotton at what seemed to them the market price, where the principal had authorized them to use their best judgment and failed to comply with their demand to remit the difference between the amount advanced and the market price when the demand was made. Art. 3832 1/2  FEDERAL FARM LOAN BONDS  (Title 57 1/2)

FEDERAL FARM LOAN BONDS

Article 3832 1/2. Investments and public deposits.—That hereafter all bonds issued under and by virtue of the Federal Farm Loan Act, approved by the President of the United States July 17, 1916, which is "An Act to provide capital for agricultural development, to create standard forms of investments based upon farm mortgages; to equalize rates of interest upon farm leases, to furnish a market for United States bonds, to create Government depositaries and financial agents for the United States, and for other purposes," shall hereafter be lawful investment for all fiduciary and trust funds in this State and may be accepted as security for all public deposits where deposits of bonds or mortgages are authorized by law to be accepted; such bonds shall be lawful investment for all funds which may be lawfully invested by guardians, administrators, trustees and receivers, for savings departments of banks incorporated under the laws of Texas, for banks, savings banks and trust companies chartered under the laws of Texas, and for all insurance companies of every kind and character chartered or transacting business under the laws of Texas, where investments are required or permitted by the laws of this State; provided, further, that where such bonds are issued against and secured by promissory notes or other obligations, the payment of which is secured by mortgage, deed of trust or other valid lien upon unencumbered real estate situated in this State, then such bond or bonds so issued and so secured shall be regarded for investment purposes by insurance companies as "Texas securities," within the meaning of the laws of this State governing such investments. [Act March 8, 1917, ch. 63, § 1.]

Became a law March 8, 1917.

TITLe 58
FEES OF OFFICE

CHAPTER ONE
CERTAIN STATE OFFICERS

2. SECRETARY OF STATE

Article 3837. [2439] Fees of state department.—The secretary of state, besides other fees that may be prescribed by law, is authorized and required to charge for the use of the state the following fees:

For each and every charter, amendment or supplement thereto, of a private corporation created for the purpose of operating or constructing a railroad, magnetic telegraph line or street railway or express company, authorized or required by law to be recorded in said department, a fee of two hundred dollars to be paid when said charter is filed; provided, that if the authorized capital stock of said corporation shall exceed one hundred thousand dollars, it shall be required to pay an additional fee of five cents for each one thousand dollars authorized capital stock, or fractional part thereof, after the first.

For each and every charter, amendment or supplement thereto, of a private corporation created for any other purposes intended for mutual profit or benefit, a fee of fifty dollars shall be paid when said charter is filed provided, that, if the capital stock of said corporation issued and outstanding shall exceed ten thousand dollars, it shall be required to pay an additional fee of ten dollars for each additional ten thousand dollars of its authorized capital stock, or fractional part thereof, after the first, and provided further that such fee shall not exceed the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars.

For each commission to every officer elected or appointed in this state, a fee of one dollar; and each and every state, district, county and precinct officer elected or appointed in this state is required to apply for and receive his commission; provided, that the secretary of state shall not be required to forward copies of laws to nor attest the authority of any officer in this state who fails or refuses to take out his commission as required herein.

For each official certificate, a fee of one dollar.
For each warrant of requisition, a fee of two dollars.
For every remission of fine or forfeiture, one dollar.
For copies of any paper, document or record in his office for each one hundred words, fifteen cents.
For each and every charter, amendment or supplement thereto, taken out under chapter 16, title 25, Revised Statutes, (channel and dock corporations), a fee of two hundred dollars shall be paid to the secretary of state for the use and benefit of the state, which shall be paid when the charter, amendment or supplement thereto is filed for record.

For each foreign corporation obtaining permit to do business in this state, there shall be paid to the secretary of state as permit fees the following; fifty dollars for the first ten thousand dollars of its capital stock issued and outstanding and ten dollars for each additional ten thousand dollars or fractional part thereof; provided, that in no event shall such fee exceed the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars; provided, that the fee required to be paid by any foreign corporation for a permit to engage in the manufacture, sale, rental, lease or operation of all kinds of cars, or to engage in conducting, operating or managing any telegraph line in this state, shall in no event exceed the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars; and provided further that mutual building and loan companies, so called, whose stock is not permanent, but withdrawable, shall pay a fee of fifty dollars for the first one hundred thousand dollars or fractional part thereof of its capital stock issued and outstanding and ten dollars for each additional one hundred thousand dollars or fractional part thereof and where the company is a foreign one, then the fee shall be based upon the capital invested in the state of Texas. [Acts 1883, p. 72; Acts 1889, p. 87; Acts 1889, p. 93; Acts 1905, p. 135; Acts 1907, S. S., p. 500; Acts 1909, S. S., p. 267; Act March 17, 1917, ch. 85, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The act amends art. 3837, Revised Statutes of Texas, Sec. 2 repeals all laws in conflict. Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment.

Cited, A. Lechen & Sons Rope Co. v. Moser (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1018.

Constitutionality.—This article and article 7394, imposing a franchise tax on any foreign corporation, as a condition to its right to do business in Texas, of a given percentage of all the corporation's capital and surplus, representing all of its property, wherever situated, and all of its business, both intrastate and interstate, thereby placing a tax on the corporation's property rights beyond the jurisdiction of the state for taxation purposes, are unconstitutional. Crane Co. v. Looney (D. C.) 215 Fed. 260.

3852. Compensation for ex officio services.

3. CLERKS OF THE COUNTY COURT
3862. Compensation for ex officio services.

4. SHERIFFS
3866. Compensation for ex officio services.

Art. 7. COUNTY COMMISSIONERS
3870. Per diem pay of county commissioners.

10. COUNTY TREASURER
3873. County treasurers' commissions.
3874. Commissions on school fund.
3875. Commissions shall not exceed $2,000 annually.

13. NOTARIES PUBLIC
3878. Fees of notaries public.

1. COUNTY JUDGE

Article 3850. [2448] [2384] Commission allowed county judge.

Annual accounts.—The commissions allowed the county judge by this article are payable on all cash receipts shown by any annual account of the guardian when such account is approved by the judge to whom it is presented, rather than of approval of the guardian's final account. Grice v. Cooley (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1098.

The word "exhibits," as used in this article refers to annual accounts. Id.

Art. 3852. [2450] [2386] Compensation for ex officio services.

Constitutionality.—An allowance to a county judge for ex officio services already performed, no salary having been previously provided, under this article was not invalid un-
3. Clerks of the County Court

Art. 3862. [2459] [2395] Compensation for ex officio services.

What constitutes filing.—Under arts. 3862, 6792, 6789, if the clerk fails to demand fees immediately and retains an instrument in his custody pending notification of necessity of paying fees, the instrument is filed for record, and operates to give notice to all persons of its existence. American Exch. Nat. Bank of Dallas v. Colonial Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 361.

4. Sheriffs

Art. 3866. [2462] [2398] Compensation for ex officio services.

Authority of commissioners' court.—Where items of account allowed to sheriff by commissioners' court could not, under any circumstances, have been proper charges against county, want of authority on part of commissioners' court to allow them was jurisdictional, so that its action in so doing had no conclusive effect. Jeff Davis County v. Davis (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 291.

Action of commissioners' court of county in allowing to sheriff claims for attending commissioners' court, serving notices of election, etc., when his compensation for such services was limited to the annual salary paid him under this article was void, and had no conclusive or final effect; court's want of authority being jurisdictional. Id.

Liability of sureties for unauthorized compensation.—In view of this article, sureties on official bond of sheriff to whom a salary was allowed and paid as compensation for summoning jurors, serving election notices, etc., held not liable to county for moneys paid the sheriff on claims for attending sessions of commissioners' court and for serving notices of election. Jeff Davis County v. Davis (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 291.

7. County Commissioners

Art. 3870. [2466] [2402] Per diem pay of county commissioners.

10. County Treasurer

Art. 3873. [2467] [2403] County treasurers' commissions.

Power to fix compensation.—An order of a commissioners' court attempting to reduce the compensation of a county treasurer for past services, held void. Montgomery County v. Talley (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1141.

An order fixing the salary of the county treasurer at a stated sum per annum cannot be maintained as one fixing a rate of commissions on moneys received and disbursed. Smith v. Wise County (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 706.

The commissioners' court held not entitled, under arts. 3873-3875, to fix the salary of the county treasurer at a sum less than $2,000 provided for by statute. Id.

Right to maximum allowance.—Where an order, fixing the compensation of a county treasurer was void, the treasurer was entitled to receive the compensation established by arts. 3870, 3875. Montgomery County v. Talley (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1141.

The county treasurer, though he knew, when a candidate and inducted into office, that the commissioners' court did not intend to allow him the statutory compensation is not estopped from claiming it, where the court did not give legal effect to their intention by proper order. Smith v. Wise County (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 705.

As commissioners' court cannot, under arts. 3872-3875, fix regular salary for county treasurer, held that under orders of court, treasurer was entitled to receive commissions at rate fixed until they reached sum of $2,000 per annum, regardless of subsequent orders limiting his total compensation to less sum. Id.

Art. 3874. [2468] Commissions on school fund.

Art. 3875. [2469] [2405] Commissions shall not exceed $2,000 annually.

Right to statutory compensation.—Where an order, fixing the compensation of a county treasurer was void, the treasurer was entitled to receive the compensation established by arts. 3870, 3875. Montgomery County v. Talley (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1141.

Where a commissioners' court attempted by a void order to fix the county treasurer's salary at $600 per annum, the fact that defendant when elected knew that it was not intended that he should receive the compensation specified by this article, did not estop him from retaining such amount. Id.
Art. 3875  FEES OF OFFICE  (Title 58)

Power to fix annual salary.—Under this article commissioners' court had no jurisdiction to fix a treasurer's compensation at a yearly salary. Montgomery County v. Talley (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 1141.

13. Notaries Public

Art. 3878. [2472] [2408] Fees of notaries public.—Notaries public shall receive the following fees:
Protesting a bill or note for non-acceptance or non-payment, register and seal.................................. $1.00
Each notice of protest........................................... .25
Protest in all other cases, for each 100 words.................... .25
Certificate and seal to such protest................................ .50
Taking the acknowledgment or proof of any deed or other instrument in writing, for registration, including certificate and seal............................................................ .50
Taking an acknowledgment of a married woman to any deed or other instrument of writing authorized to be executed by her, including certificate and seal............................................................ .50
Administering an oath or affirmation with certificate and seal..... .50
All certificates under seal not otherwise provided for ................ .50
Copies of all records and papers in their office, including certificate and seal, if less than 200 words................................................................. .50
If more than 200 words, for each 100 words in excess of 200, in addition to the fee of fifty cents................................................................. .25
All notarial acts not provided for........................................ .50
Swearing a witness to depositions, making certificate therefor with seal, and all other business connected with taking such deposition................................................................. .50

Art. 3889. Fees, how disposed of; excess fees, etc.

Art. 3892. Delinquent fees, collection of, commissions on, remainder paid to treasurer.  Art. 3893. Compensation for ex-officio services, etc., may be allowed by commissioners' court, proviso.
Art. 3893a. County judge may authorize appointment of deputies and assistants; assistants for district and county attorneys in certain counties; compensation; additional allowance; salaries; order of county judge; compensation, how fixed; payment.

Art. 3893a. Applicable to counties having both district and county attorney.

Article 3881. Maximum amount of fees allowed.

Constitutionality.—Power of Legislature to fix fees or compensation of constables, or methods of ascertaining fees, is not limited by the Constitution. Harris County v. Smith (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 701.

Art. 3882. Maximum fees in certain counties.

Art. 3883. Maximum fees in counties of 37,000 inhabitants or containing cities of 25,000.—In counties containing a city of over twenty-five thousand inhabitants, or in such counties as shown by the United States Census of 1910, shall contain as many as thirty-seven thousand inhabitants, the following amount of fees shall be allowed, viz: county judge, an amount not exceeding thirty-five hundred dollars per annum; sheriff, an amount not exceeding thirty-five hundred dollars per annum; clerk of the county court, an amount not exceeding twenty-seven hundred and fifty dollars per annum; county attorney, an amount not exceeding thirty-five hundred dollars per annum; district attorney, an amount not exceeding twenty-five hundred dollars, inclusive of the five hundred dollars allowed by the Constitution and paid by the State; clerk of the district court, an amount not exceeding twenty-seven hundred and fifty dollars per annum; collector of taxes, an amount not exceeding twenty-seven hundred and fifty dollars per annum; provided, the compensation fixed herein for sheriffs and their deputies shall be exclusive of any rewards received for the apprehension of criminals or fugitives from justice. [Acts 1913, p. 246, § 1; Act March 29, 1917, ch. 130, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The act amends “article 3883 of chapter 121 of the general laws of the State of Texas, passed by the Thirty-Third Legislature at its regular session.” Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment.

Art. 3883a. Maximum fees of county attorney in counties having more than 100,000 population; accounts; proviso.—That in any county having a population in excess of one hundred thousand inhabitants according to the census of the United States of 1910, where there is no district attorney, the county attorney of such county shall be allowed to retain out of the fees earned and collected by him the sum of $4,000.00 per annum, and in addition thereto one-fourth of the excess of such fees collected by him, provided, however, that such additional amount retained by him out of the excess fees shall not exceed the sum of $2,000 per year, the remainder to be paid into the treasury of the county; provided that in arriving at the amount collected by him he shall include the fees arising from all classes of criminal cases whether felony or misdemeanor arising in any of the courts in such county now existing, or which may hereafter be created including habeas corpus hearing and fines and forfeitures; provided that after the 30th day of November and before the first day of January following each year, he shall make a full and complete report and accounting to the county judge of the county of all of such fees so collected by him; provided the said county attorney shall not receive any moneys from any source whatsoever in excess of the six thousand dollars above provided for. Such fees, however, to be included in the reports herein provided for and to be taken into consideration in arriving at the total maximum compensation provided in this Act. And further provided, that except as herein specifically provided otherwise, all provisions of Chapter 4, Title 58 of the Revised Civil Statutes of Texas of 1911, as amended by Chapter 121 of the Acts of the Regular Session of the Thirty-third Legislature, shall apply and remain in full force and effect. [Act May 19, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 34, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after May 17, 1917, date of adjournment.
Art. 3887. Last United States census to govern in all cases.

Former statute.—Under Maximum Fee Bill, § 10, as amended, held, that method of computing population provided in section 17 must give way to provision of section 10 when applied to county having population of more than 25,000, but casting less than 3,000 votes at preceding presidential election. Sparks v. Kaufman County (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 605.

Art. 3888. Amounts allowed to be retained out of fees collected; state not responsible.

See Anderson County v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1019, note under art. 3889.

Art. 3889. Fees, how disposed of; excess fees, etc.

In general.—Under this article and art. 3892, providing that the assessor shall be entitled to one-fourth of the fees in excess of the amount of his salary and expenses and that in addition he shall be entitled to 10 per cent. of all delinquent fees collected by him after making his annual statement, a tax assessor is not entitled to a percentage of the delinquent fees due from the state where the delinquency was due to his failure to present the order of such fees given him by the state comptroller as required by Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 7684. Dallas County v. Bolton (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1352.

This article and arts. 3881, 3882, and 3893, authorize the commissioners' court to allow the clerk of the county court in counties having between 25,000 and 38,000 inhabitants compensation for ex officio services, where it with the fees under articles 3881, 3882, and 3889, does not amount to more than $3,650, and such compensation for ex officio services cannot be regarded as "excess fees" of which officers can retain only one-fourth, article 3888 not applying. Anderson County v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1019.

Art. 3892. Delinquent fees, collection of, commissions on, remainder paid to treasurer.

See Dallas County v. Bolton (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1152; note under art. 3889.

Art. 3893. Compensation for ex-officio services, when may be allowed by commissioners' court; proviso.

See Anderson County v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1019; note under art. 3889.

Art. 3903. County judge may authorize appointment of deputies and assistants; assistants for district and county attorneys in certain counties; compensation; additional allowance; salaries; order of county judge; compensation, how fixed; payment.—Whenever any officer named in Article 3881 to 3886 shall require the services of deputies or assistants in the performance of his duties, he shall apply to the county judge of his county for authority to appoint same; and the county judge shall issue an order authorizing the appointment of such a number of deputies or assistants as in his opinion may be necessary for the efficient performance of the duties of said office. The officer applying for appointment of a deputy or assistant, or deputies or assistants, shall make affidavit that they are necessary for the efficiency of the public service, and the county judge may require, in addition, a statement showing the need of such deputies or assistants; and in no case shall the county judge attempt to influence the appointment of any person as deputy or assistant in any office. Provided, that in all counties having a population in excess of 100,000 inhabitants, the district attorney of any district, or the county attorney of any county where there is no district attorney, is authorized, with the consent of the county judge of the county for which such appointment is intended to appoint not to exceed two (2) assistants, in addition to his regular deputies or assistants, the number of deputies or assistants not to exceed two for the entire district, regardless of the number of counties it may contain, which two assistants shall not be required to possess the qualifications prescribed by law for district and county attorneys, and who shall perform such duties as may be assigned to them by the county attorney of such county, or the district attorney of such district, and who shall receive as their compensation one hundred twenty-five ($125) dollars per month, to be paid in monthly installments out of the funds of the county for which such appointment is made, by warrants drawn on such county funds; and provided, further, that in counties having a population in excess of 100,000, the district attorney in the county of his residence or the county attorney where there is not a district attorney, shall be allowed by order of the commissioners' court of the county where such official resides, as in the judgment of the commissioners' court may be necessary to the proper administration of the duties of such office, not to exceed, however, the sum of fifty ($50) dollars per month. Such amount as may be thus necessarily incurred shall be paid by the commissioners' court upon the affidavit made by the district attorney or the county attorney, showing the necessity of such expense and for what same was incurred. The commissioners' court may also require any other evidence as in their opinion may be necessary to show the necessity of such expenditure, but they shall be the sole judge as to the necessity of such expenditure and their judgment allowing same shall be final. The maximum amount allowed for deputies or assistants for their services shall be as follows, to-wit:

First assistant or chief deputy, a sum not to exceed a rate of twelve hundred ($1200.00) dollars per annum; others not to exceed a rate of nine hundred ($900.00) dollars per annum.

