Special law.—Sp. Act April 1, 1913 (Loc. & Sp. Acts 33d Leg. c. 138), repealing all laws in conflict therewith, etc., cannot be held invalid as conflicting with this article, although special act created a new school district, and included therein a district already indebted. Eagle Lake Independent School Dist. v. Hoyo (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 552.

Taxes and Bonds

Art. 2857. Local taxes; bonds.—The trustees of any independent school district that has been under general or special laws, for school purposes only, shall have the power to levy and collect an annual ad valorem tax not to exceed one dollar on the one hundred dollars valuation of taxable property of the district, for the maintenance of schools therein, and a tax not to exceed fifty cents on the one hundred dollars for the purpose of purchasing, constructing, repairing, or equipping public free school buildings within the limits of such district, and the purchase of the necessary sites therefor; provided, that the amount of maintenance tax, together with the amount of bond tax of the district, shall never exceed one dollar on the one hundred dollars valuation of taxable property; and provided further that no such tax shall be levied, and no such bonds issued, until after an election shall have been held wherein a majority of the taxpayer voters, voting at said election, shall have voted in favor of the levying of said tax, or the issuance of said bonds, or both, as the case may be, and which election shall be held in accordance with the subsequent sections of this Act. [Acts 1905, p. 263, § 154; Acts 1909, p. 17; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 24, § 13, repealing art. 2857, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Took effect March 5, 1921. See arts. 2902a, 2902b, post.

In general.—Taxes assessed against cotton oil company on personality by independent school district were not lien on personality and not personal obligation against purchaser of personality in good faith at sale under trust deed. Armstrong v. Mission Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 886.

Since the Legislature has express power to form school districts by both special and general laws and to authorize taxes to erect, equip, and maintain school buildings, it has implied authority to purchase the land upon which to erect buildings and establish schools. Cain v. Lumsden (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 116.

Any failure of Loc. & Sp. Laws 35th Leg. (1917) c. 37, creating the Sinton Independent school district, to prescribe ways and means for assessment and collection of taxes, does not require the general laws as to taxation to be consulted, but is covered by section 39 of the act providing that, as to all matters not provided for in the act, the board of trustees shall have the powers conferred on independent school districts. Welder v. Sinton Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 106.

Taxing power strictly construed.—The grant of taxing power to any county or district by the Legislature should be construed with strictness; the presumption being that the Legislature has granted in clear terms all it intended to grant. State v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 820.

Validity of provision of special law.—Loc. & Sp. Laws 35th Leg. (1917) c. 128, creating Stanton independent school district without specially providing for the ordering of an election to determine whether there shall be levied a maintenance tax under Const. art. 7, § 3, this article, and art. 2877, held to confer upon trustees the right to call such an election, under section 19 of the act of 1917, making it trustee's duty to levy and collect maintenance tax, and in section 22, conferring upon trustees the rights, powers, privileges, and duties imposed upon boards of trustees of independent school districts by the general laws of the state. Millhollon v. Stanton Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1106.

As Loc. & Sp. Laws, 35th Leg. (1917) c. 123, creating the Stanton Independent School District, provides in section 19 that the trustees may themselves levy an annual maintenance tax, the trustees, notwithstanding section 22 declares that in all matters not provided for they shall be vested with the rights, powers, and privileges conferred and imposed by the general laws, have no authority to call an election for levy of a maintenance tax pursuant to the general laws, for the local act superseded the general laws, and hence is void, violating Const. art. 7, § 3, declaring that the Legislature may authorize an additional ad valorem tax to be levied and collected in all school districts, provided that a majority of the qualified property taxpaying voters voting at an election to be held for that purpose shall vote such tax, and a tax sought to be levied pursuant to the election should be enjoined. Millhollon v. Stanton Independent School Dist. (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 352.

Assessments.—The fact that county tax assessor assessed school district for school taxes in previous years could not affect the validity of a district assessment. Blawett v. Richardson Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 255. The fact that valuations for county and state purposes were lower than those later fixed by school district assessor could not affect the validity of the latter assessments; school district not being bound to follow the valuations made by the county assessor, and having the right in the exercise of reasonable and proper discretion to fix them at a different figure. Id.

Validity of tax.—Where a school bond is voted for and issued, the tax made to provide a sinking fund to pay interest is necessarily valid if the bonds are valid. Wailing v. Malone Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 671.

Though maintenance tax levied for newly created district was in part applied to debts of old district included in new district, such fact does not warrant taxpayers in refusing to pay assessment, but at most gives an action for unlawful diversion of school fund. Eagle Lake Independent School Dist. v. Hoyo (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 352.

Discrimination.—The levy of a 60-cent maintenance tax on $100 valuation of property of newly added portion of school district as against the levy of a 35-cent maintenance tax on property in old district held discriminatory against newly added portion, though an additional 15-cent tax was levied on property in old district for sinking fund to retire bonds of old district. Millhollon v. Stanton Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1109.

Validity of bonds.—That an independent school district, which has voted a bond issue, does not have a property valuation sufficient to sustain such issue does not make the election invalid, but the proportion of the voted bonds that can be protected by a legal tax on the present valuation of property within the school district may be legally issued. Gobrecht v. Charco Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 263 S. W. 1178.

The fact that bonds issued and sold by a school district had not been presented to the Attorney General for his approval does not invalidate the bonds so as to invalidate a levy to pay the interest and provide a sinking fund. Love v. Rockwall Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 265.

Special law.—The special act creating the Charco independent school district is not invalid as prescribing a notice of election for bonds different from that prescribed in this article and art. 2859. Powell v. Charco Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1178.

Art. 2857a. Issuance of bonds; limitation; interest and maturity; election.—All independent school districts providing for public free school improvements as contemplated by the preceding section, shall have the power to issue coupon bonds of the district, in such sum or sums as may be authorized at an election held therein in accordance with the provisions of this Act for the purpose of purchasing, constructing, repairing or equipping public free school buildings within the limits of such district, and the purchase of the necessary sites therefor; provided that the aggregate amount of bonds issued for such purposes shall never reach an amount where a tax of fifty cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of taxable property will not pay current interest and provide a sinking fund sufficient to pay the principal at maturity; provided further that such bonds shall bear interest not exceeding six per cent per annum, and may be made payable, serially or otherwise, not exceeding forty years from their date, but when the school buildings are to be of wood material, the bonds herein provided for shall not run for a longer period than twenty years from their date; and provided further that the specific rate of tax to be levied for the payment of such bonds need not be determined at the election. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 24, § 14.]

Art. 2858. Petition for election.—Where any independent school district desires to issue bonds for school building purposes, there shall be presented to the board of trustees of such district a petition signed by twenty, or more, or a majority, of the qualified property tax-paying voters of the district, praying for the issuance of bonds to an amount stated and for the levy of a tax in payment thereof. The petition shall further state the rate of interest to be borne by such bonds, the time of maturity, and the purpose for which the bonds are to be issued, and pray that an election be ordered within and for such district to determine whether or not the bonds of such district shall be issued for the purpose above indicated and whether or not a tax shall be levied upon all taxable property within such district in payment thereof. [Acts 1905, p. 263, § 157; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 24, § 14a repealing art. 2858, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2858a. Order for election; ballots; polling places, officers, etc. —Upon the presentation of such petition, the board of trustees shall make and cause to be entered of record upon the minutes of said board an order directing that an election be held within and for such independent school district at a date to be fixed in the order, to be not less than thirty days after the date of such order, for the purpose of determining the proposition mentioned in such petition. At such election those desiring to vote in favor of the issuance of the bonds and levy of the tax in payment thereof, shall have written or printed upon their ballots: “For the issuance of the bonds and the levying of the tax in payment thereof,” and those opposed to the proposition, shall have written or printed upon their ballots: “Against the issuance of the bonds and the levying of the tax in payment thereof.” When the election is ordered, the board of trustees shall fix the polling place or places for the holding of such election and name a judge and two clerks at each polling place, or more judges and clerks if deemed necessary. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 24, § 15.]

Art 2859. Notice of election.—When the order for the bond election has been made, the secretary of the board of trustees shall forthwith issue a notice stating in substance the contents of such election order and the time and place or places of such election, and it shall be the duty of such secretary to post a copy of such notice at three different places within the boundaries of such district, which posting shall be done not less than three weeks prior to the date fixed for said election. [Acts 1905, p. 263, § 158; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 24, § 16, repealing art. 2859, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2860. Conduct of election; ballots; qualifications of voters. —The manner of holding an independent school district bond election shall be governed, as near as may be, by the General Election Laws of this State, except as modified hereby, and the board of trustees shall furnish all necessary ballots and other election supplies requisite to such election. None but qualified property taxpaying voters of such district shall vote at any such election to authorize the issuance of such bonds. [Acts 1905, p. 263, § 159; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 24, § 17, repealing art. 2860, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Qualifications of voters.—Owner of property subject to taxation could vote in an election held in an independent school district to determine whether or not the district should levy an additional school tax, although being 70 years old, he was not subject to poll tax, and he had never been called upon to list his property and it had never been assessed for taxes. Winters v. Independent School Dist. of Evant (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 574.

One otherwise qualified to vote at an election in an independent school district to determine whether or not the district should levy an additional school tax is a “tax-paying voter,” if liable for taxes on property, whether or not his property has been assessed for taxes. Id.

Ballots.—In spite of this article, ballots at school bond election reading, “For the Bond” or “Against the Bond,” held not to invalidate the election. Walling v. Malone Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 671.

Art. 2860a. Return and canvas.—Immediately after the bond election the officers holding the same shall make returns of the result thereof to the board of trustees of the district, and return the ballot boxes to the secretary of such board, who shall safely keep the same and deliver them together with the returns of the election to the board of trustees at its next regular or special meeting, and said board shall at such meeting canvass the vote and returns and if it be found that the proposition for the issuance of bonds and levy of the tax has been adopted by a majority of the qualified property tax-paying voters of such district voting at said election, then the board shall declare that it resulted in favor of the issuance of bonds and the levy of the tax in payment thereof, and if the result be against the issuance of the bonds and tax, then it shall declare that the result was against the issuance of bonds and the levy of the tax in payment thereof. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 24, § 18.]

Art. 2860b. Order for issuance of bonds; form and terms of bonds. —Where a bond election in an independent school district shall have resulted in favor of the issuance of bonds and levy of the tax in payment thereof, the board of trustees of the district, after such result has been declared, shall make an order directing the issuance of the bonds of such district and provide for the levy and collection of a tax annually of sufficient amount with which to pay the interest and provide a sinking fund with which to pay such bonds at maturity; and such bonds shall state upon their face the purpose for which they are issued. Said bonds shall be issued in the name of the independent school district, shall be signed by the president of the board of trustees of such district, and shall be countersigned by the secretary of such district, and the seal of the district shall be affixed to each bond. [Id., § 19.]

Art. 2860c. Approval of bonds by Attorney General.—Before such bonds are offered for sale there shall be forwarded to the Attorney General of Texas a certified record of all proceedings had with reference to the issuance of the bonds of the district, together with such other information as the Attorney General may require. Whereupon it shall be the duty of the Attorney General to carefully examine the said bonds in connection with the facts and the Constitution and laws of the State of Texas governing and controlling the execution of such bonds, and if as the result of the examination the Attorney General shall find that such bonds are issued in conformity with the Constitution and laws and that they are valid and binding obligations upon said independent school district, he shall so officially certify; and when said bonds have been approved by the Attorney General, they shall be registered by the Comptroller of Public Accounts in the same manner as other bonds. [Id., § 20.]

Art. 2860d. Sale of bonds; disposition of proceeds.—When said bonds shall have been approved and registered, as provided in this Act, they shall continue in the custody of and under the control of the board of trustees and shall be sold by said board for cash to the highest and best bidder, either in whole or in parcels, at not less than their par value, and the purchase money therefor shall be placed in the depository of such independent school district. Such funds shall be paid out by the treasurer of such district upon warrants drawn on such funds by the president of the board of trustees of the district and countersigned by the secretary of said board. [Id., § 21.]

Art. 2860e. Petition for election on question of levy of annual tax.—Whenever the qualified property tax-paying voters of an independent school district shall desire to be submitted, at an election for that purpose, the question of the levy and collection of an annual ad valorem tax on the one hundred dollars valuation of taxable property of the district for the maintenance of the schools therein, a petition signed by twenty, or more, or a majority, of the qualified property tax-paying voters of such district shall be presented to the board of trustees, praying for an election upon the question so desired to be submitted, and it shall be the duty of the board of trustees to order an election substantially as in case of a bond election, and all other proceedings in respect to the question so submitted shall be in accordance with the provisions of this Act relative to independent school district bond elections; provided said petition shall designate either the specific rate of tax to be levied, or such rate of tax not exceeding one dollar on the one hundred dollars valuation of all taxable property within the district; and provided further that when a proposition to levy such a tax shall be defeated no election for that purpose shall be ordered until after the expiration of one year from the date of the election. [Id., § 22.]

Art. 2860f. Order for election; ballots.—The order of the board of trustees ordering the election, and the election notice, shall state the time and place or places of holding such election and the rate of maintenance tax to be voted on, or the proposition may be for such rate of tax not exceeding one dollar on the one hundred dollars valuation of taxable property of the district as indicated in the petition. The ballots at such election shall read “for Maintenance Tax,” or “Against Maintenance Tax.” [Id., § 23.]

Art. 2860g. Levy of tax.—If a majority of the tax-paying voters, voting at said election, shall have voted in favor of the levying of said tax, the board of trustees of the district shall thereafter annually levy and cause to be assessed and collected upon the taxable property in the limits of the district for the maintenance of the public free schools of the said district such ad valorem tax as the qualified voters of such district authorized at the election held for that purpose; provided that if the proposition shall have been for such rate of tax not exceeding one dollar on the one hundred dollars valuation of taxable property of the district as authorized at the election, the board of trustees shall levy such a rate each year within that limit as such board may deem judicious. [Id., § 24.]
Art. 2860h. Election on question of revoking, modifying or increasing tax; proviso.—Where a maintenance tax has been voted no election to revoke, modify or increase the same shall be held until two years from the date of the election authorizing such maintenance tax. An election to revoke, modify or increase such maintenance tax, when permissible, may be obtained and held substantially as herein provided for an election to authorize such tax; provided, however, that no change or modification in such maintenance tax shall ever affect any bond tax authorized by such district; and provided further, that if the rate of bond tax, together with the rate of maintenance tax voted in the district, shall at any time exceed one dollar on the one hundred dollars valuation, such bond tax shall operate to reduce the maintenance tax to the difference between the rate of the bond tax and one dollar. [Id., § 25.]

Art. 2860i. Repeal.—All laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. And Articles 2827, 2828, 2836, 2837, 2838, 2839, 2840, 2841, 2842, 2857, 2858, 2859, 2860, 2863, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas of 1911, and Section 5, of Chapter 100, Acts of the Regular Session of the Thirty-second Legislature, are hereby particularly repealed. [Id., § 26.]

Art. 2861. Collection of taxes.

Who may be assessor and collector.—That one is city assessor and collector when appointed assessor and collector for a school district is no impediment to taking the district office, though because, under the Constitution, two offices may not be held, acceptance thereof may vacate the city office. Weidner v. Sinton Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 106.

Recovery of tax paid under protest.—Involuntary payment of independent school district's taxes on personality, by purchaser thereof in good faith at sale under deed of trust, after property had been seized by district, did not prevent purchaser from recovering taxes before money paid by him under protest and duress was disbursed by collector. Armstrong v. Mission Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 882.

Suit to recover tax.—A county has no authority to receive or sue tax collector for taxes collected for either independent or common school districts and not accounted for, under this article and arts. 2767, 2829, 2864, 2862; such taxes being payable to district treasurers, which districts are the ones to sue. Watson v. El Paso County (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 126.

Lien for taxes.—Art. 2853 and this article did not make applicable to independent school districts that part of article 958 making taxes levied and assessed by cities and towns lien on personal property against which tax is assessed. Armstrong v. Mission Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 882.

Art. 2862. Assessment and collection of taxes by county officers.

Assessor's fees.—Amounts paid county assessor for assessing taxes, for drainage and school districts under art. 2854 and art. 2853, held "fees," within arts. 3881, 3883, 3889, fixing the maximum of "fees," and not compensation for "ex officio services," within art. 3853, making such maximum fee statute inapplicable to compensation for ex officio services. Nichols v. Galveston County (Sup.) 278 S. W. 547.

Equalization.—Discrimination in raising the valuation of the lands is not evinced by the fact the board of equalization of a school district acted "under a deliberately adopted policy and concerted scheme or plan." Welder v. Sinton Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 106.

The board of equalization of a school district are not guilty of discrimination in not raising the valuation of personal property, but only that of all the acreage property. Id.

Art. 2863. [Repealed.]

Explanatory.—Repealed by Acts 1931, 37th Leg., ch. 24, § 26. See art. 2860i, ante.

Art. 2864. Refunding bonds.

Validity of levy of tax for interest on refunding bonds.—Where an issuance of bonds to refund an outstanding issue had been authorized, but the refunding bonds had not been issued because the holders of the original bonds had only recently been located and their agreement to a substitution of the bonds or their payment in cash secured, a levy of the tax to pay the interest on the refunding bonds is legal. Love v. Rockwall Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 263.
CHANGE OF BOUNDARIES

Art. 2865. Extension of boundaries.

In general.—Powers granted in this article, and article 2866, held different. In that a petition for the change of school districts is required by the former article, Hill County School Trustees v. Melton (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1142.

Enlargement.—Where a new school district was formed by adding territory, to a former district, the indebtedness of the former district for the construction of the school buildings which became the property of the new district may be lawfully made a charge upon the new district, including the lands added thereto. Love v. Rockwall Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 262.

Redistricting.—Order of commissioners’ court establishing a new independent school district held not a redistricting under statute, so as to place plaintiff’s land, located in another district, in such new district for purposes of taxation, though the designated boundaries of the new district, by mistake included plaintiff’s land. Harbin Independent School Dist. v. Dennman (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 176.

That Attorney General approved issue of bonds for defendant school district, the description of the boundaries of which in the order of the commissioners’ court establishing it erroneously included plaintiff’s lands located in an established district, did not have the effect of redistricting under the statute. Id.

Art. 2866. Change in boundaries, etc.

Change of boundaries without petition.—Under this article, the county commissioners’ court may change the boundaries of any independent school district on its own initiative for the public good without any petition to the board of trustees. Hill County School Trustees v. Melton (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1142.

Review of change.—Under this article, and arts. 2749c, 2749d, district court held authorized to review change of boundary line between independent school districts by county board of school trustees. Hooker v. State (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 451.

Art. 2877. Levy of tax.

Art. 2878. Levy in city or town assuming exclusive control of school.

Art. 2879. Levy in city or town constituting independent school district.

Art. 2880. Repeal.

Art. 2882. Funds to be turned over to school treasurer.

Article 2867. City or town may assume control of schools.

In general.—Where a school district was formed and included a city which had assumed control of its schools, the Legislature could make obligation of the city district binding on the new district, under Const. art. 7, § 3, although it might not be proper to pay them out of local taxation. Houston v. Gonzales Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 963.

Art. 2868. Same.

Art. 2871. General laws shall govern.

City has dual character.—Under Const. art. 11, § 10, empowering the Legislature to constitute any town or city an independent school district, and Rev. St. 1911, art. 2871, making a city taking over the control of its schools such a district, there is conferred on the city a dual character and with such character dual powers as strictly a municipality
Art. 2872. Property vested in trustees.

Constitutionality.—Neither this article, changing title of school property from the mayor of cities to the school trustees, nor the special act creating the Gonzales Independent School District, and extending the boundaries and changing the title to its trustees, violated Bill of Rights, §§ 16, 19, as infringing on the proprietary rights of the city of Gonzales, which had assumed control of its schools under Rev. St. 1879, art. 2722. Houston v. Gonzales Independent School Dist. (Clv. App.) 202 S. W. 963.

Art. 2873. Sale of school property.

See Hicks v. Faust. 109 Tex. 481, 213 S. W. 608.

Consent of state board.—Under this article, requiring consent of State Board of Education to sale of school property, held order of board made in October related back to contract of sale of old schoolhouse by school board in August, making sale effective. R. H. Spencer & Co. v. Brown (Clv. App.) 198 S. W. 1179.

Under resolution of State Board of Education, giving school trustees power to sell part or all of 10-acre tract, upon which there is located an old schoolhouse, trustees could sell schoolhouse alone. Id.

This article, requiring deed from school board to recite resolutions of trustees and State Board of Education as to sale, is directory, and failure to incorporate such resolutions does not nullify conveyance. Id.

Art. 2874. Schoolhouse bonds to be issued by city council.

Power to issue bonds.—This article gives the power to provide for schools by issuance of bonds if necessary. City of Rockdale v. Cureton (Sup.) 239 S. W. 852.

Control of fund from bonds.—A city which has assumed control of the public schools within its limits deducts to the use of the public the property it then owns which is being used for school purposes, and all property thereafter acquired; but, where it votes a bond issue to erect a school building, it owns the fund derived from the sale of the bonds, and has exclusive control thereof, and cannot be compelled to expend any funds on hand at the time the city is taken into a new school district. Houston v. Gonzales Independent School Dist. (Clv. App.) 202 S. W. 963.

CITY SCHOOL TAXES

Art. 2875. Local maintenance tax.

Taxing power strictly construed.—The grant of taxing power to any county or district by the Legislature should be construed with strictness; the presumption being that the Legislature has granted in clear terms all it intended to grant. State v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Clv. App.) 209 S. W. 820.

Special act.—Where Independent school district was created by special act, and included a city school district still legally required to levy the school taxes, the fact that the new district was authorized to levy the constitutional limit would not render the act invalid, because the district was not required to levy to the limit. Houston v. Gonzales Independent School Dist. (Clv. App.) 202 S. W. 963.

Art. 2876. Election for levy of annual tax for maintenance and buildings; discontinuance of tax.

Limitation of indebtedness.—Under Const. art. 7, § 3, exempting from the limitation on the amount of school district tax incorporated cities or towns constituting independent districts, and art. 9, authorizing cities constituting independent districts to levy such tax as their electors may determine under this and the following articles, a city acting as independent school district can issue bonds for school buildings exceeding the amount of city indebtedness limited by Const. art. 5, § 9. City of Rockdale v. Cureton (Sup.) 229 S. W. 852.

Art. 2877. Levy of tax.

Calling election.—Loc. & Sp. Laws 35th Leg. (1917) c. 128, creating Stanton independent school district without specially providing for the ordering of an election to determine whether there shall be levied a maintenance tax under Const. art. 7, § 3, and art. 2877, and this article, held to confer upon trustees the right to call such an election, under section 19 of the act of 1917, making it trustee's duty to levy and collect maintenance tax, and section 25, conferring upon trustees the rights, powers, privileges, and duties imposed upon boards of trustees of independent school districts by the general laws of the state. Millhollon v. Stanton Independent School Dist. (Clv. App.) 221 S. W. 1109.

Art. 2882. Funds to be turned over to school treasurer.

DIVERSION OF FUNDS.—Under Ft. Worth City Charter 1909, c. 15, § 13, and Ft. Worth City Charter 1907, c. 10, § 156, the municipal corporation of the city of Ft. Worth had no power over moneys collected for school purposes, and could not lawfully divert any part thereof to its own reimbursement for the expense of maintaining its tax machinery by means of which all taxes in the city were required to be assessed, equalized, levied, and collected. American Surety Co. of New York v. Board of Trustees of Independent School Dist. of Ft. Worth (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 292; City of Ft. Worth v. Same (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 294.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Validity of special law.—Sp. Laws (1st Call. Sess.) 1913, c. 14, creating the Gonzales independent school district, which included the incorporated city of Gonzales, and passing title to school property heretofore vested in the city, is not invalid, as working a deprivation of property without due process of law, for the beneficial title of the property at all times is in the people. Houston v. Gonzales Independent School Dist. (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 467.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Art. 2899. Where children may attend school.

Art. 2902b. Partial invalidity.

Art. 2904aa. Instruction in patriotism and civics.
Article 2899. Where children may attend school.

Requiring vaccination.—Resolution of board of education for exclusion from schools of unvaccinated children held not in violation of Const. art. 7, §§ 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, or this and the two following articles, as to public free schools. Stoffel v. San Antonio School Board of Education (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 418.

Art. 2902a. Provisions of tax and bond elections act, how applicable.—The provisions of this Act (arts. 2827, 2828, 2836–2842, 2857–2860i, 2902b), relative to tax and bond elections in common school districts shall also apply to common county line school districts; and the provisions hereof relative to tax and bond elections in independent school districts shall also apply to all such incorporated districts having each fewer than one hundred and fifty scholastics according to the latest census. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 24, § 27.]

Took effect March 5, 1921.

Art. 2902b. Partial invalidity.—In case it shall be declared by the courts that any part of this Act [Arts. 2827, 2828, 2836–2842, 2857–2860i, 2902a], is unconstitutional, such decision shall not impair other parts and provisions of this Act. [Id., § 28.]

Art. 2904a. Instruction in patriotism and civics.—The daily program of every public school in this state shall be so formulated by the teacher, principal, or superintendent as to include at least ten minutes for the teaching of lessons of intelligent patriotism, including the needs of the State and Federal Governments, the duty of the citizen to the State, and the obligation of the State to the State to the citizen. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 17, § 1; Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 38, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

Art. 2904aaa. Flags and flag poles for buildings.—That the board of trustees of each and every common, independent or municipal school district be and is hereby required to provide for a suitable United States flag and flag pole for each school building in the district, and the expense incurred in carrying out this provision of the law shall be paid out of the funds of the district. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 17, § 2; Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 38, § 2.]

Art. 2904aaaa. Duties of school officers.—It shall be the duty of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to issue to each county and city superintendent of Public Instruction in this State the necessary instructions as to the enforcement of this law, and it shall be the duty of the county and city superintendents of Public Instruction in every county in this State to see that the provisions of this law and the instructions of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction relative to this law are carried out. The county Superintendent of Public Instruction shall not approve for payment any vouchers drawn on the funds of the district until such district shall have complied with the provisions of this Act; nor shall the president of any school board of any independent or municipal school district in this State approve vouchers for the payment of any account until the provisions of this law have been complied with in every particular. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 17, § 3; Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 38, § 3.]

Art. 2904aaaaa. English language to be used exclusively in school work and text-books.—Every teacher, principal, and superintendent employed in the public free schools of this state shall use the English language exclusively in the conduct of the work of the schools, and all recitations and exercises of the school shall be conducted in the English language, and the trustees shall not prescribe any texts for elementary grades not printed in the English language; provided, that this provision shall not prevent the teaching of Latin, Greek, French, German, Spanish, Bohemian, or other language as a branch of study in the high school grades as outlined in the state course of study. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 80, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 2 of the act is set forth, post, as art. 420i, Penal Code. The act took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

CHAPTER NINETEEN A PUBLIC SCHOOL BUILDINGS

Art. 2904n. Building permits.

Article 2904n. Building permits.

Necessity of permit.—This article, and art 2904o, requiring a certificate as a condition precedent to erection of a school building, which are general statutes, do not take away the authority given the city of Dallas by its charter granted by Sp. Acts Thirtieth Leg. (1907) c. 71, art. 5, § 1, to construct necessary school buildings. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Burton Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 699.

Failure of trustees of school district to comply with arts. 2740, 2771, and this article, and art. 2904o, relating to securing of building permits, sale of bonds, and deposit of proceeds, etc., did not affect liability on school building contractor’s bond. Board of Trustees of Robstown Independent School Dist. v. American Indemnity Co. (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 105.

Art. 2904o. Payments before permit unauthorized.

CHAPTER NINETEEN B
FREE TEXT BOOKS IN SCHOOL DISTRICTS

Articles 2904r—2904w.

Note.—See arts. 2904r–2904y, post, establishing a general system for the distribution of free text books. This chapter may still be operative in case of a failure of the general scheme to give complete satisfaction.

CHAPTER NINETEEN C
FREE TEXT BOOKS THROUGHOUT THE STATE

Art. 2904r. Purchase of text books by State Board of Education and distribution of same for use in public free schools without cost.

2904r a. Money necessary to purchase books to be annually set apart out of free school fund of State.

2904rb. State Text Book Fund; how constituted.

2904rc. Report of funds required for purchase of books; amount to be set aside from school fund; funds set aside not to revert to school fund.

2904rd. Purchase and distribution of books by State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

2904re. Book contractors to maintain depositories for supplies of books; orders for books from.

2904rf. School trustees to be custodians of books; distribution to pupils.

2904rg. Books to remain state property; delegation by trustees of power to requisition and distribute books.

Article 2904 1/4. Purchase of text books by State Board of Education and distribution of same for use in public free schools without cost.—The State Board of Education is hereby authorized and empowered and it is made its duty to purchase books from the contractors of text books used in public free schools of this State and to distribute the same without other cost to the pupils attending such schools within this State in the manner and upon the conditions hereinafter set out. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 29, § 1.]

took effect Feb. 25, 1919.

Art. 2904 1/4a. Money necessary to purchase books to be annually set apart out of free school fund of State.—In order to carry out the provisions of this Act, the State Board of Education shall annually, at a meeting designated by them each year, set apart out of the available free school fund of the State an amount sufficient to purchase and distribute the necessary school books for the use of the pupils of this State for the scholastic year ensuing. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 2904 1/4b. State Text Book Fund; how constituted.—The State Text Book Fund of this State shall consist of the fund set aside by the State Board of Education from the available school fund as is provided for in Section 2 of this Act [Art. 2904 1/4a], together with all funds accruing from the sale of disused books and all moneys derived from the purchase of books from boards of school trustees by private individuals, by schools, or from any other source. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 2904 1/4c. Report of funds required for purchase of books: amount to be set aside from school fund; funds set aside not to revert to school fund.—The State Board of Education shall require from the State Superintendent, on July first of each year, a report as to the funds necessary for the purchase and distribution and other necessary expenses of school books for the regular school session of the following year, and said Board of Education shall have the power to set apart from the available school fund the estimated amount with 25 per cent additional, this additional sum to be used only to meet emergencies or necessities caused by unusual increase in scholastic attendance or by unusual and unforeseen expenses and school conditions. Funds transferred to the Text Book fund shall remain permanently in this fund, until expended and shall not lapse to the State at the close of the fiscal year; provided, that the State Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be required to include in the aforementioned report to the State Board of Education a statement as to the amount of this fund which is unexpended, and said amount shall be considered by the Board in determining the necessary expenditures for text books for the following year. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 2904½d. Purchase and distribution of books by State Superintendent of Public Instruction.—The purchase and distribution of free text books for the State shall be under the management of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, subject to the approval of the State Board of Education. All details of plans for purchase and distribution of books not definitely covered by the provisions of this law shall be subject to the laws of the State and approval of the State Board of Education. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 2904½e. Book contractors to maintain depositories for supplies of books; orders for books from.—All parties with whom book contracts have been made shall establish and maintain in some city in the State a depository where a stock of their goods to supply all immediate demands shall be kept; all contractors not maintaining their own individual or separate State agencies or depositories shall maintain a joint agency or depository to be located at some suitable and convenient distributing point, at which general depository each contractor joining in said agency shall keep on hand a sufficient stock of books to supply the schools of the State. Boards of School Trustees of every school district of the State, or their legally appointed representatives, shall be entitled to order directly from the State agency or depository herein provided for, and designated by said contractor or contractors as established to comply with conditions of this Act, text-books for use in the schools under the control of said trustees, such books to be purchased in accordance with the terms of this Act, and to be delivered by said depository, all packing, shipping, freight, express, mailing or other charges to be paid by said contractor or depository, to railway station at the town or city in which school is situated, or to railway station designated in the requisition; provided, that the depository shall not be required to fill orders by express or parcel post except such orders as may be defined by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction as emergency orders. The cost above established freight rate for filling such emergency orders may be added to the price of the books so shipped; provided further that if book contractors have complied with orders from the State Department of Education and have made prompt shipments as required by their contracts, that if the receivers of said shipments fail or refuse to take the shipments from the transportation companies, that the contractors will not be responsible for any demurrage in case of such failure.

Any person, school not controlled by the State, or dealer in any county in the State may order books from the said State agency, or depository and the books so ordered shall be furnished at the same rate and discount as are granted to the State; provided that in such case the State depository or agency may require that the price of books so ordered shall be paid in advance. Upon the failure of any contractor to furnish the books as provided in the contract and in this Act, the county judge in the county wherein such books have not been furnished, shall report the fact to the Attorney General and he shall bring suit on account of such failure in the name of the State of Texas in the district court of Travis county, and shall recover on the bond given by such contractor for the full value of the books not furnished as required, and in addition thereto the sum of one hundred dollars, and each day of failure to furnish the books shall constitute a separate offense, and the amounts so recovered shall be placed to the credit of the State Text Book Fund. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 2904 1/2i. School trustees to be custodians of books; distribution to pupils.—The school trustees of each district shall be designated as the legal custodians of the books, and shall have the power to make such arrangements for the distribution of books to the pupils as they may deem most effective and economical; provided that no district shall have the power to make any regulation in regard to text books, which is at variance with the provision of this Act, or with the regulation of the State, made by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction and approved by the State Board of Education. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 2904 1/2g. Books to remain state property; delegation by trustees of power to requisition and distribute books.—Books shall remain the property of the State, and after purchase through requisition according to the provisions of this Act, shall remain in the charge of the district school trustees, as the legal custodians of the books. The district school trustees shall have the power to delegate to their employees such power as to requisitions and distribution of books and the management of books, as in their judgment may be best; provided, that such plans shall not be at variance with the provisions of this law, or with the State Rules for Free Text Books, formulated by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction and approved by the State Board of Education. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 2904 1/2h. Bonds of custodians of books.—One or more members or employees of each district board of trustees shall enter into bond in the sum of fifty per cent in excess of the value of the books consigned to them by the State, payable in Austin, Texas, to the Governor of the State of Texas, or his successors in office, said bond to be approved by the county judge of the county in which the school is situated, and by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction and deposited with the State Superintendent, conditioned on the faithful discharge of his duties under his employment and under this Act and that he or they will faithfully account for all books coming into his or their possession and for all moneys received from the sales thereof; provided that all moneys accruing from the forfeiture of the bonds shall be deposited by the Governor to the credit of the State Text Book Fund. [Id., § 9.]

Art. 2904 1/2i. Requisitions for books; manner of making.—Requisitions for books shall be made in the following manner. On the first day of April each teacher shall make report to the principal, of the maximum attendance of his or her grade, or school, if not a graded school. If the school has only one teacher, said report as to the maximum attendance of pupils of each grade of work shall be made by the teacher to the board of school trustees and to the county superintendent. In case of unorganized counties, or counties having an ex officio county superintendent, reports shall be made to the State Superintendent. Reports as to the maximum attendance for the school shall be made not more than one week subsequent to the first school day of April by the principal to the city or town superintendent or by the principal to the county superintendent if the school is not situated in a city or town. The city or town superintendent of schools shall compile reports of principals and make report to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. The county superintendent shall make such report to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction as to the maximum attendance of each rural school of his county as will designate the number of text books of each grade and kind, to which each rural school of his county shall be entitled. Reports as to the maximum attendance of each school under their direction shall be made to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction by the aforesaid superintendents of cities, towns, and counties, not later than April 25th, provided that should the school close before this date, it shall be the duty of the teacher to file with the county superintendent and with the board of school trustees reports complying with the provisions of this Act. Blank forms for reports and for requisitions of text books shall be furnished to all boards of school trustees by the State Department of Education. Requisitions for books shall be based on said reports as to the maximum number of scholastics in attendance the preceding school session, plus an additional fifteen per cent, and such requisitions shall be made through the State Superintendent of Public Instruction and by him furnished to the State Depository designated by contractors of books not later than June 1st of each year; provided that in cases of unforeseen emergency the State depository shall fill small orders for books on requisition approved by the chairman of the district board of school trustees, such requisition subsequently to be sent promptly for approval to the State Department of Education. One copy of each text-book used in the work taught by the teacher shall be issued by the school trustees, or their representatives, to each teacher as a desk copy, such books to be returned to the trustees or their representatives at the close of the session. [Id., § 10.]

Art. 2904 1/4j. Payment for books requisitioned.—Bills for text books purchased by the State on requisitions as provided for in Section 10 of this Act shall be paid by warrants on the State Treasury made by the State Department of Education and approved by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. Such payment shall be made within ninety days from date of delivery and if payment be delayed thereafter, 6 per cent per annum shall be added until date of payment. The State Department of Education shall issue to each school district warrants to the value of five per cent of the contract price of books supplied to said district, this sum to be paid from the Free Text Book Fund, to cover the cost of care of the books and the cost of distribution of the books to the pupils of said districts. [Id., § 11.]

Art. 2904 1/4k. Reports as to use, care, and condition of books by teachers and school officers; inspection of books.—Teachers and school officers must make such reports as to the use, care and condition of free text books as may be required by the local trustees or by the State Department of Education. The salary for any month of any teacher or employé who neglects to make such report at the proper time, may be withheld until each report be received in a condition satisfactory in form and content. Text books shall be subject to inspection by any inspector or agent authorized by those having charge of the local text book service, or authorized by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, subject to the approval of the State Board of Education; provided that inspectors authorized by the State Department of Education shall be those in regular employment as high school inspectors, rural school inspectors, or inspectors of vocational education. [Id., § 12.]
Art. 2904 1/4. Rules for requisition, etc., of books; teachers, etc., not to sell, etc., school supplies.—Specific rules as to the requisition, distribution, care, use, and disposal of books may be made by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction subject to the approval of the State Board of Education; provided that such rules shall not conflict with the provisions of this Act, or with the uniform text book law under the terms of which contracts for supplies, books are made with the publisher or with the terms of said contract. No teacher or employee of the school engaged in the distribution of text books under this law as the agent or employee of the State, or of any county or district in the State shall, in connection with this distribution, sell or distribute, or in any way handle, any kind of school furniture or supplies, such as desks, stoves, blackboards, crayon, erasers, pens, ink, pencils, tablets, etc. [Id., § 13.]

Art. 2904 1/4m. Labels for books; records of books issued; care of books.—All books shall have printed labels pasted on both inside covers; said label to be supplied by the State Department of Education. Each school shall number all books, placing the number on these labels. All teachers shall keep a record of the number of all books issued to each pupil. All books must be covered by the pupil, under the direction of the teacher. Books must be returned to the teacher at the close of the session, or when the pupil withdraws from school. Each pupil, or its parent or guardian, shall be responsible to the teacher for all books not returned by the pupil and said pupil not returning all books delivered to him or her shall not be entitled to the benefits of this Act until said books are paid for by said parent or guardian.

Local boards of trustees shall make provision for the fumigation of books before the re-issue of the books. Covers of all books shall be removed before re-issue, and the pupil to whom the book is issued shall replace cover, under the direction of the teacher. [Id., § 14.]

Art. 2904 1/4n. Purchase of books by pupils, etc.—Books may be bought from the local boards of trustees by pupils or parents of pupils attending the public schools of the State, said boards to furnish the books at the retail contract price. Any book may be purchased from the State depository designated by the contractor holding the contract for said book, by State Institutions or by private schools, or church schools, such purchase to be made on the same terms as those given to the State for the same book. All money accruing from sales of books by district boards of school trustees shall be forwarded to the State Text Book Fund not later than one month after the sale. [Id., § 15.]

Art. 2904 1/4o. Purchase of books from pupils.—For the next two school sessions after the passage of this Act, all district boards of school trustees or their legally appointed representatives, shall be empowered to pay to any pupil one-half of the exchange price of any adopted text book in use the preceding year, on delivery to the teacher of the said book, provided that the same privilege of surrendering to the State the adopted books in previous use during the scholastic year preceding the change of books and receiving therefor one-half of the exchange price of books, shall be accorded to cities, towns, or districts, which, previously to the passage of this Act have owned and furnished free text books to the pupils. Bills for the re-payment to the school district of such purchases shall be attested as correct before a notary public by the chairman of the district board of trustees, or by his legally appointed representatives approved by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and paid on warrants on the Text Book Fund issued by the State. Each district shall be allowed warrants to the amount of five per cent of the aggregate exchange price of all books turned over by the district to the book contractors and accepted by them in exchange for new books, this sum being set apart to pay cost of handling and packing books, and transportation to the nearest railway station. [Id., § 16.]

Art. 2904¼p. Disposition of books unfit for use.—The State Superintendent of Public Instruction with the approval of the State Board of Education, may provide for the disposition of such text books as are no longer in a fit condition to be used for purposes of instruction, provided that the district board of trustees shall retain a sufficient number of each text book to be used as exchange copies in case of change of the adopted text book, and provided that whenever it should become practicable to sell such old text books for use in the manufacture of paper, pulp or similar substances, the highest price obtainable shall be secured by bids and money accruing from the sale shall be deposited to the credit of the State Text Book Fund. In case of the disuse of books in fair condition, inspectors of the State Department of Education may require the continuance of the use of said books. [Id., § 17.]

Art. 2904¼q. Complaints as to text-book service.—Complaints in regard to text-book service shall be made both to the State Superintendent and to the State depository designated by contractors of the books.
In case such complaint does not receive reasonably prompt attention, complaint shall be taken to the county judge, who shall proceed in accordance with the provisions of this Act (Section 6). Trustees of unorganized counties shall make complaint to the county judge of the county to which said unorganized county is attached for judicial purposes. [Id., § 18.]

Art. 2904¼r. Requisitions for supplementary books.—In making requisitions for supplementary books, teachers shall designate their first, second, third choice, etc., to the limit of the sets of supplementary books adopted, and such reports shall be furnished to the State Superintendent.
And said supplementary books shall be issued according to rules prescribed by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. Requisitions for supplementary books may be made at convenient times during the session, but must be made within one month in advance of the time the books will be needed. [Id., § 19.]

Art. 2904¼s. Notice to book contractors of operation of act.—ImmEDIATELY upon the taking effect of this Act, it shall be the duty of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to notify all parties holding contracts for the sale of text-books for use in the public schools of this State to the effect that the State of Texas has taken over the contracts now existing and will purchase books thereunder according to their terms. [Id., § 20.]

For sec. 21 of this act see Penal Code, art. 1513dd.

Art. 2904¼t. Time when act becomes operative.—The furnishing to the pupils and patrons of the schools of this State of free text books shall not begin under the terms of this Act until the commencement of the scholastic term of 1919–1920. [Id., § 22.]

Art. 2904¼u. Expenses due to operation of act.—All necessary expenses incurred by the operation of this Act incident to the enforcement of this law shall be paid from the State text book fund herein provided for upon bills approved by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction and shall be paid upon warrants drawn by the Comptroller upon the Treasury of the State. [Id., § 23.]

Art. 2904\%v. Partial invalidity of act.—Should any sections or any part of this Act be declared unconstitutional it shall not affect any other part of this Act. [Id., § 24.]

Art. 2904\%w. Annual ad valorem tax; amount.—There is levied and shall be collected for public free school purposes for the year 1919 and annually thereafter an ad valorem tax of thirty-five (35c) cents on the one hundred ($100.00) dollars valuation of all real property situated, and on all property owned, in the State, on the first day of January of each and every year, and on all property sent out of the State prior to the first day of January for the purpose of evading the payment of taxes thereon and afterwards returned to the State, except so much thereof as may be exempted by the Constitution and Laws of this State or the United States, which said taxes shall be collected in the same manner as other ad valorem taxes, and all of said taxes are hereby appropriated for such purpose for the years ending August 31, 1920, and August 31, 1921. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 23, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 2904\%x. Same; amount apportioned for purchase of text books.—The State Board of Education shall annually, at a meeting designated by them each year, set apart out of the funds raised under the provisions of this Act an amount sufficient, not to exceed fifteen (15c) cents on the one hundred ($100.00) dollars valuation on all property mentioned in Section one hereof, to purchase and distribute the necessary school books for the use of the pupils of the public free schools of this State. [Id., § 2.]

Sec. 3 of this act repeals all conflicting laws.

CHAPTER TWENTY

THE TEXAS STATE TEXTBOOK COMMISSION

Art. 2909b. Time of meeting; continuance of present contracts; consideration of advisability of change; terms of new contract; investigation of publications.—It shall be the duty of the Commission to meet not later than September 1, 1918 and as often thereafter as may be necessary for the purposes of considering the advisability of continuing or discontinuing at the expiration of all current contracts any or all of the State adopted text books in use in the public schools of Texas, and of making such adoptions as are provided for in Section 5 of this Act [1918 Supp., art. 2909bb].

Before making any change in the adopted series, however, the Commission shall, upon thorough investigation, satisfy itself that a change is desirable in the interests of the children in the schools, and in the interests of economy, and if in the judgment of the Commission, no text on any subject or subjects is offered that is better suited to the requirements of the schools than the present adopted text or texts, provided that the price and quality of such texts be satisfactory to the Commission, and, in their judgment, offer the best obtainable contract for the State, then it shall be lawful for the Commission to renew any contract for such period of time as may be deemed advisable, not to exceed a period of six years; provided, that, wherever the contractor supplying any book, agrees to renew the contract on the same terms for a period of not less than one year or more than six, the members of the Commission shall give preference to the offer of the company holding the contract, if in their judgment they shall thereby secure as good or better books at a lower price than by making a different contract, and it shall always be lawful for them to renew a contract on such terms as in their judgment may be for the best interests of the State. The contracts for the total number of different texts adopted should be so arranged, in adoptions taking place after the passage of this Act, that contracts on not more than one-sixth of the total number of different State text books shall expire in any one year, or shall be changed in any one year. If no text or texts on any prescribed subject or subjects are submitted by any particular publisher or publishers that meet the requirements of the schools, as may be determined by the Commission, then it shall be the duty of the chairman of the Commission to instruct the secretary of the Commission to investigate the book markets for the purpose of securing bids with a view to providing at the most reasonable price or prices possible, the best available texts on any and all subjects that are to be adopted by the Commission for the schools of Texas. [Acts 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 4; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 34, § 1 (§ 4).]

Explanatory.—Took effect Nov. 15, 1921. The above provision does not supersede all of Art. 2909b as it appears in the 1918 Supplement, but only the last paragraph thereof.

Art. 2909f. Bond of contractor; duties of Attorney General; suits on bond; new bond.—The bidder to whom any contract may have been awarded, shall execute a good and sufficient bond payable to the State of Texas, in the sum of not less than Twenty-Thousand Dollars, ($20,000.00), for each basal book adopted under the provisions of this Act; and a good and sufficient bond payable to the State of Texas in the sum of not less than Three Thousand Dollars ($3,000.00), for each supplementary Text-book adopted under the provisions of this Act; provided further, that the Commission is hereby given authority to require bond in such further and additional sums as it may deem advisable, said bond to be approved by the Commission; such bond to be conditioned that the contractor shall faithfully perform all the conditions of the contract; the contract and bond shall be prepared by the Attorney General, and be payable in Travis County, Texas, and shall be deposited in the office of the Secretary of State. The Bond shall not be exhausted by a single recovery thereon, but may be sued upon from time to time, until the full amount thereof is recovered; and the Texas State Text-book Commission, may, at any time, on twenty days' notice, require a new bond to be given, and the event the contractor shall fail to furnish such new Bond, the Contract of such Contractor, may, at the option of the Texas State Text-book Commission, be forfeited. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 11; Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 13; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 53, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Took effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment. The act, in its title and enacting part, purports to amend “Article 2909(f), Title 48, Chapter 20, of the Revised Civil Statutes,” etc.

Art. 2909ff. Prices to be paid for books; discrimination; suit on bond.—All contracts with publishers for the furnishing of books hereunder shall further stipulate and bind such publishers that they will not hereafter during the life of the respective contracts furnish or offer to furnish and distribute the same book or books under contract with any other State, county or school district in the United States at a lower price than that at which said publishers agree to furnish and distribute the same books under the contracts executed pursuant to this Act, unless such publishers respectfully shall immediately give such lower price to the beneficiaries of the contracts executed hereunder, provided, that in the event any such contract is made it shall be the duty of the Attorney General to institute suit upon the bond hereinabove provided for, for a recovery on behalf of the State of the liquidated damages due under and as provided for in Section 28 of this Act, and proof of a violation of this provision in any particular shall be prima facie evidence of liability in any such suit brought hereunder, and in case that any contractor who has a contract to furnish a book or books for the State under the provisions of this Act shall at any time during the period of this adoption contract with any other State, county or school district in the United States to furnish and distribute the same book or books at a lower price than fixed in accordance with the provisions of this Act, under similar conditions of sale and distribution as may be decided by the Texas State Text Book Commission such lower price shall immediately be given to the State of Texas, and for the breach of any of the conditions and stipulations contained herein or in the respective contracts, the contract may be forfeited and the contractors shall be liable to the State of Texas in liquidated damages in the full amount of the bond; and it shall be the duty of the Attorney General to bring suit on the bond of such contractors for such liquidated damages as provided for in Section 28 hereof [Supplement 1918, Art. 2909n]. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 448; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, § 12: Acts 1917, 1st C. S., ch. 44, § 14; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 34, § 1 (§ 14).]

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

Article 2909¾. Acceptance of Act of Congress; good faith of State pledged.—The State of Texas, hereby accepts the provisions of the Act of Congress, approved February 23, 1917, entitled: "An Act to provide for the promotion of vocational education; to provide for co-operation with the States in the promotion of such education in agriculture, trades and industries, and home economics; to provide for co-operation with the States in the preparation of teachers of vocational subjects; and to appropriate money and regulate its expenditure." The good faith of the State is hereby pledged to make available thorough appropriations for the several purposes of said Act funds sufficient at least to equal the sums allotted, from time to time, to this State for the appropriations made by said Act and to meet all conditions necessary to entitle the State to the benefits of said Act. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 114, § 1.]

Explanatory.—This Act supersedes Act June 5, 1917, 35th Leg. 1st C. S. ch. 45, to the same extent. Took effect 60 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment. Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 18, re-enacts the provisions of this act, and makes an appropriation for the fiscal year 1921-22 and the fiscal year 1922-23.

Art. 2909 3/4a. State Treasurer to be custodian of funds.—The State Treasurer is hereby designated custodian of all funds allotted to this State from the appropriations made by said Act, and he shall receive and provide for the proper custody and disbursements of the same in accordance with this act. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 2909 3/4b. State Board of Education designated State Board for Vocational Education.—The State Board of Education is hereby designated as the State Board for Vocational Education, authorized, and is hereby given all necessary power, to co-operate, as provided in and required by the aforesaid Act of Congress with the Federal Board of Vocational Education in the Administration of the provisions of said Act; and to do all things necessary to entitle the State to receive the full benefits thereof. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 2909 3/4c. Appropriations.—There is hereby appropriated out of the money in the State Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the scholastic year 1919-20, $57,591.26, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be used for salaries of teachers, supervisors, or directors of agricultural subjects in the public schools; $24,671.72, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for salaries of teachers of trade and industrial and home economics subjects in the public schools; and $40,935.47, or so much thereof as may be necessary for training of teachers of vocational subjects in the colleges of the State, to be conditioned upon receiving a like sum from the Federal Board for Vocational Education to be used for similar purposes, and for the scholastic year 1920-21, $69,687.89, or so much thereof as may be necessary for salaries of teachers, supervisors, or directors of agricultural subjects in the public schools; $26,133.06, or so much thereof as may be necessary for paying salaries of teachers of trade and industrial and home economics subjects in the public schools: $49,362.16, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for training of teachers of vocational subjects in the colleges of the State, to be conditioned upon receiving a like sum from the Federal Board of Vocational Education to be used for similar purposes; provided, that such amounts may be expended from each of these funds as, in the judgment of the State Board of Vocational Education, may be necessary for such expenses of direction and supervision of the work as will enable the State to secure the full benefit of the appropriation of the Federal government under the Smith-Hughes Act. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 2909 3/4d. Purpose of appropriation.—It is hereby expressly provided that all appropriations by local school boards for the purposes of this Act, and all appropriations by the State in its educational budgets that come within the provisions of this Act shall be allowed to compensate for the appropriations herein provided; and that the appropriations of this Act are simply a guarantee of good faith on the part of the State in the administration of the Federal Vocational Education Act; and are to be actually distributed only in order to secure to the State the full benefits of the Federal appropriation or, in case of necessity, to preserve the good name of the State; provided, that the State Board for Vocational Education is hereby authorized to permit the expenditure by the State of amounts not exceeding more than $25,000.00 for 1919-20 and $25,000.00 for 1920-21, for aid in securing the benefits of the Federal appropriation to the rural schools and schools of small towns, the remainder of the funds required to duplicate Federal funds being required of school Boards accepting Federal funds under the provisions of this Act. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 2909(%e). Schools entitled to benefits of appropriation.—In order for any school to secure the benefits of the appropriation for the purposes specified in this Act, plans shall be submitted to the State Board of Vocational Education showing the kinds of vocation for which it is proposed that the appropriation shall be used; the kind of school & equipment; courses of study; methods of instruction; qualifications of teachers and plans for the supervision and in the case of teacher-training institutions, plans for the training of teachers, as provided in the Federal Act. Such plans shall be submitted to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction upon the form prescribed by the State Board for Vocational Education, and approved by the Federal Board for Vocational Education. It shall be the duty of the State Superintendent as secretary of the State Board for Vocational Education, to make a thorough investigation of such application submitted for aid under this Act, and the State Board for Vocational Education shall require a certificate that each school applying for aid under this Act meets substantially the requirements of the law before aid in any amount is granted. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 2909(%f). Studies, etc., as vocational education.—The State Board for Vocational Education shall have authority to make studies and investigations relating to Vocational Education, to advise with the Federal Board having in charge the direction of this work, to prescribe qualifications for the teachers, directors, & supervisors of the subjects for which provision is made in this Act, provided that they do not conflict with regulations of the said Federal Board, and to provide for the certification of such teachers, directors, and supervisors. [Id., § 7.]
ELECTIONS

TIME AND PLACE OF HOLDING ELECTIONS

Art. 2910. Elections, general, time for holding.

Statutes mandatory.—Provisions of statutes regulating time and place of elections are mandatory, and an election held on some other day than that specified is void. Gray v. Ingleside Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 360.

Art. 2911. Elections, special, etc.

See State v. Cook, 78 Tex. 406, 14 S. W. 996.

In general.—Under this article, and arts. 1356, 1357, 1361, 1362, 2930, 2933, the county judge may order an election for the election of officers for a newly organized county without waiting until the next general election. Earnest v. Woodlee (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 963.

Art. 2912. Polls, hours of opening and closing.

Provision directory.—This article, and arts. 605, 786, 787, as to time during which polls shall be open and when they shall close, are directory. Kempen v. Bruns (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 643.

In view of this article, and art. 605, held, that bond election is not invalidated by holding polls open until 7 p. m., in spite of arts. 786, 787, as to election of mayor and aldermen. Id.

Where judges of election were under the impression that the hour for closing the polls was 6 o'clock, and at that hour one of the judges left the voting place, but no public announcement was made that the polls were closed, permitting one to vote a few minutes after 6 was only an irregularity, which did not invalidate the election. Winters v. Independent School Dist. of Evant (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 574.

Art. 2913. Precincts, election, formed how and when, publication.

Voting precincts how established.—Under prior statutes corresponding to this article and art. 2914, held, that the establishment of two voting precincts in a justice precinct, so as to include a city having four wards and a part of the surrounding country, does not invalidate an election held therein. Henry, J., dissenting. (Davis v. State, 76 Tex. 424, 12 S. W. 957, followed.) Bell v. Faulkner, 84 Tex. 157, 19 S. W. 480.

CHAPTER TWO OFFICERS OF ELECTION

Article 2925. Compensation of judges and clerks; working day.—Judges and clerks of general and special elections shall be paid three dollars a day each and thirty cents per hour for any time in excess of a days work as herein defined; and the judge who delivers the returns of election immediately after the votes have been counted shall be paid two dollars for that service, provided the polling place of his precinct is at least two miles from the court house, and provided also he shall make returns of all election supplies not used when he makes return of the election. Ten working hours shall be considered a day within the meaning of this Article. [Acts 1905, 1 S. S., p. 557, § 146; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 112, § 1, amending art. 2925, Rev. Civ. St.]

Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Article 2926. Payment of compensation.—The compensation of judges and clerks of general and special elections shall be paid by the County Treasurer of the county where such services are rendered, upon the order of the Commissioners' Court of such county. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 112, § 1, amending art. 2926, Rev. Civ. St.]

CHAPTER THREE
ORDERING ELECTIONS, ETC.

Article 2929. Proclamation of election, etc. See Borches v. State, 33 T. Cr. R. 96, 25 S. W. 423.

Article 2930. Order for election, etc. See Borches v. State, 33 T. Cr. R. 96, 25 S. W. 423.

In general.—Under this article, and arts. 1356, 1357, 1361, 1362, 2911, 2933, the county judge may order an election for the election of officers for a newly organized county without waiting until the next general election. Earnest v. Woodlee (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 963.

Article 2933. Notice of election, etc. See 1918 Supp., arts. 6016 1/4-6016 3/4, as to newspaper publication instead of posting.

Applicable to county organization elections.—This article, relating to duties of county judge concerning elections, may be applied to an election relating to the organization of a county, in view of art. 3081. Earnest v. Woodlee (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 963.

Article 2936. [1805] [1754] In case of a tie another election shall be held.

Effect of ordering special election.—Where a candidate for the office of county and district clerk was legally elected at a general election, a special election ordered thereafter, on the ground that the vote was a tie, held not to deprive such candidate of his right to hold the office. Stubbs v. Moursund (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 432.
CHAPTER FOUR

SUFFRAGE

Article 2938. Qualifications for voting; who not qualified.

Legislative authority.—The Legislature, subject to restrictions of organic law, the federal and state Constitutions, has full power and authority to deal as it may see fit with subject of suffrage at any election which may be required or authorized by law. Koy v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 369, 221 S. W. 880, denying rehearing 110 Tex. 369, 218 S. W. 479.

Suffrage clause of state Constitution being restrictive in its operation, its legal effect is to deprive Legislature of authority to take from or add to specified qualifications of electors in any election to which clause applies. Id.

There is no inherent right for the people to vote or to hold an election, such subjects being governed by constitutional and legislative provisions, which regulations, designed to secure the freedom of the voters, the security and purity of the ballot, and the certainty of the result, should not be entirely ignored. Trustees of Independent School Dist. No. 57 v. Elbon (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 1039.

Women.—Women are "citizens," within Bill of Rights of Constitution of Texas, though citizenship does not necessarily carry privilege of suffrage. Koy v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 369, 221 S. W. 880, denying rehearing 110 Tex. 369, 218 S. W. 479.

Article 2939. [1731] Qualifications for voting; voting by absentee.

—Every person subject to none of the foregoing disqualifications who shall have attained the age of twenty-one years, and who shall be a citizen of the United States, and who shall have resided in this State one year next preceding an election, and the last six months within the district or county in which he or she offers to vote, shall be deemed a qualified elector; and every person of foreign birth, subject to none of the foregoing disqualifications, and who has, not less than six months before an election in which he or she offers to vote, declared his or her intention to become a citizen of the United States, in accordance with the Federal naturalization laws, and shall have resided in this State one year next preceding such election and the last six months in the county in which he or she offers to vote, shall also be deemed a qualified voter; and all electors shall vote in the voting precinct of their residence; provided, that the electors living in an unorganized county may vote at an election precinct in the county to which such county is attached for judicial purposes; and provided, further that any voter who is subject to pay his or her poll tax under the laws of the State of Texas or ordinances of any city or town in this State, shall have paid said tax before he or she offers to vote at any election in this State, and hold a receipt showing the payment of his or her poll tax before the first day of February next preceding such election; and, if he or she is exempt from paying a poll tax and resides in a city of ten thousand inhabitants or more, he or she must procure a certificate showing his or her exemption, as required by this Title. Or, if such voter shall have lost or misplaced said tax receipt, he or she shall be entitled to vote, upon making affidavit before any officer authorized to administer oaths that such tax was paid by him or her before said first day of February next preceding such election at which he or she offers to vote, and that said receipt has been lost, misplaced or inadvertently left at home. Such affidavit shall be made in writing and left with the judge of the election. Provided, that in any election held only in a subdivision of a county for the purpose of determining any local question or proposition affecting only such subdivision of the county, then, in addition to the foregoing qualifications, the voter must have resided in said subdivision of the county for six months next preceding such election.

Any qualified elector, as defined by the statutes of his State, who expects to be absent from the county of his or her residence, and at any other place in this State, on the day of his or her election may vote subject to the following conditions, to wit: At some time not more than ten days nor less than three days prior to the date of such election such elector shall make his or her personal appearance before the County Clerk of his or her residence, and if personally unknown to such clerk, shall be identified by at least two reputable citizens of such county, and shall deliver to such clerk his or her poll tax receipt, or exemption certificate, entitled him or her to vote at such election, and said clerk shall deliver to such elector one ballot which has been prepared in accordance with the law for use in such election, which shall then and there be marked by said elector apart and without the assistance or suggestion of any other person, in such manner as said elector shall desire same to be voted, which ballot shall be folded and placed in a sealed envelope and delivered to said clerk who shall keep the same so sealed, and who shall also keep said poll tax receipt or certificate open to the inspection of any person who may wish to examine or see same until the second day prior to said election, and said clerk shall on said second day place the said poll tax receipt or certificate, together with the said sealed envelope containing said marked ballot, in another envelope which shall be by said clerk then mailed to the presiding judge of the voting precinct in which said elector lives, or at sometime not more than twenty days nor less than ten days prior to the date of such election, such elector shall make his personal appearance before a notary public, and if personally unknown to such notary public, shall be identified by at least two reputable citizens of this State, and shall deliver to such notary public his poll tax receipt or exemption certificate, entitled said elector to vote at such election, or if such elector shall have lost or misplaced his or her poll tax receipt, he shall be entitled to vote upon making affidavit before any officer authorized to administer oaths that such poll tax was actually paid by him or her before said first day of February next preceding such election at which he or she offers to vote and that said receipt had been lost, misplaced or left at home and in such case the affidavit so made shall be sent by the officer administering the oath to the County Clerk of the county in which said elector resides. It shall then be the duty of such County Clerk receiving the affidavit to verify same by examining the poll tax records of the county wherein said elector resides, and said notary public shall mail same to the County Clerk of the county of residence of such elector along with affidavit of the applicant that said applicant is the elector so named, and upon receipt of the poll tax receipt or exemption certificate, the County Clerk shall mail to such elector one ballot which has been prepared in accordance with the law for use in such election under.
registered letter marked "Official ballot for such elector (giving elector's name) not to be opened except in the presence of a notary public," printed on outside of letter. Such elector shall make oath before such notary public that such ballot was then and there marked by said elector apart and without assistance or suggestions of any other person, in such manner as said elector shall desire, same to be voted, which ballot shall be folded and placed in a sealed envelope together with such affidavit which shall be marked on the outside of said envelope "Official ballot of such elector, giving elector's name," and mailed by such notary public to County Clerk of the county wherein said elector votes, who shall keep same so sealed, and who shall also keep said poll tax receipt or certificate open to the inspection of any person who may wish to examine or see same until the second day prior to said election, and said clerk shall on said day place the said poll tax receipt or certificate together with the said sealed envelope containing said marked ballot in another envelope which shall be by said clerk then mailed to the presiding judge of the voting precinct in which said elector lives. The postage for the entire correspondence herein made necessary to be provided by said elector. In the presence of the election officers provided by law, and on the day of such election and between the hours of two and three o'clock the said presiding judge of same in the precinct of the residence of said elector shall open the envelope containing said poll tax receipts and marked ballots and publicly announce that the ballot of such named electors is proposed to be cast, at which time any person who desires to challenge said vote and the right of same to be cast, shall be heard to present such challenge, and if there be no challenge of same, said vote shall be cast and counted according to the law; but if there be any challenge of such vote legal cause for same shall be heard and decided according to the law provided in the case of challenge; and in case no challenge is made, such poll tax receipt, after same is marked "Voted" as provided by law, shall be mailed back to the said county clerk. But in case of challenge, if challenged, such poll tax receipt together with affidavits relating thereto shall be mailed by said judge of election to the county clerk of such county who shall keep same for thirty days and if no demand be made for the production of same before any body or person in authority within said time, said county clerk shall deliver such receipt to the owners thereof. When voted the judge of election shall mark opposite the name of such absentee voter the word "Absentee." * * *; provided that the provisions of this act providing for absentee voting or casting ballots with the county clerk shall apply to any and all primary elections only. [Acts 1905, 1 S. S., p. 520, § 2; Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 40, § 1; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 6, §§ 4, 4a; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 113, § 1, amending art. 2939, Rev. Civ. St. 1911, as amended.]

Explanatory.—Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment. The part of the section at the place indicated by asterisks is set forth post, as art. 259a, Penal Code.

Right of suffrage.—Suffrage is not a natural or inalienable right, yet it is a privilege conferred by the Constitution, and is not to be taken away, except by clear command of law. Moore v. Plott (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 958.

Construction.—The suffrage clause of Const. art. 6, § 2, restricting to males privilege of voting in any election within its legal effect and operation, is not in any legal sense remedial, and does not require on that ground a liberal construction. Roy v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 369, 221 S. W. 880, denying rehearing 110 Tex. 369, 221 S. W. 479.

Residence.—Women are "citizens," within Bill of Rights of Constitution of Texas, though citizenship does not necessarily carry privilege of suffrage. Roy v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 369, 221 S. W. 880, denying rehearing 110 Tex. 369, 221 S. W. 479.

Character of election.—An "election," as the term is used in Const. art. 6, § 3, stating the qualifications of voters at an election, does not include primary elections, which have been held to be elections within the meaning of article 8, § 8, giving the district court jurisdiction of contested elections, so that the Woman Suffrage Act (art. 317a), permitting females possessing the qualifications of electors as defined by the Constitution, except as to sex, to vote in primary elections, is not invalid on that account. Hamilton v. Davis (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 431.

Art. 317a, empowering women to vote at primary elections, does not violate Const. art. 6, § 2, making only male persons qualified electors at elections within the state, since the word "elections" in the Constitution refers only to governmental elections and not to preliminary and non-governmental activities like primary elections. Kay v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 369, 218 S. W. 478.

Not all restrictions which Constitution of Texas imposes on legislative action concerning elections are applicable indiscriminately to all elections; whether a particular restriction is applicable to a particular election depending on character of election. Kay v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 369, 221 S. W. 880, denying rehearing 110 Tex. 369, 218 S. W. 478.

Under art. 317a, women may vote at primary elections; such act not violating Const. art. 6, § 2, making only male persons qualified electors at elections within the state, since the word "elections," in the Constitution, refers only to governmental elections, and not to preliminary and non-governmental activities, like primary elections.

"Governmental elections," unlike primary elections or conventions, are elections, such as general elections, which directly and finally affect all the people of the included territory, and determine finally who shall hold public office, or whether a particular governmental policy shall prevail. Id.

Art. 2939a. Poll tax shall be paid by women.—The poll tax herein levied shall apply to women as well as to men, and every person who has been made a qualified voter in this State under the Nineteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States and who was over twenty-one years of age and under sixty years of age on the first day of January, A. D. 1920, must pay the poll tax herein levied prior to the first day of February, 1921, in order to participate in elections, general, special or primary, held within this State or any subdivision or municipality thereof between the first day of February, 1921, and the thirty-first day of January, 1922, both dates inclusive. [Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 6, § 5.]

Art. 2939b. Persons entitled to vote.—All persons, both male and female, who have heretofore paid the poll tax or secured exemption certificates required by existing laws for voting in primary or general elections held within this State for the year 1920, and all persons, both male and female, who were over the age of sixty years on the first day of January, 1919, and who do not reside within cities of ten thousand inhabitants or over, shall be entitled to vote in all elections within the State of Texas which may be held prior to the first day of February, A. D. 1921. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 2939c. Extension of time for paying poll tax.—All persons, male and female, who possess the qualifications of a voter within this State under the Constitution and laws of the United States, but who have not heretofore paid a poll tax within the time prescribed by the laws of this State in order to entitle them, if they had been otherwise qualified, to vote, shall have and are hereby granted until the twenty-second day of October, A. D. 1920, in which to pay the poll tax of the same amount heretofore collected from male persons only as a prerequisite to voting in elections held in this State prior to February 1, A. D. 1921, which tax when so paid shall entitle the persons paying the same to a poll tax receipt and shall entitle the holder thereof to vote in the general election in November, 1920, and in all other elections, general, special, municipal and primary, held within this State prior to the first day of February, A. D. 1921, subject, however, to all other rules and restrictions now provided by the laws governing elections. [Id., § 7.]

22 SUPP. V. S. CIV. ST. TEX.—57 897
Art. 2939d. Obtaining exemption certificates.—All persons resident within this State on the first day of January, A. D., 1920, and who were on said last named date over the age of sixty-one years, and all such persons who have become twenty-one years of age since January 1, A. D. 1920, shall, if otherwise qualified under existing laws, be entitled to vote in all elections mentioned in the preceding sections of this Act, by obtaining, prior to October 22, 1920, exemption certificates of the same kind now prescribed by the election laws of this State; provided, however, that all persons resident within this State on the first day of January, A. D. 1920, and who were more than sixty years of age on the first day of January, A. D. 1919, and who do not live in cities of ten thousand inhabitants or over, and who are otherwise qualified, may participate in elections, general, special, municipal and primary held within this State prior to February 1, 1921, without obtaining exemption certificates; and provided further that discharged soldiers, sailors and marines whose poll taxes were remitted by Act of the Thirty-sixth Legislature passed at the First Called Session hereof, and approved on the ninth day of May, A. D. 1919, and known as Chapter 3 of the Acts of the First Called Session of the Thirty-sixth Legislature, may vote as provided for in said Act without obtaining exemption certificates. [Id., § 8.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1st Called Sess. of 36th Leg., ch. 3, is temporary in its nature and is not included in this compilation.

Art. 2939e. Tax collectors may issue receipts and exemption certificates.—The tax collectors of the various counties in this State shall issue poll tax receipts and exemption certificates to all persons entitled under the provisions of Sections 7 and 8 of this Act [arts. 2939c, 2939d] to receive the same, and who apply therefor prior to October 22, 1920. [Id., § 9.]

Art. 2939f. Lists of persons paying poll taxes.—Prior to the twenty-eighth day of October, 1920, the county tax collector of each county shall deliver to the board that is charged with the duty, under the general election laws of this State, of furnishing election supplies, separate certified lists of the persons in each precinct who have paid their poll tax or obtained exemption certificates as permitted or required under Sections 7 and 8 of this Act [Arts. 2939c, 2939d] the names being arranged in alphabetical order, and to each name the proper number as shown by the duplicate, with description of the voter as to his residence, voting precinct, length of residence in State and county, race, occupation and address, or if the voter resides in an incorporated city, the ward and street and number of the voter's residence, if numbered. If the county has any unorganized county or counties attached to it for judicial purposes, the collector of taxes shall furnish to said board before October twenty-eighth, as many certified lists of the electors resident in such unorganized county or counties, as there are election precincts in such unorganized county, which lists as respects poll tax receipts and exemption certificates shall be identical with those required for poll tax receipts and exemption certificates under prior laws. Said board shall furnish each presiding judge of the precinct a certified list of the voters of his precinct who have complied with the provisions of this Act, and at the same time that other election supplies are furnished, and such lists of qualified voters shall be in the form required by Article 2961, Revised Civil Statutes of 1911. [Id., § 10.]
Art. 2939g. Custody of duplicate receipts and exemption certificates.—The county tax collector of each county in the State shall keep securely in a safe place the duplicates for each precinct from which the said poll tax receipts and exemption certificates have been detached, and they must remain there except when taken out for examination, which must always be done in his presence, but they shall be burned by the county judge at the expiration of one year, if no election contest shall have, in the meantime, been instituted. [Id., § 11.]

Art. 2939h. Report to county clerk.—On or before the thirty-first day of October, A. D. 1920, the collector of taxes in each county in this State shall make statement to the county clerk showing how many poll tax receipts and exemption certificates he has issued under the provisions of Sections 7 and 8 of this Act [Arts. 2939c, 2939d], and to whom issued, in which voting precinct in the county, and such statement shall become a record of the county and as such shall be kept by the county clerk. [Id., § 12.]

Art. 2939i. Disposition of poll taxes collected.—The poll taxes collected by virtue of this Act shall be and are hereby set aside to the State and county and to the particular funds thereof as now prescribed by law for poll taxes heretofore collected. [Id., § 13.]

Art. 2939j. Act cumulative.—This Act shall be construed as being cumulative to the election laws of this State now in force, except that in case of conflict this Act shall control. [Id., § 14.]

Art. 2940. Qualifications for voting in city elections.

In general.—In city election involving expenditure of funds, where voter told judges that he had no taxable property within city, it was their duty to refuse his ballot, since it was his duty to show that he was qualified. Kempen v. Bruns (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 643.

Although Constitution provides that at elections to determine expenditure of money or assumption of debt by towns and cities only taxpayers can vote, since taxpayer is defined as property owner, it is not essential that property tax be actually paid, nor is assessment roll the only evidence of payment. Id.

Art. 2941. “Residence” defined.

Question of fact.—Under this article, and art. 2952, defining residence as actual physical living in place, question of residence held one of fact. Garvey v. Cain (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 766.

Art. 2942. Poll tax collected from whom; when paid; receipt.—A poll tax shall be collected from every person between the ages of twenty-one and sixty years who resided in this State on the first day of January preceding its levy, Indians not taxed, persons insane, blind, deaf or dumb and those who have lost a hand or foot, or permanently disabled, excepted; which tax shall be collected and accounted for by the tax collector each year and appropriated as required by law. It shall be paid at any time between the first day of October and the first day of February following; and the person, when he pays it, shall be entitled to his poll tax receipt, even if his other taxes are unpaid. [Acts 1905, 1 S. S., p. 520, § 12; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 6, § 2 amending art. 2942, Rev. Civ. St.]

Persons entering state after January first.—One who did not become a citizen of the state until November 1, 1915, was a qualified voter in an election held in January, 1916, under Const. art. 6, § 2, although he paid no poll tax for the year 1915, not being subject to such a tax. Winters v. Independent School Dist. of Evant (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 574.

Under Const. art. 6, § 2, art. 7, § 3, art. 8, § 1, Rev. St. 1911, art. 7692, poll tax becomes due on January 1st, and persons entering the state after such date need not pay such tax in order to be qualified voters. Earnest v. Woodlee (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 963.
Art. 2943. Poll tax, who not required to pay.—Every person who is more than sixty years old or who is blind or deaf or dumb, or is permanently disabled, or has lost one hand or foot, shall be entitled to vote without being required to pay a poll tax, if he has obtained his certificate of exemption from the county collector when the same is required by the provisions of this title. [Acts 1905, 1 S. S., p. 520, § 6; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 6, § 3.]

Art. 2952. Poll tax receipt in case of removal to another county or precinct; proviso.

Residence question of fact.—Under art. 2941, and this article, defining residence as actual physical living in place, question of residence held one of fact. Garvey v. Cain (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 765.

Art. 2954. Minor reaching majority between Feb. 1, and election day, etc.

Application.—There was nothing to prevent one who became of age during the year 1917 to sign a petition for the organization of a county early in April, 1918, although he had not paid poll tax for 1917, and did not have an exemption certificate; this article not applying. Earnest v. Woodlee (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 963.

Art. 2961. Lists of poll taxpayers, etc.

Arts. 2963a—2963k.

Explanatory.—Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 3, gave discharged sailors, soldiers and marines the right to vote in the years 1919 and 1920 without the payment of poll taxes. It is omitted from this compilation as being temporary.

SUFFRAGE—WOMEN

Articles 2963¼—2963¼f.

Explanatory.—The act appearing at this place in Texas Complete Statutes 1920 appears in this compilation as arts. 3171a—3171g, post.

CHAPTER FIVE

OFFICIAL BALLOT

Art. 2969. Ballots, how printed; form, etc.

2969. Ballots, how printed; form, etc.
2970. Ballot, further regulations as to.
2971. Constitutional amendment and other questions, how submitted.

Art. 2973. Ballots, how many furnished.
2974. Ballots (counted), etc.

Mutilation.—There is no statutory law prohibiting a mutilated ballot from being counted, and if the intent of the voter can be ascertained by the ballot cast, in the light of surrounding circumstances, effect should be given to the ballot in accordance with such intent. Stubbs v. Moursund (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 632.

A ballot at a general election cast for district and county clerk, whereon perpendicular lead pencil lines had been drawn through all the party tickets, one of them indicating an attempted erasure, and other horizontal pencil marks had been made through the names of certain candidates, the face of the ballot was ambiguous, and permitted the voter who cast it to explain why he voted it in that condition. Id.

Where a ballot cast at an election for district and county clerk bore horizontal lead pencil marks through the initials of the names of candidates for that office, such ballot held sufficiently to indicate that the voter did not intend to vote for such candidates, but did intend to vote for those whose names were not marked in any respect. Id.
Directory provisions.—This article is only directory as far as "writing the name of the candidate for whom a voter desires to vote in the blank column, and in the space provided for such purpose," is concerned, and a vote was not illegal, where the printed name of the candidate was scratched and the name of another written in the space provided for the printed name. Moore v. Piott (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 958.

Art. 2970. Ballot, further regulations as to.
In general.—Under art. 3172, authorizing a nominee to decline nomination 20 days before election, a nominee by independent petition is entitled to be certified as such by the secretary of state after he declined a nomination by a party, notwithstanding this article, prohibiting the name of any candidate appearing more than once on the official ballot. Westerman v. Mims (Sup.) 227 S. W. 178.

Art. 2971. Constitutional amendment and other questions, how submitted.
In general.—Under Rev. St. art. 2971, printing on ballot furnished voters at election on proposed changes to charter of city of Dallas, submitted under Home-Rule Bill, of propositions as to proposed ordinances granting franchises, held not illegal, art. 3097, as to printed matter on ballots, applying. Shaw v. Lindsley (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 338.

Art. 2973. Ballots, how many furnished.

Art. 2974. Ballots (counted) etc.

CHAPTER SIX
SUPPLIES, ARRANGEMENTS, AND EXPENSES OF ELECTION

Art. 2980. Guard rails, etc.
Art. 2983. Board to provide election supplies.

Article 2980. Guard rails, etc.
See Twin City Co. v. Birchfield (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 618.

Art. 2983. Board to provide election supplies.

Art. 2986. Collector's fees, etc.
In general.—Tax collector held entitled to retain 10 cents for each poll tax receipt issued by him in addition to maximum fees allowed by arts. 3881-3883, 3887, 3889, 3893, 3897, since this article was not repealed thereby. Curtin v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 463.
Prior laws.—Under Acts 25th Leg. Sp. Sess. c. 5, approved June 16, 1897, as amended by Acts 25th Leg. Sp. Sess. c. 15, approved June 19, 1897, county collectors of taxes who were to receive only 10 cents for each poll tax receipt and certificate of exception issued by them were those subject to all requirements of sections 11 and 16. Moorman v. Terrell, 169 Tex. 173, 202 S. W. 727.

CHAPTER SEVEN
MANNER OF CONDUCTING ELECTIONS AND MAKING RETURNS THEREOF

Art. 2994. Judges, appointment by voters, etc.
Art. 3001. Poll tax receipt stamping, etc.
Art. 3002. One voter at a time in booth; assistance of illiterates; interpreter; supervisors may be present.
Art. 3004. Judges, etc., shall not electioneer, etc.
Art. 3007. Ballot boxes and ballots, custody; admission to polls.
Art. 3008. Defective, etc., ballots, etc.
Art. 3009. Deposit and count, etc.
Art. 3011. Signature of judge, etc.
Art. 3012. Ballots which shall not be counted.
Article 2994. Judges, appointment by voters, etc.

Election returns.—In view of this article, and arts. 3024, and 3031, relating to counting and canvassing of election returns, the admission in evidence of papers designated as tally sheets and election returns for the purpose of showing an election was error, where no one testified as to who prepared the papers, nor that they were accurately made and they were only signed by a clerk, and not in such form as to constitute any part of the lawful return of an election. Griffith v. State (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 469.

Art. 3001. Poll tax receipt stamping, etc.

Signature of presiding judge.—Under this article, and art. 3011, 50 ballots for county treasurer, without signature of presiding judge written on blank side when they were cast, counted, and returned for candidate, were illegal. Shipman v. Jones (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 329.

Art. 3003. One voter at a time in booth; assistance to illiterates; interpreter; supervisor may be present, etc.—Not more than one person at the same time shall be permitted to occupy any one compartment, voting booth or place prepared for a voter, nor shall any assistance be given a voter in preparing his ballot, except when a voter is unable to prepare the same himself because of some bodily infirmity, such as renders him physically unable to write, or is over sixty years of age and is unable to read and write, in which case two judges of such election shall assist him, they having been first sworn that they will not suggest, by word or sign or gesture, how such voter shall vote; and they will confine their assistance to answering his questions, to naming candidates, and the political parties to which they belong, and that they will prepare his ballot as such voter himself shall direct: provided that the voter must in every case explain in the English language how he wishes to vote, and no judge of the election shall use any other than the English language in aiding the voter, or in performing any of his duties as such judge of the election, and in all cases where assistance is given hereunder, two judges of the election shall assist such voter, they having been first sworn that they will not suggest by word, sign, or gesture, how such voter shall vote; that they will confine their assistance to answering his questions in the English language, to naming candidates, and, if the voting be at a general election, to naming the parties to which such candidates belong, and that they will prepare the ballot as such voter directs, in the English language; and where any assistance is rendered in preparing a ballot other than as herein allowed, the ballot shall not be counted, but shall be void for all purposes. If the election be a general election, the judges who assist such voters shall be different political parties, if there be such judges present, and if the election be a primary election, a supervisor, or supervisors, may be present, when the assistance here-in permitted is being given, but such supervisor or supervisors must remain silent except in cases of irregularity or violation of the law. [Acts 1903, 1 S. S. p. 533, § 82; Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 30, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 55, § 1.]

Took effect March 13, 1919.

Art. 3004. Judge, etc., shall not electioneer, etc.

Electioneering.—In city election for issuance of bonds, it is not improper electioneering to print upon notice of election statement that city was without funds to build sewers which public health required. Kempen v. Bruns (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 645.
Art. 3007. Ballot boxes and ballots, custody; admission to polls. - From the time of opening the polls until the announcement of the results of the canvass of votes cast and the signing of the official returns the boxes and official ballots shall be kept at the polling place in the presence of one or more of the judges and supervisors, if there are any. No person shall be admitted within the room where the election is being held, except the judges, clerks, persons admitted by the presiding judge to preserve order, supervisors of election, and persons admitted for the purpose of voting. [Acts 1905, 1 S. S., p. 533, § 76; Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 30, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

Art. 3008. Defective, etc., ballots, etc.

Mutated ballots.—A ballot cast for district and county clerk, containing horizontal marks through names of certain candidates, and also perpendicular lead pencil marks through all the party tickets, one of which marks, indicating an attempted erasure, held not a "mutated" ballot; "mutated" meaning "destitute or deprived of some essential or valuable part; greatly shortened." Stubbs v. Moursund (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 622.

Art. 3009. Deposit and count, etc.

Art. 3011. Signature of judge, etc.

Necessity.—Under this article, and art. 3001, 50 ballots for county treasurer, without signature of presiding judge written on blank side when they were cast, counted, and returned for candidate, were illegal. Shipman v. Jones (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 528.

Art. 3012. [1741] [1697] Ballots which shall not be counted.

Ballots must be numbered.—Under Const. art. 6, § 4, relating to elections, and directing the legislature to provide for the numbering of ballots, the legislature enacted Rev. St. 1879, arts. 1694, 1697, which, respectively direct a judge of election to write the voter's poll-list number on the ballot, and forbid the counting of an unnumbered ballot. Held, that article 1694, is mandatory and that article 1697 is binding on the courts, as well as the officers of election. State v. Connor, 86 Tex. 133, 23 S. W. 1106.

Art. 3024. [1743] [1698] Return of elections, how and to whom made.

Irregularities not invalidating election.—Where the manner in which the votes cast at an election were returned to the commissioners' court of the county was irregular, but there was no showing of fraud, or that the returns were changed or tampered with, or that the free exercise of the voters' franchise was in any way affected thereby, such votes should be counted. Hillman v. Kuykendall (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 242.

Returns as evidence.—In view of this article, and arts. 2994 and 3031, relating to counting and canvassing of election returns, the admission in evidence of papers designated as tally sheets and election returns for the purpose of showing an election was error, where no one testified as to who prepared the papers, nor that they were accurately made and they were only signed by a clerk, and not in such form as to constitute any part of the lawful return of an election. Griffith v. State (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 469.

Art. 3030. [1753] [1705] County commissioners shall open returns, when.

Determination by commissioners.—Under this article, and arts. 3031, 3032, 3044a, commissioners' court was acting within province of its lawful duties in determining whether particular returns should be estimated in the canvases, though such action in rejecting particular returns may have been wrongful. Jackson v. Houser (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 186.

As evidence.—The estimate of the commissioners' court as to result of election under this article, followed by the issuance of certificate of election by county judge under art. 3032, is prima facie evidence of right of office, and is conclusive evidence of such right until it shall have been otherwise determined in some appropriate manner.
ELECTIONS (Title 49)

Art. 3031. [1754] [1706] Returns shall not be estimated, unless, etc.

See Jackson v. Houser (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 186.

Cited, Wells v. Commissioners’ Court of Presidio County (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 608; Griffith v. State (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 469.

Art. 3032. [1755] [1707] Certificates of election to county and precinct officers.

See Jackson v. Houser (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 186.

Art. 3036. [1758] [1710] Such returns shall be counted, when, etc.

Operative date of constitutional amendment.—Const. art. 17, § 1, provides that when a vote has been had on adopting a constitutional amendment returns shall be made to the secretary of state, and if the amendment receives a majority of the votes cast it becomes a part of the constitution, and proclamation shall be made by the governor thereof. Held, under Rev. St. 1879, art. 1710, that as the amendment to Const. 1876, art. 8, § 9, was ratified by vote August 14, 1883, it did not become operative until after 40 days, and proclamation was not until proclaimed by the governor on September 25, 1883. Texas Water & Gas Co. v. City of Cleburne, 1 Civ. App. 580, 21 S. W. 395.

Art. 3044. [1766] [1718] County judge shall certify, etc.

County commissioners have 30 days within which to qualify.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 1715, county commissioners have at least 30 days within which to qualify for office. Cassin v. Zavalla County, 70 Tex. 419, 8 S. W. 97.

Art. 3044a. Uniform date for qualification of all county and precinct officers.—That after each general election in this State, those who are elected to the various county and precinct offices in the State, shall qualify by taking the oath of office and entering upon and assuming the duties of their respective offices, as prescribed by law, on the first day of January, following the last general election, or as soon thereafter as possible. And all those officers holding offices at the time of such general election shall surrender their offices to their successors accordingly on such date, or as soon after such date, as their said successors shall have qualified, and be ready to assume the duties thereof. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 143, § 1; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 45, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 2 repeals all laws in conflict. The act took effect 90 days after March 17, 1921, date of adjournment.

Holding over.—The holdover whose term of office has expired has no right to or interest in the office itself, his only right and duty being to protect its possession against an intruder until the qualification of his successor. Jackson v. Houser (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 186.

Holdover officer is fully absolved from further liability as to the preservation of records and the further discharge of the duties of his office when he shall have delivered them to the holder of the certificate of election from properly constituted authorities after having duly qualified according to law. Id.

Const. art. 16, § 17, requiring officers to perform their duties until their successors shall be duly qualified, has reference to public or governmental officers, and officers of a political party, though provided for by statutory law, are not to be regarded as public or governmental officers, so that the provision does not authorize the county executive committee of a party to hold over until their successors are qualified. Walker v. Hopping (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 146.

Even in the absence of any express provision of the governing law, officers, whether state, municipal, corporation, or otherwise, hold over until their successors are chosen and qualified, and this rule applies, in the absence of a regulation or usage of a political party, to the county executive committeemen of the party. Id.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Muttilated ballots—Validity.—There is no statutory law prohibiting a mutilated ballot from being counted, and if the intent of the voter can be ascertained by the ballot cast, in the light of surrounding circumstances, effect should be given to the ballot in accordance with such intent. Stubbs v. Moursund (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 632.
CHAPTER EIGHT

CONTESTING ELECTIONS

Art. 3046. [1793] Contest of election for district attorney.

Jurisdiction of district court.—Suits by duly elected treasurer of county against two persons, one of whom usurped office and illegally held it for year, when he resigned to make place for other, under appointment from county judge, held suits for an office, of which district court had jurisdiction, though this and following articles were not complied with. Shipman v. Jones (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 325.

Jurisdiction of district court of contested election can be invoked only by compliance with this and following articles, executing Const. art. 5, § 8, conferring on district court jurisdiction of contested elections. Id.

Const. art. 5, § 8, as amended, in 1891, to give district court jurisdiction of contested elections, and this and following articles, prescribing rules by which contest may be tried, enlarged jurisdiction of district court, and did not limit its original power to try suit for office. Id.

The constitutional amendment conferring jurisdiction upon a district court to hear and determine election contests is not self-executing. Barker v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 542.

Art. 3050. [1797] Other contested elections than for officers.

Collateral attack on charter amendment election.—In action involving the right of a street railroad to remove tracks from certain streets and extend system in other street in which it was claimed that the city had a right to authorize such extension under the charter as amended, the validity of the election at which the charter was amended will not be inquired into, under this article, since the result of the election cannot be attacked in a collateral proceeding. Jones v. Dallas Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 907.

Art. 3051. [1798] Notice of contest.

See Bell v. Faulkner, 84 Tex. 187, 19 S. W. 480.

Misjoinder.—There is no misjoinder of causes of action, nor of parties, where, in proceedings to contest an election of two school trustees, two defeated candidates are contestants against the two successful ones; all parties interested adversely to the contestants being proper parties plaintiff. Kennison v. Du Plantis (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 118.

Notice of grounds.—In a contest of a school election to determine whether bonds should be issued, it is essential, to give the district court jurisdiction, that the county attorney be served with a written notice of contest and statement of the grounds on which the contestant relies, and service of petition of contest upon such attorney, with verbal notice, was insufficient. Barker v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 543.

Under this article, requiring election contestants to give contestees notice in writing of intention to contest, and to deliver to them a written statement of the grounds, which does not refer to article 1877, prescribing the requisites of a petition, a service of a copy of the petition filed in a contest case is not required, and the fact that the copy served does not name the contestees does not invalidate the proceedings; it affirmatively appearing that the contestees were not misled. Kennison v. Du Plantis (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 118.

The ordinary rules of procedure in civil actions do not apply to election contests, so that the sufficiency of the written statement of contest is not to be determined by rules applicable to the petition in a civil cause. Id.

Though this article requires election contestants to give contestees written notice of intention to contest, the fact that the contest was filed in court before the notice was given does not invalidate the proceedings. Id.

Art. 3052. [1799] Reply to notice of contest.

See Bell v. Faulkner, 84 Tex. 187, 19 S. W. 480.

Art. 3053. [1800] Service of notice, etc.

Art. 3055. [1802] Cause to have precedence, etc.

Procedure in general.—In election contest statement of result of previous election was irrelevant and properly stricken from pleading. Kempen v. Bruns (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 643.

Declarations of voter.—On contest of an election as a stock law election under art. 7225, the declarations of voters made before or after the election are incompetent to show that by reason of age or residence they were not qualified to vote. Reid v. King (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 949.

Evidence.—In determining whether erroneous ruling of judges materially affected result of election, court will consider evidence of how voter, denied privilege of casting his ballot, would have voted had he been permitted. Kempen v. Bruns (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 642.

Mere showing that an unnamed and unidentified negro was refused privilege of voting, without showing that he owned taxable property or resided in town or how he would have voted, does not show error in exclusion of his ballot. Id.

Burden of proof is upon election contestant to show that result was materially affected by erroneous ruling of election officers. Id.

In election contest, consideration by judge of irregularities in ballots, discovered and noted in private room in presence of counsel without formal tender in court for judicial consideration, held not reversible error. Baskin v. Walschak (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 747.

In election contest for fraudulent substitution of ballots, uncorroborated testimony of voters repudiating ballots held insufficient to support finding of fraudulent substitution. Id.

In contest of a school election to determine whether bonds should be issued to build a schoolhouse, upon the ground that certain persons were unlawfully denied the right to vote, it devolved upon contestants to show, by clear and satisfactory testimony, that such persons possessed all the necessary qualifications of voters. Barker v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 543.

Result of an election should not be set aside until it is clearly made to appear that the election was not properly and fairly held. Id.

A ballot at a general election cast for district and county clerk, whereon perpendicular lead pencil lines had been drawn through all the party tickets, one of them indicating an attempted erasure, and other horizontal pencil marks had been made through the names of certain candidates, the face of the ballot was ambiguous, and permitted the voter who cast it to explain why he voted it in that condition. Stubbs v. Moursund (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 632.

Art. 3057. [1804] Contestee in certain cases to execute bond.

Contestee not enjoined from taking office.—In view of arts. 3067-3061, and 3065, providing method of contesting results of election and providing for bond to protect contestant, equity will not intervene on behalf of contestant by enjoining contestee from taking office pending result of contest. Jackson v. Houser (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 186.

Art. 3062. [1804e] Fraudulent votes not to be counted.

Result how determined.—Under this article, in suit contesting election on issuance of bond by a district, where court found 23 votes were cast against bond issue, but fraudulently made to appear for it, it properly subtracted such votes from total for issue as returned, and added them to total against issue. Baskin v. Walschak (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 747.

Art. 3063. [1804f] Election to be declared void, when.

Acts invalidating election.—Under this article, if election officials erroneously require proof that voter has actually paid his taxes and such ruling materially affects result, election must be declared void. Kempen v. Bruns (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 643.

Where count of all ballots illegally excluded showed prevailing majority of four in favor of proposition as against previous majority of six, election was not void on account of illegal ruling. Id.

Though qualified voter was told by private individual that judges would not let him vote, his vote could not be counted where he did not go to polls for purpose of voting. Id.

To warrant counting ballot of qualified voter denied the privilege of voting, it is not sufficient for him to testify that he thought he would have voted certain way, but he must testify that he would have voted for or against proposition. Id.

Where judges of election were under the impression that the hour for closing the polls was 6 o'clock, and at that hour one of the judges left the voting place, but no public announcement was made that the polls were closed, permitting one to vote a few minutes after 6 was only an irregularity, which did not invalidate the election. Winters v. Independent School Dist. of Evant (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 674.

Where the manner in which the votes cast at an election were returned to the commissioners' court of the county was irregular, but there was no showing of fraud, or that the returns were changed or tampered with, or that the free exercise of the voters' franchise was in any way affected thereby, such votes should be counted. Hillman v. Kuykendall (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 242.

In view of this article, and art. 3077, the mere fact that a levee improvement district's election on the question of issuing bonds was held by the manager alone is no reason for holding it invalid. WilmARTH v. Reagan (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 445.

Art. 3065. [1804h] Appeal available, etc.

Writ of error.—Under this article, a decision in an election contest can be reviewed only by appeal, and a writ of error to review the same must be dismissed. Frank v. Sufford (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 285.

Art. 3068. [1804k] Measure of damages.

Art. 3077. [1804t] Other contested elections.

Art. 3078. [1804u] Parties defendant under preceding article.

Notice of contest.—In a contest of a school election to determine whether bonds should be issued, it is essential, to give the district court jurisdiction, that the county attorney be served with a written notice of contest and statement of the grounds on which the contestant relies, and service of petition of contest upon such attorney, with verbal notice, was insufficient. Barker v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 265 S. W. 545.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Political question.—Election contest is not matter pertaining to ordinary administration of law in courts, but is a political question, to be regulated by the political authority. Shipman v. Jones (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 329.

Statutory remedy cumulative.—The statute providing for contesting elections does not destroy the right which existed before it was enacted to litigate the title to an office. Stubbs v. Moursund (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 632.

CHAPTER NINE

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Art. 3081. Provisions of title apply to all elections, except, etc. 3082. Persons not eligible to hold office.

Provisions of title apply to all elections, except, etc. See State v. Cook, 78 Tex. 406, 14 S. W. 996.

County organization election.—Art. 2921, relating to duties of county judge concerning elections, may be applied to an election relating to the organization of a county, in view of this article. Earnest v. Woodlee (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 963.

Art. 3082. Persons not eligible to hold office.—No person shall be eligible to any State, County, precinct or municipal office in the State of Texas unless he shall be eligible to hold office under the Constitution of this State, and unless he shall have resided in this State for the period of twelve months and six months in the county, precinct, or municipality, in which he offers himself as a candidate, next preceding any general or special election and shall have been an actual bona fide citizen of said county, precinct, or municipality for more than six months. Providing further, that no person ineligible to hold office shall ever have his name placed upon the ballot or ticket at any general or special election, or at any primary election where candidates are selected under primary election laws of this State; and no such ineligible candidate shall ever be voted upon, nor have votes counted for him, at any such general, special, or primary election. [Acts 1895, p. 81; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 13, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 3083. [1810b] Certificate of election shall not issue unless.—There shall not be issued by the Secretary of State, or by any county judge of the State, or any other authority authorized to issue such certificates, any certificates of election or appointment to any person elected or appointed to any office in this State, who is not eligible to hold such office under the Constitution of this State and under the above Article of the Statutes of this State; and the name of an ineligible person, under the Constitution and laws of this State, shall not be certified by any party, committee or any authority authorized to have the names of candidates placed upon the primary ballots at any primary election in this State; and the name of any ineligible candidate under the Constitution and laws of this State shall not be placed upon the ballot of any general or special election by any authority whose duty it is to place names of candidates upon official ballots. [Acts 1895, p. 81; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 13, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 40, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 3083a. Writs of injunction, etc., to enforce preceding articles, etc.—The district court shall have authority to issue writs of injunction and all other necessary process at the suit of any interested party or of any voter, to enforce the provisions of the above two articles and to protect thereunder the rights of all parties and the public; for such purpose, jurisdiction and authority is conferred upon all district courts of this State and all cases filed hereunder shall have first right of precedence upon trial and appeal. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 13, § 1.]

1. NOMINATIONS BY PARTIES OF ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND VOTES AND OVER

Article 3085. Primary election defined.

Cited, Koy v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 389, 218 S. W. 479.

Election does not include primary election. An "election," as the term is used in Const. art. 6, § 2, stating the qualifications of voters at an election, does not include primary elections, which have been held to be elections within the meaning of article § 1, giving the district court jurisdiction of contested elections, so that the Woman Suffrage Act (art. 3171a), permitting females possessing the qualifications of electors as defined by the Constitution, except as to sex, to vote in primary elections, is not invalid on that account. Hamilton v. Davis (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 431.

Art. 3086. General primary election day; second primary; special primaries; city, etc., primaries.—The fourth Saturday in July, 1918, and every two years thereafter shall be general primary election day, and primary elections to nominate candidates for a general election shall be held on no other day, except when specially authorized. No person shall be declared the nominee of any political party, at any primary election for any State or District office unless he has complied with every requirement of this Chapter and all other laws applicable to primary and other elections, and has received a majority of all the votes cast at such primary elections, for all candidates for such office. If at the general primary election for any political party, no candidate becomes the nominee for any State or District office under this Article, a second primary election shall be held by such political party, in the State or such District, or Districts, as the case may be, on the Fourth Saturday in August succeeding such general primary election, and only the name of the two candidates who received the highest number of votes for any office for which nomination was made at the general election shall be placed on the official ballot, as candidates for such office at such second primary. The second primary election shall be conducted according to the law prescribed for conducting the general primary election, and the candidates receiving a majority of all votes cast for the office to which they aspire shall be declared the nominee for their respective offices. Any political party may hold a second primary election on the fourth Saturday in August to nominate candidates for any county or precinct office, where a majority vote is required to make nomination; but at such second primary, only the two candidates who received the highest number of votes at the general primary for the same office shall have their names placed upon the official ballot. Nominations of candidates to be voted for at any special election shall be made at a primary election at such time as the party executive committee shall determine, but no such committee shall ever have the power to make such nominations; provided that all precincts in the same county and all counties in the same district shall vote on the same day. Nominations of party candidates for offices to be filled in a city or town. shall be made not less than ten days prior to the city or town election at which they are to be chosen, in such manner as the party executive committee for such city or town shall direct, and all laws prescribing the method for conducting county primary elections shall apply to them. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 549, § 105; Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 90, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

Art. 3093. Qualifications for voting; poll tax.—No one shall vote in any primary election or convention, unless he is a citizen of the United States and has paid his poll tax or obtained his certificate of exemption from its payment, in cases where such certificate is required, before the first of February next preceding, which fact must be ascertained by the officers conducting the primary election by an inspection of the certified lists of qualified voters of the precinct, and of the poll tax receipts or certificates of exemption; nor shall he vote in any primary election except in the voting precinct of his residence: provided, that if this receipt or certificate be lost or misplaced, or inadvertently left at home, that fact must be sworn to by the party offering to vote; and provided, further, that the requirements as to presentation of the poll tax receipt, certificate of exemption or affidavit shall apply only to cities of ten thousand population or over as shown by the last United States census; provided, that the executive committee of any party for any county may prescribe additional qualifications for voters in such primaries, not inconsistent with this title.

This Act shall not be held or construed to repeal or in any way limit or restrict the right of women to vote in primary elections or conventions given them by any law enacted at the 4th Called Session of the 35th Legislature.

All laws or parts of laws in conflict herewith are repealed. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 546, § 103; Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 60, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

Art. 3096. Ballot, primary, etc.

Cited, Koy v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 369, 218 S. W. 479, 221 S. W. 880.

Pledge to support nominee.—This article, requiring a participant in a primary to pledge support to the nominee, is not to be construed to prevent changes in party fealty unless the legislative intent to that effect is plain, since such construction would raise grave doubt to the validity of the statute as an interference with privilege of free suffrage guaranteed by the Constitution. Westerman v. Mims (Sup.) 227 S. W. 178.

The pledge of one who participates in a primary to support the nominee required by this article, pledges him to uphold that nominee by aid or countenance, but he is under only a moral obligation to do so, since the obligation is not one that can be enforced by the courts, and a "moral obligation" in law is defined as one that cannot be enforced by action, but which is binding on the parties who incur it in conscience and according to natural justice. Id.

Art. 3097. Ballot, primary or general, no symbol, etc.

Printing on ballots.—Under art. 2971, printing on ballot furnished voters at election on proposed changes to charter of city of Dallas, submitted under Home-Rule Bill, of propositions as to proposed ordinances granting franchises, held not illegal, art. 3097, as to printed matter on ballots, applying. Shaw v. Lindsay (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 388.

Art. 3107. County executive committees, etc.

Filling vacancy.—This article, providing that vacancy in the office of chairman or member of the county committee of a party shall be filled by a majority vote of said executive committee, contemplates an act of the committee as a body, and, in the absence of some provision of law to the contrary, it would take a majority of the members of such committee to constitute a quorum which could act as the committee, so that appointments to fill vacancies made by only one committee man are invalid. Walker v. Hopping (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 146.

Holding over.—Const. art. 16, § 17, requiring officers to perform their duties until their successors shall be duly qualified, has reference to public or governmental officers. and officers of a political party, though provided for by statutory law, are not to be regarded as public or governmental officers, so that the provision does not authorize the county executive committee of a party to hold over until their successors are qualified. Walker v. Hopping (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 146.

The county chairman of a political party who was elected under the provisions of this article, holds over after the election of his successor until the successor qualifies, which occurs, since there is no provision for formal qualification, when the successor accepts the office either expressly or by entering upon its duties. Id.

Art. 3108. County chairman, etc.

Acceptance of office.—Evidence that the county chairman, elected at a primary, stated he would not accept because he could not hold such office while postmaster, held to show by a preponderance thereof, notwithstanding some testimony to subsequent statements by him that he would act, that he had never accepted the office. Walker v. Hopping (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 146.

Art. 3131. Objections to nomination, etc.

Art. 3138. State executive committee to canvass returns as to nominations for state offices; statement of vote; list of delegates elected to state conventions.—On the third Monday after the fourth Saturday in July, 1918, and every two years thereafter the State Executive Committee shall meet at a place selected at the meeting held on the second Monday in June preceding, and shall open and canvass the returns of the primary elections held on the fourth Saturday in July as to candidates for State offices, as certified by various county chairmen and shall prepare a tabulated statement showing the number of votes received by each such candidate in each county, which statement shall be approved by the State committee and certified by its chairman. If such returns show that for any State office no candidate received a majority of all the votes cast for all candidates for such office, such committee shall prepare a list of the two candidates receiving the highest vote for each office for which no candidate received a majority of votes cast at such primary for such office and shall certify same to the county chairman of the several counties to be placed upon the official ballot as candidates for office at the second primary election to be held on the fourth Saturday in August thereafter. On the second Monday after the fourth Saturday in August, 1918, and every two years thereafter, the State Executive Committee shall meet at the place selected for the meeting of the State convention and shall open and canvass the returns of the second primary election held to nominate candidates for State offices as certified by the various county chairmen to the State Chairman, and shall prepare a tabulated statement showing the number of votes received by each such candidate in each county, which statement shall be approved by the State Committee and certified by its chairman. At this meeting the State Committee shall also prepare a complete list of the delegates elected to the State conventions from each county, as certified to the State Chairman by each County Chairman. The State Chairman shall present said tabulated statement and said list of delegates to the chairman of the State Convention immediately after its temporary organization on the following day, for its approval or disapproval. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 545, § 119; Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 90, § 2.]

Took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

Art. 3139. State convention to canvass vote for candidates for state offices; declaration of result; certificate to Secretary of State.—The State Convention shall canvass the vote cast in the entire State for each candidate for each State office as shown by the statement thereof presented to it by the State Committee, and shall declare the candidates for each State office who has received a majority of votes cast for all candidates for such office in the first primary election, if any candidate receives a majority of all the votes cast for all the candidates for such office at said primary election, and if no candidate received such majority, then it shall declare the candidate who received a majority of all votes cast for such office at the second primary election, the nominee of the party for such office; and the chairman and the secretary of the State Convention shall forthwith certify all such nominations to the Secretary of State. [Acts 1905, 2 S. S., p. 4. Acts 1905, S. S., p. 550. Acts 1907, p. 329, § 120; Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 90, § 2.]

Art. 3140. Party state conventions; time of meeting; further duties.—All party State Conventions to announce a platform of principles and announce nominations for Governor and State offices shall, except as otherwise provided, meet at such places as may be determined by the parties respectively on the Tuesday after the second Monday after the fourth Saturday in August, 1918, and every two years thereafter and they shall remain in session from day to day until all nominations are announced and the work of the convention is finished. Provided, that said convention shall, among other things, elect a chairman of the Executive Committee and thirty-one members thereof, one from each senatorial district of the State, the members of said committee to be those persons who shall be recommended by the delegates representing the counties composing the senatorial districts respectively, each county voting its convention strength, each of whom shall hold said office until his successor is elected; and, in case of a vacancy, a majority of the members of said committee shall fill the same by electing some eligible person thereto. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 549, § 110; Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 90, § 2.]

Art. 3147. Contests of primary elections, etc.

Art. 3151. Certificate and printing name on ballot, on decision by committee, unless appeal.

Art. 3152. Same, where such appeal is not perfected.

Art. 3153. Appeal from executive committee, etc.

Art. 3154. Review of certificates of nomination by district court; procedure.

Jurisdiction of Court of Civil Appeals to issue injunction.—Since Court of Civil Appeals, under this article, has no appellate jurisdiction of election contest for public office, such court has no power to issue an injunction restraining officers from placing respondent's name on official ballot in a primary election contest pending in district court, in view of art. 1592, permitting issuance of writs only in aid of appellate jurisdiction. Pollard v. Speer (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 620.

2. Nomination by Parties of Ten Thousand and Less than One Hundred Thousand Votes

Art. 3159. May nominate, how.

Legislative control.—Though the Legislature may make reasonable regulations as to nominations, it cannot forbid nominations, either by a new party or an old one, or exclude the names of nominees from the official ballot, so that election laws which exclude from the official ballot the names of nominees of a newly formed party would be unconstitutional. Morris v. Mims (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 587.

Manner of nominating.—Though this article, and arts. 3160, 3161, 3163, provide only for nominations by parties which cast more than 10,000 votes at the last election, art. 3174 recognizes that new party nominees may appear on the official ballot, and such party may make its nominations by any reasonable method not prohibited by law, including nominating conventions held in the manner prescribed for parties which cast between 10,000 and 100,000 votes at the last election. Morris v. Mims (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 587.

Art. 3162. Nominations of such parties to be certified by whom.

3. Non-Partisan and Independent Candidates

Art. 3164. Non-partisan and independent candidates' names placed on ballot, how.

See Westerman v. Mims (Sup.) 227 S. W. 178.

Art. 3165. Same.

See Westerman v. Mims (Sup.) 227 S. W. 178.

Art. 3166. Same.

See Westerman v. Mims (Sup.) 227 S. W. 178.

5a. Women Voters

Art. 3171a. Women entitled to vote; poll tax.—From and after the passage of this Act any woman, who possesses the other qualifications of an elector under the Constitution and laws of this State, shall have the right to vote at any and all primary elections or nominating conventions held under the laws of this State, and the fact of her sex shall in no wise disqualify such person, provided the payment of a poll tax shall in no case be required of such person as a qualification to vote in such primary elections or to participate in such nominating conventions during the year 1918. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C., ch. 34, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 6 of this Act repeals all conflicting laws. The act took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment. Constitutionality.—An "election," as the term is used in Const. art. 6, § 2, stating the qualifications of voters at an election, does not include primary elections, which have been held to be elections within the meaning of article 5, § 8, giving the district court jurisdiction of contested elections, so that this act, permitting females possessing the qualifications of electors as defined by the Constitution, except as to sex, to vote in primary elections, is not invalid on that account. Hamilton v. Davis (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 431.

Under this chapter, women may vote at primary elections; such act not violating Const. art. 6, § 2, making only male persons qualified electors at elections within the state, since the word "elections," in the Constitution, refers only to governmental elections, and not to preliminary and nongovernmental activities, like primary elections. Key v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 569, 221 S. W. 586, denying rehearing, 110 Tex. 569, 218 S. W. 479.

Art. 3171b. Registration of women voters in cities; form of receipts.—In all cities of ten thousand inhabitants and over, the County Tax Collector shall provide a record for the registration of women voters, setting forth the name, age, race, and present residence, giving the street number; and each woman who expects to vote in the primary election shall each year personally appear and personally fill out the blank form... of registration receipts hereinafter set out said registration receipt on oath not less than fifteen (15) days before the date of the primary election at which she expects to vote. Such registration receipt shall be detached from said book, leaving thereunder a duplicate, carbon, or other copy thereof, which shall contain the same information; and the original shall be delivered, bearing its proper number, to the woman registrant, in person, to identify her in voting. Registration receipts for each precinct shall be numbered consecutively, beginning at one. They shall be in the following form:

Registration Receipt.

State of Texas, County of —— No.—, I —— of —— County, Texas, am —— years of age, color ——, race ——, occupation ——, residence No. ——, —— City, Voting Precinct ——, Post Office Address ——, have lived at said place —— years.

(Signed) ————

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this —— day of ——, 19—.

Tax Collector —— County.

I, ———, Tax Collector aforesaid, hereby certify that the foregoing registrant personally signed and swore to the facts set out in the above receipt before me, showing her to be a qualified voter in primary elections in said County, State and precinct for the year ———.

(Seal.)

[Id., § 2.]

Compelling issuance of poll tax receipt.—In suit to compel tax collector to give plaintiff receipt to entitle her to vote in primary election under this chapter, the Court of Civil Appeals in disposing of plaintiff's appeal subsequent to the election will dismiss appeal, since rendition of judgment compelling issuance of poll tax receipt for such purpose subsequent to the election would be a vain thing. Roy v. Schneider (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 188.

Restraining issuance of poll tax receipts.—Despite Rev. St. 1911, art. 4643, subd. 1, in view of articles 3154-3155, a candidate for a party nomination to the state Legislature at a primary election has a complete remedy to contest the election on account of illegal votes of females being cast against him under the Women Suffrage Act (Acts 35th Leg. 4th Called Sess. [1918] c. 341) and cannot enjoin the tax collector from issuing poll tax receipts to women entitling them to vote at the primary, even though the suffrage act is unconstitutional; the election cannot be contested before it is held by preventing the collector from discharging a political function required of him by law. Hamilton v. Davis (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 431.

Art. 3171c. Women entitled to vote at primary elections outside cities during 1918.—Every woman who possesses the other qualifications of an elector under the Constitution and laws of this State, and who lives in a voting precinct outside of a city of ten thousand inhabitants, shall have the right to vote in all primary elections held in the year 1918, who shall present herself, personally, at the office of the tax collector of the county in which she lives at any time not less than fifteen days prior to the holding of such primary election, and shall personally fill out, with her own hand, in duplicate, or upon a form and stub, the form of registration receipt prescribed in Section 2 of this bill [Art. 3171b], and shall sign and swear to same before said tax collector, who shall certify one copy of such receipt in form as, prescribed in Section 2 of this Act and deliver same to such registrant, who shall present same, or an affidavit as to its loss or destruction, when she offers to vote at such primary election. [Id., § 2a.]
Art. 3171d. Lists of registered women voters for election judges.—The Tax Collector shall furnish to the Board charged with the duty of furnishing election supplies, separate certified lists of the women registered in each precinct, in cities of ten thousand and over, the names to be arranged in alphabetical order, and to each name its appropriate number as shown by the duplicate retained in his office. Said Board shall furnish each presiding judge of each precinct, in cities of ten thousand and over, the certified lists of said women voters in his precinct at the time when he furnishes other election supplies. Such certified lists of qualified women voters shall be in the same form as that required by law for the certified lists of qualified male voters furnished by said Board to said judge of the election of said precinct; provided that before the name of each woman voting in such primary election, the judges or clerks shall write on the poll lists the word "woman"; provided, further, that such word may be so placed either with a rubber stamp, or pen and ink, or pencil. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 3171e. Where lists need not be furnished.—It shall not be necessary for the County Tax Collector to furnish the Chairman of the county executive committee of political parties, judges of election, or any other person, for use in primary elections, a certified list of women voters, except in cities of ten thousand inhabitants and over. [Id., § 3a.]

Art. 3171f. When registration of women necessary.—Where registration, as above provided in cities of ten thousand or over, is required, said registration shall be a necessary qualification for women voting in primary elections. And the provisions in the laws of the State of Texas governing and pertaining to elections and production of poll tax certificates and certificates of exemption required of men, the affidavits in case of loss of said certificates and the penalties for fraudulently or falsely obtaining the same, and all other laws for the purity and protection of the electorate, when not in conflict with the provisions of this Act, shall apply to and govern the duties, responsibilities and privileges of the women voters of this State, but where in conflict shall, as to female voting, be governed by the provisions of this Act. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 3171g. Act to govern elections during 1918; requirements thereafter.—The provisions of this Act shall apply to and govern the voting of women in the primary elections held during the year 1918, and from and after the first of January, 1919, each woman voter in this State, voting and offering to vote in any primary election or convention shall be required to pay the poll tax now required by law of each male person who desires to vote and shall be governed and controlled by all of the laws of the State of Texas, requiring and permitting the voting upon the payment of poll taxes in this State. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 3172. Nomination declined, how; vacancy how filled, etc.; posters used when, etc.

Declining nomination.—Under this article, authorizing a nominee to decline nomination 20 days before election, a nominee by independent petition is entitled to be certified as such by the secretary of state after he declined a nomination by a party, notwithstanding art. 2970, prohibiting the name of any candidate appearing more than once on the official ballot. Westerman v. Mims (Sup.) 227 S. W. 178.

Art. 3174. Parties, new, etc.

New party nominations.—Though arts. 3159-3161. 3163. provide only for nominations by parties which cast more than 10,000 votes at the last election, this article recognizes

REGULATING AND LIMITING EXPENDITURES AT PRIMARY ELECTIONS

Article 3174 1/4. Definitions.—For the purpose of this Act the word "Candidate" shall be taken as referring to any person who has announced to any other person or to the public that he is a candidate for the nomination for any office which the laws of this State require shall be determined by a primary election. The words "County nomination" shall be taken as referring to the nomination for any office to be filled by the choice of the voters residing in only one county or less than one county, and the words "District Nomination" shall be taken as referring to the nomination for any office to be filled by the choice of the voters residing in more than one county, and the words "State nomination" shall be taken as referring to the nomination for any office to be filled by the choice of the voters of the entire State.

In all cases where second primary elections may be held in compliance with any law of this State, the first and second primary elections shall for the purposes of this Act be considered together as one primary election. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 88, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 9, 1919, date of adjournment.
See Penal Code, arts. 295-1 to 295-6.

Art. 3174 1/4a. Campaign and assistant campaign managers; designation; removal.—Every candidate for a state or District nomination may designate a campaign manager by written appointment filed with the Secretary of State, and every candidate for a County nomination may designate a campaign manager by written appointment to be filed with the County Clerk of his County, and each candidate for State or District nomination, or the lawfully designated campaign manager of such candidate, may also designate an assistant campaign manager for each county affected by such candidacy by written appointment to be filed with the County Clerk of the County. Any campaign manager or assistant campaign manager designated as provided in this section may be removed by the designation of a successor, and all vacancies occurring by such removal or by death, resignation or otherwise, may be filled in the manner provided for original designations. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 3174 1/4b. Forfeiture of rights for violations of act by candidate.—If any candidate shall knowingly violate any of the provisions of this Act or shall knowingly permit or assent to the violation of any provision of this Act by any campaign manager or assistant campaign manager or other person, he shall thereby forfeit his right to have his name placed upon the primary ballot or if nominated in the primary election, to have his name placed on the official ballot at the general election, and proceedings by quo warranto to enforce the provisions of this section or to determine the right of any candidates alleged to have violated any of the provisions of this Act to have his name placed on the primary ballot or the right of any nominee alleged to have violated any of the provisions of this Act to have his name placed upon the official ballot, for the general election may be instituted at the suit of any citizen in the District Court of any County, the citizens of which are entitled to vote for or against any candidate who may be charged in such proceedings with having violated the provisions of this Act. All such proceedings so instituted shall be advanced and summarily heard and disposed of by both the Trial and Appellate Courts. [Id., § 9.]

Evidence—Of death and failure of heirs.—Under Laws 1885, p. 35, providing that, in an action to escheat, the absence of any assertion of a lawful claim to property, or of any exercise of lawful acts of ownership thereon for seven years, shall be prima facie evidence of the death of the owner and failure of heirs, the fact that no claim has been asserted for that length of time cannot be proved by the failure of the original owner, or of some one claiming under him, to list the property for taxation and to pay taxes thereon. Hanna v. State, 84 Tex. 664, 19 S. W. 1008.

Of intestacy.—Under this article, providing that, in an action to escheat, failure to record or probate a will in the county where the property lies within seven years after the owner's death shall be prima facie evidence that he left no will, to prove that no will has been so recorded or probated it is not sufficient for the clerk of the county in which the land sought to be escheated lies to testify that he failed to find the probate or record of any such will in the probate records of that county, when such a will may have been probated in another county from which that county was taken, or in a county to which that county was attached for judicial purposes. CHAPTER ONE

JURISDICTION

Art. 3206. Probate jurisdiction of county court.
Art. 3207. Probate jurisdiction of district court.
Art. 3208. In case of concurrent jurisdiction of several courts.

Article 3206. [1840] [1789] Probate jurisdiction of the county court.

In general.—Under arts. 1705, 1706, 1712, prescribing the jurisdiction of the district court, and this article, and art. 3207, it has always been the policy to avoid multiplicity of suits, and when possible to settle in one suit such issues as could not have been settled in the probate court. Fryckberg v. Scott (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 21.

Jurisdiction.—In general.—Under Const. art. 5, § 16, county court has, sitting as a court of probate, jurisdiction to grant ancillary letters of administration when necessary. Atchison T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Berkshire (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1093.

County court had jurisdiction of a bill to review a decree of distribution of the estate of a deceased ward, brought by heirs excluded from the distribution, where the real issue was not the settlement of the estate of a deceased person, but an inquiry into the correctness of the final report of the guardian. Young v. Gray, 69 Tex. 541.

The county court is without jurisdiction to determine title to the personal property of a decedent on the application of his son to have the administrator deliver the property to him. Brown v. Fleming (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 483.

Whatever powers an executor or administrator appointed in one state may exercise over property situated in another state is governed by the laws of the latter state, each having the absolute power to control administration of the property of decedents situated within its borders. Hare v. Pendleton (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 548.

The probate court has no power to pass on the issue of ownership of a legatee's share, raised by claim of assignment contested by the legatee. State Nat. Bank v. Trevino (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 989.

Under Const. art. 5, § 16, the district court of Harris county held without jurisdiction to determine the disposition of the proceeds of the sale of homestead of herself and husband, the administration of whose estate was pending in the probate court of Brazoria county. Meyer v. Meyer (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 259.

Exclusive.—General rule is that jurisdiction of probate court to sell property of decedent upon whose estate administration has been commenced is exclusive. Laurain v. Ashe. 109 Tex. 69, 196 S. W. 501.

Under Const. art. 5, § 16, giving county courts jurisdiction of probate courts, and art. 3204, providing provisions of a probated will shall be executed unless annulled by order of court probating it, the county court has exclusive original jurisdiction over probate matters. Hutchens v. Dresser (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 969.

The jurisdiction of the county court, under Const. art 5, § 16, in all matters pertaining to the settlement and distribution of an estate which is being administered in such court, or administration of which is necessary, is exclusive. Meyer v. Meyer (Cht. Pop.) 223 S. W. 259.

--- Court of Civil Appeals.—In view of orders of county court, for Court of Civil Appeals to restrain unauthorized depredation, pending appeal in proceedings to probate a will, upon testatrix’s property by temporary administratrix appointed by county court in suit of execution on judgment of court, to administer estates of deceased persons. Stewart v. Poin-beuf (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1925.

--- Federal courts.—Const. art. 5, § 6, and arts. 1763, 1764, 1766, 1771, and this article, give the county court the general jurisdiction of a probate court and original jurisdiction in civil cases when the matter in controversy does not exceed $1,000, but no jurisdiction to enforce liens or recover liens thereon. Const. art. 5, § 8, and arts. 1765, 1766, 1712, 3207, give the district court appellate jurisdiction in probate matters, original jurisdiction and general control over executors and administrators, and original jurisdiction for the trial of title to land and the enforcement of liens thereon, and of all suits when the matter in controversy exceeds $500. Art. 5699 authorizes any interested person to institute suit in the proper court to contest the validity of a probated will. Held, that a suit by the heirs of a husband and wife to have a joint will treated as ineffectual to dispose of the community property, to set aside a judgment establishing the title of trustees under such will, to annul a separate will of the wife, so far as it bequeathed her residuary estate, and for a partition of the property, was not within the jurisdiction of a federal court, since, assuming that the other relief could be granted in equity in the district court, the suit, so far as it sought to annul the will of the wife, was merely supplemental to the proceedings for the probate of the will, and cognizable only by the probate court under the Texas decisions. Sutton v. English, 246 U. S. 199, 38 Sup. Ct. 254, 62 L. Ed. 664.

Collateral and direct attack.—Order of probate court, divesting itself of superintendence of guardianship estate, being a nullity, was subject to collateral attack. Davis v. White (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 675.

--- Presumptions as to.—County court in probate is court of general jurisdiction, and its judgments and orders have absolute verity in collateral proceeding; presumption prevailing that, when, in order for sale by guardian, property is said to be worth a certain sum, and in certain interest in certain estate, court understood what it intended should be sold by guardian, and confined sale to property described. Schaeffer v. Williams (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 220.

Art. 3207. [1841] [1790] Probate jurisdiction of district court.

Jurisdiction of district court.—Where the probate jurisdiction of county court under Const. art. 5, § 16, is inadequate to adjust equities in settlement of question arising during administration of estate, resort may be had to equity powers of district court, judgment to be performed through probate court, district court’s jurisdiction in such case being auxiliary to that of probate court, and to be exercised only in special cases. Slavin v. Greever (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 479.

In suit on vendor’s lien notes, provision of a consent judgment directing sale of the interest of a deceased’s estate through the district court, which had taken jurisdiction, the entire conveyance as to all parties having an interest to be affected by the foreclosure was not void merely because administration of the estate was pending in the probate court. Wyss v. Bookman (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 297.

A personal representative of a nonresident creditor against nonresident administrator, heirs, and heirs’ grantees, to foreclose creditor’s lien, was properly brought in the district instead of the probate court, where there were no other creditors, and no heirs or parties claiming an interest in the land, parties to the action, and where the land on which the lien was sought to be foreclosed was the only land owned by the estate. Faulkner v. Reed (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 940.

Art. 3209. [1843] [1792] In what counties wills shall be probated and letters granted.

Where a railroad employee was injured in Arkansas in interstate commerce on the line of a Texas corporation, and was therefore entitled to recover under Act Cong. April 22, 1908 (U. S. Comp. St. § 8665), but died pending suit, an administrator was properly appointed in the Texas county court where deceased sued, although at the time of his death deceased was a nonresident of Texas and died in another state. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Smitha (Sup.) 232 S. W. 494.

This article, subds. 3, 4, fixing the venue for grant of letters of administration, having no relation to the estate of a nonresident dying without the state and leaving no kindred, but leaving property within the state without a fixed situs in any particular county, the probate court which first assumes jurisdiction may retain it. Id.

Where the only asset of deceased railroad employee in the state was a right of action against an interstate carrier, which failed to comply with the federal Safety Appliance Acts (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8652-8666), the fact that such right of action would support a suit in many counties of the state by a personal representative in no wise defeated jurisdiction of county court of Bowie county to grant letters of administration on the estate, under Const. art. 5, § 16. Id.
Art. 3210. [1844] [1793] In case of concurrent jurisdiction of several courts.

Priority of jurisdiction.—While proceedings looking to the appointment of a guardian for a minor instituted in the county court of F. county were still pending in the district court on appeal, the probate court of another county had no authority to appoint a temporary guardian or issue an injunction in aid of the jurisdiction illegally assumed. Williams v. Foster (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 896.

CHAPTER THREE
GENERAL PROVISIONS

Art. 3219. [1853] [1802] And shall be entered of record.

Art. 3225. [1859] [1807] Person having will, etc., may be attached, etc.
Compelling probate.—Under this article, the court may compel probate of a will upon ascertaining its existence. Simmons v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 338.

Art. 3233. [1867] [1815] Rights, etc., of executors, etc.

Powers.—To contract.—Contracts of executor or administrator are not binding on estate, in absence of statutory authority or express or implied power in the will itself. Lovenskiold v. Nueces Hotel Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 759.

"I, ———, hereby subscribe the sum of $200 to the capital stock of a hotel corporation held individually bound, for, even if he had contracted in name of estate, he alone and individually would have been bound. Lovenskiold v. Nueces Hotel Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 759.

Art. 3234. [1868] [1816] Depositions and rules of evidence.—In all proceedings in the county court arising under the provisions of this title, the depositions of witnesses may be taken and read in evidence under the same rules and regulations as in the District Court, and all laws in relation to witnesses and evidence that govern in the District Court shall apply to proceedings in the county court, so far as may be applicable. Except that in the case of the probate of a will and in all other proceedings in estates where there is no opposing party or his attorney of record, upon whom service of notice and copies of interrogatories may be had, notice of the intention to take such depositions of a witness may be served by posting such notice for a period of twenty days as is provided in the statutes governing the posting of notices. At the time such notice is filed with the clerk of the court, copy of the interrogatories propounded shall also be filed, and at the expiration of such twenty days commission may issue for the taking of such depositions. If no one appears to file cross interrogatories, the county judge may file such cross interrogatories. [Acts 1876, p. 129, sec. 136; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 108.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.
Art. 3235. [1869] [1817] In whom property vests upon death of testator or intestate.

In general.—Arts. 3309, 3621, 3622, 3623, 4099, 4101, 5493, and this article, do not authorize administrator to charge against the estate a premium paid for the making of his bond. Drew (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 578.

Though minors are the only children and heirs, and entitled to the whole of the estate of deceased, the duly qualified and acting administratrix of deceased's estate is entitled, in view of this article, to possession and holding of estate by administrator, to appeal as administratrix without bond from judgment withholding estate from administration. Drew v. Jarvis, 110 Tex. 136, 216 S. W. 618.

Title vests in devisees, etc., and heirs.—Under this article, the estate of a decedent vests in his devisees subject to payment of his debts, while creditors’ claims constitute a lien on all of the property of the estate; and this lien, which is general, can be enforced by means of administration. Albert v. Bascom (D. C.) 245 Fed. 149.

Title to land vests in decedent’s heirs, and not in his administrator. Jones v. Gilliam (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 694.

Where will devised land by granting and habendum clauses sufficient, without qualifying language, to vest a fee under this article, but preceding such granting and habendum clauses stated that estate was devised “subject to the conditions hereinafter shown,” and in subsequent portions of will provided that no portion of the estate should vest absolutely in devisee until he reached a certain age, at which time specified sum should be given him, and that remainder should not be delivered to him in his absolute right until he reached specified age, or in discretion of executors until he reached a specified age, and provided further for use of estate by executors for charitable purposes upon decedent's death without issue, before he was to be given a specified portion of estate, and that on his death without issue before reaching specified age the estate should vest in executors. Jones v. Unknown Heirs v. Dorchester (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 596.

Under this article, on death of a seller of land, legal title to his debt against the buyer descended to his heirs, and was never in his administrator. Smith v. Price (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 836.

What law governs.—The situs of a personal judgment follows the residence of the owner, relative to the person or persons in whom title thereto vests on his death, so that the owner of such judgment, obtained in Texas, dying in Georgia, where he resided, title thereto as property other than real estate, under Park’s Ann. Civ. Code Ga. § 3929, vested in his administrator for the benefit of his heirs and creditors. Saner-Ragley Lumber Co. v. Spivey (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 878.

Right of possession.—Under this article, the administrator is not entitled to possession of property not in the possession of the decedent and to the possession of which he was not entitled at the time of his death. Lauraline v. Dickson Car Wheel Co. (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1108.

In view of arts. 2005, 3362-3364, and this article, when an executor who is authorized to act independently of the probate court in good faith, and not in fraud of creditors, passes the estate committed to him to those entitled to receive it, he loses control thereof and may not thereafter administer it for creditors, and is not as a consequence further accountable to creditors in his representative capacity. Patton v. Smith (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1034.

Tenants in common.—In trespass to try title, a judgment against a defendant in possession of tenant’s separate property, whether considered as a devisee or as one whose interest as executor extended to only part of the land, was proper. Stiles v. Hawkins (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 89.

Liability of devisees, heirs, etc., for debts.—Personal property in the primary fund for the payment of the debts of a decedent. Brown v. Fleming (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 493.

Under this article, though the personal estate of a decedent is the primary fund for the payment of his debts, the personalty need not be exhausted in the sense that before the administrator can resort to the reality all of the personal assets should be reduced to possession by him. Id.

“Exempt property” not liable.—Notwithstanding the statutes except the homestead from the community property liable for community debts making it “exempt from forced sale” (art. 3592, and this article), nevertheless the survivor may convey the community homestead to discharge community debts which constitute no lien thereon. Stone v. Jackson, 109 Tex. 385, 210 S. W. 953.

Heirs may sue to recover property, when.—The general rule is that the legal representative of a deceased person’s estate is the proper person to enforce payment of debts; and this rule applies ordinarily in cases where a contract between a married man and another has matured previous to, or during, the administration of his estate by an executor. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Osborne (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 815.

Suit against devisees, heirs, etc.—In trespass to try title brought by heirs of owner against his widow’s devisees, it was not error to refuse to join the executors under the Art. 3236. [1870] [1818] Any person interested in an estate may file opposition, etc.

Cited. McLane v. Paschal, 74 Tex. 29, 11 S. W. 837.

"Person interested."—In view of this article, and art. 3263, giving "those interested in an estate" certain rights as to its administration, art. 3284, giving only to "any one entitled to a portion" of an estate "as heir, devisee or legatee" the right, by giving bond as provided in art. 3806, to withdraw an estate from administration, does not give such right to the vendee of an heir, devisee, or legatee. Rowe v. Dyess (Com. App.) 224 S. W. 332.

Party who had rendered services for testator pursuant to testator's promise to bequeath land to such party held not entitled to contest will, under this article, being merely creditor of testator, and not a "person interested" in the estate, within such statute. Daniels v. Jones (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 476.

Where will contestant was not entitled to contest will, because not a person interested in the estate, under this article, it was court's duty to dismiss proceeding regardless of whether demurrer to petition was filed at proper time. Id.

Time for filing.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 1818, after an order has been made discharging an administrator, and directing payment of the estate to another person, it is too late to hear objections in behalf of persons entitled to a share in the estate, who did not appear in the court below. Houston v. Mayes' Estate, 86 Tex. 297, 17 S. W. 729.

Pleading.—In probate matters originating in the county court there is less strictness required in pleading than is common in suits of law in the same court or in the district court, especially where averments whose sufficiency is questioned relate to matters which opposite parties must affirmatively establish. Perdue v. Perdue (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 555.

Effect of other statutes.—Arts. 3285-3561, as to applications to annul or suspend the provisions and directions of a will after it has been probated, are inapplicable to contest of application to probate will. Walker v. Irby (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 331.

Partial settlement of contest.—Agreement between I., contestee of a will and B., one of the two testators, that they shall share equally in the estate, whatever the outcome of the proceedings, does not deprive the court of power to proceed with contest of the provisions of the will favorable to the other beneficiary. Walker v. Irby (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 331.

Art. 3241. [1875] [1822a] Annual exhibits required; final settlement, when.

Effect of approval of annual exhibit.—Approval of statutory administrator's annual exhibit does not prevent, on the final settlement, re-examination of the charges made by him. Jones v. Gilliam, 109 Tex. 552, 212 S. W. 930.

Art. 3242. [1876] [1823] Notice of filing exhibit.

See 1918 Supp., arts. 6016½-6016½c, as to publication in newspaper instead of posting.

Art. 3244. [1878] [1825] [Superseded.]

This article is superseded by inclusion of its provisions in art. 3234, as amended.

Art. 3245. [1879] [1826] Titles made by executor, etc., valid although, etc.

In general.—In action to set aside a conveyance by sole devisee and executors of lands of the estate to defendant, a surety of the executors, evidence held to show collusion between defendant and the executors. Rain v. Coats (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 571.

Rights and Liabilities of purchasers.—Plaintiffs having an equitable interest in land under a will, if trustees sought to convey it free from such interest, could follow it into the hands of any outsider not an innocent purchaser for value, and could also follow it into the hands of one of the trustees. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Harbaugh (Civ. App.) 296 S. W. 498.
CHAPTER FOUR
APPLICATIONS FOR THE PROBATE OF WILLS AND FOR LETTERS

Art. 3247. Application for letters must be filed within four years after death of testator or intestate, exception.

Art. 3248. Wills shall not be probated after lapse of four years, unless, etc.

Art. 3249. Administration not barred, when.

Art. 3250. Applications shall be in writing, etc.

Art. 3251. Application for probate of written will produced in court shall state, what.

Art. 3253. What the application shall state where the will cannot be produced in court.

Art. 3256. Citation to issue, etc.

Art. 3257. Service of such citation, etc.

Art. 3260. Service of such citation by publication.

Art. 3262. Application may be made, by whom.

Art. 3263. Administration may be prevented, how.

Article 3247. [1880] [1827] Application for letters must be filed within four years after death of testator, or intestate, exception.

Cited, Harwood v. Wyile, 70 Tex. 538, 7 S. W. 789; Elwell v. Universalist General Convention, 76 Tex. 614, 13 S. W. 552.

Effect of Trading with the Enemy Act.—A proceeding for appointment of permanent administrator of the estate of a deceased, who left no property in the state, the only reason for the appointment being to prosecute a suit for the benefit of the heirs who are residents of Austria-Hungary, will be suspended until the end of the war, in view of Trading with the Enemy Act, § 7, cl. b (U. S. Comp. St. 1913, U. S. Comp. St. Ann. Supp. 1919, § 51554(a), denying to alien enemies the right to maintain suits in courts of the United States. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Blankfield (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 808.

Effect of delay.—If administration is not had within the four years prescribed by Rev. St. 1879, art. 1827, the probate court loses jurisdiction to issue letters, and a vendor's lien again becomes prior to all other claims against the estate made prior by statute, in cases of administration, and a trustee may thereafter convey premises held in trust to secure such lien, upon default being made in any payment thereunder. Rogers' Heirs v. Watson, 81 Tex. 400, 17 S. W. 29.

Ancillary letters after four years not void.—Rev. St. 1879, arts. 1827, 1828, do not render void on collateral attack ancillary letters of administration, issued more than four years after the testator's death upon the estate of a man who died testate in another state, in which his will has been duly admitted to probate. Henry v. Roe, 83 Tex. 446, 18 S. W. 806.

Article 3248. [1881] [1828] Will shall not be probated after a lapse of four years, unless, etc.

In general. —Where an application for the probate of a will is made and prosecuted by a trustee for the legatee, the legatee's substitution as the applicant, made more than four years after testator's death, is not within the inhibition of Rev. St. 1879, art. 1828. Elwell v. Universalist General Convention, 76 Tex. 614, 13 S. W. 552.

Under this article, proponent, proceeding for probate 13 years after testatrix's death, had the burden to show she was not in default. House v. House (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 322.

Excuses for delay. —A married woman, daughter-in-law of testatrix, is not exempt from the limitation of this article, though her coverture probably might be looked to as a circumstance tending to excuse her delay. House v. House (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 322.

Applicant held in default. —The only heir of deceased on discovering a will making bequests to others, and naming him as executor, is under moral obligation to offer it for probate, or disclose its existence, that the other beneficiaries may offer it. Van Orden v. Pitts (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 830.

Art. 3249. [1882] [1829] Administration not barred, when.

Administration held not "closed." —Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 1829, an administration is not "closed," though the final account of the executor is approved, and the money on hand is ordered to be distributed, if he is not discharged, and he subsequently asks for orders regarding the estate, acquires property for the estate under the orders, and renders two annual accounts. Blackwell v. Blackwell (Sup.) 24 S. W. 389.

Art. 3251. [1884] [1831] Application for probate of written will produced in court shall state what.

Negating disqualification.—Since a trust company could probate the will in which it was named as executor, without seeking to have an executor appointed, it was not bound to state, in the application for probate, that it was not disqualified by law from accepting letters. Simmons v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 335.

Persons who may contest will—Estoppel or waiver.—A widow, after her husband's will has been admitted to probate, does not lose her right to attack the instrument on the theory of ratification by securing a partition under Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 3556, of her undivided share of the common estate. Campbell v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 134.

Application by testator's executor.—Under this article, a will is properly presented for probate by the person named in it as executor, regardless of whether he is competent to act as executor. Simmons v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 335.

— Effect of declining executorship.—That testator's executor in writing declined the executorship of the will could have no effect on the right of such executor to probate the will for probate. Simmons v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 335.

Art. 3263. [1896] [1843] Administration may be prevented, how.
In general.—In view of this article, and art. 3264, giving "those interested in an estate" certain rights as to its administration, art. 3264, giving only to "any one entitled to a portion" of an estate "as heir, devisee or legatee" the right, by giving bond as provided in art. 3265, to withdraw an estate from administration, does not give such right to the vendee of an heir, devisee, or legatee. Rowe v. Dyess (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 332.

CHAPTER FIVE

PROBATE OF WILLS

Art. 3267. How a written will which is produced in court may be proved.

Art. 3269. Nuncupative will shall not be proved, when.

Art. 3271. Facts which must be proved.

Art. 3272. Further proof in case of will which cannot be produced in court.

Art. 3273. All testimony shall be committed to writing, etc.

Article 3267. [1900] [1847] How a written will which is produced in court may be proved.

Evidence to prove execution.—In proceedings to probate a will, evidence held insufficient, under this article, to prove execution in compliance with art. 1887. Massey v. Allen (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 682.

Subscribing witness—Testimony not conclusive.—Though, under this article, a will may be proved by one of the subscribing witnesses, it is improper, in a proceeding to contest a probated will on the ground of want of mental capacity, to direct a verdict in favor of the contestant, although the only subscribing witness who testified stated that, in her opinion, the testator did not know what he was doing; the attorney who prepared the will and others giving testimony tending to show that the testator was competent. Day v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 248.

Secondary evidence—Admissible, when.—The testimony of persons present at the execution of a will is admissible in establishing it, after one of the subscribing witnesses has been examined, see provided by Rev. St. 1873, art. 1847. Elow v. Convention, 76 Tex. 521, 13 S. W. 652, distinguished. Stephenson v. Stephens, 6 Civ. App. 529, 25 S. W. 649.

Method prescribed not exclusive method.—While the method of this article is the preliminary rule for proving wills, other evidence may be resorted to, both in lieu of the statutory method and to supply lapses of memory on the part of the subscribing witnesses. Massey v. Allen (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 682.

Rev. St. 1911, art. 3267, providing that a written will may be proved by the written affidavit of subscribing witnesses, does not lay down an exclusive method, but merely a permissive one, and does not forbid the introduction of other than the statutory proof. In re Fullahas' Estate (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 659.

Proof of loss of will.—A party attempting to prove the loss of a will must show the constituent fact that it existed, just as though the will was being proven for probate as a lost instrument, and such requirement is necessary to show a revocation of a former will, under this article, and arts. 3271, 7859. Clover v. Clover (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 916.

Art. 3269. [1902] [1849] Nuncupative will shall not be proved, when, etc.

Reduction to writing.—Under this article, and arts. 3270, 7861, 1783, relating to the manner of execution and proof of nuncupative wills, it is not sufficient that one or even two nuncupative witnesses be present, nor is the acknowledgment of the testator's verbal disposition to be considered part of the instrument, so as to make the will effective. W.658. As to the manner of proving a nuncupative will, see普通法 at art. 3270, 7861, 1783, relating to the execution and proof of nuncupative wills, not providing who shall commit the testimony of the testator to writing or its manner or form, the procedure may be informal so long as it observes the essential requirements of the law, and the testimony as reduced to writing will be sufficient if it contains all the requirements of a nuncupative will, as the testamentary words, that they were uttered while the testator was in extremis and that he called upon those present to bear witness to his disposition; it being also proper to include the fact that testator dies at his habitacion, etc., and to show who was present and heard the words. ld.

Art. 3271. [1904] [1851] Facts which must be proved.

Requirements held mandatory.—The requirements of this article, that the testator at the time the will was executed was 21 years of age or married, of sound mind, and is dead, must be established before a will can be admitted to probate, regardless of whether the pleadings raise any such issue or not. Campbell v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 134.

Effect on pleading.—In view of this article, allegation by contestant in proceedings to probate unproduced will under article 3272 that testator, “while sane, executed the will alleged by proponent, that afterwards, while sane, he revoked the same,” held objectionable as not specific as to manner in which will was revoked. Perdue v. Perdue (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 555.

Duty of court.—It is court's duty in proceeding to probate a will, whether contested or not, to elicit from witnesses, when deemed necessary, any material facts bearing upon issues to be determined. Perdue v. Perdue (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 555.

Presumptions and burden of proof.—When testamentary instruments were presented for probate, duty devolved on proponents to show not only proper execution, but also testamentary's mental capacity to make a will. Sherwood v. Sherwood (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 658.

A party attempting to prove the loss of a will must show the constituent fact that it existed, just as though the will was being proven for probate as a lost instrument. Clover v. Clover (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 916.

Testamentary capacity.—One contesting a probated will by original proceeding on the ground that the testator was without mental capacity, has the burden of proof. Day v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 248.

Fraud and undue influence.—Notwithstanding suspicious circumstances as to making of will, such as that chief beneficiary wrote will and maintained secrecy as to its execution and existence until after testator’s death, burden of whole case remains upon contestant as to fraud and undue influence. Leahy v. Timon (Civ. App.) 234 S. W. 129.

The burden is on contestant to prove undue influence was exercised by a husband.
over his wife at the time she executed her will in his favor. Jennings v. Jennings (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 772.

In a suit to annul a will admitted to probate, the burden is on plaintiffs suing to set it aside for want of capacity, or undue influence to establish such matters, and every presumption will be indulged in favor of the will. Cook v. Denike (App.) 216 S. W. 457.

In order to set aside the probate of a will on account of undue influence, the burden is on him who is attacking the will to show that testator has been induced to act contrary to his own wishes and to make a different will from one he would have made had he been entirely free to act according to his own judgment and discretion, and such influence must have been in force at the very time of the execution of the will.

Revocation.—When a lost will has been established, if, when last seen, it was in testator's possession, the presumption is that he destroyed it; but if, when last seen, it was in the possession of some one other than testator, no such presumption arises, and the burden is on one claiming testator destroyed the will to prove that fact. Rape v. Cochran (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 250.

A will placed by testator at a bank was in his control within the meaning of the rule that, where a will, which when last seen was in the custody of the testator, cannot be found after his death, a presumption arises that it has been revoked. Clover v. Clover (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 916.

A party attempting to prove the loss of a will must show the constituent fact that it existed, just as though the will was being proven for probate as a lost instrument, and such requirement is necessary to show a revocation of a former will under this article and arts. 3367, 7859. Id.

Admissibility of evidence.—Evidence of declarations made by testatrix concerning the will and the act of the proponent should be limited to the state and conditions of the mind of the testatrix, and, unless there is a prima facie showing of undue influence or fraud, cannot be considered on those issues. Marshall v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 723.

On the issue of undue influence exerted on testatrix by her husband, the proponent, testimony with reference to proponent getting a stranger to prepare will, instead of a kinsman of wife's family, held irrelevant. Jennings v. Jennings (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 772.

On the issue of undue influence exerted on testatrix by her husband, the proponent testimony of a son that he did not know of existence of the will was inadmissible. Id.

On the issue of undue influence exerted on testatrix by her husband, evidence that he had whipped her and used abusive language toward her, and was otherwise guilty of unkind treatment, was admissible. Id.

On the issue of undue influence exerted on testatrix by her husband, the proponent, evidence of a conversation 12 years before the execution of will, with reference to what part of her father's estate testatrix wanted, was irrelevant. Id.

On the issue of undue influence exerted on testatrix by her husband, the proponent testimony that on the morning after her father's death proponent demanded his wife's share of the estate, was irrelevant. Id.

In will contest on ground of undue influence, fraud, and duress, evidence as to declarations of testatrix is admissible. Rounds v. Coleman (App.) 214 S. W. 496.

Where a will was contested on the ground of the testator's want of capacity, the fact that he unreasonably disinherited some of his children is a matter for consideration. Campbell v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 134.

Under this article, in a suit to set aside the probate of a will, witnesses to the proponent can testify that testatrix was of age and of sound and disposing mind; that the witnesses were credible, and would have known it if she had revoked her will. Cook v. Denike (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 457.

In contest of will on grounds of undue influence and mental incapacity, it was error to exclude contestant daughter's evidence that proponent's wife was unkind to testatrix and neglected her during her last illness, such evidence being admissible as a circumstance tending to show that the will was an unnatural one, and that testatrix was insane. Nimitz v. Holland (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 244.

In proceedings to probate holographic will, two instruments of later dates, also alleged to be wills of testatrix, which court held not sufficiently proven to entitle them to probate, held inadmissible in evidence for any purpose. Sherwood v. Sherwood (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 658.

In proceedings to probate a will, testimony of a devisee as to certain declarations of testator tending to show the will offered was the will he intended to make, such witness being called by proponents in rebuttal, should have been excluded. Massey v. Allen (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 882.

Though declarations of testator that he has made his will are not admissible, either on issue of execution or attestation, where it is alleged by contestants that proponents have exercised undue influence, such declarations, made within a reasonable period from execution, are admissible to show testator's state of mind and effect of such influence thereon. Id.

In a will contest, exclusion of testimony as to the amount of the physician's bill for operating on testator during his last illness held proper; such testimony being irrelevant and immaterial. Earl v. Mundy (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 716.

Testimony on contest of the will of the father of the parties, giving all his property to two of his children, B. and W., that their mother, who had predeceased the father, had requested all to look after her baby, B., was not prejudicial to W., and was admissible as tending to show any undue influence of W. did not affect the provision for B. Walker v. Irby (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 331.

— Revocation of will.—Where a will cannot be produced, and its last custodian has been some person other than the testator, testator's declarations that he had destroyed it for the purpose of revoking it are admissible. Rape v. Cochran (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 260.

Sufficiency of evidence—Execution and genuineness.—The probate of a will cannot be denied on ground of forgery, on proof that proponent had opportunity to become proficient in copying signatures of attesting witnesses or signature of maker of will. Mills v. Mills (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 106.

In contest of will, evidence held insufficient to sustain judgment that proposed will was a forgery. Id.

On contest of a will alleged to have been revoked by a subsequent will not produced, evidence held sufficient to show the execution and the loss of the subsequent will. Clover v. Clover (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 916.

— Testamentary capacity.—Evidence as to the mental condition and eccentricities of testatrix, in a will contest, held insufficient to support finding of incapacity. Vaughan v. Malone (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 292.

Evidence held to justify finding that 79 year old testatrix did not have sufficient testamentary capacity to make a valid and binding will. Bradshaw v. Brown (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1071.

In a suit to set aside a judgment admitting to probate the will of plaintiff's father on the ground of insanity, evidence held insufficient to justify finding that decedent was insane. Stolle v. Kenetzky (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 647.

In a will contest, proponent is required to establish testamentary capacity merely by the greater weight of the credible evidence; It being unnecessary that testamentary capacity be clearly shown. Earl v. Mundy (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 716.

In a contest of a will, evidence held insufficient to show that testator was not physically or mentally able to execute a valid will. In re Fulhais' Estate (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 659.

— Fraud and undue influence.—In proceeding for probate of will, evidence held sufficient to sustain verdict that execution of will was induced by proponent's undue influence. Beadle v. McCrabb (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 255.

A wife's will in favor of her husband cannot be set aside upon evidence that upon one occasion during the 36 years of married life he objected to the purchase of some clothing. Jennings v. Jennings (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 772.

Evidence held insufficient to show undue influence over testatrix by her husband. Id.

In a suit to set aside the probate of a will on the ground that testator had been influenced unduly by his son, who was plaintiff's brother, evidence held insufficient to support finding that undue influence had been exercised. Stolle v. Kanetzky (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 657.

Evidence of opportunity and the fact that a former will differing from the one in probate had been destroyed by the testator is insufficient to establish undue influence. Id.

In a will contest, fraud and undue influence may be proved by circumstantial evidence. Pendell v. Apodaca (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 652.

Evidence held sufficient to support a verdict finding that a will was the result of undue influence exercised by the man with whom testatrix was living in adultery. Id.

In a will contest, evidence held insufficient to produce even a surmise or suspicion of undue influence by the beneficiaries. Drewry v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 281.

Where a will makes an unreasonable or unnatural disposition of property, and the testator was so weakened in body and mind as to be easily influenced and the beneficiaries were in position to exercise undue influence, a jury or court would be authorized in finding that such influence was exercised, but where the record shows no such state of facts there can be no such presumption. Id.

On contest of will, evidence held insufficient to show that testator was not physically or mentally able to execute a valid will, or that he was in such weakened condition as to be unable to resist the proponent, or that the will as probated was hers and not his. In re Fulhais' Estate (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 659.

— Revocation of will.—Evidence held to sustain jury's finding that a later will was not intended to revoke former holographic will. Adams v. Maris (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 622.

Art. 3272. [1905] [1852] Further proof in case of will which cannot be produced in court.

Evidence.—By virtue of this article, when a written will is not produced, its non-production must be proved sufficiently to satisfy the court it cannot be done by reasonable diligence; then the contents must be substantially proved by the testimony of a credible witness who has read the same, or who has heard it read. Clover v. Clover (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 916.
Art. 3273. [1906] [1853] All testimony shall be committed to writing, etc.

Testimony reduced to writing.—Under art. 3690, prohibiting testimony of interested party as to transaction by deceased in suit between heirs and executor, unless called by opposite party, proponent having called heir as witness in county court to testify as to transaction with deceased, the testimony reduced to writing under this article and arts. 3274, 3275, was competent in district court. Perdue v. Perdue (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 353.

Under this article and art. 3275, subscribing witnesses’ testimony, given in the county court during a will contest, that testator at time of signing the codicil “was of sound and disposing mind and memory,” committed to writing under such statute, held properly read in the district court during the trial on appeal from the county court’s order, as against the contention that witness could not testify that the testator had a disposing memory. Earl v. Mundy (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 716.

Admission, in district court on appeal from order of county court probating will, of certified, written testimony and copies which were made, in court, under this article, and arts. 3274, 3275, if error, was harmless, where the witness testified fully to the same facts in the district court, Id.

Art. 3274. [1907] [1854] Order shall be entered, will, etc., shall be recorded, when.

Order—In general.—Provision in will that no other action shall be had in the county court in relation to the settlement of the testator’s estate than the probating and recording of his will and the return of an inventory, appraisement and lists of claims, is ineffective until the will is probated as required by law. Warne v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 242.

Is in rem.—Proceeding by which wills are proved for record and established as muniments of title are actions in rem, and judgments rendered therein are binding upon every one. Perdue v. Perdue (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 353.

A judgment in will contest is conclusive as to rights of heir, although heir did not actively participate in the contest by joining in the pleadings, Id.

Art. 3275. [1908] [1855] Certified copy of record may be read in evidence.

Written testimony as evidence in district court.—Under Rev. St. art. 3273, requiring testimony for the probate of a will to be reduced to writing and subscribed in open court, and this article, the written testimony on the hearing for probate is admissible in a suit to set aside the probate tried in the district court on appeal. Cook v. Denike (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 437.

Under this article, where, in proceedings in the county court to probate a will, proponent introduced testimony of testator’s brother, which testimony was committed to writing pursuant to art. 3273, on appeal to the district court it was admissible on behalf of contestants, despite the incompetency of the brother as a witness under art. 3259, had he not been called by proponent in the county court. Perdue v. Perdue, 110 Tex. 209, 217 S. W. 684.

Art. 3276. [1909] [1856] Will probated in another state or country may be filed and recorded in this state.

In general.—Legal services rendered in a proceeding to probate a will in Oklahoma, or in resisting the contest of the probate of the will interposed by decedent’s heirs, cannot be made a charge in favor of the attorney against the estate in the hands of a Texas administrator, at least until the Oklahoma executor, through whom the attorney seeks to go against the Texas administrator by right of subrogation, has become invested with the credentials provided by this article. Hare v. Pendleton (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 948.

Meeting requirements entities to probate.—Where the requirements of this article, in relation to application for probate of a foreign will, were met, the will was entitled to probate, and the county judge had no power or authority to deny it. Thompson v. Dodge (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 586.

Foreign probate insufficient.—Judgment probating a will in Oklahoma gave such will no standing in Texas. Hare v. Pendleton (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 948.

Foreign will as evidence.—A foreign will can be used in the courts of Texas as evidence of the ownership of property before recorded in the county court or probated in Texas according to Texas law, except as to real property situated in Texas. Hare v. Pendleton (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 948.

CHAPTER SIX GRANTING LETTERS

Art. 3277. Who are disqualified, etc.

3277. When a will has been probated letters testamentary shall be granted.
3279. When administration shall be granted.
3280. Administration shall not be granted, unless, etc.
3281. Order in which letters shall be granted.
3288. Where will is discovered after grant of administration.

Article 3277. [1910] [1857] Who are disqualified, etc.

Corporations.—A corporation may be appointed and act as executor; the creation of such corporations being authorized by art. 1121, subd. 37. Simmons v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 338.

Art. 3278. [1911] [1858] When a will has been probated letters testamentary shall be granted.

Failure to qualify and act.—A party in Texas could not, unknown to executors under the will of an Iowa decedent, have the will of such decedent probated, and afterwards prohibit the executors from administering the estate in Texas because more than 20 days elapsed after the probate before they sought to qualify under this article. Thompson v. Dodge (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 586.

Acceptance implied from acting.—A trustee appointed in a will need not formally accept duties of his office, but if he acts in performance of trust, he will be held to have accepted. Pepper v. Walling (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 892.

Art. 3279. [1912] [1859] When administration shall be granted.

Effect of independent executorship.—This article, regarding administration with will annexed, held not to apply where an independent executor accepted appointment by taking charge of estate and administering its affairs. Pepper v. Walling (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 892.

Art. 3280. [1913] [1860] Administration shall not be granted unless, etc.

Necessity determinable by county court.—It is the exclusive province of the county court to determine whether the necessity exists for the administration of an estate. Van Grinkerbeck v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1042.

Necessity.—The facts that the expenses of funeral and last illness were due and unpaid and the estate owed a note of $1,000, and owned property yielding a considerable sum as rents, do not support a judgment that no necessity existed for administering the estate. Van Grinkerbeck v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1042.

Necessity presumed.—Necessity for administration is to be presumed, in absence of showing, relative to revival of action against administrator or heirs of deceased party. Saner-Ragley Lumber Co. v. Spivey (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 878.

No necessity.—Where debtor, after alleged fraudulent conveyance to his wife, died leaving an insolvent estate, the creditor, without first securing administration upon the debtor's estate and establishing his debt against the estate, could maintain a proceeding against debtor's widow and children to set aside the conveyance, and in such proceeding the debt could be established and ordered paid out of the property; Moore v. Belt (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 225.

Where only property exempt.—Where all claims against deceased were barred by limitation, except one incurred by his brother for a coffin amounting to $20 there was no necessity for administration; it appearing that the only estate was a homestead worth about $100. Cohn v. Stenz (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 492.

“Estate” on which administration may be granted.—Right of action surviving to personal representative of a railroad employee, receiving injuries while engaged in interstate commerce, due to failure of railroad to comply with federal Safety Appliance Acts (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8606-8623), is an “estate”, on which administration may be granted. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Smitha (Sup.) 232 S. W. 494.

Art. 3281. [1914] [1861] Order in which letters shall be granted.

Independent executor.—Under this article, and art. 3293, the fitness of executor is determined by testator, and court is left without discretion in the matter, so that it was duty of court to accept the oath of an independent executor whenever tendered, and order issuance of letters testamentary upon his request. Pepper v. Walling (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 832.

Art. 3288. [1921] [1868] When will is discovered after grant of administration.

Art. 3289. [1922] [1869] Executor of will proved in another state entitled to letters within this state, when.

Domestic administrator superseded.—Under this article, an inheritance tax administrator appointed under art. 7491, is superseded by executor under probated foreign will. Dodge v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 116.

Liability of domestic administrator.—Where the executor of an Oklahoma decedent engaged an attorney to probate the will, and the attorney resisted the contest interposed by the decedent’s heirs, his claim for legal services may, where the assets in Oklahoma were exhausted, be made a charge against the personal estate in the hands of the ancillary Texas administrator, the executor having abandoned his application to be appointed administrator with the will annexed in the state of Texas, for the ancillary administrator bears the same responsibility as if he were the sole administrator or executor, and privity arises from his obligation to pay the debts of the estate, including the expenses of administration. Pendleton v. Hare (Com. App.) 321 S. W. 334.

Privilege not grant of power.—The privilege given by this article, and art. 3290, to a foreign personal representative to receive appointment as such in Texas, is not a grant of administrative power, but merely a privilege to be invoked on proper application, any administrative power deriving from appointment in Texas and qualification of the representative according to the local law. Hare v. Pendleton (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 948.

“Ancillary” administration defined.—The term “ancillary,” when applied to the administrator of a decedent’s estate, is not to be taken as signifying a supplemental administration in the sense that it is a part of and connected with the principal administration in the state of the domicile; the expression implies no privity or official connection between the two administrators. Hare v. Pendleton (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 918.

Duty of ancillary administrator.—The common-law rule allowing an ancillary administrator, after satisfying all local demands, to pay the residue over to the domiciliary representative of the estate, is not an absolute requirement, but founded on a comity, which the court of the situs has the discretion to ignore. Hare v. Pendleton (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 948.

Judgment against foreign executor invalid.—Judgment in a suit against a foreign executor brought in a court of Texas is not binding on the estate, as an executor or administrator can neither sue nor be sued outside of the state in which he receives appointment. Baber v. Houston Nat. Exch. Bank (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 156.

Art. 3290. [1923] [1870] Bond shall be required, etc.

See Hare v. Pendleton (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 948.

Art. 3291. [1924] [1871] Further administration shall be granted, when.

Administrator de bonis non, appointment.—A final order discharging administrators of an estate absolutely did not negative probate court’s power thereafter to appoint administrator de bonis non, there being nothing to show estate had been finally closed. Waterman Lumber & Supply Co. v. Robbins (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 825.

Must issue to person named in will.—Under art. 3281, and this article, the fitness of executor is determined by testator, and court is left without discretion in the matter, so that it was duty of court to accept the oath of an independent executor whenever tendered, and order issuance of letters testamentary upon his request. Pepper v. Walling (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 832.

Art. 3294. [1927] [1874] What facts must appear, etc.

See Childers v. Henderson, 76 Tex. 664, 13 S. W. 481.

TEMPORARY ADMINISTRATION

Article 3297. [1930] [1877] County judge may appoint temporary administrator, when.—Whenever it may appear to the county judge that the interest of an estate requires the immediate appointment of an administrator, he shall, either in open court or in vacation, by writing under his hand and the seal of the court, attested by the clerk, appoint some suitable person temporary administrator with such limited powers as the circumstances of the case may require; and the appointment so made may be made permanent, as hereinafter provided. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 98, § 20; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 71, § 1, amending art. 3297, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Effect of recitals in appointment.—Where the court, in appointing temporary administrator, recited sufficient grounds in the order to justify the appointment, the decree would not be affected by any invalid reason that might have been recited therein. Simmons v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 538.

Where an order for the temporary appointment of administrators under the authority of this and following articles, recited that the application was made so that an oil lease might be executed, but did not confer the power to execute the lease, the administrators did not have that power. Allar Co. v. Roeser (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 442.

Lease before appointment.—A lease made by lessors as temporary administrators, before their application for appointment under this and following articles, was filed, and which was not confirmed by the order of appointment, is void. Allar Co. v. Roeser (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 442.

Article 3298. [1931] [1878] Appointment may be made without application, etc.

Article 3299. [1932] [1879] Oath and bond required.

Article 3300. [1933] [1880] Appointment shall cease to be of force, when.—The order of the court in making such appointment shall state that unless the same is contested at the next regular term of the court, after service of citation, the same shall be made permanent, provided the court is of the opinion that a permanent administrator is necessary. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 98, § 20; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 71, § 1, amending art. 3300, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment. See Dignowitty v. Coleman, 77 Tex. 98, 13 S. W. 857.

Article 3300a. Same; contest of appointment.—Immediately after such appointment so made, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the court to issue citation; which shall state the name of the person appointed, and when so appointed, and the name of the deceased estate, and shall cite all persons interested in the welfare of the estate to appear at the term of court named in such citation, and contest such appointment if they so desire; and, that, if such appointment is not contested at the term of court so named in the citation, then the same shall become permanent.  [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 71, § 2, adding art. 3300a.]

Art. 3300b. Hearing and determination of contest.—In case such appointment is contested, the court shall hear and determine the same as the law and the facts require, and during the pendency of such contest, the person so appointed as temporary administrator shall continue to act as such; and, in case such appointment is set aside, the court shall require the person so appointed to make out, and file in court, under oath, a complete exhibit of the condition of such estate, and what disposition, if any, he has made of the same, or any portion thereof.  [Id., § 2, adding art. 3300b.]

Art. 3301. [1934] [1881] Pending contest the county judge may appoint temporary administrator.

Administrator, not heirs, etc., proper plaintiff.—Even if a temporary administrator should not have been appointed for an estate, under this article, yet where the will of the deceased had been duly probated, and there was an administration of the estate pending, and debts in a large sum had been filed and approved, the heirs and devisees of deceased could not bring trespass to try title to land belonging to the estate against others claiming it.  Simmons v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 338.

Art. 3302. [1935] [1882] Rights and powers, etc.

See Allar Co. v. Rooser (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 442.

In general.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 1878, providing that the probate court shall "define the powers" of temporary administrators appointed by it, and art. 1882, a probate court may authorize a husband, as temporary administrator of his wife's property, to prosecute an action already begun by the husband and wife, to recover land belonging to her separate estate.  Callihan v. Houston, 78 Tex. 494, 14 S. W. 1027.

Usual powers presumed.—Where the power conferred on temporary administrator by his appointment does not appear, it may be assumed in the absence of anything showing necessity for greater authority that he was simply clothed with the usual powers of temporary administrators.  In re Chapman's Estate (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 988.

Authority need not affirmatively appear.—That petition, in action by temporary administratrix, did not affirmatively show her authority from probate court to bring suit, does not render judgment for administratrix subject to collateral attack upon ground that court was without jurisdiction, notwithstanding this article, the judgment being a judicial determination that court had jurisdiction.  Pearson v. Lloyd (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 759.

Intervening in will contest—Costs.—Where executor appointed temporary administrator, under this article, intervened in will contest, though the order appointing him did not authorize him to do so, costs were properly taxed against him individually, and not against estate.  Campbell v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 134.

Injunction against temporary administrator.—In view of orders of county court, for Court of Civil Appeals to restrain unauthorized depredation, pending appeal in proceedings to probate will, upon testatrix's property by temporary administratrix appointed by county court, held not encroachment on jurisdiction of county court to administer estates of deceased persons.  Stewart v. Poinbeouf (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1025.

CHAPTER EIGHT

OATH AND BOND OF EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS

Art. 3308. Bond of executors and administrators.

Art. 3313. When will provides that no bond shall be required.

Art. 3319. Sureties may ask to be discharged and for new bond.

Article 3307. [1940] [1887] Oath of temporary administrator.

See Dignowitty v. Coleman, 77 Tex. 98, 13 S. W. 857.

Art. 3309. [1942] [1889] Bond of executors and administrators.

Premiums paid on fidelity bond.—The fact that an administratrix or her attorneys were induced to believe, from the language of a county judge, that he would allow as expenses premiums paid by the administratrix on a fidelity bond, did not authorize or legalize such a charge, as the law, once determined, must be followed, although the court may have therefore labored under an erroneous impression as to what the law was. Jarvis v. Drew (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 970.

In the absence of some statutory authority, a premium paid for the making of an administrator's bond is not a proper charge against the estate, but should be borne by the administrator. Id.

This article, and arts. 3621, 3622, 3623, 3235, 4095, 4101, 5492, do not authorize administrator to charge against the estate a premium paid for the making of his bond. Id.

Liability on bond.—Though check for price of articles belonging to intestate's estate and sold by administrator by authority of the probate court was made payable to administrator as agent and attorney in fact of the heirs, he received it as administrator, and the sureties on his bond are liable for the proceeds. Smith v. Belding (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 562.

An administrator, and consequently his sureties sued on his bond, held prima facie entitled to credits for payments by him in the administration of the estate, as shown by his canceled checks and other vouchers. Id.

A surety of executors is liable for their fraud and breach of trust, although he may not have personally profited, and he cannot drive the beneficiary of the trust to a separate suit against the executors. Bain v. Coats (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 571.

Interest on claim.—Interest should not be allowed against the sureties on administrator's bond from the time of his death, but only from the time of demand on them for payment of money belonging to the estate, prior to which time they had no knowledge of any claimed misapplication of funds, or failure to account by the administrator; no demand for payment by him or request for distribution of the estate, or suggestion of willful or wrongful withholding of money, having been made. Smith v. Belding (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 562.

Action on bond.—In action by an administrator de bonis non against the former administrator and his surety for an accounting as to a note owing by the former administrator to decedent, a defense by the surety that the former administrator was insolvent if it constitutes a defense as against art. 3378, requiring an administrator to account for such debt in the same manner as if it were so much money in his hands, is not availing to the surety, unless it be pleaded; proof thereof under a general denial being insufficient. American Surety Co. of New York v. Norton (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 457.

Discharge of sureties.—Payment by administrator de bonis non for purpose of turning over to intestate's heirs the money that had come into his hands as such, which at death of the administrator was on deposit to credit of the administrator as such, is no consideration for any attempted release of the administrator de bonis and another as sureties on the administrator's bond. Smith v. Belding (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 562.

Art. 3313. 1946] 1893 When will provides that no bond shall be required.

Art. 3319. 1952] 1899 Sureties may ask to be discharged and for new bond.

Letter requesting release not effective as discharge.—Surety's letter to county judge requesting release from liability under guardian's bond did not relieve surety from liability, where no petition to be relieved therefrom was filed and where guardian was not cited to appear and give new bond, as required by this article and art. 4109. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Peden (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1114.

CHAPTER TEN

INVENTORY, APPRAISEMENT AND LIST OF CLAIMS

Art. 3332. Inventory and appraisement.

Art. 3337. Court shall approve or disapprove.

Art. 3340. Duty of executor to make additional inventory.

Art. 3341. May be cited to make, etc.

Art. 3342. Order requiring additional inventory.

Art. 3343. Erroneous inventory or list may be corrected.

Article 3332. 1965] 1912 Inventory and appraisement.

Property constituting assets—in general.—It will be presumed that personal property in intestate's possession and on her premises at time of her death belonged to her. Reynolds v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 382.
Homestead not assets though proper to include.—The homestead was not subject to administration as assets of the husband’s estate. Allen v. Ramey (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 489.

Conclusiveness and effect.—Where an administrator, while inventorying the personality of the estate, apprised the county court that it was claimed by decedent’s son, who applied to have the property turned over to him, an application which the court granted, and the administrator turned the property over, the effect of the order was to eliminate the property from the inventory, at least until some action was taken in a court of competent jurisdiction to recover it. Brown v. Fleming (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 484.

Where, when district court entered order denying administrator’s application for sale of realty to pay debts, certain personality was not in his hands as administrator, and was not even a part of his inventory, having been turned over to decedent’s son, who claimed it, pursuant to the order of the county court, and no objection was made to the inventory, which did not refer to the personality, decedent’s creditor cannot, by way of contest of the application for sale by the administrator, inject the issue of the correctness of the inventory. Id.

The inventory of a decedent’s estate required by this chapter, to be filed by the administrator, should be at least prima facie a guide for the county court in respect of what property belongs to the estate and comes under the jurisdiction of the court. Id.

Art. 3337. [1970] [1917] Court shall approve or disapprove same.

Art. 3340. [1973] [1920] Duty of executor, etc., to make additional inventory.
Cited, Chifflet v. Willis, 74 Tex. 245, 11 S. W. 1105.

Art. 3341. [1974] [1921] May be cited to make, etc.

Form of proceeding.—It is not proper to include the proceeding to have the additional property inventoried, under Rev. St. 1879, arts. 1921, 1922, in a proceeding to require the administrator to make an exhibit of the condition of the estate. Chifflet v. Willis, 74 Tex. 245, 11 S. W. 1105.

Art. 3342. [1975] [1922] Order requiring additional inventory.

Art. 3343. [1976] [1923] Erroneous inventory or list may be corrected.

Art. 3344. [1977] [1924] New reappraisement may be required.

Art. 3346. [1979] [1926] New reappraisement stands in place of original.

Art. 3347. [1980] [1927] Not more than one reappraisement.
See Brown v. Fleming (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 483.

See Haley v. Gatewood, 74 Tex. 281, 12 S. W. 25.

Conclusiveness and effect of inventory.—In proceedings by administrator de bonis non to sell land for payment of deceased’s debts, held neither corrected nor original in-
CERTAIN RIGHTS, DUTIES AND POWERS OF EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS

Art. 3351. [1984] [1931] Duty in regard to plantation, manufacturing or business.