Provided, however, that in counties having a population of 37,500 to 100,000 inhabitants, the maximum salaries allowed for deputies or assistants for their services shall be as follows:

First assistant or chief deputy, a sum not to exceed a rate of eighteen hundred ($1800.00) dollars per annum; heads of each department not to exceed the sum of fifteen hundred ($1500.00) dollars per annum; others not to exceed a rate of twelve hundred ($1200.00) dollars per annum.

Provided, however, that in counties having a population in excess of 100,000 inhabitants, as shown by the last scholastic census, the maximum salaries allowed for deputies or assistants for their services shall be as follows:

First assistant or chief deputy, a sum not to exceed a rate of twenty-one hundred ($2100.00) dollars per annum; heads of each department not to exceed the sum of eighteen hundred ($1800.00) dollars per annum; others not to exceed a rate of fifteen hundred ($1500.00) dollars per annum.

The county judge in issuing his order granting authority to appoint deputies or assistants shall state in such order the number of deputies or assistants authorized, but the amount of compensation to be allowed each deputy or assistant shall be fixed by the officer requesting same and shall be paid out of the fees of office to which said deputies or assistants may be appointed and shall not be included in estimating the maximum salaries of the officers named in Articles 3881 to 3886, such salaries to be paid out of the fees of the office in the following manner: First, out of any current fees collected, and if such fees are not sufficient, then out of any delinquent fees collected and which are due the county after all legal deductions are made and lastly, if there be any balance remaining after the payment of the maximum salary due the officer and the salaries due the deputies, then such balance to be paid to the county treasury. [Acts 1897, S. S., p. 10, § 12; Acts 1913, p. 286, § 1; Act March 2, 1917, ch. 55, § 1].

Explanatory.—The act amends art. 3902, ch. 4, title 58, Rev. Civ. St. 1911, so as to read as above. Became a law March 2, 1917.

Art. 3903a. Applicability to counties having both district and county attorney.—The provisions of this Act relating to the appointment and payment of deputies or assistants by County Attorneys in counties having a population in excess of 100,000 inhabitants, shall also apply to counties having both a district attorney and county attorney. [Act May 19, 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 26, § 1].

Explanatory.—The title of the act, but not the enacting part, purports to amend art. 3902, Rev. Civ. St. 1911, as amended by ch. 142, regular session 33rd Leg., and by ch. 55, regular session 38th Leg., by adding "section" 3903a, authorizing, etc. Took effect 90 days after May 17, 1917, date of adjournment.

TITLE 59

FENCES

Articles 3932-3934.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Liability for trespass.—Where owners agreed to the division of a partition fence as suggested by three of their neighbors, they thereby contracted for a partition fence, and one owner failing to maintain the part allotted to him, thereby permitting his cattle to trespass on the land of the other owner, was liable for the damages sustained. Adair v. Stallings (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 146.

Defendant, a lessee of school lands within plaintiff's inclosure, held liable for removing a portion of his fence to which plaintiff had joined to complete his inclosure, allowing his cattle access to plaintiff's pasture. Jameson v. Board (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 1037.

TITLE 59 A

FIRE ESCAPES

Art. 3934½a. Owners and lessees of certain buildings shall construct fire escapes.

Art. 3934½b. What constitutes adequate fire escape.

Art. 3934½c. Guide signs and exit lights; obstructions.

Art. 3934½d. Duties of State Fire Marshal and other officers.

Art. 3934½e. Notice to owner or lessee; lessee entitled to reimbursement.

Art. 3934½f. injunction to restrain occupancy of building not equipped as required by act; sequestration; bond.

Article 3934½a. Owners and lessees of certain buildings shall construct fire escapes.—That it shall be the duty of the owner entitled to the beneficial use, rental or control, or, if such owner be a non-resident, the occupant or lessee, of any building three or more stories in height, constructed or used, or intended to be used, in whole or in part, as a hospital, seminary, college, academy, school house, dormitory, hotel, lodging house, apartment house, rooming house, boarding house, theater, or any place of public amusement, lodge hall or any hall used for public gatherings, or any manufacturing establishment or industrial plant, wholesale or retail mercantile store, workshop, warehouse, office building, and any building erected by municipal, county or State authority, wherein public assemblies are permitted or sleeping apartments are provided on any floor above the second, to cause to be erected and fixed to every such building one or more adequate fire escapes, which, in no case, shall be less than one such escape to each five thousand square feet of lot area covered by such building. Provided that any building six or more stories in height shall have at least two such fire escapes to each five thousand square feet of lot area covered by such building; provided, that, where the area and height of any building is such that the construction of one fire escape will meet the requirements of this Act and it is elected to construct an interior stairway type escape, then, in such case, there shall be provided at least one other exit from each floor of said building which exit shall be placed as remote from the entrance to the fire escape as is consistent with the construction of the building, and provided, further, that all fire escapes shall be located as far as possible, consistent with accessibility, from stairways, elevator hatchways and other openings in the floors, and as far apart as is consistent with the construction and location of the building. Provided that it shall be the duty of the owner entitled to the beneficial use, rental or control, or, if such owner be a non-resident, the occupant or lessee, of any building two stories in height, already erected or which may hereafter be erected and used in whole or in part as a hotel, school dormitory, theatre or hospital, to cause to be erected an adequate number of stairways, which, in no case, shall be less than two, and one additional stairway for each five thousand square feet of lot area covered by such building in excess of ten thousand square feet, which stairways shall be located as remote from each other as is possible, and be easy of access from all parts of the building. A basement of any building that extends five feet or more above grade line shall be considered a story within the meaning of this Act. [Act March 30, 1917, ch. 140, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 8 repeals articles 861 to 867, inclusive, Revised Criminal Statutes of 1911, and chapter 12, general laws of the regular session of the 34th Legislature, and all laws in conflict. Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment.

Art. 3934½a. What constitutes adequate fire escape.—An adequate fire escape, provided for in Section One (1) [Art. 3934½a] of this Act, is defined to be a concrete stairway, an iron or steel stairway, an iron or steel straight chute, or an iron or steel spiral chute, each type of which may be constructed of other fireproof material of equal strength, and may be erected on the exterior or interior of any building requiring fire escapes. It is hereby made the duty of the fire marshal of the State Fire Insurance Commission, who for convenience will be referred to herein as the State Fire Marshal, to prepare and promulgate minimum specifications for the construction and erection of each type of fire escape authorized by this Act, which specifications shall be based upon a working stress of not less than sixteen thousand pounds to the square inch for steel, twelve thousand pounds to the square inch for wrought iron, and seven hundred pounds to the square inch for concrete; provided, that specifications for interior fire escapes shall require that they be enclosed with noncombustible material, and that all door and window openings be properly protected with self-closing, fire-proof shutters, and that all stairway escapes, interior and exterior, be continuous and suitably connected with the roof of the building. No fire escapes shall be approved as complying with the provisions of this Act the material and erection of which are not at least the equivalent of the minimum specifications promulgated by the State Fire Marshal as herein provided. It shall also be the duty of the State Fire Marshal to prepare and promulgate minimum specifications for the construction of stairways required for buildings two stories in height, as set forth in Section one (1) of this Act, which stairways may be constructed of wood or other material, and located on the interior or exterior of the building, but shall not be required to be enclosed. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 3934½b. Guide signs and exit lights; obstructions.—That it shall be the duty of the owner entitled to the beneficial use, rental or control; or if the owner be a non-resident the occupant or lessee, of any building used or intended to be used as described in Section one (1) [Art. 3934½] of this Act, where fire escapes are required, also to provide and maintain, in good condition at all times, therein proper guide signs and exit lights, which signs and lights shall be of a sufficient number on each floor to indicate the location of fire escapes and all entrances thereto. And it shall be unlawful to obstruct, in any manner whatsoever, any fire escape required by the provisions of this Act, or any hallway, corridor, or entrance way leading thereto. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 3934½c. Duties of State Fire Marshal and other officers.—The State Fire Marshal shall have general charge and supervision of the enforcement of the provisions of this Act, and, for this purpose, it is hereby made the duty of any inspector of the State Fire Insurance Commission, the chief of any fire department, or the fire marshal of any city or town to assist the State Fire Marshal in giving effect to the terms and provisions hereof, and shall be subject to his direction, and to the rules and regulations adopted for its enforcement. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 3934½d. Notice to owner or lessee; lessee entitled to reimbursement.—It shall be the duty of the State Fire Marshal or anyone authorized to act in his stead, when any building shall be found which required the erection of fire escapes, and upon which fire escapes have not been erected according to the provisions of this Act, to serve a written notice upon the party or parties whose duty it is to erect such fire escapes, which notice shall specify the time within which said fire escapes shall be erected, and which in no case, shall be more than ninety days, and said notice shall be deemed to have been served if delivered to the person to be notified, or if left with any adult person at the usual residence or place of business of the person to be notified, or if deposited in the postoffice, directed to the last known address of the person to be notified. In case of buildings within the terms of this Act, that are managed and controlled by a Board of trustees, Board of Commissioners or other governing body, notice may be served on the president, secretary, or treasurer of such Board of trustees, Board of Commissioners, or other governing body, to cause the erection of fire escapes on said buildings as may be required. Provided that the occupant or lessee of any building who is required to erect fire escapes under the provisions of this Act shall be entitled to reimburse himself for the cost and expense of erecting said fire escapes out of the rent or lease money of said premises, and such reimbursement shall not be construed to be a breach of any existing lease contract or any covenant thereof, nor grounds for any action of damages or ouster. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 3934\%e. Injunction to restrain occupancy of building not equipped as required by act; sequestration; bond.—In addition to the other remedies and penalties herein provided, upon the failure of any of the parties charged with the duty so to do to erect fire escapes in accordance with this law, the Attorney General of the State, or any county or District Attorney of the county where any such building is located, upon direction of the Attorney General, shall bring an action against the owner, lessee and occupants of any such building for an injunction enjoining the further occupancy of such building until compliance with this Act. Such action may be brought in the county where such building is located. In case the owner of the building is a non-resident, then, in addition to an injunction against the actual occupants, the same shall be taken in possession by the court under a writ of sequestration issued at the instance of the State without bond which possession shall be retained until the owner thereof files in the court a bond in such amount as the court may direct conditioned for the immediate installation of proper fire escapes in accordance with this law. [Id., § 7.]
FORCIBLE ENTRY AND DETAINER

Article 3940. [2519] [2440] In what cases the action will lie.

Persons entitled to sue.—That one was keeper of the premises of a hunting and fishing club, and that it was his duty to "look after and attend to" the club property, did not impliedly authorize him to institute forcible detainer suit against, and evict, one who for some time had been living on the club premises. Little Sandy Hunting & Fishing Club v. Berry (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1161.

Concurrent remedies.—A lessor suing for possession in a district court is not thereby precluded from an action of forcible entry and detainer in the justice court, since, while the district court is an appropriate tribunal for the trial of the mere right to possession, its jurisdiction is concurrent with that of the justice court, so that the two remedies may be followed concurrently. Hartzog v. Seeger Coal Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 1065.

Forcible eviction.—Where one has lived for several years on land, he cannot lawfully be forcibly evicted by the owner, although he is but a trespasser. Little Sandy Hunting & Fishing Club v. Berry (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1161.

Art. 3941. [2520] [2441] "Forcible entry" defined.

Consent to trespass.—Unauthorized permission by one other than the owner after a trespass was no defense. Dincans v. Keenan (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 903.

Art. 3944. [2523] [2444] Citation; delivery of possession to party aggrieved on his giving bond; applicable to county court.—When the party aggrieved or his authorized agent, shall file his complaint in writing and under oath with such Justice of the Peace, it shall be his duty immediately to issue his citation to the sheriff or any constable of the county, commanding him to summon the person against whom complaint is made to appear before such justice of the peace at a time and place named in such citation; such time not being more than ten days nor less than six days from the date of service of such citation.

Provided, if the party aggrieved shall, at the time of filing his complaint under oath, execute a bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties in such sum as may be fixed by the justice of the peace in a sum double the amount of rent sworn to be due, conditioned that he will pay to the defendant all such damages as shall be adjudged against him, it shall be the duty of the officer serving such citation to place the aggrieved party in possession of the property sued for, unless the defendant shall within six days from service of citation execute and deliver to such officer a bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties in at least double the amount of the bond given by plaintiff; to be approved by the officer serving such citation; conditioned that the defendant will pay all rent that may be due or owing at the time of the execution of said bond, and all rent that may become due or owing when said case is finally tried or settled and all costs of suit in case judgment is rendered against said defendant; provided that where there is a duly qualified and acting constable in a justice precinct, the justice of the peace thereof shall upon issuing notice, writs, process or other instruments authorized by law to be served by a constable, place such service, process, writ, notice, or other instrument with the said constable or deputy for service. The provisions of this Act shall apply to the clerk of the county court where the county court has concurrent jurisdiction with the justice courts. [Act Aug. 17, 1876, p. 155, § 4; Act March 30, 1917, ch. 154, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The act amends art. 3944, Rev. St. 1911. Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment.

Art. 3950. [2529] [2450] Right of possession the only issue.

Art. 3956. [2534] [2455] May appeal, when and how.
Effect of dismissal of appeal.—Where defendants' appeal to the county court from a justice judgment dismissing forcible entry and detainer action for possession of the premises under the forcible entry and detainer statute was dismissed, such dismissal did not void the justice judgment for possession, and the writ of restitution was properly issued thereafter. Redden v. Vance (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 782.

Art. 3957. [2535] [2456] Form of appeal bond.

Art. 3962. [2540] [2461] Judgment of county court, final, etc., except, etc.
Conclusiveness of judgment.—A county court judgment dismissing forcible entry and detainer action for possession of the premises for less than $100 against plaintiff and his sureties is final and is not reviewable on writ of error. Delgado v. Chapa (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1169.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

In general.—The remedy of forcible entry and detainer is not exclusive but is cumulative of any remedy which landowners may have in the district court. Bull v. Bearden (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1177.

Liability for invalid writ.—One who, after instituting a forcible detainer suit, executes an indemnity bond demanded by the constable as a condition upon which he would execute the process by evicting defendant, becomes liable for damages for the eviction, if it is unlawful, as a party to the act of the constable. Little Sandy Hunting & Fishing Club v. Berry (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1161.

Where the keeper of a hunting and fishing club in good faith instituted a forcible detainer suit against a trespasser on the club property, and secured his eviction believing the process lawful, he was not liable in exemplary damages. Id.
ART. 3965. [2543] [2464] Written memorandum required to maintain certain actions.

1. Promises to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another in general.—Where a defendant, who was interested in a produce company whose shipment had been seized under judicial process, stated to plaintiff bank, which had cashed a draft with a bill of lading annexed, that he would see that it lost nothing, the agreement fell within the statute of frauds, not being in writing. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Waco v. Abeel (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 696.

A collateral oral contract to pay the debt of another being within the statute of frauds testimony by plaintiff that defendant made such an agreement is incompetent to show an indebtedness on defendant's part and should be stricken. Johnson v. Tindall (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 401.

A parol promise by a purchaser of merchandise from a dealer indebted to the seller thereof for the price to pay the debt if the seller did not do so is a conditional promise to pay the debt of another, and is not enforceable within the statute of frauds. Williams v. City Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 120.

An oral promise to pay for groceries and merchandise furnished to another was void, though the original debtor was the promisee's son and tenant, and the goods enabled the tenant to live while making a crop. Fletcher v. Puckett (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 831.

An oral promise by defendant railroad's representative that it would see that plaintiffs were protected with regard to credit which had been given to defendants' section hands, being an oral promise to pay the debts of other persons, was within the statute of frauds. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Texas & Ragsdale, Price & Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 654.

A parol promise by a wife to pay a debt due a physician by her husband for services rendered necessary to her child would not render her separate estate liable. Davenport v. Rutledge (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 988.

3. Promise to debtor to discharge debt.—An oral promise by a vendee of land to assume a purchase-money note of the vendor is not within the statute of frauds as a promise to pay the debt of another. Bone v. Smith (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 922.