In general.—Rev. St. 1879, art. 1931, must be construed to include a mercantile business. Where the executor is free from the control of the county court, &c., an independent executor, it is his duty to determine, from the lights before him, whether the estate will be benefited by continuing the business and, if he uses a reasonable discretion, his estate is not chargeable with loss incurred in carrying on such business. Dwyer v. Kalteyer, 68 Tex. 554, 5 S. W. 75.

Art. 3353. [1986] [1933] Ordinary diligence shall be used to collect claims and recover property of estate.

In general.—The general rule is that the legal representative of a deceased person's estate is the proper person to enforce payment of indebtedness due the estate, and this rule applies ordinarily in cases where a contract between a married man and another has matured previous to, or during, the administration of his estate by an executor. Arizona Life Ins. Co. v. Osborne (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 816.

Power to waive priority of claim.—Under this article, an administrator is without authority to agree that, on payment of a part of a series of vendor's lien notes, the remainder should be made a second lien subject to the loan procured to pay off the first of the series, and so a deposition of administrator tending to show such an agreement was properly excluded in an action on the notes. Duenkel v. Amarillo Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 670.

Action by administrator.—Under this article, an administrator may, in proceeding to collect a series of vendor's lien notes, exercise an option to declare the entire series due on default in payment of any one of them or interest. Duenkel v. Amarillo Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 670.

In an administrator's action against intestate's son to recover proceeds of intestate's cattle sold by son while living with intestate and cultivating her farm, evidence held not to show that proceeds were used by intestate during her lifetime. Reynolds v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 552.

Art. 3354. [1987] [1934] Property may be purchased, compromises made, etc., under order of the court.

Power to waive priority of claim.—Under this article, and art. 3355, an administrator does not have the authority, without the consent of the probate court, to agree that maker of vendor's lien notes may procure a loan on the land and pay off part thereof, postponing the security for the remaining notes as a second lien. Duenkel v. Amarillo Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 670.

Power to compromise claim.—Under direct provisions of this article, administrator cannot compromise claim for broker's commissions, so as to bind estate, without order of probate court. Jones v. Gilliam (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 694.
Chap. 12) ESTATES OF DECEDENETS Art. 3358

individual liability for breach of agreement.—An executor, who acted for the estate money to discharge the lien of a judgment owned by the estate in violation of his agreement to release that judgment if the debtors did not bid at the sale of the mortgaged property, cannot defeat his individual liability for the injury so caused by his plea that he was acting as representative of the estate. Lobit v. Marcoulides (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 757.

Power to compromise mortgage.—Evidence and agreed statement of facts that a will made defendants executors without bond with power to sell, and testimony by an executor that he was authorized to act in the transaction as such, and that whatever he did was satisfactory to the estate, is sufficient to sustain the trial court’s conclusion that the executor was authorized to make a contract to take the mortgaged property in full satisfaction of the judgment. Lobit v. Marcoulides (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 757.

See Dodge v. Lacey (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 400.

In general.—Under Rev. St. 1879, arts. 3106, 1907, in a suit by an agent against the executors of testator’s estate for his commissions, the letters written by one of the executors to plaintiff and to the person to whom testator’s real estate was alleged to have been sold are admissible against the estate without the coexecutors having joined therein. Armstrong v. O’Brien, 83 Tex. 635, 19 S. W. 268.

Evidence held insufficient to support finding that the estate of decedent was bound by the contract of only one of three executors and trustees, employing plaintiff broker to sell the land on commission. Dodge v. Lacey (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 400.

Liability for acts of coexecutor.—An executor is not personally liable for money obtained by a coexecutor in violation of an agreement in which the former took no part, and of which he was shown to have no knowledge. In the absence of proof that the former executor had received benefits from the estate. Lobit v. Marcoulides (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 757.

Art. 3357. [1990] [1937] Preceding article does not apply, when.

See Dodge v. Lacey (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 400.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Foreign executors and administrators.—Notwithstanding interest of another in an estate, or fact that he was administrator of that part of the estate located elsewhere, the Texas administrator is the only person within the state of Texas who can make contracts concerning property of the intestate within that jurisdiction. Duenkel v. Amarillo Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 670.

An administrator is the agent of the court in the jurisdiction where he is appointed, and is not subject to the jurisdiction of the courts of other states unless he voluntarily appears and submits to its jurisdiction. Paulkner v. Reed (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 940.

CHAPTER TWELVE

ADMINISTRATION UNDER A WILL

Art. 3358. Directions in will to be executed, unless, etc.

Art. 3359. Citation to executor, etc., in such case.

Art. 3360. Testator may provide that no action be had in court, except probate of will, etc.

Art. 3362. Creditor may sue executor in such case.

Art. 3363. Executor without bond may be required to give bond, when.

Art. 3364. Order requiring bond.

Art. 3368. Estate shall be partitioned and divided by court, when.

Art. 3370. Bond shall be filed and recorded.

Art. 3372. Creditor may sue on bond, etc.

Article 3358. [1991] [1938] Directions in will to be executed, unless, etc.

In general.—Under Const. art. 5, § 16, giving county courts jurisdiction of probate courts, and this article, the county court has exclusive original jurisdiction over probate matters. Hutchens v. Dresser (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 985.

Art. 3358  ESTATES OF DECEDENTS  (Title 52)

Where guardian had ample funds as executor and trustee to educate and maintain wards, and was charged under the will to use such funds for that purpose, neither he nor his sureties are entitled to credit for any of guardianship fund expended for such purpose without authority from the probate court. Davis v. White (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 678.

This article, and arts. 3359-3361, are inapplicable to contest of application to probate will. Walker v. Irby (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 831.

Nature of proceedings to annul.—A creditors' suit to collect a judgment from income payable under testamentary trust was not "to annul or suspend provisions of a will," within this article. Nunn v. Titche-Goettinger Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 898.

Art. 3360. [1993] [1940] Citation to executor, etc., in such case.
Cited, Frather v. McClelland, 76 Tex. 574, 13 S. W. 543.

Art. 3362. [1995] [1942] Testator may provide that no action be had in the court, except probate of will, etc.

Jurisdiction of court.—Where an estate was solvent, and the will provided that no action should be taken in county court, and defendant was an independent executors ashead adverse claims of other heirs, the district court alone had authority to determine the heirs' rights in a suit for partition. Quintana v. Giraud (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 779.

The court has no control over an independent executor in the faithful performance of his duties as provided in the will, and the only action which this court is required or authorized to take is to probate the will which names the executor; he, if his powers are general, managing the estate and paying the debts as though they were his own. Ewing v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 625.

The management of an estate by independent executor is an administration under the law, and the County Court has no jurisdiction to settle accounts between him and the heirs and devisees. Fernandez v. Holland-Texas Hypoteek Bank of Amsterdam, Holland (Civ. App.) 521 S. W. 1064.

Where a will gave an absolute estate to testator's children, and in subsequent proceeding authorized the executor to take possession of "any and all property belonging to my estate; to sell and convey same; to invest any money that may come into his hands in such way as he shall deem proper; and to execute all the deeds of conveyance, acquittances and receipts necessary and proper to be executed in order to carry out the object of this instrument," the executor, by such provision, was made an independent executor, and not a trustee. Beckham v. Beckham (Com. App.) 237 S. W. 940.

Independent executor.—Failure of succeeding independent executor designated by will to file oath previous to application of a third person for appointment of administrator held not a waiver of his right to be appointed as executor. Pepper v. Walling (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 892.

Probating will effects appointment.—Under this article, relating to independent executors, held that it is not necessary that an independent executor take an oath and his designation as executor, and probate of will is sufficient to perfect his appointment. Pepper v. Walling (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 892.

Independent executor is qualified to act from time will appointing him is admitted to probate. Coleman v. Texas Produce Co. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 582.

Powers.—Independent executors have the right to manage and control estates without interference of the courts, unless necessity arises for the adjournment of some legal rights of others. Beckham v. Beckham (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 517.

Independent executor under terms of will had no authority to bind estate in subscribing to stock of hotel company; no power to invest any part of estate in any business having been given in will, which provided revenues from realty should be divided among certain devisees, etc. Lovenskiold v. Nueces Hotel Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 753.

Personal liability.—Hotel company's petition to recover from independent executor on subscription to capital stock held sufficient to show executor's personal liability, alleging in alternative that, if executor did not bind estate, he bound himself personally. Lovenskiold v. Nueces Hotel Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 753.

Community property.—Where property of deceased was left to an executor in trust without action of the probate court, a deed of testator's half of community property by the survivor, before the executor qualified, was ineffectual. Nations v. Neighbors (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 891.

Termination of executorship.—In view of this article, and arts. 3363 and 3364, when an executor who is authorized to act independently of the probate court in good faith, and not in fraud of creditors, passes the estate committed to him to those entitled to receive it, he loses control thereof and may not thereafter administer it for creditors, and is not as a consequence further accountable to creditors in his representative capacity. Patton v. Smith (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1034.

Resignation.—Where one nominated by will as independent executor was appointed guardian of estate of minor beneficiaries after filing his application to probate the will but prior to admission of the will to probate and his appointment as independent executor, appointment as guardian did not amount to resignation of his executorship. Beckham v. Beckham (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 617.
Where one nominated by will as independent executor was appointed guardian of estate of minor beneficiaries after filing his application to probate the will but prior to admission to probate and appointment as independent executor, appointment as guardian did not amount to resignation of trusteeship as to any of the beneficiaries under the will. 1d.

Art. 3363. [1996] [1943] Creditor may sue executor in such case.

In general.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 1202, providing that, “In every suit against the estate of a decedent involving title to real estate, the executor,” etc., “shall be made parties,” and art. 1945, a mortgage creditor may sue the executor for foreclosure, without making the heirs of the deceased mortgage parties. Howard v. Johnson, 69 Tex. 655, 7 S. W. 522.

Under Rev. St. 1879, arts. 1942, 1943, the qualifications and return of inventory by one of two executors of such a will is sufficient to withdraw the estate from administration by the court, and subject property in the hands of such executor to levy and sale on execution. Roberts v. Connellee, 71 Tex. 11, 8 S. W. 626.

Art. 3364. [1997] [1944] Executor without bond may be required to give bond, when.

Independent executor.—This article, and art. 3365, are applicable to executors acting under will already probated, and does not require that person named as independent executor give bond until by probate of the will he becomes independent executor. Daniels v. Jones (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 476.

Art. 3368. [2001] [1948] Estate may be partitioned and divided by court, when.

Trusted cannot divest themselves of duty.—Trustees under a will had no right to divest themselves of the duty of partitioning the property in settlement of the will and to confer on testator's son the power to subsequently handle the property for the beneficiaries. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Harbaugh (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 486.

Art. 3370. [2003] [1950] Upon failure to give bond estate shall be administered under direction of the court.

Art. 3371. [2004] [1951] Bond shall be filed and recorded.

Art. 3372. [2005] [1952] Creditor may sue on bond, etc.

Art. 3374. [2007] [1954] Executor may sell property without order of court, when, etc.

Will construed.—Where executor was left the right to “manage and control” and “invest proceeds of rents and sale, all the rest of said property just as if it was his own,” the title was in the executor, and he could sell either real or personal property to pay debts. Nations v. Neighbors (Civ. App.) 291 S. W. 891.

Authority to grant oil and gas lease.—Where a will gave power to executors and executrices to do and perform anything in and about the management and control and disposition of the estate, and to carry the provisions of the will into execution, but there were no express terms authorizing sale of mineral rights, the executors, etc., have no authority to grant an oil and gas lease. Smith v. Womack (Civ. App.) 241 S. W. 840.

Power of independent executor.—An independent executor has the same authority as the probate court possesses in ordinary administrations to employ agents to sell the lands of the estate and to make the estate liable for reasonable commissions earned under such employment. Jones v. Gilliam, 109 Tex. 552, 212 S. W. 930.

An independent executor has the right to sell property to pay debts without an order, whether such power is expressed in the will or not. Fernandez v. Holland-Texas Hypoteek Bank of Amsterdam, Holland (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1001.

Art. 3378. [2011] [1958] Naming an executor in a will does not release him from a debt, etc.
CHAPTER THIRTEEN
SUBSEQUENT EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS

Article 3379. [2012] [1959] Subsequent administrator under a will shall succeed to rights of executor, etc.

Application for letters.—Under art. 1959, Rev. St. 1875, it is sufficient, in an application for letters as administrator de bonis non, merely to represent to the court that the estate is not fully administered, and the necessity for administration need not appear therein. Williams v. Verne, 68 Tex. 414, 4 S. W. 548.

Powers.—Administrator de bonis non, successor of others who had failed to act until estate was finally closed, had same rights and powers as if he had been originally appointed on death of decedent, and had continued to act until he sold, under order of court, unlocated balance land certificate, community property of decedent and widow. Waterman Lumber & Supply Co. v. Robbins (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 682.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN
WITHDRAWING ESTATES FROM ADMINISTRATION

Article 3384. [2017] [1964] Persons entitled to estate may cause executor or administrator to be cited, etc.

See Miller v. Miller (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 737.

Withdrawing estate from administration—In general.—Judgment of district court on the minutes on appeal from order of probate court appointing guardian for minor heirs, denying application of applicant to be appointed guardian, but not confirming appointment of appellee, is insufficient to sustain a judgment ordering the estate withdrawn from administration. Drew v. Jarvis, 110 Tex. 136, 216 S. W. 618.

Who entitled.—In view of arts. 3366, 3363, giving “those interested in an estate” certain rights as to its administration, this article, giving only to “any one entitled to a portion” of an estate “as heir, devisee or legatee” the right, by giving bond as provided in article 3385, to withdraw an estate from administration, does not give such right to the vendee of an heir, devisee, or legatee. Rowe v. Dyess (Com. App.) 277 S. W. 222.

The beneficiaries under a will and the executor named therein in the absence of objection by creditors have a right to terminate administration whenever they see fit, if not contrary to the will. Pierce v. Foreign Mission Board of Southern Baptist Convention (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 140.

Application.—That application of guardian of minor heirs for withdrawal of estate from administration did not state that applicant was guardian of estates as well as persons of minors did not deprive county court of jurisdiction to determine whether estate should be withdrawn, and to whom it should be delivered, if withdrawn; applicant having executed bond required by art. 3385. Drew v. Jarvis, 110 Tex. 136, 216 S. W. 618.

Article 3385. [2018] [1965] May give bond to pay debts of estate, etc.

Article 3386. [2019] [1966] Bond shall be filed and recorded and order of court thereon.

See Miller v. Miller (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 737.

Art. 3387. [2020] [1967] Partition may be had of estate.

See Miller v. Miller (Clv. App.) 227 S. W. 737.

Art. 3388. [2021] [1968] Lien on property in hands of distributees.

Art. 3389. [2022] [1969] Creditor whose claim has been allowed, etc., may sue on bond.

Art. 3391. [2024] [1971] Creditor may also sue distributee.

In general.—In a suit against an independent executor and residuary legatees to recover under a promise by decedent to make a bequest in plaintiff's favor which had not been done, a complaint, charging that the legatees had received of the executor and then had in their possession certain enumerated mixed property of a value more than sufficient to satisfy the claim, was insufficient as failing to allege a personal liability against the legatees; the remedy being to proceed to enforce a creditor's lien against the property with the aid of the court's equitable process. Patton v. Smith (Clv. App.) 221 S. W. 1084.

In action by intestate's creditor against nonresident administrator, heirs, and heirs' grantees to foreclose creditor's lien under this article and art. 3456, after such land had been sold by heirs to such grantees, judgment was not objectionable as a judgment against a foreign administrator, being a judgment in rem for the purpose of foreclosing the lien. Faulkner v. Reed (Clv. App.) 229 S. W. 945.

An heir or devisee, though liable to creditor of decedent to the extent of the property he takes, is not personally liable for a deficiency after the sale of the property. Id.

Art. 3392. [2025] [1972] Order discharging executor or administrator and closing estate.

Appeal.—Though minors are the only children and heirs, and entitled to the whole of the estate of deceased, the duly qualified and acting administratrix of deceased's estate is entitled, in view of art. 3235, as to possession and holding of estate by administrator, to appeal as administratrix without bond from judgment withdrawing estate from administration. Drew v. Jarvis, 110 Tex. 136, 216 S. W. 618.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

REMOVAL OF EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS

Article 3394. [2027] [1974] In what cases may be removed with notice.

Causes for removal.—Temporary administratrix's conversion of testatrix's property is ground for her removal. Stewart v. Poinbeouf (Clv. App.) 301 S. W. 1926.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

ALLOWANCE TO WIDOW AND MINOR CHILDREN

Article 3410. [2043] [1990] Sale shall be ordered to raise allowance, when.

Homestead.—The homestead was not subject to administration as assets of the husband's estate, nor could it be sold to pay an allowance under the statute to the widow and minor children. Allen v. Ramey (Clv. App.) 228 S. W. 489.

Order, of the probate court setting apart the husband's interest in the homestead, which was community property, to the widow and children for their support, and directing a sale of such interest to satisfy the allowance, were not merely erroneous, but void for lack of power to make them, and might be attacked collaterally. Id.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

SETTING APART THE HOMESTEAD AND OTHER EXEMPT PROPERTY TO WIDOW AND CHILDREN

Art. 3413. [2046] [1993] Court shall set apart exempt property, etc.
1. Construction.—Under this article, and art. 3416, referring to duty of probate court to set apart for the use of widow, minor children, and unmarried daughters remaining with the family of deceased all property of the estate exempt from execution, where there was no administration of the estate, there could not be setting apart of exemptions granting to an unmarried adult daughter possession of the homestead rent free until partition be affected by sale. Quintana v. Giraud (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 770.
Orders of the probate court setting apart the husband's interest in the homestead, which was community property, to the widow and children for their support, and directing a sale of such interest to satisfy the allowance, were not merely erroneous, but void for lack of power to make them, and might be attacked collaterally. Allen v. Ramsey (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 469.
The homestead was not subject to administration as assets of the husband's estate, nor could it be sold to pay an allowance under the statute to the widow and minor children. Id.
9. Effect of divorce or abandonment of husband.—While a divorced wife could not assert any claim to the homestead of her deceased husband, yet she, as the duly constituted guardian of their minor daughter, could apply to the county court to have the homestead which he occupied at the date of his death set apart for the occupation and use of such minor. Scripture v. Scripture (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 826.
Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 3413, provides that exempt property must be set apart for the use of widow, minor children, and unmarried daughters remaining with the family of the deceased, and the qualification "remaining with the family" does not apply to minor children, so that a minor daughter under custody of decedent's divorced wife may have the use and occupation of the homestead set over to her. Id.
The fact that decedent was single when he died did not affect the right of a minor daughter living with decedent's divorced wife to have the homestead set aside for such minor's use, for, notwithstanding the marriage status had been dissolved by the divorce decree, and the custody of the child awarded to the mother, and that they did not live with the father, yet he was legally bound for the child's support. Id.
10. Conveyance or abandonment of homestead.—Where an insolvent decedent gave a note and mortgage upon his land when single, subsequently married, made the land his homestead, and, after abandoning it, gave, without his wife's joinder, a new note and trust deed, and some time later re-established such homestead, the mortgage lien is superior to the homestead exemption rights of the widow and children in the land. Investors' Mortgage Security Co. v. Newton, 109 Tex. 478, 211 S. W. 971.

Art. 3416. [2049] [1996] To whom the exempt property shall be delivered.
Administration necessary.—Under art. 3413 and this article, where there was no administration of the estate, there could be no setting apart of exemptions granting to an unmarried adult daughter possession of the homestead rent free until partition be affected by sale. Quintana v. Giraud (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 770.

Art. 3417. [2050] [1997] Allowance shall be paid, how.
Art. 3420. [2053] [2000] Property on which liens exist shall not be set aside.

In general.—In a suit wherein defendant children, as tenants in common, claimed homestead rights as against foreclosure of a lien, evidence held not to sustain allegation that they held such homestead in homestead rights in a larger tract. Massillon Engine & Thresher Co. v. Barrow (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 923.

A valid mortgage lien upon personal property of an insolvent decedent, created before his marriage, and prior to passage of this article, is superior to the wife's subsequent claim for allowances in lieu of homestead and exemptions; this article superseding the Probate Act of 1848, having reference to liens given by the husband after his marriage. Hedeman v. Newnom, 109 Tex. 472, 211 S. W. 968.

Art. 3422. [2055] [2002] When estate proves to be insolvent.

Constitutionality.—In view of Rev. St. art. 1879, art. 2007, where the homestead of an insolvent decedent was set aside to the widow, one adult child living, such child, or the death of the widow, inherited the property absolutely and free from the claims of the creditors or administrator; so much of art. 2002 as attempts to pass the homestead of an insolvent absolutely to the widow and minor children to the exclusion of the adult being unconstitutional, because in violation of Const. art. 16, § 52, providing that the homestead shall descend and vest as other real property of the deceased. Stayton, C. J., dissenting. Zwernemann v. Von Rosenberg, 76 Tex. 522, 13 S. W. 485, followed. Lacy v. Lockett, 82 Tex. 190, 17 S. W. 916.

Construction and application.—This article, providing that, when the estate is insolvent, the widow's title to the property and allowances derived from "the estate of the husband" set apart to her under arts. 3413, 3414, shall be absolute, and not taken for any debts of the estate, except as authorized in following provisions, does not apply to a chattel mortgage given by a husband upon his property when a single man; "the estate of the husband" in such property being only the equity of redemption. Hedeman v. Newnom, 109 Tex. 472, 211 S. W. 968.

Art. 3423. [2056] [2003] Exempt property, etc., not to be considered in ascertaining solvency, etc.

Art. 3424. [2057] [2004] When homestead shall not be partitioned.

In general.—Where in partition suit the evidence establishes that the actual uses made of land claimed as a homestead were contrary to an abandonment or intention to abandon and was not partitioned under direct provisions of this article. Esteva v. Esteva (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 972.

Persons protected.—If it be true that the homestead is protected in favor of an unmarried adult daughter against creditors, Const. art. 16, § 52, does not protect it in her favor from partition among the heirs, the only persons thus protected being the surviving husband or wife or minor children. Quintana v. Giraud (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 770.

Occupancy by widow.—If land conveyed to second wife became her homestead, it was not subject to partition after the husband's death at suit of the divorced first wife, claiming through her son, even though it was community property of the second marriage. Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 202.

Titles acquired otherwise than by descent from ancestor.—Const. art. 16, § 52, prohibiting partition of homestead by heirs during lifetime of surviving wife, does not apply where the wife buys the children's interest, and partition is prayed by a third party against the wife under a claim that the husband was holding an interest therein in trust; the wife not being an heir. McBride v. Briggs (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 341.

Art. 3426. [2059] [2006] No distinction between separate and community homestead.

In general.—Where a surviving widow and several children live as cotenants upon a common piece of land, the legal title of which is owned by a child, their mother held not entitled to 200 acres of the land as her homestead, where she has recognized the rights of the children. Massillon Engine & Thresher Co. v. Barrow (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 932.

If land conveyed to second wife became her homestead, it was not subject to partition after the husband's death at suit of the divorced first wife, claiming through her son, even though it was community property of the second marriage. Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 202.

A third wife and her children can claim no homestead rights in the community interest that once belonged to the second wife. Guest v. Guest (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 547.

Notwithstanding the statutes except the homestead from the community property liable for community debts, making it "exempt from forced sale" (arts. 3592, 2256), nevertheless the survivor may convey the community homestead to discharge community debts which constitute no lien thereon. Stone v. Jackson, 109 Tex. 235, 219 S. W. 963.

Where the homestead was community property, the title of the children vested at once on the death of the husband and was not dependent on the continued use of the property as a homestead by the widow and minor children, and their abandonment of it was not a defense to a suit to recover their undivided interest therein after an unauthorized sale for the purpose of paying an allowance to the widow and minor children. Allen v. Ramey (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 489.

A surviving widow of one having a homestead in community property has the same right under the Texas laws as the deceased owner. Woodward v. Sanger Bros., 246 F. 777, 159 C. C. A. 79.

Where a surviving widow, who during the minority of children held all of the community estate of herself and her husband, which was claimed by him as a homestead, after the children reached their majorities, etc., and the daughters were married, consented to a partition whereby she received in fee less than one-half of the land in all of which she had a homestead estate, such partition did not free the land which the widow received in fee from its homestead character which had previously been impressed thereon under the Texas laws. 10.

Art. 3427. [2060] [2007] Homestead not liable for debts, except, etc.

In general.—In view of Rev. St. 1879, art. 2002, where the homestead of an insolvent decedent was set aside to the widow, one adult child living, such child, on the death of the widow, inherited the property absolutely and free from the claims of the creditors or administrator; so much of art. 2002 as attempts to pass the homestead of an insolvent absolutely to the widow and minor children to the exclusion of the adult being unconstitutional, because in violation of Const. art. 16, § 52, providing that the homestead shall descend and vest as other real property of the deceased. Stayton, C. J., dissenting. (Zwernemann v. Von Rosenberg, 76 Tex. 522, 13 S. W. 485, followed.) Lacy v. Lockett, 82 Tex. 190, 17 S. W. 916.

Homestead descending from father to children cannot be offset by surety on bond of father as guardian of children, but otherwise as to all other property so descending. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore, Md., v. Fountain (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 675.

In suit against unmarried children upon their notes secured by trust deed upon homestead of their deceased parents, such homestead was not exempt, under Constitution. Gilbreath v. Cage & Crow (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 972.

A lien in a contract for street improvement to secure payment to contractor covering homestead and given by widow, if construed as mortgage, is invalid, under Const. art. 16, § 60. Schutze v. Dabney (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 342.

Art. 3428. [2061] [2008] Other exempt property, liable for what debts.

In general.—Rights of heirs of deceased wife were fixed by laws in force at time of death and could not thereafter be disturbed either by statutory or by constitutional restrictions. Tompkins v. Hooker (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 193.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

PRESENTMENT, ETC., OF CLAIMS AGAINST AN ESTATE.

Art. 3430. Notice of issuance of letters shall be given.

3435. Claims shall be postponed if not presented in twelve months; proviso.

3439. Affidavit to claim.

3440. Claim lost or destroyed, etc.

3441. Affidavit made before whom.

3442. Allowance or approval without affidavit, void.

3443. Memorandum of allowance of rejection.

3444. Failure to indorse or annex memorandum of rejection.

3445. When claim is allowed shall be presented for approval, etc.
Chap 19) ESTATES OF DECEDENTS Art. 3443

Article 3430. [2063] [2010] Notice of issuance of letters shall be given.

In general.—Under this article, and arts. 3443, 3444, and 3450, providing that judgments on claims disallowed by administrators shall be filed with the county court and have same effect as if they had been allowed, such judgments are not enforceable by execution, and cannot become dormant and be revived by seire facias under arts. 3717 and 5696. Farmers' Nat. Bank v. Crumley (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 358.

Art. 3435. [2068] [2015] Claims shall be postponed, if not presented within twelve months; proviso.

Cited, Simmons v. Terrell, 75 Tex. 275, 12 S. W. 854.

In general.—The debt being that of deceased, it was duty of creditor to exhaust its remedy against his property before resorting to property of son mortgaged by deceased to secure debt. Cavitt v. Beall Hardware & Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 788.

Presentation.—Evidence held to support the trial court's finding that a properly authenticated demand for payment was presented by plaintiff claimant to defendant administrator. Lay v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 433.

Time for presentation.—When an estate is being administered by an independent executor, it is unnecessary for a claimant against the estate to present claim to such executor for allowance or classification within one year; this article, not applying. Ewing v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 625.

In a suit against an independent executor to recover a debt owing plaintiff by decedent, evidence held to sustain a finding that, if presentation was necessary, the claim was presented to the executor for allowance in proper time. Id.

Art. 3439. [2072] [2018] Affidavit to claim.

Cited, Simmons v. Terrell, 75 Tex. 275, 12 S. W. 854.

In general.—One having a claim against a decedent's estate was charged with knowledge that the administratrix had no authority to pay the account unless it was allowed by her and approved by the court and paid in due course of administration. Butler v. Fechner (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1296.

Claimants held charged with knowledge that administratrix had not allowed their accounts and bound to see that it was allowed as directed by law. Id.

Affidavit—Necessity.—Administrator's rejection of unverified complaint did not set in motion the statute of 90 days' limitation. Hooks v. Martin (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 592.

Appeal.—Under arts. 3439-3444, 3462, any person interested in the estate of a decedent may appeal from the county court to the district court for action of the county court allowing a claim against the estate, whether or not such person appeared at all and contested the claim in the county court, and no notice of appeal need be given. Rainbolt v. Gray (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 229.

A married female heir had legal capacity to contest and to prosecute an appeal from action of county court allowing a claim against the estate of a decedent under arts. 3439-3444, 3462, and that wholly independent of her husband, since such proceedings do not constitute a suit within the contemplation of the statutes and decisions, in which the wife must be joined by her husband, and she could execute the appeal bond as the sole principal, and, husband having signed the bond as a surety, he thereby became bound as a surety to the same extent any other surety would be bound, and the bond was valid and sufficient. Id.

Art. 3440. [2073] [2019] Claim lost or destroyed, etc.

Art. 3441. [2074] [2020] Affidavit made before whom.

Art. 3442. [2075] [2021] Allowance or approval without affidavit, void.

Art. 3443. [2076] [2022] Memorandum of allowance or rejection.

Allowance or rejection.—Under this article, and arts. 3444, and 3445, where administratrix neither allowed nor rejected claim, claimants held not justified in waiting over a year before taking any action. Butler v. Fechner (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1126.

22 SUPP.V.S.CIV.ST.TEX.—60 945
Art. 3444. [2077] [2023] Failure to indorse or annex memorandum.

Art. 3445. [2078] [2024] When claim is allowed, shall be presented for approval.

Art. 3446. [2079] [2025] Claim shall be acted upon by the court.
See Wygal v. Woodlief's Heirs, 76 Tex. 604, 13 S. W. 569.

Art. 3447. [2080] [2026] Action of the court upon claims.

Effect of judgment.—A claim having been allowed by administrator and approved by court, and no appeal having been taken from such action, matter is res adjudicata. Cavit v. Beall Hardware & Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 798.
The allowance by a court of competent jurisdiction of a claim against a decedent's estate is a judgment which cannot be collaterally attacked. Fryckberg v. Scott (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 21.

Art. 3448. [2081] [2027] Any person interested in estate may oppose the approval of a claim.

Art. 3449. [2082] [2028] When claim has been rejected the owner may bring suit.

Jurisdiction.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 2067, as to order for sale of mortgaged property, where an administrator has allowed a claim, but rejected in part the lien of the mortgage securing it, he can only enforce his lien in the county court, and no jurisdiction for that purpose is conferred on the district court by art. 2025. Western Mortg. & Invest. Co. v. Jackman, 77 Tex. 622, 14 S. W. 305.

Presentation and rejection.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 2028, where the note sued on has a rejection indorsed with defendant's name, without being signed as administrator of the estate sued, it sufficiently proves the presentation and rejection of the note, in the absence of a sworn denial and of evidence to show that there is another person bearing the same name as himself. Tolbert v. McBride, 75 Tex. 95, 12 S. W. 752.

If acts of administratrix amounted to allowance of claim presented to her, claimants held not entitled to sue; there being no rejection as basis for the suit. Butler v. Fechner (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1126.

Time for suit.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 2028, the statute of limitations is set in motion upon a claim which is rejected by an administrator, for the reason that proper credits have not been entered thereon, and after the lapse of 90 days from such rejection it cannot be revived by a second presentation, and indorsement thereon by the administrator of a portion of the claim. Willis v. Talbert (Sup.) 11 S. W. 535.

Under arts. 3443, 3444, and this article, where administratrix neither allowed nor rejected claim, claimants held not justified in writing over a year before taking any action. Butler v. Fechner (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1126.

Administrator's rejection of unverified complaint did not set in motion the statute of 90 days' limitation. Hooks v. Martin (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 522.

Agreement to make will.—If a decedent agreed to reward by will a certain person for services, and failed to do so, such person may recover from his estate compensation to the extent of the value of the services. Kuhlmann's Estate v. Pearse (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 564.

Where there was a contract to reward by will one performing services, such person could not recover the reasonable value of her services from the estate, without showing that she was not rewarded by will. Id.

 Sufficiency of evidence.—In an action against the estate of a decedent to recover for the services of a minor child in caring for an automobile, evidence held sufficient to sustain verdict in favor of plaintiff at the rate of $5 per month for 16 months. Kuhlmann's Estate v. Pearse (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 564.

In an action against the estate of a decedent for compensation for nursing, a finding of the jury that plaintiff performed such services during a certain period held not supported by the evidence. Id.
A verdict against an estate, allowing $5 per day for carrying breakfast to a sick person's bed and bathing his feet cannot be upheld, in the absence of a showing that the services were worth such an amount. Id.

Contracts to pay for services, either in money when they are performed, or by bequest in the will of the recipient, are viewed with great caution, and can be established only by full and satisfactory proof, and no presumptions or inferences will be indulged in favor of them. Ivey v. Lane (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 61.

Evidence held to show that testatrix's nephew, suing her executor on her express or implied contract to pay him for his services, had relied on testatrix's generosity in the way of legacy, rather than on a promise, express or implied to pay. Id.

Art. 3450. [2083] [2029] Judgment establishing claim shall be filed, etc.

In general.—Under arts. 3439, 3443, 3449, and this article, as to judgments on claims disallowed by administrators, such judgments are not enforceable by execution, and cannot become dormant and be revived by scire facias under arts. 3517 and 5696. Farmers' Nat. Bank v. Crumley (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 358.

Art. 3452. [2085] [2031] Action of court on claim a judgment, etc.

Suit in district court.—A married female heir had legal capacity to contest and to prosecute an appeal from action of county court allowing a claim against the estate of a decedent under arts. 3439-3445, and this article, and that wholly independent of her husband, since such proceedings do not constitute a suit within the contemplation of the statutes and decisions, in which the wife must be joined by her husband, and she could execute the appeal bond as the sole principal, and, husband having signed the bond as a surety, he thereby became bound as a surety to the same extent any other surety would be bound, and the bond was valid and sufficient. Rainbolt v. Gray (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 229.

Contest of claim in county court not required.—To entitle an heir, or person interested in the estate otherwise than as heir to appeal from an order of the probate court, it is not necessary that he should have appeared to contest the matter before the court, and made objections to the approval of the claim. Glenn v. Kimbrough's Estate, 79 Tex. 147, 8 S. W. 81.

Notice of appeal not required.—Under arts. 3439-3445, and this article, any person interested in the estate of a decedent may appeal from the county court to the district court from action of the county court allowing a claim against the estate, whether or not such person appeared at all and contested the claim in the county court, and no notice of appeal need be given. Rainbolt v. Gray (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 229.

Art. 3456. [2089] [2035] Claim shall not be allowed after order for partition.

Suit against heirs.—Under this article, where the estate was solvent, and plaintiff's the only claim, administration was needless, and he could sue the heirs directly. Buchanan v. Thompson's Heirs, 4 Civ. App. 236, 23 S. W. 328.

In action by intestate's creditor against nonresident administrator, heirs, and heirs' grantees to foreclose creditor's lien under art. 3391, and this article, after such land had been sold by heirs to such grantees, judgment was not objectionable as a judgment against a foreign administrator, being a judgment in rem for the purpose of foreclosing the lien. Faulkner v. Reed (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 945.

Art. 3457. [2090] [2036] Judgment shall not be rendered in favor of claim which has not been presented and rejected.

In general.—The assignees of a judgment for a sum of money, and foreclosing a vendor's lien therefor, after the defendant had died, in ignorance that the judgment had become dormant, filed with the clerk an affidavit of the death, and obtained an order of sale against the administrator, as allowed by Rev. St., 1879, art. 2276, "under which the land was sold, and they became purchasers. Held, that under Rev. St., 1879, arts. 2036, 2275, the assignees could not petition the district court to revive the judgment, set aside the sale, and enforce the lien, without having first presented the judgment as a claim against the estate, since the debt was the principal object of their suit, and they were not the vendors of the land having a superior title until the price was paid, as in Robertson v. Paul, 16 Tex. 472, but merely the owners of a secured debt. Jenkins v. Cain, 72 Tex. 85. 10 S. W. 391.
CHAPTER TWENTY

CLASSIFICATION AND PAYMENT OF CLAIMS

Article 3458. [2091] [2037] Classification of claims.

Inapplicable to independent executorship. — An independent executor being the sole judge of what claims he will and what claims he will not allow and pay, this article, and art. 3460, relating to classification of claims and the order of payment, have no application. Ewing v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 625.

Expenses of administration. — Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 2037, a judgment for costs, rendered against an administrator in an action brought against him to try title, and to partition land of his intestate, belongs in the second class. Manning v. Meyes, Tex. 653, 15 S. W. 688.

Within art. 3623, and this article, reasonable attorney's fees are expenses of administration. Pendleton v. Hare (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 334.

Under art. 3623, and this article, respectively declaring that executors and administrators shall be allowed all reasonable attorney's fees necessarily incurred by them in the course of administration, and that expenses of administration, etc., shall have priority, the executor of a decedent is entitled to procure legal services for the probate of a will, though not personally interested therein, for, if the statute does not authorize such expenditures, it does not forbid the same, and the probate of the will is the first essential step toward carrying out the trusts declared. Id.

Mortgages and lien creditors. — In action on husband's and wife's note and to foreclose deed of trust securing payment thereof, where independent executor of deceased wife intervened, alleging that the property was subject to the payment of claims against the community estate, and alleging existence of claims to certain amount, and asking court to classify and pay claims out of proceeds of sale, the court having acquired jurisdiction had the right to hear and finally determine every issue raised by the pleading and evidence, and to determine and classify any and all claims presented. Fernandez v. Holland-Texas Hypoteek Bank of Amsterdam, Holland (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1004.

In action on husband's and wife's note and to foreclose a deed of trust on community property, in which the wife's independent executor intervened, alleging that the community estate was insolvent and asking to have creditors paid out of the proceeds of the sale, the district court had jurisdiction of all claims against the estate and their classification; and, where the deed of trust was a lien upon the community estate prior to other creditors, court properly decreed foreclosure to satisfy the indebtedness on note. ESTATES OF DECEDENTS

Article 3479. [2112] [2058] Advantage of estate to be considered in ordering sale.

Art. 3480. [2113] [2059] No sale without order of court.

See Keener v. Moss, 66 Tex. 181, 18 S. W. 447.

Necessity of order.—Under Rev. St. 1579, art. 2059, a sale of property by an administrator, even though afterwards confirmed by the probate court, is invalid, unless an order of such court authorizing the sale was previously entered. Ball v. Collins (Sup.) 6 S. W. 892.

Under this and following articles, an administrator cannot sell land, except for certain purposes, and upon order of probate court, which must be strictly followed. Jones v. Gilliam (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 694.

Sale by guardian.—Under this article, order of sale is essential to validity of sale of ward's lands by guardian, so that its terms must control as to property sold. Schaeffer v. Williams (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 220.

This article applies to guardianship, and, unless such order is granted in case of guardian desiring to sell property belonging to a ward, the sale is void. Loving v. Clark (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 590.

"Any property."—Under this article, the term "any property" includes notes as well as all other kinds of property, and a valid assignment of a note is a "sale" of it, passing the title to assignee. Webb v. Reynolds (Com. App.) 297 S. W. 914.

Presumptions and burden of proof.—In action upon vendor's lien note, where plaintiff's pleadings showed that it had been property of an estate of which an administrator was appointed in Kentucky and been placed with a bank under an escrow agreement between one of the owners and the administrator, the burden was on plaintiff to show an order of court under this article. Webb v. Reynolds (Com. App.) 297 S. W. 914.

Without proof to the contrary, it will be presumed that the laws of Kentucky are the same as the laws of Texas, forbidding sale of any property of an estate without an order of court authorizing a sale by executor or administrator. Id.

In suit on vendor's lien note which had been property of an estate, plaintiff's burden of showing, as a condition to his right to action, an order of court under this article, authorizing foreign administrator's sale or assignment thereof to him, was not sustained by his mere statement that he was the owner of the note, which was a bare conclusion or opinion, without basis of fact, and, though not objected to, it had no probative force. Id.

Art. 588, and art. 1906, subd. 9, requiring a denial under oath of genuineness of indorsement or assignment of note, were not intended to dispense with proof of an administrator's authority to sell or assign, as such authority, under this article, depends upon an order of court, so that absence of any verified denial of administrator's assignment thereof to plaintiff did not dispense with proof of its validity. Id.

Art. 3480a. Lease of gas, oil, or mineral lands of estate.—Whenever there is real property belonging to the estate of a deceased person that is believed to contain gas, oil, other minerals, or metals, upon application in writing by the executor or administrator, or any heir, devisee or legatee of the deceased interested in such gas, oil, other minerals or metals, or any creditor of the estate whose claim had been allowed and approved or established by suit, the County Court, by an order entered on the Minutes of the Court either in term time or in vacation may direct the lease of such property for the purpose of drilling, mining, and operating for such gas, oil, other minerals or metals; or any part thereof. Such order shall state the minimum bonus, if any, to be received by the executor or administrator under such lease or sale, the minimum royalty to be reserved to the estate under such lease or sale in no event less than 1/8 royalty on oil and such other terms of such lease or sale as the court may desire to embody in such order.

Before such application shall be heard by the County Court notice of such application shall, however, be given by the executor or administrator by publication of such notice in one issue of any newspaper published in the county where such real property is situated, which notice shall appear subsequent to filing of such application and not less than ten days prior to hearing thereon, and which notice shall describe such real property with sufficient accuracy to identify same and shall state the time and place of hearing on such application. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 137.]

Art. 3480b. Same.—The executor or administrator shall in term time or vacation report to the County Court any lease or sale made by him in accordance with the immediately foregoing article within ten days of entry of order authorizing such lease or sale and shall embody in such report, or attach thereto, a full copy of the proposed contract of lease or deed of conveyance evidencing such sale, and such lease or sale shall be approved by the court, with such amendments, if any, as the court may direct, or shall be disapproved by the court at any time within ten days after the filing of such report either in term time or vacation by an order of approval or disapproval entered on the Minutes of said Court. If said lease is approved, the order of approval shall direct the executor or administrator to execute and deliver the lease, contract or deed of conveyance approved on compliance by the other party or parties thereto with the terms thereof; provided that no lease executed under the provisions of this Chapter shall be binding upon heirs, legatees, or distributees of any estate, or on purchasers from said estate unless actual development has been commenced by the time said estate is partitioned and distributed and is being and continues to be prosecuted with reasonable diligence thereafter. [Id.]

Art. 3481. [2114] [2060] Sale may be on what terms.

Employment of broker.—In necessary cases the probate court may, under the statute, sanction an administrator’s employment of a broker to make a sale advantageous to the estate, and allow a reasonable broker’s commission as a legitimate expense of administration, although the power should be sparingly exercised. Jones v. Gilliam, 199 Tex. 552, 212 S. W. 930.

The probate court, not the administrator, must be the judge as to the necessity of employing a broker to make a sale, as well as of the amount of the broker’s compensation; the administrator being but an agency of the court. Id.

Art. 3488. [2121] [2067] Order for sale of property mortgaged, etc.

In general.—A creditor of a decedent’s estate properly filed his claim in the probate court, and asked for a sale of the land to satisfy it before appealing to the district court to adjudicate adverse claims to the land by those who could not be made parties in the probate court. Fryckberg v. Scott (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 21.

Suit in district court.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 2067, where an administrator has allowed a claim, but rejected in part the lien of the mortgage securing it, he can only enforce his lien in the county court, and no jurisdiction for that purpose is conferred on the district court by art. 2028, which provides that “when a claim for money against an estate has been rejected by an administrator in whole or in part the owner of the estate may bring suit to establish it in any court having jurisdiction.” Western Mortg. & Inv. Co. v. Jackman, 77 Tex. 622, 14 S. W. 305.

Art. 3489. [2122] [2068] Duty of executor, etc., to apply for sale of real estate, when.

Resort to other fund or remedy.—Personal property is the primary fund for payment of debts of a decedent, and must be exhausted before resort can be had to land. Cavitt v. Beall Hardware & Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 726.

That personal property belonging to estate had been lost by wrongful act of former administrator would not prevent decedent’s land being sold to pay debts of estate. Id.

If the personal property belonging to the estate of a decedent had been lost by the wrongful act of a former administrator, decedent’s land could nevertheless be sold to pay his debts before exhaustion by the creditors of their remedy against the administrator. Brown v. Fleming (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 483.

Community property.—Community property of husband and wife is subject to administration and sale by administrator of husband or wife under certain circumstances to pay separate debts of either husband or wife. Waterman Lumber & Supply Co. v. Robbins (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 825.

A sale by an administrator de bonis non under proper order of the probate court of an unlocated balance land certificate, community property of decedent and his widow, held not void; sale having been properly reported and approved. Id.
Art. 3490. [2123] [2069] Requisites of such application.

Provisions directory.—A sale of land by an administrator is not void because his application did not comply with Rev. St. 1879, art. 2068, by containing a statement of the charges and claims against the estate, such requirements being merely directory. Jackson v. Houston, 84 Tex. 622, 19 S. W. 789.

Sufficiency of application.—Administrator's application to sell real estate must show claims against estate and estimated expense of administration. Jones v. Gilliam (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 694.

Collateral attack.—An order of sale of land to pay a claim, made by the county court on an application under art. 3489, and this article, is not void and subject to collateral attack because the claim was not then established, where the record shows subsequent establishment, classification, and payment, and therefore its existence. Heard v. Vineyard (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 489.

Art. 3491. [2124] [2070] Citation in such case.

In general.—One who had purchased interest of some heirs in land held entitled to intervene in proceedings to sell such land for payment of debts of deceased. Cavitt v. Beall Hardware & Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 294 S. W. 728.

Art. 3493. [2126] [2072] Action of the court on application.

In general.—Judgment of county court in proceedings for sale of land, that personal property mortgaged by deceased belonged to his son, was void for want of jurisdiction. Cavitt v. Beall Hardware & Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 294 S. W. 728.

In proceedings by administrator de bonis non to sell land for payment of deceased's debts, intervenor, who had purchased interest of certain of heirs in such land, could show that certain personal property belonging to estate was still in hands of administrator and available for payment of defendant's debts. Id.

In such proceeding the administrator could show that certain personal property was not property of decedent, or, if it ever was, it had been lost to estate by act of former administrator. Id.

Art. 3496. [2129] [2075] Sale may be public or private for cash or part credit; minimum cash payment; lien; adequacy of price; security.

Adequacy of price.—An order confirming administrator's sale of land for one-fourth of its actual value is so grossly unjust to the heirs as to be subject to revision by certiorari, though petition for certiorari did not allege fraud or mistake. Lee v. Benes (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 768.

Where land is sold by administrator for one-fourth of its actual value, the inadequacy in price is so great as to shock the conscience and raise a presumption that the court was imposed upon. Id.

Art. 3497. [2130] [2076] Twenty days' notice of sale.

See 1918 Supp., arts. 6016½-6016%c, as to publication in newspaper instead of posting.

Art. 3501. [2134] [2080] Order of court for sale of property.

See Ball v. Collins (Sup.) 5 S. W. 622.

Requisites.—Order authorizing administrator to sell real estate must give terms of such sale. Jones v. Gilliam (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 694.

Conclusiveness.—The county court, so far as the administration of estates of decedents is concerned, is a court of general jurisdiction, having jurisdiction to sell property for the payment of debts, and its judgment, in such regard, where jurisdiction over an estate is once acquired, is as binding as that of any other court, and not subject to collateral attack. Brown v. Fleming (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 485.

In a collateral proceeding no presumption can be indulged against the validity of an order of the probate court directing a sale of lands. Heard v. Vineyard (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 489.

Art. 3504. [2137] [2083] Executor or administrator shall not purchase property of the estate.

In general.—In action to set aside a conveyance by sole devisee and executors of lands of the estate to defendant, a surety of the executors, evidence held to show collusion between defendant and the executors. Bain v. Coats (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 571.

In action to set aside collusive purchase from executors of lands of the estate, the court was not precluded from giving relief on a finding of the fraud charged because there was no finding of fraud as to the preliminary contract pursuant to which the conveyance was made, as the contract had served its purpose when merged in the executed deed. Id.

In action to set aside collusive purchase from executors of lands of the estate, the pleadings were sufficient, without specially pleading the preliminary contract pursuant to which the conveyance was executed, as such contract could be used as evidence on the issues without special pleading. Id. 951

REPORT OF SALES, ETC.

Art. 3508. [2141] [2087] Sales shall be reported in thirty days.

Former act.—Under a former act corresponding to this article, the court had power to approve or disapprove a sale, though the act was silent as to the necessity of confirmation; and, in the absence of a decree confirming a sale, the title did not pass to the purchasers, unless it is shown that he was entitled to confirmation by virtue of his compliance with the statute in all essential particulars. Harris v. Brower, 3 Civ. App. 649, 22 S. W. 758.

Form of order.—Order confirming administrator's sale of real estate must direct that proper conveyance be made when purchaser complies with terms of sale. Jones v. Gilliam (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 694.

Art. 3512. [2145] [2091] Sale shall be set aside, when.

In general.—Probate court, if not satisfied that administrator's sale of real estate was fairly made, should set it aside. Jones v. Gilliam (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 694.

In action to set aside a conveyance by sole devisee and executors of lands of the estate to defendant, a surety of the executors, evidence held to show collusion between defendant and the executors. Bain v. Coats (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 571.

In action to set aside collusive purchase from executors of lands of the estate, the pleadings were sufficient, without specially pleading the preliminary contract pursuant to which the conveyance was executed, as such contract could be used as evidence on the issues without special pleading. Id.

In action to set aside collusive purchase from executors of lands of the estate, the court was not precluded from giving relief on a finding of the fraud charged because there was no finding of fraud as to the preliminary contract pursuant to which the conveyance was made, as the contract had served its purpose when merged in the executed deed. Id.

Conditions precedent.—Where the executor of a husband sold city property and used the proceeds to discharge liens on farm lands belonging to the testator's two children, to whom such property was devised, the children cannot, though the sale and deed were invalid, recover the city property without accounting for the proceeds. Loving v. Clark (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 580.

Collateral attack.—In trespass to try title constituting collateral attack on long past order of probate court authorizing administrator de bonis non to sell uncatalogued balance of land certificate, community property of decedent and his wife, it must be conclusively presumed that court, before ordering sale, found fact of existence of debts owing by decedent, condition precedent to its power to authorize sale. Waterman Lumber & Supply Co. v. Robbins (Com. App.) 506 S. W. 426.

Art. 3514. [2147] [2092] Conveyance of real estate.

Conveyance.—An administrator's deed to land is but an assertion that the title remained in decedent to the date of his death, and is not evidence of such ownership. McBride v. Loomis (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 480.

Title and interest conveyed.—Where plaintiffs proved the existence of community debts established by suit, classified in the estate of deceased husband and one-half thereof paid out of the consolidated estates of the deceased husband and deceased wife, the lands being sold prior to the opening of administration on the wife's estate and not inventoried as a part thereof, and the proceeds of the sale formed assets of the consolidated estates and entered into the amount distributed to the heirs of both, held, in view of the record, that the sale by the executor of the estate of deceased husband was valid.
vesting purchaser with title of both of the estates. Heard v. Vineyard (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 493.

The surviving executor under a will, in distributing the property according to agreement between the beneficiaries, cannot convey the interests which the beneficiaries had inherited from the testator's wife, to whom he had devised his estate subject to certain payments, and who had since died. Waller v. Dickson (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 893.

Evidence.—In action to set aside a conveyance by sole devisee and executors of lands of the estate to defendant, a surety of the executors, evidence held to show collusion between defendant and the executors. Bain v. Coats (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 571.

Art. 3515. [2148] [2093] Conveyance of real estate shall not be delivered until, etc.

In general.—Administrator should not convey real estate until purchaser has complied with terms of sale, and if sale be upon credit, until purchaser has given his note for balance due. Jones v. Gilliam (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 694.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX
PARTITION AND DISTRIBUTION

Art. 3527. Application for partition and distribution.

Art. 3531. Application may be made, when.

Art. 3532. Upon return of citation served, court shall proceed, etc.

Art. 3533. Court shall ascertain what facts.

Art. 3534. Shall appoint guardians for minors, etc.

Art. 3535. Decree of partition.

Art. 3536. Where estate consists of money or debts only.

Art. 3549. Distributee purchasing at sale shall pay only the excess of his share.

Art. 3550. Court may order sale, when.

Art. 3556. Surviving husband or wife may have partition of common property.

Art. 3561. Expenses of partition to be paid by whom.

Article 3527. [2154] [2099] Application for partition and distribution.

Jurisdiction.—Where an estate was solvent, and the will provided that no action should be taken in county court, and defendant was an independent executrix asserting adverse claims of other heirs, the district court alone had authority to determine the heir's rights in a suit for partition. Quintana v. Giraud (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 770.

Art. 3531. [2158] [2103] Application may be made, when.

In general.—Under this article, the executor, upon application by the heirs, devisees, or legatees after expiration of 12 months from the grant of the letters, must be in a position to show cause why a partition and distribution of the estate should not be made, at which time a minors' interest should be received and thereafter managed and controlled by the minors’ guardian under art. 3534. Beckham v. Beckham (Com. App.) 237 S. W. 940.

Time for application.—While it is the general rule that no person interested in an estate can sue to recover property while administration is still pending, there are exceptions to the rule, one of which is that such suit may be brought where no debts exist. Whitaker v. McCarty (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 572.

Art. 3533. [2160] [2105] Court shall ascertain what facts.

Cited, Hudgins v. Leggett, 84 Tex. 207, 19 S. W. 387.

Art. 3534. [2161] [2106] Shall appoint guardians for minors, etc.

In general.—Under art. 3531, the executor, upon application by the heirs, devisees, or legatees after expiration of 12 months from the grant of the letters, must be in a position to show cause why a partition and distribution of the estate should not be made, at which time a minors' interest should be received and thereafter managed and controlled by the minors' guardian under this article. Beckham v. Beckham (Com. App.) 227 S. W. 940.

Guardian ad litem.—In partition suit against father and his minor children, where there was a clear conflict between the father's interest and that of the minors, a guardian ad litem was properly appointed for the latter. Leach v. Leach (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 287.

Where the adult beneficiaries under the will of testator made a partition agreement which affected the rights of infants, it was proper, in a friendly partition action brought to carry the agreement into effect, to appoint a guardian ad litem for the infants, though the plaintiff in the partition action purported to act as their next friend, it appearing that he was a party to the agreement and seeking its confirmation, for, in such case, it is inappropriate that he be allowed to represent the infants. Brown v. Brown (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1658.

Authority of representative.—In an action against the unknown heirs of a person, an attorney appointed to represent the unknown heirs was without authority, after the adjournment of the term, to file an application for a new trial. McCarthy v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 307.

Art. 3535. [2162] [2107] Decree of partition.
Cited, Hudgins v. Leggett, 84 Tex. 207, 19 S. W. 387.

Art. 3536. [2163] [2108] Where estate consists of money or debts only.
Cited, Hudgins v. Leggett, 84 Tex. 207, 19 S. W. 387.

Art. 3549. [2176] [2121] Distributree purchasing at sale shall pay only the excess of his share.

Application.—This article has no reference to homestead or other exemptions which may be set apart for use of widow and unmarried adult daughters. Quintana v. Giraud (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 770.

Art. 3550. [2177] [2122] Court may order sale, when.
See Ball v. Collins (Sup.) 5 S. W. 622.

Art. 3556. [2183] [2128] Surviving husband or wife may have partition of common property.

In general.—A widow, after her husband's will has been admitted to probate, does not lose her right to attack the instrument, on the theory of ratification by securing a partition under this article, of her undivided share of the common estate. Campbell v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 134.

Under this article, the heirs of a married woman could have required her husband, as community survivor, to distribute the estate by suit in the county court of probate jurisdiction, and if such right was not exercised within 12 months from filing of the community survivor's bond, district court had jurisdiction of suit at instance of heirs for partition and distribution. Simons v. Ware (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 858.

Whatever may have been the effect of a voluntary partition and division of community property among children, wherein husband was given a child's part for his share, and a child later acquired the land, as between the parties themselves, it could not have the effect to change the status of the property from community to separate as to creditors without notice. Davis v. Campbell-Root Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 167.

Art. 3561. [2188] [2133] Expenses of partition to be paid by whom.
CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

FINAL SETTLEMENT, ETC.

Order discharging administrator.—Under art. 3563, and this article, an order discharging an administrator on the same day upon which he rendered his final account, without the 20 days' notice required, held void. Gallaspie v. Hardy (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 592.

Art. 3571. Partition of estate on hand shall be made.

Art. 3572. Executor, etc., shall be discharged, when. Cited, Halbert v. Alford (Sup.) 16 S. W. 814; Gallaspie v. Hardy (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 592.

Art. 3573. Order for discharge of executor, etc., when, etc. Cited, Halbert v. Alford (Sup.) 16 S. W. 814.

Evidence.—Evidence, in a distributee's suit for her share of an estate, held not to sustain a finding that a payment by the administrator was in full of such share; the utmost fullness being required in the hearing in the probate court, under arts. 3571, 3572, and this article. Gallaspie v. Hardy (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 592.

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

PAYMENT OF ESTATES INTO THE TREASURY

Art. 3575. When those entitled to estate do not appear and claim, shall be paid to state treasurer.

Art. 3578. While the property remains under control of executor, etc., distributees may have partition.

Art. 3583. [2210] [2155] Distributees may recover funds paid into the treasury.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE
ADMINISTRATION OF COMMUNITY PROPERTY

Art. 3592. Community property liable for community debts, etc.
3593. Where there is no child administration is not required.
3594. Application for community administration.
3595. Court shall appoint appraisers.
3596. Inventory, appraisement, and list of indebtedness, sworn to and returned, etc.
3598. Bond of survivor.
3599. Action of court upon inventory, etc.

Art. 3600. After order of court, survivor has control, etc.
3601. Survivor shall keep account, etc.
3602. New appraisement and bond may be required.
3603. Duty of survivor to pay debts.
3604. Creditor may have survivor to make exhibit, when.
3609. Survivor's wife shall have same rights, etc.
3611. Rights of wife cease when she marries again.
3612. Persons entitled to estate may have partition, when.

Article 3592. [2219] [2164] Community property liable for community debts, etc.

1. Rights of survivor in general.—The surviving widow has a right to recover damages accruing to community property during the lifetime of the husband. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 974.

Where administration was granted on estate of husband, wife's control over community property ceased, and estate passed under jurisdiction of probate court for administration and settlement. Waterman Lumber & Supply Co. v. Robbins (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 825.

The husband is entitled to the exclusive management and disposition of the community estate during marriage, which right continues and is likewise exclusive after the wife's death for the purpose of discharging the ordinary debts of the community estate; such power of the surviving husband overriding that of the wife's administrator. Stone v. Jackson, 109 Tex. 385, 210 S. W. 953.

The general rule is that the legal representative of a deceased person's estate is the proper person to enforce payment of indebtedness due the estate, and this rule applies ordinarily in cases where a contract between a married man and another has matured previous to, or during, the administration of his estate by an executor, and this is also true although the proceeds of the debt may be community funds of the dead husband's estate and of the surviving wife. Etna Life Ins. Co. v. Osborne (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 815.

3. Effect of qualification as administrator of community.—The qualification of a surviving wife as community administratrix, under the provisions of this article, et seq., is an "administration," within the meaning of art. 5704, which will put such statute of limitation in motion after its suspension by reason of the death of the husband, at least so far as actions to subject community property to community debts are concerned. Clark v. First Nat. Bank (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 677.

4. Title vesting in survivor.—After husband's death widow held tenant in common of community property with the children, and only entitled to recover proportional part of damages to property accruing after the husband's death. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 974.

Where a husband and wife had jointly conveyed more than one-half their community property to the husband's children as gifts, not as advancements, a statement by the husband that he intended the rest of the property to go to his wife does not affect its status, or defeat the children's right to one-half the balance after their father's death. Justice v. McRuffin (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 264.

5. Subsequent marriages.—In partition by children of their father's first marriage against the children of his second marriage and the second wife, wherein it appeared that a 40-acre tract, owned in community by the husband and his first wife, was exchanged for a 100-acre tract claimed as community by the husband and his second wife, and wherein plaintiffs claimed, by reason of a resulting trust, a decree apportioning the interest of the parties held erroneous, as giving a cestui qui trust more than the proportion contributed by him to the purchase price of the 100-acre tract. Pyne v. Pyne (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 777.

6. Sale, lease and conveyance of property.—The surviving husband can only convey community realty to pay community debts, although a conveyance for another purpose, acquiesced in by all interested, will pass title. *Barkley v. Stone (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 925.

After the wife's death the husband may legally convey her interest in community property only for the purpose of paying community debts. Burnham v. Hardy Oil Co., 195 S. W. 1139, 108 Tex. 555.

That motive which induced sale of community lot by surviving spouse was that surplus above amount necessary to pay community debts should be advanced to a child in financial trouble would not invalidate sale. Id.

Whenever right of surviving spouse to sell community property for payment of community debts has been exercised within limitation of law, and debts of community paid, it results as a matter of law that property was sold for purpose of paying community debts. Id.

A sale by an administrator of bonis non under proper order of the probate court of an unlocated balance land certificate, community property of decedent and his widow, held void: sale having been properly reported and approved. Waterman Lumber & Supply Co. v. Robbins (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 925.

Where notes held by defendant constituted a valid, subsisting community debt, secured by a vendor's lien on the land, the purchaser's surviving wife had a legal right, if necessary, to convey the land in settlement of the notes. Grundy v. Greene (Clv. App.) 207 S. W. 964.

The power to sell property belonging to the community estate to pay community claims, which may be exercised by the regularly qualified survivor, vests in the survivor who fails to qualify under the statutes. Stone v. Jackson, 109 Tex. 385, 210 S. W. 953.

The power of the survivor to convey property of the community estate in satisfaction of demands against that estate cannot be held to sustain only conveyances in discharge of enforceable demands against the property conveyed, but includes the payment of a note barred by limitation. Id.

Surviving wife, tenant in common of homestead with her children, to save it from threatened foreclosure of vendor's lien, had the right to extend time of payment of purchase-money note by making new note to third party who took over purchase-money notes from vendor, and to execute deed in trust binding her interest and that of the children in the homestead to secure such note. W. C. Belcher Land Mortgage Co. v. Taylor (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 647.

A surviving husband may sell community property for the purpose of paying community debts, provided the power is exercised in good faith. Iiams v. Mager (Clv. App.) 216 S. W. 422.

To trespass to try title by heirs of a deceased wife against the purchaser from the surviving husband who sold to pay community debts, defendant purchaser was required only to show the existence of community debts to justify the sale to him by the surviving husband, together with the fact of the land being community property and his grantor the survivor of the community. Stone v. Light (Clv. App.) 228 S. W. 1108.

7. — Homestead.—Notwithstanding this article, and art. 3255, except the homestead from the community property liable for community debts making it “ exempt from forced sale” the survivor may convey the community homestead to discharge community debts which constitute no lien thereon. Stone v. Jackson, 109 Tex. 385, 210 S. W. 953.

8. — Validity of conveyance.—Where property of deceased was left to an executor in trust without action of the probate court, a deed of testator's half of community property by the survivor, before the executor qualified, was ineffective. Nations v. Neighbors (Clv. App.) 201 S. W. 691.

A surviving husband, having qualified as community administrator, had authority to sell community property without the existence of debts, and his failure to sign deed to the purchaser as community administrator would not affect its validity. Stone v. Light (Clv. App.) 228 S. W. 1108.

10. — Jointure or acquiescence of children in conveyance.—Where, after death of wife, husband granted right of way for canal purposes to rice irrigation company over community tract, the company leasing other parts of the community tract for rice raising, and the company constructed the canal and paid each year the rent for leased land to the husband as long as he lived, and he paid to each of the children of himself and his deceased wife their proportionate share of such rent, and the children, knowing of the conveyance and lease, made no objection thereto, they were as fully bound by the conveyance of the right of way as if they had properly signed and acknowledged it. Old River Co. v. Barber (Clv. App.) 210 S. W. 758.

11. — Construction and operation of conveyance in general.—A deed to community property made by the surviving husband for the purpose of paying a community debt should be given the same effect as if made in the wife's lifetime, provided the power of sale was not fraudulently exercised against the wife's heirs. Stone v. Jackson, 109 Tex. 385, 210 S. W. 953.

13. — Title and interests conveyed.—Deeds executed by widow in her own behalf and as survivor of community estate, and by others, did not convey interest of minor children of deceased husband, if they had any, aside from community interest. Janes v. Stratton (Clv. App.) 203 S. W. 386.

A deed by which a surviving husband quitclaimed “all my right, title and interest in certain community real estate, conveyed the entire interest of the husband and his deceased wife in the land, and not merely that of the surviving husband. Iiams v. Mager (Clv. App.) 216 S. W. 422.

14. — Rights and liabilities of purchasers in general.—Authority of surviving spouse to sell community property for payment of community debts being general, those dealing with survivor are under no duty to see that funds are applied properly. Crawford v. Gibson (Clv. App.) 203 S. W. 375.
In an action by deceased wife's heirs against persons purchasing community property from the surviving husband, the purchaser, in order to defeat his title, need ordinarily show only the existence of community debts at the time of his purchase. Iiams v. Mager (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 422.

Where son who inherited title to a portion of father's share of community estate, on father's death, conveyed such title, the grantee could bring an action to establish and confirm his title, where the wife qualified as survivor and repudiated the grantee's title and claimed and held adversely thereto. Miller v. Miller (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 737.

A surviving spouse is authorized by law to sell community property for the payment of debts of such property so sold is not charged with the duty to see the purchase money is applied to the payment of the community debts. Stone v. Light (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1108.

15. — Bona fide purchasers.—Where legal title to community property is in the surviving husband, his conveyance to an innocent purchaser, although not for purpose of paying community debts, will pass title on the theory of estoppel. Burnham v. Hardy Oil Co., 105 Tex. 555, 195 S. W. 1139.*

17. — Avoidance of conveyance or lease.—In action by persons claiming under a deceased wife against purchasers from the surviving husband, evidence that part of the purchase price of such community real estate was still due the state, and that it was incumbered by a judgment lien at the time it was sold, held to sustain a finding that defendants had discharged burden of showing existence of community debts at time of sale. Iiams v. Mager (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 422.

Son by the heirs of a wife can cancel an oil and gas lease made by the husband as community administrator, on the ground that the court was without jurisdiction to appoint an administrator because there were no community debts, is a collateral attack on the order of appointment. Tholl v. Speer (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 453.

It is not obligatory on a debtor to interpose limitations to defeat a debt he still owes, and the omission of a surviving husband to plead limitations against a community obligation actuated by a fraudulent intent against the heirs of the wife, when such omission is just as prejudicial to his interests in and to community property as to that of the wife's heirs. Stone v. Jackson, 109 Tex. 385, 210 S. W. 963.

Where husband and wife take possession of community property after the expiration of a reasonable time for payment of community debts an action may be brought by the heirs of the deceased wife for their interest, and limitations then begin to run without the surviving husband's expressly repudiating any claim on the part of the heirs. Williford v. Simpson (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 191.

Son who inherited from father, on father's death, a portion of the father's share of the community estate with title subject to the administrative right of surviving wife to control, manage, and dispose of the community property, could convey such title. Miller v. Miller (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 737.

24. Conversion by survivor.—Where an intestate died insolvent, and his surviving widow, without qualifying as administrator of the community estate, carried on the business, and a creditor bank appropriated funds from the business deposited by the widow's clerk, knowing that the estate was subject to administration, the subsequently appointed administrator could recover such funds whether the widow consented to the appropriation or not. Pain v. Security State Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 463.

25. Suits by or against survivor.—In action on husband's and wife's note and to foreclose security thereon, where independent successors to deceased wife intervened, alleging that the property was subject to the payment of claims against the community estate, and alleging existence of claims to certain amount, and asking court to classify and pay claims out of proceeds of sale, the court having acquired jurisdiction, had the right to hear and finally determine every issue raised by the pleadings and evidence, and to determine and classify any and all claims presented. Fernandez v. Holland-Texas Hypotek Bank of Amsterdam, Holland (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1064.

In action on husband's and wife's note and to foreclose a deed of trust on community property, in which the wife's independent executor intervened, alleging that the community estate was insolvent and asking to have creditors paid out of the proceeds of the sale, the district court had jurisdiction of all claims against the estate and their classification; and, where the deed of trust was a lien upon the community estate prior to other creditors, court properly decreed foreclosure to satisfy the indebtedness on note. Id.

26. What are community assets.—An administrator has the right and is under the duty of collecting a note which is part of the community estate of his decedent and decedent wife against the claim of a former administrator. When title to only one-half of such note should be accounted for. American Surety Co. of New York v. Norton (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 437.

27. Community and separate debts.—Community property of husband and wife is subject to administration and sale by administrator of husband or wife under certain circumstances to pay separate debts of either husband or wife. Waterman Lumber & Supply Co. v. Robbins (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 835.

Community property is the primary fund for the payment of community debts, and, where there exists sufficient community property to pay community debts, no resort can be had to the separate property of a deceased husband for the purpose of paying such debts. Clark v. First Nat'l Bank (Com. App.) 210 S.W. 677.

The same binding effect is given to a judgment rendered against the husband alone on a community debt when suit is brought before as when brought after the death of the wife, with respect to the liability of the community property to satisfy the same. Stone v. Jackson, 109 Tex. 210 S.W. 963.

The heirs of the wife on her death are entitled, not to one-half of the community property then existing, but to one-half of what may remain after the discharge of the debts contracted by either husband or wife during marriage for which property is liable under art. 4607, and this article. Id.

The fact that a surviving husband had changed the form of a community debt and the payee prior to his sale of community property to pay debts did not make the debt any the less a community debt. Stone v. Light (Civ. App.) 228 S.W. 1108.

30. Reimbursement of expenditures and adjustment of equities.—Where, on wife’s death, her children inherited her interest in the community property, their heritage was incumbered with whatever part of the purchase price remained unpaid, and they could claim reimbursement from their father of only one-half of the excess contributed by them in payment of the purchase price after their mother’s death. Leach v. Leach (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 287.

Where wife purchased land as her separate property, but made payments of interest on vendor’s lien notes and paid for improvements on the property with community funds, the expenditure of community funds for such purpose did not entitle children to defeat foreclosure of vendor’s lien, but entitled them, at the most, to an accounting and perhaps a lien, but subordinate to the right to have vendor’s lien foreclosed. Baxter v. Baxter (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 304.

31. Administration on death of both spouses.—Where testator’s wife died before him, his community, recognizing the community interest, directed that the interest which had not been set aside should be set over to the children of the marriage, did not give the testator’s executor power to sell the community property of the deceased wife, although authorizing the executor to dispose of other property. Loving v. Clark (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 590.

Where the executor of a husband under power of sale disposed of lands partly belonging to the community of the deceased wife, and the report of the executor, who was also guardian of children of the marriage, indicated that sale was made under power of sale of the husband’s will, there is no presumption that the deceased wife’s community estate passed; the will merely authorizing the sale of the testator’s property and the deed referring to the will. Id.

Where the executor of a testator, who was authorized to sell property, sold the community interest of the deceased wife, which the testator directed to be set over to the children of the marriage, the purchaser has the burden of showing that the community was subject to debts. Id.

An order confirming the report of the executor of a testator which showed a sale of property belonging to the community of the testator’s deceased wife, held merely to show that the proceeds of the sale were used to pay off indebtedness against farm lands which passed to children of the marriage under testator’s will, and not a sale to pay community debts. Id.

Where testator authorized the executor to sell city property and reinvest the proceeds in farm lands for the benefit of his two infant daughters and the executor, who was also appointed guardian, without any order of the court sold lands belonging partly to the community estate of the testator’s deceased wife, which estate the testator had recognized, and the sale was made by virtue of the powers under the will, the community of the deceased wife did not pass, although the report of the executor and guardian, referring to the sale, was confirmed, and the proceeds devoted to paying liens on the farm lands of the children. Id.

The granting of administration on husband’s estate does not confer jurisdiction over the community estate of the husband’s deceased wife. Id.

Art. 3593. [2220] [2165] When there is no child, administration not required.

In general.—Where a husband was in adverse possession of land, but became insane before he acquired title thereto, and the wife took charge of the family and continued to live with the insane husband upon the land, the possession of the wife could not be distinct from that of the husband, and a judgment in trespass to try title against the husband was binding on the wife, notwithstanding this article. Fidelity Lumber Co. v. Howell (Civ. App.) 296 S. W. 947.

Title to community property under this article, passes to the wife, on the husband becoming insane, only when they have no children. Howell v. Fidelity Lumber Co. (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 181.

Art. 3594. [2221] [2166] Where there is child, survivor holds subject, etc.

Sale by husband.—Under this article, and art. 3600, the husband of an insane woman, being empowered on qualifying as community administrator to dispose of the community estate as he deems best for the interest of the estate, can convey it, though there be no community debts, and though it be the community homestead. Green v. Windham (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 726.

ESTATES OF DECEDENTS

Art. 3595. [2222] [2167] Application for community administration.

Cited, Pressler v. Wilkie, 84 Tex. 344, 19 S. W. 436.

Limitations.—That surviving wife failed to file her application to be allowed to administer as survivor of the community property, free from control of the probate court, until after application for temporary and permanent letters of administration had been made by another and temporary letters granted, would not annul or work a forfeiture or waiver of wife’s right, or deprive her of that right in view of this article, and arts. 3596-3598, and article 3609, where wife made application in less than 4 months from date of husband’s death. In re Chapman’s Estate (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 889.

Art. 3596. [2223] [2168] Court shall appoint appraisers.

See In re Chapman’s Estate (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 989.

Cited, Pressler v. Wilkie, 84 Tex. 344, 19 S. W. 436.

Art. 3597. [2224] [2169] Inventory, appraisement, and list of indebtedness, sworn to and returned, etc.

See In re Chapman’s Estate (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 989.

Effect of incomplete and unsigned inventory.—The fact that an inventory of community property filed in the probate court by the surviving wife did not, in terms, purport to be an inventory of all the community property, that no list of claims owing to the estate was attached thereto, and that the inventory was not signed and sworn to by her, as required by Pasch. Dig. art. 4348, is not sufficient to invalidate a sale of the community property by her. Withrow v. Adams, 4 Civ. App. 458, 23 S. W. 437.

Inventory as evidence.—In action by creditor to set aside conveyance by deceased to his wife as fraudulent, the inventory of the wife as community administrator was admissible to show the condition of deceased’s estate. Moore v. Belt (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 225.

Art. 3598. [2225] [2170] Bond of survivor.

See In re Chapman’s Estate (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 989.

In general.—It is not true that any creditor having a claim against a community estate is entitled to recover his debt from the survivor, if it does not exceed the amount of her bond, regardless of whether there has been a devestavit. Hurst v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 284.

Under arts. 3594, 3609, exclusive management and control of community property pass to the wife on the husband becoming insane, they having children, only on her giving the bond required by this article. Howell v. Fidelity Lumber Co. (Com. App.) 226 S. W. 181.

If the wife, administering as survivor of the community, knows of the existence of a claim which has been presented and approved by her, and exhausts the estate in discharging debts of the same class, she is liable on her bond to “faithfully administer” for a pro rata on such claim. Evans v. Taylor, 60 Tex. 432.

Effect of failure to file bond.—The failure of a survivor of a community to execute a bond, as required by Act Aug. 1, 1870, passed during the pendency of the administration of the community, does not invalidate a deed executed by her after the passage of that act, where there are debts and charges against the community authorizing a sale by the wife without qualifying as survivor. Withrow v. Adams, 4 Civ. App. 458, 23 S. W. 437.

Limitations.—A husband, having given bond as community survivor to account to the heirs of his deceased wife for their interest in the community property, and having sold it, became liable on the bond, in an action by the heirs for their interest, for the proceeds, and limitations then began to run in favor of him and his sureties against such action. Simons v. Ware (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 858.

Art. 3599. [2226] [2171] Action of court upon inventory, etc.

See Green v. Windham (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 726.

Cited, Pressler v. Wilkie, 84 Tex. 344, 19 S. W. 436.

Appointment presents valid.—Where the proceedings in the county court on a husband’s application for appointment as community administrator does not affirmatively show an absence of community debts, all reasonable presumptions will be indulged in favor of the validity of the judgment appointing the administrator, especially as arts. 3544-3561 did not provide that the appointment was dependent on the existence of debts. Tholl v. Speer (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 453.

Art. 3600. [2227] [2172] After order of court, survivor has control, etc.

Effect of qualifying.—Where a decedent owned no property, except community property, the appointment and qualification of the surviving spouse as community administrator under the provisions of art. 3592 et seq., precludes any other administration. Clark v. First Nat. Bank (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 677.

Under art. 2469, husband's share of the community estate passed to his children or their descendants on his death, subject to the administrative right of the surviving wife to control, manage, and dispose of the community property under this article, and the action of the wife in qualifying as survivor did not divest the children of the title so acquired. Miller v. Miller (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 737.

Sale, lease and conveyance of property.—A surviving wife, as community administrator, is entitled to sell out of the community estate. Ford v. Ford (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 3594-3601.

A sale made by the survivor before filing the inventory as required by this article is void, and is not cured by a subsequent compliance with the statute, and failure of the children to apply to the court for protection does not impair their rights. Griffin v. West Ford, 60 Tex. 501.

Where the proceedings in the probate court on a husband's application for appointment as community administrator were in strict compliance with arts. 3594-3601, an order approving the inventory and appraisement and authorizing the husband as administrator to control, manage, and dispose of the community property, authorized the execution of an oil and gas lease covering community property. Tholl v. Speer (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 452.

Under art. 3512, providing, relative to the administration of community estate, that the persons entitled may demand and have partition and distribution after the lapse of 12 months, where a husband was appointed community administrator in 1901, and no demand for partition and distribution was made by the wife's heirs, he was authorized, in 1981, to make an oil and gas lease. Id.

Under this article, and art. 5594, the husband of an insane woman, being empowered on qualifying as community administrator to dispose of the community estate as he deemed best for the interest of the estate, can convey it though there be no community debts, and though it be the community homestead. Green v. Windham (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 726.

Actions by or against survivor.—Under this article, a suit to set aside a sale by a survivor because not for the best interest of the community is not a collateral attack on a probate court judgment. Rice v. Lipsitz (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 293.

In suit to set aside a sale of community property by the survivor, evidence held sufficient to take to the jury the issues whether the debts for which the sale was made were claims against the community estate, whether the sale was free from coercion, and whether it was with a view to the interest of the parties, so that a directed verdict for defendant was erroneous. Id.

Art. 3601. [2228] [2173] Survivor shall keep an account, etc.

See Simons v. Ware (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 558.

Art. 3602. [2229] [2174] New appraisement and bond may be required.

Cited. Pressler v. Wilkie, 84 Tex. 344, 19 S. W. 436.

Art. 3603. [2230] [2175] Duty of survivor to pay debts.

Reimbursement.—Where wife dies and husband pays community debts, he is entitled to be reimbursed out of the community estate. Williford v. Simpson (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 191.

Art. 3604. [2231] [2176] Creditor may have survivor to make exhibit, when.

Art. 3609. [2236] [2181] Surviving wife shall have same rights, etc.

Surviving wife's rights.—Pasch. Dig. art. 4642, vests the husband with full control over the community property on the decease of his wife, empowering him to sell the same, and sue and be sued in regard thereto, in the same manner as during her lifetime, on filing in the probate court a full and complete inventory and appraisement, to be taken and recorded as in cases of administration. Held, that article vests the surviving wife with exclusive management and control of the community property, under the same rights, rules, and regulations as are enacted in favor of the surviving husband, so long as she remains unmarried, empowers an unmarried surviving wife to sell the community property. Withrow v. Adams, 4 Civ. App. 3599-3600.

Right of surviving wife until she again marries to administer under arts. 3592-
Art. 3609 ESTATES OF DECEDEENTS (Title 52)

3614, the community property free from control of the probate court is, unless in some way forfeited or waived, exclusive of any other form of administration or the right of any other person to administer. In re Chapman's Estate (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 989.

That surviving wife failed to file her application to be allowed to administer as survivor of the community property, free from control of the probate court, until after application for temporary and permanent letters of administration had been made by another and temporary letters granted, would not annul or work a forfeiture or waiver of wife's right, or deprive her of that right in view of arts. 3595-3598, and this article, where wife made application in less than 4 months from date of husband's death. Id.

Under this article, and art. 3594, exclusive management and control of community property pass to the wife on the husband becoming insane, they having children, only on her giving the bond required by art. 3598. Howell v. Fidelity Lumber Co. (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 181.

Art. 3611. [2237] [2182] Rights of wife cease when she marries again.
Remarriage of widow.—Where surviving wife remarried, she could not, under this article, be sued as a representative of the community estate. Moore v. Belt (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 225.

Under this article, a surviving wife upon remarriage ceases to have control and management of the community estate, or right to dispose of the same, and she cannot sell it even to pay community debts. Van Ness v. Crow (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 572.

Art. 3612. [2238] [2183] Persons entitled to estate may have partition, when.

Right to partition.—Where more than 12 months had elapsed since wife had qualified as survivor, grantee of son's title acquired in the community estate from father could bring action for partition and distribution under this article. Miller v. Miller (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 737.

Necessity of partition and distribution.—In suit by son's grantee in trespass to try title and to quiet title to portion of the community estate inherited from father, against the mother who had qualified as survivor, where there was no action to compel partition and distribution under this article, it was improper for court to confirm plaintiff's title against the mother, both individually and as survivor, and to order a writ of possession. Miller v. Miller (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 737.

Discharge of survivor.—Rev. St. 1879, art. 2183, does not authorize a survivor who has filed an inventory, and given bond for the administration of a community estate, to procure a settlement of his accounts and a discharge of his trust by a decree of the county court made on his own application. Pressler v. Wilkie, 84 Tex. 44, 19 S. W. 496.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

COSTS

Art. 3621. Commission allowed executors and administrators.

3622. Commissions not allowed on certain moneys.

Article 3621. [2245] [2190] Commission allowed executors and administrators.

Premium on bond.—This article, and arts. 3269, 3622, 3623, 3235, 4099, 4101, 5483, do not authorize administrator to charge against the estate a premium paid for the making of his bond. Jarvis v. Drew (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 970.

Art. 3622. [2246] [2191] Commissions not allowed on certain moneys.

Art. 3623. [2247] [2192] Shall be allowed expenses, etc.

See Richardson v. Kennedy, 74 Tex. 507, 12 S. W. 219.

Premium on bond.—This article, and arts. 3269, 3622, 3623, 4099, 4101, 5483, do not authorize administrator to charge against the estate a premium paid for the making of his bond. Jarvis v. Drew (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 970.

Attorney's fees.—Despite arts. 7467-7502, providing for collection of inheritance taxes and appointment of administrator for that purpose, and this article, and art. 3624, as to allowance of reasonable attorneys' fees to executors and administrators, county judge held unauthorized to approve contract between administrator to collect inheritance tax on estate of decedent in another state, and an attorney, which contract was fraudulent and unconscionable as calling for such payments to attorney by way of retainer and for services as would exploit estate for his benefit. Thompson v. Dodge (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 586.

Where administrator resists an effort to withdraw the estate from administration, the allowance of attorney's fees therefor depends on whether he honestly believed the withdrawal was illegal; and such fees cannot be allowed where the right to withdraw was clear. Rowe v. Dyess (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 234.

The propriety of defending a suit or proceeding against an estate must depend upon the apparent justice of the case: and, where an administrator acts in good faith, he will not necessarily be deprived of attorney's fees, even though he be mistaken as to the justice of the case. Id.

Under this article, the fact that an administrator's attorneys represented the administrator individually in the prosecution of his contested claim against the estate, and also in other matters for which fees were not properly chargeable against the estate, does not prevent allowance to the administrator of a reasonable sum as attorney's fees, based on value of services actually rendered by the attorneys for the benefit of the estate. Id.

An administrator is not entitled to allowance for attorney's fees in the prosecution of his claim against the estate, nor in his contest for appointment as administrator. Id. Legal services rendered in a proceeding to probate a will in Oklahoma, or in resisting the contest of the probate of the will, cannot be made a charge in favor of the attorney against the estate in the hands of a Texas administrator, at least until the Oklahoma executor, through whom the attorney seeks to go against the Texas administrator by right of subrogation, has become invested with the credentials provided by art. 3276, specifying conditions to the right of a foreign executor to apply and receive letters testamentary in Texas. Hare v. Pendleton (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 948.

In view of this article, and art. 3624, liability for attorney's fees incurred in the course of administration of a decedent's estate is a charge against the estate in favor of the attorney, and not the personal obligation of the administrator, and may be presented and collected by the party to whom payable like as any other claim. Id.

An administrator may properly be allowed remuneration for reasonable attorney's fees paid, where the legal services were given on behalf and for the benefit of the estate. Jarvis v. Drew (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 570.

Under this article, and art. 3458, the executor of a decedent is entitled to procure legal services for the probate of a will, though not personally interested therein, for, if the statute does not authorize such expenditures, it does not forbid the same, and the probate of the will in the first essential step toward carrying out the trusts declared. Pendleton v. Hare (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 334.

Within this article, and art. 3458, reasonable attorney's fees are expenses of administration. Id.

An executor who contracts with an attorney for legal services in connection with the probate of a will, which is the first essential and indispensable step toward carrying out the trusts imposed, is acting, not in his individual but in his representative, capacity. Id.

Broker's commissions.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 2192, where a testator's will gives his executors power to sell his real estate, they can employ an agent to procure a purchaser for them, and the estate is liable for the agent's commissions. Armstrong v. O'Brien, 82 Tex. 635, 19 S. W. 268.

Probate court's refusal to allow administrator credit for broker's commissions for negotiating real estate sales, will not be reversed, except for clear abuse of discretion. Jones v. Gilliam (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 694.

This article is inapplicable to payment of broker's commissions, not authorized or approved by probate court. Id.

Probate court did not abuse its discretion in refusing administrator credit for broker's commissions for negotiating real estate sales, where it was conceded prospective purchaser failed to perform his part of contract. Id.

In necessary cases the probate court may, under the statute, sanction an administrator's employment of a broker to make a sale advantageous to the estate, and allow a reasonable broker's commission as a legitimate expense of administration, although the power should be sparingly exercised. Jones v. Gilliam, 109 Tex. 832, 212 S. W. 326.

The probate court, not the administrator, must be the judge as to the necessity of employing a broker to make a sale for the estate, as well as of the amount of the broker's representative; the administrator being at an arm's length. Id.

An estate may properly be charged with the commission of a broker employed by an administrator, where the employment was reasonably necessary to sell land. Jarvis v. Drew (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 970.

Art. 3624.  [2248]  [2193]  Account for expenses shall be filed and acted upon by the court.

See Stonerbraker v. Frisier, 70 Tex. 202, 7 S. W. 799; Richardson v. Kennedy, 74 Tex. 607, 12 S. W. 219.

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO APPEALS TO THE DISTRICT COURT

Article 3631. [2255] [2200] Right of appeal.—Any person who may consider himself aggrieved by any decision, order, decree or judgment of the County Court, shall have the right to appeal therefrom to the District Court of the County upon complying with the provisions of this Chapter; provided that in appeals from orders or judgments, appointing Administrators or temporary administrators, the administrators shall continue the prosecution of suits then pending in favor of the estate, and if on appeal from Probate Court, a different Administrator shall be appointed, he shall be substituted in such case. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 128, § 130; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 116, § 1, amending art. 3631, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 2 of the act repeals all laws in conflict. The act took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

See Elwell v. Universalist General Convention, 76 Tex. 514, 13 S. W. 552.
Cited, Halbert v. Alford (Sup.) 16 S. W. 814; Hodges v. Leggett, 84 Tex. 207, 19 S. W. 387.

Who may appeal.—Though minors are the only children and heirs, and entitled to the whole of the estate of deceased, the duly qualified and acting administratrix of deceased's estate is entitled, in view of art. 3235, as to possession and holding of estate by administrator, to appeal as administratrix without bond from Judgment withdrawing estate from administration. Drew v. Jarvis, 110 Tex. 128, 216 S. W. 618.

Article 3632. [2256] [2201] Appeal bond, requisites of.

Cited, Hodges v. Leggett, 84 Tex. 207, 19 S. W. 387.

Necessity of bond.—Where an appeal bond is required by statute, it is a jurisdictional matter, and a judgment without such bond having been given is a nullity. Warne v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 245.

Sufficiency of bond.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 2201, a bond is not void because given for a stated amount, and the appeal on which it is given should not for that reason be dismissed. (Hicks v. Oliver, 10 S. W. 97, followed.) Howard v. Russell, 75 Tex. 171, 12 S. W. 525.

Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 2201, a bond conditioned merely for the performance of the "decree or judgment" is sufficient, since the word "judgment" is broad enough to include "decision" and "order." Halbert v. Alford (Sup.) 16 S. W. 814.

Under this article, a bond not fixed by county court and made payable to appellee is defective, and appeal should be dismissed, unless bond is amended under article 2101. Sparkman v. Stout (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 526.

Article 3633. [2257] [2202] Bond not required of executor, etc., unless, etc.

In general.—Though minors are the only children and heirs, and entitled to the whole of the estate of deceased, the duly qualified and acting administratrix of deceased's estate is entitled, in view of art. 2208, as to possession and holding of estate by administrator, to appeal as administratrix without bond from Judgment withdrawing estate from administration. Drew v. Jarvis, 110 Tex. 136, 216 S. W. 618.

Independent executor.—Person named as independent executor in instrument offered as will, was not exempt from giving bond, on appeal from county to district court from order denying probate, under this article, such person not being the executor until the will is probated. Warne v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 242.

Article 3635. [2259] [2204] Duty of county clerk to make and transmit transcript, etc.

Art. 3636. [2260] [2205] Transcript to be transmitted, when, etc.

See Lacy v. Lockett, 82 Tex. 190, 17 S. W. 916.

Art. 3637. [2261] [2206] Duty of district clerk who receives transcript, etc.

Art. 3638. [2262] [2207] Appeals shall be tried de novo in regular order upon the docket.

Cited: Halbert v. Alford (Sup.) 16 S. W. 814; United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Baltimore, Md. v. Lowry (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 222.

Nature of proceeding in district court.—The district court, on appeal in proceedings for the sale of land of a decedent to pay debts, has no greater power than the county court had originally. Brown v. Fleming (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 485.

An appeal to the district court from an order of the county court probating the will requires a trial de novo. Earl v. Mundy (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 716.

Amendments in district court.—Though application of guardian of minor heirs for withdrawal of estate from administration did not state that applicant was guardian of estates as well as of persons of minors, the defect was curable by amendment or new pleading in the county court, and could be cured in like manner in the district court on appeal. Drew v. Jarvis, 110 Tex. 156, 216 S. W. 618.

Issues for determination.—On appeal in a will contest from the county to the district court, the district court had no judicial power to compel any of the parties to the suit to submit to determination of any issues not involved in the appeal. Pierce v. Foreign Mission Board of Southern Baptist Convention (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 140.

When all the parties to a will contest appealed from the county to the district court, expertly stipulate for judicial determination of all matters of which the district court might assume original jurisdiction, including the disposition of property not affected by the will, such court has power to enter a judgment on such other issues. Id.

Judgment.—Where probate of a will and codicil was allowed by one order, it was not error for the district court, on appeal from that part of the order admitting the codicil to probate, to enter judgment probating both will and codicil, the codicil being merely a part of the will. Earl v. Mundy (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 716.

Art. 3639. [2263] [2208] Certified copy of judgment of district court to be transmitted to county court.

Cited: Halbert v. Alford (Sup.) 16 S. W. 814; Williams v. Foster (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 896.

DECISIONS RELATING TO APPEAL IN GENERAL.

Effect of appeal.—An appeal to the district court from an order of the county court probating the will, suspends the final judgment, leaving the estate unsettled pending the appeal. Early v. Mundy (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 716.

While proceedings looking to the appointment of a guardian for a minor instituted in the county court of T. county were still pending in the district court on appeal, the probate court of another county had no authority to appoint a temporary guardian or issue an injunction in aid of the jurisdiction illegally assumed. Williams v. Foster (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 896.

Review—In general.—In proceedings to probate a will, the trial judge was the exclusive judge of the facts proved, the credibility of the witnesses, and the weight to be given their testimony. House v. House (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 322.

— Harmless error.—In proceedings to probate a will, any error in excluding from evidence testamentary instruments subsequently executed by testatrix held harmless to proponents. Sherwood v. Sherwood (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 663.

In will contest, where the evidence was not sufficient for submission of issue of undue influence to the jury, instruction on undue influence, if erroneous, held harmless. Earl v. Mundy (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 716.

Admission, in district court on appeal from order of county court probating will of certified copy of testimony taken in county court, under arts. 3273-3275, if error, was harmless, where the witness testified fully to the same facts in the district court. Id.

In will contest, instruction excluding from jury’s consideration evidence introduced by proponent tending to show undue influence, if error, was harmless, where proponent had not introduced any evidence on such issue. Id.

In a will contest, exclusion from consideration of the jury of proponent’s evidence tending to show undue influence, if error, was harmless, if there was not sufficient evidence for submission of issue of undue influence to the jury. Id.

EVIDENCE

PERSONAL ATTENDANCE OF WITNESSES

Art. 3644   Fees of witnesses.
3647. Party may be examined as a witness.

Art. 3644. [2268] [2213] Fees of witnesses.

In general.—It is only when a witness appears in obedience to an authorized subpoena entitling him to the statutory compensation that his fees may be finally taxed against the party cast in the suit. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Scott (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 245.

Art. 3647. [2271] [2216] Party may be examined as a witness.

Art. 3648a. Interpreters may be summoned and appointed; compensation.—The commissioners’ courts of the various counties of this state are hereby authorized to pay for the services of interpreters employed by the various courts within their respective counties not to exceed the sum of Three and fifty-Hundredths Dollars ($3.50) a day, which sum is to be paid out of the general funds of the county upon warrants issued by the respective courts or clerks thereof in favor of the persons rendering such services; provided, however, that such interpreter shall be paid only for the time he is actually employed. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 15, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 3 of the act repeals all laws in conflict. The act took effect March 15, 1918.

Art. 3648b. Same; services chargeable as costs.—In all civil suits wherein the services of an interpreter is used there shall be charged and collected as part of the costs of the case as interpreter’s fees the sum of Three Dollars ($3.00), which amount when collected shall be paid into the general funds of the county. [Id., § 2.]

CHAPTER TWO

DEPOSITIONS OF WITNESSES

Art. 3650. Notice and service thereof.
3651. When notice may be given by publication.
3657. Officers authorized to execute.
3660. Execution of the commission.
3663. Depositions by oral examination and answer.

Art. 3665. Any person may be compelled to appear and answer, etc.
3675. Either party may use depositions, when.
3676. Objections to depositions.
3677. Depositions to be read in evidence, subject, etc.
3678. Matter not responsive stricken out.
Article 3649. [2273] [2218] Depositions of witnesses may be taken, when.
See Dillingham v. Ellis, 86 Tex. 447, 25 S. W. 618.

Art. 3650. [2274] [2219] Same; notice and service thereof.

Necessity of notice.—It was not error to suppress the admission of depositions which were shown to have been taken without notice to the adverse party. Millikin v. Smoot, 71 Tex. 759, 12 S. W. 58, 10 Am. St. Rep. 813.

Name and residence of witness.—A notice of application for the commission to take depositions of witnesses reciting "who reside in the county of El Paso, in the state of Texas," when in fact one of them lived in Hudspeth county, and was then temporarily in El Paso county, held a substantial compliance with this article. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harris Bros. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 305.

Art. 3651. [2275] [2220] When notice may be given by publication.

Art. 3657. [2281] [2226] Officers authorized to execute.

Deputy district clerk.—A deputy district clerk can take depositions only in the clerk's name by himself as deputy. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Long (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 906.

Art. 3660. [2284] [2229] Execution of the commission.

Suppression of deposition under prior statute.—Where the caption to depositions fails to identify the witnesses as those named in the commission, and the certificate fails to state that the answers were "signed and sworn to" by the witnesses before the notary taking the depositions, both the caption and the certificate are fatally defective, and the depositions should be suppressed on motion. Emberson v. McKenna (App.) 16 S. W. 419.
A deposition consisting of answers prepared by one of the counsel from statements made to him by deponent, and afterwards sworn to by deponent, should be suppressed. Phoenix Assur. Co. of London v. Freedman (Sup.) 19 S. W. 1919.

Swearing witness.—A witness whose deposition is to be taken in writing in answer to written interrogatories need not be sworn before his answers are reduced to writing, such requirement applying only on oral examination. Zeiger v. Woodson (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 164.

Leading interrogatories.—In action on notes by indorsee, leading interrogatories to president of payee company held justified on account of witness' unwillingness and his hostility to defendant makers. Commercial Security Co. v. Collins (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 728.

Art. 3663. Depositions by oral examination and answer.—The testimony of any witness, and of any party to a suit, by oral deposition and answer may be taken in any civil case in any of the District and County Courts of this State, in any instance where depositions are now authorized by law to be taken. [Acts 1907, p. 187; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. ch. 5, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 3665. Any person may be compelled to appear and answer, etc.

Letters rogatory.—The power of a proper court to honor a request of a court in an independent jurisdiction, expressed by letters rogatory, for the use of its process in aid of obtaining the deposition of a witness whose testimony is material in a cause pending in the latter, is inherent, and does not depend on statute, but the court to which a letter rogatory or request is addressed is under no compulsion to respect it, being a matter within its discretion. Ex parte Taylor, 110 Tex. 331, 220 S. W. 74, 9 A. L. R. 963.

Under the general jurisdiction possessed under the Constitution, it was within the power of the district court of Dallas county to honor the request of a foreign court for its aid in obtaining a deposition from a witness, and to order the witness to appear before a notary, who had been issued a commission, to take the testimony and give his oral deposition. Id.

In the execution of the request of a foreign court, expressed by letters rogatory, for the use of its process in aid of obtaining the deposition of a witness, it is the duty of the court to see that the witness is protected in all of his legal rights, and while the relevancy and materiality of the testimony adduced is for the determination of the court having jurisdiction of the cause, the court executing the request will see that the witness is not compelled to give evidence which is privileged. Id.
Art. 3675  EVIDENCE (Title 53)

Art. 3675. [2288] [2233] Either party may use depositions, when.

In general.—Defendant may use plaintiff's depositions on trial when cross interrogatories have been filed and answered. John P. King Mfg. Co. v. Solomon (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 449.

The fact that the witness had been subpoenaed by the opposite party, but not placed on the stand so as to be available for cross-examination, is no ground for excluding the deposition. Cook v. Denike (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 457.

In absence of cross- interrogatories.—A party who has not filed cross-interrogatories cannot use depositions taken by his adversary over the latter's objection. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Harrison, 72 Tex. 478, 10 S. W. 566.

Art. 3676. [2289] [2235] Objections to depositions.

Application of article.—The objection urged to depositions taken out of the state, offered by defendant, was to the form and taking of the same. The bill of exceptions did not show that the depositions were filed in time. Held, that the presumption was that they were not properly filed, and hence their exclusion because not taken and returned by an authorized officer was not error. Lienpo v. State, 28 Tex. App. 173, 12 S. W. 588.

Where it did not appear that deposition of plaintiff taken by defendant, and cross-interrogatories propounded by plaintiff's counsel and answers thereto, were not filed at least one entire day before the day of the trial, or that defendant had filed objection to cross-interrogatories and answers before commencement of trial, court on appeal will not consider objections to cross-interrogatories and answers. Texas Moline Plow Co. v. Grimminger (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 747.

Time for objection.—In an action against several defendants, the term of court at which the defendants were required to answer, previous to the filing of the deposition, was the first term after such deposition had been filed, and such defendants were required to make their motion to suppress the deposition at such term of court, and could not wait until a later term of court, at which the other defendants were required to answer. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clarendon Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 866.

Where county attorney had notice and filed cross-interrogatories, and the clerk issued commissions, and the depositions were taken and filed, motion made at a subsequent term to quash depositions on the ground that affidavit required by Code Cr. Proc. 1911, art. 824, as a predicate for obtaining commission, was not shown to have been made, should not have been entertained, in view of this article, made applicable to criminal cases by Code Cr. Proc. 1911, art. 822; affidavits having been filed embodying the facts required by art. 822, as a predicate for introduction of depositions. Barton v. State, 86 Cr. R. 185, 215 S. W. 868.

Grounds of objection.—An objection to a deposition signed "Van Vorhis," on the ground that the notice and commission gave the name of the witness as "Van Horn," is an objection to "the manner and form" of taking the deposition, Missouri Pac. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 84 Tex. 346, 19 S. W. 596.

Objection to depositions, because not under oath, could not be made at time of introduction of answers in evidence, where no written objection was filed at least a day before the case was called for trial. Fadgitt Bros. Co. v. Dorsey (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 361.

Objections to interrogatories because they were prefaced by a synopsis of the allegations of the petition and because they were leading were objections going to the form and manner of taking. Pullman Co. v. McGowan (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 812.

Failure of witness to answer, irresponsible answers or failure to take answers of all witnesses.—Objections that the answers contained in a deposition are not responsive must be taken before the trial, as they go to the manner and form of taking the deposition. Harris v. Nations, 79 Tex. 409, 15 S. W. 262.

Court properly refused to suppress a deposition on the ground that the witness had failed to make complete cross-interrogatories, where the answers given show that he answered truly and freely all questions about which he had first knowledge. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 781.

Competency of witness.—Where, at the time of trial, plaintiff's conviction of murder had been affirmed and motion for rehearing overruled, his deposition, taken previously, was properly quashed; the competency of his answers to the interrogatories propounded to him depending not upon his status at the time such answers were given, but upon his status when the deposition was offered as evidence. Berry v. Godwin (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 191, reversing order (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 50.

Witness mentally incapacitated or one mentally or emotionally uncapable of testifying are taken, may be suppressed before trial. Hines v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 492.

Competency of testimony given by witness.—One of defendant's witnesses gave his testimony by deposition. One of the interrogatories stated: "If there be any other fact or facts concerning this matter, tending to throw any light upon the matters in controversy, * * * please state the same here." The answer was: "* * * The reason why the barrow pits were wide, opposite the lower bank, is that rock was encountered near the surface." Held, that it was error to exclude this answer on objection at the trial, as the objection was to "the manner and form" of taking the deposition, could only be made by notice in writing before the trial. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Richards, 83 Tex. 205, 18 S. W. 611.

Entire deposition cannot be excluded on motion to strike merely because portions of it consisted of conclusions of deponents. San Antonio Water Supply Co. v. Castle (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 300.

That a witness testifying by deposition made contradictory statements does not warrant the suppressing of deposition; the matter merely going to the witness' credibility.

Discretion of trial court.—A motion to suppress a deposition on the ground that the witness failed to answer cross-interrogatories propounded is a matter addressed to the discretion of the trial court. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 781.

Art. 3677. [2290] [2236] Depositions to be read in evidence, subject, etc.

In general.—Facts and law existing at time of trial and of offering of deposition in evidence, and not at time of its taking, must be looked to ordinarily to determine its competency. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Sioman (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 321.

Refusal to allow plaintiff's attorney to introduce in evidence a carbon copy of a deposition alleged to have been misplaced held not an abuse of discretion, under art. 1952. Owensboro Wagon Co. v. San Antonio Tie & Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 701.

In action against carrier for damage to cattle in transit, trial court did not err in permitting plaintiff to read excerpts from depositions taken before another party was dismissed from cause as plaintiff and joint owner of cattle and amended petition filed alleging individual ownership. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Reed (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 410.

Though offer of answer in deposition is by party other than those who propounded the interrogatory, objection of hearsay is available; it becoming his testimony on offering it. Schallert v. Boggs (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1081.

Defendants' assurance that a witness who had testified by deposition would be available in person at the trial, if plaintiffs desired to examine him, in reliance on which plaintiffs announced ready for trial, though entitling plaintiffs to withdraw the case from the jury, if the witness was not present in court, did not entitle them to an exclusion of the deposition from evidence. Cook v. Denike (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 437.

Witness present at trial.—Where a witness was present at the trial by procurement of defendant, having been brought from California, and was sworn and placed under the rule, it was not an abuse of discretion to permit plaintiff to introduce the deposition of the witness. Southern Pac. Co. v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 561.

It is within the discretion of the trial judge to permit a deposition to be used at the trial, though the witness is present in court. Cook v. Denike (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 457.

Oral testimony at former trial.—There is no rule requiring plaintiff to use a transcript of the oral testimony given by a witness on a former trial, instead of his written deposition taken in the manner prescribed by law. Southern Pac. Co. v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 561. And the introduction by defendants of testimony of witness given at a former trial does not entitle plaintiffs to exclude from evidence a deposition of the same witness. Cook v. Denike (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 437.

Papers attached to deposition.—In a servant's action against master for injuries, the materiality of a letter from plaintiff, asking the witness to testify in the case, not being apparent, the witness' failure to comply with request to attach it to his deposition did not furnish sufficient ground for suppressing deposition. Southern Pac. Co. v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 561.

Former suit.—A deposition taken by plaintiff in a different action which was not filed among the papers in the suit until the day on which the case was called for trial cannot be read in evidence; no notice that it would be offered having been given. Martinez v. Bruni (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 655.

Art. 3678. [2291] [2237] Matter not responsive stricken out.

Time for objection.—The objection that an answer of witness in a deposition is not responsive to the question can only be raised by motion before announcement of ready for trial. Cook v. Denike (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 437.

Responsiveness of answers.—Part of answers to questions in deposition as to what witness, as a railroad conductor, had to do with shipment and what occurred in regard to it, held not responsive. Massey v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 469.

In action on notes by indorsee, answer of president of payee company to interrogatory held responsive; therefore properly permitted to be read to jury. Commercial Security Co. v. Collins (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 728.
CHAPTER THREE
DEPOSITIONS OF PARTIES

Art. 3679 [2292] [2238] Party may take his own deposition.

Art. 3680 [2293] [2239] May take deposition of adverse party.
See Art. 5663, ante.

Interrogatories to a party and the answers thereto, are properly suppressed where the answers were taken by the officer without the issuance of a commission authorizing them. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Haman, 2 Civ. App. 106, 20 S. W. 1137.

Failure to appear or answer interrogatories.—In view of a defendant’s failure to appear for taking of her deposition on interrogatories pursuant to this article, it was within the discretion of the trial court to refuse to allow her to testify, and to allow plaintiff to introduce the interrogatories to her in rebuttal of defendant’s evidence, pursuant to article 3685. Stoppelberg v. Stoppelberg (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 587.

Art. 3681. Where either party is a corporation, no ex parte depositions.

Deposition in interrogatories.—A corporation has the right to take the depositions of an adverse party upon interrogatories filed, but cannot proceed ex parte. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Sauerenmann (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 227.

Art. 3682. [2294] [2240] Not necessary to give notice.

Notice.—Notice to parties in a suit or their attorneys of filing of interrogatories in order to take their depositions is not required, and failure to issue such notices was not evidence of a design to intrap defendants. Stoppelberg v. Stoppelberg (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 587.

Art. 3683. [2295] [2241] Taken and returned as other depositions.
Commission.—Interrogatories, and the answers thereto, are properly suppressed where the answers were taken by the officer without the issuance of a commission authorizing them. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Haman, 2 Civ. App. 106, 20 S. W. 1137.

Art. 3685. [2297] [2243] Refusal to answer, etc.
Taking interrogatories as confessed.—This article has reference only to the failure to answer an interrogatory pertinent and relevant at the time when an answer is required. Barnard v. Blum, 69 Tex. 698, 7 S. W. 98.
Where, upon interrogatories filed, the case is correctly styled in the notice, commission, etc., but an erroneous docket number was used, refusal of court to treat interrogatories as confessed because of this incorrect numbering cannot be upheld, where it appeared that all parties at various steps of proceedings erroneously used the wrong number, and defect was not discovered until after trial. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Sauerenmann (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 227.

In view of a defendant’s failure to appear for taking of her deposition on interrogatories, it was within the discretion of the trial court to refuse to allow her to testify, and to allow plaintiff to introduce the interrogatories to her in rebuttal of defendant’s evidence, pursuant to art. 3685. Stoppelberg v. Stoppelberg (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 587.
CHAPTER FOUR

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Article 3687. [2299] [2245] Common law rules of evidence.

INTRODUCTORY

1. Competency of Evidence in General.—The state, in its litigation with its citizens, has no special immunities or privileges as to rules of evidence. Producers' Oil Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 349.

In an action involving accounts, a witness was properly permitted to testify to the sum of certain checks and items which he used an adding machine to reach instead of calculating it himself. First Nat. Bank v. Rush (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 278.

2. Results of tests, examinations and experiments.—In an action for death of person on track at night, evidence of experiments made under similar conditions, for the purpose of demonstrating that the headlight of an engine did not leave the track in darkness because of a curved track, was admissible. Baker v. Loftin (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 159.

In action for death of operator of motorcar, struck by defendant's passenger train on a downgrade curve, upon which deceased had stopped, it was error to exclude evidence of experiments under the same conditions, showing the distance at which a man sitting on the end of a tie at the place of the accident could be seen by a person in the locomotive cab. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Whitfield (Civ. App.) 296 S. W. 380.

For admission, in an action for the killing by a train of a child on the track, of the result of experiments as to how far a child could be seen from there, the conditions need not have been exactly the same, but only substantially so; dissimilarity affecting the weight, rather than the admissibility, of the evidence. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Haywood (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 347.

23. Telephone conversations.—In an action against a telegraph company for delay in delivering a death message, testimony of plaintiff's son, who sent the message, detailing the statements of the party at the other end of the wire when he phoned the message to an agent of the telegraph company for transmission, held not inadmissible as hearsay, irrelevant, immaterial, and prejudicial. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 726.

3. Testimony by a witness as to his intent, motive or condition of mind.—Testimony that defendant would have told plaintiff concerning defendant's claim to property if plaintiff had told her that she was going to make a loan on the property, held self-serving, hypothetical, and properly excluded. Dowdy v. Furter (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 947.

The intent with which a party does an act is a fact known to him concerning which he is competent to testify, though other witnesses cannot testify to such intent, but only to facts and circumstances evidencing intent. Dean v. Dean (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 506.

In an architect's action against a corporation, where neither of the letters introduced in evidence referred to any agreement that the architect should receive no compensation if the plans and specifications were not used, it was reversible error, after defendant's general local manager had been cross-examined thereon to impeach his testimony to such agreement, to refuse upon re-examination by defendant to allow witness to explain why he made no mention of it in his letters when objected to on the ground that it did not call for facts but for undisclosed intentions. Emerson-Brantingham Implement Co. v. Special Immo (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 679.

4. Execution and delivery of contracts and conveyances.—In an action involving a contract whereby the parties were to divide the profits arising from the purchase and sale of land, the intervener, one of the parties to the contract, was properly not permitted to state what his intentions were at the time the contract was made, etc. First Nat. Bank v. Rush (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 573.
6. — Negligence and contributory negligence.—On the issue whether one, acting to save another from imminent danger brought about by the negligence of a third person, acted in such a manner as to show his own contributory negligence, the evidence showing his negligence in acting is admissible. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Haywood (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 347.

9. — Good faith in general.—In an action by creditor against stockholders individually, because of alleged overvaluation of the oil land given for the stock, a stockholder who was one of the incorporators, was properly allowed to testify as to reasons for placing such value on the oil lands. Peden Iron & Steel Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 130.

12. Evidence admissible by reason of admission of similar evidence of adverse party.—In suit for conversion of iron purchased by plaintiff, fact that it was developed on cross-examination that plaintiff had in his pocket letters from iron company offering so much a ton for iron, and was called on by defendant's attorney to let him see them, who then asked questions as to plaintiff's knowledge as to who wrote them, etc., did not justify the submission of letters in evidence by plaintiff. Waldrop v. Goltzman (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 355.

Witness having, at plaintiff's instance, testified to part of a letter which could not be produced, could, over plaintiff's objection of hearsay, testify to other contents thereof. The admission of illegal evidence on the part of one of the parties will not authorize his adversary to introduce similar illegal evidence in rebuttal, when excepted to. Massey v. Allen (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 682.

II. Competency of Witnesses

14. Knowledge or means of knowledge of facts, as affecting capacity.—In a prosecution for keeping a disorderly house, it was error to admit testimony by police officers as to the reputation of the premises, where such officers did not have adequate knowledge thereof. Thiner v. S. F. Ry. Co. of State, 94 Cr. R. 227, 296 S. W. 695.

In a suit to determine boundary line, testimony of one who had assisted surveyors in running the line many years previously, had lived near, and knew the claims of parties, one being his uncle, relating to the boundary line, was properly admitted before the jury. Stark v. Staffen (Civ. App.) 268 S. W. 395.

Where a witness testified that he had known the location of the boundary line between several lots all his life, that there were marked trees there recognized as being on the dividing line, and that he was present when a survey of certain property was made and the line between the lots was marked, the court erred in not permitting him to testify as to the location of such line in regard to certain improvements. Luddtke v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 351.

In an action for injuries in collision between an automobile and a street car, testimony as to the condition and location of the automobile the morning after, and as to marks and tracks on the street tending to show that the automobile had been dragged some distance, held admissible on issue of whether the street car was running at an unlawful speed, though the witness was not present at the accident; that fact affecting merely the weight of his testimony and not its admissibility. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 233 S. W. 1013.

In an action against a railroad for damages for shortage between weights at points of shipment and destination of certain cars of coal delivered to consignee, testimony of a witness, that the market value of the coal was the price at the mines plus carriage and tax and giving the amount at each place on each shipment, was admissible where he first testified that he knew the market value. Payne v. White House Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 251 S. W. 41.

15. Age and maturity of mind.—When child is offered as witness, it is proper to ascertain whether he has sufficient intelligence and knowledge of obligation of oath to be prompted to tell truth, and, if he has, he should be permitted to testify. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 674.

A bill of exceptions stating that plaintiff's wife, a 16 year old girl, testified that she did not know the nature or effect of an oath, when qualified by the court's statement that the witness was intelligent and as competent as any ordinary adult witness, and satisfied the court that she fully understood the difference between right and wrong, does not show that the witness was incompetent to testify. Williams v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 173.

16. Unsoundness of mind.—In an action for personal injuries where there was evidence that plaintiff had lost his memory and power to control his thoughts, but was not actually insane, it was not error to put him up on the stand and question him as to relevant matters in his past life, and as to the accident, though at defendant's request plaintiff's wife had, during the trial, intervened as plaintiff's next friend because of his incompetency. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cook (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 528. Insane woman upon whom a rape was charged could not testify in prosecution; law rendering her incompetent as witness. Cokeley v. State, 87 Cr. R. 256, 220 S. W. 109.

17. Obligation of oath.—If infant witness is not familiar with such expressions as "obligation of oath," etc., he should be instructed in simple terms, and be permitted to testify, if he understands that it is wrong to swear falsely and that he will be punished. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 674.

Code Crim. Proc. art. 1197, providing for commitment of a minor girl charged with violation of the law to a juvenile reformatory, instead of to the penitentiary, at her option or at the suggestion of other parties, merely provides a different punishment, but does not relieve her from liability to prosecution for perjury, and therefore does 972.
not render her incompetent as a witness. Williams v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 173.

A 7-year-old negro boy, who stated on voir dire that he did not know what it meant to swear, or that he would be punished if he swore falsely, but who stated that he knew it was right to tell the truth, and that he was going to tell it, is incompetent to testify as a witness, though he might have been qualified to testify if the court had not restricted him as to the nature of the oath and the punishment for false swearing. Anderson v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 414.

18. Infamy or conviction of crime.—In criminal cases, see notes to Code Crim. Proc. art. 788.

20. Extrinsic evidence as to competency in general.—Where witness has been convicted of felony and sentenced, proper procedure is to introduce proclamation of pardon before permitting him to testify. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Ash (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 685.

21. Determination as to competency.—Whether negro boy, suing railroad for personal injuries, was competent to testify as witness, in that he understood nature and obligation of oath, was matter resting in sound discretion of trial court. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 674.

Examination by prosecuting attorney of witness offered by defendant on question of general reputation of deceased, for purpose of preliminary test of witness, is discretionary with the court. Mauney v. State, 85 Cr. R. 184, 210 S. W. 959.

23/2. Communications to or information acquired by physician.—Where accused claimed temporary insanity, his examining physician having testified, it was not error for the court to state him in rebuttal, and, on objection of privilege, to excuse him, without instruction to disregard the incident; there being no statute prohibiting communications between patient and physician, in the absence of which they are admissible. Dodd v. State, 83 Cr. R. 160, 261 S. W. 1014.

A physician's testimony cannot be excluded on the ground that it is privileged, since in the absence of a statute enacting communications between physicians and patients are not privileged. Crow v. State (Cr. App.) 220 S. W. 148.

24. Communications to or advice by attorney or counsel.—An attorney may testify to anything he knows, whether learned before or after his employment as counsel. Arliss v. Clark (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 373.

25. — Relation of attorney and client.—Communications to adviser, who is not licensed to practice law and is not practicing attorney, are not privileged. McAllen v. Wood (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 433.

27. Subject-matter of communications or advice in general.—In prosecution of a wife for killing her husband, testimony of the attorney for the husband in his divorce suit that the husband asked him for advice as to what punishment would likely be meted out to him if he killed his wife, etc., was defending on the ground of self-defense, held not excluded as to a privileged communication between attorney and client. Ott v. State, 57 Cr. R. 232, 222 S. W. 261.

Defendant's attorney might, when called by the state, testify to the authenticity of an agreed statement of a former trial containing testimony of a witness since deceased. Mitchell v. State, 87 Cr. R. 590, 222 S. W. 983.

In trespass to try title, plaintiff claiming under an instrument which the jury found was a deed, but which defendants claimed was a mortgage, testimony of plaintiff as to a conversation between him and counsel for defendants was improperly excluded, where it was shown the conversation was privileged was clearly waived by plaintiff by going into the details of his transactions with counsel in his original testimony and offering such transactions as an explanation for his laches in filing suit. Langham v. Gray (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 741.

III. Demonstrative Evidence

38. Compelling person injured to submit to examination by physicians.—In personal injury action, where plaintiff, in testifying to injuries, indicated location of pain with his hands, but did not remove any of his clothing or exhibit any portion of his person, court properly refused to require plaintiff to be examined by defendant's physicians. Texas Electric Ry. v. Rowe (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 788.

41. Articles subject of or connected with controversy.—In action for failure to deliver goods according to sample, evidence held to sufficiently identify the samples to authorize their admission in evidence. Dallas Waste Mills v. Texas Cake & Linter Co. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 868.

43. Writings submitted for comparison.—In an action by a depositor who asserted that a bank had paid and charged his account with forged checks, where bank officials testified to the genuineness of the signature to the checks involved, as did other witnesses familiar with the depositor's signature, checks proven genuine, which were so identified by the bank officials, were improperly admitted for purposes of comparison by the jury with the alleged forged documents, for the admission of such checks would tend to raise collateral issues, and the signature was not an ancient one. Texas State Bank of Ft. Worth v. Scott (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 871.

IV. Documentary Evidence

50. Admissibility of public or official records and certificates in general—Judicial acts and records in general.—In trespass to try title, one of the muniments in the title of plaintiff being a deed from the administrator of the estate of a decedent, certain probate orders made in the estate of such decedent, reciting that his wife and daughter were his only heirs at law, were admissible as muniments of plaintiff's grantor being one of such heirs. Stahlman v. Riordan (Civ. App.) 237 S. W. 726.

A judgment entry alone, unaccompanied by any other part of the record of such judgment, or any sufficient explanation of its absence, when offered in evidence for a purpose other than to show the fact of its rendition, is inadmissible if reasonably objected to, a rule not qualified by the fact that the judgment offered is from a court of general jurisdiction, nor by the fact that it may contain general recitals of jurisdiction, but if the mere fact that a judgment has been rendered in a given case comes material in trial of another case, the judgment is admissible to show the fact. Short v. Blair & Hughes Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 427.

51. — Pleadings.—In action for breach of contract for sale of timber, buyer's petition in intervention in previous suit against seller, as limited by instruction of court, held properly admitted. West Lumber Co. v. C. R. Cummings Export Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 546.

Abandoned pleadings may be offered and used as evidence when relevant and material, and their relevancy and materiality is to be determined by the same rules which govern the admissibility of other testimony. Hines v. Post (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 698.

53. — Official records and reports.—In action for salaries paid defendant while occupying office to which plaintiff had been elected, city register of warrants showing delivery of warrants for salary to defendant together with their payment and cancellation, where authenticity of register was proved by custodian, held admissible. Pease v. Staats (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 269.

54. — Tax deeds, records and receipts.—There being no law authorizing tax receipts to be recorded prior to 8 Gammell's Laws, p. 1995, passed in 1876, followed by Laws 1915, c. 85 (Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, arts. 7617a-7617d), the filing for record of tax receipt prior to 1876 was unauthorized as not admissible in evidence to show the boundaries of land. Land v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 601.

55. — Records and returns of surveyors.—The original English field notes and maps prepared by the surveyor to locate surveys are part of the original title, and may be considered in aid of description contained in the grant, and to supply what is omitted therefrom. Barrow v. Murray (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 178.

63. Admissibility of transcripts and certified copies—Judicial records and proceedings in general.—In an action to establish a trust in land, certified copies of a decree in chancery in another state, in which another was appointed trustee, held admissible to corroborate the positive testimony of a witness as to the agreement under which the property was conveyed to the alleged trustee. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Harbaugh (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 496.

64. — Of federal courts in state courts.—A copy of a decree of a federal court is inadmissible in evidence, where neither the instrument itself nor the certificate of the clerk shows by what court it was rendered. Intertype Corporation v. Sentinel Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 548.

66. — Records and proceedings in land office.—Affidavits for a duplicate certificate filed to meet the requirements of Rev. St. 1879, arts. 3883-3885, and approved by the land commissioner, who issued a duplicate certificate thereon, became archives of the land office, and certified copies thereof were as admissible in evidence as the originals. Magee v. Paul. 110 Tex. 470, 221 S. W. 254, answering certified questions (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 325, and answers conformed to (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 1118.

50. — In trespass to try title involving boundary, where a map was properly filed in the General Land Office, a copy thereof was admissible in evidence; and it being contemplated that field notes of all surveys shall be made and recorded, a map should be made from such field notes, which should fully explain it, so that a letter, although accompanying the map and filed, was not admissible, except that part certifying to the map's correctness, in the absence of a law authorizing its filing. Land v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 801.

69-71. Requisites of exemplification or certificate in general.—Unsealed certified copy of enrollment record of the citizens or freedmen of one of the Five Civilized Tribes was inadmissible in action involving question of fact as to an Indian's age at the time of his execution of the deed. Langford v. Newsom (Com. App.) 220 S. W. 544, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Newsom v. Langford, 174 S. W. 1026.

A copy of a foreign decree is not admissible in evidence, where it is not properly certified, and certified by G. S. Comp. St. § 1519, to entitle it to full faith and credit. Vickers v. Faubion (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 803.

73. Admissibility of private writings and documents in general—Corporate records and proceedings.—In a servant's action for injury while lost, the employer's charter was admissible to show that the person in charge of business was a director. C. C. W. Dunn v. Janoski, 174 Tex. 575, 362 S. W. 2d.

75. Admissibility of conveyances, contracts and other instruments.—Where plaintiff's agent took defendant's order on blank, which provided that salesmen were not authorized to alter the sales order by verbal agreement, and wrote on the back of the carbon copy left with defendant that if defendant became financially unable to complete... the contract he might rescind, such clause was admissible in plaintiff's action for the alleged balance due, since the contracts were duplicate originals. Bonnett-Brown Sales Service Co. v. Denison Morning Gazette (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1044.

76. — Relation to matters in controversy in general.—In a suit for damages to a paving contractor through insufficiency of a concrete mixer sold him by defendant, plaintiff offered the defendant's knowledge that he had, to defend claims for the laying of specified grade of concrete, that the written paving contracts awarded to plaintiff were properly admitted in evidence as the basis of his suit when properly proven. Standard Scale & Supply Co. v. Chapin (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 645.

In a suit involving a contract whereby parties were to divide profits from the purchase and sale of certain land, the jury had the right to consider the book entries, the contract between the parties, deeds, deeds of trust, releases, etc., in determining their true relation. First Nat. Bank v. Rush (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 378.

In trespass to try title, deed from a third person to a defendant, wherein was reserved a vendor's lien to secure the payment of three promissory notes, held admissible, in so far as the controversy between plaintiffs and such defendant was concerned. Johnson v. Frost (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 558.

— Ordinary recitals in deeds are evidence only against privies, and do not affect strangers. Clark v. Scott (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 728.

Extraneous and self-serving declarations in a deed of conveyance are not admissible in evidence against stranger to the deed. Morrison v. Bennette (Civ. App.) 228 8. 659.

In trespass to try title, in which plaintiff claimed to have acquired title by adverse possession, recitals in deed to plaintiff from predecessor, offered not as a muniment of title, but to show privity between plaintiff and predecessor to establish continuity of possession, held admissible for such purpose as against objection that defendant was not a party thereunto. Id.

In an action to cancel a deed, brought against a woman sued as a feme sole, a $50 note, and deed of trust securing it, both executed by the same sole defendant, held admissible as against the objection that they were executed without consideration, and to deprive the woman's creditors, including plaintiff; the questions of lack of consideration and of fraud being peculiarly questions of credit, it was proper to consider the signatures of the instrument and the signatures themselves. Powell v. Dyer (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 721.

In a suit to recover on a note, where plaintiff bank pleaded that the date of the note had been changed without its knowledge, and that it repudiated the change as soon as it had notice thereof, and introduced all the officers of the bank to testify that they had not altered the note nor knew when, why, or by whom it was altered, it was not error to admit the note in evidence as showing the original contract. Rus v. Farmers' Nat. Bank of Sealy (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 985.

82. — Execution and proof.—An instrument whereby plaintiffs agreed to re­ convey land which had been sold to them by a defendant for $500 need not be signed by defendant to be binding and effective on plaintiff, and was not inadmissible in an action on a new note for $2,500 when offered by plaintiff, in whose possession it then was, on the ground that witness, testifying that defendant had knowledge of the existence of the instrument and assented to its terms, was mistaken in a statement that defendant had signed, such mistake only going to his credibility. Peacock v. Aug. A. Busch & Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 447.

In a broker's action for commission, where it was claimed that contract broker made with purchaser was unauthorized, proved that such contract was ratified made the contract admissible in evidence against owner for all purposes. Cooper v. Newsom (Civ. App.) 234 S. W. 568.

85. — Documents insufficient or incomplete when standing alone.—Where appraisers appointed that it could not be reduced to $2,500 need not be signed by defendant to be binding and effective on plaintiff, and was not inadmissible in an action on a new note for $2,500 when offered by plaintiff, in whose possession it then was, on the ground that witness, testifying that defendant had knowledge of the existence of the instrument and assented to its terms, was mistaken in a statement that defendant had signed, such mistake only going to his credibility. Peacock v. Aug. A. Busch & Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 447.

87. — Admissibility of books of account.—In an action involving book accounts where the books were in evidence, it was not error to admit a statement, which plaintiff testified he had made upon an adding machine from the different books or registers, showing the amounts in question; such statement containing all that the books would have shown had they been exhibited page by page to the jury, and it being impracticable to go through the books before the jury and check out the items shown by such statement, Cochran v. Hamblen (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 374.

91. — By whom entries are made.—In suit submitted upon sole issue whether deed from defendant and wife to plaintiff was intended as a mortgage or for security where plaintiff claimed that at time of conveyance he paid to defendant $500 in cash for the land, the court erred in excluding evidence of the cashier of the bank as to whether plaintiff's account showed a charge of $500 on said date, though the cashier had not made the entry. Ellis v. Haynes (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 249.

92. — Entries made from memoranda or other information.—A ledger account for sending and receiving telegrams, made up from the telegrams themselves, and in which for the first time are entered the amount of the charges, held admissible as book of original entry, notwithstanding a counter blotter in which was made a partial record of telegrams. Early-Foster Co. v. Mackay Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 234 S. W. 1172.
In an action against a railroad company to recover for shortage of coal delivered to plaintiffs, testimony of witnesses who weighed out the cars of coal at the initial points of shipment, that in the line of their duties they kept a record of the weights of the cars when empty and the load and that each attached the original scale tickets, which corresponded with the entries on their books, was admissible, as were the scale tickets themselves, upon which the weights, gross and net, were stamped when the weighing was done; the figures on the tickets being construed to mean pounds and not tons. Payne v. White House Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 417.

96. Admissibility of private memoranda and statements in general.—In action to establish trust in land, a memorandum statement in books of one who had assisted in the partition of the estate under will of alleged trustee's father, showing an allotment of interests, was admissible to corroborate positive testimony of witness as to agreement under which property was conveyed to alleged trustee. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Harbaugh (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 496.

97. Admissibility of letters, telegrams, and other correspondence.—In action to establish a trust in land, letters of agents, while it was being handled by a substituted trustee, and a deed from such trustee conveying property handled by him, were admissible to corroborate positive testimony as to agreement in which property was conveyed to alleged trustee. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Harbaugh (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 496.

Where a letter or collection slip sent by an insurance company was admissible in its behalf on the issue of authority of an agent to collect premiums, the fact that a notation was made thereon by the collecting agent, when he returned the slip to the company, of the death of insured does not render the slip inadmissible. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Elmore (Civ. App.) 236 S. W. 709.

In a mutual benefit association involving issue of whether insured had authorized change of beneficiary by substitution of wife's name for that of mother, a letter, written by insured to his sister, from which a portion had been torn, held inadmissible. Gardner v. Republic Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 466.

99. Maps, plats, and diagrams.—In an action under a lease for rent, where defenses were that building was not constructed according to agreement between lessor and lessee and faulty construction, the court properly permitted plaintiff to introduce in evidence the plans and specifications for the building, and to show that water which accumulated in the basement was seepage water due to a building in handling water for irrigation purposes. Goodman v. Republic Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 466.

100. Photographs.—In an action for damages for death, photographs of the place of the accident were properly admitted in evidence. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Bustillos (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 268.

In an action for injuries, in which a physician testified that an operation made plaintiff "infinitely better," a photograph taken after injury and before the operation was admissible to show the extent of his injuries. Southern Pac. Co. v. Eckenfels (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 1003.

114. Judicial acts and records.—A copy of a decree of a federal court is not admissible in evidence, where the clerk's certificate fails to show that it is a true copy of an original decree. Intertype Corporation v. Sentinel Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 548.

When a judgment becomes relevant in another action in the same court, introduced by the clerk and offered in evidence, it requires no authentication to render it admissible; the production of the judgment by the clerk being sufficient prima facie proof of its authenticity. Short v. Blair & Hughes Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 427.

116. Examined copies of records.—A foreign judgment certified by clerk, but not by court, is admissible where witness testified that it was true copy of original, which he had examined. Givens v. Givens (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 877.

117. Preliminary evidence for authentication in general.—In trespass to try title, evidence held sufficiently to show genuineness of letters written by Mexican officials to other officials to justify their admission. Kenedy Pasture Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 287.

In an action against a surety company on an indemnity bond, reinsured by defendant, recognition by defendant of the existence of the contract rendered such bond admissible in evidence, without preliminary proof of execution. American Surety Co. v. Camp (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 798.
118. — Corporate acts, records and proceedings.—Where there was no attack on the genuineness of an application for membership in a fraternal insurance society, the application, which was signed by deceased, proved itself. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Wernette (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 669.

119. — Conveyances, contracts and other writings in general.—An unloading certificate, or stockyard company, and furnished the cattle at destination was improperly admitted in evidence where there was no testimony from any one who had any connection with the making to show that it correctly stated the fact recited therein. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clarendon Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 886.

120. — Proof of authority to execute.—In a contractor's action against an irrigation district for balance due for construction work, it was not error to require the report of a person as defendant's consulting engineer without first showing that he had been regularly employed by the district, as such, pursuant to statute, where the report showed upon its face that he was acting as consulting engineer on the joint request of the board and the contractor. Peyton Creek Irr. Dist. v. White (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1060.

121. — Form and sufficiency in general.—One who did not personally weigh cattle could nevertheless testify as to the correctness of a copy of account sales, if he was present when the cattle were weighed. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clarendon Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 886.

122. — Books-of-account.—In suit for shrinkage of cattle shipped from delay, the account sales rendered by commission company selling the cattle at destination was inadmissible to show weight when sold; such account sales not being proven by commission company. Baker v. Holman (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 729.

123. — Memoranda and statements.—In suit on an open account for materials and labor, testimony of plaintiff's foreman as to items of the account sued on was admissible, where he testified that, though he had no personal knowledge at the time of suit of the accuracy of the items of the account, nevertheless he would not have O.K'd time slips from which they were made up unless at the time he had known them to be accurate. Mardez Lumber Co. v. Lafkin Foundry & Machine Co. (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 493.

124. — Letters, telegrams and other correspondence.—Where practicing attorney testified that he had a great deal of correspondence with claim department of defendant railroad, and in answer to his letters he always received letters from J. M., and signature on letter introduced in evidence was same that was on letters he received, and that he knew that such was his signature, and that he was claim agent of defendant, authentication of signature was sufficient. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Booth (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 198.

125. — Photographs and other pictures.—In action for injuries due to fall caused by defective sidewalk, testimony of injured party that photograph offered in evidence was correct picture of scene of accident was sufficient to render it admissible. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Scheppelman (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 167.
In a servant's action for injury, the admission of X-ray photographs in evidence, without proof that they were correct portrayals of the injury, was error. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Swift (Civ. App.) 294 S. W. 135.

140/2. Conclusiveness and effect—Use by adverse party.—In trespass to try title, where defendant, relying on a deed, introduced the same in evidence, the recitals in the deed were not admissible to establish the title, although defendant was also relying on a quitclaim deed from heirs of a former owner. McBride v. Loomis (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 450.

142. — Private contracts and other writings.—Despite provision of deeds of trust that any recitals of certain character in any deeds made by any trustee should be prima facie evidence, recitals of deeds executed by substitute trustee that beneficiary or holder of notes secured had requested trustee to sell the land, which request was necessary to authorize the trustee to sell, held unauthorized by the deeds. Bowman v. Oakley (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 549.

Where the recitals of deeds executed by a trustee under deeds of trust by a provision of the deeds of trust constituted merely prima facie evidence, the power of the courts to ascertain the real truth, when necessary to determination of rights in litigation, was not taken away. Id.

Where trust deed authorized an appointment of a substitute trustee, recitation in a substitute trustee's deed of the original of the trustee to act and of the proper request for him to sell, of proper advertisement, and other prerequisites to an exercise of his power, were prima facie proof of the regularity and validity of the sale. Johnson v. Marti (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 726.

Where it is the understanding of the parties that title to goats sold shall not pass until payment is made for them, title does not pass, though possession of the goats was delivered to the buyer and a bill of sale, reciting payment, was executed. Hernandez v. Garcia (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 477.

Legal presumption that as son paid consideration recited in deed whereby lots were conveyed to him he became owner of property held sufficiently rebutted by his express declaration in his deed to his mother that she paid it and that he held title in trust for her. Witt v. Witt (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 277.

In action to recover title to land, where defendant claimed title to an undivided interest under M. and N. as heirs of the original patentee, but the only evidence of such heirship was the recital thereof in a power of attorney given by M. and N., the jury had the right to conclude from the absence of any stronger evidence that M. and N. were not among the heirs of the original patentee. Thomas v. Calahan (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 692.

Where bond for title recited receipt of cash consideration, it was not necessary to prove that the consideration named was actually paid. Fadell v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 965.

In trespass to try title by a prior purchaser from the common source recital in the junior purchaser's deed of payment of the purchase money is not evidence against the prior purchaser, and the burden of proof is on the junior purchaser. Johns v. Wear (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1908.

In an action to recover a tract of land by the children of deceased by his first wife against his children by his second and third wives, testimony of defendants' witness as to the identity and payment of certain notes executed by deceased during his second marriage held sufficient to support the court's finding that the tract was bought entirely on credit and paid for with funds of the second and third communities, despite recitals in the deed that a cash consideration of $300 was paid at the time of its execution during the first marriage. Roberson v. Hughes (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 734.

Where plaintiff executed and delivered to defendant a check for $500, which was indorsed by defendant and marked "paid" by a bank, there was sufficient evidence to sustain a finding of payment of the $500. Wilcox v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 1104.

143/2. — Photographs.—In an action by a passenger for personal injuries from a fall while alighting from a train, testimony of a 17 year old boy, who stood some distance away obliquely, that the rubber on the steps of the coach from which plaintiff was alighting was entirely worn through, held not sufficient to raise a conflict of to warrant the jury in finding that the rubber was worn entirely through, where immediately photographs were taken which showed that, although the rubber was worn, it was not worn through. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Wisdom (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 241.

145. — Effect of introducing part of document or record.—The rule that, where a part of an instrument is offered in evidence, it should all be admitted, has its limitations. Sullivan v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 194.

In an action on a fraternal benefit certificate, where defendant had introduced the original application for insurance, plaintiff was entitled to introduce the certificate of defendant's medical examiner attached to the application. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Martin (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 270.

In a suit for divorce based on alleged common-law marriage, where defendant, husband, introduced excerpts of plaintiff's letter to show merely an unfilled promise of marriage, plaintiff's introduction of the whole letter held not error, since the material portions tended to contradict defendant's purpose. Bobbitt v. Bobbitt (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 478.

In an action on a note given by one copartner to another, where it was claimed as to the consideration that the maker had not accounted to the payee partner for about $50,900, and checks and drafts were introduced in support of the payee's testimony to that effect, the entire bank account of the payee was admissible, falling within the
4. V. Reception of evidence at trial.

152. Placing witnesses under the rule.—It is within the sound discretion of the trial court to permit a witness not under the rule, who had heard a part of the testimony, to testify. American Automobile Ins. Co. v. Struwe (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 534; Dowdy v. Furtner (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 647.

153. Offer of proof.—In an action for damages by one tarred and feathered on account of his attitude toward the Red Cross, refusal to permit testimony of certain prior acts of the plaintiff was not error, where offer of proof failed to show that the incident sought to be shown became known to the defendants prior to the time plaintiff was tarred and feathered. Walker v. Kellar (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 792.

154. Showing grounds or purpose of admission.—In action on secured note and to foreclose vendor's lien, where defendant's counsel declined to state purpose in asking defendant, who had collected insurance money, defendant cannot appeal predicate error on the court's action in sustaining an objection to such question. Blackmon v. Texas Securities Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 590.

155. Evidence admissible in part or for particular purpose.—Where evidence part of which was inadmissible and part admissible was offered as a whole, the exclusion of the inadmissible was error. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 270; McBride v. Kaulbach (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 576; Buchanan v. Williams (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 59.

A deed will be admitted in evidence, where it is admissible against one of the defendants, although it may be inadmissible as to another defendant. G. M. Carlton Bros. & Co. v. Hoppe (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 248.

156. Application of personal knowledge of jurors.—In action for injuries, where the evidence was ample to show a permanent injury and mental anguish therefrom, the jury could take notice of longevity, the age of plaintiff and his father being shown. Hines v. Welch (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 681.

157. Effect of admission of evidence.—In action for injuries sustained when leaving train by person accompanying passengers, plaintiff's statement to railroad's claim agent, having been introduced by railroad without limitations as to its purpose, should be considered and treated for all purposes. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 508 S. W. 714.

In a servant's action against a cattle corporation for injuries due to exposure to weather, while lost upon the prairie, the charter of defendant was admissible to show that it was running a cattle ranch, and not a farm, notwithstanding that it also showed the corporation to be a million-dollar one. C. C. Slaughter Cattle Co. v. Pastrana (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 749.

158. Restriction to special purpose.—Where evidence was admissible for any purpose and no request was made that it be limited to the purposes for which it was properly admissible, its admission cannot be held reversible error. Hartt v. Yturria Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 612.

In a prosecution for slander of a female, evidence as to the act of a witness, a brother of accused, in arming himself and going to where the father of prosecutrix lived, and as to what took place there, is admissible to show bias, interest, and motive of such witness; but, where such matter occurred out of the presence of accused, the effect of such testimony should be restricted by the court to the question of bias, interest, and motive of the witness. Russell v. State, 85 Cr. R. 179, 211 S. W. 224.

Where the judgment in another case was offered by plaintiff claiming thereunder only to show the fact of its rendition, its consideration and use as evidence in the case is so restricted, and it cannot be looked to as evidence showing that it was for plaintiff, the contingency on which the fund for which plaintiff is suing was payable to plaintiff. Short v. Blair & Hughes Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 477.

159. Cumulative evidence in general.—Court was justified in excluding testimony as to facts, proof of which was already undisputedly before the jury, from the testimony of both litigants. Guelker v. Guelker (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 604.

160. Right to object to evidence.—In action for damages to interstate shipment of live stock, held, that connecting carrier cannot complain on appeal of admission of evidence of negligence of subsequent carrier, admissible as against initial carrier, where such connecting carrier made no request to limit such evidence. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 679.

161. Estoppel or waiver.—In an action for injuries resulting in death, defendant did not waive his right to object to the admission of a statement made by deceased as part of the res gestae by cross-examining the witness by reference thereto. Dallas Hotel Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 647.
170. Time for objection.—Admission of evidence not excepted to at time will not be reviewed. Anderson v. McCain (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 921.

Courts did not abuse its discretion in permitting a witness to testify as an expert concerning a distance within which a train could be stopped, where no objection as to the qualification of the witness was made until after the witness had answered the question. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Lamkin (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 175.

171. Sufficiency and scope of objection.—In an action for injuries to an elevator passenger, his leg was caught in the door and held while the car descended, where defendant's only objection to the answer of plaintiff's witness as to her previous written statements was that it was not responsive to the question propounded by plaintiff, and there was no suggestion that the answer was in any manner hurtful to defendant, the trial court was not called upon to exclude it from the consideration of the jury, or to exclude any portion. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Nussbaum (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1102.

172. General or specific.—An objection that testimony is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent is too general to form the basis of an assignment of error, unless it appears from the nature of the question that the answer will be prejudicial to appellant. Early-Foster Co. v. Mid-Tex Oil Mills (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 224; Moorman v. Small (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 127.

An objection that a hypothetical question did not conform to facts is not sufficiently specific for review purposes. Schaff v. Shepherd (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 232.

Specific objection to introduction of ordinance that it had not been published must be made at time, that it may thereafter be available. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Body (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 219.

An objection to a hypothetical question put to an expert witness that it was "a hypothetical question in which all the facts are not before the witness" held too general and indefinite to be sustained, especially where, when the attorney asking the question included many facts not given, none were related to or were asked and like answers returned by other expert witnesses without objection. Pullman Co. v. McGowan (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 842.

An objection that evidence is irrelevant and immaterial is insufficient, it being necessary to state how or why the testimony is irrelevant or immaterial. Padgitt Bros. Co. v. Dorsey (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 851.

A case will not be reversed for admission of self-serving and hearsay statements, where the objection to the evidence was, "because it was not shown that she (appellant) had any notice or knowledge of said transactions and conversations and could not bind her"; objections being so made and presented that the real reason why the testimony was objectionable was not called to the attention of or considered by the court. Dendinger v. Martin (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1095.

174. Scope and questions raised.—In action for breach of marriage promise where bill of exceptions showed that plaintiff testified without objection that she told third persons of her engagement to defendant and that defendant's objection was to her testifying as to whom she made such statements, appellate court is not called upon to determine whether or not testimony that she made such statements was admissible and prejudicial. Bennett v. Free (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 228.

Where only objection to question was that it called for conclusion, all other grounds were waived. McAllen v. Wood (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 433.

In an action for damages to shipment of live stock, a question as to the difference in market value of the cattle in the condition when they arrived at destination, and in "good condition," and without injuries, not objected to because of the quoted words, though objected to as not giving correct measure of damages, did not constitute reversible error; the word "good" being a relative term meaning satisfactory in kind, quality, or condition. Baker v. Greer (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 165.

Where witness was asked as to testimony given in another case, objection that appellant was not a party to that suit and did not have a chance to cross-examine witnesses is insufficient to preserve point that question was incompetent because calling for hearsay testimony. Clark v. Scott (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 728.

Where there was no objection that evidence which was otherwise admissible was secondary evidence, the erroneous exclusion of such evidence on insufficient objections cannot be justified in the appellate court on the ground that it was secondary evidence. Watkins v. Hines (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 665.

On defendant's appeal, in an action for damages to a stock of shoes by water, defendant's objection to certain testimony that it did not show the true measure of damages raised the question of its admissibility and its sufficiency, so that the record is sufficient to present the question of the admissibility of the evidence and its sufficiency to establish the true measure of damage. Ara v. Rutland (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 445.

Where testimony complained of was not subject to the objection urged, the trial court did not err in admitting it even if subject to some objection not urged. Beailey v. Funk (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 179.

In an action against several tort-feasors, an objection to evidence tending to show the financial standing of one of the defendants was sufficient to require the court to sustain the objection, for the reason that the financial standing of one defendant cannot be shown for the purpose of augmenting damages against all the defendants, although the testimony was not objected to on the specific ground that it tended to show the financial condition of one of the defendants and that he was a man of wealth. Walker v. Kellar (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 792.

Object to introduction of bond in evidence, that it was not properly executed or signed by the party to be bound thereby, does not go to the authority of the attorneys who signed the names of the sureties thereto. Dussart v. Wichita Falls, R. & Ft. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 277.

Where a part of witnesses' testimony was admissible for impeachment purposes, objection to whole of such evidence will not be ground for reversal. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. v. Texas & Ft. S. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 155.

Where in a servant's personal injury action a general objection was made to the admissibility of the employer's charter as a whole, the objection was properly overruled, where the charter was admissible in part. C. C. Slaughter Cattle Co. v. Pastrana (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 749.

177. Motion to strike out—Necessity for motion. — Where bulk of a witness' opinion evidence as to value received, before cross-examination showed that it was inadmissible, a party desiring the exclusion of such testimony must move therefor or he cannot complain. F. Worth & D. C. R. R. Co. v. Hagood (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1049; Efert v. Wichita (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 106.

A witness claimed to know a fact, and his answer showed that he did not, objection to the answer presents no error, where no motion to strike was made. Land v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 891.

179. Time for motion. — A motion to exclude testimony elicited on examination in chief, made after cross-examination of the witness, is addressed largely to the discretion of the trial court. Frye v. Wayland (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 975.

180. Statement of grounds. — Whether witness' answer was responsive need not be determined where its exclusion was not requested on that ground. Schaff v. Shepherd (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 322.

181. Evidence admissible in part. — A motion to strike must be denied, where much of the evidence against which it is directed is admissible. Durham v. Wichita Mill & Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 128.

Where a part of witness' answer was clearly admissible, the denial of a motion to suppress the whole answer and to strike out the same is not error. American Automobile Ins. Co. v. Stroope (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 534.

Appellate court cannot consider a complaint that court improperly excluded testimony, where no exception was reserved. Jones v. W. S. J. Davis Motor Car Co. (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 701; City of San Antonio v. Newnan (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 191; Miller v. P. W. Ezell Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 734.

Assignments of error, objecting to affidavit in suit on open account, in that it merely alleged that all lawful offsets had been allowed, while Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. Sh. 1914, art. 3712, requires that the affidavit shall allege that all "just and lawful offsets" have been allowed, is not reviewable, in absence of objection to admission of account in evidence. Peterson v. Grana-Brown Shoe Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 599.

In trespassory title, where defendant offered a deed which referred to a plat, and the plat, as an integral part of the deed, which was received without objection, error could not be predicated on admission of the plat, as being a written instrument not produced by competent evidence. Massingill v. Moody (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 265.

While there is the plea of privilege, the plea of privilege is inadmissible as evidence, where defendant's plea was introduced without objection, court was authorized to consider it in so far as it tended to prove defendant's residence in another county. J. M. Radford Grocery Co. v. Flynn (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 332.

Evidence was admitted to defendant was admitted temporarily subject to further ruling and after its admission defendant demanded a ruling, and argument was heard 981.
whereupon court without announcing any ruling peremptorily instructed a verdict for plaintiff. Held that if directed verdict was intended to exclude the evidence no exception was necessary to review the exclusion. Tuffy v. Houston Motor Car Co. (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 832.

An exception to evidence as incompetent, and hence insufficient to support a verdict, must be overruled, where no objection was made below to the admissibility of such evidence. Joffre v. Mynatt (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 551.

Though evidence of negligence not pleaded is admitted without objection, defendant's requested instruction that it be disregarded, and that damages cannot be found by reason of such negligence, should be given. Jamison Gin Co. v. Menseis (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 365.

A bare conclusion or opinion of witness, without basis of fact, has no probative force though not objected to. Webb v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 914.

Where testimony admitted is wholly irrelevant and immaterial to any issue in the case, and inadmissible upon any theory, the court's action in admitting it will be reviewed, notwithstanding absence of objection on a specific ground. Jones v. Texas Electric Ry. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 749.

Where defendant insurer did not object to the introduction of evidence establishing facts which would have been shown by the inventory had it not been destroyed, held that objections to such evidence cannot be raised by assigning error to refusal of motion for direction of verdict. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Biggs (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 274.

A party may waive production of the best evidence by failing to object to that of an inferior grade. Southern Surety Co. v. Nalle & Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 492.

Hearsay testimony, if not objected to, is evidence to be considered by the court or jury, but what they may deem it to be worth. Id. may deem it to be worth.

In an action to recover for shortage of coal delivered to consignee where there was no objection to the introduction of a freight bill and expense bill showing the weight of a car of coal, the court was justified in allowing the amount therein stated. Payne v. Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 417.

185. Cure of error.—If it was error for a witness to testify as to value of certain neighboring oil land as a basis for fixing the value of oil lands in suit, the objection was waived, where the same ground was covered on cross-examination, and testimony as to value of still other lands brought out. Peden Iron & Steel Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 180.

Objection to testimony of witness is waived, where subsequently testimony to the same effect is admitted without objection. Southland Life Ins. Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 294.

In an action against railroad company arising out of crossing accident, where there was testimony that the whistle was not sounded, the fact that the railroad company brought out its version as to a fight between the engineer and another arising over dispute as to that question was not a waiver of the erroneous admission of such declarations, where the facts of the fight were first brought out by plaintiff and defendant merely desired to prove its version. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Laird (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 305.

VI. Admissibility of evidence at former trial or in other proceeding

189. Absence of witness.—Admission of a portion of transcript of evidence at a former trial if the witness was absent from the state or was dead. Kurz v. Soliz (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 424.

193. Preliminary evidence.—In an action for publication of an alleged defamatory article as to proceedings in justice court against plaintiff therein for violating the prohibition law, wherein he was discharged, etc., claimed to be privileged, evidence that plaintiff had testified he was transporting the liquor for export is inadmissible where it did not appear that the publisher's reporter was present. Mulhall v. Express Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 235 S. W. 545.

RULE 1. WITNESS MAY BE SWORN AND EXAMINED, HOW

I. Examination of witnesses in general

2. Mode of testifying in general.—It is improper practice to permit a witness to testify by stating that if another witness swore to a certain state of facts, such other statement was not the truth; but each witness should testify to his own version of the facts. Haines v. Rainbe (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 885.

3. Questions in general.—If judgment debtor sold cattle belonging to claimant and bought other cattle for claimant with the money, and there were levied on, a question to execution defendant as to whether claimant owned cattle in the county was not objectionable as being too general as to time. Horn's Price (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 590.

Questions that are purely incidental, and which only form a part of some predicate and lead up to the matters at issue, are not subject to the objection that they are inmaterial, unless they contain something hurtful within themselves. Hasley v. State, 87 Tex. 444, 222 S. W. 579.

4. Questions assuming facts.—Prior testimony of witness fairly tending to support claim of noises coming from defendant's mill, question as to how noise testified to affected witness is not open to objection of assuming existence of the noise. Texas Refining Co. v. Sartain (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 563.

5. Leading questions.—Question whether plaintiff did not tell her attorney that mule was struck just as she had told jury held leading. Baker v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 215.

Questions, "Did you * * * sign this document * * * upon the representations made by D, and in the State whether or not at the time * * * you relied upon the representations * * * made by the claim agent," were leading and suggestive. Chicago, I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 90.

In prosecution for murder, where deceased was barefooted, question whether there were any barefoot tracks leading away from cultivator, with which deceased was working, although answerable by "Yes" or "No," held not leading. Borren v. State, 83 Tex. Cr. R. 198, 204 S. W. 1906.

In a prosecution for incest, a question to prosecutrix by the district attorney whether she went to defendant's bed every time because she was afraid of him held objectionable as leading. Bohannon v. State, 84 Cr. R. 8, 204 S. W. 1165.

The question, "I want you to tell the jury * * * how that [the noise testified to] affected you," is not leading, it not suggesting the answer. Texas Refining Co. v. Sartain (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 553.

For a question to be "leading," it is not sufficient that it may be answered yes or no, but it must further appear that the question suggests the answer. Southern Traction Co. v. Coley (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 285.

In action against street railway by woman passenger for negligence of its employees in permitting other female passengers, who were intoxicated, to assault and curse plaintiff, an interrogatory, "Did the conductor or motorman come in and try to get these women to quit fighting?" was not leading or suggestive. Id.

Action of trial court in refusing to permit the counsel of accused to ask, and the only eyewitness, who was tendered to both the state and accused by the court, to answer, leading questions in a prosecution for murder, was error. Berrian v. State, 85 Cr. R. 367, 212 S. W. 599.

An inquiry as to the appearance of one accused of murder, whether excited or irritated, was not objectionable as leading. Moore v. State, 85 Cr. R. 403, 214 S. W. 344.

In murder trial the question whether deceased was looking in accused's direction was not objectionable as leading. It not suggesting the answer desired. Id.

In an action on a fraternal benefit certificate issued in favor of plaintiff's wife where liability was denied on the ground that insured misrepresented the state of her health, a question to a witness as to whether insured coughed during a certain period prior to her death held properly excluded as leading. Knights and Ladies of Security v. Shepherd (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 636.

In a prosecution for homicide, decedent having been shot while plowing a question by the district attorney, "Well, was that plowed to the end of the row, or partly plowed?" was not objectionable as a leading question. Charles v. State, 86 Cr. R. 235, 222 S. W. 255.

A question asked by the state of its own witness whether defendant did or did not do certain things does not suggest whether the answer desired is "Yes" or "No," and is therefore not leading. Williams v. State (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 110.

In a prosecution for having in possession intoxicating liquor not for medical, etc., purposes, question, "Did any liquor come into your hands by anybody?" was not leading and did not contain matter harmful to defendant. Rainey v. State (Cr. App.) 233 S. W. 118.

7. Suggestions in aid of recollection.—Where the district attorney, in examining one of his adult witnesses, reminded witness by leading question of the contents of a written statement voluntarily made by witness before the trial, and thereby elicits damaging testimony, the examination was improper. Anderson v. State, 83 Cr. R. 361, 202 S. W. 944, L. R. A. 1918 E, 658.

8. — Children and weak-minded or ignorant persons.—It cannot be said that it is an abuse of discretion to permit a leading question to an ignorant witness, testifying through an interpreter; she having previously, without objection, stated the facts summarized in the leading question. Haynes v. Sosa (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 976.

Where witness is very old and not unfriendly to accused, it is not abuse of discretion for trial court to admit leading questions. Borren v. State, 85 Cr. R. 198, 204 S. W. 1003.

In a prosecution for assault to rape, where prosecutrix at time of trial was 12 years old and reluctant to describe fully defendant's treatment of her, but had testified that defendant laid her on the grass and unbuttoned her panties, it was within the court's discretion to allow prosecutrix to be asked whether defendant put his hands under her clothes and, after answering, "Yes," to be asked questions suggesting the answer that he put his hands on her private parts, notwithstanding objection to the questions as leading. Scitern v. State, 87 Cr. R. 112, 219 S. W. 833.

9. — Unwilling or hostile witnesses.—It is within the sound discretion of the trial judge to permit leading questions to be asked a hostile, unwilling, or reluctant witness. Anderson v. State, 83 Cr. R. 361, 202 S. W. 944, L. R. A. 1918 E, 658; Shaw v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 569.
In a prosecution for simple assault, the state's theory being that defendant had told another person that, if he would whip the assaulted party he (defendant) would pay his fine. The answer to question to witnesses, on examination in chief by the state before defendant had asked any question, as to whether they did not go before the grand jury and testify, etc., held inadmissible even though the witnesses were unwilling. Matheson v. State, 86 S. W. 215.

10. Repetition of questions.—In a personal injury action due to an explosion of gasoline-line sold as coal oil, where a witness had answered that, if he had made certain statements on prior trial, they were true, as his recollection at that time was better, it was not an abuse of discretion of trial court to refuse to permit further questioning on the same points. Cohn v. Snenz (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 493.

11. Examination by court.—That court examined witness, after differences had arisen between counsel as whether witness had testified to certain facts, did not render his testimony inadmissible. Donoho v. Carwile (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 552.

In a prosecution for theft, where defendant had sought a continuance to procure the attendance of absent witnesses, it was not error for the trial court to inquire of various witnesses at the trial whether the alleged absent witnesses were present at the time the offense was committed. Matheson v. State (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 548.

13. Responsiveness of answer.—The answer, "The cattle that got through alive were particularly broken up and injured, and I suppose depreciated in value more than they would have been had there been no unusual delays or rough treatment of the cattle while they were in transit," was fairly responsive to a question as to what the cattle would have been worth at their destination if they had not died in transit, and had reached their destination in good condition, and without any unusual delays or rough treatment. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 731.

In prosecution for theft of automobile, answer of a witness, to the question of defendant's counsel as to how he came to recollect dates, that it was because he knew "you lawyers would have an alibi framed up for him, and I fixed for it," held improper and unresponsive. Houser v. State, 87 Cr. R. 296, 222 S. W. 240.

In homicide prosecution, question, "Now as to his [defendant's] behavior after that accident. What times did you notice that, or remark that, or call it strange, or did you think anything of it?" held properly excluded: the expected answer that defendant was crazy and not responsible at times not being responsive to the question. Perry v. State (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 366.

Parts of answers to various questions in action for death of employé through machinery, held objectionable, as not responsive. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Francis (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 342.

In a prosecution for manslaughter through killing of defendant's paramour, the state cannot be held responsible for an unresponsive answer of defendant's character witness to the state's question on cross-examination that he thought everybody would sleep better by his being secured, whether defendant was guilty or not guilty; the state having already elicited that he was on defendant's bond, and had been secured before making it. Mobley v. State (Cr. App.) 222 S. W. 501.

14. Remarks by witness.—In prosecution for theft of automobile, statement, volunteered by a witness, after testifying that when he saw defendant and another driving the car he spoke to defendant, who nodded, that he thought he would stop defendant, as he was certain defendant was an automobile thief, held improper. Houser v. State, 87 Cr. R. 296, 222 S. W. 240.

17. Use of documents, models, etc., to explain testimony.—In a personal injury action, pictures of muscles described by physicians which they testified were correct were admissible as part of such description. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Reichert (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 550.

A plaster cast is sufficiently identified as that of the locomotive wheel alleged to have caused the derailing of an engine and the death of a fireman by testimony of a witness that he saw the plaster cast taken off of the wheel in controversy, to make it the basis of testimony by the witness that the wheel was defective as shown by a gauge measurement of the cast. Payne v. Allen (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 145.

18. Refreshing memory.—The court did not err in refusing to strike certain testimony where witness had refreshed his memory from an affidavit he had made at the time, although having no independent recollection of the matter, but knowing that the statement in the affidavit was true, and although he had testified differently on a former trial.

Though a witness in a proper case may be permitted to refresh his memory by referring to a record of his testimony on a former occasion, the privilege is not to be used as a means of the testimony given in the latter trial, whereupon the act was made, question to witnesses, on examination in chief by the state before defendant had asked any question, as to whether they did not go before the grand jury and testify, etc., held inadmissible even though the witnesses were unwilling. Matheson v. State, 86 S. W. 215.

Action of prosecuting attorney in exhibiting to witness for prosecution on redirect examination document containing her testimony on direct examination, though she claimed thereafter was clear, held improper, not being within rule permitting refreshment of a witness' memory, and such conduct violated the rule prohibiting impeachment of a party's own witness. James v. State, 86 S. W. 215, 231 S. W. 502.

In prosecution for theft of property of the value of more than $50, action of court in allowing witness to look at, and refresh his recollection on, from a list of property which he had made on a former occasion, where the list was not offered in evidence, nor its contents read, held not error. Narango v. State, 87 Cr. R. 493, 222 S. W. 564.
In an action against a railroad company for damages for shortage of coal delivered to plaintiff, testimony of the manager of plaintiff's business at the place of delivery, as to the weight of two cars of coal upon their arrival, was admissible, though witness testified from his records which were attached to his deposition as an exhibit showing the weight of the two cars, where his duties were to keep correct records of such transactions, the cars were unloaded under his direction, and he weighed the facts to make the entries at the time of unloading and identified the weight sheets from which he testified as original records from his office, although he had no independent recollection of the weights. Payne v. White House Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 417.

19. Memoranda or other writings which may be used.—In action to enforce materialman's lien, testimony as to items furnished, given by one having personal knowledge thereof and who had made a list thereof, but who did not rely upon it, except for explanation, was admissible. Fox v. Christopher & Simpson Iron Works Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 333.

In prosecution for abortion, where defendant called trial judge who tried prior criminal case in which victim testified, court erred in refusing to allow witness to refer in any manner to statement of facts of prior case not made till two weeks after trial in such case, for purpose of refreshing recollection. Earnest v. State, 83 Cr. R. 257, 202 S. W. 780.

In action on notes, trial court properly permitted plaintiff's bookkeeper to consult a book kept by him to refresh his memory as to entries made therein in connection with notes in suit, and it was not incumbent on plaintiff to present book in evidence. Gregory v. Corpus Christi Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 366.

In a prosecution for burglary, the justice of the peace before whom defendant was examined could use his certificate attached to the confession made by defendant to refresh his recollection as to whether defendant was duly warned before he made a statement as required by statute, if the certificate aided him in recalling the facts to his mind. Garcia v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 988.

In a prosecution for unlawful manufacture of intoxicating liquors, where witness for state testified that accused only visited the place of manufacture once, and thereby surprised the state, held, that court did not err in permitting the state to read to the witness his testimony before the grand jury for the purpose of refreshing his memory, witness not testifying that accused made several visits, it not appearing that the testimony before the grand jury was read in the presence of the trial jury. Shaw v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 509.

In an action to recover from a railroad company for shortage of coal delivered to plaintiff, testimony of a witness as to the weight of part of two cars delivered was admissible, where the weights were entered by him in the books at the time of unloading, which was part of his duty, and plaintiff's general manager testified as to the correctness of the entries made. Payne v. White House Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 417.

20. Inspection of writing by adverse party.—If testimony of a witness before the grand jury was used by the prosecuting attorney to refresh his memory, it should have been made available to defendant in the re-examination of the witness. Kirkland v. State, 86 Cr. R. 596, 218 S. W. 367.

21. Admissibility of writing as evidence.—In action on notes, trial court properly permitted plaintiff's bookkeeper to consult a book kept by him to refresh his memory as to entries made therein in connection with notes in suit, and it was not incumbent on plaintiff to present book in evidence. Gregory v. Corpus Christi Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 366.

In a prosecution for burglary, the justice of the peace before whom defendant was examined could use his certificate attached to the confession made by defendant to refresh his recollection as to whether defendant was duly warned before he made a statement as required by statute, if the certificate aided him in recalling the facts to his mind, though the certificate itself was inadmissible. Garcia v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 988.

Where a witness, in an action to recover from a railroad company for shortage of coal delivered to plaintiff, testified as to the weight of certain cars delivered, from certain weight sheets made by him at the time, the fact that the book in which the sheets were kept was not offered in evidence did not render them inadmissible; only the entry in the book relevant to the issue being admissible. Payne v. White House Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 417.

22. Testimony from memoranda or other writings.—In an action for damages to horses in shipment testimony by a witness, who stated positively the weight of the horses a short time after their arrival, and stated that he gave the weights from his memory and from records, which were correctly kept, was properly admitted, though he did not identify the record or state who kept it. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cowan (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 185.

25. Right to cross-examine and re-examine in general.—Action of trial court in refusing to permit the counsel of accused to ask, and the only eyewitness, who was tendered to both the state and accused by the court, to answer, leading questions in a prosecution for murder, was error, and when such witness was examined by the state, accused should be accorded the same liberty of cross-examination of such witness as any other witness for the state. Berrian v. State, 85 Cr. R. 367, 212 S. W. 509.

The fact that a party introduced the deposition of a witness does not entitle the adverse party to call such witness at the trial for the purpose of oral cross-examination. Cook v. Denike (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 437.
27. Control and discretion of court.—The manner of conducting the examination of witnesses and the order in which they are permitted to testify are matters largely within the discretion of the district court. Foster v. Guerra (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 295.

28. Scope and extent of cross-examination in general.—In trial for murder, prosecuting attorney's cross-examination of witness as to whether another witness for defendant was present at the homicide, including a threat to prosecute for perjury, held objectionable. Steel v. State, 53 Cr. 483, 200 S. W. 581.

Where defendant proved business relationship between it and the contractor, who it claimed was plaintiff's employer, plaintiff held entitled to develop the details of such relationship, especially on cross-examination. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 247.

Admission of testimony on cross-examination, which is merely an amplification of testimony of same witness brought out by the other party on direct examination, is not error. Wilson v. Waco, 204 S. W. 1019.

Where the state's witness identified a fluid which he claimed to have bought from defendant as whisky, stating that he tasted it after medicine had been put in it, and that it then tasted like whisky, it was permissible to show, on cross-examination, the kind of medicine put in the fluid. Houser v. State, 86 Cr. R. 37, 26 Vt. St. v. 386.

Where it was defendant's claim that deceased had harassed and pursued him for years, and a witness testified that he saw deceased watching defendant while in the place of business of the witness which was elevated and had a platform connected with it, deceased being on the ground, cross-examination as to the height of the platform in connection with the height of deceased was proper. Patterson v. State, 87 Cr. R. 95, 221 S. W. 596.

In prosecution for theft of automobile, question to a witness on cross-examination whether she heard defendant stolen the car, and answer that witness believed defendant stole it, but would not swear to it, held improper, as not shedding light on the issues. House v. State, 87 Cr. R. 256, 222 S. W. 240.

On cross-examination of a witness for the state, who testified that he was 16 years of age, defendant had the right to show that the witness was not 16. Charles v. State, 87 Cr. R. 233, 222 S. W. 255.

In prosecution for theft of a car, in city of Waco, it was not improper cross-examination to ask witness if defendant's alibi if he knew "whether defendant had some one come to take car for him." Berry v. State, 86 S. 160, 222 S. W. 271.

In a prosecution for murder, there was no error in permitting the state to ask a witness for the defense on cross-examination if it was not true that each member of the jury was not a larger man than deceased. Taylor v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 552.

In prosecution for theft of automobile, question to a witness on cross-examination whether she heard defendant stolen the car, and answer that witness believed defendant stole it, but would not swear to it, held improper, as not shedding light on the issues. House v. State, 87 Cr. R. 256, 222 S. W. 240.

On cross-examination of a witness for the state, who testified that he was 16 years of age, defendant had the right to show that the witness was not 16. Charles v. State, 87 Cr. R. 233, 222 S. W. 255.

In prosecution for theft of a car, in city of Waco, it was not improper cross-examination to ask witness if defendant's alibi if he knew "whether defendant had some one come to take car for him." Berry v. State, 86 S. 160, 222 S. W. 271.

In a prosecution for murder, there was no error in permitting the state to ask a witness for the defense on cross-examination if it was not true that each member of the jury was not a larger man than deceased. Taylor v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 552.

Upon a question of contributory negligence of a boy injured by purposely exploding a dynamite cap while playing on defendant's property, evidence on his cross-examination, as to what he knew and had been told in the matter of taking or meddling with others' property was relevant on the question of intelligence and discretion, particularly where plaintiff offered evidence of the boy's brightness and average record in school. Farrand v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 845.

In prosecution for pandering, defined by Pen. Code, art. 506a, where defendant's husband testified that he did most of the housework because his wife was sickly, held that cross-examination of husband developing that defendant was not ill all the time was germane to the direct examination. Dollar v. State, 86 Cr. R. 298, 216 S. W. 1089.

In homicide prosecution, cross-examination of defendant's wife as to certain trouble between herself and the wife of deceased held admissible, in view of defendant's examination with reference to such trouble. Henry v. State, 87 Cr. R. 148, 220 S. W. 3108.

Where a witness testified that, on an occasion when it was claimed deceased was looking for defendant, he appeared to be in a hurry and walking fast, cross-examination as to whether he was limping was not erroneous. Patterson v. State, 87 Cr. R. 95, 221 S. W. 596.

The wife of accused cannot be cross-examined on new matter not relevant to matters brought out on direct examination, such as threats by accused, either for the purpose of impeachment or as original testimony. Briscoe v. State, 87 Cr. R. 375, 222 S. W. 349.

In action for damage to a cattle shipment where defendant required plaintiff's attorney to identify a letter submitting a smaller damage claim than the amount sued for, the witness may explain on cross-examination that he subsequently received additional information regarding the amount of damage. Hines v. Davis (Civ. App.) 235 S. W. 862.

30. Cross-examination as to irrelevant, collateral or immaterial matters.—In prosecution for abandonment, theory of state being that money obtained by victim was to pay defendant, while defendant sought to show money was obtained that victim and her lover might go to Nevada, cross-examination of victim as to whether it was not true she got money without her aunt's consent from bank to go off with her lover, etc., was proper. Earnest v. State, 87 Cr. R. 257, 223 S. W. 738.

31. Cross-examination as to writings.—On cross-examination of a witness for the state, who testified that he was 16 years of age according to information from his mother court did not err in refusing to permit defendant to examine the witness in connection with a report of the school census made by the father of witness, showing

32. Cross-examination of witness to character of party.—Where witnesses are exami-ined very broadly as to defendant's reputation, cross-examination developing knowledge of witness as to defendant's reputation for peace when intoxicated was permissible.
Montgomery v. State, 82 R. 147, 199 S. W. 473.

Defendant may demand right to examine witness in regard to predicate for testimony as to defendant's general reputation for veracity, and should be permitted to examine to develop conclusion was reached from personal matters, not general re-

Where accused's character as peaceable, law-abiding man was in issue in prosecution for murder, state's counsel, in cross-examining character witnesses, could inquire whether they had heard of accused's killing four men, outlaws, or Mexicans, or a negro train porter, for the purpose of testing witnesses' conclusions and information on which they were based. Roberson v. State, 83 R. 238, 203 S. W. 249.

Where witness testified to defendant's reputation, it was permissible for state, upon cross-examination, to ask witness if he had not heard of certain specific matters affecting the reputation, but such examination should not have extended to particulars of

In prosecution for murder of one who had insulted defendant's wife, where state had met defendant's evidence as to deceased's bad reputation for chastity by controversing evidence that such reputation was good; defendant was entitled to cross-examine state's witnesses as to whether they had heard of prior trouble of deceased with another

In murder prosecution, where witness had testified for defendant on direct examination, and where witness was good, and where the cross-examination to which witness had been subjected did not refer to the deceased's reputation, and where the testimony of the witness, if stated, would not have amounted to a material and preponderant discovery of the guilt of the accused, it was not error to exclude the testimony of the

In a prosecution for murder, where a witness had testified to defendant's good reputation, it was improper to ask him if he would have so testified if he had known that defendant had married a whore. Bereal v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 352.

Where witness testified to the general reputation and standing of accused as a law-abiding citizen in a prosecution for assault upon his wife with a knife, and was asked on cross-examination if he had ever heard that defendant had previously beaten his wife, and answered that he had heard it, the testimony as to what he had heard concerning defendant's having beaten his wife was admissible, as tending to impair the other testimony of the witness; the court limiting the matter to the question of impeachment and instructing the jury that it could not be considered for any other purpose. Pruitt
v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 525.