Where defendant for valuable consideration assumed the debts of a corporation, the agreement is not, though a corporate note was indorsed by others, void as to them because not in writing; the statute of frauds being inapplicable. Bank of Garvin v. Free man (Sup.) 181 S. W. 187.

A custom of defendant railway company to deduct claims against its employees from their wages, when authorized in writing by them in the time book, held not to constitute an assumption of primary liability for goods purchased by them. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Texas & Ragsdale, Price & Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 654.

A contract of the organizer of a corporation to indemnify a subscriber to its stock, who executed a note, against all loss, was merely collateral to that evidenced by the note, and so was not subject to the statute of frauds. Anderson v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 836.

5. Original or collateral promise in general.—A contract by the officers of a corporation to pay to plaintiff bank money loaned to them for the benefit of the corporation held an original undertaking. Uvalde Nat. Bank v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 937.

A broker having promised to obtain $100 from his principal to pay plaintiff for possession of land sold, the principal's promise to pay the amount held not within the statute of frauds as a promise to pay the debt of another. Harral v. Bridges (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1001.

That coal was ordered by another does not make defendants' agreement to pay for it a promise to discharge the debt of another, where plaintiff refused to deliver the coal until defendants agreed themselves to pay for it. Roach v. Stansell & Crane v. Timpson (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 822.

Where the purchaser and mortgagee of cattle had agreed to pay a certain amount for pastureage, the seller's and mortgagee's promise to pay the amount, or to pay it out of the proceeds of sale, in consideration of their possession, though not extinguishing the original indebtedness, was an original promise not within statute of frauds. Harp v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 665.
FRAUDS AND FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES

Art. 3965

Promise by person, desiring services of a prisoner, to pay plaintiff any sums for which he might become liable if he would sign such person’s bail bond, held an original promise, not within the statute of frauds. Gonzales v. Garcia (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 922. 21.

An agreement by a son, who desired to uphold his father’s credit and to obtain goods for the latter on credit, that he would be liable for a note executed by the father, is not within the statute of frauds and need not be in writing; the credit being extended to the son. Thornburg v. Moon (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 999. 7.

Where a seller of apples acted as one of the principals in the transaction, his promise, made before acceptance to the buyer, to save the latter harmless from any defects in the fruit, was not within the statute of frauds. Dublin Fruit Co. v. Neely (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 406.

In action to recover for plaintiffs' wheat which defendant had received, his promise to pay therefor held not within the statute of frauds. Mendiola v. Garza Bros. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 921. 7. Guaranty.—An oral agreement by a father to guarantee advances made to his son, not to exceed $1,000, held unenforceable. Heln v. John Finnigan Co. (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 134.

An agreement to guarantee payment of money advanced to a third person held unenforceable under the statute of frauds. Carla Land & Irrigation Co. v. Asherton State Bank (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1066.

8. New consideration beneficial to promisor.—Where a landlord, in consideration of plaintiff's agreement to permit the tenant to retain a horse and in consideration of additional advances, promised to pay the balance of the tenant's indebtedness to plaintiff plus the additional advances after crediting the value of the horse, defendant's promise was not original and not within the statute of frauds. Steed v. Day (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1657.

Oral promise by director of a corporation, the stock of which had been pledged as collateral for the note of a third party, that if the creditor would forbear threatened steps to prevent stock of goods, he would pay therefor, that the debt was paid, held an original promise supported by a new consideration, sufficient to take it out of the statute of frauds. Enterprise Trading Co. v. Bank of Crowell (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 294.

Where a creditor relinquishes some right upon a third person's promise to pay the debt, springing out of some new transaction, or upon some substantial ground of a personal concern to the promisor, the consideration to the promisor takes the promise out of the statute of frauds. 1d.

Where an irrigation company, having purchased the irrigation plant of another company and assumed its contracts to furnish water to its tenants, promised plaintiff, one of such tenants, to furnish him water for one-fifth his crop, the promise was not a mere voluntary verbal guaranty of a pre-existing contract of the other company, but a direct promise based upon a sufficient consideration. Lakeside Irr. Co. v. Buntington (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 21.

An oral promise by the owner to pay for materials furnished the contractor in consideration of the materialman's forbearance to sue is not within the statute of frauds. Grant v. Alfalfa Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 536.

Benefit to mortgagee of cattle from delivery of their possession held sufficient to support his promise to pay the amount agreed to be paid by the mortgagor for their pasturage. Harp v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 566.

10. Discharge of original debtor.—Upon surrender of a debt against another in consideration of a third person's promise to pay it, the primary debt is discharged, and only the promise of original obligation remains, so that there can be no collateral liability, within the statute of frauds. Harp v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 565.

12. Agreements not to be performed within one year—Possibility of performance.—A parol contract which does not provide that it is not to be performed within a year, and which may be performed on some contingency within a year, is not within the statute of frauds. Ake v. Stallings (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 145. A verbal contract for the sale of growing timber which allowed the buyers four years within which to remove the timber is not void, under the statute of frauds, as an agreement not to be performed within a year. Groce v. West Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 519.

A parol agreement by the seller of his business not to engage in similar business in the village, so long as the buyer engages therein in the village, is not within the statute of frauds. Tomlin v. Clay (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 204.

A contract which may or may not be performed within one year does not fall within the statute of frauds. Philip A. Ryan Lumber Co. v. Ball (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 226.

An oral contract whereby a brewing company, in consideration of plaintiff’s assumption of the agreement, agreed to give him the exclusive right to sell its beer in a county, there being no agreement as to the length of time the agreement should run, though for plaintiff to reimburse himself it would have to run for two or three years, was not invalid under the statute of frauds. Woods v. American Brewing Ass'n (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 127.

15. Creation of estates or interests in general.—A parol contract that defendant should live on land of plaintiff, build a house, pay taxes, and that after the land had become valuable it should be sold, and (the profits divided, was insufficient to give defendant an interest in the land itself. Snover v. Jones (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1122.

16. Creation of leases.—Where land was rented verbally, and, after entry by the tenant, the landlord stated that as long as the tenant paid her rent she could have the place, the contract was not obnoxious to the statute of frauds. Hamlett v. Coates (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1144. 969
17. Assignment, grant or surrender of existing estates, interests or terms.—Where the legal title to land was in trustees for parties who had recovered it under a contract through their attorney, there was to have an interest therein, any parol contract by such attorney that associated attorneys should have an interest in the land for their services was in violation of the statute of frauds and nonenforceable. Phoenix Land Co. v. Exall (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 474.

A verbal gift of land by a husband to his wife is wholly void, being within the statute of frauds, where it appeared that the land was not purchased with the wife's separate means. Childress v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 78.

Cancellation of vendor's lien notes could be based on holder's oral agreement to cancel them, though cancellation might have destroyed lien upon land, and destroyed superior title of holder; statute of frauds having no application. Bright v. Briscoe (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 156.

19. — Establishment of boundary.—Where the true location of a boundary line is unknown to the contiguous owners, and they orally agree on a line which they know is not the true boundary, the agreement is void under the statute of frauds. Volgt v. Hunt (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 745.

That a boundary may be established by parol agreement, it is essential that there be doubt and uncertainty as to its true location. Ware v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 846.

21. Contracts for sale of interests in land.—An agreement between two or more persons for the joint acquisition of land is not within the statute of frauds, as a "contract for the sale of land." Phoenix Land Co. v. Exall (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 474.

Where adverse claim to land has matured into title under the ten-year statute of limitations, a verbal sale of the land and subsequent verbal resales are void under the statute of frauds, in the absence of circumstances taking it out of the operation of the statute. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Gore (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 924.

An agreement to purchase realty, improve it, and thereafter sell it to another on installment, cannot be enforced, unless reduced to writing. Wade v. Cohen (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1168.

Under this article, verbal agreement of father's grantees that a daughter to whom an advancement had already been made should share the granted land held not enforceable by her as a contract to convey to her an interest in the land. Lindley v. Lindley (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 752.

Statute of frauds requiring contracts for conveyance of real estate to be in writing includes contracts to devise land. Henderson v. Davis (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 358.

22. Nature of property.—Growing trees are a part of the realty, and a verbal sale thereof which does not contemplate their immediate separation from the soil is within the statute of frauds. Groce v. West Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 519.

A contract for the sale of growing timber held a contract to sell chattels, and not one to convey an interest in land within the statute of frauds. Philip A. Ryan Lumber Co. v. Ball (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 226.

Share of stock in corporation may be sold by parol, or pass by delivery of certificate. Condit v. Galveston City Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 395.

27. Part performance—In general.—Oral agreement to take and raise the son of another and leave him all of the party's real and personal property at his death held sufficiently performed to remove it from the statute of frauds, where the child had treated such party as his father and performed services around his home without wages or money consideration. Bridgewater v. Hooks (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1004.

A joint and mutual will executed by husband and wife and a deed executed by them as mere transmutations of a parting of estate, in consideration of the equitable disposition of their property between their children, constitute part performance of the parol agreement so as to take it out of the statute of frauds. Larrabee v. Porter (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 395.

Moving out by the lessee cannot be considered part performance of an oral contract to resind the lease, being subsequent to insistence of the lessor that the lease be complied with. Gardner v. Sittig (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 731.

That a party to an oral contract to convey land has conveyed to the other party will not, standing alone, be accepted as a part performance, since such act is merely equivalent to a payment by him, not entitling him to specific performance. Clegg v. Brannan (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 812.

That plaintiff performed personal services for deceased is not such an execution or part performance as would take a contract to pay for such services by devise out of statute of frauds. Henderson v. Davis (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 358.

28. — Possession.—Delivery of possession of land held not essential to part performance of a contract to leave all of a party's property to another, as from its nature and purpose it could not be evidenced by delivery of possession. Bridgewater v. Hooks (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1004.

A vendee under a parol sale of land, by permitting his vendor to thereafter enter and remove the timber, as was provided by the contract, did not thereby yield possession so as to affect the vendor's title under the parol sale. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Payne (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 886.

29. — Payment.—Specific performance of an oral contract to convey land will not be enforced, in the absence of possession or permanent Improvements made thereon, though the purchase money has been paid. Clegg v. Brannan (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 812.

30. — Improvements.—Improvements begun by the lessee under a verbal lease during a few months between the lease and the death of the lessor held sufficient to take the lease out of the statute of frauds, even though no part of the improvement was completed in the lifetime of the lessor. Edwards v. Old Settlers' Ass'n (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 482.

Where a parol grant of a way has been acted upon by the expenditure of moneys which would be lost if the right of way be revoked, an easement arises by estoppel. Bowington v. Williams (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 718.

Where a slight expenditure for wall paper held so insignificant as not to amount to improvements taking an oral contract for sale of the land out of the statute of frauds. Ryan v. Lofton (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 752.

31. Possession and payment.—Where one having first obtained title to land by adverse possession makes an oral sale thereof, payment of purchase money, and taking possession of the vendor, and his making of improvements which are not permanent and have no particular relation to the value of the land, are insufficient to take the contract out of the statute of frauds. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Gore (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 924.

32. Possession and improvements.—In considering improvements which would take a verbal lease with delivery of possession out of the statute of frauds, a dam for the construction of which the lessee had agreed to pay a part, and which, though not on the leased land, created a lake thereon, used for irrigation purposes, and a valuable and permanent improvement, was properly included. Edwards v. Old Settlers' Ass'n (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 423.

Equity will sustain a parol gift of land, notwithstanding the statute of frauds, where possession has been delivered and improvements of a substantial value have been made on the land by the donee with the donor's knowledge. Wilkerson & Satterfield v. McMurry (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 276.

Where an owner gave land to a son, who was placed in possession, and who, before building a house, removed trees and fences and filled in low places on the premises, the improvements made vested in the son the title in equity, notwithstanding the statute. Id.

Where change of possession and improvements on land are set up by a purchaser to take a parol contract for its purchase out of the statute of frauds, the value of the improvements must be substantial and must exceed the value of the use of the property. Page v. Vaughan (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 541.

Verbal contract to sell tract, only part of which was conveyed, held not taken out of the statute of frauds by purchaser's possession of the whole tract, and improvements on that conveyed, with knowledge of the facts. Pitts v. Kennedy (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 1016.

Where, to enforce an oral contract to convey, reliance is had upon the claimant's possession and improvement of the premises, the value of the improvements must be shown to be such proportion of the value of the property and made in such reliance upon the contract as to give the claimant equitable rights. Ryan v. Lofton (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 752.

34. Contracts implied by law on part performance.—While payment of purchase money under a verbal contract for sale of land gives no right to specific performance, the vendor may recover the money paid if the vendor refuses to perform. Whaley v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 409.

Where plaintiff paid money as initial payment on purchase price of land, and on next day vendors agreed that plaintiff should take different tract and money paid should apply to that, vendors could not retain money and refuse to perform oral contract, and vendee could recover money paid. Id.

35. Contracts completely performed.—Where grantor, in pursuance of parol agreement, conveyed land in consideration of care, nursing, etc., the deed was not void because grantor, under statute of frauds, could not have been compelled to execute the same. Houston v. Rutledge (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 797.

36. Discharge of contracts without performance.—A lease being, as required by the statute of frauds, in writing, rescission thereof cannot be proved by parol. Gardner v. Sittig (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 731.

37. Modification of contract.—Where a contract for the exchange of real property was executed in part by delivery of the properties, including a certain house and lot, the statute of frauds had no application to a supplemental oral agreement relating to substitution of the house in lieu of the note which the owner was to assign. Baker v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 326.

Under the statute of frauds, a written agreement to secure subtenants for a 5-year term terminate the leasehold, and by parol agreement to accept tenants for a term of 4 years and 11 months. Burgher & Co. v. Canter (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1147.

38. Equitable relief.—Where defendant, in pursuance of a parol contract, whereby he was to receive 100 acres of land if he would look after and keep trespassers off a company's land, performed his part of the contract and took possession of and erected permanent and valuable improvements upon the 100 acres, he acquired an equitable title which the court will protect. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Payne (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 886.

Where defendant released its lien upon plaintiff's property, relying upon his oral promise to give substitute security, that plaintiff claimed other land acquired as homestead as against a trust deed subsequently executed under the agreement held to take the case out of the statute of frauds, since to apply the statute would permit the perpetration of a fraud. Pipkin v. Bank of Miami (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 944.

39. Persons to whom statute is available.—The statute of frauds is no defense to an action for delay in delivering a telegram, because E., by whom the sender of the
FRAUDS AND FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES

The defense of statute of frauds is a personal one, and so cannot be invoked by a defendant, not a party to the contract, in favor of plaintiff against interveners. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. McCurdy (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 796. The statute of frauds does not render a contract thereunder absolutely void, but voidable only, and is for the benefit of defendant. Graham v. Keseler (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 299.

41. Waiver of bar of statute.—A widow of one entering into a verbal lease contract, who, after his death, allowed permanent and valuable improvements to be made thereon, and accepted the agreed rent therefor, held to have thereby ratified such verbal lease. Edwards v. Old Settlers' Ass'n (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 423. The lessor is not estopped to object to evidence of oral rescission of lease in writing, as required by the statute of fraud, because of the lessee moving out; this being after the lessee insisted on performance of the lease. Gardner v. Sittig (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 731.

42. Trusts.—An oral agreement between two persons to purchase land jointly created a trust in the land when purchased by one of the parties under the agreement notwithstanding the statute of frauds. Sachs v. Goldberg (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 92.

The statute of frauds does not require that trusts shall be evidenced by writing. Larrabee v. Porter (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 395. An agreement whereby one of the parties constitutes himself a trustee for the specific purpose of carrying out an agreement for the sale and conveyance of an interest in land not within the statute of frauds. Porter v. Lester v. Hutson (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 321.

Where legal title is taken in the name of the purchaser with the understanding that the equitable title shall vest in persons promising to support the purchaser until his legal estate is vested, when executed, constitutes an oral contract not within the statute of frauds. Ryan v. Lofton (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 752.

43. Requisites and sufficiency of writing.—A written proposal to sell land held not a memorandum of the terms of the sale within the statute of frauds and, unless the proposal be accepted by the seller, the contract is unenforceable. Daugherty v. Leewright (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 841.

Description of land.—Parol evidence is inadmissible to add the description of land contained in a memorandum, relied on to take a contract out of the statute of frauds. Clegg v. Brannan (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 812.

A description in a contract of sale of 263 acres of a specified distance N. E. of M., coupled with recitals of an incumbence of $8,140, that it had been inspected and accepted by the party, and that the vendors should have possession to January 1st, was sufficient within the statute of frauds. Porter v. Memphis Land & Commission Co. (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 497.

A contract agreeing to convey "a certain three thousand acres in B. county, Texas," without designating the owner or any particular locality or natural objects fixing its location, or referring to any writing doing so, and, also certain lots described by merely giving the lot, and block number and price, was too indefinite in describing the land to permit specific performance. Rosen v. Phelps (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 104.

A contract to sell a place consisting of four lots in a certain town, appearing that vendor owned only one place in that town which consisted of four lots, describes the property with sufficient certainty to comply with the statute of frauds. Beaton v. Fussell (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 458.

A description of land in a contract of sale held sufficient to satisfy the statute of frauds. Spaulding v. Smith (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 627.

Description of land in contract sought to be specifically enforced is sufficient where from it the land can be identified. Wooten v. Dermott Town-Site Co. (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 598.

A memorandum of agreement for exchange of lands, which did not describe a tract of land or give field notes from which it could be identified was insufficient. Clegg v. Brannan (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 812.

47. Signature.—Contract for exchange of land not signed by one of the parties was in contravention to the statute of frauds, and not binding upon him without allegations showing his right to specific performance by reason of possession, part payment, etc. Clegg v. Brannan (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 812.

48. Contents of memorandum in general.—The written agreement for the sale or exchange of land required by the statute of frauds must contain the essential terms of a contract, such as its subject-matter, expressed with such certainty that it may be understood without parol evidence to show the intention of the parties. Rosen v. Phelps (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 104.

52. Separate writings.—The memorandum or writing evidencing a contract for the sale of land, required by the statute of frauds, may be shown by correspondence. Spaulding v. Smith (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 627.

Under the statute of frauds, agreement for sale of realty need not be contained in one instrument, but may take the form of telegrams, if, read as one, they present a concluded contract. Longnotti v. McShane (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 598.

53. Parol acceptance of written offer.—An instrument, leasing land for one year and also giving exclusive option to lessee during the year, although signed by both parties, was not an option accepted in writing, and hence not enforceable in equity. Betty v. Wilkins (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 531.

54 2/3. Operation of statute.—A contract is not unlawful because not in compliance with the statute of frauds, as the statute presupposes its legality, the enforcement of which is only suspended until the provisions of the statute are satisfied. Edwards v. Old Settlers’ Ass’n (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 423.

60. Evidence.—Where an oral lease was made under which the lessee went into possession and made valuable improvements, the fact that it was agreed that the lease should be reduced to writing did not conclusively show that the improvements were made on the faith of the promised written lease, and not on the strength of the oral one. Edwards v. Old Settlers’ Ass’n (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 423.

In an action to recover the price of coal ordered by another, evidence held to warrant a finding that the defendants, and that they agreed to pay for it. Roach, Stansell & Crane v. Timpson (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 883.

To take a parcel agreement for the sale of land out of the statute of frauds by part performance, its terms must be clearly established. Shover v. Jones (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 1152.

In a suit to recover real estate, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that the parties agreed to locate a certain line bounding plaintiff’s purchase, and that such location was not made to settle a doubt or dispute. Ware v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 846.

Consideration in contract for sale of real estate may be parol, and statute of frauds does not apply thereto. Whaley v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 409.

Art. 3966. [2544] [2465] Conveyance to defraud creditors, etc., void.

1. Validity of transfer in general.—A judgment foreclosing a mortgage, after payment of the debt secured, is void as to a junior lienholder and creditor of the mortgagor, who is not a party to the suit, and he may collaterally attack the judgment. Clarke v. A. B. Frank Co. (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 492.

Though some of the property conveyed by a debtor was his wife’s separate property, held, that a creditor might attack the conveyance as to property belonging to the debtor. Citizens’ State Bank v. McHan (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 165.

Where debtor transferred land for stock for goods which he had conveyed to a creditor, whose debt was less than the value of the goods, transaction held void if the creditor was to have the balance of the proceeds from a sale of the goods, above his debt. Coughran v. Edmondson, 106 Tex. 540, 172 S. W. 1106, reversing judgment Edmondson v. Coughran (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 435.

Where corporation was sued, and receiver for it sought, attempted transfer of its property to another corporation, apparently organized to meet exigencies of receivership, was fraudulent and void. Bond-Reed Hardware Co. v. Walsh (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 1148.

Where defendants formed two corporations, one to make contracts for goods and rents, the other to take possession of goods and use rented premises, there was a conspiracy to defraud creditors. Id.

9. Reservations and trusts.—Where insolvent debtor exchanged land for stock of goods and had them transferred to a creditor, whose debt was less than their value, transactions held void if goods were to be resold and surplus paid the debtor. Coughran v. Edmondson, 106 Tex. 540, 172 S. W. 1106, reversing judgment Edmondson v. Coughran (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 435.

10. Right of debtor to prefer creditor.—Secret understanding between one of largest creditors of partnership, the party who was to take over its stock of goods, and the partner, that such creditor would pay its debt in full, was a fraud upon other creditors, which would annul a composition agreement, if any had in fact been made. Abernathy v. Corn Co. v. McDougall, Chicago & Webster Co. (Civ. App.) 378 S. W. 569.

Until a corporation ceases to be a going concern, it may prefer its creditors, and dilligent creditor of such corporation, although a director, can in good faith secure such preference by attachment or garnishment. McCormick v. Cornell & Wardlaw (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 1083.

Where a foreign corporation was insolvent and its president knew of such condition and negotiated to prevent creditors from taking steps against it and then assigned his claim against the corporation to certain persons, they could not by attachment secure a preferential lien upon the corporation property as against other general creditors. Id.

15. Consideration and payment of liabilities.—A creditor may receive property for his debt if not more than reasonably sufficient to discharge it; but, where the value materially exceeds the debt, the transaction is fraudulent in law. Coughran v. Edmondson, 172 S. W. 1106, 106 Tex. 540, reversing judgment Edmondson v. Coughran (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 435.

A creditor could lawfully purchase of his debtor sufficient property to pay the debt due him and to pay off the claims of a lien creditor and another creditor. Martin v. Jourdanton Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 583.

A vendor cannot commit a fraud on creditors by making a deed to a grantee to whom the land already belongs by equitable title. Fidelity Trust Co. v. Rector (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 845.

Where defendant had, with others, received share of estate, but the others permitted him, without evidence of liability, to retain money due them and use it for 30 years, there was no equitable liability, so that his conveyance of land to them one day prior to abstract of judgment against him was fraudulent as to the judgment creditors. Hirt v. Wernernburg (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 711.

15/2. New debt.—On exchange of land by insolvent debtor for stock of goods, cash and note for a difference in price given by a creditor, and expenses in perfecting the

Art. 3966

Frauds and Fraudulent Conveyances

Title 62

Fraudulent conveyance, held a new debt which, as against the debtor's other creditors, could be discharged by having the goods conveyed to such creditor. Coughran v. Edmondson (Sup.) 173 S. W. 1196, 196 Tex. 546, reversing judgment Edmondson v. Coughran (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 435.

17. — Transactions between husband and wife.—The creditor of a husband who conveyed land to his wife could question the deed to the wife. Emery v. Barfield (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 266.

18. — Partial invalidity or illegality.—A bank held entitled to attack, as in fraud of creditors, a debtor's conveyance of a note to one who paid to the bank the debt for which the note was collateral. Citizens' State Bank v. McShan (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 565.

20. Fraudulent intent of debtor—Knowledge or notice of intent and participation therein.—Under this article, where a wife was indebted to her divorced husband for an accounting and settlement of the community property, a deed of gift by her to her children by such husband of land belonging to the community estate, made immediately after both she and the children had knowledge that an accounting and settlement was being demanded by him, was in fraud of his rights. Messimer v. Echols (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 117.

22. Validity as between original parties or their representatives.—Where property is conveyed by a decedent during his lifetime, whether bona fide or in fraud of creditors, such property forms no part of estate, and administrator is without authority to sue for its recovery. Powell v. Stephenson (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 570.

Where land has been conveyed in fraud of creditors, title of grantor passes to fraudulent grantee, subject only to right of defrauded creditors to have the conveyance set aside. Hughes v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 742.

Since the statute as to fraudulent conveyances makes them subject to be avoided by a creditor only, a conveyance, even if made in fraud of creditors, is valid between the parties. Texas Rice Land Co. v. Langham (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 473.

25. Creditors.—Indebtedness for services rendered in pursuance of express or implied contract, or quantum meruit indebtedness for services, was such indebtedness as would render gift deed by debtor void as to prior creditor. Stolle v. Karren (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 600.

26. Subsequent creditors.—Subsequent creditors held not entitled to interfere with mortgagee's possession of mortgaged chattels, though possession was delivered to him for the purpose of putting the property beyond the reach of other creditors. Clifton v. Jolly & Terry (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 562.

The vendor's lien of the principal stockholder of a corporation who took a conveyance of the corporate property and then conveyed it to another, to whom he delivered the corporate stock, and who reconveyed the property to the corporation, is not invalid as against subsequent creditors with notice. Gulf Pipe Line Co. v. Lasater (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 773.

Subsequent creditors of a corporation have no right or authority to question the validity of a sale by the corporation of its property. Id.

35. Remedies of creditor.—Where value of property involved in action to set aside fraudulent conveyance is in issue, market value should be subject of inquiry, providing property has market value, and, if not, its intrinsic value may be established. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Plainview v. Slaton (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 742.

Where a conveyance was in fraud of creditors, a judgment creditor had right to subject to his judgment the excess in market value of property conveyed by his debtor over and above market value of property received by him in exchange. 1d.

Party who was active agent of two corporations owned and controlled by him and operated in concert to defraud creditors who dealt with them was properly cast in judgment, since where one has conspired with others to cheat and defraud, he will be held liable. Bond-Reed Hardware Co. v. Walsh (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1148.

37. Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—In suit by execution purchaser against debtor's fraudulent grantee, evidence held to support finding against defendant's claim of equitable ownership, though he testified to facts showing such ownership. Landers v. McCutchan (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 960.

In suit by execution purchaser against debtor's grantee, judgment for purchaser held not erroneous for insufficiency of evidence to show grantee's knowledge of the debtor's fraudulent intention. Id.

Evidence held to support a special verdict that a deed was executed by defendant without consideration and with intent to defraud his creditors. First State Bank of Blackwell v. Knox (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 894.

Evidence held sufficient to justify jury's finding that the conveyance of the premises to defendant was fraudulent as to the grantor's creditors. McCough v. Finley (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 918.

Evidence held to justify finding that sales by defendant were not in good faith, but were made with a view to delay creditors. Bond-Reed Hardware Co. v. Walsh (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 248.

In a suit for damages for the conversion of mules, etc., wherein defendant contended that any sale to plaintiff by its debtor was in fraud of creditors, evidence held insufficient to show the debtor's intent to shield his property from future debts. Martin v. Jourdan Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 588.

Evidence held not to sustain a finding that a sale by a debtor was made with intent to defraud his creditors. Id.

In action for conversion, defended on ground of the fraudulent conveyance of property to plaintiff by defendant's debtor, where there was no evidence of the value of the property at the time of the conveyance, its value was not shown to exceed the amounts of the three debts canceled on its sale to plaintiff. Id.

Title 62) FRAUDS AND FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES

Art. 3967

That two horses on which plaintiff had a lien for food and care, together with other personal property, were sold for $60, and that immediately afterwards the horses were sold for $400, indicated that the sale was made for purpose of defrauding creditors. Liberal Loan & Realty Co. v. Meyers (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 433.

In trespass to try title, evidence held to support a finding that a prior conveyance of land was made for purpose of defrauding, hindering, and delaying creditors. Hughes v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 742.

Evidence held to justify finding that grantor conveyed all his land in Texas and Nebraska to hinder, delay, and defraud creditors. Colgrove v. Faiturrias State Bank (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 580.

Evidence held insufficient to show that a conveyance was taken in the name of a stockholder, and not the corporation, for the purpose and with the intent of delaying, hindering, and defrauding the corporation creditors. Texas Rice Land Co. v. Langham (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 475.

Art. 3967. [2545] [2466] Voluntary conveyances.

In general.—Under this article, gift by insolvent father to children of money received from sale of his live stock, held void as to an existing creditor. Rector v. Continental Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 309.

Voluntary conveyance, leaving grantor sufficient other property to pay his debts, is not void as to prior creditors, and presumption of fraudulent purpose may be rebutted by evidence that grantor was possessed of property within the state subject to execution sufficient to pay existing debts. Collett v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 232.

Under this article, to sustain a gift of land as against prior creditors it must appear that the grantor was, at the time, possessed of property within the state subject to execution, sufficient to pay his existing debts. First State Bank & Trust Co. of Abilene v. Walker (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 724.

Transactions between husband and wife.—The husband may give or convey to the wife property in community, and thereby make it her separate property, when it is not done in fraud of creditors, and such a gift is good against subsequent creditors of the husband. Amend v. Jahns (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 729.

Subsequent creditors cannot attack a gift of live stock to the wife on the ground that it was only in pursuance of an antecedent agreement, which was invalid, where it was actually a gift of things in esse. Id.

Part of the homestead property, not previously abandoned as such, may, without consideration, be conveyed to the wife, becoming her separate property, free from claims of the husband's creditors. Palmer Pressed Brick Works v. Stevenson (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 999.

Voluntary conveyance of community property by husband to wife, deed expressly providing that conveyance should not become absolute until satisfaction of vendor's lien, was not void as to holder of vendor's lien note. Collett v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 332.

A husband can lawfully give any of his property or his interest in the community property to his wife, provided he is solvent. Earhart v. Agnew (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1140.

Under this article, in wife's suit to enjoin sale on execution by husband's creditor of land conveyed her by husband, if creditor proves he was such prior to execution of deed, wife's prima facie case, made by its production, fails, unless she proves husband had other property to satisfy debt either when conveyance was made or execution levied. Stolte v. Karren (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 609.

Gift deed from husband to wife vested legal title in wife, and neither husband nor his subsequent creditors or purchasers could question wife's deed, which could only be done by husband's prior creditor. Id.

Effect of gift by insolvent debtor.—A pretended gift of a half interest in land by an insolvent to his creditors, and, where the land was subsequently exchanged for a stock of goods, the donee acquired no interest in the goods. Coughran v. Edmonds, 172 S. W. 1106, 106 Tex. 540, reversing judgment Edmonds v. Coughran (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 435.

Creditors who may challenge gift.—Where a creditor takes a renewal note for his debt, after the debtor makes a voluntary conveyance, the original debt still continues and has precedence over the fraudulent conveyance, if the debtor was insolvent at the time of the gift. First State Bank & Trust Co. of Abilene v. Walker (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 724.

Indebtedness for services rendered in pursuance of express or implied contract, or quantum meruit indebtedness for services, was such indebtedness as would render gift deed by debtor void as to prior creditor. Stolte v. Karren (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 600.

Right of subsequent creditor to avoid gift.—Where it did not appear that a debtor's sale was made with intention to pass absolute title, future creditors could not set it aside on the ground that more than was reasonably necessary to pay the debts provided for in the transaction was conveyed. Martin v. Jourdanton Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 563.

Voluntary conveyance is void as to existing creditors, but not as to subsequent creditors, merely on the ground that it is voluntary. Collett v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 232.

In a suit to restrain the sale of land under an execution against the husband, evidence held to show a gift from the husband of his interest in the money with which the land was bought to the wife, which was valid against a subsequent creditor. City National Bank v. Kinnsbrew (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 556.

Debtor within statute.—An inndorse of promissory notes is a "debtor" within this article. Ochoa v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1022.
Donee's rights.—Donee in voluntary conveyance cannot sustain it by showing he had no notice of donor's debts. Collett v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 312.

Where voluntary grantee of land, expressly subjected by deed to vendor's lien, paid note secured by lien, or such note was paid by another, such grantee became vested with fee-simple title. Id.

Art. 3968. [2546] [2467] Gift of goods, etc.

What are goods and chattels.—Where a father offered to give mules to son if he paid off mortgage thereon, which the son never undertook to do, nor claimed the mules, held, that the son was not the owner by purchase. Carroll v. First State Bank of Denli- son (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 632.

This article does not make delivery and possession of a note essential to the validity of a gift thereof. Earhart v. Agnew (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1140.

Requisites of gifts.—Where V. executed a note to A. and B., which, with a paper asking them to accept it, was placed in an envelope and sealed, and the same was found In V.'s house after his death, there was no gift inter vivos, because of the absence of a delivery to A. and B. by V. during his lifetime. Maris v. Adams (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 475.

Under this article, grass seed raised by wife on separate real estate held not a gift to her by her husband as against his creditors where actual possession was not given to the wife. First Nat. Bank of Plainview v. McWhorter (Civ. App.) 179 S. W. 1147.

Under this article, live stock purchased by children with money their father realized from the sale of stock he had given them without delivery and placed in bank to the credit of one and given directly to the other was irrevocably the children's property by purchase. Rector v. Continental Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 309.

Where a father by parol gave his daughter a mare running at large upon the range, in the absence of delivery, no property passed to the daughter, and she did not own such mare's increase. Id.

Complete and unconditional delivery by the donor, and acceptance by the donee are essential to the validity of a gift inter vivos. Grayson v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 651.

Under this article, an alleged oral gift of a mule not executed by actual possession is void as against creditors. Spaulding Mfg. Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 715.

Evidence.—Evidence held to sustain finding that notes sued on had not been given to payee by the payee thereof since deceased. Baker v. Bledsoe (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1184.

While mere branding cattle in the wife's name is insufficient to prove gift thereof to her it is evidence which may be considered with other facts to show a gift of the increase, as well as its proceeds. Amend v. Jahn (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 729.

Evidence, in an action to restrain an execution sale of property, held to sustain a finding that the property was acquired by the principal defendant as a gift, and not as consideration for property sold to the donor. Fidelity Trust Co. v. Rector (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 842.