When a defendant puts his reputation in issue, his witnesses may be asked if they had not heard of specific instances of his misconduct which, if true, would affect such reputation, and the fact that such misconduct was against defendant's wife, child, mother, or other relative does not alter the rule. Lasater v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 949.

33. Cross-examination of party.—In action for personal injury, question to plaintiff on cross-examination as to whether he knew that on his same testimony in a concurrent case the jury had found that he was negligent, held properly excluded. Southern Traction Co. v. Dillon (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 688.

In action for assault and battery, it would not have been proper to admit testimony on plaintiff's cross-examination, with reference to difficulties he might have had with other persons in no manner connected with defendant, and at other times. Hall v.
Hayter (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 436.

In an action involving a contract whereby parties were to divide the profits arising from the purchase and sale of land, testimony of one of the parties, an Intervenor, on cross-examination, that he intended to produce his books to permit the other party to the contract access to them after the suit was begun, held admissible on the issues
W. 575.

37. Questions on cross-examination.—Repetition of questions and questions calling for repetition of answers.—In a prosecution for unlawfully selling intoxicating liquors, where one of defendant's witnesses on cross-examination admitted that he was charged with a similar offense, and named three persons whom he described as "pimps" whom he complain was unduly active in the prosecutions, it was improper to allow the state to impeach him on such collateral matter by proving that such men were of high character.

In a prosecution for assault with intent to murder an officer at 9:30 o'clock at night, court did not err in not permitting defendant to ask the assaulted officer on cross-examination whether 9:30 was not considered an early hour by the people of the city; defendant having shot the officer, when stopped and interrogated by him. Walker v.
State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 599.

39. Redirect examination.—In prosecution for slander of a female, state may on redirect bring out circumstances of interest in the prosecution by the witness to avoid an unfavorable light into which the defendant has put the witness on cross-examination.
Pikkerell v. State, 82 R. 65, 198 S. W. 207.
Where defendant, without objection, permitted state to cross-examine witness testifying to defendant's reputation as to specific instances, it could not, on redirect, go further into such objectionable particulars. Glassoe v. State, 85 Cr. R. 234, 210 S. W. 956.

40. — Explanation of testimony.—In passenger's action for injuries, where he alleged loss of time and average earning capacity of $3,000 per year, and defendant on cross-examination disclosed that he had been convicted of various misdemeanors, the court held that after his living expenses he had given every dollar to his family was admissible. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Mercer (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 263.

In prosecution of husband for procuring his wife to enter house of prostitution, held, state went too far on redirect examination of wife in questioning as to her early life in explanation of testimony on cross-examination showing motives, etc. Epplson v. State, 82 Cr. R. 364, 198 S. W. 948.

A witness put in bad light before the jury by the development of testimony on cross-examination, may, by a pertinent explanation on re-examination, remove the unfavorable impression. Morse v. State, 85 Cr. R. 83, 210 S. W. 965.

In prosecution for keeping disorderly house, defendant, after having cross-examined state's witness as to her objection to association of her child with defendant's child, could not complain that witness on redirect examination stated that her reason for objecting was her knowledge of defendant's bad reputation for chastity. Id.

In a prosecution for seduction, prosecutrix's testimony on re-examination that she consented because defendant promised to marry her, when she had stated on cross-examination that she had done so because she loved him, was clearly admissible. Straner v. State, 86 Cr. R. 89, 215 S. W. 365.

41. — New matter on cross-examination.—In a personal injury action, where defendant had cross-examined plaintiff as to her failure to tell physicians who had treated her before he received the injury about the injury, she was properly permitted to testify as to her reasons for not so doing. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Turner (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 385.

42. — Repetition of testimony on direct or cross-examination.—Where witness was cross-examined, but not been tampered with, did not understand English, and testified through an interpreter, there was no error in permitting him to be re-examined as to parts of his testimony, and have him explain and correct former statements. Foster v. Guerra (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 295.

45. Answer tending to disgrace witness or render him infamous.—A witness may be compelled to answer a question as to whether he has been convicted of a felony, confined in jail or the penitentiary. Lasater v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 949.

48. Caution to witness.—Under Bill of Rights, Const. art. 1, § 10, providing that no man shall be compelled to give evidence against himself, when a witness makes known his belief before a court, trial court should either dismiss or further inquire into cause of his hesitation and inform him of his privilege. Mathis v. State, 84 Cr. R. 514, 209 S. W. 150.

II. CREDIBILITY OF WITNESSES

52. Credibility of witnesses in general.—The jury are the judges of the credibility of witnesses, but they have no right to arbitrarily reject the evidence of unimpeached and apparently disinterested and unbiased witnesses against whom there are no discrediting circumstances. Hines v. Roan (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1070; Joffre v. Mynatt (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 951.

The trial court, having a right to pass on the credibility and interest of witnesses, was not compelled to accept as true their statements denying they had given attorneys any authority to enter into agreement for judgment. Pierce v. Foreign Mission Board of Southern Baptist Convention (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 140.

As a general rule self-contradiction by a witness does not destroy the evidence to which the jury has given credit, especially where there are facts explanatory of the contradiction. Blackburn v. State, 87 Cr. R. 173, 220 S. W. 93.

It is the province of the jury to pass on the credibility of witnesses, and they may disregard the testimony of a witness, unimpeached and uncontradicted, if they believe his testimony untrue from his manner of testimony, exhibiting prejudice, his interest in the result, or other indicia of unreliability. Montgomery v. Gallas (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 557.

53. Testimony of party.—The unsupported testimony of an interested party may be disregarded by court or jury, especially where there are any circumstances tending to discredit it. Lasater v. Jamison (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1151.

While the jury are judges of credibility of witness, they cannot arbitrarily disregard evidence of unimpeached witnesses against whom there are no discrediting circumstances other than that one of them was a party interested. Joffre v. Mynatt (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 951.

Court was warranted in discarding testimony of interested parties, where it contained inconsistencies, and where there were other facts in evidence justifying disbelief thereof. Alsbury v. Linville (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 492.

Notwithstanding the rule that the credibility of a witness is a question for the jury, and the court cannot assume the truthfulness of the unsupported testimony of an interested person, a jury is not authorized to disregard the testimony of an interested party and render judgment from any source that the testimony of such person was not true. San Jacinto Rice Co. v. Ulrich (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 777.
In an action to cancel an oil lease on the ground that the acknowledgment of the lessee's wife was not taken in the manner and form required by law, the jury might find against uncorroborated testimony of the lessor and his wife upon such issue, even though no affirmative evidence was offered by the defendant. Fagan v. Texas Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 346.

Purchaser's uncorroborated testimony that note was not a part of the purchase price, and that recitals in note and deed to the contrary were made wrongfully and without her consent by vendor, who was intrusted with the drafting of the deed, though not contradicted except by the recitals themselves, held not conclusive that note was not part of purchase price; the purchaser being an interested witness, and the jury being therefore warranted in rejecting her testimony. Poulter v. Miller (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 965, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Miller v. Poulter, 189 S. W. 106.

In an action by a wife to cancel a deed executed by her and her husband, who was made a party defendant, the court and jury were not bound to acknowledge the testimony of the husband and wife, although uncontradicted. Dendinger v. Martin (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1096.

One making claim to attached property was a party to the suit and had an interest in the result, and his credibility was for the jury to pass on, and it was error for the court to tell the jury in effect to accept his testimony as true, even though there was no conflict. Briggs v. Briggs (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 511.

Testimony of interested persons. The testimony of vitally interested persons may be disregarded in toto. Hadnot v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 359.

Court trying case was not obliged to accept defendant's testimony as true simply because he was not contradicted by some other witness. Brannan v. First State Bank of Conanche (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 945.

The trial court in trying case without a jury is not compelled to accept all the testimony of an interested witness as true, though not contradicted. Hinds v. Allen (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 671.

In determining the credibility of the testimony may consider the interest of the witnesses. Poulter v. Miller (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 965, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Miller v. Poulter, 189 S. W. 105.

The trial court, in proceedings to prove a will, had a right to discredit any portion of the testimony of proponent, an interested witness, which he regarded as having been colored by her interest. House v. House (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 222.

The jury, being the sole judges of the credibility of witnesses and the weight to be given their testimony, are not bound by the statements of interested witnesses, even though they may be undisputed. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 773.

III. IMPEACHMENT AND CORROBORATION OF WITNESSES

55. Grounds of impeachment in general. Where it was the state's theory that defendant was instrumental in inducing two negroes to kill deceased, evidence that a negro, who admitted that he killed deceased, and that another negro, whom he said was with him, were whipped by the sheriff before they implicated defendant, and that they implicated defendant after his name was suggested, is admissible. Finke v. State. 54 Cr. R. 536, 209 S. W. 154.

Where peanuts were shipped, and seller guaranteed weights and grades at destination, weights at destination according to purchaser's weights were subject by proper evidence to impeachment for error or mistake. D. & S. Cage & Co. v. Amsler (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1094.

56. Corroboration of unimpeached and uncontradicted witness. Where the issue was whether the depression in the servant's skull was due to a permanent injury and inflicted a fracture and massive refusal of the offer to produce two men whose heads had similar depressions not due to injury to corroborate underlined testimony of his witness, was not error. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1149.

In absence of evidence impeaching credibility of a witness, testimony of former declarant of the witness in support of his testimony is never admissible. Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 666.

In a prosecution for unlawfully selling intoxicating liquors, where one of defendant's witnesses on cross-examination admitted that he was charged with a similar offense and named three persons whom he described as "pimps" whom he complained were unduly active in the prosecutions, it was improper to allow the state to impeach him on such collateral matter by proving that such men were of high character; it appearing that one of them gave important testimony tending to break down the theory of the defense, and no attack having been made on such men. Johnson v. State. 85 Cr. R. 479, 213 S. W. 687.

Where witness testified that he heard a party running through a field on the night of the murder, subsequent evidence showing there were tracks of a person running across the field and also describing tracks corresponding to those which would have been made by the witness claimed to have been in the field, was not subject to the objection that it was to bolster up the testimony of an unimpeached witness. Gilbert v. State, 85 Cr. R. 587, 215 S. W. 106.

In a prosecution for seduction, where prosecutrix had not been impeached as a witness, but had testified that she had told a third person that she (prosecutrix) was engaged to defendant, testimony of such third person that prosecutrix had so told her was not admissible to sustain prosecutrix's credit as a witness. Adams v. State, 87 Cr. R. 67, 219 S. W. 460.
Exclusion of defendant's testimony as to statements by a witness similar to his testimony before the state had offered any testimony to impeach the witness held proper. Hoyt v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 926.

Witness can be impeached by prior statements only where his testimony is actually prejudicial to case of party calling him. Cannon v. State, 53 Cr. 154, 202 S. W. 83.

63. Impeachment of capacity of witness.—Evidence that prosecuting witness, upon whose testimony the state relied almost entirely for conviction, was an habitual user of cocaine, morphine, and opium, was admissible as a circumstance to be considered by jury in determining his memory and mental condition, without proof that witness was under influence of such drug at time of testifying. Beland v. State, 56 Cr. R. 285, 217 S. W. 147.

Mental capacity of a witness is a proper subject of consideration and impeachment, as bearing on his credibility. Bouldin v. State, 87 Cr. R. 419, 222 S. W. 555.

65. Cross-examination to test reliability of witness.—Counsel was not required to disclose to witness whom he was cross-examining, or to the adverse counsel in the presence of such witness, his purpose in asking the witness certain questions, asked for the improper purpose of testing the truth of witness' testimony. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1013.

66. Cross-examination to discredit witness or disparage testimony in general.—The state cannot, on cross-examination, by attempting to impeach a witness, get before the jury statements that are otherwise inadmissible. Finks v. State, 84 Cr. R. 554, 201 S. W. 154.

Defendant's question to plaintiff's witness on cross-examination, "Do you mean for the jury to believe that story?" was objectionable, and should not have been asked. Ammons v. Ins. Nutsham (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1192.

67. Competency of impeaching evidence in general.—In action for commission by firm of realty brokers, held that, to impeach as witness member of firm which bought directly from defendant owners, member of plaintiff firm was properly permitted to state that buyers admitted that third broker, with whom plaintiffs acted, was first to offer them the land. Hodde v. Malone Real Estate Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 347.

Insanity in the family of a witness is a proper subject of investigation, where it is sought to show that the witness is insane, or an idiot, to weaken the credibility or strength of his testimony. Bouldin v. State, 87 Cr. R. 419, 222 S. W. 555.

In prosecution for perjury, defendant was entitled to ask and obtain from state's witness business in which he was engaged, or occupation he pursued, to affect his credibility by showing he was in employ of disorderly house. Roberts v. State, 83 Cr. R. 135, 201 S. W. 598.

It is not permissible to impeach any witness for truth and veracity by showing that his or her reputation for chastity is not good. Flewellen v. State, 88 Cr. R. 568, 204 S. W. 657.

Reputation of a witness might have been discredited by proof of her general reputation as a prostitute, or by proof of complaints or prosecutions therefor. Wood v. State, 87 Cr. R. 187, 206 S. W. 349.

72. — Particular traits of character or habits.—In a prosecution for rape, it was error to exclude evidence of specific acts of immorality, and that prosecutor was in the habit of bestowing her carnal favors indiscriminately, as affecting her credibility and as a mitigating fact affecting the penalty. Calhoun v. State, 85 Cr. R. 496, 214 S. W. 335.

In prosecution for procuring, the state's attorney could cross-examine the woman involved, who testified for defendant, as to whether she was in the habit of having intercourse with men. Vann v. State, 84 Cr. R. 97, 206 S. W. 80.

In prosecution for rape, where sister of prosecutrix was a witness for defendant, examination by state of sister as to whether she was a common prostitute held proper. Smith v. State, 86 Cr. R. 465, 217 S. W. 154.

In murder prosecution court did not err in refusing to permit defendant to attack the credibility of witnesses by proving their bad reputation for chastity. Sapp v. State, 87 Cr. R. 606, 221 S. W. 459.

75. — Particular acts or facts.—In a prosecution for murder, it was error, after asking a witness if he was not a deserter from the army and his reasons for such desertion, to inquire as to details, circumstances, and incidental matters. Hays v. State, 82 Cr. R. 427, 199 S. W. 621.

It was error for state to cross-examine accused's witness as to whether on a particular occasion the sheriff did not try to arrest him and he ran and the sheriff shot him at park. Parker v. State, 81 Cr. R. 397, 196 S. W. 537.

Evidence may be impeached by showing he was drunk at time of events about which he testified. Reed v. State, 82 Cr. R. 657, 200 S. W. 845.

Plaintiff, who testified in his action for damages for loss of a trunk by an innkeeper, could be impeached only by proof of general bad reputation, and not by an affidavit made by him to the effect that he and his wife were unable to pay or give security for costs. Zeiger v. Woodson (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 184.

Attempt to impeach a witness by proof on his cross-examination that he had burned a schoolbook, was inadmissible to the rule excluding for that purpose specific criminal acts. Greenwood v. State, 84 Cr. R. 548, 208 S. W. 662.

It was not permissible to impugn the character of a witness by testimony reflecting upon the character of the house he was keeping and his sister-in-law, who was living in his house and had given birth to three illegitimate children. Burkhalter v. State, 85 Cr. R. 282, 212 S. W. 163.

In a prosecution for rape, it was error to exclude evidence of specific acts of immorality, and that prosecutrix was in the habit of bestowing her carnal favors indiscriminately, as affecting her credibility and as a mitigating fact affecting the penalty. Calboun v. State, 85 Cr. R. 496, 214 S. W. 325.

While a witness in a criminal case may be impeached by showing that he has been indicted or convicted for an offense involving moral turpitude, yet the rule in civil cases excludes specific acts not affecting the competency of the witness, even though he has been indicted and convicted of an offense involving moral turpitude. Burchard v. Woodward (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 707.

In a prosecution for murder testimony that deceased and state's witness engaged in carnal intercourse with various men held inadmissible to impeach such witness. Crow v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 148.

In view of the rule that a witness cannot be impeached by requiring him to testify to inadmissible acts on his part immaterial to the issues, in suit to recover for fraud money paid for oil stock, defendant was improperly required to testify that, although in securing charter of the oil development company she made affidavit that certain land was worth $50,000, later, after the issuance of the charter, she and her daughter conveyed to the company the same land for the recited consideration of $10,000, and that such statement was false. Impeachment was for the purpose of evading the internal revenue tax laws, requiring stamps on deeds based upon the amount of consideration. Burchill v. Hermanneyer (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 809.

In a prosecution for murder, an impeaching question asked of a state's witness, who was witness deceased at the time of the killing, as to whether she had not filed a complaint against a boy for raping her, and he had been acquitted, held improper. Barnes v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 312.

In a prosecution for murder, a question asked of a state's witness as to whether or not she had deceased at another town with a man and stayed there from Saturday to Monday held properly rejected, even if particular instances of misconduct were admissible as affecting her credibility. Id.

In a prosecution for manslaughter through killing of defendant's paramour, where defendant's female witness, to whose house defendant went after his quarrel with deceased on the night of the killing, testified that she lived with her three children, cross-examination of such witness by the state as to whether she had ever been married was proper, eliciting the reply that she never was married. Mobley v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 321.

76. — Accusation or conviction of crime.—Testimony impeaching witness that he had been convicted as incorrigible child held inadmissible. Henley v. State, 81 Cr. R. 221, 195 S. W. 197.

While it was permissible to impeach accused's witness by showing, if not too remote, prosecution for theft, it was error to permit the state to attempt to show, on cross-examination, that he had been shot when caught stealing. Parker v. State, 81 Cr. R. 397, 196 S. W. 537.

Testimony that state's witness had been convicted in 1887 of assault with intent to murder, and served three years in penitentiary, having been released in 1890 and subsequently pardoned, was inadmissible to impeach witness. Ward v. State, 81 Cr. R. 567, 196 S. W. 840.

Conviction of felony may be interposed either as disqualification of witness, where there is no pardon, or, in case of pardon, as matter of impeachment. Id.

Where accused had produced impeachment witnesses, district attorney could cross-examine them as to whether they were not then under indictment for illegal sale of liquor, or had not been convicted of such offense. Gray v. State, 82 Cr. R. 27, 197 S. W. 990.

Evidence in a murder case that a witness had been in jail or arrested for a matter not involving moral turpitude was not admissible in impeachment. Parker v. State, 83 Cr. R. 77, 201 S. W. 175.

It is always permissible to impeach witness by showing that he has been convicted, when not too remote, of any felony or any misdemeanor involving moral turpitude, but it is not permissible to thus impeach any witness by proving his prosecution or conviction of any other misdemeanor. Johnson v. State, 83 Cr. R. 49, 201 S. W. 177.

The witness was arrested for drunkenness does not show moral turpitude, and is not admissible, except that drunkenness at the time of the homicide would be relevant as bearing on knowledge of the facts. Houston v. State, 83 Cr. R. 190, 202 S. W. 84.

Since under Pen. Code 1911, arts. 577-580, betting on horse races is a misdemeanor only, that witness was interested in operating race track partly supported by betting on horse races was not admissible to impeach him. American Metal Co. v. San Roberto Mining Co. (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 360.

In the absence of any statute changing common-law rule for trial of civil cases, a conviction and imprisonment in a federal penitentiary for retailing liquor without paying the special tax would not render a person infamous, so as to render him incompetent to witness, as before cited, art. 55, rev. code, 1911, and said offense so punishable as a felony. Cooper Grocery Co. v. Nebbett (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 365.

Conviction of a crime not infamous under the common law is not admissible to impeach testimony. Id.

In a prosecution for unlawfully selling intoxicating liquor, where one of defendant's witnesses testified that she had once been arrested and fined, but did not know for what, the introduction in evidence of the judgment against her showing a conviction for being a common prostitute was admissible in impeachment; such offense imputing moral turpitude. Le Grue v. State, 33 Cr. R. 465, 284 S. W. 230.

In prosecution for pursuing business of selling intoxicating liquors in local option territory, where an alleged purchaser testified for state, refusal of his cross-examination to show his arrest for violations of prohibition laws and imprisonment held erroneous. Amett v. State, 53 Cr. R. 387, 204 S. W. 485.

Evidence that a witness kept company with married men and that they kept her was inadmissible for purpose of impeachment; evidence that a witness has actually committed a given crime being inadmissible for such purpose. Flewellen v. State, 53 Cr. R. 568, 204 S. W. 657.

On cross-examination of defendant's witness, it was competent to prove that witness was under indictment for perjury as affecting his credibility. Ice v. State, 54 Cr. R. 509, 208 S. W. 345.

In a railroad employee's action for personal injuries, it was error to permit plaintiff's witness to be asked whether he had been prosecuted for stealing cotton. Jones v. Texas Electric Ry. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 749.

In a prosecution for burglary, where defense was alibi and state relied on testimony of an alleged accomplice, it was not proper to allow accomplice, who on cross-examination admitted he had been indicted for other offenses, all but one of which were committed on the night of the one involved, but denied that his father-in-law, whom defendant claimed participated in those charged, was present, to testify on redirect that he was assisted in the commission of such offenses, and to go into the circumstances attending the other cases. Payne v. State, 55 Cr. R. 288, 212 S. W. 161.

Evidence as to how many times plaintiff had been arrested or convicted for gambling or running a gambling house was inadmissible as basis for impeaching him as a witness. Jacobson v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 652.

In an action on a fraternal benefit certificate issued to plaintiff's wife liability whereon was denied on the ground of misrepresentations by insured as to her health, it was not error to refuse to require plaintiff to answer whether he had been indicted, where it appeared not only that the indictment had been dismissed but that it had been procured by fraud. Knights and Ladies of Security v. Shepherd (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 696.

A witness may be impeached by showing that he is under a charge of murder. Charles v. State, 57 Cr. R. 233, 222 S. W. 255.

A witness is not incompetent and so cannot be impeached, in a civil case, by reason of having been convicted of a crime, not an infamous crime under the common law, as defrauding a railway company in violation of the Interstate Commerce Act. Talericco v. Garvin (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 313.

A witness cannot be impeached by showing that he had been indicted. Id.

For purposes of impeachment a witness will not be required to answer on cross-examination whether he had been indicted for felony and so the admission of such evidence is erroneous. Southern Traction Co. v. Kirksey (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 702.

A witness in a criminal case may be impeached by showing that he has been indicted or convicted for an offense involving moral turpitude. Burchard v. Woodward (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 707.

Testimony showing conviction of a witness of a felony 25 years prior to the trial would be too remote, if offered to impeach or to affect the credibility of the witness. Corzine v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 686.

Proof that one has been convicted of felony is admissible when the character of such person has become a legitimate issue, and a witness may be asked if he has not been convicted of a felony, confined in jail or the penitentiary, and upon his denial such fact may be proved; but the practice is not limited to this method. Lasater v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 349.

In a homicide case, court erred in permitting the state on cross-examination of defendant's witness to show that the witness had been arrested and put under bond for the offense of forgery, where subsequent to his arrest the grand jury had adjourned without indicting him, the presumption obtaining that the information or belief upon which the complaint was made was ill founded, where the grand jury fails to indict. Shamblin v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 241.

A witness may not be discredited by proof that he had been charged with misdemeanors which did not impute moral turpitude, such as drinking and exceeding the speed limit. Id.

In a prosecution for murder, it was permissible for the state to ask each of defendant's witnesses if he had not been indicted for perjury, or was not then under such indictment, the testimony being admissible as affecting generally the credibility of the witnesses. James v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 941.

In a prosecution for transporting and possessing intoxicating liquor in violation of the Dean Law, it was competent for the state to ask a woman who had the room next the defendant and his wife, and who testified for defendant, being a hostile witness, if she was not a common prostitute, though she had already stated she had a room in the hotel kept by defendant; consideration of such question being limited by the court in its charge to the credibility of the witness. Campbell v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 695.

As the selling of intoxicating liquors is a felony, witnesses may be asked, for the purpose of affecting their credibility, whether they were not under indictment for selling intoxicating liquors. Smith v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 811.

In reference to conduct of witness in murder prosecution, where defendant's mother testified that at the time of the homicide he was wearing boots, evidence that on a previous habeas corpus hearing she did not make any statement to the effect that defendant was wearing boots was admissible; she having testified that she knew at time of that trial the state contended that the defendant wore shoes, and not boots, at the time of the killing, and that his shoes fitted into tracks found near the scene of the crime. Taylor v. State, 87 Cr. R. 330, 221 S. W. 611.

78. Conduct of witness inconsistent with testimony.—In a prosecution for theft of turkeys, evidence that a witness for the state made an effort to induce the owners to forego a prosecution and offered to pay them for the turkeys was admissible as tending to exculpate defendant, and to discredit the witness for the state, and to emphasize the suspicion cast by circumstances upon him. Mendoza v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 159.

79. Cross-examination for purpose of impeachment.—In action for damages by accusation of shoplifting, where the defendant had made no attack upon plaintiff's good character, it was improper to ask plaintiff whether she had ever before been accused of any dishonesty. C. Munn Co. v. Westfall (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 228.

A witness cannot be impeached by allowing the opposite party to inquire whether he had not been charged with various criminal offenses, for that is not a proper mode of an impeachment even on cross-examination. Young v. Blain (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 851.

In a prosecution for murder, where defendant's witness admitted he had been indicted for and acquitted of murder, and the state's counsel asked the ground of his defense, to which he replied "Self-defense," held not a material or pertinent question, but without injury to defendant; the witness' credibility only being involved. Fowler v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 515.

80. Laying foundation for impeaching evidence.—It is error, in absence of evidence that local option is in force in certain county, to permit one accused of another offense to witness within two years before he has not violated local option law in such county. Lagow v. State, 51 Cr. R. 469, 197 S. W. 217.

81. Competency of impeaching evidence in general.—It was improper to allow a witness for plaintiff to testify that a witness for defendant in a personal injury suit told him that a doctor had said that his (defendant's) witness' testimony was worth $1,500, such testimony having tended to impeach the witness' testimony prove any fact pertinent to the issue. Texas & Pacific Coal Co. v. Sherley (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 758.

A witness cannot be impeached by evidence of dishonesty in a particular transaction not connected with any issue in the case, and impeaching evidence, a statement in a letter, not itself proving any wrongdoing on the part of the witness, the charge being made merely on report of others, was objectionable. Negociacion Agricola y Ganadera de San Enrique, S. A., v. Love (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 224.

82. Evidence of accusation or conviction of crime.—Although a witness may be impeached by showing that he is under a charge of murder details of the murder are not admissible. Charles v. State, 87 Cr. R. 233, 222 S. W. 255.

In a prosecution for homicide, in the absence of proof of some character of a legal charge of theft against defendant's witness, or legal arrest or conviction for theft, evidence that he had "otten mixed up with a pair of shoes, came to his house and got a pair of shoes," inadmissible. Carlile v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 822.

83. Rebuttal of evidence impeaching character.—Where to discredit testimony of daughter of assaulted party, who testified for defendant, that she got into defendant's buggy after assault, defendant was entitled to show that she drove off with him to obtain medical aid. Yancey v. State, 52 Cr. R. 276, 199 S. W. 470.

Where credibility of prosecuting witness was attacked, state's attorney, who employed him as a detective, and had made inquiries as to his general reputation, could testify that his general reputation in his community was good. White v. State, 82 Cr. R. 266, 199 S. W. 1117.

84. Witness, having been discredited by proof of indictment for perjury, should have been allowed to explain he was not guilty. Wallace v. State, 83 Cr. R. 558, 206 S. W. 407.

86. Evidence to sustain character of witness impeached.—Where defendant declined to admit a state's witness was worthy of credit, but only would admit his good reputation for veracity, state was entitled to show by testimony that from his reputation the witness was worthy of credit. Watson v. State, 84 Cr. R. 115, 208 S. W. 662.

88. Interest as ground of impeachment.—Where a negro woman had given testimony tending to show animus of accused's witness towards deceased, her animus towards such witness was a proper subject of inquiry, and evidence that she had been arrested by him was admissible, although evidence of offense, for which she was arrested was not relevant. Wood v. State, 84 Cr. R. 187, 206 S. W. 349.

In prosecution for rape, where sister of prosecutrix, who was a witness for defendant, had testified to being a common prostitute, evidence that defendant had had intercourse with the sister held inadmissible, as it would not affect her bias or interest as a witness. Smith v. State, 86 Cr. R. 455, 217 S. W. 154.

"22 St. P.V.S.Civ. St.Tex.—63
90. Interest in event of witness not party to record.—Relative to credit to be given defendant's engineer, who testified that he did not see the signals to stop the engine, the jury could consider his interest, by reason of having caused the accident. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Howard (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1159.

Where witness testified that accused drove his automobile at an unlawful rate of speed, and was not allowing accused on cross-examination to show that the witness was paid a sum of money in each case of conviction. White v. State, 82 Cr. R. 274, 198 S. W. 964.

Cross-examination of witness for defendant, to show that he tried to get two of the state's witnesses drunk and thereby discredit them, held proper. Dugan v. State, 82 Cr. R. 422, 199 S. W. 616.

In prosecution for giving intoxicating liquor to minor girl, it was error to exclude evidence that witness, testifying as to giving of liquor, had reasons and motives for so testifying. Earnest v. State, 85 Cr. R. 41, 201 S. W. 170.

In a murder trial, evidence was admissible for impeaching a defense witness that he had been indicted, tried, and acquitted for the same killing. Lozano v. State, 83 Cr. R. 174, 202 S. W. 510.

In forgery trial, accused had the right to cross-examine witness to develop the fact that the latter had an interest in the prosecution, in that he had offered to forego prosecution if accused would pay the alleged forged check, and that, failing in this, the witness desired to bring about accused's conviction to obtain possession of property which witness claimed had been delivered by him to accused in consideration of such check. Morris v. State, 85 Cr. R. 275, 211 S. W. 784.

In a suit for divorce based upon common-law marriage, where plaintiff's brother testified for defendant, it was proper on cross-examination to show his motives, inclinations, and prejudices and inquire as to his attempt to make plaintiff settle with defendant in a way that witness might receive benefit and of her refusal. Bobbitt v. Bobbitt (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 478.

In a prosecution for murder, evidence that one of defendant's witnesses attempted to induce the wife of deceased to abandon the prosecution, etc., is admissible, but such evidence should be limited to the acts of the witness, and it is improper to allow evidence that such witness, in connection with relatives of the deceased who were not witnesses, attempted to influence witnesses to leave the state. Nader v. State, 86 Cr. R. 424, 213 S. W. 474.

91. Employment by or other contractual relation with party.—Where witness had testified as to material facts in passenger's action for injuries, it was error to refuse testimony of such witness that plaintiff owed and had owed him over $5,000 for eight years, since such evidence tended to show interest of witness. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Mercer (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 263.

In a homicide case, where a member of a law firm employed by defendant to defend him, connection being subsequently terminated, testified as an eyewitness that defendant killed deceased, court did not err in refusing to receive evidence as to how much witness had received from accused under his contract to defend him, not being relevant. Shamblin v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 241.

In an action to cancel an oil and gas lease, court did not err in refusing to allow plaintiff to prove by defendant witness the value per share of the stock in the defendant oil company, some of which was owned by the witness to affect his credibility, no attempt being made to show that the lease in question was of great value, and hence increased the temptation of witness to testify falsely, and it not appearing upon what leases the value of the stock was dependent. Richmond v. Hog Creek Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 563.

That a defense witness is a bondsman of defendant is admissible as affecting his interest or bias. Mobley v. State (Cr. App.) 222 S. W. 531.

Friendly or unfriendly relations with or feeling toward party.—Testimony of animus of an adverse witness to either side, and extent and cause of it, is admissible. Zarafonetis v. State, 82 Cr. R. 120, 198 S. W. 938.

In prosecution for homicide, based upon defendant's negligent operation of an automobile, resulting in collision with buggy in which deceased was riding, it was proper, on cross-examination of deceased's husband, to elicit testimony showing that a suit brought by him for damages for wife's death was pending. Hoffman v. State, 85 Cr. R. 11, 209 S. W. 747.

In a prosecution for slander of a female, evidence as to the act of a witness, a brother of accused, in arming himself and going to where the father of prosecutrix lived, and as to what took place there, is admissible to show bias, interest, and motive of the witness. Russell v. State, 85 Cr. R. 175, 211 S. W. 224.

In a prosecution for a murder which followed a quarrel in which deceased accused a certain woman of being out with a certain man on a certain date, in which the question whether defendant was out with such woman was sharply contested, defendant should have been allowed to ask a witness testifying thereto as to his friendship with deceased and their relations and other questions which might throw light on the witness' testimony. Parker v. State, 86 Cr. R. 222, 216 S. W. 178.

In a prosecution for violation of the local option law, defendant should have been allowed to introduce evidence showing that a cousin of the state's witness was under indictment for the sale of intoxicating liquors, and that defendant was in no way biased against him, being theory that the state's witness was biased against him, and trying to obtain his conviction to prevent prosecution of his cousin. West v. State, 86 Cr. R. 296, 216 S. W. 186.
In a prosecution for the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors, the refusal to allow the prosecuting witness to be asked whether he had given the defendant checks in order to show witness' ill feeling toward defendant was not error, since such fact would not show ill feeling on the part of the person giving the checks, although it might tend to show ill will on the part of defendant, who had parted with his money. Surginer v. State, 88 Cr. R. 426, 517 S. W. 145.

In a prosecution for aggravated assault, court erred in refusing to permit accused to develop from prosecuting witness' cross-examination that she had sued him for damages on account of the incident, and that in the suit then pending she was seeking to recover a large sum of money, as tending to affect her credibility. Vyoral v. State (Cr. App.) 224 S. W. 889.

93. Cross-examination to show interest or bias.—For purpose of showing animus of accused's brother-in-law towards prosecuting witness, held, that on his cross-examination state properly showed that he had been prosecuted by prosecuting witness and convicted of killing such witness' cousin. Zarafeonis v. State, 82 Cr. R. 120, 188 S. W. 938.

In prosecution of husband for pandering under Vernon's Ann. Pen. Code 1918, art. 506a, held, cross-examination of wife, who was principal state's witness, as to her past life, was proper for showing motives of wife and other state's witness, who had been paying her attention. Eppison v. State, 82 Cr. R. 364, 198 S. W. 948.

A witness may be cross-examined to develop any facts showing his bias or interest or motive. Morris v. State, 85 Cr. R. 276, 211 S. W. 784.

94. Laying foundation for impeaching evidence as to interest or bias.—In perjury prosecution, evidence impeaching state's witness by showing immunity agreement was inadmissible where no predicate had been laid by inquiry of such witness as to such agreement. Timmins v. State, 82 Cr. R. 263, 199 S. W. 1106.

Activity of impeaching evidence as to interest or bias.—To show bias and animus of defendant's brother, the only eyewitness, other than himself, who testified for him, testimony that the brother told witness that he and defendant had it fixed to kill deceased, and if defendant did not he would, was admissible. Bell v. State, 85 Cr. R. 475, 213 S. W. 647.

There was no error in excluding letters written by a witness for the state in a murder case to the wife of deceased, indicating a wish to become intimate with her, offered to show animus, where no reference to deceased appeared, and evidence otherwise showed friendly relations. Batts v. State, 87 Cr. R. 254, 220 S. W. 1094.

Where it was admitted that a witness for the state was employed by the county attorney to work up bootlegging cases, but it did not appear that he was employed on a contingent basis, or that he had not been paid for his services in connection with defendant's apprehension, evidence of the amount of his compensation was properly excluded. Mann v. State, 87 Cr. R. 142, 224 S. W. 296.

96. Rebuttal of evidence of interest or bias.—In a prosecution for manslaughter through killing of defendant's paramour, on cross-examination of defendant's witness, who had given evidence in chief as to his good character, the state properly elicited the fact that he was on defendant's bond, and that he had been released before making such bond; the evidence being favorable to defendant, as minimizing the act of the witness in making the bond purely as a matter of interest or friendship to defendant. Mobley v. State (Cr. App.) 233 S. W. 531.

98. Inconsistency of statements as ground of impeachment.—In personal injury action where doctor had testified to the cause of injury, he could be asked concerning any statements made upon other occasions which were inconsistent with his statements on the witness stand. Campus Christi Ry. & Light Co. v. Baxter (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 187.

Where widow and minor children attacked her conveyance of community property during lifetime of husband on ground that she had not been abandoned and was not in needy circumstances when conveyance was made, testimony that she stated to others than grantee that she had been abandoned and was in need is admissible on question of her credibility. Hadnot v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 559.

On cross-examination for purpose of laying predicate for impeachment, held, it was proper to inquire as to conversation of accused with prosecuting witness as to a former killing, and where accused denied same to have him contradicted by prosecuting witness. Zarafeonis v. State, 82 Cr. R. 120, 188 S. W. 938.

Where plaintiff testifying as to the value of his grass lands before the grass was burned, fixed the value at a sum considerably higher than the amount at which he rendered the land for taxes, defendant is, on cross-examination, entitled to bring that matter out. Love v. Schneid & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Hapgood (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1049.

In a prosecution for statutory rape, census reports showing the girl's age were admissible as contradictory statements of the state's witnesses. Mireles v. State, 83 Cr. R. 608, 204 S. W. 861.

In a purchaser's action against the seller of land for removing fixtures, evidence that the seller's agent, after the contract and deed had been executed, stated that the fixtures did not belong to the land, etc., could not affect the deed and contract and was not admissible as impeaching the agent's testimony that there was no reservation by the owner when the land was listed. Alexander v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 905.
In a murder trial evidence of one witness as to what another witness told him after the killing was admissible, if sufficient predicate was laid, for the purpose of impeachment. Thomas v. State, 55 Cr. R. 42, 210 S. W. 291.

100. Former testimony a mere opinion or conclusion.—It was error to permit a witness in impeachment of another material witness to testify that such witness had told him that he knew that defendant was going to kill deceased. Henley v. State, 81 Cr. R. 221, 195 S. W. 197.

101. Written statements or instruments.—Written statement by prosecuting witness in conflict with his testimony on trial should have been admitted. Wrenn v. State, 82 Cr. R. 608, 200 S. W. 397.

In prosecution for bigamy involving issue of whether defendant was in fact married to alleged first wife, where defendant had in his testimony questioned his parentage of child born to alleged first wife during her cohabitation with defendant, admission of defendant's letter to such child, calling her his little girl, expressing a desire to be present on her birthday, and regretting his inability to spend that day with the mother and daughter, held admissible. Ahlberg v. State (Cr. App.) 236 S. W. 253.

In an action against a railroad company for the value of a cow killed by a train, it was error not to admit plaintiff's written statement prior to the institution of the suit as to the value of the cow, which he placed at $150, where he testified in the suit that the cow was worth $300 or more, and obtained judgment for $199. Hines v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1029.

102. Former testimony of witness.—In a prosecution for cattle theft, the defendant, his accomplice, testifed at an examining trial, concerning a different cow, to a list of "all" of the defendant's cows. The statement was made by the defendant, and omitted the matter as to the cow in question. Bryant v. State, 82 Cr. R. 256, 199 S. W. 467.

Where witness who had been near the scene of alleged assault to rape had given testimony favorable to defendant, it was proper on his cross-examination to ask questions as to condition of prosecutrix and defendant shortly after the occurrence, and, where he denied knowledge thereof, to ask him, as a predicate for impeachment, if he did not so testify before the grand jury, etc., and to show him the written statement. Morris v. State, 84 Cr. R. 100, 206 S. W. 82.

A witness may be asked what he testified to before the grand jury, for the purpose of impeachment. Biscoe v. State, 86 Cr. R. 249, 216 S. W. 174.

A witness may be asked as affecting his credibility whether at other times and places, in narrating the occurrences testified about, he gave testimony different from that now given, even though such other statements were made before the grand jury. Lowe v. State (Cr. App.) 231 S. W. 674.

103. Time of making statements and circumstances connected therewith.—In action for injury to automobile in automobile collision, testimony as to statements made by driver of defendant's automobile made shortly after the collision was not res gestae nor admissible as original evidence, but, in so far as it tended to contradict the testimony of such driver, was admissible for the purpose of impeachment. Main Street Garage v. Eganhouse Optical Co. (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 316.

105. Witnesses who may be impeached by inconsistent statements.—The state had no right to elicit from its own witness testimony which it knows in advance will be contrary to statements made by her in an affidavit, as a foundation for introducing admissible, or otherwise, the same, or inconsistent statements, for purpose of impeachment. Biscoe v. State, 81 Cr. R. 419, 196 S. W. 183.

The state cannot impeach its own witness by proving inconsistent statements, where such witness simply fails to remember, or refuses to state facts, or fails to make out state's case. Id.

In prosecution for adultery, where the paramour testified that she had had no sexual intercourse with defendant, it was improper to admit evidence that she had been promised immunity if she would testify, and that she had signed a written statement admitting the intercourse. Messenger v. State, 81 Cr. R. 465, 198 S. W. 239.

Where accused's mother, not having referred to the matter on direct examination, denied, on cross-examination by the state, that she had made statements to another, in absence of accused, as to what accused had told her, it was not permissible to impeach her by testimony of the other person that such statements were made. Mitchell v. State, 84 Cr. R. 36, 204 S. W. 767.

Evidence of a contradictory statement by a deceased witness should have been allowed to impeach her testimony admitted on a second trial as against objection of no predicate and that former testimony of the impeaching witness contained no such impeachment. Mitchell v. State, 87 Cr. R. 532, 222 S. W. 983.

106. Irrelevant, collateral or immaterial matters.—Collateral matter cannot be used as a basis for impeachment of a witness. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Petts (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1173.

Where burglary was committed at L.'s place, and accomplice testified he and defendant went there to C.'s place, sworn statement by state's witness that he went that night with defendant and accomplice to C.'s place was immaterial, and was inadmissible in behalf of state for impeaching testimony of such witness that he went to dance with defendant that night at F.'s place. Payne v. State, 83 Cr. R. 247, 202 S. W. 988.
In broker's action for commission for sale of land, where pleadings raised an issue as to the terms and conditions of the sale, cross-examination of principal as to the terms of the sale was not objectionable as tending to impeach witness on a collateral issue. Britain v. Rice (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 251.

It was not permissible for the state to impeach M., witness for defendant on prosecution, by asking him if he did not hear J. tell S., who had testified that S., another witness for defendant, did not seem to be drunk, that he was too drunk, and if he did not behave himself he would lock him up, a collateral matter, and then allowing J. to testify that at the dance he told S. he would lock him up if he didn't behave himself. Newman v. State, 85 Cr. R. 556, 215 S. W. 651.

The offer of defendant to prove that one witness had told another witness that defendant's brother, who was under arrest, was not present at the time of the homicide, was properly rejected under the rule against impeachment of a witness upon a collateral issue. Gilbert v. State, 85 Cr. R. 597, 215 S. W. 106.

In a murder trial, a conversation between the sheriff when making the arrest and defendant's brother, in the presence of defendant, in which the brother asked if there was any one there who would hurt defendant, was admissible to impeach the witness, denied asking such question; such testimony not being collateral. (Per Prendergast. J.) Porter v. State, 86 Cr. R. 23, 215 S. W. 201.

A witness cannot be impeached by proof of immaterial statements which he denied making. Mirick v. State, 87 Cr. R. 375, 229 S. W. 249.

Where defendant's witness on cross-examination denied that he had made a statement that defendant would get the deceased and wouldn't miss him, the state could not impeach such witness on such denial, as the statement referred to was a mere opinion of witness and immaterial. Theriot v. State (Cr. App.) 201 S. W. 777. See Gilbert v. State, 85 Cr. R. 597, 215 S. W. 106.

108. Cross-examination as to inconsistent statements.—Where plaintiff has testified to facts apparently contradictory to a statement made by him of court, the defendant has the right to fully cross-examine plaintiff as to such inconsistency. Wichita Falls Moore v. City (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 57.

In a prosecution for bigamy, where defendant on cross-examination asked the prosecuting witness if she had not signed a certain paper, and she admitted it, defendant cannot at that time impeach the witness by offering the paper in evidence, but must do so on a motion in its own case, and the sustaining of an objection to the introduction of evidence with notice that it might be offered later was not error. Burgess v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 192.

109. Laying foundation for proof of inconsistent statements.—A witness cannot be impeached by showing inconsistent statements unless the proper predicate is laid. Millik v. State, 86 Cr. R. 358, 204 S. W. 222; Finks v. State, 84 Cr. R. 536, 208 S. W. 154; Texas Co. v. Wimberly (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 256.

In action for breach of contract to ship goods by railroad, court properly refused to permit defendant to cross-examine plaintiffs' agent as to difference between statement to a condition of goods by witness and statement in letter to defendant from plaintiffs. Where it is not shown that witness had anything to do with statement in plaintiffs' letter. Robinson v. S. Samuels & Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 595.

Where burglary was committed Friday night at L's place, and accomplice testified they went from there to C's place, sworn statement of state's witness that he went with defendant and accomplice to C's place Friday night could not be used to impeach such witness on ground of surprise, where burglary and particular night were not called particularly to attention of witness while making statement. Payne v. State, 83 Cr. R. 297, 202 S. W. 958.

In a personal injury action where it was claimed plaintiff's mental powers had been impaired, and defendant's witness testified that plaintiff before the injury stated that he was at times demented, it was not error to exclude further testimony of the witness that such a statement was made when plaintiff was being threatened with a criminal prosecution; such fact not being necessary as a predicate to impeachment of plaintiff. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Kornegay (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 708.

Where the proper predicate had not been laid to impeach the witness, the transcript of his evidence on the former trial was not admissible. Southern Pac. Co. v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 651.

In personal injury action evidence of declarations of physician to plaintiff as to cause of injury was inadmissible in absence of a predicate being laid for inconsistent testimony. Corpus Christi Ry. & Light Co. v. Baxter (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 187.

In a murder trial, where it appeared that defendant's shoes fitted tracks made at the scene of the homicide, and defendant swore that he wore boots on that day, it was not improper to ask defendant's mother whether when testifying on a previous habeas corpus trial, she heard that defendant wore boots, and, not boots, on the day of the homicide; such interrogation being proper as a predicate leading to the question as to what she testified to at such hearing as to whether defendant wore boots or shoes, or whether she was asked such question. Taylor v. State, 87 Cr. R. 230, 211 S. W. 611.

The mere fact that a witness, testifying for the state in telling about the killing soon after it occurred, had not claimed that he had seen two persons at the time of the shooting did not render competent evidence of his statement of the occurrence, the defendant contending that witness had only seen one person, and had not seen defendant, the mere fact that witness had not included defendant in statement being no ground for impeachment: no predicate having been laid or any question asked the witness as to the statement. Charles v. State, 57 Cr. R. 231, 122 S. W. 258.

In suit for commission on sale of cattle, testimony of a witness that he and a buyer both intended to attend a cattle buyers' convention, but he could not, and the buyer did go down there and if he found any cattle he thought worth the money to go hired and buy them, etc., was not inadmissible on any theory but no predicate had been laid for impeachment; such testimony not being introduced for such purpose, and not tending to impeach the testimony of any one. Lumsden v. Jones (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 358.

110. — Admission or denial by witness of making of inconsistent statements.—If a witness admits making contradictory statements, they cannot be proved by others.

That a witness disclaims recollection of his former testimony before the grand jury, in a homicide case is a sufficient predicate for his impeachment. English v. State, 85 Cr. R. 456, 213 S. W. 632.

Witness' statement before the grand jury is admissible, he having made only a qualified admission of having made it. Bell v. State, 85 Cr. R. 472, 213 S. W. 647.

If a witness unequivocally admits making statements, proof as to the making of such statements is inadmissible for impeachment purposes; but if the matter is not clear, or is partially admitted or denied, such impeaching testimony is admissible. Hasley v. State, 87 Cr. R. 444, 222 S. W. 579.

Defendant's witness having on cross-examination denied making a statement at a certain time and place, plaintiff's testimony that he heard him make it was admissible for purpose of impeachment. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry Co. v. Francis (Civ. App.) 237 S. W. 342.

The objection of defendant to the admission of two applications for continuances which contradicted his testimony at the trial, that they were inadmissible because he had admitted signing them, cannot be well taken where his admissions were qualified. Brooks v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 673.

111. — Competency of evidence of inconsistent statements in general.—Accused's witness could not be impeached by written confession, purporting on its face to be made to the chief of police, but which was not in fact made to the chief, he not being present at the time, and his name appearing as part of the confession because the instrument was one of confessions in blank, printed by police department by the wholesale. Locke v. State, 83 Cr. R. 17, 209 S. W. 510.

112. — Proof of oral statements and examination of impeaching witnesses.—A witness testifying in impeachment of another may be asked the precise question put to the witness sought to be impeached in laying a foundation, and the question is not objectionable on that account. Daniels v. State, 82 Cr. R. 17, 193 S. W. 147.

115. — Rebuttal of evidence of inconsistent statements.—In a trial for murder, where during testimony of widow of deceased several predicates were laid for her impeachment, and she was impeached thereon, it was error to permit her to be again placed upon the stand by the state, and to allow her to then reiterate her former testimony, as after impeachment on proper predicate the matter should rest. Fread v. State, 85 Cr. R. 121, 210 S. W. 695.

When a witness in a criminal case is attacked by proof of a part of a conversation contradicting his testimony; the other side has the right to prove all that he said at the time relative to the same subject. Cotton v. State, 88 Cr. R. 387, 217 S. W. 158.

116. — Evidence as to statements consistent with testimony.—Unless witness was impeached, his corroborating statement that his testimony before grand jury was the same as that given at trial was inadmissible. Baldwin v. State, 82 Cr. R. 241, 193 S. W. 488.

Statement of witness, on redirect examination as to whether his testimony differed from that given before grand jury, that his testimony was practically that given before grand jury, though very general, was not error. Waites v. State, 82 Cr. R. 501, 500 S. W. 280.

That testimony of plaintiff's witness as to defendant's defamatory statements was impeached by cross-examination as to inconsistent testimony given in former deposition did not justify admission of testimony by plaintiff and other witnesses that witness had told them that defendant had made such statements. Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 666.

In a murder trial, where the evidence was circumstantial and deceased's mother testified she saw deceased, her daughter, go off with appellant on the night of her disappearance, and deceased-examination defendant had her testify that on the night after deceased's body was found she told the district attorney she could not swear it was defendant who took her daughter off, but the man looked like him, it was not error to permit the sheriff to testify that on the night before that she told him it was defendant. (Per Prendergast, J.) Porter v. State, 86 Cr. R. 23, 215 S. W. 291.

Where sister of prosecutrix had testified to having seen her father in bed with and on top of prosecutrix, and defendant, on cross-examination, endeavored to make sister admit that she had told other parties that she had not seen him and prosecutrix, and had introduced witnesses who testified that sister had stated that she had not seen them, it was proper for state to corroborate testimony of sister by evidence that sister had made statements to others similar to the testimony given by her. Armstrong v. State, 86 Cr. R. 444, 216 S. W. 1083.

In a murder trial, where there was an attempt to impeach witness by showing contradictory statements, consistent statements were admissible, whether made before or after the making of the impeaching statement. Taylor v. State, 87 Cr. R. 339, 221 S. W. 611.

In a murder trial, where certain witnesses for the state detailed a conversation between defendant and his brother and between such brother and defendant's uncle, and upon cross-examination denied that they had made contradictory statements whereupon defendant introduced evidence to support them by showing that their testimony on examining trial was different from that then given, evidence by the state supporting such witnesses by statements made by them before the examining trial and consistent with the testimony given on trial of case held admissible. 1d.

In a prosecution for murder where it appeared that the person assaulted had stated to the surgeon that he did not know who fired the shot that struck him, proof that he had made subsequent statements that defendant shot him held admissible in corroboration. Henry v. State, 87 Cr. R. 392, 221 S. W. 1063.

Statements of donor of land made to third persons in the absence of the donee after an alleged gift had been made were admissible in support of the gift as against an attacking creditor, where at the time that they were made donor had no possible motive to fabricate, not only as declaration against interest, but to corroborate his testimony, where creditors introduced written statements by donor in which he claimed the property in controversy as his own and which tended to impeach his testimony on the trial in behalf of the donee. Carleton-Ferguson Dry Goods Co. v. McFarland (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 208.

117. — Explanation of inconsistency.—In personal injury action in which portion of written statement of employee made out of court was introduced to show statements inconsistent with his testimony at trial, remaining portion of statement relating to matters immaterial on issue of inconsistency was properly excluded. Wichita Falls Motor Co. v. Meade (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 71.

Plaintiff, after having offered in evidence both first and second deposition of same witness, could not explain the conflict between testimony contained in first with that contained in second by evidence as to prior unsworn statements of the witness. Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 696.

In an architect's action against a corporation where neither of the letters introduced in evidence referred to any agreement that the architect should receive no compensation if the plans and specifications were not used, it was reversible error, after defendant's general local manager had been cross-examined thereon, to impeach his testimony to such agreement to refuse upon re-examination by defendant to allow witness to explain why he made no mention of it in his letters. Emerson-Brantingham Implement Co. v. Rocquemore (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 672.

Where defendant's counsel cross-examined a witness as to a contradictory statement, the state properly permitted the witness to explain the contradiction, for the purpose of restoring his credibility. Williams v. State (Cr. App.) 236 S. W. 177.

In a prosecution for murder, where a witness for the defense gave evidence of statements by decedent's wife when he (the witness) arrived at the scene, which was contradictory of her testimony, as ascertaining the circumstances, as well as the mental condition of the wife when such statements were made, it was proper to permit the state to ask the witness on cross-examination questions seeking to bring out that the wife was greatly agitated and wept constantly. Taylor v. State (Cr. App.) 233 S. W. 552.

118. — Effect of impeachment by inconsistent statements.—In a prosecution for rape of defendant's 15 year old stepdaughter, where she emphatically denied intercourse, evidence that she had admitted it to the county attorney introduced to impeach her is of no value to support a conviction. Doherty v. State, 84 Cr. R. 353, 208 S. W. 932.

The fact that a witness testified differently in another case did not affect the competency of his testimony, the former testimony being only matter for the consideration of the jury as to the effect to be given his testimony before them. Well v. Miller (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 142.

In servant's action for injury, it was within province of jury to disregard statements signed by plaintiff before trial and impeaching his testimony, and to credit his testimony. Co. v. Clement (Civ. App.) 230 S. E. 407.

122. Contradiction of testimony of witness—Disproving facts testified to by witness.—In a prosecution for murder, where witness testified to seeing accused with a pistol in her hand behind her just before she crossed the street and shot deceased, others could testify that, from witness' position, he could not have seen the pistol. Williams v. State, 83 Cr. R. 26, 201 S. W. 188.

In a prosecution for murder of mother-in-law, which took place at deceased's residence when defendant went there to get his wife, who had left him, testimony that a third person living in the same house with deceased had accepted an apology from defendant concerning an alleged insult to his wife was admissible for the purpose of impeaching defendant's brother, who swore that such third person refused to accept an apology, and as a circumstance to prove that defendant's brother did not tell defendant that such third person refused to accept apology, defendant testifying that he was carrying the police to which he killed deceased because the third person was angry at him. Smith v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 437.

123. — Testimony subject to contradiction in general.—In prosecution of husband under Vernon's Ann. Pen. Code 1916, art. 506a, for procuring his wife to enter house of defendant into which he had brought her, to look upon papers, accused on trial, wife having testified that she was brought about by brute force, held, it was proper to contradict her for impeachment, to show motive, and corroborate defendant. Eppison v. State, 82 Cr. R. 364, 198 S. W. 943.

Where the state cross-questioned defendant's witness as to whether he did not make certain statements in the absence of defendant, and the witness denied making the statements, the state was bound by his answer. Finks v. State, 84 Cr. R. 536, 299 S. W. 114.

In prosecution for homicide it was not error to question defendant as to his prior wanton cutting of buggy tires of the deceased, and on his denial thereof to bring witnesses to testify thereto. Hillman v. State, 87 Cr. R. 576, 233 S. W. 206.

The tradition of making footprints and that, in witness for comparison, he did not make them with his bare foot, but that he had on his sock, proof in contradiction thereof was proper. Moore v. State (Cr. App.) 220 S. W. 415.

Where one side presents an issue and evidence in support thereof, the other side may deny, contradict, or explain such evidence, so as to show its falsity or break its force and effect; and this rule applies to the contradiction of character evidence. Lasater v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 948.

124. -- Irrelevant, collateral or immaterial matters.—Where plaintiff, in his action for damages for injuries sustained when defendant's motorcar collided with his motorcycle, testified on cross-examination that he had never at any other time collided with an automobile while riding his motorcycle, defendant cannot contradict plaintiff by proof of another collision, for evidence of other negligent acts would be inadmissible and the matter was collateral. American Automobile Ins. Co. v. Strowe (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 534.

In suit on note for labor and materials, wherein a defendant brought cross-action against defendant owner, court erred in permitting cross-complainant to ask defendant owner whether, in a prior lien suit, he had interposed plea of homestead like that in present case, etc., and then, on receiving negative answers, to introduce answer in previous case filed by defendant owner, wherein he interposed similar plea of homestead, as a witness cannot be impeached by showing he swore falsely to an immaterial matter. Reese v. Handtott (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 546.

In a prosecution for statutory rape, where prosecutrix testified that defendant advised her to "go with some other boy and lay" the crime on him, and defendant's witness testified that he had related prosecutrix's accusation against another to the latter, court did not err in admitting the mother's testimony contradicting and thus impeaching defendant's witness. Cook v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 213.

Where issue was whether notary complied with statutes in taking acknowledgment of a married woman, the fact that on one or more other occasions he failed to properly take an acknowledgment of married women was immaterial, and, being immaterial, he could not be contradicted in respect thereto, and court did not err in not permitting plaintiffs to lay predicate of impeachment by proving that notary did not properly take acknowledgments of other women. Richmond v. Hog Creek Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 563.

125. — Competency of contradictory evidence.—In action for breach of contract to ship good pickings examined by plaintiffs' agent in defendant's warehouse, court did not err in excluding testimony which would have contradicted testimony of plaintiffs' agent as to number and condition of bales of pickings, where it consisted of hearsay statements, irrelevant and immaterial, and not made in presence of plaintiffs. Robinson v. S. Samuels & Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 893.

Exclusion of evidence, in personal injury action, that plaintiff was conveyed from a house of ill fame shortly before the accident, was proper, as it would not tend to contradict her testimony that she had been receiving $5 a week for piano playing in a theater. Zucht v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 684.

A witness cannot be impeached by proof of a conversation between two other persons at which neither he nor defendant for whom he testified were present, even though one of them made statements in such conversation which would tend to show that the testimony given by such witness was not true. Hasley v. State, 87 Cr. R. 444, 222 S. W. 579.

In an application for a temporary mandatory injunction to require delivery of possession of premises, where defendant claimed an option for the renewal of an oral lease for the term of one year, an affidavit, by a juror in a former action of forcible entry and detainer, brought before the expiration of the oral lease that defendant in that action made no claim of an option to renew, is admissible both to show the nonexistence of the option, and to contradict defendant's testimony at the hearing that she testified to such option at the forcible entry and detainer trial. Hill v. Brown (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 780.

127. Corroboration of impeached or contradicted witness.—If witness is impeached by proof of drunkenness at time of events testified to, he can be supported just as any impeached witness can be. Reed v. State, 32 Cr. R. 667, 200 S. W. 843.

In prosecution for murder, where witness testified to having been accused with a pistol in her hand behind her just before she crossed the street and shot deceased, others could testify that, from witness' position he could not have seen the pistol, and others could say that witness having pointed out the positions, he could have seen what he testified to. Williams v. State, 38 Cr. R. 26, 201 S. W. 158.

Where defendant, while the state's witness was on the stand, laid a direct predicate for impeachment by proof of contradictory statements, and supported the attack by testimony of defendant made as to contradictory statements, the witness may be sustained by proof of his good reputation for truth and veracity. Russell v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 948.

128. — Testimony subject to corroboration.—Where defendant relied on alibi and offered evidence that he was at a particular point at such time that he could not have been at the place of the killing when it occurred, and the state offered testimony to the effect that sufficient time had elapsed for defendant to have ridden from the place of the killing to the point where he was seen, contradictory evidence is admissible.

Finks v. State, 84 Cr. R. 536, 209 S. W. 164.

129. — Competency of corroborative evidence in general.—In suit for breach of marriage contract, where a witness testified that he had received compromising letters from plaintiff, it was not error to exclude his testimony that he had exhibited such letters to defendant and showed them to an acquaintance. Watson v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 198 W. 461.

W. cannot be corroborated as to what occurred at or before homicide as who made certain tracks by testimony of T. that W. after the homicide, and in defendant's absence, told him such things. Huey v. State, 81 Cr. R. 554, 197 S. W. 202.

Where accused was cross-examining prosecuting witness, asked why he had not produced whisky he testified he had bought from accused, and witness answered that he had turned it over to another person, such person could testify that the witness did deliver him whisky on day alleged. Gray v. State, 82 Cr. R. 27, 197 S. W. 980.

Corroborating evidence is not required to be direct and positive; it may consist of facts and circumstances which tend to show that the direct evidence sought to be corroborated is worthy of credit. Harrison v. Sharpe (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 731.

The state could not support a witness, who had been impeached by proof that his general reputation was bad, by showing that he had made at other times statements consistent with his testimony upon the trial. Barton v. State, 86 Cr. R. 195, 215 S. W. 968.

In a prosecution for robbery, testimony of a witness as to a conversation between himself and the person robbed, in defendant's absence to the effect that the person robbed recognized defendant as one of the guilty parties, held hearsay and inadmissible to support the testimony of the person robbed. Buddy v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 223.

In a prosecution for robbery, where it appeared that defendant, with others, went to a car containing Mexicans and assaulted some of them, and then went to another car, where the robbery was committed, evidence as to the time when the injured Mexicans arrived in town held material, as corroborating their testimony as to the assault. Searcy v. State (Cr. App.) 393 S. W. 799.

130. — Former statements corresponding with testimony.—Where testimony of witness for state was attacked by laying predicate to contradict her and to show denial on her part of any knowledge of crime, state was authorized to sustain her by showing statements by her corroborative of her testimony. Watson v. State, 84 Cr. R. 115, 265 S. W. 662.

That defendant's agent denied making alleged defamatory statements to plaintiff's witness, who had testified thereto, did not render admissible testimony by plaintiff and other witnesses that witness had told them that the agent had made such statements. Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 666.

Where effort is made to impeach evidence by evidence of declarations inconsistent with his testimony tending to prove testimony a fabrication by reason of some influence existing at time of trial, evidence of declarations of witness corroborative of testimony made at a time when no such influence existed is admissible. Id.

In a prosecution for larceny, where the person who purchased the stolen groceries from defendant after discovery of the fact swore to a statement of facts before an officer, after defendant's attempt to discredit him as a witness by showing that his testimony on trial was pursuant to his agreement to testify for the state after dismissal of the case against him, it was permissible for the state to show that his testimony on trial corresponded with the sworn statement he made to the officer. Marable v. State, 87 Cr. R. 28, 219 S. W. 135.

When a witness is discredited by proof of bad general reputation or the commission of other crimes, or when on cross-examination he contradicts himself, or tells his story badly, or develops a poor memory, he may not be sustained by showing of corresponding statements regarding the occurrence. Id.

When a witness is attacked by testimony, either his own admission or the word of others, which shows that on former occasions his narration was variant from that given on trial, he may be supported by proof of former statements similar to his present testimony. Id.

Where plaintiff in his rebuttal testimony acknowledged that he was mistaken in certain testimony given in chief, and that defendant's witnesses were correct in that respect, the original petition, since abandoned, may be introduced by plaintiff to show that he therein stated the facts in accordance with his testimony as corrected on rebuttal. Hines v. Bost (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 698.

Where the secretary of an insurance company testified at the trial that when he wrote a letter he had no knowledge of the illness or death of insured, a collection slip returned to the company containing that information after the letter was written is admissible to corroborate his testimony. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Elmore (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 709.

RULE 5. EVIDENCE MUST RELATE TO FACTS IN ISSUE AND TO RELEVANT FACTS

1. Relevancy and importance in general.—In county's action against tax collector for taxes collected and unlawfully retained, receipts for taxes given owners of property which he reported as delinquent were admissible in evidence, but it was not error to exclude testimony that the tax collector was solvent and able to pay his debts while in office, nor to exclude entire tax rolls, which included much immaterial matter. Powell v. Archer County (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1007.

In action to cancel oil leases for forfeiture by abandonment, injunction which in no way interfered with operation of wells by either defendant was improperly admitted. Munsey v. Marnet Oil & Gas Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 686.

In action to cancel oil leases, where judgment could only prove title to land not in issue, judgment was inadmissible. Id.

In suit to foreclose trust deed, where defendant set up homestead, and the sole issue was whether the land was part of a rural homestead, testimony concerning defendant's understanding of a chattel mortgage should have been excluded as irrelevant. First National Bank v. Porter (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 462.

In suit to oust defendant from office and to recover salary paid defendant while occupying office to which plaintiff had been elected, where Supreme Court on writ of error affirmed judgment ousting defendant but remanded cause as to salary, writ of error and orders thereon were admissible, on retrial of cause to recover the salary paid defendant, on issue of limitations, to show that the case was before the Supreme Court and that there was no final judgment showing plaintiff entitled to the office until the judgment was rendered by the Supreme Court. Please v. State (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 265.

Certainty.—Whatever evidence has a tendency to prove the agency of the bank to which a renewal premium was paid by insured is admissible on that issue, even though it is not full and satisfactory, since it is the province of the jury to pass upon the evidence. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Elmore (Civ. App.) 236 S. W. 709.

3. Remoteness.—Though witness had not seen motorcar for two months prior to the accident when it was derailed and plaintiff was injured, assignment of error to his testimony as to condition of the car goes to the weight and not the admissibility of his testimony. Mackay Telegraph & Cable Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 225.

In action on accident insurance policy for total disability resulting from injury on a passenger train, evidence as to amount for which insured settled his judgment against the railroad on account of the injury, held too weak and remote to be admissible. Fidelity & Casualty Ins. Co. of New York v. Mountcastle (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 852.

In a bill of review to set aside a judgment, evidence that the children of defendant in the judgment had no knowledge that defendant had been served with citation was too remote to show absence of such service. McBride v. Kaulbach (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 576.

In action for rent to November 1, 1915, evidence, as to intention of owner as to use of property in November, 1916, was inadmissible. Goftinet v. Brosone & Baldwin (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 567.

In action involving reasonableness of Railroad Commission's order requiring construction of depot building, sidings, and spur tracks at certain place, evidence as to gross shipments to and from station 3 1/2 miles distant therefrom during past four years, though remote, is of aid to jury on issue of reasonableness, tending to show increase of business in that section. Railroad Commission of Texas v. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 535.

4. Tendency to mislead or prejudice.—In an action to recover for services rendered under an express contract to work at $75 a month, plaintiff's testimony that part of the work done by him for defendant would cost from $10 to $15 a day if performed by experts was inadmissible. Howell v. West (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 251.

In an action for damages for fraud in the sale of land, assuming that plaintiff had the right to prove that his wife was dead at the time of the trial, so that the jury might understand why she was not produced as a witness, he had no right to go into the particulars concerning her death and burial, and as a result thereof manifest such grief and distress as was calculated to arouse the sympathy of the jury. Klein v. Stahl (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 523.

Assuming that defendant's counsel had no right to ask plaintiff whether or not he had inherited money and invested it in land, when plaintiff answered that he had nothing but the same in land, he was not entitled to follow it up with the further statement that he had used it to pay for a tombstone and other funeral expenses of his deceased wife, so as to arouse the sympathy of the jury. Id.

5. Negative evidence.—In a bill of review to vacate a judgment, on the ground that citation had not been served on defendant, in order that negative testimony that witnesses did not know that the citation had been served, may be given probative force, positive facts that, if service had been made, witnesses would necessarily have known it must be shown. McBride v. Kaulbach (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 576.

To meet plea and testimony of lessee, sued for rent, that there was an agreement on, that another should be substituted in her place as tenant, lessor's agent for collection of rents could testify that he made no such agreement. Lovelady v. Harding (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 933.

In action for injuries in collision of automobile with defendant's street car at street intersection involving issue whether motorman sounded gong, admission of testimony that witness would have heard gong if it had been sounded held not error. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1013.

Existence of undue influence vitiating will may be proven by circumstances surrounding making of will, condition of parties, etc. Beadle v. McCrabb (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 355.
Chap. 4  EVIDENCE  (Rule 5)  Art. 3687

In an action against a bank for money deposited, when the bank denied such deposit, it was proper for one who paid plaintiff certain money to testify that he started down a street that would take him to the bank. Provident Nat. Bank of Waco v. Howard (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 658.

Scope of authority of agents may be shown by circumstances. American Metal Co. v. San Francisco Mining Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 360.

In landlord's action for rent and to foreclose lien, tenant claiming he was merely surety or guarantor, and not principal to lease, also that he had sold business, proof that during year in question place was listed in telephone directory in his name, as it had been, was admissible. Pantaze v. Farmr (Civ. App.) 295 S. W. 521.

Physical pain may be shown by circumstantial evidence, but the evidence must be such as to warrant a fair inference that physical pain was suffered, and not such as to warrant only a surmise whether or not such was the case. Walker v. Kellar (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 792.

The fact that the special improvement fund of a county was mingled with the general fund by the county treasurer, and carried thus mingled by the bank, was admissible as a circumstance, with others, to prove plaintiff taxpayers' allegation to such effect in their suit to enjoin collection of the improvement taxes levied for diversion, while the explanation that the mingling of the funds in the depositary was not intended as a transfer of the special funds to the general fund by the county commissioners was inadmissible because not explaining the fact of the mingled deposit. Voltmann v. Sklar (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 530.

8. Matters explanatory of facts in evidence or of inferences therefrom.—Where defendant carrier claimed child's death was due to improper attention, and not to its possible kay that child's mother, by no property or means, was not erroneous. Schaff v. Shepherd (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 232.

In action for injuries in automobile collision, where defendants alleged the car involved was not theirs, and that they were present in their office, and a witness said he was in their office and received a check at the time of the accident, the check was admissible. Figueras v. Madero (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 271.

In suit to establish parol trust in land, plaintiff could testify in explaining the absence of her mother, who knew more about the case, that her mother was in bad health and lived in New York. Thomas v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 415.

In an action for a railroad employee's death by the derailment of a train, it was proper to permit a witness to testify for the plaintiffs that he was on the ground where the wreck occurred at defendant's instance, and that defendant had given instructions that when derailment occurred a board consisting of its officers and disinterested persons should convene to ascertain the cause; such testimony being proper to show that the witnesses were not volunteers. Hines v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 493.

Where a receipt signed by the officers of the company and to be countersigned by the collecting agent, but which did not give the name of the agent, was admitted in evidence, a collection slip sent to the agent with the receipt was admissible to supply the name of the collector in support of the insurance company's contention that the premium was paid to an unauthorized agent. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Elmore (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 709.

In a father's action for the custody of his child, brought against its maternal grandfather and grandmother, the grandmother's testimony as to what plaintiff's deceased wife said about her not coming to see her would not be admissible at defendant's instance, but would be at plaintiff's to explain why he did not visit the child after such conversation, and it is immaterial whether the wife made the statements. If plaintiff believed she did. Also the grandfather's evidence that there were indications that some one had tried to blow up his barn was admissible to show by whom the barn was blown up. Hines v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 493.

9. Evidence irrelevant unless preceded or followed by other evidence.—Since when shipment is in charge of owner's representative, and carrier obeys his instructions, it is not liable for resultant damage, it is error to exclude evidence that conductor obeyed instructions of messenger who accompanied goods, although there was no direct evidence that messenger was hired by plaintiff. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Petersky (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 696.

In an action against fire insurance companies for conspiring to prevent plaintiff from obtaining insurance, that one of defendant's witnesses had refused to answer on the ground of privilege was properly excluded in the absence of a showing that defendant had suggested such refusal. Palatine Ins. Co. v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1014.

In trespass to try title to determine boundaries in the absence of showing of relevancy of a judgment in a prior action between different parties involving the same facts, exclusion of such judgment cannot be ruled error. Dallas Hunting & Fishing Club v. Nash (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1032.

A party should not be permitted to introduce prejudicial and irrelevant evidence upon a mere speculation that it might become relevant. Walker v. Kellar (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 792.

Recitals in ancient public archives showing an open, unequivocal, and positive claim of ownership are admissible as circumstances to prove, in connection with other evidence, a sale of a lost land certificate. Magee v. Paul, 110 Tex. 470, 231 S. W. 254, answering certified questions (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 325, and answers conformed to (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 1118.
In a personal injury action, the introduction of doctor's bills and the ambulance bill without proof that such bills were reasonable charges for the services alleged to have been rendered, and that plaintiff owed them, and that such charges in fact had been made by the doctor and ambulance company, held error. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 1012.

11. Parental relations.—In father's habeas corpus proceeding to procure custody of children from maternal grandparents, in whose care children had been placed upon mother's death, following her divorce from father, evidence of the adoption of the children by the grandparents was admissible. State v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 718.

In an action whereby parties were to divide profits from purchase and sale of land, a widow as administratrix having been substituted for a defendant, her testimony that there were nine children in the family, etc., was immaterial and likely to arouse the sympathy of the jury. First Nat. Bank v. Rush (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 376.

12. Nature and condition of property or other subject-matter.—In action against feed company for death of horse, alleged to have been caused by rat poison in feed, evidence that defendant picked up sweepings from floor of warehouse and put them in sacks at plaintiff's request, was admissible to show how poison got in feed. W. T. Wilson Grain Co. v. Fitch (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 556.

In suit to restrain cutting of timber, testimony of certain witnesses as to what size of long-leaf timber was merchantable at the date of the deed, an issue not determined by prior litigation held admissible. Southwestern Settlement & Development Co. v. May (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 133.

13. Character or reputation.—In an action charging two defendants jointly with conversion and embezzlement, judgment for plaintiff will be reversed, where evidence is admitted as to general reputation for honesty and fair dealing of defendant not appealing to memory is immaterial, unless defendants were attempting to prove his good character. Sikes v. Keller (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 311.

When it becomes permissible to offer evidence as to good character, such evidence must be confined to proof of general reputation, and the individual opinion of witnesses is not admissible. Negociacion Agricola y Ganadera de San Enrique, S. A., v. Love (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 224.

In a damage suit for assault and battery, defended on ground of self-defense, where only actual damages were asked for, and where there was no pleading that plaintiff was a bad and dangerous man, who would likely to carry out threats, exclusion of evidence that plaintiff was a dangerous man, likely to carry out any threat, held proper, though there was evidence of threats having been made. Pfugler v. Schoen (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1090.

In an action for damages for assault and battery, court erred in admitting evidence that plaintiff and another who accompanied him had been indicted for assault in the same difficulty, and in requiring plaintiff to testify concerning the trial in the county court upon such charges, and in admitting evidence to the effect that plaintiff did not report the matter to the grand jury nor county attorney, and that grand jury did not indict defendant nor the county attorney file complaints. Haverbekken v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 256.

15. — Chastity and temperance.—Where it was asserted that a motorist struck at a crossing was negligent, evidence of his reputation that he was in the habit of getting drunk and driving an automobile at dangerous and rapid speed was admissible on the issue of negligence, although evidence of isolated instances would not be. Southern Traction Co. v. Kirksey (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 702.

16. — Right to prove specific facts.—In suit by a bank on a note given to cover overdrafts, defendant's claim being that he had signed the note in blank, but that the cashier of the bank had acted fraudulently in filling in the particular amount, evidence against such bank cashier for forgery were not admissible at defendant's instance. Goree v. Uvalde Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 620.

17. Pecuniary condition.—In action for injuries resulting in death, statements from defendant's minute book showing the ownership of its capital stock held inadmissible as being immaterial. Dallas Hotel Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 347.

When more than one tort-feasor is sued for ordinary damages and punitive damages, the wealth or financial standing of one person cannot be shown, for the purpose of augmenting damages against him, because the admission of such evidence necessarily has the effect of improperly augmenting the damages against the other defendants, whether rich or poor. Walker v. Kellar (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 739.

18. Motive, intent and good faith.—Cessation of work by lessees of oil lands is fact to be considered in determining their intention voluntarily to abandon leases. Munsey v. Marnet Oil & Gas Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 686.

In a meeting at which a speaker made charges against the city marshal, held admissible on the question of marshal's discharge by mayor being for political reasons or for unfitness, nor is evidence that the mayor intended to discharge the marshal, and that his political platform promised the discharge. City of Antonio v. Newman (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 191.

In trespass to try title, there was no error in admitting defendants' testimony as to what they were told as to title, on the issue of their good faith in making improvements. Massingill v. Moody (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 265.

Against stockholders individually by reason of alleged overvaluation of an oil lease in statements to the secretary of state, any surrounding cir-

(Rule 5) Art. 3687

19. Knowledge or notice.—In servant's action for personal injuries, plaintiff's testimony that notices required by Employers' Liability Law were not posted at defendant's well eight months after defendant's injury was admissible, where question of their ever having been posted was made an issue. Farmers' Petroleum Co. v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 194.

In action against insurer of piano as garnishee, agent of the seller could testify that he went with debtor to insurance agent, whom the debtor instructed to pay part of the loss to the creditor as bearing on notice to the company thereof. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Thomas Goggan & Bro. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 163.

In an action by an injured servant based on negligence in hiring an inexperienced and incompetent servant, declaration made by plaintiff to one occupying the position of vice principal regarding such servant that "he would get somebody killed by putting that boy on the trap," was admissible to show that employer had notice of the incompetency. Texas & Pacific Coal Co. v. Sherley (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 758.

In an action by a purchaser claiming the land against vendor's subsequent grantee, in which the defense was that the first sale had been rescinded, evidence that after the vendor had brought suit to foreclose lien of the first sale the parties agreed it should be rescinded and the title revested in vendor that he might sell to defendant, while incompetent to prove vendor's title, was competent as affecting notice of alleged rescission. Walls v. Cruse (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 240.

In action by receiver's supply creditors for payment, testimony as to a statement, made during a creditors' meeting by a person claimed to have represented bondholders, as to superiority of supply creditors' liens, held admissible on issue as to whether bondholders were privies to the receivership proceeding. Maytown Lumber Co. v. Nacogdoches Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 644.

In an action for the death of a shipper, employed assisting in placing flat car in position for loading, evidence of a custom in railroad yards for shipper to move a car, when but a few feet of being in the proper place, after having been placed by railroad, held a draft in favor of railroad employees who met death, charging deceased, were charged with notice that shipper's employees reasonably might be expected to go on track. Rio Grande, E. P. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Guzman (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1102.

Relative to negligence of train operatives in not keeping a proper lookout where child was killed on track, evidence of notice to the company's agents of a family with small children, living in a box car close to the track without fence between, was admissible. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Haywood (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 347.

Where intervenors claimed title to land by adverse possession, evidence that everybody in the country around knew it was the land of their predecessor in title was admissible and pertinent on the issue of notice. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Choate (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 256.

22. Statements and conduct of parties.—In personal injury action by railroad employé, company, having shown that he had several accident policies at time of injury, cannot complain that it was not permitted to show that employé had carried insurance for number of years and presented many claims for injuries. Schaff v. Ribha (Civ. App.) 301 S. W. 210.

In proceeding to be appointed guardian of her children, declarations of applicant that she was owner of estate left by her husband's will to children were admissible as bearing on qualifications. McAllen v. Wood (Civ. App.) 261 S. W. 483.

That a father, who was seeking the custody of a child, had filed a suit for divorce charging the child's mother with infidelity, which was denied, and had been convicted of deserting the said child and mother, was admissible in suit by the witness for custody of such child, to show an utter want of fatherly tenderness for the child, which he asserted. Burchard v. Burchard (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 297.

In an action to recover cattle alleged to have been sold by an agent without authority, where agent claimed that he had authority to sell cattle to pay debts contracted for labor, etc., testimony of a witness tending to show that the agent had contracted debts was admissible, although the witness did not know what the contract between the owner and the agent was. Peterson v. Clay (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 1112.

In an action for injuries to a passenger in an elevator whose leg was caught in the door and held while the elevator descended, question by plaintiff to defendant's witness as to whether or not her doctor, claiming to represent defendant, met her and her husband and offered her $10 to come to defendant's building for something with reference to her testimony, if asked in good faith, held admissible, counsel being within his right in propounding it. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Nussbaum (Civ. App.) 239 S. W. 102.

23. Customs and course of business.—Where manner of loading rice alleged to have been damaged in transit was shown by positive testimony, testimony as to manner in which rice was usually loaded was properly excluded. Gulf Coast Transp. Co. v. Standard Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 874.

In action against carrier for refusing to deliver goods to a connecting line, evidence that it constantly refused to make such deliveries is admissible, where evidence conflicting regarding defendant's refusal to deliver and its reasons therefor. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Bone (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 332.

While ordinarily evidence regarding similar wrongs inflicted on others is inadmissible, yet evidence showing a universal rule or system is admissible. Id.

To be admissible, custom must be so universal as to warrant inference parties contracted with reference thereto, and should be established by satisfactory evidence as having existed for long of time so as to become widely known to warrant presumption parties had it in view. Beaumont Cotton Mill Co. v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 372; Same v. Reeves (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 375.

Where defendant cattle company pleaded over against defendant commission company, which was held liable for failure of commission company's guar­ diant that cattle sold were immune from tick fever, evidence was admissible, as between them, as to the existence or otherwise of a custom among commission companies at the place of sale to make such representations or guaranties. Hartt v. Yturria Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 612.

In action against sleeping car company for injury from being transported in an insufficiently heated car, testimony of the defendant's assistant superintendent as to the duty of the defendant's porter to build a fire in the sleeper was properly admitted. Pullman Co. v. McGowan (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 842.

Consignees of cotton by rail were bound by the custom and usage of the railroad in making delivery of cotton at a compress company's warehouse. Wichita Valley Ry. Co. v. Golden (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 465.

Evidence as to extent of shipment made by persons living in certain vicinity is admissible upon question of reasonableness of Railroad Commission's order that depot building and spur tracks and sidings be constructed at such point. Railroad Commission of Texas v. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 536.

A custom or usage contrary to law is void. Nueces County v. Gussett (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 725.

Upon the issue of negligence of a bank in accepting check of drawer of draft attached to bills of lading in payment of the draft, proof of custom of banks in accepting checks of drawees was admissible. Central Exch. Nat. Bank of Waco v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 660.

While ordinarily proof of a general custom of railroads to perform acts in a certain manner is admissible on the issue of negligence, yet, where a railroad company received a shipment of hogs and delayed forwarding them for 30 hours because of the movement of troop trains, evidence that it was not customary to supply facilities for feeding and water at some small stations, such as the point where they were received, is inadmissible. Hines v. Whiteman (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 979.

In an action for loss of a trunk, proof of custom or usage, as to the delivery of trunks, that it was customary to put them outside on the platform, was admissible as an evidence of delivery, even in absence of allegation in the petition as to such custom. Hines v. Talbert (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 679.

That buyer of cotton was dealing in cotton futures was admissible on the issue whether the cotton purchasing contract on which he sued was also a "future contract." Perry v. Humes Robinson (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 844.

24. Value of services.—In suit to rescind purchase of a mare, plaintiff, over defendant's objection, was properly permitted to testify that he kept the animal in a wagon yard at the cost of $51, that he knew the cost of oats and hay, and that it was a reasonable amount to charge for the services and feed: it not being necessary to show the market price of either the feed or the services. McDonald v. Stafford (Civ. App.) 233 S. W. 732.

25. Value or market price of property.—In arriving at the value of an oil claim, claimed to have been overvalued, it was proper to show what specific corporate stock sold for, or could have been sold for and to admit evidence of exchanges of property for stock of the corporation, where the value of such property was shown. Peden Iron & Steel Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 180.

Where damage claimed was loss of actual value of grass destroyed, and there was no evidence of market value of grass at time of destruction, there was no error in admitting evidence of actual value of grass to plaintiff for pasturage at time of fire. W. R. Pickering Lumber Co. v. Childress (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 573.

In a contract for hay, due under contract for the hay and baling of hay which provided a stipulated price per ton, evidence that plaintiff arrived at the weight of the hay by weighing several bales different times a day, and averaging the weight, is admissible to show the weight. Cochran v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 253.

In plaintiff's suit tending to show in plaintiff's market value of grass, testimony as to what it may have been worth to plaintiff, or his wife, was properly admitted. San Antonio, U. & G. Ry. Co. v. Ernest (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 603.

Supply and demand, the use and benefit, the quantity and quality, what buyers are willing to give and sellers to take, all enter into "market value." Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Hapgood (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 969.

Value is not fixed at the place where buyers and sellers meet, but is established or shown by sales, public or private, in the ordinary course of business. Id.

Testimony that witness was familiar with and knew the kind of grass that generally grew on the land of plaintiff that was burned, and that it was worth from $2.50 to $3 per acre for grazing stock, but had no market value when taken alone, is insufficient evidence of value to sustain a judgment in favor of the landowner not disclosing the value of the herbage to the landowner. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Price (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 518.

In action against railroads for damage to shipment of cattle, if the proof showed no market value at destination, proof of intrinsic value at the time and place was admissible for use in establishing damages. Lancaster v. Tudor (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 990.

Testimony that by reason of negligent handling by carrier of cattle carried they were depreciated at least $6 per head does not meet the question of market value necessary to fix the damages. Hines v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1117.

26. — Time and place of valuation.—In vendor's cross-action for misrepresentation of purchaser as to solvency of maker of notes accepted by vendor in part payment, evidence of maker's insolvency should be with reference to time of alleged false representations or as to time when value of notes is to be determined. Luse v. Rea (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 942.

Recitals in sequestration papers as to value of property made 17 months before the trial are not admissible to establish market value at time of trial. Vaughn v. Charpott (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 950.

Comparison with other property.—In suit by railroad for reduction of its assessment, testimony as to value of real estate abutting upon that owned and occupied by railroad was admissible to show value of land owned by railroad and not devoted to railway purposes. Baker v. Druedesow (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1043.

In an action for damages for the burning of grass, testimony as to the value of the grass destroyed, based on the value of other grass lands, is inadmissible, where it did not appear that the lands taken as a criterion of value were essentially similar to that burned over. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Hapgood (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1940.

In an action for the balance of the purchase price of cotton sold at 13½ cents, to be increased to 12 cents if the market advanced to that point within a certain time, evidence that plaintiff's cotton was better than the cotton of a witness who had sold his cotton for 12.65 cents was material. Smith v. McBroom (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1130.

Value of highway to a mare, it was error to admit testimony offered by plaintiff as basis for arriving at market value of his mare that the witness had paid for certain horses that he owned as much as $125; it not being shown that the animals owned by such witness were of the same kind or character as that of plaintiff, nor when or where the witness purchased his animals. Texarkana & P. S. Ry. Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 491.

In a seller's action for price of blasting powder, where buyer reconvened for damages sustained because of misrepresentations as to the strength of powder, evidence as to the difference between the price paid for such powder and that paid for other powder.
Buyer was required to purchase held inadmissible, since market value is not to be shown in that exceptional and not market value. Alba-Malakoff Lignite Co. v. Hercules Powder Co. (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 554.

30. — Crops.—In an action for the balance of the purchase price of cotton, sold under a contract whereby the buyer was to pay the price sued for if the market advanced, evidence that the cotton was inadmissible to support plaintiff's allegation that such cotton as his had sold at the market at the price contemplated by the contract. Smith v. McBroom (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1130.

In an action against a railroad company for damages for the burning of grass, proof that plaintiff had to spend 10 cents per head per day to feed his cattle, which he would not have been required to feed had the grass not been destroyed, was inadmissible and could be considered in arriving at the value of the grass for the purpose for which he leased the land. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 430.

31. — Cost of property and amount received in general.—In an action against a railroad for damage to a shipment of sheep through delay, the deposition of the salesman who sold the sheep, as to their weight and the price for which they were sold, held inadmissible. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Blackstone & Slaughter (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 208.

32. — Cost of production.—In action for wrongful destruction of cotton crop, evidence as to market value of cotton during the subsequent fall was inadmissible, in absence of evidence as to the expense of maturing, preparing, and placing the crop on the market. Smith v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 27.

33. — Rental value.—The rent paid by plaintiff for pasture could not determine the market value of grass destroyed by fire, but, if there was no market value, the rent might be a circumstance to be considered in arriving at the value of the grass for the purpose for which it was intended. Chicago, R. I. & S. Ry. Co. v. Word (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 902.

37. — Amount for which property will sell.—In suit for conversion of scrap iron purchased by plaintiff of defendant, letters addressed to plaintiff and purporting to have been signed by iron and metal company, stating what such company would pay for scrap iron, were inadmissible to show market value of iron. Waldrop v.戈尔茨曼 (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 335.

39. — Circumstances adding to or detracting from value in general.—Evidence of construction of side track, and that oil burning locomotives were parked near plaintiff's residence, was admissible only to aid jury in determining depreciation in market value of premises. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 555.

Evidence that tract, part of which was sought to be condemned, was formerly the family homestead, and that the owners were born there, and that the owners intended later to use the tract as a homestead, held inadmissible. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Schelling (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1018.

In an action against a warehouseman to recover the value of personal property which plaintiffs alleged was unlawfully sold, testimony as to sentimental value of family pictures, etc., is inadmissible. Kahn v. Cole (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 556.

40. — Animals.—In action for value of horse killed by defendant's train, proof as to value of horse should be confined to its market value. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Claybon (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 458.

In action for value of herd of horses, there being evidence that there was, at destination point, a market for kind of horses shipped, plaintiff properly testified as to market value of horses in condition in which they were delivered at that point. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Gibbons (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 355.

In an action for divorce alleging a common-law marriage agreement in Texas followed by cohabitation there, evidence of the continuance of cohabitation in another state was admissible to show that the relation from its beginning was lawful, and not meretricious; the length of the status being proof of its existence. Bobbitt v. Bobbitt (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 478.

In an action for divorce based upon an alleged common-law marriage, it was not reversible error to permit plaintiff to testify as to the effect of the information of defendant's marriage to another woman had upon plaintiff's health. Id.

51. — Separation of husband and wife.—Where husband when sued for goods sold wife alleged that she had abandoned him without his fault, portions of petition in wife's action for divorce showing cruel treatment held admissible under the pleadings. Sanger Bros. v. Tramell (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1175.

52. — Residence.—In trespass to try title, the principal issue being whether deceased grantees was at time of accrual of cause of action a resident, so that his absence from the county for a year under art. 539 did not suspend the statute of limitation on a contract of said grantees in an affidavit that his post office address was a named place within the state was admissible as a circumstance tending to establish residence. Watts v. McCord (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 381.

While an individual may testify to an intention to acquire a domicile, intent is more satisfactorily shown by acts than words. Gallagher v. Gallagher (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 516.

56. — Partnership and partnership transactions.—In an action on a firm obligation, evidence of a contract showing that the obligation was an individual one of one of the partners, held admissible. Rowse v. Woody (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 362.
In an action against a former partner for conversion of timber, where it appeared that defendant converted such timber in order to pay a note on which he was jointly liable with plaintiffs, a letter by a third person to plaintiffs notifying them that he had purchased the timber was properly excluded; it appearing that plaintiffs and defendants purchased such timber with full notice of such third person's claim. Christian-Holmes Cedar Co. v. Dewees Cedar Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 881.

In action involving the question of ownership of land as between plaintiff, who claimed to have purchased land at a trustee's sale, and defendant, who claimed that his partner, who had agreed to purchase the land at such sale for the copartnership, had conspired with defendant to deprive defendant of the land, an agreement between such partner and defendant, entered into subsequently to the trustee's sale, as to disposition of proceeds of crops grown on the land and as to proceeds of sale of land in the event of its sale by such copartnership, held admissible. Mason v. Gantz (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 435.

In an action for partnership accounting, where duress as to certain payments expected by defendant was charged, and where it appeared that the partnership contract was highly advantageous to defendant, evidence as to the reason why plaintiffs entered into the partnership agreement, and implying oppressive and unfair conduct on defendant's part, held inadmissible, where plaintiff had not by the pleadings attacked the articles of partnership in any way. Shelton v. Trigg (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 761.

In action against partners dealing in mules to recover for feed furnished, an assignment of error to the admission of testimony tending to show that one of the defendants was stopped from denying the partnership because of making representations to plaintiff of his own wealth, and thus influencing plaintiff not to levy on the mules, held inadmissible; the issue being whether defendants owed the debt. Steiger v. Green (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 304.

In an action on a note given by one copartner to another, where it was claimed as to the note not accounted for the maker had not for $5,000, and checks and drafts were introduced in support of the payee's testimony to that effect, the entire bank account of the payee was admissible, falling within the rule that one person may introduce the remainder of an account when the other party introduces a part thereof, and was also admissible to show that such checks and drafts had not been charged against his account as claimed. Gray v. Stolley (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 886.

58. Injunction.—In a suit to enjoin enforcement of a judgment recovered by a physician against an employer which was member of the Texas Employers' Insurance Association, the policy of insurance and proof of injury should not be admitted, but proof should be restricted to the fact that the employer was a member of the association. Huddleston v. Texas Pine Line Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 260.

59. Partition.—In suit for partition by a daughter against her father's widow, wherein general denial was pleaded, testimony of defendant widow that the lands in controversy were paid for with her separate means was improperly admitted. Green v. Churchwell (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 341.

60. Boundaries.—Testimony of an old settler was admissible to show that calls in a grant were consistent with the footsteps of the surveyor. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Hohn (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 162.

In suit involving question whether there is a vacancy between two leagues on the west and a survey on the east to which plaintiffs are entitled by an award from the state, held that, when an attempt was made to locate the boundaries of the leagues on the west by the field notes in the grant and an ambiguity appeared, court did not err in admitting evidence of surveyors as to the true location of the east boundary line of the leagues. Barrow v. Murray (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 178.

In trespass to try title, where the question was one solely of disputed boundary, evidence of the contents of a letter written to plaintiff's predecessor, relating to a survey to locate the boundary, held improperly excluded upon objections that plaintiff's predecessor had testified and that the evidence was not offered in impeachment. Waterfall v. Lines (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 665.

In a suit to determine a boundary line, where it was agreed that a former fence was on the true line, evidence establishing the division line according to the deeds was admissible to show the location of the picket fence, and a requested instruction withdrawing such evidence from the jury was properly refused. Nell v. Pryor (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 296.

Neither an original tax receipt nor the recorded copy is admissible to determine the boundaries to land, since it was not the tax collector's duty to determine boundaries. Land v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 801.

65. Payment.—In action for amount due plaintiff by defendant, who, with funds furnished by plaintiff, had performed road building contract which had been subject to plaintiff by original contractor, evidence of a statement between original contractor and defendant was admissible to show that defendant's note to plaintiff, deposited with contractor to secure what original contractor had advanced defendant for plaintiff, had been discharged by amounts retained by contractor out of amounts due defendant. McFarland v. Ray McDonald Co. (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 946.

When pleadings allege payment, it is permissible for a witness to show how payment was made. Wartman v. Young (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 660.

69. Lien and waiver the same.—In an action on secured note and to foreclose mortgage securing vendor's lien held, that assignments of error to admission in evidence of vendor's lien note taken by plaintiff as part consideration of the secured note and deed of trust, and also a judgment and deed thereunder to defendants' grantor, introduced as muniments of her title to the property before she sold it to defendants, will be overruled. Blackmon v. Texas Securities Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 590.

In action to enforce materialman's lien, testimony of a subcontractor for the contract for which he had placed the material, consisting of that work if the building, held admissible to show its use. Fox v. Christopher & Simpson Iron Works Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 833.

70. Liabilities on bonds.—In jitney bus passenger's action on jitney line operator's inde minimi bond, operator's testimony that rig was riding at the time of the accident and in which she was injured was under the protection of defendants' bond held admissible. Interstate Casualty Co. of Birmingham v. Hogan (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 354.

74/4. Respective rights of landlord and tenant.—In action by tenant under a lease for one year against purchaser from his landlord for money received for pasturage, evidence that tenant had a verbal contract with one of former landlords, whereby he was to receive two-thirds of everything raised on the place, held admissible. Id.

75. Eviction of tenant.—In action to cancel oil leases for forfeiture by abandonment, court properly admitted evidence of oilman's lease from defendant lessor after property was released by bankruptcy court, and proof of facts in reference to the bankruptcy; bankruptcy court having seized wells in litigation. Munsey v. Marnet Oil & Gas Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 656.

In lessee's action against sublessee on express covenant to pay rent, defended on ground that sublessee's assignee had been accepted by owner as tenant and by lessee as their lessee, the check from sublessee's assignee to owner for rent instalment was admissible in evidence to show lessee's acquiescence in assignee's lease and acceptance of assignee as tenant. Goffinet v. Broome & Co. 157 S. W. 967.

In action by tenants against landlords for damages from unlawful eviction, testimony of wife of tenant that landlord's cattle would come up to patch of feed about barn, and she would drive them off, held admissible to show animus of landlords in sticking for procedures against tenants out of which suit grew. Lamar v. Hildreth (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 167.

In suit for damages from an unlawful and forcible eviction of plaintiff tenants from defendant lessor's land, proof of the expense incurred by plaintiffs was admissible on the issue of exemplary damage and consequent exemplary proof of expense always being admitted on such grounds. Evans v. Caldwell (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 512.

In suit for damages from an unlawful and forcible eviction of plaintiff tenants from defendant lessor's land, and the malicious withholding of farm products, household goods, kitchen furniture, etc., proof that defendant, while armed with a shotgun, assaulted plaintiffs and threatened to kill them, was admissible on the issue of malice, so that allegation of the fact in the pleadings was proper to that extent. Id.

76. Liability for rent.—In landlord's action for rent, leases between other parties executed two years before lease in question and assignment of another lease by third parties to defendant are inadmissible. Kism v. Stacy (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 341.

In landlord's action for rent against person owning fixtures in premises involved, lease from plaintiff to defendant's son and codefendant is inadmissible against the mother. Id.

In an action under a lease for rent, where defenses were that building was not constructed according to agreement between lessor and lessee and faulty construction, the court properly permitted plaintiff to introduce in evidence the plans and specifications for the building, and show that water which accumulated in the basement was seepage water caused by the United States reclamation in handling water for irrigation purposes. Goodman v. Republic Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 466.

79. Employment in general.—Where railroad company, denying that plaintiff was its servant, introduced evidence that he took orders from, made reports to, and was paid by agents of an independent contractor, evidence that they were also agents of the railroad company held admissible. San Antonio, U. & G. T. Co. v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 247.

In an action for the death of an employé supervising repairs of a flagpole on employee's shop where defense was that he was not acting within scope of employment, plaintiff's evidence that employer directed other employés to finish the work was admissible. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Bremer (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 253.

80. Authority of agent.—In action on note for price of automobile, defense being breach of warranty, plaintiff's president could testify that he had instructed salesman not to warrant the automobile. Lewis v. Farmers & Mechanics' Nat. Bank of Ft. Worth (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 888.

Agency cannot be established by proof of the acts of the agent, unless it appears that the principal knew of, or assented to, them, but where the acts justified a reasonable inference that the principal had such knowledge, and have not permitted them if unauthorized, the acts are competent. Doughtery v. Wiles (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 900.

In an action for failure of guaranty that cattle sold were immune from tick fever, brought against a seller and its agents, evidence of commission merchant's custom as to making such guaranties was admissible, not to enlarge the powers conferred by employer upon agent, but as a means of interpreting and ascertaining the powers actually conferred. Hartt v. Yturria Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 612.

In an action against a bank cashier on a contract executed in his own name, which he claimed was the contract of the bank and as such ultra vires, where it appeared that plaintiff refused to accept the bank’s obligation instead of defendant’s own obligation, evidence that the directors instructed defendant to close the contract, and stated that the bank would pay the money thereunder, was inadmissible, as it could not affect plaintiff’s rights. Edwards v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 278.

Testimony by an officer of the bank that the bank was an authorized agent of an insurance company was subject to the objection that the agency cannot be proved by declarations of the agent, since the bank, and not the cashier, was the agent of the insurance company, and the testimony was not a mere declaration, but was evidence in court. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Elmore (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 709.

In general—that which would show in a civil action that a contract is illegal. Pate v. Wilson Bros. Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 235.

In an action on a fire policy, which insured claimed covered clothing of customers in his possession for cleaning and pressing, where insured’s predecessor, to whom the original policy, of which the one involved was a renewal, was issued, testified he told the agents he wanted the policy to cover such clothing, the agents may testify that insured’s predecessor was told such clothing could not be insured. Northern Assur. Co. v. Lawrence (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 430.

In action on an indemnity contract against liquidating agent of insolvent national bank on the ground that the bank was the real party principal on the contract, and against certain officers of the bank as sureties, proof that the bank agreed to keep on deposit with another bank a sum equal to the amount which the first bank borrowed under an arrangement to enable it to conceal the fact of its loan of more than a legal amount to a building company was admissible as against the objection that such arrangement was ultra vires, to show that the loan by the second bank was in fact made to the indemnitee and hence that the first bank was not entitled to payment to the building company of money due on a building contract, as against materialmen’s liens, was really for the benefit of the first bank. Eddleman v. Wofford (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 226.

82. Execution of contract.—In action for commission by real estate broker, evidence that principal, while sale was pending, inquired of witness whether he would be liable for commission if, having listed land for cash, he transferred it in trade or for notes, held admissible. Britain v. Rice (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 254.

In an action on a fraternal benefit certificate issued to plaintiff’s wife wherein liability was denied because of misrepresentations by insured as to her state of health, it was not error to admit testimony by defendant’s insurance solicitor that he had advised the medical examiner of an operation performed upon insured for appendicitis and also for abdominal wall adhesions. Knights and Ladies of Security v. Shepherd (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 896.

In suit by a city on special assessment paving certificates, a letter written by defendant, purchaser of the property, to the attorneys for the contractor, showing substantially that he, defendant purchaser, had a contract for the purchase of the property conditional on collection of a note placed with the then owner of the property for collection, and that if he got the property he would pay for the paving to be done by the contractor, held admissible as constituting a binding contract by defendant purchaser to pay the contractor the indebtedness sued on. Leeson v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 763.

83. Mistake in contract.—Where it was alleged there was a mutual mistake as to part of guaranty contract creating liability in excess of $1,000, it was admissible to show that president of plaintiff corporation and its attorney had construed it as a guaranty for only $600, and had originally sued for such amount. Cooper Grocery Co. v. Neblett (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 365.

85. Construction of terms of contract.—In action for services in drilling oil wells, facts showing that the defendant construed the contract so as to entitle plaintiff’s for services in underreaming the casing, by payment for such services during certain months, and that defendant was estopped to deny liability for underreaming by plaintiffs, held admissible under the pleadings. Eldora Oil Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 738.

86. Performance or breach of contract.—Evidence that broker sent messenger to person subsequently purchasing part of ranch, and that he sent back word he would take the matter up, held admissible, when defendants denied plaintiff interested such purchaser in the land. Ford v. Cole (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 661.

Testimony that owner of notes stated that for payment he would look to another person, who had assumed payment, with no statement that he released the maker was not admissible. Rowe v. Daugherty (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 240.

Where property is transferred in consideration that debts will be paid from a certain fund as they mature and are presented, and upon a partial failure to transfer the property a sum less than the value of the property not transferred is withheld, in an action by a creditor against the transferee and its agent, testimony of the agent that the money already paid was disbursed at the direction of the debtor and the transferee is admissible. American Loan & Mortgage Co. v. American Nat. Bank of Houston (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 146.

In a suit to cancel an oil lease, where plaintiff contended that part of the consideration consisted of actual development of the land by lessee, it was not error to exclude testimony that the lessee was not financially able to put down a well on the land, where it appeared that plaintiff fully understood lessee’s financial inability at the time of the execution of the lease. Boet v. Biggers Bros. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 1112.
In a broker's suit for commission on sale of cattle, testimony of a witness, one of the buyers, that before another buyer went to a convention where cattle were sold he told him not to be afraid of the number of cattle, but to go ahead and buy them through another broker, and that he (the witness) had asked such other broker to get a price of 256 per head, was held admissible to show matter which would have tended to influence the buyer to purchase through such other broker. Lumsden v. Jones (Civ. App.) 237 S. W. 555.

In a suit to cancel an oil and gas lease on the ground of abandonment by the lessor, cessation of work and nonuser is admissible. Hall v. McCleary (Civ. App.) 238 S. W. 1004.

Evidence that a landowner had undertaken to pay all actual expenses of a broker was properly excluded in an action for commissions by a broker who had procured a purchase where the transaction failed because the owner would not sign the deed, the property being a homestead, for the evidence excluded offered no excuse for failure to pay the amount agreed. Carson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 673.

In a contractor's action against an irrigation district for balance due on construction work, the contractor's testimony that he completed the dam in substantial accord with the plans and specifications, and had given his personal attention to the work, held admissible. Peyton Creek Irr. Dist. v. White (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1060.

In an action on a note given to secure the establishment of a shipyard in a city for the construction of four wooden ocean-going ships, on the issue of what is an ocean-going ship, the court erred in not sustaining an objection to question as to how many boats Columbus had when he discovered America. S. Lightburne & Co. v. First Nat. Bank of Rockport (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 343.

87. Contract of employment.—In an action for plaintiff's salary as defendant's agent, the failure of defendant to pay plaintiff's full due-duty salary was a breach of contract, giving plaintiff a cause of action for past-due salary, and justified plaintiff in rescinding the contract, or refusing to work longer, but is not necessarily evidence of nor tantamount to plaintiff's discharge. Cochran v. Hambien (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 374.

In an action by an employee claiming to have been wrongfully discharged, testimony as to plaintiff's abusiveness in speaking of his former employer was properly excluded, being immaterial to any issue. Also evidence offered by defendant employer, operating a peanut mill, that a shipment of peanuts which plaintiff employee personally bought had been hauled out and the employer had tried to sell them, but was unable to get the price of No. 1's for them, held properly excluded as immaterial. Golden Rod Mills v. Green (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1088.

In a suit for commission on procuring an exchange of defendant's store for a ranch, it was immaterial whether the plaintiff broker put forth his wife to get an abstract of title or not; there being no question of the title to the property, and it not devolving, on plaintiff to procure an abstract. Maler v. Langerhans (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 145.

In a suit for commission on procuring an exchange of defendant's store for a ranch, whether plaintiff had procured defendant's property and commuted the price fixed on it was immaterial; plaintiff having procured the exchange, and testimony sought to be elicited by defendant store owner from himself, constituting merely a conclusion or opinion of defendant, and irrelevant, was properly rejected. Id.

88. Contract of insurance.—Testimony of insured claiming under accidental policy that he gave insurer's local agent verbal notice of accident was admissible, though not a compliance with policy, as bearing on whether subsequent written notice was given within reasonable time. Fidelity & Casualty Ins. Co. of New York v. Mountcastle (Civ. App.) 290 S. W. 862.

Proceedings by seller to garnish proceeds of insurance policy on chattel sold, on the issue whether the debtor had waived exemption of such proceeds by notifying the insurance company to pay the plaintiff's debt therefrom, a letter from the debtor to plaintiff, stating he had insured the chattel for plaintiff's benefit, was admissible. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Thomas Goggin & Bro. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 163.

Where change of title, interest, or possession of insured goods is claimed to avoid a policy, possession of prospective purchasers, under their agreement to purchase in case the insurance company would transfer the insurance, is immaterial, except as throwing light upon question of change of title. Detroit Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Boren-Stewart Co. (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 382.

In an action on a fire policy, evidence as to the value of the remaining walls of the building, or the comparative cost of reconstruction, using such walls, or building entirely anew, is admissible on the issue of total loss. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Strayhorn (Com. App.) 211 S. W. 447.

In an action on a fire policy where it appeared that the inventory taken before the policy was written was destroyed through no fault of insured, held that the submission of books and other data produced by the insured was proper. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Biggs (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 374.

In an action on a life policy, defended on the ground of suicide, which did not provide that the certificate of the attending physician and the findings of the coroner should be admitted in evidence to establish the cause of death, such certificates and findings were not admissible over objection if offered in evidence. Green v. Missouri State Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 552.

In a suit to establish and recover an interest in an insurance policy assigned to secure advances not exceeding a specified amount, a note and evidence relating thereto were held admissible as indicating the extent of the interest under the assignment. Hicks v. Emerson-Brantingham Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 348.
89. — Contract of sale.—In action to set aside a judgment for the price, evidence that goods shipped by seller to other parties were not as represented is inadmissible. Lyon-Taylor Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 875.

Letters written subsequent to making of contract, giving seller notice that delay in delivery of timber was causing damage to buyer, were admissible where damages thereafter accrued. West Lumber Co. v. C. R. Cummings Export Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 846.

In action for breach of contract to ship good pickings, exclusion of telegram, offered that plaintiff's record defendant to ship pickings under different designation entitling them to lower freight rate, is not error where telegram does not mention pickings and may have referred to different goods. Robinson v. S. Samuels & Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 893.

In defense to action for price of lighting fixtures being that prisms thereon did not comply with contract, opinion of plaintiff's witness that they were artistically and practically equipped with prisms is immaterial. , J. Kennard & Sons Carpet Co. v. Houston Hotel Ass'n (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1139.

In suit by grantor's grandchildren to establish parol trust upon land conveyed to defendant by their mother. Evidence in evidence of prior oral contract held proper to show that defendant had received help from mother in view of evidence by defendant showing gift to grandchildren's fathers, but testimony that defendant had knowledge of provisions in previous will of grantor and in regard to acts relied upon to show exercise or control of premises by grantor was inadmissible. Hambleton v. Dignowity (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 864.

Plats and deeds as well as statements of grantor made prior to her will executed four years before the deeds conveying the land were admissible as tending to establish subsequent declaration of trust. Id.

98. Specific performance.—In a suit for specific performance of contract to convey an oil and gas lease, evidence that plaintiff deposited a worthless check to bind the bargain is admissible, regardless of evidence that defendant falsely represented the check was good, and that she would shortly substitute the sum in cash. Greenewayer v. McFarlane (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 613.

In action to compel specific performance of a contract to convey a half interest in oil, gas, and minerals, under a certain tract of land, where title had not passed nor had the purchase money been paid, testimony was admissible to show that the acknowledgment of vendor's wife was not properly taken. Crabb v. Bell (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 623.

99. Stockholder's liability.—In action against stockholders of insolvent corporation upon vendor's lien notes of the corporation, where defense was that plaintiffs had agreed to release to show that they had not agreed to release notes in consideration of certain amount of stock, evidence that plaintiffs had foreclosed the notes, purchased the land, conveyed it to another corporation for amount of stock they had agreed to accept from former corporation, and had caused stock to be issued to subscribers of stock in former corporation in amount of subscription, held admissible in proof of such agreement. Donoho v. Carwile (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 553.

99½. Accounts.—Where defendant, treasurer of a lodge, agreed that each member of the association, after its dissolution, should share equally in the distribution of the funds in his hands as a stated account, and plaintiff was entitled to recover regardless of whether some portion of the fund was obtained by the association's unlawful sale of liquor, and evidence thereof was inadmissible. Bellev v. Jacobs (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 928.

101. Title and possession.—Where one remainderman and a life tenant gave a deed of trust to extinguish a debt of the remainderman, evidence of the consideration given to such person was irrelevant in a suit by heirs of the other remaindermen to establish their title. Rossetti v. Benavides (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 208.

In trespass to try title, where plaintiff claimed by adverse possession, a lease from defendant record owner to party occupying part of land is admissible. Pate v. Gallup (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1151.

Evidence in trespass to try title, in which neither party deraigned title from sovereignty, that C. did not get possession because W., under whom defendant claims, was in possession under lease from plaintiff's grantor, held not subject to objections that defendant did not know of lease, or that it was immaterial why C. did not get possession. Crafts v. McAllen (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 729.

Proof that one did not render land for taxes after a certain time was admissible as a part of the evidence to show that the land was conveyed under a certain instrument. Fretwell v. Pollard (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 183.

Since a subsequent patent must yield to the calls for boundaries in an older survey, and the grantees of such patent took nothing as to the portion involved in the conflict, their rejection of trespassors in an action by claimants under the prior patent. Dallas Hunting & Fishing Club v. Nash (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 1032.

In an action by purchasers in trespass to try title to obtain possession from vendor's lessees, the written lease was admissible to support defendants' right to possession. Gilchrist v. Rowley (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 625.

In trespass to try title, evidence as to the terms upon which plaintiff purchased the property from its immediate predecessor in title held immaterial and properly excluded. Delta Land & Timber Co. v. Spiller (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 414.

In trespass to try title, in which plaintiffs' title rested on limitations for 10 years, testimony of a gift of the land to plaintiffs by their grandfather was admissible to show that plaintiffs were placed in possession by the grandfather, and that their father was never in possession. Foster v. Guerra (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 295.

To overcome legal title and deprive the owner of his estate by adverse possession, every act or thing done or statement made by the possessor in respect of his holding, material and relevant to issue, should go to jury. Davis v. Cliseros (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 298.

In a suit to quiet title to land which plaintiff had acquired by adverse possession, though his deed described a different tract, an agreement between defendants relating to the tract described is irrelevant and immaterial. Krause v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 310.

In garnishment proceeding involving question of ownership of proceeds of drafts as between defendant and bank with which defendant had deposited drafts for collection, deposit slips showing the credit extended by the bank to defendant for the collection of the drafts and the ledger of the bank showing the condition of the defendant's account held admissible on issue of whether the bank became a purchaser for value of the drafts. Commercial Nat. Bank of Hutchinson, Kan., v. Held Bros. (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 806.

105. Conversion.—In suit for conversion of scrap iron purchased by plaintiff, plaintiff's testimony that between time of purchase and time of defendant's alleged conversion price of scrap iron had advanced was admissible to show reason for conversion. Waldrop v. Goltzman (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 355.

105. Trespass—By cattle.—In action for injury to cotton crop from trespassing cattle, where plaintiff testified that the cattle were not permitted to stay in the cotton, but were from time to time driven out as soon as they could be discovered, testimony to time the cattle were in the cotton. Bowman & Blatz v. Huley (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 723.

106. Negligence.—Where plaintiff had pleaded negligence of railroad company's employees in operating train, expert evidence showing that under circumstances it was improper to reverse the engine was admissible. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 357.

In section hand's suit for injuries received when hand car upon which he was riding collided with cow on track, evidence that right of way was not fenced held admissible to show knowledge of danger. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 1004.

In suit against abstractor for damages from negligence, testimony as to indebtedness of owner of land to plaintiff bank, immaterial as to defendant's negligence in compilation of abstract, was inadmissible. National Bank of Garland v. Gough (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1119.

In action for death of wagon driver when struck by a train at crossing in village, under allegation of negligence in failing to have crossing flagman, conversation of division superintendent and trainmaster discussing advisability of putting in warning bell at such crossing held admissible. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Tisdale (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 247.

In determining whether act of railway's foreman in directing four men to do certain work was negligent, fact that he knew, or should have known, in exercise of ordinary care, that force was insufficient, was material. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 665.

Where in an action for injury of a servant by an explosion of coal dust, a witness was asked, "Can you get rid of that carbon in the air so there will be nothing in the air to explode?" to which witness answered: "Well, theoretically, a device could be possible in which no explosion would occur. Practically, I have never attempted it."—the question and answer were admissible on the issue whether defendant used due care in providing a safe place for work. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Challen (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 215.

In action for injuries to lineman's assistant when motorcar was derailed, evidence of prior derailments from the same cause was admissible, even in the absence of allegations thereof, to show the master's knowledge of the defects in the car. Mackay Telegraph & Cable Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 255.

In action for death of employé involving question of whether employé realized dangerous character of work, foreman's testimony, "Wages were never raised because Mr. B. thought he did not have enough experience to justify it," held relevant and material. San Antonio Portland Cement Co. v. Gschwender (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 967.

In action for death of employé, involving question of whether employé comprehended dangerous character of work, foreman's testimony that, "I am satisfied that G. [employé] did not understand dangers connected with handling of live wires and switches, on account of careless way in which he handled them, but he seemed to understand element of facts, and was reliable."

In an action for injuries received in a crossing accident testimony of the city's mayor and secretary concerning a conversation they had with the officials of the defendant relative to placing a flagman or electric bells at the crossing held admissible, as tending to show defendant's negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harling (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 207.

In action against a railroad for damages for a cow killed in a cut closed at one end by cattle guard, evidence of railroad section foreman that he had written the company requesting it to remove the cattle guard was immaterial, especially where his reason for requesting its removal was that in times of rain it became full of water, making it difficult to get proper alignment of the rails. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Messer (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 222.

In an action against a street railroad for damages resulting from collision with an automobile, it was not error to refuse to permit the street railroad company to prove that a mirror was not attached to the automobile where there was no evidence showing that failure necessary under the ordinance to require the use of a mirror. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Terrazas (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 357.

In action for damages by fire caused by negligence of plumber hired by defendant, evidence that such employé was a tinner did not establish that he was an unlicensed plumber who was doing plumbing work unlawfully. Cobo v. Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 196.

Where a servant was injured by the starting of machinery unexpectedly and automatically without human agency, the character of the accident and circumstances held to show defendant negligent in caring for the machine. Gammage v. Gamer Co. (Com. App.) 209 S. W. 389.

In an action against a carrier for damages to shipment of cattle, the testimony of a witness that he asked the conductor to see if it was possible to get the engineer to spot the cars with more care to save loss to owners was admissible. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harris Bros. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 265.

Evidence that it was the custom of street railroad company's cars to slow down for street crossings was admissible on the issue of contributory negligence of the driver of a motortruck, although such custom was not pleaded by him. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 275.

In action for negligence in driving cars against standing cars with such force as to cause standing cars to strike one crossing track located on an avenue, testimony as to use of avenue by public was relevant and admissible; but conveyances evidencing reliance on avenue for railroad traffic along the avenue between railroad and immediate St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Broughton (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 664.

In an action by an injured servant based on negligence of the master in hiring inexperienced and incompetent trapper boy, testimony that witness had not seen him before and testimony of the boy that he had not trapped before was improper and admissible. Texas & Pacific Coal Co. v. Sherbley (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 758.

Evidence as to the construction of wires in the alley in the rear of the residence of deceased, from which wires electricity was conducted into the house of deceased, was pertinent to the inquiry as to whether defendant was negligent in permitting an excessive current of electricity to enter deceased's residence. Texas Power & Light Co. v. Britlow (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 702.

Testimony of a witness that he had placed a porcelain socket in residence of deceased and had told plaintiff, deceased's wife, that the socket was safe, and testimony of the wife that she had told deceased just before deceased attempted to attach electric iron to socket that electrician had told her there was no danger in using same, was pertinent to issue of contributory negligence of both deceased and plaintiff off.

The rate of speed at which an interurban electric car approaches a public crossing may be considered on a question of negligence, even though there is no statute regulating such speed. Southern Traction Co. v. Kirksey (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 702.

In an action for injuries in collision between an automobile and defendant's street car, testimony as to the damage done the automobile and as to the distance which the automobile struck and stopped before the street car was admissible on the issue of whether street car was running at an unlawful speed. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1012.

In an action for injuries in collision between an automobile and defendant's street car, the motorman's testimony as to how quickly and within what space he could stop the car held proper, as bearing on the issue of the speed at which car was running at time of accident; plaintiff testifying that automobile was dragged some distance before car was stopped. Id.

In a suit for damages for the drowning of plaintiff's minor son in defendants' swimming pool, evidence as to the depth of the water, condition of the pool, and as to decedent's previous cramping held competent, relevant, and material on the issue of contributory negligence. Barnes v. Honey Grove Natatorium Co. (Civ. App.) 235 S. W. 354.

109. Delay of carrier.—In action for damages to cattle from negligent handling and failure to transport expeditiously, proof of delay in transportation, causing cattle to reach destination on declining market, was properly admitted. Baker v. East (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1129.

In a consignee's action for carrier's refusal to seasonably deliver to connecting carrier, evidence that carrier placed derail on tracks connecting with line of connecting carrier held admissible, where carrier denied refusal. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Bone (Civ. App.) 268 S. W. 709.

110. Delay in delivering message.—In an action for damages for delay in transmitting a death message, the admission of evidence that plaintiff, McGaughy, was sometimes called "McGoy," the addressee in the telegram, without showing defendant's knowledge thereof, held not error; evidence showing message could have been delivered regardless of spelling. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. McGaughy (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1091.

Where, in response to a service message inquiring as to the delivery of a message, the receiving office was informed that the message had not been delivered, the agent of the office where delivery was to be made, while entitled to testify that he did not send the reply, cannot give a conversation he had with the operator whom he claimed sent the reply. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. McCormick (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 270.

112. Ejacutment of passengers and others from trains.—Where negligence charged is permitting plaintiff's son to ride on freight train by brakeman, evidence of efforts, at time such child was not present, to prevent children boarding defendant's trains was immaterial. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Lawrence (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1200.

114. Malicious prosecution.—In an action for malicious prosecution, admission of evidence showing financial condition and worth of defendant was error. Bukowski v. Williams (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 243.

Evidence that prosecutor consulted and was advised by counsel is admissible upon issue whether he acted without malice. Id.

In landlord's action for rents and foreclosure of liens, defendants claiming damages under allegations of landlord's agent in suing out distress warrant was moved by malice, testimony of agent that up to time he sued out warrant he knew defendant tenant owed good many creditors, and that several were pressing him, was admissible as material. Fantaz v. Farmer (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 521.
117. Libel and slander.—In an action against a newspaper for libel, in which the truth and fairness of an account of a proceeding in court was not assailed, but only the fairness of comment and criticism, it was proper to inquire into the circumstances surrounding plaintiff. Light Pub. Co. v. Huntress (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1463.

In an action for publication of an alleged defamatory article as to proceedings in justice court against plaintiff therein for violating the prohibited law, wherein he was discharged, etc., claimed to be privileged, evidence that plaintiff had testified he was transporting the liquor for export is admissible where it did not appear that the publication was present, but the failure to state that the whisky was to be carried to Mexico would be no evidence of malice. Mulhall v. Express Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 545.

In an action for slander where privilege was claimed, evidence as to the engagement and preparation for marriage of plaintiff and defendant's brother was permissible as tending to show a motive for defendant's making defamatory representations as to plaintiff and as a reason for ill will. Vogt v. Guidry (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 656.

120. Fraud and fraudulent conveyances.—In an action against corporate directors by plaintiff which extended credit to the corporation on faith of false statements given to commercial agencies, evidence as to dividends paid on subsequent bankruptcy of the corporation was admissible. Durham v. Wichita Mill & Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 135.

In an action for deceit, circumstances tending to show that declarations were made after consummation of transaction merely went to the weight of, and did not affect admissibility of, evidence that such representations were made at time of closing the transaction. Askew v. Bruner (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 152.

If a deed alleging lots have been fraudulently executed and delivered prior to the date of representations made by the grantor to the plaintiff, evidence as to such representations is not admissible in a suit to set aside conveyance as fraudulent. Moore v. Belt (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 228.

In action by creditor to set aside conveyance by deceased to his wife as fraudulent, the inventory of the wife as community administratrix was admissible to show the condition of deceased's estate. Id.

In suit to set aside a fraudulent conveyance, evidence that the grantor paid taxes after conveyance was not admissible. Id.

Where vendor obtained judgment of foreclosure against purchasers from vendee for interest on a vendor's lien notet and bought at the foreclosure sale for an extremely small amount, and resold for a large amount, that he fraudulently prevented the land from selling at a fair price was immaterial in an action by the vendor against the vendee on the note, where the vendee did not seek to have the sale set aside, nor claim damages on account of fraud. Rector v. Brown (Civ. App.) 298 S. W. 702.

In action against vendor of land for damages on account of fraudulent statements to effect that vendor had laid out a town site, and had contracted for 150 houses and that streets were then being graded, plaintiff was properly allowed to testify as to extent of improvements made; such testimony having some bearing on whether arrangements and contracts had been in fact made as represented. Sims v. Ford (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 659.

In action involving question whether a conveyance from husband to wife was made to defraud subsequent creditors, evidence that prior to year of conveyance grantor was a close buyer, but that during said year he was a liberal buyer, was admissible both against husband and wife, who received benefit of such purchases and in some instances bought articles herself. Quarles v. Eaton-Blewett Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 596.

In an action by the purchasers for misrepresentations inducing a sale to them of a thresher, testimony of a purchaser that, immediately after rejecting the thresher, he signed a wire for another containing the same stipulations, was held properly excluded, while the personal testimony of one of the purchasers was admissible, as being a collateral matter. Hart-Parr Co. v. Krizan & Maler (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 835.

Evidence that the market value of the lots was only $25 each was admissible in action for rescission of contract of purchase of lots by vendor among others, that the lots were worth $350 each. Landfried v. Milam (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 847.

To prove that he relied on defendant's false representations concerning property taken in trade, it was permissible for plaintiff to testify concerning their friendly relations and business dealings. Klein v. Stahl (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 523.

In an action for fraud in inducing plaintiff to make a lease of oil land, where he alleged that defendants agreed to pay him the entire bonus or rental received, and failed to do so, plaintiff's testimony that he had refused a larger offer for a lease on the land which he leased to defendants was admissible. Moorman v. Small (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 127.

In purchaser's action to rescind for false representations as to value of lots, evidence that vendors' agent had misrepresented that purchaser's neighbors had recently purchased lots and resold them at a certain profit held admissible to show that appellant relied upon the representations of the agents. Massirer v. Milam (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 302.

In an action to cancel deed for fraud, testimony as to grantor's oral agreement to recover was admissible as against contention that such agreement was void under the statute of frauds, as a part of the fraudulent scheme to deceive in connection with other fraudulent representations, but could not have been relied on as an independent ground for rescission. Gaugh v. Gaugh (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 786.

In action by one brother against another to cancel deed on ground of fraud, refusal to permit defendant to state at least generally the acts done by him in lending and advancing money to plaintiff under circumstances showing affection and kindness towards him prior to the execution of the deed held improper. Id.

In action to cancel deed to brother for fraud, in which it was claimed that plaintiff by delay waived the right to rescind for fraud, testimony by the mother of plaintiff and defendant as to her efforts, at plaintiff's insistence, to procure a reconveyance of the land from defendant to plaintiff, held admissible on the question of plaintiff's efforts to procure a rescission, and on the question of whether he affirmed or acquiesced in the sale. Id.

In suit to cancel conveyance of plaintiff's interest in certain mineral lands as procured by defendants' misrepresentations, in view of the circumstances, testimony of plaintiff that he repeated to his wife representations made him by a defendant as an inducement for the conveyance requested held admissible. Holland v. De Walt (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 216.

In suit to recover money paid for oil stock on the ground that defendant promised, intending not to perform, to secure plaintiff for his advances, which should be returned to him in case he concluded not to exercise an option given him to take stock, evidence was properly admitted that defendants transferred to plaintiff as security the claim of an oil company; such evidence tending to corroborate plaintiff's contention that he was to have security. Burchill v. Hermansmeyer (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 899.

In suit to recover money paid for oil stock on the ground of fraud, plaintiff's testimony as to what defendants told him in regard to another company's being after the oil property was inadmissible on the issue of fraud, in the absence of evidence that such statements on the part of defendants were false. Id.

121. Undue Influence and Mental Incapacity.—In suit on promissory note and to foreclose vendor's lien, court properly admitted plaintiff's testimony that third person excluded by him to land to land in controversy of sound mind, but was confined in insane asylum as habitual drunkard, etc. Baldwin v. Drew (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 636.

Where will was asserted to be result of undue influence, evidence that a few months after its execution, testatrix and proponent indulged in unnatural and illicit intercourse, is admissible to overcome presumption of validity of will arising from testatrix's failure to revoke or destroy it before her death. Beadle v. McCrab (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 355.

In an action on premises of testatrix after death, taken in connection with evidence as to her use of drugs, held admissible on question of condition of her mind. Id.

Evidence that proponent, a married man who had taken up his residence with testatrix, had regulated her household affairs, etc., is admissible on question of whether her will was result of undue influence. Id.

In suit by husband and wife to cancel their oil and gas lease, testimony tending to show a weakened bodily and mental capacity on the part of the husband when he signed the lease was relevant on the issue of any duress on the part of the other party procuring execution; that being the issue. Turner v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 234 S. W. 292.

In an action by heirs of a decedent to set aside a conveyance to two of his children on the ground that it was induced by undue influence, etc., a deed of rescission, thereafter executed by deceased, is admissible in evidence. Kirby v. Kessler (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 277.

The will in favor of two only of testator's children, B. and W., having stated as a reason for excluding the others from participation that he had already advanced to W. than to any of the others is admissible on the issue of undue influence by W., to show an unjust and unnatural discrimination; likewise, in connection with such evidence, evidence that at time of execution of will W. had considerable property and the children excluded practically nothing. Walker v. Irby (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 351.

122. Nuisance.—In a suit to restrain the operation of a cotton gin as a nuisance, evidence that the ordinary cotton gin makes and scatters dust, dirt, and lint, and makes a certain amount of noise in its operation, was admissible. Moore v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 215.

In suit to enjoin erection of lumber yard buildings as nuisance, allegation that yard would constitute nuisance did not justify admission of testimony that yard would draw flies, rats, and cockroaches, and invite tramps, etc. Shamburger v. Scheurrer (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1069.

In an action against city for damages by flooding caused by dam erected to secure city water supply, evidence as to necessity for dam held improperly received. Moore v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 870.

123. Damages.—In action against railroad for death of plaintiffs' minor son, testimony concerning plaintiffs' pecuniary condition was admissible as bearing on their reasonable expectation of aid from their son. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Slioman (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 321.

In action against a railway company for injuries to residence property resulting from construction of side track, it was proper to allow plaintiff to testify as to cost of building residence. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 555.

In action against a railway company for injury to residence property resulting from maintenance of side track, testimony as to market value of property, including improvements just prior to and immediately after acts complained of, was admissible. Id.

In action to recover for breach of contract to ship good pickings the difference between contract price and market price of goods received at time and place received, evidence of shipper's costs of goods received is properly excluded, on cross-examination, as irrelevant. Robinson v. S. Samuels & Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 898.

In action for delay in transportation of hogs to be exhibited, evidence showing probability of plaintiff having won prize money is admissible. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 322.

In abutting owner's action for damages from construction of street railroad viaduct occupying part of street, evidence that it prevented improvement on that side of street, or damages due to act of abutting owner, was admissible on question of damages. Southern Traction Co. v. Fears (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 856.

In action for conversion of note, contract under which it could have been exchanged for cash and land, held relevant, material, and admissible. Farmers' State Guaranty Bank v. Pierson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 424.

In action for death of adult son, evidence that son had stated that he was going away to work a few weeks for spending money because he received no pay from plaintiffs, and that he intended to stay with plaintiffs, parents, until their death, was admissible on issue of parents' expectancy of future aid from son. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 778.

In suit by parents for death of adult son, evidence that father was suffering with typhoid fever nine years before, from which he had never fully recovered, was admissible since it showed that father was in such condition as to require services of son. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 778.

In an action on contract of guaranty, evidence of expenses incurred by guarantor in procuring a change of venue was immaterial, where the issues were as to the scope of the contract, which was in writing and unambiguous. Cooper Grocery Co. v. Nebbett (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 365.

In suit against railroad for damages from fire destroying fruit and shade trees in rear of plaintiff's residence, testimony was admissible to show value before injury and extent of injury. Stephevnille, N. & S. T. Ry. Co. v. Baker (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 365.

In action against innkeeper for loss of travelling salesman's grip from his custody, letter of district attorney notifying plaintiff company owning grip that goods recovered from thief were admissible to show that it was delivered by thief and to show extent of liability. W. R. Case & Sons Cutlery Co. v. Canode (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 350.

In an action against a carrier for damages to a shipment of cattle, evidence as to the difference in market value of the cattle in the condition in which they arrived, and in "good condition," held admissible. Baker v. Herndon (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 165.

In an action by insurance agent for breach of an employment contract where he had the exclusive right to represent the company in 43 wealthy and populous counties, evidence of profits the agent had made held a sufficiently accurate standard to enable the jury to estimate the amount of profit the agent would have received under the contract had employer not breached it. Merchants' Life Ins. Co. v. Griswold (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 957.

In action for damage to shipment of cattle, evidence as to the condition of the cattle at the time of their sale, ten days or two weeks after arrival at destination, was admissible as tending to show the actual and real condition of the cattle and the true extent of the damages sustained. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Hill (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 962.

Upon the issue of negligence of bank in accepting check of drawee of draft attached to bills of lading in payment of the draft, testimony that the bills of lading were forged was admissible to show they were worthless. Central Exch. Nat. Bank of Waco v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 660.

In an action against a railroad company for damages resulting from the burning of grass, evidence as to the amount of hay plaintiff could have cut from the land the grass burned was admissible. Plaintiff was entitled to have the damages assessed by the extent of the injury to the grass and land for any lawful purpose. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 430.

In an action against the city for damages to real property resulting from street improvement, permitting the city to show the character of other houses in the neighborhood, and not limiting it to evidence as to plaintiffs' houses, held not error, in view of the wide scope allowed to both parties in the matter of evidence. Ritchey v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 214.

In an action by a widow against her father-in-law to recover damages for the burial of her husband's body contrary to her wishes, evidence of her unchastity is admissible on the issue of damages. Foster v. Foster (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 215.

In an action for death, evidence that one of the children of deceased was going to school when his father was killed and afterwards went to work, and that deceased had supported his family by labor, was not improper as immaterial and calculated to arouse sympathy. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. McGill (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 659.

In an action to recover damages for mental anguish suffered from failure to promptly deliver a telegram announcing the illness of plaintiff's mother, court did not err in permitting plaintiff to testify that she was especially devoted to her mother. Western Union v. Gresham (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1061.

In an action to recover damages for mental anguish suffered from failure to promptly deliver a telegram, announcing the illness of plaintiff's mother, who died before plaintiff received the message, court properly permitted plaintiff to testify that she was paralyzed by her inability to reach her mother; the condition of mind expressed by the term "awfully nervous" being a natural condition produced by a realization that she would be unable to see her mother alive. Id.
In an action under federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665) for death of a man who had previously acted as locomotive engineer, evidence showing decedent's probable chance of being again employed as engineer and the wages he would then receive is admissible. Hines v. Walker (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 837.

Where plaintiff claimed his cattle had been depreciated in value during transit by defendant railroad exposing them to ticks and fever, testimony regarding the result of exposing cattle to such diseases is admissible. Hines v. Davis (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 862.

In determining the damages to purchaser for fraud, the purchaser is not bound by the price at which the vendor sold stock given by the purchaser in exchange for the property, but is entitled to credit for the value of the stock as shown by the evidence. Dingman v. Fahl (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 446.

Personal injuries.—In action for injuries, evidence as to purpose of operation performed on plaintiff's nose held competent on question of nature and extent of injuries and pain and suffering endured. Southern Pac. Co. v. Eckenfels (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1963.

In action for injuries at interurban railroad's crossing, it was proper and material for plaintiff to show his inability to use his leg after the accident, and showing was not necessarily objectionable because it appeared on voir dire examination that plaintiff had been subjected to another accident. Southern Transact Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 150.

In an action for personal injury, plaintiff's testimony as to his income during a period of from 3 to 10 years preceding the accident was admissible, not as a measure of damages, but as a guide in enabling the jury to determine what kind of remuneration would be open to plaintiff in a business he understood, and would and could resume were he not prevented by his injuries. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harling (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 207.

In an action for death, court properly permitted proof that efficiency of deceased as a stenographer was increasing, and would probably increase in future, so that her earning capacity would be greater than at time of her death. Ward v. Cathey (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 258.

In an action by an injured brakeman against railroad receivers, testimony of plaintiff that he was in line of promotion from brakeman to conductor was admissible. Lancaster v. Hynes (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 957.

In an action for personal injuries sustained by the station agent of one railroad while assisting employés of another in handling freight, plaintiff's testimony as to the treatment he underwent and the pain and suffering caused thereby held admissible on the issue of damages. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Jackman (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 410.

In a brakeman's action for injuries against the federal director general of railroads, his testimony that in the railroad service there was a promotion that a brakeman could reasonably look forward to, that to the position of freight conductor, and specifying the wages of such a conductor, was admissible in view of his proof of reasonable chance of promotion. Hines v. Glasgow (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1114.

In an action for personal injuries suffered by plaintiff when the automobile in which she was riding ran into an iron bar extending from a railroad car, where plaintiff asserted that because of her injuries she was unable to accompany as a nurse a patient for whom she had been caring, evidence that plaintiff was an inmate of a disorderly house, which could contradict her statement that she was nursing a victim therein, was properly excluded; plaintiff seeking no damages on account of outraged feelings or sensibilities. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ristine (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 515.

In an action for personal injuries sustained by plaintiff, struck by defendant's railroad train at a railroad crossing, evidence as to property owned by plaintiff, consisting of live stock and land, was admissible to show the extent and character of plaintiff's business and the pecuniary loss resulting from the injuries which prevented his looking after and attending to his property and affairs. Baker v. Streeter (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1029.

In an action for personal injuries sustained by plaintiff by being struck by defendant's railroad train at a crossing, admission of evidence as to property owned by plaintiff, consisting of land and live stock, held not erroneous as calculated to prejudice the jury against defendant, and as showing that plaintiff was a man of wealth, and that it would require a large sum to compensate him. 1d.

In an action for the death of a locomotive fireman, brought under the federal law, evidence that deceased was in line of promotion from fireman to engineer is admissible on issue of damages. Payne v. Allen (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 148.

In an action against a city for injuries to a jitney bus passenger, when the car left the street and plunged into a ravine, testimony of the injured passenger, a woman, that the bones of her nose were broken, the roof of her mouth pushed up to the top of her nose, and she was chattering, as well as also the testimony of a medical witness to the same effect, plaintiff having sought to recover for mental anguish and suffering, the result of the disfiguring injuries which she described. City of Dallas v. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 429.

RULE 6. FACTS ARE RELEVANT WHEN SO CONNECTED WITH A FACT IN ISSUE AS TO FORM PART OF THE SAME TRANSACTION OR SUBJECT-MATTER

Relation to issues in general.—A prenatal congenital malformation of skull of one person is not evidence that an abnormal condition somewhat similar in the skull of another... other is not due to postnatal injury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1149.

In suit for personal injuries to pedestrian, struck by swinging door on passing train, testimony for plaintiff that witness had seen loose and swinging car doors at other times and on other cars was admissible, to show that it was not unusual or improbable for a car door to be loose and swinging. Lam S. W. 772.

In an action for damages for breach of a contract leasing land to plaintiff on shares, it was competent for plaintiff to show, for the purpose of ascertaining the damages occasioned by the breach, the character and amount of crops raised on the land during previous years it had been cultivated by the plaintiff. Williams v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 981.

Profits in business depend on many contingencies, and past profits can only in exceptional cases be taken as a basis for estimating what profits would have been made, except for defendants' wrongful act. Walker v. Kellar (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 792.

In trespass to try title, where it appeared that survey made when plaintiff's predecessor acquired title was erroneous, evidence that surveyor, in making survey of other tracts, never discovered any breaks in the line as claimed was immaterial and properly excluded. Swann v. Mills (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 850.

In action involving validity of trust created by will for erection and maintenance of hospital as against contention that the estate was not sufficient for the maintenance and erection of such hospital, testimony as to the cost of other hospitals in other cities held admissible on the question of the expense of equipment and maintenance of hospitals. Jones' Unknown Heirs v. Dorchester (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 596.

In a father's action for custody of his child, testimony of his attending a dance while the child's mother was sick, at a time when they were living apart, would only show lack of affection for his wife, now deceased, which was not an issue, and would not prove his lack of love for the child, and was inadmissible. Clayton v. Kerby (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1117.

Difference in time.—In action for damages from fire from defendant's locomotive, evidence of price paid for pasturage during one season was no criterion by which to arrive at market value of grass for pasturage at time of fire during following year, where there was no showing that pasturage at time of fire contained grass of like kind and quality, or of same value. W. R. Pickering Lumber Co. v. Childresse (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 573.

Evidence, in action for price of articles, of their condition at time of trial, as not complying with contract, is admissible, in connection with evidence that they were in same condition as when received. J. Kennard & Sons Carpet Co. v. Houston Hotel Ass'n (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1139.

Where goods were shipped, destination weights and grades being guaranteed by shipper, proof of weights at point of shipment, when not followed by other evidence showing there could have been no change in the weight after the car left the point of shipment, was inadmissible to show what the weights were at destination. D. S. Cage & Co. v. Amsler (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1094.

Associated or explanatory transactions.—In an action by a servant for injury from explosion, the testimony of another servant, tending to support defendant's theory that plaintiff received no shock, for the reason that witness did not, although closer to the explosion, was erroneously excluded. Abilene Steam Laundry Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 571.

In an action involving whether a bank had received a draft by mail on or before May 1st, letter containing draft being found in bank some time later, no one knowing when letter had arrived, evidence that many persons other than plaintiff had called at bank demanding delivery of checks contained in the same letter was material; the banker undertook to show facts to demonstrate that his attention before May 1st was called to the loss or delay of the letter; the fact that many persons were demanding checks tending to make bank employés observe all mail until the envelope was found, and tendency to show that the letter must have arrived and been mislaid prior to May 1st, was material. Texas Co. v. Wimberly (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 596.

Similar wrongful acts.—In action for damages in collision with automobile, compelling defendant to testify that he had been sued for a similar collision, held error. Mumme v. Sutherland (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 395.

Evidence of other negligent acts on the part of plaintiff, unconnected with the accident involved, is inadmissible to raise an inference that he was negligent at the time of the accident. American Automobile Ins. Co. v. Struwe (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 534.

In a bank's suit on a note, wherein defendant maker did not claim that his signature was forged, but only that the amount written in by the bank's cashier, who had full authority from defendant to fill such blank to cover an overdraft, was fraudulent, testimony of a witness that other fraudulent entries, unconnected with defendant and his note, were found in the books of the bank, and had been made by the cashier, held inadmissible as irrelevant. Gore v. Uvalde Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 629.

In an action wherein damages were sought for fraud, in that a seller of land represented that an irrigation plant would supply sufficient water, testimony as to statement to such effect, made to third persons, was admissible, being a representation involving the same character of fraud as that alleged in the action. Wortman v. Young (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 660.

In an action to cancel an oil and gas lease, where proper taking of acknowledgment by notary was in issue, evidence as to notary's failure to comply with the statutes in taking acknowledgments of other married women held not relevant. Richmond v. Hog Creek Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 563.
Similar transactions.—In action against railroad for failure to furnish car within a reasonable time after application therefor, as required by Interstate Commerce Act (U. S. Comp. St. § 5660, subd. 2), evidence that defendant railroad furnished another shipper a similar car on a subsequent application before car was furnished plaintiff was admissible in evidence of unreasonable delay. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Strickland (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 416.

In an action for burning fodder where the railroad pleaded contributory negligence in stacking the fodder near the track without protection, the admission of evidence that plaintiff had similarly stacked fodder on the same premises for years before time of the fire was inadmissible. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 339.

Exclusion as res inter alios acta.—Letters exchanged between defendants are not admissible against plaintiff, they not being attached to a deposition, nor the facts stated therein sworn to by any witness. Patterson & Roberts v. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1162.

Where defendant counterclaimed for plaintiff’s breach of contract to rent to him agricultural land on shares, evidence as to controversies between plaintiff and other tenants concerning leasing of his land is inadmissible. Lott v. Ballew (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 845.

In action for assault and battery, it would not have been proper to admit testimony, even on plaintiff’s cross-examination, with reference to difficulties he might have had with other persons in no manner connected with defendant, and at other times. Hall v. Hayter (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 436.

In suit to recover an amount paid under false representations for cancellation of an oil and gas lease, testimony of third persons that when defendant obtained leases from them no representations were made except those contained in the contract, which did not permit a drilling contractor to obtain a well at a specified time, was properly excluded. Ware v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 593.

In action to cancel oil and gas lease on ground of alterations in instrument after delivery, court did not err in refusing to permit defendant assignees to give evidence of other leases taken by lessee with other parties in the same vicinity, the purpose being to show that the same erasures and interlineations appear in them as in the lease in question. Smith v. Fleming (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 136.

Similarity of conditions.—In action for damages to plaintiff’s land from erection of a dam, admission of evidence as to flooding of other lands on stream in time of high water was improper, whereas it was not shown that those lands were subject to the same conditions as plaintiff’s. Moore v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 870.

In action against railroad for failure to furnish car within a reasonable time after application therefor, as required by Interstate Commerce Act (U. S. Comp. St. § 5660, subd. 2), evidence that defendant applied to another railroad for a similar car which was furnished in less time than that in which defendant furnished car was inadmissible, where it was not shown that conditions with reference to the two orders were the same. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Strickland (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 410.

In an action for breach of contract to lease land for a certain year, evidence as to the amount of crops raised on the land during previous years, when cultivated by plaintiff, was immaterial and not pertinent, in the absence of proof of the terms upon which plaintiff rented the premises for the year in question. Williams v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 981.

In action for death of locomotive fireman caused by defects in a spur track, admitting proof of defects at other points than where the accident occurred, was not erroneous where it was shown the track was in the same condition throughout its entire length. Hines v. Walker (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 837.

Showing intent or malice or motive.—When the intention with which an act is done is in issue, evidence of other acts of the party is admissible, but such acts must be of a similar character connected with the transaction under consideration at the time so that they may be regarded as part of the system. Smith v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 27.

Where two original policies were applied for and issued at the same time, the two policies being deemed such as were unrelated to waiver or forfeiture for nonpayment of premiums when due would be inadmissible, upon the question of intent to later waive the forfeiture of either policy, and of another policy to which one of them was intended to be converted. Dunkin v. Zeta Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 691.

— Fraud.—In action to rescind sale of real estate and cancel deeds on ground of fraud, evidence that defendant was guilty of similar acts and conduct at or about same time held admissible to explain motive. Posey v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 731.

When the intent with which a fraudulent act is done becomes material, it is competent to prove other fraudulent acts, strictly similar, to explain the real purpose moving the perpetrator of the wrong, by measuring him by the standard of his similar frauds connected in point of time with the transaction under investigation, systematically excluding in his dealing with either party similarly situated. Goree v. Uvalde Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 620.

In an action for damages for fraud in inducing plaintiff to lease lands, testimony as to to defendants’ statements to witnesses who leased lands at the same time was admissible to show intent. Moorman v. Small (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 137.

Custom or course of business and part of series showing system or habit.—In suit by buyer of cotton for seller’s failure to deliver, seller defending on ground contract was illegal as a dealing in futures, testimony that about the time the contract was made the witnesses and the buyer made like contracts, the witnesses being told that no delivery need be made, but only a money settlement, was admissible. Puckett v. Wilson Bros. Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 642.

In an action for damages by one tarred and feathered in May, 1918, on account of his attitude towards the Red Cross, evidence that plaintiff refused to join the Red Cross in December, 1917, was admissible as one of a series of acts tending to show that plaintiff was unpatriotic calculated to arouse anger. Walker v. Kellar (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 792.

In action by purchaser to rescind for false representations, evidence as to false representations that certain neighbors of purchaser had purchased lots and had resold them to other neighbors held admissible to show a system to defraud purchaser. Masrir v. Milam (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 302.

In action on note defended on ground that payee had taken, in payment of balance of note, stock in certain corporation of which he had been named a director, where payee denied knowledge that he had been named a director in such corporation, testimony of another named director that he had no knowledge of having been so named, held admissible in corroboration and as showing the method and scheme in launching the corporation. Weaver v. Parks (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 513.

Other injuries or accidents from same or similar causes.—Upon question of duty to maintain outlook, testimony that other animals had been killed or struck by defendant traction company's cars at or near the crossing where plaintiff's animal was killed was admissible to show that defendant and its employees knew that animals were running at large in the vicinity of the crossing. Jefferson County Traction Co. v. Giles (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 224.

In action against a feed company for death of a horse, alleged to be due to poison in feed, being known to have been killed, it was proper to show veterinarian to testify that, when he called to see plaintiff's horse, four of them were sick; the horse in question being one of the four. W. T. Wilson Grain Co. v. Fitch (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 556.

In action for death of husband due to his receiving electric shock while attempting to connect electric iron to socket in his residence, evidence as to electric shocks received by others in their homes a few days before the death of deceased was admissible; electricity being supplied to others through same transformer. Texas Power & Light Co. v. Vistow (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 702.

In an action for damages to shipment of stock by reason of negligent delay and improper bedding, it was permissible for plaintiff to testify as to whether he ever had any cattle killed in the same quantity at any other time when shipped over defendant's road. Ft. Worth & H. Ry. Co. v. Hasse (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 448.

Showing value—Sales of other property in general.—Proof that other notes and accounts belonging to bankrupt estate had been sold in territory does not, in action for breach of agreement to transfer to plaintiff notes and accounts of bankrupt purchased by defendant, establish any market value for such property. Taylor v. Lafevers (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 651.

In arriving at the value of an oil lease on ten acres, it was not improper to admit evidence of price of fractions of acres sold adjoining such land. Peden Iron & Steel Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 189.

In a railroad's condemnation proceedings, the owner of the land was properly permitted to testify to sales of land four or five miles from his own, against objection that there was no showing whether the sales were for cash or credit, or whether there were any improvements on the lands sold, where the owner stated that there were no improvements on one tract sold, except a small box house, etc. Gulf & Interstate Ry. Co. of Texas v. Stephenson (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 215.

In an action against a railroad company for damages, the contention that the value of the grass land should be determined by what rental of other leases paid for pasture land was untenable, since what plaintiff and others paid per acre may or may not have been the value of the land for pasturage or other purposes at the time of making the rental contract, and at the time of the fire the value of the grass might have been more or less than the rental price. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 430.

Value of other property.—In action for one-half of rice crop alleged to have been damaged in transit, testimony as to condition at destination of other half shipped over same route was inadmissible, where proof failed to show that it was handled similarly to that in controversy. Gulf Coast Transp. Co. v. Standard Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 574.

In arriving at the value of a certain oil lease at a certain time, it was proper to show the value of a similar adjoining lease, the conditions regarding the two leases, improvements, quality, etc., being alike, and what the adjoining lease could have been sold for under the existing conditions. Peden Iron & Steel Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 180.

RULE 9. THE BEST EVIDENCE IS TO BE PRODUCED

3. Necessity and admissibility of best evidence—Existence of better evidence.—In a father's action for custody of a child, evidence of his general reputation as to being unkind to the child was inadmissible, since such fact is susceptible of better proof. Clayton v. Kerby (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1117.

5. Statutes of writing, and facts or transactions described in or evidenced thereby.—In a suit to recover half interest in land by one claiming as heir by adoption, parol admissions by adopting parent held admissible over objection that written instrument of adoption was best evidence. Lane v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1018.

8. — Ownership, possession or control.—Testimony that witness was present and knew of the transaction by which his father acquired title to land, it being asserted that the deed had been lost since the father's death, cannot be excluded as an effort to prove conveyance of real estate by parol testimony. Martinez v. Brunî (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 655.

In trespass to try title there was no error in refusing to allow a witness to testify that the lands involved were regarded by the entire family of the defendant and plaintiff as being owned by plaintiff, and not by defendant; titles to lands being fixed by deeds and other muniments of title. Vaello v. Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1082.

9. — Judicial acts, proceedings and records.—The judicial proceedings of a foreign court may be proven, as at common law, by testimony of competent witnesses. Nease v. Broadwater Mercantile Co. (Civ.App.) 206 S. W. 692.

The record of proceedings of commissioners' court, adjourned by its minutes, may not be challenged by testimony of a commissioner indicating the court's intent that an approved minute entry should provide for receiving bids for county work on a certain day, as stated in the minutes, as the court, being a court of record, speaks through its minutes. Headice v. Fryer (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 213.

Where judgment debtor was disclaiming ownership of property levied on, an objection to question as to whether he did his own name, or on the ground that the tax rolls were the best evidence, was erroneously sustained. Id.

Whether a sheriff's deed was executed by virtue of the requisite authority may be established by competent secondary evidence, and the question is not foreclosed by the fact that the execution docket contains no entry of the issuance of an order of sale. Richards v. Rule (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 912.

The plat filed as a part of the description of a survey by the original surveyor, showing a river to be the southern boundary of the survey, is the best of evidence that the river is such boundary in fact. Burkett v. Chestnut (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 271.

In a quo warranto proceeding to determine title to the office of county judge, where there was positive proof of the existence of the ballots, it was improper to permit the voters to testify as to how they voted, because such testimony was secondary evidence not admissible without accounting for absence of the best evidence. Griffith v. State (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 469.

In action involving validity of Indian allottee's deed because of infancy, the Indian's testimony as to his age at time of execution of deed was inadmissible, under Act Cong. May 27, 1909, making enrollment records of the Commissioner of the Five Civilized Tribes conclusive evidence as to age of the freedmen of such tribes. Langford v. Newsom (Com. App.) 220 S. W. 544, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Newsom v. Langford, 174 S. W. 1036.

A ceremonial marriage may be proved by the testimony of eyewitnesses, without the production of the marriage certificate or explanation of its absence. Lopez v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 695.

In a prosecution for embezzlement, if the postmaster had an independent recollection that defendant had made certain remittances through money orders issued by him, his testimony on the subject should have been received. Grice v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 172.

In trespass to try title, record of a certificate of the secretary of state, to the effect that charter was granted to a land and trust company on a specified date, and that no charter had ever been granted to a land and trust company of a name slightly different, was not an instrument required or permitted by law to be recorded by the county clerk, the original was not an archive of his office, and its record amounted to no more than a certified copy made by the clerk of the certificate of the secretary of state, hence it was not the best evidence of the fact sought to be proven. Bomar v. Runge (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 287.

11. — Corporate acts, proceedings and records.—An action against a surety company on an indemnity bond originally executed by another company, but reinsured by defendant company, a letter, written by surety company, stating that it had reinsured bond, although not the best evidence of the assumption of the obligation, was competent evidence thereof. American Surety Co. v. Camp (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 798.

In shipper's action for damage to live stock, testimony as to contents of official Railway Equipment Register was not admissible to prove capacity of cars, over objection that it was not best evidence. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Sanderson (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 540.

Court did not err in permitting witness to testify as to the demise of a subordinate lodge; there being nothing to Indicate that it was demised by formal resolution, or that any minutes or memoranda of such demise was ever made. Ross v. Sutter (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 273.

12. — Conveyances, contracts and other instruments.—Since a lease itself is the best evidence of its contents, statements by lessee as to the contents of the lease are inadmissible as secondary evidence. Green v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 471.

In an action by members of a truck growers' association for breach of a contract to furnish crates, the written, signed, and accepted contract itself was the best evidence as to the number of crates to be delivered and as to the time of delivery. May.
15. Parol evidence was not admissible to show the description of property intended to be conveyed in an assignment of an oil lease, which omitted the legal description, where no reason was shown why the lease itself, either the original or a certified copy, was not tendered in evidence. Towend v. Day (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 273.

16. Books of account, private memoranda, statements and correspondence.—In action to enforce materialman's lien, deposition as to items furnished, given by one familiar with shipments, held admissible over objection that original books of entry would have been the best evidence. Fox v. Christopher & Simpson Iron Works Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 833.

In an action involving book accounts as evidence of the value of a business transferred, plaintiff's testimony that the business was worth "around $14,000" held not subject to exclusion on objection that it was the conclusion of the witness and that the volume of the business that was done would be reflected by the books, which would be the best evidence, where it appears that the books which plaintiff testified he kept were in evidence and were accessible to defendants. Cochran v. Hamblen (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 374.

In an action on a note given by one copartner to another, where it was asserted that over $50,000 had been charged to the payee copartner for which the maker had not accounted, and drafts and checks claimed to have been charged to the payee's account were introduced in connection with the payee's testimony, the entire bank account of the payee was admissible, despite the contention that it was not the best evidence, to show that checks and drafts were not charged to his account as claimed. Gray v. Stolar (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 866.

17. Fact of making or existence of writing.—In suit against notary and sureties by buyer of land for damages from notary's having taken certificate of acknowledgment to deed without knowledge of identity of party who acknowledged, where there was no dispute that purported owner of land executed and delivered a deed from himself to plaintiff for $4,000 unnecessary to offer it in evidence itself to prove existence. Brittain v. Monsur (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 911.

18. Writings collateral to issues.—In a habeas corpus proceeding to obtain the custody of petitioner's child, proof that plaintiff was prosecuted for desertion was properly permitted by parol, the question being: "Was there a criminal prosecution against you for desertion, for deserting this baby and wife, wasn't there?" although the plaintiff went further and testified that he was convicted; the contents of the indictment and judgment not being made an issue directly by the question asked. Burchard v. Woodward (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 707.

When the amount of an insurance company's deposit in a bank is merely a collateral issue in a suit between the insurance company and the bank as bearing on the manner of remitting the renewal premium paid to the bank to the insurance company, the cashier of the bank can testify to the amount of such deposit if he has personal knowledge thereof, without producing the books or deposit slips. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Elmore (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 799.

Declarations and admissions of a grantor against interest as to the contents of the instrument are receivable without producing it or accounting for its absence when no question arises as to its execution, but where its execution is directly involved declarations by the grantor of its execution are inadmissible in the absence of proof of its execution or existence. Sanders v. Lane (Com. App.) 227 S. W. 946.

19. Original writing as best evidence.—Copies in general.—An original or duplicate copy of a writing or record of title in the custody of the party from whom it is claimed to be derived was admissible in evidence. Ross v. Sutter (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 273.

19. Original writing as best evidence.—Letters and telegrams.—Copy of telegram received by one party purporting to have been sent by another is not admissible, being secondary evidence. Couch v. Biggers (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1101.

20. Public records or documents.—Copies of letters found in the archives of a Mexican town held admissible in evidence, after admission of evidence as to genuineness of the originals, as compared copies to show equitable title in the grantee from a Mexican state prior to the ceding of the territory by Mexico, in an action in trespass to try title. Kenedy Pasture Co. v. State (Sup.) 231 S. W. 683.

21. Grounds for admission of secondary evidence.—In action for cattle feed sold, where defendant was accountable for confusion in plaintiff's books, secondary evidence of amount furnished held admissible. Avery v. Llano Cotton Seed Oil Mill Ass'n (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 351.

22. Preliminaries to admission of secondary evidence.—In action upon an accident policy classifying insured as a traveling salesman, for which the rate was $20 per year, providing that rates fixed and filed with insurance department should control, testimony that a witness knew the rate, where it was not shown that proposed rate was so fixed and filed, or that it could not be obtained from insurance department, was properly excluded. Metropolitan Casualty Ins. Co. v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 856.

In an action by a paving contractor for damages against the seller of a defective cement mixer, copies of the written contracts between plaintiff and the city for paving held admissible in evidence over objection that they were secondary evidence; proper predicate having been laid by the testimony of the mayor of the city that the contracts introduced were the reduction to writing of those awarded plaintiff, etc. Standard Scale & Supply Co. v. Chaplin (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 645.

25. — Proof as to existence of primary evidence.—In an action of trespass to try title, testimony that the witness saw a deed to his father held sufficient predicate to warrant evidence of contents of the lost deed, particularly as the whole subject was finally submitted to the jury. Martinez v. Bruni (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 655.

28. Character and degrees of secondary evidence.—The fact that the best evidence of a written contract is not available, and that proper predicate has been laid for secondary evidence, does not alter the rule that recital in a sheriff's deed is not competent evidence of his power to sell. Richards v. Rule (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 912.

30. - Subscribing witnesses.—In trespass to try title, depending upon whether a deed was forged, where it appeared that the deed was destroyed, and the parties, witnesses, and notary had died, declaration by a witness that an attesting witness said he had seen the grantor sign the deed, in corroboration of other testimony, was not inadmissible as hearsay. Rodgers v. Bell (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 639.

32. — Copies and counterparts.—In action for conversion of ore, deed executed after suit brought, showing it was executed in lieu of prior deed, which had been lost, was admissible in support of evidence plaintiff's purchase of claim had been made prior to attempted relocation by defendants. Kelvin Lumber & Supply Co. v. Copper State Mining Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 63.

A paper being lost so that it could be proved by parol, a written statement of its contents, made at time of its examination by witness who could swear was correct, was admissible. Sandmeyer v. Doolis (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 113.

The original of a letter showing terms of contract could not be produced, carbon copy held v. Snelting (Bay Lumber Co. v. S. W. 763.

The rule applied to admission in evidence of ordinary copies and letterpress copies also applies to carbon copies. Givens v. Turner (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 403.

Carbon or buttorn's sheets were not admissible as duplicate originals where the originals were partly printed and partly typewritten, the carbon copies not including the printed portion. Id.

33. — Sufficiency.—Evidence, if sufficient to show the existence and destruction of a deed from plaintiff's ancestor to defendant's predecessor, held insufficient to support a finding that it covered the section in controversy. Hutchinson v. Massie (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 695.

34. — Records.—As there is no statutory requirement in Texas that a sheriff's deed shall contain a recital of the authority under which it is executed, such recital is not competent secondary evidence of the sheriff's power to sell. Richards v. Rule (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 912.

RULE 10. SECONDARY EVIDENCE OF THE CONTENTS OF A WRITING IS ADMIS­SIBLE WHEN THE PAPER IS IN THE HANDS OF THE OPPOSITE PARTY AND NOTICE TO PRODUCE IT HAS BEEN GIVEN

Proof as to possession or control of primary evidence.—Admitting testimony that notices of mechanic's lien claim had been mailed to property owner, held not erroneous, where mailing was shown by registered mail return receipts and originals were found in possession of defendant property owner or his agent. Cruz v. Texas Glass & Paint Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 618.

Where a warehouseman asserted that the contract of storage was contained in a receipt delivered by him to plaintiffs and plaintiffs, on being notified to produce, denied having received such receipt, a carbon copy of the original is admissible. Kahn v. Cole (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 556.

Plaintiff may testify to the contents of his deed to defendant, claimed to be a mortgage; it not being in plaintiff's possession but having been left with defendant, who, though given notice to produce it at the trial, failed to do so. Mercer v. McMurry (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 696.

In an action on a beneficial certificate against a fraternal order which had assumed the insurance contracts of the order which decedent originally joined, under the facts tending to show that the original contract of merger between the two orders was executed in duplicate, and one copy filed with the Commissioner of Insurance pursuant to art. 4841, and defendant ordered at any rate having been notified to produce the original contract on trial, or that secondary evidence would be offered, the agreement of merger produced in court and certified to by the commissioner held admissible, as well as the agreement transcribed in the minutes of the order which decedent originally joined, which two instruments, together with certain oral testimony as to the adoption of the contract by the two orders, established it as made. Independent Order of Purity v. Brown (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 939.

Notice to produce primary evidence.—Necessity in general.—A notice to produce a writing may be excused where from the nature of the proceeding the pleadings and the like, knowledge by the other party of the fact that the instrument will be required will be presumed, in which case a failure to produce it will, without notice, enable its proponent to introduce other evidence of its contents. Givens v. Turner (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 468.
In a suit involving an accounting in which plaintiff pleaded that certain sales of cotton had been made to him, certain cotton delivered, and that the "outturns" were as shown by exhibit attached to his pleading, defendant must have known that plaintiff would charge him with possession of all original notices of confirmation and statements of "outturns" sent him, and that the instruments would be required in order to locate the original writings contemplated by the pleadings, and, hence plaintiff was properly permitted to introduce evidence of their contents without having given defendant notice to produce the writings. Id.

To produce a writing may be excused where from the pleadings knowledge by the other party of the fact that the instrument will be required will be presumed, in which case a failure to produce it will, without notice, enable its proponent to introduce other evidence of its contents. Id.

A copy of an instrument was properly admitted in evidence, although the notice required by Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 3700, was not given, and the original was not filed among the papers, where plaintiff alleged that such instrument had been recorded and was in the possession of defendant, and called upon defendant to produce the same in court upon the trial. El Paso Townsite Co. v. Watts (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 769.

RULE 11. WHEN A WRITTEN INSTRUMENT IS LOST, DESTROYED OR MUTI­LATED, OR IS OUT OF REACH OF A SUBPRÆNA DUCES TECUM, SEC­ONDARY EVIDENCE IS ADMISSIBLE.

See James v. State (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 941.

Mutillation, destruction or loss of primary evidence—By party offering secondary evidence.—Where execution and loss of a lease are proved, an identified copy thereof is admissible. Fate v. Gallup (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1151.

After loss or destruction of original lease has been proved, testimony that original lease was duly executed and that instrument shown witness is true copy thereof is admissible. Id.

The rules governing secondary evidence of written instruments are fully complied with by proof that the deed was signed, acknowledged, and delivered to grantee, the names of the grantor and grantees, the property conveyed, and other contents, that it was lost before recording and could not be found after diligent search. Boedefeld v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1027.

In an action for personal injuries, plaintiff having proved loss of his state license to act as insurance agent, parol testimony of himself and wife that they had such license was admissible. Rick Furniture Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 99.

In proving a lost deed, it was not error to permit witnesses to testify that the instrument executed was a deed, though they did not give the language of the instrument, where they testified that it described the land in controversy, and two of the witnesses were lawyers, one of whom wrote the instrument, and the grantors testified that they did not afterwards claim the land. Fidelity Lumber Co. v. Adams (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 177.

Writings in general.—Where tax collector's original returns were burned by order of court, secondary evidence of their contents was admissible. Powell v. Archer County (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1037.

Testimony that one under whom plaintiff claimed executed a deed to defendant's father, that the deed with a box of jewelry was stolen, that the robbers were pursued to the borders of a foreign country, and that nothing was recovered, is a sufficient showing of loss and inability to produce the instrument. Martinez v. Bruni (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 655.

Affidavits filed to meet the statutory requirement of evidence of title when the assignee of the instrument applies for a duplicate certificate, which show that the original certificate had been transferred to claimant, but that the certificate and the transfers had been lost, are not objectionable as secondary evidence, a further showing that search in the land office for the original certificate would be unavailing being unnecessary. Magee v. Paul, 110 Tex. 470, 291 S. W. 254, answering certified questions (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 325, and answers conformed to (Civ. App.) 244 S. W. 1118.

Orders, warrants and negotiable instruments.—Proof of delivery of original invoice to another than the party seeking to introduce a copy thereof did not prove its loss, nor raise presumption in that respect, so as to lay proper predicate for admission of copy. Federal Ins. Co. v. Munden (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 917.

Proof as to destruction or loss of and search for primary evidence—Method of proof.—Evidence as to search held sufficient to establish loss of letter and to make secondary evidence of its contents admissible. Slaughter v. Morton (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 897.

In action by assignee of purchaser's interest under a contract to recover a purchaser's deposit, evidence held sufficient to show that original assignment was lost and to show proof of its execution. J. M. Frost & Sons' v. Cramer (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 833.

The method prescribed by art. 3700, of introducing written instruments in evidence without proving their execution as at common law, by filing affidavit before trial, does not make such a prerequisite to proving the execution of lost deed by subscribing and other competent witnesses. Boedefeld v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1027.

Whether the execution of an instrument of adoption is in issue, the acts and declarations of the adoptive party concerning its execution are inadmissible unless it be... first shown that the adoption paper or the record of it has been lost or destroyed. Sanders v. Lane (Com. App.) 227 S. W. 946.

Under art. 7749, in trespass to try title by heirs of a deceased wife against the purchaser from the surviving husband, who sold to pay community debts, certified copy of deed from the surviving husband to defendant purchaser held properly admitted in evidence, though there was no affidavit made to show loss of or inability to produce the original. Stone v. Light (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1108.

--- Letters and telegrams.---Evidence that person to whom letter had been written more than two years before the trial did not know where the letter was, but that he had not made a search for it because he did not keep his letters, and that it was probably destroyed, held proper predicate for admission of secondary evidence as to contents of letter. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Turner (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 383.

Primary evidence beyond the court's jurisdiction.---In an attorney's action against a bank for false, included in a judgment against a third person, recoverable by the bank, a carbon copy of plaintiff's letter to such third person was admissible where such person was dead, and his wife was beyond the court's jurisdiction, and had not been heard of for a year and a half. People's Sav. Bank v. Marrs (Civ. App.) 296 S. W. 847.

Determination of question of admissibility of secondary evidence.---Where sufficient predicate to allow testimony as to existence and loss of deed was laid in absence of jury, the refusal of the court to allow a rebutting witness to testify was not an abuse of discretion, as such witness would again have to be heard by the jury. Martinez v. Brunel (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 655.

RULE 12. THE BURDEN OF PROOF LIES ON THE PARTY ASSERTING A FACT ESSENTIAL TO HIS RIGHT OF ACTION OR DEFENSE AND PUT IN ISSUE BY THE PLEADINGS OF THE ADVERSE PARTY

I. Presumptions in general.

4. Presumption on presumption.---Pyramiding surmises and presumptions is not permissible. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore, Md., v. Fountain (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 675.

Presumption that officials do their duty would not supply proof that defendant collected or received salary, in the absence of the further presumption that money with which to pay the salary was available, and such train of presumptions would not be permissible under the rule that one presumption cannot be based upon another. Pease v. State (Com. App.) 268 S. W. 162.

In suit for taking of cattle claimed by one defendant as having been stolen from him and having passed to plaintiff, to make out defendant's ownership of the cattle, it was not sufficient to show that the V brand on the cattle was defendant's, established by circumstantial evidence and presumptions, the further conclusion that thief had made a change in ear marks to conceal theft. Stovall v. Martin (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 321.

5. Personal status and condition in general.---That defendant made deposit to credit of himself and another would raise no presumption that defendant and such other person were corporation. Krueger v. State, 82 Cr. R. 404, 199 S. W. 629.

In father's habeas corpus proceedings to secure custody of children, whom he has never supported, and to whom he has been cruel, it will not be presumed that the best interests of the children will be suberved by placing them in father's custody. State v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 718.

If a parent is not in any way disqualified to have the care and custody of his child, the law conclusively presumes that it is for the best interest of the child that he should have such custody. Clayton v. Kerhey (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1117.

7. Nature and condition of property or other subject-matter.---Surviving wife's right to remove husband's body after burial is subject to the right of the court to require reasonable cause to be shown therefor: the presumption being against a change. Curlin v. Curlin (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 682.

9. Love of life and avoidance of danger.---In action for death of pedestrian struck by train at crossing, the presumption that the deceased exercised ordinary care for his own protection and did not voluntarily place himself in a position of peril is proper to be considered by the jury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Luten (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 159.

In an action for death of automobilist at crossing, the presumption is, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that he took the ordinary precautions. Hines v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 889.

10. Innocence.---Unless the facts alleged clearly show that a contract was unlawful, it will be presumed that it did not violate the law. (Per Boyd, J.) California State Life Ins. Co. v. Krueg (Civ. App.) 266 S. W. 372. *

In an action under Federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665), for injuries to a railroad employee, caused by railroad's violation of Ash Pan Act (U. S. Comp. St. § 8624), it will be presumed that the ash pan placed on the locomotive complied with the requirements of the statute. Pe. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Smithers (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 637.

In a suit for divorce on the ground of the wife's adultery, the wife is entitled to the same presumption of innocence as if she were being prosecuted for the offense. McCravy v. McCravy (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 187.

14. Character.—On a denial of a divorce sought on the ground of infidelity of the wife, the charge is presumed to have been false, in view of the presumption of the chastity of a woman, in the absence of evidence to the contrary. Burchard v. Woodward (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 707.

13. Sanity.—Failure of respondent in lunacy proceedings to deny in habeas corpus proceeding brought by her that she is a lunatic was of no consequence; the presumption of law being that she was of sound mind. White v. White, 108 Tex. 570, 196 S. W. 568, L. R. A. 1918A, 339.