Art. 3969. [2547] [2468] Loan of chattels.

Art. 3970. [2548] Chattel mortgage void, when.

Purchase of entire stock.—Notwithstanding this article, a purchaser of the whole of a stock of goods, who assumed the seller's debt, cannot question the legality of the mortgage. Denman v. James (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 1157 (following Continental State Bank of Beckville v. Trabue [Civ. App.] 160 S. W. 209).

Validity of mortgage in general.—Evidence held to show that a sale of automobiles to a dealer was in contemplation that they would be exposed for sale by him in the ordinary course of business, so that a mortgage given by him on the automobiles was void. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Lipper (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 236.

A chattel mortgage in the ordinary form given by a retail dealer in automobiles to the manufacturer and seller was void. Id.

Security for purchase price.—A reservation of title to a stock of goods to secure the purchase price, though declared a mortgage by Rev. St. 1911, art. 5654, is not within article 3970, declaring void a mortgage on a stock of goods. Mayfield Co. v. Harlan & Harlan (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 315.

Application where mortgages in possession.—This article does not apply where the goods mortgaged were segregated from the stock and possession delivered to the mortgagees. Krower v. Martin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 511.

Art. 3971. Sales of merchandise and fixtures in bulk; notice to creditors; liability as receiver.—The sale or transfer in bulk of any part or the whole of a stock of merchandise, or merchandise and the fixtures pertaining to the conducting of said business otherwise than in the ordinary course of trade, and in the regular prosecution of the business of the seller or transferee, shall be void as against the creditors of the seller or transferee unless the purchaser or transferee demand and receive from the seller or transferee a written list of names and addresses of the creditors of the seller or transferee, with the amount of the indebtedness due or owing to each and certified by the seller or transferee under oath to be a full, accurate and complete list of his creditors, and of his indebtedness; and unless the purchaser or transferee shall at least ten days before taking possession of such merchandise or merchandise and fixtures, or paying therefor, notify personally or by registered mail every creditor whose name and address are stated in said list, or of which he has knowledge, of the proposed sale and of the price, terms and conditions thereof. Any purchaser or transferee who shall not conform to the provisions of this Act shall, upon application of any of the creditors of the seller or transferee, become a receiver and be held accountable to such creditors for all goods, wares, merchandise and fixtures that have come into his possession by virtue of such sale or transfer. [Acts 1909, p. 66; Act March 23, 1915, ch. 114, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The title of the act purports to amend articles 3972, 3973, 3973, “so as to include the fixtures pertaining to the conduct of such business and to make the purchaser or transferee who shall not conform to the provisions of this act, upon the application of any creditor or seller or transferee, or receiver of said goods, wares and merchandise and fixtures, that have thus come into his possession.” The act took effect 90 days after March 30, 1915, the date of adjournment.

Constitutionality.—The Bulk Sales Law held a valid exercise of the police power, and not to unreasonably deprive the owners of merchandise of their control over it and right to contract as to it. Owosso Carriage & Sleigh Co. v. McIntosh & Warren (Sup.) 178 S. W. 257.

Creditors’ remedies.—Under this article, a sale of a stock is void as to a creditor of the seller whose name was omitted from the list furnished to the purchaser, but which list was not verified by the seller. Williams v. J. W. Crowds Drug Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 187.

Under Bulk Sales Law, § 1, a purchaser who did not comply with the statute is a trustee for the seller’s creditors, and they may reach the debt by garnishment, though the goods have been sold and the proceeds disposed of. Owosso Carriage & Sleigh Co. v. McIntosh & Warren (Sup.) 179 S. W. 257.

The purchasers from one who sells without compliance with the Bulk Sales Law are liable in garnishment to his creditors for the goods or their proceeds if resold. Mayfield Co. v. Harlan & Harlan (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 313.

S. selling in violation of the Bulk Sales Law to M., and M. reselling to N., and taking his note, S.’s creditors cannot subject to their debts both the note and the goods. Id.

One who in making a purchase, void because in violation of Bulk Sales Law, as consideration releases the seller’s debt to him, cannot revive it, so as to share with the seller’s other creditors. Id.

If transferee of stock of goods had creditors, purported sale was void as to them if Bulk Sales Law was not complied with, and if transferee sold, disposed of goods, or converted them by mingling them with its own, it became indebted to trust for creditors for value. Gerlach Mercantile Co. v. Hughes-Bozarth-Anderson Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 784.

Evidence and burden of proof.—Under Bulk Sales Law, in garnishment proceedings on account of goods sold to garnishee, burden of proof to show that sale was within exception of act validating it when notice is given held on garnishee. Gerlach Mercantile Co. v. Hughes-Bozarth-Anderson Co. (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 784.

In garnishment proceedings on account of goods sold by judgment debtor to garnishee in violation of Bulk Sales Law, attorney for plaintiffs, resident elsewhere than in city of clients’ residence, was properly allowed to testify they received no notice with reference to sale. Id.

To what sales applicable.—A sale by one formerly in the jewelry business who at the time had withdrawn therefrom, and who had mortgaged the goods and segregated them from his stock in trade, was not a sale in the “usual course of trade” within the Bulk Sales Act. Krower v. Martin (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 511.

The Bulk Sales Law does not apply to a sale of goods segregated from a stock in trade by the owner who was formerly a merchant, but who at the time of the sale was a farmer. Id.

Where goods, having been segregated from the main stock, are mortgaged and possession delivered to the mortgagees, the Bulk Sales Law does not apply. Id.

Art. 3972. Purchaser conforming to provisions, not accountable.—Any purchaser or transferee who shall conform to the provisions of Article 3971 shall not in any way be held accountable to any creditor of the seller or transferee for any of the goods, wares, merchandise or fixtures that have come into the possession of said purchaser or transferee by virtue of such sale or transfer. [Acts 1909, p. 66, § 2; Act March 23, 1915, ch. 114, § 1.]

Rights of mortgagee.—Though the purchaser of a stock of goods in bulk does not assume a mortgage debt thereon, the mortgagee, not having waived his lien, may foreclose. Eagle Drug Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 378.

Purchaser not personally liable.—This article places no personal liability for the debts of the seller on the purchaser of a stock of goods in bulk. Eagle Drug Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 378.

Art. 3973. Not applicable in what cases.—Nothing in Articles 3971 and 3972 shall apply to sales by executors, administrators, receivers or any public officer conducting a sale in his official capacity, nor to a sale or transfer of stocks of merchandise and fixtures for the payment of bona fide debts, where all creditors share in proportion to their respective claims, and without preference in the sale or transfer or the proceeds thereof. [Acts 1909, p. 66, § 3; Act March 23, 1915, ch. 114, § 1.]
TITLE 63
GAME, FISH, OYSTERS, ETC.

CHAPTER TWO FISH, OYSTERS, ETC.

Article 3980. Public rivers, etc., property of state, etc.; under jurisdiction of commissioner, etc.

Nature of statutory provision.—This article is merely a declaration of the sovereign right of the state to protect the fish and game within its borders, and its power to regulate and control, or absolutely prohibit, the taking of fish. Sterrett v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 15.

Fishing rights as between individuals.—Agreement of owners of land on which there was a small lake held to give fishing rights as an easement appurtenant to the land, to which the title of a grantee was subject, which were terminated by defendant club's act in cutting its dam and lowering the water, rendering it liable to the owner of the slough for damages to his fishing rights and for decreasing the market value of his property. Thomas v. Fin & Feather Club, 171 S. W. 696, 106 Tex. 490, reversing judgment Fin & Feather Club v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 150.

Article 3982. Riparian rights prescribed.

Exclusive right of grantee.—Under this article, although the original grant from the Republic of Texas, confirmed by the Legislature of the state of Texas, did not give the exclusive right, grantee has the exclusive right to take oysters within the limits of his grant. North American Dredging Co. v. Jennings (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 287.

Article 3987. Licenses to wholesale dealers in fish and oysters; wholesale dealer defined.

Refusal of license.—Where an applicant for a license under this article, to engage in the fish and oyster business, had engaged in such business for three months prior to her application without paying the monthly tax fixed by article 3989, the license was properly refused. Adams Fish Market v. Sterrett, 172 S. W. 1109, 106 Tex. 562.

Art. 3988. Application for license; requisites; agreement for inspection, record, forfeiture, etc.

Refusal of license.—See note under article 3987.

Art. 3989. Issuance of license; requirements; tax; cancellation of license.

Refusal of license.—See note under article 3987.

Computation of tax.—To construe this article so as to require that the tax be computed on the "quantity purchased without the state" would render the statute invalid as imposing a burden on interstate commerce, and the measure of the tax for fish and oysters "handled" is the quantity purchased within the state, plus the quantity sold within the state from any amount acquired from without the state. Adams Fish Market v. Sterrett, 172 S. W. 1109, 106 Tex. 562.

Art. 4000. Duties of commissioner as to collection of tax, making of inspections, etc., and stocking of waters with fish; taking fish for state and United States fisheries.—It shall be the duty of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner to collect the special tax imposed by this chapter and enforce its payment, to inspect all products so taxed and verify the weights and measures thereof, to collect all license fees, to collect all rents on locations for planting oysters, to examine or have examined all streams, lakes or ponds when requested so to do for the purpose of stocking such waters with fish best suited to such location and he shall procure and furnish such stock fish from the nearest fishery and fish hatchery free of charge to any party or parties applying therefor. It shall be the duty of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner to supply from the fish hatcheries and fisheries of this State free of charge all parties applying therefor such number of fish for the purpose of stocking private lakes and ponds, or public waters, as may be available for distribution; provided, however, that the parties applying therefor shall pay all transportation charges on such fish and shall return to the hatchery or fishery all containers free of cost.

It shall be lawful for the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner of this State and his deputies to take at any time from the public fresh waters of this State all brood fish required by him in operation of such hatcheries for the purpose of propagation and culture. It shall also be lawful for the United States Commissioner of Fisheries and his duly authorized agents to take from public fresh waters of this State all brood fish necessary in the operation of Federal Fish Hatcheries, provided that no other fish except brood fish shall be so taken for any purpose. [Act 1913, p. 297, § 1; Act Oct. 10, 1917, ch. 12, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Section 1 of the act amends art. 4000, Rev. Civ. St., as amended by ch. 146, Acts, Regular Session, 33rd Legislature. See note under art. 3982, Vernon’s Sayles’ Civ. St. 1914.

Art. 4000a. United States Commissioner of Fisheries may conduct fish hatching and culture.—Be it further enacted that there is hereby accorded to the United States Commissioner of Fisheries and his duly authorized agents the right to conduct fish hatching and fish culture and all operations connected therewith at any time that may by them be considered necessary and proper, provided that they conduct the same within prescribed limits of the Federal Fish Hatcheries. [Act Oct. 10, 1917, ch. 12, § 2.]

Sections 3, 4, and 5 of the act create offenses and are set forth post as articles 872a, 872b, and 872c of the Penal Code. Sections 1 and 2 of this act are set forth ante as arts. 4000 and 4000a, Civil Statutes.

Art. 4021c. Certain fresh water lakes shall not be sold; open to public; proviso, etc.

Sufficiency of fish commissioner’s order.—It is no objection to an order of the fish commissioner closing a certain water against fishing with seines and nets that it does not name the time for which it is to be closed. Sterrett v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 368 S. W. 16.

Art. 4021d. Sand and other deposits may be taken from Corpus Christi Bay and Nueces Bay.—And provided further however, that there may be taken and appropriated from beneath the waters of Corpus Christi Bay and Nueces Bay, sand and other deposits for filling and raising the grade of the salt flats in the northern portion of the City of Corpus Christi and the lowlands lying north of the north boundary line of the City of Corpus Christi, in Nueces county, Texas, without making payment therefor to the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner or to the State of Texas. [Act March 19, 1917, ch. 86, § 1.]

See art. 1976, ante.
CHAPTER ONE

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Art. 4043. Jurisdiction of county court over.
Art. 4044. Jurisdiction of district court over.

Article 4043. [2550] [2469] Jurisdiction of county court over.

Jurisdiction over sureties on guardian's bond.—Order of probate court decreeing an indebtedness against sureties on guardian's bond held void as to sureties, since the probate court had no jurisdiction as to them. White v. Bedell (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 624.

Jurisdiction over minor devisee.—The administration of a will by an independent executor does not deprive the probate court of jurisdiction of the estate of a minor devisee, and it may, when necessary, appoint a guardian to take charge of such estate. Mc-

Art. 4044. [2551] [2470] Jurisdiction of district court over.

Jurisdiction where guardian appointed by probate court.—District court, which, through receiver, had taken possession of property belonging to son and mother, held to have had jurisdiction of suit on joint indebtedness of son and mother, and to fix priorities of several liens asserted upon their joint property and to direct sale of property to enforce the judgment, though the mother was insane and under guardianship by ap-

Art. 4053. [2560] [2479] Case of guardianship shall be called at each term.

CHAPTER FOUR

PERSONS ENTITLED TO BE APPOINTED GUARDIANS, AND PERSONS WHO ARE DISQUALIFIED

Art. 4068. Father entitled, where parents live together.

Article 4068. [2575] [2494] Father entitled, where parents live together.

Necessity of appointment by court.—A parent cannot appoint himself guardian of his minor child’s estate and dispose of the property without the sanction of court; his guardianship by nature not giving him such power. Vineyard v. Heard (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 22.

Right to custody of child.—A surrender of the possession of a child by its parents, whether evidenced by a written instrument or vesting in parol, is not a contract, and cannot be enforced as such, because neither the child nor its custody is a matter of contract, although the transfer will be enforced if for the benefit of the child, and a young father will not be given the custody of his minor child as against the maternal grandparents, who rightfully came into custody, where it was for the benefit of the child to remain with his grandmother. Ex parte Same (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 288.

In an action by a father for the custody of his minor child, evidence held to establish that the child’s maternal grandparents acquired custody lawfully. Id.

While the parent is usually entitled to the custody of his child, the courts will consult the child’s best interest in awarding custody, especially where a parent has voluntarily parted with custody and the child’s present surroundings are better than if in the parent’s custody. Clark v. Hendricks (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 57.

In proceedings by a father to recover custody of his infant child on the death of his wife as against the child’s maternal grandparents, evidence of the father’s misconduct held insufficient to justify the court in denying him the relief prayed. State v. Dowdell (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 2.

Evidence, held insufficient to support finding that father was not fit party to have custody of illegitimate child or that parents abandoned it, and to show that fitness of the parents was equal to that of the defendants, making award of child to the father’s sister, to whom its parents had delivered it, erroneous. Smith v. Moore (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 832.

Twenty-three year old father, who had settled down on his mother’s farm and acquired property, held entitled to the custody of his four year old daughter as against the child’s maternal grandparents, previously given her custody, since changes in their circumstances were such as to render inconclusive the former judgment giving custody of the child to the grandparents. Smith v. Long (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 478.

Duty to support.—In view of this article and arts. 4069, 4634, both parents after divorce are liable to maintain children of the marriage. Gully v. Gully (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 586.

Art. 4069. [2576] [2495] Parents equally entitled, when.

Duty to support.—See note under article 4068.

CHAPTER FIVE

APPOINTMENT OF GUARDIAN

Art. 4082. Order of appointment, requisites. 4083. Guardian of minor continues in office, until, etc.

Article 4082. [2589] [2508] Only one guardian of the person or estate shall be appointed, except.

Number of guardians.—Under the express provisions of this article, only one guardian can be appointed for the person or estate of a minor though a separate guardian may be appointed for each. McAdams v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 59.

Appointment of trustee.—The district court in its discretion may appoint a banker trustee of a trust for the benefit of an infant, instead of the guardian of the infant’s person, where the duties of the trustee would not conflict with those of the guardian. Kent v. McDaniel (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 1096.

Art. 4083. [2590] [2509] Order of appointment shall contain what.

Transfer of funds by appointment.—The funds in the hands of an independent executor, which belonged to an infant devisees, were transferred by operation of law to him as guardian of the infant upon his appointment as such, so that no act was necessary to transfer them. McAdams v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 59.

Appointment for part of estate.—Under this article and arts. 4099, 4113, 4115, 4116, relating to the appointment and duties of a guardian of a minor's estate, held, that a guardian could not be appointed for only a part of the estate belonging to the ward, as for one-half of the community property belonging to his mother, who devised to him and another brother all of her property. McAdams v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 59.

Art. 4086. [2593] [2512] Guardian of minor continues in office, until, etc.

Termination of guardianship.—A guardianship proceeding is terminated when the ward reaches majority. American Surety Co. of New York v. Hardwick (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 804.

CHAPTER SEVEN
OATH AND BOND OF GUARDIANS

Article 4099. [2600] [2519] Bond of guardian of the estate.

Appointment of guardian for part of estate.—See note under article 4083.

Amount of bond.—The bond given by the guardian of the estate of an infant must be double the estimated value of the infant's estate, as expressly required by this article. McAdams v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 59.

Time to sue on bond.—To authorize the county court to entertain a suit on a guardian's bond for funds of the estate alleged to have been misappropriated, it is not necessary that such court shall have required a final report where the ward has reached majority. American Surety Co. of New York v. Hardwick (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 804.

Sufficiency of evidence.—In an action on a guardian's bond for misappropriation of the ward's money, held, that the evidence sustained a finding that, when the ward gave certain money 'to the guardian, he was a minor. Childs v. McGrew (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 596.

Failure to invest funds.—Under this article and article 4150, making guardians liable for principal and interest in funds they negligently fail to invest, the guardian and his surety are liable for funds lost through failure to invest them. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Taggart (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 482.

CHAPTER EIGHT
INVENTORY, APPRAISEMENT AND LIST OF CLAIMS

Art. 4113. Inventory shall be returned, when.
Art. 4115. Affidavit of guardian to inventory.

Art. 4114. Property held in common shall be specified.
Art. 4129. Inventory may be corrected.

Article 4113. [2612] [2531] Inventory shall be returned in thirty days, etc.

Appointment of guardian for part of estate.—See note under article 4083.

Art. 4115. [2614] [2533] Affidavit of guardian to inventory, etc.

Appointment of guardian for part of estate.—See note under article 4083.

Art. 4116. [2615] [2534] Property held in common shall be specified.

Appointment of guardian for part of estate.—See note under article 4083.

Art. 4120. [2619] [2538] Inventories, etc., may be corrected, etc.

Conclusiveness and effect of correction.—An order of the county court in guardianship proceedings, if valid as a correction of an inventory under this article and art. 3534, held only prima facie evidence that land owned by a deceased parent was community property, and not a conclusive adjudication that the surviving parent was entitled to one-half of the property, the court having no jurisdiction. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 892.
CHAPTER NINE
POWERS AND DUTIES OF GUARDIANS

Art. 4122. [2621] [2540] Of the person.

Art. 4123. [2622] [2541] Same subject.

Art. 4124. [2623] [2542] Guardian of the estate.

Power to lease.—Under this article and arts. 4126, 4127, 4139, held, that a guardian, renting without an order of court, was not limited to a lease for a year, but had power to lease for a longer term. Rogers v. Harris (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 806.

Art. 4127. [2626] [2545] Duty to collect estate.

Collection of assets.—A grantee who fraudulently secured a conveyance from an insane person and a judgment confirming the deed, and thereafter conveyed the property to an innocent purchaser, is liable to the guardian of the insane person for the difference between the amount paid by the grantee and the actual value of the land. Fyle v. Fyle (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 488.

Art. 4131. [2630] [2549] Education and maintenance of ward.

Pension money as income.—Pension money in mother's hands as guardian for her minor son was not "income" of minor's estate, within this article, as to expenditure of income, and though paid into hands of his mother, as guardian, by federal government for his education and maintenance, it was paid to her as person appointed under laws of state to receive it, and it could be expended by her only in conformity to laws of state. Anderson v. Steddum (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1122.

Necessity of authorization and allowance.—Under this article, a guardian cannot recover expenses paid by him prior to his appointment and never filed and approved by the court, although allowed and approved on his final account, but where he paid a reasonable attorney's fee due for collection of personal injury compensation constituting the estate, which amount was never inventoried as part of the estate, he was not liable therefore, although such payment was never approved by the court. Yates v. Watson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 548.

Expenses for which state is liable.—The estate of a minor ward is not chargeable with burial expenses of the father of such ward, nor with traveling expenses of the guardian which were not verified, filed, and approved by the county court, but court fees and costs in other courts retained out of money belonging to ward's estate are properly chargeable by the guardian against the estate of the ward, though not filed nor approved. Yates v. Watson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 548.

CHAPTER TEN
RENTING AND LEASING PROPERTY, AND INVESTING AND LOANING MONEY, OF WARD

Art. 4134. Guardian may carry on or rent farm, etc., under order of court.

Art. 4136. May rent improved property, other than, etc., without order.

Art. 4137. Court may order improved property rented.

Art. 4139. Guardian may be cited to show cause why he should not rent land.

Article 4134. [2633] [2552] Guardian may carry on or rent farm, etc., under order of the court.

Power to lease.—A guardian at common law can lease a ward's real estate for any term of years not extending beyond minority. Rogers v. Harris (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 899.
Art. 4136. [2635] [2554] May rent improved property other than, etc., without order.

   Power to lease.—See note under article 4134.

Art. 4137. [2636] [2555] Court may order improved property rented, etc.

   Power to lease.—See note under article 4134.

Art. 4139. [2638] [2557] Guardian may be cited to show cause why he should not rent land out, etc.

   Power to lease.—See note under article 4134.

Art. 4140. [2639] [2558] Money may be invested, how.

   Failure to invest.—The rule that a guardian temporarily depositing a ward's funds in a bank is not liable for loss from the bank's failure is inapplicable, where he intended to leave them there until the ward's majority, instead of investing them in bonds and mortgages as required by this article and art. 4141. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Taggart (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 482.

Art. 4141. [2640] [2559] Security for money loaned; examination by attorney.

Art. 4150. [2648] [2567] When guardian is liable for interest.

   Liability of guardian.—A guardian loaning and wasting estate funds held liable for the principal and interest, under this article, though the loan was made under court order. American Surety Co. of New York v. Hardwick (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 894.

   Under the statute, where the guardian of a minor's estate by the exercise of due diligence could have loaned funds and failed to do so, he is chargeable with interest thereon at the highest legal rate. Yates v. Watson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 548.

   Under art. 4099; requiring guardian's bond, and this article, the guardian and his surety are liable for funds lost through failure to invest them. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Taggart (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 482.

Art. 4152a. Guardian may make mineral leases.—That guardians of the estates of minors or of any other persons, appointed under the laws of the State of Texas, which have heretofore been appointed, or which may hereafter be appointed, shall have the authority to make mineral leases for the estates of their wards. [Acts 1913, p. 261, § 1; Act March 12, 1915, ch. 44, § 1.]

   Took effect March 12, 1915.

Art. 4152b. Application to judge; notice; hearing, approval and order.—That whenever a guardian of the estate of any persons shall desire to make a mineral lease upon the real estate of his ward, he shall apply to the county judge of the county where such guardianship is pending for authority to make and execute such mineral lease, and such application shall be in writing and sworn to by such guardian, and the county judge, either in term time or in vacation, shall hear such application, and shall require proof as to the necessity and advisability of such mineral lease, and if he shall approve the same, he shall enter an order on the minutes of the Probate Court, either in term time or vacation, authorizing the guardian to make such mineral lease, and the terms upon which it shall be made; provided, that no lease shall extend beyond the time that the ward shall become twenty-one years of age.

   Before such application shall be heard by the county judge, notice of such application shall be given by the guardian for one week prior to the time such application shall be heard, by publishing same in some newspaper of the county where said guardianship is pending for one issue of said paper, and such notice shall state when and where such application shall be heard.

   It is further provided that after notice and hearing of said application and the granting of the same by the Probate Court, that said guardian shall be fully authorized to make mineral lease upon the real estate of his ward in accordance with the judgment of the County Court acting upon the same. [Acts 1913, p. 261, § 2; Act March 12, 1915, ch. 44, § 2.]

Note.—Sec. 3 of the act repeals chapter 131, Laws of 33d Leg., approved April 3, 1913.

CHAPTER ELEVEN
SALES

Article 4155. [2653] [2572] When real estate may be sold.

Sale by person not validly appointed guardian.—One not validly appointed guardian of an infant was not a guardian, and orders of the county court for sale of land of the infant by such person were void. Hamer v. Sanford (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 343.

Validation of void sale.—Where a father sold land which he had previously conveyed to his son, he cannot validate the sale by six years later applying for guardianship of the son's estate, and for confirmation of the sale as an act of guardianship; there being no order of sale made. Vineyard v. Heard (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 22.

Disposition of proceeds.—Under this article and art. 4160, probate court, which ordered sale of particular land of wards by guardian, held to have power to direct application of proceeds to payment of wards' debt, despite article 3787. Ridling v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 206.

Article 4156. [2654] [2573] Guardian shall apply for order to sell real estate, when.

Absence of verified exhibit.—Under this article, an order of the probate court directing the sale of a ward's property on an application not accompanied by a verified exhibit should be treated as void, where the court heard no testimony and made no inquiry to ascertain whether the necessity actually existed. Mullinax v. Barrett (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1181.

Article 4160. [2658] [2577] Advantage of estate to be considered in ordering sale.

Disposition of proceeds.—Under this article and art. 4155, probate court, which ordered sale of particular land of wards by guardian, held to have power to direct application of proceeds to payment of wards' debt, despite article 3787. Ridling v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 206.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Disposition of proceeds.—Where the interest of infants in land inherited from their mother was sold, they were entitled to the entire proceeds; nothing appearing to show that the purchase price included the life estate of their father. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 892.

CHAPTER TWELVE
REPORTS OF SALES AND ACTION OF THE COURT THEREON

Article 4177. [2675] [2593] Action of the court on the report; proviso.

Effect and conclusiveness of confirmation.—Probate court, after confirming guardian's private sale of ward's land, the record being fair on its face, could not at a subsequent term, on application for guardian's removal, while he was absent from the state, render
Art. 4177  GUARDIAN AND WARD  (Title 64)

Judgment against the guardian and sureties for amount lost by sale for less than actual value. White v. Bedell (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 624.

Where a county court ordered the sale by a guardian of her wards' lands, such sale, and its confirmation, passed title, subject only to the payment of the purchase money, leaving no title in a ward or her husband. Finley v. Wakefield (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 755.

Art. 4178. [2676] [2594] Sale shall be set aside, when.

Cancellation of deed.—A guardian's deed, though the sale be set aside, will not be canceled where no cancellation was prayed. Mullinax v. Barrett (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1181.

Art. 4180. [2678] [2596] Conveyance of real estate.

Necessity of proving authority of grantor.—A deed to defendant's grantor signed C. B. per S. Le B., "curator," in the absence of any authority shown for the execution of the deed by him, held not binding upon C. B. and insufficient to pass her title. Le Blanc v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 69.

Art. 4181. [2679] [2597] No conveyance until terms of sale have been complied with.

Payment.—An arrangement between a guardian who, with his wards, owned a tract of land, and a purchaser, that a payment to the guardian should be also a payment for the wards' interest, held in view of this article, not to give the purchaser any rights. Mullinax v. Barrett (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 1181.

Payment, by the buyers of lands of minors from their guardian, in cash instead of part in cash and part by note, held a consummation of the sale as reported to the court and confirmed by it, giving the purchasers title. Finley v. Wakefield (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 755.

FINAL SETTLEMENT

Art. 4273. Action of court upon account.

Art. 4278. Labor or service of ward to be accounted for, etc.

Article 4273. [2770] [2688] Action of the court upon account.

Review.—Court of Civil Appeals is without power to disturb judgment of district court disapproving mother's final account as guardian of her minor son, if judgment was in accordance to law, merely because it was unjust. Anderson v. Steedum (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1132.
Art. 4278. [2775] [2693] Labor or services of ward to be accounted for, etc.

Credit for expenditures.—Under this article, guardian is entitled to credits as specified when they represent expenditures made by him as authorized by law, and not when they represent those made on account of his ward without authority of, if not in defiance of, requirements of law. Anderson v. Stedum (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1132.

CHAPTER TWENTY

COMPENSATION OF GUARDIANS, EXPENSES AND COSTS OF GUARDIANSHIP

Article 4281. [2780] [2698] Commissions of guardians.

Right to commissions.—The general rule is that, when a guardian knowingly and wrongfully fails to account to his ward, which is a question of fact, he is not entitled to a commission on the sums expended for the ward, in her suit to compel an accounting, and where the ward, due to the guardian’s mismanagement of the estate principal, was driven to the necessity suing for accounting with attending expenses and loss to the estate, it is inequitable to reduce the estate by allowing commissions to the guardian on sums expended for the ward, but they should be offset against the expense of the suit. American Surety Co. of New York v. Hardwick (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 804.

Conclusiveness of order to pay commissions.—An order directing payment by a guardian from funds in his hands to his predecessor of commissions earned by her is a proceeding in rem, binding on all persons, till reversed or set aside, so that it cannot be collaterally attacked. Scott v. Scott (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 274.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

APPEAL, BILL OF REVIEW AND CERTIORARI

Article 4300. [2799] [2717] Bill of review may be brought.

Orders reviewable.—Under this article, a bill of review is proper to correct errors in orders of county court approving guardian’s final report and account on his application for discharge and may be entertained at any time after final order of discharge until barred by statute. Yates v. Watson (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 548.

CHAPTER ONE
SECRETARY OF STATE

Article 4306a. Carbon copies of enrolled bills.—Whereas, it is necessary that copy of all engrossed bills in both the House and Senate be furnished to the State Printer by the Secretary of State, and by such copy being made by the enrolling clerks of both the House and Senate an expense of $200.00 will be saved the state; therefore, be it Resolved, by the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring, that the Enrolling Clerk of the House and the Enrolling Clerk of the Senate be directed to make carbon copies of all enrolled bills that are sent to the Governor for his approval and furnish the same to the Secretary of State to be certified to and furnished to the State Printer. [H. C. R. No. 5, Feb. 16, 1915, p. 275.]

CHAPTER TWO
COMPTROLLER OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS

Art. 4342. To be notified of deficiencies, when.
Cited Terrell v. Middleton (Sup.) 191 S. W. 1138.

Constitutionality of deficiency appropriation for Governor.—Despite Const. art. 4, § 49, and this article, a bill making a deficiency appropriation for water, fuel, lights, etc., for the Governor's mansion and covering items for food, liquors, engraved cards, and invitations for the Governor's private use, violated Const. art. 4, § 5, and art. 16, § 6. Terrell v. Middleton (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 367.

Art. 4347. Claims to be classified.

Pension warrants.—Under subd. 3 of this article, the comptroller has power to make pension warrants negotiable or quasi negotiable by making them payable to order. Dreeben v. State, 71 Cr. R. 341, 162 S. W. 501.

Under subd. 3 of this article and art. 6273, it is not necessary to the validity of pension warrants that they be countersigned by the state treasurer before being sent out by the comptroller. Id.

Art. 4349. Pay warrants.

Designation of fund from which payable.—Act March 26, 1909 (Acts 31st Leg. c. 118), appropriating money for confederate pensions for the years 1909 and 1910, held superseded by the General Appropriation Act of May 12, 1909, so that the comptroller, in issuing warrants for confederate pensions for those years, properly stated that the money was to be paid out of the general appropriation. CHAPTER FIVE
ATTORNEY GENERAL

Art. 4418a. Shall advise heads of departments, state boards; legislative committees, county auditors, district and county attorneys, etc.; advice as to issuance of bonds; escheat proceedings.

Article 4418a. Shall advise heads of departments, state boards, legislative committees, county auditors, district and county attorneys, etc.; advice as to issuance of bonds; escheat proceedings.—In addition to the duties now or that may hereafter be imposed upon the Attorney General by law, he shall, at the request of the Governor or the heads of the departments of the State Government, including the heads and boards of penal and eleemosynary institutions, and all other State Boards, regents, trustees of the State educational institutions, and committees of either branch of the Legislature, and County Auditors now authorized by statute and to be authorized, give them advice in writing upon any question touching the public interest, or concerning their official duties. He shall counsel and advise the several district and county attorneys of the State, in the prosecution and defense of all actions in the district or inferior courts, wherein the State is interested, whenever requested by them, after said attorney shall have investigated the question, and shall with the question presented to the Attorney General, submit his brief also. He shall counsel and advise the proper legal authorities in regard to the issuance of all bonds that the law requires shall be approved by him, and it shall also be his duty to institute and prosecute or cause to be instituted and prosecuted all suits and proceedings necessary to recover for and on behalf of the State all properties, real, personal or mixed, that have heretofore escheated or that may escheat to this State under the provisions of Title 51, of the Acts of 1911, or under any other law now in existence, or that may hereafter be enacted, and the Attorney General is hereby prohibited from giving legal advice or written opinions to any other than the public officials named above. [Acts 1913, p. 48, § 1; Act March 30, 1917, ch. 165, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The act amends sec. 1, of ch. 25, general laws 33rd Leg., so as to read as above. Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment.

Art. 4419. [2892] Shall inspect accounts in offices of treasurer and comptroller.

Repeal.—Although art. 366, giving county attorney power to prosecute cases for collection of state funds misappropriated by county officers was passed before this article, the former is not repealed by the latter; the statutes being in pari materia. State v. Bratton (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 914.

BUREAU OF COTTON STATISTICS

Art. 4450. Shall maintain bureau of cotton statistics.

PROTECTION OF FRUIT TREES, SHRUBS AND PLANTS

PINK BOLL QUARANTINE

Art. 4475a. Quarantine zone created.—There is hereby created a zone along the boundary between the State of Texas and the Republic of Mexico, comprising the counties of El Paso, Hudspeth, Culberson, Jeff Davis, Presidio, Brewster, Terrell, Val Verde, Kinney, Maverick, Webb, Zapata, Starr, Hidalgo and Cameron, and that part of Dimmit county south of a line drawn diagonally across the county from the northwest corner of the county where it joins Zavalla and Maverick counties to the southeast corner of the said Dimmit county on the line of La Salle County, for the purpose of aiding in the prevention of the introduction into this State of the cotton pest, Pectinophera Gossypiella Saund, hereinafter referred to as the pink boll worm. [Act Oct. 3, 1917, ch. 11, § 1.]