The question of waiver of breach of sale contract is mainly one of intention, and such intention cannot be inferred from acts performed under circumstances such as render the acts inventory of compulsory. Mayhew & Isbell Lumber Co. v. Valley Wells Truck Growers’ Ass’n (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 225.

Without evidence to the contrary, it will be presumed that both the carrier and the shipper knew the law as to validity of contract requiring shipper’s action on claim to be brought within six months after cause of action accrued. Chicago, R. I. & C. Ry. Co. v. Shroyer (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 773.

A stockholder purchasing bank stock is presumed to know the law imposing statutory liability on bank stockholders, under arts. 459, 522, and 556. Brooks v. Austin (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 722.

A purchaser of what purports to be county bonds is presumed to know the provisions of the law authorizing their issuance and is required to examine into the steps taken by the commissioners’ court in that respect, whether referred to on face of the bonds or not. Headlee v. Fryer (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 213.

Every man is presumed to know the law. Richardson v. Bermuda Land & Live Stock Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 746.

As a matter of law, one dealing with an agent must know that ordinarily such agent may not deliver to another in payment of his personal obligation his principal’s property. F. L. Shaw Co. v. Dalton Adding Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 833.

Persons dealing with a company to render it their debtor are not charged with knowledge of the facts relevant to the legality of its organization, but are chargeable with knowledge of the law, and in his subsequent suit the receiver of the company, a banking corporation, cannot assert ignorance by represented creditors of its illegality under Const. 1876, art. 16, § 16. Davis v. Allison, 109 Tex. 440, 211 S. W. 980.

It must be presumed that parties dealing with a milling company having a grain elevator knew the law that prohibited a public warehouseman from issuing warehouse receipts against its own property. New England Equitable Ins. Co. v. Mechanics’ American Nat. Bank of St. Louis (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 985.

A bank, purchasing road bonds under Loc. & Sp. Acts 33d Leg. (1913) c. 70, providing that such bonds be sold to the highest bidder for cash, must be held as matter of law to know that a sale and purchase of the bonds partly on credit, or deferred installment payments, was in violation of the law and void. People’s Guaranty State Bank of Tyler v. Castle (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 219.

Contracting parties are conclusively presumed to have entered into their contract with full knowledge of all existing laws upon the subject which may affect the validity, formation, performance, operation, discharge, interpretation, or enforcement thereof, and such laws enter into and become a part of the contract, binding the parties. Southland Life Ins. Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 254.

Parties to public contractor’s bond were presumed to know the provisions of art. 6344, requiring such a bond. Trinity Portland Cement Co. v. Lion Bonding & Surety Co. (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 483.

It is a matter of common knowledge that, in the absence of a will, all testator’s children will inherit equally, and testator will be presumed to have known the law in that respect. Haupt v. Michaels (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 796.

16. Knowledge of fact.—Jurors will be presumed to have knowledge of the length of time consumed in travel between two designated places; such facts being facts of general knowledge. Baker v. Brown (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 312.

Dealer, having authority to sell particular truck in certain city, will be presumed to be well informed as to the market value of the truck in such city, and in city in which he himself purchases the trucks. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. O’Connell (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 757.

In purchasing the surface rights of land from lessors of the oil and gas rights to a company and its trustees, plaintiff must be presumed to have known that the trustee lessees had the right to sink a well on his lot, and that thereby he and his family, if in occupancy, would be inconvenienced and perhaps endangered during drilling. Grimes v. Goodman Drilling Co. (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 202.

A defendant having been brought regularly into court by process, is in legal contemplation “in court” until the final disposition of the cause, and is presumed to be cognizant of every step taken in its progress. Wagley v. Wasley (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 492.

It is a presumption of law that a party to an action knew the contents of a judgment therein entered in his favor, and such presumption is aided by the fact that he 1029.
personally went with his antagonist's attorney to the courthouse, where, in his presence, said attorney stated the terms of the agreement, to which he rendered the judgment. Gulf Production Co. v. Palmer (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 1017.

17. Continuance of fact or condition.—There is a presumption against a terminal carrier which delivers goods in bad condition that the damage occurred on its own line, though it may have transported the goods over its line in the same through and sealed car in which it received them. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Reichard & Sullivan Co. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 208.

Where a marriage is once established, it is presumed to continue until the contrary is proved. Lopez v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 695.

Where defendant admitted that ordinance had been certified by city secretary in January, 1915, the admission of ordinance in evidence in action more than 3½ years thereafter, without requiring proof that the ordinance was in effect at the time of the trial, held proper; the continued existence of ordinance being presumed. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1012.

When the existence of a person, a personal relation, or a state of things is once established by proof, the law presumes that the personal relation or state of things continues to exist as before until the contrary is shown, or until a different presumption is raised from the nature of the subject in question. Id.

There is no presumption, in an action for the burning of goods while in the carrier's possession, that the boxes when delivered to the carrier by a storage company contained all the goods that were in them when stored by him some time before with the storage company. Hines v. Warden (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 957.

19. Regularity of course of business or conduct of affairs.—In view of interstate carrier's right to contract as to time within which shipper's action on claim may be brought, and of equal treatment of shippers required by Interstate Commerce Act, it will be presumed that carrier was conducting its business lawfully, and that such contract was lawful. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Shroyer (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 772.

An agent selling stock for corporation having entered into void contract to accept notes for stock in violation of Const. art. 12, § 6, it will be presumed that parties acted thereafter in accordance with its terms. Cattlemen's Trust Co. Of Ft. Worth v. Swearingen (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 596.

Presumption that defendant compress company, with whom plaintiff stored cotton, was doing a lawful business in a lawful way. Jackson v. Greenville Compress Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 724.

One intending to become a passenger, who was injured in the depot while waiting for his train, and who subsequently boarded the train, must be presumed to have paid the regular fare. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 378.

Where the only evidence tending to show that goods shipped had a market value at destination on date when they should have been delivered greater than that at which they were sold by plaintiff consignee, after buyer consignee refused to accept them, was the sale made by plaintiff to consignee, the court had the right to assume that sale to consignee was at market price. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Westbury (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 383.

In eminent domain proceedings by a city, even if the fee to the street adjacent to the land taken is in the city, the presumption obtains, by reason of the long existence of a sidewalk condemned, that it had been placed where it was by the consent or requirement of the city, which had no right to remove it without compensating the owner of the lot. City of San Antonio v. Fike (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 639.

The custom of others engaged in like business is not the absolute test of negligence in doing safe working place appliances, but, where carrier was conducting his business in accordance with the uniform custom of others it devolves upon servant to show that custom is negligent; the presumption being that persons in like business are reasonably prudent. Taylor v. White (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 656.

Where specific agreement with respect to the agreement which would be planted upon rented land, and the amount of rentals to be paid, the usual custom of the country determines such questions. Rupert v. Swindle (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 671.

One who was in possession of land under claim of ownership and under deed duly recorded, and rendered it for taxation during 10-year period, will be presumed, in absence of a contrary showing, to have paid taxes when due; he being dead and the tax records destroyed. Morris v. Moore (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 890.

Payment of draft on bank by bank's cashier held not willful misapplication of the bank's funds within cashier's bond, in absence of affirmative showing that payment was without consent of his superior officers; the presumption being that payment was rightful. National Surety Co. v. Atascosa Ice, Water & Light Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 587.

There is a presumption of good faith and performance of duty on the part of an agent, but such presumptions do not obtain where it is shown that the agent acted as an individual, and not in his fiduciary capacity. Reynolds v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 582.

20. Making, validity and genuineness of writing.—Where there has been a long-continued claim of title by one person asserted in such open manner as to charge the other party with knowledge of the claim, and a corresponding acquiescence by the other party, it may be presumed that the claim originated in a proper conveyance, and strict proof of the execution and contents of the lost conveyance is not required, but this presumption is merely one of fact to be considered by the jury in connection with other facts and circumstances. Hutchinson v. Massie (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 695.
Where the alleged grantee in a lost deed and those claiming under him paid no taxes on the land for more than 30 years, and the only assertion of a claim of title was to an unidentified section of land in a named county, and was made in private conversations a thousand miles or more away from the land and from those who might be adverse in a claim, there was no presumption in favor of the deed, and clear proof of its execution and contents was required. Id.

21. Mailing and delivery of mail matter.—There is a presumption of fact that a letter properly addressed and mailed was delivered in due course of mail to the addressee, but such presumption is subject to rebuttal by proof of nondelivery, or by proof of delivery out of due course of mail. Texas Co. v. Wimberly (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 286.

In an action on a mutual assessment insurance policy, testimony of the secretaries of defendant association that they mailed notices of assessment to insured, with postage prepaid, and properly addressed to insured at the post office address given by him on the records of the association, constituted prima facie proof that insured received the notices. Hobson v. Wise County Home Protective Ass'n (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 683.

The legal presumption that a letter was delivered to the addressee arises only after proof that the letter was properly addressed, stamped with the proper postage, and mailed, and that the usual time for transmission of mail between the points had expired. Bruck Bros. v. Lipman, Speir & Hahn (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 303.

The uncertainty of the mails during the war with Germany is well known, so that, to raise the presumption of delivery of a letter canceling an order before the goods were shipped, the probable time necessary for transmission of the letter should have been proved. Id.

22. Corporate acts and records.—Execution of mortgages by president or vice president of a corporation to secure payment to security holders will be presumed to be a corporate act. Peyton v. Sturgis (Civ. App.) 292 S. W. 265.

Where a deed from a corporation is offered in evidence, purporting to be signed by its proper executive officer, under the seal of the corporation, it will be presumed that such officer signed such deed, and that he was duly authorized to execute such deed, where nothing appears in the evidence to the contrary. Ross v. Sutter (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 273.

23. Evidence withheld or falsified.—Failure to produce evidence within a party's control raises a presumption that, if produced, it would operate against him, and every intention to conceal will be in favor of the opposite party. Green v. Scales (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 274; Burnett v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 297 S. W. 546; Clover v. Clover (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 916.

Where an employer, sued for injuries, offers no proof to support the allegation that notice of provision for compensation had been given to servant by employer, as required by Employers' Liability Act, pt. 3, §§ 19, 29 (Vernon's Sates' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 5246x, 5246x), it must be presumed that no such notice had been given. Poe v. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 483.

24. Failure of party to testify or giving evasive answers.—Where the issue was whether defendant authorized the drawing of a draft and its payment by his codefendant, his failure to testify that he did not, although he had pleaded a denial, raises the presumption that if he had testified, his testimony would not have supported his plea. Farmers' Guaranty State Bank of Jacksonville v. Burrus Mill & Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 297 S. W. 490.

In former employé's action to recover stock from trustee to whom corporation had issued stock to be held for employé until specified date with right of cancellation on termination of employment before such date, in which employé claimed that right of cancellation was waived by failure to cancel with knowledge of termination of employment, the trustee, being in possession of facts as to whether it had knowledge of cessation of employment, and not having testified relating thereto, will be held as a matter of law to have had knowledge of such termination of employment. Donohue v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 957.

Where defendant accused of slander did not deny under oath any of the allegations made against him, it will be concluded that he had no evidence against plaintiff and that the accusations against plaintiff's character could not be sustained. Vogt v. Guildy (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 656.

25. Failure to call witness.—Where proof showed fraud on part of plaintiff's vice principal, plaintiff's failure to introduce him warranted presumption his testimony would have been adverse. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Garnier (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 580.

In a contest of a will by one claiming to be the wife of deceased, but claimed to be the wife of another, held, that there was no presumption that the alleged first husband of contestant was under the control of the contestant, and that he would testify concerning his alleged marriage with the contestant differently from contestant merely because he did not produce him upon the trial, it having been shown that contestant had threatened to prosecute him for inducing her to go through the form of a marriage with him when he had a wife living. Clover v. Clover (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 916.

26. Suppression or spoliation of evidence.—The suppression of testimony is proper to be considered as a circumstance against the party suppressing the same, and where a fact is peculiarly within the knowledge of a party, and he does not produce evidence thereof, it is legitimate argument that evidence does not exist. Texas Electric Ry. v. Gonzales (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 247.

The voluntary destruction of a deed under which title had never been openly claimed by the person alleged to have been named as grantee strengthened the presumption that the deed was insufficient to support the right subsequently asserted under it, if it did not absolutely preclude him, and those in privity with him from establishing its contents by parol evidence. Hutchinson v. Massie (Civ. App.) 236 S. W. 695.

In absence of showing law of state wherein note was given as to which the statute of limitations might have accrued, had there not been letters preventing bar, the court must presume such law to be the same as the law of the state wherein the action was brought. Dempster Mill Mfg. Co. v. Humphries (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 981.

Without proof to the contrary, it will be presumed that the laws of Kentucky are the same as the laws of Texas (art. 2480), forbidding sale of any property of an estate without an order of the court authorizing a sale by executor or administrator. Webb v. Reynolds (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 914.

In an action in Texas against blank indorser of notes executed, indorsed, and payable in the territory of Oklahoma, defendant, to defeat recovery upon the ground of the Oklahoma law, must prove and establish that the law as construed in Oklahoma territory was different from the law in Texas. Lamb v. Hardy, 169 Tex. 414, 211 S. W. 445.

In the absence of competent proof as to the effect of a foreign divorce decree under the foreign statutes, the rights of the party under the decree are to be determined by the laws of the forum, so that a remarriage not forbidden by its laws is valid. Vickers v. Faubion (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 803.

In the absence of proof of the laws of the state of defendant, orders of organization, the Court of Civil Appeals may presume it had power under the laws of such state, as such orders have under the law of Texas (Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 4841), to make mergers or amalgamations with other societies as provided by the laws of the order. Independent Order of Puritans v. Brown (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 993.

It will be presumed, in the absence of pleading and proof to the contrary, that the law and interest rates of the state of New York where a contract was made are the same as in the state of Texas. Pierce Oil Corporation v. Gilmer Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1116.

In an action against the ancillary administrator in Texas for legal services rendered the Oklahoma executor, it will be presumed in the absence of proof as to the laws of Oklahoma in reference to probate of wills and handling estate of decedent that they are similar to the laws of Texas. Pendleton v. Hare (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 334.

28. Laws of foreign countries.—In the absence of evidence, it will be presumed that, like the laws of the Texas, the laws of Canada do not permit a carrier to limit its commonlaw liability for loss of baggage. Woodbury v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 432.

29. Judicial proceedings—in general.—Under art. 1512, where petition was filed within period of limitation, delay in issuance and service of citation held to raise no presumption of laches making limitations applicable. Godshalk v. Martin (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 535.

Where the sufficiency of sureties on an attachment bond is attacked it will be presumed that they are sufficient, in absence of evidence. Lundy v. Little (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 538.

31. Administration of estate.—In trespass to try title constituting collateral attack on long past order of probate court authorizing administrator de bonis non to sell unlocated balance of land certificate, community property of decedent and his wife, it must be conclusively presumed that court, before ordering sale, found fact of existence of debts owing by decedent, condition precedent to its power to authorize sale. Waterman Lumber & Supply Co. v. Robbins (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 825.

In action in which answer set up, as res adjudicata, judgment rendered for temporary administrator, it will be conclusively presumed, nothing appearing to the contrary in the record of the former case, that the temporary administrator had authority to sue, though original petition did not allege authority. Pearson v. Lloyd (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 759.

The order of probate attempted to confirm an oil lease executed by the temporary administrators, reciting that the administrators were authorized by the order of appointment to make the lease, which was contrary to the fact, no presumption can be indulged in to support the order of ratification, and the lease is void. Allar Co. v. Roester (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 442.

A probate court is a court of general jurisdiction, and its judgments, within the scope and power granted to it by law, are entitled to the same presumptions in favor of their validity as those of any other court of record of general jurisdiction. Waterman Lumber & Supply Co. v. Robbins (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 825.

In a suit on a note secured by deed of trust where the prayer is for judgment for plaintiff for its debt and for judgment of foreclosure for plaintiff and the trustee, and plaintiff is awarded a recovery of the debt and foreclosure of the lien is provided for in general terms without stating that such foreclosure is awarded plaintiff and the trustee, foreclosure will be presumed to have been awarded both plaintiffs. Gregory v. South Texas Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 429.

In suit to enjoin enforcement of judgment, recitals that the court, at a regular term, considered the evidence, heard in vacation, do not preclude the presumption that sufficient other facts were proved to sustain the judgment, against objection that cause was heard in vacation. Kerr v. Hume (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 904.

In suit to enjoin enforcement of judgment, although record does not show affirmatively jurisdiction of defendant’s person by service or answer, the judgment is not void for that reason, as, where the record is silent on the point, it will be presumed they had notice or were present at the trial. Id.

In case of a judgment otherwise valid sought to be vacated as entered by agreement of attorneys unauthorized to that end, it will be presumed, until the contrary is shown, that all of the parties before the court in the prior proceeding consented to the terms of the decree that was entered. Pierce v. Foreign Mission Board of Southern Baptist Convention (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 146.

Where, in trespass to try title, plaintiffs offered in evidence a judgment in a suit brought by them against the unknown heirs of a person, it is presumed, in the absence of a showing to the contrary, that they introduced their chain of title in such suit. McComb v. City of Texas (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 307.

Where a judgment of divorce, which was attacked in action to set the judgment aside on the ground of fraud recited that matters of fact as well as of law were submitted to and determined by the court, it will be presumed that the court disposed of every issue presented by the pleadings. Wagley v. Wagley (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 495.

38. Conflicting presumptions of fact.—The presumption of continuance of a status is weaker than the presumption of innocence in making a contract which might possibly be construed as illegal. (Per Boyce, J.) California State Life Ins. Co. v. Kring (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 372.

On proof that deceased had been married to both women claiming to have been his lawful wife at time of his death, the presumption, in absence of other proof, is that the subsequent marriage was lawful and that he had obtained a divorce from wife by first marriage; but such presumption is rebutted by proof that no divorce has been granted. Kinney v. Tri-State Telephone Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 227, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1180.

In an action for death benefit, involving question of whether deceased’s first or second wife was entitled thereto, evidence of interlocutory divorce judgment against first wife held to break down prima facie case for second wife established by proof of her marriage and to present issue as to whether deceased had married second wife without being divorced from first wife, in rebuttal of presumption of validity of second marriage, such judgment not severing bonds of maternity with first wife and negating any presumption that divorce had been obtained in any other jurisdiction. Id.

Where land is purchased by a husband with his separate funds and the deed is taken in the name of his wife, a prima facie presumption arises that he intends to make a gift to his wife, but such presumption may be overcome by competent proof that husband’s intention was not to make a gift. Kennedy v. Kennedy (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 581.

To overcome presumption that the construction of the common law of another state is the same as that in state in which action is brought, the construction of the other state must be pleaded and proven. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Ryan (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 642.

41. Negotiable instruments.—There is a presumption that a document regular on its face has been duly executed, and this applies to bills and notes. Iowa City State Bank v. Milford (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 852.

It is presumed that all the makers of a joint and several note were equally liable with each other. Lockett v. Farmers’ State Bank of Vernon (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 526.

The rule that plaintiff’s possession or production in court of a note sued on is prima facie evidence of ownership had no application, where the pleadings and evidence showed that he was not in possession of a note sued on, but that it was held in escrow, and that its production was procured by an order requiring it to be brought into court. Webb v. Reynolds (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 914.

Where notes were made payable to the order of the maker and indorsed by him and transferred, it will be presumed that they were indorsed and transferred at the time of their execution. Howard v. Stahl (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 826.

41b. Arbitration and award.—Nothing will be presumed against an award, but every presumption not contradicted by proof will be indulged in favor of it. Robbs v. Woolfolk (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 332.

42. Boundaries.—When a deed, by reference to a plat or by descriptive calls, shows that the land conveyed is bounded by a strip of land dedicated or reserved as a private or public right of way or easement, in the absence of express provisions, it is presumed that it was the grantor's intention to convey to grantee the fee to the easement strip as far as it went, and provided that it extended therein beyond the strip, in which case the deed only conveys title to the center thereof. Gulf Sulphur Co. v. Ryman (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 319.

Owners of a tract of land not being interested in a claim that the west boundary line was the extended line, their acquiescence in such claim cannot raise any presumption that it extended that far west. Land v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 238 S. W. 801.

It cannot be presumed a landowner knew whether the land owned by another extended to his east line, where his survey was located 25 years before the other. Id.

44. Contracts.—Where the record does not show that a transaction was interstate commerce, it will be presumed otherwise when questioning the legality of a contract therefor. Pennsylvania Rubber Co. v. McClain (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 586.

A stipulation which does not clearly appear will not be presumed. Hix v. Tomlinson (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 887.

Where a contract fixes no time for performance, the law presumes the parties intended a reasonable time. Aycock v. Reliance Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 848.

In an action for breach of warranty of title of land conveyed in an exchange of properties, there is no presumption, on the issue of damages, plaintiff offering the deeds to him which recite a consideration for the conveyances of $8,000, that either party obtained an advantage in the trade. Northcutt v. Hume (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 157.

The presumption alone of a contract cannot be taken and a presumption raised upon it at variance with the effect of its other provisions. Fink v. Brown (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 846.

A subcontractor is presumed to undertake his work subject to conditions and limitations in the principal contractor and the owner, if he knows these conditions and limitations; the presumption being conclusive if latter contract is made a part of the former contract. Hartwell v. Fridner (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 231.

The presumption is that all stipulations in a contract are dependent. Echols v. Miller (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 48.

Where two or more written instruments are executed on the same day, relate to the same subject-matter, and one refers to the other, the presumption is that they evidence but a single contract. Barber v. Herring (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 472.

45. Damages.—In counterclaim for damages for breach of warranty in a sale of riparian rights, evidence that 95 per cent. of the land sold was submerged and 5 per cent. was not submerged did not afford any basis for estimating damages, as there could be no presumption that the unsubmerged land was worth only 5 per cent. of the purchase price, as a basis for estimating damages. Westervelt v. Meuly (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 680.

Where there is no proof that parents suing for death of their minor son could have reasonably expected him to continue to contribute to their support after attaining his majority, it will be presumed that his contributions would cease at such time. Patterson v. James (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 29.

When a child reaches its majority, parent's legal duty to support it ceases, and, in the absence of proof, it cannot be presumed that such support will be continued so as to justify recovery under the federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8669) for loss thereof through the parent's death. Hines v. Walker (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 837.

47. Delivery of deed.—In absence of proof as to when deed was delivered, there is presumption that it was delivered on day of its date. Evans v. First Guaranty State Bank of Southmayd (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1171.

That a deed is found in the possession of a grantee will raise the presumption that it was delivered to and accepted by him, but such presumption may be rebutted. Benavides v. Benavides (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 566.

Where a duly executed and acknowledged deed had been on record for about 30 years, it was presumptively delivered. Berry v. Godwin (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 191, reversing order (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 30.

Good faith held presumed in transaction whereby one financially interested in proposed railroad loaned money on note which borrower thereupon gave to railroad as security or to be held by attorney. Handly v. Adams (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 888.

No legal presumption of fraud arises from the mere fact that debts were contracted after husband's conveyance of his property to his wife. Quaries v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1112.

57. Priority of lien.—No presumption of priority of right arises from the filing of a claimant's bond and affidavit for property against which execution was issued, where the sheriff had not taken possession of the property under the writ. Moore-De Grazer Co. v. Hawley (Civ. App.) 239 S. W. 1069.

58. Marriage.—In absence of allegation that plaintiffs, claiming homestead, were married, the fact of marriage cannot be presumed from the fact that plaintiffs settled on the land claimed as homestead, resided there, and raised crops thereon. Arlise v. Clark (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 373.
That persons were married and for several years thereafter lived together is sufficient prima facie to raise a presumption of fact that the prior marriage relation of one of them with another had been dissolved. Tanton v. Tanton (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 429.

On proof that deceased had been married to both women claiming to have been his lawful wife at time of his death, the presumption, in absence of other proof, is that the subsequent marriage was lawful and that he had obtained a divorce from wife by first marriage. Kinney v. Tri-State Telephone Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 227, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1180.

When there was a formal marriage according to legal requirements, the law will presume the competency of the parties to enter into marriage contracts, and will presume that any former marriage of either was dissolved by death or divorce, but such presumption does not extend to a cohabitation with an agreement that the parties would marry, since the law merely tolerates common-law marriages, and does not encourage them. Lopez v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 685.

A ceremonial marriage may be proved by the testimony of eyewitneses without the production of the marriage certificate, or explanation of its absence, and proof of a ceremonial marriage in a foreign country carries the presumption that it was in accordance with that country's laws. Id.

60. Negligence in general.—Where plaintiff has met the burden of proving that fire originated from an engine, the law presumes negligence, and he is entitled to recover unless railroad company proves that engine was provided with the best approved apparatus for arresting sparks, and was properly operated. Moose v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 645.

62. Contributory negligence.—In suit against railroad for death in crossing collision, in absence of evidence it will not be presumed that decedent was guilty of wanton negligence in attempting crossing ahead of train in his automobile. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Sloman (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 321.

In absence of testimony, law presumes that one driving a wagon over interurban railroad crossing was exercising ordinary care. Southern Traction Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 150.

In an action for the death of a servant caught in machinery, where there is no evidence as to how the injury occurred, deceased is entitled to the presumption that he exercised due care for his safety. Hutcherson v. Amarillo St. Ry. Co. (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 931.

63. Carriage of goods.—Presumption of negligence of carrier from goods being received from it in damaged condition is no evidence thereof; the evidence not showing that they were in good condition when received by it. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. John Mueninnik & Son (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 613.

In the absence of proof to the contrary, it will be presumed that the loss of and injury to goods in an intrastate shipment was caused by the negligence of the carriers. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1048.

Presumption of negligence against carrier from the arrival of a shipment of cattle, which had been unaccompanied, in an injured condition is rebutted by showing that there was no delay in handling the cattle and that they were transported without negligence. Leon v. Hines (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 239.

65. Notice.—It will be presumed that a requirement of a telegraph company that notice of claim be made within a specified time has been complied with, unless failure to do so is specially pleaded, under art. 5714. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Love & Walters (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 889.

67. Payment.—Presumption of payment after lapse of 20 years applies in a suit to recover alleged delinquent taxes where there was no proof of delinquency other than assessment itself on which penalty and interest had been computed at a time obviously long after levy. Leake v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 472.

The presumption of payment of note created by long lapse of time is only prima facie, and other evidence relating to issue of payment, together with long lapse of time, is to be considered by jury in determining such issue. Perez v. Maverick (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 199.

Possession by debtor of evidence of indebtedness raises the presumption of payment. J. W. Jenkins' Sons' Music Co. v. Truex (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 572.

A telegram received by a telegraph company over its telephone line, maintained for business purposes, was presumably received by an authorized person; a presumption becoming conclusive in the absence of contrary proof. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 720.

Evidence that defendant owned the car causing injury, that the driver was in its employment, that after the accident the driver telephoned the employer about the occurrence, and that it sent a physician, held to raise the presumption that the driver was acting in the employer's business, in the absence of affirmative proof to the contrary. City Service Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 140.

69. Ownership and possession.—Where the burden rests upon one asserting limitations, a presumption supporting the claim should not be indulged, especially when the evidence will not more certainly support a presumption in consonance with the right than in favor of ownership. Durham v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 161, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 211.
In stockholders' suit, court must presume that company's assignment to private trustees would not have undertaken to convey reality unless company really owned it. Millaps v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 202.

Burden of proving all facts rests on claimant by adverse possession; every presumption being in favor of possession in subordination to the rightful owner. Lookin v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 158.

Where claimants under a senior patent had fenced a strip of land in dispute and cultivated, used, and enjoyed it, these facts raised a presumption of title and entitled them to recover in trespass to try title against one showing no better title. Stein v. Boswell (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 166.

In trespass to try title, proof that plaintiffs' possession, if any, was under a void deed negatived any presumption of title from plaintiffs' showing of prior possession. McCarthy v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 507.

In action to recover title to land, where there was no evidence that defendants or those under whom they claimed ever had actual possession and no proof of a reliable paper title connecting defendants with the original patentee under whom they claimed, plaintiffs' prior possession alone was sufficient to support a presumption of title in them. Thomas v. Calahan (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 602.

70. Public lands.—In action to recover land formerly owned by plaintiffs' ancestor wherein defendants claimed their predecessor had purchased land from ancestor prior to Act of Fourth Congress of Republic of Texas requiring sale of land to be evidenced by written instrument, evidence of continuous possession under claim of right by defendants and predecessors for more than 70 years, and of no claim being asserted thereto during such time by plaintiffs or ancestor, together with other facts and circumstances, held to raise presumption that such sale had been made. Morris v. Moore (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 890.

72. Sales.—In the absence of evidence as to the terms of the contract of pledge or the procedure by which the pledgee's lien was foreclosed, it will be presumed that the pledgee in selling collateral followed and did not violate the law as to the manner of sale. Haynes v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Com. App.) 251 S. W. 361.

73. Validity of Mortgages.—Since the lawfulness in session, and had the inherent right to legislate upon the question of fixing the salaries of judges, the courts will presume that such Legislature had not incapacitated itself from enacting into law Senate Bill No. 32 by defeating at the same session a bill similar in substance to Com. App., art. 3, § 24, and will not suffer such presumption to be rebutted. King v. Terrell (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 42.

75. Malice.—Malice may be presumed in action for malicious prosecution where want of probable cause is shown. Bukowski v. Williams (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 343.

II. Presumptions on Appeal or Writ of Error

77. In general.—Where a judgment against a garnishee recites that both plaintiff and the garnishee appeared, and that all matters of fact, as well as of law, were submitted to the court, the appellate court will presume that Rev. St. 1879, art. 214, which requires an issue to be formed in such cases before trial, was complied with by the parties' consenting to the formation of verbal issues, in the absence of a written issue from the record. Swearingen v. Wilson, 2 Civ. App. 157, 21 S. W. 74.

Where record did not show how notice of sale was to be made under deeds of trust, appellate court will not presume, on objection to allowance of item for advertising notice of sale thereunder, that they provided for notice by posting instead of advertisement, in view of arts. 3757, 3759, as to notices of sales of real estate. Adams v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 576.

In action for damage to cattle from delay in transit, in absence of evidence to show delivery was accepted by consignee on cars, and that stockyards company at destination acted for consignee in unloading. Court of Civil Appeals cannot assume stockyards company was not performing duty incumbent on carrier. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1670.

Where appellant brings up a record showing only part of the proceedings, every reasonable presumption will be indulged in favor of the court's rulings, which will be reversed only when they cannot be upheld upon any possible state of the case. Fruit v. Blesi (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 714.

Where defendants the unsuccessful parties to an arbitration proceeding made no exception below on the ground that the arbitration agreement was not filed with the clerk as required by statute, the appellate court will presume that it was waived. Temple v. Riverland Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 605.

78. Burden of showing error.—On appeal from judgment finding railroad company receiving road after termination of receivership liable for negligence of receiver, burden is on company to show that receiver was appointed by federal court to avoid operation of arts. 2139, 2141, making company liable for negligence of receiver. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Burleson (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 617.

When petition for a stock law election under art. 7255 was received and passed upon favorably by the commissioners' court, the legal presumption is that it was sufficient, and, the court below having sustained the petition, the burden was on contestants of the election to show lack of qualification in the signers claimed by them. Reid v. King (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 960.

79. Grounds and forms of action or defense.—Where the justice court judgment showed that the action was for a specified sum with interest and attorney's fees, and foreclosure of a mortgage lien and the charge in the county court stated that it was an action on notes and to foreclose a mortgage lien, while the judgment in that court stated that it was on a liquidated account, it must be presumed that the action was on notes and for the foreclosure of the mortgage securing them. Alvis v. John G. Harris Hardware & Furniture Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 538.

80. When the record is silent as to the appointment of a special district judge by consent of the parties to a case, which the regular judge is disqualified to try, the appellate court must presume, in the absence of exceptions in limine, that the parties exercised their constitutional right to empower the special judge, by consent, to try the case. Rosseti v. Benavides (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 866.

81. Where judgment entered by special judge recited that he had been agreed upon by the parties to try the case, and nothing in the bill of exceptions conflicts with such recital, the court on appeal must presume that a legal and binding agreement was made. Rusk County v. High (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 862.

83. Process and appearance.—Where appellants had appeared by answer, in absence of evidence to contrary, it will be presumed on appeal that they were present at trial and had notice that appellee was seeking to foreclose lien. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Hales (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 903.

Where plaintiff made unknown heirs parties defendant, as provided by art. 1875, it must be presumed on appeal that unknown heirs appeared and answered where attorney signed answer as answer of all defendants, and court did not appoint an attorney ad litem to represent unknown heirs, as required by article 1941. Perez v. Maverick (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 199.

On appeal in an action where there were several defendants, and where a deposition was filed prior to the convening of the full term of court, on the first day of which the court granted service in said cause was not complete, and the cause was continued until the next term of court, it will be presumed, in support of a ruling of the court overruling a motion to suppress the deposition, made by all the defendants jointly at the second term of court, that at least part of the defendants were required to answer at the first term of court. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clarendon Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 866.

84. Pleading.—Since delay in filing plea in abatement and fact that plea was not sworn to may be waived, it will on appeal be assumed that they were waived where facts do not appear from record and all parties went to trial on issue raised by plea. Stout v. Bare (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1192.

Where pleadings in justice court are oral, and no record made on appeal, the presumption on appeal from intermediate court is that they were consistent with the rulings of the trial court. Ravel v. Haymon Krupp & Co. (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 211.

Where appeal from county court in cause instituted in justice court, no statement of the pleadings is shown by the transcript, it must be presumed that he justified the introduction of evidence sustaining the judgment, but, where the record affirmatively shows the pleadings, none can be presumed, nor can allegations be presumed in conflict with the record. Alvis v. John G. Harris Hardware & Furniture Co. (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 538.

Where a written pleading in a case originating in justice court, involving liability to a physician, does not comply with the provisions of art. 5736, for registration of physicians, it will be presumed on review of the county court's judgment affirming the judgment of the justice that the necessary issues were raised by oral pleadings; the record not showing to the contrary. Home Life & Accident Co. v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 131.

85.— Demurrer.—Where there was nothing in record to show that appellant's general demurrer or special exceptions were presented to trial court for ruling, or that any order was entered with reference thereto, it will be presumed that they were waived. Beadle v. McCrabb (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 555.

Where there is nothing in the transcript to show that the action of the court on special exceptions to the petition was ever invoked, such exceptions are presumed to have been waived. Southwest Portland Cement Co. v. Bustillos (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 265.

Arts. 1529a, 1529b, requiring verification of a plaintiff's original pleading, having been repealed by Acts 34th Leg. (1915) c. 101, the Court of Civil Appeals should assume that the trial court's order sustaining exception to a clause of the petition was not based on the ground that the petition was not verified by affidavit. Hitson v. Gilman (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 40.

Where the record on appeal is silent as to whether a demurrer was presented or acted upon, it will be deemed to have been waived. Baker v. Streeter (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1029.

Where a statement fails to show that the court ever acted on special exceptions to the petition, and the record is itself silent on the subject, the presumption must prevail on appeal that the court did not act on the exceptions, and consequently there was nothing done by the trial court upon which a decision of the appellate court could be evoked. McCulloch v. Preatorians v. Neimann (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 438.

86. — Amendments.—Trial amendment of petition, reciting that it was filed with leave of court, will be presumed to have been filed upon proper leave. Figueroa v. Madero (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 271.

Where defendant's motion for continuance for absent witnesses was excepted to on ground that there is no pleading on which to predicate the testimony, that testimony was not material, and that no diligence was shown, and court overruled motion without showing basis of his ruling in his order, court’s ruling is available as error, on appeal, unless point is raised during hearing or in written motion. It will be assumed that defendant would have amended pleading if motion had been overruled on such ground. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 552.

88. Interlocutory proceedings.—Though order showed sustaining of exception to answer on which case was tried, held, that it might be presumed that the trial judge changed his mind and submitted the issue as one properly pleaded. Matheson v. C-B Live Stock Co. (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 641.

A replevin bond, valid on its face and adjudged valid, will not be presumed invalid because of quashing of writ of sequestration, and not shown or not urged on motion for new trial. Gonzales v. Flores (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 851.

Where it appears plea in abatement was not disposed of at term to which filed, if trial court had held plea was waived, in absence of showing of record as to why it was not disposed of, Court of Civil Appeals would sustain action below on presumption no sufficient reason existed for failure to dispose of plea. Texas Packing Co. v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 120.

Where there is nothing but the application for habeas corpus, which shows that defendant was placed in jail following an adjudication that he was in contempt of the district court for refusing to answer questions before a grand jury, the Court of Appeals is unable to decide upon what the judgment was rendered, and must dismiss the application for dismissal on the presumption that the commitment was regular, and was based upon proper facts. Ex parte Berry, 85 Cr. R. 294, 210 S. W. 799.

In the absence of a showing to the contrary, it will be presumed that a deposition was filed one entire day before the trial. Texas Moline Flow Co. v. Grimminger (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 747.

Where it appears from the record that petition was filed with clerk of court on a certain date, and order appointing receiver bears the same date, and there is nothing in the record to show that the order was made before the petition was filed, contention that appointment is void because made before petition was filed will be overruled; presumption being that proceedings of trial court were regular and legal. Bingham v. Graham (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 105.

90. Conduct of trial.—Where judgment, reciting that upon hearing the court decided that there was no question to be submitted to the jury, is the only evidence before the court on appeal of what the actual proceedings were, the conclusive presumption arises that defendants waived any right to a jury trial; no exception having been taken to court’s action. Andre v. Fajkus (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 752.

Where on writ of error it is objected that special charges are not to be considered because not submitted to opposing counsel as required by Acts 32d Leg. 1913, c. 59, § 3 (art. 1973), it will be presumed, in the absence of a showing to the contrary, that the trial judge performed his duty as to such submission. Shipley v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 110 Tex. 194, 217 S. W. 137.

91. Admissibility and reception of evidence.—In support of trial court’s ruling, it will, in absence of evidence to contrary, be presumed that ordinance was published as required by law. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Boyed (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 219.

Where plaintiffs alleged, in action for wrongful death, abandonment of wreck and their son as one of acts of negligence, and it does not appear from record that such allegation was excepted to, court on appeal is authorized to conclude that court properly admitted evidence to effect that son was not removed for some time after accident. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 778.

Where the record on top of train, it will be presumed on appeal, in absence of evidence to contrary, that he was there in obedience to rule of defendant company requiring freight brakemen to be on top of trains approaching stations, etc. Id.

Where no objection was made as to the qualification of witnesses to express opinions, it will be presumed that the court satisfied himself of their qualification, and that appellants was satisfied therewith. Texas Midland R. R. v. O’Kelley (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 152.

Where, in an action to recover demurrage charges paid under protest, the court admitted an expense bill to show the amount of demurrage and rendered judgment therefor after having sustained exceptions thereto, and that portion of the petition suing for demurrage was not stricken out, it will be presumed on appeal that the court changed his mind. Payne v. White House Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 417.

92. Dismissal or direction of verdict.—On appeal from order dismissing, for lack of prosecution, suit against resident and nonresident defendants, where it does not appear that plaintiff requested to be permitted to proceed as against resident defendants who had been served, it will be presumed in favor of action of trial court in dismissing suit for want of prosecution, that he did not so request. Cain v. Wharton (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 962.

On appeal it will be presumed in support of judgment of dismissal that on plea in abatement plaintiff did not move for continuance to make necessary parties, where it did not appear of record. City of Ft. Worth v. Cotton (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1015.

In determining whether trial court should have given peremptory instruction for plaintiff, it is proper to view case in accordance with defendants’ pleadings and evidence. Craig, Thompson & Jeffries v. Barreda (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 585.

In considering whether the giving of a peremptory charge in favor of plaintiff was proper, only the evidence of defendant is to be considered, and, if sufficient to authorize a finding in his favor, giving of charge must be held improper, even though all of such evidence was controverted. First Nat. Bank v. Rush (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 521.
In determining the correctness of peremptory instruction for defendant, the Court of Civil Appeals must give plaintiff’s evidence its strongest probative effect. Irwin v. Moore (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 710.

Court of Appeals, in determining correctness of lower court’s action in refusing to direct verdict for defendant, must take plaintiff’s evidence as giving the true version of the matter at issue. Courchesne v. Brown (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 674.

In the absence of any showing to the contrary, the grounds of a motion to dismiss cross-action granted must be assumed true. Ward County Water Improvement Dist. No. 2 v. County Dist. No. 1 (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 669.

Where the record does not show that the direction of the verdict was based upon allegations in the trial amendment to the petition, and the original petition was sufficient to sustain the judgment and was supported by evidence which established its allegations beyond room for reasonable difference as to the facts, the appellate court will presume the directed verdict was based on the original petition, and not the trial amendment. Faulkner v. Otto (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 417.

93. Instructions.— Where the court did not submit delay as one of the causes of injury to a shipment of live stock, and there was no special charge requested on the subject, it will, on appeal, be presumed that the evidence did not authorize such a charge. Crespi v. Williams (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 712.

Where court did not submit delay as one of the causes of injury to a shipment of live stock, the appellate court will not presume that the jury took into consideration delay in assessing damages, etc. Mexico Northwestern Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 712.

In determining whether or not instructions are misleading, jurors are presumed to be not only men of ordinary intelligence, but men endowed with common instinct of fairness, which enables them, when not otherwise restrained, to determine issue of act according to accepted rules of right. Funderburgh v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 452.

Although when jury has been misdirected it will be presumed that directions have been obeyed and erroneous verdict rendered, there is no presumption that they have blundered simply because they had the opportunity to do so under the instructions. Id.

Court on appeal will presume that jury followed court’s instruction to disregard improper remarks of counsel, unless the contrary is made to appear. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Clett (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 682.

The court on appeal in passing on argument of counsel claimed to have improperly influenced the jury will proceed upon the presumption that the jury has ordinary intelligence. Vaello v. Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1082.

Court deemed to have made findings as to matters not included in special verdict, see notes under art. 1985.

It will not be presumed that the jury considered memoranda describing a brass bed, inadvertently omitted from the petition in replevin, because such bed is included in their verdict, where plaintiff testified as to the bed and there is no showing that it is described in the memorandum. Gonzales v. Flores (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 851.

Where, in action for personal injuries against railroad, other issues of negligence on which recovery could be based, were properly submitted, and one issue of negligence without support in evidence, was submitted, it will be presumed verdict for plaintiff was based on issues supported by evidence. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 674.

A finding that defendant was not indebted to plaintiffs in any sum will be presumed to have been warranted by testimony in the absence of an attack on it. notwithstanding contention of plaintiffs that the evidence was insufficient to sustain finding that defendant had turned over to plaintiffs cotton worth a specified amount, the determination that one of the findings was not supported by testimony not being in effect a determination that the other was also without the support of testimony where the testimony might not have shown the cotton to be worth such amount and yet have shown it to be worth enough to satisfy the amount due. Longley & Reeves v. Miller (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 566.

96. Findings of court.— It will be presumed on appeal that the trial court found all facts necessary to support a judgment within the scope of the pleadings. First Nat. Bank v. Crespi & Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 705; Brown v. First State Bank of Weimar (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 885; Walker-Smith Co. v. Biloxi (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 777; Brannan v. First State Bank of Comanche (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 345; Wagley v. Wagle (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 482.

Where the trial is by a court without a jury, and there are no findings of fact in the record, it will be presumed on appeal in support of the jury verdict, that the court did not consider improper testimony although admitted. Kingsville Cotton Oil Co. v. Dallas Waste Mills (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 832; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Streeter (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 940; Stovall v. Martin (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 321; Davis v. Burkholder (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1191.
Where there is evidence justifying such finding, it will be presumed on appeal trial court's finding to be in favor of judgment. Kelvin Lumber & Supply Co. v. Copper State Mining Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 68; Griffin v. Bell (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 1034.

Conclusions of trial court not being of record, and there being testimony upon which to base them, this court is compelled, if such findings and conclusions have not been preserved and are not within facts, to adopt same. Lewis v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 607.

In overruling a plaintiff's motion to withdraw announcement of ready for trial, the court must be presumed to have found in favor of defendant's contention as contained in motion to withdraw announcement of ready for trial. City of Ft. Worth v. Rosen (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 84.

In the absence of a special finding on rendering a general judgment, it will not be presumed that the trial court allowed more than was asked for in the petition for certain items of damages, although the court orally stated that damages on such items were an amount in excess of that asked for. Texas Midland R. R. v. O'Kelley (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 152.

Since statute requires a party who desires specific findings of fact to make request therefor when the case is tried before the court, in the absence of such requests, the appellate court will view the evidence in the light most favorable to the judgment. Id.

Where judgment of the county court striking out defendant's plea of privilege shows on its face that it is based on conclusion that the plea is defective, no presumption can be indulged by the court on appeal that it was based on a finding of waiver. Poole v. Pierce-Fordyce Oil Ass'n (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 766.

Though there be no copy of a city's charter in the statement of facts, it will be presumed the trial judge had a copy before him from which he noted the provisions shown in his findings of fact. Dillon v. Whitley (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 329.

Correctness of finding of trial judge as to contents of a city's charter will be presumed, in the absence of a showing by copy of the charter, or otherwise, of error in the finding. Id.

If the conclusion of the trial court is not properly deducible from the facts set forth in his findings of facts, it will be presumed to have been established by other competent testimony given on the trial of the case. Woytek v. King (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1081.

In an action to set aside a default judgment rendered after the expiration of the time prescribed for a subsequent purchaser, the assumption of vendor's lien notes by the purchaser is presumed to have been properly found by the trial court. Strictland Bros. & Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 423.

Where there was no request for a finding as to the consent of the owner of a mining claim to the removal of ore therefrom, and there was evidence affirmatively disproving such consent, it will be presumed that the trial court found against such consent, to support its judgment for plaintiff. Kelvin Lumber & Supply Co. v. Copper State Mining Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 668.

97. Order granting or refusing new trial.—In absence of showing to contrary, trial court's order overruling motion for new trial will be presumed to have been correct, and, if necessary to support order, presumption will be indulged that defendant's application for filing of findings of fact was withdrawn or waived. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Tuggle (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 910.

Where trial court made no findings of fact in denying new trial for misconduct of jurors in discussing amount plaintiff would have to pay attorneys in case he recovered, it will be presumed that judge concluded that discussion did not influence verdict, evidence being sufficient to warrant such conclusion. West Lumber Co. v. Tomme (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 784.

An order vacating an order granting new trial, dated same day that final judgment was entered, will be presumed, in absence of anything to the contrary, to have been rendered prior to entry of final judgment under presumption that it was regularly and lawfully made. Griffin C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Muse, 109 Tex. 352, 207 S. W. 878, 1 A. L. R. 613.

In absence of showing of testimony, presumption on appeal is that such was presented on the issues attempted to be raised on certain grounds of defendant's motion for new trial was such as to justify trial court in overruling. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Harless (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 307.

In an action by alleged common-law wife for death of husband defended on ground of prior existing marriage, appellate court will presume to uphold denial of new trial for newly discovered evidence as to marriage that affidavit for continuance showing that deceased was married in Mexico was filed as of date of application for continuance, and came to knowledge of movant at that time. Lopez v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 685.

98. Judgment.—Every presumption not inconsistent with facts appearing of record will be indulged in favor of judgment, and all actions and orders in judicial proceeding will be presumed to have been made for good reasons and upon proper grounds, nothing appearing to contrary of record. Texas Packing Co. v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 120; Cain v. Wharton (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 562; Dillon v. Dominguez (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 256; R. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 546.

Appellate court in passing upon the sufficiency of the evidence to support verdict or finding will give due weight to the testimony tending to support the judgment, and indulge all reasonable presumptions in favor of the judgment. Modern Woodmen of...

Where in action for the determination of taxes judgment denied penalties reciting tender in open court, it will, in the absence of showing to the contrary, be presumed that tender was made before accrual of penalties, was kept good by payment of amount into registry of court v. Hefman, 199 Tex. 453, 261 S. W. 2d 653.

Where assignment challenges judgment for purchaser of purchase-money notes only in so far as it grants foreclosure of vendor's lien securing notes, it will be assumed that defendant was entitled to judgment for amount of notes. Nobles v. Long (Civ. App.) 292 S. W. 752.

Where there are statements in the court's conclusions that a cross-action was deemed subject to general demurrer, but the judgment does not specifically dispose of the cross-action, on appeal it will be construed as a final judgment denying relief. Houston v. Gonzales Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 963.

Where there is no evidence that defendant initial carrier required connecting carrier to furnish an unloaded car, as required by art. 6888, the court on appeal may, in aid of judgment below, assume that defendant's loaded car was delivered to connecting carrier pursuant to an agreement. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Morehead (Civ. App.) 297 S. W. 336.

Where judgment is the only evidence before the court on appeal as to actual proceedings, mere showing that prior to actual trial an affidavit of inability to provide for a jury fee had been filed would not impeach the judgment, since every reasonable presumption must be indulged in its favor. Id.

On seller's appeal, in buyer's action for damages for fraud, Court of Civil Appeals must presume that buyer was given credit in part payment for the satisfaction of the mechanics, at the agreed value of the land, and that the same was its market value. Texas Harvester Co. v. Wilson-Whaley Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 574.

Where judge's name does not appear in the blank constituting part of the form required by rule 58 (S. W. xxii) following the judgment copied in the transcript, it will be presumed, for the purpose of giving court on appeal jurisdiction of the appeal, in the absence of such attack on the verity of the record as is permitted by law, that the clerk performed his duty in making out and certifying transcript, and that judgment amount as 2198, 2114, and that judgment was entered under direction of judge under article 1694, since such direction may be oral. Chandler v. Riley (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 716.

Where case is tried without a jury, the presumption is that there was testimony to support the judgment rendered. Stark v. Haynes (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 343.

Where the authority of plaintiff to sue for the use and benefit of a necessary party to the suit did not otherwise appear, it will be presumed, in support of judgment for plaintiff, that such party was personally present at the trial directing the suit so far as it affected his interests. Perkins v. Terrell (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 551.

The appellate court will not indulge the presumption that trial court heard evidence and adjudged Jack Reed on whom garnishee service was made to be the Jack Reeves sued, where the judgment was by default and it therefore appears no evidence was received. Reed v. McCutcheon & Church (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 174.

In an action on a building contractor's bond, where the contractor and the bondsmen filed a joint answer pleading the contractor's discharge in bankruptcy, and containing a suggestion by the bondsmen of suretyship, and asked judgment over against the contractor for any recovery against them, but the issue between the contractor and the sureties was not called to the court's attention, no instruction upon it was sought, and no objection to a peremptory instruction for plaintiff against the sureties was made, on appeal, it may be presumed in favor of the judgment that the sureties waived and abandoned their cross-action, or that a dismissal or discontinuance was had with reference thereto. Burton Lingo Co. v. First Baptist Church of Abilene (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 293, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 1013.

Court of Civil Appeals must assume trial court disregarded any portion of testimony of interested witness which he regarded as colored by his interest, if assumption is necessary to sustain judgment rendered. House v. House (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 322.

In an action for specific performance, of contract binding plaintiff to convey "21.56 acres, more or less," which the contract described as being 2½ sections, which ordinarily would be but 1,600 acres, and neither the original petition nor supplemental petition alleges any mistake in drafting the contract, court on appeal must presume in support of the judgment for specific performance that the evidence explained the discrepancy, or that some agreement with reference to it was made, and that the court did not arbitrarily fix the amount of the judgment, where the contract fixed the price per acre. Ward v. Graham (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 294.

Where the equities are most strongly with the defendant in error, all doubts as to the construction of the law arising out of the situation should be resolved in his favor. Smith v. Tipps (Com. App.) 225 S. W. 307.

In a suit for the collection of delinquent taxes tried by the court without a jury, there is no presumption that there was evidence sufficient to support the judgment, where there is an agreed statement of facts containing all the evidence; presumptions being indulged only in the absence of proof and not against proof. Garza v. City of San Antonio (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 2d 697.

101. Costs.—Where probate of a will offered by appellant was denied, as was probate of an earlier alleged will offered by one of the contestants, held that, where all of the costs were taxed against appellant, the original proponent, it will be presumed on appeal.

in favor of the judgment, there being nothing in the record to show that the action of the contestant increased the costs, that contestant was the successful party, and hence under art. 2035, entitled to recover all her costs. Campbell v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 134.

103. Making and contents of bill of exceptions, case, or statement of facts.—Presumptions in absence of statement of facts, see note 68, under art. 5068.

III. Res Ipsa Loquitur

106. The fact speaks for itself.—Where a railroad's bed, equipment, train, etc., are shown to have been under management of road or its servants, and a derailment, injuring a passenger, is such as in ordinary course does not happen if those in charge use proper care, a presumption of negligence arises. Texas & F. Ry. Co. v. Silvers (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 219.

Neither negligence nor contributory negligence will be presumed from the mere fact of accident or injury. Texas Electric Ry. Co. v. Crump (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 227.

Where a caretaker of stock and household goods was injured in a derailment while riding on the car containing the shipment, and alleged specific acts of negligence on defendant's part relative to the roadbed and speed of the train, the rule of res ipsa loquitur does not apply, and an instruction placing the burden on defendant to establish its lack of negligence was error. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Bartek (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 602.

Petition, alleging that electric shock resulting in death of plaintiff's husband was proximately and directly caused by negligence of defendant "in permitting a dangerous, excessive, and deadly current of electricity to be running in and into said house of deceased," sufficiently alleged manner in which injury occurred; the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur being applicable in case of death by electric shock. Texas Power & Light Co. v. Bristow (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 702.

In a passenger's action for injuries sustained by exposure when compelled to walk four miles to a town after a derailment of the car wherein he was riding, where the allegations of negligence were general the rule of presumptive negligence from the fact of derailment obtained, and, in order to overcome such prima facie case of negligence, it was necessary for defendant to show that the accident could not have been avoided by the exercise of the utmost care reasonably compatible with the prosecution of its business. Dowdy v. Southern Traction Co. (Com. App.) 219 S. W. 1092.

Where shipper of hogs which were injured in transit alleged negligent delay, failure to feed and water, etc., an instruction that, if the hogs were received in good condition and delivered in an unduly damaged condition, the burden was on the carrier to show want of negligence, was improper; the rule as to presumption of negligence arising from such fact not applying where there are specific averments as to the negligence. Hines v. Whiteman (Civ. App.) 238 S. W. 979.

The loss alone of personal effects of a passenger while occupying a berth of a sleeping car is not sufficient on which to base a finding of negligence against the company. Pullman Co. v. Bullock (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 1112.

IV. Burden of Proof in General

Under art. 7796, providing that the burden of proof is on one claiming ownership of property in the hands of a judgment debtor on which execution is levied, the fact that the judgment creditor was permitted to open and close did not shift the burden of proof, or entitle the court to place the burden on such creditor. Horn v. Price (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 590.

In suit in the nature of quo warranto contesting an election and seeking to oust defendant from the office of mayor, judicial knowledge of the act of the Legislature incorporating the city and fixing the salary of the office of mayor would not relieve relator of the burden of proving that defendant collected or received the salary of the office. Pease v. State (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 162.

In an action for wrongful death resulting from a crossing accident, the operation and control of the particular street car which caused the injury was an issuable fact, which must be established by evidence. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Terrazas (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 387.

In action for injuries to automobile in crossing accident, where there was undisputed evidence that railroad took charge of automobile and refused permission to examine car and ascertain damage, and there was no evidence as to what railroad did with car or its value or condition after injury, plaintiff will not be held to strict proof as to market value after accident; the railroad being the only one in position to give exact information. Beaumont, S. L. & W. Ry. Co. v. Myrick (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 285.

The state, in its litigation with its citizens, has no special immunities or privileges as to rules of burden of proof. Producers' Oil Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 319.

Where a fact is peculiarly within the knowledge of a party, and cannot, in the nature of things, be within the knowledge of any other party, party having such fact in his own knowledge, has the burden of proving that fact. Royal Neighbors of America v. Fletcher (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 476.
108. Party asserting or denying existence of facts.—Generally, burden of proof remains on party offering a fact in support of his case and does not change in any aspect of the cause, though the weight of evidence may shift from side to side, according to the nature and strength of the proof offered in support or denial of the main fact to be established. Donoho v. Carville (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 553; Fritzsche v. Niehow (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 407.

In an action on an open account brought more than two years after the cause of action accrued, it was not sufficient for plaintiff to allege that defendant was a non-resident without supporting such allegation by proof. Neal Commission Co. v. Golston (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1124.

Woman who intervened in wife's suit against deceased husband's employer for death benefit, claiming a legal marriage, held to have assumed burden of proving there had been no valid decree of divorce from herself entered in favor of deceased prior to alleged marriage to plaintiff. Kinney v. Tri-State Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 1180.

Plaintiff suing for balance due was not entitled to recover on testimony disproving defendants' case as made by their pleadings, but must have recovered on testimony proving case made on his own pleadings. Jennings v. Pollard (Civ. App.) 298 S. W. 415.

Defendant had burden of proving his plea of compromise and settlement of claim evidenced by his check sued on by plaintiff. Weller v. Burns (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 861.

Where a seller after refusal of the buyer to accept resold the floor and his statement for damages was based on the propositions that he had made such a tender as to place him in the position of having done all that he was required to do to transfer title to the buyer, or, if not, that he had made such an offer of tender as relieved him of an actual tender, proof of such facts are essential to recover. El Paso Grain & Milling Co. v. Lawrence (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 512.

In an employee's action against the owner of a mine and his lessee for injuries, issue being whether the lessee, who hired plaintiff, was an independent contractor, plaintiff, who alleged that the contract was a sham, assumed burden of proving such fact. Higrade Lignite Co. v. Courson (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 230.

As the statute interposes a general denial on behalf of plaintiff, a defendant who set up affirmatively defensive matter in the answer has the burden of proving such matter. Davies v. Rutland (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 235.

In an action by vendee for the recovery of land together with its rental value, the burden is on defendant the vendee of adjoining lands to establish facts sufficient to make out a prima facie title by agreement or estoppel as to boundaries as pleaded. Davies v. Rutland (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 1114.

One attacking on habeas corpus a warrant for extradition, which is regular on its face, etc., has the burden of showing that the prima facie case of regularity was not in accordance with the facts. Ex parte Roselle, 87 Cr. R. 470, 222 S. W. 248.

In an action for damages for X-ray burn, where defense was that plaintiff had a hypersensitive skin, it devolved upon defendant physician to prove that plaintiff had such a skin. Hamilton v. Harris (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 533.

In an action against a gas company for unlawful discrimination in rates, it devolves upon plaintiff to produce affirmative proof to support his allegations, and they must show a difference in rate, or that the conditions under which gas was supplied were substantially the same, or such as to present no good reason for the rate difference. Cock v. Marshall Gas Co. (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 484.

In an action on county road warrants, defendants, in order to take advantage of a defense that the warrants were issued in contravention of Const. art. 11 Sec. 7, requiring provision for payment to be made at the time the warrants were issued, must prove such defense. Austin Bros. v. Patton (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 702.

In a lessor's suit to cancel an oil and gas lease on the ground of abandonment, the burden of showing abandonment was on plaintiff. Hall v. McClusky (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1064.

A corporation sued for injuries from servant's negligence, claiming exemption on the ground that it is a charitable institution, must affirmatively plea and prove the facts necessary therefor. Barnes v. Providence Sanitarium (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 588.

In an action to recover a good faith deposit on a contract by which plaintiff was to dispose of defendant city's bonds upon their approval by plaintiff's attorney whose opinion was based on information in which plaintiff claimed damages because of greater cost in disposing of bonds than that agreed to in the contract, the burden was on the city to prove fraudulent or capricious conduct of plaintiff's attorneys, and in the absence of evidence of collusion between plaintiff and his attorneys, and the city having failed to show lack of reasonable foundation for the attorney's adverse opinion, plaintiff is entitled to judgment for the return of the deposit with legal interest thereon from date of demand therefor, Grant v. City of Mineral Wells (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 854.

Where intervelner in chattel mortgage foreclosure asserted, as ground for giving preference to his alleged prior mortgage, that there was fraud in plaintiff's mortgage and that plaintiff took it with notice of his lien, and plaintiff did not allege that it had advanced valuable consideration or was without notice of intervener's mortgage, but was content to rely on intervener's failure to prove his case. Intervener had the burden of proving his allegations; the fact that proof of a negative allegation was required not changing the rule with reference to burden of proof. First Nat. Bank v. Todd (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 322.

The general rule is that the burden of proof to establish the affirmative of an issue involved in an action rests upon the party alleging the facts constituting that issue, and remains there until the end. Cotten v. Willingham (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 572.

109. Proof of negative.—In a suit by the state to recover land within its borders, where it makes a prima facie case, the burden rests upon defendants to show a grant from the state, and that the land sued for lies within the boundaries of the grant; but the burden of proof on the whole case does not shift, although the burden of introducing proof shifts back and forth, according to affirmative issues. Producers' Oil Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 348.

The proof that proof of a negative is required to sustain an allegation does not change the rule as to the burden of proof. First Nat. Bank v. Todd (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 322.

110. Extent of burden in general.—To rebut prima facie case made out by showing that fire emanated from a railroad company's locomotive, it is not necessary for company to establish by preponderance of evidence that its employees in charge of locomotive exercised ordinary care to prevent escape of sparks therefrom. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1175.

One suing to recover a statutory penalty must produce proof that brings his case strictly within the terms of the statute. Green v. Prince (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 390.

Damages must be established with reasonable certainty; absolute certainty not being required. Williams v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 981.

Where burden of proof rests on intervener and intervener's case fails, the burden of proving the intervener's case shifts to the other party. Thornsell v. Missouri State Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 653.

111. Failure to sustain burden.—In trespass to try title, burden was on plaintiffs to prove extent of interest, and, having failed, they have no right to complain that intervener succeeded. Broom v. Peterson (Com. App.) 200 S. W. 191.

Where defendant upon his plea to abate plaintiff's suit because of another suit pending did not upon the record sustain the burden of proving that he filed his amendment in the other suit, making plaintiff a party at an earlier hour than plaintiff's suit was filed, both suits pending on the same day, his plea was properly overruled. Bragg v. Bragg (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 992.

112/a. Adoption.—Where plaintiffs, parents of a member of an insurance order, claimed the proceeds of a benefit certificate on the ground that the beneficiary named was not the adopted child of the parents, and plaintiffs introduced an instrument of adoption which was invalid, that shifted the burden of showing a valid adoption to defendants. Royal Neighbors of America v. Fletcher (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 476.

114. Limitations and adverse possession.—One asserting title to land by limitation has the burden of proving every fact necessary to give such title; inferences never being indulged in favor of a limitation claimant. Stringer v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 267; Thomas v. Ash (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 670; Trabue v. Ash (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 415.

In action on open account, plaintiff held to have burden of showing defendant's absence from the state for such periods as would reduce the time to less than two years. Neal Commission Co. v. Golson (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1124.

In suit for certain land inclosed by defendant's fence, the burden was on defendant to show what portion he was entitled to, by virtue of the statute of limitations. Esler v. Kneupper (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 508.

Where the holder of a vendor's lien note claimed that the fraudulent concealment by the grantor of the land of the fact of his ownership stopped the running of limitations in his favor, the holder of the note has the burden of showing the fraudulent concealment, his ignorance of the facts, and that he could not by reasonable diligence have discovered the fraud. Bailey v. D. Sullivan & Co. (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 906.

In an action on notes wherein defendant pleaded limitations, the burden of proof as to such issue was on him under the pleadings, remaining with him throughout the case, though the burden of introducing evidence might be shifted to plaintiff by defendant's introducing evidence of such character as to entitle him to a peremptory instruction if plaintiff did not rebut it or show matter in avoidance. Puig v. Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 291.

The burden to show that plaintiff consignee's cause of action for destruction of part of the shipment was on defendant carrier. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. R. W. Williamson & Co. (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 571, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 354.

One asserting limitations must prove every fact necessary to sustain his plea. City of Ft. Worth v. Rogers (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 833.

In action against administrator on rejected claim, claimant was not required to prove that claim was not barred by limitations, but burden of pleading and proving the claim was barred was on the administrator. Hooks v. Martin (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 592.

117. Attorney and client.—Attorneys, suing for compensation, are not required to prove the rule that burden of proving good faith is upon attorney having no application to a mere contract whereby attorney's compensation is fixed upon employment. Laybourn v. Bray & Shiflet (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 630.

In suit to set aside a judgment entered by agreement of attorneys on the ground that the attorney was authorized without authority, complainants have the burden to prove the facts upon which they rely. Pierce v. Foreign Mission Board of Southern Baptist Convention (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 140.

119. Bills and notes.—Since it will be presumed that all the makers of a joint and several note were equally liable with each other, the burden of showing the contrary rests upon such of the makers as allege that their liability is limited and different from that of the other makers. Lockett v. Farmers' State Bank of Vernon (Civ. App.) 265 S. W. 526.

Plaintiff suing wife on note has burden of proving that the note was one that a married woman was authorized by law to make. Mills v. Frost Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 298 S. W. 698.

Defendant maker has the burden of showing why plaintiff payee should not recover on notes according to their tenor and legal effect. Bremond Mfg. Co. v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 990.

Drafter, seeking to recover from payee amount paid on drafts before discovery that attached bills of lading were fictitious, has burden of proving that payee, in forwarding drafts with forged bills of lading attached, was so negligent in not detecting forgery as to make him responsible for drafter's loss. Howe Grain & Mercantile Co. v. A. B. Crouch Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 946. 120. Bona fide purchasers.—In view of art. 6824, declaring a deed valid, though unrecorded, as to all subsequent purchasers with notice or without valuable consideration, so making it void only as to purchasers for value without notice, a person undertaking to establish the invalidity of a deed has the burden of proving he is within the protected class. Keith Lumber Co. v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas, 257 Fed. 1, 168 C. C. A. 213.

Burden is on him who asserts a prior equitable title as against legal title to prove that holder of the legal title did not pay value. Kenedy Pasture Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 287.

In trespass to try title, burden was upon defendant claiming under warranty deed from R. to show that owner of judgment against R. at time he recorded abstract thereof had notice of the unrecorded conveyance to defendant; defendant's deed being unrecorded. V. v. Culton (Clv. App.) 197 S. W. 618.

Although note stated that it was part of purchase money for a dredge, title to which was to remain in payee, burden was on defendant to show some additional fact requiring purchaser to anticipate probable failure of dredge. Harty v. Keokuk Sav. Bank (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 419.

In action by landlord against purchaser of crops on which he has landlord's lien, purchaser has burden of proving himself to be innocent purchaser. G. M. Carlton Bros. & Co. v. Hoppe (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 248.

In a controversy between a holder of a prior unrecorded deed and a "creditor" under art. 6824, the holder of the unrecorded deed has the burden of showing that the creditor had notice at the time his lien attached or prior thereto. Diltz v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 354.

Under art. 5655, providing that chattel mortgages shall be void as against subsequent mortgagees or lienholders in good faith unless forthwith deposited and filed in the office of the county clerk, the burden is upon the subsequent mortgagee or lienholder to show by a preponderance of the evidence that he was a bona fide purchaser or holder for value. First Nat. Bank v. Todd (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 219.

In view of art. 6824, one holding an unrecorded deed or contract subject to registration has the burden of showing that a creditor of the grantor had notice of such instrument, or that vendor's title was sufficient to charge him with notice, at the time the creditor procured a lien on the land by virtue of the law, as by filing and indexing an abstract of judgment, as distinguished from a lien by contract. Newman v. Phalen (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 968.

Since the title to community land, legal title to which stood in the name of the husband, which descended to children upon the death of their mother, is an equitable and not a legal title, the burden of showing notice of such title to a purchaser from the surviving husband is upon the children asserting the equitable title. Johnson v. Masterson Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 497.

One who depends on the equitable right to rescind a contract of sale for the buyer's fraud has the burden to prove that a subsequent purchaser, resisting the action, took the property with notice of the fraud. Cox v. Colom (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1192.

Where all rights in land acquired by defendant were through a junior conveyance, in order for him successfully to defend against prior unregistered deed, which retained vendor's lien, burden rested on him to show he had no notice of prior conveyance. Ackers v. Frazier (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 426, the rule that 206.

Burden to show notice to junior purchaser of land of senior purchaser's unregistered title is on senior where he has only equitable title while the junior has legal title. 1d.

Maker of note sued by assignee, concealing execution and delivery and assignment before maturity, has burden of proof on defense that consideration failed and that assignee had notice thereof. Kirby v. Arkansas Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 1118.

If the deed of plaintiff in partition to defendants' predecessor was valid, then defendants had legal title, and the burden was on plaintiff to show that defendants and their vendors were purchasers without value and with notice of the facts constituting the deed of assignation. (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 518.

In a suit to set aside an oil and gas lease as a cloud on title, where plaintiffs claimed title free of the mineral lease, the burden was on them to plead and prove want of actual notice thereof. Cannon v. Scott (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1042.

In an action to establish homestead, plaintiff has the burden of showing not only title, but that boundary line was where he claimed it to be on the ground. Ball v. McDuffie (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 844; Land v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 601.

In trespass to try title, where evidence suggests a conflict between surveys, the burden is upon the party claiming under a junior patent to show that his land does not conflict with that held under a senior grant: but it is not incumbent upon one holding under a junior grant well defined and located on the ground to locate surrounding grants of uncertain description. Howell v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 291 S. W. 1022.

In suit for certain land described by metes and bounds and inclosed by defendant's fence, the burden was on defendant to show what portion he was entitled to, and where he showed title only to part, the court erred in refusing judgment for plaintiff for the remainder because it was not described in the pleadings or evidence so that a description thereof could be made in the judgment. Esser v. Kneupper (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 598.

In a boundary suit by the state, where the determining question was as to whether a corner was located by the surveyor on the bank of a river as it existed at the time of the suit or on the bank of a channel through which the river previously flowed, it was error to refuse to instruct that the burden was on plaintiff to establish the location of the corner on what it claimed was the abandoned portion of the river. Producers' Oil Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 349.

One claiming under a boundary as fixed by surveyed line had the burden of proving the actual location of such line on the ground, before a call for course and distance, giving him a smaller area of land, could be ignored. Stein v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 166.

In garnishment by a judgment creditor against a bank which collected a draft drawn by judgment debtor, burden of proof rested upon the plaintiff to show that the money was not property of another bank named as payee in the draft and was the property of the judgment debtor. Provident Nat. Bank of Waco v. Caliro Flour Co. (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 499.

In garnishment proceedings against a bank, the burden is on the plaintiff to prove that the bank knew that the debtor owned or had an interest in an account standing in the name of another with which he did business, where the evidence at the hearing to establish that fact came from a confidential source not open to the general public, and the plaintiff gave no information thereof to the bank at the time of the garnishment proceedings, or for 2½ years thereafter, and until the account had been withdrawn. Magnolia Petroleum Co. v. Lockwood Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 237 S. W. 363.

122. Brokers.—In broker's action for commission for sale of land, burden of proving commission agreed upon is upon broker. Britain v. Rice (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 254.

Where the broker produces a purchaser acceptable to the owner, it is not necessary to prove that the purchaser was ready, able, and willing to buy. Waurika Oil Ass'n No. 1 v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 364.

123. Carriers.—In consignor's action for misdelivery, defendant carrier had burden of showing that individual to whom delivery was made was either a partner or agent of consignee partnership. Missouri Iron & Metal Co. v. Texas & P. Ry. co. (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1067.

Under arts. 6669-6691, requiring carriers to forward goods via connecting lines provided empty cars be exchanged for loaded forwarded cars, defendant has burden of showing that its failure to forward was excused by not receiving empty cars. Quannah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Bone (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 332.

Weights of goods shipped stated in the bill of lading being prima facie evidence of the amount received, the burden is on the carrier to show that it did not receive such amounts. Baker v. H. Dittlinger Roller Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 788.

Under the Harter Act, § 3 (U. S. Comp. St. § 8031), providing that if the owner has properly equipped, supplied, and manned a seaworthy vessel he shall not be liable for losses from certain causes, where cotton shipped in proper condition arrived in damaged condition it devolved on the vessel owner to prove that the loss was occasioned by a cause enumerated in the statute. Mallory S. S. Co. v. Harra's-IBry Cotton Co. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 789.

An railroad is required to furnish cars for goods accepted, and as facts excusing its failure to furnish cars when proper request is made and freight is offered are peculiarly within railroad's knowledge, the burden is upon railroad to establish facts constituting an excuse for failure to furnish cars. Pt. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Strickland (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 416.

When plaintiff proves delivery of goods to common carrier, and failure of carrier to deliver goods at point of destination, he makes prima facie case, and burden is upon carrier to prove that loss was occasioned by act of God or of the public enemy, or by reason of inherent defect, or on account of fault of consignee. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 778.

In an action for injuries to a shipment of cattle, the burden is on the shipper to show that the cattle were in good condition when delivered to the carrier for shipment, and after that is shown the burden is on the carrier to show that damage suffered during shipment was caused by the inherent vice and defect of the cattle. Leon v. Hines (Civ. App.) 233 S. W. 258.

In an action against connecting carriers for damage to shipment under art. 1830, subd. 25, requiring apportionment between connecting carriers when requested by either party, the last carrier is presumed to have been at fault and has burden of proving itself not at fault, or proving the proportion of damage for which it was not at fault, in which case, the burden of proof may be shifted to the next preceding carrier to acquit itself in the same way. Crenwelge v. Ponder (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 145.

To recover for goods burned while in the carrier's possession, the shipper must prove what goods were delivered to the carrier. Jines v. Warden (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 967.

124. Contracts in general.—In suit for specific performance of oral contract to cancel notes given by plaintiff; an attorney, to his client, since deceased, plaintiff, a vigorous young lawyer, had burden of proving that contract was fair. Bright v. Briscoe (Civ. App.) 292 S. W. 183.

In action to recover money paid in part performance of an executory contract for sale of realty, plaintiff had burden of showing that he fully complied with conditions of contract upon which he was entitled to a return of the money paid. Lieber v. Nicholson (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 512.

Those who deal with telegraph corporations are entitled, if they insist upon it, to have their messages transmitted and delivered free from all conditions or limitations, except those imposed by the law of the land, and, when a surrender of any part of that right is claimed, the telegraph company must be able to establish a valid agreement to that effect. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 552.

Under a contract to settle a controversy under a building construction contract, whereby part of the agreed price was placed in escrow subject to completion of the contract by plaintiff, and which provided that if the tin work was not done the owner might complete the work and recover for it as itemized statements from competent workmen showed actual cost, the burden was on the owner to show the cost of completing the tin work in order to recover therefor. Spinner-Hay Lumber Co. v. Applebaum (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 624.

125. Want or failure of consideration.—Where a deed recited receipt of consideration, the burden is upon the person suing to cancel it for lack of consideration to show that the consideration was not paid. Russell v. Beckert (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 607.

Money paid by assignee, conceding execution and delivery and assignment before maturity, has burden of proof on defense that consideration failed. Kirby v. Arkansas Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 1118.

126. Corporations.—In action against stockholders of insolvent corporation on notes of the corporation, defended upon ground that plaintiffs had agreed to surrender the notes for stock of the corporation, plaintiffs had burden of establishing their case, but burden of proving agreement was upon defendants. Donoho v. Carwile (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 553.

126 1/2. Custody of child.—One seeking to withhold custody of child from its natural parent held to have burden of showing that best interests of child demand that its custody and care be taken from parent. Dugan v. Smith (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 654.

In habeas corpus proceedings by father to recover possession of his child from its grandparents, the grandparents have the burden of proving that the father was unfit to have charge of the child, or that its best interests would be subverted by the grandparents' custody. Cardenas v. Barrera (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 474.

Where a parent who surrendered custody of his child to a third person brought habeas corpus to regain the custody, the third person has the burden of establishing facts necessary to overcome the legal presumption, but it is sufficient if the third person show that the best interests of the child demand that it remain in his or her custody, and it is improper to grant the parent the custody of the child, regardless of all else, unless his unfitness be shown. Dunn v. Jackson (Com. App.) 211 S. W. 351.

To recover compensatory damages for negligence of a bank for failure to promptly notify drawer of the nonpayment of a draft, the burden of proof is upon plaintiff to show that it could and would have recovered and applied to drawer's indebtedness money of the drawer on deposit in another bank, and such burden never shifts. Terrell v. Commercial Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1133.

In action against buyer of cotton seed for failure to receive and pay therefor, if seed, after refusal, was not sold to best advantage by sellers, buyer should show fact. Beaumont Cotton Oil Mill Co. v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 372; Same v. Reeves (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 375.

Before recovery can be had for expenses incurred by one injured as result of defendant's wrongful conduct, it must appear that the amount claimed for such expenses or the amount recovered is a reasonable amount, proof of payment of items of expense not showing that it was reasonable. Kuehn v. Neugebauer (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 369.

Though price at which agent was authorized to sell was less in telegram as transmitted than in message filed, it is necessary for recovery from company, to prove the value of goods exceeded the amount realized from agent's sale. Early-Foster Co. v. Mackay Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1172.

In parent's action for loss of services during minority of their ten year old boy injured by defendant's train, it was not incumbent on parents to prove boy would have 1047 worked and earned money for them, but only that he had capacity and ability. Houston & C. R. Ry. Co. v. Roberts (Clv. App.) 206 S. W. 382.

To entitle a shipper of live stock to recover for negligent delay which caused loss in weight, he must show the difference between the market value of the animals on arrival, and what would have been the market value if promptly delivered. Kansas City, M. & O. R. R. Co. v. Collett (Clv. App.) 267 S. W. 165.

Under a contract of guaranty to pay notes, where it was duty of creditors to turn notes over to attorney to be selected by guarantors for collection by suit, and, if money could not be made by execution, guarantors were to pay same upon the due transfer of the judgment to suit, upon refusal of the guarantors to reduce notes to judgment and their denial of liability thereon, the measure of damages was prima facie the face value of the notes, and burden rested upon guarantors to show any matter which would reduce or mitigate the damages. Bank of Miami v. Young (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 656.

Buyer, suing seller for breach of contract to deliver wheat f. o. b. cars at certain station within certain time, was not entitled to judgment for damages, where he introduced no evidence of the market value of wheat at such station, notwithstanding evidence of market value at point of destination and at other stations. Hallam v. Duckworth (Clv. App.) 209 S. W. 222.

Where plaintiff, who sued to recover a balance due on a contract for the cutting of hay, set up claims for loading the hay, etc., but no contract was shown as to the amount to be paid for such service, recovery cannot be allowed without proof of the reasonable value of the service. Cochran v. Taylor (Clv. App.) 209 S. W. 253.

In action against carrier for damages to mules in transit, there having been intrinsic value of the mules at destination after injuries, it should have been shown what the value was before damages could have been legally awarded. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Helms Bros. (Clv. App.) 210 S. W. 852.

It is not essential to the right of recovery for wife's impaired capacity to perform her household duties that the pecuniary value of the same be shown with any mathematical accuracy or in dollars and cents. City of Ft. Worth v. Weisler (Clv. App.) 213 S. W. 289.

Shipper suing carrier for damages to live stock shipment cannot recover for expenditures for extra feed and labor necessitated by negligent delay in absence of evidence that the charges paid for such feed and labor were reasonable. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Hill (Clv. App.) 213 S. W. 952.

Solvant mercantile corporation, which has delivered its stock to creditors' committee with authority to conduct business and pool proceeds with proceeds of other insolvent corporations is being conducted by it for the purpose of paying the debts of the several concerns, cannot recover from the committee the proceeds of its business without proof of the amount derived from sales in its business. Kaplan Dry Goods Co. v. Sanger Bros. (Clv. App.) 214 S. W. 485.

In personal injury action there must be evidence of the reasonableness of expenses incurred for medical attendance and for medicine; the reasonableness thereof not being inferred from the fact that the sums were exacted. Corpus Christi Ry. & Light Co. v. Baxter (Clv. App.) 217 S. W. 187.

In action against carrier for loss of baled cotton by fire, plaintiff had the burden of showing the amount of his damage, which was not discharged by evidence showing the grade of the cotton or number of pounds destroyed. Brass v. Texarkana & Pt. Smith Ry. Co., 110 Tex. 251, 218 S. W. 1040.

An owner whose grass had been fired by train has the burden of proving the value of grass destroyed. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Price (Clv. App.) 219 S. W. 518.

In a shipper's action against a carrier for failure to ship certain mules according to contract, special damages were claimed on the ground that the mules had been purchased for sale to the government for war purposes, it was necessary for plaintiff to prove that the live stock was up to the government standard, and would have passed inspection. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Davis (Clv. App.) 225 S. W. 773.

When grain or oil was claimed by buyer sold was of prior quality, and in action for balance of the price he prayed judgment for the amount paid the seller therefore, in which action the buyer, who had not returned the goods but had used them, gave evidence of substantial defects but did not show the amount of damage or loss sustained by reason thereof, judgment that neither party take anything was error, as the measure of damages from failure to deliver goods of the character contracted for, when they are accepted by the buyer and used is the difference between the contract price and the market value of the goods actually delivered, which damages must be proved. Liquid Carbonic Co. of Texas v. Migurski (Clv. App.) 229 S. W. 861.

One occasioning loss to another has the burden of showing that the complainant could have prevented the loss by reasonable care. Denby Motor Truck Co. v. Mears (Clv. App.) 229 S. W. 994.

When expenditures are made necessary by the wrong of another, the party making expenditures, before he can recover the amount paid, must show that there was a necessity for incurring the expense and that the amounts paid were reasonable. Nunn v. Brillhart (Clv. App.) 230 S. W. 862.

132. Election contest.—In suit contesting election of drainage commissioners, party challenging voter has burden to prove vote was illegal. Cantwell v. Sutliff (Clv. App.) 196 S. W. 656.

133. Condemnation of property.—In suit proceeding by a city which sought to condemn land for a waterworks, the burden is on the landowner, part of whose land was taken, to show the amount of damage he suffered. City of Rosebud v. Vitek (Clv. App.) 210 S. W. 728.
135. Writ of execution.—Where the sheriff did not take certain property from a company's possession on writ of execution served in another company's behalf, the company first mentioned as claimant had the affirmative of the issue and the burden of proof to establish its right to the property, possession of which was taken by the sheriff under execution to another, the findings showing that the company first mentioned never had acquired any title to the property by any conveyance or act of his and any possession not carrying the presumption of right thereto in favor of the company, which presumption would have existed only in the event of the sheriff's having taken the property from such company under the writ of execution followed by the company's retaining possession through filing claimant's bond and oath. Moore-De Grazier Co. v. Hawley (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1069.

136. Administration of estate.—In action by wife against executor of her husband's estate, burden was on executor to show that wife had relinquished her rights under bill of sale upon which suit was based. Smith v. Smith (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 540.

In action upon vendor's lien note, where plaintiff's pleadings showed that it had been the property of an estate of which an administrator was appointed in Kentucky and been placed with a bank under an escrow agreement between one of the owners and the administrator, the burden was on plaintiff to show an order of court under art. 3480, authorizing a sale or assignment by administrator to him. Webb v. Reynolds (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 914.

139. Fraud and duresa.—In an action to recover money paid under duresa, it must appear that defendant ought not in justice and good conscience to retain the money. C. W. Hahl & Co. v. Hutcheson, Campbell & Hutcheson (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 262.

Although wide latitude is allowed to prove fraud, yet it must be established by facts or circumstances sufficiently strong to warrant a finding that fraud existed, or inferences or presumptions based on such facts. Tatum v. Orange & N. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 348.

In trespass to try title by judgment creditor against his debtors' grantee, burden was on plaintiff judgment creditor to show insolvency of the debtors when they made conveyance. Fortner v. Langley (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 333. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 333.

To set aside conveyance to one who paid full value, it devolved upon complaining creditor of grantors to establish, not only conveyance was made by grantors with fraudulent intent to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors, but also intent was known to grantees.

140. The allegation of fraud which invalidates an instrument places the burden upon the party making it to establish the fraud by the preponderance of the evidence. Campbell v. Turley (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 528.

Where conveyances by a widow to her children were supported by consideration valuable in law, the creditor has the burden of establishing the necessary facts to show fraud. Durrett v. Chenault (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 771.

A widow, who was indebted, having in settlement of her husband's estate conveyed land to her children, and received herself the fee in some of the lands, and a life interest in others, as well as notes, the conveyances, being supported by a consideration deemed valuable in law, were not prima facie void so as to cast on the children the burden of showing that the widow was possessed of remaining property sufficient to pay her debts. Id.

141. Garnishment.—In garnishment proceedings the burden of proof that the funds in the garnishee bank were belonging to the debtor rests upon the plaintiff. Denison Bank & Trust Co. v. People's Guaranty State Bank of Tyler (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 561, 562.

142. Guardian and ward.—In suit on guardianship bond, defendants had the burden of showing that the guardian had accounted for the guardianship fund. Davis v. White (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 679.

In an action on the bond of a guardian who had been executor and trustee under the will of his wards' father which provided a fund for their education and maintenance, where it appeared that the guardian checked out the fund, and it did not appear that he invested it as required by arts. 4140-4147, the burden was on the sureties seeking to avoid liability for interest to show that the expenditures by the guardian for the education and maintenance of the wards were from the earnings of the fund in his hands as guardian. Wyatt & Wingo v. White (Com. App.) 225 S. W. 154.

143. Homestead.—When it is shown that a homestead once existed the burden rests upon those who contest its discontinuance to show that it has been abandoned. Robinson v. McGuire (Civ. App.) 263 S. W. 415; Hart v. Hawley (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 302. Defendant has burden of showing that property sought to be partitioned by his wife's heirs constituted his homestead. Evans v. Fortner (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 626.

On seeking to avoid a trust deed on the ground that the property covered thereby was the homestead of himself and wife, has the burden of showing every element of homestead as defined by Const. art. 16, § 50. Murphy v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1053.

143 1/2. Community property, and separate estates.—In suit for state school surveys, defendant, claiming under conveyance from wife alone, on ground that she had been compelled to leave husband and was selling for her support, held to have burden of proving cause for leaving husband, necessity of sale and threats of husband, and plaintiff the burden of proving value of land for grazing purposes. Lasater v. Jamison (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1151.

In wife's suit for conversion of her personality by defendant foreclosure a mortgage given by the husband, it was not necessary for the wife to show from what source she acquired the property, but only that it was her separate property. Burkitt v. Moxley (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 373.

Where a husband asserted rights in lands standing in his wife's name, on the theory that he had out of his separate funds paid for improvements, the husband has the burden of showing wherein his separate estate is entitled to reimbursement. King v. King (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1093.

Injunction.—To entitle a lot owner to enjoin an encroachment upon an alley, it is not necessary that all access to his lot therefrom be cut off, and the fact that the obstruction did not cut off all access is a matter of evidence as to special or peculiar damage, which it rests upon plaintiff to prove to secure an injunction. Shelton v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 967.

In a suit to enjoin the maintenance of a road opened by the commissioners' court the burden was on plaintiff to show by a preponderance of the evidence an abuse of discretion by the commissioners' court. Bradford v. Moseley (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 171, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Moseley v. Bradford, 199 S. W. 824.

Insane persons.—Plaintiff suing an insane person on a note had the burden to show that the contract was entered into by him during a lucid interval. Beasley v. Faust (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 79.

Insurance.—In an action on an insurance policy, wherein defendant alleged that losses were payable to the mortgagee, the burden was upon it to show that plaintiff did not have an interest sufficient to support the action. Camden Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Wagoner (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 259.

Burden to make out their case, resting upon plaintiffs suing on accident policy, was met by proof that insured's death was caused by external and violent means, a presumption that death was caused by suicide or misadventure making a prima facie case. Georgia Casualty Co. v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 316.

Where it is shown that deceased met his death as the result of external and violent means, there arises a presumption against suicide, the force of which is to place upon the insurer the burden of establishing that insured's death was caused by his own hand, or by voluntarily exposing himself to danger. Bankers' Health & Accident Ass'n v. Wilkes (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 230.

In suit on accident policy containing exception clauses, such as a clause providing that the policy shall not cover accidents resulting from trying to enter a moving conveyance using steam as motive power plaintiff has the burden of establishing that the accident on which suit is based does not fall within the exceptions; the exception clauses being construed as taking something out of the general portion of the contract so that the promise is to perform only what remains after the part excepted is taken away. Travelers' Ins. Co. v. Harris (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 933.

In an action on a fire policy, the burden is upon plaintiff to show that his cause of action does not fall within excepting clauses in the policy. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Co. v. Westmoreland (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 471.

In an action on a life certificate, where the fraternal society interposes a defense that the certificate sued on is invalid and was forfeited by reason of failure of the member to notify the clerk of his local camp of his employment in an hazardous occupation, the burden is upon it to prove the invalidity of the certificate. Sovereign Camp of Woodmen of the World v. Akins (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 492.

In an action on a life policy, the burden of proof as to the defense of suicide was on the insurer. Green v. Missouri State Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 532.

In an insurance policy, where defense thereunder as to the existence of a suicide or accident has been made as false answer to a question in her application regarding prior rejections, the date of the application being important, the burden was on the insurer to sustain its claim as to the date of the application; application having been lost. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Mayo (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 249.

Under a policy insuring against damage by tornado, windstorm, or cyclone, expressly excepting from the risk any loss or damage through tidal wave, high water, or overflow, and damage caused by water or rain, whether or not driven by the wind, burden was on insured to show that loss was not among those excepted. Coyle v. Palatine Ins. Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 573, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Palatine Ins. Co. v. Coyle, 196 S. W. 560.

In action on fire policy following destruction of insured's house by explosion in adjoining building and ensuing fire, plaintiff was required to plead and prove that her loss did not fall within an excepted explosion clause in policy providing that insurer should not be liable for damage caused by an explosion. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Co. v. Mims (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 738.

As under the Employer's Liability Act, pt. 1, § 2 (art. 5246), employees of subscribers have no right of action against their employer, but are remitted for recovery to the association created by law or the insurance company carrying the risk involved. It is essential to recovery against an insurance company by an employé to show that such insurer was carrying the risk. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 616.

In an action against a fire insurance company for loss sustained, where the company had elected to renew policies under an agreement with its agent, the burden was on defendant to show that it was prohibited by law from complying with its verbal con-
In a beneficiary's action it is incumbent on the defendant pleading suicide to prove it by a preponderance of the evidence. Woodmen of the World v. Holmes (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 335.

When subject-matter of two suits is not same, it devolves upon those invoking estoppel by prior adjudication to show by record or evidence that particular question has been previously determined. Tompkins v. Hooker (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 133.

Where a verdict was general and fails to show upon which count in complaint recovery was awarded, burden is upon one in a subsequent suit to show by evidence that recovery was upon count on which he bases a plea of res adjudicata. Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 555.

To secure vacation of a judgment by a direct suit on the ground of fraud, accident, or mistake, the party seeking relief has the burden of showing that he was prevented from urging some valid defense, and that this prevention resulted from fraud, accident, or the act of the other party, and it is not enough merely to show that injustice has been done, or that a valid defense existed. Wagley v. Wagley (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 493.

On a motion to set aside a default judgment alleged to have been taken in violation of an agreement, the burden was on defendant to show such agreement. Winmiford v. Lawther Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 853.

151. Landlord and tenant.—In an action by tenant under a lease for one year to recover from his landlord's grantee money received for pasturage, plaintiff must establish his claim that he was entitled to two-thirds of Johnson grass under his contract with his former landlord. Ellis (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 572.

In action by tenants against landlords for breach of rental contract, if there was any reason why tenants' failure to repley land after sequestration by landlords was negligence on part of tenants, burden was on landlords so to allege and show. Lamar v. Hillcrest (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 167.

In an action by a lessee against a sublessee on the rent contract, it is not plaintiff's duty to show that he had paid the rental on the land leased due from him as lessee, to the owners of the land; such matter being defensive. Green v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 471.

152. Libel and slander.—Where a communication is qualifiedly privileged, the inference of malice is rebutted prima facie, and it devolves upon the party complaining to allege and prove malice. Koehler v. Dubose (Civ. App.) 290 S. W. 238; Foley Bros. Dry Goods Co. v. McClain (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 459.

Under art. 5597, providing that newspapers can publish accounts of court proceedings, etc., the burden is on one suing for libel to show falsity and unfairness, or that a publication was actuated by malice. Light Pub. Co. v. Huntress (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1168.

In an action for libel, malice may be inferred from the falsity of the charge or imputation, unless the occasion is privileged, but, if the occasion be privileged, a proper and sufficient motive is shown repelling the inference of malice and giving rise, in view thereof, to the presumption that the communication was made in good faith, whereupon it devolves upon plaintiff to establish malice in fact. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Edmundson (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 181, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 402.

The publication of judicial proceedings being privileged, plaintiff has burden of proving malice. Express Pub. Co. v. Wadley (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 649.

154. Malicious prosecution.—Burden of establishing want of probable cause, presence of malice, and that plaintiff was not guilty of theft of mule is upon plaintiff in action for malicious prosecution. Bukowski v. Williams (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 343.

155. Mandamus.—In mandamus to compel clerk of district court to approve supersedeas bond, the burden is on relator to show that the sureties are sufficient. Bean v. Folk (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1106.

157. Master and servant in general.—When a contract of employment gives the employer the right to discharge, he may exercise it, but the employee may call the honesty and good faith of his act in question; the burden being on the employee to prove his case by the preponderance of the evidence. Golden Rod Mills v. Green (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1089.

158. Mechanics' liens.—The burden was on claimants of liens as a materialman and as a mechanic to establish, not only the verity of their claims, but the existence of their liens under the contractor's order on funds in the hands of the owner or his agent. Leeper-Curt Lumber Co. v. Barlowza (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 216.

In a proceeding to foreclose a mechanic's lien the burden of proof is upon materialmen to establish the notice required by art. 5623, as it read prior to the amendments by the Thirty-Fourth and Thirty-Fifth Legislatures (Acts 54th Leg. [1915] c. 145, and Acts 35th Leg. [1917] c. 17 [Supp. 1913, arts. 5622, 5639a]), upon the owner, or his duly authorized agent. Burns & Hamilton Co. v. Denver Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 719.

159. Mortgages.—Under Bankruptcy Act, July 1, 1898, c. 541, §§ 60a and 60b, 30 Stat. 562 as amended in 1910 (U. S. Comp. St. § 9644), trustee in bankruptcy suing to set aside bankrupt's deeds of trust and his payment of cash must affirmatively show that defendants had reasonable cause to believe that enforcement of deeds and payment would effect a preference. Brown v. First State Bank of Weimar (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 859.

In mortgagor's action against purchaser of mortgaged property for conversion, defendant on moratorium waived lien, where mortgagee had waived existence of lien, its registration, and conversion of the property, the burden of proving the waiver of the lien was upon purchaser. Weeks v. First State Bank of DeKalb (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 972.

Defendant mortgagee, who included in his loan money wherewith to discharge indebtedness secured by first mortgage, and who claimed as purchaser at sale under first mortgage, which was transferred to him, had burden of proving that it was the intention of the parties that there was to be no merger of debts and securities, or that there was an equitable ground requiring them to be kept separate for his protection. Amicable Life Ins. Co. v. Slovak (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 260.

In a proceeding to foreclose a deed of trust lien on real estate, the burden was upon defendant whose title was based on an attachment proceeding antedating the trust deed to introduce extrinsic evidence identifying the land claimed by him as the land in controversy; extrinsic evidence being necessary to explain terms used in the sheriff's return. Lemm v. Kramer (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 560.

The party asserting that a deed absolute on its face was in fact a mortgage has the burden of so showing by preponderance of the evidence. Young v. Blain (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 851.

160. Ordinance.—Burden of establishing unreasonableness or discriminatory character of ordinance is upon party seeking to enjoin its enforcement. Gray v. S. T. Woodring Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 281.

162. Notice.—Where it is sought to hold a retired member liable by one who has dealt with the partnership prior to its dissolution, the burden of proof to establish due notice or knowledge is upon such member. Thompson v. Harmon (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 999.

167. Payment.—While ordinarily burden of proof is on one alleging payment, yet after 20 years burden shifts to creditor. Leake v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 472.

A purchaser has the burden of proving payment by him of the notes secured by vendor's lien, in order to establish his legal title to the premises, and he cannot object to the admission in evidence against him of the deed to a subsequent purchaser, where he made no proof of the payment of consideration. Head v. Moore (Civ. App.) 233 S. W. 392.

168. Agency and authority.—Persons dealing with an assumed agent, whether he be a general or a special one, are bound at their peril to ascertain not only the fact of agency, but the extent of his authority, and in case either is controverted the burden of proof is on them to establish it. Kelly v. Pelt (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 196; J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 922; Rhodes v. Smith (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 227.

In an action against a principal, where actual authority does not exist, the burden is upon plaintiff to bring himself within the rule of apparent authority. Shippers' Compress Co. v. Northern Assurance Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 939.

In action against automobile dealers for death of one killed by their demonstrator, the burden of proof was upon plaintiff to show the demonstrator was acting within the scope of his employment when the accident occurred. Van Cleave v. Walker (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 767.

Corporations can be bound by their agents only when acting within the scope of their authority, and those dealing with such agents are not only chargeable with notice of, but in case of controversy have the burden of proving authority assumed to have been in fact possessed. Producers' Oil Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 68.

In action for delay in transmitting death message, the burden of proof is on the telephone company, receiving messages by phone for transmission, to show that the person was not and actually received and transmitted to the agent the message was some person wholly unauthorized to act. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 720.

Where a bank knew the agency its customer had established for its cashier to fill in a note signed in blank by the customer to cover overdrafts, in its suit on the note the bank had no burden to establish the relation of agency between the customer and its cashier: the only fact to be established being whether the amount of the note was filled in correctly by the cashier. Gore v. Uvalde Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 620.

In suit for specific performance by the buyer of land through defendant owner's agent to sell, if notice of revocation of the agent's authority was essential to render it effectual as to plaintiff, the burden was on defendant owner to show it. Morgan v. Harper (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 838.

172. Title and ownership.—In trespass to try title, the burden is on the plaintiff to show title. Johnson v. Martin (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 726; Webb v. Goldsmith (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 690.

Where defendant was in possession of automobile by purchase from third person, it was duty of insurer of an automobile against theft, claiming car as that for loss of which it had reimbursed insured, to prove beyond prima facie title of defendant. Federal Ins. Co. v. Munden (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 917.

In suit for taking of cattle claimed by one defendant as having been stolen from him, and having passed to plaintiff, to overcome plaintiff's prima facie proof of title, by showing possession under a purchase, it was incumbent on defendants to identify 1052.
cattle as included in those stolen from owner defendant, and so to do they had burden, not only to show that his V brand was placed on them by owner defendant, but also that his earmark of a slit had been changed by the thief to an underbit. Stovall v. Martin (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 321.

In trespass to try title, where there was evidence that both parties claimed under M., who was not shown to have had any title, as a common source of title, defendant also showing the acquisition by him of the interest of the heirs of a person admitted to have previously had title, burden is on defendant to show that M. had not acquired an equitable title from the former owner. McBride v. Loomis (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 498.

The rule that the burden is upon a parent purchasing property from a child to establish the fairness of the transaction does not apply where the property in fact belonged to the father, but the title was in the daughter as her mother’s heir. Dean v. Dean (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 506.

In action of trespass to try title, where plaintiffs asserted title to one half interest in the land and a contract for purchase of the other half, while defendant who pleaded not guilty also alleged ownership of an oil lease on the other half from record owner, the burden of proving title was on plaintiffs, and direction of verdict for them without proof of title was error. Canon v. Scott (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 429.

In grantee’s action for breach of warranty under warranty deed conveying land in Oklahoma because of existence of superior title in another, under Comp. Laws 1909, § 58, granting, in order to recover, must affirmatively show that the deed under which he claimed was made in substantial compliance with the provisions of the Oklahoma act of which such statute was a part. Langford v. Newsom (Com. App.) 220 S. W. 544, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Newsom v. Langford, 174 S. W. 1066.

In trying to have placed an action to quiet title to these ditto claims against the heirs of the patentee, the burden is on plaintiffs to establish the missing links in their chain of title; that is, the transfer of the lost certificate by the preponderance of the evidence. Magee v. Paul, 110 Tex. 170, 221 S. W. 254, answering certified questions (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 1118, and answers conform to (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 1118.

In an action for the killing of a horse on a railroad, the defendant railroad company’s ownership of the railroad must be proved. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Sims (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 684.

Where plaintiff, bank, suing in trespass to try title, held legal title to the whole of the land sued for, one tract by mesne conveyance from the ancestor of certain defendants, the other by such conveyances from the ancestor of the other defendants, the burden was on defendants, claiming equities in such land superior to such legal title, to show facts subordinating such legal title to their equities. Yates v. Buffalo State Bank (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 619.

In trespass to try title by a prior purchaser from the common source, recital in the junior purchaser’s deed of payment of the purchase money is not evidence against the prior purchaser, and the burden of proof is on the junior purchaser. Johns v. Wear (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1005.

172. Receivers.—Parties relying on a release executed by the receiver of an insolvent corporation have the burden of showing the receiver’s authority. Lanham v. West (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 256.

In action against railroad, after termination of receivership, to recover damages from operation of road by receivers, plaintiff has burden of proving that profits of operation of road by receivers were paid over to company or invested in betterments, or that railroad was made liable for the receiver’s debts by order or decree of court. Best & Russell Cigar Co. v. William Reese Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 317.

In an action against a receiver of a railroad company for personal injuries to plaintiff, in the absence of special plea denying that defendant was receiver, it was unnecessary for plaintiff to prove such fact. Baker v. Gohman (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 691.

Where seller of automobile, taking buyer’s old car in part payment, on its own breach and rescission by the buyer desired to return the old car, the burden rested on it to prove it was in as good condition as when delivered to it, and it was not incumbent on the buyer to prove its condition. Alamo Automobile Co. v. Schmidt (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 804.

In suit to rescind purchase of a mare, it would have been clearly improper for the trial court to have put on plaintiffs the burden of proof as to the defense that the mare was accepted by plaintiff without any warranties of soundness. McDonald v. Stafford (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 732.

Where a seller agreed to deliver 1,000 barrels of flour, but part of the shipment was damaged, the seller cannot hold the buyer liable on the theory that by letter he tendered delivery of other flour, and that the letter was returned to him without proof as to how the letter was delivered or returned. El Paso Grain & Milling Co. v. Lawrence (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 512.

In an action on notes by a seller of a piano, silverware, and advertising matter, to be given away as prizes in connection with defendant’s mercantile business, seller agreeing to refund to defendant, in the event the annual sale of merchandise did not amount to a certain sum, 5 per cent. of the deficiency of the sale, defendant had the burden of proof to show a substantial compliance with his part of the contract in order to set up

179 ½. Specific performance.—In suit for specific performance of oral contract to cancel notes given by plaintiff, an attorney, to his client, since deceased, it was incumbent on plaintiff to show terms of contract with certainty and by evidence clear and satisfactory. Brittfactory v. Briscoe (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 135.

181. Taxes and taxation.—In an action on secured note and to foreclose vendor's lien, taxes provided for in deed of trust having been paid by plaintiff at the request of defendants and under stipulation in deed of trust that same were valid liens, and that plaintiff would thereby be subrogated, plaintiff was not required to prove a proper assessment and rendition of the property for taxes as a prerequisite of foreclosure of such tax lien. Blackmon v. Texas Securities Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 590.

In suit to review action of board of commissioners in levying reassessment against plaintiff and her property, burden was on plaintiff to show that defendant had been guilty of unreasonable delay in having reassessment made. Texas Bitulithic Co. v. Henry (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 221.

Burden is on one claiming exemptions from taxation to bring himself clearly within statute or Constitution. Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 669.

Nebraska corporation whose dredgeboat and equipment were in Texas and rendered for taxation by it to have the burden of showing that the property was not taxable, and not to have sustained such burden. North American Dredging Co. of Nevada v. State (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1065.

183. Recovery of lands in general.—Burden of proof is upon one seeking to show ambiguity in deed. McDougal v. Conn (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 627.

Where plaintiffs, defendants in a cross-action of trespass to try title, made out a prima facie case and it was necessary to present evidence, who had the burden of proof, in order to recover to meet such prima facie case by counter-vailing proof. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Choate (Com. App.) 232 S. W. 285.

184. Conversion of property.—In cases of conversion of personal property, market value of property at place and date of conversion must be shown to warrant recovery. Waldrop v. Goltzman (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 335.

Shipper suing for conversion, by delivery other than to shipper's order, contrary to bill of lading, has burden not only of showing this, but also that he was injured thereby. Owosso Mfg. Co. v. Chicago, I. & P. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 815.

In an action against a railroad for conversion of cotton, a judgment for plaintiff cannot stand, where there is no proof that the cotton was ever delivered to the railroad, or any evidence concerning the quality or weight of the cotton. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Spencer (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 959.

In shipper's action against carrier for conversion where defense was that goods had been taken from carrier under writ of attachment, the burden of establishing such defense was upon carrier. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. McKie (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 737.

185. Trusts and following trust property.—In suit to establish resulting trust, burden of proof to establish that any trust funds were used in paying for land is on plaintiff. Blumenthal v. Nussbaum (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 275.

The burden is upon the party claiming a resulting trust in land to trace the funds claimed as his own into the property purchased. Dills v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 356.

The rule requiring persons claiming that land is held in trust to show that they paid some part of the consideration is not applicable in cases of express trusts. Holmes v. Tennant (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 313.

If the seller of oil and gas rights had sought to avoid the effect of the opinion of the buyer's attorney that his title was invalid on the ground that such opinion was not rendered in good faith, the opinion making the opinion the test of whether the buyer's deposit should be returned to him, the burden would have been on such seller. Lea v. Helgerson (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 992.

191. Negligence.—Injuries to person in general.—In action for injuries at crossing interurban railroad it was plaintiff's duty to introduce testimony establishing prima facie case that road's servants were not exercising ordinary care. Southern Traction Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 80.

Where railroad employee who received injuries while engaged in switching gave notice to company to furnish record showing nature of service in which the car being swung was engaged, company had burden of proving, having made out a prima facie case of injuries occurring while he was engaged in interstate commerce, of showing that injuries did not so occur. Southern Pac. Co. v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1076.

One into whose eye hot cinder is thrown by railroad engine 174 feet distant has burden of proving negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Langford (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1087.

In action under federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8557-8565) for death of a brakeman, the question whether a foreign car was inspected before being placed in charge of a train crew was a fact lying peculiarly within defendant's knowledge, and the burden of proof therein. Rowe v. Colorado & S. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 295 S. W. 731.
The burden of proof is upon the injured plaintiff to establish that defendant's employé operating its train actually discovered plaintiff's peril in time to have avoided the injury. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 695.

In action for injuries sustained by plaintiff switch tender when thrown under a moving train, because of his stumbling over a pipe left by defendant in such position as to partially obstruct a path along the track, the burden was upon plaintiff to show that defendant was guilty of negligence that proximately caused the injury. Galveston, H. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Butts (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 419.

Deceased's death being the result of an electric shock resulting from an excessive voltage, defendant which furnished electricity to deceased's dwelling had the burden of showing that excessive voltage was not due to its negligence. Texas Power & Light Co. v. Cheek (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 702.

To entitle plaintiff to recover for defendant's improper acts in an emergency after he had discovered plaintiff's peril, it need not be shown that defendant's acts were wanton or reckless. Alamo Iron Works v. Prado (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 282.

To show that a refinery company's employé was employed as an independent contractor to stop a leak in a tank oil car, it was incumbent upon employing railroad sued for his injuries to plead and prove special facts negativing prima facie showing that he was employed as any other employé, though possessing special skill. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. v. Clement (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 407.

Where evidence as to the extent of defendant railroad's control of the car which killed its brakeman was within defendant's knowledge, in the absence of showing to the contrary it will be presumed the car was controlled by defendant as part of its equipment. Colorado & S. Ry. Co. v. Rowe (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 259.

192. — Proximate cause of injury.—To recover for negligence in failing to ring bell for crossing, it is incumbent upon plaintiff to show affirmatively that bell was not rung, and that such failure was proximate cause of accident. Schaff v. Bearden (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 503.

The burden of proof of negligence as proximate cause of injury on street sued for against city and its street repair contractor rests on plaintiffs. Peterson v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 580.

194. — Assumption of risk.—In an action for injuries to servant, the defendant must plead and prove its defense of assumed risk. Southern Pac. Co. v. Hazelbusch (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 268.

In action for injuries sustained by plaintiff switch tender when thrown under a moving train, because of his stumbling over a pipe left by defendant in such a position as to partially obstruct a path along the track, the burden was upon defendant to prove that plaintiff knew of the obstruction and realized the danger. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Butts (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 419.

Where passenger's destination was called before train reached that point and passenger alighted and suffered injuries in riding on horseback to her destination, burden of proving that she was guilty of contributory negligence was on the railroad company. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Gentry (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 482.

Where the carrier alleged contributory negligence of a person who fell over a tongue of an express truck on the platform, it had the burden of showing such negligence by a preponderance of the evidence. Wells Fargo & Co. v. Lowery (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 665.

In action for injuries at interurban railroad crossing, it was road's duty to rebui plaintiff's prima facie case to prove that driver of wagon was guilty of contributory negligence. Southern Traction Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 156.

In an action for damages resulting from crossing accident, the burden was on the street railroad company to show that the automobile was so curtailed or covered as to obstruct or obscure the view of its driver to the rear, under which condition the city ordinance required a mirror, in order to establish driver's contributory negligence in not having the vehicle so equipped. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Terrazas (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 387.

In action for injuries sustained by plaintiff switch tender when thrown under a moving train, because of his stumbling over a pipe left by defendant in such position as to partially obstruct a path along the track, defendant had the burden of showing that no prudent person would have used the path in question at night when there was a clear path on the other side of the track. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Butts (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 419.

In action for damages growing out of a collision between plaintiff's automobile and defendant's interurban car at a street crossing, held, that burden was upon defendant to prove contributory negligence. Southern Traction Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 457.

In action for injuries by being struck by an interurban car, while plaintiff, an intending passenger, was endeavoring to stop it, the burden of proof was upon defendant on the issue of contributory negligence. Texas Electric Ry. v. Hooks (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 654.

In action under Employers' Liability Act, where intoxication of employee is pleaded as a defense, defendant has burden of affirmatively establishing intoxication. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. v. Durham (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 275.

In an action for injuries to jitney passenger in collision with street car, where street railroad pleaded as an affirmative defense that the accident was caused solely by the negligence of the driver, the street railroad had the burden of sustaining such plea. Dallas Ry. Co. v. Eaton (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 318.

To establish the defense of contributory negligence, defendant must prove, not only that plaintiff was negligent, but also that such negligence was the proximate cause of the injury. Id.

The burden of proof was on defendant employer, in suit for death of its servant, on the issue of the servant's negligence; the presumption being against such fact. Colorado Ry. Co. v. Rowe (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 328.

The law presumes that one killed at a railroad crossing was doing whatever was reasonably necessary for his own safety, so the company sued for his death must prove he was not, to relieve itself of the consequences of its failure to give the crossing signal. Mistrot-Calahan Co. v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 327.

197. — Delay and failure to deliver telegrams.—Though error in transmission of message may be so gross as to be prima facie evidence of negligence, the mere fact that there may have been an error in the message as received is not of itself sufficient proof of negligence, and the burden is on plaintiff, in such cases, to show negligence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Ferguson Bros. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 446.

198. — Carriage of goods and live stock.—Where carrier undertook to precold refrigerator cars and to ice them during transit and shipment was injured for failure to properly precold and ice cars, carrier has burden of proving that it exercised due care, notwithstanding it did have precooling plant at place of shipment. Wells Fargo & Co. v. Sprague (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 657.

Carriers sued for damages to shipment of cattle held to have burden of showing that shipper's agent undertook to load the cattle and roughly handled them in so doing. Massey v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 499.

When animals are delivered to a carrier in sound condition, and the shipper does not accompany them, and they arrive at destination dead or in an injured condition, the burden rests on the carrier to show that it is not liable. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Sutherland (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 982.

A carrier must show that conditions in a contract for the shipment of live stock relative to the shipper's duty to inspect cars, etc., were reasonable. Mexico Northwestern Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 712.

In a suit for injuries to shipment of cattle while in transit, the burden is upon plaintiffs to show that they were negligently handled en route, where one representing plaintiffs accompanied the cattle throughout the entire trip. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Crowley (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 721.

Carrier of intrastate shipments has burden of showing that it was free from any negligence contributing to the damage, but when it has been shown that damage resulted from inherent infirmity of the goods transported under circumstances not showing negligence, burden of proving negligence devolves upon the plaintiff under Carmack Amendment (II, S. Comp. St. §§ 8564a, 8564aA). Cleburne Peanut & Products Co. v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 775.

Injection for injuries to shipment of cattle while in transit, the burden is upon plaintiffs to show that they were negligently handled en route, where one representing plaintiffs accompanied the cattle throughout the entire trip. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Buck (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 891.

200. — Killing or Injuring live stock.—In an action against a railroad for killing a mare at a place where the track could not be fenced, burden is on plaintiff to prove negligence of the railroad which was the proximate cause of the killing. Hines v. Collins (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1108.

201. — Injuries to third persons by acts of servants and independent contractors.—When employer institutes suit against employed for damages through latter's negligence, he is not called upon to prove he could not reduce damages by suit against another, in relation to employer's negligence occurred, as that burden rests on the employer. Commercial State Bank v. Van Hutton (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 383.

The burden is on plaintiff, seeking to hold the master for an injury inflicted by the servant, to show that the servant did the wrong while acting within the scope of his employment, and the act must be done in furtherance of the master's business and for the accomplishment of the object for which the servant was employed. City Service Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 140.

V. Sufficiency of Evidence to Sustain Burden of Proof in First Instance

202. Prima facie case.—Architect's causing removal of wall of church under construction was prima facie or conclusive evidence he did so properly under powers granted by contract to determine whether work was properly done. Garrett v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 675.

Where, in a suit on a note, plaintiff produced the note without objection, apparently for all evidentiary purposes, as also the order for goods for which note was given and letter of defendant requesting delay in filling the order, a prima facie case was made. Low v. H. C. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 883.

Plaintiff establishing a prima facie case by evidence that at destination corn near doors of car was wet, defendant railroad company failed to rebut same by evidence that it tested the car door by turning water from a hose on it; there being no evidence that the car did not leak while running against a lowing rhino. Rhodes v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 815.

A prima facie case is one in which the evidence in favor of a proposition is sufficient to support a finding in its favor, if all of the evidence to the contrary be disregarded (citings Words and Phrases, Prima Facie Case). Schallert v. Boggs (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1061.

In suit against innkeeper for loss of salesman's grip, proof of delivery and failure to redeem on demand entitled plaintiff prima facie to recover, and, if innkeeper desired to avoid liability by showing his extreme care, he had burden to allege and prove it. W. R. Case & Sons Cutlery Co. v. Canode (Civ. App.) 285 S. W. 320.

The person in whose name money is deposited in bank is prima facie the owner of the deposit. Hulshizer v. First State Bank of Robstown (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 584.

In action for taking cattle claimed by one defendant as having been stolen from him, and having passed to plaintiff, plaintiff's purchase of cattle from a third person, and his possession and title under the purchase at time defendants took cattle, was prima facie proof of defendant's praex claim, entitling him to recover in the absence of prima facie proof by defendants that cattle were among those stolen from owner defendant, and his property when taken. Stovall v. Martin (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 321.

There was prima facie proof of plaintiff's ownership, claimed in his petition, of the certificate for curbing, issued by the city to another, sued on: It having at the trial been in his possession and introduced in evidence without objection. Dillon v. Whitley (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 229.

Where a deed recited that grantee was to assume the payment of vendor's lien notes, and grantee had paid such notes, such instruments were prima facie evidence that grantee paid such notes. Robinson v. Monning Dry Goods Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 555.

In action for breach of warranty of title, the recitals in each of the two deeds to plaintiff, that consideration for the conveyance was $8,000, though placed therein at his suggestion, were prima facie evidence of the value put upon the property, real and personal, which he gave for the conveyances. Northcutt v. Hume (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 187.

Possession of land is prima facie proof of ownership. Allen v. Vineyard (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 266.

In seller's action for price of bottles, proof that buyer had received bottles in good condition and had made no complaint that any of the bottles were broken in transit within eight months after delivery held to make a prima facie case of delivery according to the contract. Woytek v. King (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1081.

In an action for damages from delay in delivering a telegram sent to the addressee in care of a company, testimony of messenger boys that it was the habit of one of them to deliver such messages to the company's manager, and that the other boy believed he delivered the message to such manager, who was not called as a witness for plaintiff, though present, constituted prima facie proof that the message was offered to the manager. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Price (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 689.

"Prima facie evidence is mere evidence which suffices for the purpose of a particular fact until contradicted and overcome by other evidence." Dodson v. Watson, 110 Tex. 355, 220 S. W. 771, 11 A. L. R. 583.

A certificate of assessment for improvements in street when introduced in evidence establishes a prima facie case, hence it is not necessary for plaintiff in an action on such a certificate to also introduce the ordinance levying the assessment and authorising the issuance of the certificate. Elmdendorf v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 621.

In an action by brokers to recover a commission for furnishing purchasers under a listing contract, where defendant affirmatively alleged he contracted with plaintiffs that no commission should be paid unless sales were actually consummated, and plaintiffs assumed responsibility for getting the signature of defendant's wife to the deed, proof by plaintiffs of the listing contract and furnishing of purchasers ready, willing, and able to buy on terms stated, constituted a prima facie right to recover, and the burden of proving plaintiffs were not to have any commission unless sales were actually consummated, and defendant's wife signed the deeds, was on the defendant; such matters alleged in defense being in the nature of pleas in confession and avoidance. Cotten v. Willingham (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 572.

VI. General Rules as to Weight and Sufficiency of Evidence

203. Weight and conclusiveness in general.—The jury is not bound by general averages in life insurance tables in determining life expectancy. Ward v. Cathey (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 289.

Decisions of English courts are not conclusive proof of what common law of England really is, although entitled to great weight, and decisions of different states of Union which have adopted common law of England may be looked to, to determine what common law it is. 210 S. W. 298. Fred (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 298.

The rule that, no issue is raised as to identity of persons, the identity of names is sufficient to establish such identity, applies where parties claim as heirs of persons named in a deed or grant. Southwestern Settlement & Development Co. v. Village Mills Co. (Clv. App.) 230 S. W. 869.

204. Number of witnesses.—A verdict for plaintiffs in personal injury cases is not contrary to decided preponderance of evidence, because appellees had only two witnesses to accident, one of whom was one of the appellees, while appellant had three disinterested witnesses. Schaff v. Burrows (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 884.
210. Uncontroverted evidence.—The jury were not bound to believe the testimony of two witnesses although not directly controverted. Booker v. Booker (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 675.

Where evidence tends to establish a fact which is within the power of and to the interest of opposing party to disprove, if false, his failure to disprove it strengthens the weight of the evidence. Stark v. Haynes (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 345.

The trial court is not bound to find in accordance with testimony if he believed it to be contradicted by circumstances. Friemel v. Coker (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1106.

211. Degree of proof in general.—Juries are not permitted to render verdicts on mere possibilities, surmises, or suspicions. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Boyett (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 668.

212. Sufficiency to support verdict or finding.—In an action to recover land, admissions in answer which followed a plea of not guilty, making it incumbent on plaintiff to show a prima facie right to the property, will not support a judgment in favor of plaintiff and relieve him of the burden of showing a prima facie case. Davies v. Rutland (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 235.

When suit is instituted by an attorney, plaintiff cannot show reasonable diligence to have citation issued, and so to institute suit by simply showing that she employed the attorney, in bringing the suit and depended upon him to prosecute. Ruiz v. Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 291.

Testimony that raises a mere suspicion or surmise of the existence of a fact sought to be established in legal contemplation falls short of being sufficient to sustain an affirmative finding by the trial court or jury that such fact existed. Modern Woodmen of America v. Atcheson (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 537.

215. Particular facts or issues.—In an action against a railroad company for burning grass, evidence held to support finding that the grass burned had no market value. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 443.

In employer's action for services, in which employer instituted cross-action for money misappropriated, evidence held to sustain finding that employer used employer's funds to support and maintain the business of a partnership of which he was a member without the authority, knowledge, or consent of employer. Nordmeyer v. McAllen State Bonded Warehouse Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 1112.

In an action by plaintiff injured while sawing a tree in accordance with the express directions of the foreman of the lumber company, evidence held to warrant a finding that under the circumstances the foreman was negligent in requiring the sawing of such tree. West Lumber Co. v. Keen (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 825.

Evidence held insufficient to show that an employer should have known or anticipated that a rolling door which it failed to block would be used by an employed in climbing through a nearby opening in the floor, to brace or balance himself. Dawson v. King (Com. App.) 192 S. W. 571.

In an action by a foundry employed, injured while standing on a ladder shaken by a crane, so that he caught the rail on which the crane traveled with his hand, to save himself from falling, evidence held to warrant a finding that plaintiff's injury was due to the breach by defendant employer of its nondelegable duty to give warning of the crane's approach. Murray v. Houston Car Wheel & Machine Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 219, reversing Judgment (Civ. App.) Houston Car Wheel & Machine Co. v. Murray, 181 S. W. 541, and opinion of Supreme Court conformed to (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 1109.

Evidence that one who converted a crop from his own use by seizing it under a chattel mortgage executed by one not the owner, bought it on the basis of middling lint cotton, and resold it, so that the owner had no opportunity to establish the grade, is sufficient to warrant a finding that the cotton was of that grade where the tort-feasor made no mistake. Smith v. Corbin (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 344.

That buyers' letter addressed to seller's predecessor was received by seller held not sufficient to prove that seller was doing business under name of predecessor, so as to be chargeable with knowledge of buyers' shipment of goods to predecessor in reselling company. Associated Mfg. Co. v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 848.

Evidence held sufficient to support the findings that plaintiff was in defendant lumber company's employ, that defendant's agents were guilty of negligence proximately causing his injury while riding on an engine, and that he was not guilty of contributory negligence. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Henry (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 814.

In an action by a servant for injuries received when struck by a crane after falling on a rail from a defective ladder, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding of negligence on the part of the master. Houston Car Wheel & Machine Co. v. Murray (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1106.

In an action by a servant for personal injuries received when he fell from a defective ladder upon a rail and was struck by a crane, evidence held to sustain a finding of the jury that defendant's foreman was a vice principal. Id.

In an action by servant for injuries received when he fell from a defective ladder upon a rail where he was struck by a crane, evidence held to sustain a finding that the injuries were not proximately caused by the plaintiff's own negligence. Id.

In an action by a servant for injuries received when he fell from a defective ladder upon a rail and was struck by a crane, evidence held to sustain finding that the injuries did not proximately result from risks, hazards, and dangers assumed by plaintiff. Id.

In an action for injuries from electric shock when repairing wires on a pole by the employed of an electric company, evidence held sufficient to sustain that defendant company was guilty of negligence in leaving severed wires on the poles in... connection with main primary wires carrying high voltage, and that such negligence was the proximate cause of the injury. Eastern Texas Electric Co. v. Woods (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 498.

It is only essential that the terms of an oral contract with a decedent to cancel notes in consideration of services be shown by evidence sufficiently clear for the court to determine what those terms were, without resorting to inference or conjecture. Briscoe v. Bright's Adm'r (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 1082.

Where, eliminating every allegation not substantially supported by evidence, and eliminating all proof not fairly alleged, there is left sufficient evidence of a contract which meets the requirements of law, it cannot be said there is not sufficient evidence to support a judgment for the plaintiff on the issue as to whether the contract was made as alleged. Id.

RULE 13. PUBLIC OFFICERS ARE WHAT THEY ARE REPUTED TO BE

De facto officers in general.—The acts of a judge elected in the absence of the regular judge by the bar of a county are valid on the principle that he was a de facto officer, since he had possession of a legally constituted office under color of authority. Lowe v. State, 82 Cr. R. 124, 201 S. W. 986.

Neither informality and irregularity of appointment to the office of assessor and collector of school district, by the board authorized to choose such officer, nor failure of the appointee accepting to take or give the prescribed oath or bond, prevents him from being a de facto officer; one being such where he enters into possession of an office and discharges its functions, under color of title or authority, which may be acquired from an election or appointment, however irregular or informal. Welder v. Sinton Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 165.

In order for there to be a de facto officer there must be a de jure office, and hence an attempted election of trustees for an independent school district, under an act which had not yet become effective, was not only irregular and informal, but void. Gray v. Ingleside Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 350.

RULE 14. THE REGULARITY OF OFFICIAL ACTS IS PRESUMED

In general.—The presumption that public officers do their duty prevails, in the absence of proof, and not against it. Lion Bonding & Surety Co. v. Trussed Concrete Steel Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1176.

Presumption that officials do their duty would not supply proof that defendant collected or received salary, in the absence of the further presumption that money with which to pay the salary was available, and such train of presumptions would not be permissible under the rule that one presumption cannot be based upon another. Pease v. State (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 162.

It will not be presumed that defendants, board of directors of irrigation district in question, will ever attempt to violate any of the provisions of the Constitution limiting the taxing powers of the district in the amount of indebtedness it may incur. White v. Fucking (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 193.

The legal presumption prevails, in the absence of contrary proof, that public officers have not culpably neglected, but have properly performed, their official duties, and that their acts are regular and in compliance with law. City of San Antonio v. Newnam (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 128.

Of municipalities and their officers.—Presumption is that board of commissioners of a city will act within spirit and intent of law. Crossman v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 128.

In suit by a city marshal removed by the mayor to recover salary after an illegal removal, the presumptions that the mayor properly performed his duty in relation to the removal casts on plaintiff marshal the burden to prove that the mayor removed him for political reasons alone, contrary to the charter, and that reasons of incompetency, etc., were fraudulently assigned by the mayor, or were not placed in the hands of the clerk for filing when the removal took place. City of San Antonio v. Newnam (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 128.

When a city marshal previously removed by the mayor swore to conversations in which the latter gave political reasons for removal, a prima facie case was made, and the presumption destroyed that the mayor had given the true reasons for the removal in the statement he filed with the city-clerk as required by charter, and the burden was cast on the city, in the removed marshal's suit for salary, to sustain the reasons for the discharge by showing that they had a basis in unfitness of the marshal. Id.

Under the charter of the city of San Antonio, providing that "any appointive officer or employee may be removed or discharged only by a majority vote of the commissioners on charges preferred in writing and after a public hearing of such charges by said commissioners," the offenses for which employee may be removed are lodged in the discretion of the commissioners, and no one can attack the exercise of that discretion without showing a gross abuse of it or fraud, after the removal or discharge has taken place, and from no principle of law or equity can a court presume, on allegations of threats of dismissal made by a fire chief, that the officers charged with authority to remove would do it regardless of the requirements of the charter. San Antonio Fire Fighters' Local Union No. 54 v. Bell (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 506.

Of officers in land department.—In state's action to cancel sale of public land sold as dry agricultural land for $1.50 an acre, upon the ground that land was legally appraised at $2 an acre at the time of the sale, and that the Commissioner of the General Land Office had required the surveyor to separate the woodlot from the county clerk, with the classification of land and the appraisement thereof at $1.50 an acre, under Act of 1897, c. 129 (10 Gamel1's Laws, p. 1238). It will be presumed that the Commissioner in awarding land to the purchaser had classified the land as agricultural and had appraised it at $1.50 an acre, and that the clerk had been notified of such classification and appraisal in the manner prescribed by the statutes in force at such time, the burden of proof being upon the state to rebut such presumption by direct and affirmative evidence. Gulf Production Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 124.

4. Officers and their officers.—The proclamation of the county judge, declaring the result of an election adopting the law prohibiting hogs, goats, and sheep from running at large, raises the presumption that everything necessary to a legal election had been done, so that evidence such proclamation was issued is sufficient to show the validity of the election without evidence as to the manner of counting and tabulating the votes. Coleman v. Hallum (Com. App.) 232 S. W. 396, reversing Hallum v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 983.

Under orders of road boards in Navarro county under which they are to pay county engineer employed on the road No. 4, the defendant received the amounts apportioned by the boards respectively, totaling $120,000, the court cannot anticipate that in the payment of such per cent. the boards will attempt to violate the provisions of the special road law, wherein the compensation of the county engineer is less than $5,000 per year for his services in each of such districts respectively. Monfort v. Commissioners' Court of Navarro County (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 424.

Of clerks of courts.—There is a presumption in favor of the regularity of official acts, as the clerk's file mark on petition for writ of error. Zarate v. Cantu (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 285.

It must be presumed, in absence of opposing evidence, that an indorsement was made by the clerk on the order of sale in proceedings to foreclose a tax lien "of the several items of the bill of costs to be collected," as required by art. 3729. Brown v. Bongiovanni (Sup.) 233 S. W. 312.

Of sheriffs and constables.—Recital in sheriff's deed that it was made under alias execution on a judgment, after proper levy and advertisement, is not, long after date of such deed, conclusive, but merely some evidence such execution was issued and levied. Menefee v. Colley (Civ. App.) 266 S. W. 152.

There is a prima facie presumption that official acts are regular, but the presumption of the regularity of a sheriff's acts as recited in his deed applies to such recitations only as are made by virtue of statutory requirement, and the presumption cannot be indulged to the extent of supplying the necessary authority for the sheriff's acts. Richards v. Eaves (Com. App.) 297 S. W. 312.

There is a presumption that a sheriff did his duty and executed writ of sequestration issued out by plaintiff as soon as temporary injunction against execution procured by defendant was dissolved. Spero v. Peters (Civ. App.) 239 S. W. 514.

Of state officers in general.—Until he has acted otherwise, it cannot be assumed by the court on appeal that Attorney General, in determining whether bonds for improvement of public highway have been issued in accordance with law, will ignore any legal or constitutional defect which will invalidate bonds. Smith v. Reaves (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 546.

Where an extradition warrant was signed by the acting Governor and duly certified by the secretary of state, the presumption is in favor of the regularity of the acts of the acting Governor, and in the absence of showing to the contrary his acts will be upheld. Ex parte Schweppe (Sup.) 244 S. W. 541.

The presumption is in favor of the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking of the state having done his duty under art. 4811, requiring that a merger between life insurers must be evidenced by a contract in writing setting out the terms and conditions, full and filed with the commissioner, etc. Independent Order of Pottuats v. Brown (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 939.

Of surveyors.—Where there is nothing to indicate that surveyor did not actually survey lines of section of public lands located by railroad, and locate them on ground, presumption obtains that he did so, particularly where he fixed location of corner by natural objects. Main v. Cartwright (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 847.

The presumption that surveyor did not cross a navigable stream in violation of law is one of fact only. Howell v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1022.

Assumption that, because no marks of the beginning corner of a block of surveys are now on the ground, the surveyor was not there and never marked the point, is against the presumption of law. Standerfer v. Vaughan (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 484.

The presumption is in favor of surveys that were made as called for by the field notes, and the burden is on the party attacking to show they were not so made. Schnackenberg v. State (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 934.

RULE 15. COURTS WILL, WITHOUT PROOF, TAKE NOTICE OF FACTS OF A PUBLIC OR GENERAL NATURE

2. Matters of common knowledge in general.—A court is authorized to take judicial cognizance of the length of time consumed in travel by the present modes of conveyance between two designated places; such facts being facts of general knowledge. Baker v. Brown (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 212.

It is a matter of common knowledge that the telephone is a means of communication of almost universal use. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 720.
3. Course and laws of nature.—Court of Civil Appeals cannot base reversal of judgment for merits on the fact that the landlord's action of trespass designed to try title, have recovered for breach of rental contract by eviction, on its judicial knowledge that particular season was dry, and that no crops were made in that part of country. Lamar v. Hildreth (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 197.

4. 5. Qualities and properties of matter.—The court may judicially know that rubber on a car step merely worn smooth will not become "slick" from this cause alone, so as to invite a slipping of the foot. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Wisdom (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 241.

It is a matter of common knowledge that substances such as naphtha, crude oil, and ordinary gasoline will emit gas. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clement (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 407.

It is a fact known to every one that gasoline can be and is used with safety to propel motorcars and other kinds of machinery over the land, notwithstanding the fact that while being so used it is kept in close proximity to sparks of fire which explode small quantities of the gasoline as it is fed from the receptacle in which the supply is contained, and that it is kept with safety in storage in filling stations in almost every town in the country without danger of explosion when properly stored.

6. Operation and effect of natural forces.—The court must judicially know that in August at 6 o'clock in the evening at Paradise, Tex., the sun cast a shadow on the east side of a train facing north, and on the steps on the east side of a coach. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Wisdom (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 241.

7. Geographical facts.—Court judicially knows that land in controversy in Webb county is in dry and semiarid portion of state, and that it was policy of Spanish and Mexican governments, in making grants, to give front, if possible, on some stream. Rosetti v. Camille (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 526.

8. Historical facts.—The court will take judicial notice that, at the time a particular judgment was rendered, war existed between the United States and Austria-Hungary. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Blankfield (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 806.

10. Statistical facts.—In considering a question of excessiveness of verdict for personal injuries, court may take judicial knowledge of fact that wages have increased, and that purchasing value of a dollar has been decreased many times. Ward v. Cathey (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 258.

The Court of Civil Appeals will take notice that wages and prices during the years between 1917 and 1920 were abnormal, and perhaps should not be looked to as furnishing a future criterion as to earning capacity of a plaintiff suing for injuries, or for a recovery as to wages received before and after. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Smithers (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 637.

11. Phenomena of animal and vegetable life.—It is matter of common knowledge that in the latitude of Texas wheat is sown in the autumn and harvested the following summer. Jordan v. Dinwiddle (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 862.

The Court of Civil Appeals takes judicial notice that prairie dogs are great pests upon the cattle ranches of Western Texas, that they eat the grass and are otherwise objectionable, and that cattlemen wage a constant warfare upon them. C. C. Slaughter Cattle Co. v. Pastrana (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 749.

It will take judicial notice of the fact that in inhabited districts some injury must result to neighbors from the raising and slaughtering of hogs, but this fact alone will not make the raiser and slaughterer liable for trifling damages caused thereby. Royalty v. Strange (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 471.

It is a matter of common knowledge that the cultivation of crops of corn and cotton in Wharton county at the time of tender by plaintiff optionee and demand by him was practically complete, and that such crops were either partly matured or rapidly approaching maturity. Roberts v. Armstrong (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 571.

12. Facts relating to human life, health, habits, and acts.—It is common knowledge that a child of 18 months cannot walk a distance of 150 yards very rapidly. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 178.

It is well known that tetanus, or lockjaw, usually, if not invariably, arises from wounds inflicted under certain peculiar circumstances. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Fleming (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 263.

Relative to duty of carrier to assist female passenger, it is a matter of common knowledge that often women resent the laying of hands on their person under any pretense. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Wisdom (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 241.

It is a matter of common knowledge that valuation of household furniture and ladies' wearing apparel is, to a large extent, a matter of opinion. Royal Ins. Co. of Liverpool, England, v. Humphrey (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 426.

In action against seller for damages for refusal to deliver under a sale price per pound certain bales of linters cotton, where plaintiff alleged that defendant was bound to pay him of 500 pounds weight each," proof of usual weight or general understanding as to weight was necessary, as the court cannot judicially know the weight of cotton bales. Early-Poster Co. v. Tom B. Burnett & Co. (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 316.
It is a matter of common knowledge that there would have to be very exceptional circumstances to value the property at 50 per cent. more than its value. Montgomery v. Gallas (Civ. App.) 235 S. W. 557.

The courts will take judicial notice of the fluctuating value of real estate as the result of discovery of gas in the vicinity. Kollauer v. Puckett (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 914.

The making of hog Calling--The existence of hoisting machinery for lifting heavy weights is a matter of such common knowledge that evidence to that effect is not required. Swann v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1131.

In an action for wrongful death caused by a street collision, the court could not take judicial notice that defendant owned the street railway, and was operating the particular line and the car in question. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Terrazas (Civ. App.) 298 S. W. 387.

In oil and gas leases, it is a matter of common knowledge that the development of the oil and gas is, in most instances, the main inducing consideration to the lessee, that the privilege of paying rentals in lieu of such development is for the benefit of the lessee, and that undue delay in prospecting often produces a serious loss to the lessor. Young v. Jones (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 691.

It is a matter of common knowledge that state and national banks are daily making loans secured by the capital stock of other banks. Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Stevenson (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 364.

In an action against a railway company for the death of its brake-man, struck by a passenger train going 25 to 30 miles per hour in passing a freight train waiting on a siding, it will take judicial notice that the speed was not even on a stormy night. Sorrell v. Missouri, K & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 768.

17. Customs and usages.--The fact that vehicles to be supplied with gasoline from a filling station, maintenance of which is sought to be restrained, will be driven across the sidewalk and to a place inside the premises may not be common to all filling stations, but as matter of common knowledge it is true of most of such stations, as well as business of other kinds, such as wholesale commercial houses and manufacturing plants. City of Electra v. Cross (Civ. App.) 235 S. W. 798.

18. Corporations and associations and members thereof.--Judicial cognizance will be taken of the fact that subordinate lodges usually demise by failure of their members to attend, and their failure to comply with regulations of the Grand Lodge under which they hold their charters, and that usually no minutes are kept of the demise. Ross v. Sutter (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 273.

19. Matters relating to government and its administration in general.--It is common knowledge that much of the delinquent taxes accrued against former owners. Hunt v. Heard, 119 Tex. 284, 217 S. W. 1094.

The courts will take judicial notice that one who signed an extradition warrant as acting Governor was the duly elected and qualified Lieutenant Governor, and had the authority, and was required, in the absence of the Governor, to act as such. Ex parte Roselle, 73 Cr. E. 470, 222 S. W. 248.

It is a matter of common knowledge that surveys located under alternate script issued as a bonus to railway companies were located in larger blocks and rarely, if ever, were in lines of each survey actually run on the ground, the method usually followed being to give a base line for an entire block, and on this line plat a system of 640-acre surveys. Hamman v. San Jacinto Rice Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 1008.

Where suit was brought against a railroad company and the Director General of Railroads, who was thereafter, before trial of the case, dismissed and succeeded by the Agent of the President under Transp. Act 1921, it will take judicial notice of the fact that the latter was agent for the company prior to the trial and that the former Director General was no longer entitled to represent the government at that time. Payne v. White House Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 417.

20. Political divisions and bodies--Counties and county seats.--The Court of Civil Appeals judicially knows that Fannin county is a subdivision of the state of Texas. Dickerson v. Dickerson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 941.

The court knows judicially that funds raised from taxes for the road and bridge fund of the county may be used in defraying current expenses for improving and maintaining the public highways unless appropriate orders have been made setting apart all or a portion of it for some other purpose. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Camp County (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1.

21. Cities and other municipal corporations.--The court will not take judicial notice that the crossing of Latta street and Alameda avenue is within the corporate limits of El Paso, so as to be subject to an ordinance of that city relating to street traffic. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Terrazas (Civ. App.) 208 S. W 387.

Court of Civil Appeals judicially knows that Corsicana is in Navarro county. Cecil v. Marsh (Civ. App.) 268 S. W. 954.

Judicial notice will not be taken that a certain town is in a certain county, where it is not shown to be a county seat. Cassidy-Southwestern Commission Co. v. Chupick Bros. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 315.

The Court of Civil Appeals cannot take judicial notice of the fact that a town is incorporated and has levied taxes, or that a school district has incorporated as an Courts will take judicial knowledge that Waco is a city located in McLennan county.

22. Foreign governments.—Court of Appeals will take judicial notice that Carranza, head of a military government in northern Mexico at time of question, would have the power to seize and sell property for military purposes, and that by such sale its authorized officers title would pass to purchaser. De la O v. Consolidated Kansas City Smelting & Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1027.

The Court of Civil Appeals will take judicial notice of the government of the United States recognized the government of Carranza as the de facto government of the republic of Mexico on October 15, 1915, and as the de jure government on August 31, 1917. Terrazas v. Donohue (Civ. App.) 227 C. W. 206.

23. Laws of the state—Public statutes.—The Court of Civil Appeals will take judicial notice of the fact that art. 1909, Civil Acts 1917, c. 176, has for its two primary purposes, the enabling of a party pleading privilege to be sued in county of his residence to negative, by general averment, the existence of any exceptions to the general venue statute, and the providing of right of appeal directly upon a judgment sustaining or overruling the plea without awaiting trial on merits. Moss v. Bros (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 343.

In action involving the question of whether public contractor's bond executed under art. 6394f, protected laborers and materialmen, the court will take judicial notice that such statute was enacted to protect laborers and materialmen who in many cases were left unpaid. Trinity Portland Cement Co. v. Lion Bonding & Surety Co. (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 483.

Courts will take judicial notice of the provisions of a city charter granted by the state Legislature. Cawthon v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 796.

26. Laws of United States.—The resolution of Congress of July 16, 1918 (U. S. Comp. St. Ann. Supp. 1919, § 31150(a)), and the proclamation of the President, taking control of telegraph and telephone lines, as well as all public orders issued thereunder, are part of the law of the land, of which all courts, state and federal, must take judicial notice. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Conditt (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 234.

Resolutions of Congress are facts of which the courts, both state and federal, take judicial knowledge. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 187.

The court will take judicial knowledge of all public acts and resolutions of Congress and proclamations of the President thereunder. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Tanner (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 713.

27. Laws of other states.—In action on sister state judgment, the defense being pending appeal from judgment, court cannot take judicial knowledge of laws of that state as to effect of appeal. Van Natta v. Van Natta (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 907.

31. Terms of courts.—Judicial notice will be taken that several terms of Bexar county district court must have been held during two years. Cruz v. Texas Glass & Paint Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 816.

The Court of Civil Appeals must take judicial knowledge of the time for holding sessions of the district court in Montague county, in the Sixteenth judicial district, (art. 36, subd. 16), and also that a determination of a primary election contest cannot take place at a regular session thereof until after the November election. Pollard v. Speer (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 220.

The Court of Civil Appeals cannot take judicial notice of the order of the commissioners' court fixing term of justice's court. Poole v. Pierce-Fordyce Oil Ass'n (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 796.

32. Judicial proceedings and records.—State courts and courts other than the initial court of bankruptcy are not required to take judicial cognizance of the proceedings in a bankruptcy court. Houston v. Shear (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 976; Coppage v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 650.

On consideration of a demurrer or exception, the federal court may, under the Texas law, take judicial notice of the former steps taken in the case. Ben C. Jones & Co. v. West Pub. Co. (C. C. A.) 270 Fed. 563.

Judicial notice cannot be taken of the amount of a judgment to which the defendant in the case on trial was not a party, though adjudicated in the same court and by the same judge. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 276.

In trespass to try title, court could not take judicial notice of all facts stated in pleadings in former suit and all facts proven in that cause, as presented in transcript and statement of facts, making record on appeal of that case to Court of Civil Appeals. Zarate v. Unknown Heirs of Zarate (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 697.

In petition in pending suit under allegation that no final judgment had been entered, the court may take judicial notice of the character of the judgment previously made. Jones v. Chronicler Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 704.

In an action in the same court in which a receivership proceeding was pending, that court may take judicial notice that no order had been procured authorizing the receiver to execute a release, etc. Lanham v. West (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 258.
Where application for writ of garnishment is filed at the same time as the main suit, or prior to final judgment, it is ancillary to and part of the main suit, and the court will take judicial knowledge of the proceedings in the main suit and consider them together; but where the original suit is terminated at the time of the institution of the garnishment proceedings, and by the petition the judgment is set up as the basis for a valid writ, and defendant’s joinder as a party defendant is made in a subsequent term, the court is not authorized to enter judgment, without proof of a valid, subsisting, and unsatisfied judgment. Trippelet v. Hendricks (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 744.

Where a judgment on an insurance policy was rendered for defendant, but not entered upon until the minutes of the court during the term, and a new trial was awarded at a subsequent term, resulting in a judgment for plaintiff, defendant was not required to plead the judgment first entered in bar to further proceeding upon the second trial; both trials being in the same tribunal and on the same cause of action, and the court being bound to take judicial cognizance of its previous action. Alton Inst. Co. v. Dancer (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 962.

Though the records of a court prove themselves when offered in evidence, yet in the trial of one case the court can no more take judicial notice of the record in another case in the same court without its formal introduction in evidence than if it were a record in another court. Short v. Blair & Hughes Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 427.

35. Official proclamations and orders.—Proclamations of the President, and orders thereunder, are facts of which the courts, both state and federal, take judicial knowledge. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 235 S. W. 877; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Conditt (Civ. App.) 243 S. W. 254; Houston, E. & W. Ry. Co. v. Tanner (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 713.

The appellate court judicially knows that on October 28, 1918, the Director General of Railroads promulgated his General Order No. 50, and that the President assumed the control, operation of the Houston, East & Gulf and Texas Railways, and that same was under the control of the United States government in September, 1919. Houston, E. & W. Ry. Co. v. Tanner (Civ. App.) 277 S. W. 713.

37. Official proceedings and acts.—The court will take judicial notice that the land office of the State of Texas during the first seven months of the year 1866 was open for business, and that land certificates were issued during such period located and returned to the General Land Office from many counties and have been recognized as valid by the state. Fielder v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 203 S. W. 138.

"Ancient Wills, Deeds and Other Instruments More Than Thirty Years Old, When Offered in Evidence, Unblemished by Alterations and Coming from Such Custody as Affords a Reasonable Presumption in Favor of Genuineness, with Other Circumstances of Corroboration, Will Be Admitted in Evidence Without Proof of Their Execution"

In general.—In trespass to try title, where defendants claimed under an alleged lost deed, tax receipts issued 20 years before trial by the proper officer, which identified the persons paying the same by name and described the land, held proper evidence as against objection that there was no proof of execution or identity. Martinez v. Bruni (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 965.

Proof showing payments by defendant’s ancestor to one under whom plaintiff claimed executed more than 30 years before trial held admissible as ancient documents; such receipts having been attached to a deposition taken in another cause wherein they had remained on file for more than 10 years. Id.

The papers in public archives are not inadmissible because the affiant is still living, where he stated in his deposition that he could no longer remember the facts. Magee v. Paul, 110 Tex. 470, 221 S. W. 254, answering certified questions (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 325, and answers conform to (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 1118.

Deeds.—Where land was conveyed to “Sheldon E. Bell,” and there appeared in plaintiff’s chain of title, “Sheldon E. Bell,” made from “E. Bell,” which was transferred to a conveyance by the original grantor, held that, while the recitals in the two deeds, both of which were ancient documents, as to the name of the grantor, were admissible in evidence, they were not conclusive that “Sheldon E. Bell” and “E. S. Bell” were the same persons. Dittman v. Cornelius (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 109.

Land certificates.—A recital in an ancient transfer of the duplicate certificate that it was a duplicate of one transferred by the grantee in the original certificate, and ancient pleadings in a suit against the holder of the original certificate, are admissible to show a claim of ownership of the land certificate and the land, whether or not actual possession was shown of the certificate or of the land. Magee v. Paul, 110 Tex. 470, 221 S. W. 254, answering certified questions (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 325, and answers conform to (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 1118.

"The Existence of a Deed May Be Presumed from Possession Under Claim of Title Corroborated by Other Circumstances"

In general.—Since an owner of valuable property usually asserts claim thereto, an inference that an apparent owner has parted with his title is justified from evidence of a long-continued open claim adverse to that of the apparent owner, and of acquiescence by the apparent owner in the adverse claim. Magee v. Paul, 110 Tex. 470, 221 S. W. 254.
W. 254, answering certified questions (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 325, and answers conformed to (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 1115.

Where plaintiffs had a broken possession of the land from some time in the '80's until 1901, twice cut timber from the land and undertenants cultivated, used, and enjoyed it, and, from 1886 to 1919, from year to year, permitting them to become delinquent and the taxes assessed against it, and there was no claim on the part of defendants and those under whom they claimed until 1913, held, that the facts raised an issue of a presumption of a grant from the heirs of the common source of title to plaintiffs' predecessor and those claiming under him. Southwestern Settlement & Development Co. v. Village Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 859.

Possession is not an indispensable prerequisite to the presumption of the existence of a deed, but it is essential that the claim of title be made in some tangible form calculated to bring notice to those who are adversely affected thereby, so as to create a presumption of acquiescence in such claim by the adverse parties. Brownfield v. Brabson (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 49.

The presumption in favor of the existence of a conveyance of land is one of fact and not of law. Id.

RULE 18. A GRANT MAY BE PRESUMED IN SUPPORT OF A JUST AND LEGAL CLAIM, FROM LONG AND UNINTERRUPTED POSSESSION

In general.—Long-continued possession of land under a claim of ownership, varying in length of time according to circumstances, is sufficient as a basis for presuming that a grant has been issued by the government. Ross v. Sutter (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 273.

The presumption of fact was supported by the government being shown by presumption, and plaintiff having connected himself by a perfect chain of title with such grantee, the court did err in finding for plaintiff upon the ground that he had record title to the land. Id.

Neither general reputation nor rumor have any weight in establishing a deed from certain tenants in common to another, unless of such general notoriety as to create a presumption that the parties sought to be affected knew thereof; and, where such parties were in comfortable circumstances and the supposed grantee was poor, his possession must be attributed to indulgence rather than presumption of the deed. Le Blanc v. Jackon (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 687.

Where plaintiffs had a broken possession of the land from some time in the '90's until 1901, twice cut timber from the land and undertenants cultivated, used, and enjoyed it, and, from 1886 to 1919, from year to year, permitting them to become delinquent and the taxes assessed against it, and there was no claim on the part of defendants and those under whom they claimed until 1913, held, that the facts raised an issue of a presumption of a grant from the heirs of the common source of title to plaintiffs' predecessor and those claiming under him, which should have been submitted to the jury, both on the theory of an actual transfer and whether it was more reasonably probable that such a transfer was made than that it was not made. Southwestern Settlement & Development Co. v. Village Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 869.

RULE 19. A FACT MAY BE INFERRED FROM THE PROVED EXISTENCE OF A RELEVANT FACT IN THE ABSENCE OF OPPOSING EVIDENCE

In general.—In absence of testimony sender of telegram announcing death of wife, sendee's sister, would have delayed funeral, also of testimony as to time of burial, it could be inferred from language of telegram: "Death announced. * * * If any of you can come answer quick"—whether sendee would have reached place in time, had he gone. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Mobley (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 833.

Juries can indulge all reasonable inferences from facts revealed by the evidence or deducible by unbiased and rational minds from such facts. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cook (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 539.

A cause being shown which was calculated to produce an explosion, it was a warrantable inference, in the absence of a showing of other causes, that the one shown was the operating agency in bringing about the result. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Moreno (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 444.

A litigant should not lose his property, or be required to pay his money as damages, when his liability for such damages rests only on inference, especially where the fact necessary to establish liability, if it existed, was within the exclusive knowledge of the opposing party, who testified in the case and failed to state such fact. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Mobley (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 611.

Fraud and conspiracy.—Grantee's intention not to perform a promise which was the consideration for a conveyance cannot be inferred merely from the fact of nonperformance. Long v. Calloway (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 414.

RULE 20. PAROL OR EXTRINSIC EVIDENCE IS GENERALLY INADMISSIBLE TO CONTRADICT, VARY OR ADD TO THE TERMS OF A WRITTEN INSTRUMENT

1. Judicial records and proceedings.—The statute, relative to the appointment of commissioners in condemnation proceedings, not requiring their appointment or oath to be in writing, parol evidence is properly admitted to show that a commissioner was sworn. Dallas, P. & S. E. R. Co. v. Day, 3 Civ. App. 553, 22 S. W. 533.

Decree of partition created statutory warranty in writing similar to general warranty expressed in deed, and such statutory warranty cannot be enlarged or restricted by parol evidence. O'Connor v. Sanchez (Civ. App.) 262 S. W. 1005.

Art. 3687 (Rule 17) EVIDENCE (Title 53)
In action involving validity of judgment set up as res adjudicata, claimed by plaintiffs to be void for insufficiency of description, where it was apparent by reversing calls that Twentieth street was the beginning call instead of Twenty-Third street, as recited in judgment, and where description stated the land to be part of certain tract, evidence that Twenty-Third street did not touch such tract held admissible. Pearson v. Lloyd ( Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 637.

In a suit to set aside a default judgment in a tax suit and the sheriff's deed thereunder and recover the land, parol evidence was admissible to contradict a recital in the judgment of service of citation. Rowland v. Klepper (Com. App.) 227 S. W. 1096.

4. Affecting jurisdiction.—In collateral attack upon a judgment of a domestic court of general jurisdiction regular on its face, inquiry by evidence aliusde the record into any fact which the court rendering such judgment must have passed upon is precluded; "jurisdiction" meaning simple power to determine and give judgment. Ex parte McKay, 82 Cr. R. 221, 199 S. W. 637.

5. Official records and documents—Plats and surveys.—In an action where the location of a boundary line was in controversy, evidence of the existence of a marked line, which did not conform to the description of natural and artificial monuments in the patent, and conflicted with the courses and distances in the field notes, is inadmissible as parol evidence contradicting the field notes. Braunmiller v. Burke (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 906.

6. — County records or proceedings.—In view of art. 2576, where tax collector sues county for fees for preparation of a delinquent tax record, under an order of the commissioners' court, parol evidence that the order did not correctly describe the contract is inadmissible, as contradicting the record. King v. Marion County (Civ. App.) 262 S. W. 1052.

7. Corporate records and proceedings.—Parol evidence held admissible to show one corporation successor of another by amendment of charter, to clear doubt as to identity of beneficiary of charitable legacy. Lightbody v. Poolardex (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 1153.

8. Wills.—Where an alleged spendthrift trust was complete and unambiguous, testator's explanatory declarations held inadmissible. Nunn v. Titch-Goehtinger Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 380.

Where the instrument is free from doubt, and the intention of the testator is expressed with sufficient intelligence and clearness to make the will incapable of more than one construction, there is no need of parol evidence, and such evidence will not be admitted to show that the will did not express the intention of the testator. Haupt v. Michaelis (Com. App.) 291 S. W. 786.

9. Leases.—In action to cancel oil lease, evidence of representations by lessee's agent, made to induce lessee to execute lease, was inadmissible, where at variance with terms of the written lease, in absence of an allegation that representation was omitted from written instrument by mutual mistake or fraud practiced upon lessor. Jackson v. Pure Oil Operating Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 959.

18. Mortgages.—There was no error in refusing to allow defendant to testify that he owed plaintiff less than admitted in writing; no fraud or mistake being shown in procuring defendant's admission of indebtedness and execution of mortgage as security. Bejii v. Blumberg (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 471.

19. Contracts in general.—Where plaintiff purchased defendant's interest in a business and defendant agreed not to enter into competition, held, that his testimony that he did not sell good will of the business was incompetent because tending to contradict terms of contract. Sclutier v. McLeod (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 311.

In the fraud, accident, or mistake, parol evidence is not admissible to show that it was intended to convey less than the contract called for. Crawford v. El Paso Land Improvement Co. (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 233.

Where there is no ambiguity in a written contract, the intention of the parties is to be gathered from the language used. Taylor Cotton Oil Co. v. Early-Foster Co. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1179.

The terms of a written instrument constituting a contract cannot be varied by parol. Leeson v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 763.

A receipt, issued by warehouseman, stating the amount or quantity of goods received and also the conditions under which the same are to be stored, is more than a mere receipt, and is in fact a contract fixing the rights of the parties, and parol evidence is inadmissible to vary its terms in absence of fraud or mistake. Kahn v. Cole (Civ. App.) 237 S. W. 556.

20. Completeness of writing and presumption in relation thereof.—Where a written instrument is ambiguous or incomplete on its face, parol evidence is admissible to show what the real contract was. Magnolia Warehouse & Storage Co. v. Davis & Blackwell, 198 Tex. 422, 195 S. W. 184.

Where entire contract was not in writing, parol evidence was admissible as to those matters upon which contract was silent. Smith v. Smith (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 540.

21. Contracts of employment.—Evidence that at the time a broker's written contract of employment was executed the owner had informed him that he was then negotiating a sale himself was properly excluded as contradicting a written instrument. Popplewell v. Buchanan (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 874.

22. Contracts for buildings and other works.—Where contract for excavating and hauling dirt failed to show which party was to furnish cars, parol evidence held admissible to establish the real contract. Magnolia Warehouse & Storage Co. v. Davis & Blackwell, 198 Tex. 422, 195 S. W. 184.
23. Contracts of sale.—Where buyer and seller entered into a contract over the telephone, the contract was to be understood as the mere fact that buyer subsequently filled out an order blank, and that on receipt thereof seller sent buyer a letter of confirmation, did not make the contract a written one, so as to come within the parol evidence rule. Taylor Milling Co. v. American Bag Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 762.

24. Bonds.—In a purchaser's action against the seller of land for removing fixtures, evidence that the seller's agent, after the contract and deed had been executed, stated that the fixtures did not belong to the land, etc., could not affect the deed and contract. Alexander v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 265.

25. Silent and notes.—Where the language of a note is plain, parol evidence is not admissible to change the due date specified therein.—Gregory v. South Texas Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 420.

26. Where a note sued on is not ambiguous, it cannot be varied by parol evidence. Stamps v. Platt (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 47.

31. Memoranda or writing not constituting contract or disposition of property.—In an action for loss of barges while in defendant's possession, testimony of a plaintiff as to the agreement between the parties held not inadmissible as varying the terms of any written contract; a letter not having been considered by the parties as constituting the contract. Freeport Town-Site Co. v. S. H. Hudgins & Sons (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 287.

32. Writing incomplete on its face.—When a contract does not disclose in what character a party has signed a contract, it may be shown by evidence what his relation to the contract was and that he was a surety. Webber v. Swift & Co. (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 509.

34. Evidence extrinsic to writing in general.—As a circumstance identifying cotton sequestrated by plaintiff warehouse company, in action against a compress company, as cotton purchased by buyer warehouse by M., assertion of cottonman, to whom the compress company had issued receipts therefor, on refusal to surrender it, that it had been bought of M., was admissible on trial of right of property. King-Collie Co. v. Wichita Falls Warehouse Co. (Civ. App.) 265 S. W. 748.

35. Matters not included in writing or for which it does not provide.—In an action for price of tractor under contract not specifying the design of the engine to be supplied, it was not error to admit testimony tending to show defective design. Southern Gas & Gasoline Engine Co. v. Adams & Peters (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 676.

37. Judicial records and proceedings.—In a habeas corpus proceeding brought by a juvenile, evidence by the county judge that relator's parents had not been notified of the proceedings held improperly excluded. Ex parte Cain, 86 Cr. R. 509, 217 S. W. 385.

41. Contracts in general.—Where subscription contract did not state when stock was to be delivered, testimony that defendant delivered, 5,000 shares between all parties that stock was not to be delivered until notes given therefor had been paid was admissible; contract being incomplete and executory. Zapp v. Sprechels (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 786.

45. Parties to instrument or obligation.—A third person, who prepared a bill of sale for an automobile, may not claim that a company whose name appears as signed thereon was a grantor, where the language of the instrument is not ambiguous, and designates the other signer as grantor. Rowe v. Guiderian (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 960.

48. Evidence, based on the parol evidence rule, was properly overruled to allegation in petition that the indemnity contract sued on, although executed in the name of a named building company as principal, was in fact the contract of a certain bank for which the building company was acting, where the petition did not disclose that plaintiff knew that the building company when it signed was acting for the bank as the real party in interest; the rule being that real party, if another than the one signing a nonnegotiable instrument or contract not under seal, may be shown by parol evidence, where the beneficiary at the time of accepting the contract does not know that the party signing is not the real party in interest. Eddleman v. Woolford (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 221.

Where the beneficiary, at the time he accepts a contract, knows that the party signing is not the real party in interest, parol evidence is not admissible to show the relation of the real party in interest to the contract, for there is then no undisclosed principal and the beneficiary can proceed alone against the party signing, because, knowing the facts, he is held to have elected to rely upon the obligation of the agent or substitute. Id.

Where a buyer signed contracts in the name of a firm as its agent, he could not be permitted to contradict the plain statements of the written agreement by testifying that he signed them for his own benefit and was doing business in such other party's name. Martin v. Weampill (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 323.

47. Existence of condition or contingency—Contracts in general.—Parol testimony is not admissible to ingraft a condition upon a plain contract. Mayhew & Isbell Lumber Co. v. Valley Wells Truck Growers' Ass'n (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 225.

49. Bills and notes.—In an action on a check, evidence by defendant of an oral agreement that he was not to be required to pay until financially able was inadmissible as affecting a written instrument. Merriman v. Swift & Co. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 775.

50. Existence of custom or usage.—Established or notorious custom or usage with reference to subject-matter of contract may be shown for purpose of construing contract. Yoakum v. Gossett (Civ. App.) 288 S. W. 582.

Where contract for sale of cotton oil did not provide for washing-out process, custom of washing out such sales could not be set up to vary contract. Planters' Oil Co. v. Gresham (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 145.

Where defendant requested a quotation on oranges, and plaintiff quoted a price f. o. b. point of origin, and defendant directed shipment by a particular road, and a bill of lading naming him as consignee was mailed direct to him, a custom permitting the buyer to inspect and reject at destination was not controlling, as the contract was clear, unambiguous, and its construction free from difficulty. Alexander v. Heidenheimer (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 942, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Heidenheimer, Strausburger & Co. v. Alexander-Baird, 205 S. W. 458.

Where judicial construction has affixed to a contract a certain meaning and has defined the rights and liabilities thereunder, its legal effect or import cannot be varied by proof of a usage giving to the contract a different meaning. Id.

When a contract is clear and complete, new terms cannot be added by usage. Dallas Cotton Mill v. Hogan (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 432.

52. Existence or accrual of liability.—A defendant being sued on a written instrument is not precluded from showing by parol evidence the fact of nondelivery to defeat the effectiveness of an obligation. Speer v. Dalrymple (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 174, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 911.

55. Nature and extent of liability—Bills and notes and indorsement thereof.—Parol evidence is always admissible, between signers and indorsers of negotiable instruments, to show the real character of the obligation intended to be assumed by them. Carver v. Caldwell (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 555.

57. Principal or surety.—Parties executing note secured by mortgage on horse used to recover the horse after foreclosure, held entitled to show that they were sureties, though the note did not disclose this relationship. Billingsley v. West (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1054.

58. Effect of writing as to persons not parties thereto or privies.—Parol representations by the owner of a subdivision to lot purchasers that all subsequent conveyances of lots would contain certain restrictions are admissible against a subsequent purchaser who was found to have had knowledge of the restrictions in conveyances of other lots at the time he made his purchase. Wilson Co. v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 763.

59. Writings collateral to issues in general.—In action involving ownership of attached property, parol evidence of third party's telegram of attachment defendant for purpose of showing title was admissible without accounting for its absence; the telegrams not being basis of the action. Frost v. Smith (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 592.

60. Evidence for purpose other than varying rights or liabilities dependent upon terms of writing.—Where a contract in writing is certain in its terms, fair and just in its provisions, and capable of being enforced with fairness to both parties, equity will enforce it by specific performance, and the certainty of the contract may be aided by proof of extrinsic facts. Wilson v. Beaty (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 524.

628/2. Showing discharge or performance of obligation—Construction of instrument.—It is always permissible to show what the parties did under their contract, as disclosing their construction of its purpose. Eddleman v. Wofford (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 221.

In action against the officers of a bank as sureties on an indemnity contract on which the bank was the unsecured principal, testimony of plaintiff, who was an officer in another bank, that the money held by him, and to secure the payment of which to the first bank the indemnity contract was given, was placed to the credit of the first bank, was admissible, as it is always permissible to show what the parties did under their contract, as disclosing their construction of its purpose.

In an action to have a trust declared in land, evidence that plaintiff went into possession of property as manager after the conveyance of land to defendant, that he had charge of the whole matter, paid out and borrowed money, paid the bills for the firm, composed of the defendant and himself, that the capital used by the firm was money borrowed by him and checked out by him, that certain notes introduced in evidence were signed, was executed by him, and it was agreed between the parties that the interest due the state upon certain sections of the ranch property should be paid out of the firm, and a statement as to how he paid the interest, that he did not pay the taxes for certain years as the property was rendered in defendant's name. 1069 but that the taxes were paid by the firm's check, was admissible as tending to show a practical construction of the alleged trust agreement by the parties, and that the parties had recognized and acted upon such agreement. Graves v. Graves (Civ. App.) 233 S. W. 543.

RULE 21. CONTEMPORANEOUS WRITTEN AGREEMENTS RELATING TO THE SAME SUBJECT ARE TO BE CONSTRUED TOGETHER, AND SEVERAL DISTINCT STIPULATIONS ARE TO BE CONSTRUED SO AS TO GIVE EFFECT TO ALL. A PRIOR OR CONTEMPORANEOUS PAROL AGREEMENT CONSISTENT WITH AND FORMING A PART OF THE CONTRACT IS TO BE CONSTRUED WITH THE WRITTEN PART THEREOF.

1. Connection of contemporaneous writings.—Parol evidence is admissible to prove that two or more writings executed contemporaneously constitute but one contract. Lawton v. Nesbit (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 227.

Note and mortgage and mortgagor's application for loan all bearing the same date and having reference to the same matter must be considered together as constituting one agreement. Fidelity Trust Co. v. Fowler (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 353.

Where the contract sued on was separate and distinct, a former contract should not be looked to in construing it. Harris v. G. M. H. Wagner & Sons (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 351.

The rule that a legally binding written unambiguous instrument cannot be varied, added to, or contradicted by proof of prior or contemporaneous agreements, not only applies to the parties, but to their privies. John E. Morrison Co. v. Riley (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1051.

Where agent gave principal a release in full upon termination of contract, and principal contemporaneously therewith signed contract agreeing to sell agent an automobile at a reduced price in consideration of release by agent of all claims against principal, parol evidence was admissible to explain any conflict between the two writings when read together as part of one contract. Lawton v. Nesbit (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 227.

Evidence of an oral agreement that a contract should run six months, instead of twelve months, as stipulated in written contract later executed by the parties, is inadmissible. Brenard Mfg. Co. v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 990.

In determining whether one has contracted in writing to perform an obligation in a particular county so as to control the venue under art. 1830, subd. 5, the written contract alone can be looked to; parol provisions of the contract being immaterial. Russell v. Green (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 446.

The execution of a contract in writing is deemed to set aside all oral agreements theretofore made, and any representation made prior to or contemporaneously with the execution of the contract is inadmissible in the absence of accident, fraud, or mistake of fact to contradict, change, or add to the plain terms. D. Sullivan & Co. v. Schreiner (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 314.

Impression which owner of standing timber got in negotiations for sale thereof as to what he was to receive therefor cannot avail for rescission of his subsequent written contract of sale, complete in its terms; all prior negotiations and agreements being merged in the written contract. Jones v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 244 S. W. 229.

5. Leases.—In landlord's action for rent and to foreclose lien, testimony of tenant that when he signed lease with another defendant he and landlord's agent agreed in parol that he should not be liable as principal, but only as guarantor or surety, was inadmissible as varying a writing. Pantazes v. Farmer (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 221.

In suit by lessor and lessee against sublessees, the latter cannot defend on the ground of a parol statement made before the sublease or assignment was executed, so that proof that the sublessee falsely represented to his lessees that he owned 20,000 acres of land on which their cattle could graze, thereby inducing the sublessees to lease, would have been inadmissible as varying the terms of the writing by a parol contemporaneous agreement to furnish lands not specified. Russell v. Old River Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 765.

In an action on a written contract of lease of a farm and dairy stock, defendant was not entitled to show an agreement on the part of the plaintiff to furnish an engine, where plaintiff had not agreed to furnish such engine under the written contract, in the absence of a showing in defendant's cross-bill that it was a new contract on a valuable consideration. Hall v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 1116.

6. Mortgages, security or trust deed.—A parol agreement that a chattel mortgage should be subordinate to another to be later executed cannot be given effect, either by the mortgagor or the subsequent mortgagee, in contravention of a stipulation in the earlier mortgage that the property should be free from all other incumbrances. John E. McLean Co. v. Riley (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1051.

8. Contracts for buildings and other works.—Where a contract to compensate an architect was in writing, parol evidence contradicting, varying, or modifying its terms by showing an oral agreement of the architect to finance the building was inadmissible. Elliot v. Abeberg (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 674.

9. Sale or exchange of real property and deeds.—Where land contract was made conditional upon the execution of water contract between purchaser and company 1070.
supplying water for irrigation simultaneously with execution and delivery of warranty deed; and made no further reference to a supply of water, parol evidence was not admissible to prove that the vendor guaranteed sufficient irrigation. Harper v. Lott Town & Improvement Co. (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 188.

10. — Sale of personal property.—In suit to recover money paid for stock in an oil well, defendant testified that at the time the subscription contract, which was in writing, was entered into, the individual defendants orally agreed to return to plaintiff said money in the event oil was not developed, held that, aside from the allegations of fraud, evidence of the oral contract alleged was in violation of the rule that parol testimony cannot be received to vary, add to, or subtract from a valid written instrument. Burchill v. Hermansmeyer (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 767.

In suit by the buyer of merchandise to recover difference between what the seller had agreed to account for, on account of sales after the transaction, but before possession changed, and what he actually did account for, merely because the written contract showed the seller was the owner prior to a certain date, he was not necessarily excused from responsibility for what he had disposed of previously, there having been an oral arrangement to that effect. Adams v. Sims (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 523.

Where a sale of a legal publication was silent as to the time within which all the different volumes of the set were to be issued, the purchaser is not entitled to contradict the legal implication that the volumes were to be issued within a reasonable time, by showing a contemporaneous oral agreement fixing two to five years as the time within which the work was to be completely issued. American Law Book Co. v. Fulwiler (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 881.

The rights of parties under a bill of sale are to be measured by the terms of the written contract, and cannot be enlarged or diminished by contemporaneous or prior stipulations, omission, accident, or mistake in the agreement, or merger of the agreement into the written contract. Houston Transfer & Carriage Co. v. Williams (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 1081, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 712.

Stock subscription contracts could not be added to, varied, or changed by ingrafting thereon a written agreement as to the time or manner of payment, and such agreements were not admissible as to the time of execution of note, called for as an alternative to payment in money by the subscriber. Mitchell v. Porter (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 197, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 981.

11. — Bills and notes or indorsement thereof.—In action on note, contemporaneous oral agreement that at time of execution of note nothing was due plaintiff because of amount due to defendant upon a proper accounting could not be shown. Chalk v. Doggett (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1957.

In action on note for corporate stock, under defendant's plea of failure of consideration court could not admit evidence showing contemporaneous parol agreement, contradictory of note, that defendant should not pay it, unless from commissions for selling stock. Denman v. Kaplan (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 739.

In a life insurance company's action on assigned lien notes secured by its policies also on a policy loan note, defendant's oral testimony, that at the time of execution of the last note it was agreed between him and plaintiff company that the amount collected on a policy should be first applied to payment of a balance due on a prior vendor's lien note, held inadmissible as varying the written contract between the parties and contradicting its legal effect. Slaughter v. Texas Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 118

In suit by life insurance agents on a premium note given them by a physician whom they had appointed medical examiner for the insurance company, the note providing that it was to be paid by medical examinations, testimony as to another agreement varying the written note or contract should have been excluded on the objection of plaintiff agents. Dobbs v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1035.

15. Completeness of writing.—Where a contract is part in writing and part verbal, parol evidence is admissible to establish that part which is verbal. Foster v. Wright (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1990.

Where note and deed of trust made no provision concerning sale of land in its entirety, or the payment of the note before the expiration of the five-year term, parol testimony was admissible to prove an agreement whereby a portion of the principal represented interest at a certain per cent. for the five-year period, and that upon payment thereof before expiration of such period payee would refund the amount of such interest that had not been exhausted, such testimony being within the exception to the rule against receiving contemporaneous parol agreements, where the evidence is consistent with the writing, and where it is apparent that the instrument was not intended as the complete embodiment of the undertaking. Davidson v. Guarantee Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 582.

If it is apparent from a written contract that it contains only a part of the agreement, oral testimony will be permitted to supply the omission. D. Sullivan & Co. v. Schreiner (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 214.

Where a written instrument forms a part of a more comprehensive transaction, the terms of which are not attempted to be expressed in writing, parol testimony as to such parts of the transaction as were not reduced to writing is admissible. Harness v. Luttrall (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 810.

17. — Contracts of employment.—Where a contract between their employer and cigar salesmen was silent concerning the employer's duty as to filling orders solicited by the salesmen, whether promptly or otherwise, proof on the point was admissible. Martinez v. Carey (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 370.

18. — Contracts for buildings and other works.—Contract for excavating and hauling dirt, held to show on its face existence of parol agreement as to certain provisions justifying admission of explanatory evidence. Magnolia Warehouse & Storage Co. v. Davis, 166 Tex. 97, 186 S. W. 2d, 106 S. W. 2d, 157 S. W. 2d, 184.

22. Relation of oral agreement to writing.—The rule which excludes parol evidence to contradict or vary terms or effect of written instruments has no application to collateral undertakings or cases in which written instrument was executed in part performance of an entire oral agreement. Stuart v. Meyer (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 615.

Where A. made note payable to R., A. to become the apparent owner of corporate stock which R. was to pay for by discounting the note, R. to be the real owner of the stock and to repay the note and hold A. harmless, parol evidence was admissible to show that A. had not been induced to change. Knowlan v. Southern Gas & Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 409 S. W. 215.

Where A. made note payable to R., A. to become the apparent owner of corporate stock which R. was to pay for by discounting the note, R. to be the real owner of the stock and to repay the note and hold A. harmless, each agreement being collateral, and that the company might have further funds, agreed with defendants, its vice president and a controlling stockholder of the company, to discount their notes, paying the proceeds to the company, and to apply in extinguishment of the notes deposited subsequently received from the company, the agreement was collateral to the promise in the note sued on, executed pursuant to it, and was not merged in the note, being provable by parol and valid as a defense, whether made orally or in writing: Goldstein v. Union Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 400 S. W. 2d, 619.

RULE 22. WHERE THE MEANING OF THE WORDS IN A WRITTEN INSTRUMENT ARE DOUBTFUL, IT MAY BE READ IN THE LIGHT OF SURROUNDING CIRCUMSTANCES, AND PAROL EVIDENCE OF CUSTOM AND USAGE IS ADMISSIBLE TO SHOW ITS MEANING

1. Grounds for admission of extrinsic evidence.—Parol testimony is not admissible to change, alter, or vary the terms of a written contract, but is admissible to explain ambiguous terms. Dallas (Civ. App.) 236 S. W. 158; Hodge v. City of Ft. Worth (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 623; Rowles v. Hadden (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 251.

Where the language employed in a contract is unmistakable and certain, resort may not be had to parol evidence to show that the intention of the parties was other than that clearly expressed. Green v. Southern Oil & Refining Ass'n v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 157; Arcola Sugar Mills Co. v. Former Hamlett's Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 255.

Where provision in deed as to partial release of vendor's lien was unambiguous, and the meaning ascertainable from deed itself, parol evidence by one of the parties as to the meaning of such provision was inadmissible. White v. Tegnell (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 213.

Statements by agents who wrote a fire policy, made after loss, as to their opinion of the meaning of the description, are not admissible, unless they be an expression of the understanding of the terms of the policy held at the time of issuance. Northern Assur. Co. v. Lawrence (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 430.

Although a contract of partnership or joint adventure standing alone was unambiguous, parol evidence was admissible to show that sums recited to be paid therein and things recited to have recited were not in fact true, and to clarify uncertainty arising by reason of such recitations. First Nat. Bank v. Rush (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 521.

When a conveyance is made to carry out a prior executory agreement, the two agreements, though not contemporaneous, are part of the same transaction, and, if there is any doubt as to the intention as evidenced by the conveyance, the prior agreement is admissible to aid in the construction of the conveyance. Richardson v. Wilson (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 613.

It is permissible, if there be any uncertainty as to the meaning of a written instrument, to ascertain the condition of the parties at the time the same was executed, and to construe the language of the instrument in the light of such circumstances. New England Equitable Ins. Co. v. Mechanics'American Nat. Bank of St. Louis (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 665.

The rule that the contract must be read in the light of surrounding circumstances in arriving at a just interpretation of the terms does not admit of a violation of the express language which the parties have employed in defining their obligations, nor the reading into the contract of terms which its express provisions exclude: Southern Gas & Oil Co. v. Richardson (Com. App.) 216 S. W. 158.

2. Nature of ambiguity or uncertainty in instrument in general.—Parol evidence of circumstances surrounding testator is admissible that his will may be read in the light of the conditions existing around him: Ladd v. Whitledge (Civ. App.) 292 S. W. 463.

If consideration of parol evidence tending to explain the expression whereby testa-Irrevocable, designated devisees was necessary in order to enable the court to reach a proper understanding of the item of the will, the court was required to consider it.

In proceedings involving boundaries, oral evidence is admissible as against the objection that it contradicts the written field notes where it tends to show that the calls in the field notes are inconsistent, and to show which call is true and which is false. Wilson v. Giraud (Supp.) 211 S. W. 1674.

3. — Deeds.—Where a deed described land by metes and bounds, chain of title, and reference to prior deeds, and by a name which was erroneous, testimony of the grantee therein was admissible to explain the deed. Roberts v. Dreyer (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1097.

Where a deed conveying land with reference to an established line did not call for any objects, natural or artificial, conflicting with the true line, the grantee takes to the true line, though it did not correspond with a survey made at the time of the conveyance; for if the calls in a grant, when applied to land, correspond with each other, parol evidence is not admissible to vary them by showing that in point of fact they were not the calls of the survey as made. Swann v. Mills (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 550.

A deed to a county judge in trust for school purposes to have and to hold, together with all and singular the rights and appurtenances thereto in any wise belonging unto the said county judge and his successors (Merriman school district), etc., is not ambiguous in any sense, except as to the identity of the beneficiary, and this may be ascertained as any other fact. Taylor v. County School Trustees of Eastland County (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 670.

In an action on contract for purchase of assets of bank by plaintiff, evidence of negotiations between plaintiff and one of individual defendants who signed contract leading up to execution of contract, which was ambiguous, held admissible. Langford v. Power (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 662.

In a contract between defendant and a sawmill owner for the joint conduct of a sawmill enterprise on defendant's land, a provision that defendant would furnish all necessary cash for operating the mill "until name is in operation, that is, as soon as the mill is moved to the land location," was not so clear and free from ambiguity as to preclude the admission of parol testimony to explain what the parties really intended. Porter v. McKinnon (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 574. Affirming judgment (Civ. App.) McKinnon v. Porter, 192 S. W. 1112.

Where oil and gas leases referred to a number of similar leases contemporaneously executed, and required lessee to drill well in area of land covered by all leases, without designating particular land on which well was to be drilled, the uncertainty as to where well might be drilled did not render lease ineffectual, but could be explained by extrinsic evidence to show the meaning the parties placed on it. McCaskey v. Schrock (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 413.

Provision in a contract between an association and an individual providing that the individual should pay the salaries of officers of the association was not ambiguous or uncertain to admit parol evidence as to the intention of the parties. Great Southern Oil & Refining Ass'n v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 157.

5. — Contracts of sale.—Contract for sale of car of corn, evidenced by letters and telegrams, held ambiguous leaving it uncertain as to what was meant by the words "delivered" and "inspection allowed." Marlin Lumber Co. v. Samuel Hastings Co. (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1076.

A contract for exchange of lands, limiting purchasers' assumption of liabilities to $10,500, held to fix the limit to that amount only, and not ambiguous as manifesting a double intent so as to warrant resort to extraneous proof of intended obligation of parties. Riggins v. Post (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 600.

A contract transferring a half interest in a drug business, including the stock of merchandise, fixtures, guaranteeing the successor the use of the name of any character against the said property or said business according to bill of sale conveyed to me by Lowe Brothers," held so ambiguous as to authorize admission of parol evidence relative to prior agreements and transactions to explain it. Richardson v. Wilson (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 611.

Testimony is admissible as to the meaning of provisions of a written contract of sale of linters, they being ambiguous, in the sense that their meaning is not clear to one not familiar with the preparation of and dealing in cotton seed mill products. Dallas Waste Mills v. Early-Foster Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 515.

A contract for the sale of syrup held to contain no doubt or ambiguity in its language justifying the admission of parol explanatory evidence. Arcola Sugar Mills Co. v. Farmer Hamlett's Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 385.

Contracts to sell "about 3,000 bushels" of oats, "cars to be loaded as fast as threshed and sacked," held unambiguous; parol evidence that it was intended that seller should deliver only such oats as were produced on his farm being inadmissible. Barnes v. Early-Foster Co. (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 248.

Order for goods to be shipped "at once with M. Gro. Company," being ambiguous as to time of shipment, could be explained by parol testimony. Gladney Milling Co. v. Dement (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1036.

9. Patent ambiguity.—A patent ambiguity is one apparent on the face of the instrument, and which remains uncertain after all the evidence of surrounding circumstances and collateral facts admissible under the proper rules of evidence is exhausted so that it cannot be said that there is patent ambiguity in deed if court placing itself

'T2 SUPP. V.S.CIV. ST. TEX.—68 1073.

Courts are reluctant to declare wills void for uncertainty, and it is only when the instrument is unintelligible or uncertain, after admission of extrinsic evidence as to situation of parties and circumstances, that a true patent ambiguity is established. Adams v. Maris (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 622.

10. Latent ambiguity.—A latent ambiguity is one where the writing appears on the face of it certain and free from ambiguity, but the ambiguity is introduced by evidence of something extrinsic or by some collateral matter out of the instrument. McDougal v. Conn (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 627.

If there was latent ambiguity in description of ward's land in order of sale by her guardian, it could be guarded only by consulting other parts of probate record. In subsequent action of trespass to try title, and not by testimony of witnesses as to what they thought the term "estate of H.," meant at the time. Schaeffer v. Williams (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 220.

There was a latent ambiguity in an oil lease providing that lessor "drill the fourth well drilled in C. F. held on these lands or forfeit contract," and evidence was competent to show whether it was the intention of the parties to the lease to require a fourth well to be drilled by the lessee or the fourth well drilled by anyone in the field. Texas Pac. Coal & Oil Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 237.

11. Custom controlling construction.—Incidents sought to be imported into contract by custom must not be inconsistent with its express terms or any necessary implication therefrom. Fintel is proper to hear Gresham (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 146.

Evidence of customs and usages may be admitted to explain or aid in the interpretation of a contract which is ambiguous, unprecise, incomplete, or inconsistent, but not to contradict, restrict, or enlarge what requires no explanation. Alexander v. Heidenheimer (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 842, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Heidenheimer, Straussburger & Co. v. Alexander-Baird, 206 S. W. 458.

Where the carrier sought reformation of a bill of lading on the ground of mutual mistake to make the bill of lading to conform to the waybill, evidence of a general custom to ship oil by the waybill was admissible to show the original was held in the manner intended by the shipper's agent in giving directions for the billing and in corroboration of the contention of the carrier as to the mistake. City Nat. Bank of El Paso & N. E. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 391.

When an agreement is silent or obscure as to a particular subject, the law and usage become a portion of it. Trinity Portland Cement Co. v. Lion Bonding & Surety Co. (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 483.

The office of a usage is to interpret the otherwise indeterminate intentions of parties, to explain the nature and extent of their contracts, and to fix and explain the meaning of words and expressions of doubtful or various senses. Dallas Cotton Mills v. Huguley (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 432.

Evidence held insufficient to show that under the usages and customs of the trade there was the right to satisfactorily the contract by requiring the buyer to direct with another party for the oil. Tumusoth Oil & Cotton Co. v. Gresham (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 468.

13. Meaning of words, phrases, signs or abbreviations.—Under contract of sale of "saw timber," such words are descriptive of the subject-matter of sale, and have no legal significance. Fintel is proper to hear Gresham (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 146.

Parol evidence to explain a testamentary provision should be confined to facts illuminating or discovering the meaning attached by testator to words used. Nunn v. Title Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 896.

A contract for sale of car of corn being ambiguous as to meaning of words, "inspection allowed," therein, testimony as to meaning attached thereto among shippers and buyers of carload lots, when used in such a contract, is admissible. Marlin Lumber Co. v. Samuel Hastings Co. (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 1075.

Intention of parties in using certain words in contract controls all ordinary definitions, and, if intention can be derived from document, no evidence of ordinary meaning of words is admissible. West v. Carlisle (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 515.

A contract providing that purchasers of land should have "fifteen acre feet per annum of its water, or so much water as would be necessary to irrigate fifteen acres of land," etc., held not ambiguous so as to allow consideration of the acts of the parties in construing the contract, the term "acre foot" expressing a technical, definite, and specific volume or quantity of water, 225,800 gallons, or the amount of water which will cover one acre one foot in depth. Rowles v. Hadden (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 251.

The words "this" and "notes," in an alleged will consisting of an envelope addressed to payees and with the word "Notes" indorsed and a letter asking payees to accept "this" held not unintelligible and inconsistent with themselves to the extent that parol evidence was not admissible to aid their meaning. Adams v. Maris (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 622.

Evidence seeking to vary, by proof of custom, the well-established meaning of the words "o. b.," held inadmissible. Lee v. Gilchrist Cotton Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 977.

Stock subscription contracts could not be added to, varied, or changed by ingrafting thereon a parol contemporaneous agreement as to the character of the "securities", called for or an alternative to payment, and in money by the subscriber, nor could the meaning of "securities" be modified or limited by showing a parol interpretation on ex-evidence of contracts, which were not ambiguous. Mitchell v. Porter (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 197, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 381.

Parol evidence was admissible to show the facts and circumstances surrounding the transaction, though subsequent thereto, which tended to show construction placed upon the words "as she has always done," in a reservation in a deed providing that the grantor was to sell "the land on said lot, as she has always done, so long as she may live." Ahrens v. Lowther (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 235.

Provision of contract for sale of sacks reading, "Apply usual quantity differentials," could be explained by parol testimony that the prices stated were for lots of 1,000, but that, if sacks were shipped in greater quantities, a less price should be paid for them. Taylor Milling Co. v. American Bag Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 782.

Where a banker testified that an advice card sent by him to another bank "among bankers means what it says on its face," and that it had nothing to do with the banking business, and where he was permitted to state what the meaning thereof was, refusal to allow him to make an oracular explanation of its meaning held proper. Stockyards Nat. Bank v. Wilkinson (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1946.

14. Relation and application of language to facts in general.—Language of guarantees, telegrams and circumstances surrounding the parties at the time will be looked to in determining the parties' intention. El Paso Bank & Trust Co. v. First State Bank of Bustis (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 522.

The question of what is reasonable time for the performance of a contract must necessarily depend upon the conditions affecting its performance, existing and in contemplation of the parties at the time the contract is executed. Langen v. Crespi & Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 144.

The question of whether a contract conveyed the minerals or merely a right to explore for minerals is necessarily determined from the language used by the parties to define the legal effect of the instrument, but is to be determined by an examination of the entire instrument in the light of the circumstances surrounding the contracting parties. Marrett Oil & Gas Co. v. Munsey (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 867.

15. Particularization of parol evidence.—Parol evidence is admissible to identify a legatee, when under the terms of the will there is ambiguity therein. Lightfoot v. Poindexter (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1152.

Where contract provided that note given as part of purchase price for goods should be paid to payee of all claims against the goods, parol evidence was admissible to show who were creditors of sellers. Warren v. Farlin-Orendorff Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 586.

Where parties denied being bound by written contract purporting to have been made on their behalf, testimony as to statements made at time contract was to be made and signed, as to whom contract was being made on behalf of, was admissible and not objectionable as tending to vary terms of contract. Donoho v. Carwile (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 583.

In proceedings to determine the construction of a will giving the property of testator possessed by the wife at her death to their respective families, evidence of the financial condition of testator's relatives at the time of making the will and of his affection for them was admissible as an aid in determining whom he meant by the expression "family." Norton v. Smith (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 542.

16. Identification of subject-matter:—In conveyances, contracts and writings in general.—Parol testimony is admissible to identify property in a chattel mortgage, but not to add property which clearly appeared from the face of the instrument not to have been covered thereby. John E. Morrison Co. v. Riley (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1021.

While the courts for course and distance cannot be limited by reference to objects found on the ground, reckoning them a footstep of the surveyors which are not mentioned in the field notes, evidence of such objects is admissible to aid a call found in the field notes by removing an ambiguity, and to determine which one of conflicting calls shall prevail. West Lumber Co. v. Goodrich (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 183, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Goodrich v. West Lumber Co., 182 S. W. 341.

In trespass to try title, evidence that description in a deed claimed to be ambiguous did not embrace the land in controversy held insufficient to support finding for interveners. Blackwell v. Scott (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 334.

21. Application of description to subject-matter.—In suit to foreclose a mortgage upon all crops "grown on the farm I am now living on," the situs of the land could be made certain by parol evidence. Perkins v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 299 S. W. 789.

The location of surveys on the ground must necessarily be determined by parol evidence, which is therefore admissible. Wigham v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 485.

In suit involving question whether there is a vacancy between two leagues on the west and a survey on the east to which plaintiffs are entitled by an award from the state, held that, when an attempt was made to locate the boundaries of the leagues on the ground by the field notes in the grant, and an ambiguity appeared, court did not err in admitting original English field notes, plats, and field notes of adjoining grants, and evidence of surveyors as to the true location of the east boundary line of the leagues. Barrow v. Murray (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 178.

Where plaintiff in trespass to try title to a 100-acre tract of land claimed under a deed granting 87½ acres in a certain survey, "being the remaining part and interest in 400 acres deeded to me," evidence of a prior parcel sale of the tract in controversy to a third party after a division of the entire tract into parcels, one containing 87½ acres and another 169 acres, was admissible to identify the land conveyed under plaintiff's deed. Delta Land & Timber Co. v. Spiller (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 414.

22. — Property or interest included.—Where plaintiff in trespass to try title claimed under a deed with an ambiguous description, testimony that defendant subsequent to the conveyance claimed the timber on the land in controversy and sold it to another held by plaintiff, was inadmissible as contradicting the written instrument. Delta Land & Timber Co. v. Spiller (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 414.

While parol evidence is often admissible to ascertain what lands are embraced in the description of a deed, such evidence does not make the deed operative upon land not embraced in the descriptive words. Rule v. Miller (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 620.

Parol evidence was not admissible to show that oil, gas, and minerals were not conveyed under a deed conveying fee-simple title to county judge in trust for school district. Taylor v. County School Dist. Trustees of Hardin County (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 577.

23. — Boundaries. — Parol evidence is admissible to prove that the lines and corners of the tracts of land called for in a deed were not located on the ground at the point called for by the field notes in the deed, since the rule against varying the terms of a written instrument by extraneous evidence is not infringed by extraneous evidence explaining the calls in field notes, and thereby applying the field notes to the ground and identifying the location of the land intended to be conveyed. Stevens v. Robb (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 891.

When the calls are not inconsistent and no ambiguity arises when they are applied to the matter of the description, the instrument speaks for itself, and parol evidence is not permissible to vary the calls. Hamman v. San Jacinto Rice Co. (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1008.

24. — Sufficiency of description to admit parol evidence. — Where defect in description and patent on face and lands, and is such that the land described, deed is void, and extrinsic proof cannot be resorted to to make description certain, but where description of deed omitted two calls, but did not show on face land could not be located, court properly admitted extrinsic evidence in support of description. Fortin v. Cruise (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 177.

Despite deficiencies in description of mortgaged chattels, it was sufficient as to one who purchased knowing of inaccuracy; parol evidence being admissible to supply any deficiency in description. Clark & Boice Lumber Co. v. Commercial Nat. Bank of Jefferson City (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 197.

A written agreement to convey 29 acres in a survey containing approximately 1,600 acres will not support specific performance, where the writing in no way described the particular 29 acres, and, aside from the word "Damon" at the top of it, in no way described the tract except it was to be carved out; for 229 S. W. 577 not enough to render admissible extrinsic evidence to show the land intended. Keliner v. Ramdohr (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 169.

26. — In sale of personal property. — Where by written contract defendant agreed to purchase and plaintiff to sell all of a certain grade of lumber at plaintiff's mill and to be cut, except local bills, testimony by officers of plaintiff explaining that lumber sold to third persons was not at the mill, but was on railroad siding at the time the contract was made, was admissible to explain its terms, and could not be objected to on the theory that it tended to vary the terms of a written contract. Adamson Lumber Co. v. J. B. King Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 702.

28. Showing intent of parties as to subject-matter. — Where written contract was ambiguous, testimony tending to show what the parties intended by the use of the language contained was admissible. Ferguson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 338; Altgelt v. Aue (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 606; Benton v. Jones (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 195.

In absence of fraud or mistake warranting cancellation or mutual intention to use words to express meaning other than their ordinary meaning, defendant held bound by intention expressed, and evidence of a different intention was not admissible. Flores v. Flores (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1157.

Where agents by plain terms of contract bound themselves, parol evidence was not admissible to show that it was their intention to bind their principals. Quevoll v. Whitesides (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 122.

Papers consisting of an envelope indorsed, "Notes," and a letter signing payees of notes indorsed to accept "this" for the kindness shown, are ambiguous as to whether deceased writer and maker intended a present or a testamentary gift, and parol evidence is admissible to aid construction. Adams v. Marls (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 622.

While the statute requiring wills in writing precludes ascribing to testator any intention not expressed, yet there is an obligation to give effect to the intention which the will properly expounded contains, and therefore evidence simply explaining the writing is admissible. Id.

In construing stock subscription contract, which clearly evidences agreement to buy and sell the stock, representations of corporation's agents are inadmissible to show parties' intent, in absence of pleading and proof that there were stipulations entering into the contract which were omitted from agreement by mistake, accident, or fraud. Turner v. Cattleman's Trust Co. of Ft. Worth (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 831.

In a bill of sale, where the defendant executed a bill of sale and placed it in the hands of a third person, with instruction to deliver it to the vendee upon payment of purchase price, but such bill of sale was never delivered, it was competent in an action by the owner for conversion against one who seized and reprieved the goods in the vendee's possession to show that it was the intention of the parties that title should not pass at the time of delivery to the vendee. Garcia v. Hernandez (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1099.

Where time was expressly made the essence of the written contract, proof that it was agreed that the usage of the parties in not regarding time as the essence of contracts that had been entered into between them during the years they had been dealing with each other, held not objectionable as contradicting the written contract. Taylor Milling Co. v. American Bag Co. (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 782.

Where a will is ambiguous to the extent that the intention of the testator cannot be ascertained from the language of the will itself, extrinsic evidence is admissible. Haupt v. Michaelis (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 766.

In construction of deeds in general.—In suit on promissory note and to foreclose vendor's lien, plaintiff's testimony that third person executed to him deed to land in controversy, that third person was of sound mind, but confined in insane asylum as habitual drunkard, etc., and letters and ex parte statements of third persons, held admissible as circumstances to show deed from plaintiff to defendant was quitalclaim. Baldwin v. Drew (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 636.

In determining intention of parties to deed as to whether instrument conveyed land or merely chance of title, jury could consider oral evidence admitted in case in arriving at conclusion, and were not confined to consideration of deed itself. Id.

To aid in interpreting a clause of a deed as to use of the property by the grantee, testimony in regard to the agreement of the parties and the negotiations in regard to execution and delivery of the deed is admissible. Red River, T. & S. Ry. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1169.

In description of property.—Where the description in a deed is plain, clear, and unambiguous, parol evidence is inadmissible to show that it was intended by the parties to convey land not described. Scheller v. Grosbeek (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 302.

In extent or interest conveyed.—Property conveyed to the wife, without any recitation showing it to be her separate property, may, as between the husband and wife or their representatives, and as against all persons not purchasers for value without notice, be shown to be her separate property, by parol as well as other evidence. Houston, E. & W. Ry. Co. v. Choate (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 113.

Showing purpose of writing.—A written contract for sale of land providing for a deposit "placed as a forfeit" cannot have its terms varied by parol evidence to show that the money was deposited as earnest or escrow money and not as liquidated damages on a forfeit. Richardson v. Terry (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 528.

A written contract of sale of two sets of books cannot be contradicted by parol to show that it was a sale of one of the sets, which was being published volume by volume, but a loan of the other. American Law Book Co. v. Fulwyler (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 881.

RULE 24. PAROL EVIDENCE IS ADMISSIBLE TO CONTRADICT THE RECITAL OF PAYMENT IN A DEED, RECEIPT, OR OTHER INSTRUMENT, AND TO SHOW THE AMOUNT ACTUALLY PAID OR THE REAL CONSIDERATION.

Where release was the consummation of an executed contract containing no agreement on the part of the insurance company, and the statement of the consideration was in the nature of a receipt or recital of its payment, the release was not contractual as to the company and it was permissible to add to or vary its statement of the consideration. Anderson v. California State Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 497.

The rule permitting the true consideration of written instruments to be shown by parol does not apply, where the statement in the contract as to the consideration is more than a mere receipt or acknowledgment of payment and is of a contractual nature. D. Sullivan & Co. v. Schreiner (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 111.

Where a deed of land recited that it was given in full settlement of a claim, parol evidence is competent to show that a bill of sale executed on the same date was also intended as part consideration, and was part of the settlement. Trabue v. Ash (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 415.

Parol evidence is admissible to show that an agreement to make a will was an additional consideration for a deed. Faville v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1061.

Parties may show real consideration for deed, regardless of expressed consideration, except that, where recitation with reference to consideration is of contractual nature, it cannot be disputed, altered, contradicted, or modified by oral evidence. Delano v. Delano (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 1145.

In mother's deed conveying fee simple title to son, recital of consideration of cash paid, and that son's stepdaughter should receive some interest in land as his own children, was not contractual, so that, in son's suit for partition against brother, parol evidence was admissible to show deed was intended as advancement to son. Id.

Plaintiff, in an action for fraudulent representations as to time for which lease could be renewed, inducing his purchase of certain land and lease of other land, can show that part of the recited consideration in the deed to him of the land bought was for the lease. Harris v. Mann (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 156.

Testimony to show the true consideration in a deed is always admissible and, notwithstanding the recital of consideration, it may be shown that the property was a gift to the grantee, and therefore his separate property. Burns v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 158.

Where a deed recited that the consideration was $1 and other considerations, parol evidence is admissible to establish the true consideration. Manton v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 251.

In action to cancel warranty deeds alleged to have been executed for accommodation of defendant for use as collateral for loan without intention to fully pass title, evidence as to agreement at time of execution, whereby plaintiff's wife was to continue collecting rents from property, was admissible to prove that such agreement was part of consideration. Sanger v. Futch (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 681.

In an action for breach of warranty of title, the recitals in each of the purchasers' deeds of $8,000 as consideration being prima facie evidence of the value put upon the property exchanged for the conveyances, the grantor or seller had the right to show that the consideration expressed in the deeds was not the real consideration, but the burden of proof was on him to show the real consideration. Northcutt v. Hume (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 157.

In suit on vendor's lien notes, testimony of defendant buyer with reference to a contract he had with plaintiff, the assignee of the notes from the vendor, at the time the notes were executed, held admissible to sustain the defense set up by the buyer, the recited consideration in his deed not being contractual, so that parol evidence was admissible to establish the real consideration. Connors v. McAtee (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 446.

Despite the parol evidence rule, plaintiff, who bought land on which was located a well, was entitled to testify that lease of pipes which had been used to carry water from the well was part of the consideration, though the deed expressly recited a consideration. Wright v. Connors (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1696.

Recital, in deed of father and stepmother to their son, that it was in consideration of his relinquishment of all the claim which he might have at any time in the future to any value there might have, that it was subject to the parol evidence rule. Martin v. Martin (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 291.

Where a deed recited that the consideration was a credit on a note and the payment of other debts to a specified amount which were a lien on the property, and further provided that the grantee did not charge any security it had on other property to secure the balance due on the note or any of the debts the grantor due it, but that all such other security was specially retained, such provision could not, in the absence of accident, fraud, or mistake, be contradicted by evidence that the grantee agreed to cancel all the grantor's indebtedness, though the evidence was offered under the guise of showing the true consideration. D. Sullivan & Co. v. Schreiner (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 314.

Parol proof was admissible to show the consideration for a trust deed, and that it was money advanced to contractor constructing a building on the property. Barber v. Herring (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 472.

Assumption or payment of debts or incumbrances.—The indebtedness mentioned in an instrument, executed by defendant and a company, which the company agreed to satisfy on payment of a certain sum by defendant, not being definitely stated, and the instrument containing that a pending suit, in which the company and another asserted claims against defendant, should be dismissed, she, so pleading, could testify that the company's agent, who procured her signature, agreed as consideration that the company would satisfy all claims asserted against her in the suit. Lovelady v. Harding (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 325.

In action for damages for breach of covenant against incumbrances, consisting of retention of possession of the granted premises by a tenant of the vendor for several months after the conveyance, parol evidence is inadmissible to show that the plaintiff grantee assumed the burden imposed by the tenant's occupancy, and took the land subject to the tenant's right of possession. Morris v. Heese (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 710.

Parol evidence is admissible to show that the grantee in a deed containing a covenant against incumbrances agreed to assume certain charges against the property conveyed. Lessons v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 765.

Acknowledgment of payment in deed.—A recital in a deed that the purchase money has been received is prima facie evidence of payment. Russell v. Beckert (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 607.

Ordinarily the recital of a consideration in a deed precludes the grantor from disputing generally the facts of consideration; but where a deed recites a consideration paid in full, it may be shown between the parties and those having notice that such consideration was in fact not paid. McKay v. Talliy (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 167; Same v. Fulkham (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 171.

Contracts in general.—Consideration recited in written contract can be explained or contradicted by parol, except where parol proof of consideration shows an entirely different contract, and the fact that statute requires all facts to be alleged and plea of failure of consideration to be verified does not change rule of evidence that parol evidence showing an entirely different contract, making payment of note conditional, is inadmissible. Denman v. Kaplan (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 739.

Recitation of consideration in contract, whereby defendant agreed not to engage in his former business in town, being contractual, evidence that there was no consideration for agreement not to engage in business would be inadmissible in suit to enforce

Where the real consideration for execution of an oil lease was the promise of the lessee to drill an oil well within six months, a promise made with specific intent of not fulfilling it, whereby the lessors were fraudulently induced to execute the lease, the lessee allege and prove that the alleged consideration of one dollar was not paid, and what the true consideration was. Hitson v. Gillman (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 140.

In action to cancel an oil lease, which gave the lessee the option to sink an oil well before a certain time, the court properly refused to permit plaintiff to testify that the consideration recited, of $10 for the option, was not considered by either of the parties as any consideration supporting the contract and was only nominal, and was not paid as an inducement for the execution of the lease contract, and that the sole inducement was a hope entertained by the lessor that he would secure the sinking of a test well near the land and royalties, etc., on objection that such evidence was a conclusion, and violated the parol evidence rule. Nolan v. Young (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 154.

Where a mineral lease contained a promise by lessee which was sufficient consideration for the lease though the stated money consideration was never paid, parol evidence is not admissible to show that the consideration was an oral agreement by the lessor's agent. Burt v. Deorsum (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 254.

Contracts of sale or exchange.—The right of a buyer to urge want or failure of consideration when sued on promissory notes given for the price, or to urge misrepresentation concerning the character or kind of the goods inducing the purchase, when related, is not limited because the transaction took the form of a written contract. Lee v. Bule (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 220.

A contract for sale of land may be varied by showing the real consideration agreed on. Speer v. Hansen (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 324.

RULE 25. PAROL EVIDENCE IS ADMISSIBLE TO SHOW THAT A WRITTEN INSTRUMENT IS VOID FOR ILLEGALITY, WANT OR FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION, OR ON ACCOUNT OF FRAUD OR MISTAKE

Grounds for admission of extrinsic evidence.—All oral agreements prior to the execution of a written contract are presumed to have been embodied in such contract, but such presumption is not conclusive, and may be rebutted by showing that the agreement by reason of mutual mistake, fraud, or accident failed to embody all the terms of the contract actually made. Standard Fire Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Buckingham (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 631.

Where plaintiff at time of execution of written instruments knew that oral contract was not embodied in the writing, he would, to bring himself within the exception to general rule that parol testimony cannot be received to vary valid written instrument, be required to allege and prove that omission was due to accident, mistake, or fraud of defendants; a mere charge that omission was fraudulent being insufficient. Burchill v. Hermanneyer (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 767.

Parties to written instruments cannot vary their terms without allegation or evidence of fraud, accident, or mistake. Von Hatzfeld v. Haubert (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 220.

A strained technical adherence to the rule that an instrument must not be varied or contradicted by parol should not be indulged so as to foster parol practices aberrant to the statutes and public policy; and, even if a main contract of sale was lawful in its terms, but through letters and circulars one of the parties modified or enlarged the effect or provisions of the original instrument so as to make its purposes unlawful under the other party acquiesced in or was coerced into an acceptance of these changes and both parties construed and acted upon the contract as so modified, such parol evidence rule will not prevent introduction in evidence of such circulars and letters to uncover the unlawful acts rendering the contract invalid. Caudill v. J. R. Wood & Sons Medical Co. (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 226.

The parol evidence rule does not apply when facts are alleged showing the existence of fraud, accident, or mistake, or that the contract was entered into for the furtherance of objects forbidden by law, whether by statute or by an express rule of the common law or by the general policy of the law. Fenter v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 844.

In action to cancel an oil and gas lease, it would not be varying the instrument by parol evidence to permit lessor to testify that lessee prepared the lease to run for a period of six months, and after the delivery of the lease struck out the words "six months" and inserted the words "ten years." Smith v. Fleming (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 135.

Matters affecting validity in general.—The parol evidence rule does not apply when facts are alleged showing the existence of fraud, accident, or mistake, or that the contract was entered into for the furtherance of objects forbidden by law, whether by statute or by an express rule of the common law or by the general policy of the law. Fenter v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 844.

The illegality—Parol evidence is admissible to show that a contract for the sale of cotton, regular on its face, is in reality a contract to deal in cotton futures, and therefore illegal and unenforceable. P. T. Talbot & Son v. Martindale (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 302.

In buyer's action for damages for seller's failure to deliver cotton contracted for, evidence of conversation between the parties at the time of making the contract as to its being settled by payment of difference between contract price and market price held admissible on the issue whether the contract was a "future contract." Fenter v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 844.

Though a contract for sales of goods to one purchasing for resale provided that it constituted the sole agreement, and that booklets, bulletins, and literature sent to the buyer should be considered as educational and advisory, and not as altering the contract, evidence of subsequent communications held admissible to show that the seller restricted the buyer's territory, fixed the resale prices, and required the buyer to give his entire time to the business, and these facts, when established, render the contract violative of the Anti-Trust Law. W. T. Rawleigh Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 331 S. W. 759.

Mistake.—Where consignee sued for loss of goods, and the carrier produced a receipt, the consignee was properly allowed to show that the receipt was inadvertently given when the goods were not delivered. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Rosenthal Dry Goods Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 167.

Fraud.—It is permissible under the issue of fraud to offer parol evidence in avoidance of a deed. Walker v. Ames (Civ. App.) 279 S. W. 365.

In contracts in general.—Where terms and conditions of a contract have by mutual mistake been omitted, it is competent to show such fact and supply omission by parol evidence. Ferguson v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 941.

Where fraud exists, a written contract cannot be proved by parol, though it adds to such writing. Martin v. Iroquois Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 589.

The rule that parol evidence is inadmissible to vary the terms of a written contract does not prevent the use of extrinsic evidence to attack its validity by showing fraud in its inception, notwithstanding the written contract provides that "no conditions, representations, or agreements other than these" contained therein could be considered. Bankers' Trust Co. v. Calhoun (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 825; Same v. James (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 830.

In contracts of sale.—In action to rescind a contract of sale because of seller's misrepresentations, evidence bearing upon alleged fraudulent statements was not inadmissible on ground that it varied terms of the written contract. Calloway v. Booe & Collier (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1174.

Stipulation of contract of sale of lots by number, that no agent can bind the vendors by any act or statement not set forth in the contract, does not prevent purchaser from showing false representations by selling agent as to size of lots. Landfried v. Milam (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 847.

Where flour mill scales sale contract provided that it contained all agreements and that "no representation made by an agent or other person, not included herein, shall be binding," the parol evidence rule did not render inadmissible evidence that the seller's agent represented that its scales were accurate and peculiarly fitted for weighing flour in the buyer's mill, whereas the scales as purchased were inaccurate; such evidence showing a false representation inducing the buyer to purchase. Detroit Automatic Scale Co. v. G. E. R. Smith Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 184.

The value of a legal work being largely dependent on its early completion and delivery, parol representation by an agent of the seller that the work was already in plate and ready for the press was a representation of an existing material fact, the proof of which would not infringe upon the rule which forbids the introduction of parol to vary or contradict the terms of written instruments, and a clause that "No representation or warranty has been made by salesman not herein stated," does not render such representation inadmissible. American Law Book Co. v. Fuhlweiler (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 881.

In purchaser's action to recover purchase money paid and to cancel purchase notes on ground that he was induced to buy the land by fraudulent representations by vendors' agents, stipulation in contract that the agents had no authority to bind vendors by any act or statement not set forth therein did not estop purchaser from proving that he was induced to enter into the contract by agent's fraudulent misrepresentations; such testimony not varying the terms of the written agreement, but merely showing that no valid contract was ever entered into. Massirer v. Milam (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 302.

In an action on a sale contract, an objection to evidence of representations as furnishing guarantees and warranties not in the written agreement is not well taken, where the answer pleaded fraud inducing defendants to contract, making such evidence admissible. Browning Engineering Co. v. Willett (Comm. App.) 229 S. W. 151.

In bills and notes or indorsement thereof.—In broker's action on commission notes and to foreclose lien reserved in deed, parol evidence that notes had not been delivered, that transaction had been induced by fraud, and that the notes had been rescinded because of such fraud, held admissible; such evidence not seeking to alter written contracts, but merely attacking their efficacy as binding because of fraud and authorized rescission. Snee v. Dalrymple (Comm. App.) 222 S. W. 174, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 911.
RULE 26. PAROL EVIDENCE IS ADMISSIBLE TO ESTABLISH A TRUST OR TO SHOW THAT A WRITTEN INSTRUMENT WAS INTENDED AS A MORTGAGE, TRUST OR CONDITIONAL SALE

Mortgage or conditional sale.—An instrument in form a deed may be shown by parol to be in fact a mortgage as between the parties. Mercer v. McMurry (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 659; Young v. Blain (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 851.

The real consideration of a deed absolute on its face may always be shown by parol to be mere security for debt. Morrow v. Gorton (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 164.

Trust.—As an abstract proposition it is no longer the rule that a parol trust cannot be established by the testimony of one witness. Graves v. Graves (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 543; Hall v. Hall (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 650.

An agreement to pay part of the purchase price of lots, title to be taken jointly, made prior to delivery of deed to defendant's husband alone as grantee, may be shown by parol. McBride v. Briggs (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 341.

An express trust may be ingrafted on a deed conveying the absolute title by parol testimony. Robinson v. Faville (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 316.

A parol trust may be ingrafted on a deed absolute on its face by the testimony of one witness, without proof of corroborating circumstances. Allen v. Williams (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 355.

Parol evidence is admissible to show that the oil lease in controversy was delivered in trust. Hickernell v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 691.

Where plaintiff was induced to convey an interest in land to defendant in reliance on defendant's oral promise to devise her entire interest to plaintiff, and after the conveyance defendant repudiated the oral agreement, the title is subject to a trust in plaintiff's favor which may be established by parol. Faville v. Robinson (Sup.) 227 S. W. 338.

Proof of a trust agreement in reference to a conveyance is not objectionable as varying or contradicting the deed; such proof not proceeding upon the idea that the deed is not the conveyance it purports to be. Graves v. Graves (Civ. App.) 237 S. W. 643.

RULE 28. A WRITTEN INSTRUMENT, FAILING THROUGH FRAUD, ACCIDENT OR MISTAKE, EITHER OF MATTER OF LAW OR OF FACT, TO REPRESENT THE TRUE AGREEMENT, OR CONTAINING TERMS CONTRARY TO THE COMMON INTENTION, WILL BE CORRECTED OR REFORMED IN EQUITY

Fraud, accident or mistake in general.—A mistake of law is no ground for relief, as ignorance is not mistake, and equity will not grant relief upon the mere supposition that the party was ignorant of the legal effect of his act or of his omission to act. Markum v. Markum (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 535.

A mistake by a scrivener in drawing an instrument which would warrant a reforma­tion applies to mistakes of law as well as mistakes of fact, and a contract can be re­formed where a scrivener uses a word in a mistaken sense. Benson v. Ashford (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 283.

In Texas, where law and equity are administered in the same proceeding, if a mutual mistake has been made in reducing a contract, as a note, to writing, plaintiff may in the same proceeding obtain a judgment reforming the instrument and enforcing it according to its terms after it has been reformed. Harkey v. Graves (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 750.

Contracts in general.—In suit to reform and specifically enforce contract for sale and exchange of lands in which plaintiff based her right of action on the fact property was signed up under a government irrigation project, and contract by mistake failed to make defendant take subject to such project, evidence held sufficient to show that the land was signed up under the project. Sorenson v. Broadus (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1065.

If a guaranty was executed and accepted under a mistaken belief as to its amount, equity will reform the instrument. Cooper Grocery Co. v. Neblett (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 365.

All oral agreements prior to the execution of a written contract are presumed to have been embodied in such contract, but such presumption is not conclusive, and may be rebutted by showing that the agreement by reason of mutual mistake, fraud, or accident, failed to embody all the terms of the contract actually made, and reformation of such an instrument may be had where there was a mistake on the part of one of the parties and fraud on the part of the other. Standard Fire Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Buckingham (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 531.

RULE 29. PAROL EVIDENCE IS ADMISSIBLE TO ESTABLISH A SEPARATE ORAL AGREEMENT CONSTITUTING A CONDITION PRECEDENT TO AN OBLIGATION CLAIMED TO ARISE ON A WRITTEN AGREEMENT

Contracts in general.—Evidence that written agreement for partition of property, made by attorneys of parties to divorce suit, was not to become binding upon either of parties unless judgment for divorce was rendered was not inadmissible, on motion to enforce agreement after judgment refusing divorce, as parol testimony varying or contradicting writing. Sken v. Sken (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 379.

In suit to cancel an oil lease, wherein plaintiffs contended the lease never became operative on their respective interests because at the time of execution and delivery to a defendant it was understood that it was not to become effective and the consideration not to be paid until executed by all other parties. Smith & son, to such effect, held admissible. Watson v. Cloud (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 897.

Parol evidence is admissible to show that a contract was delivered conditionally.

Barnes v. Early-Foster Co. (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 248.

Where defendant's plea in reconvention was based on a written contract set out therein which was unconditional, a defense in the supplemental petition, based on a condition claimed to have been within the contemplation of the parties at the time of making the contract, the happening of which relieved the plaintiff's obligation, was subject to exception. Texas Pipe Works v. Caddo Oil & Refining Co. of Louisiana (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 588.

Parol evidence is inadmissible to show that an oil and gas lease complete on its face which stated payment of a cash consideration was delivered to the grantee with out payment with the understanding that it should not become effective until payment. Parker v. Sorell (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 819.

Contracts of sale and deeds.—If deed contains no restriction rendering it operative only on grantor's death, no such clause can be added by parol. Lovenskold v. Cassa (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 634.

In action to foreclose a lien reserved in a deed to secure broker's fees, grantors could not show existence of conditions upon which instrument was delivered. Speer v. Dalrymple (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 913.

Parol evidence is admissible to show whether grantors in bill of sale by delivery intended bill to become operative. Smith v. Smith (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 540.

It may be shown by parol testimony that an ordinary written instrument was exe cuted under agreement that it should not become effective except on certain conditions, but that the deed delivered to the grantees and not to a third person. Cooper v. Hinman (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 972.

In action for breach of covenant against incumbrances, consisting of retention of possession of the premises by a tenant of the vendor for Business purposes after the cove nance, parol evidence was inadmissible to show that the grantees bought the land subject to the occupancy of the tenant, and undertook to arrange for themselves with the tenant to get possession. Morris v. Hesse (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 817.

Bills and notes or indorsement thereof.—In action by purchaser of bank stock for misrepresentation as to value of assets, parol evidence was admissible to show that indorsement on note among such assets was qualified indorsement. Adams v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 576.

In action on promissory notes, defendants' allegations that parties orally agreed not to make payment unless the plaintiff advanced certain credit to one of de fendants, and that plaintiff failed to do so, presents good defense, since it does not seek to vary written notes, but only to postpone their effective date. Baines v. Kohler & Campbell (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 735.

Where promissory note was delivered in payment of stock in an involved corpora tion with agreement that it should become binding upon the corporation's creditors ac cepting a compromise settlement, which was not done, the note was not enforceable, and the fact that it was contingent could be shown by parol. Miller v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 968.

RULE 30. PAROL EVIDENCE IS ADMISSIBLE TO SHOW THAT A WRITTEN AGREEMENT HAS BEEN RESCINDED, MODIFIED, EXTENDED OR WAIVED BY A SUBSEQUENT VALID AGREEMENT

In general.—Where a written contract has been modified by parol agreement with agreement to make such modification, the whole transaction as to modification may be shown in evidence. Ware v. Fairbanks-Morse Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 211.

Where there was a definite provision covering compensation of a ranch foreman in the original contract pleaded by him in his action for salary and advances, in the absence of specific allegations of change of such provision by an oral agreement made subsequently, there was no basis in the pleadings for introduction in evidence by plaintiff of an alleged oral agreement changing the written contract as to compensation. Negociacion Agricola y Ganadera de San Enrique, S. A., v. Love (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 224.

Facts are admissible to show subsequent agreement adding to, subtracting from, or explaining the doubtful meaning of the contract. Barnes v. Early-Foster Co. (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 248.

Bills and notes.—In suit for specific performance of an oral contract by payees, since deceased, to cancel notes in consideration of legal services, evidence held sufficiently clear, strong, cogent, satisfactory, and convincing to support the jury's finding that such a contract was made. Briscoe v. Bright's Adm'r (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 1062.

Sales.—In action for price of an engine, held, that defendant could show that pursuant to contemporaneous parol agreement seller had taken back engine in satisfaction of unpaid notes for the price. Barcus v. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 478.

In absence of allegation of fraud by the seller of cattle in procuring the written contract at a specified price by representation that his influence with the Mexican government would enable the cattle to escape export duty, plea of the buyers, setting up a verbal modification of the contract for the deduction from the price per head of the export duty exacted by the Mexican government, held not available to them as a palpa-
4. Instruments operating as estoppel—Defective, inoperative or invalid instruments and transactions.—Where a deed described land by metes and bounds chain of title, and reference to prior deeds, and by a name which was erroneous, since it was not calculated to deceive, the grantor was not estopped to deny title of persons who purchased on execution sale under levy against the grantee, upon the land described by name, and not in fact conveyed. Roberts v. Dreyer (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1997.

Though order of court for making deed by administrator is void for lack of jurisdiction, and in deed pursuant thereto that deed held title in trust are admissible as circumstances to prove the trust and acknowledgment thereof by lost instrument. Sandmeyer v. Dollısı (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 113.

A purchaser of land constituting part of a homestead is not estopped to deny the validity of a prior deed of trust thereon which was invalid under Const. art. 16, § 50. First Nat. Bank of McGregor v. Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co. (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 344.

A married woman is not estopped by the certificate of a royalty to deny her want of knowledge of the terms of a lease which she was led to believe by the grantee and notary was different from the one actually signed and different from the one she had agreed to make. Davis v. Burkholder (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1101.

5. Recitals in deeds, mortgages, and mechanic's liens as grounds of estoppel.—Where a son accepted from his father and stepmother deed reciting that it was in consideration of his relinquishment of all claim which he might have at any time in the future to their estate, such son was estopped by the recital to assert title in himself to any part of the land of the father not conveyed to him. Martin v. Martin (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 291.

7. Persons estopped in general.—Where a timber deed was not accepted by the grantee, and, although filed in the county clerk's office, was not filed by him, and he did not authorize any one to file it, he was not estopped, as against persons who saw such deed on file, to deny that he was holding under such deed. Fidelity Lumber Co. v. Adams (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 177.

9. Grantees or mortgagees.—If defendant, substitute purchaser of public school lands, had filed in general land office his transfer, together with statutory affidavit negating collusion, question of collusion could not be raised by plaintiff, subsequent purchaser, for purpose of invalidating defendant's title. Schauer v. Schauer (Civ. App.) 292 S. W. 1010.

11. Persons acting in particular character or capacity.—An executor or administrator by his acts or omissions may raise an estoppel against the estate. Baber v. Houston Nat. Exch. Bank (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 156.

II. Estates and Rights Subsequently Acquired

14. Instruments operating on title subsequently acquired.—Where plaintiffs' mother executed an oil and gas lease on a parcel of land in which plaintiffs owned undivided interests, the instrument using the terms "let" and "lease" and giving the lessee full and exclusive authority to enter on the premises, and plaintiffs thereafter conveyed their interest to their mother, such after-acquired title on principles of estoppel passed to the oil and gas lessee. Texas Pacific Coal & Oil Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1021.

As a lease is a valuable property right and an option contract to acquire it can be specifically enforced, title acquired by a landowner after the execution of a so-called oil and gas lease will pass to the lessee on principles of estoppel, though the instrument be construed as a mere contract for an option to acquire a lease by complying at the lessee's election with the stipulations therein. Id.

15. Conveyances with covenants.—If a daughter did not own as much of her parents' land as she attempted to convey, owning merely her mother's and not her father's interest, her after-acquired interest from her father on his death passed by estoppel under her warranty deed. Hopkins v. Walters (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 516.

Where subsequently acquired legal title to the land, it inured to the benefit of his grantee by virtue of his warranty. Green v. West Texas Coal Mining & Development Co. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 548.

Title acquired by a vendor after he has conveyed a defective title, but with a covenant of warranty, passes, co instanti to the prior vendee upon theory of estoppel, which apples not only to the vendor, but to his privies in estate. Texas Pacific Coal & Oil Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1021.

16. ___ Conveyances without covenants. — Though a conveyance contained no warranty of title, yet, where its terms implied a claim of ownership of the fee-simple title by the grantor, the rule of estoppel whereby an after-acquired title will pass, eo instanti, to a prior grantee applies; the estoppel depending not on a covenant of warranty, but on good faith and fair dealing. Texas Pacific Coal & Oil Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1021.

20. Grantors or mortgagees and privies. — Ordinarily purchaser of mortgaged property who assumes, or purchases subject to, the mortgage is estopped to deny its validity; but if he has not assumed mortgage, and has purchased without reduction an account thereof, he may dispute its validity. Clark v. Scott (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 729.

The rule of estoppel whereby after-acquired title of a vendor will pass to a prior vendee, etc., applies to a title acquired by mortgagor after execution of the incumbrance and inures to the benefit of prior mortgagees. Texas Pacific Coal & Oil Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1021.

23. Estates or rights affected — Title acquired in different right. — The grantor of minerals in land purchased by him from the state, and on which he owed the state a balance, did not, by paying the balance of the purchase money to the state, obtain a different and superior title to that which he had conveyed away, but only the same title freed from the claim of his vendor, the state. Green v. West Texas Coal Mining & Developing Co. (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 148.

In the conveyance of the grantees of the grantor of the minerals in a deed excepting mineral rights conveyed the land by warranty deeds, which, being without limitation, conveyed full fee-simple title, under art. 1106, on the death of the grantor, they and those in privity with them by inheritance or by purchase were estopped from claiming as against their grantees their share inherited from the grantor in the mineral rights so excepted. Donnell v. Otis (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 864.

RULE 33. THE ADMISSIONS OF A PARTY OR HIS AGENT ARE ADMISSIBLE IN EVIDENCE WHEN OFFERED BY THE ADVERSE PARTY

I. Nature, Form and Incidents in General

10. Judicial admissions in general. — Claimant of attached property, who alleged ownership, did not, by admitting for purpose of opening and closing that plaintiffs had good cause of action as set forth, under District and County Court Rule 21 (142 S. W. xx), admit that he was not owner of property. Frost v. Smith (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 332.

Written confessions are inadmissible in subsequent proceedings after the conviction for felony of the authors of the confessions, since the conviction rendered the authors incompetent as witnesses. In re McLaren's Estate (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 1045.

11. Pleadings — Admissibility in same proceedings. — An admission or statement made under one allegation in a pleading is not admissible in evidence as an admission where inconsistent defenses are pleaded. Hart-Parr Co. v. Krizan & Maier (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 885.

The elevator which defendant had installed in plaintiff's hotel having proved defective, plaintiff sued defendant for damages, and defendant moved to enter judgment in evidence an answer not denying an averment of the petition, it being abandoned by amendment. Red River, T. & S. Ry. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1160.

In action against railroad for arrest of two boys by conductor, statements or admissions in original answer filed by railroad were admissible, though answer had been abandoned. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Besser (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 263.

An abandoned supplemental petition, filed by plaintiff, is admissible in evidence against him, notwithstanding it contained legal conclusions, for the averments in the petition were admissions of the plaintiff. Stowers v. H. L. Stevens & Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 365.

An admission made by a party against his interest is admissible in evidence whether made in court or out, and whether by the pleading on which he goes to trial or an abandoned pleading. Hart-Parr Co. v. Krizan & Maier (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 835.

In the purchasers' action for damages from misrepresentations inducing the sale of a thrasher, the original answer of the purchasers in the seller's suit to recover on the notes given it, held not admissible as tending to show the purchasers were not entitled to recover for certain items. Id.

20. Offers of compromise or settlement. — Plaintiff's testimony with reference to offer of defendant railway company to make settlement for damages due to fire alleged
In a real estate broker's action for $750 compensation earned on the exchange of land, evidence that after the deal was consummated defendant agreed to pay plaintiff the amount sued for, but later declined to do so, and of admissions by defendant that he offered plaintiff $300, and later $575, held admissible, in so far as it tended to show that defendant recognized the importance and value of plaintiff's services. Barnes v. Beasley (Civ. App.) 234 S.W. 531.

The law favors compromise settlements and the long-established policy is that declarations and admissions made in an effort to settle out of court cannot be received as evidence of facts on the plea to recover on the contract. Defendant may introduce letters written by plaintiff after the making of their ambiguous contract, they tending to show that plaintiff then construed it as defendant claims it should be construed. Marlin Lumber Co. v. Samuel Hastings Co. (Civ. App.) 198 S.W. 1076.

EVIDENCE

to have been caused by its engine held inadmissible. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Lander (Civ. App.) 207 S.W. 606.

In a purchaser's action for payment upon vendor's failure to deliver deed and sell well by agreed date, any testimony tending to show vendor's willingness to comply with the contract within reasonable time after such date is admissible, but counter propositions or offers in the nature of a compromise, should not be admitted. McDonald v. Whaley (Civ. App.) 207 S.W. 609.

In personal injury action, testimony with reference to a compromise held properly excluded. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 223 S.W. 1018.

In an action to recover on the contract for the purchase of land which provided for forfeiture of cash payment in event of the purchaser's default, testimony by the purchaser's husband that the purchaser stated he wanted to take the property, but was not able to do so, and did not want to pay the damages, together with a further statement that, if a 60-day period was not made, the property was admissible to show a practical construction by the parties of the provision for liquidated damages, and breach, and was not objectionable as being evidence of a proposition to compromise. Kollaer v. Puckett (Civ. App.) 235 S.W. 914.

Defendant may introduce letters written by plaintiff after the making of their ambiguous contract, they tending to show that plaintiff then construed it as defendant claims it should be construed. Marlin Lumber Co. v. Samuel Hastings Co. (Civ. App.) 198 S.W. 1076.

Oral statements.—Evidence in trespass to try title by a widow and minor children of a homestead granted by widow during lifetime of her deceased husband, but without her joinder that she stated she had been abandoned, etc., held admissible on issue of estoppel against her claiming any interest in land. Hadnot v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 198 S.W. 359.

The testimony of one of a garnishor's officers, to the effect that he talked with the garnishee owner before the garnishment was served about the owner's agreement with the garnishment debtor, contractor, and that the owner said he had agreed upon terms of settlement, held admissible. Hall v. Nunn Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 214 S.W. 452.

Where defendant, in a 156-acre tract covered by mortgage, testimony of attorney for mortgagee as to declarations of mortgagee at time of execution of mortgage as to his ownership of 1,200 acres, and as to uses he had been making thereof held admissible. Moore v. Monnig Dry Goods Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S.W. 766.

Acts or conduct.—Where K. took possession of S.'s land under some sort of a trade, the absence of S., who asserted no right in opposition to K., might be considered. In a proper case, by the jury as tending to show payment of the purchase money. Durham v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 222 S.W. 151, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 193 S.W. 211.

Acquiescence or silence.—Declarations of the agent of plaintiff, in trial of right of property to sequestered cotton, that there was a shortage of cotton in plaintiff's warehouse, and that it had been delivered to claimant, having been communicated by plaintiff's representative to defendant's representative, who admitted he had the cotton, was with that admission admissible. King-Collie Co. v. Wichita Falls Warehouse Co. (Civ. App.) 205 S.W. 748.

Failure to deny or object to statements in general.—The fact that a person was present in court when a written confession by the defendants on trial was read in which the person was charged with instigating the murder of her husband, and that she did not then deny the charge, cannot be considered as an admission by her of its truth, since she was not then called upon to answer the charge, and to have done so would have interrupted the orderly proceedings of the court. In re McLaren's Estate (Civ. App.) 221 S.W. 1045.

II. By Parties or Others Interested in Event

Parties of record.—An admission made by a party against his interest is admissible in evidence whether made in court or out. Hart-Parr Co. v. Krizani & Maler (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 365.
In an action by a wife to cancel a deed executed by her and her defendant husband, that the latter was the agent for her, and the cross-action to quiet title against the husband and wife, statements and letters of the husband were admissible, at least against him, where they tended to show that certain land notes were delivered in payment of the land in question, and not in payment of other land, as contended by plaintiff. Dendinger v. Martin (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1095.

An ex parte statement under oath by a defendant, brought in by the original defendant under an order obtained by the original defendant, is inadmissible in behalf of plaintiff against the original defendant. Theuber v. Marek (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 223.

In action for partition by a widowed daughter-in-law and sister-in-law against her mother-in-law and brother-in-law, testimony that the brother-in-law had told the witness that certain of the personal property involved belonged in equal parts to him and his brother, plaintiff's husband, held admissible as between plaintiff and the brother-in-law. Stoppelberg v. Stoppelberg (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 587.

III. By Grantors, Former Owners or Prizes

38. Privies and former owners in general.—In trespass to try title by the heirs of the original patentee against those in possession, an original affidavit by one of defendant's predecessors in title that the patentee had sold his headright certificate to affiant's grantee was an ex parte statement, not admissible against the heirs of patentee. Chapman v. Dickerson (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 318.

40. Grantees, vendors or mortgagors of real property.—Before conveyance or transfer of possession.—In determining questions of boundaries, it is competent to show that a third person, who was dealt with at time of trial, and from whom one of the parties obtained title, while in actual possession, made statements that it was as a substitute claim to the boundary subsequently asserted by his grantee. Rose v. Hays Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 295 S. W. 140.

41. After conveyance or transfer of title in general.—The objection to the testimony of witnesses, stockholders of a corporation, which took from a partnership an assignment of a contract to construct an irrigation plant, assigned to a trustee preliminary to obtaining the corporate charter, held for it the corporation, made on the ground that declaration of grantor after execution and delivery of deed is not admissible to impeach vendee's title, cannot be sustained, where the rights of the parties are based upon a common source, and where the testimony does not impeach intervenor's title, but establishes his right subject to prior garnishment, since garnisher, not a party to the transfers, could show in whom was lodged the right to the debt. Hall v. Nunn Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 452.

42. Showing nature of conveyance.—Statements of grantor in absence of grantee that a conveyance of land and personality was intended as a will was not admissible in an action involving the rights of creditors. Quarles v. Eaton-Blewett Co. (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 596.

47. Sellers or mortgagors of chattels.—After transfer or delivery of possession.—Testimony as to an admission by mortgagor of automobile, subsequent to execution of mortgage and in absence of bona fide mortgagee, that mortgagor had stolen the automobile, held inadmissible against the mortgagee. Howard v. Franklin Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 447.

53. Testators and intestates.—In suit to recover half interest in land by one claiming as heir by adoption, statements by the adopting parent on demand by her second husband that she deed to him all her land that she owned but half interest in land in controversy by deed by which she conveyed only a half interest were not admissible, showing she recognized plaintiff owned other half. Lane v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 501 S. W. 1018.

In an action to recover certain land, brought by the children of deceased by his first wife against his children by his second and third wives, certain notes executed by deceased after the death of the first wife were properly admitted, being competent as an admission by the husband of a community debt in a proceeding seeking to charge community property with that debt. Roberson v. Hughes (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 734.

IV. By Agents or Other Representatives

54. Authority in general.—In trespass to try title, acts, admissions, or statements of plaintiff's son pending suit could not be used against her. Roberts v. Dreyer (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1097.

In action against automobile owner for injuries caused by driver's negligence, where agent of driver was established by the evidence, declarations made by driver at time of accident were legitimate and proper. Parmele v. Abd (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 383.

The statement of an agent of limited authority not a part of the res gestae is hearsay and, if objected to, should not be admitted. Southern Surety Co. v. Nalle & Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 405.

57. Agents or employés in general.—On the issue of title to a strip between lots of plaintiff and defendant, where defendants claimed under the statute of limitations, evidence of a conversation or agreement between one of the plaintiff's and the manager of the lessee of defendants' lot concerning the strip in controversy, though made outside the presence of defendants, was admissible, where it was not conclusively shown that all the property in controversy prior to that time. Caso v. Green (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 238.

59. — Scope and extent of agency or employment.—Where written oil and gas lease contained no stipulation that the lessee would drill a well in six months, and purported to contain all of the agreements between the parties, going into detail with great particularity, a statement made by a local landowner, who was assisting the lessee in procuring leases, out of hearing of the lessee or his agent, that a well would be drilled in six months is not binding on the lessee. Lone Star Gas Co. v. McCullough (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 1114.

Though agency cannot be shown by extrajudicial declarations of agent, the testimony of an agent in court is competent to prove a parol agency, and to establish the nature and extent of the agent's authority. Hines v. Rush (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 972.

60. — Admissions before or after transaction or event.—In action by the addressee for failure to seasonably deliver a message, replies to service messages sent by the receiving office to the point of delivery inquiring as to delivery were admissible in evidence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. McCormick (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 279.

Declarations by newspaper reporter after the publication of the alleged defamatory article are no wise binding on the publisher and are properly excluded. Mulhall v. Express Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 545.

The roadmaster's opinion as to the cause of derailment of a car, drawn from an examination subsequent to the accident, and favorable to one injured thereby, was not binding on the operator of the road, and so could not be shown in an action for the injury. Hines v. Collins (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 332.

In action by shipper of live stock for damages in transit, it was error to permit him to testify that he met a man who said he was the yardmaster, and who on request refused to give assistance in taking care of cattle, in the absence of proof that such person was in fact the carrier's yardmaster. -Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Thorp (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 335.

In action against automobile owner for injuries caused by driver's negligence, evidence of declarations made by driver at time of accident is incompetent, for purpose of showing that driver was engaged in owner's business at time of accident. Parmelee v. Abo (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 398.

The testimony of an agent in court is competent to prove a parol agency. Hines v. Rush (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 973.

In action against a railroad for loss of goods involving an issue of whether the goods had been delivered to a transfer company, shown by undisputed evidence to have been employed by plaintiff to receive the goods, testimony by transfer company's employee, who received the goods from the railroad, that he signed delivery freight receipt as the transfer company's agent, held admissible. Id.

The authority of an agent to bind his principal must be shown to establish the principal's liability, since the law indulges in no presumption that an agency exists, and it cannot be shown by the agent's own representations or his assuming to act by mere rumor or general reputation, but must be shown by some act or omission of the principal. Rhodes v. Smith (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 227.

62. — Corporate officers, agents and employees.—In an action by the American foreman of a Mexican ranch for salary and advancements, affidavit of the foreman's assistant, attached to a claim against the Mexican government, prepared by the foreman at the suggestion of stockholders in the ranch company, for damages to cattle taken by various military commanders and raiders, held inadmissible, stockholders not having been shown to have had personal knowledge of truth or falsity of its statements. -Negociacion Agricola y Ganadera de San Enrique, S. A., v. Love (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 224.

63. — Officers, agents and employees of insurance companies.—In action on fire insurance policy, testimony of assured's wife and attorney as to material statements made by agents of insurer which had ratified the acts of such agents was admissible. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 227.

In action on fire insurance policy, letter of insurer's attorneys tending to prove that the insured's premium note was deducted from adjustment of prior loss on same policy was admissible. Id.

The statements of an agent, construing a fire policy after loss, are not admissible against the insurer to show the property included. Northern Assur. Co. v. Lawrence (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 430.

In an action on a contractor's bond, where the defense of alterations in the plans was interposed, evidence by the architect that the general agent of defendant surety company told the defendant he had received additional pay because of the alterations in the plans held admissible, since defendant was a corporation and could only speak through its agents. Southern Surety Co. v. Nalle & Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 402.

64. — Officers, agents or employés of carriers.—In action against railroad for loss of cattle, a letter from claim agent of defendant stating that at a certain town on defendant's line animals were in such bad condition that four of them were removed from the car dead was admissible as an admission by claim agent that four animals died in defendant's possession. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Booth (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 198.
In an action against a terminal carrier for injuries to goods in shipment, evidence that the carrier's agent, who was not authorized to bind the carrier to pay for injury, advised plaintiff to take the goods, and stated that the carrier would do the right thing about them, is inadmissible. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1043.

68. Public officers or agents.—Assistant city engineer's testimony tending to show that city had not accepted triangular portion of street held not binding upon city, and only entitled to such weight as trial court might give to his opinion. Newton v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 703.

69. Public officers or agents.—In an action on fire policy covering cotton on railroad platform, where, under the terms of the policy, there could be no recovery if insured was not the owner, exclusion of written statements prepared by plaintiff's counsel from information furnished by plaintiff and sent to defendant, tending to show that there had been a sale of the cotton as it stood on the platform, was error. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Triplett (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 305.

68. Husband or wife.—Instrument signed by husband alone, acknowledging tenancy in respect to community property claimed to have been held adversely, is admissible to go before jury in trespass to try title against husband and wife for what it is worth on issue of limitations. Davis v. Cisneros (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 298.

Statement by husband, after an execution sale, to the effect that he and his wife had abandoned their homestead claim to the property sold, was not admissible against his wife's claim of homestead. O'Fiel v. Janes (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 371.

In an action by company to cancel a deed executed by her and her husband, if the husband was agent for the wife in negotiating the sale, his letters and statements in negotiating the sale were admissible to show that certain land notes delivered were exchanged for the land in question; plaintiff claiming that the agreement was for cash, and that the land notes were given in payment for other property. Denninger v. Martin (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 1095.

No statement of a husband, verbal or written, in derogation of title of his wife to part of the notes received by him on sale of their community land claimed as a homestead, made after the transfer to the buyer, could affect the rights of the wife. In the notes received by her. Earhart v. Agnew (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 188, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1140.

69. Partners.—Where one member of a partnership, in response to plaintiff's tele­grams, to admit plaintiff, and plaintiff in writing, to pay for breach of contract of employment relied thereon, such letter, it appearing that plaintiff received it and handed it to the other partner, is admissible in evidence as an admission, despite objections that it contained unauthorized terms and that its contents were unknown to partner who directed it to be written. Mindes Millinery Co. v. Wellborn (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1059.

In suit by a company against a firm on a series of notes and on open account for goods purchased, written statement signed by the firm in its firm name by a member held not inadmissible on the ground, that the individual defendants other than the member who signed it were not parties to the statement. Dee v. Taylor-Hanna-James Co. (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 361.

72. Insured or beneficiary.—In action on life policies, defended on ground that insured committed suicide, a statement as to the cause of insured's death presented to an insurance company by the beneficiary as proofs of death and showing that insured committed suicide, held competent evidence against beneficiary as an admission. Thornell v. Missouri State Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 653.

In action on life policies defended on ground that insured had committed suicide, the fact that coroner's inquest was not in compliance with terms and forms of law, did not affect the admissibility of the certificate of the justice of the peace, acting as coroner, offered as an admission of the beneficiary that insured committed suicide. Id.

73. Conspirators and persons acting together.—Acts or declarations of conspirator made before completion of conspiracy, in respect to its execution, or in furtherance of common design, is admissible against his co-conspirators, regardless of when they entered into the conspiracy. Schallert v. Boggs (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1061.

Acts and declarations of conspirators pending the conspiracy and in furtherance of the common design are admissible against a coconspirator, though done and said in his absence; consequently, where a mother and daughter conspired to extort money from defendant, and, when the mother was unable to make good her assertion that she was defendant's common-law wife, the daughter sued for breach of marriage promise, etc., evidence of acts and declarations by the mother in absence of the daughter and a letter written by the mother were admissible. Wells v. Scales (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 303.

V. Proof and Effect

75. Preliminary evidence.—Existence and extent of agency or authority.—In an action for damages to an automobile in a collision, statement of defendant's secretary that he would settle for the damages to plaintiff's automobile and would put it in as good shape as it was before the accident should not have been admitted, in the absence of evidence to secure authority to make such a statement or promise. Wall & Stabe Co. v. Berger (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 976.

That statements of a broker, through whom defendants were procured to enter into a contract with plaintiff, may be admissible as an admission of plaintiff that it from the first understood the contract to be a gambling transaction, such statements being 1088 made when the broker tried to induce defendants to make additional payments to keep the contract in force, authority of the broker to thus bind plaintiff must be shown. Clark v. Merriam & Millard Co. (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 869.

In an action to recover cattle alleged to have been sold without authority, the bill of sale of the alleged unauthorized agent, although not admissible as establishing the agency, was in buttress proof of agency to identify the cattle and to sustain the defendant's title provided there was sufficient evidence of agency. Peterson v. Clay (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1112.

In suit by a company against its agents for title to warehouse on receipt of order from owner, evidence was not incompetent to prove defendant was agent of plaintiff, thereby estoppel of no agent to deny title to goods. Lumbermen's Title & Trust Co. v. Decker (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 994.

The question whether the party writing letters offered in evidence against defendant was its agent was one of fact to be established by evidence. Denby Motor Truck Co. v. Mears (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 994.

In an action for nondelivery of a carload of hay, evidence as to words and acts of the "commercial agent" of the defendant railroad, without any evidence as to the authority of such person so designated, is incompetent to charge the carrier with acts of the agent. Rhodes v. Smith (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 227.

76. — Existence of conspiracy or common purpose. — A prima facie case of conspiracy must be proved, before act or declaration of one is admissible against others as co-conspirators and the trial court is judge of whether such prima facie case of conspiracy exists. Schaller v. Egge (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 190.

81. — Conclusiveness and effect. — Where mutual mistake was alleged in that certain fine print in a contract of guaranty was overlooked, and there were admissions of officer of plaintiff showing that he had overlooked such fine print, and copy of an original petition for amount guarantor contended contract covered, an explanation by plaintiff that they were made under an erroneous impression was not so conclusive as to exclude evidence, and render it any the less an admission against interest. Cooper Grocery Co. v. Nebbie (Civ. App.) 293 S. W. 365.

82. — As to particular facts in general. — Even if the solvency of plaintiff, a joint-stock company, was pertinent to any issue, defendant's testimony to its solvency was precluded by his admission that the individuals composing the company were solvent. Smith v. Railroad Employees Development Co. (Civ. App.) 295 S. W. 229.

Defendant's admission that plaintiff was entitled to recover, unless defeated by some prior special defense pleaded, was admission that plaintiff's deed and deeds through which he deigned title conveyed legal title to strip in controversy. Decker v. Rucker (Civ. App.) 299 S. W. 1001.

In action on life policies defended on the ground that insured committed suicide, where proofs of death showing that insured had committed suicide had been admitted as an admission by beneficiary, the beneficiary was entitled to show that the necessary data for the proofs had been gathered by others, and that statements showing that insured had committed suicide were untrue. Thornell v. Missouri State Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 655.

84. — As to title or possession. — In trespass to try title, defendant's admission that plaintiff's ancestor was the common source of title did not constitute an admission that the title was in such ancestor at time of his death, but merely that both parties were lineal descendants of such person through whom the title from such common source was the superior title. Davis v. Cox (Civ. App.) 239 S. W. 987.

In trespass to try title, defendants, having admitted ownership of property by one of the plaintiffs by virtue of a trustee's deed, could not complain that other plaintiff, alleged to have had a one-fifth interest, was not shown to have deigned title separate from coplaintiff, but that such ownership was shown by testimony that coplaintiff in purchase of property at trustee's sale purchased four-fifths for himself and one-fifth for such other plaintiff. Robertson v. Lee (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 728.

86. — Judicial admissions. — Where defendant in open court admitted all the allegations of plaintiff's petition except in so far as they might be avoided by his plea of partial failure of consideration to obtain the benefit of the opening and closing of the testimony, the plaintiff's admission reaches to the entire cause of action pleaded, and he cannot thereafter question plaintiff's failure to offer evidence on any material allegation. Mason v. Peterson (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 567.

RULE 34. DECLARATIONS ARE GENERALLY INADMISSIBLE BUT MAY BE ShOWN AS A PART OF THE RES GESTÆ WHERE MADE BY A PARTY OR BY THIRD PERSONS AT THE TIME WHEN AN ACT IS PERFORMED AND AS PART OF THE TRANSACTION

I. Declarations in General

1. Nature and grounds for admission in general. — In a servant's action for injuries, his sworn evidence, adduced in open court on trial, that he was the joint agent of both defendant railroad companies, was not prohibited by the rule making inadmissible the declarations of an agent outside of court to establish a claimed agency. Houston, E. & W. Ry. Co. v. Jackman (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 410.

22 SUPP. V. S. CIV. ST. TEX. — 60 1089
3. Statements showing physical or mental condition.—Testimony as to the making of a statement by witnesses who were stated to be insane, physically or mentally deranged, or insane, was held inadmissible as hearsay. Maytown Lumber Co. v. Nacogdoches Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 644.

In an action on a fraternal benefit certificate issued to plaintiff's wife whereon liability was denied on the ground of misrepresentations as to insured's health, a declaration by insured's husband that at the time he married insured she was in poor health, and that he "doctored her up" for the purpose of securing insurance held inadmissible as being too general and too remote to have any bearing on the alleged misrepresentations. Knights and Ladies of Security v. Shepherd (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 696.

4. Statements showing intent, motive or nature of act.—In real estate broker's action for commission, where it was claimed that broker procured purchaser ready, willing, and able to perform contract, but that owner declined to consummate transaction after having ratified the contract made with purchaser by broker, testimony as to statement by purchaser to owner's attorney that purchaser was ready and willing to carry out the contract held inadmissible. Williams v. Skelton (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 67.

8. Self-serving declarations in general.—Question whether plaintiff did not tell her attorney that the mule was struck just as she had told jury held to call for self-serving declaration. Baker v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 215.

In a purchaser's action to recover payment made upon vendor's failure to deliver deed and sink well by agreed date, any testimony tending to show vendor's willingness to comply with the contract within reasonable time after such date is admissible; but self-serving declarations, counter propositions, or offers in the nature of a compromise, should not be admitted. McDonald v. Whaley (Civ. App.) 267 S. W. 609.

In action on a policy conditioned on delivery during applicant's good health, a letter from the general agent of the company to its local agent, directing him to ascertain whether applicant was good health, and, if not, to advise company, before delivering the policy, was competent upon the issue of the delivery of the policy and the intention of the company in that respect, in view of plaintiff's contention that delivery of the policy to the local agent was delivery to the insured. Denton v. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 311 S. W. 438.

12. Statements as to title.—Where plaintiff in trespass to try title claimed under a deed with an ambiguous description, testimony that defendant continued to claim the land after the execution of the deed held not self-serving, but admissible to show defendant's intention. Delta Land & Timber Co. v. Spiller (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 414.

14. Time of making statement in general.—Where physician examined injured person, whose suit was brought to qualify as expert, the injured person's statement to him held inadmissible as self-serving. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 336.

16. Statements by agents.—In action for slander, telegram from plaintiff's agent to plaintiff, stating that third party had notified agent that defendant had made alleged defamatory remarks, was inadmissible, being hearsay, self-serving, and not binding upon defendant. Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 666.

Testimony by a witness who was attorney for an alleged insolvent who stated to the indorser of the note sued on that the maker had acquired land in another county since his bankruptcy is not evidence that the maker had acquired such land, and is not admissible to show the maker's solvency. Cochran v. Sellers (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 361.

18. Statements by grantees, assigns or former owners.—Witness could not testify that plaintiff told him that plaintiff's grantor gave him deed to keep, that being self-serving. Lovenskold v. Casas (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 629.

In suit upon issue whether deed from defendant and wife to plaintiff was intended as a mortgage or for security, testimony as to declarations of grantor to the effect that he was the owner, made when plaintiff was not present, claimed to be self-serving, was inadmissible. Ellis v. Haynes (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 249.

19. Statements by persons since deceased, in general.—In suit on an accident policy, statements of insured to h i s h u s b a n d , the beneficiary, and to his trained nurse, about having seen a man burned up across the street, and about having fallen, all two or three days previously, as showing the cause of insured's injury and death, held admissible. International Travelers' Ass'n v. Branum, 109 Tex. 543, 212 S. W. 629.

20. Statements by persons since deceased as to title or possession.—In trespass to try title by purchasers who decedent against par, her two decreasants' heirs, testimony of decedent's daughter, to prove by his declarations that deed he had made to plaintiff was only a mortgage, being in decedent's interest, was inadmissible. Ferguson v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 571.

21. — Written statements in general.—In trespass to try title, where there was an issue whether plaintiff's grantor had been married, admitting recitals in deeds given by her that she was widow and wife of a certain person is erroneous; they being self-serving. Clark v. Scott (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 725.

As evidence of claim of ownership, recitals in ancient archives are admissible over the objection that they are self-serving. Magee v. Paul, 110 Tex. 470, 221 S. W. 254, answering certified questions (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 325, and answers conform to (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 1118.

In an action to recover balance due on note for $2,500, plaintiff was properly permitted to introduce in evidence an instrument signed by plaintiff, and not defendant, whereby plaintiff agreed to reconvey land when an older note was reduced to $2,500, as against an objection that it was in the nature of a self-serving declaration, plaintiff having the right to demand possession of such instrument after reconveying the property to defendant in whose hands the instrument had been originally placed. Peacock v. Aug. A. Busch & Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 447.

Where plaintiff's attorney as a witness was asked by defendant his reason for changing the nature of plaintiff's suit from one for rescission to one for damages, and he answered that it was because plaintiff was unable financially to pay mortgages becoming due on the property, it was error to further permit plaintiff's attorney to introduce in evidence a letter written by him to defendant's counsel, explaining the reason for the change. Kleman v. Stahl (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 323.

Correspondence between a defendant and a third party, after the controversy with plaintiff had arisen, held inadmissible as a self-serving declaration of defendant. Negociación Agrícola y Ganadera de San Enrique, S. A., v. Love (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 224.

In an action to have been sold without authority, letters written by the alleged agent which were in a nature of self-serving declarations were inadmissible. Peterson v. Clay (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 1112.

A letter written by a defendant to plaintiff after the litigation arose, in its nature self-serving, should have been excluded. First Nat. Bank v. Bush (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 378.

In a suit to recover the purchase price paid for land on vendor's default in sinking a well before a given date, a letter from vendors proposing to execute a deed to be deposited subject to a new contract held properly excluded as being self-serving. McDonald v. Whaley (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 313.

In insurance agent's action against insurance companies for renewal commissions in which the company denied the existence of the contract entitling agent thereto, letters written by the agent abounding in argumentative statements held inadmissible, without qualification. Hartford Life Ins. Co. v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 814.

23. — Pleadings.—A petition in a prior action to which defendants were not parties and which was unverified is in the nature of a self-serving declaration and is inadmissible to prove plaintiff's heirship. House v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 384.

25. Declarations against interest in general.—Evidence that plaintiff, in self-serving personal injury, stated soon after injury that it was his fault, and he blamed no one therefor, was admissible as a declaration against interest. Farrand v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 846.

Statements of donor of land made to third persons in the absence of the donee after an alleged gift had been made were admissible in support of the gift as against an attacking creditor, where at the time they were made donor had no possible motive to fabricate, as declarations against interest. Carleton-Ferguson Dry Goods Co. v. McFarland (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 928.

In an action to recover an automobile, declaration of defendant that he did not own the automobile, being against interest, would ordinarily be admissible for what it was worth. Wiggins v. Tiller (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 255.

26. Declarations of person in possession or control as to title or possession.—In suit to establish parol trust upon land, that grantor retained possession and absolute control of premises did not make her declarations after conveyance in disparagement of grantor's title admissible. Hambleton v. Dignowity (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 864.

Declarations, made while in possession, to others than the owner, are admissible in trespass to try title to determine whether such possession was adverse to the owner. Bishop v. Paul (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 455.

To ascertain whether a holding of land from its inception was continuously adverse and hostile, it is permissible to show in proper way any relevant fact tending to establish want of continuous possession and claim; declaration of possessor being material. Davis v. Cluners (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 298.

In action involving boundary dispute, declarations by defendant's remote grantor, since deceased, made at the time he was in possession of the land, that the boundary line was claimed by plaintiff, held admissible, being statements against his interest. Barlow v. Greer (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 301.

In an action to have land of daughter applied on debt of father, where daughter claimed parol gift from father and under the statute of limitations, declarations of father that land belonged to daughter were admissible as tending to explain the character of possession of the land by the father and the daughter's husband as partners in

29. Decedent against interest.—In an action against a bank for attorney's fees included in a judgment against a deceased third person, evidence by plaintiff that the third person had told him to enter judgment for the full amount of attorney's fees was admissible, in view of an instruction by the bank for the inclusion of such fees. People's Sav. Bank v. Marris (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 847.

30. Conclusiveness and effect.—Letters written by plaintiff to defendant and introduced in evidence by plaintiff did not establish the truth of the statements of fact therein made, but only the fact that they were written and that such statements were made. Bishop Mfg. Co. v. Sealy Oil Mill & Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 203.

II. Res Gestæ

Rule against hearsay testimony does not include res gestæ of transaction, such as declarations evoked by transaction itself, without premeditation, voluntary, and spontaneous. Jurado v. Holmes (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 559.

The tendency of the courts is to extend rather than narrow the scope of the rule admitting otherwise hearsay matter as res gestæ. Evans v. McKay (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 689.

37. Facts forming part of same transaction.—In an action for wrongful death caused by collision of a car and deceased automobile, evidence that after the street car was stopped, in attempting to free the street car from the automobile, the latter was caused to fall upon the body of deceased before death, was admissible, not as proving a new separate and distinct ground of negligence, but as res gestæ, parts of the one continuous accident. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Terrazas (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 387.

In an action for personal injuries occasioned by plaintiff's train becoming frightened by defendant's train while traveling on a road parallel to the railroad track, evidence that a certain named road was on the opposite side of the railroad from that on which plaintiff was traveling was admissible as part of the res gestæ as to whether the road was much traveled; it appearing that the road on which plaintiff was traveling crossed the track and entered such road near where the injury occurred. Baker v. Galbreath (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 626.

38. Acts and statements accompanying or connected with transaction or event.—Declarations or exclamations uttered by parties to a transaction contemporaneous with and accompanying it are admissible as res gestæ. Wall & Stabe Co. v. Berger (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 575.

Declarations made by the original surveyor of land at the time of the survey might be admissible in a boundary suit as res gestæ, even if the surveyor were living. Brooks v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 633.

To be admissible as res gestæ, declarations must either be a part or continuance of the transaction, or made under such circumstances as to raise a reasonable presumption that they are the spontaneous utterances of thoughts created by or arising out of the transaction itself, and, if they are not in their nature part of the transaction, they are inadmissible. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Laird (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 265.

39. — By agents or employés.—It is the authority of the agent to make a statement that renders it admissible against the principal's interests, and to receive such a statement as evidence of that authority as res gestæ is improper. Dawson & Towers v. Laramie H. & L. Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 693.

In an action by an employé for damages for discharge occasioned by defendant falsely and maliciously notifying the employer that plaintiff owed her a debt, and that she had an assignment of his wages, plaintiff could testify that the employer's agents notified him at the time of his discharge that he was discharged because a loan company had given notice that it held an assignment of his wages, being a part of the res gestæ incidental to and explanatory of plaintiff's claim that the railroad company discharged him because of the giving of the false notice. Evans v. McKay (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 468.

40. — Writing.—In an action to restrain recovery on a life insurance policy, where the insurance company claimed the bank to which payment of renewal premium was made was not authorized by it to accept such payment, a collection slip sent by it to another bank with the receipts required by the policies authorizing the other bank to collect the premium in question, though self-serving in its nature, was admissible as part of the res gestæ of the transaction to collect the premium and to collect the authority to collect. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Elmore (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 709.

In a suit to restrain defendant from operating a millinery business in her own name in violation of agreement claimed by plaintiff to be one of employment, but by defendant to be one of partnership, under absolute conveyances intended, in fact, to be mortgages, a letter which was an ex parte statement of defendant uncommunicated to plaintiff as to delivery of the deed to plaintiff upon payment of a certain amount held inadmissible, as res gestæ. Lomax v. Trull (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 861.

41. — Motive and intent in general.—Statement of insured, while on his deathbed, that he did not intend to let his insurance lapse, and that he intended to pay a note given for a premium, was not admissible under the rule of res gestæ, nothing being done which his statement tended to explain; issue involved being whether insurer had mised the insured to believe that insured would be given an extension of time to pay the note. Southland Life Ins. Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 254.

43. — Existence or nature of contract and relation of parties.—Agreements between plaintiff and defendant and between defendant and others having given rise to notes sued on, what was said and done during both conversations is admissible as part of the res gestae. W. v. Long (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 859.

Where plaintiff bought cattle in Mexico, and defendant claimed them as administrator of estate, testimony of one who accompanied plaintiff's vendor, when he paid money to persons on whose behalf defendant claimed the cattle, that the plaintiff's vendor said at the time that he was buying certain interests from the estate, is not admissible as res gestae. Jurado v. Holmes (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 859.

44. — Sale or conveyance.—Witness could not testify that plaintiff told him that plaintiff's grantor gave him deed to keep, that not being res gestae. Lovenkold v. Casas (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 629.

In real estate broker's action for commission on owner's refusal to consummate transaction with purchaser procured by broker, testimony as to what was said and done when written notice of such refusal was served on purchaser by owner's attorney held admissible as res gestae. Team v. Coop. Real Estate Newsmen (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 568.

45. — Personal injuries.—In automobile collision case, testimony constituting mere conclusions on the part of the witness as to what was said at the time of the accident held inadmissible, being hearay and not a part of the res gestae. W. F. Norman & Sons v. Clark (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 244.

While the admission of declarations as res gestae rests largely in the discretion of the trial court, the facts must be sufficient to justify the reasonable conclusion that the declarations were made under such circumstances that reason and reflection were not dominant; hence, in an action against a railroad company for the destruction of a motorcar and the persons therein by an railroad company's motorcar, whose vehicle was struck by a train, evidence of the declarations made by passengers and others after the train had stopped that the whistle was not sounded, coupled with details of a fight between one of the spectators and the engineer, who asserted he sounded the whistle, was not admissible as part of the res gestae, such declarations having regard to the railroad company's liability. Fanhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Leid (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 365.

47. — Injury to, or loss of property.—Statement as to manner in which accident happened, made by deceased about two minutes after the accident, to one coming in response to his shout, held admissible as part of the res gestae. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Graves (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 973.

In an action against a carrier for damages to shipment of live stock, a witness' testimony that he asked conductor to see if he could get the engineer to handle the cars with more care was held that anything the train crew said to the engineer seemed to make matters worse instead of better was admissible as part of the res gestae. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harris Bros. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 255.

50. Acts and statements after transaction or event.—Narrative declaration is not res gestae. Loewenkold v. Casas (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 629.

Testimony of witness who went to scene of wreck immediately after it happened, that it was about 20 minutes before members of train crew who went away returned, and that deceased was not removed from wreckage until they got back, was part of res gestae. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 778.

Not only are declarations or exclamations uttered by parties to a transaction contemporaneous with and accompanying it admissible as res gestae, but also such as are made under such circumstances as will raise a reasonable presumption that they were the spontaneous utterance of thoughts created at the time and by the persons to whom they were addressed, and were not the result of premeditation or design. Wall & Stave Co. v. Berger (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 975.

In an action for damages arising from a collision of automobiles, a declaration relative to the accident made 15 minutes thereafter by employee who was driving defendant's automobile was not admissible as part of the res gestae. Id.

Testimony that the insurance agent, who contracted by parol to furnish plaintiff insurance, without designating any of the companies designated by him, on the day after the fire, told plaintiff that if he had written a policy on the day of the agreement, he would have written it in defendant company, held hearsay, not a part of the res gestae, and having reference to a past transaction. Grimes v. Virginia Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 310.

In action for injury to automobile in automobile collision, testimony as to statements made by driver of defendant's automobile made shortly after the collision was not res gestae nor admissible as original evidence. Main Street Garage v. Eganhouse Optical Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 318.

In an action for divorce on the grounds of the wife's adultery, declarations by the alleged correspondent, denying guilt, made to a witness immediately after the husband had found his wife and the correspondent together in a room, are admissible as parts of the res gestae. McCrarry v. McCrarry (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 187.

52. Acts and statements of person sick or injured—Statements as to cause of injury.—Where plaintiff's decedent was killed by a falling elevator, statements by him to another person about an hour after the injury as to how it happened was objectionable as not being part of the res gestae. Dallas Hotel Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 647.

In a suit under the "Workmen's Compensation Act," where witness came upon deceased, who had blood on his face, was spitting blood, and in great pain, and a large can of paint was at his feet, a statement of the deceased that he had "busted something lifting that can of pain" was admissible as part of the res gestae. Southwestern Surety

Statements of plaintiff as to cause of injuries, when he first regained consciousness after falling from a train, though 11 hours after the accident, were admissible as res

Declarations made by one who has suffered injuries, as to how the accident happened, are admissible as res gestae when made under stress of nervous excitement which stills the reflective faculties, and the time between the accident and declaration is so brief that it must be assumed a consideration of self-interest could not have been brought fully bear by reasoned reflection, and the question, whether circumstances show such spontaneity as to render a declaration of an injured person as to how the accident happened admissible as part of the res gestae, rests largely in the discretion of the trial court; but the facts and evidence should be sufficient to justify the reasonable conclusion that the declaration was made under such conditions as that it might be said the reflexive faculties were not dominant. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Huckabee (Civ.
App.) 207 S. W. 329.

A declaration made by deceased to his father about 1½ hours after the occurrence of the fatal accident, as to how it occurred, in which decedent explained that one of the standards holding his load of lumber broke in crossing railroad tracks and caused his team to run away, held not admissible as part of the res gestae. Id.

In suits on an accident policy, testimony as to statements of injured to his wife, the beneficiary, and to his trained nurse, about having seen a man burned up across the street, and about having fallen, all two or three days previously, as showing the cause of insured’s injury and death, held inadmissible as hearsay, while the statements were self-serving and no part of the res gestae. International Travelers’ Ass’n v. Brannum, 109
Tex. 543, 212 S. W. 620.

Where railroad employé was injured by trunk thrown from train and got back to depot in about three minutes after injury, statement then made by him to a third person as to how the injury occurred was admissible as res gestae, in an action for damages.

53. Statements as to and expressions of personal injury or suffering.—In section hand’s suit for injuries, his exclamations of pain and suffering, which were explained by his reply, and made to show plaintiff’s suffering at every time, held ad-

In personal injury action, expressions of person injured concerning bodily pain or illness, when shown to have followed injury, are competent. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Crouch (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 781.

Where mental feelings are the subject of injury, the usual natural sign and expression of such feeling made at the time are competent evidence of such feelings.
Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Kilgore (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 593.

Where a railroad employé proved his injury, and defendant proved by a number of witnesses that at the time plaintiff did not stop work, that he made no complaint, etc., testimony of a witness offered by plaintiff in rebuttal to show his complaints at the time was admissible. Hines v. Blachman (Civ. App.) 236 S. W. 442.

54. Statements to physicians.—In personal injury action, it was error to reject testimony of plaintiff’s attending physician that, during time of treatment, plaintiff repeatedly complained of severe pain in his neck, shoulder, back, and side. Missouri, K.

RULE 35. HEARSAY IS GENERALLY INADMISSIBLE, BUT IT IS COMPETENT EVIDENCE TO PROVE PEDIGREE, RELATIONSHIP, MARRIAGE, DEATH, AGE AND BOUNDARIES

1. Admissibility of Hearsay Evidence in General.

1. Nature of hearsay evidence and admissibility in general.—Testimony of a witness, “I was not present when the note was transferred from D’s attorney to Mrs. W. through G.,” held not objectionable as hearsay, as it could not reasonably be thought that the trial court gave such testimony any other probative force than that “witness was not present” at the alleged occurrence. Dalby v. Wall (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 45.

Where plaintiff, who was concealed on defendant’s premises at night and was shot by defendant, was permitted to state his reason for being there, evidence as to what he had heard from third persons concerning the conduct of members of defendant’s family when retiring was properly excluded as hearsay. Ater v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 227
S. W. 222.

Testimony of one who did not see the accident, as to how a shaft caused the death of one engaged in reaving out a cylinder, is hearsay. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v.
Frais (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 345.

Testimony of witness that an applicant for compensation under the Workmen’s Compensation Act (arts. 5246—1 to 5246—91) had a wife and several children, and that they lived together, and, although witness had never visited applicant, he knew about his condition, etc., was held not subject to the objection that it was hearsay. Western Indemnity Co. v. Milam (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 825.

2. Hearsay evidence of opinions in general.—Even if a roadmaster’s opinion as to what caused a derailment of a car were admissible, to allow another to testify to what the opinion was would be hearsay. Hines v. Collins (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 322.

3. Ordinarily hearers by persons other than parties or witnesses.—In trespass to try title by purchaser from decedent against purchaser from decedent’s heirs, declarations of decedent's widow as to what plaintiff said to her, when repeated by decedent's daughter as a witness to prove admissions by plaintiff, were properly excluded as hearsay. Ferguson v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 571.

In an action by a minor son against a telegraph company for damages due to failure to report the death of his father, testimony as to statement of a third person that the plaintiff and his mother would have attended the funeral if the message had been promptly delivered, was hearsay and should not have been admitted. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Fulton (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 285.

In an action for unpaid wages, evidence regarding a conversation between other parties, when plaintiff was not present nor shown to have been connected with it, held inadmissible. Lone Star Shipbuilding Co. v. Daniels (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 226.

Declarations made by the original surveyor of land at the time of the survey might be admissible in a boundary suit as res gestae, even if the surveyor were living; but such declarations subsequently made are hearsay, and to be admissible must be brought within some recognized exception to the hearsay rule. Brooks v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 632.

In automobile collision case, testimony constituting mere conclusions on the part of the witness as to what was said at the time of the accident held inadmissible, being hearsay. W. F. Norman & Sons v. Clark (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 235.

4. Bodily and mental conditions.—Where physician examined injured person after suit was brought to qualify as expert, the injured person's statements to him held inadmissible as hearsay. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 396.

In suit against operator of jitney and surety on his bond for injuries sustained by plaintiff while a passenger, when jitney collided with a street car, held that court did not err in striking testimony of plaintiff's daughter that her father was complaining, on the ground that it was hearsay and self-serving, and not admissible for any purpose. Parker v. Harrell (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 542.

5. Writings, contracts, agreements and transactions.—Witness could not testify that plaintiff told him that plaintiff's grantor gave him deed to keep. Lovenskold v. Chavis (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 629.

Where plaintiff bought cattle in Mexico, and they were claimed by defendant as administrator, witness should not have been allowed to testify that he accompanied plaintiff's vendor when he paid money to persons on whose behalf defendant claimed cattle, and that plaintiff's vendor then stated that he was buying certain interests in the estate; such testimony being hearsay. Jurado v. Holmes (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 859.

In trespass to try title, depending upon whether a deed was forged, where it appeared that the deed was destroyed, and the parties, witnesses, and notary had died, declaration by a witness that an attesting witness said he had seen the grantor sign the deed, in corroboration of other testimony, was not inadmissible as hearsay. Rodgers v. Bell (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 630.

In trespass to try title by the buyer of land against a tenant of the seller, since the tenant's claim of right of possession was predicated in part on his prior rental contract with the seller, of which the buyer had notice before he purchased, testimony to prove the fact was admissible over the buyer's objection that he was not present when the contract was made, so that the testimony was hearsay as to him. Rupert v. Swindle (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 671.

In a bank's suit on a note given to cover overdrafts, defendant claiming that the cashier of the bank had fraudulently filled in the amount of the note, which had been left blank, testimony of a witness, not from personal knowledge, but as to what the books of the bank purported to show, as to forgeries and false entries in respect to the accounts of third persons made by the cashier, held inadmissible as hearsay. Goree v. Vudale Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 620.

Testimony that the insurance agent who contracted by parol to furnish plaintiff insurance without designating any of the companies designated by him, on the day after the fire, told plaintiff that, if he had written a policy on the day of the agreement he would have written it in defendant company, held hearsay. Grimes v. Virginia Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 510.

In an action for defendant's breach of contract to sell plaintiff cattle, plaintiff's testimony that he told defendant's son over the phone he would give a certain price, and requested that defendant be told, that there was a break in the conversation, and that the son said he had reported the offer to his father, defendant, who had accepted, was inadmissible as hearsay. Klein v. Brightwell (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 298.

6. Ownership and possession.—In a garnishment proceeding where the judgment debtor had deposited money in the name of his wife, the bank will not be permitted to prove that it did not owe the judgment debtor by introducing in evidence statements of the judgment debtor and his wife concerning the ownership of the money. Hulshizer v. First State Bank of Robstown (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 584.

In an action against a sheriff and others for conversion, it was proper to permit defendants to testify that prior to levy upon the cotton in question they were informed by plaintiff's brother that the cotton belonged to plaintiff's father, and were informed by the owner of the land on which cotton was raised that the land was rented to plaintiff's father. Douglass v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 530.

7. Value and price.—In damage action against building contractors, plaintiff's owner's testimony that other contractors had advised him it would cost certain amounts to remedy alleged defects is inadmissible because hearsay. Mult. Bros. v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 365.

In an action to recover a balance on the purchase price of cotton, sold under a contract to pay such price if cotton advanced to that point, evidence that plaintiff had been 1005.
offered, on the day he said the cotton to defendant, more than defendant offered him, was not hearsay. Smith v. McBroom (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1130.

9. — Cause.—In suit on an accident policy, testimony as to statements of insured to his wife, the beneficiary, and to his trained nurse, about having seen a man burned up across the street, and about having fallen, all two or three days previously, as showing the cause of insured's injury and death, held inadmissible as hearsay. International Travelers' Ass'n v. Branum, 109 Tex. 543, 212 S. W. 630.

11. — Condition or sufficiency of things.—In action for goods sold and delivered under defense of payment, where the reply alleged that the money was counterfeit, evidence that the collector of customs declared the money counterfeit, confiscated it and refused to return it, was inadmissible to show that the money was counterfeit. Ravel v. Haymon Krupp & Co. (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 211.

13. — Representative character and relationship.—On hearing on motion to enter judgment nunc pro tunc denying a divorce to plaintiff, where plaintiff was served only through her attorney of record, the declaration by the attorney, made some time before the motion, that he no longer represented plaintiff was properly excluded as hearsay. Hamilton v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 69.

In an action to recover from defendant a debt contracted by another, testimony by plaintiff that he understood defendant and another were partners, and that such other had told him they were partners, is incompetent as hearsay. Markowitz v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 965.

15. — Residence.—In view of law fixing place where voter is entitled to vote as being where wife resides, statements by wife of voter at election for commissioners of drainage district, tending to show where she resided, were admissible, in suit contesting election, on question of voter's residence. Cantwell v. Sutlies (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 656.

16. — Statements of persons available as witnesses.—In personal injury suit evidence of declarations by physician, who testified as a witness to plaintiff's son, as to cause of injury, was hearsay and inadmissible in the absence of testimony by physician inconsistent with such declarations. Corpus Christi Ry. & Light Co. v. Baxter (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 187.

17. — Statements by persons since deceased.—Injured servant's report of injury to foreman having been verbal, in parents' action for death against the Employers' Insurance Association under Employers' Liability Act of 1913 (arts. 5246h-5246zzzz), it was proper to hear testimony of foreman and another to establish report was made, and contents. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Munnemyer (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 251.

18. — Writings.—Since the shipper is not a party to the waybill made out for the convenience of connecting carrier he is not bound by it, and it is not admissible in evidence against him to show the destination of the goods. Quahah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Warren (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 814, 816.

In trespasses to try title, where defendants claimed under an alleged forged deed executed by an attorney in fact, recitals of execution of such deed in notes purporting to be for the purchase money, given 30 years before the trial, were incompetent as hearsay. Lancaster v. Snider (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 560.

In action for breach of warranty in deed, testimony of one who had been county surveyor and deputy county surveyor, who knew the location of the land, that land described in judgment against plaintiff and its grantor, failure of title to which was alleged, included the land described in the deed, held, that the fact that witness himself did not take a sketch from land map which he sketched to testify he could not render his testimony and sketch inadmissible. Wigham v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 469.

A city directory was inadmissible to prove that a certain person was the agent of another; the contents thereof being but the declaration of an unknown person. Cresson v. Wood Block Paving Co. v. McKay (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 822.

Despite provision of deeds of trust that any recitals of certain character in any deeds made by any trustee should be prima facie evidence, recitals of deeds executed by substitute trustee that beneficiary or holder of notes secured had requested trustee to sell the land, which request was necessary to authorize the trustee to sell, held unauthorized by the deeds, and no evidence of the fact of request, being mere hearsay as to the beneficiaries. Bowman v. Oakley (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 549.

Where plaintiff, who purchased Minnesota flour contracted to resell the same, evidence that the waybill and expense bill covering the shipment contained the notation that 52 bags were caked at Duluth was inadmissible on behalf of defendant, who, the seller claimed, wrongfully refused to accept delivery, being simply hearsay declarations of third parties, not under oath. El Paso Grain & Milling Co. v. Lawrence (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 512.

In an action against a carrier for damages resulting from delay in shipment of live stock, the account sales was inadmissible as hearsay; the entries and declarations therein being those of living third parties, and not of witness, and there being no testimony to their being made in professional, official, or other duty. Schaff v. Holmes (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 864.

A copy of account sales was not objectionable as hearsay, where witness testified from his own knowledge that the copy was correct. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clarendon Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 866.

Copies of written confessions by petitioner's son and another that they killed petitioner's husband at her instigation are inadmissible, in proceedings for the appointment of petitioner as guardian of the estates of her minor children, to show that she is not qualified to act as guardian, since they are purely hearsay. In re McLaren's Estate (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1045.

In an action involving the validity of oral leases, court erred in admitting in evidence deposit slips and checks relating to payments under a lease, without proof of the execution of the deposit slips, and without proof by any one who personally knew that the deposit had in fact been made, the slips and checks being purely hearsay as to the opposite party, who had nothing to do with them, the parties claiming the land under different leases. Browning v. Hinerman (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 236.

19. — Letters and telegrams.—In suit on promissory note and to foreclose vendor's lien, court properly excluded as hearsay letter from plaintiff's grantor, not a party, to defendant, plaintiff's grantee, offered in evidence by defendant to show he had written notice from plaintiff's grantor that grantor was claiming interest in land. Baldwin v. Drew (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 536.

In trespass to try title, letters written by Mexican officials to other officials relative to original grant of land in question were not inadmissible as hearsay where writers were dead and there was circumstantial guaranty of genuineness. Kenedy Pasture Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 537.

In action for slander, telegram from plaintiff's agent to plaintiff, stating that third party had notified agent that defendant had made alleged defamatory remarks, was inadmissible, being hearsay. Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 685.

A statement in a surveyor's letter or report as to statements made by another, claiming to have assisted in the first survey as to boundary lines, is inadmissible in trespass to try title, being the unsworn conclusions concerning another person's statement, and not affording opportunity for cross-examination to ascertain what such statements were. Land v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 901.

Where plaintiff sold property to D., reserving title, and D. sold to defendant, a letter from D.'s wife to plaintiff, stating that defendant had agreed to pay plaintiff the balance due, was hearsay, and inadmissible in plaintiff's suit for possession. Ten-Pennett Co. v. James (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 528.

20. — Records.—As evidence of claim of ownership, recitals in ancient archives are admissible over the objection that they are hearsay or self-serving. Magee v. Paul, 110 Tex. 470, 231 S. W. 254, answering certified questions (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 325, and answers conformed to (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 1118.

22. — Books and other publications.—In seller's action for balance of price, involving dispute as to quantity sold, books of seller, into which bookkeeper had entered weights of quantity sold from expense bills furnished buyer by railroad, and sent to seller by buyer, without any evidence as to their correctness, held hearsay and inadmissible, where there was no testimony that weights were correct, and where it appeared that some of the weights were only estimates of railway employes. Freund v. Hanson's Sons (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 151.

23. — Certificates and affidavits.—In trespass to try title, affidavit of deceased county surveyor being sworn report to commissioner of land office as to what he did and found in making survey, was not inadmissible as hearsay. Kenedy Pasture Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 537.

In landlord's action for rent and to foreclose lien, ex parte affidavit of tenant that he bought furniture and fixtures, and took possession, and operated rented restaurant until certain date on his own account, was inadmissible as hearsay. Pantaze v. Farmer (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 521.

In trespass to try title, where defendants claimed under an alleged forged deed executed by an attorney in fact, the record of affidavits as to genuineness of the signature of the attorney in fact was inadmissible as hearsay. Lancaster v. Snider (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 560.

On an application for appointment as guardian of petitioner's minor children, a complaint before a justice of the peace charging petitioner on information and belief of affiant with the murder of her husband and a judgment of the justice binding her over to the district court to answer the charge of murder are inadmissible against the petitioner. In re McLaren's Estate (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1045.

26. — Evidence founded on hearsay.—In action to rescind personal property sale because seller misrepresented amount of indebtedness which buyer assumed as part of purchase price, the buyer's testimony regarding amount of such indebtedness, based on conversations with seller's creditors, held inadmissible because hearsay. Richardson v. Canell (Civ. App.) 301 S. W. 702.

In action for delay in delivery of cattle shipment, testimony predicated upon correctness of records of sales of the cattle kept by person making sales and records of weight by person doing weighing was not objectionable as hearsay. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 652.

In action for failure to promptly deliver a telegram informing plaintiff that sender would sell his interest in a partnership, failure to deliver resulting in sale not being consummated, testimony as to reasonable value of business by witnesses who stated that the fair and reasonable value of the business was not subject to objection that it was incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial, hearsay, and mere opinion. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Dorough (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 252.
27. — Reputations as to persons.—Plaintiff could not prove legal adoption by general reputation of adoption. Lane v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1018.

28. — Market value shown by sales or market quotations.—In action for delayed delivery of live stock, witnesses who accompanied shipment could, over objection that their knowledge was based on hearsay, testify that the market was lower on the afternoon of day on which destination was reached than during morning of same day prior to their arrival, where they were experienced cattlemen, had shipped a great many cattle, and had received market reports regularly. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Manby (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 157.

30. — Reputations as to facts in general.—In action to cancel deed to brother for fraud, admission of statement of the mother of plaintiff and defendant that the family thought that defendant had robbed plaintiff held error. Baugh v. Baugh (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 796.

In slander action, testimony of witnesses that they heard rumors of plaintiff stealing chickens from defendants was hearsay, where defendants were not connected with the rumors. Vacecek v. Trojack (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 505.

30. — Ownership.—Evidence that after the purported execution of a deed the land was assessed against the grantee is hearsay. Kellogg v. Chapman (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 996.

In an action involving a controversy over land, testimony that there was a general belief in the family of the witness that the property had been deeded to her father for legal services held inadmissible. Id.

II. Pedigree, Relationship, Marriage, Death, Age and Boundaries

35. Declarations by members of family.—In a suit on a life insurance policy, hearsay testimony of plaintiff as to a brother of the assured having died was too uncertain to justify forfeiture of the policy on the ground of misrepresentations as to family history. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 828.

37. — Necessity that declarant be dead.—Statements by living third person concerning himself and family connections are hearsay. Snellser v. Henry (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1151.

38. — Relationship to family.—A second cousin to the husband of a granddaughter of a person whose heirship is to be proved is not a member of the family whose declarations as to heirship or pedigree are admissible; declarations of general reputation among persons other than members of the family as to heirship or pedigree connected with that family being inadmissible. Mackechney v. Temple Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 744.

40. — Mode and form of declaration.—A petition in a prior action between other parties which did not involve the same questions or land in controversy is inadmissible to prove plaintiff's heirship. House v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 384.

Rule admitting declarations of deceased persons to prove family history will not be extended to include declarations made in declarant's interest. Tompkins v. Hooker (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 243.

49. Declarations as to boundaries—General reputation.—The recitals of a deed could be admissible, in an action of trespass to try title, only on the theory that a grantor is presumed to know the boundaries of his own land, but it cannot be presumed that he knew whether the land owned by another extended to his east line, where grantor's survey was located 25 years before grantees, and grantor's recital that the lines of two grants were coincident would not establish a general reputation to that effect. Land v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 801.

In trespass to try title, evidence of general reputation that two grants were called the B. grants was admissible, the circumstances tending to show that the original surveyor calling for the B. pasture lands probably intended to call for the grants instead of a larger body of land similarly designated. Id.

RULE 35. ON QUESTIONS OF SCIENCE OR SKILL OR TRADE, PERSONS OF SKILL OR POSSESSING PECULIAR KNOWLEDGE IN THOSE DEPARTMENTS ARE ALLOWED TO GIVE THEIR OPINIONS IN EVIDENCE

I. Mere Conclusions Generally not Admissible

A question, what would have been the cash market value of cattle if carried "with reasonable dispatch and without rough handling," answered, "6.15 per hundred," was not erroneous as an opinion on a mixed question of law and fact, where the question of reasonable time was not in issue. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Max Hahn Packing Co. (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1146.

Conclusion, inference, of judgment of witness is admissible when it relates to a fact which is collateral or relatively unimportant, and rejected when fact is either in issue or so material as to involve substantial rights. Federal Ins. Co. v. Munden (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 917.

In suit by insurer of automobile against theft to recover car as car for loss of which it had paid insured, statement by insured as witness for insurer that his car "was stolen," particularly in view of statutory definition of theft in Pen. Code, art. 1339, was inadmissible as conclusion. Id.

Testimony of treasurer of insurer that loss was paid because of "theft" was properly rejected as conclusion, not being admissible on any theory that it was admissible as circumstance tending to show theft. 1d. In a personal injury action due to an explosion of gasoline sold as coal oil, exclusion of evidence whether the retailer, who was a codefendant, had induced plaintiff to bring suit against defendant, held a conclusion. Cohn v. Saenz (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 492.

Testimony by plaintiff in a personal injury action that she did not have a cent, and that if she had known the extent of her injuries she would not have signed a release, was not inadmissible as involving a conclusion. Schaff v. Hollin (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 273.

As a general rule opinions and conclusions of nonexpert witnesses are not admissible; but they should state the facts, and the conclusions to be drawn therefrom should be left to the jury, but there is an exception to the rule against nonexperts giving their opinions or conclusions where the situation cannot be made palpable to the jury by a mere statement of the facts. Hines v. Collins (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 332.

In an action by an employee claiming to have been wrongfully discharged, refusal to permit to plaintiff to testify to a conclusion that plaintiff's services were unsatisfactory to him held not erroneous. Golden Rod Mills v. Green (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1089.

In an action for salary by the secretary of an association, testimony of plaintiff that during the time the salary sued for was accruing he performed all the duties of secretary was held to be inadmissible as a conclusion. Great Southern Oil & Refining Ass'n v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 157.

2. Conversations in general.—In action for death of employed involving question of whether employed comprehended danger of work, foreman's testimony that employee's "wages were never raised, because Mr. B. thought he did not have enough experience to justify it," was the statement of a fact, and not objectionable as a conclusion. San Antonio Portland Cement Co. v. Gschwender (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 967.

8. Personal identity or characteristics.—Testimony of one who was tarred and feathered by a group of citizens that a certain citizen "was the man that was preening during the trial" was not objectionable as being a conclusion. Walker v. Kellar (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 793.

Testimony of witness that she was heir of a certain person to whom land in controversy was granted was clearly a conclusion on her part, where she never saw such person, never had in her possession any of his papers, and was never on the land. Southwestern Settlement & Development Co. v. Village Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 389.

9. Bodily appearance or condition.—In section hand's suit for injuries, his statements to effect that injury caused suffering and pain, etc., held inadmissible. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 1094.

Testimony of insured's wife that he was in perfect health when she left home on an occasion of an illness held inadmissible as her conclusion. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 616.

Where it was undisputed plaintiff was injured in a certain wreck, and that muscles were torn loose from spinal column, admission of testimony by a witness that on plaintiff's arrival after wreck he was suffering from an injury to his back, which he claimed to have received that evening in a railroad accident, and that he was suffering to such an extent that he did not walk about, etc., was not reversible error. Texas-Mexican Ry. Co. v. Creekmore (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 682.

An admission that testimony that plaintiff, as result of his injuries, could not rise from a sitting posture and walk as well as he could before was a conclusion of the witnesses is without merit. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harling (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 207.

9% Mental condition or capacity.—In a servant's action for injuries, plaintiff may testify that he got awfully blue at times because he could not do the work which he had formerly done. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 614.

In contest of probate of a will of deceased wife of proponent involving issue of undue influence exerted by proponent, testimony of daughter that her father dominated her mother was a conclusion, and inadmissible. Jennings v. Jennings (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 772.

A witness may testify that people he talked to were mad, but when he undertakes to tell what made them mad he enters the realm of opinion evidence. Walker v. Kellar (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 782.

11. Due care and proper conduct.—A fellow servant could not testify that the master who injured plaintiff was careless, since that represented his own conclusion. Srawn Coal Co. v. Trojan (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 256.

In section hand's suit for injuries received when hand car upon which he was riding collided with a cow evidence that conduct of foreman was reckless, etc., held inadmissible. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 1004.

In an action for injuries to an employee engaged in unloading timber from a car, testimony by the injured employee that, while he was loosening the last stake holding the timbers on the car, he saw the stake go upward in the hands of his fellow employee, who had been cautioned not to remove the stake while the other was working under it, held not to state a mere conclusion, but to be sufficient to sustain a finding by the jury that the fellow employee was negligent. Smith v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. (Com. App.) 332 S. W. 290.
13. Nature, condition and relation of objects.—Evidence that hogs would have taken
(Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 322.

It was proper to testify where lines under surveys were actually run upon the ground and where improvements were located with reference to such lines. Houston Oil Co. v. Elizabethton (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 163.

In suit between two districts to fix their boundary line, evidence as to the correct location of such line held improperly excluded. Trustees of Dover Common School

Testimony of witness for compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Acts 35th Leg. [1917] c. 103, arts. 5246-1 to 5246-91) had a wife and several children, and that they lived together, and, although witness had never visted applicant, he knew about his financial condition, etc., held not subject to the objection that it was hearsay and mere opinion. Western Indemnity Co. v. Milam (Civ. App.)
230 S. W. 825.

The statement of a witness that a fence was "very sorry," and "what I mean by real sorry, it was old and rotten," was not the expression of opinion, but the statement of a fact, like a statement that a thing was wet, or a fire was hot, or a horse was lame. Corn v. McNutt
(Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1052.

14. Value.—In action for failure to promptly deliver a telegram informing plaintiff that sender would sell his interest in a partnership, failure to deliver resulting in sale not being consummated, testimony as to reasonable value of business by witnesses, who stated that they knew the fair and reasonable market value of the business was not subject to objection that it was incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial, hearsay, and mere opinion. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Dorrough (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 252.

Resulting in evidence that the bank accounts of the business transferred, plaintiff's testimony that the business was worth "around $14,000" held not subject to exclusion on objection that it was the conclusion of the witness. Cochran v. Haumenli
(Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 374.

15. Cause and effect.—Testimony of witnesses, not shown to be experts, that in their opinion maize, claimed to have been injured in cars, was ruined by being rained on while in the field on the ground, is nothing more than a guess, and inadmissible.

Question as to what might have happened if something had been done, which witness testified had not been done, called for a conjectural conclusion. Frick v. Inter-

In live stock shipper's action against railroad to recover charge for extra feed necessary by delay in transportation, statement by witness that necessity for extra feed was caused by the stock standing in the cars at point of delay held a mere

In sister's action for failure to deliver message requesting brother to postpone burial of father, brother's testimony that he would have postponed burial until sister had arrived, held admissible against contention that it was a mere expression of opinion.

Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Kilgore (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 592.

Even if statement of nonexpert that he knew of nothing else that could have caused the derailment except the tools falling in front of the car may be considered a statement of fact and admissible, his further statement, that this was the only thing that he could figure out that did it, was clearly a conclusion and opinion, and inadmissible.

16. Title and ownership.—Claimant of attached property, who has not seen property, should be held testifying to stating the facts and should be allowed to testify to the court and jury to determine whether or not such facts show ownership without himself expressing an opinion thereon. Frost v. Smith (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 582.

In suit on vendor's lien note which had been property of an estate, plaintiff's burden of proving warranty to his right of action, an order of court under art. 3480, authorizing foreign administrator's sale or assignment thereof to him, was not sustained by his mere statement that he was the owner of the note, which was a bare conclusion or opinion, without basis of fact, and, though not objected to, it had no

Testimony that a witness knew his father acquired the interest of another in land, that he was present when the purchase was made, and knew of the transaction, cannot be excluded as a conclusion. Martinez v. Bruni (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 656.

The fact that recitals in ancient archives were in the form of conclusions does not render them inadmissible as evidence of claim of ownership, especially where an affidavit not stating conclusions would not have complied with the statute. Magee v. Paul 110 Tex. 470, 211 S. W. 254, answering certified questions (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 825, and answers confirm to (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 1118.

A statement that a person is the owner of a duplicate land certificate is incompetent as a conclusion, since one may become an owner in a variety of ways, so that such statement does not necessarily involve any certain facts.

17. Evidence of contracts or instruments.—In action on contract for purchase of assets of a bank by individual testimony of one of individual defendants who signed contract, which consisted merely of conclusions and opinions of that witness with respect to what plaintiff understood by written contract in controversy, held

In action of trespass to try title, construction of office survey of his homestead by common source of title was properly ignored by court. Rossetti v. Camille (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 526.

In an action to cancel an oil lease, which gave the lessee the option to sink an oil well before a certain time, the court properly refused to permit plaintiff to testify that the consideration recited of $10 for the option was not considered by either of the parties as any consideration supporting the contract and was only nominal, and was not paid as an inducement for the execution of the lease contract, and that the sole inducement was a hope entertained by the lessor that he would secure the sinking of a test well near the land and royalties, etc., on objection that such evidence was a conclusion. Nolan v. Young (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 154.

A statement that witness sold a duplicate certificate to a purchaser, received its value, and delivered the certificate, is not inadmissible as a conclusion, since a sale, on a consideration received, of a land certificate consists of only two elements, the agreement to pass title for the stipulated consideration and the delivery of the property. Mage v. Paul, 110 Tex. 470, 211 S. W. 254, answering certified questions (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 325, and answers conformed to (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 1113.

In an action against a railroad, the defense being that insured had not complied with the record warranty clause of the policy, testimony of plaintiff insured as to whether the inventory before him at the time was the kind of inventory defendant insurer's agents instructed him to make and to submit, was admissible, to show what kind of inventory was contemplated or necessary, as against the objection that it called for the conclusion of the witness. Camden Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Yarborough (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 336.

Testimony of a witness that "the instrument clearly expresses the intention, which was the purpose of the character which the plaintiff was called to throw against that estate," was objectionable as being a mere conclusion of the witness. Nesbit v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 595.

21. Agency in general.—Testimony that a witness was collecting money and tickets for a named railroad company stated facts and not the conclusions of the witness. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 247.

In action to recover mules, etc., which defendant claimed were sold him by one R. as plaintiff's agent, defendant's statement that plaintiff "gave Mr. R. authority to sell these mules, etc., to me," was not admissible; it appeared from the testimony to have been merely his conclusion. Vaughn v. Charplot (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 950.

In an action under a lease for rent, where defense was that defendant surrendered building and plaintiff had accepted the same from one N., it was not error to admit the testimony of N. to the effect that he was agent for the defendant and not the plaintiff. Goodman v. Republic Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 466.

25. Indebtedness.—It was not reversible error to permit a witness to give his conclusions as to a tax collector's proportionate share of taxes collected; such amount being a mere matter of computation. Powell v. Archer County (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1037.

It was error to overrule an objection, where plaintiff was asked by his counsel to state "how much he had been damaged by reason of the fact that he had been deprived of the place in controversy in this suit for use to which he was putting it"); such question calling for a conclusion of the witness.—Williams v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 981.

A witness, testifying that rough handling of live stock by a carrier "depreciated the entire shipment I should say, from $1.50 to $3 per head. I say this because I remained with the cattle after they reached their destination and saw them get fat and resold, and the way they recuperated there they were damaged to the extent I have stated. I make this statement knowing that cattle shipped the distance from Marathon to Blackland would depreciate to some extent in condition with ordinary and usual handling, but the amounts of depreciation I have stated are in excess of what the depreciated if they had been handled in the ordinary and usual manner—testimony to delays or rough treatment"—stated facts and an opinion tending to establish a true measure of damages, and did not involve a question of law. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 781.

Special damages can be recovered only on proof that special circumstances existed that defendant had knowledge of the special circumstances, and that the contract was made with reference thereto; hence, in an action for a balance due on a shipment of hay and on an oat contract, the buyer's cross-bill, setting up by way of special damages the seller's failure to deliver during the month of July on the ground that the subsequent delivery caused greater expense in hauling, is open to exception, there being nothing to show that the contract was made with reference to the special circumstances, and testimony that the buyer was damaged a certain sum per bushel from such cause, without more, is objectionable. Myrick v. Tolivar (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 655.

II. Subject of Opinions of Nonexperts

29. Subjects in general.—In action for amount due plaintiff by defendant, who, with funds furnished by plaintiff, had performed road construction contract subject to plaintiff by original contractor, evidence of a settlement of accounts entered into between defendant and plaintiff's agent held admissible over objection it was a matter of calculation. McFarland v. Ray McDonald Co. (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 946.
Testimony regarding the usual and customary time for a cattle shipment to be in transit between specified points is admissible against the objection that it was an opinion on a mixed question of law and fact. Hines v. Davis (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 862.

30. Matters directly in issue.—Answer of witness. “Jones was the person who caused me and Mr. Huddleston to buy the steers,” being a conclusion as to the very fact in issue to be determined by the jury, objection should have been sustained. Lucken v. Jones (Civ. App.) 265 S. W. 376.

Opinion testimony of qualified witnesses on questions of fact is admissible, but opinions partaking of the nature both of fact and law are not admissible. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Sanderson (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 560.

An opinion of an attorney that an abstract of title showed a good title was not competent evidence; the question of whether an abstract shows a good title being one of law, to be determined by the court. Wakeland v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 842.

In an action by the American foreman of a Mexican ranch to recover salary, advancements, etc., testimony as to the meaning of a letter from a stockholder in the Mexican corporation owning the ranch to plaintiff foreman held inadmissible to show knowledge of an appellant by the company of the foreman’s borrowing money from an individual to buy cattle, as the various letters and telegrams should have been introduced in evidence, and the jury left to determine what was meant by a reference in the letter. Negociacion Agricola y Ganadera de San Enrique, S. A., v. Love (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 224.

Opinions of witnesses to the effect “that cattle of the class in question going from this section of the country at that time of the year to pasture in Oklahoma should not, in their opinion, lose over a certain per cent., assuming that the cattle were handled in the ordinary and usual way,” when given by an expert as a question of fact and in no way involved a question of law. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 781.

In an action involving issue as to ownership of property, it was incompetent for witness to state his opinion as to ownership thereof. Reynolds v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 382.

31. — Damages.—In action against railroad for injuries to passenger in derailment, testimony of plaintiff’s father that, since he (plaintiff) went to California, he had no regular job, profession, business, or occupation, had been delicate, was inadmissible, as the conclusion of one not an expert, and invaded the province of the jury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Stivers (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 319.

Testimony in action for negligent injury of a shipment of cattle that they were depreciated by reason of such injury and on account of delay in shipment and rough handling and failure to receive needed food and water, at least $5 per head, is inadmissible, as involving a mixed question of law and fact. Hines v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1117.

32. — Due care and proper conduct.—In an action for loss of barges, testimony of a witness who had been in charge of another party’s barge at the time of the flood which caused the loss, that he considered it reasonable care and ordinary prudence on his part to have five men on his barge to protect it from the flood, held inadmissible as opinion involving a mixed question of law and fact. Freeport Townsite & R. Co. v. Huddleston & Sons (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 257.

In action for injury to automobile struck by street car at crossing, it was not error to refuse to permit a witness to testify that he thought at the time plaintiff and the motorman discovered each other “they were too close together for either one to stop in the current (by deposition) that when the instant he saw the automobile he did everything he could have done to stop the car, there being testimony showing what the motorman could have done, and he having testified in his deposition he did all he could have done to stop or check the speed of the car. Southwestern Gas & Electric Co. v. Grant (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 544.

33. — Mental condition or capacity.—While a nonexpert witness may, in connection with facts and circumstances, upon which her opinion is based, give an opinion as to mental condition, she cannot testify to a legal conclusion from facts given either by herself or by others, which embodies the very point in issue. Daley v. Whiter (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 350.

34. — Nature, condition and relation of objects.—In suit to recover for taking of cattle claimed by one defendant as having been stolen from him, and having passed to plaintiff, defendant’s positive statement that cattle in controversy belonged to him, being a conclusion on a mixed question of law and fact, was incompetent to prove title, and furnished no proper basis for judgment in defendants’ favor. Stoval v. Martin (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 321.

35. — Value.—In action against railroad for damages to horses from rough handling in shipment, testimony by qualified witnesses as to what the reasonable market value of the horses at destination would have been if they had been handled with ordinary care and delivered in good condition held admissible as against the contention that it invaded the province of the jury by stating conclusions on the issue to be determined by the jury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Frutney (Sup.) 230 S. W. 399.
In suit against a railroad for damages through negligent delay in a shipment of cattle, it was necessary to introduce testimony from collective or individual witnesses as to the different weights and qualities of the cattle in the condition in which they arrived at destination and that in which they would have arrived but for defendant railroad's negligence was admissible. Gates v. Fort Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 232 S. W. 493.

Testimony of collective or individual witnesses as to the condition of the cattle in the condition in which they arrived at destination and that in which they would have arrived but for defendant railroad's negligence was admissible. Gates v. Fort Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 232 S. W. 493.

Where it was necessary to introduce testimony from collective or individual witnesses as to the condition of the cattle in the condition in which they arrived at destination and that in which they would have arrived but for defendant railroad's negligence was admissible. Gates v. Fort Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 232 S. W. 493.

An expert witness was not disqualified by the fact that he had formed an impression that another was wanting to select an umpire to arbitrate the loss under the insurance policy. Springfield Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 365.

In suit against a railroad for damages through negligent delay in a shipment of cattle, it was necessary to introduce testimony from collective or individual witnesses as to the different weights and qualities of the cattle in the condition in which they arrived at destination and that in which they would have arrived but for defendant railroad's negligence was admissible. Gates v. Fort Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 232 S. W. 493.

One who was injured in attempted rescue of her child on the railroad track in imminent danger through failure of train operators to keep a proper lookout could testify that when she started to get the child off she thought she could do so without injury; as it would be hard for her, by a mere statement of the surrounding facts, to portray the situation so that the jury might see it as it appeared to her at the time. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Haywood (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 347.

Opinions of witnesses are rejected where it is apparent that the facts can be fully related to the jury, and the circumstances are such that it may fairly be assumed that persons of ordinary information and intelligence are competent to draw the correct inferences from such facts. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Nussbaum (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1102.

Special knowledge as to subject-matter.—In action for breach of contract to deliver timber, you may give opinion testimony that there was no other timber of kind contracted for available held admissible. West Lumber Co. v. C. R. Cummings Export Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 546.

A witness by his own admissions on the stand shows that he is not informed as to a matter concerning which he gave opinion testimony; such testimony should be stricken. Southern Pac. Co. v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1078.

Bedlity condition.—Testimony of witnesses, who knew plaintiff and saw him just before and just after his injury, being their personal observations of outward manifestations of condition, open to all who came in contact with him after his injury, held competent, as showing his condition at the time, and not open to objection of being speculative and the opinion of a nonexpert. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 255.

Mental condition or capacity.—While a nonexpert witness may, in connection with facts and circumstances upon which her opinion is based, give an opinion as to mental condition, she cannot testify to a legal conclusion from facts given either by herself or by others, which embodies the very point in issue. Daley v. Whitt (Civ. App.) 267 S. W. 250.

A lay witness who had observed the testator and had been associated with him in business might, in a will contest, where the testator's capacity was attacked, testify that the testator lost his temper, became violently angry, so that he was not able to teach school as before. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Haywood (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 347.

Railroading.—In suit for shrinkage of cattle shipped, from delay, testimony was admissible of usual time for such shipments, although given by witness who had accompanied only shipment in suit; it appearing he had accompanied shipments between such points over another route, and that the agent routed the shipment in suit upon application for most direct route. Baker v. Holman (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 723.

Speed.—Evidence of a witness that defendant's train was moving at about 15 miles per hour was admissible, without showing witness' qualification to judge of its speed. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harling (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 207.

A person in a box car when the same was being "kicked" by a switch engine was competent to testify as to the speed of the box car. Schaff v. Moss (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 548.

As to the rate of speed of moving vehicles can usually be determined only by the opinions of witnesses, testimony by plaintiff, who was struck by an automobile, as to the rate of speed at which it was moving is competent; for a person of ordinary intelligence may testify as to the speed of vehicles observed by him. Merchants' Transfer Co. v. Wilkinson (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 891.

In an action against a railroad company for the death of its servant in a derailment wreck, testimony of a witness living near the track that he frequently saw the train pass and observed its speed, and that it was running faster than usual, was properly admitted. Hines v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 493.

Distance.—Testimony by plaintiff that the street cars at the speed they were traveling could have stopped within a distance of 20 feet was admissible, over the objection that witness had not qualified as an expert. Nicholson v. Houston Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 632.

Cause and effect.—Where defendant railroad claimed child's death was due to improper attention, and not to its poorly heated cars, testimony that child was not properly nursed was correctly excluded where witness saw it only three or four times, and did not know how its mother treated it. Schaff v. Shepherd (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 222.

In an action against a railroad company for flooding plaintiff's land by backwater caused by the construction of the road, it was not error to permit nonexpert witnesses, who knew the land in the vicinity, to testify as to the knowledge of conditions plaintiff's farm would have been covered by the floodwaters if the railroad track had not been there. Johnson v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 383.

52. Nature, condition and relation of objects.—In trespass to try title, where one claimant testified that he had previously seen a certain map, and that a road shown thereon had been pointed out to him, his statement that the map looked all right to him was admissible as upon sufficient qualification. Massingill v. Moody (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 265.

In trespass to try title, there was no error in permitting witnesses to testify as to the appearance of cuts and marks on trees and the age thereof; such being matters of common knowledge.

In action for breach of warranty in deed, testimony of one who had been county surveyor and deputy county surveyor, who knew the location of the land, that land described in judgment against plaintiff and its grantor, failure of title to which was alleged, included the land described in the deed, held not inadmissible on ground witness was not qualified, and the fact that witness himself did not make original map which he sketched to testify from did not render his testimony and sketch inadmissible. Wigham v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 469.

53. Value in general.—In action by owner on warranty of heating system, to recover the cost of correcting the defects in the plant to make it answer the warranty, where he had testified that he was not himself qualified to say what was necessary to be done to remedy the defects, but was qualified to testify as to the reasonable cost of the work that was actually done, his testimony that it was necessary to expend for that purpose was inadmissible, as it was shown that he was not qualified to give his opinion on what was necessary to make the heating plant do the work. Nunn v. Brillhart (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 862.

54. Value of real property.—In a railroad's condemnation proceedings, the owner of the land was properly permitted to testify in his own behalf that the fair market value of the land taken prior to its taking was $100 an acre. Gulf & Interstate Ry. Co. of Texas v. Stephenson (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 215.

In an action for the burning of grass on leased land, an objection to testimony of plaintiff and his son as to reasonable value of the grass, when they were not shown to be qualified to testify as to its market value, was not well taken, and the testimony was admissible to show that the leased premises were used by plaintiff exclusively for pasture and their reasonable value therefor. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 490.

In contest of will, where reliable testimony as to value of community property of testatrix could readily be obtained from other sources, the court did not err in refusing to permit contestant daughter, who did not show herself sufficiently qualified to testify as to value of community property belonging to testatrix, to testify to value. Nimitz v. Holland (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 244.

Cattlemen of many years' experience in buying and selling grass and grass land were qualified to testify as to the damage done to a pasture and grass by a fire, and the fact that they stated they were using their private opinions would only affect their credibility. Wichita Valley Ry. Co. v. Martin & Walker (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 559.

55. Value of personal property.—A witness is qualified to testify to market value of maize at a certain place, there being no denial of his testimony that he had shipped much maize there and was acquainted with market value there. Patterson & Roberts v. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1163.

Where witness testified that no market existed for cattle as injured by carrier's negligence, his opinion as to their market value was inadmissible. Ft. Worth & R. G. & B. Ry. Co. v. Burnette & Duffer (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1165.

In cases of conversion of personal property, witness must show he was acquainted with market value of the property at such time and place. Waldrop v. Goltzman (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 355.

In action for damages to shipment of cattle, witness, who testified that cattle had market value at destination, naming it, was qualified to testify as to market value without stating that he had known same number of cattle as were in shipment to be loaded at each point. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Ash (Civ. App.) 294 S. W. 169.

In an action for failure to deliver a carload of hay to a buyer who had sought to have it diverted from its original destination, the buyer was incompetent to state the value of the hay at the place of its original destination, which was more than 100 miles hence, and the admission of such evidence was error, especially where the value as stated exceeded the amount claimed in his petition, and in view of the fact that the measure of damages was the value at the place to which he had the shipment diverted. Rhodes v. Smith (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 227.

67. Damages.—A witness who accompanied a shipment of cattle and re­valued them after they reached their destination, and saw them get fat and re­sold, was qualified to give his opinion as to the damage caused by rough treatment and delays, while in the hands of the carrier. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 791.
62. Personal identity and characteristics.—When it becomes permissible to offer evidence as to good character, the individual opinion of witnesses is not admissible.

64. Bodily appearance or condition.—In suit against operator of jitney for injuries sustained by plaintiff passenger in jitney collision with a street car, defense being that plaintiff's injuries were the result of prior accident, there was no error in permitting plaintiff's wife to testify that her husband had recovered from a former accident some two years before the accident in question. Parker v. Harrell (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 542.

66. Mental condition or capacity.—Permitting a fourteen year old girl, not a party to contest, or an interested witness, to give opinion that testatrix was sane at or about the time she made will, held not error. Nimitz v. Holland (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 244.

69. Nature, condition and relation of objects.—In an action against a carrier for damages to a shipment of cattle resulting from rough handling in spotting cars, the testimony of witness that they were not spotted in the usual and customary manner was competent, where the witness testified that he had about 30 years' experience in raising, buying, selling, and shipping cattle, and had on numerous occasions observed shipments of cattle to the point in question as well as other points. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harris Bros. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 255.

A witness, though he did not see the fall of tools from a car claimed to have caused its derangement, could testify how the car could have been built to prevent tools carried thereon from falling. Hines v. Collins (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 332.

71. Value.—A qualified witness may give his opinion on a question of value, since value is a mere matter of opinion. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Prunty (Sup.) 239 S. W. 396.

73. Real property.—Witnesses, shown to have lived in the county 19 and 27 years, respectively, could testify upon issue of value of grass burned by fire alleged to have been set by defendant railway company's engine. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Lancaster (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 606.

In suit against railway for damages by fire to grass and land, where no market value is shown, the opinion of witnesses, qualified as practical and experienced men, as to its actual value, is admissible. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Happgood (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 963.

In a railroad's condemnation proceedings, an owner of the land, who had lived in the neighborhood for 31 years, and on his then farm for 25 years, having been deputy tax assessor in the neighborhood for several years, and well informed as to the nature of lands in the vicinity, held qualified to testify as to market value. Gulf & Interstate Ry. Co. of Texas v. Stephenson (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 215.

In an action for damages to a pasture by fire, a witness may give his opinion as to the value of the property before and after the fire. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ellis (Sup.) 224 S. W. 471, affirming Judgment (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 606.

74. Personal property.—Witness' opinion as to value of cattle had they been delivered by carrier free from injury was not objectionable. Pt. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Bryson & Burns (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1165.

In buyer's action for breach of contract by nondelivery, the question of market price of goods is usually a matter of opinion, the question of qualification of a witness to testify, in different states, is largely a matter of discretion. In case of clear abuse of discretion and admission of testimony of a witness, whose knowledge was limited to daily market quotations received at another city in the same state and from other dealers in different places throughout the state, was not such an abuse of discretion. Early-Foster Co. v. Gottlieb (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 529.

A farmer who had been raising, buying, and selling corn for 15 years, and, during year when it was claimed that a crop was destroyed, bought 200 bushels, and read corn and market quotations constantly and kept himself advised as to the condition of the corn market and the value of the same, and knew the market value of corn such as would have been raised where the crop was destroyed, was qualified to testify as to what would have been the reasonable value of the crop had it fully matured, and not been destroyed. San Jacinto Rice Co. v. Ulrich (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 777.

In an action against a carrier for damages for delay in shipment of cattle, where the issue was as to market value on the day of arrival and day when they should have arrived, and witness stated he knew he could state the difference. Schaff v. Holmes (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 584.

Plaintiff mortgagor suing defendant mortgagee for wrongful withholding of the mortgaged road-grading outfit, whose only knowledge concerning the value of the use of such property was based on what was paid per month by persons who had rented a pair of mules, wagon, and harness, held not qualified to make an estimate of the rental value of the property for the period for which he sued. Montgomery v. Gallas (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 557.

In a suit for damages based on the destruction of crops by cattle, court did not err in permitting witness to testify when asked about the comparative value of stacked hay and sorghum, "it ran about the same as in any other year" and "I think sorghum feed stuff stacked up like that was, ran about the same as prairie hay." Corn v. McNutt (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1052.

1922 SUPP.V.8.CIV.ST.TEX.—70 1105
76. Time.—A witness' testimony, based on experience as to time usually consumed in shipping cattle, did not violate rule making incompetent any opinion on a mixed question of law and fact. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Hensley (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 974.

A witness' testimony that he annually shipped 30 to 100 carloads of cattle between certain points and had accompanied several horse shipments between such points qualified him to state the usual, customary running time between the points involved. Hines v. Davis (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 862.

76. Cause and effect.—In action for injuries to live stock it was competent for an experienced witness to testify as to effect upon cattle of carrier's delays and rough handling shown by testimony. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Hensley (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 974.

80. Damages—injuries to property.—In action by shipper against a carrier for injuries to horses and expense for extra feed, testimony of shipper that he would not have been at any expense for feed because he would have sold them to a certain person had they been uninjured was shipper's opinion merely, and therefore without probative force. Lancaster v. Whittle (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 331.

In an action against a railroad company for damages to plaintiff's pasture by fire from a passing engine, where a witness was asked, "What would be the damage, the difference between the value of the pasture before the fire and after the fire?" an answer that, "If you are going to rent a pasture for stock, and one had been burned and one was not burned, I would make 50 cents an acre difference; yes, sir, that would be a fair difference in the value," was not objectionable as allowing the witness to state the damage to the land in a given amount. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ellis (Sup.) 224 S. W. 471, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 606.

III. Subjects of Expert Testimony

82. Matters of opinion or facts.—The testimony of a farmer who qualifies as an expert, if his common experience, with, and results of his observations made at the time as to the usual and common appearance or facts and condition of things, which cannot be reproduced to the jury, is admissible under an exception to the general rule excluding the conclusions of a witness. Bowman & Blatz v. Raley (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 723.

A district surveyor's mere conclusions, contained in his report or letter that a monument marked a certain corner, was inadmissible on question of boundaries in trespass to try title. Land v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 236 S. W. 801.

83. Matters directly in issue.—As it is a question for the jury whether the place at which a servant was injured was safely maintained, testimony of experts that the place was in safe condition was properly excluded. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Grimes (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 691.

Qualified witness may, in action against carrier for injury to shipment of sheep from negligent bedding of cars, testify they were properly bedded; this not being an invasion of province of jury. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Weatherby (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 783.

Testimony of a medical expert on insanity that defendant from about 1912 to the date of trial would not have been conscious of the effect of his acts on himself or surrounding circumstances was not subject to the objection that the witness was stating a legal conclusion rather than a point of fact. Bensley v. Faust (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 179.

In suit for a conversion of crops grounded on duress upon plaintiff inducing him to assign his lease contract, though it was competent for plaintiff's son, a physician, to testify as to plaintiff's medical condition as bearing on the question of his being easily intimidated or influenced by threats, he could not give his conclusion on the issue to be determined, whether plaintiff was incapable to transact business, etc. Grice v. Herrick Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 543.

In an action for injuries to an elevator passenger, whose leg was caught in the door and held while the elevator descended, in determining whether or not plaintiff's leg was or was not held in the door, as claimed by him, it was pertinent to show how easy it was to open or close the door, and the kind of door, whether easy or difficult to work, but it was for the jury, and not for experts, to form the ultimate conclusion as to whether plaintiff's leg could be or was caught and held by the door. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Nussbaum (Civ. App.) 239 S. W. 1102.

86. Bodily condition.—In an action on a fraternal benefit certificate issued to plaintiff's wife liability whereon was denied because of alleged misrepresentations by insured as to her health, it was not error to refuse to permit a medical witness to testify that insured was conscious that she had consumption prior to her application for insurance. Knights and Ladies of Security v. Shepherd (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 696.

87. Mental condition or capacity.—Medical testimony to effect that testatrix was masochist, based on unnatural sexual relations between her and proponent, and the effect of such condition on the mind, held admissible, where will was attacked for undue influence. Bead v. McCrabbe (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 365.

In suit for conversion of crops grounded on duress upon plaintiff inducing him to assign his lease contract, though it was competent for plaintiff's son, a physician, to testify as to plaintiff's medical condition as bearing on the question of his being easily intimidated or influenced by threats, he could not give his conclusion on the issue to be determined, whether plaintiff was incapable to transact business, etc. Grice v. Her- rick Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 633.

90. Construction and repair of structures, machinery and appliances.—The yard- master of defendant railroad could say whether it would have been safer to have tracks further apart, since he was a duly qualified expert upon the subject. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Stephens, 109 Tex. 155, 203 S. W. 41.

91. Display and operation of vehicles, machinery and appliances.—There is no error in allowing witnesses of experience to give their testimony as to the distance in which a locomotive may be stopped. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Havens (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 444.

92. Conduct of business.—Expert testimony is admissible in case of disagreement as to meaning of technical words to explain sense in which such technical terms are generally understood in business to which they relate. Frost v. Martin (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 72.

93. Laws of other states or countries.—The unwritten, common, or case law of another state, the sources in which it may be found and mode of its application, may be established by expert testimony of lawyer engaged in practice in such state. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Ryan (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 642.

94. Construction of written instruments.—In suit to forfeit an oil and gas lease for failing to prosecute drilling of well until completion, it was error to refuse to admit testimony of an expert that the well was "completed" within the terms of the lease when driven to the depth of 2,103 feet without finding oil or gas. Frost v. Martin (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 72.

In suit for breach of contract relating to merchantable cattle, where a witness had qualified as an expert was erroneously allowed to testify what was meant by "merchantable cattle." Carothers v. Finley (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 891.

Where a written agreement was unambiguous, testimony of expert witnesses to explain it was properly excluded. Folk v. Inman (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 261.

95. Nature, condition and relation of objects.—On an issue whether an electric engine was to be repaired by the purchaser, testimony as to its lack of power by a fully qualified expert who had shown himself capable of making a proper test of the engine was improperly excluded. Ware v. Fairbanks-Morse Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 211.

96. Value.—In action for damages to shipment of horses, it was proper for expert witness to testify to market value of horses at point of destination if they had been transported in the usual manner and time; such testimony being in respect to a fact. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Gibbons (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 352.

Witnesses who qualify themselves as experts may give opinion evidence as to the profits to be derived from the drilling of an oil well. Osage Oil & Refining Co. v. Lee Farm Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 518.

97. Cause and effect.—Injuries to the person.—The physician in charge of case, who had known plaintiff prior to the injury, was properly permitted to testify, "I found him complaining of some pain and inability to do his work without tying him," and "confinement was due solely to the injury to his back." Texas-Mexican Ry. Co. v. Creekmore (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 682.

In an action for injuries to a passenger in an elevator when his leg was caught in the door and held as the elevator descended, exclusion of defendant's offered expert testimony as to whether it would have been possible for a man leg to be caught and held, as claimed by plaintiff, held proper, the jury being competent to draw the proper inferences from the facts involved. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Nussbaum (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 1102.

98. Injuries to property.—In action for damage to live stock shipment, testimony of witnesses who were shown to have had experience in shipping cattle as to affect on cattle of long distance transportation held admissible. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Sanderson (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 640.

IV. Competency of Experts

102. Necessity of qualification.—In an action by mine employé for personal injuries, based on ground that mine was not properly lighted, testimony of witness that the mine was "poorly lighted" at that point of accident should not be admitted, unless the wit- ness qualifies as an expert. Texas & Pacific Coal Co. v. Sherley (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 753.

103. Knowledge, experience and skill in general.—As farmers testifying as experts can only testify to things they have the necessary special knowledge about, great care must be used in qualifying such a witness as to his knowledge, observation, and experience in respect to the matters about which he may be called to testify. Bowman & Slats v. Raley (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 725.

104. Bodily and mental condition.—Testimony of expert who examined injured person to qualify as an expert, held inadmissible when based in part at least on her statements as to the cause of the injury and the manner in which she was affected thereby. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 326.

Medical witness held competent to testify as an expert that defendant, sued on a note and for foreclosure of the deed of trust securing it, was insane at a time when he had not observed him, when the instruments in question were executed; his opportunities for observing and conversing with the defendant before and after such time having justified him in forming the opinion of insanity expressed. Beaasley v. Faust (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 179.

Medical witness, not a specialist on mental diseases, but who had treated many insanity cases, had read text-books on insanity, held competent to testify as an expert that defendant, sued on a note and for foreclosure of the deed of trust securing it, was insane at a time when he had not observed him, when the instruments in question were executed; his opportunities for observing and conversing with the defendant before and after such time having justified him in forming the opinion of insanity expressed. Id.

107. Construction and operation of railroads.—A witness who testified that he had been engaged in railroad working a number of years, and in civil engineering and maintenance of ways, work and measuring the speed of trains, was fully qualified to estimate the speed of a train by the scene of a wreck from derailment, so that his testimony that the wreck indicated that the speed was about 45 miles an hour and that the prescribed speed was 40 miles, and as to the proper altitude for the curve where the wreck occurred, was properly admitted. Hines v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 236 S. W. 493.

109. Physical facts.—Where the witness had been a freight conductor for more than 15 years, and had handled shipments of probably 5,000 head of cattle, it was improper in an action for injuries to a shipment of cattle to refuse to allow the witness to give opinion evidence as to whether they were in condition to stand the trip. Ft. Worth & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 497.

110. Value.—Farmer living mile and a half from property, not pretending to be real estate expert, who had not bought or sold land in the neighborhood except on one occasion, held not qualified to express opinion as to damages from condemnation. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Schelling (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1018.

In action for damages to automobile truck, that dealer, who had authority to sell such trucks at place in which accident took place, and who testified to being familiar with the market value of such trucks at such place, had actually sold only one truck of that make, did not affect the admissibility of his evidence, but merely its weight. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. O'Connell (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 757.

A dealer in personal property at any given place is generally accepted as an expert witness upon its market value. Id.

In action against a railroad for the destruction by fire of cotton in transit, a member of plaintiff firm, long experienced in handling, buying, and selling cotton, held qualified to give an opinion as to quality of the cotton. Sugarland Ry. C. v. Dew Bros. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 190.

Dealer in particular make, of automobile truck at certain place, who was familiar with their market value at such place upon day of damage to a truck of that particular make, and who had examined truck minutely after accident to ascertain extent of damage, was competent to testify. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. O'Connell (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 767.

112. Cause and effect.—In suit on accident policy, medical witness held to have had sufficient knowledge of facts on which to pass expert opinion as to the effect of gunshot wounds. Georgia Casualty Co. v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 216.

V. Examination of Nonexperts

Testimony, in a suit for conversion of cotton linters, as to how witness knew the market value of the linters at the time stated by him, was admissible. Early-Foster Co. v. Mid-Tex Oil Mills (Civ. App.) 268 S. W. 224.

In buyer's action for breach of contract by nondelivery, the question of market price of goods is usually a matter of opinion, the question of qualification of a witness to testify in relation thereto is largely a discretionary matter, reviewable only in case of clear abuse of discretion and admission of testimony of a witness whose knowledge was limited to daily market quotations received at another city in the same state and from other dealers in different places throughout the state, was not such an abuse of discretion. Early-Foster Co. v. Gottlieb (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 560.

114. Examination in general.—In action against carrier for injuries occasioned by fall in aisle of a moving car, testimony of conductor that a woman walking to rear of a car in motion might become overbalanced while attempting to stop to wait while one obstructing the aisle should let her pass, was a mere opinion on a hypothetical case, and Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Webb (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 772.

115. Facts forming basis of opinion.—In a suit to restrain the operation of a cotton gin as a nuisance, evidence of a medical expert that in his opinion the operation of the gin would affect the value of the surrounding property and be a detriment to the neighborhood for residence purposes was not inadmissible as opinion evidence, where the facts upon which such opinion was based were also given. Moore v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 212.

A witness, testifying as to the value of an oil lease at a certain time, was properly allowed to express opinion on subsequent transactions in the same locality at the time, on which he based his opinion. Peden Iron & Steel Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 180.

While a nonexpert witness may, in connection with facts and circumstances upon which his opinion is based, give an opinion as to mental condition, she cannot testify to a hypothetical condition from facts given, either by herself or by others, which embodies the very point in issue. Daley v. Whitacre (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 350.

In suit against railway for damages by fire to grass and land, one who shows that he has been dealing with grass pastures and land and observed the price paid and the sales for years may be able to give an opinion as to market value of grass at the time of the injury, although no sales are shown at or about that time. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Hapgood (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 969.

In an action involving whether or not a bank had received a letter on or before a certain date, where an officer of the bank, who did not see the letter until eight days after such date, testified that his best judgment was that the letter arrived prior to such date, it was error to sustain an objection to a question, "State to the jury your reasons upon which you base your judgment" that the letter arrived prior to such date. Texas Co. v. Wimberly (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 286.

In an action for damage by water to a stock of shoes, the trial court's failure over defendant's objection, to require witnesses as to damages to show they were basing their testimony on market value at the place of damage rendered the testimony incapable to meet the legal requirement. Ara v. Rustlund (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 446.

In a personal injury action, testimony that plaintiff at time of trial had only 75 per cent. use of his legs and arms, held inadmissible as against objection that it was opinion testimony and that facts upon which opinion was based had not been stated by witness. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Long (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 212.

A witness may give his opinion of any obvious fact of which he has knowledge from personal observation, and a person, not an engineer, could state that in his opinion irrigation machinery and a canal would not furnish water, where he stated the facts as he saw them, and knew that the canal and the plant did not furnish water. Wortman v. Young (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 660.

In an action for personal injuries, a sister of plaintiff can state that plaintiff had been sick since she came from the hospital, where the witness had lived with plaintiff and detailed the facts upon which the opinion was based. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Jennings (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 1115.

Testimony of lay witnesses that grantor was mentally incapable of conveying, basing conclusion generally on business transacted by her, but not disclosing to judge the facts on which the opinion was based, was improperly admitted. Duckels v. Dougherty (Civ. App.) 236 S. W. 720.

In trespass to try title, testimony of a witness that he and another, together with a plaintiff and a defendant, figured out the matters in controversy between such plaintiff and defendant, and that by their figures defendant owed plaintiff $700 on sale and purchase of a hardware company, held admissible, as a nonexpert who states the facts on which he bases his opinion and thereby shows himself capable of having an opinion in many instances may state it. Johnson v. Frost (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 555.

Testimony that a fence was "pretty poor" was not erroneous as an expression of opinion, when accompanied by the explanation that "some of the wires were broken, and the posts were down, and it was an old fence and the wire was old." Corn v. McNutt (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 902.

116. — Cross-examination and re-examination.—It is a sufficient predicate for the admission of opinion evidence as to market value that the witness is willing to testify that he knows it; and cross-examination showing insufficient knowledge goes only to the weight of the testimony or the credibility of the witness. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Hapgood (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 969.

VI. Examination of Experts

119. Mode of examination in general.—The usual way to ascertain market value of real estate is by permitting expert witnesses to state their several methods in ascertaining it, the comparison of value of contiguous property by relation, and the particular uses of the property and those to which it may be put. Richey v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 214.

When there was testimony as to testatrix's habitual use of chloral, morphine, and aspirin, hypothetical questions as to effect of such drug habits on her mind were proper. Beadle v. McCrabb (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 355.
Form and sufficiency of questions.—Expert testimony as to permanency of injuries to passenger, predicated upon hypothetical facts, absence of all of which was shown by record, was inadmissible. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Mercer (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 263.

Hypothetical question assuming fact not in evidence is properly excluded, but it is not a valid objection that the hypothetical question may have omitted parts of evidence, since omitted elements may be incorporated upon cross-examination. Schaff v. Shepherd (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 222.

In action against city for damages from city's septic sewer tank, held proper to exclude answer of plaintiff's expert to question not stating conditions, but merely asking whether the malodors, etc., resulting therefrom, would sicken plaintiff's family. Brewer v. City of Forney (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 636.

In will contest case, hypothetical questions to medical witnesses as to whether testatrix was afflicted with masochism, based on evidence of relations between her and proponent, etc., held proper. Beadle v. McCrabb (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 355.

In an action by passenger who claimed that, as a result of waiting for a train in a cold station, he contracted la grippe which resulted in pneumonia and tuberculosis, hypothetical question to a medical expert held not objectionable as assuming facts not proven and not corresponding to the facts shown and calling for speculative or conjectural answer. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 514.

Scope and sufficiency of answers.—In an action for personal injuries, an answer by a physician to a hypothetical question assuming plaintiff had certain diseases, that the injury could have been aggravated or brought about the diseased condition, is not objectionable as relating to possibilities not probabilities or as speculative. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Jennings (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 1113.

Facts forming basis of opinion.—The age, experience, and average monthly earnings of brokers' representatives are not facts to be comparative in determining whether a representative of brokers' services for work done largely by such representative, and a hypothetical question based thereon was properly excluded. Brady v. Richey & Casey (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 170.

In an action for damages for injuries sustained by minor while attempting to board defendant's street car, statement by medical expert that displacement of womb would likely cause accelerated or irregular menstruation was reversible error, in absence of evidence of such injury. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Crouch (Civ. App.) 262 S. W. 731.

In an action on a fraternal benefit certificate issued to plaintiff's wife liability whereon was denied because of alleged misrepresentations by insured as to her health, it was not error to refuse to permit a medical witness to testify that insured was conscious that she had consumption prior to her application for insurance, although an expert can give his opinion as to the probable duration of a malady based on its progress at the time. Knights and Ladies of Security v. Shepherd (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 696.

Expert opinion evidence as to the probable profits from drilling an oil well is admissible, though based on the general topography of the country and the known depth of underlying rock strata, even though it was possible that oil might have been discovered without drilling to the agreed depth; that fact not rendering the testimony misleading. Osaige Oil & Reuning Co. v. Lee Farm Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 418.

Cross-examination and re-examination.—While defendant railroad might show plaintiff's expert medical witness was to receive more than statutory fee if judgment was recovered in pending action, it cannot cross-examine witness regarding contingent fees for testifying in other damage suits. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hart (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 960.

In a prosecution for manslaughter through killing of defendant's paramour, neither the order of the court directing that the body of the deceased woman be exhumed and examined nor the application therefor was admissible to impeach the testimony of two physicians who examined the body as to the disputed question whether they did or did not examine for bruises, where the physicians had never seen the order or application. Mobley v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 551.

Comparison of Handwriting

Standard of comparison.—Extrinsic documents not filed in the case or relevant to any issue are inadmissible as standards of comparison of handwriting. Campbell v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 334.

Examination of expert.—Where a depositor asserted that checks paid by a bank were forgeries, and bank officials testified to the genuineness of the signature, checks, proven genuine, were not admissible on cross-examination to test the knowledge and good faith of the witnesses by giving basis for comparison. Texas State Bank of Ft. Worth v. Scott (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 571.

Opinions of witnesses in general.—Conclusion by property owner that defendant waterworks company or its predecessors in interest were bound to install service or cut-off boxes in such pipes, unsupported by contract or ordinance requiring such installation, is of no probative weight. San Antonio Water Supply Co. v. Castle (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 989.
Admission in evidence of conclusion of witness as to duties of waterworks company, which in itself was of no probative effect, gains no value by reason of its admission. Id.

Estimate by plaintiff, who sued carrier for delay in delivering shipment to connecting carrier, as to loss due to lack of proper material on brickwork, held not binding, so charge restricting jury to that amount was properly refused as on weight of evidence. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Bone (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 709.

It is a sufficient predicate for the admission of opinion evidence as to market value that the witness is willing to testify that he knows it; and cross-examination showing insufficient knowledge goes only to the weight of the testimony or the credibility of the witness. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Haygood (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 669.

Where testimony of plaintiff in an action to recover on a quantum meruit, was that he put in 80 days' work and that he had been accustomed theretofore to charge $3.50 per day for such labor and had previously worked for the defendant and charged her at this rate, jury was not bound to adopt such estimate of the value of plaintiff's services, although uncontradicted. Buchanan v. Bowles (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 652.

In an action against the railway for damages to a shipment of live stock from delay in transit and rough handling, the weights of the cattle should have been shown, if possible, by more certain evidence than the opinion of a plaintiff, one of the shippers, as to what shrinkage would occur on a usual run, and what on delay, though such opinion testimony sustained verdict for plaintiffs. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Arnett (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 222.

Testimony of a physician concerning the value of nursing by a trained or practical nurse furnished no basis for fixing the value of services performed by a woman who was neither a practical nor trained nurse. Kuhlmann's Estate v. Foss (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 564.

An estimate by a witness as to the amount plaintiff's garden was damaged by a trench for a gas main, without a statement of the facts on which the estimate was based, is insufficient to sustain a judgment for plaintiff. Beaumont Gaslight Co. v. Rutherford (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 245.

Where plaintiff testified to the circumstances under which she and her husband were riding in an automobile of another, which collided with a railroad train, her statement that they and the driver were engaged in a joint undertaking was a conclusion which did not establish that fact, where the circumstances showed the contrary. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 277.

In a suit to set aside a conveyance made by decedent in consideration of support during the rest of his life, the jury are not bound to accept defendants' statements as to the value of the support furnished; it being the mere opinion of interested parties, but may apply their general knowledge as to the matter. Kibby v. Kessler (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 277.

Where a fact is sought to be established by opinion evidence not amounting to the certainty of positive proof, although not disputed by other evidence, the jury are free to give such weight to the same as in their judgment it may be entitled to. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 773.

Plaintiff's uncontradicted testimony as to the value of a hand bag and its contents, based on his actual experience and investigations made at the time of loss, was sufficient to authorize finding for him and fixing the value in his action against an innkeeper. Dallas Hotel Co. v. Neely (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 636.

In an action for deceit the jury are not bound to accept the opinion of an interested witness as to the actual value of the property sold, though no other witness expressed an opinion as to such value. Pickrell v. Imperial Petroleum Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 413.

In an action for deceit in the sale of an oil lease, the jury are not bound as to the value of the money given by the only witness who testified to such value, where the facts on which the opinion was based were disputed. Id.

136. Testimony of experts.—The testimony of expert witnesses that the signature on a note was that of defendant held too weak and uncertain to support a judgment for plaintiff as against the positive and direct testimony of defendant and others. Joffre v. Mynatt (Civ. App.) 236 S. W. 351.

In action for damage to automobile truck, that dealer, who had authority to sell such trucks, at place in which accident took place, and who testified to being familiar with market value of such trucks at such place, had actually sold only one truck of that kind at such place, did not affect the admissibility of his evidence, but merely its weight. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. O'Connell (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 757.

In action for injuries to woman passenger by falling in aisle while waiting for conductor to let her pass, testimony of the conductor that a woman walking to the rear of a car in motion might become overbalanced while attempting to stop to wait until one obstructing the aisle should let her pass was without probative value, being a mere opinion on a hypothetical case, and, in any event, had reference to a permanent blocking of the aisle, and not to a temporary blocking of the aisle, which was the character of the blocking disclosed by the evidence in the case at bar. Steed v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 714.
RULE 37. A PARTY IS ESTOPPED FROM DENYING A FACT WHICH HE HAS DIRECTLY AND WILLFULLY, BY HIS WORDS OR CONDUCT, INDUCED ANOTHER TO BELIEVE, AND TO ACT ON THE BELIEF SO AS TO ALTER HIS OWN PREVIOUS CONDITION, AND WHO WOULD BE PREJUDICED IF THE ADMISSION OF THE FACT WAS RETRACTED.

I. Nature and Essentials of Equitable Estoppel in General

1. Nature and elements of estoppel in pais.—The terms "waiver" and "estoppel," though often inaccurately used as synonyms, are not synonymous; a "waiver" being the relinquishment of some right by word or conduct, and an "estoppel" arising from the perpetration of a wrong or a fraud which has misled another to his hurt or injury and from which justice and equity will prevent him from receiving profit or benefit. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., v. Nigh (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 291; Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Putnam (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 970.

Where one by his acts, declarations, or silence, where it is his duty to speak, has induced another, in reliance on such acts, declarations, or silence, to enter into transaction, he shall not later, to hurt of person misled, impeach transaction, being estopped. Barclay v. Dismuke (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 864.

A "waiver" is the intentional relinquishment of a valuable right, and is the result of an agreement between two or more parties sufficient to constitute an estoppel. Weeks v. First State Bank of De Kalb (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 973.

Estoppel is a doctrine to protect those misled by which on its face was fair and whose character, as represented, parties to the description will not in the interest of justice be permitted to deny. Davis v. Allison, 109 Tex. 440, 211 S. W. 989.

The ground on which estoppel proceeds is active or constructive fraud on the part of the person sought to be estopped. Smith v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 57.

To constitute estoppel there must be a false representation to or a concealment of material facts from a party ignorant of the matter with the intention that such party should act thereon, and such party must be induced thereby to act. Id.

"Waiver" is an intentional abandonment of a known right, and there can be no waiver unless it is so interdicted by one party and so understood by the other or one party has so acted as to mislead the other and is estopped thereby. Hines v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 633.

"Equitable estoppel" is a bar which prevents the party against whom it is pleaded from denying the truth of a fact because the party asserting estoppel has changed his position and has parted with some right by reason of the representation of conduct constituting the estoppel. Lomax v. Trull (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 861.

A silent party is not estopped by carrier's customary dealing with his previous shipments, of which he did not know and by exercise of ordinary diligence could not have known. International & Great Northern Ry. Co. v. Kansas City Produce Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 254.

Waiver by borrower of loan broker's departure from terms of loan authorized by him is operative only where borrower has knowledge, actual or constructive, of the facts. Hutchings v. Binford (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 557.

Though the insurer in an action on an accident policy agreed upon trial that plaintiff was the insured, the insurer is not estopped from setting up the true facts when discovered, where it was induced so agree through fraud or ignorance. National Life & Accident Ins. Co. v. De Lopez (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 160.

Where a "Boosters' Club" procured a bank to guaranty subscriptions for a bonus to a fact that the bank, not one subscription was payable in gas, a surplus collected by the bank over the bonus to be paid to the club, its members were estopped to claim that payment in gas was not valid as to them. Henrietta Oil & Gas Co. v. W. B. Worsham & Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 819.

Title authority does not exist, apparent authority or estoppel cannot be established except by facts known to the party dealing with the agent and relied upon by him in such dealings. Guaranty Bank & Trust Co. v. Beaumont Cadillac Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 635.

To constitute an estoppel in pais, it must be shown that the matters claimed to constitute an estoppel in some material respect have influenced the conduct of the party invoking the estoppel. Hitson v. Gilman (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 140.

Where a note executed by a railroad company secured by stock subscription notes secured by deeds of trust was void under art. 6717 et seq., as a transaction had without the consent of the Railroad Commission, and the stock subscriber paid his note to the bank holding it for collection on the advice of his attorney without knowledge of the illegal character of the indebtedness it was transferred to secure, and the bank took it, thereby believing it in the hands of an innocent holder for value, the stock subscriber is not estopped to demand return of the money paid on discovery the note was transferred as collateral to secure an indebtedness created in contravention of the statutes. Lumpkin v. Brown (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 498.

5. Acts done or omitted, and change of position.—Where a bank has accepted a mortgage of partnership property to secure a partner's individual debt, a statement by his copartner to the bank that his failure to promptly notify it of his rights in the property deprived him of his right of action, did not require submission of the issue of waiver to the absence of evidence of consideration or estoppel. Western Nat. Bank of Hereford v. Walker (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 544.
Assuming that city officers could be estopped to perform official duties by anteelection promises of a labor union that members of commissioners made anteelection promises that they would not discharge firemen belonging to a union, and that they were threatening to do so, and that the promises caused the members to remain in the union, did not show that the members of the union were misled to their harm, since they can still withdraw from the union if they so desire. San Antonio Fire Fighters' Local Union No. 84 v. Bell (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 506.

Where makers agreed to transfer a specified interest in a mine or organize a corporation with specified amount of corporate stock, and issue payee stock therein, in payment of balance due on note, payee's acceptance of stock and participation in the affairs of the corporation, as an officer and stockholder, did not estop him from claiming that makers had not complied with their agreement in that they had organized a different corporation, with much greater amount of authorized capital stock than the amount intended by the agreement, where such acts by payee did not cause makers to do anything they would not have done if he had not so acted. Wather v. Parks (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 613.

6. Benefit to person against whom estoppel is asserted.—Where divorced wife, in anticipation of remarriage to former husband, conveyed a half interest in land to husband in consideration for an agreement to discharge lien on land, but executed deed reciting different consideration on husband's promise to do right, her delay in bringing suit to cancel deed on his failure to discharge lien did not estop her from canceling deed, where she received no benefits different from those any other wife receives from a husband based on their joint or separate property, and where husband continued to promise that he would do the right thing, and she did not discover his fraud, and that he did not intend to discharge lien until shortly before suit was commenced, the cause of action not accruing until husband openly repudiated obligation. Moore v. Moore (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 78.

7. Prejudice to person setting up estoppel.—An agent for sale of town-site lots is not estopped to claim ownership by purchase of a certain lot, by statements that such lot was, was not, or was indurty, where no one was induced to purchase lots thereby. School Dist. No. 7 v. Frazier (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 846.

One of the necessary elements of an equitable estoppel is that the person claiming it must have been induced to alter his position in such manner that he will be injured if the estoppel is not declared. Llano Granite & Marble Co. v. Hollinger (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 151.

Where the purchaser of an oil lease under oral contract from an equitable owner acquired the lease by direct conveyance from the legal holder at his vendor's suggestion, the giving by him of a check for part of the purchase price, which was certified by his bank, and thereby the amount was withdrawn from his account, was sufficient injury to support estoppel against the vendor to attack his title. Priddy v. Green (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 245.

8. Default or wrongful act of person setting up estoppel.—In an action for an accounting brought by two members of a partnership against a third to recover salaries paid to under duress, consisting of threats by defendant to dispose of the partnership property and to dissolve the firm, under the terms of the contract, plaintiffs held not estopped where the conditions whereby defendant was enabled to coerce them by the threatened sale of the property continued until after the payments were made. Shelton v. Trigg (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 761.

10. Estoppel against public, government or public officers.—See Cawthorn v. City of Houston (Com. App.) 251 S. W. 701.

If conduct of gasoline filling station is determined, in suit between oil company and city, to be menace to pedestrians or nuisance to street traffic, city cannot be estopped to abate it by having permitted construction. Oriental Oil Co. v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 177.

A city, even if having no power to pass an ordinance offering a reward for an arrest and conviction of arson, would not be estopped from asserting its invalidity because ordinance had enabled it to secure a reduction in the rate of insurance applicable to the city, since it had induced plaintiff to act in pursuance of ordinance. Choice v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 753.

Where a county made an invalid contract for conveyance of a valuable interest in school lands which it held in trust and permitted grantees to incur large expenditures upon such land, the county is not estopped thereby to allege the invalidity of the contract. Thomason v. Upshur County (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 325.

The state cannot be estopped by the unauthorized act of its officers. Nueces County v. Gussett (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 725.

City officials cannot be estopped to perform their official duties by any anteelection promises or representations. San Antonio Fire Fighters' Local Union No. 84 v. Bell (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 506.

The board of trustees of independent school district of Ft. Worth were not estopped to sue the city for penalty moneys collected on school taxes in the city of Ft. Worth during the period from January 1, 1909, to November 30, 1917. American Surety Co. of New York v. Board of Trustees of Independent School Dist. of Ft. Worth (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 292; City of Ft. Worth v. Same (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 294.

II. Grounds of Estoppel

11. Inconsistency of conduct and claims in general.—In an action for a balance due for materials for the construction of a school building, evidence held to show that plaintiff, by refusing to present his bill to the trustees, was estopped to claim liability on

1118

In suit to foreclose deed of trust liens, by excluding to court's order separating land and nursery stock thereon, and ordering separate sale of each, and preserving its right to assert its claim to nursery stock in independent action, held, that plaintiff agreed that title to nursery stock should not pass by sale of land. Colonial Land & Loan Co. v.
Joplin (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 625.

Vendors who surrendered possession on request of one making a loan on mortgage from their vendees without asserting any claim, held estopped to say that they would have made claim if told that a loan was to be made. Dowdy v. Furtner (Civ. App.)
196 S. W. 647.

That sender and sendee of telegram arbitrated a loss caused by error in a message before a board, which agreed that they should share in loss equally, did not estop the sendee from suing the telegraph company. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Love & Walters (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 889.

Statement of attorney for administratrix that he thought she would pay claim when she got the money held not to bind her or estop her from pleading limitations against

Where purchaser secretly agreed with vendor's agent that agent should become partner in purchase and that contract should be signed by which security of vendor would be greatly impaired, purchaser was estopped to assert misrepresentations of agent being charged with knowledge that agent must not become a partner. Binder v. Milli­ kin (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 239.

Where corporation bought cotton oil subject to rules of association which required notice of date when to ship to be given by the purchaser, and on failure to deliver authorized purchase through broker of like quantities, and trustee in bankruptcy of purchaser authorized broker to buy like quantities but broker failed to do so, employment of the broker was not an election of remedies. Planters' Oil Co. v. Gresham (Civ. App.)
202 S. W. 145.

The right of a purchaser from one tenant in common to a specific tract conveyed to him does not depend upon the nonjoining tenants' assent to or recognition of the sale, nor is it created through estoppel, but is conditioned solely upon whether its enforcement would prejudice the other owners. Lasater v. Ramirez (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 935.