Art. 4475b. Proclamation by governor; duties of commissioner of agriculture; inspection and report.—Whenever the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States shall certify to the Governor of this state that the pink boll worm in any of its stages of development, including the egg, larval, pupal and adult stages, has been discovered in Mexico within fifty miles of the Texas border, it shall be the duty of Governor to proclaim that part of the zone established by Section 1 adjacent to the location of the pest and for a distance of not less than fifty miles in such zone along the border of the State a closed zone from which it shall be unlawful to transport any cotton or cotton products to any part of the State from such closed zone embraced in the proclamation of the Governor; provided, however, that it shall be the duty of the Commissioner of Agriculture of Texas to make a thorough inspection of the cotton fields and cotton and cotton products in such closed zone and if such investigation determines the fact that there is no pink boll worm in such closed zone, and no pink boll worm in any of its stages of development in any territory within the State of Texas or without the United States, and adjacent to said zone and not less than fifty miles from such closed zone, then in such event after such finding of fact by him he shall certify such finding to the Governor, who may be proclamation declare it lawful for cotton grown in such closed zone and its products to be transported from such closed zone under such conditions as may be deemed essential to the protection of the cotton industry of the State. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 4475c. Prohibiting growing or transportation of cotton within quarantine zone.—At any time the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States shall report the presence of pink boll worm within twenty-five miles of the Texas border, the governor shall cause a special examination to be made by the Commissioner of Agriculture of this State of the danger of infestation of Texas fields by the pest, and if such report, in the judgement of the Governor, shall justify such action, he shall declare the growing of cotton in the said zone for such distance adjacent to the known location of the pink boll worm as may be deemed necessary to assure the prevention of the introduction of the pest, a public menace, and thereafter it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to grow cotton in such territory so set apart, or to transport any cotton, or its products from such zone to any other point in Texas, so long as such condition of menace to the cotton industry shall be deemed to exist. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 4475d. Inspection of cotton fields; proclamation of quarantine; fumigation or disinfection.—It shall be the duty of the Commissioner of Agriculture of this State to maintain a rigid inspection of the cotton fields, and of the cotton and cotton products in the zone provided for in Section 1 [Art. 4475a] of this Act, in such manner as to determine the presence of pink boll worm in all stages of development, and whenever the pest is discovered in such zone the Commissioner shall certify that fact to the Governor of the State, who shall immediately proclaim a quarantine of such territory in the zone, and such territory adjacent thereto, as may be deemed necessary to prevent further advance of the pest into Texas; and thereafter it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to transport cotton, or cotton products of any kind from any territory within the counties in such zone, or the territory adjacent thereto embraced in such quarantine proclamation, through or to any other part of the State of Texas, or transport any car or vehicle or freight or other article contaminated with cotton seed, or other products of cotton capable of carrying the pink boll worm in any of its stages from the counties embraced in such zone through or to any other point in Texas, unless and until it shall have been freed from cotton seed or other cotton products and shall have been properly fumigated or disinfected in such manner as the Commissioner of Agriculture of this State shall direct. Any and all such fumigation or disinfection and the cost of such protective measures against the spread of the pink boll worm shall be paid by the owners of the cotton or cotton products or of the car, vehicle, freight, or other article used for such transportation of cotton or its products. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 4475e. Special quarantine zones.—If the cotton pest known as the pink boll worm in any of its different stages shall be found in the State, and outside the zone provided for in this Act, the Commissioner of Agriculture of this State shall immediately certify that fact to the Governor, who shall proclaim a special zone or quarantine district surrounding the known location of the pest to such extent as may be determined sufficient to prevent the spread of the pink boll worm and it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to ship any cotton products of any kind from such quarantined district or transport any car or vehicle, or freight, or any other article contaminated with cotton seed, or other cotton product capable of carrying the pink boll worm in any of its stages from the quarantined area through or to any other point in this State unless and until it shall have been freed from cotton seed or other cotton product, and shall have been fumigated or disinfected in such manner as the Commissioner of Agriculture of this State shall direct. Any and all such fumigation or disinfection and cost of such protective measures against the spread of the pink boll worm shall be paid by the owners of the cotton or its products or by the owners of the car, vehicle or freight or other article employed in its transportation. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 4475f. Destruction of infected cotton; valuation and payment to owners.—If it shall become necessary in the judgment of the Commissioner of Agriculture of this State to the protection of the cotton industry of Texas, that the Commissioner shall destroy cotton and cotton plants in any field or fields in which the pink boll worm may have been discovered, or in any fields in the vicinity of such infested fields, he shall report such condition and certify a recommendation to that effect to the Governor, who shall thereupon declare such cotton or fields of cotton a public menace, and upon the promulgation of such proclamation the Commissioner of Agriculture shall be empowered to exercise all authority requisite to the complete destruction of such cotton or cotton plants in such field or fields, and it shall be his duty to effect such destruction in such manner as may be deemed essential to the eradication of the pest and to the adequate protection of the cotton industry of this State. In the event it shall be found necessary in the accomplishment of the purposes of this act to destroy any field or fields of cotton, the county judge of the county in which such field or fields may be located shall immediately appoint three disinterested citizens whose duty it shall be carefully to examine such field or fields of cotton, and report their conclusions of the value of the cotton in such field or fields to be destroyed to the county judge. Before entering upon the duties required of them, such citizens shall take an oath before some officer legally qualified legally to administer oaths that they will discharge impartially the duties herein provided for. When the report of the three said citizens shall be filed with the county judge it shall be his duty to transmit the same with his endorsement to the Commissioner of Agriculture of the State, who shall certify to the fact of such field or fields of cotton having been destroyed, in pursuance of the provisions of this act and he shall then file such report and certificate with the State Comptroller, who shall issue his warrant upon the State Treasurer for such sum as may be declared just and due in such report, which sum shall be paid from any funds in the State Treasury not otherwise appropriated. Provided if any person whose cotton or field of cotton has been destroyed according to the provisions of this Act is dissatisfied with the estimate of damage assessed by the said three citizens he shall have the right of repeal to any court of competent jurisdiction. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 4475g. Proclamation against growing of cotton in infested districts.—If it shall be deemed necessary by the Commissioner of Agriculture to the protection of the cotton industry of Texas that the growing of cotton in any quarantined district known to be in fested with the pink boll worm, or in any part of such quarantined district, constitutes a certain danger to the cotton industry of the State he shall certify such conclusion to the Governor who shall thereupon proclaim the growing of cotton in such district a public menace, and thereafter it shall be unlawful to grow cotton in such district for such term of years as the proclamation may designate, or so long as such conditions of menace to the cotton industry shall be deemed to exist. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 4475h. Commissioner may enter fields and prescribe duties and compensation of inspectors.—For the purposes of complying with the requirements of this Act in preventing the introduction of the pink boll worm into Texas, or to eradicate the pest if its presence shall be discovered in the State, the Commissioner of Agriculture and his authorized agents shall have power to enter into any field or fields of cotton or upon any premises in which cotton or its products may be stored or held and may examine any products or container of cotton or its products, or thing or substance liable to be infested with the pink boll worm in any of the stages of its development. For the purpose of effecting the provisions of this Act, the Commissioner of Agriculture may employ and prescribe the duties of such inspectors as may be necessary and fix their compensation. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 4475i. Co-operation with federal officers.—It shall be the duty of the Commissioner of Agriculture of this State to cooperate with the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States in any measures authorized and to be undertaken by the Federal Government in preventing the introduction of the pink boll worm. [Id., § 9.]

Sections 10 and 11 create offenses, and are set forth post as Arts. 729½ and 729½a, Penal Code.

Art. 4475j. Employment of entomologist to make inspection and report.—Before any quarantine shall be declared or established embracing any section or territory within this State pursuant to any of the provisions of this Act, the Commissioner of Agriculture of this State shall cause to be made a thorough examination of the territory and premises believed to be infected by a competent and experienced entomologist, who shall, after going upon the said premises, and after making the said examination in person, report the result thereof to the Commissioner of Agriculture; should said report disclose the fact that the pink boll worm in any of its stages exists within the territory under investigation, said person who made the examination shall make a statement in writing setting forth, among other things the following facts:
1. The date when such examination was made.
2. The name or names of the person or persons who were present when such examination was made.
3. The locality where said pink boll worm was found.
4. The name or names of the owners of the premises.
5. The extent of the infection, and the number and description of the different localities infected.

6. The necessary steps to be taken in dealing with the said infection and the proper safe-guards to be employed.

7. Any other information deemed necessary to be given preparatory to dealing with said infection.

Said statement shall be duly verified by the oath of the person making the said examination, the same shall be filed and preserved in the office of the Commissioner of Agriculture, and shall be open to the inspection of the public. [Id., § 11a.]

Sec. 12 of the act makes an appropriation of $10,000 for inspections and investigations for the fiscal years ending Aug. 31, 1918, and Aug. 31, 1919.

Art. 4475k. Cumulative construction; partial invalidity.—The provisions of the several sections of this Act shall be construed as cumulative in effect and shall not be held to modify the provisions, restrictions or requirements of other sections; and if any provisions of this Act shall be declared by proper judicial action to be unconstitutional that fact shall not operate to invalidate other provisions. [Id., § 13.]

Art. 4524. Officers and assistants appointed; salaries and duties.
Note.—Superseded in part by Act June 5, 1917, 1st C. S. ch. 48, § 2, post, art. 7085b, fixing salaries of assistant health officer, registrar of vital statistics, and chemist and bacteriologist.

Art. 4524a. Bureau of Vital Statistics.—That for the purpose of the efficient enforcement of the Sanitary Code of Texas, and the State Board of Health, shall establish a Bureau of Vital Statistics, and shall provide therefor suitable apartments, fire-proof vaults and filing cases necessary for the permanent preservation of all official records relating to births and deaths in the State of Texas, including those of the years prior to 1910 now in the basement of the State Capitol. [Act March 29, 1917, ch. 129, § 1.]
Explanatory.—Took effect 90 days after March 21, 1917, date of adjournment. Sections 2 to 15, inclusive, of the act, are set forth post as arts. 4524b-4524g, 4553a (rules 36a, 36b, 36c, 37a, 38a, 38b, and 50a) of the Civil Statutes, and arts. 801a and 801b of the Penal Code.

Art. 4524b. Qualifications of State Registrar; duties.—In addition to the qualification now required of the State Registrar of Vital Statistics, he shall be a licensed physician under the laws of this State, and shall have had not less than five years’ experience as a general practitioner and two years’ experience as a Vital Statistician; and it shall be his duty to superintend the collection, filing and compilation of all birth and death certificates. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 4524c. Salary of State Registrar.—The State Registrar of Vital Statistics shall receive an annual salary of ($2,400.00), and shall not engage in private practice during the time he serves as such registrar. [Id., § 3.]
See art. 7085b, post, fixing salary of registrar.
Art. 4524d. Deputy State Registrar.—The State Health Officer is hereby authorized, and it shall be his duty, immediately after this Act takes effect, to appoint a Deputy State Registrar of Vital Statistics, who shall act as assistant to the State Registrar and shall perform such duties as may be assigned him by the State Registrar. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 4524e. Salary of Deputy State Registrar.—The Deputy State Registrar shall receive an annual salary of ($1,500.00); provided, that said Deputy State Registrar shall have had at least two years' practical experience as a Vital Statistician. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 4524f. Salaries and expenses of bureau to be paid by state; Appropriation.—The salaries and contingent expenses of the Bureau of Vital Statistics shall be paid by the State, and for the purpose of putting this Act into immediate effect, and for the purpose of the efficient enforcement of the same, there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the State Treasury, not otherwise, appropriated, the sum of eight thousand ($8,000.00) dollars for the purpose of paying the salaries of the State Registrar, Deputy State Registrar, all necessary clerical services, and other necessary expenses, for the remainder of the fiscal year ending August 31, 1917. [Id., § 14.]

Art. 4524g. Local systems of registration of births and deaths.—No system for the registration of births and deaths shall be continued or maintained in any of the several cities or counties of this State other than the system provided for and prescribed by the provisions of this Act. Provided, this Act shall not be construed to repeal any of the laws of this State now in force effecting public health and the registration of birth and death certificates, which are not clearly in conflict herewith, but shall be construed to be cumulative to said laws. [Id., § 15.]

Art. 4528. General powers and duties of the state board of health. Repeat.—This article and arts. 4537, 4543, under which railroads may be criminally prosecuted for not maintaining sanitary closets at stations, do not repeal arts. 6592-6594, providing a civil penalty for same offense. Beaumont, S. L. & W. Ry. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 969.

Art. 4528e. Appropriation; expenditures subject to approval of governor.

Note.—Act Feb. 22, 1917, c. 36, Reg. Sess., makes an appropriation for expenditure by the state health officer in rural health work and rural sanitation for the years ending Aug. 31, 1917, and Aug. 31, 1918. The act is omitted from this compilation as temporary in its operation.

Art. 4537. Investigations by board; powers and duties of court. Repeat.—See note under article 4528.

Art. 4543. Duties of county health officer. Repeat.—See note under article 4528.
CHAPTER TWO SANITARY CODE

QUARANTINE AND DISINFECTION

Rule 3. "Contagious diseases" shall include Asiatic cholera, etc., and be reported to the president of the state board of health.

28. School may be reopened after disinfection and vaccination.

VITAL STATISTICS

36a. Fees of local registrars; accounts; audit and approval.

36b. Appointment of precinct registrars on failure of city and county registrars to perform their duties; fees.

Police power.—The state, through its Legislature, may, in the exercise of its police power, enact all reasonable legislation for the promotion of public welfare, including the preservation of health. Waldschmidt v. City of New Braunfels (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1077.

QUARANTINE AND DISINFECTION

Rule 3. "Contagious diseases" shall include Asiatic cholera, etc., and be reported to the president of the state board of health.

Rule 28. School may be reopened after disinfection and vaccination.

Validity of vaccination requirement.—A rule of the school board requiring vaccination, but providing for exceptions where the health of the pupils was such that it could not be done is not unreasonable, was not a deprivation of due process of law in violation of Const. art. 1, § 19, and Const. U. S. Amend. 14, in that it vests the school physician and the city board of health with arbitrary powers, does not violate Const. art. 7, §§ 1-4, 5, authorizing the Legislature to provide for the support and maintenance of public schools, and was not invalid because it did not provide when it should expire. Zucht v. San Antonio School Board (Civ. App.) 170 S. W. 849.

VITAL STATISTICS

Rule 36a. Fees of local registrars; accounts; audit and approval.

—The city or county registrar shall receive a fee of twenty-five cents for each birth and for each death certificate completely filled in and properly registered and filed by him with the State Registrar as required by the rules and regulations of the Sanitary Code for Texas and the provisions of this Act, and, all accounts payable to a county registrar shall be paid by the county treasurer out of the general fund of the county; provided, however, that each account shall in addition to the approval of the commissioners' court of the county, or the county auditor, as the case might be, bear approval of the State Registrar; and provided, further, that the State Registrar shall, not later than December 1, 1917, and each year thereafter, certify to the commissioners' court of the several counties the number of births and death certificates properly returned to the Bureau of Vital Statistics during the preceding year, together with the name and the amount due each county registrar at the rate fixed herein; provided, further, that all accounts payable to a city registrar shall be approved by the city council, or city commission, as the case might be, and also bear the approval of the State Registrar, and the same shall be paid out of the general fund of the city; provided, however, that in all incorporated cities or towns where the official who performs the duties of city registrar receives any salary, compensation or reward for his services that the 25 cents provided for each certificate herein shall not be allowed. [Act March 29, 1917, ch. 129, § 6.]

Rule 36b. Appointment of precinct registrars on failure of city and county registrars to perform their duties; fees.—That for the purpose of the efficient enforcement of this Act, when any county registrar shall fail or refuse to secure and return to the Bureau of Vital Statistics the birth and death certificates required to be secured and returned by him as such county registrar, then the State Health Officer, upon the written recommendation of the State Registrar, shall petition the commissioners' court of such county to appoint some qualified person to perform the duties of local or precinct registrar for each commissioners' precinct within such county, provided that such person so appointed shall be a bona fide resident of the county and of such commissioners' precinct, and shall receive the 25 cents provided herein for each birth or death certificate; provided, further, that such local or precinct registrar shall forward the original birth or death certificate to the Bureau of Vital Statistics in the same manner as provided by law for city and county registrars, and shall also send on same date a copy or duplicate of such birth or death certificate to the county clerk to be recorded by him in the record kept by him in his office for that purpose; provided, further, that when any city registrar shall fail or refuse to secure and return to the Bureau of Vital Statistics the birth and death certificates required to be secured and returned by him as such city registrar, then the State Health Officer, upon the written recommendation of the State Registrar, shall petition the city council, or commission, of such city or town to appoint some qualified person to perform the duties of city registrar, provided that such person so appointed shall be a bona fide resident of such city or town, and shall receive 25 cents provided herein for each birth or death certificate. [Id., § 7.]