The right to an actual and a formal tender of money due is waived, when the debtor offers to pay, and is ready, willing, and able to do so, but is prevented from so doing, as where the party to whom the money is due expressly declares that he will not accept the tender, if made, or repudiates the contract. White v. Dennis (Civ. App.) 220
S. W. 161.

Where a landowner who had listed his property with a broker for sale declined to carry out broker's contract, and the sale made after discovery of oil on adjoining property, the fact that landowner assigned, as one reason for refusing to carry out the contract, that another broker had previously contracted to sell the premises and that he had procured a release, will not estop him from defending a suit for specific performance on the ground that the purchaser colluded to defraud him, and judgment for the landowner will not be reversed on the ground that, having stated in a deposition that the prior sale was one ground for refusing to carry out the agreement, the landowner cannot rely

The grantor to a town of an easement for the construction of a septic tank is not estopped, by his refusal to permit the town to bury the contents of the tank when it was cleaned on the premises, to claim damages for the nuisance created by leaving the contents on the surface of the ground, since the grant gave no right to use the premises

14. Possession or acts of ownership under title or claim.—One who takes possession of property in subordinate of another's title is ordinarily estopped as against that other to deny that title, but defendant's possession of tract allotted to him under agreement in which agreement it was common who the estate of going into possession does not put in motion for the plaintiff, whose lands he so seized. Lasater v. Premont (Civ. App.) 209 S.
S. W. 783.

15. Claim or position in judicial proceedings.—Party will not be allowed to maintain inconsistent position in judicial proceedings, a rule not one strictly of estoppel, but resting more on considerations of orderliness, regularity, and expedition of litigation. Chi­

Right of mortgagee must be determined by facts as they existed at time of execution of mortgage, and if there was then no other valid lien existing, nothing thereafter done by mortgagee could create a prior and valid mortgage or superior lien, not even a plead­ing App.) 209 S. W. 392.

Where defendant offered some of the evidence of one of plaintiff's witnesses given in a suit in another court as to a certain matter, plaintiff was not estopped from assert­ing the truth of the testimony of such witness on the trial because his counsel insisted on the introduction of the whole transcript in the former proceeding, bringing to light the inconsistent testimony; such testimony having been practically placed before the Plaintiff was not estopped to deny the truth of testimony of one of his witnesses by reason of the introduction by him of a transcript of the testimony of such witness in another and apparently inconsistent therewith, where such former testimony contained expressions that would authorize the jury to find that the facts contended for by plaintiff were true. Id.

Where, in a suit on vendor’s lien notes, the vendor filed a cross-action for cancelation of the notes for fraudulent representations and the parties adjusted their differences by making a new contract but the vendor brought a new action to cancel the notes under the new contract, he was not precluded from setting up and proving the fraud pleaded in the earlier action in connection with the alleged fraud inducing the second contract. United Land & Irrigation Co. v. Fleming (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 843.

In a suit to set aside an oil and gas lease as a cloud on title, where plaintiffs offered the lease in evidence, they waived any question of its execution and delivery. Canon v. Scott (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1042.

16. Claim inconsistent with previous claim or position in general.—To establish defense of estoppel by election, it must be made to appear that plaintiff had two valid and available and inconsistent remedies, and that he undertook to pursue one. National Life Ins. Co. of United States v. Eggleston (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 942.

That intervenor in receivership proceedings failed to set up by amendment claim under art. 6552, in addition to his claim of priority under doctrine of equity, held not to estop him, on doctrine of election of remedies, from setting up his statutory claim in subsequent suit. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Concrete Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 712.

A vendor who obtained a judgment of foreclosure in an action against purchasers of the vendee who had assumed incumbrances, foreclosure being for interest paid on a mortgage to protect the vendor’s lien note and for interest on the note, and purchased the property at an expensive low price at the sheriff’s sale, and thereafter sold it for a large sum, was not estopped in equity to subsequently sue the vendee for the face of the vendor’s lien note, although the vendee had no knowledge of the foreclosure proceeding. Rector v. Brown (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 702.

Defendant appellee, in suit to set aside judgment for delinquent taxes, having agreed in statement of facts that proceedings referred to constituted record in tax suit, there being no intimation they were even objected to when offered in evidence, is not in position to say they did not in fact comprehend the whole record. Rousset v. Settegast (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 219.

Where plaintiff, not knowing that an automobile had been transferred to third persons, recovered a judgment for title and possession, which was unsatisfied, he may thereafter maintain an action against such third persons and the original parties for conversion of the automobile, for as the first judgment was not satisfied and the remedy sought was unavailing, there was no election of remedies which would estop him from seeking relief by way of an action of conversion. Palmer v. Blizzell (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 971.

In a suit to enjoin defendant from conducting a millinery business sold to plaintiff, wherein defendant claimed that the conveyance constituted but a mortgage, that plaintiff, in answer to a writ of garnishment issued out of a suit against defendant, answered under oath that he did not owe her anything, held not to stop plaintiff from claiming that the instruments under which he held were absolute conveyances, no element of injury to defendant appearing. Lomax v. Trull (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 861.

17. Claim inconsistent with contract or title previously asserted.—Bringing action on canceled life policy held not to estop recovery on reduced policy in consideration of issuance of which larger had been canceled. National Life Ins. Co. of United States v. Eggleston (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 942.

18. Defense or objection inconsistent with previous claim or position in general.—Where defendant excepted specifically to petition as containing a misjoinder of causes of action, and the plaintiff amended so as to obviate the objection, and later filed a separate suit on cause of action eliminated by amendment, defendant is estopped to set up the additional cause in the second suit. Kippen v. Texada (App.) 211 S. W. 600.

Where wife of bankrupt admitted in bankruptcy proceeding under oath that certain land belonged to the estate of her husband, and aware that a deed to her was a mortgage, and not intended as a conveyance of title, and the federal court set aside the deed on said admission, and she accepted a compromise of her claim, and accepted money of the estate on the compromise, and other benefits, she is stopped from thereafter setting up any claim to the land on the ground that transfers made under order of the federal court were void. Koger v. Clark (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 494.

Heirs who, being of age, agreed among themselves and with the administrator that, in order to secure a final settlement and distribution of estate, land should be sold to certain of the heirs at specified price, and who participated in the distribution of the proceeds of such sale, are estopped from denying validity of sale, since, having assumed that administrator had the right to make sale, they are estopped from denying existence of such fact. Allen v. Berkmeier (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 647.

A mortgagor, who in his suit against the mortgagee, who has taken possession for foreclosure, asserts the mortgagee no longer had any right of foreclosure, or of possession, cannot in the same litigation complain of the mortgagee’s failure to foreclose immediately on taking possession. Lippert v. McClain (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 349.

20. By levy of attachment or execution.—It chattel mortgagee had lien on proceeds of insurance policy by virtue of stipulations in contract and mortgage, and also remedy by garnishment, doctrine of election of remedies did not apply, and remedy be—cause of stipulations was not waived when mortgagee sued out writ of garnishment against insurance company. Walter Connally & Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 684.

Creditors whose debtor fraudulently conveyed land to his mother, by availing themselves of an appropriate means of enforcing their right against the land in suiting out attachment against the son as if the conveyance had not been made, attachment being in a sense an execution. In advance, did not estop themselves to deny that debtor had such title, subsequent to his conveyance as would support his claim of homestead. Stevens v. Coburn, 109 Tex. 574, 213 S. W. 928.

23. Failure to assert title or right.—Where claimant against the surety of a jitney bus driver knew others injured in the same accident were asserting their claims, and failed to act diligently, leaving the surety to act in the belief that he had abandoned his claim, and pay other claims exhausting the bond, he was estopped from holding the surety. Darrah v. Lion Bonding & Surety Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1101.

Where owner of property, or one having right to possession, permits another, who has no right to it, to take it, he does not, by mere silence, lose his right to property. Kelvin Lumber & Supply Co. v. Copper State Mining Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 68.

Where a bank guaranteed subscriptions to a bonus which the bank paid when due, a subscriber was disabled to inform the bank that his subscription was payable in gas, was estopped, in a suit by the guarantor to recover his subscription, from claiming payment so made; the subscriber being chargeable with notice that the guarantor was bound to pay over the bonus. Henrietta Oil & Gas Co. v. W. B. Worsham & Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 819.

Where right to demand arbitration had not arisen under fire policy, there being no disagreement as to loss, that insured did enter into arbitration which resulted in arbitrators' failing to appoint an umpire would not defeat right to sue on policy, such loss being recoverable in view of Const. art. 1, § 13, providing that no right is waived unless in plain terms. Springfield Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 365.

A widow may waive her privilege to control the place and manner of burial by abandoning her duties in that respect, and where the jury, upon sufficient evidence, found that she was indifferent to the disposition of her husband's remains and left them to be buried by his father, she cannot recover damages from the father. Foster v. Foster (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 215.

When A., having an unrecorded deed to land, sold the timber, and persons claiming under the timber deed acquired a deed to the land from one having a subsequent conveyance from A.'s grantor, the failure of A. to pay taxes and their payment by the persons claiming under the deed raised no issue of estoppel against him. Fidelity Lumber Co. v. Adams (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 177.

24/2. Clothing another with apparent title or authority.—If loss must fall on materialman, owner, or contractor, by reason of the default of one chosen by the contractor to perform his obligation and of one whose acts are or ought to be directly under the contractor's supervision, the loss ought to fall on contractor. Wilson v. Sherwin-Williams Paint Co. 110 Tex. 156, 217 S. W. 372.

Defendant's letter stating his opinion that plaintiff was a person completely honorable and able to perform any contract he might make, etc., not being an admission of a matter of fact, held inadmissible in plaintiff's action, not being inconsistent with a subsequent assertion by defendant of plaintiff's dishonesty in a specific subsequent transaction. Negociacion Agricola y Ganadera de San Enrique, S. A., v. Love (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 224.

25. — Agency.—One claiming a principal's estoppel to deny agent's apparent authority, having proper facts, be actually misled, and have exercised due diligence to ascertain truth. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 922.

The theory of apparent scope of authority in the law of agency is based upon the rule of estoppel, on the effect of permitting the principal to believe that the agent had authority to act, such principal cannot later say that such agent was without authority, and such rule is based upon equity. Shippers' Compress Co. v. Northern Assur. Co. (Civ. App.) 238 S. W. 839.

A purchaser of a motortruck was entitled to rely upon representation of salesman that his principal, whom he telephoned, had given its approval of an exchange, instead of cash sale, and principal was estopped to deny that the salesman had authority to make the exchange, it being the custom to permit salesmen of motortrucks to make exchanges. Federal Supply Co. v. Wichita Sales & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 879.

26. — Real property.—Where legal title to community property is in the surviving husband, his conveyance to an innocent purchaser, although not for purpose of paying community debts, will pass title on the theory of estoppel. Burnham v. Hardy Oil Co., 108 Tex. 555, 195 S. W. 1139.

An erroneous survey of a valid Spanish grant by a county surveyor, the field notes of which included less than the original grant, did not create an estoppel in favor of the state so as to make the excluded land vacant, where such survey was not made by authority of the owners of the original grant. McLellan v. Brown (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 177.

Where a grantee of land reconveyed and his grantor lost the deed and thereafter had the grantee convey the property to a third person, who assumed to pay vendor's lien notes, the original vendor was estopped from setting up the lost deed in an action by errant last grantee of a void title, the lost deed having been covered by insurance as never having existed. Robinson v. Monning Dry Goods Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 536.
27. Personal Evidence. In action to foreclose mortgage on cattle, evidence held to sustain finding that a third person to whom cattle belonged had done nothing which would lead an ordinarily prudent person to believe that they belonged to mortgagee, and that mortgagee had a right to mortgage them. First Nat. Bank of Canadian v. Jones (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 488.

It is settled policy of Texas that enforcement against innocent purchasers for value of secret undisclosed liens upon and reservation of titles to personality, possession of which has been voluntarily surrendered and the possessor clothed with an apparent full and unincumbered title, shall not be had. Chambers v. Consolidated Garage Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 556.

Where plaintiff drew a bill of sale of a car from H. to B. without reference to a company, except that its name appeared thereon above H.'s signature, and plaintiff took a mortgage upon the car from B., plaintiff may not claim that the company is estopped by the bill of sale, or that he is an innocent purchaser as against the company. Rowe v. Guderian (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 900.

The purchaser of a mortgage and note from bank under representations that another indorsed note secured by another mortgage had been paid, such other note being in the hands of the bank which delivered it to purchaser together with a release thereof, was protected against such other note, where it belonged to a third person who had permitted it to come into the hands of the bank. Dellinger v. Gulf Production Co. (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 369.

Owner who leased barber shop fixtures by parole for the purpose of being used in the lessee's shop was not estopped from claiming ownership of fixtures as against innocent mortgagee who loaned lessee money on the faith that the fixtures belonged to lessee. Dorsev v. Kemble (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 217.

28. Relating and acting on apparent title or authority. A father who placed his son, who was in fact his agent for some purposes, in a position to deceive defendants, would be estopped to deny agency, defendants having in fact been deceived. De la O v. Consolidated Kansas City Smelting & Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1027.

29. Dealing with person asserting title or exercising authority. Evidence held insufficient to destroy the title of an heir by estoppel. Rossetti v. Benavides (Civ. App.) 196 S. S. 298.

30. Contracts.—That buyer of machinery, when he procured insurance, did not know of a stipulation for insurance in favor of the sellers in a chattel mortgage given by buyer for the purchase money, cannot be urged by a third lienholder, claiming proceeds of policy, as a reason why ordinary rule as to estoppel by contract should not apply. Walter Connally & Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 656.

Where defendant had agreed as to amount of damages in a shipment of apples, he is estopped to rely on noncompliance with condition as method of arriving at the same. Neely v. Dublin Fruit Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 827.

Where debtor, J., gave note to D., secured by chattel mortgage and to meet unsecured obligation due L., all parties agreed to a renewal note signed by L. and J., as principals and release of mortgage, and a subsequent agreement was made, on extending the renewal note, whereby D. was to let J. work off debt on a farm, which agreement was superseded, because of inability of J. to get supplies, by contract to work farm. D. furnished supplies and to be reimbursed therefor, D. held not estopped by original contract from suing L., where the bill for supplies exceeded the amount of work J. did. Lee v. Durham (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1171.

If plaintiff assignor of his lease contract agreed to a particular distribution of the rents under the fear and compulsion of threats previously made against him by defendant assignee, and did so still acting under duress, he is not estopped thereby from claiming that defendant realized the benefits of an illegal transaction and was liable therefor. Herrick v. Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 533.

Buyer under contract could not cancel certain items of his order and then sue for damages for failure to deliver such items. Solomon v. Schwartz Bros. & Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 174.

31. Recognition of rights.—Sellers and buyers would be estopped from claiming that sale was in violation of Bulk Sales Law, arts. 2971-2972, to defeat just debts, which both had agreed to pay and made provision to pay out of the consideration for sale. Warren v. Parlin-Orendorff Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 586.

When a contract is made and the parties thereto as a basis therefor assume a certain state of facts to be true, they are thereafter estopped from denying the existence of such facts so made the basis of the contract. Allen v. Berkmeier (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 647.

In an action against a carrier for ejection from a passenger train while attempting to ride on an interstate journey on a mileage book not good for such a journey, that after having been ejected defendant's agent sold plaintiff a ticket for scrip from such book held not to estope defendant from contending that plaintiff was an interstate passenger. Chicago, R. I. & O. Ry. Co. v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 356.

32. Contracts relating to real estate.—An equitable owner of oil lease under contract to purchase it, who orally agreed to sell the lease, and induced the purchaser to take written contract from legal owner of the lease, is estopped to attack the contract with the purchaser, either under the statute of frauds, or as made only with an agent when the principal was disclosed. Friddy v. Green (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 243.

Where the legal owner of an oil lease has deposited in escrow a contract to transfer it, he holds the title as trustee for the purchaser, and a direction by the purchaser to convey to another is a waiver of right under the escrow, which estops the purchaser from attacking title conveyed. 1d.

Where the equitable owner of an oil lease under contract from a corporation sold his interest to a purchaser, whom he induced to accept a conveyance from the corporation executed by its president, and thereafter secured a conveyance to himself from the conveyee without authority from the president, the president's authority to execute the conveyance to the purchaser does not defeat purchaser's right to the lease by estoppel of the equitable owner. 1d.

33. — Relying or acting on contract.—Where bank held assignment of balance due to subcontractor for materials as a mere pledge to secure certain indebtedness due to it by plaintiff, defendant debtor could not claim that plaintiff was estopped to deny the bank's authority to accept less than the amount due in full satisfaction of defendant's liability; defendant having paid only admitted liability and protected his rights under contract. Llano Granite & Marble Co. v. Hollinger (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 151.

35. Requests.—Where the legal owner of an oil lease has deposited in escrow a contract to transfer it, he holds the title as trustee for the purchaser, and a direction by the purchaser to convey to another is a waiver of right under the escrow, which estops the purchaser from attacking title conveyed. Friddy v. Green (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 243.

36. Representations.—Where peanut threshers were sold under misrepresentations, and, after machines in hands of buyer's customers, did not work satisfactorily, seller's agents told buyer that it was on account of wet season, rank viges, and inexperienced operators, seller cannot insist, when sued for damages from the original fraud, that buyer was guilty of negligence in being deceived by subsequent fraudulent representations. Texas Harvester Co. v. Wilson-Whaley Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 574.

In a man by his acts or omissions and by his conduct as a doing and a saying, he would not have done but for the expression of that language, or the exhibition of such behavior, such fact man will not be allowed to deny his utterance or act to the loss, injury, or damage of the other one. F. L. Shaw Co. v. Dalton Adding Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 832.

37. — Ownership of property.—Under agreement that defendant was to receive, smelt, and pay for ore coming from plaintiff's mines, only, plaintiff, who, through his agent, delivered as his own, to defendant, ore coming from mine of another company, would be estopped to set up that such company was deprived of title by confiscation of Mexican government. De la G v. Consolidated Kansas City Smelting & Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1027.

38. — Existence and extent of liens or claims.—Wife, having induced third person to purchase notes by representations as to validity of vendor's lien securing the notes, will be estopped to assert invalidity of lien by reason of husband's failure to join in execution of notes. Baxter v. Baxter (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 204.

40. — Validity of bills or notes.—Evidence held sufficient to show that maker requested indorsee to purchase note or promised or led him to believe that she would pay. Commonwealth Trust Co. v. Hardee (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 201.

41. — Relying and acting on representations.—Title by estoppel cannot be based on representations not acted on. Wilson v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 285.

42. — Admissions and receipts.—A written request by purchaser, under an earnest money contract, that the "deal be delayed for our convenience for thirty days," amounted to a waiver of an alleged failure to furnish an abstract and the admission of readiness of the vendor to then perform the contract. Pfeisterheck v. Clark (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 94.

A mere effort to reach a compromise is not an estoppel to the assertion of one's rights in court. Poe v. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 717.

43. Assent to or ratification of acts of others in general.—In holder's action on a note, it was proper to exclude evidence of written permission from holder to payee to sell property for which notes were given, subject to notes. Rowe v. Daugherty (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 216.

Where purchaser was in possession and could have known of falsity of all representations, but made no claim for damages or to rescission for more than five years, he waived any claim arising from misrepresentations. Binder v. Millikin (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 229.

Where a husband, with knowledge of the terms of a conveyance, caused it to be executed to his wife, making the lot conveyed her separate property, and it was delivered to her with his consent and his knowledge that title to lot was in and, where there was no understanding between them as to any trust, he was estopped to ingrat an implied trust on the deed or title. Markum v. Markum (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 835.

County held not entitled to an equitable lien, based on the doctrine of estoppel, as against the seller of materials to its bridge contractor, though after the property was delivered to the contractor the county paid it 60 per cent. of the contract price of the work, and after its delivery and the making of the payment the seller caused the property to be sold. Schlarbauer v. Lampasas County (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 463.

A property owner is not estopped from recovering from defendant city damages suffered by him by reason of the city's negligence in making a paving improvement whereby surface water was collected in front of the owner's lot because he petitioned the city with others for the improvement; the petition not being construable as a request to make the improvement without reference to consequences to plaintiff resulting from negligence. City of Greenville v. McAfee (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 755.

In an action by the owner of money placed in the hands of the defendant receiver with instructions as to its application, held, that the action was for a misappropriation of funds, and that the plaintiff could not recover for the reason that the money had been paid as directed by him to the lessee, and he was estopped by equity and good conscience from recovering more than the damages actually suffered, namely, the unexpended balance left after discharging the liens. Stonewall v. McGown (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 650.

44. Contracts.—In action for price of goods sold defendant's wife while living apart from him and after notice not to sell on his credit, evidence as to his conduct held to make question for jury on issue of equitable estoppel. Sanger Bros. v. Trammell (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1175.

45. to or participation in judicial proceedings—Partition proceedings.—Partition having been made between the widow and children of testator, and for years acquiesced in, on the theory of the will not attempting to dispose of her community interest, the children are estopped to claim against her mortgages on the opposite theory. Floyd v. Mays (Civ. App.) 237.

46. Acceptance of benefits.—Even if national bank's contract of indemnity against materialmen's liens given to secure payment to it of money due its debtor on building contract was ultra vires, yet the bank, having received the money, would be estopped to deny its liability on that ground. Eddleman v. Wofford (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 221.

In a lease of property, mere acceptance of oil by lessee because of not having drilled a well did not estop the lessors from pleading and proving want of original consideration for execution of the lease; the payment of the rentals amounting only to consideration from the lessee for a right or option to drill was the consideration of the contract during the period covered by the payment. Hitson v. Gilman (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 140.

Transferee of note for labor and materials furnished for improvements on land held estopped by the acceptance of insurance money from asserting any claim over the makers of the note. W. H. L. & S. Ry. v. Danjels (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 273.

Lessor under oil lease was estopped to set up fraud of lessee in obtaining the lease by telling him that it was for six months instead of ten years, where he accepted rentals after the expiration of the six months knowing that the lease had been assigned, and such was true even though the lease was altered after execution and delivery, changing the term. Smith v. Fleming (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 136.

50. — Sale and conveyance or mortgage of property.—Railway company accepting and retaining deed conveying real estate to tenant-drainage depot on land held estopped to deny that it was bound thereby, where purchasers were thereby induced to buy contiguous lands of the granter. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. v. Mosel (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 621.

Defendant in undisposed possession of tract received from plaintiff on agreement for exchange of land in suit of creditors cannot deny existence of the agreement and retain the benefit therefrom and hold both his own and plaintiff's tracts. Lasater v. Fremont (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 753.

Supply creditors of receiver, who accepted part payment of their claims from receiver out of proceeds of sale of property, were bound by the terms of the order of sale, directing a sale free from the claims of such creditors, and were estopped to assert a claim or lien on such property as against purchaser and his assignee. Maytown Lumber Co. v. Nacogdoches Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 271 S. W. 644.

If receiver's supply creditors urged receiver to sell the property, and accepted 70 per cent. of their claims out of the proceeds, they would not be estopped to prosecute suit against bondholders, since bondholders should have seen to it that the property brought a sufficient sum to pay off all claims superior to theirs. Id.

Where defendant bought interest in business, giving note therefor, and a partnership was formed and the two partners executed notes to a third person, the note given for the interest in the business being placed as collateral, and the seller of the partnership interest was adjudicated a bankrupt, and the defendant sold the real estate of the firm to the third person in consideration of a discharge of the note against the partnership and a release of defendant from liability on his note to the bankrupt, the agreement of the third person to release defendant from liability on his note was a binding obligation upon the third person, and it could not recover thereon where the note subsequently came into his hands. H. C. Denny & Co. v. Lee (Com. App.) 252 S. W. 947, affording judgment (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 294.

Subscriber to stock in insurance company, party to transaction whereby his note was accepted in payment for stock, and whereby he received stock, being estopped to deny his liability in suit of creditors of the company, held bound to its receiver for portion of note representing subscription to surplus, not within constitutional inhibition of issuance of stock for notes, particularly in view of fact burden was on him to show invalidity of note. Mitchell v. Porter (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 197, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 981.
Art. 3687 (Rule 37) EVIDENCE

Where a mother with the consent of her children deeded lands to them, excepting one who was a minor, saving certain land for him, and later their father was discovered to be the true owner, and he consented to the deeds and made deeds to them granting same property, taking notes from the children, they to be reimbursed by his will for amounts paid on the notes, held, that the grantee heirs subsequent to the father's death would not properly be estopped to the lots set apart, but not deeded to such minor, they having been reimbursed. Uloth v. Moodyman (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 326.

53. Permitting improvement or expenditures—Improvements and expenditures by purchasers of land.—Where property owners have platted their land and faced lots upon certain streets and improved them, and other persons have purchased property on such streets in reliance upon the recorded plat, the city and the property owners are estopped to change the plat. Halsey v. Ferguson, 109 Tex. 144, 202 S. W. 317.

55. Permitting sale or mortgage of property.—The filing of a chattel mortgage in county records does not estop one who had no knowledge of its contents and was not a party to it from claiming the property as his own. Smith v. Coburn (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 344.

In a suit to foreclose a mortgage lien, where part of the property was claimed by another, evidence by the claimant that he did not know his property was included in the mortgage, when it was executed in his presence, held sufficient to sustain a finding that he did not consent to the mortgage so as to be estopped to claim the property. Id.

57. Silence.—Wife by occupying with her husband a house not constructed according to a contract for its erection made by them jointly with a third person is not estopped to deny performance of contract on account of acts by husband, by reason of mere silence, except where such silence deceives an innocent person, and she intends that it shall do so. Harrop v. National Loan & Investment Co. of Detroit, Mich. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 878.

Estoppel was not available against the title to oil and minerals under a grant passing the legal title under which drilling had been stopped, where nothing was said or done by plaintiffs, the present owner of the grant, or any predecessor in title, amounting to a disclaimer or denial of the title, and nothing said or done was intended or would reasonably have been expected to have been acted upon by defendants or any predecessor in title in buying or developing the land; and defendants and those in privity with them knew of plaintiffs' title and made no inquiry in regard thereto, and in buying or developing the land did not rely on anything said or done by plaintiffs or any predecessor in title on which they had a right to rely, but on their own independent judgment and where, in the development, more than enough money had been received to fully reimburse all outlay, since, as respects land, the plea cannot be based upon mere silence or inaction, nonclaim or neglect, or want of use or possession, but only on affirmative words or acts, amounting to actual or constructive fraud. Davis v. Texas Co. (Civ. App.) 233 S. W. 549.

Mere silence by the party entitled to possession of a mining claim does not defeat his right to ore taken therefrom by a trespasser and sold to an innocent purchaser, though of course the owner's consent to such taking would defeat his right. Kelvin Lumber & Supply Co. v. Copper State Mining Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 558.

58. Negligence.—Negligence of defendant corporation in failing to properly audit the books of its branch, no matter how obvious, must have misled plaintiff to its injury in order to be the basis of an estoppel. Guaranty Bank & Trust Co. v. Beaumont Cadillac Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 688.

59/2. Particular matters.—One could not, by reason of the wrong of trustees, in which he participated, making him a trustee, acquire the property free from the equitable title, as he would be estopped from setting up the invalidity of a contract to which the beneficiaries were not parties. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Harbaugh (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 494.

III. Persons Affected

59. Persons to whom estoppel is available.—Subscribers to the stock of a banking corporation organized under a prior special act subsequent to the adoption of Const. 1876, art. 16, § 16, prohibiting the organization of such corporations, are not estopped, as against creditors, represented by a receiver, to deny the validity and binding force of their subscriptions; the creditors being charged with notice the corporation was illegal. Davis v. Allison, 109 Tex. 440, 211 S. W. 580.

In trespass to try title, defendants not being parties to a suit of plaintiffs against purchaser, plaintiffs are in no manner estopped to assert another and contrary theory, from that upon which they recovered from the purchaser, upon which to base a recovery against defendants. Heard v. Vineyard (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 458.

60. Persons estopped.—Where partner in drug firm, in inducing sister to purchase venue's lien notes, acted for benefit of firm, his partner was estopped to say that so far as he was concerned sister did not acquire vendor's lien against land of partnership. Bolding v. Bolding (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 687.

Where the legal holder of an oil lease, the equitable owner thereof under contract to purchase, and one who had introduced a subsequent purchaser, all acted together in completing the sale to subsequent purchaser, it is immaterial to the issue of equitable owner's estoppel to attack sale what were the exact relations between the three persons, no co-operating. Priddy v. Green (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 343.

In action involving ownership of land as between plaintiff, who claimed to have purchased land in good faith at a trustee's sale, and defendant, who alleged a conspiracy between plaintiff and a defendant's partner who had agreed to purchase land to be held by the copartnership, the fact that partner did not reveal to defendant that the land had been sold to plaintiff did not tend to estop plaintiff from asserting his claim. Mason v. Gantz (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 435.

61. --Purchaser from person creating estoppel.—That a purchaser of property subject to a lien takes with knowledge of the validity of the lien estops him to deny its validity, notwithstanding any unrevealed intention on the part of the purchaser subsequently to contest its validity on the ground that the property constituted a homestead. Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co. v. First Nat. Bank (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 386.

IV. Matters Precluded

64. Rights and liabilities under contracts.—One entitled to forfeiture and re-entry may waive such right, or be estopped by conduct from asserting it. Munsey v. Marnet Oil & Gas Co. (Civ. App.) 299 S. W. 656.

One who had made an oral contract for the sale of an oil lease under circumstances which estopped him from attacking the purchaser's title, because of payment of part of the price and acceptance of the obligation to pay the balance, cannot, after the lease has become valuable, rescind his contract to the prejudice of the purchaser. Priddy v. Green (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 242.

Art. 3688. [2300] [2246] Color or interest does not disqualify.

Cited, Wallace v. Stevens, 74 Tex. 559, 12 S. W. 283; Leahy v. Timon, 110 Tex. 73, 215 S. W. 551.

In general.—In view of this article, held that under art. 3690 as to testimony relating to transaction with a decedent, a devisee under a will, probate of which was contested for want of capacity by the heirs, may testify as to conversations and transactions with the testator. Byrnes v. Curtin (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 405.

Parties of record.—As Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 5688, has removed the common-law disability against testimony by a party in interest, although art. 3690 contains exceptions and forbids testimony by party in interest where the opposite party is dead, etc., the daughter of an alleged vendor of land, notwithstanding that she was a prospective heir, may testify as to arrangements for abandonment of the contract made with the purchaser who had since died. Watson v. Watson (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 899.

Interest of party or other person.—The father of a beneficiary of a will is not an "interested party," so as to be incompetent to testify to the execution of a will. Stephenson v. Stephenson, 6 Civ. App. 529, 25 S. W. 649.

Where an executor renounced his position as such, he was competent, despite art. 3690, to testify as to conversations showing the testator's capacity, etc., for no judgment could be rendered against him in his representative capacity. Byrnes v. Curtin (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 405.

Art. 3689. [2301] [2247] Husband or wife not disqualified, except, etc.

See, also, notes to Code Crim. Proc. art. 794.

Confidential communications.— Declarations of husband made to wife in presence of third persons are not privileged and such third persons are competent to state them; but declarations made in presence of wife alone are privileged. Wiggins v. Tiller (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 363.

Termination of marriage.— Neither death nor divorce destroys the privilege that a spouse has under the rule of evidence that prohibits either one of them against the will of the other to lift the screen of privacy to public gaze and disclose the statements made in private to each other in any conversation between them during their marriage relation. Wiggins v. Tiller (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 253.

Art. 3690. [2302] [2248] In actions by or against executors, etc., certain testimony not allowed.

1. Construction of act.—This article changes the common-law rule, and should be strictly construed, and the words taken in their ordinary meaning and according to their usual signification. Nimitz v. Holland (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 244.

The terms of this article will not be so extended by judicial construction as to exclude testimony not expressly excluded by its provisions. Dodson v. Watson (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 588.
2. Actions in which testimony is excluded.—In creditor's suit after the grantor's death to set aside conveyance as fraudulent, representations made by grantor to plaintiff's agent were admissible. Moore v. Belt (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 225.

In action against assignees of oil and gas lease to cancel lease, plaintiff's lessor was not prohibited by this article, from testifying as to fraudulent declarations by lessee, since the suit had been dismissed, made at the time of the execution of the lease in reference to the term for which the lease was taken and as to the amount of rentals agreed to be paid; the lessee having prepared the lease. Smith v. Fleming (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 136.

3. Representative capacity or title or interest of party.—In action against testamentary trustee by alleged beneficiaries, in which devisees intervened as defendants held that none of the defendants were legal representatives, within this article, though the trustee was also named as executor, where will was not probated in Texas, so that plaintiff's testimony as to conversation with testator was competent. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Harbaugh (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 496.

4. — Possibility of judgment for or against party in particular capacity or right. — Where an executor renounced his position as such, held, in view of art. 3688, that he was competent, despite this article, to testify as to conversations showing the testator's will, for no judgment could be rendered against him in his representative capacity. Byrnes v. Curtin (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 405.

In trespass to try title, where defendants relied on a lost deed, testimony that witness saw and read the deed which conveyed the premises to his father, and from whom he inherited the interest which he conveyed to defendant is admissible. Martinez v. Brunel (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 655.

5. — Probate or contest of will.—In a will contest, testimony by a contestant concerning statements by or transactions with the testator are not admissible. Leahy v. Timon (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1029.

This article does not apply to contestant in a will contest. Greelle v. Greelle (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 114.

A contested application to probate a will is a "suit" within this article. Perdue v. Perdue (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 353.

Testatrix's heirs suing devisees, including executor, to contest validity of will, were incompetent to testify as to statements of testatrix, such action being one "arising out of any transaction with such decedent." Leahy v. Timon, 110 Tex. 73, 215 S. W. 951.

The same applies to contest by daughters of testatrix joined by their husbands of application by testatrix's son and sole devisee for probate. Nimitz v. Holland (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 244.

8. Parties whose testimony is excluded.—In an action by the guardian of the minor children of a deceased heir against the other heirs for partition, one of the defendants, though called by his codisectors, cannot testify as to declarations made to him by the deceased heir. Ellis v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 585.

In action by heirs of testatrix against devisees to contest validity of will, husband of one of the heirs, who was joined as party plaintiff, was incompetent to testify as to statements by testatrix his husband, being a party, comes within prohibition. Leahy v. Timon, 110 Tex. 73, 215 S. W. 951.

10. — Legatee, devisee, heir or distributee.—In suit by heirs of grantor to cancel deed, held what grantor said in conversation with reference to execution could not be proved by heirs. Smith's Heirs v. Hirsch (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 754.

Petition, showing plaintiff sues as heir as well as sole legatee, this article applies. Houston Transfer & Carriage Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 712.

An heir is an "interested party, although he did not actively participate in the will contest" by holding in the pleadings. Perdue v. Perdue (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 353.

In view of art. 3688, declaring that no person shall be incompetent to testify on account of interest, held that under this article, a devisee under a will, who, by interest which he was a party, may testify as to conversations and transactions with the testator. Byrnes v. Curtin (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 405.

In trespass to try title by purchaser from decedent against purchaser from decedent's heirs, heirs, who have not been called upon to defend title, and are not apparently in a situation to be concluded by any judgment rendered, are not "parties," within meaning of this article, though term should not in every case be limited to those named in pleadings. Ferguson v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 571.

In an action by an administrator, an heir of deceased is essentially a party, though not nominally a party, and she is therefore incompetent to testify to a transaction with deceased. Dodson v. Watson (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 586.

In a proceeding to contest the probate of a will, evidence by a daughter and heir of testatrix that, from observation of her acts, conduct, and mental and physical condition, she was of opinion that testatrix was insane at time of making the will, held properly excluded, the witness being a party to the proceedings. Holland v. Nimitz (Com. App.) 233 S. W. 298.

11. — Surviving spouse.—Testatrix's husband, a legatee under the will, cannot testify in his own behalf as to declarations made by his wife bearing on the validity of the will. Brown v. Mitchell, 75 Tex. 9, 12 S. W. 696.

14. — Interest in subject matter as disqualifying witness.—The guardian of the minor children of a deceased heir, in an action by him against the other heirs for partition, is incompetent to testify as to declarations made to him by the heirs' intestate. Ellis v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 585.

15. — Relationship of witness to party or person interested.—As art. 5668, has removed the common-law disability against testimony by a party in Interest, although this article contains exceptions, the daughter of an alleged vendor of land, notwithstanding that she was a prospective heir, may testify as to an arrangement for abandonment of the contract made with the purchaser who had since died. Watson v. Watson (Civ. App.) 242 S. W. 969.

16. — Agent of party interested.—This article does not apply to agents of corporation with whom decedent had business relations. Williams v. Farmers’ Nat. Bank of Stephenville (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1083.

20. — Termination or extinguishment of interest.—Testimony of a defendant is not rendered admissible by a conveyance of the interest of the witness for the sole purpose of rendering him competent. Cooper Grocery Co. v. Neblett (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 365.

21. Parties as against whom testimony is excluded.—Where plaintiff sues as the representative in part of the deceased husband’s estate, it is not error to reject evidence as to transactions between her deceased husband and one of defendants. Harrell v. Houston, 66 Tex. 278, 17 S. W. 731.

In trespass to try title by the heirs of the owner against the widow’s devisees, plaintiff not being necessary parties to the suit, and the inhibition of the statute merely applying to personal representatives or heirs. Stiles v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 89.

This article does not apply to purchaser from decedent, suing purchaser from decedent in trespass to try title. Ferguson v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 571.

Where one of several plaintiffs died after suit commenced, and his heirs were substituted as plaintiffs, defendant could not testify as to a conversation had with him. McKelvy v. Gugenheim (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 757.

In a legation on a note bequeathed, defendants cannot be precluded from testifying to statements by or transactions with the deceased during his lifetime concerning the subject-matter of the suit, legatees not being mentioned in the statute. Houston Transfer & Carriage Co. v. Williams (Comm. App.) 221 S. W. 1061, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 712.

23. — Party to whom person deceased acted in representative or fiduciary relation.—This article, does not apply to corporations, so as to exclude testimony as to contracts made with their officers and agents who have since died. Bexar Hldg. & Loan Ass’n v. Newman (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 481.

In establishing transaction in general,—In an action against the heirs of a deceased grantor, to prove for record an unacknowledged instrument, it is error to allow plaintiff to testify as to his reception of the instrument through the post-office, with a certain post-mark, for the purpose of proving delivery thereto by the deceased grantor, since such delivery is a “transaction” with deceased. Howard v. Zimpelman (Sup.) 14 S. W. 59.

Rev. St. 1879, art. 2248, does not prevent a party suing executors from testifying that he had lost a note owned by him, and purporting to be executed by the deceased. Choate v. Huf (Civ. App.) 18 S. W. 97.

In suit to set aside deed for nonpayment of price, where defendant died, testimony of his wife not violating this article, relating to transaction with or by statement by deceased. Russell v. Beckert (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 997.

In will contest involving question of whether testator revoked will, testimony of heir that testator directed witness to get will, and after having so done testator tore will in two and told witness to light match, and then held papers over flame in the hands of witness until they were consumed, is incompetent, being as to a transaction with deceased. Perdue v. Perdue (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 535.

Testimony by proponent and defendant in a will contest proceeding that she stayed with her mother, the testatrix, during a period of time in which she accompanied her mother to gospel missions, and on return found the house burglarized, etc., does not fall within the prohibition of this article, relating to testimony as to transactions with persons since deceased. Marshall v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 723.

Testimony by husband as to his intent in having land deeded to his wife, since deceased, does not relate to transaction with her so as to be incompetent. Dean v. Dean (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 565.

In trespass to try title, where defendants relied on a lost deed, testimony by one of the defendants that he saw and read the deed which conveyed the premises to his father from whom he inherited an interest is admissible. Martinez v. Brunl (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 665.

Testimony of proponent that he never said anything to testatrix, his mother, with reference to making of will being contested, was not testimony to “any transaction with or by statement by the testator.” Nimitz v. Holland (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 249.

One suing as heir of grantor of land to recover a triangular piece of land could not testify as to the place where deceased and the grantee, with the assistance of witness, had fixed the beginning corner on the ground. Tomlinson v. Noël (Civ. App.) 233 S. W. 1028.

This article is not to be extended beyond its spirit, and should not be held to apply to facts within the knowledge of the witness not dependent upon what was said or done by the deceased. 1d.

25. — Occupancy of land and delivery of property.—This article held to apply to testimony of delivering deceased had failed to deliver goods for which the note sued on was given. Houston Transfer & Carriage Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 712.

1123
In action by mother's administrator against decedent's sons to recover property conveyed by them to defendants in their lifetime. Trial was on the testimony that mother had given him such property was incompetent as testimony of transaction with deceased. Reynolds v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 382.

In an action against a widow to recover an undivided fourth interest in land claimed by her to have been conveyed to decedent by her surviving husband, admission of testimony of defendant widow that it was the intention of herself and husband to acquire the place for a home held not erroneous. Cummins v. Cummins (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 963.

27. Contracts.—Testimony by husband as to his intent in having land deeded to his wife, since deceased, does not relate to transaction with her so as to be incompetent, though testimony as to her agreement to hold it in trust for him is incompetent. Dean v. Dean (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 665.

28. Admissibility of prior statements on fraternals involving dispute as to right to proceeds between insured's father, named as beneficiary at time of insured's death, and insured's surviving wife, who had previously been designated as beneficiary, and who contested the benefit of wife upon ground of undue influence and fraud, testimony by wife as to statements by insured as to his reasons for changing beneficiary held inadmissible. Griggs v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 363.

29. Action for the specific performance of a contract for the purchase and sale of land, where pending trial plaintiff, the purchaser, died, and his wife, as survivor of the community estate, was substituted as plaintiff and prosecuted the action for benefit of herself and children of the marriage, the vendor is incompetent to testify that, after the execution of a deed and payment of part of the purchase money, etc., it was arranged between herself and the decedent, purchaser, that the transaction should be abandoned. Watson v. Watson (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 393.

30. Payment or transmission of money.—In suit against heirs to rescind contract for purchase of land, permitting plaintiff to testify over objection that balance of purchase price had never been paid, was reversible error; note introduced in evidence being more than 30 years past due. Perez v. Maverick (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 198.

31. Physical condition and mental capacity.—In contest by daughters of testatrix, joined by their husbands, of application by testatrix's son and sole devisee for probate, contestants could testify that, independently of any statements made by testatrix or any transactions had with her, that in their opinions, testatrix was insane at the time of her will and could testify as to testatrix's physical condition during her last illness, including matters of involuntary expressions of pain and suffering, and acts and conduct tending to show mental trouble. Nimitz v. Holland (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 244.

32. Transactions between persons other than witnesses and persons subsequently deceased or incompetent.—In trespass to try title by grantee against his grantor's executor, witness could not testify that plaintiff told him that plaintiff's grantor gave him to keep. Lovenkold v. Casas (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 629.

33. Children of the first marriage of their father, suing their children by later marriage for land left by him, are incompetent witnesses to the fact of it having been paid for with the property of their mother, although such transaction was between the deceased parents and a third party; all their knowledge being derived from their deceased parents. Hughes v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 946.

34. Testimony by her surviving husband of an oral agreement of an action by the administrator as to a conversation she heard between the deceased and defendant is incompetent. Dodson v. Watson (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 556.

In a proceeding to contest the probate of a will, a daughter and heir of decedent, though a party to the proceeding, held competent to testify that, when decedent was brought to a certain town during her last illness, no preparations had been made to take care of her at defendant's house, and that defendant's wife was unkind to her, and neglected her. Holland v. Nimitz (Com. App.) 232 S. W. 298.

35. Communications or instruments in writing.—Testimony that decedent was person who signed note in suit is not testimony as to transaction with the decedent. Williams v. Farmers' Nat. Bank of Stephenville (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1093.

In partition, where plaintiffs' title was derived by inheritance from their father and from a trust resulting from application of their interest in a 40-acre tract conveyed by a part of purchase price of the 100-acre tract in controversy, and wherein defendants claimed by descent from their mother as community property of their father and of defendants' mother, who was plaintiffs' stepmother, evidence by plaintiffs that they were to receive an interest in the 100-acre tract as a consideration for conveying the 40-acre tract, but had received nothing, held... not inadmissible as relating to a transaction with the decedent contrary to Rev. St. 1911, art. 3809, since, as to the interest sought to be established by the testimony, the title was neither claimed nor resisted on the ground of heirship. Fynes v. Fynes (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 777.

37. Nature and effect of testimony.—In a will contest, admission of testimony by defendant supporting proponent's claim concerning her intimacy with the testatrix and opportunity to exercise undue influence, held harmless, though such testimony was inadmissible. Marshall v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 723.

38. Effect of admission of evidence on behalf of adverse party.—In an action involving a contract whereby the parties were to divide the profits arising from the purchase and sale of land, the action being by a bank against one of the parties, and the other intervening, the intervenor's explanation of an item appearing on a memorandum introduced in evidence by the administratrix of the other party should have been admitted. First Nat. Bank v. Rush (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 378.

39. Rebuttal of evidence on behalf of adverse party.—Where contestants introduced evidence of statements of testatrix as to proponent's cruelty to, demands upon, and threats communicated to testatrix, proponent may, notwithstanding this article, deny the evidence introduced. Marshall v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 723.

40. Effect of calling or examination as witness by adverse party.—On his cross-examination as a witness, defendant is not precluded from testifying as to services rendered and money advanced by him to decedent during her life, where defendant was called as a witness by plaintiff, and questioned as to the money collected by him belonging to the estate, and another witness testifies concerning the services and advances. Perdue v. Witte (App.) 224 S. W. 1032.

Proponent having called her as witness in county court to testify as to transaction with deceased, the testimony reduced to writing under arts. 3273-3275 was competent in district court. Chapman v. Vickers (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 956.

Where a nephew, suing his uncle's executor to recover a deposit with the uncle as trustee, had his ex parte deposition taken by the executor, but it was not offered in evidence, the nephew was "called to testify" by the adverse party within the meaning of the statute, and became competent to give evidence in his own behalf in relation to his transaction with his uncle, deceased. Allen v. Pollard, 109 Tex. 556, 212 S. W. 468.

In an administrator's action, the administrator, by cross-examining defendant as to transactions with intestate, waived the incompetency of such testimony. Reynolds v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 382.

Art. 3692. [2304] [2250] Printed statutes evidence, when.

See Harvey v. Cummings, 68 Tex. 599, 5 S. W. 513.

Application in general.—A book purporting to be a reprint of the Penal Code of the state of Coahuila, Mexico, when duly proven to be such by a competent witness, is admissible in evidence to prove the laws of such state, under Rev. St. 1879, art. 3250. Fernandez v. State, 25 Tex. App. 538, 8 S. W. 667.

The statutory law of another state can be proved only by introducing in evidence the authorized printed statutes. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Ryan (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 642.

Printed statutes of other states are the best evidence of the statutes, and parol evidence is not admissible to establish them, though such evidence is admissible to establish the unwritten law of another state. Vickers v. Faubion (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 803.

Art. 3693. [2305] [2251] Certified copies of acts, etc., evidence.

Certificate.—A copy of a statute or acts of Alabama, with the certificate of its secretary of state that it was taken from the official published acts in his office, was properly admitted. Harvey v. Cummings, 68 Tex. 599, 5 S. W. 513.

Art. 3694. [2306] [2252] Copies of records of public officers and courts to be prima facie evidence.

In general.—A certificate of a county clerk that no claims had been filed against an estate is inadmissible in evidence. Myers v. Jones, 4 Civ. App. 330, 23 S. W. 562.

152. Letters from Mexican officials to other officials in Mexico, certified by their official custodian, are not admissible as certified copies. Kenedy Pasture Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 287.

Where original conveyance was not produced or accounted for, a certified copy of such deed as appomted in records is not admissible, particularly where book containing deed was shown to have contained copies of other instruments confessedly and admittedly forged. Kellogg v. Chapman (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1096.

In suit to enjoin a county inspector from requiring cattle to be dipped pursuant to the Tick Eradication Statute (Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, art. 7314 et seq.), certified copy of the rules and regulations of the Live Stock Sanitary Commission, not certified by any member of the Commission, but by the acting Secretary of State, held administrative. Lewis v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 631.

Records of land office.—The first leaf or page of a certified translated copy of the Spanish grant, under which plaintiff in trespass to try title claimed, showed the following words and figures: "200. Title in favor of Rafael de Aquirre [the grantor] for 11 leagues of land,—ten of which are situated," etc., [describing it,]—issued by L. Lessiosier, Wieldred of San Filipe, October 22, 1829."

"This is the genuine 'title to Rafael de Aquirre, the name 'Perfecto Valdis' inserted through mistake. J. P. B."

J. P. B."

"The name of the individual was as to the validity of the Spanish grant, the defense being set up that it was a forgery. Held, that said first leaf was not admissible, it being in the nature of hearsay. Gaither v. Hanrick, 69 Tex. 92, 6 S. W. 619.

Art. 3696. [2308] [2253] Copies and certificates from certain officers are evidence.

Decisions under prior acts.—See Lott v. King, 79 Tex. 292, 15 S. W. 231.

Secretary of state.—In shipper's action against railroad, certificate of Secretary of State as to forfeiture of shipper's right to do business in Texas, consisting of certified copy of records, containing entry on margin showing forfeiture of franchise for failure to pay franchise tax, was admissible, although such marginal entry was not signed by Secretary of State. Texas Packing Co. v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 129.

Commissioner of land office.—The number of the certificate by which the land in controversy was patented, where that fact does not appear in the patent, is properly proved by the certificate of the commissioner of the general land-office. Talbert v. Dull, 70 Tex. 875, 8 S. W. 530.

Commissioner of insurance and banking.—In suit on a fraternal order's beneficial certificate, if only a copy of the contract of merger between defendant order and another, decedent's original insurer, was filed with the commissioner of insurance, a copy of such copy would not be admissible in evidence. Independent Order of Puritans v. Brown (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 929.*

Art. 3700. [2312] [2257] Recorded instruments admitted in evidence without proof, when.

Application of article in general.—On a trial for the theft of an animal, the execution by defendant of an attested bill of sale for the animal, which has not been filed in the case, cannot be proved by secondary evidence, without accounting for the non-production of the subscribing witness; a bill of sale being required by law to be recorded. Morrow's Case, 2 S. W. Rep. 624, followed. Graves v. State, 28 Tex. App. 554, 15 S. W. 149.

Letters from Mexican officials to other officials in Mexico, certified by their official, are not admissible as certified copies. Kenedy Pasture Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 287.

Filing before trial and notice.—A petition averring that defendant had the original deed, notifying him to produce it, or that secondary evidence of its contents would be introduced, together with a certified copy thereof, filed with such petition six months or more prior to the trial, is sufficient to render the certified copy admissible. Pennington v. Schwartz, 70 Tex. 211, 8 S. W. 32.

Just before a cause was called for trial the attorneys agreed that certain deeds might be read in evidence from the records as originals; but on the trial defendant objected to their admission, for the reason that the originals or copies thereof had not been filed three days before trial, as required, which objection was sustained. Plaintiff then asked to withdraw his announcement of readiness for trial, which was refused, and he thereupon took a nonsuit. Held, that, where the cause of action had in the mean time become barred by limitation, plaintiff was entitled to a reinstatement, as such agreement authorized him to infer that defendant waived his objection to the filing of the deeds. Cotton v. Lyter, 81 Tex. 15, 16 S. W. 553.

No further notice to the opposite party is required, when the instrument was made part of the petition, which is filed more than three days before trial. Lignoski v. Crooker, 86 Tex. 524, 24 S. W. 788.

A deed is not admissible because it was not filed three days before the trial, and no notice was given, when it is an original, and its execution and delivery are proved by witnesses on the trial. McGee v. Minter (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 718.

Where one party gave the notice required, and filed copies of deeds, held, opposite party, though he failed to give notice or file copies, may introduce same in evidence. Luatte v. Murray (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 321.

The method prescribed by this article, of introducing instruments in evidence without proving their execution as at common law, by filing affidavit before trial, does not make such a prerequisite to proving the execution of lost deed by sub-

In a prosecution for adultery, where the identity of a defendant's marriage license was proven by the clerk, but its execution was not proven by any one else, it was inadmissible in evidence, because not filed among the papers for three days and notice given by the prosecution to defendant. Halbarger v. State, 35 Cr. R. 592, 214 S. W. 349.

A copy of an instrument was properly admitted in evidence, although the notice required was not given, and the original was not filed among the papers, where plaintiff alleged that such instrument had been recorded and was in the possession of defendant, and called upon defendant to produce the same in court upon the trial. El Paso Townsite Co. v. Watts (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 709.

Affidavit of loss, mutilation or inability to procure.—Rev. St. 1879, art. 2257, requires the filing of an affidavit of loss only when it is proposed to introduce in evidence a certified copy; and therefore, when the loss or destruction of an unrecorded deed is proved as at common law, a sufficient predicate for the proof of such lost deed is laid by the evidence produced at the trial. Blandine v. Ray, 66 Tex. 61, 17 S. W. 264.

Affidavit of forgery.—The rule that a duly-recorded instrument may be put in evidence without proof of execution, unless attacked as a forgery, does not require proof of an instrument executed by virtue of a power, merely because the power is attacked, but only where the instrument itself is attacked. Moser v. Dibrell, 2 Civ. App. 457, 21 S. W. 414.

When a deed was attacked by an affidavit of forgery, the burden then rested on the party depending on the deed to show that it was a genuine instrument. Alamor v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 415.

In trespass to try title, where defendants claimed under a deed by an alleged attorney in fact, and plaintiffs filed affidavit that the deed was forged, the burden was on defendants to establish their defense by a preponderance of the testimony; plaintiffs having shown title to the land and being entitled to recover, unless they had parted with title. Lancaster v. Snider (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 560.

Ancient documents.—A vendor's contract to furnish authentic abstract showing good merchantable title held complied with: where a defectively acknowledged deed had been of record more than ten years and had also been cured by subsequent deeds. Moser v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 259.

The record of an ancient deed, not acknowledged or proven for record, held admissible, without proof of execution of deed, where there was no adverse claim within ten years after record, though there is affidavit of forgery. Conrad v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1181.

An ancient deed against which a plea of non est factum is interposed is not, without proof of execution, admissible in evidence: it having been found among the papers in the county clerk's office, and no rights having been claimed thereunder until many years after its execution. Kellogg v. Chapman (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1096.

Art. 3706. [2314] [2258] Certified copy of instrument sued on is evidence, when.

See Kutch v. Holley, 77 Tex. 220, 14 S. W. 32.

Art. 3707a. Certified copies of documents in custody of University of Texas.—That the librarian of the University of Texas and the archivist of the Department of History of the said University are hereby authorized to make certified copies of all public records in the custody of the University of Texas and said certified copies shall be valid in law and shall have the same force and effect for all purposes as if certified to by the county clerk or other custodian as now provided for by law. In making the certificate to the said certified copies either by the librarian or the archivist of the Department of History the said officer shall certify that the foregoing is a true and correct copy of said document, and after signing the said certificate shall swear to the same before a notary public or any other officer authorized to take oaths under the laws of the State of Texas. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 43, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 2 of the act relates to the placing in the custody of the University of Texas public records of historical value, and is set forth, ante, as art. 90a. The act took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Art. 3710. [2318] [2262] Execution of notes and other instruments presumed, unless, etc.

See Webb v. Reynolds (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 914.

Foundation of action or defense.—Controverting affidavit to plea of privilege is a "pleading," within this article, where pleading is founded on such an instrument charged to have been executed by the other party, and the other party does not file affidavit denying execution. Borschow v. Waples-Platter Grocer Co. (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 872.

Necessity of plea of non est factum and verification thereof.—A petition alleged that the draft sued on, which were drawn on and accepted by "J. P. Nelson, Agent," were accepted by defendant's authority, and neither the execution of the acceptances nor the draft was alleged on oath. Held, that they were admissible without proof of those facts, and were a sufficient basis for a judgment. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Harrison, 72 Tex. 479, 10 S. W. 856.

In an action by a broker for commissions for procuring a purchaser, held, that the petition, though alleging that its vendor, through the plaintiff, executed the contract of sale, must be deemed to have alleged that the contract of sale was executed pursuant to the enlistment contract; hence where evidence showed that terms of sale were contrary to the enlistment contract, and the broker introduced oral statements authorizing a sale on different terms, it was error to refuse to allow the vendor to offer evidence in contradiction thereof, on the theory that, since he did not deny under oath the broker's authority to execute the contract, he should not, under this article, on trial offer proof in denial. Peeples v. Griffith (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 561.

Effect of plea of non est factum.—The interposition, in an action on a note, of a sworn plea denying consideration, does not throw the burden of proving consideration on plaintiff. Newton v. Newton, 77 Tex. 508, 14 S. W. 457.

Under a plea of non est factum, where defendant claims that the note has been materially altered since execution, after plaintiff has ma de a prima facie showing as to execution, the burden of proof shifts to defendant. Iowa City State Bank v. Milford (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 883.

A verified plea of non-execution of a note is not evidentiary, but merely robs the instrument of its own probative effect to establish its execution. Id.

Where a plea of non est factum is interposed as against a deed, the burden of establishing the execution as at common law is cast on the party relying on the deed; and execution of such deed is not established by proof that after date of its alleged execution taxes were assessed against grantee named. Kellogg v. Chapman (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1096.

The burden of proof of execution of a note, on which the answer, in action on a life policy, was in part based, was on defendant, executing being denied under oath. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Jinkins (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 772.

Plea of non est factum places the burden upon plaintiff of establishing defendant's execution of note. Joffre v. Mynatt (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 951.

In a bank's suit on a note admittedly signed in blank by defendant maker, claiming that the cashier of the bank had fraudulently filled in an improper amount, the burden was on defendant, who pleaded non est factum, admitting the signature of the note, but seeking to avoid it, to show how he had been injured. Goree v. Uvalde Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 620.

When the want of consideration of a note is denied under oath, the burden to prove the note is on plaintiff-payee. Id.

Instruments the execution of which must be denied.—Rev. St. 1875, art. 2262, does not dispense with proof of execution of an instrument alleged to have been executed by the grantor of the other party. Limosinski v. Crooker, 56 Tex. 242, 24 S. W. 278.

Defendant in suit for taxes held bound to deny under oath that rendition of property was made by it, to be entitled to deny that it made rendition. North American Dredging Co. of Nevada v. State (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1065.

Signed invoices, providing where all bills are payable, are "contracts," within this article. Borschow v. Waples-Platter Grocer Co. (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 872.

In an action on a beneficiary certificate issued by one fraternal order and assumed by defendant order, plaintiff declaring on the contract of assumption, charging defendant order's liability as defendant order not knowing defendant order's execution of the assumption instrument so charged, defendant order could not show that its officers which had executed the assumption instrument had no authority to do so. Independent Order of Puritana v. Brown (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 559.

Art. 3710. [2323] [2266] Suit on sworn account.

See Hensley v. Degener (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 1130.

Construction of statute.—This article merely creates a rule of evidence to be applied solely to proving open accounts under certain given conditions, and does not preclude the verification of any pleading in suit on such an account. Miller v. L. Wolff Mfg. Co. da Texas (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 212.

What constitutes open account.—Mere fact that account sued on consisted of single transaction did not show that it was not open account. Peterson v. Graham-Brown Shoe Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 899.

This article applies only to transactions between persons in which by sale and purchase of the title to personal property is passed from one to another and the relation of debtor and creditor is created by general course of dealing, and does not mean one or more isolated transactions resting upon a special contract. Bixler v. Dolliver (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 148.

Account pleaded by plaintiff against defendant held an open account verified under this act as to be admissible in evidence. Miller v. L. Wolff Mfg. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 212.

Accounts not within article.—In a suit by attachment on accounts not due, they cannot be verified at the institution of the suit so as to make them admissible in evidence. Sims v. Howell Bros. Shoe Co. (App.) 15 S. W. 126.

Where suit against principal and the guardian of an insane surety was based upon contract, and an account was merely pleaded to show the amount and value of property purchased, it was not necessary to verify the account. Webber v. Swift & Co. (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 509.

Sufficiency of affidavit to account.—Where the account sued on is verified immediately before the trial, it is not prima facie evidence, though no counter-affidavit is filed, and the defendant is not precluded from denying the account. Blakeley v. Wimberly (App.) 15 S. W. 119.

Effect of affidavit to account.—Where the account filed by plaintiff was not verified, defendant is not required to verify his answer. Markowitz v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 968.

Sufficiency and effect of counter affidavit.—In an action on an open account a verified answer containing a general denial, a special denial of each item of the account, and a denial of indebtedness was not a compliance with this article, and did not overcome the prima facie case made by plaintiff's sworn account. Peterson v. Graham-Brown Shoe Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 899.

Where by answer under oath defendant denied an account verified in accordance with this article, the rebuttal effect of the verifying account is destroyed, and it is insufficient to establish prima facie proof of debt, which otherwise could be established thereby. Gulf Refining Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 549.

Failure to file counter-affidavit and effect thereof.—The rule that the justness of the account cannot be impeached unless a counter affidavit is filed does not mean that ownership of the debt is conceded by failing to file an affidavit. Intertype Corporation v. Sentinel Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 548.

In suit on verified open account to recover a balance alleged to be due for merchandise sold and delivered to defendant, where defendant properly pleaded payment, the trial court did not err in receiving evidence in support of such plea, though there was no counter affidavit that the account was not just or true. Seitz, Schwab & Co. v. Shipman (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 842.

Objections to affidavits.—Assignments of error, objecting to affidavit in suit on open account, in that it merely alleged that all lawful offsets had been allowed, while this article requires that the affidavit shall allege that all "just and lawful offsets" have been allowed, is not reviewable, in absence of objection to admission of account in evidence. Peterson v. Graham-Brown Shoe Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 899.

Art. 3713. [677] [601] Records of corporation are evidence.

See Great Southern Oil & Refining Ass'n v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 157.

Best evidence.—The best evidence of an assessment made by authority of an order of the board of directors of a corporation is the record of the order or resolution of the board, which must be produced in an action by the corporation to collect the assessment, unless some sufficient reason is shown why it cannot be produced. Guadalupe & San Antonio Rivers Stock Ass'n v. West, 76 Tex. 461, 13 S. W. 297.
TITLe 54
EXECUTION

Article 3714. [2324] [2267] Execution on judgment of district and county court, issued when.

Divorce judgment.—Alimony is not in the nature of a debt for the collection of which execution may issue. Beeler v. Beeler (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 553.

Article 3717. [2326a] When judgment shall become dormant.

When judgment shall become dormant.—A dormant judgment is one which has remained so long unexecuted that execution cannot be issued upon it without first reviving the judgment. Burlington State Bank v. Marlin Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 964. A judgment, decreeing undivided interest in the minerals and the surface estate, held not dormant by reason of the fact that no writ of possession was ever issued, where the judgment did not award writ of possession. Henderson v. Chesley (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 573.

Validity of execution on dormant judgment.—An execution on a dormant judgment must be obeyed by the officer. Cleveland v. Title, 3 Civ. App. 191, 22 S. W. 8.

Revival of judgment.—Judgments on claims against estates of decedents are not enforceable by execution, and cannot become dormant and be revived by scire facias. Farmers' Nat. Bank v. Crumley (Civ. App.) 294 S. W. 358.

On showing that judgment obtained by him against a defendant and sureties on defendant's bond on appeal from a justice court was on its face valid, and at most only voidable for errors, plaintiff was entitled to an order reviving his judgment against all defendants in the original judgment as the same appeared of record. C. J. Gerlach & Bro. v. Du Bose (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 742.

Collateral attack on judgment.—A dormant judgment is not void, but only voidable, and for that reason it cannot be attacked in a collateral proceeding. Burlington State Bank v. Marlin Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 954.

As a general rule, no one has such an interest in a dormant judgment which is merely voidable that he can attack the same, except the parties thereto or their privies. Id.
Art. 3723. [2332] [2275] On death of defendant, no execution for money.

Collateral attack.—A sale on execution is inoperative and may be attacked, directly or collaterally, when the judgment shows on its face that it was against one who was dead at the time of its rendition, or when it is shown that he died after the judgment was rendered. (Distinguishing Taylor v. Snow, 47 Tex. 461.) Hooper v. Carteruthers, 75 Tex. 432, 15 S. W. 98.

Dissolved corporation.—Statute has no application to dissolved corporations. Richardson v. Allison (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 252.

Art. 3727. [2336] [2279] Execution for property shall issue.

Situs of property.—Clerk of a county district court without authority to issue an order of sale, requiring the sheriff of another county to sell lands lying still in another county. De Guerra v. De Gonzalez (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 896.

Sheriff of a named county held entitled to make sale of tracts of land, part of which only were within the county after readjustment of the county lines subsequent to the execution of mortgage, but was not authorized to sell lands lying wholly in the new county. Id.

Art. 3729. [2338] [2281] Requisites of an execution.

Description of judgment.—An execution, which names only one plaintiff, although there are several plaintiffs, names one as the only defendant, and misstates the date on which it is issued, is defective, and for such defects, coupled with the inadequacy of the price, the sale will be set aside. Irvin v. Ferguson, 83 Tex. 491, 18 S. W. 820.

Statement of amount.—Execution based in part on a valid judgment, is not wholly void, though in part based on another void judgment, rendering it excessive and voidable, or subject to correction. Simmons v. Arnim, 110 Tex. 509, 229 S. W. 66, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 184.

Where a judgment was a valid lien to the extent of the portion not assigned by the judgment creditor, an alias execution for the sale of land was not invalid because for the full amount of the judgment. Ives v. Culon (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 921.

Defect in an execution in including excessive charges for costs renders it merely irregular, but not void. Brown v. Bonougli (Sup.) 222 S. W. 490.

Mortgage foreclosure.—Subdivision 3 of this article contemplates mortgage foreclosure sale. Chandler v. Riley (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 716.

Art. 3730. [2339] [2282] Returnable, when.

Cited, Irvin v. Ferguson, 83 Tex. 491, 18 S. W. 820.

Return day.—The clerk cannot, by an indorsement "returnable in sixty days," make the writ returnable after the expiration of the statutory limit. Cain v. Woodward, 74 Tex. 549, 12 S. W. 319.

Sale after return day.—A sale of land under execution made after time for return is void. Robinson v. Morning Dry Goods Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 535.

Art. 3733. [2342] [2285] On death, etc., of officer, enforced by successor.

See Wolf v. Taylor, 65 Tex. 666, 5 S. W. 855.

Art. 3735. [2344] [2287] Levy of execution.

Art. 3736. [2345] [2288] Failure of defendant to designate property.

Property not subject to execution.—Property is in custodia legis. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Ryan (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 642.

No part of a spendthrift trust estate in the hands of the trustee could be taken on execution by any creditors of the custei qute trust. Hoffman v. Rose (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 494.

Order of sale.—Execution sale of cultivated lands will not be enjoined, unless debtor establishes that he owned personality or uncultivated lands within county at date of application for writ sufficient to satisfy judgment. Dickinson v. Comstock (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 863.

Cultivated lands may be levied upon after sheriff has exercised due diligence to have judgment debtor point out uncultivated lands, etc., to satisfy levy. Id.

Art. 3739. [2348] [2291] Levy on real estate.

Indorsement on execution.—Lien attaches as of the time of indorsement on writ and is not affected by the act of the officer in going upon the land. Riordan v. Britton, 69 Tex. 192, 7 S. W. 66, 5 Am. St. Rep. 57.

Art. 3740. [2349] [2292] On personal property.

Third party entitled to possession.—As to claimant's right to possession, see Watson v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 958.

Art. 3741. [2350] [2293] On stock running at large.

See Willis v. Thompson, 85 Tex. 301, 20 S. W. 155.

Art. 3742. [2351] [2294] Levy on shares of stock.

See Willis v. Thompson, 85 Tex. 301, 20 S. W. 155.

Art. 3743. [2352] [2295] Interest of partner.

Sufficiency of levy.—Manner of levy on partnership property cannot be questioned by claimant, who is not a party to the partnership. Watson v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 958.

 Levy of attachment.—Attachment debtor giving replevy bond cannot claim attachment was invalid, because not made as prescribed by this article. Wells v. Cloud (Civ. App.) 292 S. W. 331.

Art. 3744. [2353] [2296] Goods pledged or mortgaged.

See Willis v. Thompson, 85 Tex. 301, 20 S. W. 155; Burns v. True, 5 Civ. App. 74, 24 S. W. 338.

Cited, Gunter v. Cobb, 82 Tex. 598, 17 S. W. 848.

Rights and remedies of mortgagee or pledgee.—While the pledgee cannot be deprived of possession, he cannot complain of or resist a levy where his right of possession had not been interfered with. Briggs v. Briggs (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 611.

Art. 3745. [2354] [2297] Shares of stock may be sold.

Cited, Smith v. Traders' Nat. Bank, 74 Tex. 467, 12 S. W. 113.

Art. 3746. [2355] [2298] Duty of officer as to property in his hands.

See Freiberg v. Johnson, 71 Tex. 558, 9 S. W. 455.

Validity of execution.—The fact that the judgment was dormant by failure to have execution issued within a year does not make the execution, subsequently issued, void. and it is the duty of the officer to obey it. Cleveland v. Tittle, 3 Civ. App. 191, 23 S. W. 8.

Art. 3748. [2357] [2300] Defendant may give delivery bond and keep property.

Art. 3751. [2360] [2303] Real property sold, how.

Sale after return day.—A sale after time for return is void. Robinson v. Monning Dry Goods Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 525.

Hour of sale.—An execution sale may be made at any time between 11 and 12 o'clock under a notice that it will be made at 11 o'clock. Wagner v. Hudler (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 100.

Art. 3753. [2362] [2305] Lots in a city, how sold.

Art. 3754. [2363] [2306] Lands not in a city, etc., sold in lots.

Subdivision and sale in parcels.—Since debtor can protect himself by requiring sales in 50-acre lots, execution sale will not be enjoined because value of land grossly exceeds judgment. Dickinson v. Comstock (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 863.

1132
Mortgage foreclosure.—In mortgage foreclosure sale, owners may divide land and have it sold in lots, under this article. Chandler v. Riley (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 716.

But see Chandler v. Young (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 484.

Art. 3755. [2364] [2307] Sale of lots shall cease, when.

Art. 3756. [2365] [2308] Expenses of selling lots, how paid.

Mortgage foreclosure.—See note under art. 3754.

Art. 3757. [2366] [2309] Notice of sale of real estate.
See 1918 Supp., arts. 6016½-6016¾, as to publication in newspaper instead of posting.

Notice to tenant—Necessity and sufficiency.—Omission from sheriff's return to an order of sale of name defendant's attorneys on whom order was served renders return defective. Turner v. Maury (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 255.

Costs.—As to objection to allowance of item for advertising notice of sale under deeds of trust, see Adams v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 576.

Art. 3758. [2368] [2310] "Court house door" defined.

Art. 3759. [2369] [2310a] Sales of real estate under powers conferred by deed of trust or other contract lien; land situated in more than one county; notice; sales how made; land in unorganized county.
See 1918 Supp., arts. 6016½-6016¾c, as to newspaper publication instead of posting.

2. Trust deeds which may be foreclosed.—A sale made under a deed of trust for a sum larger than the amount with which the property is properly chargeable is not void, and a power of sale in such deed can be exercised if any part of the debt is due and owing. W. C. Belcher Land Mortgage Co. v. Taylor (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 647.

4. Power as authority for sale in general.—Where a trustee under deeds of trust or his substitute was authorized to sell the property only at the request of the beneficiary or other holder of the notes secured, the request provided for was essential to passing of title by the substitute trustee. Bowman v. Oakley (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 549.

5. Commencement, suspension or termination of power.—While an independent estate is open and pending, no valid sale can be made of the mortgaged estate by a trustee in a deed of trust, since the death of the grantor revokes the power, and since the court in certain contingencies may take charge of the estate and appoint an administrator, revoking creditor from exercising the power of sale. Fernandes v. Holland-Texas Hypoteek Bank of Amsterdam, Holland (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1004.

6. Right to foreclose.—Where surety has procured his principal to execute deed of trust to secure note upon which surety is liable, and has paid such note, he will be subrogated to rights of payee, and is entitled to foreclose lien by procuring sale by trustee under trust deed. Eustis v. Frey (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 118.

8. Authority to execute power and execution of power in general.—Interest in the debt secured does not disqualify one from acting as trustee in a trust deed, and the mortgagee may himself act as trustee. Thornton v. Goodman (Com. App.) 216 S. W. 147.

The effort of a trustee in a trust deed, as attorney of beneficiary, to collect the note secured thereby is not incompatible with his duty as trustee to make a sale in the event of its nonpayment. Id.

In such case the court will scrutinize very closely every act of the trustee in the execution of the trust, but no presumption of fraud can arise from the mere relation. Id.

10. Time for exercise of power.—Where the holder of a note secured by deed of trust was authorized by the note on default of payment of installment to declare the whole obligation due, the trustee's sale of the land on election by the holder of the note to declare it due after default in payment of an installment was not premature. Shear Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 567.

12. Place of sale.—A sale of property under deed of trust executed prior to enactment of act was not required to be made in county in which property was situated, although time for payment had been extended after act had taken effect. W. C. Belcher Land Mortgage Co. v. Taylor (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 647.

14. Notice of sale.—A sale of land without notice by a trustee under trust deed is void, and the deed can be set aside as a cloud upon the title of the owner. Hille v. Hay (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 427.

18. Persons who may purchase.—A mortgagee may himself act as trustee in a trust deed, and become the purchaser at a sale of the property. Thornton v. Goodman (Com. App.) 216 S. W. 147.

19. Setting aside sale.—Where principal has deeded land under a trust deed to secure a loan thereon upon sale of such land under trust deed, sale will not be set aside because credit has not been given to principal for rentals due.
from surety, in absence of tender by principal of amount due under deed. Eustis v. Frey (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 118.

Sale under trust deed given for benefit of surety will not be set aside for mere inadequacy of price for which surety bought in the property, where sale was not irregular and principal was a bankrupt, and value of property was less than surety's indebtedness. Id.

Where sale of land under trust deed was set aside on the ground that appointment of substitute trustee was unauthorized, there was no election of remedies. Lewis v. Powell (Civ. App.) 265 S. W. 137.

A sale under a trust deed cannot be set aside merely because of inadequacy of price and an offer on the part of the grantors in the trust deed to pay the debt and expenses incident to the sale, even though beneficiary under the trust deed was the purchaser and has not disposed of the property. Thornton v. Goodman (Com. App.) 216 S. W. 147.

Payment by purchaser held a voluntary one, not recoverable, when the sale was set aside as invalid. Hayner v. Chittim (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 279.

21. Title and rights of purchaser.—Purchaser at trustee's sale under power in deed of trust, second lien, held to acquire superior title to purchaser under prior foreclosure of first lien, vendor's lien, to which second lienholder was not party, but subject and subordinate to vendor's lien. Houston v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1121.

Purchaser, at trustee sale, under deed of trust, is not entitled to crops growing and unmatured at time of sale as against assignees of crop-sharing rental contract. Sanger Bros. v. Hunsucker (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 514.

Where land is rented under crop-sharing rental contract, and, while crops are growing, is sold under deed of trust, and, after sale, a portion of the land is replanted by tenant under agreement with purchaser, assignees of rental contract are entitled to the rent crop share of the replanted crops as against purchaser. Id.

Rental contract, entered into by purchaser under deed of trust with tenant in possession, with knowledge of tenant's rental contract with former owner, and assignment of rents thereunder, of no effect as against assignees. Id.

Where the purchasers of land from a substitute trustee under deeds of trust by his deed were not relieved from necessity of inquiring into and ascertaining whether the trustee had been empowered to sell by having been requested so to do by the beneficiary or holder of the deed, it made no inquiry, the purchasers assumed the trustee had power at their peril, and where he was without power his sale was void. Bowman v. Oakley (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 549.

Where the substitute trustee under deeds of trust sold the land without authority because not on request of the beneficiary or holder of the notes secured, the purchasers are not protected as bona fide purchasers. Id.

An instrument executed without consideration by a payee in vendor's lien notes releasing all claims in the land to a purchaser at a sale under a trust deed would not support a plea of innocent purchaser, as against a lien note which the payee had previously assigned to a third person. Benton v. Jones (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 193.

A purchaser at a sale of land under a trust deed acquires no more than the deed of trust gives him. Id.

When there is a foreclosure under power of sale in a deed of trust, the owner is not an actor in the transaction, and cannot sever the crops or rents by reserving them at the time of sale. Roberts v. Armstrong (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 371.

And see Hayner v. Chittim (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 279.

24. Fees and costs.—As to objection to allowance of item for advertising notice of sale, see Johnson v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 578.

25. Operation and effect.—One having a lien under a deed of trust has no title to wood cut and removed prior to foreclosure. Chavez v. Schalier (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 892.

Where principal has conveyed land under trust deed to secure his surety and also conveys the same land to another in order to create lien, in favor of such other subject to main indebtedness for which conveyance was made under the trust deed, upon foreclosure of deed of trust by exercise of power of sale, principal held to be in no position to set up that foreclosure was void because second mortgagee was not a party. Eustis v. Frey (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 118.

Art. 3759c. Judicial sales of property of soldier or sailor prohibited for one year.—All sales under execution, Deed of Trust, Mortgage or lien of property belonging to soldiers or sailors now in the service of the United States during the present war or who have been in such service and honorably discharged is hereby prohibited for twelve months after the discharge of any such soldier or sailor, and any sale made in violation of this law shall convey to the purchaser no right or title. Provided, however, such soldier or sailor may waive the benefits of this Act by doing so in writing duly acknowledged before some person authorized by law to take acknowledgments. Provided further that all statutes of limitation shall be suspended during the twelve months after such discharge as to any debt, right, or cause of action against such soldier or sailor. And provided further that the provisions of this Act shall apply only to such soldier and sailor defendants as are, in the discretion of the trial court, necessary parties defendant to the pending litigation, and then only to such debts as were contracted by such soldier or sailor prior to his enlistment or draft into the army or navy of the United States. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 63, § 1.]

Took effect March 13, 1919.

Art. 3761. [2371] [2312] Notice of sale of personal property.

See 1918 Supp., arts. 6016%–6016½c, as to newspaper publication instead of posting.

Art. 3762. [2372] [2313] Personal property present at sale, except.

Art. 3763. [2373] [2314] Sale of stock running in range.

See Gunter v. Cobb, 52 Tex. 598, 17 S. W. 488.

Art. 3765. [2375] [2316] Conveyance to purchaser.

Recitals.—Recital in sheriff's deed that it was made under alias execution on a judgment, after proper levy and advertisement, is not, long after date of such deed, conclusive, but merely some evidence such execution was issued and levied. Menefee v. Colley (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 182.

A sheriff's deed reciting that it was made by virtue of an execution issued on a judgment is insufficient to support title without evidence of the judgment or execution. Atkinson v. Citizens' State Bank of Giddings (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 998.

Title acquired by purchaser.—Only the right, title, and interest of the judgment debtor is sold to the purchaser on execution. Lewis v. San Antonio Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 921; Houston v. Shear (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 976; Robinson v. Monning Dry Goods Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 535.

As to redemption from liens by purchaser at sale, see Houston v. Shear (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 976.

Rights of purchaser at mortgage foreclosure sale are subject only to liens acquired previous to sale. Bomar v. Smith (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 964.

A subsequent purchaser of land subject to a vendor’s lien who assumed the payment of the note secured by the lien and whose interest was sold under execution is not liable to the purchaser at the execution sale on the assumption of the lien for the amount bid for the land, since the execution sale covered only the judgment debtor’s interest in the land, which was his right thereto subject to the lien. Bidwell v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 941.

Possession of purchaser.—Purchaser at execution sale who paid off liens, held entitled to recover possession. Houston v. Shear (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 976.

Art. 3768. [2378] [2318] Purchaser deemed innocent.

Cited, Rankin v. Bell, 55 Tex. 28, 19 S. W. 874.

Notice.—Actual possession of land by grantees by deed on condition subsequent put purchaser at execution under judgment against grantor on inquiry as to rights under which grantees claimed. Arnold v. Scharff (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 528.

Art. 3769. [2379] [2319] Penalty for making sale otherwise than as authorized by law.

Art. 3770. [2380] [2320] Officer or deputy shall not purchase.

Tax sale.—A conveyance of title purchased under a tax sale, to a deputy of the sheriff is voidable, under this article. Davis v. Howe (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 609.

Art. 3771. [2381] [2321] Purchaser failing to comply.

Construction of "twenty per cent."—This article does not apply if nothing is really sold, as where property of execution defendant passed into custody of bankruptcy court before sheriff attempted to sell. Archenhold Co. v. Schaefer (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 135.
Art. 3774. [2384] [2324] Money to be paid over.

Money of debtor in hands of sheriff.—A sheriff into whose hands money comes by virtue of an execution in favor of one person may apply it in satisfaction of an execution, in his hands at the time of the collection, against such person. Branscum v. Reese (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 871.

Art. 3775. [2385] [2325] Failure to pay over money.

Art. 3776. [2386] [2326] Failure to levy or sell, penalty for.

Form of proceeding.—Plaintiff's "petition" against sheriff and sureties on bond for misdelivery, etc., of property sold on execution held to entitle him to relief, though it was not denominated a "motion." Buckholts State Bank v. Thallman (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 687.

Art. 3777. [2387] [2327] Failure to return execution.

Art. 3779. [2389] [2329] Return of execution.

Sufficiency of return.—Omission from sheriff's return to an order of sale of the name of defendant's attorneys on whom the order was served, as required by art. 3757, renders the return defective. Turner v. Maury (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 255.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT OF TITLE IN GENERAL

3. Suppression of competition at bidding.—Where purpose of release of one of judgment debtors was his elimination from bidding at execution sale, transaction was fraudulent at law. Ives v. Culott (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 619.

Mortgage foreclosure sale held subject to be set aside, it appearing that by reason of an agreement for redemption competition was stifled. Chandler v. Young (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 484.

7. Grounds for setting aside sale—Inadequacy of price.—The sheriff in selling property under execution is merely the agent of the creditor and debtor, and it is his duty to secure the best results for both. Wagner v. Hudler (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 100.

Mere inadequacy of price will not avoid a sale of land upon execution. Graves v. Griffin (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 913. See, also, Houston v. Shear (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 976.

8. — Inadequacy of price combined with other objections.—Mere irregularity in connection with gross inadequacy of consideration is insufficient to vacate a sale, unless the irregularity in some way contributed to that inadequacy, although, when the price is enormously inadequate, slight irregularities will be sufficient to justify setting aside the sale. Houston v. Shear (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 976.

As to effect of inadequate price combined with defects and irregularities, see Wagner v. Hudler (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 100.

9. Estoppel to set aside sale.—Husband's negligence held not imputable to wife, and did not prevent the setting aside of the sale of homestead. Wagner v. Hudler (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 100.

13. Actions to set aside sale—Tender.—In action to cancel sheriff's deed on ground that purchaser promised owner to reconvey on owner's payment of price paid for land by purchaser, it was not necessary for owner to actually tender the money admitted to be due and owing to purchaser into court; an offer to do equity and to perform such decree as the court may enter being sufficient. Chandler v. Riley (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 716.

16½. — Payment into registry.—In a suit to set aside an execution sale, the court could have required the sheriff to pay the money collected by him under execution into the registry of the court. Wagner v. Hudler (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 100.

18. Collateral attack on sale.—That plaintiff's title rested on purchase at execution sale for inadequate consideration did not make the sale an absolute nullity, which could be urged in a collateral proceeding in trespass to try title, brought by such purchaser. Hopkins v. King (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 360.

Unless a sale of real estate under execution is absolutely void, it cannot be attacked collaterally in trespass to try title. Graves v. Griffin (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 913.

24. Wrongful execution.—When real or personal property had been levied on by a writ of execution, to which the claimant or owner is not a party, he may resort to his

EXEMPTIONS

CHAPTER ONE
PROPERTY EXEMPT FROM FORCED SALE

Article 3785. [2395] [2335] Property exempt from, to every family.

See Moton v. Hull, 77 Tex. 80, 13 S. W. 849, 8 L. R. A. 722.

5. Family.—Under the Texas law, a surviving widow, when the head of a family, may acquire a homestead estate. Woodward v. Sanger Bros., 246 Fed. 777, 159 C. C. A. 79.

7. Unmarried persons.—Six unmarried brothers living in the same house with their four unmarried sisters and with their aged, widowed father, who was unable to perform labor of any kind, constituted “family” within exemption laws. Kiggina v. Henne & Meyer Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 494.

While the wife and adult unmarried daughter of deceased could hold his homestead, the wife could not acquire a new homestead where no obligation rested upon her to support the adult daughter. Quintana v. Giraud (Civ. App.) 260 S. W. 779.

Where an unmarried woman, living with her parents and two sisters purchased a house and lot adjoining the family homestead, and after the death of the mother and the destruction of the family home by fire the father and daughters moved into such house, and they were not dependent on any one member of the family as the head of the family, the daughters being self-supporting, and the father, if dependent on any, being dependent on all, the premises did not constitute a homestead. Hutchinerider v. Smith (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 985.

8. Persons divorced or living apart.—In view of Const. art. 16, §§ 49-51, a divorced father, who had not been legally deprived of the custody of his son or daughter, with whom the son was living, except for temporary absences, and who contributed to the daughter’s support, though she was living with her mother, held the “head of the family,” entitling him to exemption of his automobile. John E. Morrison & Co. v. Murff (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 212.

11. Household furniture.—Widow with child occupying a house of seven or eight rooms, held entitled to hold exempt the furniture in the rooms occupied by boarders. Mueller v. Richardson, 82 Tex. 361, 18 S. W. 693.

13. Tools and apparatus belonging to trade or profession.—Machinery may not be set aside as tools or apparatus of trade, where run by other power than hand. Peyton v. Farmers’ Nat. Bank of Hillsboro, Tex. (C. C. A.) 361 Fed. 326.

19. Milk cows.—Animal suckling a cow that is being milked would be a “calf” within the liberal construction of the exemption statute, and “bull yearlings,” if over

1. But one homestead allowed.—One person cannot have an urban and a rural homestead at the same time. First National Bank v. Porter (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 463.

2. Estate or interest sustaining homestead right.—That mortgagee had not acquired good title to a tract upon which he actually resided did not affect his residence, for the purpose of establishing homestead. First National Bank v. Porter (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 463.

3. A son after his fraudulent conveyance to his mother had no title or interest in the land to which a homestead exemption could attach in his favor. Stevens v. Cobern, 10 Tex. 574, 213 S. W. 935.

4. Divorced wife held entitled to a writ of possession for her separate property as against husband claiming homestead right therein. Landers v. Landers (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 359.

5. Property held in trust by a son for his mother cannot be impressed with homestead rights for the son’s wife. Witt v. Witt (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 277.

7. A son, living with his widowed mother upon land which she claimed as her homestead, was precluded from asserting a homestead interest in the same land which she claimed as homestead, merely an interest in remainder is without any right to possession necessary to found a claim of homestead. Massillon Engine & Thresher Co. v. Barrow (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 368.

8. Leasehold.—A mere cropper has no such title to a crop as will support a plea of homestead. Watson v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 298 S. W. 985.

9. Tenants in common.—Where tenants in common live upon a large tract of land, each occupying different parts as their respective homesteads, the homestead interest of each extends through the entire tract, and upon partition each of the tenants is entitled to a homestead containing not exceeding 200 acres. Massillon Engine & Thresher Co. v. Barrow (Civ. App.) 265 S. W. 933.

10. Intent to acquire homestead.—While actual occupancy of the land is not, under all circumstances, indispensable, there must be something more than mere intention.
Chap. 1)

EXEMPTIONS
Art. 3786

where there has been no actual occupancy as a homestead, such as an existing bona fide intention to dedicate it as a homestead, evidenced by some unmistakable acts showing an intention to carry out such design. Markum v. Markum (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 835.

Purchaser of land for the purpose of acquiring a homestead as the head of a family for use and occupation for such purposes acquires a homestead right, protected to his

11. Use and occupation as homestead necessary.—Bankrupt held not entitled to a house, as a living homestead, never having occupied it, nor taken preparatory steps, nor declared his intention to occupy it as a home. Peyton v. Farmers' Nat. Bank of Hils­

Appellee held not to have a homestead in land, having only made declaration of intention, unaccompanied by acts showing the land was set apart solely for homestead

To constitute a homestead, there must be actual occupancy and use as such, or an intention to do so, coupled with some acts indicating the intention. Evans v. Fortner

(Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 626.

The mere fact that the husband, when he married, had the intention at some time to occupy as a homestead the land involved in a subsequent trust deed, did not impress it with the character of homestead, where in fact such intention was never consummated. Murphy v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1059.

To impress farm with homestead character, under Const. art. 16, § 51, the land must have been used for the purposes of a home. Blackwell v. Lassetter (Civ. App.) 296

S. W. 619.

To constitute a homestead, actual occupancy of the land is not, under all circum­

Where purchased adjoining homestead purchased an actual homestead, and where the tracts comprised less than 200 acres, the land so purchased became a part of the homestead at time of purchase, though owners at such time were not living upon homestead. Barbee v. Lundy (Civ. App.) 213

S. W. 297.

Owners' designation of land as their homestead, combined with user of rents therefrom, was not sufficient to impress the land as a homestead, where the residence actually occupied by them as a home was four miles distant therefrom, since land, to constitute a homestead, must be impressed with the incidents of a home. Lassetter v.

Blackwell (Com. App.) 277 S. W. 944.

12. Character and mode of use or occupancy.—Defendants, by remaining on homestead as tenants at sufferance after sale and until they could obtain possession of newly acquired homestead, held not to have made new designation of the property sold as

Since it is the principal use which must be looked to, to determine whether land is a homestead, the mere use on rural homestead of grubbed-out stumps taken from a detached tract did not show use of such tract as a homestead: the principal purpose of removing them being to clear the land for cultivation. Blackwell v. Lassetter (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 619.

Where husband is a soldier, land may be impressed in the character of a homestead, although the husband and wife never lived together on the land. Markley v. Barlow

(Civ. App.) 294 S. W. 1013.

The homestead interest of tenants in common is not confined to the land actually inclosed by them, but is coextensive with their undivided interest in the entire tract, and, so long as it is unpartitioned, it is not within their power to designate their homestead by metes and bounds. Massillon Engine & Thresher Co. v. Barrow (Com. App.) 291

S. W. 368.

As to tenants in common who had inclosed part of the tract, and were living thereon as their homestead, their homestead right extended to their undivided interest in the whole tract. Id.

13. Purpose of occupancy and use.—The right attaches to land purchased for a home in March by one who, before a levy in November following, begins to prepare it for occupation by such acts as clearly show an intention to live on it with his family within a reasonable time. White v. Wadlington, 75 Tex. 159, 14 S. W. 298.

In determining whether, under the Texas laws, an aged and infirm person had a homestead estate in land, the condition of such person should be considered in determining whether the property was devoted to homestead purposes. Woodward v. Sanger Bros., 246 Fed. 777, 159 C. C. A. 79.

The fact that a 160-acre tract of land was devoted to brining in an income used for the support of the family living on another tract did not alone constitute a user of the 160-acre tract for the purpose of a home. Blackwell v. Lassetter (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 619.

15. Business homestead.—Bankrupt's mill being on leased land, he is not en­titled to have set aside, as part of his business homestead, machinery is it, though con­stituting fixtures, nor appurtenances on the lot, outside the building. Peyton v. Farmers' Nat. Bank of Hilsboros, Tex. (C. C. A.) 261 Fed. 326.

In order to impress the character of a business homestead on property, the claim­ant must have been actually employed in a business there. Hutchensridge v. Smith (Civ.

App.) 228 S. W. 989.

Where an unmarried daughter bought a house and lot adjoining her parents' homestead, took charge of it, rented the rooms in it, returned it for taxation and exercised all the rights of ownership over it, it was not the father's business homestead. Id.
18. Character of homestead as urban or rural.—In determining whether a homestead is urban or rural within the meaning of the Constitution, it is not necessary that it be located within an incorporated city or town. O’Fiel v. Janes (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 371.

The platting of a homestead and laying it out into lots and blocks and streets and filing the plat with the county clerk does not constitute it urban property, unless in fact it is located in a town or village. Id. within a town or village.

18. Extension of corporate limits.—When a rural homestead is taken in by a city and the city grows out to the property and the owners thereof voluntarily cut the same up into lots and blocks and dedicate the streets and alleys to the public, it loses its homestead character. O’Fiel v. Janes (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 371.

20. Separate tracts or lots.—Land in controversy, being detached from the tract upon which the home is located, cannot become a part of the homestead by anything less than would be necessary to designate the homestead originally. Blackwell v. Lasserter (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 619.

Intention of the parties to make a farm their homestead is insufficient to impress a tract of land with a homestead character, when such land is detached from the premises upon which the rural home of the parties is situated. Id.

The mortgagor is entitled to claim three detached rural tracts as a homestead, if their total acreage was less than 200 acres. First National Bank v. Porter (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 462.

Under Const. art. 16, § 51, the right of homestead in disconnected tracts of land depends on the actual use made of the land, and in determining the homestead character the intent of the owner as evidenced by his declarations negating homestead quality are not to be considered. First Nat. Bank of McGregor v. Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co. (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 344.

Under Const. art. 16, § 51, a block of land not improved, but inclosed by fence, and used occasionally, by the owner, who resided on property across the street, as a pasture and for agriculture, the whole property not exceeding the value named, constituted a part of the owner’s homestead. Id.

Where 156-acre tract of land was situated about a mile from 15-acre tract on which owner lived, and owner was not a part of the tract owner had designated as his homestead in executing a mortgage, and where owner divided his attention between mercantile business and farming doing most of the farming by hired help, he had no homestead rights in the 156-acre tract. Moore v. Monnnig Dry Goods Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 760.

A piece of land separated from the tract on which the dwelling is situated may be so used as to make it a part of the homestead. Johnson v. Russell (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 352.

Tearing down fences between the homestead of a family and adjoining property owned by an unmarried daughter and putting an automobile belonging to one or both places in a garage on one of the lots did not make the daughter’s property a part of the homestead. Hulcridier v. Smith (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 988.

21. Part of building.—An apartment over a store in a building which was the separate property of the wife, which was fitted up as a dwelling and occupied by the wife and her son and by her husband whenever his business permitted him to be in town, was the homestead of the husband and wife, in the absence of any evidence that the husband claimed a home elsewhere. Kelly v. Nowlin (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 372.

The homestead, as constitutionally defined, is not restricted to the rooms actually occupied as such, but includes the lot on which the building stands, if that is owned by the owner of the dwelling. Id.

24. Evidence of homestead right.—Evidence held insufficient to establish homestead character of detached tract, income from which was used for support of the family. Blackwell v. Lasserter (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 619.

Evidence held not to support finding that owners of rural homestead who purchased adjoining land did not intend to make purchased land a part of the homestead. Barbee v. Lorry (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 257.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that mortgagor had acquired another homestead at the time the mortgage was given. Bayless v. Guthrie (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 131.

27. Abandonment of homestead.—The husband, has the right to abandon homestead rights on either separate or community property, while acting in good faith. Bishop v. Williams (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 612; Hudgens v. Thompson, 109 Tex. 452, 211 S. W. 586; Kelly v. Nowlin (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 373.

Husband cannot, under any and all cases, divest property of homestead character, which has once attached, so as to defeat wife’s right in same as homestead, by merely declaring intention of abandoning property as homestead. Hart v. Hulsey (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 302.

When a homestead has been acquired it remains such until it has been abandoned or another homestead acquired. Robinson v. McGuire (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 418.

Where a rural homestead consists of two or more tracts of land, the homestead claim to one or more of them may be abandoned. O’Fiel v. Janes (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 371.

The husband cannot perpetrate a fraud on the wife causing the abandonment of one homestead and the loss of another intended homestead. Bell v. Franklin (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 181.

29. Consent of wife.—Husband’s right to abandon homestead without wife’s consent, when in doing he acts in good faith, is not dependent on wife voluntarily leaving the property and ceasing to use it as her home. Bishop v. Williams (Civ. App.) 233 S. W. 512.

29. Absence from homestead and other acts.—Where husband in good faith, without intention to defraud wife, abandons property as homestead, and removes without intention to occupy as homestead, and is followed by wife, homestead is abandoned by her. Huley v. Huley (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 1059.

Instruction that if the land was the separate property of the husband, and his wife was not living with him at the time of the execution of the deed of trust, the land was not a homestead, held properly refused. Murphy v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1059.

Continuous absence from homestead is not controlling fact as to abandonment, but simply an evidentiary fact, so that, where no other homestead has been acquired, it must be clear that there has been total abandonment with intention not to return. Al- derete v. Moseley (Civ. App.) 300 S. W. 291.

That for several years defendant and her family did not reside upon lot in question, and that during part of that time she and her husband resided in another state, does not necessarily disclose an abandonment of defendant's homestead rights in lot. Robinson v. McGuire (Civ. App.) 235 S. W. 415.

To show abandonment of homestead by wife who had not been living with husband, it was incumbent upon defendants not only to establish a separation, but to show that wife left husband and home without good cause and without his consent. Markley v. Barlow (Civ. App.) 294 S. W. 1013.

The permanent appropriation of a part of the homestead tract to an inconsistent use is an abandonment thereof. Lipscomb v. Adamson (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 925.

Cultivation of land does not disprove previous abandonment of the land as a homestead, and owner may, without intending to make it his home again, cultivate, rent, or otherwise utilize the property after removal. Bishop v. Williams (Civ. App.) 233 S. W. 512.

Where the homestead is the separate property of the wife, her declaration, on leaving it for a health resort, that she never expected to live there again, without any statement denying the right of her son and husband to continue to occupy it as a homestead, was no abandonment of the homestead by the wife, as her intention to return would be conclusive against the husband, where the homestead was her separate property. Kelly v. Nowlin (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 373.

30. Intent to return to homestead.—To constitute abandonment it must be shown that discontinuance was accompanied by an intention never to resume use of property as a homestead. Robinson v. McGuire (Civ. App.) 293 S. W. 416.

Where only dwelling shown to have been upon homestead was removed, and there was no evidence of any intention to return building or build a new one, and the husband had purchased, occupied, and used homesteads in other places for long periods of time, intention to return will be held to have been abandoned. Chalk v. Daggett (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1057.

Upon ownership of a bona fide intention not to return, property becomes subject to the payment of his debts. Henderson v. Texas Moline Plow Co., 109 Tex. 466, 111 S. W. 975.

Husband may abandon homestead rights in his separate property by removal, without wife having notice of his intention to so do. Bishop v. Williams (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 512.

31. Acquiring other residence or homestead.—Mere acquisition and occupancy of a home in another state is not conclusive proof of abandonment of a homestead. Robinson v. McGuire (Civ. App.) 293 S. W. 415.

The acquisition of a new homestead is not a condition precedent to the exercise of the other or right of abandonment of the whole homestead. Hudgins v. Thompson, 109 Tex. 433, 211 S. W. 586.

When wife voluntarily leaves homestead, and goes with husband elsewhere, and the husband believing that he is doing what is best for himself and family, without any intention to defraud his wife, forms the intention in his own mind never to return, and use the property as a homestead, the property ceases to be a homestead as soon as such removal and intention concur, though no other homestead has been acquired. Bishop v. Williams (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 512.

Where a husband and wife moved from their former homestead to a rented place because of disagreements between the wife and children by a former marriage, and intent to remain there only temporarily and then to move on a tract of 400 acres on which they intended to make their home, and the wife continuously claimed the former homestead as such until they moved on the 400-acre tract, there was no abandonment of the former homestead until the new homestead was designated as such. Bell v. Franklin (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 181.

There can be but one homestead, and until a new homestead is acquired there can be no abandonment of the old one by the act of the husband alone. Id.

Where a wife was induced by the husband to move on a tract of land owned by him for the purpose of aiding him in holding off his creditors until he could sell the land, by persuasion and influence and promises that they would move upon another tract as their homestead, the wife acquired no homestead rights therein and did not abandon the right in the former homestead which she continued to claim until they moved on the tract intended as a new homestead. Id.

A husband, acting in good faith, may select the homestead of the family, and when he has acquired a new home, and his wife has removed with him to the newly acquired homestead, a prior deed made by him without her concurrence to the former homestead becoming an estoppel in the title as an operative as an owner, the property, and the wife's right, being that of homestead only, ceases when a new homestead has been acquired and she removes therefrom. Fisher v. Gulf Production Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 450.

32. — Conveyance or sale.—Abandonment of homestead on sale and conveyance held question of fact, though defendants remained in possession until they could obtain possession of a newly acquired homestead. Jones v. Lanning (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 443.

Where husband and wife, having homestead on three lots, conveyed one lot to wife's sister to have house built on it to rent, other part of lots being sufficient for homestead and occupied by husband and wife as such, lot on which house was built was segregated as part of homestead, and lost character, and mechanic's lien attached. Ferguson v. Smith (Civ. App.) 296 S. W. 966.

An executory contract to sell a homestead does not as a matter of law deprive it of its homestead character; but the contract is a circumstance to be considered by the jury in determining the issue of abandonment. O'Fiel v. Janes (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 371.

An offer to sell homestead property is not necessarily inconsistent with an intention to return and reoccupy the property as a home if not sold. Dunlap v. English (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 829.

33. — Renting or leasing.—Portion of homestead separated from the remainder by a fence on which was a small house rented at times, held not segregated and abandoned as a part of the homestead. Whitley v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 172.

Whether homestead was rented temporarily only is to be determined by physical facts and circumstances as well as owner's testimony. Thornton v. Wear (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1658.

Findings that tenant houses were built on homestead property as a sole means of support for the family, and were never intended to be sold, but were to be kept for the use of their children, are consistent with a finding that premises had been abandoned as a homestead, notwithstanding Const. art. 16, § 51. 1d.

The provision as to temporary renting of homestead does not apply until after the homestead character is once established. Blackwell v. Lasseter (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 619.

Where one leased his homestead for six years and moved to another state, then intending to return and live upon the homestead, which intention he had not abandoned at the time of its sale or on execution, the sale was void. Spikes-Nash Co. v. Manning (Civ. App.) 294 S. W. 374.

The erection of a building upon a portion of the homestead tract with no view of making it a part of the homestead, but with the intention of renting it, is an abandonment of such portion of the tract. Lipscomb v. Adamson Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 228.

34. — Waiver.—The mere filing, by a widower, of suit to partition homestead, which was not prosecuted but abandoned and suit changed to one of trespass to try title claiming all the land, did not constitute a waiver or abandonment of homestead rights set up in reply to the answer of defendants claiming title to part of the land. Berry v. Godwin (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 191, reversing order (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 39.

Where a husband and wife borrowed money from intervener to purchase lot and erect building, agreeing to give a lien thereon before moving therein, thy acquired no homestead title to the homestead property prior to an abandonment thereof, and, where in the lien they agreed that no homestead claim of either could defeat the lien, neither could do so, so long as the indebtedness was enforceable against either of them. Benavides v. Houston Ice & Brewing Ass'n (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 385.

35. — Evidence.—An abandonment of an old homestead before the acquisition of a new one may be shown by the most clear, conclusive, and undeniable evidence. Bell v. Franklin (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 181; Dunlap v. English (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 229.

In suit to cancel deed of trust, evidence held to warrant findings that premises had been abandoned as homestead by plaintiffs, and that they were not their homestead on execution of deed of trust, so that latter was valid lien. Hart v. Huley (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 302.

On issue whether renting of homestead property was temporary only, physical facts and circumstances may be of such probative force as to control against owner's testimony. Thornton v. Wear (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1028.

Evidence held insufficient to show that defendant wife had abandoned her homestead right in property in controversy. Robinson v. McGuire (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 415.

In action for specific performance of a contract for conveyance of land, facts, including defendant's contract of sale with another, held to show conclusively that the defendant had abandoned the tract of land as a homestead, so that he could transfer it without the consent of his wife. Hudgins v. Thompson, 109 Tex. 435, 111 S. W. 586.

Under Const. art. 16, § 52, the fact that plaintiffs' children were not living with him when suit was filed was not conclusive that he had abandoned his homestead; nor would it follow, from that fact alone, that he was not entitled to assert a homestead right in the land. Berry v. Godwin (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 191, reversing order (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 39.

Evidence held to show that removal of grantor and his family from the property was with the intention on his part never to return and use it again as a homestead, and that in so removing with such intention he was not actuated by any purpose to defraud his wife. Bishop v. Williams (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 512.
That husband, after abandonment of homestead, deeded it to his mother without any pecuniary consideration, does not necessarily show that his prior abandonment of the property was for the purpose of defrauding his wife. Id.

Evidence in a suit for specific performance of a contract to convey merely showing that the defendants removed from the property, rented it and expressed a willingness to sell held not to show abandonment of homestead rights. Dunlap v. English (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 829.

In a suit wherein defendant children, as tenants in common, claimed homestead rights as against foreclosure of a lien, evidence held not to sustain allegation that they had designated such homestead, so as to estop them from claiming homestead rights in a larger tract. Massillon Engine & Thresher Co. v. Barrow (Civ. App.) 235 S. W. 933.

37. Conveyance or incumbrance of homestead.—See notes under arts. 1115, 4821.

38. Conveyance or incumbrance of homestead—How made.—Where it was always stipulated that title was to pass only through mutual deeds, the title to homestead property did not pass until delivery of deeds. Henderson v. Texas Moline Plow Co., 109 Tex. 466, 211 S. W. 973.

44. Effect of abandonment or termination of homestead right.—If, when the husband executes a deed of trust on his land, his wife is living separate and apart from him, and in abandonment of him, with no intention of ever living with him again, or on the property as a homestead, the land is not a homestead in contemplation of law. Murphy v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1059.

Under Const. 1876, art. 16, § 50, an attempted mortgage of a business homestead by the husband was absolutely void, and cannot give independent title to an assignee. Where mortgage of business homestead by husband joined by wife was absolutely void under Const. 1876, art. 16, § 50, the subsequent abandonment of property as a homestead did not give it any validity, and the mortgagee's conveyance to others by husband's direction in consideration of grantees' payment of husband's indebtedness to mortgagee passed no title to the grantees. Id.

47. Estoppel to deny validity.—Where plaintiff, in reliance upon written and verbal statements of defendants, that lot No. 11 alone was their homestead, made a loan secured by a mortgage on lot No. 12, defendants cannot defeat loan by setting up that lot No. 12 was in fact their homestead. Turrentine v. Doering (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 802.

A wife is not estopped from asserting her homestead rights by fraudulent acts of her husband in borrowing money on the homestead, where he did not join him in the fraudulent acts. Markley v. Barlow (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1013.

An husband and wife, who conveyed lot, part of homestead, to wife's sister to have house for rental purposes built, constituted wife's sister their agent to act in executing lien agreement with builder, and in fixing liens against lot, and as against mechanic's lienor and successors are estopped to assert lot was their homestead. Ferguson v. Smith (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 966.

Judgment foreclosure mortgage is not res adjudicata against wife who was not made a party to the suit, and in no way affects her homestead right. Barbee v. Lundy (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 257.

Insolvent owner of lots, who recognized conveyance made by his assignee, held estopped to claim a homestead right in an alley. Boynton v. Milmo (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 510.

the title to the wife as her separate estate, since no title was vested in him. Harrison

49. — Rights of bona fide purchasers.—That a purchaser of property subject to a lien to which knowledge of vendor's recognition of the validity of the lien estops him to deny its validity, notwithstanding any unrevealed intention on the part of the purcipient subsequently to contest its validity on the ground that the property constituted

52. Judgment as lien against homestead.—Divorced wife's homestead held not subject to husband's judgment lien for improvements paid for out of community funds.

A judgment lien does not come within the operation of Const. art. 15, § 50, which provides that no mortgage, trust deed, or other lien on a homestead shall ever be valid,

A judgment lien attached to all the property as soon as it was abandoned as a homestead. Id.

Art. 3787. Proceeds of sale of homestead exempt for six months.

Proceeds of exempt property.—Where proceeds from voluntary sale of homestead are transferred without consideration to third party and are not reinvested within six months from such sale, they can be garnished by seller's creditor. Simmons-Newcombe Co. v.
Malin (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 281.

Proceeds of homestead sold for education and maintenance of minor heirs, without order for use or investment in a homestead, held not exempt from children's creditors for six months. Ridling v. Murphy (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 166.

Involuntary conversion.—Proceeds from voluntary sale of homestead are subject to garnishment after six months from sale. Simmons-Newcombe Co. v. Malin (Civ.
App.) 198 S. W. 281.

Proceeds of insurance.—Where machinery which had become part of realty constituting homestead was insured in favor of chattel mortgagee of machinery, proced of policy were not subject to garnishment by mortgagee during the six months following time when mortgagor had a right to demand it of insurance company. Walter

Art. 3788. [2397] [2337] Property exempt to others than families.

Tools and apparatus belonging to trade or profession.—This exemption applies to property owned and held in partnership, as well as to property owned in severalty. St.
Louis Type Foundry v. International Live-Stock Printing & Publishing Co., 74 Tex. 651, 12 S. W. 842, 16 Am. St. Rep. 870.

Art. 3792. [2401] [2341] Homestead exemption does not apply,

See Ellerman v. Wurz (Sup.) 14 S. W. 333.

Purchase money.—Where purchaser before maturity, etc., of notes given partly for purchase price of land, had knowledge by recitals therein that vendee's husband and wife, occupying premises as a homestead, gave deed to vendor, who in turn deeded to husband, held purchaser was entitled to judgment for full amount of notes, but only to lien on premises for amount owing on land at date notes were executed. Thomas v. Ash
(Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 670.

While piano purchased on installments is exempt from execution for purchaser's general debts, it is not exempt from sale to satisfy the unpaid installments secured by a
W. 162.

Where the owner of a lot not fully paid for contracted for the building of a house thereon, and subsequently, being unable to meet his payments, rescinded the contract of purchase, destroyed his unrecorded deed, and had title taken in the name of the contractor, who in turn conveyed it back to the owner, retaining a vendor's lien, the homestead right of the owner attached before the transfer was made, the lot having been dedicated for that purpose, and the dedication having been completed when the improvements were begun, so that as to parties with notice no valid lien could be created to secure the antecedent debt. Martin v. Granger (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 666.

Makers of vendors' lien notes could not defeat foreclosure of lien by claiming land as homestead, where makers had joined mother in executing mortgage on land to vendors at time when the property was mother's exclusively, and where mortgage was unpaid at time of conveyance of land to vendors and reconveyance to makers. Jones
v. Fing (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 777.

Purchasers could not defeat foreclosure of vendors' lien on ground that land was a homestead because of having lived on land prior to execution of vendors' lien notes.
Where, prior to the execution of such notes, the purchasers had, by a conveyance made in good faith and fully consummated, conveyed land to vendors, notwithstanding Const.
art. 16, § 59. Id.
Loans and advances for purchase money.—Surviving wife, tenant in common of homestead with her children to save it from threatened foreclosure of vendor’s lien, had the right to extend time of payment of purchase-money note by making new note to third party who took over purchase-money notes from vendor, and to execute deed in trust binding her interest and that of the children in the homestead to secure such note. See W. O. Taylor (Com. App.) 211 S. W. 647.

Where time of payment of purchase money for homestead was extended by execution of deed in trust of homestead to secure note to third party who took over purchase-money notes from vendor, a sale under the deed in trust was valid, notwithstanding that note to third party was in excess of the amount of indebtedness secured by vendor’s lien. Id.

Surviving wife had the right to bind her interest in homestead by deed of trust for purpose of extending time for payment of purchase price, and could convey the homestead to buyer for the purchase price. See Rev. St. 1879, art. 2534, in force at such time, though she had remarried at time of execution of deed in trust; the transaction being to preserve her separate estate and being merely a change in the form of the indebtedness, and not the creation of a debt. Id.

Under Const. art. 16, § 50, deed of trust of homestead was illegal and void as to portion of loan not representing purchase money. Amicable Life Ins. Co. v. Slovak (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 200.

Where part of debt secured by deed of trust on homestead represented purchase price, and note prior to sale under deed of trust owner had commenced action to have deed of trust declared void, because not constituting a valid lien on homestead, and had offered to pay lender that portion of loan representing purchase price, and where court in its judgment required owner to pay such portion of indebtedness to lender, and ordered sale of homestead to enforce payment upon owner’s default, sale under such deed of trust conveyed no title to lender. Id.

Taxes.—Since the homestead is protected under the Constitution, failure of homestead owners to appear and contest special assessments for public improvements does not estop them from interposing a plea of homestead. City of San Antonio v. Spears (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 703.

Under Const. art. 16, § 50, a lien declared by a city under an ordinance against a homestead to secure payment for material and labor furnished by a paving company, held a nullity. Creosoted Wood Block Paving Co. v. McKay (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 822.

A lien in a contract for street improvements to secure payment to contractor covering homestead and given by widow, if construed as mortgage, is invalid, under Const. art. 16, § 50. Schutz v. Dabney (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 342.

A lien, voluntarily created by an instrument executed by a husband and wife against homestead property in favor of a paving contractor, is subordinate to a prior mortgage. Creosoted Wood Block Paving Co. v. McKay (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 822.

Divorced wife’s homestead held not subject to husband’s judgment lien for improvements paid for out of community funds. Barber v. Barber (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 586.

The provisions of Const. art. 16, § 50, and art. 5631, do not prescribe that a contract for improvement of the homestead of husband and wife, subject it to forced sale, shall insure value received for the moneys expended. Turbeville v. Book (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 814.

Lien on homestead of husband and wife for improvements held fixed by a contract in writing complying with Const. art. 16, § 50, and art. 5631. Id.

Where contract for the improvement of the homestead of husband and wife erecting a building complied with Const. art. 16, § 50, and art. 5631, the resulting lien is enforceable against the homestead, though the building as finished cost more than the contract called for, where the wife knew of such changes and increase in cost. Id.

A widow’s contract, granting paving contractor lien on homestead to secure her indebtedness to the contractor for payment of the street, held valid, notwithstanding Const. art. 16, prohibiting partitioning during the lifetime of the surviving wife. Dabney v. Schutz (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 176.

A note securing a lien may be made payable to a third party by agreement. Barber v. Herring (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 412.

Loans and advances for improvements.—The fact that an advancement was a loan to husband and wife to improve their homestead did not avoid the effect in fixing lien for the money so borrowed, under the provisions of Const. art. 16, § 50, and art. 5631, where all of the loan was used for such purpose. Turbeville v. Book (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 814.

The fact that money lent husband and wife to improve their homestead was turned over to the husband by the contractor to pay for material and labor does not vitiate the lien of the loan. Id.

Pre-existing liens.—Intent at time property was acquired after abandonment of former homestead to use the property so acquired as a homestead held a dedication rendering it exempt from the lien of existing judgment. Jones v. Lanning (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 443.

A homestead could be acquired in community property purchased after an abstract of judgment had been filed, recorded, and indexed, so as to render it exempt from the judgment lien. Id.

Attorneys’ fees.—Where note secured by deed of trust contained stipulation for attorney’s fees in amount equal to 10 per cent. of the entire debt and vendor’s lien note taken up by plaintiff provided for attorney’s fees at same rate and being part of consideration for lot, their homestead fees is not available against collection of such note to attorney’s fees. Blackmon v. Texas Securities Co. (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 590.

A lien created by instrument executed by a husband and wife against a homestead, in favor of a paving contractor is not security for a 10 per cent. attorney's fee provided for therein, although such fees are enforceable as a personal liability. Cresoted Wood Block Paving Co. v. McKay (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 822.

Landlord's lien.—A landlord's lien is superior to the claim of a widow and her minor children to an allowance in lieu of property exempt from forced sale. Stokes v.
Burney, 3 Civ. App. 218, 22 S. W. 126.

Lien on proceeds of insurance.—Under an agreement between mortgagee and mortgagor that the latter will insure the property for the benefit of the mortgagee, the latter has an equitable lien on the proceeds of the policy, even though the property itself was exempt from forced sale. Mosley v. Stratton (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 397.

Article 3794. [2403] [2343] Voluntary designation of, and who may set aside homestead in the country.

Designation of rural homestead out of part of larger tract.—Since defendant was not entitled to entire section as a homestead, court was not bound to recognize her plea of homestead, where she did not point out specific 200 acres that constituted her hom­

Designation of homestead in the manner provided by statute is not necessary to establish a homestead right, but is contemplated only where the head of a family has more than 200 acres, which have been impressed with the homestead character, and de­s­ nires to withdraw the excess from homestead protection. Green v. West Texas Coal Mining & Developing Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 548.

Wife's consent to designation.—The husband, as the head of the family, has the right

Art. 3795. [2404] [2344] Mode of setting it apart.

Necessity and sufficiency of designation.—Where written designation of homestead was call of description as on bank of river, designation called for river wherever it was at time, and homesteader's grantee of remainder of homesteader's land obtained title only as to what remained after designation. Rosetti v. Camille (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 526.

Art. 3797. [2406] [2346] Excess over homestead subject to exe­

Art. 3817. [2426] [2366] Provisions of this chapter cumulative.

Marshaling assets.—Where mortgagees designated a homestead on a portion of the mortgaged premises, their homestead right became perfect, except as to the mortgage, and on foreclosure they are entitled to have the land outside the homestead first sold. Chandler v. Young (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 484.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Negligence in general.—An express company is not liable for damages to goods due solely to an unprecedented storm, which could not have been foreseen or anticipated. Wells Fargo & Co. v. Porter (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 987.

Limitation of liability.—A limitation of liability in an interstate contract of shipment to the declared value applies to a case of embezzlement by an employee of the carrier as distinguished from a conversion by the carrier itself. Henderson v. Wells Fargo & Co. Express (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 962.

A limitation of liability to the declared value in an interstate contract of shipment applies to gross, wanton, and willful negligence, making the theft or embezzlement of the shipment by an employee of the carrier easy of accomplishment and difficult of detection. Id.

The owner of goods shipped in interstate commerce under a limited liability contract, and embezzled by the carrier's employee, cannot avoid the limitation of liability by proving that the shipment and assent to the limitation were without her consent, as to the carrier's liability arises only from the contract. Id.

Under the rule of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the official express classifications filed with that commission by the express companies of the United States, providing for a limitation of liability based on the declared value of the shipment, the liability for ordinary negligence is limited to the declared value, or, if no value is declared, to the sum of $50. Id.

Express company as employer.—As to liability for negligence of joint employees, see American Express Co. v. Chandler (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 1085.
TITLES 57

FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS

Art. 3832c. Who are live stock commission merchants.—Any person, firm or corporation who shall pursue the business of selling live stock, cattle, cows, calves, bulls, steers, hogs, sheep, goats, mules, horses, jacks, and jennets or any of them, upon consignment for a commission or other charges, or who shall solicit consignment of live stock as a commission merchant or agent, or who shall advertise or hold himself out to be such, shall be deemed and held to be a live stock commission merchant within the meaning of this Act and subject to all the provisions and penalties prescribed by this Act. [Acts 1913, p. 93, § 1; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 91, § 1.]

Art. 3832d. Bond to be given.—All live stock commission merchants before they shall engage in said business within this State, are hereby required to make bond in an amount hereinafter specified, signed by some responsible surety company regularly authorized to do business under the laws of this State and having a paid up capital of not less than Five Hundred Thousand ($500,000.00) Dollars, which said bond shall be payable to the County Judge of the county in which such live stock commission merchant has his principal office or place of business, and to his successors in office, as trustee for all persons who may become entitled to the benefits of this Act, such bond to be filed in the office of the County Clerk of the county in which such commission merchant has his principal office or place of business, and in which county suits shall be instituted for any alleged breaches of said bond. [Acts 1913, p. 93, § 2; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 91, § 2.]

Art. 3832e. Conditions of bond; renewal of bond; amount.—Said bond shall be conditioned that such live stock commission merchant will faithfully obey and carry out all the terms and provisions of this Act, and will faithfully and truly perform all agreements entered into with all the consignors, owners or those holding valid liens on said live stock with respect to receiving, handling, selling and making remittances and payments of the net proceeds thereof to the said named parties, or to the person, firm or corporation to whom said consignors, owners or valid lien holders shall direct such payments to be made; and said bond shall further provide and shall be conditioned that such live stock commission merchant shall within forty-eight hours of the sale of live stock so consigned, excluding the day of sale, Sundays, and holidays, remit the net proceeds thereof to the parties rightfully entitled to receive the same, or to such person, firm or corporation to whom such parties shall direct the payment to be made, or shall within forty-eight hours of the sale of such live stock for said parties at interest deposit to the credit of such parties their respective interests in the net proceeds thereof in some state or national bank in the city or town where such live stock commission merchant has his principal office or place of business, if requested by any or all of the said parties at interest to do so.

Said bond shall be made annually and shall expire on September 1st of each year.

The amount of such bond shall be fixed by the County Judge as follows: Double the amount of the average daily sales of the stock sold on commission for the preceding twelve months period (computed upon the number of business days) by the person, firm or corporation desiring to pursue the business of a live stock commission merchant, which facts shall be made to appear to the County Judge by the sworn statement of the individual, or member of the partnership, or by the president or secretary of the corporation, seeking the approval of said bond; and provided further that any person, firm or corporation who has not theretofore engaged in the business of a live stock commission merchant shall give bond in the sum of Twenty Thousand ($20,000.00) Dollars, which shall be the minimum bond to be given under this Act. Provide, the period of forty-eight hours shall be computed, excluding the day of sale, Sundays and holidays. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 91, § 3.]

Art. 3832f. Approval of bond.—It shall be the duty of the County Judge to carefully scrutinize said bond when tendered and if satisfied therewith to approve said bond, for which service he shall be entitled to charge and collect from the applicant a fee of One ($1.00) Dollar, provided that no bond shall be approved by him which is not in the amount prescribed by the terms of this Act, and conditioned as required by this Act and executed by some surety company in good standing, and authorized to do business in this State, and having a paid up capital stock of not less than Five Hundred Thousand ($500,000) Dollars, which facts shall be first duly certified to the said County Judge by the statement or certificate to that effect issued by the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 3832g. Registration of bond; certified copy; fee.—Said bond, together with the sworn statement made to the County Judge by the applicant seeking the approval of the same and setting forth the average daily sales of such applicant for the twelve months period next prior thereto, shall, as soon as practicable after the approval of said bond by the County Judge, be filed for record in the County Clerk’s office in the county where the principal business of said commission merchant is to be carried on, and shall be recorded at length and properly indexed in a well bound book kept for that purpose, to be labeled “Bonds of Live Stock Commission Merchants” and shall also file and securely retain in the archives of his office said original bond and sworn statement, and for this service said clerk shall be entitled to charge and collect a fee of One ($1.00) Dollar.

Said clerk shall immediately upon the recording and indexing of the said bond and sworn statement furnish to the person, firm or corporation filing the same a correctly certified copy thereof, for which a fee of One ($1.00) Dollar shall be charged and collected from said commission merchant, and it is also made the duty of said commission merchant to procure said certified copy from said clerk at the earliest practicable date after the filing and recording thereof. [Acts 1913, p. 93, § 5; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 91, § 5.]
Art. 3832gg. Adverse claimants to proceeds of live stock sold; deposit in bank.—If the proceeds of any live stock sold by said live stock commission shall become involved in a dispute between contending claimants or if the said live stock commission merchant is notified that other parties are asserting rights to said proceeds, or any part thereof, in opposition to the claim of those shipping said stock to said commission merchant, it shall in such cases be the duty of said live stock commission merchant to deposit the amount of said net proceeds involved in such contention in some state or national bank in the town or city where said live stock commission merchant has his principal place of business, and to promptly notify all interested parties of his said action in the premises: whereupon no further liability as to such funds so deposited shall accrue or continue as to said live stock commission merchant, either personally or on his bond. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 91, § 6.]

Art. 3832ggg. Suit on bond; new bond.—The bond provided for by the preceding sections of this Act may be sued upon and recovery had thereon by any persons claiming to have been damaged by a breach of its conditions, provided that said bond shall not become void upon the first recovery thereon but may be sued upon until the amount thereof is exhausted, and provided further that upon a reduction of said bond by recoveries thereon to the extent of one-half thereof said live stock commission merchant shall be required forthwith to make and file a new bond conditioned as provided in Section 3 hereof [Art. 3832e] so as to restore said bond to the required amount.

If it shall come to the knowledge of the County Judge that the surety company making such bond has become insolvent or is not financially able to make the said bond ample and sufficient in the opinion of said judge, then it shall be the duty of said officer to notify said live stock commission merchant to execute a new bond as herein provided for; whereupon it shall be the duty of such live stock commission merchant to make a new bond the same as originally required by the provisions of Section 2 and 3 [Arts. 3832d, 3832e] of this Act. [Acts 1913, p. 93, §§ 3, 3a; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 91, § 7.]

Explanatory.—Sections 8, 9, 10, 11, and 12 of the act impose criminal penalties, and are set forth, post, as articles 37d, 9991 to 9994, Penal Code.

Art. 3832h. Repeal.—It is expressly declared that none of the provisions of Title 57 of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911 are affected or in any wise modified or repealed by the provisions of this Act. [Acts 1913, p. 93, § 6; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 91, § 13.]

Art. 3832i. When act becomes effective; Act 1913 repealed; repeal.—This law shall become effective September 1st, 1921. The Act of the Thirty-third Legislature, Regular Session, Chapter 49, page 93, approved March 27th, 1913, is hereby repealed but all rights and liabilities accruing under said Act shall not be in any manner affected or interfered with by the passage of this law. All laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 91, § 14.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Duty and liability in general.—Where cotton factors, who had made advances against cotton held subject to selling instructions from owner under owner's agreement, to send additional margin, sold certain amount for purpose of increasing margin after notice to owners and upon owner's failure to send additional margin, factors were not liable to owner for making such sale contrary to selling instructions. Robinson v. William D. Cleveland & Sons (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 171.

Owner, who accepted proceeds of sale, held to have affirmed sale. Id.

Compensation.—Sales agent, appointed factor by its principal for a limited time, and simply empowered to sell such automobiles as might be consigned to it by its principal during life of the contract, earned no commission on sale of machines ordered from its principal only two days before the contract expired, so that they could not arrive in time to sell before expiration of the contract. Ford Motor Co. v. Cranford Auto Co.
(Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 108.

Dealing with third persons.—Where a factor mortgaged goods belonging to his principal without the knowledge of principal or act of estoppel on principal's part, the principal's right to the goods is superior to that of mortgagee. Chase Hackley Piano Co. v. Clymer (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 214.

2. SECRETARY OF STATE

Article 3837. [2439] Fees of state department.—The Secretary of State, besides other fees that may be prescribed by law, is authorized and required to charge for the use of the State the following fees:

For each and every charter, amendment or supplement thereto of a private corporation created for the purpose of operating or constructing a railroad, magnetic telegraph line or street railway or express company, authorized or required by law to be recorded in said department, a fee of two hundred dollars to be paid when said charter is filed; provided, that if the authorized capital stock of said corporation shall exceed one hundred thousand dollars, it shall be required to pay an additional fee of fifty cents for each one thousand dollars authorized capital stock, or fractional part thereof, after the first one hundred thousand; and provided further that such fee shall not exceed the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars.

For each and every charter, amendment or supplement thereto, of a private corporation intended for the support of public worship, any benevolent, charitable, educational, missionary, literary or scientific undertaking, the maintenance of a library, the promotion of painting, music or other fine arts, the encouragements of agriculture or horticulture, the maintenance of public parks, the maintenance of a public cemetery not for profit, a fee of ten dollars to be paid when the charter is filed.

For each and every charter, amendment or supplement thereto, of a private corporation created for any other purposes intended for mutual profit or benefit, a fee of fifty dollars shall be paid when said charter is filed, provided that if the authorized capital stock of said corporation shall exceed ten thousand dollars, it shall be required to pay an additional fee of ten dollars for each additional ten thousand dollars of its authorized capital stock, or fractional part thereof, after the first, and provided further that such fee shall not exceed the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars.

For each commission to every officer elected or appointed in this State, a fee of one dollar; and each and every State, district county and precinct officer elected or appointed in this State is required to apply for and receive his commission; provided, that the Secretary of State shall not be required to forward copies of laws to nor attest the authority of any officer in this State who fails or refuses to take out his commission as required herein.

For each official certificate, a fee of one dollar.

For each warrant of requisition, a fee of two dollars.

For every remission of fine or forfeiture, one dollar.

For copies of any paper, document or record in his office, for each one hundred words, fifteen cents.

For each and every charter, amendment or supplement thereto taken out under Chapter 16, Title 25, Revised Statutes (channel and dock corporations), a fee of two hundred dollars shall be paid to the Secretary of State for the use and benefit of the State, which shall be paid when the charter, amendment or supplement thereto is filed for record; provided, that if the authorized capital stock of said corporation shall exceed one hundred thousand dollars, it shall be required to pay an additional fee of fifty cents for each one thousand dollars of its authorized capital stock, or fractional part thereof, in excess of one hundred thousand dollars; and provided further that such fee shall not exceed the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars.

Each and every foreign corporation that files with the Secretary of State a certified copy of its articles of incorporation and any amendments thereto and obtains a permit to do business in this State, and each and every foreign corporation now holding a permit to do business in this State, or shall hereafter obtain a permit to do business in this State, that shall subsequently file with the Secretary of State, a certified copy of any amendment or supplement to its articles of incorporation, such corporation shall pay to the Secretary of State as filing fees the following: fifty dollars for the first ten thousand dollars of its capital stock actually subscribed, and ten dollars for each additional ten thousand dollars or fractional part thereof; provided that in no event shall such fee exceed the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars; provided that each and every foreign corporation having a permit to do business in this State, shall be required to immediately file with the Secretary of State, of Texas, a certified copy of any amendment or supplement to its original Articles of incorporation, when any such amendment or supplement to its original Articles of incorporation is filed in the State, Territory or Foreign Country, under whose laws such corporation is incorporated, after such permit is granted; provided, that the fee required to be paid by any foreign corporation for a permit to engage in the manufacture, sale, rental, lease or operation of all kinds of cars, or to engage in conducting, operating or managing any telegraph line in this State, shall in no event exceed the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars. [Acts 1907, S. S. p. 500; Acts 1905, p. 135; Acts 1887, p. 93; Acts 1889, p. 93; Acts 1889, p. 87; Acts 1883, p. 72; Acts 1909, S. S. p. 267; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 85, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 45, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 2 of the act repeals all laws in conflict. The act took effect March 11, 1919.

See Ex parte McKay, 82 Cr. R. 221, 199 S. W. 637.

1152
Art. 3838. Minimum fees in certain cases.
See Ex parte McKay, 82 Ct. R. 221, 199 S. W. 637.

Art. 3840. Fees paid in advance to secretary and by him to treasurer monthly.

Deposit of funds.—Failure of the secretary of state to pay public moneys coming into his hands officially into state treasury is an offense. Ex parte McKay, 82 Ct. R. 221, 199 S. W. 637.

4. COMMISSIONER OF GENERAL LAND OFFICE

Explanatory.—The following note is appended to this article as it appears in Rev. Civ. St. 1911: “See Acts 1878, ch. 55, for penalty for not paying fees and taking out patents.”

The act took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

CHAPTER TWO

CLERKS OF THE SUPREME COURT AND COURTS OF CIVIL APPEALS.

Art. 3847a. Salary of clerks of courts of civil appeals.

Article 3847a. Salary of clerks of courts of civil appeals.—The Clerks of the Courts of Civil Appeals of Texas shall hereafter receive an annual salary of Three Thousand ($3,000.00) Dollars, payable in equal monthly installments and the same shall be paid out of the general revenues of this State. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 78, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 3847b. Payment of costs collected into treasury.—Said Clerks of said Courts of Civil Appeals shall collect and pay into the Treasury of the State of Texas all costs to be, and that are, collected by him, under such laws as now exist or may hereafter be enacted, under such further rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Comptroller, subject to the approval of the Judges of said Courts. [Id., § 3.]

CHAPTER THREE COUNTY OFFICERS

2. CLERKS OF THE DISTRICT COURT

Art. 3855. Fees of clerks of the district court.

4. SHERIFFS

Compensation for ex officio services.

7. COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

Per diem pay of county commissioners.

8. ASSESSOR OF TAXES

Assessors’ compensation.

9. COLLECTOR OF TAXES

Collectors’ compensation.

10. COUNTY TREASURER

County treasurers’ commissions.

11. DISTRICT AND COUNTY SURVEYORS

District and county surveyors’ fees.

2. Clerks of the District Court

Art. 3855. Fees of clerks of the district court.

Filing papers.—The provision giving clerks a fee for “filing each paper,” refers only to papers forming part of record proper, and is inapplicable to letters introduced in evidence. Texas Brewing Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 211.

Assessing damages.—A clerk of court is not entitled to a fee for “assessing damages,” where judgments were entered upon agreement. Texas Brewing Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 211.

4. Sheriffs

Art. 3866. Compensation for ex officio services.—For summoning jurors in district and county courts, serving all election notices, notices to overseers of roads, and doing all other public business not otherwise provided for, the sheriffs may receive annually not exceeding one-thousand dollars, to be fixed by the commissioners court at the same time other ex-officio salaries are fixed, to be paid out of the general funds of the court on the order of the commissioners court. Provided, however, that no such ex-officio salary shall be allowed to any sheriff who had received the maximum salary allowed by law. [Acts 1905, p. 91; Acts 1920, 36th Leg., 3d C. S., ch. 43, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after June 18, 1920, date of adjournment.

Authority of commissioners’ court.—Under art. 3893, and this article, an allowance to a sheriff of a county of about 4,000 inhabitants of $1,600 for ex officio expenses is invalid as to all sums in excess of $600. Veltman v. Slater, 110 Tex. 195, 217 S. W. 378.

7. County Commissioners

Art. 3870. Per diem pay of county commissioners.

Constitutionality of local act.—Under Const. art. 3, § 56, article 8, § 9, as amended, Bexar County Road Law, providing for annual salary for commissioners of county for acting in all capacities, is unconstitutional as an attempted regulation of county affairs by local and special act. Altgelt v. Gutzelt, 109 Tex. 123, 211 S. W. 400.

Maximum compensation.—The per diem allowed county judges by this article, is properly regarded as compensation or salary for ex officio services, and the county judge, having received the maximum compensation allowed him under the maximum fee bill, is not, under article 3893, entitled to retain such per diem as additional compensation. Ward v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 722.

Art. 3870a. Counties of certain population.—Hereafter each county commissioner in counties having a population of as much as twenty-three thousand three hundred and fifty and less than twenty-nine thousand according to the last United States census, may receive twelve hundred dollars per year, payable monthly, as compensation for all services rendered of whatsoever nature, whether in connection with the roads of the county or in connection with other county business. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 69, § 1.]
Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

8. Assessor of Taxes

Art. 3871. Assessors' compensation.—Each assessor of taxes shall receive the following compensation for his services, which shall be estimated upon the total value of the property assessed as follows: For assessing the State and County taxes: on all sums for the first Two Million Dollars ($2,000,000.00), or less, Five Cents (5c) for each One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) of property assessed; and on all sums in excess of Two Million Dollars ($2,000,000.00), and less than Five Million Dollars ($5,000,000.00) Two and one-fourth cents (2¼c) on each One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) and on all sums in excess of Five Million Dollars ($5,000,000.00), one and seven-tenths cents (1.7) on each One Hundred Dollars ($100.00); one-half of the above fee shall be paid by the State, and one-half by the County; for assessing the taxes in all drainage districts, road districts, or other political subdivisions of the county, the assessor shall be paid one-half of one cent for each One Hundred Dollars of the assessed values of such districts or subdivisions; provided such compensation as is paid to the assessor to be prorated among the various drainage districts, road districts and other political subdivisions of the county according to the value of the property assessed in each district, or other political subdivision; and for assessing the poll tax, Five Cents (5c) for each poll which shall be paid by the State. The Commissioners' Court shall allow the assessor of taxes such sums of money to be paid monthly from the county treasury, as may be necessary to pay for clerical work, taking assessments and making out the tax rolls of the county, such sums so allowed to be deducted from the amount allowed to the assessor as compensation upon the completion of said tax rolls; provided, the amount allowed the assessor by the Commissioners' Court shall not exceed the compensation that may be due by county to him for assessing. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 8, § 8; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 158, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., 2d C. S., ch. 57, § 1.]
Took effect July 28, 1919.

9. Collector of Taxes

Art. 3872. Collectors' compensation.—There shall be paid for the collection of taxes as compensation for the services of the collector, beginning with the first day of September of each year, five per cent. (5%) on the first Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00) collected for the State, and four per cent. (4%) on the next Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00) so collected for the State, and one (1%) per cent. on all collected over that sum; for collecting the county taxes, five per cent. (5%) on the first Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00) of such taxes collected and four per cent (4%) on the next Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00) collected, and one and one-fourth per cent. (1¼%) on all such taxes collected over that sum. For collecting the taxes in all drainage districts, road districts, or other political subdivisions of the county, the tax collector shall be paid one half of one per cent. (½%) on all such tax collected; provided that the amount to be paid the tax collector shall be paid by the various drainage districts, road districts, or other political subdivisions of the county on a pro rata basis in accordance with the amount collected for such districts; and in counties owing subsidies to railroads, the collector shall receive only one per cent (1%) for collecting such railroad taxes, and in cases where property is levied upon and sold for taxes, he shall receive the same compensation as allowed by law to sheriffs or constables on making the levy and sale, in similar cases, but in no case to include commission on such sales; and on all occupation and license taxes collected five per cent. (5%). [Acts 1897, S. S., p. 8, § 9; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 158, § 2.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

10. COUNTY TREASURER

Art. 3873. [2467] [2403] County treasurers' commissions.

Power to fix compensation.—See Hunt County v. Greer (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 605.

The order of the commissioners fixing compensation of county treasurer at a stated salary is void. Rusk County v. Hightower (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 902.

Rate.—An order of the commissioners' court, that the "county treasurer is allowed a commission on receipts and disbursements not to exceed $1,200 a year for the next ensuing year," was not void for limiting the amount of the commission to $1,200, nor because it did not fix the rate of the commission. Wood County v. Leath (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 454.

Compensation as treasurer of drainage and navigation districts.—Additional compensation as treasurer of drainage and navigation districts allowable. Charlton v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 969.

Commissions, if illegally retained, are not voluntarily paid by the county so as to bar their recovery. Id.

Art. 3874. [2468] Commissions on school fund.

See Charlton v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 969; note under art. 3873.

Art. 3875. [2469] [2405] Commissions not to exceed $2000 annually; proviso.—The commissions allowed to any county treasurer shall not exceed two thousand dollars annually, provided, however, that in all counties in which the assessed value of the property of such counties shall be one hundred million dollars, or more, as shown by the last preceding assessment roll, the treasurers thereof shall receive as their commissions a sum not exceeding two thousand seven hundred dollars annually. [Acts 1879, ch. 69, p. 79; Acts 1891, p. 147; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 35, § 1, amending art. 3875, Rev. Civ. St.]

Took effect 90 days after June 18, 1920, date of adjournment.

See Charlton v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 969; note under art. 3873.

Right to statutory compensation.—An order of the commissioners' court, that the "county treasurer is allowed a commission on receipts and disbursements not to exceed $1,200 a year for the next ensuing year," held valid. Wood County v. Leath (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 454.

Act of commissioners' court of county in fixing treasurer's salary at $1,200 per annum, where the treasurer under the law was entitled to commissions to a maximum amount of $2,000, held illegal, and not binding upon treasurer, but he waived his right by acceptance without protest. Hunt County v. Greer (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 665.

11. DISTRICT AND COUNTY SURVEYORS

Art. 3876. [2470] [2406] District and county surveyor's fees.

Surveying land under water.—The statutory fees for surveying land held inapplicable, where the land was under water. Redus v. Blucher (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 613.
CHAPTER FOUR
GENERAL PROVISIONS

Art. 3880. Official failing to take out commission shall not receive fees or compensation.

See Charlton v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 968.

Art. 3881. Maximum amount of fees allowed.

See Veltmann v. Slator (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 530; Bexar County v. Davis (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 558.

Amendment of statute.—Intention to alter or change provisions of this article cannot be inferred from fact that it was in revision of statute placed under a title which contained a statute relating to a different matter. Harris County v. Hammond (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 445.

Maximum compensation of county judge.—Where a county judge has retained fees up to the maximum allowed by the statute, he cannot retain commissions for making a sale of drainage bonds. Ward v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 792.

Maximum compensation of sheriff.—Amounts allowed a sheriff by commissioners' court, within limitations prescribed by statute, for safe-keeping, feeding, and care of prisoners, cannot be included in estimating maximum amount of fees a sheriff may retain. Harris County v. Hammond (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 445; Harris County v. Hammond (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 451.

This article should not be construed so that maximum compensation of sheriff will be reduced by his having to pay out of his own pocket necessary expenses of conducting his office. Harris County v. Hammond (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 445.

Sheriff required to account for fees earned in tax suits, art. 3924 not applying. Id.

Assessor's maximum compensation.—Amounts paid county assessor for assessing taxes, for drainage and school districts held "fees," within arts. 3881, 3883, 3889, and not compensation for "ex officio services," within art. 3893. Nichols v. Galveston County (Sup.) 228 S. W. 547.

Collector of taxes.—Under Acts 25th Leg. (Sp. Sess.) c. 5, approved June 16, 1897, as amended by Acts 25th Leg. (Sp. Sess.) c. 15, approved June 19, 1897, county collectors of taxes who were to receive only 10 cents for each poll tax receipt and certificate of exemption issued by them were those subject to all requirements of sections 11 and 16. Moorman v. Terrell, 109 Tex. 173, 202 S. W. 727.

Tax collector held entitled to retain 10 cents for each poll tax receipt issued by him in addition to maximum fees allowed him by maximum fee law. Curtin v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 453.

A county tax collector is not entitled to receive and retain as his own, in addition to amount allowed by the maximum fee law compensation provided by arts. 785b, 786a, for making up delinquent tax rolls and collecting delinquent taxes. Id.

Maximum compensation of district attorneys.—District attorneys held not relieved from operation of the law fixing maximum compensation. Bexar County v. Linden, 110 Tex. 255, 220 S. W. 761, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 478.

Art. 3882. Maximum fees in certain counties.

See Moorman v. Terrell, 109 Tex. 173, 202 S. W. 727; note under art. 3881; Bexar County v. Davis (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 558.
Art. 3883. Maximum fees in certain counties.—In counties containing a city of over twenty-five thousand inhabitants, or in such counties as shown by the United States census of 1910 shall contain as many as thirty-seven thousand inhabitants, the following amount of fees shall be allowed, viz: county judge, an amount not exceeding thirty-five hundred dollars per annum; sheriff, an amount not exceeding thirty-five hundred dollars per annum; clerk of the county court, an amount not exceeding twenty-seven hundred and fifty dollars per annum; county attorney, an amount not exceeding thirty-five hundred dollars per annum; district attorney, an amount not exceeding twenty-five hundred dollars inclusive of the five hundred dollars allowed by the Constitution and paid by the State; clerk of the district court, an amount not exceeding twenty-seven hundred and fifty dollars per annum; collector of taxes, an amount not exceeding twenty-seven hundred and fifty dollars per annum; assessor of taxes, an amount not exceeding twenty-seven hundred and fifty dollars per annum; provided, the compensation fixed herein for sheriffs and their deputies shall be exclusive of any rewards received for the apprehension of criminals or fugitives from justice; provided further that all county clerks in such counties having a population in excess of thirty-seven thousand and a city not in excess of fifteen thousand, as shown by the United States census of 1910, and constituting a separate judicial district, shall be exempt from the Texas fee bill for the year 1920, and shall not be required to make an annual report for the said year of 1920. [Acts 1907, p. 501; Acts 1913, p. 246, § 1; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 130, § 1; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 40, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The act amends "Article 3883 of the General Laws of the State of Texas passed by the Thirty-fifth Legislature at its Regular Session."

Took effect 90 days after June 18, 1920, date of adjournment.

See Grayson County v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 249; Bexar County v. Davis (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 558; Nichols v. Galveston County (Sup.) 228 S. W. 547; note under art. 3881.

County clerk.—Compensation allowed county clerks in delinquent tax suits by art. 7591 must be reported, accounted for, and considered in reaching maximum compensation of such clerks. Jones v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 207.

District attorney.—The word "fees," includes commissions on forfeited bail bonds. Bexar County v. Linden (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 478.

See Bexar County v. Davis (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 558.

Art. 3885. District attorney, compensation of.

See Bexar County v. Davis (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 558.

Art. 3886. County judge, compensation of.

See Bexar County v. Davis (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 558.

Art. 3888. Amounts allowed to be retained out of fees collected; state not responsible.

See Harris County v. Hammond (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 445; note under art. 3881.

Art. 3889. Fees, how disposed of; excess fees.—Each officer named in this Chapter shall first, out of the fees of his office, pay or be paid the amount allowed him under [the] this provisions of this Chapter, together with the salaries of his assistants or deputies. If the fees of such office collected in any one year be more than the amount needed to pay the amount allowed such officer and his assistants and deputies, same shall be deemed excess fees and such excess fees such officer in counties having less than twenty-five thousand inhabitants shall retain one-fourth until such one-fourth amounts to the sum of Twelve Hundred Dollars; and in counties having between twenty-five and thirty-eight thousand inhabitants such officer shall retain one-fourth of the excess fees until such one-fourth amounts to the sum of Twelve Hundred and Fifty Dollars; and in Counties having more than thirty-eight thousand inhabitants such officer shall retain one-fourth of the excess fees until such one-fourth amounts to the sum of Fifteen Hundred ($1,500.00) Dollars. Such population to be based on the United Census next preceding any given year. All fees collected by officers named in Article 3881 to 3886 of the Revised Statutes of 1911 during any fiscal year in excess of the maximum amount allowed by law, and of the one-fourth of the excess of the maximum amount allowed for their services, and for the services of their deputies or assistants as herein provided for shall be paid into the county treasury of the county where the excess accrued; provided that in counties of less than twenty-five thousand inhabitants by such last preceding United States census, and which counties constitute a separate judicial district. "The chief deputy or first assistant of the officers named in this Chapter shall receive a sum not to exceed a rate of eighteen hundred dollars per annum, and the other deputies or assistants a sum not to exceed a rate of fifteen hundred dollars per annum, and the limitations as to the pay of deputies and assistants elsewhere, provided, in this Chapter shall not apply in such Counties." [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 9, § 11; Acts 1907, p. 50; Acts 1913, p. 246, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 158, § 3; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 20, § 1.]

Take effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment. See Moorman v. Terrell, 109 Tex. 173, 203 S. W. 727; Nichols v. Galveston County (Sup.) 228 S. W. 547; note under art. 3881.

Constitutionality.—The provision requiring district attorneys to pay into the county treasury the excess fees of their office, held not violative of Const. art. 3, § 51, as amounting to grant of public money to counties of the state as municipal corporations. Bexar County v. Linden, 110 Tex. 326, 220 S. W. 781, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 478.

Art. 3893. Compensation for ex-officio services, when may be allowed by commissioners' court; proviso.

See Veltman v. Slater, 110 Tex. 198, 212 S. W. 378; note under art. 3866; Veltman v. Slater (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 530; Nichols v. Galveston County, 228 S. W. 547; note under art. 3881.

Constitutionality.—Acts 33d Leg. c. 121, amending this article, held valid, reference being sufficient, though Const. art. 3, § 36, requires the law as amended to be set out at length, the amendment, though changing the law, not amounting to a substitute. Ward v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 792.

Effect as repeal.—This provision repealed the provision of the act creating county court, which allowed the commissioners to fix ex officio compensation for the county judge. Ward v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 792.

County judge.—The per diem allowed county judges by art. 3870, is properly regarded as compensation or salary for ex officio services, and the county judge, having received the maximum compensation allowed him under the maximum fee bill, is not entitled to retain such per diem as additional compensation. Ward v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 792.

County attorney.—Allowance authorized as the word "fees," as used in the Constitution, is to be given its ordinary legal significance. Veltman v. Slater, 110 Tex. 198, 217 S. W. 378.

Art. 3894. Officials named in articles 3881 to 3886 to keep accounts; duty of grand jury and district judge as to.

See Harris County v. Hammond (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 445; Grayson County v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 249.

Collector of taxes.—As to poll tax, see Moorman v. Terrell, 109 Tex. 173, 202 S. W. 727.

Art. 3895. Officers to make sworn statement, etc.

See Harris County v. Hammond (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 445; Grayson County v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 249.
Art. 3897. Monthly report; statement of expenses; audit, etc.

Expenses of sheriff.—Charges paid in civil cases in which county was not a party, sums advanced to indigent witnesses, expenses of conveying defendants in felony cases, and expense of obtaining requisition, are properly credited to sheriff. Harris County v. Hammond (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 445.

Sheriff held not entitled to credit for amount expended for gasoline and repair of his automobile used in performing duties of office in determining maximum amount of his fees. Id.

District attorney.—See Bexar County v. Linden, 110 Tex. 339, 220 S. W. 761; reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 478.

Officers required to report.—See Moorman v. Terrell, 109 Tex. 173, 202 S. W. 727.

Art. 3903. County commissioners may authorize appointment of deputies and assistants; assistants for district and county attorneys in certain counties; compensation; repeal; special deputy clerks in counties having several courts.—Whenever any officer named in Article 3881 to 3886 shall require the services of deputies or assistants in the performance of his duties, he may apply to the county commissioners court of his county to appoint such deputies or assistants and said court may make its order authorizing the appointment of such deputies and fix the compensation to be paid them and determine the number to be appointed, provided that in no case shall said commissioners court or any member thereof attempt to influence the appointment of any person as deputy or assistant in any office, and thereupon the officers applying for such deputies shall be authorized to appoint them as now provided by law, provided that said compensation shall not exceed the maximum amounts hereinafter set out. Provided that in counties having a population in excess of one hundred thousand inhabitants, the district attorney of the district or the county attorney of such county or counties where there is no district attorney is authorized, when empowered to so do by the commissioners court of said county, to appoint not to exceed two assistants in addition to his regular deputies or assistants, the number of said additional assistants not to exceed two for the entire district regardless of the number of counties it may contain, which two assistants shall not be required to possess the qualifications prescribed by law for district and county attorneys and who shall perform such duties as may be prescribed by such district or county attorney and each such assistant shall receive as compensation not to exceed one hundred and fifty dollars per month to be paid monthly out of the funds of the county for which appointment is made, by warrants drawn on such county funds; provided that nothing in this Act shall repeal or modify any salary or compensation fixed for either regular or special assistant district or county attorneys by any special Act which has been or which may be hereafter enacted; and provided further that in counties having a population in excess of one hundred thousand inhabitants, the district attorney in the county of his residence or the county attorney, where there is not a district attorney, shall be allowed by order of the commissioners court of the county where such official resides such amount as said court may deem necessary to pay for the proper administration of the duties of such office, not to exceed seventy five dollars per month; such amount to be allowed upon affidavit of said district or county attorney showing a necessity for such expenses and for all the amounts so incurred, said commissioners court may also require any other evidence as it may deem necessary to show the necessity of such expenditure and its judgment in allowing same shall be final.
The maximum compensation which may be allowed for deputies or assistants to the officers named in said Articles 3881 to 3886 for their services, shall be as follows, to-wit:

First assistant or chief deputy not to exceed eighteen hundred dollars per annum; other assistants or deputies not to exceed fifteen hundred dollars per annum each.

Provided that in counties having a population of from thirty-seven thousand five hundred to one hundred thousand inhabitants, the maximum compensation which may be allowed such deputies or assistants for their services shall be as follows, to-wit:

First assistant or chief deputy not to exceed twenty-one hundred dollars per annum; heads of such department not to exceed eighteen hundred dollars per annum each, other deputies or assistants not to exceed fifteen hundred dollars per annum each.

Provided that in counties having a population in excess of one hundred thousand inhabitants the maximum compensation that may be allowed such deputies or assistants for their services shall be as follows, to-wit:

First assistant or chief deputy not to exceed twenty-four hundred dollars per annum; heads of each department not to exceed twenty-one hundred dollars per annum each; other deputies or assistants not to exceed eighteen hundred dollars per annum each.

Provided that in counties having a population of from thirty-seven thousand five hundred to one hundred thousand, and containing a city of over twenty-five thousand, the maximum compensation that may be allowed such deputies or assistants for their services shall be as follows, to-wit:

First assistant or chief deputy not to exceed twenty-four hundred dollars per annum; heads of each department not to exceed twenty-one hundred dollars per annum each, other deputies or assistants not to exceed eighteen hundred dollars per annum each.

Provided further that in determining the number of inhabitants in each of the instances heretofore mentioned, the number of inhabitants as shown by the last United States census shall control.

The county commissioners court in each order granting authority to appoint deputies or assistants shall state the number of deputies or assistants authorized and the amount of compensation to be allowed each deputy or assistant, which compensation shall be paid out of the fees of the office to which such deputies or assistants may be appointed and assigned, and shall not be included in estimating the maximum fees of the officers prescribed in said Articles 3881 to 3886; such salaries to be paid out of the fees of the office in the following manner:

First, out of any current fees collected, and second, if such fees are not sufficient, then out of any delinquent fees collected which are due the county after all legal deductions are made and if there be any balance remaining after payment of the maximum fee, compensation and excess fees due such officer or officers and the compensation of such deputy or deputies, such balance shall be paid to the county treasurer.

Provided, however, that nothing in this Act shall be construed to repeal H. B. 196, passed by the Regular Session of the Thirty-sixth Legislature, same being known as Chapter 47, of the Acts of the Regular Session of the Thirty-sixth Legislature, page 83, [Arts. 340a-340g] relating to fixing salaries of district attorneys, their deputies, assistants and stenographers in counties having a population of more than one hundred thousand.

Provided that in counties of two hundred thousand inhabitants and over and containing a city with a population of over 160,000 inhabitants according to the last United States census, and in which counties there are more than one District Court, including criminal District Courts, the Clerk of the District Courts shall appoint a special deputy for each such Court when directed so to do by the Judge of any such court, except in instances where there is one now already provided for by law; provided further that any such special deputy shall be paid out of the general fund of the county, a salary not in excess of the maximum salary per annum provided for deputies now by law, payable monthly and such compensation shall not be paid out of the fees or compensation of the District Clerk, and shall not be taken into consideration in arriving at the maximum compensation and excess fees allowed the Clerk of the District Courts. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 10, § 12; Acts 1913, pp. 246, 280, § 1; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 55, § 1; Acts 1920, 36 Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 32, § 1; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 96, § 1.]

Appointment of deputies and assistants by county judge.—County judge, held not empowered to appoint deputies or assistants for himself and compensate them out of fees collected by him. Bexar County v. Davis (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 558.

Art. 3915. [2485] [2421] Penalty for demanding, etc., fees unlawfully.

Liability imposed by statute.—A suit to recover four times the amount of excessive fees charged by a county surveyor, is one for a penalty. Redus v. Blucher (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 613.

Fee to surveyor.—To recover the statutory penalty it must appear that application for survey, was made to surveyor in proper county, and that land surveyed was situated in such county. Redus v. Blucher (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 613.

Art. 3921. [2492] [2428] Preceding articles, etc., do not apply to executors, etc.

Guardian and ward.—This article applies only to an adjudication against estates of minors under guardianship in probate court, and not to one against "minors" or "estates of minors" having merely a guardian ad litem. Simmons v. Arnim, 110 Tex. 309, 220 S. W. 66, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 184.

A judgment creditor of a minor whose person or property is not under the jurisdiction of the probate court in a guardianship proceeding, need not institute proceeding for execution of his judgment. Id.

Art. 3924: [2495] Any other fees of office.

See Curtin v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 453.

Application of statute.—See Jones v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 207.

Since this article placed by codifiers in this title, did not, before amendment of provisions of such title fixing maximum fees of officers, affect same, it is not now applicable to said provisions. Harris County v. Hammond (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 446.

Fees of sheriff.—Sheriff required to account for fees earned in tax suits. Harris County v. Hammond (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 445.

Art. 3925. [2495a] State's attorney fees in school land litigation.

See Ward v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 792.

TITLE 59

FENCES

Article 3927. [2496] [2431] “Sufficient fence” defined.

Contributory negligence.—Upon a finding that an owner has failed to surround his land with a fence sufficient to exclude stock of ordinary disposition, the law conclusively presumes him guilty of negligence precluding recovery for trespass. Phillips v. Crow (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 851.

1164
TITLE 61

FORCIBLE ENTRY AND DETAINER

Art. 3942. [2521] [2442] Other cases of forcible detainer.

Improvements.—In forcible detainer against tenant at will, refusing to pay increased rent, and also refusing to vacate, no issue as to tenant's right to reimbursement for value of improvements made, or tenant's right to remove same, is determined. Arrietta v. Crosby (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 987.

Art. 3944. [2523] [2444] Citation.—When the party aggrieved, or his authorized agent, shall file his complaint in writing and under oath with such justice of the peace, it shall be his duty immediately to issue his citation to the sheriff or any constable of the county, commanding him to summon the person against whom complaint is made to appear before such justice of the peace at a time and place named in such citation, such time being not more than ten days nor less than six days from the date of service of such citation; provided, that if the party aggrieved shall, at the time of filing his complaint under oath, execute a bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the justice of the peace, in such an amount as may be fixed by the justice of the peace as the probable amount of the costs of suit and of the damages which may result to defendant in the event the suit has been improperly instituted, and conditioned that the plaintiff will pay defendant all such costs and damages as shall be adjudged against him, —it shall be the duty of the officer serving such citation to place the aggrieved person in possession of the property sued for, unless the defendant shall, within six days from the service of the citation, execute and deliver to such officer a bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties in an amount double the amount of the bond given by the plaintiff, to be approved by the officer serving such citation and conditioned that the defendant, in case judgment is rendered against him, will pay all the costs of suit and the reasonable rental or value of the use of the property during the time he has withheld possession of the same from plaintiff to the time of making such bond and, in addition, will also pay the reasonable value or rental of such property while such suit is pending and until it is finally disposed of. [Acts 1876, p. 155, § 4; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 154, § 1; Acts 1918, 35th Leg., 4th C. S., ch. 83, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

Art. 3945. [2524] [2445] Requisites of complaint.

Requisites and sufficiency of complaint.—An allegation that defendant "has heretofore been a tenant at will of said real property, and that said complainant is entitled to the actual possession of the same," is insufficient to show the relation of landlord and tenant between the parties. Gulledge v. White, 73 Tex. 488, 11 S. W. 527.

Art. 3960. [2538] [2459] Damages may be proved, when.

Damages recoverable.—In a suit by a landlord for damages for breach of a rental contract, plaintiff held entitled to recover attorney's fees and other expenses in a forcible detainer suit appealed to county court. Shotwell v. Crier (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 262.

Art. 3962. [2540] [2461] Judgment of county court, final, etc., except, etc.

When appeal will lie.—No appeal lies unless damages in excess of $100 are awarded. Tibbitts v. Lacy (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 190.
FRAUDS AND FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES

Article 3965. [2543] [2464] Written memorandum required to maintain certain actions.

1. Promises to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another in general. — In action to foreclose lien on shares of stock deposited by father to secure notes of son, petition did not show that cause of action was based on oral promise to answer for debt of another; there being no verbal promise to pay debt. Patillo v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Stamford (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1054.

2. Nature of debt or default. — Where the debt was a partnership one the statute of frauds had no application. Pennington v. Fleming (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 308.

3. Promise to debtor to discharge debt. — Where remote purchaser of stock and fixtures promised to pay original seller's debt, which promise was part consideration for transfer to remote purchaser by his immediate seller, the stock, under the Bulk Sales Law, being a trust fund for creditors, such remote purchaser's promise was not within the statute. Hay v. Behrens Drug Co. (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 940.

Where a lumber company agreed with owner to pay bills for plumbing, houses to be sold after construction and bills paid and balance applied on owner's indebtedness to the company, such was not a mere naked "promise to answer for debt or default of another," but an express assumption of the plumber's bills for a valuable consideration. Turnbow Lumber Co. v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 667.

4. Promise to indemnify. — Where broker who sold apples had an interest in the property, his pledge to save plaintiff from loss if plaintiff would pay draft and take apples was not within the statute and could not be enforced, though oral. Neely v. Dublin Fruit Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 827.

5. Original or collateral promise in general. — An original promise to pay for articles secured for use of another, made before the sale, was not within the statute. Carlisle v. Frost-Llewellyn Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 733; Bejil v. Blumberg (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 471.

Where defendant injured boy, and took him to plaintiff's hospital, and requested plaintiff to treat boy's broken leg, defendant's agreement to pay plaintiff for his services was original undertaking, not within statute. Banfield v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 442.

Where a corporation, after its organization was completed, adopted a contract of its organizers under which services resulting to its benefit had been rendered, the contract becomes an original undertaking, not a promise to answer for the debt of another, and need not be in writing. Hart-Toole Furniture Co. v. Shahah (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 818.

The statute is not available as against an oral contract by owner to pay subcontractor for extras. Grand Lodge of Colored K. of Texas v. Allen (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 675.

Where the main purpose of the promisor is not to answer for another, but to subserve some purpose of his own, his promise is not within the statute. Thus a promise of members of an association made for their own benefit to pay secretary's salary is not within the statute. Great Southern Oil & Refining Ass'n v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 157.

9. Promise to pay from property of debtor. — An agreement of seller of realty occupied by a tenant to continue to collect the rent to meet monthly payments, with interest falling due on a second lien note, held not within the statute, as a promise of the seller to answer to the buyers for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another person. Gosset v. Hainline (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 415.

11. Agreements not to be performed within one year — In general. — Parol promise of vendor to have the land irrigated, which could not have been performed within one year, was in violation of the statute. Lott Town & Improvement Co. v. Harper (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 452.

Parol agreement by insurer, made at time of renewing policy for three-year term, to renew policy upon expiration, was unenforceable under the statute. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Richey (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 352.

Title 62] FRAUDS AND FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES Art. 3965

A lease giving right to enter and remove oil and gas, whether considered a contract to lease for a term more than one year or a contract conveying an interest in the land, must be in writing. Friddy v. Green (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 243.

An agreement of seller of realty occupied by a tenant to continue to collect the rent to meet monthly payments, with interest falling due on a second lien note, held not to be a lease, with a lease of the land for a longer term than a year. Gossett v. Hainline (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 415.

Where a lessee has an option for the extension of the term of the lease, he holds over, after giving notice of exercising his option under the original lease, and not under an oral agreement for an option to renew an oral lease for one year after its expiration is void under the statute. Hill v. Brown (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 780.

An assignment of a lease for more than one year must be in writing. Lewis Bros. v. Pendleton (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 502.

12. — Possibility of performance.—In suit by vendee to recover possession from one claiming under agreement with vendor, an answer which did not affirmatively call for possession for longer than one year, nor allege that agreement could not be performed and possession concluded within one year, held, on demurrer, not within the statute of frauds. Bostick v. Haney (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 477.

An agreement by a surety company executing certain bonds to pay its agent annually while the bonds were in force a specified commission held without the statute of frauds, as one performable within one year. National Surety Co. v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 465.

Parol lease for the term of lessor's life held not void under the statute which is applicable only to leases which by their terms cannot be performed within the year. Bethge v. Bettis (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 574.

15. Creation of estates or interests in general.—An easement is an estate or interest in the land which could only be created by deed or grant. Shepard v. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co., 2 Civ. App. 535, 22 S. W. 367.

Where a colonization company was organized, but the survey showed an excess over the acreage of each shareholder, and the trustee orally gave the excess to the shareholders in common, they never acquired legal title to such excess under the statute. Howell v. Duncanson (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 349.

Agreement between railroad company and owner of land that the landowners might use a portion of their lands to stock fish and rent boats for fishing is not necessarily required by law to be in writing in order to be effective between the parties. Town of Jacksonville v. Ragsdale (Civ. App.) 292 S. W. 774.

No lien can be created on land by lending money to a purchaser thereon on his oral promise to convey the land to the lender in default of payment, since a lien upon real estate will not be created by parol agreement. Aaron Frank Clothing Co. v. Deegan (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 471.

A contract to assign interest vested by an oil lease for a term of more than one year must be in writing, the words "contract for the sale of land," in the statute, including every agreement by which one promises to alienate an existing interest in land upon a consideration. Priddy v. Green (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 243.

Where lots within subdivisions were sold by deeds containing certain restrictions as to their use under an agreement that all other lots in subdivision when sold would be similarly restricted, the purchaser acquired restrictions in deeds to lots subsequently sold which was not an interest in lands and which can be proved by parol evidence. Wilson Co. v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 703.

16. Creation of leases.—Parol evidence that written lease in terms of second floor, was intended to also cover third floor, is unavailing. Lovelady v. Harding (Civ. App.) 297 S. W. 933.

A lease giving right to enter and remove oil and gas, whether considered a contract to lease for a term more than one year, or a contract conveying an interest in the land, must be in writing. Friddy v. Green (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 243. See, also, Texas Co. v. Tankersley (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 672.

17. Assignment, grant or surrender of existing estates, interests or terms.—A verbal assignment of an interest in an oil lease is unenforceable by reason of the statute. PantaZe v. McDill (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 962.

19. Establishment of boundary.—Parol agreement between owners of adjacent lands to fix their boundary line at place other than its known and established location is in contravention of statute of frauds, and therefore ineffectual to change true location of line. Grawunder v. Gotoskey (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 705.

Parol agreement by adjacent landowners, establishing boundary line as located by surveyor's notes having been marked and fixed on ground, and there being nothing in deeds whereby its location could be fixed, other than calls for courses and distances, held valid and not within statute of frauds. Id.

Parol agreement fixing boundary line will not be set aside merely because it is subsequently discovered that agreed line is not true line. Id.

21. Contracts for sale of interests in land.—Since one may accept the obligations of an otherwise binding contract by acts as well as deed, the statute of frauds did not stand in the way of enforcement by specific performance of an earnest money contract for the purchase of land dependent on the owner's acceptance, where the owner executed and tendered a deed. Fueresteeneck v. Clark (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 394.

An agreement of seller of realty occupied by a tenant to continue to collect the rent and make monthly payments, with interest falling due on a second lien note, held not within the statute, as a contract for the sale of land. Gossett v. Hainline (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 415.

An agreement that the mortgagor should not bid at the foreclosure sale, and that the property, if he should bid in at the sale, in full satisfaction of the mortgage, is not required to be in writing. Lobit v. Marceulides (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 767.

Contract by plaintiff with defendants to file suit for cancellation of a former lease on which agreed rentals had not been paid and therefore had terminated, held which remained a cloud on title, as pleaded by plaintiff in his petition to recover money judgment or in the alternative to recover a leasehold interest in the realty, held enforceable as a parol agreement to acquire land together and to divide it according to the terms of the agreement. Tunstil v. Grisham (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 272.

A parol agreement, whereby, in consideration of the father's surrender of the custody of plaintiff and the latter's living with defendant's intestate as a son, intestate agreed that his lands owned at his death should become plaintiff's property, is within the statute unless taken therefrom by part performance. Hooks v. Bridgewater (Sup.) 229 S. W. 1114.

The statute does not declare a parol contract for the sale of land to be illegal and void, but merely provides a means of successful resistance in case the statute is not complied with. Simpson v. Green (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 375.

22. — Nature of property.—Where land is conveyed by a warranty deed containing no reservations, a parol agreement reserving title to a house on such land is in effect a parol sale of an interest in land within the statute and cannot be enforced. Robins v. Woollers (Cliv. App.) 293 S. W. 149.

23 1/2. Authority of agent to convey.—The verbal authority of the owner of real estate to another to convey it confers no power to do so, because in clear violation of the statute of frauds. Kearby v. Cox (Com. App.) 211 S. W. 382.

25. Sale of lumber or timber.—Where standing timber is sold for purpose of prompt severance within reasonable or specified time, with mere license to enter and remove, contract need not be in writing. West Lumber Co. v. C. R. Cummings Export Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 546.

27. Part performance—In general.—Lease contract, performed by lessor and partially by lessee, under which lessee has received benefits for term, is not within statute of fraud, and is because of or irrespective of validity when executed, and lessee cannot escape liability by asserting invalidity for insufficient description, etc. Folmar v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 861.

The fact that the consideration for an oral contract for the transfer of land was the rendition of services by the transferee to the transferor as a son, and that such services had been rendered, held not to take the case out of the statute, where possession of the property had not been transferred. Hooks v. Bridgewater (Sup.) 229 S. W. 1114.

29. — Possession.—Transfer of possession is required before an oral contract of sale of land can be enforced in equity. Hooks v. Bridgewater (Sup.) 229 S. W. 1114.

30. — Improvements.—Shareholders in colonization company held not to have acquired equitable title to land under parol gift by constructing temporary improvements. Howell v. Duncanson (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 349.

When a purchaser by parol has been fully compensated for his improvements, or has gained more by his possession than he has expended in improvements, they will not avail him as a ground for specific execution. Martin v. Martin (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 185.

Where buyer of land by verbal contract took possession and made permanent improvements, consisting of a house or shed, a well, corrals, fencing, grubbing, and clearing land, of a total value of $750, such improvements were sufficient to justify specific enforcement of the verbal contract of sale. Williams v. Sweat (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 330.

Where the value of improvements made by a purchaser of land by oral contract together with the amount of money paid by him amount to only $56 more than the value of the use of the land while he had possession, he is not entitled to specific performance on any theory of part performance and making of improvements. Jackson v. Carlock (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 578.

31. — Possession and payment.—Where by parol lease for more than year landlord places tenant in possession, and receives one or more installments of rent under the lease, there is part performance, taking contract out of the statute of frauds, and it may be enforced. Adams v. Van Mourick (Cliv. App.) 206 S. W. 721.

Where defendants entered into possession under a tunpentine lease or contract, and began to cut trees, and part of the rental was paid, defendants cannot defeat an action for recovery of rental v. — weater becoming due, on the ground that the contract or mortgage was void because of ambiguity in the description of the property. Sitwv v. Hooks (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 486.

32. — Possession and improvements.—Where the wrong lot was inserted in a mortgage and the mistake carried through to a sheriff's deed, the transaction was no more than a verbal transfer, and valuable improvements were necessary in addition to possession to acquire an equitable title to the lot intended to be mortgaged. Al­ falfa Lumber Co. v. Mudgett (Cliv. App.) 199 S. W. 337.

Parol gift of land followed by actual possession and the making of valuable improvements held to give the grantee a good title without written conveyance. Butler v. Lollar (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1176.

A parol contract for the sale or gift of land is not enforceable unless followed by delivery of possession and the making by the vendee or donee of valuable and permanent improvements which materially enhance the value of the property. Leonard v. Cleburne Roller Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 605.

33. Payment and improvements.—It is essential to specifically enforce an oral contract for the sale of land that valuable improvements be made on the land, although the price has been paid and possession taken, and the value of the land cannot be recovered, but the price paid. Wells v. Foreman (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 174.

To relieve a parol sale of land from the operation of the statute three elements are essential: Payment of the consideration, possession by the vendee, and the making by the vendee of valuable and permanent improvements with the consent of the vendor, or, in absence of such improvements, such other facts as would make the transaction a fraud if it were not enforced. Hooks v. Bridgewater (Sup.) 229 S. W. 1114.

34. Contracts implied by law on part performance.—Where property has been transferred in consideration of an oral promise which the promisor refuses to perform, the law implies a promise on which an action will lie for the value of the property so transferred or, in equity, the land itself may be recovered. Lasater v. Fremont (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 753.

35. Contracts completely performed.—The statute does not apply to an oral contract which has been executed. Friddy v. Green (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 243.

36. Oral contract.—An agreement for the surrender of a written lease for five years, which would have more than one year yet to run after the date of surrender is within the statute of frauds, and not enforceable if not in writing. Gardner v. Sittig (Com. App.) 22S S. W. 1056, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 731.

W. did not lease for more than one year as part of a sale of a business was in writing, and the written contract provided for making of the cash payment within 37 days, a parol agreement waiving or modifying the provision as to time for performance because of difficulty in obtaining the lessor's consent to the assignment was not invalid because not in writing. Lewis Bros. v. Pendleton (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 562.

38. Equitable relief.—Since the exercise of equitable jurisdiction to enforce a parol contract for the sale of lands results, in any case, in practically settling the statute aside, the rule under which such contracts will be enforced in equity should be as definite and precise as the statute, and should not be extended to cases not within its terms. Hooks v. Bridgewater (Sup.) 229 S. W. 1114.

The only ground on which the jurisdiction of equity to enforce a parol contract for the transfer of land can be sustained is that the refusal to enforce the contract would perpetrate a fraud. 10.

The payment of the consideration for a parol contract for the sale of land alone does not make the enforcement of the statute the perpetration of a fraud, since the purchaser can recover such payment by an action at law. 11d.

39. Persons to whom statute is available.—A person interfering with a contract of sale of real estate is liable in damages in a proper case, although the contract was obnoxious to the statute of frauds, but not if the contract breached be one which the party may or may not perform at his option. Richardson v. Terry (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 523.

40. Writing subsequent to oral agreement.—When a sufficient memorandum of a promise is signed and suit for enforcement is brought, it is the oral contract that is enforced, and not the memorandum by which such contract is proved. Simpson v. Green (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 375.

41. Waiver of bar of statute.—Where land is conveyed by a warranty deed containing no reservations, but grantor by parol reserves the right to remove a house sold to another, a conveyance thereto is not estopped to assert the statute of frauds, where his promise to permit removal of house was not made with fraudulent intent. Robbins v. Winters (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 149.

That contract to convey was in parol did not render deed executed pursuant thereto invalid under the statute. Bishop v. Williams (Civ. App.) 233 S. W. 512.

Under the Texas law, the fact that one having title to land holds it in trust for another need not be evidenced by writing. City of Ft. Worth, Tex., v. National Park Bank of New York (C. C. A.) 261 Fed. 817.

Oral agreement by which plaintiff suffered judgment in foreclosure suit to be entered against him when defendants agreed to reconvey land to him, if entered into, was not void under statute of frauds, since it created a trust. Matthews v. Deason (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 855.

The statute does not apply to a parol express trust, and hence a judgment creditor, who promised to allow the debtor time to redeem and as result of the promise obtained the property without competitive bids, etc., cannot defeat the debtor's action on the ground that the agreement to allow redemption was not written. Riley v. Chandler (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 361.

Where plaintiff was induced to convey an interest in land to defendant by defendant's oral agreement, subsequently repudiated, to devise her entire interest to plaintiff, 22 SUPP.V.S.CIV.ST.Tex.—74 1169.

Title 62) FRAUDS AND FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES Art. 3965
the statute of frauds does not prevent proof of the verbal promise for the purpose of establishing a fraud. See Davilla v. Robinson (Sup.) 237 S. W. 533.

43. Requisites and sufficiency of writing.—After completing oral negotiations for an oil lease, the landowners deposited in escrow a lease, which recited payment of the consideration, it being agreed that if title proved satisfactory the lessee would execute the lease, and pay the consideration, but before the lessee had executed the lease and paid the consideration, the landowners elected to repudiate the contract held that the contract was wholly executory until delivery of the lease, was within the statute of frauds and unenforceable, and the lease, which was a memorandum of the executed contract, was not sufficient to take the case out of the statute. Blue v. Conner ( Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 533.

A written assignment of an oil place leased in escrow, sufficient as a present conveyance, was a sufficient memorandum in writing to comply with the statute of frauds. Townsend v. Day ( Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 253.

Oil and gas lease signed by lessor, reciting agreed consideration and terms and conditions of lease, delivered to bank pursuant to parol escrow agreement, held a sufficient memorandum to comply with statute. Pearson v. Kirkpatrick ( Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 407.

A deed for the purchase of an oil is not insufficient as a memorandum because in the form of an executed contract. Simpson v. Green (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 373.

45. — Description of land.—An assignment of an oil and gas lease, which referred to a certain lease made by a certain person to a certain other person, and stated that said lease was recorded in a certain county, sufficiently described by reference to the deed records and the lease offered the correct description could be secured. Townsend v. Day ( Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 253.

Stipulation in note, that it was given as a forfeit on 331 1/2 acres of land, in case the maker gave to the holder a reasonable time to pay the note to be null and void, and as soon as he delivered deed to 331 1/2 acres of land out of "J. Burns survey" to plaintiff, was insufficient to take the case out of the statute as to contracts for sale of lands. Davis v. Dilbeck ( Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 927.

46. — Statement of price.—Where the vendor had executed an ordinary warranty deed and deposited it in escrow to be delivered on acceptance of title and payment of purchase money, the recital of the deed as a money consideration in a specified amount held sufficient to meet the requirements of the statute, though an auto was taken in part payment prior to its execution, and the balance in cash deposited where the deed was executed and delivered. Simpson v. Green (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 278, reversing ( Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 263.

It is not necessary that the consideration of a contract for sale of lands should be expressed in the writing. Id.

47. Signature.—Contract employing a broker to negotiate a sale of land, to merely entitle him to commissions, need not be in writing, under the general statute of frauds, though it must be for him to execute a binding contract of sale. Vrabec v. Ko­curek ( Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 876.

When the vendor of an oil lease attacked the claim of his purchaser because the contract between them was not in writing, the purchaser could rely on a written contract given him by the holder of the legal title at request of the vendor, who had merely a contract to purchase from the holder. Fridly v. Green ( Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 243.

55 1/2. Operation and effect of statute.—Where a contract for sale of land was, not enforceable by reason of the statute of frauds, it was terminated and annulled when vendor elected to rescind it and notified purchaser of such rescission, and purchaser's subsequent offer of payment for the land could not revive it. Simpson v. Green ( Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 263.

A parol contract for the sale of land cannot be enforced merely because its peculiar terms do not bring it within the general intent of the rule excepting such contracts from the statute, but such case is to be governed by the statute. Hooks v. Bridgewater (Sup.) 229 S. W. 1114.

Where a contract for the sale of land was not in writing, a note executed in aid of such contract was wanting in consideration, and is not enforceable. Davis v. Dilbeck ( Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 927.

60. Evidence.—In action to recover interest in land, in which plaintiff relied on agreement between stepmother and his father that property, title of which was in mother, would become common property of both, evidence held insufficient to sustain such parol transfer of property. Bauss v. Bauss ( Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 965.

Art. 3966. [2544] [2465] Conveyance to defraud creditors, etc., void.

5. Property subject to claims of creditors.—As to wife's separate property, see Bur­kitt v. Moxley ( Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 372; Armstrong v. Turbeville ( Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 1101.

Purchase by creditor of coal company of sufficient coal to supply company's trade, and placing coal in hands of president of company, who was to act as creditor's agent in its sale and distribution, creditor to pay operating expenses and have net proceeds, held by a trusted friend or of the company, fraudulent. Sparda-Clarksville Coal Co. v. Security Nat. Bank of Dallas (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 200.

Where debtor and partner were conveyed land, but the partner paid all the purchase money for it, creditors could not have the land applied in payment of their debts in an action brought by the wife of the partner. Carleton-Ferguson Dry Goods Co. v. McFarland (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 208.

6. Exempt property in general.—Creditors cannot claim conveyance of exempt property is void, as fraudulent as to them. Lee v. Emerson-Brantingham Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 233.

5. Insolvency element of fraud.—Gift of personal property by father to child when father is solvent is valid even as against a creditor. Youngblood v. Hoefle (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1057; Carleton-Ferguson Dry Goods Co. v. McFarland (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 208.

The question of insolvency is to be determined as of the time of the voluntary conveyance. Moore v. Belt (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 235.

One who attacks a conveyance by husband to his wife, as fraud in creditors, must show that the husband was insolvent. Allen v. Crutcher (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 236.

Intent to defraud creditors may exist even when the seller of property is solvent, though insolvency is especially important in determining whether the buyer knew facts sufficient to charge him with notice of fraudulent intent. McWhorter v. Langley (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 365. See, also, Rachofsky v. Rachofsky (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1134.

A conveyance transferred to a creditor when the debtor was solvent in payment for their land claimed as a homestead had the right to do with his property as he saw fit, even to giving it to strangers, and had the right to give his wife half the proceeds of the community property sold by them by joint deed, which she demanded, and refused to receive as a creditor. Earhart v. Agnew (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 183, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 1140.

14. Preference of wife.—A husband may prefer his wife to another creditor in the payment of a debt which he owes her, provided the transaction is free from fraud, and no conveyance of property, more or less than is reasonably necessary and at its fair market value to settle the debt. Dills v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 356.

15. Consideration and payment of liabilities.—A bona fide sale of personality in payment of a debt was constructively fraudulent to extent of difference between debt and reasonable value of property, where creditor knew debtor was insolvent and debt was more than worth of property. Watson v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 658.

Though a son had the right to execute a voluntary note to his mother, not subject to attack by subsequent creditors because voluntary, a note made without real intention of payment or to defraud creditors was void as existing and future creditors. Stewart v. Cobern, 109 Tex. 574, 213 S. W. 925.

A creditor's conveyance to his mother of land worth $7,400 in payment of his prior note for $5,600 given to her on an actual consideration of $2,500 was fraudulent as to creditors, the right of an insolvent debtor to prefer being subject to the qualification that no more property must be transferred than is essential to pay the debt at a fair valuation. Id.

Where twin brothers owed another brother $600, and sold him their two-elevenths interest in certain land for $1,200 in money, creditor brother in eyes of law was a purchaser who had conveyed to a creditor who takes conveyance of only enough property to pay debt. McWhorter v. Langley (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 364.

When insolvent debtor, in payment of pre-existing debt, delivers value in excess of debt, thus placing surplus beyond reach of creditors, conveyance is fraudulent in law, and void as to excess. Lee v. Emerson-Brantingham Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 233.

A purchaser of property alleged to have been conveyed to defraud creditors can show that he has paid value by showing the execution and delivery of negotiable notes in payment of the property. Ford v. House (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 960.

Where a widow sold her interest in real property to her children, with intent to defraud creditors, and the children knew or were charged with knowledge of such intent, the transaction whereby the widow received notes in payment may be attacked as fraudulent to creditors. Dursttt v. Chensault (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 711.

Where a widow and children who were interested in lands, by conveyances inter partes made settlement, the widow getting the fee to some of the lands, and the children to others, the conveyances, in view of the fact that the widow received vendor's lien notes, could not be attacked by existing creditors as voluntary under art. 3967, for such conveyances were supported by a consideration deemed valuable in law. Id.

A consideration of love and affection and a sum of $20 for land conveyed was merely a nominal consideration which was not valuable in law as against a creditor, where it was grossly inadequate in proportion to the value of the land conveyed. Davis v. Campbell-Root Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 167.

17. Transactions between husband and wife.—Where husband conveyed property to wife in fraud of creditors, deed reciting that consideration was payment of a certain sum monthly and provision of a place for husband to live, wife could not defeat attack upon deed as fraudulent as an innocent purchaser where she did not perform her part of agreement. Quarles v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1112.

19. Fraudulent intent of debtor.—A deed executed with fraudulent intent by the husband to his wife is void as to subsequent creditors. Quarles v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1112. See, also, Allen v. Crutcher (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 236.

Fraud that will invalidate title must have existed at very time conveyance was made and at very time improvements were placed upon lot. Id.

Wife who caused creditors when he was married to be paid her husband's debts would, if he had conveyed a lot to be made to his wife as her separate property, in order to hide his property, it was fraudulent, and he could not be heard to say that he did not intend to put title in her. Markum v. Markum (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 835.

A conveyance of land was voluntary and not upon a consideration deemed valuable in law and the grantors did not have other property within state subject to execution sufficient to pay the debt, the conveyance was void under the statute, whether or not it was the intent of the grantor to defraud. Davis v. Campbell-Root Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 167.

20. — Knowledge or notice of intent and participation therein.—One is charged with notice who has knowledge of such facts as would excite the suspicion of a man of ordinary prudence, and put him on inquiry. Scheuber v. Wheeler (App.) 15 S. W. 209; Persons v. Oscooky (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1234.

The intent of the grantee is immaterial in a voluntary conveyance fraudulent as to the grantor's creditors. Quarles v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1112.

Grantor's statement concerning amount of indebtedness against him and creditors' security therefor held not sufficient to apprise grantee of grantor's intent to hinder and delay the creditor in collecting his debt. Moglia v. Rios (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1132.

Where a debtor sells to one creditor more property than necessary to pay his claim, it must be shown as fact to invalidate conveyance; the statute only authorizing a sale to be declared invalid when such intent is shown. McWhorter v. Langley (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 364.

Buyer of land cannot be charged with notice of fraudulent intent on the part of grantor as to creditors by reason of anything occurring after the sale to him. Id.

Notice that an action of debt was pending in county court against seller of land was not sufficient of itself to charge purchaser with notice of an intent on the part of the seller to defraud creditors. Ford v. Honee (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 866.

Persons entitled to assert invalidity.—Although conveyance was for the purpose of defrauding creditors, it would be good as to a subsequent grantee having constructive notice thereof. Watts v. McCloud (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 381.

22. Validity as between original parties or their representatives.—Concealment of payment of note by indorsement of fictitious assignment held not to render note an asset of assignee. Rios v. Haslett (App.) 182 S. W. 187.

After a son conveyed land to his mother in fraud of his creditors, he could assert no right, title, or interest therein. Stevens v. Cobern, 109 Tex. 574, 213 S. W. 925.

Where land was fraudulently conveyed to defraud, hinder, and delay creditors, the grantor was not entitled to recover upon notes given on subject land to a pretended lien, nor recover the land, and his heirs and personal representative are in no better position than himself. Hughes v. Hughes (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 970, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 742.

See also Fadell v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 365.

Where a conveyance has been made in fraud of creditors, and possession remains with grantor, the grantee may recover possession. Hall v. Edwards (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 167, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 674.

23. Purchasers from grantees.—When land was conveyed to defraud, hinder, and delay creditors, purchasers, from the grantee, even with notice of the fraudulent character of the transaction, occupy the same position as their grantor as to the original grantor. Hughes v. Hughes (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 970, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 742.

25. Creditors.—Creditors of sellers by affrming contract of sale made it their own, and would be estopped to set up that it was originally illegal. Warren v. Parlin-Orendorff Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 586.

In action upon promissory note for foreclosure of attachment lien upon land claimed to have been fraudulently conveyed, it was immaterial that the note sued upon was secured by chattel mortgages, in the absence of a showing that such mortgages gave any real security for the note or that anything was realized thereon. Davis v. Campbell-Root Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 167.

Where debtor with equivalent of money purchased oil lease from one who acted in good faith, though knowing debtor was insolvent, seller is not liable to debtor's creditors for money received on any theory of fraudulent conveyance. Lee v. Emerson-Brantingham Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 233.

Where in settling an estate in which a widow and children were entitled to interests in lands the widow conveyed land to the children, receiving a life interest in a portion of the lands, and the fee of other lands, held that, if the children had notice of the widow's intention to defraud existing creditors, the transaction was valid only in so far as they received the present value of their interests. Durrett v. Chenault (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 771.

29. Reconveyance of property.—Where land is conveyed to defraud, hinder, and delay creditors, the trust and reconveys the property to his grantor, the reconveyance will be upheld; the moral obligation to thus reconvey being regarded a sufficient consideration to support the reconveyance. Hughes v. Hughes (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 976, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 742.

35. Remedies of creditor.—Where debtor, after alleged fraudulent conveyance to his wife, dies as insolvent creditor, without estate, the insolvency preceding administration upon the debtor's estate and establishing his debt against the estate, could maintain a proceeding against debtor's widow and children to set aside the conveyance, and in such proceeding the debt could be established and ordered paid out of the property. Moore v. Belt (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 255.

In view of art. 240, authorizing attachment only on affidavit that defendant is justly indebted to plaintiff, a creditor of deceased could not maintain attachment against property, in the hands of deceased's widow, alleged to have been fraudulently conveyed to her by deceased during his lifetime. Id.

Creditors whose debtor fraudulently conveyed land to his mother, by availing themselves of an appropriate means of enforcing their right against the land in suing out attachment against the son and if the conveyance had not been made, attack by an action in a sense an execution in advance, did not estop themselves to deny that debtor had such title, subsequent to his conveyance as would support his claim of homestead. Stevens v. Cobern, 109 Tex. 574, 213 S. W. 925.

Evidence held insufficient to show that conveyance was made to defraud creditors. Moglia v. Rios (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 1123; McWhorter v. Langley (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 364.

In creditors' suit seeking to subject land of wife purchased with community funds to payment of debts of husband, evidence held insufficient to show fraud invalidating title of wife as to subsequent creditors. Sikes v. First State Bank of Decatur (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 227.

In a creditors' suit seeking to subject improvements placed on minor daughter's land with community funds to payment of debts of her father, evidence held insufficient to show that improvements were placed on land with intent to defraud subsequent creditors.

That father made his home upon lot of his daughter, who was very young and unmarried, insured property, and paid taxes in his own name was entirely consistent with good faith. Id.

Evidence held to show transfer was fraudulent as to creditors. Rachofsky v. Rachofsky (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1134.

While insolvency of a grantor at time of a conveyance or by reason thereof is not in itself sufficient to render void said conveyance as to subsequent creditors, any evidence to the contrary will not establish the fact. In re economies, Am. Decr. 118, 1922, 198 U.S. 220.

Fact that one creditor of a debtor, also the principal creditor, advises debtor not to give deed of trust to another creditor, which advice is accepted and acted upon, standing alone does not show agreement or conspiracy to defraud such other creditor invalidating conveyance for value to principal creditor. McWhorter v. Langley (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 364.

Fraudulent intent in a conveyance and notice thereof on the part of the grantee may be inferred from circumstances, but the circumstances relied on should be such that an inference of fraud must necessarily be deduced from them. Id.

Art. 3967. [2545] [2466] Voluntary conveyances.

Right of subsequent creditors to avoid gift.—A voluntary conveyance in fraud of existing creditors, recorded on the day of its execution, is not void as to future creditors because the grantor afterwards engages in extensive speculations, and soon becomes insolvent. Lewis v. Simon, 72 Tex. 470, 10 S. W. 554.

If the conveyance is void, the grantor's estate insolvent, the mere fact that at the time of the conveyance the creditor held security then of value, which later lost its value, would not prevent the creditor from being classed as a prior creditor within the statute. Moore v. Belt (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 235.

If the conveyance is void, the grantor's estate insolvent, the mere fact that at the time of the conveyance the creditor held security then of value, which later lost its value, would not prevent the creditor from being classed as a prior creditor within the statute. Moore v. Belt (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 235.

Where plaintiff, who attacked a conveyance, under this and the preceding article, by husband to his wife as in fraud of creditors, failed to show that the demand on which she recovered judgment against the husband two years after the conveyance was in existence at the time of the conveyance, or that the husband was insolvent at the time of the conveyance, there can be no recovery. Allen v. Crutchler (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 236.

Where conveyance is given to his wife, merely because without consideration and voluntary, is not void as to subsequent creditors. Fenton v. Miller (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 14.

Art. 3969. [2547] [2468] Loan of chattels.

Rights of parties and purchasers.—The statute does not make a secret lien on chattels because of the void or his assignee for the benefit of the creditors, or to one who purchases from such assignee after suit has been begun to foreclose the lien. San Antonio Brewing Ass'n v. Arctic Ice-Machine Mfg. Co., 81 Tex. 99, 16 S. W. 787.

Where personal property lent by plaintiff had been in the possession of the borrower for more than two years, and the loan was not evidenced by the instrument in writing, a purchaser from the borrower, with or without notice, took absolute title, for title was conclusively presumed to be in the borrower, this being so though the borrower was yet liable for the conversion, limitations not having run against plaintiff's claim. Williams v. Davenport (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 676.

Art. 3970. [2548] Chattel mortgage void, when.

Ownership of property.—Purchase by creditor of coal company of sufficient coal to supply company's trade, and placing coal in hands of president of company, who was to act as creditor's agent in its sale and distribution, creditor to pay operating expenses and have net proceeds, held not, as to other creditors of the company, fraudulent.

Validity of mortgage in general.—This article does not apply where the property covered by the oral mortgage to a bank was automobiles, which the bank permitted the owner to keep on display and to demonstrate, but which he could not sell without authority from the bank for each particular sale. Border Nat. Bank v. Coupland, 240 Fed. 355, 163 C. C. A. 281.

An assignment for the benefit of creditors, see Lovenberg v. National Bank of Texas, 67 Tex. 440, 5 S. W. 816.

A deed of trust by an insolvent to secure preferred creditors is not void by reason of the fact that after the execution of the deed the owner was employed by the trustee to take charge of and sell out the stock. Bettes v. Weir Plow Co., 84 Tex. 545, 19 S. W. 768.

Lien.—This article has no application to parties to lease in which lessor expressly reserved lien upon tenant's goods placed upon rented premises. John Church Co. v. Martinez (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 486.

Security for purchase price.—This article does not apply to a lien resulting from a conditional sale. Park v. South Bend Chilled Plow Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 843.

Art. 3971. Sales of merchandise and fixtures in bulk; notice to creditors; liability as receiver.

Construction.—A conveyance of a stock of goods to a creditor by a bill of sale, without complying with the law, was void as to other creditors, though the grantee may have intended to receive and hold the goods in trust for all creditors, where it did not appear that the grantor intended that the goods should be so received and held, and the bill of sale was absolute on its face. Roll Milling Co. v. H. O. Wooten Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 342.

A sale of merchandise in bulk without compliance with the statute, was void as against creditors of the seller. Rachofsky v. Rachofsky (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1134.

Instructions submitting issue whether sale in bulk was made to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors impliedly submitted issue whether the sale was in good faith and for value. Id.

Where a retailer obtained goods by falsely representing that he had the money to pay therefor, the wholesaler upon discovering the fraud could demand and accept a return of the goods without becoming liable to creditors under the statute. John T. Barbee & Co. v. American Brewing Ass'n (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 324.

One who purchased a note given by the buyers as part consideration for goods purchased would not be a "creditor," within the statute. Warren v. Parlin-Orendorf Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 586.

A dealer in monuments, having on hand marble, granite, etc., was a "merchant" or "trader" within the act, though at time he sold his entire stock of goods without complying with act he was not engaged in that business, but was engaged in other lines of employment. Telch v. McAuley (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 979.

A deed of trust conveying to the trustees a debtor's stock of merchandise and his interest in certain land does not, as to the land, fall within the statute. Hall v. Conine (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 825.

Conveyances not made in conformity with the statute are not absolute nullities, but void only when attacked by a creditor whose rights have been ignored. Id.

Creditors' remedies.—Where a sale has been made in violation of the Bulk Sales Law, a creditor may have his remedy by garnishment against the transferee. Kell Milling Co. v. H. O. Wooten Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 342.

A purchaser of a stock of goods in bulk in violation of the statutory requirements is personally liable for the debt of the seller of the goods; and a purchaser who disposes of the goods and then reaches the seller beyond the reach of the seller's creditors, by attachment, or other process, becomes personally liable to the creditor, whatever his liability if he had continued to hold the goods. Hay v. Behrens Drug Co. (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 546.

The remote purchaser's promise to pay the original seller's debt is not within the statute of frauds. Id.

A creditor named in a deed of trust conveying to and authorizing the trustees to sell a debtor's land and stock of merchandise for the benefit of certain creditors, itself included, cannot avail itself of a violation of the statute to secure an advantage over the other creditors in the distribution of assets, though the trustees, after the service of a writ of garnishment upon them by it, used money resulting from the sale of the debtor's stock of goods to redeem the land from prior incumbrances. Hall v. Cone (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 822.

Title of purchaser.—Sellers and buyers would be estopped from claiming that sale was in violation of the statute to defeat just debts, which both had agreed to pay and made provision to pay out of the consideration for sale. Warren v. Harlin-Orendorf Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 386.

Art. 3973. Not applicable in what cases.

Art. 3973a. Actionable fraud.—Actionable fraud in this State with regard to transactions in real estate or in stock in corporations or joint stock companies shall consist of either a false representation or past or existing material fact, or false promise to do some act in the future which is made as a material inducement to another party to enter into a contract and but for which promise said party would not have entered into said contract, provided however that whenever a promise thus made has not been complied with by the party making it within reasonable time, it shall be presumed that it was falsely and fraudulently made, and the burden shall be on the party making it to show that it was made in good faith but was prevented from complying therewith by the act of God, the public enemy or by some equitable reason. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 43, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

1. Actionable fraud—Nature and elements in general.—"Fraud" is any act or concealment which involves a breach of legal duty, trust, or confidence justly reposed and is injurious to another, or by which an undue and unconscientious advantage is taken of another. Horton v. Smith (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1988; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Maples (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 428.

"Actionable fraud" exists where one makes a false representation of a material fact knowing it to be false, or of his own knowledge, when he does not know whether it is true or false, with intention to induce the person to whom it is made, in reliance upon it, to do or refrain from doing something to his pecuniary hurt, when such person, acting with reasonable prudence, is thereby deceived and induced to so do or refrain from his damage. Wortman v. Young (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 660. See, also, Ferrell v. Millican (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 230; Richmond v. Hog Creek Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 563.

Fraudulent intent on part of owner of building not to perform promise to pay for material sold to contractor held necessary element of seller's right of action. M. T. Jones Lumber Co. v. Villegas, 8 Civ. App. 665, 23 S. W. 558.

Transferor of note, falsely purporting to be secured by a vendor's lien, held liable to the transferee for the amount paid, whether guilty of an intentional fraud or not. Young v. Barcroft (Civ. App.) 169 S. W. 392.

Representations by vendor that he would put water on land within 60 days will not amount to fraud unless it is alleged and proved that he had no intent to perform at time of making them. Mid-Continent Life Ins. Co. v. Pendleton (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 760.

3. — Fiduciary or confidential relations.—One who sells his stock in a corporation, for less than its value, to one engaged in the management of the corporation, induced to do so by the latter's fraudulent representations as to the financial condition of the corporation, can recover damages. Hume v. Steele (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 812.

In action against partner of property by abandoned wife of other owner for fraud.

ulent obtaining the entire ownership, where defendant had been her husband's partner and had managed since 1942 a public utility. But, his fraudulent misrepresentations regarding its value were actionable. Baugh v. Houston (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 242.

4. Fraudulent representations.—If a party intentionally misrepresents a material fact, or produces a false impression by words or acts, in order to mislead or obtain an understanding from another, his fraudulent misrepresentations regarding its value were actionable. Mitchell v. Zimmerman, 4 Tex. 75, 51 Am. Dec. 177; Smith v. Smith (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 273.

If the vendor of land made false representations as to the land which would produce, and the purchaser relied thereon and would not have purchased had he known such representations to be false, he could maintain an action for deceit. Buckingham v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 652.

A prospectus of a corporation, which gives information as to the property, machinery, and appliances of the corporation and its financial condition, contains representations of fact, and, if false and inducing one to purchase stock, the corporation is liable for the damages sustained. Foix v. Moeller (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1048.

To charge party for fraud in having made false statement in good faith, there must have been a false statement of some material fact, which, being relied on, misled another to his prejudice. Taylor v. First State Bank of Hawley (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 55.

Allegation of representation that property was good income property, and that plaintiff relied on what was represented, is sufficient to sustain the cause. Philpott v. Edge (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 262.

Any false statement of fact that might materially affect the price of stock or the judgment of a purchaser is fraudulent, which statement may consist in suppression of truth or assertion of what is false. Peerless Fire Ins. Co. v. Reveire (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 254.

A representation that there was no lien against land was not fraudulent, although previous to entering into the contract there had been some proceedings to include the land within a drainage district, but the final order had been revoked, although the land was subsequently taken into the drainage district. Medley v. Lamb (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 1048.

A false statement to the purchaser of a share of an oil company by the seller concerning the capacity of an oil well, as to which the seller stated he had received a confirmatory telegram from one in whom the purchaser had confidence, is a misstatement of a material fact, giving a cause of action. Rupec v. Edge (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 262.

5. — Matters of fact or of law.—Statement of one that he has a landlord's lien on property is not necessarily a mere conclusion of law, which may not be actionable. Texas Cotton Products Co. v. Denny Bros. (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 557.

Where improvements made by the sellers and purchasers of a corporation's entire capital stock exceeded the amount unpaid on the stock purchasers cannot recover damages for misrepresentations that it was fully paid in, the value of the improvements having been credited. Vick v. Park (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 889.

Misrepresentations to prospective purchaser as to the returns from corporate stock, though partaking of the nature of opinion and of promissory character, held actionable, and ground for purchaser to recover exemplary damages. Texas Co-operative Inv. Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 220. See also, McDonald v. Lastinger (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 829.

7. Exists facts or expectations or promises.—Promises to perform an act in the future will not generally constitute fraud, although the propelling inducement to the execution of a contract, unless the promisor, when making the promise, intended not to perform it, and made it to defraud and deceive. Lott Town & Improvement Co. v. Harper (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 422; Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Barrington (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 936; Burchill v. Hermansmeyer (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 767.

To promise to obtain funds, and conduct the business of a corporation, see Martin v. Daniel (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 17. To offer to guarantee rents for one year on exchange of property, see Holmes v. Coalson (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 628.
8. Falsity and knowledge thereof.—Where affirmative representations of fact are made and designed to be acted upon by another, and he does so believing them to be true, when they are false, the one making the representations is liable, regardless of his knowledge of falsity or intent to deceive. Goodwin v. Daniel (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 531; 1 White & W. Civ. Cas. Ct. App. § 1; Loper v. Robinson, 54 Tex. 510; Mutual Building & Loan Ass'n v. McGee (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1030; United States Gypsum Co. v. Shields (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 724, judgment affirmed 109 Tex. 473, 108 S. W. 1165; Magill v. Coffman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1146; Gibbens v. Bourland (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 274; Foix v. Moeller (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1048; Benton v. Kuykendall (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 438; Zundelowitz v. Waggoner (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 598; Wortman v. Young (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 600.

An action for deceit will lie if defendant made representations inducing plaintiff to extend credit to an irresponsible person without knowing whether they were true or false. Bullock v. Crutch (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 940; Elliott v. Clark (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 487.

Any false statement of fact that might materially affect the price of stock or the judgment of a purchaser is fraudulent, which statement may consist in suppression of truth or assertion of what is false. Peerless Fire Ins. Co. v. Reveille (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 254.

11. Materiality of matter represented.—Fraudulent representations by officers of a building association as to the amount of annual accumulations on the stock, held representations of material existing facts. Hunter v. Interstate Building & Loan Ass'n, 24 Civ. App. 463, 58 S. W. 596.

False representations as to price at which the property could be purchased material. Paddock v. Bray, 40 Civ. App. 226, 88 S. W. 419.

Representations on sale of land held not relied on so as to be actionable. Wright v. United States Mortg. Co. (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1026; Zavala Land & Water Co. v. Tobert (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 78.

A person injured by the false and fraudulent representations of another is not bound to exercise diligence to discover the falsity of the representations; but, in the absence of knowledge to the contrary, is entitled to rely and act on the representations of the vendor. Closner v. Buckingham, 57 Civ. App. 117. The Western Piano & Organ Co. v. Anderson, 45 Civ. App. 515. United States Gypsum Co. v. Shields, 106 S. W. 724.

One who undertakes to discover the truth of representations made to him is charged with the knowledge of everything which a proper investigation would disclose, and is not justified in acting upon fraudulent representations merely because they were made to him. Newman v. Lyman (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 136; Wortman v. Young (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 660.

Sellers of bank stock, who was a director, and claimed to have special knowledge of the value of stock, held liable for false representations relied upon, although buyer was not in confidential relationship with seller. Barber v. Keeling (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 139.

Purchasers of the entire stock of a corporation held not entitled to recover for misrepresentations by defendants that it was fully paid in. Vick v. Park (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 109.

16. Interest or benefit to defendant.—It is not necessary to show that a party participating in the fraud shared in the profits. Smith v. Smith (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 272.

17. Fraudulent representations or concealment as to particular facts.—Statements as to the value of land, made by one party to a sale assuming to have special knowledge of the property's value, in regard to which value the other trusts entirely to the good faith of the former, should be considered in the same way that representations as to other facts are treated. Riggins v. Trickey, 46 Civ. App. 569, 102 S. W. 918.

Fraudulent misrepresentations by the vendor that there was upon the land a well capable of producing water justified a recovery by the vendee of the damages arising therefrom. Kallison v. Poland (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 1104.

18. Fraud in particular transactions.—As to a warranty of a machine see Danner v. Ft. Worth Implement Co., 18 Civ. App. 621, 45 S. W. 586.

Sellers of oats who represented that they were of a certain kind, and knowingly delivered a wholly different variety, held guilty of actionable fraud. Handy v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 37.

That owners of land gave option to party procuring purchasers, thereby limiting their liability to their own statements and saving themselves from liability for false misrepresentations, held not fraudulent. Closner & Sprague v. Acker (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 421.

As to partnership, see Chalk v. Collier (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 972.

Defendants held liable for deceit in inducing plaintiff to sell his land at a less price than he would have expected had he known the sale was through a broker. Hope v. Shirley (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 246.

19. Actions—Remedy.—Where defendant sold land to plaintiff, and afterwards fraudulently conveyed the same land to another, who recorded his deed before plaintiff, and so became entitled to the land, an action in behalf of plaintiff against his vendor for the damages incurred by him from fraudulent conduct will not be in the nature of an action of conversion, and hence maintainable, though for real, and not personal, property. Mitchell v. Simons (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 76.

One induced by fraud to enter into a contract may elect either to rescind by restoring what he has received thereunder, or to affirm without restoring the considerations received and sue for damages caused by the fraud. Fordtran v. Cunningham (Civ.
App.) 141 S. W. 562.

See, also, Day v. Stevenson (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1062; Benton v. Kuykendall (Civ.
App.) 160 S. W. 438; Winters v. Coward (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 940; Rumely Products
Co. v. Moss (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1084.

Where a vendor of land, subject to certain vendor's lien notes which the purchaser agreed to assume, falsely represented that the interest on such notes was paid to a certain date, the purchaser could sue for damages for the fraud and deceit and was not limited to an action for breach of warranty. Jones v. Montague (Civ. App.) 155 S.
W. 1053.

Fraudulent promises of defendant's agent to obtain stock, subscription contract, if contained in the contract, to the effect that the company would loan plaintiff money, would give plaintiff an action only for damages. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty

20. — Condition precedent.—A return or an offer to return what a party induced to enter into a contract by fraud has received under it is not a condition precedent to the maintenance of an action for the fraud. Covington v. O'Neill (Civ.
App.) 124 S. W. 690; Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 189 S. W.
1185; Bruns Kimball & Co. v. Amundsen (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 729.

Where a deed provided that the vendee should pay a part of the cost of a well then being bored on the land, the vendee without reforming or avoiding the instrument, might sue to recover damages for false representations that there was a gushing well

A recovery for false representations, by which a party was induced to give a note upon which no damages were subsequently recovered, held to be conditional upon payment
S. W. 335.

In buyer's action for damages from seller's misrepresentations in sale of thresher, on ground that it did not deliver machine contracted for, it was not necessary for him to prove that he had given notice of defects required by written warranty. Rumely Products Co. v. Moss (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1084.

In an action for damages resulting from a seller's fraudulent representations, though the plaintiff was not given notice for the purchase price, the failure to allege their payment and present status does not preclude plaintiffs from maintaining a suit if recoverable damages are otherwise alleged. Webb v. Emerson-Brantingham Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 499.

21. — Waiver of right of action.—Purchaser of land held not precluded from recovering damages for deceit. Gunn v. Ames, 36 Civ. App. 613, 83 S. W. 252; United Land & Irrigation Co. v. Fleming (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 843.

A party to a written contract cannot recover damages for false representations inducing him to enter into it, he not having demanded rescission on discovering that the representations were false, but the contract, as written, having been performed by both parties, and thereafter renewed. Barber v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 319.

Acts of purchaser of corporate stock held not a waiver of his right of action for deceit against stockholders inducing him to purchase the stock. Kennedy v. Bender, 104 Tex. 149, 135 S. W. 534, answers to certified questions conformed to 140 S. W.
491.

While retention and use of a horse, after discovery of the fraud by which the sale was induced, precludes a rescission, it does not prevent a recovery of damages resulting

Art. 3973a  FRAUDS AND FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES

29. — Questions for jury and instructions.—See notes under title 37, ch. 13. Art. 3973b. Same; actual damages.—All persons guilty of fraud, as defined in this Act, shall be liable to the person defrauded for all actual damages suffered by the rule of damages being the difference between the value of the property as represented or as would have been worth, had the promise been fulfilled, and the actual value of the property in the condition it is delivered at the time of the contract. [Id., § 2.]

Measure of damages in general.—The measure of damages for fraud in the exchange of property is the difference between the value of the property received and that given in exchange at the time of the exchange. Moore v. Beasley (Com. App.) 218 S. W. 957, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 389; Medley v. Lamb (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 1048.

For fraudulent compromise of debt the damage is the balance. Grabenheimer v. Blum, 63 Tex. 365.

For fraudulent representations inducing a purchase in a building and loan association, the measure of damages is the amount of payments made by the purchaser, with interest. Hunter v. Interstate Building & Loan Ass'n, 24 Civ. App. 453, 59 S. W. 596.

For procuring deed by fraudulent representations, the measure of damages is the value of the land at the time it was conveyed. Butler v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 656.

Purchaser relying on representations as to acreage can recover for shortage, not exceeding price per acre paid. Farris v. Glider (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 645.

A vendor fraudulently induced to accept a reconveyance in satisfaction of the vendor's lien notes cannot, where he keeps the property, recover the amount of the notes as damages for the fraud. Thouron v. Shirvin, 57 Civ. App. 105, 122 S. W. 55. The measure of damages for false representations as to firm debts is the full amount of the firm indebtedness plaintiff was compelled to pay above amount represented. Fitzman v. Bell (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 907.

For false representations inducing sale of business, held, that plaintiff could recover as damages the full value of his business. Connally v. Shaw v. Saunders (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 975.

The measure of damages for fraudulent representations that there was no road over the land sold would not be the purchase price per acre paid for the land. Bonsor v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 934.

The damages recoverable in an action of deceit are such as would result from the fraudulent act within the contemplation of the parties, and did proximately result therefrom. Handy v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 37.

Where one suing for fraud in sale of seed oats only owned two-thirds of the oat crop, it was error to permit him to recover the value of the loss of the whole crop. 1d. Measure of damages for seller's misrepresentations in sale of a pea thresher held market price of peas and expense. Rumely Products Co. v. Moss (Civ. App.) 178 S. W. 1084.

The measure of damages in action by vendee for fraud of vendor is not dependent upon number of false representations made on theory that certain amount should be allowed for each representation. Sims v. Ford (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 629.

Where vendor, having procured purchaser for land by fraudulent representations as to merchantable timber standing thereon, refused to accept purchaser's proffered return of the land at the same price paid therefor by purchaser, vendor cannot complain of judgment given purchaser for the value of the timber represented to have been standing upon land, instead of the difference between the consideration for the purchase and the aggregate value of land and timber. Riley v. Atmar (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 682.

For obtaining goods by false pretenses, by fraudulent statements as to financial status, measure of damages is ordinarily the value of the goods obtained, with 6 per cent. interest. Sanger Bros. v. Barrett (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1087.

The measure of damages for fraudulent representations of the value of the corporate assets is the actual difference between the value of the assets at the time of the purchase of stock and the value as represented. Reed v. Holloway (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1159.

As to damages for misrepresentations that the land was free from Johnson grass, see Cockrell v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 150.

Difference between value and price paid.—For misrepresentations that there was a good well of water, measure of damages is difference in amount buyer paid for land and its true value. Linnartz v. Lawrie (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 789; George v. Hesse, 100 Tex. 44, 95 S. W. 107, 8 L. R. A. (N. S.) 804.

To sale of a span of mules. Latham Co. v. Snell (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 917.

To sale of a share in an oil company. Philpott v. Edge (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 263.

Damage for vendor's misrepresentation as to acreage in tract sold at an agreed price per acre is measured by the difference between the price paid by purchaser for the land which it was represented he was receiving by his deed and the value of what he actually received as of the date of his purchase, with interest. Vogt v. Smallley (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 51, reversing Judgment (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 1.

For misrepresentation as to solvency of maker of notes received in part payment, and as to value of land upon which notes were to be a lien, vendor's measure of damages, is difference between land conveyed and consideration received. Luse v. Rea (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 942.

Nominal damages.—In an action for deceit in the sale of a horse, a verdict for one cent damages set aside. Traylor v. Evereston (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 637. If one is induced to make an exchange of property by false representations of the other party, he is entitled to recover at least nominal damages and costs. Moore v. Beckley (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 957, reversing Judgment (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 387.

Elements of damages.—In a suit for fraudulent representations as to the future location of a railroad depot, plaintiff cannot recover the value of improvements made on the land; the damage being too remote. Greenwood v. Pierce, 58 Tex. 130.

A purchaser cannot recover as actual damages resulting from lien a fee paid attorney for procuring a release willingly executed, nor the amount of rents which might have been realized from the property had the purchaser improved it. Sherrick v. Wyland, 14 Civ. App. 299, 37 S. W. 345.

For false representations in the sale of a gin which would not operate, the cost of machinery bought for use in connection therewith, but adapted for use with various other standard makes of gins, is not a proper element of damage; but the cost in putting it in place is a proper element of damage. Chatham Mach. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 592.

One induced by fraud to purchase land cannot recover for loss sustained by sale of his house for less than its value to raise money. Gordon v. Rhodes & Daniel, 117 S. W. 1023, certificated questions answered, 102 Tex. 500, 116 S. W. 49.
Art. 3973b  FRAUDS AND FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES  (Title 62)

As to damages recoverable from broker, see Gordon v. Rhodes & Daniel (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1053, cert. denied, answered 102 Tex. 365, 116 S. W. 40.

Buyer not entitled to damages for expenses incurred in endeavoring to operate machine after ascertaining its condition was misrepresented. Wimple v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1034.

Attorney's fees are not recoverable as actual damages. Thurson v. Skirvin, 57 Civ. App. 105, 122 S. W. 85.

One who purchased land because of false representations as to what it would produce could recover from the vendor the payment he had made, with interest together with all reasonable expenses for improvements, for the time he was in possession. Buckingham v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 652.

A party induced by false representations to give an interest-bearing note which he subsequently compelled to pay held entitled to recover the interest as a part of his damages, but not attorney's fees. Empire Life Ins. Co. v. Beamont Land & Building Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 335.

Buyer of a lot, the title to a strip of which was unmarketable, could recover, cost of moving his house built partly on that strip, although he might never have to move it. Dupree v. Savage (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 701.

The measure of damages of one purchasing corporate stock as a result of fraudulent representations that its actual value was its par value, held to be the difference between the amount paid for the stock and its value, plus the amounts he was required to pay to discharge corporate debts to protect the assets. Beckwith v. Powers (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 177.

For damages from seller's misrepresentations as to threshers, buyer could not recover ordinary expense of threshing, preserving, and marketing crop. Rumely Products Co. v. Selway (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 1084.

Where seller of land misrepresented there was a good well thereon, he was not liable to buyer for amount paid out by latter in digging wells. Linnartz v. Lawrie (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 789.

For fraud in sale of a jack for breeding purposes, recovery cannot be had for profits, nor for feed and care after it was discovered that the jack was not available for purpose for which purchased. Womack v. Hastings & Lagow (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 878.

On rescission of a contract for the purchase of a plow for false representations as to what it would do, expenses incurred by the buyer for labor, gasoline, and oil in testing the plow were recoverable. Hackney Mfg. Co. v. Celum (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 577, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 988.

Freight paid and expenses incurred by buyers in an attempt to make worthless tractor operate held recoverable as damages even though the purchase money notes had not been paid but profits were not recoverable. Webb v. Emerson-Brantingham Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 499.

Amount of damages.—Where plaintiff contracted to exchange land at $26 an acre for defendant's dry goods at their cost but defendant re-marked some goods to make cost price $500 in excess of what it actually was, plaintiff could recover no more than $500 from defendant. Sears v. Brown (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 495.

Damages awarded held not erroneous, though there was no representation as to one parcel of land: the land having been purchased as a whole. United Land & Irrigation Co. v. Fleming (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 845.

Art. 3973c. Same; exemplary damages.—All persons making the false representations or promises and all persons deriving the benefit of said fraud, shall be jointly and severally liable in actual damages, and in addition thereto, all persons knowingly and willfully making such false representations or promises or knowingly taking the advantage of said fraud shall be liable in exemplary damages to the person defrauded in such amount as shall be assessed by the Jury, not to exceed double the amount of the actual damages suffered. [Id., § 3.]

Persons liable for fraud.—Each party to a fraudulent transaction is liable for the false representations of the others, made in pursuance of the mutual understanding of the parties or in furtherance of the common plan, at least until the termination of the enterprise. Foix v. Moeller (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1048. See, also, Boelge v. Landa, 25 Tex. 105.

As to agent, see Foix v. Moeller (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1048; Young v. Barcroft (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 392.

Public rivers, etc., property of state, etc.; jurisdiction of Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner over.—All of the public rivers, bayous, lagoons, creeks, lakes, bays and inlets in this State, and all that part of the Gulf of Mexico within the jurisdiction of this State, together with their beds and bottoms, and all of the products thereof, shall continue and remain the property of the State of Texas, except in so far as the State shall permit the use of said water and bottoms, or permit the taking of the products of such bottoms and waters, and in so far as this use shall relate to or affect the taking and conservation of fish, oyster, shrimp, crabs, clams, turtle, terrapin, mussels, lobsters and all other kinds and forms of marine life, or relate to sand, gravel, marl, mudshell and all other kinds of shell, the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner shall have jurisdiction over and control of, in accordance with, and by the authority vested in him by the laws of this State. [Acts 1905, p. 129; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 7.]

See ante, note to art. 3974.

Taking effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 3981. [2158] Private and public oyster beds defined; beds subject to location.—All oyster beds shall be public or private; all not designated private shall be public. All natural oyster beds and oyster reefs of this State shall be deemed public, and a natural oyster bed shall be declared to exist when as many as five barrels of oysters may be found therein within twenty-five hundred square feet of any position of said reef or bed; and any lands covered by water containing less oysters than the above amount shall be subject to location at the discretion of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, but this shall not apply to a reef or bed that has been exhausted within a period of eight years. [Acts 1895, p. 70; Acts 1899, p. 314; Acts 1907, p. 236; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 8.]

Art. 3982. [2518] Riparian rights as to gathering, etc., oysters; affidavit that oysters offered for sale were taken from private bed; limitation on locations.—Whenever any creek, bayou, lake or cove shall be included within the metes and bounds of any original grant or location of land in this State, the lawful occupant of such grant or location shall have the exclusive right to use said creek, lake, bayou or cove for gathering, planting, or sowing oysters within the metes and bounds of the official grant or patent of said land. Provided, that the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner may require the owner of oysters produced on such lands, when such oysters offered for sale to make an affidavit that such oysters were produced on this land. And the failure of the person claiming that such oysters were produced on his private oyster bed or bottoms, to have and to show such affidavit to the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner or one of his deputies, or to the person to whom he offers such oysters for sale, shall be presumptive that such oysters were taken from a public bed, and on prosecution for the same, it shall devolve on the defendant to show that such oysters were taken from his private bed, or bottom of oysters. No person shall locate water or ground covered with water for planting oysters along any bay shore in this State, nearer than 100 yards from the shore. [Acts 1913, p. 297,
§ 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 9.]

Art. 3983. [2514] Special tax on fish, shrimp, oysters, turtles and terrapin taken and sold or offered for sale; amount; payment; what constitutes a barrel of oysters; title to shells.—There shall be and is hereby levied a tax of not less than one-fifth of one per cent. per pound on all fish, and shrimp, taken and sold or offered for sale in this State, and not less than two cents a barrel on all oysters, sold or offered for sale in this State, whether from private or public beds, and offered for sale or shipment, and not less than one-half a cent per pound on all turtles, and not less than twenty-five cents on each terrapin offered for sale and shipment. Such tax shall be paid under such rules and regulations as the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner shall prescribe. For all purposes mentioned in this Title or Section, a barrel of oysters shall be deemed and taken to consist of three boxes of oysters in the shell, said boxes to be of the following dimensions: ten inches wide by twenty inches long and thirteen and one-half inches in depth. In filling such boxes for measurement, such oysters shall not be placed or deposited in such box in a way that will make them fill the box more than two and one-half inches in the center above the height of the box. Provided that two gallons of shucked oysters without their shells shall be considered and deemed by this Act as equal to one barrel of oysters in the shell. It is hereby specially provided that the title to the shells, from which oysters are taken, shall remain in the State and the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner is directed to handle, control or sell same under the same rules and regulations as fixed by law, or may hereafter be fixed by law, for the handling, control or sale of other shells or mudshell taken from the tidal waters of the State. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 10.]

Explanatory.—For article 12 of Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, prescribing a penalty for using a measurement other than as provided for in this article, see post, Penal Code, art. 923J.
For article 13 of Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, prescribing a penalty for non-payment of the taxes imposed by this article see post, Penal Code, art. 923JJ.

Art. 3984. Registration of fishing boats in public waters; application; certificate; fee; marking boats.—Any person who is a citizen of the United States wishing to use a boat in catching or taking fish, green turtle, terrapin or shrimp or gathering oysters or other marine life for market in public waters of this State, in accordance with the provisions of the fish and oyster laws of this State, shall apply to the Game, and Oyster Commissioner or his deputies for permission to do so. Such applicant shall furnish said officer under oath his name, place or residence, the name and kind of boat to be used by him, together with the number of men to be employed by him. Thereupon the officer shall register such boat which register number shall be distinctly painted, as the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner may designate, on such boat, for which registration he shall pay the said officer one dollar and fifty cents and the said officer shall furnish the applicant with a certificate of such registration, such certificate shall be for twelve months from date of issuance. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C.
S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 14.]
Art. 3985. [2514] [Superseded.]

Explanatory.—This article would seem to be superseded by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. 10, ante, art. 3983, conferring on the Game, Fish, and Oyster Commissioner, power to make rules and regulations for payment of the special tax.

Art. 3986. [2518k] License to catch or take fish, oysters, etc; issue; term of; fee for; cancellation.—Any captain or master of any boat wishing to engage in the business of catching or taking any fish, turtle, terrapin, shrimp, or oysters or other marine life from the waters of the State for market shall, before engaging in such business, secure from the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, or one of his deputies, a license granting him permission to take from the waters of the State, fish, turtle, terrapin, shrimp, or oysters; provided, that the license in exercising the privilege named in this license, shall at all times be governed by the fish and oyster laws of this State. For the purpose of obtaining this license the person desiring same must make written application to the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, or one of his deputies, in which he, the applicant shall set forth under oath that he is a citizen of the United States and the name, class and register number of his boat. If the application be for a license to use seines and nets, the applicant shall state the number, class and length of the seines and nets to be used by him, and if the application be for a license to gather oysters he must state the number of tongs to be used by him, and the applicant shall also agree that because of the privilege he shall receive from the State of Texas, of taking fish, turtle, terrapin, shrimp or oysters from her waters, or the marine life, all such products at all times, shall be subject to inspection by the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, or any of his deputies, and that said application shall authorize said Commissioner, or any of his deputies, to enter at any time the boat or any house or place, where he, the applicant, may have such from her waters, or the marine life, all such products at all times, shall further agree to pay to the State of Texas a special tax provided for in Article 10 of this Act [art. 3983]. This application having been duly executed and handed to the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, or any of his deputies, accompanied by the applicant’s registration certificate and the fee for the license applied for, it shall thereupon be the duty of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, or the deputy receiving same, to issue to the applicant a license to engage in the business set forth in his application, and the license shall be subject to such limitations and control as herein prescribed and as is or may be prescribed by the laws of this State. Said license must be signed by the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, or his deputy, stamped with the seal of office and state the name of the licensee, name and class of his boat and the date of issuance. Such license shall be for twelve months, if for fishing, for fish, turtle, or shrimp, and from September the first to April the first, following the date of license, if for gathering oysters; and from November the first to February the first inclusive; if granted for the purpose of catching terrapin, and for said license the applicant shall pay the sum of one dollar. The license so issued shall be kept on the boat subject to the inspection of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner or any of his deputies, and it shall not be good for any other person nor on any other boat than the original named therein without the consent of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, or one of his deputies, having first been had, which consent or assignment shall be written across the face of said license; provided, that if at any time such licensed captain or master of a boat shall violate any of the fish and oyster laws of this State, or shall at any time refuse to comply with any provision made in his application for license, the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner is authorized to cancel said license and the boat registration certificate, notice of which shall be given by the Fish and Oyster Commissioner in writing and delivered to the licensee, and such license to such captain and the registration of such boat shall not be renewed for three years. Any person wishing to engage in the taking or catching of any fish, turtle, terrapin, shrimp, or oysters for market as the employee of the owner or as a part of a crew of any registered boat, shall procure a license in the same manner and character as the captain or master of any registered boat engaged in taking or catching fish, turtle, terrapin, shrimp, or oysters or other marine life, for market; provided, that one license so issued under this Article shall authorize the licensee to engage in taking or catching any of the products named herein. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 15.]

Art. 3987. License to wholesale dealers in fish and oysters; application; requisites; agreement for inspection, records, etc.; forfeiture of license; tax; cancellation.—For the protection of the fish and oyster industry, any individual, firm or corporation, engaged in, or who may engage in, the business of a wholesale dealer or dealers in fish and oysters, shall secure from the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, or one of his deputies, a license granting such individual, firm or corporation permission to engage in said occupation for one year. For the purpose of obtaining this license the applicant desiring same must make written application to the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, or one of his deputies, in which he (the applicant) shall set forth under oath, if required, that he is a citizen of the United States by birth or not being so shall state that he has been granted full naturalization papers and by what court and at what time they were granted. Where a corporation applying for permit to conduct a wholesale business in fish, oysters and other marine products as, mentioned, contains foreigners, it shall conform to the foregoing provisions as applied to individual applicants. He shall also agree that, because of the privilege which he applies for from the State of Texas, that all products handled by him shall, at all times be subject to the inspection of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, or any of his deputies; and in said application he shall authorize said Commissioner or any of his deputies to enter his place of business, or any place where he may have such products stored, and inspect same. He shall also agree to keep a correct record of all fish, oysters, shrimp and other taxed marine life handled by him under this law in a book to be furnished by the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner; and, further, that failure on his part to keep a correct record shall be grounds for the forfeiture of his license granted him under the application aforesaid. This application, having been duly executed and delivered to the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, or any of his deputies, together with a fee of ten dollars for same, it shall be the duty of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, or his deputy, to issue to the applicant a license to engage in the business set forth in the application. Said license must be signed by the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, or one of his deputies, stamped with the seal of his office, and state the name of the licensee, place of business and the kind of license applied for, and shall be good for twelve months following the date of issuance. For such license the applicant shall pay one dollar for each one thousand pounds of fish handled by him, and a tax of one cent per barrel on oysters handled by him, which tax shall be paid monthly, the tax to be paid on the first of each month, which may be due upon the said product handled during the preceding month as shown by the record books hereinbefore mentioned.

* * * A wholesale dealer in the meaning and definition of this Act is any person, corporation or firm or partnership engaged in the business of buying and selling fish, oysters, shrimp, turtle, terrapin, crabs, clams, lobsters or other commercial marine life, in quantities of ten pounds or more to any customer during the same day, or whose daily sales, or whose sales for any one day, amount to more than the aggregate of one hundred pounds of above mentioned marine products.

Took effect 30 days after June 18, 1920, date of adjournment.

Explanatory.—This article is a part of article 16 of Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, as amended by Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 44, § 1. For the penal provision of said article 16, see post, Penal Code, art. 917.

Arts. 3988, 3989. [Superseded by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 16, ante, art. 3987.]

Art. 3990. Deposit of estimated amount of tax, etc.—The applicant for any license under this act, based upon fish and oysters handled, shall upon the issuance of such license, deposit with the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, if required to do so by such officer, an amount of money, to be fixed by the said commissioner, in addition to the ten dollars required of him as a wholesale dealer as defined in Article 16 [Art. 3987], sufficient to cover the estimated amount of tax that would be due by applicant upon monthly business of applicant, and against which deposit the tax due may be charged by the commissioner, and said applicant shall make additional deposits in sufficient amounts to at all times maintain a deposit sufficient to cover the estimated tax that may be due by applicant, which additional deposit shall be made upon request of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 17.]

Art. 3991. [2518m] Location for planting oysters; who may obtain; application; fee for.—Any person who is a citizen of the United States, or any corporation having been chartered in this State shall have the right of obtaining a location for planting oysters and making private oyster beds within the public waters of this State, by making written application to the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, or his deputy, describing the location desired. A fee of twenty dollars cash must accompany such application. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 18.]

Art. 3992. [2518m] Examination of location; survey.—When the application and fee provided for in Article 18 [Art. 3991] has been placed in the hands of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, it shall then be the duty of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, or his deputy, to examine thoroughly the location desired as soon as practicable, with tongs, dredge, or any other efficient manner; and, if the same be not a natural oyster bed or reef, and exempt from location by any section or article of this chapter, he shall have the location surveyed by a competent surveyor. In making said location, said surveyor shall plant two iron stakes or pipes on the shore line nearest to the proposed location, one at each end of the proposed location, which said stakes or pipes shall be not less than two inches in diameter and be set at least three feet in the ground. Said stakes or pipes shall be placed with reference to bearings of not less than three natural or permanent objects or land marks. And the locator shall place and maintain under the direction of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, or his deputy, a bouy at each corner of his oyster claim farthest from the land. All locations for private oyster beds shall be made outside of the riparian limits as defined in the laws relating thereto. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 19.]

Art. 3993. [2518m] Location certificate; fee for; filing and recording; fee for; evidence.—The Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, or his deputy, shall give the locator a certificate signed by the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner and stamped with the seal of his office; such certificate shall show the date of application, date of survey, number, description of metes and bounds with reference to the points of the compass and natural and artificial objects by which said location can be found and verified. And the locator shall before such certificate is delivered to him, pay the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, or his deputy, surveyor's fees, and all other expenses connected with establishing such location. If such sums, as costs of the location and establishment of the claim, are less than twenty dollars paid to such commissioner, or deputy, the difference in amount shall be returned to such locator by the Commissioner or deputy. If such expenses amount to more than twenty dollars the deficit shall be paid to the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner by the locator.

At any time not exceeding sixty days after the date of such certificate of location, the locator must file the same with the county clerk of the county in which the location is situated, who shall record the same in a well bound book kept for that purpose, and the original with a certificate of registration shall be returned to the owner or locator; the clerk shall receive for the recording of such certificate the same fee as for recording deeds; the original or certified copies of such certificates shall be admissible in evidence under the same rule governing the admission of deeds or certified copies thereof. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 20.]

Art. 3994. [Superseded by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 20, ante, art. 3993.]

Art. 3995. [2518m] Possession of locator protected.—Any person so locating, shall be protected in his possession thereof against trespass thereon in like manner as free-holders are protected in their possessions, as long as he maintains all stakes and buoys, in their original and correct position, and complies with all laws, rules and regulations governing the fish and oyster industries. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 21.]

Art. 3996. [2518p] Location limited; foreign corporations excluded.—No person, firm or corporation, shall ever own, lease or otherwise control more than one hundred acres of land covered by water, the same being oyster locations under this chapter, and within the public waters of this State; and any person, firm or corporation that now holds more than one hundred acres of oyster locations, shall not be permitted hereafter to acquire, lease or otherwise control more; provided that no corporation shall lease or control any such lands covered by water unless such corporation shall be duly incorporated under the laws of this State. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 22.]

Art. 3997. [2518n] Staking, marking or fencing private locations.—Any person, firm, or corporation who has secured, or may hereafter secure a location for a private oyster bed in this State, shall keep the two iron stakes or pipes and buoys as provided for in Article 19 [Art. 3992], in place, and shall preserve the marks so long as he is the lessee of said location, and this shall apply also to any person, firm or corporation acquiring any location by purchase or transfer of any nature, and said locator or the assignee of any locator shall have the right to fence said location or any part thereof; provided, that said fence does not obstruct navigation through or into a regular channel or cut leading to other public waters. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 23.]

Art. 3998. [2518n] Rentals for locations; forfeiture of location.—The owner or locator of private oyster beds, under provisions of the foregoing articles shall not be required to pay any rentals on such locations for a period of five years, or till such time as he shall begin to market or sell oysters from such location or bed. When such locator shall begin to sell or market oysters from such location he shall pay the State one dollar and fifty cents per acre per annum and two cents a barrel or such tax as may be imposed under section ten of this Act [Art. 3983] on oyster sales, and failure to pay such rental by the 1st day of March each year shall annul and be a forfeiture of his lease. And if oysters are not marketed or sold from such location within five years from the date of location, such location shall become void. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 24.]

Art. 3999. Permit to gather oysters for planting or for preparation for market; persons entitled to; application; restrictions; culls; marking beds planted with oysters so taken.—Any person who is a citizen of the State of Texas, or any corporation chartered by the said State of Texas, to engage in the culture of oysters or transact business in the purchase and sale of oysters and fish and composed of American citizens, wishing to plant oysters on their own oyster locations or to take oysters from oyster reefs and public waters of the State of Texas for the purpose of preparing them for market, shall make application to the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner for permission to do the same. In such application the applicant shall set out distinctly the purpose for which he desires such oysters, and also the amount or number that he desires to take from the beds and waters mentioned. The Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner may grant such permit or he may refuse to do so. But if he should grant such permit he shall require the applicant to take the oysters he is authorized to take from beds or reefs designated by such commissioner and name them in the permit; he shall mark off the exact area of such beds or reefs from which such oysters shall be taken; he shall designate the bottoms on which such oysters shall be deposited, if they are taken to be prepared for market; he shall require the applicant to cull the oysters taken on the grounds where they are to be located; he shall state what implements, such as tongs and dredges shall be used in taking such oysters and he shall make and enforce all the other regulations he may think necessary to protect and conserve the oysters on the reefs and beds from which the applicant hereinbefore mentioned is permitted to take oysters. When any person or corporation takes oysters, under the provisions of this act from the public reefs for planting purposes and places them on his or its own private bed or reef, or takes oysters from such public reefs or beds for the purpose of preparing them. for market, and places them on such beds or bottoms designated by the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, where they may be prepared for market, such oysters shall become the personal property of the person or corporation planting them, in the first instance, or depositing them in the second instance. Provided, that the person or corporation planting the oysters or depositing them for preparation for market shall, by buoys or stakes or by fencing, clearly and distinctly mark the boundaries of the bed planted or the boundaries of the deposit of oysters made for preparation for market; and no prosecution of any one shall be permitted for taking such oysters unless the boundaries of the private beds and the boundaries of the deposit for the market preparation are established and maintained. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 25.]

Art. 3999a. Individual license to take fish, etc., for sale; fee for.—Any person who is an American citizen desiring to fish in the public waters of this State, or fish for oysters, fish, shrimp, turtle, terrapin, clams, crabs or other marine animal life, for the purpose of selling them, shall procure from the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner or his deputy, a license to do so, and such person shall pay the fee of one dollar for such license, which shall be for one year from the date thereof and oblige the holder to observe all the laws of the State enacted to conserve the marine life of such public waters. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 27.]

Explanatory.—This is a part of Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. 27. For the penal provision of said art. 27 see post. Penal Code, art. 908. See, also, post, Penal Code, art. 908a.

Art. 4000. Duties of commissioner.—It shall be the duty of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner to collect the special tax imposed by this chapter and enforce its payment, to inspect all products so taxed and verify the weights and measures thereof, to collect all license fees to collect all rents on locations for planting oysters, to examine or have examined all streams, lakes or ponds when requested to do so for the purpose of stocking such waters with fish best suited to such location and he shall procure and furnish such stock fish from the nearest fishery and fish hatchery, free of charge to any party or parties applying therefor. It shall be the duty of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner to supply from the fish hatcheries and fisheries of this State free of charge to all parties applying therefor such number of fish for the purpose of stocking private lakes and ponds, or public waters, as may be available for distribution; provided, however, that the parties applying therefor shall pay all transportation charges on such fish and shall return to the hatchery or fishery all containers, free of cost.

It shall be lawful for the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner of this State and his deputies to take at any time from the public fresh waters of this State all brood fish required by him in operation of such hatcheries for the purpose of propagation and culture. It shall also be lawful for the United States Commissioner of Fisheries and his duly authorized agents to take from public fresh waters of this State all brood fish necessary in the operation of Federal Fish Hatcheries. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 12, § 1; Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 87, § 1.]

Explanatory.—This article was superseded in part by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2nd C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 67, as amended by Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 44, § 1, post art. 4018b, and by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 78, post art. 4018c.

Art. 4000a. United States Commissioner of Fisheries may conduct fish hatching and culture.—There is hereby accorded to the United States Commissioner of Fisheries and his duly authorized agents the right to conduct fish hatching and fish culture and all operations connected therewith at any time, in any manner, and at any place, that may be by them considered necessary and proper. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 3d C. S., ch.
12, § 2; Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 87, § 2.]

took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

Art. 4001. [2515] Commissioner to keep record of special taxes collected, licenses issued, etc.—The Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner shall keep a record book, which shall be well-bound, and in which shall be recorded all special taxes collected, all licenses issued and license fees collected all certificates issued for locations of private oyster beds, showing the date of certificate and application, when and how the applications were executed and the manner in which the bottoms were examined and rents collected for such locations, showing also all stock fish furnished, to whom furnished, and the cost of same, the streams, lakes or ponds stocked number and kinds of fish used in each and showing all collections, and disbursements in and from his office. [Acts 1913, p. 297, §
1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 71.]

Art. 4002. Commissioner to keep accounts with locators.—The Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner shall keep an account with each and every person, firm or corporation holding certificates for the location of private oyster beds in this State, showing the amounts received as rents, etc. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73,
art. (sec.) 68.]

Art. 4003. [2516] Annual report of Commissioner; contents; printing and distribution; dismissal from office for failure to make.—The Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner shall make on the thirty-first day of August of each year, or as soon thereafter as practicable, not later than October 1st, of each year, a report to the Governor, showing the conditions of the fish and oyster industry. The report shall show the special taxes collected, the number and class of all boats engaged in the fish and oyster trade, the number of licenses issued and license fees collected, the number, place and acreage of private oyster beds and rents received therefor, and all other amounts collected from whatever source, and the disbursements therefor, as provided for in this chapter with such observations and remarks as pertain to the industry. The report shall also contain a statement of all stock furnished, to whom furnished, the cost of same, the streams, lakes or ponds stocked, the number and kind of fish used in each, and the condition of such plants, with any other data he may obtain on the subjects. The Governor shall order a sufficient number of copies of such report to be printed and filed in the Secretary of State's Office for the purpose of free distribution to parties interested therein. Failure to make such report within the time specified, the said Commissioner may, in the discretion of the Governor, be dismissed from his office. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73,
art. (sec.) 69.]

Art. 4004. [2518d] Boat deputies; appointment; powers.—The Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner is authorized to appoint deputies for each of the vessels owned by the State and employed in the Fish and Oyster Department. Such boat deputies shall have and exercise the same powers and duties as the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner and execute a good and sufficient bond, with two or more sureties, that such deputies shall at all time be subject to the orders of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg.
2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 71.]

1194
Art. 4005. [2517] Shore and interior deputies; appointment; powers and duties.—The Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner is authorized to appoint such other shore and interior deputies as he may deem necessary for the enforcement of the law. And such shore deputies and interior deputies shall have and exercise the same powers and duties as the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner in the enforcement of the Game, Fish and Oyster Laws, and be at all times subject to his order. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 71.]

Art. 4006. [2518k] Qualifications of deputy fish and oyster commissioners; terms of office.—No person shall hold the office of deputy fish and oyster commissioner who is not a citizen of the United States and of the State of Texas. All deputies shall hold their office at the pleasure of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 71.]

Art. 4007. [2518g] Oath and bond of deputy fish and oyster commissioner.—Before entering upon the duties of his office each deputy fish and oyster commissioner shall file with the Fish and Oyster Commissioner a good and sufficient bond, with two or more sureties, in the sum of one thousand dollars, and take the same oath of office as the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, and said bond and oath shall be governed by the provisions of Article 4 [art. 3977]. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 72.]

Art. 4008. [2518f] Deputy fish and oyster commissioners ex officio game commissioners.—Each Deputy fish and oyster commissioner shall be ex officio game commissioner, and shall exercise the duties and powers of Game Commissioner under the direction of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 73.]

Art. 4009. [2518e] Monthly reports by deputies; remittances.—All deputy fish, and oyster commissioners shall make a monthly report to the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner of all funds collected by them, remitting along with said report all sums of money collected by them during the said month. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 74.]

Art. 4010. [2518j] Commissioner responsible for deputies.—The Commissioner shall be responsible, on his bond, for the official acts of his deputies. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 70.]

Art. 4011. [2518]
Explanatory.—This article does not seem to be superseded by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, re-enacting most of the provisions of chapters 1 and 2 of this title.

(sec.) 67; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 44, § 1 (Art. 67).]

Took effect 90 days after June 18, 1920, date of adjournment.

Arts. 4017, 4018.

Explanatory.—These articles do not seem to be superseded by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, re-enacting most of the provisions of chapters 1 and 2 of this title.

Art. 4018a. Commissioner to collect taxes, licenses, etc.—The Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner is hereby authorized and empowered to collect all taxes and licenses, fines and forfeiture and all money due said department, by deputies or persons specially employed for that purpose. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 11.]

Art. 4018b. Same; other duties.—It shall be the duty of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner to collect all taxes, licenses and fines as imposed by law, and to enforce their payment, to inspect all products so taxed, and to verify the weights and measures thereof; to collect license fees, to collect all rents on locations for planting oysters, to examine, or have examined, all streams, lakes, or ponds, when requested to do so, for the purpose of stocking such waters with fish best suited to such locations and he shall superintend and have control in the propagation of fish in the State fish hatchery and the distribution of such fish, and he shall have superintendence and control of the propagation and distribution of birds and game in the State reservations over which he may have control, or which may be established for such propagation. He shall also be allowed a sum not to exceed fifteen hundred dollars per annum for traveling and other expenses, to be paid on vouchers approved by the Governor, showing that such amounts have actually been expended in the performance of his duties of said office, and he shall be allowed all stationery, books, blanks, tags, State laws and charts necessary to the execution of the duties of his office. [Acts
Art. 4018c. Taking of brood fish by commissioner.—It shall be lawful for the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner of this State and his deputies or the United States Commissioner of Fisheries and his duly authorized Agents, to take at any time and in any manner from the public fresh waters of this State all brood fish required by them in operation of the State and Federal Hatcheries. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 76.]

Art. 4018d. Partial invalidity of act.—If any section of this bill shall be held unconstitutional it shall not affect any other section of this bill, and all sections save the one that may be declared unconstitutional shall continue to be in full force and effect. [Id., art. (sec.) 76a.]

Art. 4018e. Effect of act on other acts.—This Act shall be construed to be a continuation of all former Acts upon the subject, and any and all suits instituted under any former Act shall not abate, but prosecutions thereof shall continue under the provisions of such former Acts or under this Act. [Id., art. (sec.) 77.]

Art. 4019.

Explanatory.—This article does not seem to be superseded by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 73, re-enacting most of the provisions of chapters 1 and 2 of this title.

Art. 4019a. [Superseded in part.]

See arts. 923a, 923ao, Penal Code, post. The provision as to mesh for turtles may still be operative after the expiration of the five-year period of absolute protection for turtles, under Penal Code, art. 914a, post.

Art. 4019b. [Superseded.]

See art. 923m, Penal Code, post.

Art. 4019c. Dredging reefs for improvement thereof.—Whenever the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner believes that an oyster bed can be improved by the use of dredges he may grant the use of such dredges on such reefs, but only under the superintendence, supervision and in the presence of a deputy fish and oyster commissioner. And the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner is authorized to purchase boats and implements and employ labor to work such public oyster reefs and beds as he thinks can be improved thereby, the expense of which shall be paid from the Fish and Oyster Fund of the State on warrants issued by the Comptroller or the sworn statement as to the correctness of such expense by the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner. [Acts 1913, p. 297, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg: 2d C. S., ch. 73, art. (sec.) 50.]

Arts. 4020–4021a.

See these articles in Vernon's Sayles' Civ. St. 1914.

Art. 4021b. What included within act, and under management, etc., of game, fish and oyster commissioner.—All the islands, reefs, bars, lakes, and bays within tidewater limits from the most interior point seaward co-extensive with the jurisdiction of this State and such of the fresh water islands, lakes, rivers, creeks and bayous within the interior of this State as may not be embraced in any survey of private land, together with all the marl and sand of commercial value, and all the shells, mudshell or gravel, or whatsoever kind that may be in or upon any island, reef or bar, and in or upon the bottoms of any lake, bay, shallow water, rivers, creeks and bayous and fish hatcheries and oyster beds, within the jurisdiction and territory herein defined, are included within the provisions of this Act, and all such islands, reefs, bars, lakes, bays, shallow waters, rivers, creeks and bayous, and the marl, sand, shells, mudshells, gravel and oyster beds and fish hatcheries, located as herein defined, are, for the purpose of this Act, hereby placed under the management, control and protection of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner. [Acts 1911, p. 118, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 74, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment.

Sale of lake.—A navigable lake cannot be sold, but is under the jurisdiction of the commissioner. Welder v. State (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 668.

Art. 4021c. Certain fresh water lakes shall not be sold; open to public; protection of fish in.—Such of the fresh water lakes, rivers, creeks and bayous within this State as may be embraced in any survey of private land shall not be sold, but shall remain open to the public; provided should the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner stock them with fish, he is authorized to protect same for such time and under such rules as may be prescribed by him. [Acts 1911, p. 118, § 2; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 74, § 1 (§ 2).]

Art. 4021d. Powers of commissioner: marl, sand, shells, mudshell and oyster beds.—The Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner is hereby invested by all the power and authority necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this Act, and shall have full charge and discretion over all matters pertaining to the sale, the taking, carrying away or disturbing of all marl, sand or gravel of commercial value, and all gravel and shells or mudshell and oyster beds and their protection from free use and unlawful disturbing or appropriation of same, with such exceptions, and under such restrictions and limitations as may be provided herein. [Acts 1911, p. 118, § 3; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 74, § 1 (§ 3).]

Art. 4021e. Marl; purchase, etc.—None of the marl, gravel, shells, mudshell or sand included in the preceding Sections of this Act shall be purchased, taken away or disturbed except as provided in this Act nor shall any oyster beds, or fish hatcheries, within the territory included in this Act be disturbed except as herein provided. [Acts 1911, p. 118, § 4; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 74, § 1 (§ 4).]

Art. 4021f. Same; application; permit; limitations on; revocation; no special privilege or exclusive right.—Anyone desiring to purchase any of the marl and sand of commercial value and any of the gravel, shells or mudshell included within the provision of this Act, or otherwise operate in any of the waters or upon any island, reef, bar, lake, bay, river, creek or bayou, included in this Act, shall first make written application therefor to the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner designating the limits of the territory in which such person desires to operate. If the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, is satisfied the taking, carrying away or disturbing of the marl, gravel, sand, shells or mudshell, in the designated territory would not damage or injuriously affect any oysters, oyster beds, fish inhabiting waters thereof or adjacent thereto and that such operation would not damage or injuriously affect any island, reef, bar, channel, river, creek or bayou used for frequent or occasional navigation nor change or otherwise injuriously affect any current that would affect navigation, he may issue a permit to such person after such applicant shall have complied with all regulations and requirements prescribed by said Commissioner. The permit shall authorize the applicant to take, carry away, or otherwise operate within the limits of such territory as may be designated therein, and for such substance or purpose only as may be named in the permit and upon the terms and conditions therein. No permit shall be assignable, and a failure to, or refusal of the holder to comply with the terms and conditions of the permit shall operate as an immediate termination and revocation of all rights conferred therein or claimed thereunder. No special privilege or exclusive right shall be granted to any person, association of persons, corporate or otherwise, to take or carry away any marl, gravel, sand, shell or mudshell from any territory or to otherwise operate in or upon any island, reef, bay, lake, river, creek, bayou, or any bay included in this Act. [Acts 1911, p. 118, § 5; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 74, § 1 (§ 5).]

Art. 4021g. Sale of marl, gravel, sand, shells or mudshell; proceeds. —The Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, by and with the approval of the Governor, may sell the marl, gravel, sand, shells, or mudshell, included within this Act, upon such terms and conditions as he may deem proper, but for not less than four cents per ton, and payment thereof shall be made to said Commissioner. The proceeds arising from such sale shall be transmitted to the State Treasurer and be credited to the general fund of the State and may be expended by the said Commissioner upon itemized accounts sworn to by those performing the service or furnishing the material, and approved by said commissioner. The said account shall be filed with the Comptroller of Public Accounts, and he shall draw a warrant therefor upon the State Treasurer. [Acts 1911, p. 118, § 6; Acts 1911, S. S., p. 78, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 74, § 1 (§ 6).]

Art. 4021h. [Superseded by the omission thereof from the amendatory act. Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 74, § 1.]

Art. 4021i. Permits to counties, cities, towns, etc.—If any county, or sub-division of a County, City or town should desire any marl, gravel, sand, shell, or mudshell included in this Act for use in the building of any road or street, which work is done by said county, or any subdivision of a county, City or Town, such county or subdivision of a County, City or Town may be granted a permit without charge and shall have the right to take, carry away or operate in any waters or upon any islands reefs or bars included in this Act; such county, subdivision or a county, City or Town to do the work under its own supervision, but such County, or any sub-division of a County, City or Town shall first obtain from the said Commissioner a permit to do so, and the granting of same for the operation in the territory designated by such County, or any sub-division of a County, City or Town, shall be subject to the same rules, regulations and limitations and discretion of the said Commissioner as are other applicants and permits. If any County, or any sub-division of a County, City or Town should desire any gravel, marl, sand, or shell or mudshell included in this Act for use in the building of any road or street, and the building of any road or street is to be done by contract, or the dredging or taking of gravel, marl, sand or shell, or mudshell for use on said road or street, is to be done by contract, then the said County or any sub-division of a county, City or Town may obtain a refund from the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, of the tax levied and collected on said gravel, marl, sand or shell or mudshell as fixed by the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner at the time of the taking thereof by warrant drawn by the Comptroller upon the fish and oyster fund upon itemized account sworn to by the proper officer representing said County or any sub-division of a County, City or Town and approved by the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner and under such other rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner. [Acts 1911, p. 118, § 8; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 74, § 1 (§ 8).]

Art. 4021j. [Superseded.]

See art. 923n, Penal Code, post. Arts. 4021k, 4021l.

Explanatory.—These articles do not seem to be superseded by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 74, re-enacting the marl and sand law.

TITLE 63 B

GAS UTILITIES

Art. 4042 1/2. Terms defined; gas utilities affected with a public interest.

4042 1/2a. Gas pipe lines declared a monopoly subject to regulation by railroad commission; duty of Attorney General.

4042 1/2b. Railroad commission empowered to fix rates and to establish rules and regulations; review of agreements and entertainment of petitions of interested persons.

4042 1/2c. Commission may require reports from operators of gas utilities; determination of complaints; costs.

4042 1/2d. Discrimination prohibited; provisions.

4042 1/2e. Rights and powers of municipalities preserved; review of municipal acts by commission.

4042 1/2f. Pipe line expert shall assist commission.

4042 1/2g. Employment of experts, etc., by commission; compensation; approval of Board of Control.

Article 4042 1/2. Terms defined; gas utilities affected with a public interest.—The term “gas utility” and “public utility” or “utility” as used in this Act means and includes persons, corporations and companies, their lessees, trustees, and receivers appointed by any court whatsoever, now or hereafter owning, managing, operating, leasing or controlling within this State any wells, pipelines, plant, property, equipment, facility, franchise, license, or permit for either one or more of the following kinds of business:

(1) (a) Producing or obtaining, transporting, conveying, distributing or delivering natural gas, for public use or service for compensation;

(b) or for sale to municipalities of [or] persons or companies, in those cases referred to in paragraph 3 hereof, engaged in distributing or selling natural gas to the public;

(c) or for sale or delivery of natural gas to any person or firm or corporation operating under franchise or a contract with any municipality or other legal subdivision of the State;

(d) or for sale or delivery of natural gas to the public for domestic or other use.

(2) Owning, or operating or managing a pipe line for the transportation or carriage of natural gas, whether for public hire or not, if any part of the right of way for said line has been acquired or may hereafter be acquired by the exercise of the right of eminent domain; or if said line, or any part thereof is laid upon, over or under any public road or highway of this State, or street or alley of any municipality, or the right of way of any railroad or other public utility; including also any natural gas utility authorized by any law to exercise the right of eminent domain.

(3) The business of producing or purchasing natural gas and transporting or causing the same to be transported by pipe or lines to or near to the limits of any municipality in which said gas is received and distributed or sold to the public by another public utility or by said municipality, in all cases where such business is in fact the only or practically exclusive agency of supply of natural gas to such utility or municipality, is hereby declared to be a virtual monopoly and a business and calling affected with a public interest, and the said business and all properly employed therein within this State are hereby subject to the provisions of this Act and to the jurisdiction and regulation of the Commission as a gas utility.

Every gas utility as defined in this Act is hereby declared to be affected with a public interest and subject to the jurisdiction, control and regulation of the Commission as provided in this Act, provided, that the rates and service of any gas utility plant, property, equipment or facilities owned, or operated by a municipality shall not be subject to the jurisdiction, regulation or control of the Commission. [Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 14, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after adjournment which occurred on June 13, 1920.

Art. 4042%GA. Gas pipe lines declared a monopoly subject to regulation by railroad commission; duty of Attorney General.—It is declared that the operation of gas pipe lines to which this Act applies for buying, selling, transporting, producing or otherwise dealing in natural gas is a business which in its nature and according to the established method of conducting the business is a monopoly, in the mode of the conduct of which the public is interested, and as such is subject to regulation by law; and accordingly it is provided that from and after the expiration of the time this law takes effect the business of purchasing or of selling gas, or of distributing such gas or of transporting such gas or of producing or dealing in such gas shall not be conducted, unless such gas pipe line so used in connection with such business be subject to the jurisdiction herein conferred upon the Railroad Commission of Texas, hereinafter also referred to as the Commission. It shall be the duty of the Attorney General of Texas to enforce this provision by injunction or other remedy. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 4042%GB. Railroad commission empowered to fix rates and to establish rules and regulations; review of agreements and entertainment of petitions of interested persons.—The Railroad Commission after due notice and upon full and fair hearing, shall have the power and it shall be its duty to fix and establish and enforce the adequate and reasonable price of gas and fair and reasonable rates of charges and regulations for transporting, producing, distributing, buying, selling, and delivering gas by such pipe lines in this State; to establish fair and equitable rules and regulations for the full control and supervision of said gas pipe lines and all their holdings pertaining to the gas business in all their relations to the public as the Commission may from time to time deem proper; to establish a fair and equitable division of the proceeds of the sale of gas between the companies transporting or producing the gas and the companies distributing or selling it; and to prescribe and enforce rules and regulations for the government and control of such pipe lines in respect to their gas pipe lines and producing, receiving, transporting, and distributing facilities and to regulate and apportion the supply of gas between towns, cities, and corporations, and when the supply of gas controlled by any gas pipe line shall be inadequate, the Commission shall have the power and if shall be its duty to prescribe fair and reasonable rules and regulations requiring such gas pipe lines to augment their supply of gas, when in the judgment of the Commission it is practicable to do so; and it shall be the Commission's duty to exercise such power, whether upon its own motion or upon petition by any person, corporation, municipal corporation, county, or commissioner's precinct showing a substantial interest in the subject, or upon petition of the Attorney General, or of any county or district attorney in any county wherein such business or any part thereof may be carried on. All orders and agreements of any company or corporation, or any person or persons controlling such pipe lines establishing or prescribing prices, rates, rules and regulations and conditions of service, shall be subject to review, revision, and regulation by the Commission on hearing after notice as provided for herein to the person, firm, corporation, partnership, or joint stock association owning or controlling or operating the gas pipe line affected. In the event any rate or charge for gas or for service or for meter rental or any other purpose pertaining to the operation of said business shall be made or promulgated by any person, firm or corporation owning or operating any gas pipe line, or in the event of an inadequate supply of gas or inadequate service in any respect, and complaint against same shall be filed by any person authorized by this Act to file such petition, and such complaint is sustained in whole or in part, all persons and customers of said gas pipe line shall have the right to reparation or reimbursement of all excess in charges so paid over and above the proper rate or charge as finally determined by the Railroad Commission from and after the date of the filing of such complaint. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 4042½c. Commission may require reports from operators of gas utilities; determination of complaints; costs.—The Commission may require of all persons or corporations operating, owning or controlling such gas pipe lines, reports duly verified under oath, of the total quantities of gas distributed by such pipe lines and of that held by them in storage, as also of their source of supply, the number of wells from which they draw their supply, the amount of pressure maintained, and the amount and character and description of the equipment employed, and such other matters pertaining to the business as the Commission may deem pertinent. The Commission shall have the authority and power to hear and determine complaints from interested persons, firms or corporations; to require complainants to file cost bond, to require attendance of witnesses at any hearing provided for in this Act, requiring their fees to be paid by the losing party to said proceeding, and to institute suit and issue such writs and process as may be necessary for the enforcement of its orders. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 4042½d. Discrimination prohibited; proviso.—No such pipe line public utility shall directly or indirectly charge, demand, collect or receive from any one a greater or less compensation for any service rendered than from another for a like and contemporaneous service; provided this shall not limit the right of the Commission to prescribe different rates and regulations for the use of gas for manufacturing and similar purposes, and provided this shall not limit the right of the Commission to prescribe rates and regulations for service from or to other or different places, as it may determine; nor shall any such utility discriminate in favor of or against any person, place, or corporation, either in apportioning the supply of gas or in its charges therefor. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 4042½e. Rights and powers of municipalities preserved; review of municipal acts by Commission.—Nothing in this Act shall restrict the rights of cities, towns and municipalities to control the use of their public streets and alleys; and nothing in this Act shall be construed as taking away from the cities, towns or municipalities of this State any of their existing powers to regulate the rates, service, rules, regulations, and practices of public utilities operating in such cities, towns or municipalities. When a city government has ordered any existing rate reduced, the gas utility affected by such order may appeal to the Commissioner by filing with the Commission, on such terms and conditions as the Commission may direct, a petition and bond to review the decision, regulation, restriction, ordinance, or order of the city, town or municipality. Upon such appeal being taken the Commission shall set a hearing and may make such order or decision in regard to the matter involved in the determination, decision, ordinance or order, of the city, town or municipality, as the Commission may deem just and reasonable. Whenever a public utility so appeals from the decision, restriction, ordinance or order of the city, or town or municipality, to the Commission, the Commission shall hear such appeal de novo and shall treat the appeal or complaint as though it were an original complaint. Whenever any local distributing company or concern whose rates have been fixed or may hereafter be fixed by any municipal government desires a change of any of its rates, rentals or charges, it shall make its application to the municipal government of the city, town or municipality in which such utility is located and such municipal government shall determine said application, within sixty days after said application is presented to it, unless the determination thereof may be longer deferred by agreement between the municipality and the gas utility affected. If the municipal government should reject such application or fail or refuse to act on it within sixty days, then the utility may appeal to the Commission as herein provided. But said Commission shall determine the matters involved in any such appeal within sixty days after the filing by such utility of such appeal with said Commission or such further time as such utility shall in writing agree to, but the rates fixed by such municipal government shall remain in full force and effect until ordered changed by the Commission. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 4042½f. Pipe line expert shall assist commission.—The pipe line expert provided for in Section 11 of the Act of February 20, 1917, [1918 Supp., Art. 732½j.] being an Act for the regulation of oil pipe lines, shall likewise assist the Commission in the performance of its duties under this Act, under the direction of the Commission, under such rules and regulations as it may prescribe. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 4042½g. Employment of experts, etc., by commission; compensation; approval of Board of Control.—The Commission shall have power to employ and appoint, from time to time, such experts, assistants, accountants, engineers, clerks and other persons as it shall deem necessary to enable it at all times to inspect and audit all records or receipts, disbursements, vouchers, prices, pay rolls, time cards, books and official records, to inspect all property and records of the utilities subject to the provisions hereof, and to perform such other service or services as may be directed by the Commission or under its authority. Such persons and employés of the Commission shall be paid for the service rendered, such sums at such time and under such conditions as may be fixed and prescribed by the Commission, and such salaries, wages and fees shall be paid out of the moneys and funds as in this Act directed. Provided, however, that the number of employés and appointees employed or appointed under this Act, and the sum or sums of money paid to them for their services, shall be subject to the approval of the Board of Control, and no employment or appointment hereunder, shall be valid without such approval. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 4042 1/2h. Compensation of witnesses; interested witnesses; free transportation.—Each witness who shall appear before the Commission or a Commissioner at a place outside the county of his residence, shall receive for his attendance three dollars per day and three cents per mile traveled by the nearest practicable route, in going to and returning from the place of meeting of said Commission or Commissioner which shall be ordered paid, upon the presentation of proper vouchers, sworn to by such witness and approved by the Commission or the chairman thereof out of the moneys and funds arising under this Act, provided, that no witness shall be entitled to any witness fees or mileage who is directly or indirectly interested in any public utility involved in or concerning which, in any way, the investigation or hearing on account of which he is summoned, shall relate, or who is in anywise interested in any stock, bond, mortgages, security or earnings of any such utility, or who shall be the agent, attorney or employé of such utility, or any officer thereof, when summoned at the instance of such utility; and no witness furnished with free transportation shall receive pay for the distance he may have traveled on such free transportation. [Id., § 9.]

Art. 4042 1/2i. Compulsory attendance of witnesses; incriminating testimony; fees of officers; contempts.—In case any witness shall fail or refuse to obey a subpoena by the Commission, or a Commissioner, the Commission or Commissioner may issue an attachment for such witness directed to any sheriff or any constable of the State of Texas and compel him to attend before the Commission or any Commissioner thereof, and give his testimony upon such matter as may be lawfully required of him, and to bring with him and produce on examination such records, books, vouchers, memoranda, true copies thereof, prints and such other matter as may be required, if any, in such subpoena. Should a witness fail or refuse to attend on being summoned, or to answer any question propounded to him, or to produce any record or data required to be produced by such subpoena, the claim that any such testimony may tend to criminate the person giving it shall not excuse such witness from testifying or producing such records and data, but such evidence or testimony shall not be used against such person on the trial of any criminal proceeding. The sheriff or constable executing any process issued by the Commissioner thereof under the provisions of this Act shall receive such compensation as may be allowed by the Commission not to exceed the fees prescribed by law for a similar service. For the purpose of enforcing this Act, and generally, the power and authority is hereby conferred upon the Commission to punish for contempt as courts of record under existing law. [Id., § 10.]

Art. 4042 1/2j. Gross income tax; gas utilities fund; allowance as operating expense.—Except as in this section provided, every gas utility subject to the provisions of this Act, on or before the first day of January, 1921, and quarterly thereafter, shall file with the Commission a statement, duly verified as true and correct by the president, treasurer or general manager, if a company or corporation or by the owner or one of them, of an individual or co-partnership, showing the gross receipts of such utility for the quarter next preceding or for such portion of said quarterly period as such utility may have been conducting any business, and at such time shall pay into the State Treasury at Austin, Texas, a sum equal to one-fourth of one per cent of the gross income received from all business done by it within this State during said quarter, to be designated as the "Gas Utilities Fund." The gross receipts tax charge herein required to be paid, when paid, shall be allowed as an operating expense. [Id., § 11.]

Art. 4042 1/2k. Salaries and expenses to be paid from gas utilities fund; deficit to be paid by the state; surplus of fund; limit on expenditures; report to governor.—The salary and expense of the Expert and of his assistants, if any, and the salaries, wages, fees and expenses of every other person employed or appointed by the Commission under the provisions of this Act, and all other expenses, costs and charges, including witness fees and mileage fees and mileage, incurred by or under authority of the Commission or a Commissioner, in administering and enforcing the provisions of this Act, or in exercising any power and authority hereunder, shall be paid from and out of the gas utilities fund by the State Treasurer on warrant of the Comptroller of Public Accounts, on order or voucher approved by the Commission or the Chairman thereof. If the amount or total of such gross receipts charge collected shall not be sufficient, during any quarterly period, to pay such salaries, costs, charges, fees and expenses, then the deficit shall be paid by the State Treasurer out of the general revenue not otherwise appropriated. Until sufficient funds have accrued to said gas utilities fund from payment of said gross receipt tax, said expenses shall be paid by the State Treasurer out of the general revenue not otherwise appropriated. Any surplus remaining in the gas utilities fund, after paying all such salaries, costs, fees and charges after deducting such amount as may be contracted to be paid and incurred and such as may be reasonably estimated by the Commission for its use, shall be paid over to the general revenue fund, at the end of such quarterly period. Provided the expenses authorized in this section shall never exceed in any one calendar year the sum of twenty thousand dollars.

The Commission shall on December 1, 1920, and annually thereafter, make a sufficiently full and comprehensive report to the Governor, which shall be by him transmitted to the next succeeding session of the Legislature of the State, showing in due and sufficient detail:
1. The proceedings of said Commission to such time with respect to the gas utilities defined herein.
2. The receipts in the gas utilities fund from all sources, and indicating the different sources.
3. The expenditures made under and in accordance with this Act, the nature of such expenditures, and which shall also include in addition to other items of expenditures, the names, titles, nature of employment, salaries of and payments made to all persons employed for any purpose under the terms of this Act, with statement of traveling and other expenses incurred by each of said persons and approved by the Commission. [Id., § 12.]

Art. 4042 1/2k. Gas utilities shall keep office and records in state.—Every gas utility as defined in the Act shall have an office in one of the counties of this State in which its property or some part thereof is located and shall keep in the said office all books, accounts, papers, records, vouchers and receipts as shall be required by the Commission. No books, accounts, papers, records, receipts, vouchers or other data required by the Commission to be so kept shall be at any time removed from this State except under such conditions as may be prescribed by the Commission. [Id., § 13.]

Art. 4042 1/2m. Actions to review decisions of commission; appeal; burden of proof.—If any gas utility or other party at interest be dissatisfied with the decisions of any rate, classification, rule, charge, order, act or regulation adopted by the Commission, such dissatisfied utility or party may file a petition setting forth the particular cause or courses [causes] of objection to such decision, act, rate, rule, charge, classification, or order, or to either or all of them, in a court of competent jurisdiction in Travis County, Texas, against said Commission as defendant. Said action shall have precedence over all other causes on the docket of a different nature and shall be tried and determined as other civil causes in said court. Either party to said action may appeal to the appellate court having jurisdiction of said cause; and said appeal shall be at once returnable to said appellate court, at either of its terms; and said action so appealed shall have precedence in said appellate court of all causes of a different character therein pending; provided, that if the court be in session at the time such right of action accrues, the suit may be filed during such term and stand ready for trial after ten days' notice. In all trials under the foregoing article, the burden of proof shall rest upon the plaintiff, who must show by clear and satisfactory evidence that the rates, regulations, orders, classifications, acts or charges complained of are unreasonable and unjust to it or them. [Id., § 14.]

Art. 4042 1/2n. Penalty for violations of act or regulations thereunder.—Any public utility as herein defined who shall violate any provision of this Act or who shall fail to perform any duty herein imposed or who shall fail to comply with any valid order of the Commission when not stayed or suspended by order of court, shall be subject to a penalty of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars for each offense, such penalty to be recoverable at suit of the Attorney General of the State of Texas in the name of the State and for its use, each violation to constitute a separate offense, and each day that such failure continues shall constitute a separate offense. Such penalty together with reasonable attorney's fees may also be recoverable by and for the use of any person, corporation or association of persons against whom there shall have been unlawful discrimination as herein defined; such suit to be brought in the name of and for the use of the party aggrieved and may be maintained in any court of proper jurisdiction, having due regard to the ordinary statutes of venue. [Id., § 15.]

Explanatory.—The latter part of this section is set forth, post, as art. 977 1/2, Penal Code.

Art. 4042 1/2o. Receiver.—Whenever any person, firm or corporation owning, operating or controlling such gas pipe line coming under the provisions of this Act, shall violate any of the provisions of this Act or any of the rules or regulations of the Commission, the Commission shall, whenever in its judgment the public interests require it, apply to any court of this State having jurisdiction and venue thereof for a receivership of such concern guilty of such violation. Such receiver shall control and manage the property of such gas pipe line under the direction of the court as is now provided by law in receivership matters. The grounds for appointment of receiver provided for in this section shall be in addition to other grounds now provided under the existing law. [Id., § 16.]

Art. 4042½p. Act cumulative.—This Act shall be cumulative of all laws of this State, which are not in direct conflict herewith, regarding the control of gas and pipe line companies or similar corporations in this State. [Id., § 17.]

Art. 4042½q. Partial invalidity.—If any provisions of this Act shall be held unconstitutional or for any other reason shall be held to be void, such holding shall not have the effect to nullify the remaining parts of this Act, but the parts not so held to be void shall nevertheless remain in full force and effect. [Id., § 18.]

CHAPTER ONE
GENERAL PROVISIONS

Art. 4043. Jurisdiction of county court over.
4044. Jurisdiction of district court over.
4047. Who is an habitual drunkard.

Article 4043. [2550] [2469] Jurisdiction of county court over.

See Young v. Gray, 60 Tex. 541.

Appointment of guardian.—The county court is a proper tribunal to appoint a guardian for the person of a minor. Ex parte Grimes (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 251.

Jurisdiction over estate.—Order of probate court, divesting itself of supervisory control of estate in guardianship, was a nullity. Davis v. White (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 679.

Jurisdiction of habeas corpus proceedings.—The county court can issue the writ for a minor child at the instance of its father, who is its natural guardian, and alleges that it is illegally restrained. Stirman v. Turner (App.) 16 S. W. 787.

Art. 4044. Jurisdiction of district court over.

Custody of minor.—In controversies over custody and guardianship of children, custody will be awarded with reference to interests of children as controlling consideration. Kirby v. Morris (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 995.

Art. 4047. [2554] [2473] Who is an habitual drunkard.

Meaning of term.—This definition does not apply to bond of retail liquor dealer. Campbell v. Jones, 2 Civ. App. 263, 21 S. W. 722.

Art. 4050. Order, etc., of court shall be at a regular term, unless, etc.

Art. 4051. [2558] [2477] Provisions, etc., governing estates of decedents govern guardianships, etc.

Guardsan ad litem.—The provisions of this title do not apply to minors represented only by guardian ad litem. Simmons v. Arnim, 110 Tex. 309, 220 S. W. 68, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 184.
CHAPTER THREE
COMMENCEMENT OF PROCEEDINGS

Article 4061. [2568] [2487] Commenced by written application.

See Ward v. Compton (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 129.

Art. 4062. [2569] [2488] Who may make application, and what same shall contain.

Art. 4067. [2574] [2493] County judge shall commence proceedings, when.

CHAPTER FOUR PERSONS ENTITLED TO BE APPOINTED GUARDIANS, AND PERSONS WHO ARE DISQUALIFIED

Art. 4068. Father entitled, where parents live together.

Art. 4070. [2577] [2496] Surviving parent entitled.

Art. 4078. [2585] [2504] Who are not qualified to be guardians.

Persons entitled to appointment.—The surviving parent of minor children who was designated by them as their choice as guardian is entitled to letters of guardianship on their estates, unless disqualified by reason of some matter mentioned in the statute, although the court may be of the opinion that some other person would fill the position better. In re McLaren's Estate (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1045.

Disqualification by interest.—Where a mother of minors claims all of the estate left by her husband, it is not contrary to good morals and public policy to appoint a third person as a guardian to protect the interest of the minors. McAllen v. Wood (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 433.

The statute does not disqualify administrator of minor's deceased parents. Sparkman v. Stout (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 626.

That a guardian was elected clerk of the probate court did not disqualify him from acting as guardian. Schwind v. Goodman (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 579, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Goodman v. Schwind, 136 S. W. 282.

CHAPTER FIVE

APPOINTMENT OF GUARDIAN

Art. 4080. Court may appoint, when.

Art. 4081. What facts must appear before appointment is made.

Art. 4083. Order of appointment, requisites.

Article 4080. [2587] [2506] Court may proceed to appoint, when. See Williams v. Foster (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 896; note under art. 4083.

Art. 4081. [2588] [2507] What facts must appear before appointment is made.—Before appointing a guardian, the court must be satisfied:

1. That the person for whom a guardian is sought to be appointed is a minor, a person of unsound mind, or an habitual drunkard.

2. That the court has jurisdiction of the case.

3. That the person to be appointed is not disqualified to act as such, and is entitled thereto, or in case no person who is entitled thereto, applies therefor, that the person appointed is a proper person to act as such guardian.

4. That the rights of persons or property are to be protected. All issues herein to be determined by the court on hearing, unless a jury is demanded, but it shall not be a prerequisite to such appointment that there has been a jury trial verdict and judgment that the person is of unsound mind, or is an habitual drunkard, nor is such person required to be present at the trial. All appointments of guardians under the present law without a jury are hereby validated.

The remedy herein provided is cumulative of the remedy provided in Title 64, Chapter 16, of the Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, for the guardianship of persons of unsound mind and habitual drunkards, and may be resorted to without invoking the latter remedy. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 11, § 1, amending art. 4081, Rev. Civ. St.]

Art. 4083. [2590] [2509] Order of appointment shall contain what.

Jurisdiction of appellate court.—Jurisdiction to require execution of the judgment affirmed. Williams v. Foster (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 896.

Requisites of order of appointment.—An order of appointment which fails to specify amount of bond and direct clerk to issue letters of guardianship, is defective. Sparkman v. Stout (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 526.

Conclusiveness.—A judgment of the district court appointing a guardian of a minor which has been affirmed by the Court of Civil Appeals is conclusive as to matters set up in affidavits tending to show that other persons should have the custody of the minor at least for a short time, and such matters cannot properly be considered until the judgment is put into effect and the guardian has qualified. Williams v. Foster (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 896.

Custody of person.—Possession of a minor cannot properly be awarded in proceedings to appoint a guardian for him. Sparkman v. Stout (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 526.

Art. 4084. [2591] [2510] Minor having guardian may select another, when.

Right of infant to select another guardian.—After a minor has reached the age of 14, she has the right, subject to certain qualifications and exceptions, to select her own guardian. Culwell v. Allen (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 365.

Effect of award of custody in divorce.—Minor's expressed desire to exchange the guardianship of one divorced parent for that of the other does not authorize the court to grant guardianship of his person. Jordan v. Jordan, 4 Civ. App. 559, 23 S. W. 531.

Art. 4088. [2595] Court may appoint a receiver, when.

Cited in dissenting opinion, San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Blair, 108 Tex. 434, 196 S. W. 1153.

Record of appointment.—That orders of court appointing receiver of estate of person of unsound mind were not entered of record upon minutes of court, is sufficient to void judgment taken by receiver as such in case of direct attack on judgment. Mc-Kenzie v. Frey (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1003; Same v. Sutton (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1012; Same v. Winters (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1012.

CHAPTER SIX
TEMPORARY GUARDIAN

Article 4091. County judge may appoint temporary guardian of person and estate of minor, when, etc.

Appointment of temporary guardian.—Evidence held insufficient to show that temporary guardian was appointed or had himself appointed for mere purpose of giving certain attorneys employment. McAllen v. Wood (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 438.

Habeas corpus to determine custody.—The district court has jurisdiction under Const. art. 5, §§ 8 and 16, of a proceeding in habeas corpus to determine question of the custody of a minor, notwithstanding the county court had appointed a guardian who had taken the custody of the minor. Anderson v. Cossey (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 624.

Review.—District court has jurisdiction to entertain certiorari to revise order of county court appointing temporary guardian. McAllen v. Wood (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 438.

CHAPTER SEVEN
OATH AND BOND OF GUARDIANS

Article 4099. [2600] [2519] Bond of guardian of the estate.

Liabilities of sureties.—Regarding liability of surety on guardian’s bond, no interest can be charged against guardian after his death. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore, Md., v. Fountain (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 675.

Surety on a guardian’s bond is not liable for a misappropriation before its execution, not being made so by its terms. Id.

A guardian’s bond is to be construed with reference to the law in force when and where it was given, and read in the light of the provisions of the law then in force. American Indemnity Co. v. Noble (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 441.

That bank in which ward’s funds had been deposited changed name of account to that of newly appointed guardian, but refused to honor a draft drawn by such guardian, did not relieve former guardian and his sureties for failure to turn over the money to recently appointed guardian. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Feden (Civ. App.) 233 S. W. 1144.

Actions on bonds.—Guardian’s bond having been given for $3,000 in favor of six wards, and guardian having made full settlement with two, bond inured to remaining four, one of whom was properly allowed to recover less than fourth of amount of bond against bondsmen. Lynch v. Bernhardt (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1051.

In suit by wards on guardianship bond, special exception based upon theory that district court had no jurisdiction until wards had invoked all remedies possessed by them in probate court was without merit. Davis v. White (Civ. App.) 297 S. W. 673.

— Sufficiency of evidence.—Any presumption of money from guardian’s sale being in his hands when his bond was given held over by evidence that he, having no money of his own, had spent such an amount for his own benefit. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore, Md., v. Fountain (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 675.

Any presumption that guardian had notes belonging to ward established no liability against surety, an outstanding debt belonging to ward not being assets in guardian’s hands to charge him; negligence or fraud not being shown. Id.

Evidence held insufficient to authorize a finding on issue of whether property received in settlement of a previous suit was paid for with money in his hands as guardian. Wyatt & Wingo v. White (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 154.

Conclusiveness of decree against guardian.—Notwithstanding decree in accounting suit against guardian as executor and trustee excepted guardianship fund, if guardian in such suit or otherwise has in whole or part accounted to his wards for guardianship fund, his sureties, who were not made parties to accounting suit, are protected to the extent of such accounting. Davis v. White (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 679.

Art. 4101. [2601] [2520] Premium on surety company bond to be paid by guardian.

Art. 4109. [2608] [2527] Surety may be relieved in same manner.
Discharge of surety.—Surety's letter to county judge requesting release from liability under guardian's bond did not relieve surety from liability, where no petition to be relieved therefrom was filed and where guardian was not cited to appear and give new bond. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Peden (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1114.

Art. 4110. [2609] [2528] Oath and bond to be presented within twenty days.
 Custody of ward.—County judge held to have no authority to issue a writ commanding the sheriff of another county to take the minor into custody and deliver her to the sheriff of the county of the guardian's appointment, until the guardian had qualified by filing bond and taking an oath. Williams v. Foster (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 896.

Art. 4112. [2611] [2530] Sureties released, when, etc.
Liability of original sureties.—Act of second guardian of minors in undertaking to deal with depositary with whom minors' first guardian had left their funds as to part of the indebtedness did not release estate of first guardian, her husband, or his sureties from liability for loss of deposit. Kunz v. Ragsdale (Civ. App.) 290 S. W. 259.

CHAPTER EIGHT
INVENTORY, APPRAISEMENT AND LIST OF CLAIMS

Art. 4117. Additional inventory, when. Art. 4120. Inventory may be corrected.

Article 4117. [2616] [2535] Additional inventory, when.

Additional inventories.—If a guardian refuses to comply with an order to file an additional inventory, or in the absence of a new or corrected inventory having been sought in such manner, the proper procedure by the ward is by direct suit against the guardian and his sureties for the amount received and not accounted for. Yates v. Watson (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 966, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 546.

Art. 4120. [2619] [2538] Inventories, etc., may be corrected, etc.
See Yates v. Watson (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 966, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 548; note under art. 4117.

CHAPTER NINE
POWERS AND DUTIES OF GUARDIANS

4127. Duty to collect estate.

Article 4122. [2621] [2540] Of the person.
Constitutionality of statute.—Such a statute is constitutional. Ex parte Grimes (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 251.

Custody of ward.—The district court has jurisdiction under Const. art. 5, §§ 8 and 16, of a proceeding in habeas corpus to determine question of the custody of a minor. Anderson v. Cossey (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 624.

1215
The county judge has no authority to issue a writ commanding the sheriff of another county to take the minor into custody and deliver her to the sheriff of the county of the guardian's appointment, until the guardian has qualified by bonding and taking an oath. Williams v. Foster (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 856.

Art. 4124. [2623] [2542] Guardian of the estate.

Possession and management of estate.—A father, guardian of his minor children, cannot maintain suit against them to divest them of their interest in real property. Kidd v. Prince (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 844.

Substitution of guardian for next friend.—That injured minor's father, as next friend, made inadequate settlement through ignorance, held insufficient to require court to substitute the guardian for the father as next friend. Jones v. Chronister Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 704.

Art. 4127. [2626] [2545] Duty to collect estate.

Art. 4128. [2627] [2546] Shall use due diligence to collect claims, etc.

Art. 4131. [2630] [2549] Education and maintenance of ward.

In general.—Where guardian had ample funds as executor and trustee to educate and maintain wards, and was charged under the will to use such funds for that purpose, neither he nor his sureties are entitled to credit for any of guardianship fund expended for such purpose without authority from the probate court. Davis v. White (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 679.

The statute extends to a third person who furnishes necessaries to the ward, the guardian, who is primarily liable, having failed. Dallas Trust & Savings Bank v. Pitchford (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 724.

If a guardian fails or refuses to maintain a ward out of his estate, he should be compelled to by the remedies provided, and a third person is not justified in discharging the guardian's duty. Id.

A third person who supplied a ward with necessaries to an amount in excess of income of his estate had no cause of action against guardian for establishment of claim against ward's estate on theory that such cause of action existed at common law. Id.

Amount of allowance.—A guardian cannot, in the absence of previous direction by the court, go beyond the clear income of the estate of the ward for his education and maintenance. Dallas Trust & Savings Bank v. Pitchford (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 724.

Pension money as income.—Pension money received by a guardian is "estate" of the ward, and the guardian is not entitled to credit for expenditure thereof for support and education where she did not first procure a court order as required by that article. Anderson v. Stedum (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 1090, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 294 S. W. 1132.

Necessity of authorization and allowance.—Though one supplying necessaries, as maintenance and education, for a minor, is entitled to compensation out of the estate, he must present his claim for amount so expended to probate court, and have it allowed, and if he fails he is not entitled to final accounting as guardian to credits for such expenditures. Yates v. Watson (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 966, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 548.

Expenses for which estate is liable.—A guardian of minors who did not have established his claims for burial expenses of their father and for his personal expenses incurred in prosecuting suit against a railroad for the father's death is not entitled to allowance of such credits on final accounting. Yates v. Watson (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 966, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 548.

CHAPTER TEN

RENTING AND LEASING PROPERTY, AND INVESTING AND LOANING MONEY, OF WARD

Art. 4134. Guardian may carry on or rent farm, etc., under order of court.

Art. 4136. May rent improved property, other than, etc., without order.

Art. 4140. Money may be invested, how.

Art. 4146. Contract of investment must be approved by the court.

Art. 4150. Guardian's liability for interest.

Art. 4152a. Guardian may make mineral lease.

Art. 4152b. Same; application, hearing, approval and order.
Article 4134. [2633] [2552] Guardian may carry on or rent farm, etc., under order of the court.

Power to lease.—Guardian, having executed leases of mineral interests of minors pursuant to order of court under arts. 4152a and 4152b could make a valid lease of the surface without an order, under arts. 4134 and 4136, where such surface lease related to improved property. Buie v. Porter (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 999.

Art. 4136. [2635] [2554] May rent improved property other than, etc., without order.

See Buie v. Porter (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 999; note under art. 4134.

Art. 4140. [2639] [2558] Money may be invested, how.

Loans.—Where guardian made loans of wards' money without authority from court, and never reported loans, and made them without taking lawful security, he was liable for money loaned, if lost to wards. Kunz v. Ragsdale (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 269.

Failure to invest.—As to liability of sureties for interest, see Wyatt & Wingo v. White (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 154.

Art. 4146. [2644] [2563] Contract of investment must be approved by the court.

In general.—Where guardian made loans of wards' money without authority from court, and never reported loans, and made them without taking lawful security, he was liable for money loaned, if lost to wards. Kunz v. Ragsdale (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 269.

Art. 4150. [2648] [2567] When guardian is liable for interest.

Interest on funds of estate.—A guardian who neglected to invest or loan surplus moneys in his hands belonging to his wards held liable for the principal and 10 per cent. interest at the highest legal rate thereon defined by art. 4977 not 4974, for the time he neglected to invest. Yates v. Watson (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 966, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 548.

Art. 4152a. Guardian may make mineral lease.—The guardians of the estates of minors or any other persons, appointed under the laws of the State of Texas, which have heretofore been appointed or which may hereafter be appointed, shall have the authority to make mineral leases upon the real estate belonging to the estates of their wards. [Acts 1913, p. 261, § 1; Acts 1915, 34th Leg., ch. 44, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 119, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 5 of Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 119, repeals Acts 1915, 34th Leg., ch. 44, which in turn repealed Acts 1913, p. 261.

Power to lease.—Guardian, having executed leases of mineral interests of minors pursuant to order of court could make a valid lease of the surface without an order under arts. 4134 and 4136, where such surface lease related to improved property. Buie v. Porter (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 999.

Art. 4152b. Same; application, hearing, approval, and order.—Whenever a guardian of the estate of any persons shall desire to make a mineral lease upon the real estate of his ward, he shall apply to the county judge of the county where such guardianship is pending for authority to make and execute such mineral lease, and such application shall be in writing and sworn to by such guardian, and the county judge, either in term time or vacation, shall hear such application, and shall require such proof as to the necessity or advisability of such lease, and if he shall approve the same, he shall enter an order on the minutes of the probate court, either in term time or vacation, authorizing the guardian to make such mineral lease, which order shall set out the terms upon which it shall be made: provided, that in the case of such leases executed by guardians of minors, no lease shall extend beyond the time that the ward shall become twenty-one years of age, unless at that time the lessee shall have discovered such minerals as are specified in the lease, or any of such minerals, upon the premises described in such lease, in which event the same shall remain in full force so long as such minerals or any or either of them shall be produced in paying quantities, provided that the marriage of a female ward shall not terminate any lease made hereunder until such ward actually reaches the age of twenty-one years.

Before such application shall be heard by the county judge, notice of such application shall be given by the guardian for one week prior to the time such application shall be heard by publishing same in some newspaper of the county where said guardianship is pending, for one issue of said paper, and such notice shall state when and where such application shall be heard.

It is further provided that after notice and hearing of said application and the granting of the same by the probate court, that said guardian shall be fully authorized to make the mineral lease upon the real estate of the ward, in accordance with the judgment of the county court acting upon the same. [Acts 1913, p. 261, § 2; Acts 1915, 34th Leg., ch. 44, § 2; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 119, § 2.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

See Buie v. Porter (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 989.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

SALES

Art. 4153. Certain property to be sold.

Art. 4154. Sales of wild stock.

Art. 4155. When real estate may be sold.

ART. 4156. Guardian shall apply for order to sell real estate, when.

Art. 4162. Order of sale shall state what.

Collateral attack.—County court's orders have absolute verity in collateral proceeding, presumption prevailing that, when, in order for sale by guardian, property is confined to certain interest in certain estate, court understood what it intended should be sold by guardian, and confined sale to property described. Schaeffer v. Williams (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 220.

Art. 4164. Terms of sale.

Sale in consideration of property instead of cash and notes.—Where order for sale of ward's property required one-third cash and balance in vendor's lien notes, and the guardian accepted groceries instead, the ward held entitled to have the sale set aside. Bishop v. Greek (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 267. The fact that the ward used some of the groceries did not make him liable to refund their value before suing to set aside the sale. Id.

Guardian's representation to purchaser that he would give the ward other property, held not to relieve transaction of vice. Id.

CHAPTER TWELVE
REPORTS OF SALES AND ACTION OF THE COURT THEREON

Art. 4177. Action of the court on the report; proviso.
Bond required by proviso.—Successor of guardian required to give bond identical with that given by original guardian. American Indemnity Co. v. Noble (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 441.

Art. 4178. Sales shall be set aside, when.
Title to property sold.—Purchaser at guardian's sale could not defeat action to set aside the sale on the ground that the guardian was not authorized to purchase the lots in the first place, and they therefore became his property, when in fact the deed thereto was taken in the name of the ward. Bishop v. Greek (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 267.

Art. 4180. Conveyance of real estate.
Property conveyed.—Deed of ward's land, executed by guardian in consummation of sale under order in probate, describing land as interest which ward had in real estate belonging to her deceased father's estate as one of heirs at law, held not to cover lands of ward derived ultimately from father through her deceased brother and mother. Schaeffer v. Williams (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 220.

Necessity of proving authority of grantor.—A deed signed by grantor, per another as curator, reciting that grantor by said curator appeared before the notary and acknowledged its execution, was executed by her curator, and in the absence of evidence of his authority no title passed. Le Blanc v. Jackson (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 687.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN
ANNUAL ACCOUNTS

Article 4185. Annual account of guardian of person.
See Prince v. Ladd (Sup.) 15 S. W. 169.

Custody and support of children under divorce judgment.—Under agreement settling property rights of divorced parties and providing for deposit by husband of fund for support and education of minor son, which was approved and entered as part of divorce judgment, wife held not required to file reports or vouchers of expenditures for son, case not being controlled by the guardianship statute. O'Neil v. Graves (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 264.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN
DEATH, RESIGNATION AND REMOVAL OF GUARDIANS
Art. 4199. [2696] [2614] Removal of guardian without notice, when.

See Prince v. Ladd (Sup.) 15 S. W. 159.

Art. 4200. [2697] [2615] Removal after citation.

See Prince v. Ladd (Sup.) 15 S. W. 159.

Art. 4204. [2701] [2619] Subsequent guardian shall account for what.

Liability for loss of estate.—The only way in which successor can escape liability to wards is to show he has been unable to collect from persons liable to wards' estate and from estate of first guardian and bondsmen, though he was diligent. Kunz v. Ragsdale (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 269.

Act of second guardian of minors in undertaking to deal with depositary, with whom minors' first guardian had left their funds, as to part of the indebtedness, did not release estate of first guardian, her husband, or his sureties, from liability for loss of deposit. Id.

Pleading.—See notes under art. 1827.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN
CLAIMS AGAINST THE ESTATE

Art. 4206. Guardian may pay claim without authentication, when.

4207. Claim shall not be allowed unless supported by affidavit, etc.

4217. Claims shall be examined, etc., by the court.

Art. 4206. [2703] [2621] Guardian may pay claim without authentication, when.

Presentation of claim.—As to claim against the estate of the insane surety, see Webber v. Swift & Co. (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 609.

Necessity of authentication.—It is not necessary that a claim against the estate of minors be authenticated where it was contracted by the guardian on behalf of the estate. Harrison v. Ilgner, 74 Tex. 86, 11 S. W. 1054.

Art. 4207. [2704] [2622] Claim shall not be allowed unless supported by affidavit, etc.

Art. 4217. [2714] [2632] Claims shall be examined, etc., by the court.

Art. 4224. [2721] [2639] Claim held by guardian, established how.

Guardian's claim for expenses.—One supplying necessaries, as maintenance and education, for a minor, must present his claim for amount so expended to probate court, and have it allowed and approved, and if he fails he is not entitled on final accounting as guardian to credits for such expenditures. Yates v. Watson (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 966, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 548.

A guardian of minors who did not have established his claims for burial expenses of their father and for his personal expenses in suit for the father's death is not entitled to allowance of such credits on final accounting. Id.

Art. 4230. [2727] [2645] Claim established by judgment shall be filed, etc.

Art. 4233. [2730] [2648] Payment of claims.

Art. 4234. [2731] [2649] Creditor may obtain order for payment.
See Glassow v. McKinnon, 79 Tex. 116, 14 S. W. 1050.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

GUARDIANSHIP OF PERSONS OF UNSOUND MIND AND HABITUAL DRUNKARDS

Art. 4238. County judge shall issue warrant on information.

Art. 4243. If verdict is against defendant.

Article 4238. [2735] [2653] County judge shall issue warrant on information.
See Ward v. Compton (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 129.

Art. 4243. [2740] [2658] If verdict is against defendant.
Appointment without verdict.—Unless a person has been determined to be of unsound mind by a verdict of a jury, appointment of a guardian is absolutely void. Ward v. Compton (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 129.
The appellate court cannot allow such appointment to stand, although it is for the best interests of all concerned. Id.

Art. 4245. [2742] [2660] Provisions as to minors apply to persons of unsound mind.
See Ward v. Compton (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 129.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Validity of contracts.—One entitled to disaffirm an act voidable because of an incapacity to perform it must disaffirm the voidable act within a reasonable time after the disability has been removed. White v. Holland (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 611.

Validity of conveyances.—Mortgagee lending money to person of unsound mind is not entitled to recover all of it, where only part of it was expended for necessaries. Bass v. Joseph (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1047.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

APPEAL, BILL OF REVIEW AND CERTIORARI

Art. 4290 [2789] [2707] Right of appeal.

Cited, Hudgins v. Leggett, 84 Tex. 207, 19 S. W. 387.

Omitted heirs.—Heirs omitted from a decree distributing the estate of a deceased ward may appeal without bond under this article from a judgment dismissing their bill of review, brought in the county court, to open the decree of distribution. Young v. Gray, 60 Tex. 641.

Art. 4297 [2796] [2714] Judgment of district court shall be entered of record, etc.

Judgment of district court.—On the entry upon the minutes of the county court as its judgment that which the district court rendered on appeal from order appointing guardian, such order is as effectually vacated as though it had never been rendered. Drew v. Jarvis, 110 Tex. 136, 216 S. W. 618.

Jurisdiction of appellate court.—Court of Civil Appeals has jurisdiction to require the execution of judgment affirmed. Williams v. Foster (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 896.

Art. 4299 [2798] [2716] Appeal shall be tried de novo.

Disposition of case on appeal.—Upon appeal from a probate court order appointing guardian of a minor's person and estate, a district court order appointing guardian for minor's person only is erroneous, since it does not dispose of entire case. Sparkman v. Stout (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 526.

Awarding custody of minor.—In proceeding to appoint a guardian for minor's personal property, appealed to district court from county court, a district court order awarding custody of child is void. Sparkman v. Stout (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 528.

Art. 4300 [2799] [2717] Bill of review may be brought.

See Linch v. Broad, 70 Tex. 92, 6 S. W. 761.

Orders reviewable.—Where one-third of judgment recovered in favor of minors which was paid to their guardian and by him paid to their attorneys was never inventoried by the guardian, and no decision was made by the court concerning it, there was nothing relating to such third to review on bill of review of judgment approving the guardian's final account. Yates v. Watson (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 966, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 548.

Art. 4301 [2800] [2718] Certiorari.

TITLE 65
HEADS OF DEPARTMENTS

CHAPTER ONE
SECRETARY OF STATE

Art. 4304. Shall register governor's acts.
Art. 4305. His general duties.
Art. 4309a. Reports of appellate courts transferred to university library.
Art. 4309b. Same; use of books.
Art. 4309c. Revised statutes for University library.
Art. 4319. Chief clerk may act, when.
Art. 4319a. Exchange of reports of appellate courts, Supreme Court, and Court of Criminal Appeals, Session Acts, revised statutes, etc.

Article 4304. [2802] Shall register governor's acts.

Art. 4305. [2803] His general duties.

Art. 4309a. Reports of appellate courts transferred to university library.—Twenty-five sets each of the printed reports of the decisions of the Courts of Civil Appeals, the Court of Criminal Appeals and the Supreme Court of this State now in the possession of the Secretary of State shall be transferred to the Library of the University of Texas and the Librarian of said Library shall hereafter be the custodian of said printed reports. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 26, § 1.]
Took effect Nov. 15, 1921.

Art. 4309b. Same; use of books.—Said reports while in the possession of the University Librarian shall be accessible to those using the University Library to the same extent that other books in such Library are so accessible to such persons. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 4309c. Revised statutes for University library.—The Secretary of State is hereby authorized and directed to turn over to the University Library twenty-five volumes each of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911 and the Revised Criminal Statutes of 1911 for the use of the University Library. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 4319. [2817] Chief clerk may act, when.
Certified copies of records.—Company's charter certified to be a true copy of that filed in office of the Secretary of State by the chief clerk. Landis v. State, 85 Cr. R. 351, 214 S. W. 827.

Art. 4319a. Exchange of reports of appellate courts, Supreme Court, and Court of Criminal Appeals, Session Acts, revised statutes, etc.—The Secretary of State is hereby authorized and directed in addition to the exchanges he is now authorized to make under existing law, to make exchanges of the reports of the several appellate courts of this State, of the Supreme Court and the Court of Criminal Appeals, of the Session Acts of the Legislature, of the existing and future revised Civil and Criminal Statutes of this State, and of other State publications and department reports of this State for the court reports, session acts, revised statutes, Civil and Criminal, and other State publications and department reports of the United States Government, of the other States of the Union, and of foreign countries, for the benefit of the Law Library of the University of Texas, provided that the Secretary of State shall always keep on hand a sufficient number of copies of all State publications to meet the reasonable current demands of the State. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 32, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment.

CHAPTER TWO

COMPTROLLER OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS

See Brown v. Sneed, 77 Tex. 471, 14 S. W. 248.

CHAPTER FIVE

ATTORNEY GENERAL

Article 4418. [2891] Shall advise the governor, etc.

Opinions.—Holdings and opinions of the Attorney General of the state are persuasive, although not binding on the courts. Smith v. Cathey (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 163.

Art. 4427. [2900] Enforce forfeiture of charters, etc.

Railroad.—As to remedies available, see East Line & Red River R. Co. v. State, 75 Tex. 434, 12 S. W. 690.

Art. 4434. [2907] Governor authorized to order civil suits.

Suit to recover lands.—See State v. Travis County, 85 Tex. 435, 21 S. W. 1029; note under art. 5467.

CHAPTER SIX

COMMISSIONER OF AGRICULTURE

Art.

PROTECTION OF FRUIT TREES, SHRUBS AND PLANTS

4459. Proceedings where diseased trees, etc., are found.

PINK BOLLWORM QUARANTINE

4475a–4475k. [Superseded.]

4475i. Pectinophora gossypiella declared a public nuisance.

4475ll. "Pink bollworm" defined.

4475m. "Cotton" or "cotton products" defined.
Art. 4475q. Compensation claim board; duties, proceedings and expenses.

Art. 4475rr. Investigations; inspectors; compensation and expenses.

Art. 4475ss. Appropriation; payment of claims for damages and compensation; payment of salaries and expenses.

Art. 4475tt. Zones continued in effect and validated.

PROTECTION OF FRUIT TREES, SHRUBS AND PLANTS

Article 4459. Proceedings where diseased trees, etc., are found.—
That no person in this State shall knowingly or wilfully keep any peach, almond, apricot, nectarine or other trees affected with the contagious disease known as yellows. Nor shall any person keep for sale any apple, peach, plum or other tree affected with nematode galls, crown galls, fire blight, or root rot. Nor shall any person knowingly or wilfully keep any plum, cherry or other trees affected with the contagious disease or fungus known as black knot or plum canker; nor any tree, shrub or plant infested with or by the San Jose scale or other insect pest dangerously injurious to or destructive of trees, shrubs or other plants; nor any grapefruit, orange or lemon trees, citrus stocks, cape jasmines or other trees, plants or shrubs infested with “white fly”, Florida red scale, cottony cushion scale, woolly aphis, or other injurious insect pests, or citrus canker, or other contagious diseases of citrus fruits; nor subtropical plants, shrubs, evergreens or ornamentals; nor any china, forest or other trees, shrubs, or plants, infested with injurious insect pests or contagious diseases. Every such tree, shrub or plant shall be a public nuisance, and as such it shall be the duty of the Commissioner of Agriculture or his representatives to abate it and no damage shall be awarded for entering upon the premises upon which there are trees, shrubs or plants infested with yellows, black knot, citrus canker, plum canker, fire blight, crown gall or other infectious or dangerous disease, or infected with San Jose scale, Florida red scale, cottony cushion scale, woolly aphis, or other dangerous insect pest, for the purpose of legally inspecting the same; nor shall any damages be awarded for the treatment by the Commissioner of Agriculture or his duly authorized agents or representatives of such trees, shrubs or plants, or for altogether destroying such trees if necessary to suppress such insect pest or disease, if done in accordance with the provisions of this article. But the owner of the trees, shrubs or plants shall be notified immediately upon its being determined that such trees, shrubs or plants should be destroyed, by a notice in writing signed by the commissioner or the person or persons representing him, which said notice in writing shall be delivered in person to the owner of such trees, shrubs or plants, or left at the usual place of residence of such owner, or if such owner be not a resident of the locality, to notify by leaving such notice with the person in charge of the premises, trees, shrubs or plants, or in whose possession they may be. Such notice shall contain a brief statement of the facts found to exist, whereby it is necessary to destroy such trees, shrubs or plants, and shall call attention to the law under which it is proposed to destroy them, and the owner shall within ten days from the date upon which such notice shall have been received, remove and burn all such diseased or infected trees, shrubs or plants. If, however, in the judgment of said commissioner, or person representing him, any tree, shrub or plant infected with any disease, or infested with dangerously injurious insects, can be treated with sufficient remedies, he may direct such treatment to be carried out by the owner under the direction of the commissioner, agent, employé or representatives. In case of objections to the findings of the chief inspector, employés or representatives of the commissioner, an appeal may be made to the commissioner, whose decision shall be final. An appeal must be taken within five days from service of said notice, and shall act as a stay of proceedings until it is heard and decided. When the commissioner, or chief inspector, or employé, or representative appointed by him, shall determine that any tree or trees, shrub or other plants must be treated or destroyed forthwith, he may employ all necessary assistance for that purpose, and such representative or representatives, agent or agents, employé or employés may enter upon any or all premises necessary for the purpose of such treatment, removal or destruction. But such commissioner or the person representing him shall, before such treatment or destruction, first require the owner or person in charge of the trees, shrubs or plants, to treat or destroy same as the case may be; and upon the refusal or neglect upon the part of said owner or person in charge to so treat or destroy such trees, plants or shrubs, then such commissioner, chief inspector, or person or persons representing him shall treat or destroy such trees, shrubs or plants, and all charges and expenses thereof shall be paid by such owner or person in charge of said trees, shrubs or plants, and shall constitute a legal claim against such owner or person in charge, which may be recovered in any court having jurisdiction upon the suit of such commissioner or chief inspector, or the county attorney of the county where the premises are situated, together with all costs, including an attorney fee of ten dollars, to be taxed as other costs. [Acts 1909, p. 316; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 49, § 1, amending art. 4459, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Constitutionality.—Rev. St. art. 4459, authorizing commissioner of agriculture to declare any trees infested with injurious insect pests or contagious diseases of citrus fruits a public nuisance, with absolute power to summarily destroy them, and making the commissioner's finding as to the existence of such pests or contagious diseases final, held invalid in so far as it makes the decision of the commissioner of agriculture final as to the existence of insect pests. Stockwell v. State, 110 Tex. 550, 221 S. W. 932, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 109.

Police power.—The state's police power to define public nuisances is limited to declaring only things to be such nuisances which are so in fact. Stockwell v. State, 110 Tex. 550, 221 S. W. 932, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 109.

Pink Bollworm Quarantine

Arts. 4475a—4475k.

Explanatory.—These articles, originally composed of Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 11, were superseded by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. ch. 41, which was in turn superseded by Acts 1929, 38th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 42, set forth post as arts. 4475j—4475k.

Art. 4475l. Pectiniphora gossypiella declared a public nuisance.—The Pectiniphora gossypiella, Saunders, known as the pink bollworm, is recognized as a destructive pest of cotton, and is hereby declared a public nuisance and a menace to the cotton industry, and its eradication is a public necessity. [Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 42, § 1: Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 41, § 1.]

Took effect Nov. 16, 1921.

Art. 4475ll. “Pink bollworm” defined.—The “pink bollworm” in this Act shall mean the insect in its various stages of development, including the egg, larval, pupal and adult stages. [Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 42, § 2; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 41, § 2.]
Art. 4475m. "Cotton" or "cotton products" defined.—The term "cotton" or "cotton products" in this Act shall mean cotton in the seed, ginned lint cotton, seed, hulls, cotton in the bolls, cotton stalks, and any and all character of cotton products except oil and meal. [Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 42, § 3; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 41, § 3.]

Art. 4475mm. Policy of state declared.—It is hereby declared the policy of the State in endeavoring to control and eradicate the pink bollworm to employ all such methods as scientific research demonstrates to be successful and as may be sanctioned by constitutional warrant, including inspection of cotton plants in the fields, or of cotton and cotton products wherever stored; the quarantine and fumigation of cotton and cotton products found to be contaminated; supervision of the growing of cotton in areas known to be contaminated; destruction of infested fields of cotton, or cotton, or cotton products; and the prevention of planting of cotton in areas where infestation has been found. [Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 42, § 4; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 41, § 4.]

Art. 4475n. Zone on Texas border may be created.—If the Commissioner of Agriculture of this State determines, through his cooperation with the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States, that the pink bollworm exists outside of Texas but adjacent to the Texas border, he shall certify that fact to the Governor, who shall thereupon cause the convening of the Pink Bollworm Commission appointed as hereinafter provided for, which Commission shall give notice of, and hold, a hearing in the manner provided in Section 8 hereof [Art. 4475pp] at some central and easily accessible point in the county or counties in this State along the boundary adjacent to such infestation, and investigate into the danger to the cotton industry of Texas from such infestation adjacent to the Texas border and make such recommendation to the Governor as they deem sufficient to the protection of the cotton industry of the State. Should this report express the conclusion that it is dangerous to the cotton industry of Texas that cotton be grown in this State along the boundary adjacent to such infestation, the Governor shall thereupon proclaim such area as may be set out in said report a non-cotton zone, in which it shall be unlawful to plant, cultivate or grow any cotton for such period as the proclamation may specify; and if such report indicates that it will be safe to grow cotton under rules and regulations within such zone adjacent to the infestation outside of Texas, the Governor shall thereupon issue his proclamation declaring it unlawful to grow cotton within such area as may be recommended by the Pink Bollworm Commission, except under such rules and regulations as the Commissioner of Agriculture shall promulgate. Should the report of the Pink Bollworm Commission indicate that it may be dangerous to the cotton industry of this State to allow the free movement of contaminated material from such infested territory into this State the Governor shall thereupon proclaim a quarantine against such infested territory, and thereafter it shall be unlawful to import into Texas from such quarantined territory any thing or substance liable to be contaminated with pink bollworm, and it shall be the duty of the Commissioner of Agriculture of this State to maintain a rigid inspection of articles liable to be contaminated which are being carried from such quarantined territory into the State of Texas. Provided, however, before recommending the establishment or continuance in any county in this State bounded by an international boundary line, of a non-cotton zone, under this or any other section of this Act, the Pink Bollworm Commission shall give careful consideration to the conditions existing, or likely to exist, on the non-Texas side of said boundary line, and the evidence concerning such conditions shall be such as to reasonably show that the establishment of a non-cotton zone in said county will effectively protect the cotton industry of this State against the further spread of the infection. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 11, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 41, §§ 1, 2; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 42, §§ 5, 6; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 41, § 5.]

Art. 4475o. Special emergency quarantine.—If the pink bollworm shall be found in any gin, cotton seed oil mill, cotton seed warehouse, compress, or transportation vehicle in the State, or in any field of cotton, the Commissioner of Agriculture of the State shall immediately certify that fact to the Governor, who shall proclaim a special emergency quarantine surrounding the known location of the pest to such extent as may be determined sufficient to prevent the spread of the pink bollworm, and it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to ship any cotton or cotton products of any kind from such quarantined district, or transport any car, vehicle, or freight, or any other article liable to carry the pink bollworm from the quarantined area through, or to any other point in the State, except under such rules and regulations as the Commissioner of Agriculture shall promulgate; such emergency quarantine shall continue in full force and effect until such time as a hearing, as provided for in this Act, can be held by the Pink Bollworm Commission provided for herein. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 11, § 5; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 41, §§ 5, 7; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 42, §§ 7, 8; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 41, § 6.]

Art. 4475p. Destruction of cotton, cotton products or fields of cotton; valuation; report to state comptroller.—When it is deemed necessary to the protection of the cotton industry of Texas that the Commissioner of Agriculture shall destroy cotton, cotton products, or fields of cotton in which the pink bollworm shall have been found or which are probably contaminated by being near infestation of the pink bollworm, he shall report such condition to the Governor, setting out in detail the area or amount of cotton or cotton products to be destroyed. The Governor shall thereupon declare such cotton or fields of cotton a public menace. Before the destruction of such cotton or cotton products the Compensation Claim Board, hereinafter provided for, shall go upon the premises and report to the Commissioner of Agriculture the value of the fields of cotton or cotton products to be destroyed. The Commissioner of Agriculture shall then be empowered to use all authority requisite to the complete destruction of such cotton, cotton products or fields of cotton to prevent the spread of the pink bollworm from such localities. The Commissioner of Agriculture shall certify to the fact of such cotton products or fields of cotton having been destroyed and shall file such report and certificate with the State Comptroller, who shall issue his warrant upon the State Treasurer for such sum as may be declared just and due. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 11, § 6; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 41, §§ 6, 8; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 42, §§ 9, 10; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 41, § 7.]

Art. 4475pp. Supervision of cotton growing in particular areas; submission to and report by Pink Bollworm Commission; non-cotton zones; compensation to owners.—Whenever the Commissioner of Agriculture of this State shall deem it necessary to the protection of the cotton industry of Texas that the growing cotton within any area within the State, except as provided for in Sections 5 and 6 of this Act [arts. 4475n, 4475o] be placed under supervision, or that cotton growing be prohibited as a means of aiding in the control and eradication of the pink bollworm, he shall cause to be made a thorough examination of such area by a competent and experienced entomologist, who shall, after going upon the premises and after making an examination in person, report the result thereof to the Commissioner of Agriculture. Should this report express the conclusion that the pink bollworm exists within the territory under investigation, the Commissioner of Agriculture shall certify this report to the Governor, who shall cause the Pink Bollworm Commission, hereinafter provided for, to hold a hearing at some central and easily accessible point within the area under investigation; due notice of the time and place of such hearing shall be published in some newspaper in or near the county or counties under investigation, at least ten days before such hearing. It shall be the duty of the Commissioner of Agriculture to present to the Commission a statement setting forth the following facts:

1. The name of the entomologist making the examination on behalf of the State Department of Agriculture.
2. The date when such examination was made.
3. The locality where the pink bollworm is alleged to exist.
4. Any other information deemed necessary by the Commission for the discharge of its duties under the provisions of this Act.

Such statement shall be verified by oath of the person making the same and shall be filed and preserved in the office of the Commissioner of Agriculture and be open to the inspection of the public. It shall be the duty of the said Pink Bollworm Commission to make a report to the Governor immediately after the hearing. Should this report and recommendation be for the prevention of the planting of cotton in any area and for the establishment of a non-cotton zone, such recommendation shall specify the area to be embraced in the proposed non-cotton zone. Upon the receipt of this report, it shall be the duty of the Governor to declare the growing of cotton within such area as may be recommended by the Pink Bollworm Commission a public menace, and thereafter it shall be unlawful to plant, cultivate or grow cotton, or to allow cotton to grow within such zone, such proclamation of the Governor to remain in effect until the Pink Bollworm Commission, herein provided for, shall have certified that the condition of menace no longer exists. In the event of the establishment of any non-cotton zone as authorized by this Act, all persons prevented from producing cotton in the non-cotton zones shall be entitled to receive compensation from the State in the measure of the actual and necessary losses sustained thereby. The Compensation Claim Board, herein provided for, shall have full power and authority to determine the amount of compensation to such persons. In determining the actual and necessary losses, the Compensation Claim Board shall take into consideration the value of the average yield of cotton and other crops second in economic importance thereto in that vicinity; the total amount of land planted to crops during the year for which compensation is claimed; the percentage of such land customarily planted in cotton in that vicinity, and such other factors as they deem essential. The words "cultivated crops" as used above shall not be construed to include any small grain crops, hay or pasture crops which are not cultivated during the growing season. Provided that no person shall be entitled to compensation who does not in good faith obey the proclamation of the Governor establishing such non-cotton zone. Should the report of the Pink Bollworm Commission express the conclusion that it will not be dangerous to the cotton industry of Texas to permit the growing of cotton within such district under such rules and regulations as it shall be deemed adequate to prevent the spread of the pink bollworm, it shall be the duty of the Governor to proclaim such area as may be set out in the report of the Pink Bollworm Commission a regulated zone, in which it shall be unlawful to plant, cultivate and market cotton under such rules and regulations as shall be promulgated therefor by the Commissioner of Agriculture, which may include the planting of seed from non-infested territory, ginning at designated gins; milling or disinfecting of all seed produced within such zone, marketing, cleaning of fields, and such other rules as may be found necessary; provided that no ginner shall be authorized to gin cotton from regulated zones unless he shall disinfect all seed under such rules as the Commissioner of Agriculture shall prescribe. Such proclamation of the Governor, establishing such regulated zone shall remain in effect until the Pink Bollworm Commission, herein provided for, shall have certified that the condition of menace no longer exists. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 11, §§ 3, 7; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 41, §§ 3, 10; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 42, §§ 11, 12; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 41, § 8.]

Art. 4475q. Compensation claim board; duties, proceedings, and expenses.—As soon as practicable after the passage of this Act the Governor shall appoint a Compensation Claim Board for the State, who shall serve until relieved therefrom by the Governor, whose duty it shall be to determine in the manner herein provided the measure of compensation due persons prevented from growing cotton and the damages sustained by persons having cotton condemned and destroyed as provided for herein. The said Board shall be composed of three citizens of the State residing outside any area under quarantine under the provisions of this Act, at least two of whom are actually engaged in the production of cotton. Before entering upon their duties, the members of the Board shall take the constitutional oath of office required of officers of the State, and shall organize by electing one of its members chairman and the Commissioner of Agriculture shall act as ex-officio secretary. They shall have authority to administer oaths for the purpose of taking testimony. The concurrence of two members of the Board shall constitute legal action. The members of the Board shall receive as compensation the sum of five ($5.00) dollars per day and actual necessary traveling expenses when engaged in the performance of their duties. The Compensation Claim Board shall conduct a public hearing in the county or counties from which the claims for compensation have been filed, due notice of which hearing shall be given by publication in some newspaper published in or near the county or counties in which the claimant resides, not less than ten days before the date of such hearing, and by mailing from the office of the Commissioner of Agriculture a letter to each claimant, not less than ten days before the date of such hearing, which notices shall state the time and place of each hearing. Every such claim for compensation from the State shall be made under oath, attested by two citizens of the county in which the claimant resides, upon blanks to be furnished by the Commissioner of Agriculture, and except when the claim is for compensation for losses under previous acts, shall be filed in the office of the Commissioner of Agriculture not later than November 15 of the year for which claim for compensation is made. Claims for compensation for losses incurred under previous Acts shall be filed within ninety days after this Act takes effect, but no such claim shall be paid out of any appropriation made herein. Every such claim shall state:

1. The name and postoffice of the claimant.
2. The location of the farm upon which the claim is based.
3. The total acreage of all cultivated crops produced in the year in which such claim is presented.
4. All other information deemed essential by the said Compensation Claim Board for the performance of the duties devolved upon them by this Act.

Each allotment of compensation shall be evidenced by a written order, entered in a permanently bound book kept by the Board in the office of the Commissioner of Agriculture, and a certified copy of each allotment shall be given the claimant. If any claimant is dissatisfied with the action of the Claim Board on his claim, he shall have the right within six months after the decision of the Claim Board to make application to the District Court of the county of which he is a resident or in which his cotton was destroyed or in which he was prevented from growing cotton and have the action of the Claim Board reviewed by such District Court. If the State, acting through the Commissioner of Agriculture, is dissatisfied with any such decision of the Claim Board, it shall likewise have the right to resort to said court for such review. [Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 42, §14; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 41, §9.]

Art. 4475q. Pink Bollworm Commission; salary and expenses.—As soon as practicable after the passage of this Act, the Governor of the State shall appoint a Pink Bollworm Commission for the State composed of five men who shall serve until relieved therefrom by the Governor, whose duties are defined herein. One shall be appointed upon the recommendation of the Commissioner of Agriculture of Texas; one upon the recommendation of the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States; one upon the recommendation of the District Judge of the county or counties under consideration; and two upon his own discretion; provided that the latter two citizens shall be actual cotton growers. Should any of the officials herein authorized to make recommendations for appointment fail or refuse so to do, or should any person so nominated refuse to serve or become incapacitated for service, the Governor shall make such appointment upon his own discretion. The Pink Bollworm Commission shall take the constitutional oath of office and shall have authority to administer oaths for the purpose of taking testimony. They shall organize by electing one of their number chairman and shall have authority to administer oaths for the purpose of taking testimony. They shall receive a salary of five ($5.00) dollars per day and actual and necessary traveling expenses while actually engaged in the performance of their duties. [Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 42, §11; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 41, §10.]

Art. 4475r. Entry into fields or premises.—For the purpose of complying with the requirements of this Act, the Commissioner of Agriculture and his authorized agents shall have the power to enter into any field or fields of cotton or upon any premises in which cotton or its... products may be stored or held, and may examine any products or container of cotton or thing or substance liable to be infested with the pink bollworm, and shall have power to enter upon any premises for the purpose of issuing permits and to examine all books and records of purchasers or handlers or common carriers of cotton and cotton products. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 11, § 8; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 41, § 11; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 42, § 15; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 41, § 11.]

Art. 4475rr. Investigations; inspectors; compensation and expenses.—The Commissioner of Agriculture shall make adequate investigation to determine the presence of the pink bollworm in the State and shall take prompt action to secure the establishment and maintenance of an effective quarantine of all infested areas that may be discovered within the State, pursuant to the provisions of this Act. For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this Act, the Commissioner of Agriculture may employ inspectors, and such other help as he may deem necessary, and may prescribe the duties of such inspectors and other help; provided that no person shall be appointed as an inspector who has not had at least two years actual experience as an entomologist, or two years training as an entomologist in the Science Department of some reputable college or university; and provided further that such inspectors shall be paid not exceeding one hundred and fifty ($150.00) dollars per month and their necessary expenses. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 11, §§ 4, 11a; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 41, §§ 4, 15, 16; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d. C. S., ch. 42, § 16; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 41, § 12.]

Art. 4475ss. Cooperation with federal government.—It shall be the duty of the Commissioner of Agriculture to co-operate with the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States in any measure authorized and to be undertaken by authority of the Federal Government in preventing the introduction or establishment of the pink bollworm in the State of Texas. In the event that the Congress of the United States should appropriate any moneys with which to assist the State of Texas in the payment of compensation to farmers for being deprived of the right to plant cotton, and should such appropriation by Congress provide for this money to be disbursed by the State of Texas, the Treasurer of the State of Texas is hereby authorized to receive such moneys from the United States Government, and the Commissioner of Agriculture is hereby authorized to disburse same in accordance with the laws of the State of Texas and the United States. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 11, § 9; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 41, § 12; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 42, § 17; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 41, § 13.]

Art. 4475tt. Appropriation; payment of claims for damages and compensation; payment of salaries and expenses.—For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this Act there is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the general revenue not otherwise appropriated the sum of one hundred twenty-five thousand ($125,000.00) dollars, one hundred thousand ($100,000.00) dollars of which may be used in the payment of compensation and damages which may become due under the provisions of this Act, and the remaining twenty-five thousand ($25,000.00) dollars of which may be used in the payment of expenses incurred in the administration of this Act, which shall include salaries, expenses, printing, postage, telegraph, telephone, express, etc., needed in the enforcement of this Act. All claims for damages and claims for compensation arising from the enforcement of the provisions of this Act shall be paid on certified statement by the Chairman of the Compensation Claim Board, or upon certified copy of the final judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction, by warrants drawn by the Controller of the State upon the State Treasurer, and all salaries and other expenses of whatsoever nature incurred in the administration of this Act shall be paid in the usual way upon a certified statement of the Commissioner of Agriculture. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 41, § 14.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 15 is set forth, post, as art. 739½a, Penal Code. Sec. 16 repeals all laws in conflict.

Art. 4475t. Zones continued in effect and validated.—All regulated zones and non-cotton zones in effect for 1921 are hereby renewed and carried forward and shall be subject to the provisions of this Act, and all procedure taken to establish such zones when this Act becomes effective are hereby validated, and all unexpended portions of appropriations heretofore made for the control and eradication of the pink bollworm are hereby re-appropriated and carried forward. [Id., § 17.]

Appeals.—Taxpayers, unless they have exhausted the statutory remedies, cannot maintain a suit to enjoin the payment of the school fund to a teacher on the ground that the teacher maintained a sectarian school, and that the trustees had no authority to make the contract. Nance v. Johnson, 84 Tex. 401, 19 S. W. 559.

Appeal to higher school officials from refusal of school trustees to form school district from parts of other districts is a condition precedent to remedy in the district court. Jennings v. Carson (Com. App.) 220 S. W. 1090, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 562.

Such appeal is also a condition precedent to the issuance of an injunction against the abolition of a district and the consolidation of its territory with other districts. County Trustees of Navarro County v. Bell Point Common School Dist. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 697.

CHAPTER NINE
GENERAL PROVISIONS

Art. 4520½. Inventories of public property filed with Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds.

Art. 4520½a. Disposition of public property.

Article 4520½. Inventories of public property filed with Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds.—Within sixty days after this Act becomes effective and on or before the 31st day of January each year thereafter, it shall be the duty of the head of each department of the State government, with his office located in the capitol or in the State land office building in the City of Austin, to make up and file with the Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds a complete inventory of all furniture, fixtures, machinery, machines, typewriters and other office utilities belonging to the State, except books and stationery. If the head of any such department, in making up his inventory, finds that he has not on hand any such property of the State which has been received by him, then he shall at the same time file with the Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds a statement showing the disposition of such property, and if the same be lost or disposed of without authority, or by reason of the carelessness or negligence of such officer, then such officer shall be responsible to the State therefor and shall replace the same in his Department or pay the reasonable value thereof, to be ascertained by the Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds, to the State. It shall be the duty of the Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds to check up such inventories from time to time and make demand on the heads of the various departments of the State government, subject hereto, for the restoration or payment for all property not lawfully accounted for by such departmental head. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 42, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

Art. 4520½a. Disposition of public property.—The departmental heads subject to this Act shall neither purchase nor sell any of the personal property enumerated in Section 1 hereof, but when they have any such property which may no longer be used by them they shall deliver the same to the Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds, taking his receipt therefor, who in turn may deliver the same to some other department in need of such property or utility. It shall be the duty of the Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds to furnish the various departments referred to in this Act with all furniture, fixtures, office necessities and utilities named in Section 1 of this Act [Art. 4520½], except stationery and books, and where he does not have the same on hand, he shall purchase the same. Where a system of purchasing these articles is provided by law through the State Purchasing Agent, then the Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds shall obtain the same through the State Purchasing Agent's contract; otherwise he shall purchase the same on his own record in the open market and supply the departmental heads therewith; provided, however, that all purchases made prior to the 31st day of August, A. D., 1918, shall be made as now provided in the appropriation bills. [Id., § 2.]
Art. 45201/4b. Requisitions for furniture, etc., by department heads.—When the head of any department of the State Government mentioned in this Act is in need of any furniture, fixtures, machinery, machine, typewriter or other utilities, except books and stationery, he shall make a written requisition addressed to the Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds stating his particular needs; which requisition shall be kept on file by the Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds in his office as a permanent record. It shall be the duty of the Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds to furnish suitable requisition blanks to the heads of all departments covered by this Act. The Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds, shall keep on file in his office a permanent record showing the requisitions received by him from the various departmental heads and showing what dispositions were made of same. [Id., § 2a.]

Art. 45201/4c. Payment for purchases for departments.—Provided that until funds are appropriated for the purpose of this Act to be expended hereunder, the purchase made for any particular department shall be paid for out of the existing appropriation made for such department available for such purpose, and the account for same shall be approved by the head of the department for which said purchases were made, and the Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds. [Id., § 2b.]

Police power.—Legislature under police power has authority to authorize establishment of quarantine regulations for protection of the public against contagion, and incident thereto to authorize arrest and detention of persons whose condition is such as to spread disease. Ex parte Hardcastle, 84 Cr. R. 463, 208 S. W. 531, 2 A. L. R. 1339.

The power to enact laws for sanitary purposes and protection of the health of the public is inherent in every sovereignty. Hanzal v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 237.

Any occupation, trade, or profession may be regulated in the interest of the public health, safety, or morals. 1d.

QUARANTINE AND DISINFECTION

Rule 28. School may be reopened after disinfection and vaccination.

Validity of vaccination requirement.—Resolution of school board excluding unvaccinated children from schools held not unreasonable where there was smallpox within the district and danger that it would spread and be communicated from one person to another. Staffel v. San Antonio School Board of Education (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 413.

Charter of independent school district authorizing board of education to establish.
manage and control schools, held to authorize board to prescribe vaccination as condition of admission to schools if requirement is not unreasonable. Id.

Resolution of board of education for exclusion from schools of unvaccinated children held not in violation of Const. art. 7, §§ 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, or Rev. St. 1911, §§ 2899-2901, as to public free schools. Id.

An ordinance denying pupils the right to attend school unless vaccinated for smallpox, there being smallpox in the community, does not deprive pupils or parents of liberty or property without due process of law under Const. U. S. Amend. 14, and Const. Tex. art. 1, § 6. City of New Braunfels v. Waldschmidt, 109 Tex. 302, 207 S. W. 303.

An ordinance denying pupils the right to attend school unless vaccinated for smallpox, does not interfere with any rights of conscience in matters of religion under Const. art. 1, § 6. Id.

DEPOTS, RAILWAY COACHES AND SLEEPING CARS

Rule 61. Water coolers to be provided; manner of cleaning.

Art. 4553aa. Sale or advertisement of drugs for cure of venereal diseases, etc.—Any person who shall publish, deliver or distribute or cause to be published, delivered or distributed in any manner whatsoever or who shall permit placards or posters to be or remain on buildings or outhouses or premises controlled by him containing an advertisement concerning a venereal disease, lost manhood, lost vitality, impotency, sexual weakness, seminal emissions, varicocele, self-abuse or excessive sexual indulgence and calling attention to a medicine, article or preparation that may be used therefor or to a person or persons from whom or an office or place at which information, treatment or condition may be obtained, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not more than two hundred dollars. The provisions of this article, however, shall not apply to didactic or scientific treatises which do not advertise or call attention to any person or persons from whom, or any office or place at which information, treatment or advice may be obtained, nor shall it apply to advertisements or notices issued by a municipal or county board or department of health, or by the department of health of the State of Texas. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 92, § 2.]

Explanatory.—The act amends chapter 2 of title 66, Revised Civil Statutes, 1911, by adding thereto article 4553aa. Took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

Article 4574\(\frac{1}{4}\). Commission to sell to United States state property used for quarantine purposes.—A Commission composed of the Governor of the State of Texas, the Attorney General of Texas and the State Health Officer of this State, is hereby created for the purpose of negotiating the sale and delivery to the United States Government of all State property owned and used by the State of Texas for quarantine purposes along the Gulf of Mexico and on the Mexican border of the Rio Grande River upon such terms as are most advantageous to the State of Texas. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 34, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 4574\(\frac{1}{4}\)a. Same; powers.—Said Commission is hereby vested with power and given complete authority to sell to the proper authorities of the United States all property owned by the State of Texas, and actually used in quarantine service of the State, including lands, quarantine stations, wharves, boats, residence houses and all appurtenances, equipment and apparatus necessary for the proper exercise of the quarantine service or used in such service. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 4574\(\frac{1}{4}\)b. Same; negotiation of sale; deeds.—The said commission shall, as soon as this Act becomes effective, proceed to negotiate terms of sale and delivery of said property to the proper authorities of the United States, and when said terms and conditions of sale have been agreed upon by the commission and the representatives of the United States Government, the Governor of the State of Texas is hereby authorized to execute deeds and convey said quarantine property to the proper authorities of the United States Government, upon the receipt of the amount of money agreed upon, or upon proper guarantee that the said amount of money will be paid to the State of Texas within a given time. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 4574\(\frac{1}{4}\)c. Same; substitute members.—In case of the inability of any member of this commission to act at the proper time in the negotiation and sale of this property he is hereby authorized and empowered to appoint a representative to act in his place, and all expenses incurred by any member, or members, of this commission or their representatives shall be paid out of the expense fund of their respective departments. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 4574\(\frac{1}{4}\)d. Surrender of property on completion of sale.—Upon the execution and delivery of the deed conveying any of said quarantine properties to the United States, the officers and employés of the State, in charge of such property and employed by the State in the quarantine service, in which such property is used, shall surrender such property to the proper representatives of the United States, and the positions and employment of such officers and employés under the State shall thereupon terminate. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 4574\(\frac{1}{4}\)e. Disposition of receipts from sale.—All money paid for said properties shall be paid into the State Treasury immediately upon receipt and shall be credited to the General Revenue, and at the time such money is paid into the State Treasury the commission shall file in the office of the Comptroller of Public Accounts a statement showing the amount of money so paid and for what the same was received, and upon the complete performance of the duties imposed upon the Commission by this Act, the commission shall file in the office of the Comptroller a full statement of all sales made and of all amounts received in payment for the property sold. [Id., § 6.]

PURE FOOD REGULATIONS

Art. 4575a. Office of dairy and food commissioner and dairy and food department abolished, and duties transferred to state health officer.

Art. 4575b. Transfer of appropriations; employees.

Art. 4585a. Condemnation, confiscation and forfeiture of articles adulterated or misbranded; suit, etc.

Art. 4587. Drugs, confectionery and foods, when deemed adulterated.

Art. 4588. Term "misbranded" defined.

Article 4575a. Office of Dairy and Food Commissioner and Dairy and Food Department abolished, and duties transferred to State Health Officer.—The office of Dairy and Food Commissioner of the State of Texas, and the Dairy and Food Department of the State are hereby abolished.

All the authority, powers, duties, functions, rights and liabilities vested in and conferred upon said Commissioner and said Department by Articles 4575 to 4595 inclusive of Chapter 6, Title 66 of the Revised Civil Statutes of Texas of 1911 as amended by Chapter 47 of the General Laws of the Thirty-second Legislature at its Regular Session in 1911, by Chapter 125 of the General Laws passed by the Thirty-sixth Legislature at its Regular Session in 1919, by Chapter 150 of the General Laws of the Thirty-sixth Legislature passed at its Regular Session in 1919 and by any other existing statute or law of the State of Texas, shall hereafter vest in, be had and performed by the State Health officer of this State, and all laws relating to said Dairy and Food Commissioner and said Dairy and Food Department shall be administered under and through the State Health Department of this State.

All powers and authority heretofore conferred by law upon said Dairy and Food Commissioner and said Dairy and Food Department shall be exercised by the State Health officer in accordance with the terms of such law or laws and this Act. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 10, § 1.]

Art. 4575b. Transfer of appropriations; employees.—All appropriations heretofore made for the Dairy and Food Commissioner or the Dairy and Food Department, or the Pure Food and Drug Department, shall hereafter be available to the State Health Officer of this State, to be used by said State Health Officer in the performance and exercise of the duties, authority, powers and functions herein transferred: provided that the State Health Officer is hereby authorized to dispense with any employee not needed, after the consolidation herein authorized, and may rearrange the work and duties of the office to avoid any duplication of work. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 4585a. Condemnation, confiscation and forfeiture of articles adulterated or misbranded; suit, etc.

Judgment.—On motion for new trial, in suit for the destruction of a coffee adulterant sold by defendants, evidence held to show that the judgment for destruction of the adulterant was in fact an agreed judgment, rendered with consent of defendants, and was not unknown to them. State v. Acme Coffee Co. (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 569.

Art. 4587. Drugs, confectionery and foods, when deemed adulterated.

Art. 4588. Term "misbranded" defined.

CHAPTER SIX A

BAKERIES

Art. 4595 1/4. Sanitary requirements in respect to buildings.

Art. 4595 1/4a. Conduct of bakeries.

Art. 4595 1/4b. Vehicles, containers, etc.

Art. 4595 1/4c. Care of materials, etc.

Art. 4595 1/4d. Partial invalidity.

Article 4595 1/4. Sanitary requirements in respect to buildings.—That any building, occupied or used as a bakery wherein is carried on the business of the production, preparation, storage or display of bread, cakes, pies, and other bakery products intended for sale for human consumption, shall be clean, properly lighted, drained and ventilated. Every such bakery shall be provided with adequate plumbing and drainage facilities including suitable wash sinks, toilets and water closets. All toilets and water closets shall be separate and apart from the rooms in which the bakery products are produced or handled. All wash sinks, toilets and water closets shall be kept in a clean and sanitary condition, and shall be in well lighted and ventilated rooms. The floors, walls and ceilings of the rooms in which the dough is mixed and handled, or the pastry prepared for baking, or in which the bakery products or ingredients of such products are otherwise handled or stored, shall be kept and maintained in a clean, wholesome and sanitary condition. All openings into such rooms, including windows and doors, shall be kept properly screened or otherwise protected to exclude flies. No working rooms shall be used for purposes other than those directly connected with the preparing, baking, storage and handling of food, and shall not be used as washing, sleeping, or living rooms, and shall, at all times, be separate and closed from the living and sleeping rooms. Rooms shall be provided for the changing and hanging of wearing apparel apart and separate from such work rooms and such rooms, as to be provided for the changing and hanging of wearing apparel shall be kept clean at all times. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 63, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Art. 4595 1/4a. Conduct of bakeries.—No employee or other person shall sit or lie upon any of the tables, benches, troughs, shelves, which are intended for the dough or bakery products. No animals or fowls shall be kept or allowed in any bakery or other place where bread or other bakery products are produced or stored. Before beginning the work of preparing, mixing, and handling the ingredients used in baking, every person engaged in the preparation or handling of bakery products shall wash his hands and arms thoroughly, and for this purpose sufficient wash basins and soap and clean towels shall be provided. No employee or other person shall use tobacco in any form, in any room where bakery products are manufactured, wrapped or prepared for sale. No master baker, person or any employé who is affected with any contagious or infectious disease shall be permitted to work in any bakery or be permitted to handle any of the products therein, or delivered therefrom. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 4595 1/4b. Vehicles, containers, etc.—The wagons, boxes, baskets and other receptacles in which bread, cake, pies or other bakery products are transported, shall be kept in a clean condition at all times and free from dust, flies and other contamination. All show cases, shelves or other places where bakery products are sold, shall be kept well covered, properly ventilated, well protected from dust and flies, and shall be kept in a clean and wholesome condition at all times. Boxes or other receptacles for the storing or receiving of bread and other bakery products, before and after the retail stores and selling places are open, shall be constructed and placed as to be free from the contamination of streets, alleys and sidewalks, and shall be raised at least ten inches from the sidewalk or street, and shall be kept clean and sanitary, and no bread shall be placed in any box along with any other articles of food other than bakery products. All such boxes shall be provided with private locks and shall be locked at all times except when open to receive or remove bread or other bakery products and when being cleaned. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 4595½c. Care of materials, etc.—All materials used in the production or preparation of bakery products shall be stored, handled and kept in a way to protect them from spoiling and contamination, and no material shall be used which is spoiled or contaminated, or which may render the bread or other bakery products unwholesome or unfit for food. The ingredients used in the production of bread and other bakery products and the sale or offering for sale of bread and other bakery products shall comply with the provisions of the laws against adulteration and misbranding. No ingredients shall be used which may render the bread or other bakery products injurious to health. [Id., § 4.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 5 of the act relates to standard weight of loaves, and is set forth post, as art. 7846½. Sec. 6 imposes a penalty, and is set forth, post, as art. 731a, Penal Code.

Art. 4595½d. Partial invalidity.—That if any clause, sentence, paragraph, or part of this Act shall for any reason be adjudged by any court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, such judgment shall not affect, impair or invalidate the remainder of this Act, but shall be confined in its operation to the clause, sentence, paragraph or part thereof directly involved in the controversy in which such judgment has been rendered. [Id., § 7.]

CHAPTER SIX B
WATER SUPPLY

Art. 4595½. Test of water supply. Art. 4595½b. Strainers for wells, etc.

Article 4595½. Test of water supply.—Hereafter the authorities of all cities and towns, and villages, having a population of Five Thousand (5000) inhabitants or less, in this State and all other companies, persons, corporations or receivers, who are supplying drinking water through a water work system to the public, shall, before supplying the same to the public for drinking water, first cause the supply of water to be chemically tested for any contaminated infusion of sand, dirt or filth, or dangerous bacteria or disease bearing germs. This test to be made according to the direction of the county or city health officers, or both such health officers. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 133, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 4595½a. Same.—It is further enacted that thereafter said water as above supplied shall be subject to such test at any time and the County and City Health Officers where such water supply is furnished, shall make such tests at least once a year and oftener where there is an outbreak of any disease that might be induced through use of impure or unclean water. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 4595½b. Strainers for wells, etc.—And it shall be the duty of all authorities of any City or town of Five Thousand (5000) inhabitants or less, or persons, firms, or the officers and agents of all incorporated companies, or receivers supplying water for such public use, in cities or towns of Five Thousand (5000) inhabitants or less, to provide proper strainers for all wells and all other sources of supply so that sand and dirt shall not be carried into the water for such public use, and to cause all of the conduits and drain pipes conveying said water to be thoroughly washed out and flushed so as to clean the same at least one time every ninety days. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 4595½c. Purification of water supply.—It shall also be the duty of any such authorities, persons, firms or receivers or their agents, when any such drinking water as furnished is pronounced unfit or infectious or impregnated with sand, or dirt, or filth, or unclean and dangerous to the public use, by the Health Officers of any such city or county as the case may be, to immediately take steps to purify, clean or sanitize the same. [Id., § 4.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 6 of this act makes it a misdemeanor to violate the provisions of the act, see Penal Code, art. 6953d.

CHAPTER SEVEN

EMBALMING BOARD

Art. 4600. Application to engage in business; fee; skill required.

—Every person engaged or desiring to engage in the practice of embalming in connection with the care and disposition of dead human bodies within the State of Texas shall make a written application to the State Board of embalming for a license, accompanying the same with a license fee of ten dollars ($10.00), whereupon the applicant as aforesaid shall present himself or herself before said board at a time and place to be fixed by said board, and if the board shall find upon examination that the applicant is of good moral character, possessed of the knowledge of the venous arterial system, the location of the heart, lungs, bladder, womb and other organs of the human body, and the location of abdominal, pleural and thoracic cavities, location of the carotid, bracharal, radial, ulnar, femoral and tibinal arteries, a knowledge of the science of embalming and the care and disposition of the dead, and has a reasonable knowledge of sanitation and the disinfection of bodies of diseased persons, and the apartment, clothing and bedding in case of death by infectious or contagious diseases, the board shall issue to said applicant a license as a duly licensed embalmer, authorizing him to practice the science of embalming. Such license shall be signed by a majority of the board and attested by its seal. All persons receiving license under the provisions of this Chapter shall have said license registered in the County Clerk's office in the county in the jurisdiction of which it is proposed to carry on said practice, and shall display said license in a conspicuous place of business of said person so licensed. [Acts 1903, p. 123, § 5; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 92, § 1, amending art. 4600, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Art. 4601. Renewal of license; fee.—Every registered embalmer, who desires to continue the practice of his profession, shall annually thereafter, during the time he shall continue in such practice, on such date as said board may determine, pay to the secretary of said board, a fee of five dollars for the renewal of said license. [Acts 1903, p. 123, § 6; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 92, § 2, amending art. 4601, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Sec. 3 repeals all laws in conflict.

Art. 4601a. Repeal.—Nothing herein contained shall be construed to have the effect to repeal, impair or qualify the force or effect of Articles 786, 787 and 788 of Chapter 9 of Title 12 of the Revised Criminal Statutes of Texas, 1911; but the same shall be and remain as here-tofore in full force and effect; any violations hereof, shall be punished as in said Articles in this Section provided. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 92, § 4.]

CHAPTER EIGHT

VENEREAL DISEASES

Art. 4605i%4. Diseases declared contagious, etc.—Syphilis, gonorrhea and chancroid, hereinafter designated venereal diseases, are hereby declared to be contagious, infectious, communicable, and dangerous to the public health. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 85, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

Art. 4605i%4a. Physicians to report venereal diseases.—Any physician or other person who makes a diagnosis in, or treats a case of syphilis, gonorrhea or chancroid, and every superintendent or manager of a hospital, dispensary, or charitable or penal institution, in which there is a case of venereal disease, shall report such case immediately, in writing to the local health officer, stating the name and address or the office number, age, sex, color, and occupation of the diseased person, and the date of the onset of the disease, and the probable source of infection, provided that the name and address of the diseased person need not be stated, except as hereinafter specifically required in Section 6 [Art. 4605i%4c], and provided, further, that all information and reports concerning persons having venereal disease shall be held secret in accordance with provisions in Section 11 [Art. 4605½j]. The report shall be enclosed in a sealed envelope and sent to the local health officer, who shall report weekly on the prescribed form to the State Board of Health, all cases reported to him. The physicians and others residing in cities having no city health officer, shall make reports required in this section of this Act direct to the county health officer, where there is a county health officer in the county in which they reside, and where there is no county health officer, all such report shall be made direct to the State Board of Health. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 4605½b. Instructions to patients with venereal disease.—It shall be the duty of every physician and of every other person who examines or treats a person having syphilis, gonorrhea or chancroid, to instruct him in measures for preventing the spread of such disease, and of the necessity for treatment until cured, and to hand him a copy of the circular of information obtainable for this purpose for the State Board of Health. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 4605½c. Investigations as to existence of such diseases; examination of suspects.—All city, county, or other health officers, shall use every available means to ascertain the existence of, and to investigate all cases of syphilis, gonorrhea, and chancroid within their several territorial jurisdictions, and to ascertain the sources of such infections. Local health officers are hereby empowered and directed to make such examinations of persons reasonably suspected of having syphilis, gonorrhea or chancroid as may be necessary for carrying out the provisions of this Act. Owing to the prevalence of such diseases among prostitutes and persons associated with them, all such persons are to be considered within the above class. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 4605½d. Quarantine of persons afflicted with such diseases.—Upon receipt of a report of a case of venereal disease it shall be the duty of the local health officer to institute measures for protection of other persons from infection by such venereally diseased person.

(a) Local health officers are authorized and directed to quarantine persons who have, or are reasonably suspected of having syphilis, gonorrhea, or chancroid, whenever, in the opinion of said local officer, or the State Board of Health, or its executive officer, quarantine is necessary for the protection of the public health. In establishing quarantine the local Health Officer shall designate and define the limits of the area in which the person known to have, or reasonably suspected of having syphilis, gonorrhea, or chancroid and his immediate attendant, are to be quarantined and no person, other than the attending physician, shall enter or leave the area of quarantine without the permission of the local health officer.

No one but the local health officer shall terminate said quarantine, and this shall not be done until the quarantined person has become non-infectious, as determined by the local health officer or his authorized deputy through clinical examination and all necessary laboratory tests, or until permission has been given him to do so by the State Board of Health or its executive officer.

(b) The local health officer shall inform all persons who are about to be released from quarantine for venereal disease, in case they are not cured, what further treatment should be taken to complete their cure. Any person not cured, before released from quarantine, shall be required to sign the following statement after the blank spaces have been filled to the satisfaction of the health officer. I ______ residing at hereby acknowledge the fact that I am at this time infected with ______;
and agree to place myself under the medical care of ________.

Name of Physician or clinic _______ within — hours.