Rule 36c. Appointment of registrars for inaccessible precincts; fees. —Whenever a commissioners' precinct of a county is located so as not to be conveniently accessible to the county registrar, and that fact is brought to the knowledge of the State Registrar, or the County Health Officer shall recommend in writing that the State Health Officer petition the commissioners' court of such county to appoint some qualified person to perform the duties of precinct registrar for such precinct, and it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court, upon receipt of such petition from the State Health Officer, to appoint such precinct registrar; provided, that such registrar shall possess the qualifications, perform the duties, and receive the rate of compensation prescribed for precinct registrars by the provisions of Section 7 [Rule 36b] of this Act. [Id., § 7a.]

Rule 37a. Burial or removal permit; certificate of death.—The body of any person whose death occurs within the State of Texas, or which may be found dead within the State of Texas, shall not be interred or deposited in a vault, or tomb, or cremated, or otherwise disposed of, or removed from or into any registration district, or be held temporarily pending further disposition, for a period of more than seventy-two (72) hours after death, unless a permit for burial, removal or other disposition thereof shall have been properly issued by the registrar of the city, county or precinct in which the death occurred or the body was found; provided, however, that this section shall not apply to counties of less than two thousand (2,000) inhabitants; provided, further, that no such burial or removal permit shall be issued by any registrar until a complete certificate of death has been filed with him as herein provided; and provided, further, that when a body is transported from one registration district to another district, or from another State into another registration district within this State, for burial or other disposition, the transmit or removal permit issued in accordance with the law shall be accepted by the registrar of the district into which the body is transported for burial or other disposition as a basis upon which he may issue a local burial permit; and provided, further, that no registrar shall receive any fee or pay for the issuance of such permits. [Id., § 11.]

For penal provision see post, arts. 801a, 801b, Penal Code.

Rule 38a. Data to be shown by death certificate.—Each death certificate shall contain the following items, and which are hereby declared to be personal and statistical particulars and medical particulars necessary to complete such certificate:

1. Place of death, including city or village;
2. Full name of decedent;
3. Sex;
4. Color and race;
5. Conjugal relations (single, married, widowed, or divorced);
6. Date of birth (year, month and day);
7. Age (years, month and days);
8. Occupation described in full;
9. Place of birth;
10. Name of father;
11. Birthplace of father;
12. Maiden name of mother;
13. Birthplace of mother;
14. Signature and address of informant;
15. Date of death (give year, month and day);
16. Certification as to the medical attendance on the decedent, fact and time of death, time last seen alive and cause of death, with contributory cause, if any, and duration of each, and whether due to dangerous or unsanitary conditions of employment, together with signature and address of physician or official making the medical certificate and date of certification.
17. Length of residence at place of death.
18. Place of burial or removal and date of same.
19. Signature of undertaker or person acting as such, and all death certificates shall be made on a form and of a size prescribed by the State Registrar of Vital Statistics, and provided subdivision five (5) to thirteen (13), inclusive, may be omitted, if such information is not obtainable, and the death certificate shall be so endorsed. [Id., § 8.]

Rule 38b. Data to be shown by birth certificate.—Each birth certificate shall contain the following items, and which are declared to be necessary statistical data to complete such certificate:

1. Place of birth, county, city or village;
2. Full name of child;
3. Sex of child.
(4) Whether twin, tripllet, or plural birth.
(5) Whether legitimate or illegitimate.
(6) Date of birth, year, month and day.
(7) Full name of father.
(8) Residence of father.
(9) Color or race of father.
(10) Age of father at last birthday.
(11) Occupation of father.
(12) Birthplace of father.
(13) Maiden name of mother.
(14) Residence of mother.
(15) Color or race of mother.
(16) Age of mother at last birthday.
(17) Birthplace of mother.
(18) Occupation of mother.
(19) Number of children born to this mother prior to this birth.
(20) Number of children of this mother living.
(21) The certification of attending physician, surgeon or midwife, as to attendance at birth, including the statement of the year, month, day and hour of birth, and whether the child was born alive or was still-born; provided that such certificate shall be signed by the physician or surgeon, or mid-wife, with the date of signature and address of such physician, or surgeon, or mid-wife; provided, further, that if there was no physician, surgeon, or mid-wife in attendance, then the father or mother of the child, or the owner of the premises, shall notify the local registrar within five days following the birth, and such registrar shall fill in this item and the party so notifying the registrar shall sign such certificate, and such certificate shall fully and completely contain all the facts in connection with such birth; and provided, further, that all birth certificates shall be upon a form and of a size prescribed by the State

Registrar of Vital Statistics. [Id., § 9.]

Rule 50a. Certified copies of birth and death certificates furnished by State Registrar; fee; fund, how used.—The State Registrar of Vital Statistics shall, upon the request of any applicant, furnish a certified copy of any birth or death record registered under the provisions of this Act, and for such certified copy he shall be entitled to a fee of 50 cents to be paid by the applicant; and provided, further, that such copy of the record of birth or death, when properly certified by the State Registrar of Vital Statistics as a true copy of the original, shall be prima facie evidence in all courts and places of such facts therein stated; and provided, further, that it shall be the duty of the State Registrar, at the end of each month, to make an itemized account of all fees collected by him during that month and pay the same over to the State Treasurer to be kept by such treasurer in a special and separate fund to be known as the “Vital Statistics fund,” and the amounts so deposited in such fund may be used for the expenses incurred in the enforcement of the law relating to the registration of births and deaths within this State, and any unexpended balance remaining in such fund at the end of each fiscal year shall be transferred to the public school fund of the State. [Id., § 10.]

DEPOTS, RAILWAY COACHES AND SLEEPING CARS

Rule 52. Depots, etc., to be ventilated and heated.

In general.—An award of $1,700 for injuries to plaintiff’s wife resulting from cold contracted in an unheated car held not excessive, where it affected her menstruation and general health, and fact that plaintiff did not inform the carrier or its servants of the delicate condition of his wife will not preclude recovery. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rutherford (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 760.

This rule applies to case of passengers waiting for a delayed train, and failure to perform that duty would be negligence as a matter of law. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Faulkner (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 651.

CHAPTER THREE POLLUTION OF WATERS

Art. 4553b. Polluting certain waters unlawful; penalty for violation, etc.

Art. 4553c. Enjoining pollution; penalty for violation of injunction, etc.

Art. 4553d. Cities and persons affected to have specified time to make arrangements for compliance with act.

Art. 4553e. State board of health to enforce; inspector, how appointed; duties.

Article 4553b. Polluting certain waters unlawful; penalty for violation, etc.—That it shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation, private or municipal, to pollute any water course, or other public body of water, from which water is taken for the uses of farm, live stock, drinking and domestic purposes, in the State of Texas, by the discharge, directly or indirectly, of any sewage or unclean water or unclean or polluting matter or thing therein, or in such proximity thereto as that it will probably reach and pollute the waters of such water course or other public body of water from which water is taken, for the uses of farm live stock, drinking and domestic purposes; provided, however, that the provisions of this bill shall not affect any municipal corporation situated on tide water; that is to say, where the tide ebbs and flows in such water course. A violation of this provision shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars and not more than one thousand dollars. When the offense shall have been committed by a firm, partnership or association, each member thereof who has knowledge of the commission of such offense, shall be held guilty. When committed by a private corporation, the officers and members of the board of directors, having knowledge of the commission of such offense, shall each be deemed guilty; and when by a municipal corporation, the mayor and each member of the board of aldermen or commission, having knowledge of the commission of such offense, as the case may be, shall be held guilty as representatives of the municipality; and each person so indicated as above shall be subject to the punishment provided hereinbefore; provided, however, that the payment of the fine by one of the persons so named shall be a satisfaction of the penalty as against his associates for the offenses for which he may have been convicted; provided, the provisions of this Act shall not apply to any place or premises located without the limits of an incorporated town or city, nor to manufacturing plants whose affluents contain no organic matter that will putrify, or any poisonous compounds, or any bacteria dangerous to public health or destructive of the fishlife of streams or other public bodies of water. [Acts 1913, p. 90, § 1; Act Feb. 25, 1915, ch. 23, § 1.]

Art. 4553c. Enjoining pollution; penalty for violation of injunction, etc.—Upon the conviction of any person under Section 1 of this Act [Art. 4553b], it shall be the duty of the court, or judge of the court, in which such conviction is had, to issue a writ of injunction, enjoining and restraining the person or persons or corporation responsible for such pollution, from a further continuance of such pollution; and for a violation of such injunction, the said court and the judge thereof shall have the power of fine and imprisonment, as for contempt of court, within the limits prescribed by law in other cases; provided, that this remedy by injunction and punishment for violation thereof shall be cumulative of the penalty fixed by Section 1 of this Act; and the assessment of a fine for contempt shall be no bar to a prosecution under Section 1; neither shall a conviction and payment of fine under Section 1 be a bar to contempt proceedings under this section. [Acts 1913, p. 90, § 2; Act Feb. 25, 1915, ch. 23, § 2.]

Power to enjoin.—Acts 33d Leg. c. 47, punishing the pollution of any water course by the discharge of sewage therein, does not deprive the district court of jurisdiction to suppress such nuisances by injunction. Cardwell v. Austin (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 385.

Art. 4553d. Cities and persons affected to have specified time to make arrangements for compliance with act.—Any city or town of this State, with a population of more than fifty thousand inhabitants, which has already an established sewerage system dependent upon any water course or other public body of water, from which water is taken for the uses of farm, live stock, drinking and domestic purposes, or which discharges into any water course or public body of water, from which water is taken for the uses of farm, live stock, drinking and domestic purposes, shall have until January 1, 1917, within which to make other provisions for such sewage. Cities and towns of less population than fifty thousand inhabitants shall have until January 1, 1917, within which to make other arrangements for the disposal of such sewage. Any person, firm or corporation, private or municipal, coming under or affected by the terms of this bill, or any independent contractor having the disposal of the sewage of any city or town, shall have until January 1, 1917, within which to make other arrangements for the disposal of such sewage, or other matter which may pollute the water, as defined in this bill. [Acts 1913, p. 90, § 3; Act Feb. 25, 1915, ch. 23, § 3.]

Art. 4553e. State board of health to enforce; inspector, how appointed; duties.—The Texas State Board of Health is authorized, and it is hereby made its duty, to enforce the provisions of this Act; and to this end the Governor shall appoint, by and with the consent of the Senate, an inspector to act under the direction of the said Board of Health and the State Health Officer making such investigations, inspections and reports, and performing such other duties in respect to the enforcement of this Act as the said Board of Health officer may require. [Acts 1913, p. 90, § 4; Act Feb. 25, 1915, ch. 23, § 4.]

CHAPTER SEVEN

EMBALMING BOARD

Art. 4599. Duties and powers of board.

Article 4599. Duties and powers of board.—The Board of Embalming shall have the power and it shall be its duty:

1. To prescribe and maintain a standard of proficiency as to the qualifications of those engaged, and who may engage in the practice of embalming in connection with the care and disposition of dead bodies in the State of Texas, and, in this connection, the said board shall have the right and the power, to be exercised at its discretion, to employ capable and efficient lecturers and demonstrators in the science of embalming for the benefit of all licensed embalmers in this State. The said lecturers and demonstrators shall meet not more than once in each year with annual session of the Texas Funeral Directors' and Embalmers' Association.

2. To meet at least once in each year, and oftener, as the proper and efficient discharge of its duties may require. At least sixty days' notice of the time and place of the meeting of said board shall be given by publication in at least three daily newspapers published in different towns and cities of the State. Three members of the board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of all its business and the performance of all its duties; the board shall make an annual report to the State Health Officer, a copy of which shall be furnished to each and every licensed embalmer in the State of Texas, upon the condition of embalming in Texas, which report shall embrace all the proceedings of the board, and give an itemized account of money received and paid out by said board, shall show to whom paid and specifically for what purpose it was paid, and also the names of all embalmers duly licensed under this chapter. And it shall be the further duty of said board to deliver all money on hand at the end of the term of each board, after all the outstanding debts have been paid, to their successors in office. [Acts 1903, p. 123, § 4; Act March 30, 1915, ch. 137, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Act March 30, 1915, c. 136, amends subdivisions 1 and 2 of article 4599 of ch. 7, title 66. The act took effect 90 days after March 30, 1915, date of adjournment.

TITLE 67
HOLIDAYS—LEGAL

Art. 4606. What are legal holidays.

Art. 4607a. Texas Flag Day.

Art. 4607b. Sam Houston Memorial Day.

Article 4606. What days are legal holidays.

Monday after legal holiday on Sunday.—Reply by chairman of Railroad Commission to an inquiry by railroad company as to whether the following Monday would be recognized as free time, when Sunday was also a legal holiday, held not to show a rule of the Commission to that effect, and under rule 2 of the Commission, a carrier was not excused, by reason of local custom to observe the following Monday, from duly transporting freight on Monday, because Sunday, as March 2d, was a legal holiday. Consumers' Lignite Co. v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Clv. App.) 173 S. W. 306.

Art. 4607a. Texas Flag Day.— Whereas, it is eminently desirable that the people of our beloved State should realize more fully the blessings of liberty gained by our heroes in defense of the Alamo and in the immortal struggles at San Jacinto; and,

Whereas, there is now no adequate recognition of March 2d—Texas Independence Day; therefore

Be it Resolved by the Legislature of the State of Texas, the House and Senate concurring, that March 2d shall hereafter be designated as "Texas Flag Day," and that the Governor of Texas be requested to issue his proclamation each year before March 2d, so declaring, and that he urge the people of Texas to observe it by displaying on all public buildings, including the school houses, of the State, the Texas flag; and that the Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds be instructed hereafter on all days of the year, except upon National occasions, to have the Texas flag unfurled upon the flagstaff of the Capitol at Austin. [H. C. R. No. 6, Feb. 18, 1915, p. 276.]

Art. 4607b. Sam Houston Memorial Day.— Whereas, the second day of March A. D. 1917, will be the 124th anniversary of the birth of Sam Houston, and the 81st anniversary of the adoption, upon his motion, of the Declaration of Independence; and

Whereas, the name of the great patriot and statesman is indissolubly linked with all that is most glorious in the annals of Texas; and

Whereas, it is proposed to erect at Houston Texas, a city named in his honor and near which lies the battlefield upon which the army led by him won a glorious victory which achieved the independence of Texas, a memorial to commemorate his exalted character, splendid achievements and heroic patriotism; therefore be it

Resolved, by the House of Representatives the Senate concurring, that Friday, March 2, 1917, and March 2nd of each year thereafter, be and the same is hereby designated as "Sam Houston Memorial Day," and that the Governor of Texas be and he is hereby requested to issue his official proclamation under the great seal of the State, calling upon the people to celebrate the anniversary with fitting ceremonies, and to contribute to a fund to be known as the Sam Houston Memorial Fund for the purpose of erecting said Memorial, to the end that all the people of Texas may have part in doing a too long delayed honor to the memory of a patriot who has rendered Texas invaluable service in her struggle for liberty, and in after years as President of the Republic of Texas, and still later as one of her representatives for twelve years in that august parliament the Senate of the United States, and as Governor of this imperial commonwealth which eventuated out of the Republic which had its birth on the battlefield of San Jacinto. [H. C. R. No. 2, Jan. 30, 1917, p. 489.]

TITLE 67 A

HOME GUARD

[For Ranger Home Guard, see arts. 6756a-6756e]

Art. 4607¼. Home guard in counties may be organized.

Art. 4607¼a. Guard subject to call of sheriff; right to carry arms.

Art. 4607¼b. Organization.

Art. 4607¼c. Drills and uniform.

Art. 4607¼d. Expense, how paid; return of arms, etc.

Article 4607¼. Home guard in counties may be organized.—That whenever a state of war exists between the United States and another nation there may be created and organized with the consent and under the direction of the County Court of any county, a Home Guard composed of citizens of such county and of the United States of America over the age of 21 years. [Act Oct. 15, 1917, ch. 20, § 1.]

Art. 4607¼a. Guard subject to call of sheriff; right to carry arms.—Such Home Guard shall at all times be subject to the orders of the sheriff of such county, and the members thereof as a whole and individually shall at all times be subject to the call to duty by the sheriff to preserve order in any section of the county; provided, such Home Guard as a whole or as individuals shall be authorized to carry on and about their person pistols and such other weapons as may be necessary when called to actual duty by the sheriff. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 4607¼b. Organization.—Such Home Guard shall be organized to conform as nearly as practicable to the organization of military units. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 4607¼c. Drills and uniform.—Such Home Guard may engage in such drills at such times and places as the commanding officer may prescribe, and may be uniformed in manner not to conflict with Section 125, Act of the Congress of the United States, Approved June 3, 1916. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 4607¼d. Expense, how paid; return of arms, etc.—The organization and maintenance of such Home Guard shall be without expense to the State of Texas, or any county, city or town; provided, however, that counties, cities and towns may through their lawfully constituted governing bodies appropriate from their public treasuries moneys whereby to provide arms and ammunition for such Home Guard under such rules and regulations as they may prescribe; provided that all persons who receive arms from the county shall return all guns and ammunitions to the County Judge when they are not on duty. [Id., § 5.]