Address and that I will remain under treatment of said physician or clinic until released by the health officer of ________ or until my case is trans­ferred, with the approval of said health officer, to another regularly li­censed physician or an approved clinic.

I hereby agree to report to the health officer within four days after beginning treatment as above agreed, and will bring with me a statement from the above physician or clinic of the medical treatment applied in my case, and thereafter will report as often as may be demanded of me by the health officer.

I agree further, that I will take all precautions recommended by the health officer to prevent the spread of the above disease to other persons and that I will not perform any act which will expose other persons to the above disease.

I agree, until finally released by the health officer to notify him of any change of address and to obtain his consent before moving my abode out­side of his jurisdiction.

__________________________

Date.

All persons signing the above agreement shall observe its provisions. and any failure to do so shall be a violation of this Act. All such agree­ments shall be filed with the health officer, and kept inaccessible to the public as provided in Section 11 [Art. 4605 1/4].

The Commissioners' Courts of the various counties in this State, and the city councils, or other boards of the incorporated towns and cities of the State, are hereby empowered and directed to provide suitable places for the detention of persons who may be subject to quarantine and who should be segregated for the execution of the provisions of this Act; and such Commissioners' Court, city councils and other governing boards of incorporated cities and towns are hereby authorized to incur, on behalf of their said counties, cities or towns, the expenses necessary to the en­forcement of this Act. [Id. § 5.]

Constitutionality.—Legislature has power to declare that prostitution is a source of communicable diseases, and that its suppression is a public health measure, and to di­rect, as is done by this article, that health officers hold such persons in quarantine, and such act is not violative of provisions of Constitution, or discriminatory, arbitrary, or unreasonable. Ex parte Brooks, 85 Cr. R. 397, 212 S. W. 956.

Arrest.—Under this act, the proper health officer may issue a warrant by virtue of which a lawful arrest may be made without affording the person affected a preliminary hearing. Ex parte Hardcastle, 54 Cr. R. 463, 208 S. W. 531, 2 A. L. R. 1359.

Private physician.—There is nothing in this article which prohibits treatment by private physicians while in quarantine. Ex parte Brooks, 85 Cr. R. 397, 212 S. W. 956.

Effect of expiration of term of quarantine officer.—Order of city health officer for commitment of woman to city farm because afflicted with disease is not void because authorizing delivery to quarantine officer who has, since remand to him, ceased to hold office, as any officer having charge of farm would have legal custody of her. Ex parte Brooks, 85 Cr. R. 397, 212 S. W. 956.

Art. 4605 1/4e. Patients applying for treatment to give name and ad­dress of prior physician; report of name and address of patient.—(a)
When a person applies to a physician or other person for the diagnosis or treatment of syphilis, gonorrhea or chancroid, it shall be the duty of the physician or person so consulted to inquire of, and ascertain from, the person seeking such diagnosis or treatment, whether such person has heretofore consulted with, or has been treated by, any other physician or person, and if so, to ascertain the name and address of the physician or person last consulted. It shall be the duty of the applicant for diagnosis or treatment to furnish this information, and a refusal to do so, or a classification of the same and address of such physician or person consulted by such applicant shall be deemed a violation of this Act. It shall be the duty of the physician or other person whom the applicant consults to notify the physician or other person last consulted of the change of advisers. Should the physician or person previously consulted fail to receive such notice within ten days after the last date upon which the patient was instructed by him to appear, it shall be the duty of such physician or person to report to the local health officer, the name and address of such venereally diseased person.

(b) If an attending physician or other person knows or has good reasons to suspect that a person having syphilis, gonorrhea, or chancre is so conducting himself or herself as to expose other persons to infection, or is about so to conduct himself or herself, he shall notify the local health officer of the name and address of the diseased person and the essential facts in the case. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 46051/4f. Druggists to keep record of sales of treatments for such diseases.—Any druggist or other persons who sells any drug, compound, specific or preparation of any kind used for or believed by the druggist or person to be intended to be used for the treatment of any of said venereal diseases, shall keep a record of the name and address of the person making such purchase. A copy of said record shall be mailed each week to the local health officer and by him to the State Board of Health. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 46051/4g. Infected person exposing another to infection.—It shall be a violation of this statute for any infected person knowingly to expose another person to infection with any of the said venereal diseases, or for any person to perform an act which exposes another person to infection with venereal disease. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 46051/4h. Prostitution declared a source of infection; suppression.—Prostitution is hereby declared to be a prolific source of syphilis, gonorrhea, and chancre, and the repression of prostitution is declared to be a public health measure. All local and state health officers are therefore directed to co-operate, with proper officials whose duty it is to enforce laws directed against prostitution, and otherwise to use every proper means for the repression of prostitution. [Id., § 9.]

Art. 46051/4i. Certificates of freedom from such diseases.—Physicians, health officers, and all other persons are prohibited from issuing certificates of freedom from venereal disease, provided this Section shall not prevent the issuance of statements of freedom from infectious diseases written in such form, or given under such safe guards, that their use for solicitation for sexual intercourse would be impossible. [Id., § 10.]

Art. 46051/4j. Information and reports confidential.—All information and reports concerning persons infected with venereal diseases shall be inaccessible to the public except in so far as publicity may attend the performance of the duties imposed by this statute and by the laws of the State. [Id., § 11.]

For section 12 of this act see Penal Code, art. 420j.

Art. 4605½k. Remedies for enforcement of act.—In addition to the remedies provided herein for the enforcement of this Act, the State Health Department and all county and local health departments are hereby authorized and empowered to employ all measures provided by existing laws for ascertaining, handling, segregating and controlling contagious or infectious diseases. [Id., § 13.]

CHAPTER NINE

EMPLOYMENT OF DISEASED PERSONS

Article 4605½. Unlawful to employ diseased persons in certain places.—That it shall be unlawful for any individual, persons, firms, corporations or common carriers, operating or conducting any hotel, cafe, restaurant, dining car or other public eating place, or operating any bakery or meat market, public dairy or dairies in this State, to hereafter work, employ or keep in their employ any person or persons infected with or affected by any infectious or contagious disease, and also such persons so employed who at the time of the taking effect of the provisions herein made are infected with or affected by any contagious or infectious disease, shall at once be discharged from such employment in any of the places above enumerated in this Act. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 66, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Art. 4605½a. Medical examination.—Every individual, persons, firms or corporations or common carriers, operating or conducting a hotel, cafe, restaurant, dining car or other public eating place, or operating a bakery or meat market, shall institute and have made a medical examination for all their employees at intervals of time not to exceed six months, and shall after such medical examination of all their employees promptly discharge from their employment in or about the above mentioned places any person or persons found to be infected with or affected by any infectious or contagious disease. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 4605½b. Certificate of physician.—That it shall be unlawful for any individual, persons, firms or corporations operating or conducting any hotel, cafe, restaurant, dining car or other public eating place, or operating any bakery or meat market, to work or employ any person to work in any hotel, cafe, restaurant, dining car or other public eating place, or in any bakery or meat market, who, at the time of their employment, had not in his or her possession, a certificate from some reputable physician, where said person is to be employed, attesting the fact that the bearer has been examined by such physician within one week prior to the time of employment, and that such examination discloses the fact that such person to be employed was free from any and all infectious or contagious diseases. [Id., § 3.]
Art. 4605 1/2c. Sterilization of dishes, etc.—That it shall be unlawful for any individual, persons, firms or corporations, operating or conducting a hotel, cafe, restaurant, dining car or other public eating place, or conducting or operating any bakery or meat market, to furnish to their patrons or customers any dish or other receptacle or utensil used in eating, drinking or conveying food, until such dish, receptacle or other utensil has been thoroughly cleaned and sterilized by heat or in boiling water subsequent to being used by any other person or persons; and provided further, that it shall be unlawful for any individual, person, firm or corporation, operating or conducting a hotel cafe, restaurant, dining car or other public eating place, or conducting or operating any bakery or meat market, to furnish to their patrons or customers any dish or receptacle or utensil used in eating, drinking or conveying food, if such dish, receptacle or utensil is broken or cracked in such a manner as to render their sterilization impossible or doubtful. [Id., § 4.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 6 of the act imposes a penalty and is set forth, post, as art. 696a, Penal Code. Sec. 6 repeals all laws in conflict.

CHAPTER TEN
BARBER AND BEAUTY SHOPS

Art. 4605 1/2: Registration. Art. 4605 3/4: Towels, etc., to be laundered after use.
4605 1/2a. Equipment with facilities and supplies.
4605 1/2b. Diseased persons not to act as barbers.
4605 1/2c. Shop and equipment to be kept clean.
4605 1/2d. Combs, etc., to be cleaned and sterilized.
4605 1/2e. Combs, etc., not to be used unless cleaned, etc.
4605 1/2f. Mugs, etc., to be sterilized after use.

Article 4605 3/4. Registration.—Every person owning, operating or managing a barber shop or beauty parlor that is in operation at the time of the taking effect of this Act shall, on or before September 1st, 1921, register his full name and the location of said shop or parlor in a book to be kept in the office of the Texas State Board of Health for that purpose; and every owner, operator or manager of a barber shop or beauty parlor that is first opened for business after the taking effect of this Act, shall within five days after the opening of said shop or parlor register in like manner. In event of a change in the manager or in the location of any barber shop or beauty parlor aforesaid, the manager of said shop or parlor shall call at, or communicate by United States mail with the Texas State Board of Health within five days after such change takes place and inform said Board of such change. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 79, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Art. 4605 3/4a. Equipment with facilities and supplies.—The owner and operator or manager of any barber shop or beauty parlor and each of them, shall equip said shop and keep said shop equipped with facilities and supplies and with all such appliances, furnishings and materials as may be necessary to enable persons employed in and about said shop or parlor to comply with the requirements of this Act. [Id., § 2.]
Art. 4605/4b. Diseased persons not to act as barbers.—(a) No owner and no operator or manager of a barber shop or beauty parlor shall knowingly permit any person suffering from a communicable skin disease or from a venereal disease to act as a barber or employee or work or be employed in said shop or parlor.

(b) No person who to his own knowledge is suffering from a communicable disease or from venereal disease, shall act as a barber or work or be employed as set forth in this Section. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 4605/4c. Shop and equipment to be kept clean.—Every manager or person in charge of a barber shop or beauty parlor shall keep said shop or parlor and all furniture, tools appliances and other equipments used therein at all times in a cleanly condition. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 4605/4d. Combs, etc., to be cleaned and sterilized.—Every manager or person in charge of a barber shop or beauty parlor shall cause all combs, hair brushes, hair dusters and similar articles used in said shop or parlor to be washed thoroughly at least once each day and to be kept clean at all times, and shall cause all mugs, shaving brushes, razors, shears, scissors, clippers and tweezers used in said shop or parlor to be sterilized at least once after each time used as hereinafter provided. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 4605/4e. Combs, etc., not to be used unless cleaned, etc.—No barber or person affected by this Act shall use for the service of any customer a comb, hair brush, hair duster or any similar article that is not thoroughly clean, nor any mug, shaving brush, razor, shears, scissors, clippers, or tweezers that are not thoroughly clean or that have not been sterilized since last used. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 4605/4f. Mugs, etc., to be sterilized after use.—Every barber or other person affected by this Act immediately after using a mug, shaving brush, razor, scissors shears, clippers, or tweezers for the service of any person, shall sterilize the same by immersing them in boiling water for not less than a minute or in the case of razors, scissors, shears and tweezers, by immersing them for not less than ten minutes in a five per cent aqueous solution of carbolic acid. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 4605/4g. Towels, etc., to be laundered after use.—No barber or other person affected by this Act shall use for the service of a customer any towel or wash cloth that has not been boiled and laundered since last used. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 4605/4h. Cleansing of hands.—Every barber or other person affected by this Act shall cleanse his hands thoroughly immediately before serving each customer. [Id., § 9.]

Art. 4605/4i. Same piece of alum not to be used on different persons.—No barber or other person affected by this Act shall, to stop the flow of blood, use the same piece of alum or other material for more than one person. [Id., § 10.]

Art. 4605/4j. Powder puffs, etc.—No barber or other person affected by this Act shall use a powder puff or a sponge in the service of a customer unless the same has been sterilized since last used and no finger bowl shall be used unless the same has been sterilized since last used and fresh water or other liquid placed therein. [Id., § 11.]

Art. 4605/4k. Head rests.—No barber or other person affected by this Act shall permit any person to use the head rest of any barber's chair under his control until after the head rest has been covered with a towel that has been washed and boiled since having been used before, or by clean, new paper or similar clean new substance. [Id., § 12.]

Art. 4605½l. Individual cups, etc.—No barber or other person affected by this Act shall shave any person, when the surface to be shaved is inflamed or broken out, or contains pus, unless such person be provided with a cup, razor or lather brush for his individual use. [Id., § 13.]

Art. 4605¾m. Posting regulations.—The owner and the manager of any barber shop or beauty parlor and each of them, shall keep a copy of these regulations, to be furnished by the State Board of Health, posted in said barber shop or beauty parlor for the information and guidance of persons working or employed therein. [Id., § 14.]

Art. 4605¾n. Terms defined.—The word “barber” as used in these regulations means any person who shaves, or trims the beard, or cuts or shampoos or dresses the hair or massages the face of any person for pay, and includes “barbers’ apprentices” and shop boys. The word “manager” means any person having control of a barber shop or beauty parlor or person working or employed therein. [Id., § 15.]

Art. 4605¾o. Sleeping in shop.—It shall be unlawful for the owner or manager of any barber shop or beauty parlor to permit any person or persons to sleep in any room used wholly or in part as a barber shop or beauty parlor and no person shall pursue the barber business or be employed in a barber shop or beauty parlor in any room used as a sleeping apartment. [Id., § 16.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 17 of the act imposes a criminal penalty, and is set forth, post, as art. 696b, Penal Code.

Art. 4605¾p. What constitutes “barber shop” and “beauty parlor.” —A barber shop is any place where the work or business of a barber is done for pay, and may or may not include a beauty parlor or any work of a beauty parlor. A beauty parlor is a place where hair-dressing or manacuring of finger nails or massaging the skin, or shampooing, or washing the scalp of hair, is done for pay and may or may not include work or business of a barber. [Id., § 18.]

Art. 4605¾q. Definition of word “person”.—The expression “person affected by this Act” shall include any person working or employed in a barber shop or beauty parlor or acting as a barber, beauty specialist or manacurist. The work “persons,” shall include persons, firms, corporations and associations of persons. [Id., § 19.]

CHAPTER ELEVEN

OPHTHALMIA NEONATORUM

Art. 4605¾l. Prophylactic drops shall be used. Art. 4605¾a. State board of health shall furnish solution to poor.

Article 4605¾l. Prophylactic drops shall be used.—All doctors, physicians, midwives, nurses; or those in attendance at child birth, shall use prophylactic drops in the child’s eyes of a one per cent. solution of silver nitrate, or other prophylactic solution approved by the State Board of Health, to prevent opthalmia neonatorum in the new born. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 89, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Art. 4605/6a. State Board of Health shall furnish solution to poor.
—The State Board of Health shall be required to furnish such silver nitrate solution or other prophylactic drops free of cost to the poor of the State; namely, those upon whom it would work a hardship to buy such solution. [Id., § 2.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 3 imposes a criminal penalty and is set forth, post, as art. 810½, Penal Code.

TITLE 67
HOLIDAYS—LEGAL

Art. 4606. What are legal holidays.
Art. 4606a. Victory day.

Article 4606. What days are legal holidays.—The first day of January, the twenty-second day of February, the second day of March, the twenty-first day of April, the third day of June, the fourth day of July, the first Monday in September, the twelfth day of October, the eleventh day of November, and the twenty-fifth day of December, of each year, and all days appointed by the President of the United States, or by the Governor, as days of fasting or Thanksgiving, and every day on which an election is held throughout the State, are declared holidays, on which all the public offices of the State may be closed, and shall be considered and treated as Sunday or the Christian Sabbath for all purposes regarding the presenting for payment or acceptance and of protesting for and giving notice of the dishonor of bills of exchange, bank checks and promissory notes placed by the law upon the footing of bills of exchange. [Acts 1893, p. 4; Acts 1905, p. 14; Acts 1911, p. 52, § 1; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 48, § 1, amending art. 4606, Rev. Civ. St.]

Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Closing of bank on legal holiday held not to excuse lessee’s failure to make extension rental payment. McLaughlin v. Brock (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 575.

Art. 4606a. Victory day.—Victory Day, the eleventh day of November of each year, the same being a legal holiday, is further set apart and designated as Victory Day, to be devoted to the celebration of the victory of America and her allies over the Imperial Government of Germany in The Great War and to be observed for that purpose in such patriotic manner as may seem best to the people of each community. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 48, § 2.]
Art. 4607A

HOSPITALS

HOSPITALS

Article 4607A. County and city may appropriate money for maintenance of donated hospital.—That wherever by will, or otherwise, a fund of fifty thousand dollars, or more, has been, or shall be, left for the establishment and maintenance of a hospital in a city of ten thousand inhabitants, or more, in which hospital the sick and wounded of such city, or of the State of Texas, may be admitted and may receive medical and surgical attention, the Commissioners' Court of the county and the governing body of the city in which said hospital shall be established either, or both, may from time to time appropriate and pay toward the maintenance of such hospital such sums of money as may in the judgment of the Commissioners' Court making such appropriation, or in the judgment of the governing body of the city making such appropriation be proper to provide hospital accommodations and medical and surgical attention for the sick and wounded of such county or city who are indigent. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 42, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Chap. 1
HUSBAND AND WIFE

Art. 4608

TITLE 68
HUSBAND AND WIFE

CHAPTER ONE

CELEBRATION OF MARRIAGE

Art. 4608. [2954] Who are authorized to celebrate rites.

Law governing marriage.—The law of the state in which a marriage was celebrated generally affects the criterion for testing its validity. Thompson v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 175.

Ceremonial marriage in general.—That there was immediate separation and no coition does not affect the validity of a ceremonial marriage. Thompson v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 175.

A marriage celebrated under the forms of law is valid and binding, whether cohabitation takes place or not, and, although there is no cohabitation, an innocent third party otherwise eligible has no lawful right to contract a second marriage with one of the parties. Lopez v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 655.

Common law marriage—Requisites and validity.—That a couple were living together, and some time intended to marry, was insufficient to show a common-law marriage. Nelson v. State, 84 Cr. R. 219, 206 S. W. 361.

An agreement between a man and a woman then to become and thence afterwards to be husband and wife is the gist of a common-law marriage. Edmondson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 586.

In a woman's action for a wrongful death of her alleged common-law husband evidence held sufficient to show that deceased was the lawful husband of another, so that plaintiff was not his common-law wife. Lopez v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 686.

"Marriage" is a status, the living together of a man and a woman as husband and wife, under an agreement, express or implied, which need not be solemnized by any ceremony, or be under license from the state, where the agreement is made effective by the parties living together publicly as husband and wife. Bobbitt v. Bobbitt (Civ. App.) 233 S. W. 478.

Marriage relations are based either on ceremonial celebration or on an actual agreement, and a common-law marriage, in absence of conflicting testimony, may be presumed from evidence showing that the parties lived together professedly as husband and wife, and were so recognized by the community, but such evidence fails to establish the fact of marriage conclusively where there is also evidence of a later separation, and that one of the parties thereafter married another by a ceremonial marriage; the presumption of common-law marriage from habit and reputation being overcome by proof of the ceremonial marriage. Walton v. Walton (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 313, reversing Walton v. Walton (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 133.

Sufficiency of evidence.—In a suit by a woman who was asserted to have been the common-law wife of deceased, evidence held sufficient to establish that fact. Winters v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 219.

In an action for a man's wrongful death, evidence held insufficient to show that plaintiff was his common-law wife, even if he did not have another wife living at such time; the agreement shown being one to get married, and not a marriage contract. Lopez v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 685.

In a divorce suit evidence held such that the finding of the jury that there was an agreement for common-law marriage consummated by cohabitation could not be set aside. Bobbitt v. Bobbitt (Civ. App.) 233 S. W. 475.

In a will contest, evidence held sufficient to support a finding that an alleged prior husband of contestant, who was contesting as wife of deceased, was a married man, and had induced contestant to marry him, but that no legal marriage was consummated. Clover v. Clover (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 916.

In a contest between two persons, each claiming to be the lawful wife of deceased, for appointment to administer his estate, evidence as to a common-law marriage between deceased and contestant held to present a jury question as to whether there was a marriage agreement. Walton v. Walton (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 921, reversing Walton v. Walton (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 133.

Who may marry.—Final decree of divorce rendered by California court after the husband's death constituted a valid divorce, and, together with fact of living together by husband who sought divorce and his second wife, married after the interlocutory decree, validated second marriage contract. Kinney v. Tri-State Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1180.

Where a common-law marriage relation already existed between a man and another woman, a second woman with whom he subsequently celebrated a ceremonial marriage, though she entered into the relation in good faith and in accordance with the statutory law, did not become his wife, and no valid marriage was created. Cunningham v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 242.

Where a married man deceived a girl into the belief that they had been married by delivering to her the original marriage license, and she lived with him as his lawful wife according to her belief until she learned that he had a wife living, whereupon he went away fearing prosecution, she was not his wife at all and was free to marry another. Clover v. Clover (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 916.

Art. 4610. [2956] License.

Failure to procure license.—Noncompliance with the statute requiring license does not affect the validity of a marriage except where the statute expressly declares that a marriage in violation thereof shall be a nullity. Thompson v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 302 S. W. 175.

Art. 4611. [2957] Consent of parent or guardian, etc.

Marriage without consent.—Statutes regulating mode of entering the marriage relation, as to consent of parents and requirement for license, are merely directory, and noncompliance therewith does not affect the validity of a marriage, except where the statutes expressly declare a marriage in violation thereof shall be a nullity. Thompson v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 302 S. W. 175.

Art. 4612. [2958] Record and return of licenses.

Evidence.—In criminal proceedings in Texas, where the fact of a marriage having taken place on a particular day is material, the best evidence of the fact is the testimony of those who witnessed the ceremony; and a certified copy of a marriage license, or of a certificate of its solemnization, both of which are required to be recorded in a well-bound book, is not admissible. Chew v. State, 23 Tex. App. 230, 5 S. W. 373.

CHAPTER TWO

MARRIAGE CONTRACTS

Art. 4617. What stipulations may be made. 4618. How authenticated.

Article 4617. [2963] What stipulations may be made.

Validity of contracts.—A post-nuptial agreement is void which revokes a marriage settlement, and provides that, in case the husband dies without issue of the marriage, his property shall descend to his heirs as if the marriage had never taken place, under Rev. St. 1879, art. 2847, prohibiting any agreement which would alter the legal order of descent. Groesbeck v. Groesbeck, 78 Tex. 684, 14 S. W. 792.

Deeds executed before marriage by a husband to his future wife, granting her the property for life, to revert to him if she died without issue, but if she had issue to go to her heirs, held not prohibited as a stipulation between parties about to marry, altering the legal order of descent and distribution as contemplated by the Legislature. Runge v. Freshman (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 254.

Instruments affected.—This article held not to govern deeds executed before marriage by a husband to his future wife to settle on her a portion of the property of which he was absolutely possessed, in consideration of her marrying, the property to be her separate estate for life, to revert to him if she died without issue, but if she had issue to go to her heirs. Runge v. Freshman (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 254.
CHAPTER THREE
RIGHTS OF MARRIED WOMEN

Article 4621. [2967] Separate property; management; joinder of husband in conveyance, etc.; permission to convey where husband abandons wife, is insane, or refuses to join; debts or torts of husband and wife; conveyance of homestead.—All property, both real and personal, of the husband owned or claimed by him before marriage and that acquired afterwards by gift, devise or descent, as also the increase of all lands thus acquired, and the rents and revenues derived therefrom, shall be his separate property. The separate property of the husband shall not be subject to the debts contracted by the wife, either before or after marriage, except for necessaries furnished herself and children after her marriage with him, nor for torts of the wife. All property of the wife, both real and personal, owned or claimed by her before marriage, and that acquired afterwards by gift, devise or descent, as also the increase of all lands thus acquired, and the rents and revenues derived therefrom, shall be the separate property of the wife. During marriage, the husband shall have the sole management, control and disposition of his separate property, both real and personal, and the wife shall have the sole management, control and disposition of her separate property, both real and personal; provided however, the joinder of the husband in the manner now provided by law for conveyances of the separate real estate of the wife shall be necessary to the encumbrance or conveyance by the wife of her lands, and the joint signature of the husband and wife shall be necessary to the transfer of stocks and bonds belonging to her, or in which she may be given control by this Act; provided also that if the husband shall have permanently abandoned his wife, be insane, or shall refuse to join in such encumbrance, conveyance or transfer of such property, the wife may apply to the District Court of the county of her residence, and it shall be the duty of the court, in term time or vacation, upon satisfactory proof that such encumbrance, conveyance or transfer would be advantageous to the interest of the wife, to make an order granting her permission to make such encumbrance, conveyance or transfer without the joinder of her husband, in which event she may encumber, convey or transfer said property without such joinder. Neither the separate property of the wife, nor the rents from the wife's separate real estate, nor the interest on bonds and notes belonging to her, nor dividends on stocks owned by her, nor her personal earnings, shall be subject to the payment of debts contracted by the husband nor of torts of the husband. The homestead, whether the separate property of the husband or wife, or the community property of both, shall not be disposed of except by the joint conveyance of both the husband and the wife, except where the husband has permanently abandoned the wife, or is insane, in which instances, the wife may sell and make title to any such homestead if her separate property, in the manner herein provided for conveying or making title to her other separate property.
Art. 4621  HUSBAND AND WIFE

The community property of the husband and wife shall not be liable for debts or damages resulting from contracts of the wife, except for necessities furnished herself and children, unless the husband joins in the execution of the contract, provided, that her rights with reference to the community property on permanent abandonment by the husband shall not be affected by the preceding sentence. [Act March 13, 1849; P. D. 4641, Const. art. 16. § 15; Acts 1913, p. 61. § 1; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 194, § 1; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 130. § 1.]

Took effect 50 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

See Martin Brown Co. v. Perrill, 77 Tex. 199, 18 S. W. 975; Clark v. Tulley (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 605; Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Choate (Com. App.) 232 S. W. 885; Markley v. Mussett (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 126.

Where a feme sole is sued, but marries while the suit is pending and before judgment rendered, art. 1893, provides the husband shall be impleaded as a defendant, when the suit shall proceed to the end against husband and wife jointly, which must be done before an effective judgment can be rendered, a requirement not affected by this article, the burden to see that the requirement is met being on plaintiff. Powell v. Dyer (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 731.

10. Conveyances of husband's separate estate.—Husband could convey his separate property by deed of gift, if conveyance did not impair homestead rights or rights of creditors. Bishop v. Williams (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 612.

11. Actions by husband.—If land conveyed to a wife by a deed reciting it to be her separate property was held in trust for husband, a suit could be maintained by him, it not being necessary to set aside or correct deed before suing for the interest claimed. Markum v. Markum (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 836.

In suit on promissory note given for price of land by unmarried woman, who had subsequently married and gave renewal note, petition held not to show estoppel on defendant's part to deny that she had permanently separated from her husband when she gave note. Sewell v. Walton (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 771.

Conveyance of homestead, see notes under art. 1115.

13. Separate property and rights of husband and wife in general.—Where the separate lands of a wife were improved with the community funds, but it did not appear that the spouses would never become reconciled, held that, as the homestead which was located on the separate property of the wife still existed for the joint use of the spouses, and the community estate remained intact, the wife would not be required to account to the community estate for the improvement of her separate property. Rudasill v. Rudasill (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 847.

A conveyance to a fictitious person was inoperative, and the title remained in the grantor's separate property; she having acquired it as a feme sole. Johns v. Wear (Civ. App.) 320 S. W. 1008.

15. Conveyances or gifts to or for use of wife as her separate property.—In trespass to try title by divorced first wife of decedent claiming through her son against her husband's second wife, such second wife, defendant, had the right to introduce testimony tending to show that her husband caused deed of the land to be made to her because he intended it as a gift. Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 292.

A wife acquired land as her separate estate if it was deeded to her or if the consideration for the property was for the purpose of giving her separate property.

Where a husband caused deed of land to be made to his wife intending it as a gift, it became her separate property, though the deed did not state on its face that title was to be so vested in the wife. Id.

A husband may give to his wife an equity in land, and a conveyance by him directly or through a trustee would vest such equity in her as her separate estate, where equity is worthless, there can be no gift, so that going through the forms of law appropriate to vest in the wife a right to acquire land of her husband at a cost in excess of its market value gave wife no beneficial interest in property and the conveyance by her of a judgment against the land in consideration of her note would not be for the benefit of her separate estate. Johnson v. Scott (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 671.

Before a trust, either implied or expressed, can be impressed upon a clause in a conveyance of a market value gave wife no beneficial interest in property and the conveyance by her of a judgment against the land in consideration of her note would not be for the benefit of her separate estate. Johnson v. Scott (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 671.

If a husband causes a deed for property paid for with community funds to be made to the wife for her separate use and causes the deed to recite, it will vest the title in wife as her separate estate. Id.

Where deed of husband to wife upon its face discloses that the property is conveyed to her as her separate estate, this makes the property her separate estate, but the status as wife's separate property of property conveyed to wife is not affected by the fact that the deed does not on its face disclose that the property was conveyed to her as her separate property, where it appears that both husband and wife directed that the deed be made to her for the purpose and with the intent to make the conveyed property her separate property, at the time of the death of the deed it was their mutual intention that it should be her separate and not community property, and was to be taken in her name to effect that purpose. Armstrong v. Turbeville (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 1101.

Where property was acquired after marriage, and deeded by the vendor to his wife, in consideration of separate property of the wife traded for it, the husband and wife also giving their note for a certain sum, and it was the mutual intention of husband and wife that the acquired property should be her separate property, and the title was taken in her name for that purpose, and they also intended that the note should be paid out of the wife's separate funds, and such payments thereon were made from rents accruing from the property subsequent to the taking effect of Act April 4, 1917, the acquired property became her separate property, and not community property, notwithstanding the fact that the husband joined in the note, and that the deed, though made to the wife, did not disclose that the property was conveyed to her as her separate property. Id.

While a deed absolute on its face may have a parol trust ingrained upon it, lands standing in the name of a wife cannot be held to be the joint property of the husband and wife, where the wife paid the entire consideration, etc., before marriage, it was agreed between the parties that they should buy the land jointly and own it in equal portions; it appearing the husband paid none of the consideration. Rudsill v. Rudsill (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 812.

In a daughter-in-law and sister-in-law's action for partition against her mother-in-law and brother-in-law, evidence held insufficient to show that the deceased father-in-law intended to make a gift of certain land to the mother-in-law, his wife, when purchasing it. Stoppelberg v. Stoppelberg (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 887.

Where the owner of real estate conveyed it to a third party for the purpose of having the third party convey it to the owner's wife as her separate property, which the third party, did, but the deed showed on its face that the grantee was the wife of the deceased, and the conveyance was revestment of reversion for husband, to husband the separate estate, nor that the land was to be her separate property, such land became the wife's separate property as between herself and husband, their privies in blood, and purchasers without value or with notice, but as to purchasers for value without notice it should be treated as community property. Houston Oil Co. v. Choate (Com. App.) 232 S. W. 285.

19. Trusts in favor of wife.—Where wife of her own separate property furnished all money invested in land, a resulting trust existed as between husband and wife which in legal effect vested equitable title in wife. Chalk v. Daggett (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1057.

Where wife did not place money in her husband's hands to buy land, but he had her money and invested it in land, the effect was a loan to him, and he owed her a debt, and she had no right, title, or interest in the land, only holding a lien on the same. Koger v. Clark (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 434.

Wife, who conveyed half interest in property to husband, was not precluded from bringing action to cancel deed by the fact that land had been sold for taxes and resold by tax sale purchaser to husband, since a deed to husband may be treated as redemption deed, and inured to wife's benefit. Moore v. Moore (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 78.

21. Enforcement.—Right of defendant wife who furnished all money paid for land would be superior to that of plaintiff, to whom defendant husband gave trust deed on land, unless wife was party to deed or plaintiff had knowledge of her equitable title. Daggett v. Daggett (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1067.

22½. Trusts in favor of husband.—Where equity in land conveyed by husband to wife through a trustee was worthless, the wife should be considered as holding legal title in trust for her husband, at least as to all persons having notice that she took no beneficial interest. Johnson v. Scott (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 375.

23. Proceeds or increase of or interest on separate property.—For decisions construing article before amendment, see Hayden v. McMillan, 4 Civ. App. 479, 23 S. W. 439; Rudasill v. Rudasill (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 843.

Where wife bought ginning machinery, paid for it out of her separate estate, sold one-half interest in it to a son, and then repurchased the half interest, paying for it out of money earned by operating the mill, the half interest which she repurchased became a part of the community estate between her and her husband, under arts. 4621, 4622. Miller v. Fenton (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 631.

Under the Married Woman's Act amending arts. 4621, 4622, 4624, and under art. 4627, unamended, rents from a wife's separate real estate, though community property, are not subject to community debts, despite Acts 55th Leg. c. 194, amending art. 4621, providing rents from wife's separate lands shall be her separate property. Texas Lumber & Loan Co. v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 811.

Although the rule that rents arising from wife's separate realty becomes community property was not changed so as to make such rents the wife's separate property, by Act March 21, 1913, this statute made a great change in the law respecting such rents. In that the control, management, and disposition were vested in the wife alone, and were no longer subject to the payment of debts contracted by the husband, and so far as the husband's creditors are concerned they occupy the same status as property which is strictly the wife's separate property, so that the donation by a husband to his wife of his community interest in such rents was not in fraud of any rights of creditors, as they had no interest in such rents, and an agreement between husband and wife that money borrowed on notes signed by them both should be repaid out of rents of her separate property had the same legal effect in making the borrowed money the wife's separate property if it had been intended that repayment was to be made out of her separate property. Armstrong v. Turbeville (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 1101.

Where a wife used as a lodging house property which the spouses occupied as a home, the wife is not bound to use the profits from the lodging house for the support of the husband. King v. King (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1092.

Where the husband and adult sons farmed a large parcel of land belonging to the wife, on part of which was located the family homestead, held that, since Acts 35th Leg. c. 154 the wife was entitled to recover from the husband and sons one-third of the value of the crops raised on the theory of an implied letting. Rudasill v. Rudasill (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 843.

24. Damages recovered by wife.—The amendment of this article, classifying separate and community property, did not impliedly repeal art. 4621a, providing that compensation for personal injuries sustained by the wife shall be her separate property, but where the right of action of a wife for personal injuries accrued after the passage of but before Acts 35th Leg. c. 194, went into effect, art. 4621a, providing that damages for personal injuries to a wife should be her separate property, fixed her rights, assuming that the later act repeals the earlier. Ayo v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 979.

Art. 1839, authorizing the husband to sue alone or jointly with the wife for the recovery of her separate property, is not in conflict with or repealed by the amendment of this article, giving the wife the sole management, disposition, and control of her separate property, and the husband may therefore sue for personal injury to the wife, though the damages are her separate property under art. 4621a. Pullman Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 599.

25. Right of action.—In order to enable the wife to sue alone, she must not only allege failure or neglect on the part of her husband to join her in the suit, but also that the property is her separate estate. Barmore v. Darragh (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 582.

That the law now gives a wife control of her separate property does not require her to give notice of ownership to those who might give credit to husband on strength of his possession and use of such property, to protect it against seizure and sale for payment of husband's debts. Burkitt v. Moxley (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 373.

Act of a wife in permitting husband and his partner to use her machinery in business as if it belonged to them did not legally estop her from claiming property as against creditor of firm, who accepted mortgage from partners to secure debt against firm. Id.

A debtor's representations to a creditor that he owned lands which the creditor subsequently purchased at sheriff's sale, and that the title stood in his name, could not estop the divorced wife from asserting her conveyance of her interests in the land to him as part of a property settlement was obtained by fraud, where he was not the wife's agent, especially where the wife had conveyed to him all of her interest in the property, and had therefofore brought suit to have the conveyance and settlement set aside on the ground that they were unjust, unfair, and inequitable. Kuehn v. Kuehn (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 918.

28. Evidence.—In action on notes in which it was sought to foreclose trust deed alleged to have been given to secure notes, evidence held to raise issue whether reality was personal property of defendant's wife. Chalk v. Daggett (Civ. App.) 294 S. W. 1937.

In suit by wife for conversion of machinery, owned by her as widow of her first husband and taken by defendant from possession of her second husband in foreclosing mortgage thereon, evidence held to sustain finding that property belonged to plaintiff's first husband, and that on his death it came into her possession as his widow. Burkitt v. Moore (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 373.

In wife's suit for divorce claiming certain land as her separate property, evidence held to support trial court's finding that husband's claim of trust was not a stale demand, and insufficient to show that the property which the wife sought to establish as her separate property. Rudasill v. Rudasill (App.) 209 S. W. 942.

In action to garnishee husband's bank deposit, wherein wife claimed deposit as her separate property, evidence consisting of husband's testimony held insufficient to show that the deposit was the separate property of the wife, consisting of the proceeds of her own lands. Texas Lumber & Loan Co. v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 811.

Where land is purchased by a husband with his separate funds and deed is taken in name of wife, court may disbelieve uncontradicted testimony of husband that he did not intend to make a gift of the land to his wife, and base its decision on the presumption that a gift was intended. Kennedy v. Kennedy (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 354.

In an action by a husband against his wife to establish his interest in land to which the wife held the legal title, evidence held insufficient to show that the land had been purchased with funds belonging to the husband's separate estate. King v. King (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1093.

29. Management of separate estate of wife.—For decision under article prior to amendment, see Gossard v. Lea. 3 Tex. Civ. App. 3, 21 S. W. 703.

The amendment of this article 4621, by the Married Woman's Act of 1913, introduced a distinct change in law in respect to the control and management of the wife's separate estate. Red River Nat. Bank v. Ferguson. 206 S. W. 923.

In view of Const. 1869, art. 12, §§ 14 and 15, providing for the security of married women in their private property, and declaring that the Legislature shall protect from the homestead, which was in force at the time prior to and before her marriage to defendant, as well as Const. 1875, art. 16, §§ 15, 50-52, relating to separate property of married women and homestead rights, plaintiff, where after marriage she and her husband established a homestead on her separate property, was entitled under this article as amended, and a decree allowing the husband to control the homestead and revenues derived therefrom, was erroneous; for the revenues derived from such property were the separate property of the wife. Rudasill v. Rudasill (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 842.

30. Contracts.—The plea of coverture is personal to a married woman, and where her contract is otherwise valid, and she desires enforcement, the opposite party cannot defeat it on the ground of her coverture. Kollaer v. Puckett (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 914; Crutcher v. Sigar (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 227.

Under arts. 4621, 4622, 4624, as to the separate property of the husband and wife and the husband's liability for the debts of the wife, no general power is given to married women to bind themselves personally or their separate estates by notes or other contracts. Alken v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1017.

Acts 33d Leg. c. 32, amending (arts. 4621, 4622, 4624), relating to rights of married women, does not confer upon a married woman a power she did not have before to contract generally as a feme sole might, but deprives her of power she did have to bind herself by contract made by her alone for benefit of her separate estate. Newell v. Walton (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 371.

A married woman is not liable on a note executed by her, where the consideration was her husband's previous debt to the payee. Johnson v. Holland (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 494.

Where note signed by husband and wife was not given for necessaries for the wife or children, or for the benefit of her separate estate, wife's relation to the transaction was that of a "surety" for her husband, and she would not be liable under laws existing prior to passage of Married Woman's Act of 1913 since a wife is not authorized to purchase for herself as a joint maker or as a surety. Red River Nat. Bank v. Ferguson. 109 Tex. 127, 206 S. W. 923.

Where wife through a trustee purchased property of her husband subject to liens in excess of its value, held that note given by her for judgment, which husband's vendor, him, created liability against the wife, either under the Married Woman's Act of 1913 (arts. 4621, 4622, 4624) or prior statutes, since a married woman, after buying property of her husband subject to liens for sums in excess of its value, cannot make valid contracts binding herself personally to pay such sums on the theory that such contracts are for the benefit of her separate property. Johnson v. Scott (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 671.

Where a married woman agreed to pay a real estate broker a commission for effecting a sale of her separate estate, and the land was sold to a purchaser secured by the broker, the husband joining in the conveyance, the broker might recover, though the husband did not authorize his wife to enter into the contract originally. Williams v. Doan (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 761.

Surviving wife had the right to bind her interest in homestead by deed of trust for purpose of extending time for payment of purchase price, under Rev. St. 1875, art. 2854, in force at such time, though she had remarried at time of execution of deed in trust; the transaction being to preserve her separate estate and being merely a change in the form of the indebtedness, and not the creation of a debt. W. C. Belcher Land Mortgage Co. v. Taylor (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 647.

In view of arts. 4629a-4629d, and notwithstanding this article, wife's contract to purchase wood for wood yard, owned by her, is void, wife having no right to make personal contract in conducting mercantile or trading business such as wood yard, as
HUSBAND AND WIFE  (Title 68)

Art. 4621

HUSBAND AND WIFE  (Title 68)

35. Conveyance of separate estate of wife.—By possession of land by persons, inquiry or whom would disclose they were tenants of married woman, notice that it is her separate property in given purchaser from grantee of such woman's husband. Markley v. Martin (Civ. App.) 264 S. W. 123.

Where husband alone signed trust deed and alone appeared as grantor, that later when correction in description was made a notation thereof was signed by both husband and wife, and separate life agreements made by them, husband did not make the wife a party to trust deed so as to convey her equitable title. Chalk v. Daggett (Civ. App.) 264 S. W. 1057.

The Married Woman's Act of 1913 (arts. 4621, 4622, 4624) leaves the law as it was before in reference to the sale and incumbrance of the separate real estate of a married woman; that is, such a woman, though joined by her husband, cannot make a binding contract for the sale of her separate estate, with the exception that, if the husband refuses to join in conveyance or incumbrance, the wife may procure a court order permitting her to convey or incumber without her husband's joining there in. Jackson v. Carlock (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 578.

Acts 1913, c. 32, § 1 amending this article, applied to a conveyance of the homestead, which was the wife's separate property, though the husband was insane, where the conveyance was for the support and maintenance of both the husband or wife, as, prior to that act, there was no statute or decision vesting any right in the wife to convey without the husband joining, and the statute did not therefore destroy or impair any vested right. Lawson v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 657.

41. Mortgage.—Liability on.—A married woman may mortgage or pledge her separate property to secure a debt incurred by her husband; her power in that regard not being impaired by the Married Woman's Act of 1913 (arts. 4621, 4622, 4624). Bird v. Bird (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 253, 257; Red River Nat. Bank v. Ferguson, 109 Tex. 287, 206 S. W. 925.
3. Title of purchaser.— For decision under prior statute, see Wadkins v. Watson, 86 Tex. 194, 24 S. W. 385, 22 L. R. A. 779. That wife has advanced funds from her separate estate to pay for land does not give her a right which may not be defeated by unauthorized sale of land to bona fide purchaser for value, regardless of fact that her equity was not susceptible of record. Martin v. Granger (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 658.

Where a judgment was rendered against a husband, holding title to wife's land under resulting trust, and another, who as to the debt was a surety only, the surety taking note of husband secured by a trust deed on the wife's land without notice and paying the judgment was a bona fide purchaser as against the wife, but not as to balances which had been given by the husband and mentioned therein as being secured. Chalk v. Daggett (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1057.

Where land is in fact the separate property of a wife, but is prima facie community property, purchasers at an execution sale of such property, if without notice of the facts, take the same title that they would have taken if the property had been community property in fact. Houston Oil Co. v. Choate (Com. App.) 232 S. W. 255.

49. Liability of husband or wife.— A wife, having the right to appoint an agent, is liable for the torts of such agent, committed in the management of her business. Barber v. Keeling (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 139; Whitney Hardware Co. v. McMahon (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 1117.

Act of wife in joining husband in execution of vendor's lien note for purchase price of land which became a part of community estate held not to create a personal liability on part of wife. Akin v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 625.

Petition for breach of a covenant of warranty showing, without anything avoiding the disability, that a defendant was a married woman when the deed was executed, stated a cause of action against her. S. v. Shannon v. Childers (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1030.

Where seller of bank stock induces buyer by fraudulent misrepresentations to buy his stock, and also that of his wife, who participates in the fraud, they are both liable for the whole of the damage sustained by reason of such fraudulent misrepresentations. Barber v. Keeling (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 139.

Plaintiff and defendant being sole heirs at law of a son, and defendant father having, out of his separate estate, paid debts of son and expenses of last sickness and burial, plaintiff wife was liable for one-half of amount so paid by defendant; the payment not being voluntary, but necessary for protection of estate. Lefevre v. Lefevre (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 842.

Where judgment had been obtained against vendee after his default and property was subject to liens in excess of its value, vendee's wife could not, under statutes as they existed prior to the Married Woman's Act of 1913 (arts. 4621, 4622, 4624), in consideration of conveyance to her, bind herself to pay a large consideration to her husband or become personally liable on a contract assuming said judgment. Johnson v. Scott (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 671.

A married woman unlawfully collecting rents on lands in person, and asserting her rights personally to hold and maintain possession, is guilty of a tort, and is liable in damages. Dendinger v. Martin (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1095.

A bail bond was not invalid as to a surety because she was a married woman, where the husband joined with her in the execution thereof. Cockrell v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 1097.

For a tortious wrong a married woman must respond in damages, though the wrong is committed in an effort to perform a contract, whether binding or not on the married woman, so that a married woman owning a rented building would be liable for a tortious wrong in negligently and carelessly removing the roof and not replacing it until after the tenant's property was damaged by rain; such liability being independent of her capacity to contract for repairs, and independent of her liability for an act or omission of agents. Whitney Hardware Co. v. McMahon (Sup.) 231 S. W. 694.

The statutes dealing with the rights of husband and wife leave the wife, as well as the husband, liable for the torts of the wife. Id.

50. Enforcement.— Where judgment for husband and wife is reversed, and cause remanded, with costs to appellant, husband is liable for costs, though suit involved wife's separate estate. Hamleton v. Dignowity (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 957.

In suit to recover for a shortage in land purchased by the acre, in the absence of allegation that the property was the separate property of a defendant, the wife of the other defendant, and allegation showing that any of the proceeds of the sale became her separate estate, and in the absence of proof of such facts, personal judgment for plaintiff purchaser against defendant wife was improper. Gillispie v. Gray (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 730.

Petition by company against married woman and husband held to declare on a bill of exchange drawn by defendant wife, so that it was necessary for it to aver additional cause of action that the purpose of the contract was within the statutory exceptions to the general rule forbidding married women to contract. Schenck v. Foster Building & Realty Co. (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 877.

Plaintiff suing on a married woman's check due and payable on a future day, in legal sense, attached a bill of exchange, was not entitled to instructed verdict on evidence showing a community obligation for the benefit of husband and wife, but not a contract for the wife's separate estate or for necessaries for herself and children. Id.

52. Agency of wife for husband.— Where a principal impliedly authorized his wife as his agent to purchase furniture upon the terms contained in the contract signed by her. It is immaterial that she signs the same in her own name, and the husband is bound thereby. Mosley v. Stratton (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 297.
Art. 4621  HUSBAND AND WIFE

(Title 68)

Where a husband and wife jointly owned and kept a dog, the husband is chargeable with knowledge on the wife's part that the dog was afflicted with rabies. Pettus v. Weyel (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 191.

55. — Authority as agent.—Where a principal authorized his wife as his agent to purchase household furniture on credit, and in doing so it was necessary that she contract with mortgagee to insure the property, the making of such agreement was within the scope of her authority. Mosley v. Stratton (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 397.

56. Agency of husband for wife.—Where husband, acting as agent for wife in sale of her bank stock, fraudulently misrepresented value thereof, the wife, by transferring the stock and accepting the benefits of the sale, ratified the acts of the husband. Barber v. Keeling (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 139.

This article empowers a wife to contract, and hence to appoint an agent; and, being so empowered, she may appoint as such agent her husband. Id.

In an action by a wife to cancel a deed executed by her and her husband, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that the husband acted as agent for the wife in negotiating the sale. Dendinger v. Martin (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1095.

A married woman was incapacitated to make a power of attorney direct to her husband to convey her separate property. Johns v. Wear (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1008.

As respects claim of innocent purchase by a wife of notes given for a worthless "trade extension campaign plan" by a merchant, the knowledge of her husband, the leading member of the company which promoted the plan and which was the payee of the notes, was her knowledge; the notes being transferred to her by him after maturity. Ingco v. Cox (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1054.

57. — Personal liability of husband or wife.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 2851, which provided that "during the marriage the husband shall have the sole management of the wife's property, he was liable for fees for inspection of her sheep, which by Act of April 4, 1883, were to be paid "by the owner or person in charge," though they may have been in the charge of another person. Abbott v. Stanley, 77 Tex. 305, 14 S. W. 62.

Where husband, acting as wife's agent, sells wife's bank stock by fraudulently misrepresenting value thereof, as principal, is liable in damages arising from such fraud. Barber v. Keeling (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 139.

A wife, who was named as grantee in the deed at the request of her husband, in bound by his fraud, causing the conveyance to her. Campbell v. Turley (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 528.

A wife is not chargeable with the fraud of her husband, even where he was guilty of fraud in exchanging community property. Reeves v. Shook (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 129.

Where a broker, when he secured husband and wife's contract to sell a lot, knew that it was then homestead and her separate property, the husband, who, although his wife refused to convey, was ready and willing to make conveyance as far as he could, was not liable in damages to the broker for his wife's failure to carry out his undertaking. Collett v. Harris (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 885.

A husband merely contracting as agent of his wife, the landlord, with her tenant for repair of her building, neither concealing his agency nor agreeing to be bound individually, is not liable to the tenant for injury to his goods through negligent performance of the work. Whitney Hardware Co. v. McMahan (Civ. App.) 291 S. W. 1117.

Art. 4621a. Money or property received as compensation for personal injuries to wife.

Construction and relation to other statutes.—This article does not affect actions filed prior to passage thereof. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Scheppelman (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 167.

Acts 35th Leg. c. 194 (art. 4621), did not imply repeal this article. Ayo v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 979.

In personal injury action where defendant filed no plea challenging plaintiff's right to prosecute the action without joinder of her former husband, a merely collateral attack upon the divorce decree, without showing what testimony was offered in the divorce suit to show plaintiff's residence, will not support an assignment that the evidence shows that the divorce decree is null and void, especially since in any event recovery for wife's injuries is made her separate property by this article. Abilene Steam Laundry Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 571.

Art. 1839, authorizing the husband to sue alone or jointly with the wife for the recovery of her separate property, is not in conflict with or repealed by Acts 35th Leg. c. 194 (art. 4621), giving the woman the sole management, disposition, and control of her separate property, and the husband may therefore sue for personal injury to the wife, though the damages are her separate property under this article. Pullman Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 599.

In damages.—The wife's services are not to be computed as those of a servant, and a verdict based upon the circumstances and conditions of the wife and guided by the sound judgment of the jury should not be disregarded, unless upon evidence of abuse of such discretion. City of Ft. Worth v. Weisler (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 269.

Art. 4622. [2968] Community property; what property shall be under control, etc., of wife; bank deposits.

3. Community property in general.—The beneficial interests of husband and wife in community property are equal, whether the grant or deed be in the name of one of them or jointly. Burnham v. Hardy Oil Co., 198 Tex. 555, 126 S. W. 1159.

Where insurance on family home, the husband's separate property, was paid for by wife from her separate property, and proceeds were used in rebuilding after a fire, held, that this did not convert the property into community property. Rolater v. Rolater (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 331.

Whether public land purchased from the state is community or separate property is determinable by the character of the right by which the title thereto had its inception, so that, where settlers on land, who had had the land surveyed, but had not made the payments of 50 cents an acre under Act Aug. 26, 1856 (Acts 6th Leg. c. 128), assigned the entire interest of the unmarried man, who, after the survey, made the payments and received patents for the land, the land became his separate property, subject to the right of the community for reimbursement for community funds used in completing the payments. Stiles v. Hawkins (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 85.

Where a woman rented land before she married and at the time of the marriage owned the crops growing thereon in her own separate right, the property did not become community property, the expense of growing the crop being paid out of the crop, except that the husband worked a few hours on it. Booker v. Booker (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 675.

Where the community funds are used in payment of separate property of one of the spouses, or where valuable improvements are made on such property out of community funds of the spouses, the separate estate of such spouse must account to the community estate. Budaill v. Budaill (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 843.

Plaintiffs suing as heirs of their mother, claiming she had title by limitations, had the burden of showing that her possession was adverse within the statute, also that it had continued as long as 10 years before the mother died, since possession of father after her death could not help plaintiffs, for, if adverse possession commenced by a husband and his wife has not continued long enough before the death of one occurs, and if the survivor continues such possession until the statutory title is complete, the title does not vest in the community estate, but vests in the survivor, and becomes part of his separate estate. Jope v. Patton (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 987.

Where a part of the consideration for mother's deed to married son was services rendered mother by son prior to his marriage, pursuant to mother's contract to convey the land in consideration for such services, the land was the son's separate property, though community funds may subsequently have been used to pay for it. Bishop v. Williams (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 512.

Except where the deed to property acquired by husband and wife expressly declares the status of the property as community or separate property, whether it is conveyed by both of them jointly, the status is controlled by the intention of the parties at the time of taking title, which may be ascertained by parol evidence of circumstances, contemporaneous declarations, and other relevant evidence. Cummins v. Cummins (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 903.

4. Where the legal title to real estate was in a wife as her separate property, while the land was prima facie community property, the title vested in the husband as a member of the community was equitable only. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Choate (Com. App.) 232 S. W. 285.

5. Right of second community.—If land conveyed to second wife was community property of second marriage, a divorced first wife claiming in right of son after his death was owner of undivided half interest, subject to the second wife's right to use property as her homestead. Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 202.

Where a husband, while second wife was living, purchased land for cash and notes, under a presumption that payments were made from community funds, and that deferred payments should be made from same source, wife was vested with community interest in property which was not divested, nor a trust ingrafted, by her death and her husband's remarriage and completion of payments by husband and new wife. Guest v. Guest (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 547.

Where community of which third wife was member made deferred payments on land purchased by community of husband and second wife, it was entitled to be subrogated to rights of vendor liensholder against said land, whose claim it satisfied, or husband's heirs in partition could seek reimbursement equal to their inherited interest in funds expended in discharging debts against common property. Id.

That land unconditionally conveyed to a man during his first marriage was paid for during his second and third marriages does not disturb the title of the first community; but, subject to reimbursement of the second and third communities for their funds used, the children of the first marriage are entitled to their mother's interest, and those equally in the remainder with the children of the other marriages. Hughes v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 946.

6. Life insurance.—The cash surrender value of a life policy upon the life of the husband in which wife is beneficiary is not community property, and a one-half interest therein, does not pass to the wife under a decree of divorce awarding her a half interest in the community property. Whiteselle v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 575, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Whiteselle, 188 S. W. 22.

The use of community funds in payment of premiums for insurance upon the life of one spouse in favor of the other does not, in the absence of fraud, create in the community the right to reimbursement for the funds so used. Id.

Payment of the balance of the purchase money on a tract of land purchased by a husband out of insurance money on his life by his surviving wife to whom the deed ran did not destroy the community character of the property and stamp it as separate estate. Stoppelberg v. Stoppelberg (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 587.

7. Interest, increase, rents, profits and products of separate property.—Under Married Woman's Act, amending arts. 4621, 4622, 4624, and under article 4627, unamended, rents from the wife's separate estate continued to remain community property. Texas Lumber & Loan Co. v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 811; Armstrong v. Turbeville (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 1101.

Money received as a prize on a lottery ticket purchased with the separate money of the wife is community property. Dixon v. Sanderson, 72 Tex. 359, 10 S. W. 535, 12 Am. St. Rep. 801.

Where wife bought ginning machinery, paid for it out of her separate estate, sold one-half interest to a son, and then repurchased the half which he had sold to her by operating on the mill, the half interest which she repurchased became a part of the community estate between her and her husband. Miller v. Fenton (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 631.

Under the Married Woman's Act, amending Rev. Stat. arts. 4621, 4622, 4624, and under art. 4627, unamended, rents from a wife's separate real estate, though community property, are not subject to community debts, despite Acts 35th Leg. c. 194, amending art. 4621, providing rents from wife's separate lands shall be her separate property. Texas Lumber & Loan Co. v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 811.

If the wife borrow money for the benefit of her separate property, intending to repay it out of her separate estate, and both she and her husband intend that the borrowed fund shall not be community property, but shall belong separately to the wife, such will be its status, though the husband has signed the note and pledged his separate property to secure it, if the loan and an agreement between husband and wife that money borrowed on notes signed by them should be used in making improvements on her separate estate, and that the loan should be paid out of her separate estate, is sufficient to show an agreement that such money was to belong separately to the wife, and was not to be community property. Armstrong v. Turbeville (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 1101.

Where a husband prepared rented land for cotton crop, and, after his death before planting, the wife procured the seed, planted the land, cultivated and raised the crop, the crop is not a part of the community property, and hence a bank in which the proceeds of the crop were deposited by the wife cannot apply same to discharge of a community note. State Bank of Commerce v. Cox (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 82.

Prior to the amendment of art. 4621 (Acts 35th Leg. c. 194), which defines separate property, rents and revenues derived from separate property became part of the community estate, and not the separate estate. Winters v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 219.

Property paid for in 1901 out of the rents and revenues of the separate property of wife in part, and joint earnings of herself and husband, and in part by her children by a prior marriage, constituted community. Davis v. Campbell-Root Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 167.

8. Improvements on separate property.—Where improvements on a wife's land were made with community funds of husband and wife, after the husband's death a daughter-in-law, widow of a son, was entitled to her share in such improvements as against her mother-in-law, under the rule that the separate estate of one member of the community must reimburse the community for any proper improvements made in good faith on separate estate with community funds; but, since no such claim should be permitted to affect or jeopardize the title to the land, a lien for such funds cannot be fixed on it. Stoppelberg v. Stoppelberg (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 587.

Where improvements placed on wife's land occupied by husband and wife were paid for out of community funds, husband was entitled to a one-half interest therein. Barber v. Barber (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 866.

16. Evidence.—In suit to establish resulting trust, evidence held insufficient to show that one-half undivided part of land belonged to plaintiffs by reason of their father's using, in purchase of land, funds belonging to community estate of himself and first wife, plaintiffs' mother. Blumenthal v. Nusbaum (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 275.

Evidence held to establish that funds and securities held by a third person in trust for plaintiff and defendant was all community property. Lefevre v. Lefevre (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 843.

Where a bank which held community notes executed by the deceased husband, applied after his death to payment of notes a deposit standing in the name of the widow, evidence held insufficient to show that the sum of $60 which was the first item in the widow's passbook was part of a deposit standing in the name of the husband at the time of his death; hence direction of a verdict for the widow was not improper on the ground that such sum was community property. State Bank of Commerce v. Cox (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 82.

The mere fact that land conveyed to wife was paid for out of community property was not in itself sufficient to warrant conclusion that the land became community and not wife's separate property. Zellner v. Samuelson (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 587.

In suit against a widow to recover an undivided fourth interest in land acquired by her husband during their marriage, evidence showed that the land was purchased at the time of acquiring title intended to provide for community ownership of the land. Cummins v. Cummins (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 903.

Subsequent transactions relative to property acquired by husband and wife cannot affect the status of the title as community, or vested in one or other party, as such question must be determined as of time when deed was taken; but they may tend to show what the intention of the parties was with reference to the matter at time of taking deed. Id.

17. Management, conveyances, incumbrances or gifts of community property before separation of parties.—One who assumes, by virtue of a power of attorney, to convey land deeded to his wife during the marriage, esteems himself and his heirs to claim the land, since, though the power of attorney is of no effect, the land is, community property, which during the marriage may be conveyed by the husband alone. Dooley v. Montgomery, 72 Tex. 429, 10 S. W. 451, 2 L. R. A. 715.

The husband being by statute the managing head of the family appointed to make conveyances of community property, a deed by the wife alone is void, unless the facts exist which create an exception in extreme cases, and where a married woman conveyed her interest in community land, her deed, being a nullity, could not be vitalized by her husband's subsequent acquiescence, but could only be ratified by an act by him having essential elements of a conveyance. Lancaster v. Janison (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1151.

A husband may make to his wife a gift of his interest in the community property then in esse, when it can be done without injury to the rights of others. Id.

While the community status of rents collected from wife's separate property could not be affected by the mere agreement between the husband and wife, made when he conveyed the property to her, that the rents that should thereafter accrue from the premises should be her separate property, yet if such agreement was thereafter observed and actually carried out by delivering the rents into her possession, such collected rents became her separate property, unless the gift was in fraud of creditors' rights. Id.

In absence of a showing that conveyance of land to wife for payments out of community property was in fraud of rights of existing creditors, or that husband for any reason could not by gift to wife make the land a part of her separate estate, the land on wife's death is a part of her separate estate and not community property. Zellner v. Samuelson (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 587.

The death of either husband or wife does not affect the priority of a valid mortgage lien on their community property, or postpone it to subsequent unsecured debts, said mortgage lien being a valid lien on such property, and not destroyed by death or administration. Fernandez v. Holland-Texas Hypo & Peak Bank of Amsterdam, Holland (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1004.

Where a wife knew of the existence, on land which was the community property of her husband, of an expensive pumping plant and pipe line, and that third persons were exercising control over the plant, and that her husband had recognized their rights, she could not claim that she had no notice of the claim of such persons under a sale to them by the husband of his interest therein, as being personal property, and not realty, as attached to the land. Markley v. Christen (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 156.

That the husband alone signed chattel mortgage on household goods did not make the mortgage void on the ground that it was a mortgage of the community property, since under this article, the husband alone may dispose of the community property. Mason v. Green (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 829.

A deed from a man in which his wife did not join conveyed to the grantee all the community interest in the land except the homestead claim. Fidelity Lumber Co. v. Adams (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1187.

24. Abandonment or separation or dissolution of community as affecting title of parties.—Where husband, when he abandoned wife, sold community personality, and appropriated proceeds as his share of community estate, delivering to wife community realty as her share, wife had equitable title to reality or exclusion of Interest by husband. McCormick v. McCormick (App.) 188 S. W. 1039.

Where a husband abandoned his wife, leaving her in possession of the community lands, which possession she retained for 16 years, the wife could not acquire title to the lands by limitations. Harlin v. Harlin (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1193.

While a husband abandoned his wife, leaving her in possession of about 400 acres of land, held that, under Rev. St. 1911, art. 4622, which was in force at the time of abandonment, which continued until the death of the wife some 16 years thereafter.

the wife did not acquire title to the entire parcel of land on the theory there was a re-linked estate by the husband of his interest therein. 115

Under Constitution of the Republic of Texas, Bill of Rights, §§ 6, 7, forfeiture of a wife’s interest in the community property for her adultery could not have resulted from a mere divorce proceeding, but could be decreed only in a direct proceeding for the purpose of obtaining full opportunity for sure, with full hearing. Wood­

If, in an agreement of separation and settlement of property rights between a man and his wife, who thereafter obtained a divorce, the husband obtained more than his just share of the community property, he held the excess over and above his just share in trust for the benefit of the wife because of the fiduciary or trust relation presumed by law to exist between husband and wife, and equity will impress a trust thereon, especially where the wife’s interest was at least three times as much as the husband agreed to pay therefor. Kuehn v. Kuehn (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 918.

25. — Abandonment or separation as affecting right to manage, incumber or convey.—Where a husband abandoned his wife and she and children of the marriage are in necessitous circumstances, she may, without the husband’s joinder or consent, convey community property passing good title. Hadnot v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 359.

The husband may make a valid sale of community property constituting the home­stake, where the wife voluntarily abandons and is living in abandonment of her husband at the time of such sale. Murphy v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1069.

There can be no estoppel by reason of representations of the wife as to her power to sell community property and convey by her deed alone, based on her husband’s al­leged abandonment of the representations at the time of the sale, the husband is in possession of the land and fulfilling his duties as custodian thereof. Lasater v. Jamison (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1151.

That a husband abandoned his wife and their minor children, leaving her in possession of their personal property and land, but otherwise unprovided for, and remained away until after his wife’s death about 15 years later, and after such abandonment contributed nothing to their support and claimed no interest in their earnings, authorized a finding that the wife had power to control and dispose of the property be­longing to the community estate in her possession when she was abandoned, or which she afterwards acquired possession of. Hardin v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1108.

29. Actions for community property.—A woman who married a second time after void divorce proceedings against her first husband cannot sue her first husband for partition of community real estate, since maintenance of such action is dependent upon a valid divorce. Givens v. Givens (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 877.

Where a trunk containing baggage of the husband and wife, most of which was community property, and part of which belonged to the wife, was lost by the innkeeper, both husband and wife could sue to recover the damage in the same suit. Zeiger v. Woodson (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 164.

In trespass to try title by divorced first wife of decedent, claiming through her son, against second wife, where by judgment court did not attempt to reform deed to second wife, it was not necessary that grantors should have been made parties. John­son v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 202.

Suit on a policy of insurance issued to a wife covering household goods constituting the community property of the wife and her husband was properly brought in the name of the husband. Allemania Fire Ins. Co. v. Angier (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 450.

Under this article, and art. 4625, it was proper to refuse, in a suit to quiet title, where plaintiff claimed that property purchased by his wife was community property, an instruction that there was a presumption that property was purchased with community funds, and that the burden of proof of satisfaction of the jury was on defendant. Moss v. Ingram (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 258.

Wife is not a necessary party to an action against husband to try the title to, affect an interest in, or foreclose a lien on community real estate, and in determining whether a homestead interest alone renders her a necessary party to an action affecting property impressed with the homestead exemption, the test is whether the plea of homestead would in itself be a defense to the suit. Cooley v. Miller (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 1055.

30. — Right of action by abandoned wife against husband.—That defendant hus­band without just cause abandoned plaintiff wife and infant child, taking with him not only the money belonging to the community estate, but property belonging to the wife, authorized suit not only for separate property, but for interest in community estate. Coss v. Coss (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 127.

37. Descent and distribution.—On death of a husband and probate of his will, title to property in his wife subsequently to divorce or to his second wife, to whom he devised, subject to rights of creditors. McDaniel v. Lauchner (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 221.

Despite the declaration of this article, that any funds on deposit in any bank, whether the name of the husband or wife, shall be presumed to be the separate property of the party in whose name they stand, at the death of a husband funds on deposit in his name will be deemed community estate; the purpose of the statute enacted in 1913 (Acts 33d Leg. c. 52 [arts. 4621, 1622, 4623]) being primarily for the protection of married women and incidentally married men, by preventing the honoring of checks on their deposits by the opposite spouse, and not intended to change the general pre­sumption on death. Winters v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 219.
Art. 4623. [2969] Presumption as to community property.

Applicability in general.—Despite art. 4622, declaring that any funds on deposit in any bank, whether in the name of the husband or wife, shall be presumed to be the separate property of the party in whose name they stand, at the death of a husband funds on deposit in his name will be deemed community estate; the purpose of the statute enacted in 1913 (Acts 33d Leg. c. 32 [arts. 4621, 4622, 4624]) being primarily for the protection of married women, and incidentally married men, by preventing the honoring of a check by the opposite spouse, and not intended to change the general presumption on death. Winters v. Duncan ( Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 219.

In an action for divorce and division of community property, it was only necessary for plaintiff, wife, to allege that such property was acquired by joint labor during their marriage to make out her case as to its character under this article, and husband's general denial and plea of limitations was insufficient to permit a defense that they lived part of the time in a state where the wife had no shares in such property, and he should have pleaded such facts and pleaded and proved the laws of such state to warrant the same. Foust v. Robbit (Civ. App.) 233 S. W. 478.

Under art. 4622, declaring that all property acquired by either husband or wife during marriage, except that which is the separate property of either, shall be deemed common property, and this article, it was proper to refuse, in a suit to quiet title, where the presumption was to the contrary, the defense of domicile. Brown v. Lindsey (Civ. App.) 235 S. W. 128.

Presumptions and burden of proof.—Where property is acquired by husband or wife during the marriage relation, there is a presumption that it is community property. Cummins v. Cummins (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 989; Hughes v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 946; Houston Oil Co. v. Choate (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 418; Winters v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 219.

Evidence that the property claimed as a deceased wife's separate property was purchased during marriage, and possessed by the husband at her death; that the wife, at marriage, had property invested in another state, which was subsequently reinvested in Texas, mostly in a homestead, recognized as common property; and that part of the property claimed was made by the husband with her money in such a way as to make it common property,—is insufficient to show that the property was the wife's separate estate, though she attempted to dispose of it as such by will. Peet v. Commerce & E. S. Ry. Co., 70 Tex. 522, 8 S. W. 265.

N. came to Texas some time after 1827, and there married. In 1835 he served in the army of Texas, and became, under the ordinance of December 5, 1825, § 10, entitled to a bounty warrant for 320 acres of land. He died either in the year 1838, 1839, or 1840, leaving a child by said marriage, and it did not appear that his wife survived him. Held that the presumption is that the right to the bounty is the wife's community property, and the burden is on one who claims that it was the separate estate of N. to show that the marriage took place after the services were rendered. Nixon v. Wichita Land & Cattle Co., 84 Tex. 468, 19 S. W. 506.

In absence of evidence, held, that there was no presumption that payments on indebtedness on husband's separate property made during the existence of the marriage relation were made from community funds. Rolater v. Rolater (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 391.

Presumption that property acquired during marriage is community property may as between parties, their blood privies, and purchasers without value or with notice, be rebutted by parol evidence, but not as to bona fide purchasers for value without notice. Crawford v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 375.

In rights of heirs to land acquired by husband and wife during marriage, and conveyed by wife after death of husband, held undisputed facts in evidence were sufficient to rebut presumption that lot was community property.

Certain reality having been acquired by a husband long subsequent to his divorce from his wife, there is no presumption it belonged to their community estate. McDaniel v. Lauchner (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 223.

Where a husband, while second wife was living, purchased land for cash and notes, under presumption cash payments were made from community funds, and that deductions paid should be made from same source, wife was vested with community interest in property which was not divested, nor a trust ingrafted, by her death and her husband's remarriage and completion of payments by husband and new wife. Guest v. Guest (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 547.

Where plaintiffs sought an interest in land as community property of their mother and stepfather, the burden is upon them to show the community interest and its extent, where being acquired by deed after the death of the wife it was presumptively the separate property of the husband, and plaintiffs asserting an equitable title were bound to show that purchaser had prior notice of their equity; mere knowledge of the stepfather's marriage to plaintiffs' mother being insufficient. Le Blanc v. Jackson (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 687.

Property purchased from a husband's separate estate is presumed to have been given to the wife so as to become her separate estate where the deed was taken in her name, but the presumption may be rebutted. Dean v. Dean (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 565.

The presumption is that land deeded to a married man was community property; so one claiming it was the wife's has the burden of showing it. Hughes v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 946.
Property conveyed to the wife, without any recital showing it to be her separate property, is presumed to be a part of the community, which presumption becomes conclusive as to purchasers from the husband for a valuable consideration without notice, and cannot be affected by parol evidence showing the property to be the wife's separate property. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Choate (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 118.

In the absence of the wife or the husband, if in the absence of the contrary, is presumed to be community property, even though the separate property of one of the spouses is mortgaged to secure the loan. Armstrong v. Turbeville (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 1101.

The mere fact that property presumed the community estate of a decedent might have been his separate estate is no ground for attacking a finding that the property was community estate; those asserting that it was his separate estate having the burden of proving the same. Winters v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 219.

There is a presumption that land bought by a husband during the existence of the marital relation between himself and his wife was community property, and the burden was on the wife, sued, after her husband's death, for partition, to establish that it was her separate estate even though the deed was executed to her. Stoppleberg v. Stoppelberg (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 587.

Ordinarily, in the absence of contrary intention, showing that part of the initial payment for property purchased by husband and wife constituted the separate property of the husband would be sufficient to rebut the presumption the property became community property, and would require a holding that the husband owned a separate interest in the proportion his separate funds bore to the total price, whether title was taken in the name of husband, or wife, or jointly. Cummins v. Cummins (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 906.

Art. 4624. What property subject to debts of wife; husband must join in certain contracts.

Chisolm Gossard v. Lea, 3 Civ. App. 21 S. W. 703.

Construction in general.—Married Woman's Act of 1913 (arts. 4621, 4622, 4624), authorizing the wife, by implication, to become joint maker or surety of another when joined by her husband, confers upon the wife powers with which she was not theretofore invested, and the maxim 'Expressio unius est exclusio alterius' has marked application. Red River Nat. Bank v. Ferguson, 109 Tex. 287, 206 S. W. 922.

Authority to contract in general.—No general power is given to married women to bind themselves personally or their separate estates by notes or other contracts. Aiken v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 1017.

Act of 1909, Art. 33A, relating to rights of married women, does not confer upon a married woman a power she did not have before to contract generally as a feme sole might, but deprives her of power she did have to bind herself by contract made by her alone for benefit of her separate estate. Sewell v. Walton (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 3751.

Where note signed by husband and wife was not given for necessary for the wife or children, or for the benefit of her separate estate, wife's relation to the transaction was that of a "surety" for her husband, and she would not be liable under laws existing prior to passage of Married Woman's Act of 1913 (arts. 4621, 4622, 4624). Red River Nat. Bank v. Ferguson, 109 Tex. 287, 206 S. W. 923.

The power of the wife to mortgage her separate property for the debts of her husband confers upon the Married Woman's Act of 1913 (arts. 4621, 4622, 4624). Id. Under Married Woman's Act of 1913 (arts. 4621, 4622, 4624) a wife is not authorized to join in the husband's obligations either as a joint maker or as a surety. Id. Rev. St. 1911, art. 4624, which, prior to amendment, authorized married woman to incur indebtedness for benefit of her separate property, did not authorize wife to make herself personally liable on contracts assuming the payment of purchase money due on property bought by her. Mills v. Frost Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 698.

Rev. St. 1911, art. 4624, which, prior to amendment, authorized married woman to contract debts for benefit of separate property, conferred no authority to borrow money for investment purposes. Id.

A married woman may mortgage or pledge her separate property to secure a debt incurred by her husband; her power in that regard not being impaired by the Married Woman's Act of 1913 (arts. 4621, 4622, 4624). Bird v. Bird (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 253, 257.

In view of arts. 4624a-4624d, and notwithstanding art. 4621 and the Married Woman's Act of 1913, wife's contract to purchase wood for yard, owned by her, is void; wife having no right to make personal contract in conducting mercantile or trading business such as wood yard, as distinguished from contract of conveyance or disposition of her separate property. Dickinson v. Griffith Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 341.

Under Acts 33d Leg. (1913) c. 32, (arts. 4621, 4622, 4624), a bail bond was not invalid as to a surety because she was a married woman, where the husband joined with her in the execution thereof. Cockrell v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 1097.

Under Acts 33d Leg. (1913) c. 32 (arts. 4621, 4622, 4624), even if a married woman had made a contract in writing, properly acknowledged, to convey a lot which was her separate property and the homestead of herself and husband, she could not be bound thereby, for she could repudiate and refuse to comply with it up to the time she declared to the officer taking her acknowledgment that she did not wish to retract, as she could not legally so do by law being in such case a wife without her husband's consent. Collett v. Harris (Civil App.) 229 S. W. 885.

Joinder of husband.—Under arts. 4621, 4622, 4624, as amended by Acts 33d Leg.
c. 52 (arts. 4621, 4622, 4624), held that, where a married woman agreed to pay a real estate broker a commission for effecting a sale of her separate estate, and the land was sold to a purchaser secured by the broker, the husband joining in the conveyance, the broker might recover, though the husband did not authorize his wife to enter into the contract originally. Williams v. Doan (Civil App.) 209 S. W. 761.

A note or other document executed by the wife not joined by the husband, is a nullity.
Schenck v. Foster Building & Realty Co. (Civil App.) 215 S. W. 677.

Where wife purchased land as her separate property with husband's consent and approval, husband's failure to join wife in executing purchase-money notes secured by vendor's lien did not affect validity of lien. Baxter v. Baxter (Civil App.) 225 S. W. 204.

Personal liability of husband or wife.—Wife would not be personally liable upon notes executed by her in part payment for land conveyed to her, her husband signing the notes pro forma. Benjamin v. Youngblood (Civil App.) 207 S. W. 687.

Where judgment had been obtained against a vendee after his default and property was sold to the county, vendee's wife could not, under statutes as they existed prior to the Married Woman's Act of 1913 (arts. 4621, 4622, 4624), in consideration of conveyance to her, bind herself to pay a large consideration to her husband or become personally liable on a contract assuming said judgment. Johnson
v. Scoffles (Civil App.) 208 S. W. 671.

The mere fact that a wife got the money on her note did not render her personally liable on the note, although it was executed for indebtedness incurred before the authority given by Rev. St. 1911, art. 4624, to a wife to contract debts, for benefit of her separate property. Mills v. Frost Nat. Bank (Civil App.) 208 S. W. 698.

Wife could not be made personally liable on note signed by wife and husband in absence of showing that the money borrowed and deed of trust executed to secure note were for the benefit of her separate estate or for necessaries such as to subject her property. Fernandez v. Holland-Texas Hypotheek Bank of Amsterdam, Holland (Civil App.)
221 S. W. 1004.

A wife is not personally liable on a note given by her for land bought by her, nor is the husband liable on note signed by both parties, vendee's wife could not, under statutes as they existed prior to the Married Woman's Act of 1913, amend the note for property that was not her separate property. Mills v. Frost Nat. Bank (Civil App.) 208 S. W. 698.

Avoidance of contract by other party.—Where husband did not join wife in execution of purchase-money notes on her purchase of land as her separate property, wife, after electing on death of husband to hold the property, could not defect lien by plea of coverture, since the husband's failure to join in execution of notes did not render them void, but at most voidable. Baxter v. Baxter (Civil App.) 225 S. W. 204.

Necessaries.—A husband is not liable for necessaries furnished the wife after she has abandoned him without fault on his part. Where a purchaser, executors, or personal representatives, furnished the purchaser with a separate property lien on a note, is liable for necessaries furnished to the purchaser. salsa v. First Nat. Bank of Stephenville (Civil App.)
121 S. W. 1052.

Attorney cannot recover from married woman for services in prosecuting a divorce suit, nor instituted by her in good faith and with probable cause; such services not being a necessaries. Tandy v. Bradley (Civil App.) 226 S. W. 1079.

Debts or liabilities charged on separate estate.—Wife by merely executing jointly with her husband note does not bind herself personally or her separate property notwithstanding Married Woman's Act of 1913, amending this article. First State Bank of Tomball v. Tatham (Civil App.) 226 S. W. 883.

In determining liability to execution of Texas lands of a married woman for a debt contracted outside the state, the laws of the state where debt was contracted govern.
Walker v. Goetz (Civil App.) 218 S. W. 569.

A wife's property, consisting of part of the notes received by her from the husband in settlement of the sale of their community land, having been delivered to the wife by the husband as a condition of her joining in the deed, were not liable for the debts of the husband.
Barnhart v. Agnew (Civil App.) 222 S. W. 188, reversing Judgment (Civil App.) 190 S. W. 1146.

A provision of a statute or municipal charter making married women personally liable for debts to their homestead property for street improvements is not inconsistent with this article. Spears v. City of San Antonio, 119 Tex. 616, 225 S. W. 168, affirming Judgment (Civil App.) City of San Antonio v. Spears, 206 S. W. 705.

Art. 4627. [2973] Community property liable for debts.

Community debts—What are.—The same binding effect is given to a judgment rendered against the husband alone on a community debt when suit is brought before as when brought after the death of the wife, with respect to the liability of the community property to satisfy the same. Stone v. Jackson, 109 Tex. 385, 110 S. W. 962.

Community and separate debts—Property liable for.—Under the Married Woman's Act amending Rev. St. arts. 4621, 4622, 4624, and under art. 4627, unamended, rents from a wife's separate real estate, though community property, are not subject to community debts, despite Acts 55th Leg. c. 184, amending art. 4621, providing rents from wife's separate lands shall be her separate property. Texas Lumber & Loan Co. v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 260 S. W. 811.

Community property is the primary fund for the payment of community debts, and, where there exists sufficient community property to pay community debts, no resort can be had to the separate property of a deceased husband for the purpose of paying such debts. Clark v. First Nat. Bank (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 677.

The heirs of the wife on her death are entitled, not to one-half of the community property then existing, but to one-half of what may remain after the discharge of the debts contracted by either husband or wife during marriage for which such property is liable. Stone v. Jackson, 109 Tex. 385, 210 S. W. 963.

Community funds in name of wife may be impounded by garnishment in aid of judgment against husband. Szanto v. First State Bank of Mt. Calm (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 971.

Rights and remedies of creditors and purchasers.—Where a husband dies leaving a second wife and an unsettled estate held by him in community with the first wife, the creditors of such estate are entitled to the whole of the first wife's share to the extent of their debts in preference to the heirs of the first marriage. Stayton, C. J., dissenting. Hoffman v. Hoffman, 79 Tex. 159, 15 S. W. 471.

It is not obligatory on a debtor to interpose limitations to defeat a debt he still owes, and the omission of a surviving husband to plead limitations against a community obligation cannot be treated as actuated by a fraudulent intent against the heirs of the wife, when such omission is just as prejudicial to his interests in and to community property as to that of the wife's heirs. Stone v. Jackson, 109 Tex. 385, 210 S. W. 963.

Since, under Act March 13, 1848 (Acts 2d Leg. c. 79; 3 Gammel's Laws, p. 77), and Act Aug. 26, 1856 (Acts 5th Leg. c. 125; 4 Gammel's Laws, p. 469), community property was expressly made liable for the debts of both husband and wife contracted during marriage, purchasers of such property at an execution sale in 1873 acquired all the right, title, and interest that the community or either member of it had therein, as no other holding would fully effectuate the clear purpose of the statutes. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Choate (Com. App.) 232 S. W. 285.

Art. 4628. [2974] Female under 21 emancipated by marriage.

See Thompson v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 175.

Art. 4629a. May apply to district court to be feme sole for mercantile and trading purposes, how.

Contracts by wife.—In view of arts. 4629a-4629d, and notwithstanding art. 4621, and the Married Woman's Act of 1913, wife's contract to purchase wood for wood yard, owned by her, is void, wife having no right to make personal contract in conducting mercantile or trading business such as wood yard, as distinguished from contract of conveyance or disposition of her separate property. Dickinson v. Griffith Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 341.

DECISIONS IN GENERAL

Right to possession and disposition of body of deceased spouse.—See Foster v. Foster (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 216; Curlin v. Curlin (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 602.

Support of spouse.—At common law no duty rested upon the wife to support the husband. King v. King (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1095.

DIVORCE

Art. 4630. Marriage may be annulled, when.

Art. 4631. Divorce may be granted in what cases.

Art. 4632. Plaintiff must be resident in state and county.

Art. 4633. Husband and wife may testify.

Art. 4634. Division of property.

Art. 4635. Condonation, connivance and collusion.

Art. 4636. Debts and alienations after suit.

Art. 4637. Inventory and appraisement, etc.

Art. 4639. Temporary orders, etc.

Art. 4640. Allimony.

1270
Article 4630. [2976] Marriage may be annulled, when.

Grounds.—Where consent of a party to a marriage is gained by conspiracy, fraud, and misrepresentation of material facts, the marriage can be annulled. Thompson v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 175.

Art. 4631. [2977] Divorce may be granted in what cases.

1. In general.—Final decree of divorce rendered by California court after the husband's death constituted a valid divorce. Kinney v. Tri-State Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1180.

Parties cannot be divorced for incompatibility, or because they live unhappily together, or merely because they possess unruly tempers, or for marital wranglings. McNabb v. McNabb (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 129.

2. Cruelty—Acts constituting.—Where defendant husband would leave home for considerable period without informing his wife of whereabout, and on returning would abuse her and threaten to take her life, held, that his treatment was such as would warrant a divorce. Smith v. Smith (Civ. App.) 300 S. W. 1129.

The general rule is, in absence of physical violence or fear of it, that conduct complained of must be such as is reasonably calculated to produce degree of mental distress that will impair health of complaining spouse or render living together insupportable. Clauenh v. Clauenh (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 930.

Drunkenness alone is not a ground for divorce as cruelty. Id.

"Studied vexatious and deliberate insults," heaped upon defendant husband by plaintiff was not enough to warrant decree for defendant was not entitled to divorce, unless cruelty of wife was intended to injure him. McNabb v. McNabb (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 123.

In an action for divorce upon grounds of cruel treatment, it is not necessary to show actual violence committed; "cruelty," as used in statute, being broad enough to include outrages upon the feelings in causing mental pain and anguish, where the conduct has been studied, willful, and deliberate. Id.

If ill treatment is of such a nature as to render their living together insupportable, physical violence need not always be shown, and outrages or wrongs committed alone as will produce a degree of mental distress, threatening to impair the health of the injured party, is sufficient, so that where a husband was unsanitary in his person, cursed the wife not only in privacy, but in the presence of others, neglected her and refused to furnish her and their children proper clothing, but allowed the wife to work to help support herself and the children while earning good wages himself, neglected her in her sickness, etc., and such acts are not occasional, but persistent, the wife was entitled to a divorce. Erwin v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 834.

4. — Provocation.—Where a wife provokes her husband to cruel treatment, she cannot be granted a divorce on account of such treatment. Smith v. Smith (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1122.

5. — Condonation.—"Condonation" is the forgiveness of an antecedent matrimonial offense on condition that it shall not be repeated, and that the offending spouse shall thereafter treat the injured party with conjugal kindness. It is not absolute, but is based upon the repentance of the guilty party, and conditioned upon nonrepetition of the offense and future kind treatment; a violation of it in other respect reviving the original offense. Parker v. Parker (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 493.

Where wife lived with husband after his last assault upon and cruel treatment of her only under some kind of hallucination or abnormal condition that rendered her irresponsible for her own conduct, she could not condone his treatment, and is entitled to divorce therefor. Mahurin v. Mahurin (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 558.

6. — Recrimination.—While recrimination need not be of equal degree, it must be of the same general character, and such as is reasonably calculated to have provoked the misconduct of defendant. McNabb v. McNabb (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 129.

Although recrimination was not pleaded, defendant wife had right to have issue submitted, where raised by the evidence, since even where there is no answer, it is the duty of the court to hear any testimony which shows that plaintiff is not entitled to a divorce. Id.

Accusations, recrimination, and conduct of wife towards husband must be considered as against her claim for divorce for cruelty. Tanton v. Tanton (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 429.

Divorces sought for on ground of cruelty will not be granted where the cruelty approaches mutuality and both have indulged therein. Wiedner v. Wiedner (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 448.

8. — Evidence.—Evidence held insufficient to support a decree of divorce for "cruel treatment," such as to render living together insupportable. Bolt v. Bolt (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 309.

Clear and convincing proof should be demanded before the marriage relation is dissolved. Rowden v. Rowden (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 392.
Art. 4632. Plaintiff must be resident; military service; suit not to be heard within 30 days; remarriage; divorce where marriage was to escape penalties for seduction; additional ground for divorce.—No suit for divorce from the bonds of matrimony shall be maintained in the courts of this State unless the petitioner for such divorce shall at the time of exhibiting his or her petition, be an actual bona fide inhabitant of the State for a period of twelve months, and shall have resided in the county where the suit is filed six months next preceding the filing of the suit; provided that a citizen of this State who is, or has been absent from this State for more than six months in the military or naval service of this State or of the United States shall be entitled to sue for a divorce in this State and in the county in which he or she had his or her residence before going into such service; provided that such suit shall not be heard or divorce granted; before the expiration of thirty days after the same is filed; and provided further, that neither party to a divorce suit, wherein a divorce is granted upon the ground of cruel treatment, shall marry any other person for a period of twelve months next after such divorce is granted, but the parties so divorced may marry each other at any time, upon obtaining a license as provided in Article 4610; provided that where a man marries the woman whom he seduces to escape penalties of the law punishing for seduction, the man shall not be entitled to a divorce for any cause within three years after such marriage, provided that this Act shall not apply to any case where either the husband or wife is insane.

Provided further that in addition to the grounds for divorce now provided by statute, that where any husband and wife have lived apart without cohabitation for as long as ten years, the same shall be sufficient grounds for divorce. [Act May 27, 1873, p. 117. P. D. 3459. Acts 1913, p. 183, § 1; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 82, § 1.]

took effect 90 days after March 12, 1911, date of adjournment.

Residence.—Plaintiff does not comply with this article, by acquiring residence in county where divorce suit is filed 6 months preceding filing, but actually residing there only 2½ months, though she had bona fide intention during all that time to make county her home. Hunt v. Hunt (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 987.

This article was not complied with where plaintiff had actually resided in county where suit filed 6 months next preceding filing of amended petition for divorce, but not 6 months next preceding original institution of suit. Id.

In suit to obtain divorce and recover separate property and community interest, objection that allegations failed to show that plaintiff wife had resided in county, and had been actual bona fide inhabitant of the state for 12 months, might be good as far as suit for divorce is concerned, but would have no pertinency so far as suit for her property is concerned. Coss v. Coss (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 127.

An actual residence in the state and county is essential to give the court jurisdiction. Gallagher v. Gallagher (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 616.

A soldier of the United States who was stationed at San Antonio, Tex., under orders of his superiors, though actually there for more than 12 months, cannot be deemed to have been an Inhabitant of the state for 12 months, and to have resided in the county for 6 months preceding the filing of a petition for divorce from his wife, within this article, it not appearing that the soldier, who testified that he intended to make San Antonio his home, had made any declarations to third persons, or that he had done any act evidencing such an intent. Id.

A wife's act in merely going to another state to secure divorce, and in residing there the required length of time, but without any intention to remain permanently or indisputably, is not sufficient to give the courts of such state jurisdiction of her divorce proceedings. McEachern v. Sangster (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 722.

The term "inhabitant" carries with it the idea of a fixed and permanent residence, as distinguished from a temporary residence, to give the court jurisdiction over the divorce action; hence a petition, merely alleging that plaintiff was an actual bona fide inhabitant of the state and had resided in the county where suit was filed for more than 12 months next preceding the filing, is open to demurrer. Motes v. Motes (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 342. See also, Landers v. Landers (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 358.

— Petition.—An allegation in the petition that the petitioner was "a bona fide citizen and resident of the county," and that she had been for more than six months prior thereto, was insufficient. Haymond v. Haymond, 74 Tex. 414, 12 S. W. 96.

Proof as to inhabitancy of state and residence of county, is as essential as any other fact in a divorce case, and though the question is not raised by plea in abatement, it is not waived, but the plaintiff must allege and prove residence as part of his case. Gallagher v. Gallagher (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 516.

— Evidence.—Evidence held to show that plaintiff was a bona fide inhabitant of the state, and had resided in county in which divorce action was brought the requisite time to give court jurisdiction. Dickerson v. Dickerson (Civ. App.) 267 S. W. 941.

In a suit for divorce and division of community property, defendant's evidence held to show that he did not acquire a residence in Mississippi during his stay there. Bobbitt v. Bobbitt (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 475.

The court may set aside a judgment of divorce, findings in the divorce suit that the plaintiff wife had been a resident of Texas for 12 months next preceding the action, and a resident of the county in which it was begun for 6 months prior to institution, held warranted by the evidence. Wagley v. Wagley (Civ. App.) 270 S. W. 495.

Time for hearing.—Court did not err in hearing and granting divorce more than 30 days after petition, but less than the original 60-day filing of so-called "first amended original petition," where the latter petition merely answered defendant's plea to the jurisdiction and other facts pleaded by him specially, and restated cause of action without specifying any ground for divorce; such petition being in effect a first supplemental petition. Barras v. Barras (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 322.

It was improper to hear the suit and grant divorce on the second day after filing; the statute being mandatory. Beeler v. Beeler (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 853.

Divorce after filing of suit, is void, and not merely voidable, so that motion to set it aside after the term need not show a meritorious defense to suit. Snow v. Snow (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 240.

There must be full 30 days between the day of filing and the day of judgment; the day of the filing and the thirtieth day being excluded. Snow v. Snow (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 240.

Insanity.—This article absolutely prohibits divorce where either party is insane. Daugherty v. Daugherty (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 985.

Divorce decree, recognizing existence and validity of husband's note secured by deed of trust in wife's land, was not conclusive, in subsequent action to foreclose the deed of trust, that wife if insane at time of execution thereof was sane at time of divorce, and therefore ratified it, notwithstanding the provision of this article, that no divorce shall be granted unless both parties are sane; the plaintiff in subsequent action not having been a party to the divorce suit. White v. Holland (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 611.

Judgment.—Interlocutory divorce order, "that when one year shall have expired after the entry of this interlocutory judgment a final judgment and decree shall be entered granting a divorce herein,' etc., held not to have dissolved the bonds of matrimony. Vickers v. Tri-State Telephone Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 227, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1130.

Where husband for whom interlocutory divorce judgment had been rendered died before entry of final judgment but after expiration of the year he was required to wait before final judgment could be entered, the final judgment where not entered nunc pro tunc had no validity as a judgment. Id.

Decree of divorce is absolute in Texas from its entry, unless set aside or appealed from, so that a provision in decree in Oklahoma, where it is not shown that the law of that state is to the contrary, that the decree shall not be absolute until six months after entry is of no effect in Texas. Vickers v. Faubion (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 863.

Remarriage.—As a general rule, statutes of a state prohibiting remarriage within a stated time after divorce and making such marriage void have no extraterritorial force, and do not invalidate a marriage within the limited time in another state, whose laws do not prohibit such remarriage. Vickers v. Faubion (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 863.

Art. 4633. [2979] Husband and wife competent witnesses.

Construction in general.—This article is a direction to the court, and does not establish a rule to restrict the jurors as to the burden of proof, so that, after the court had charged that the burden was on plaintiff to make out his case by preponderance of the evidence sufficient to satisfy the jury, a charge requested by defendant that the burden was on plaintiff to establish material allegations by full and satisfactory evidence was properly refused. McCarver v. McCarver (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 137.

Right of non-answering defendant.—Where divorce was granted on plaintiff's unsupported evidence at a special term, where criminal cases alone were to be tried under the call of the court and defendant husband's appearance, reciting he agreed "that this cause may be taken up at any time for trial," was filed, without laying over 10 days, but on the day of its filing, and at plaintiff's instance, plaintiff could not, on the ground of collusion in procuring the decree by default or the lack of jurisdiction of the court, set the divorce aside, notwithstanding art. 1890, as to waiver of service, art. 1897 providing that service of the petition shall be served at least 10 days before first day of return term, and art. 4633, as to confession by want of answer; for art. 1714, excepting divorce cases from those may be tried in vacation, does not except divorce cases from being tried at special term under art. 1750. Guerra v. Guerra (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 360.

In an action by husband for divorce on the ground of cruelty, failure of defendant to deny charges made by the plaintiff raised no presumption in favor of the truthfulness of plaintiff's testimony, and plaintiff being only witness to that fact, court was not required to accept his testimony as true. Wiedner v. Wiedner (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 462.

Burden of proof.—This article imposes upon plaintiff substantially the same burden as that imposed upon the state in a criminal prosecution to establish the offense charged beyond a reasonable doubt. McCrary v. McCrary (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 187.

In an action for divorce on the ground of the wife's adultery, the charge against her may be proved by circumstantial evidence; but such evidence must conform to the rule, applied in criminal prosecutions, that each fact necessary to the conclusion must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt, that all such facts must be consistent with each other and with the ultimate fact, and that, taken together, they must be conclusive, producing a reasonable and moral certainty that the wife was guilty. Id.

Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—The statute permitting husband and wife to testify against each other in proceedings for divorce did not repeal the statutory requirement that the evidence, to entitle to a divorce, must be full and satisfactory, and the testimony of the parties should be scrutinized more cautiously. Knight v. Knight (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 609.

Where the husband's testimony in his proceeding for divorce was such as to arouse suspicions as to its truth, and was not corroborated by other evidence as to matters which must have been if it were shown, if true, it was not sufficient to entitle him to a divorce, even though uncontradicted. Id.

In an action for divorce on the ground of the wife's adultery, evidence by the husband of finding his wife and another man in a room together under suspicious circumstances, uncorroborated by the testimony of any other witness as to those circumstances, and only to a slight extent by testimony of associations of the wife with other men, which were not of a suspicious character, held insufficient to warrant granting the decree, in view of the denials of wife and the other man and their explanation of the situation. McCrary v. McCrary (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 187.

In an action by husband for divorce on the ground of the wife's adultery, the decree should not be based on his uncorroborated testimony as to the charge. Id.

Evidence held not to support decree granting wife a divorce for cruelty. Hubbard v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 160.

Whether a divorce case be tried with or without a jury, the trial court must be satisfied from all the testimony that a divorce should be granted as a matter of law, and in case of appeal the Court of Civil Appeals must be likewise satisfied. Erwin v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 834.

Conclusiveness of findings of jury.—It is the trial court's duty to refuse the decree, if after the jury found for plaintiff the trial judge, in the exercise of his judicial discretion did not find the material facts had been established by full and satisfactory evidence, though he could not ignore the verdict and award a divorce to defendant; his authority over the verdict being restrictive, and not independent. McCrary v. McCrary (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 187.

Review.—There not being in the opinion of the appellate court the full and satisfactory evidence required by this article for the decree, it has the duty and authority to set aside the decree and reverse. Tanton v. Tanton (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 429.

In an action for divorce, the weight and sufficiency of the evidence is for the trial court. Wagley v. Wagley (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 498.

Art. 4634. [2980] Division of property.

See Gully v. Gully (Sup.) 231 S. W. 97.

Cited, Turner v. Turner (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 133.

Jurisdiction of court to order division in general.—Court on granting divorce may by decree provide for use and occupancy of homestead by wife and children of marriage, such decree not deprivings husband of his title to such land. Smith v. Smith (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1129.

The court has power in a divorce suit to enter such a decree as will properly protect the wife and minor children in the use of the community property constituting a homestead, but cannot divest title thereto out of one of the parties. Phillips v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 77.

Where the property upon which husband lived, though he was separated from wife, was the separate property of the wife, and had been purchased with her separate funds, and had been awarded to her by divorce decree, court did not err in giving wife a writ of possession as against husband and in denying him his homestead right in the property. Landers v. Landers (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 557.

The court to determine property rights is dependent upon the granting of a divorce to one of the parties. Ledbetter v. Ledbetter (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 576.

Division of property in general.—In action for divorce and partition of property, jury held authorized to prorate premium on insurance on wife's furniture and house, 1274.
constituting husband's separate property, on basis of ratio which each bore to the whole sum of insurance. Rolater v. Rolater (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 391.

In an effort to get at the mutual intent of divorced husband and wife in an agreement settling property rights, their acts under the agreement—that is, their own construction of it—is the dominating consideration. O'Neill v. Graves (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 264.

Disposition of community property.—In suit for divorce and division of community property, every material issue must be proved, and cannot be established by presumption. Rolater v. Rolater (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 391.

Property not disposed of by divorce judgment.—Divorced wife, whose property rights were not disposed of in divorce decree and whose interest in community fund was not subject to any debts contracted by her husband, held entitled to recover one-half from the husband's administratrix. Jones v. Frazier (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 445.

If there was any right in the community to reimbursement for premiums paid for insurance upon the life of the husband in favor of the wife, it should have been asserted and determined in a divorce decree which purported to adjudicate all the property rights of the spouses, and could not be asserted by the divorced wife in a subsequent suit. Whiteselle v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 575. Affirming judgment Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Whiteselle (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 22.

Support of children.—The power of the court in a divorce suit to grant to the mother who has been awarded the custody of the minor children the use of the home-stead for a designated period is an equity power to be exercised primarily for the benefit of the minor children that the mother may fulfill her duty to support them. Phillips v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 77.

Review.—In action for divorce, court's action in charging wife with one-half of a certain sum collected by her thereby finding that she received the benefit of the full sum held not reviewable when supported by evidence. Rolater v. Rolater (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 391.

Where judgment of divorce was entered for wife, and property declared community, each party being entitled to an undivided one-half interest, and defendant appealed, but died after submission of the cause on appeal, a motion by appellee, requesting the court to reverse the cause and order it dismissed from the docket of the trial court will be granted, since the issues thereby become moot, including the property rights. Ledbetter v. Ledbetter (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 576.

Art. 4635. [2981] Condonation, connivance and collusion.

Condonation.—In a divorce case, cruel treatment committed prior to the time plaintiff husband condoned his wife's misconduct may be considered, where the evidence is conflicting as to whether there was cruel treatment subsequent to such condonation. Smith v. Smith (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 602.

When a husband informs a private detective of his suspicions regarding his wife and employs the detective to get evidence of the wife's adultery, a divorce will not be granted on account of adultery brought about by the detective, whether committed with the detective or another. Id.

A wife's return to home of her husband, without resuming cohabitation, but merely for the purpose of investigating whether her suspicions concerning his adultery were justified, and which resulted in confirming those suspicions, so that she again left, was not a condonation of his offense. Knight v. Knight (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 609.

Art. 4637. [2983] Debts and alienations after suit filed.

Validity of conveyance.—The validity of a conveyance executed by a husband pending a divorce suit, so far as it affected the wife's interests in the community property, depended upon whether it was made with the fraudulent view of injuring her rights. It would not be affected by the mere fact that there was not sufficient estate remaining to satisfy a claim subsequently established by her against his estate for waste of her community interest. Moore v. Moore, 73 Tex. 352, 11 S. W. 396.

Art. 4638. [2984] Inventory and appraisement; injunction.

Injunctive relief.—A wife, suing for divorce in California, may maintain a suit in Texas to enjoin her husband from contracting debts against or conveying community property in Texas, and may require an inventory and an appraisement to be made of real and personal estate. Turner v. Turner (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 123.

In suit for divorce and to establish wife's right to property, denial of temporary injunction with respect to control of property held not prejudicial, especially as the appeal was from an order made in vacation on a preliminary hearing. Rudsill v. Rudsill (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 933.

In divorce action, where a wife sought to have her husband restrained from disposing of community cotton, an injunction, allowing husband to sell the cotton, but restraining him from using the proceeds pendente lite, held properly granted as against the husband's bond was required, and that the wife's petition failed to allege there were no community debts for which defendant might properly sell the cotton. Van Ness v. Van Ness (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1078.

The statute making the giving of a bond a condition precedent to the issuance of an injunction applies to a divorce suit. Ex parte Coward, 110 Tex. 587, 222 S. W. 531.

Extent of power.—Statute conferring on trial court, or judge thereof, in divorce cases, power to make temporary orders respecting property and parties as shall be deemed necessary or equitable, does not confer unlimited power and discretion to make any such order. Rudasill v. Rudasill (Civ. App.) 266 S. W. 983.

Court has power to give one of the parties to a divorce suit the exclusive custody and control of minor children during the pendency of suit, when it is made to appear that such relief is necessary and equitable. Hunt v. Hunt (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 228.

The power of making temporary orders respecting the property and parties in divorce action given court by this article, is a broad power, and is not restricted by the statutes relating to the division of property upon trial of the case, and to authority of court to grant alimony during pendency of suit. Id.

The court is authorized to make temporary orders, as an order for custody of the children pending a divorce suit. Goodman v. Goodman (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 297.

Temporary injunction.—This article does not dispense with requirement of art. 4649 that petition in divorce suit for injunction be verified. Lingwiler v. Lingwiler (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 785.

If art. 4649, relating to injunction suits, requiring that petitions be verified, applies to a divorce proceeding, wherein district court, by art. 4639, has special authority to make temporary orders respecting property of parties, verification of petition for divorce, irregular in that it was before notary public who was an attorney of record, i. e., subject to amendment, and does not defeat jurisdiction of district court to enter order prohibiting disposition of property of community estate. Ex parte Gregory 85 Cr. R. 315, 210 S. W. 204.

Where district court enforced its order for issuance of injunction, prohibiting disposition of property of community estate involved in divorce suit, on day before divorce petition was filed and injunction writ issued by clerk, injunction was nevertheless effectual, and husband, in disregarding it, was guilty of a contempt. Id.

Wife seeking divorce may ask injunction to restrain husband from interfering with her in the cultivation and harvesting of crops, and in the use of teams and farm implements, and from molesting or intruding himself upon wife's presence, even though wife had an adequate remedy at law of which she could have availed herself. Hunt v. Hunt (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 228.

Receiver.—Where wife sued for divorce and to establish land as her separate property, and husband set up express parol trust in him, it was improper pending outcome of suit, to commit property to husband's charge, since he was an interested party, in view of art. 2125, as to receivers, notwithstanding broad powers of court, in suits for divorce, to make equitable orders. Rudasill v. Rudasill (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 953.

In action for divorce and for settlement of property rights, the appointment of a receiver of a portion of the property involved rests largely within the discretion of the trial court. Reum v. Reum (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 760.

Alimony.—Alimony is not in the nature of a "debt" for the collection of which execution may issue; order for its payment being enforceable by contempt proceedings. Beeler v. Beeler (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 553.

Order for alimony.—Where the facts justify granting of alimony, an order, making the grant to the wife pending appeal, may be made to continue in force until termination of the appeal, which does not prevent granting of alimony, but the order continues and terminates with the final decree on appeal, and order for alimony until further order is objectionable. Beeler v. Beeler (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 553.

Attorney's fee.—In a proper case the trial court has authority to render judgment in favor of the wife for attorney's fee, but the right thereto is a matter largely within the discretion of the trial court, and where wife was given the only property owned by the husband and wife for the purpose of providing necessaries for herself and minor children placed in her custody, and the payment of expenses and costs incurred by her in connection with divorce suit, and where the husband was in bad health and it was uncertain as to when he would regain his health sufficient to earn his livelihood, refusal to award wife an attorney's fee held not an abuse of discretion. Wilson v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 830.

Power of court in general.—The verdict of the jury is unnecessary on the issue of the custody of children in a divorce suit, and its verdict is merely advisory. Kents v. Kents (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 200.

District courts are vested with very broad discretion in the matter of awarding the custody of children in divorce proceedings, and a very clear case of abuse of that discretion is necessary before an appellate court will interfere. Moore v. Moore (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 949.

District courts are vested with very broad discretion in the matter of awarding the custody of children in divorce proceedings. Id.
Pending suit for divorce, the court is authorized to make temporary order for custody of the children. Goodman v. Goodman (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 207.

The court of a foreign state, which granted a divorce and awarded custody of a child to the mother, does not have jurisdiction exclusive of the courts of other states to determine the right to the custody of the child after conditions have changed subsequent to the divorce. Vickers v. Faubion (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 803.

Grounds for award of custody.—Trial court in awarding custody of a minor child in divorce proceedings should be controlled and actuated solely by a consideration of best interest of child. Smith v. Smith (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1129.

The fact that a divorced wife, to whom the custody of the child had been granted, remarried within the state, as permitted by its laws, shortly after the divorce was granted, does not show her unfitness to have the custody of the child. Vickers v. Faubion (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 803.

Judgment.—The award made court in divorce proceedings is conclusive on the parents, so that neither of them can thereafter petition the county court for guardianship of the person of a child whose custody was awarded to the other. Jordan v. Jordan, 4 Civ. App. 559, 23 S. W. 531.

A divorce decree awarding custody of child to the mother is res judicata that at the date of the decree she was a proper person for its custody. Vickers v. Faubion (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 803.

Modification of judgment.—On opening a decree in a divorce suit during the same term at which it was entered in order to modify provisions as to custody of children, notice to the opposite party is not a necessary prerequisite, the case being still pending during the term, and the parties having notice that the judgment is during such time subject to annulment and modification. Kentz v. Kentz (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 200.

District court may modify divorce decree at a term subsequent to that at which it was rendered, by transferring custody of infant child of the parties from one to the other. Milner v. Gatlin (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 617.

Though the court during the term at which a decree was rendered can vacate, modify, or correct it, a supplemental decree, changing the custody of the child entered after the close of the term at which the divorce was granted, is invalid. Vickers v. Faubion (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 803.

The provision of a divorce decree awarding custody of a child to its mother does not bar a subsequent proceeding to change the custody on proof that the situation and character of the parents have changed since the former decree, so as to make a change of custody necessary for the best interests of the child. Id.

Where a district court in divorce proceedings has determined the custody of minor children, such court has not the exclusive authority to change its determination, but habeas corpus before another court will lie by the husband against the wife under changed conditions to obtain a modification of the order as to custody. Foster v. Foster (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1064.

Order for support.—Where a mother had been granted the custody of the children in a divorce suit, it was proper on the reopening of the case for the trial court to determine from the evidence then before him what provision was necessary for their support; conditions having changed since the original decree. Phillips v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 77.

Under agreement settling property rights of divorced parties and providing for deposit by husband of fund for support and education of minor son, which was approved and entered as part of divorce judgment, wife held not required to file reports or vouchers of expenditures for son, case not being controlled by the guardianship statute, parties thereto entitled to receive all sums ordered and not merely what was necessary for son. O'Neill v. Graves (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 264.

A father, owning an adequate estate, could be required to pay the value of necessities for his minor children when furnished by the mother, from her own adequate estate. Judgment decree awarding the custody of the children reversed and case remanded, so as to provide for their maintenance; the father not being relieved of his primary duty to support the children by a divorce decree which is either silent as to their custody and maintenance or awards their custody to the mother. Gully v. Gully (Sup.) 231 S. W. 97.

Review.—On appeal from judgment modifying judgment as to custody of children, it may be presumed, in aid of the judgment, that evidence was offered as to the circumstances of defendant's leaving the state and the employment of her attorneys, as bearing upon whether such attorneys continued to represent her, and were therefore authorized to receive notice of the proceedings to modify. Kentz v. Kentz (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 200.

Where the trial court in a divorce proceeding brought by the wife has awarded the husband an absolute divorce on his cross-bill on account of the wife's adultery, but has given the custody of a nine year old female child to the wife, its discretion in so awarding the custody of the child will not be interfered with on appeal, where the court also found that the wife had reformed. Moore v. Moore (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 949.

Appeal does not lie from order for custody of children pending suit for divorce, where the statute not providing for appeal from a temporary order of such kind. Goodman v. Goodman (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 207.

TITLE 69
INJUNCTIONS

Article 4643. [2989] Writs of injunction granted, when.

3. Nature and purpose of injunction in general.—The erection of a cotton gin in a business district will not be enjoined as a nuisance at the suit of owners of residences in the neighborhood in order to force defendants to buy property of plaintiffs, or to protect one not a party to the suit from competition in his line of business. Strieber v. Ward (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 729. Injunction is an equitable relief granted by a court of chancery to prevent irreparable injury as the consequence of an unlawful act for which common-law courts offer no relief, or at least no adequate relief. Hamilton v. Davis (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 431. In an action for damages for the burial of plaintiff's husband in a place not chosen by her, an injunction to restrain opposition by defendant to removal of the body to the place selected by her was properly denied, where the court might have found from the evidence that there was in fact no opposition to the removal. Foster v. Foster (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 215. Courts of equity will not exercise their power to restrain acts to allay mere apprehension of injury, but only where the injury is imminent and irreparable. Southern Oil Corporation v. Waggener (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 230. The extraordinary writ of injunction is not available to protect one from threatened injury which is purely conjectural. Browning v. Hinerman (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 236.

4. Nature of right protected.—Where defendant, leasing certain land in an inclosed pasture in which plaintiffs also owned and leased land, obtained permission from plaintiffs to occupy certain lands and graze cattle thereon, agreeing to remove all of the cattle not later than a specified date, but failing to do so, plaintiffs' right to have the cattle in excess of those which defendant's own land would sustain removed was not doubtful so as to justify the denial of a mandatory injunction. Popham v. Wright (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 335.

5. Discretion of court.—The granting or refusing of a temporary injunction is largely within the sound discretion of the trial court. Houston Electric Co. v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 198; Ward County Water Improvement Dist. No. 2 v. Ward County Irr. Dist. No. 1 (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 490; Beirne v. North Texas Gas Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 301; Sutherland v. City of Winnsboro (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 63; George v. Jonesville Oil & Gas Co. (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 445. Injunction is in sound discretion of judge, unless the facts on which it is sought present solely questions of law. Tyree v. Road Dist. No. 5, Navarro County (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 644.

In a suit to enjoin the maintenance and operation of a cotton gin, the conflicting rights of the parties in the respective uses of their properties being involved, the right to an injunction is not absolute, but rests in the sound discretion of the trial court. Oliver v. Forney Cotton Oil & Ginning Co. (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1094.

6. Jurisdiction.—Since this article gives county court jurisdiction to enjoin party to pending suit from doing some act as to the subject-matter which would render the judgment ineffectual, defendant, enjoined by county judge from threatened sale of $200 suitably relieved, could not urge lack of jurisdiction because of the amount. Sweeney v. Alderete (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 367.

Federal court which appointed receiver held not to have exclusive jurisdiction over suit to enjoin railroad company from removing division headquarters from a town at which they were established pursuant to contract made by receiver. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. City of Ennis (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 556.

Where plaintiff had previously sued defendant to determine title to certain land and appeal therein from judgment for plaintiff was pending, court of another district had jurisdiction to restrain defendant from cutting timber from such lands pending appeal in view of this article. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Village Mills Co., 109 Tex. 169, 202 S. W. 725.

Unless restrained by statute, any district court where the venue is properly laid may exercise its constitutional right to issue injunctions. Kieschnick v. Martin (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 948.

Where proceedings were brought to restrain execution on a justice's judgment from which an appeal has been taken to the district court, the district court of another county wherein the injunction suit was pending had jurisdiction notwithstanding the provision relating to the district judge's power to grant writs of injunction in case of disability of a resident judge. Id.

Where county court at law had jurisdiction of parties in a forcible detainer case and jurisdiction was not raised upon its face, district court did not have jurisdiction to enjoin issuance and execution of a writ of possession; an appeal having been taken to appellate court from county court. Crosby v. Arrietta (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 352.

While there may be circumstances under which a court has power to restrain a defendant in preventing a court of equal jurisdiction and dignity, nevertheless comity and propriety dictate that such relief should not be granted save in extraordinary cases; hence defendant will not be restrained at the instance of the state from prosecuting in another county suits against those to whom the state had granted permission (Sec. 5524-5542w, Rev. Stat.), to recover for oil, etc., on lands claimed by the state. Prairie Oil & Gas Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 368.

Though district court directed a writ of injunction to enjoin collection of judgment recovered in county court, the county court had jurisdiction to try the case; the judgment not appearing void on its face. Cotulla State Bank v. Herron (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1091.

As between courts of co-ordinate jurisdiction, courts of equity will not ordinarily interfere by way of injunction in the absence of special circumstances presenting ground for equitable relief; the general rule being that as between such courts the one first acquiring jurisdiction of the subject-matter of an action is permitted to retain it to the end. Twin City Co. v. Birchfield (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 618.

Plaintiffs, in action to construe an instrument in which other parties affected by construction thereof had not been joined, were not entitled to an injunction restraining the prosecution of a similar action instituted by other parties affected by the construction of the instrument in which all parties so affected had been joined, though subsequent to the filing of the second suit which constituted the commencement thereof under art. 1512, such plaintiffs by amendment made all affected persons parties to their action, since jurisdiction, not having been acquired prior to such amendment, was not invaded by the filing of the subsequent suit. State Nat. Bank of San Antonio v. Lancaster (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 583.

7. Adjudication of all issues.--Jurisdiction having been obtained by reason of suit for injunction, the court may retain jurisdiction to adjudicate all the issues properly involved. Stewart v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 768.

11. Inadequacy of remedy at law.--Where, in an action to secure a mandatory injunction and enjoin the owner of an oil lease from violating his vendor's contract to sell oil to plaintiff, it appeared that plaintiff had a plain, complete, and adequate remedy at law, held error to grant a temporary injunction. Simms v. Southern Pipe Line Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 283.

An injunction will not be granted merely because the relief thereby furnished will be more speedily obtained than by means of the legal remedy. Id.

Whether contracting party agreeing to pay a specified sum on breach of contract in restraint of trade is limited to an action at law on breach, or whether he is entitled to injunctive relief, depends on intention of parties deducible from contract. Miller v. Dannelly (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 612.

To enable property owners to enjoin performance of alleged illegal contract of city for paving street, they must show that performance would injuriously affect them, and that they have no adequate protection at law. Sayles v. City of Abilene (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 1000.

Injunction will not be granted to prevent county judge from enforcing contract for excessive attorney's fees in inheritance tax proceedings, since adequate legal remedy would be afforded by certiorari proceedings in district court. Dodge v. Youngblood (Giv. App.) 202 S. W. 118.

Injunction will not be granted where appeal or certiorari affords adequate legal remedy. Id.
Art. 4643

INJUNCTIONS

(Title 69)

Plaintiff's remedy for erroneous decision of county court is by appeal and not by suit to enjoin condemnation proceedings. Ellis v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 172.

In suit to enjoin condemnation proceeding in county court, proof held insufficient to show that plaintiff could not be adequately compensated by damages, in view of arts. 6518-6550. Id.

Husband having sued for divorce in one county was not entitled to injunction restraining the wife from suing for divorce in another county and secreting the children, since the husband could avail himself of such matter in any suit brought by wife. Ling­willer v. Lingwiller (Civ. App.) 294 S. W. 178.

If a plaintiff sued before justice of the peace for a labor claim, has lost his right to maintain suit by assigning his right of action, such defense is available before the justice. Pen v. Baker (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 426.

In granting injunction the court is not confined to the general rules of equity practice on the subject, and will give relief where applicant has a substantial right cognizable in law that is or is about to be invaded, where injunction is necessary to restrain some act prejudicial to him. Hinton v. D'Yarnett (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 518.

Injunction cannot be made to serve the purpose of an appeal. Race v. Decker (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 709.

Equity will not grant a temporary injunction requiring tenants to remove from plaintiff's property, but the available remedies provided at law must be followed. Moore v. Norton (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 372.

In view of articles 3154-3158, a candidate for a party nomination to the state Legislature at a primary election has a complete remedy to contest the election on account of illegal votes of females being cast against him under the Women Suffrage Act, arts. 3157-3159, by elector from issuing poll tax receipts to women entitled them to vote at the primary, even though the suffrage act is unconstitutional: the election cannot be contested before it is held by preventing the collector from discharging a political function required of him by law. Hamilton v. Davis (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 441.

Where lease gave lessee the right to remove fixtures placed in the building by lessee, court's refusal to enjoin lessee from removing such fixtures on ground that he had agreed to sell fixtures to lessor, leaving lessor to his action at law for damages, held not an abuse of discretion, where lessee was solvent and where there was no showing that fixtures could not be removed without injuring the building. Keirne v. North Texas Gas Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 301.

Where an irrigation company contracts to irrigate land beyond its capacity, a suit for damages is not an adequate remedy to aggrieved landowners, and one for mandatory injunction to compel the furnishing of water lies. Edinburg Irr. Co. v. Paschen (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 329.

Injunction will not be granted when the party seeking such relief has a clear and equally adequate remedy at law. Vogelsang v. Gray (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 535.

Where all the grounds alleged by plaintiff as basis for writ of injunction against suit to collect a debt on notes given for machinery bought by him of defendants were available as defenses, either in a suit of a defendant against plaintiff pending in the court of another county, or in plaintiff's suit against another defendant pending in a federal court, plaintiff was not entitled to writ of injunction restraining the first-mentioned defendant from prosecuting his suit in the court of another county. Twin City Co v. Birchfield (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 616.

Where commissioners had no legal right to order a road opened across plaintiffs' land under art. 6876, he had a right to enjoin their action as being without jurisdiction by suit in district court; the remedy by appeal to the county court under article 6882 being inadequate. Leathers v. Craig (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 985.

In case in which defendant had invoked the right to an injunctive relief, provision being made in art. 6403, for ouster of any intruder into or usurper of any office through an information in the nature of quo warranto, but injunction will lie in a proceeding by one elected preceding weigher and in possession of the office against one unlawfully claiming to hold and hold the office with which authorizes him to discharge duties of weighing in that precinct jointly with plaintiff and collect fees for labor performed by him. Trollo v. Gittinger (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 233.

The statutory remedy by impounding animals unlawfully running at large and selling them to pay for the damage done by them given by arts. 7222-7229, is of doubtful adequacy, since the damage might exceed the value of the animals, or the animals doing the damage might not be identified, and therefore such remedy does not prevent the granting of an injunction to restrain an owner from unlawfully permitting his hogs to run at large. Coleman v. Hallum (Com. App.) 232 S. W. 296.

Even if the vendor's independent suit to recover on vendor's lien notes notwithstanding the purchaser's suit to cancel the notes were improperly brought, the purchaser was not entitled to have an injunction restraining the vendor from prosecuting his independent suit, which would be, in effect, an injunction by the court restraining itself from trying the case. Spark v. Lasater (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 345.

12. Trespass and injury to real property.—The building of a gin in a business district will not be enjoined as a nuisance at the suit of owners of residences in the neighborhood, where said property will not be rendered worthless or uninhabitable, and defendants are able to respond in damages. Strieber v. Ward (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 729.

In applications by lessors of oil leases for injunction restraining lesses from drilling oil wells, the trial court should be actuated by the broad spirit of progressiveness and development, and no unnecessary impediment or delay in the development of the natural resources of the country should be allowed to intervene if the rights of the litigants can otherwise be preserved. Emde v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 757.

In an action where plaintiff sought an injunction to prevent defendants from trespassing on land, and adopted that procedure for the purpose of relieving himself of the burden of establishing title, as he would have to in an action at law to try title, but the court put in issue plaintiff's title, and there was a showing which controverted plaintiff's claim of title, judgment in his favor was erroneous, where he merely proved possession. Butler v. Borroum (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1115.

14. Judgment and execution.—Execution sale of land will not be enjoined because value of land grossly exceeds judgment, since judgment debtor, under art. 3754, may protect himself by requiring sales in 50-acre lots. Dickinson v. Comstock (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 862.

Where an execution was issued and a levy made under a final justice court judgment against plaintiff, but before sale a writ of replevin was obtained against him in a suit pending in the county court against his judgment creditor, and plaintiff answered that he was indebted for the amount of the justice court judgment and paid the amount in the registry of the county court, the judgment creditor being insolvent, plaintiff was not entitled to injunction restraining sale, since if he had pleaded such facts in his answer to the writ of replevin, he would have been entitled to a judgment discharging the writ. Littlefield v. Ham (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 356.

Defendant in an action before the justice of the peace is not entitled, in his writ to enjoin an action where the sole issue thereupon is a judgment in such action adverse to him, to relief from any defects complained of in the judgment which could have been corrected either by motion before the justice to correct the judgment or by an appeal. Race v. Decker (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 709.

Writ of injunction will not issue against execution of a writ of sequestration which has already been executed; the remedy of the complaining party being an action for damages. Spero v. Peters (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 514.

18. Injunction ineffectual or not beneficial.—See Merchants' Transfer Co. v. Hildebrand (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 651.

A petition to restrain the holding of an election to determine whether the boundaries of school district should be changed, which alleged injurers to plaintiffs if the boundaries were changed, does not show an injury entitling plaintiffs to the injunction, since the court might result, not from holding the election, but from the change in boundaries, and if the election were void it could not result in a change of boundaries. Richardson v. Mayes (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 546.

19. Injury to defendant.—Where a suit to enjoin construction and operation of an ice factory is instituted after the work has progressed so far that defendant's loss, if restrained, will exceed the value of plaintiff's property, even if plaintiffs waive a judgment but will leave plaintiffs to recover any damages sustained if the factory, when put in operation, proves to be a nuisance. Goose Creek Ice Co. v. Wood (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 324.

Temporary injunction will be denied in a doubtful case where granting of it would cause greater detriment to defendant should he ultimately prevail than would be caused to complainant by its refusal should he ultimately prevail. Collins v. Humble Oil & Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 396.

In an action where both parties are in good faith claiming title under oral leases, the defendant being in actual possession of the land, and no immediate injury to plaintiffs being threatened, an injunction to restrain defendant from drilling for oil will not be issued, where large injury may be done to defendant thereby. Browning v. Himmel (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 258.

Where defendant in August, 1919, obtained permission from plaintiffs to graze cattle on lands within an inclosure, and agreed to remove all of the cattle not later than May 20, 1920, and the defendant has had all seasons of the year in which to remove the cattle, but still to detain and compel the cattle to defendant's lands, it will not be denied on the ground that it would be inequitable to require their removal in the winter season, as it appears that he is willfully and fraudulently retaining possession. Popham v. Wright (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 335.

22. Possession to support suit.—One having actual prior possession of land under a deed fully descriptive thereof under which it claimed title, was entitled to recover against naked trespassers in a suit for injunction to prevent trespasses and the cutting of timber. Durham v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 161, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 211.

23. Right of individual to restrain acts against public welfare.—Street railway having valid franchise to use city streets has such an interest in the use of the city streets that it may sue to restrain the use thereof by jitneys licensed under alleged invalid ordinance. Lindsley v. Dallas Consol. St. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 277.

A company owning and operating a station, shutting a regularly dedicated city park on which it has, under agreement with the city, spent thousands of dollars for grading, fencing, and beautifying, is entitled to injunction against appropriation of any part thereof for sidewalk purposes. El Paso Union Passenger Depot Co. v. Look (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 714, judgment affirmed (Com. App.) 224 S. W. 617.

The right of a private party to restrain the obstruction of a public highway is dependent upon sustaining some special injury different in kind from that sustained by the public. Santa Fe Town-Site Co. v. Norveil (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 960.

Section 12, art. 40 of Corpus Christi, art 12, § 1, providing that any citizen who is a property taxpayer may maintain an action to restrain the execution of any illegal, unauthorized, or fraudulent contract or agreement on behalf of the city, does not mean the city is not a party to the suit; it means the city in suit in behalf of the city, but to restrain the city council from making such a contract. City of Corpus Christi v. Mireur (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 528.

A suit for relief from a public nuisance, such as the proposed obstruction of the public highways of the county, cannot be maintained by individuals alone, suing as such, unless they can show some special injury to them which is not suffered by the public at large, but, in a suit to enjoin drilling of oil and gas upon the public highways of a county, allegations of plaintiffs' petition that they owned the fee simple title to lands about the public roads, and that producing wells on the adjoining roads would drain the oil from such lands, sufficiently showed special injury not suffered by the general public. Boone v. Clark (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 607.

A taxpayer and citizen may not maintain suit against public officers, acting under color of authority to restrain their action, without showing special damages to himself, whether they are alleged to be acting merely ultra vires or under unconstitutional law; and so not to prevent the carrying out of the State Depository Law by the state depository board; its provisions being beneficial to him through decreased taxes on account of profits therefrom to the state. Lawson v. Baker (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 200.

When contest as to legality of construction of road by commissioners of district involves common or general interest of a section of the public to whom injury is alleged to have been done by an illegal agreement of the commissioners, prior to election, to locate the road on a particular route, the courts will recognize the right of the taxpayers to maintain suit to enjoin such construction. Tippett v. Gates (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 702.

Where a city purchased land with park bonds, but the sellers did not make any reservation or embody in their conveyance any covenants dedicating the land to park purposes, and so have no vested rights to compel use of the land for a park, nevertheless, as citizens and taxpayers, they can sue to enjoin the city from wrongful diversion of such park fund, and from expending the funds except as provided by charter. City of Beaumont v. Matthew Cartwright Land & Improvement Co. (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 589.

Abutting property owners have no right to restrain the building or operating on a certain street of a street car line, any more than citizens at large have, unless they are granted such right by legislative authority. Jones v. Dallas Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 807.

A municipal corporation can seek protection of the public rights by injunction in a court of equity on the same footing as private persons and corporations may seek relief. Sutherland v. City of Winnabro (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 677.

Taxpayers of a road district had the right and authority to institute suit to restrain the commissioners' court from using road money for other purposes than building the roads. Elder v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 243.

In an action to enjoin encroachment upon an alley by construction of a building, where the facts show that plaintiff, owner of an adjoining lot, suffered no injury, inconvenience, or special damage not suffered by the general public, he is not entitled to enjoin encroachment. Shelton v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 967.

24. Proceedings in aid of which injunction is authorized.—In a suit for determination in unlawful seizin property on an execution, to support which there is no judgment, a writ of injunction may issue to prevent the sale of the property prior to final determination. Rasmel v. Miller (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1060.

In suit to enjoin live stock inspectors acting under the Live Stock Commission from dipping cattle for statutory warfication without court order or by rendering judgment perpetuating injunction and taxing costs against a defendant, who had resigned before institution of suit and another who resigned before trial. Castlemann v. Rainey (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 633.

26. Grants for granting or denying temporary injunction.—It is not the function of a permanent injunction to transfer the possession of land from one person to another pending an adjudication of title, unless the possession has been forcibly or fraudulently obtained by the defendant and the equities require that the possession wrongfully invaded be restored and original status preserved pending the decision of the issue of title. Obets & Harris v. Speed (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 316; Hodges v. Christmas (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 825.

A preliminary injunction will not issue to compel the transfer of oil by the producer to a pipe line company under a contract between the company and the producer's vendor until the question of the producer's liability under the contract has been finally determined. Simms v. Southern Pipe Line Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 263.

Where lumber company, not party defendant in trespass to try title, joined with defendants in application for temporary injunction to restrain plaintiffs from removing timber, lumber company became party defendant, and not a mere volunteer of having no right to ask for an injunction. Allen v. Knox (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1189.

Injunction pending litigation is authorized when it appears that a party is doing some act prejudicial to the applicant.

The function of a temporary injunction is to afford preventive relief only. Id.

In determining the allowance of a temporary injunction, the rule is that it will be allowed, if there is a case of probable right and probable danger to the right without the injunction. Dunsmore v. Blount-Decker Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 603.

Issuance of an injunction against boiler factory held erroneous as determinative of entire controversy, destroying status quo and putting

A petition alleging a final enforceable judgment in favor of plaintiff as against defendants and a final enforceable judgment in favor of defendants as against plaintiff, without showing whether the two suits grew out of the same transaction or if defendants' alleged claim, and that alleged liability of defendants, justified issuance of temporary injunction against levy of execution. Piersson v. Farmers' State Guaranty Bank (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 728.

Where a county had opened a public road through plaintiff's land, and plaintiff had fenced and used the same for public purposes for several years, a temporary injunction restraining the use of the road prior to trial of a suit of trespass to try title to the strip of land used for the road was properly refused in view of the situation of the parties and the interest of the public. Havervekken v. Corvell (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 771.

On motion for temporary injunction by oil company to restrain city from enforcing ordinance prohibiting cutting of sidewalks to give access to filling station, evidence held sufficient to sustain refusal. Oriental Oil Co. v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 177.

Oil company, suing to restrain city from enforcing ordinance prohibiting company from cutting sidewalks to give access to filling station, and failing to allege it received written permit to make alterations in sidewalk and curbing, as required by another ordinance, held not entitled to temporary injunction. Id.

In lessee's action against lessor to recover leased premises, where it appears that lessor's forfeiture of leasehold interest and repossession are unwarranted, lessee's right to a temporary injunction, requiring restoration of the possession of the premises to lessee and restraining lessor from interfering with such possession, will not be denied upon ground that to grant such injunction will be to grant all the relief that is to be obtained upon a final decree. Obets & Harris v. Speed (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 316.

Where, on account of the war, a city passed an ordinance increasing street railway fares, it cannot be said that the court abused its discretion in refusing an injunction to restrain city from enforcing an ordinance repealing the ordinance, where the city officials made affidavit that after armistice was signed most of material necessary for operation of street railway had declined, and that conditions which impelled council to grant temporary relief had ceased to exist, and that the "immoral menace had then become so nearly obliterated that earnings of company had reached practically the highest point in its existence, the street railway not having shown in its bill the actual statistics to support its allegation that the normal fare was unreasonable. Houston Electric Co. v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 195.

A bill asking for temporary injunction, contrary to the rule in ordinary actions, will be taken most strongly against the applicant, and must negative any reasonable inference from the facts stated that he may not be entitled to the recovery sought. Id.

In a suit by the lessee of an oil and gas lease against the purchaser of a part of the land omitted by mutual mistake from the lease, to restrain him from drilling for oil, a temporary writ of injunction was not appropriate, it appearing that the rival claimants were acting in good faith, that their ultimate rights were uncertain, and that the interest of the public at large, arising from an early development of the region for oil, was at stake. Texas Pacific Coal & Oil Co. v. Howard (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 735.

In trespass to try title, where plaintiffs have been ejected from actual possession of land by defendants, possession will be restored and the original status of the property preserved by temporary injunction pending decision of the issue of title. Hodges v. Christmas (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 229.

Where plaintiffs asserted rights in oil lands claimed by the state and obtained temporary injunctions restraining licensees of the state from proceeding with operations, the state is entitled to a temporary injunction restraining defendants from drilling wells on the line between their property and that in controversy, which wells would have the effect of draining oil from under the lands in controversy. Prairie Oil & Gas Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 363.

Where verified answer to petition to enjoin execution on ground of fraud in violating agreement not to take personal judgment against purchaser of property subject to vendor's lien notes alleges that petitioner had notice of judgment before term expired, and had actual knowledge of judgment more than two years before suit, it was error to award temporary injunction on the pleadings. Boykin v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 611.

Where the executive committee of a syndicate formed to acquire oil leases entered into a contract with a corporation, which the members of the committee controlled, enforcement of such contract will be temporarily enjoined, in a controversy between directors subsequently elected by the stockholders and the executive committee; all claims being before the court, and it being the purpose of the executive committee to enforce the contract, unless temporarily enjoined. Oil Lease & Royalty Syndicate v. Beeler (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1084.

An interlocutory injunction is not open to attack because it granted all the relief prayed for. Id.

In suit by plaintiffs, who owned lot 16 and a portion of lot 15, and who alleged that they were entitled to the use of an alley taken from a portion of lot 15, against defendant, who claimed that he was the owner of the alley and who had moved a house thereon, held, that the court was warranted in granting preliminary temporary injunction. Boynton v. Milmo (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 610.

In a suit to restrain enforcement of a judgment where there was no allegation that petitioner brought against him until after the term at which it was rendered and the evidence showed that defendant did have such knowledge and did not show that the judgment was procured through the fraud of the plaintiffs unconnected with the fraud of defendant, it was error to deny a motion to dissolve a temporary injunction. In re Judson (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 370.

Evidence held insufficient to sustain an order granting a temporary injunction against the construction and operation of an ice factory on the ground that the noises, fumes, and waste water would interfere with the enjoyment of plaintiffs' homes. Goose Creek Ice Co. v. Wood (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 732.

Generally when possession of property has been taken with owner's consent, temporary mandatory injunction will not issue to transfer the possession to plaintiff in advance of a final trial of title or right of possession. Collins v. Humble Oil & Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 676.

In purchaser's action against foreign corporation to rescind sale on ground of fraud and to obtain a temporary injunction restraining vendor from selling or assigning purchase-money notes during pendency of the action, the injunction should be granted, regardless of whether the court is able to enforce it; purchaser having the right thereto. Roberts v. Stewart Farm Mortgage Co. (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1148.

In purchaser's action against vendor's lessee to recover possession of the premises, the court was not authorized to issue a mandatory injunction on a preliminary hearing, requiring lessee to give purchaser possession pending adjudication on the merits. Colby v. Osgood (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 469.

27. Duration of preliminary injunction.—See art. 4659, and notes.

28. Mandatory injunction.—Where railroad due ditch on its property, and damage to land of adjoining owner could be repaired completely, and revetment constructed to prevent further damage was not entitled to mandatory injunction to compel railroad to fill in and restore land to former natural surface. Ingrando v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 925.

Where plaintiffs and defendant both owned or leased land within an inclosed pasture, defendant was entitled to keep such number of cattle in the pasture as the acreage controlled was capable of sustaining and no more, and where he had more than the court found his land would sustain, plaintiffs were entitled to a mandatory injunction for their removal, though other persons also had lands within the inclosure. Popham v. Wright (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 535.

Transfer of possession.—An injunction is not a remedy which can be used for the purpose of recovering title or right of possession of property. Hodges v. Christmas (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 825.

The status of property may be restored by temporary mandatory injunctions during the pendency of suit, while it is not the function of preliminary injunctions to transfer possession of the property, but mandatory injunctions will be granted in extreme cases upon such hearing. Boynton v. Milmo (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 510.

Injunction cannot generally be used pending final determination of a suit for possession of property to transfer such possession from defendant to plaintiff. Vogelsang v. Gray (Civ. App.) 324 S. W. 555.

A court of equity may grant a mandatory injunction to compel a trespasser to restore possession of the property, though the owner may have an adequate remedy at law. Hill v. Brown (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 730. "Trespass" implies force and "fraud" includes acts involving a breach of duty, trust, or confidence injurious to another, or by which an undue and unconscientious advantage is taken of another, and implies a willful act whereby another is sought to be deprived of what is entitled to, either at law or in equity, so that a finding that defendants were unlawfully, fraudulently, and forcibly holding possession of plaintiffs' premises as mere trespassers, authorizes a mandatory injunction to compel restoration of possession. Id.

Execution sale of cultivated lands will not be enjoined, unless judgment debtor establishes that he owned personality or uncultivated lands within county at date of application for writ sufficient to satisfy judgment. Dickinson v. Comstock (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 863.

Where creditor of insured garnished insurer, which paid amount of policy into district court after insured sued on the policy in county court, and creditor got judgment which was paid, the district court could not perpetually enjoin enforcement of the county court judgment against the insurer in view of art. 4653, as to return of injunction writs. In such case, it was not necessary to enjoin execution of the county court judgment, but such court could issue necessary order. Kiaras v. North British & Mercantile Ins. Co. of London & Edinburg (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 584.
Judgment in cause submitted to judge is not void, so as to authorize enjoining of execution, when rendered within the two days of end of term, civil, in Dis­

Injunction to restrain sale under execution issued upon justice court judgment forchaining was void, and not permissible where judgment was not void. Fleming v. Bonine (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 364.

A judgment at law procured in one state by the fraudulent conduct of the plaintiff, and which had the effect of depriving the defendant of a meritorious defense that he would, could, and would have been afforded by a court of equity in another state which has acquired jurisdiction of the person of the plaintiff. Vann v. Calcasieu Trust & Savings Bank (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1062.

An injunction will not be granted to further prosecution of a suit upon ground that plaintiff recovered a judgment from a justice of the peace in another county on the same cause of action, where such judgment was vacated by a petition for certiorari granted by the county court. Texas Novelty Advertising Co. v. Bay Trading
Co. (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 729.

To restrain enforcement of a default judgment, it must appear that the judgment was void on the face of the record or that the defendant was not served and had a meritorious defense which it failed to present without fault. Baker v. Memphis, D. & G.

Since the effect of an appeal from a justice's judgment is to annul the judgment and to confer jurisdiction on the county court, enforcement of an execution issued by the justice under the judgment may be enjoined as a proceeding under a void writ. Kleschvick v. Martin (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 948.

In a suit to enjoin sale of trust property on attachment, plaintiff's contention that the judgment was void, because rendered solely on substituted service upon the cestui que trust, a nonresident, for the reason that the property taken not being attachable, the judgment was in personam, was properly overruled, where the cestui was not a party to the injunction suit, and did not urge the invalidity of such judgment. Hoffman

Court of Texas will enjoin for personal property and damages between citizens of Texas brought in falling to urge, may be enjoined as a proceeding under a void writ.
Kleschvick v. Martin (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 948.

Subsequent actions may be enjoined to prevent conflicts of jurisdiction and on grounds of judicial comity, although the element of irreparable damage is not involved and where a buyer in suit against the seller for breaching a threshing machine sales contract claimed damages exceeding the purchase price, a subsequent action by the seller in another county to collect purchase-money notes and foreclose chattel mortgages securing them should be enjoined. Blume v. J. I. Case Thrashing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.)
225 S. W. 831.

32. Preventing multiplicity of suits.—Street railway having valid franchise to use city streets may by injunction proceed against city for purpose of declaring invalid legislative grant of power to license jitneys in order to avoid runous multiplicity

33. Preparing prosecution of suits.—In a separate prosecution in justice court, before a justice of the peace, on labor claims assigned, brought in the name of the assignors, is insufficient, where it does not show that the assignees of the claim sued on were parties

34. Criminal acts.—An injunction will not issue to restrain the operation of a moving picture show on Sunday, where such operation constitutes a misdemeanor, punishable

34. Condemnation proceedings.—In view of arts. 6481-6534, held, that district court would not enjoin condemnation proceedings where county court had acquired jurisdiction by filing of sufficient petition and parties had failed to agree on damages as provided by article 6506. Ellis v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 172.

35. Condemnation proceedings.—Where the court was unable to assess damages or to compensate plaintiff for injury to his property by proposed condemnation was necessary predicate for restraint of possession by defendant railway company. Id.

Condemnation proceeding in county court will not be enjoined on ground that property is not subject to condemnation. Id.

35. Foreclosure proceedings.—A holder of a junior mortgage is not entitled to enjoin a sale under a senior mortgage on the ground that he desires to pay the senior mortgage to protect his junior mortgage and to be subrogated to the rights of a senior owner, although a release of the junior mortgage has been executed by an unauthorized person, where the note secured by the junior mortgage and a release are deposited in court to be dealt with according to the rights of the parties, and the purported release has never been recorded. Delinger v. Gulf Production Co. (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 580.

In a minor son's suit in trespass to try title to recover under his mother's second will half of certain land left by her first will wholly to her second husband, plaintiff's right to injunction against trustee's sale held clear in view of specific averment that certain credits not shown on certain vendor's lien notes and not admitted should be allowed before the land was subjected to payment of the debt, and averment that a defendant obtained the vendor's lien notes for a fraudulent purpose. Carr v. Froelich (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 137.

One to whom one tenant in common, without consent of the other tenants, conveyed a specific part of the premises, may not, without partition, have the others enjoined from interfering with his exclusive possession of such part, on the theory that it may be equitably partitioned to him. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Bradford Hicks Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 418.

The removal by defendant of the surface dirt preparatory to removal of gravel, under a contract whereby plaintiff gave defendant exclusive right, for a certain period, to remove gravel, and defendant agreed to perform all labor necessary for its removal, and to pay plaintiff for gravel removed, even if not making the contract irrevocable, at least gave defendant some equities in the premises, so that plaintiff, making no offer of compensation for such work, may not have injunction against removal of gravel, on the theory of the contract being terminable as unilateral and without consideration. Hall v. Willmering (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 226.

Where defendants threatened to forcibly re-enter and take possession of property deeded to plaintiff in exchange for plaintiff's property, and rescind trade for sole reason that plaintiffs were unable with their bargain, to have lived up plaintiffs' promise for 11 months, it was a proper exercise of the court's power in suit to restrain such acts to enjoin the institution of further suits by defendants. Sykes v. Fischl (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 217.

In a proper case, one rightfully in possession of land may by a proper showing secure an injunction to restrain a trespasser from entering to commit injuries. Butler v. Borroum (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1115.

Court erred in overruling a motion to dissolve a preliminary injunction granted on a showing by plaintiffs that defendants were drilling for oil upon land to which plaintiffs held a lease, and that continued drilling might result in a dry hole, it not being alleged in fact that there was no oil under the land, or that it was plaintiff's present purpose to sell the lease: the term "requires" in this article, being mandatory in its significance, and meaning "to have imperative need of." Browning v. Hinerman (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 226.

To enjoin a lot owner to enjoin an encroachment upon an alley, it is not necessary that access to his lot therefrom be cut off, and the fact that the obstruction did not cut off access as to special or peculiar damage, which it rests upon plaintiff to prove to secure an injunction. Shelton v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 967.

38. Stay of waste.—Where petition asserted bona fide claim of title to lands, possession for more than ten years, judgment in action pending on appeal, in petitioner's favor against defendant for lands, and threat of defendant to cut valuable timber from lands, granting of injunction was not an abuse of discretion. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Village Mills Co., 109 Tex. 169, 202 S. W. 725.

One acquiring an estate in fee in standing timber, with unlimited time for removal, may enjoin present owner therein, enjoins the fee owner of land from cutting and appropriating such timber. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Hamilton, 109 Tex. 270, 206 S. W. 817.
INJUNCTIONS

An injunction prohibiting a tenant from pasturing stock on the leased lands while they were not wrongfully evicted, and that lessor be restrained from interfering with their right to possession. Obets & Harris v. Speed (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 316.

Where an owner has transferred stock and assigned certain oil leases in consideration of use of drilling equipment and casing in drilling test well, and who has sold oil leases conditioned upon the drilling of the well to certain depth, and who has insufficient funds wherewith to himself supply equipment and casing, is entitled to injunction restraining the removal of equipment and casing from premises where drilling of well has commenced. Hinton v. D'Yarrett (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 518.

Where a purchaser of platted blocks and lots can enjoin obstruction of the streets shown on the plats by another owner, though the city had never in fact opened or worked the streets. Sherman Slaughtering & Rendering Co. v. Texas Nursery Co. (Civ. App.) 244 S. W. 478.

Deceased husband having been buried on the lot of his father, mother, and brother with the consent of the wife under an agreement that it should be the final resting place of the body, the father and mother could invoke the powers of a court of equity to restrain the widow from removing the body to another place. Curlin v. Curlin (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 692.

Petition alleging that under arrangements with oil and gas lessees to take casing head gas, plaintiff had constructed valuable pipe lines, and that defendant, having acquired the leases, denied plaintiff the right to take such gas, to plaintiff's irreparable injury in that it would lose the benefit of its pipe lines, etc., is sufficient to state a cause for equitable relief. Chas. F. Noble Oil & Gas Co. v. Alex Petroleum Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 765.

39½. Strikes and conduct thereof.—The acts of a labor union which seeks to force an employer to unionize his restaurant by means of picketing and boycott amount to "intimidation" and "coercion," and are unlawful and subject to injunctive relief, even though no open threat or violence are proven. Webb v. Cooks', Waiters' and Waitresses' Union, No. 748 (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 465.

The master plumber has no ground for injunctive relief against a labor union of journeymen plumbers which withdraws its members from his employ under a rule adopted in the interest of economical conduct of its affairs, of which he has notice, that they shall not work for one not a member of the master plumbers' association; there being no boycott, and such action being in the nature of a strike, lawful under and independent of art. 526. Sheehan v. Levy (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 229.

An injunction may issue to restrain strikers from threatening persons still at work, for equity will protect the exercise of natural and contractual rights from interference or attempts at coercion. Ex parte Tucker, 116 Tex. 335, 220 S. W. 756.

To restrain a striking labor union and its members from destroying the business of an offending employer by their language, publications, and acts is not to infringe upon the constitutional right of free speech, and whenever the rights freely to sell and freely to purchase labor are sought to be invaded, as by a labor union's strike and acts of picketing, etc., pursuant thereto, a court of equity will restrain such unlawful acts. Cooks', Waiters' and Waitresses' Local Union v. Papageorge (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1086.

40. Breach of covenant.—Until the public interest requires the removal of a depot, the railway company may be restrained from removing it in violation of a covenant, San Antonio, A. F. Ry. Co. v. Mosel (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 621.

43. Acts of public officers, boards and municipalities.—The county commissioners' court being by Rev. St. 1879, arts. 1514, 1521, the only body empowered to authorise contracts for the erection of county buildings, injunction will not lie to restrain the issuance of bonds in payment for a county jail, to be constructed under an alleged contract made by one of the judges of the commissioners' court, not only without the authority but directly contrary to the resolution of that court. Such bonds would be utterly void in the hands of all purchasers. Polly v. Hopkins, 74 Tex. 145, 11 S. W. 1084.

Commissioners' court could not be enjoined from exercising power under Acts 35th Leg. c. 60 (art. 7314 et seq.), relating to prevention of diseases in live stock in force at time of application for writ, merely because Acts 33d Leg. c. 163, in force when ordinance was passed, did not authorize action. Brazale v. Strength (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 247.

As it would be unlawful to transfer taxes levied and collected for public building fund to general county fund, when that fund exhausted constitutional limit, such transfer could only be enjoined by ex parte order made in mandamus, not in equity. Under Acts 34th Leg. c. 36, §§ 5-5, 15 (arts. 2749a-2749c, 2749i, 2549h), amending Acts 32d Leg. c. 26, the county trustees alone have authority to establish high schools, and district trustees will be enjoined from attempting to select the site. Woodson v. Stanley (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 659.

A pool hall operator was entitled to injunction restraining county attorney and sheriff from interfering with his business by showing damage by their threats to prosecute him under void law as to pool halls, which prosecution would probably result in destruction of his business. Pearis v. Gafford (Civ. App.) 284 S. W. 675.

Where the board of water engineers is about to exercise power to adjust petitioner's property rights contrary to his constitutional right to have them adjusted by the courts, he is entitled to injunction. McKnight v. Pecos & Toyah Lake Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 307 S. W. 599.

Live stock inspectors though empowered by statute to take up the work of tick eradication may be enjoined at the suit of cattle owners from dipping sound cattle in liquids, chemicals, and poisons not conforming to that prescribed for treatment of aplectic fever or the eradication of fever-carrying ticks. Castlman v. Rainey (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 630.

In view of Charter of City of Corpus Christi, art. 12, § 1, taxpayers of the city can sue in equity to restrain it and its officers from awarding the office of deputy postmaster to any corporation which has not made the best bid for the office based on interest on daily balances and value of bond tendered, as expressly stipulated by the city charter, even though plaintiff taxpayers are officers or agents of a rival bank; acceptance of the lower bid being an attempt to execute an illegal and unauthorized. If not fraudulent, contract or agreement on behalf of the city. City of Corpus Christi v. Mireur (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 528.

Though Acts 35th Leg. (1917) c. 60 (art. 7314 et seq.) requires owners within the areas prescribed to have their cattle dipped and provides a penalty, owners of cattle are not entitled to enjoin county officials from enforcing the law, where there is no evidence that such officials were threatening to prosecute the owners criminally or were intending to forcibly seize the cattle for the purpose of dipping them. Page v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 584.

If a change of boundaries of school district by vote of the electors is not authorized by law, an attempt to change the boundaries under a void election can be enjoined, until which time the court will not interfere. Richardson v. Mayes (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 546.

Courts will not enjoin the enactment of city ordinances, valid or invalid, unless it is made clearly to appear that irreparable injury immediately will result from the mere enactment of the ordinance without intervention or attempt to do some act or exercise some privilege under it, and equity will interfere by injunction only when it becomes necessary to restrain some unlawful and injurious act authorized by the ordinance. Garitty v. Halbert (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 196.

As the question of the maintenance and creation of school districts rests largely in the discretion of the county board of education, the refusal of a mandatory injunction to further the deemed erroneous will not be deemed error where the district seeking the injunction asserted that as the line was run numerous negro families were thrown into the second district, and that there was no schoolhouse for negro children in the second district, while the first district had a substantial schoolhouse for negro children, for these reasons, the courts may well presume that when the necessity for a negro school should arise in the second district, it would be divided. Baker v. Davis (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 534.

A suit to enjoin the city from diverting park property to sidewalk use for a private person is not within Special El Paso City Charter, § 71, requiring application to the city council for redress as a prerequisite to filing suit. Look v. El Paso Union Passenger Depot Co. (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 917, affirming El Paso Union Passenger Depot Co. v. Look (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 714.

Courts cannot invade the discretion of public functionaries to correct mere mistakes of judgment. Board of Permanent Road Com'rs of Hunt County v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 859.

44. — Levyng and collecting tax.—Tender of all legal taxes was not condition precedent to taxpayer's suit to restrain collection of levy for public building fund, no party having the bond. Veit v. Slaters (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 631.

Unlawful intent of commissioners to transfer tax levied for county building fund to general fund was material issue of fact, and district judge had authority to enjoin collection of tax until such issue had been determined. Id.

A taxpayer is entitled to injunction against collection of tax illegal because of arbitrary discrimination against him. City of Sweetwater v. Blard Development Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 801.

The owner of lands incorporated into a city by a charter amendment which was unconstitutional is entitled to injunction restraining the collection of city taxes on 1298.
his lands; the right to question the validity of the amendment not being vested exclusively in the landowners would result in

Where tangibles, including the tangibles of railway companies in a county, are, as a result of settled practice or custom, systematically assessed below their true value, and the assessed valuation is based on such actual value as is assessed is entitled to enjoin the collection of so much of the tax against it as was based on the assessment of its intangibles at a higher proportionate value than that of other property within the state on the ground such assessment is in violating uniform and equal taxation, and Const. Art. 14, § 1, guaranteeing equal protection of the law. Druesedow v. Baker (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 493, reversing (Civ. App.) Baker v. Druesedow, 197 S. W. 1042.

45. Acts relating to roads or streets.—Discretion of commissioners' court as to roads to be improved with proceeds of county bonds voted for improvement generally can be controlled by injunction only for fraud or gross abuse of discretion. Grayson County v. Harrell (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 160.

The power given the district court by Const. art. 5, § 8, and art. 1706, to supervise the proceedings of the commissioners' court on opening roads, permitted a full inquiry, on application for injunction to restrain opening a road by an interested landowner, as to the validity of the proceedings; the application for an injunction having the character of a direct attack. Haverbeken v. Hale (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1162.

The owners of residence property abutting a street have the right to enjoin the city from constructing a steam railroad thereon without lawful authority, upon showing special damages to property and personal discomfiture, whether plaintiffs owned the fee to the street or not. City of Orange v. Rector (Civ. App.) 295 S. W. 563.

Suit, to restrain issuing of bonds for improvement of a public highway, was properly dismissed, where at time petition was filed bonds were in the hands of the Attorney General for examination under art. 632; it being the duty of the Attorney General, under art. 611, to pass upon questions raised by petition. Smith v. Reaves (Civ. App.) 298 S. W. 545.

Action of commissioners' court in proceeding to open highway, in determining that juror of view was a freeholder, and in refusing to award landowners more damages than did jury, held conclusive except as landowners questioned it in exercise of right of appeal under art. 632, and not to warrant an antinjunction proceedings to restrain opening of road. Lawrence v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 702.

Road district board has discretionary power to locate and construct pike roads which can be interfered with by injunction only where action sought to be enjoined is so arbitrary and devoid of merit as to be fraudulent, and the result of gross abuse of discretion implying not merely error of judgment but perversity of will, passion, prejudice, partiality, or moral delinquency. Edens v. Road Dist. No. 1 of Navarro County (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 791.

County judges and county commissioners were properly enjoined from opening a road, where the commissioners' court did not dispose, by an order of the court, of damages awarded by jury to petitioner in proceedings to open such road, in view of the requirements of arts. 6882, 6883, since, by failure to dispose of such damages by court order, petitioner was deprived of opportunity to appeal, if he desired. Howard v. Rushing (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 953.

The question of the necessity of a public road is wholly for the determination of the petitioners, and where so determined by them and the commissioners' court, and where proper legal steps have been taken, the question is not subject to review by the district court in suit to enjoin opening of the road. Culp v. Commissioners' Court of Coryell County (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 944.

The courts of Texas have the right and are under duty to interfere by injunction at the instance of taxpayers in case of gross abuse of discretion, fraud, or perversity of will on the part of commissioners of road district in locating a road, shown to result in injury and damage to the taxpayers as individuals and as a class, the effort not being to control the board's discretion, but to require its proper exercise. Tippett v. Gates (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 702.

Where plaintiff had sold certain materials to a county to be used on roads under a special road law and had accepted warrants in payment thereof, it was proper to refuse to enjoin the county from paying out funds belonging to road precists other than those for which the materials were furnished; plaintiffs being limited in their recovery to the districts covered by the warrants on which the warrants were drawn. Austin Bros. v. Patton (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 702.

As the commissioners' court has discretionary power as a board to determine what roads will be improved with the proceeds of bonds, such power will not be controlled by injunction. Strength v. Black (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 768.

Injunction will lie to restrain diversion to the digging of a ditch to drain private property voted for the purpose of building roads in the district where voted. Elder v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 343.

46. Appointment and removal of and interference with officers.—In view of arts. 3061-3063, and 3065, providing method of contesting results of election and providing for bonds to protect contestant, equity will not intervene on behalf of contestant by enjoining contestant from taking office pending result of contest. Jackson v. Houser (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 106.

Courts are cautious of interfering with action in the political departments of the government. Id. 1289
Since injunction may issue to prevent the county executive committee of a party from acting in a matter outside its jurisdiction, it may also issue to restrain those who are usurping the office of such committee from hearing a primary election contest, which would be within the jurisdiction of the legal committee. Walker v. Hopping (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 146.

Though injunction will not be granted to determine the right to an office, the right of parties claiming to hold such office may be determined incidentally in trying the right of plaintiff to an injunction to prevent usurpers to that office from determining a primary election contest. Id.

District court had jurisdiction of an action by public weigher of a precinct to enjoin one, claiming to hold another office which gave him the right to weigh in the precinct and receive fees therefor, from interfering with the former’s possession of his office. Trollo v. Gittinger (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 235.

47. Publishing election returns.—The commissioners’ court, in canvassing and declaring results of elections, is exercising a political and not a judicial power, and the exercise of such power cannot be enjoined. Moore v. Plott (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 958.

48. Enforcement of void ordinance.—Where city passed ordinance for licensing jitneys, which street railway alleged was invalid, it could sue to enjoin threatened enforcement of the ordinance directly against the city. Lindley v. Dallas Consol. St. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 207.

In order to enjoin enforcement of an ordinance reducing fares to be charged by a street railway, it was not incumbent upon the railway company to show that the reduced fare was necessary to the meaning of the federal Constitution, being entitled to restrain its enforcement, where the reduced rate is unreasonable, unjust, and insufficient to maintain a fair return upon the value of the property. Houston Electric Co. v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 188.

Equity will restrain the unlawful exercise of unlawful powers granted to administrative and ministerial officers of a city by void ordinances, or the doing of any act injurious to a complainant under such ordinances. Garity v. Halbert (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 196.

49. Publication of libel or slander.—In view of Const. Bill of Rights, § 8, declaring that no person shall be compelled to write or publish his opinions, being responsible for the privilege, and that no law shall ever be passed curtailing liberty of speech or the press, an injunction against slander, or restraining the members of a union on a strike from vilifying persons employed, etc., is beyond the power of a court of equity. Ex parte Tucker. 110 Tex. 235, 230 S. W. 76.

50. Nuisance.—An injunction should not issue to restrain the operation of a cotton gin in a city in the absence of showing that the evils anticipated from the construction and operation thereof are imminent and certain to occur; it not being sufficiently that they may probably do so. Moore v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 212.

In a suit to enjoin operation of a cotton gin as a nuisance while the evidence must show that the evils anticipated are imminent and certain to occur from the construction and operation of the gin, an instruction to that effect is properly refused. Id.

Evidence held not to establish that a proposed cotton gin will be so operated as to constitute a nuisance to neighboring residents. Strieber v. Ward (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 720.

Mere fact that storing shingles near building of another owner would tend to increase his fire hazard does not warrant enjoining such use of his premises, since such hazard is an incident to the ownership of urban property. Gray v. S. T. Woodring Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 231.

That plaintiffs’ fire hazard and rates of insurance were greatly increased by erection of wooden building on adjoining lot under valid permit, held not to entitle them, by mandatory injunction to require building to be torn down. Focke, Wilkens & Lange v. Heffron (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1027.

To enjoin adjoining property owner to injunction against nuisance increasing danger from fire, it must be proved clearly and unmistakably. Shamburger v. Scheurrer (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1069.

If a landowner keeps such a number of hogs in such small pens or in such a way or feeds them with garbage in such a way as to produce disagreeable and noxious odors interfering with the comfort, use, and enjoyment of another owner, such owner is entitled to injunction abating the nuisance. Royalty v. Strange (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 878.

A city is held to the same measure of liability, as far as nuisances are concerned, as a natural citizen. Brewster v. City of Forney (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 175, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 636.

An ice factory, being a lawful and useful business enterprise in any community, its construction and operation is not a nuisance per se, though by its location and the manner of its operation it might become one. Goose Creek Ice Co. v. Wood (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 344.

The construction and operation of an ice factory will not be enjoined at the suit of adjacent home owners, apprehending injury from its operation, unless it is shown that its operation will necessarily be a nuisance. Id.

A building for the manufacture of bed springs and mattresses is not a nuisance per se. Haynes v. Hedrick (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 550.

The construction of numerous small cheap houses of secondhand lumber and of poorest workmanship, and crowded together on land adjoining expensive dwellings, will not be enjoined, i.e., such houses not constituting a “nuisance per se,” even though unsightly and out of keeping with the residences on adjoining land, and even though they increase the danger of loss by fire, and increase the cost of insurance. Worm v. Wood (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1016.
Title 69) INJUNCTIONS Art. 4643

A court of equity has power in proper case to restrain the construction of buildings for the conduct of a business which will materially injure or annoy adjoining owners by actual physical discomfort to persons of ordinary sensibilities and ordinary tastes and habits, such as is unreasonable and in derogation of the complaining party's rights. Von Hatzfeld v. Neece (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1034.

The conduct of a grocery store in a residential section is not a nuisance per se in favor of adjacent, owner, and the establishment of the defendants of the business is not to be enjoined because there was necessarily incident to such use discomfort and inconvenience to nearby home owners. Oliver v. Forney Cotton Oil & Ginning Co. (Civ. App.) 236 S. W. 1094.

A live stock barn is not a nuisance per se, but when the act of the parties owning the building is to use it in such a way as will constitute a nuisance, and the nuisance is imminent, the parties seeking relief are entitled to writ of injunction against its erection. Jacobs & Wright v. Brigham (Civ. App.) 237 S. W. 219.

A garage is not a nuisance per se, but may become one when established and operated in a strictly residential section, and the construction and operation of a garage in a section of the city in which such a business has never been carried on, and which has been used exclusively for residential purposes, where the establishment and operation of the garage will seriously injure the health of the residents, impair the value of their properties, increase the fire risk of such properties, and render the vicinity undesirable as a residential district, will be enjoined. Lee v. Lewis v. Berney (App.) 259 S. W. 246.

51. Public or private injury.—Unless it should appear that a cotton gin cannot be used or controlled so as not to injure adjacent property, plaintiffs cannot enjoin its erection, for, business of ginning being legitimate, and not a nuisance per se, it is presumed that it will be conducted in such a manner as not to injure any one. Stiebier v. Ward (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 729.

Owner of land materially affected in value by obstruction of public highway has the right to restrain such obstruction, having sustained a special injury different from that sustained by general public. Santa Fé Town-Site Co. v. Norvell (Civ. App.) 297 S. W. 260.

59. Corporate acts and proceedings.—As writ of Injunction is auxiliary to main suit, and cannot be maintained separately, district court had jurisdiction to grant writ of temporary injunction enjoining persons from voting shares of stock in company, title to which was being litigated on appeal from district court's judgment. Needham v. Arno Co-op. Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 87.

In suit to restrain defendants from voting stock and controlling affairs of irrigation company, allegations of petition with exhibits held sufficient as to affirmative and negative averments to be basis of writ of temporary injunction. Id.

65. Interference with right to water.—Injunction is a proper remedy to a riparian owner on navigable stream, whose rights as such have been unlawfully invaded or interfered with. King v. Scharf (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1039.

A municipal corporation, owning a watersupply system, is not entitled to injunction restraining others from using water from a stream, unless it shows that it has that right as a riparian owner, or by limitations, or by permit, under Acts 343 Leg. c. 171, and chapter 127 (arts. 5107-1 to 5107-105), and Acts 34th Leg. c. 138, with reference to use of public water. Miller v. City of Ballinger (Civ. App.) 294 S. W. 1173.

68. Hearing and determination of application for injunction.—In a suit for a permanent mandatory injunction to abate a nuisance, an order entered in vacation, denying a temporary injunction, is not res judicata on final hearing; art. 1714, empowering the court, in vacation by consent of parties to enter final judgment, being inapplicable, as actions of this kind are controlled by the injunction statutes. City of Seymour v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 309 S. W. 537.

The power to grant injunctions in term time or vacation carries with it the power to refuse such writs in term time or vacation. Elder v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 243.

68(2). Application to non-resident judge.—An Injunction issued by a nonresident district judge was not erroneously thought that the resident judges were disqualified by interest. City of Dallas v. Armour & Co. (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 222.

69. Decree.—Decree enjoining removal by railroad company of division headquarters from town held not erroneous though it enjoined removal of superintendent and train dispatchers, etc., from such town nor as prescribing company's train schedules, etc., Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. City of Ennis (Civ. App.) 291 S. W. 556.

In suit to enjoin live stock inspectors acting under the Live Stock Commission from dipping cattle for tick eradication without statutory warrant, the court erred in rendering judgment perpetuating injunction and taxing costs against a defendant, who had resigned before institution of suit and another who resigned before trial. Castlemen v. Rainey (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 630.

In suit to restrain defendant from interfering with plaintiff's use and possession of property, a reference for her claims in exchange of defendant's disputed plaintiff's title and sought to recover it for themselves, it was not improper for the court to render judgment against defendants for title and possession. Sykes v. Fisch (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 217.

INJUNCTIONS

Where a city was entitled to priority in the use of waters of a stream, which it had dammed, for the domestic uses of its inhabitants, as against other riparian proprietors who were using the waters for irrigation, at the city's suit the court should have issued a restraining order preventing the irrigators from using the water for that purpose until further order, and should not have perpetually restrained them from using the waters for irrigation in so far as the use would interfere, or threaten to interfere, with satisfaction of the city's domestic needs. Grogan v. City of Brownwood (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 532.

Where suit was brought to enjoin a commissioners' court from paying and an abstract company from receiving money under a contract alleged to be invalid, and the defendants appeared on the trial and moved that the suit be dismissed, and showed that they had voluntarily rescinded the contract, the court properly dismissed the case. Graves v. Commissioners' Court of Milam County (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 554.

72. — Uncertainty.—Decree enjoining railroad company from removing division headquarters from town held not erroneous as uncertain or indefinite. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. City of Ennis (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 256.

In suit to restrain nuisance of hog ranch near plaintiff's land situated on a tract of 50 acres only 4 acres of which nearest plaintiff's was so used, injunction merely restraining use of such land as to constitute a nuisance was erroneous as too vague, indefinite, and uncertain, and amounting to absolute prohibition against the conducting of a hog ranch anywhere on the 50-acre tract. Royalty v. Strange (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 879.

73. — Modification.—In suit by father to annul marriage of minor son, temporary injunction restraining defendant and her counsel from communicating with son will be modified so as to permit communication for purpose of ascertaining what son's testimony will be at trial. Thompson v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 263 S. W. 399.

Art. 4643a. Same; mining operations.—No injunction or temporary restraining order, shall be issued by any judge of this State prohibiting any sub-surface drilling or mining operations on the application of any adjacent land owner, claiming injury to his surface or improvements, or loss of, or injury to the minerals thereunder, unless the person, corporation or partnership against whom drilling or mining operations is alleged as a wrongful act is shown to be unable to respond in damages for any injury that may result from drilling or mining operations; provided, however, that the person, corporation or partnership against whom such injunction is sought shall enter into a bond with one or more sufficient sureties, in such sum as the judge hearing the said application and having jurisdiction thereof shall fix, securing the complainant in the payment of any injuries that may be sustained by such complainant as the result of such drilling or mining operations; provided, that the court may, when he deems it necessary to protect any or all interest involved in such litigation, in lieu of such bond, appoint a trustee with such powers as the court may prescribe or appoint a receiver under the provisions of the statute, to take charge of and hold the minerals produced from the lands of the complainant or the proceeds thereof subject to the final disposition of such litigation. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 162, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Right to injunction.—Where defendant, who asserted rights in oil lands claimed by the state, secured a temporary injunction restraining licensees from proceeding with operation, the state is not entitled to a temporary injunction restraining defendant from drilling wells on the lines between its own lands and those in controversy on the theory such wells would drain oil from under the lands in controversy, but the state should seek relief from the court's granting the first injunction, for, while oil belongs to the owner of the lands, it is part thereof, yet, when it escapes and comes into the control of another, the title of the first person is gone. Prairie Oil & Gas Co. v. State (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 1088.

Art. 4644. Appeals allowed to courts of civil appeals.—Any party or parties to any civil suit wherein a temporary injunction may be granted or refused or having been granted shall on motion be dissolved, or when motion to dissolve has been overruled, under any of the provisions of this title, in term time or in vacation, may appeal from the order or judgment granting or refusing, or dissolving or refusing to dissolve such injunction, to the court of Civil Appeals having jurisdiction of such appeal; but such appeal shall not have the effect to suspend the order appealed from, unless it shall be so ordered by the court or judge who enters the order; provided, the transcript in such case shall be filed with the clerk of the Court of Civil Appeals not later than twenty days after the entry of record of such order or judgment granting, refusing dissolving or refusing to dissolve such injunction. [Acts 1909, p. 354, § 2; Acts 1907, p. 206, § 2; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 17, § 1']

Nature of proceeding.—An order dissolving an injunction is ordinarily interlocutory. Harris v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1068.

Writ of error from Supreme Court.—Supreme Court has jurisdiction to grant writs of error in appeals from interlocutory orders granting injunctions under art. 4644, 4645, 4646, such not being of that class of cases in which determination of the Court of Civil Appeals is final under art. 1521 as amended 1913. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Village Mills Co., 109 Tex. 169, 202 S. W. 725.

A "temporary injunction," means that interlocutory injunction provided for by the other articles of the chapter, and is not restricted to a restraining order. Hoskins v. Cauble (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 629.

Notice of the filing of an answer nor a motion to dissolve the injunction deprives defendant in an injunction proceeding of the right to appeal from a temporary writ granted upon an ex parte hearing. Miller v. City of Ballinger (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1173.

A judgment dissolving a temporary injunction restraining execution and awarding fixed sum to defendant in injunction upon a plea of reconvention, constitutes a final appealable judgment denying plaintiff an injunction all relief and giving defendant a judgment against plaintiff and his sureties on the cross-action. McKenzie v. Withers (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 503.

In action to enjoin sale of property upon ground that judgment on which order of sale was issued was not a final judgment, the Court of Civil Appeals will not entertain appeal from interlocutory order denying application for temporary injunction, after sale has taken place and the subject-matter of such appeal has ceased to exist, to determine question of finality of the judgment, since such question can be raised on appeal from the final judgment. Whitesides v. Wood (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 333.

The trial judge's exercise of discretion in granting immediate injunction against lessor ostating them, notwithstanding defendant's denial under oath of a written lease, would be subject to review by the Court of Civil Appeals on appeal by the party aggrieved. Phoebus v. Connellee (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1019.

Where general demurrer challenged only the sufficiency of the petition to entitle plaintiffs to temporary injunction, and motion to set aside order granting injunction expressly limited defendant's appearance for such purpose, it was in effect a motion to dissolve the injunction for insufficiency of the petition to entitle plaintiffs to such relief, and order denying it was appealable. Vogelsang v. Gray (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 635.

Under the statute, the trial court having authority to deny application for permanent injunction in action, his order so doing was a final judgment from which appeal could be taken. Elder v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 243.

The Court of Appeals has jurisdiction to entertain appeals from orders granting, refusing, or dissolving a temporary injunction. Phoebus v. Connellee (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 92.

Notice of appeal.—A temporary injunction order may be made in chambers, out of term and without notice or hearing, a notice of appeal is not necessary to give a right of appeal from such order; the general law (art. 2084) requiring exceptions to the ruling of the trial court and notice of appeal therefrom having no application, but to appeal from a final judgment perpetuating an injunction made in open court upon a hearing in term time in a trial upon the merits of the case, exception and notice of appeal required by the general law (art. 2084) is necessary, and where no exception was taken and notice given the appeal must be dismissed. Blaylock v. Bloomb (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 864.

Entry of record of order and time for appeal.—Appeal from order refusing mandatory injunction will be dismissed; transcript not being filed in the Court of Civil Appeals within 15 days after entry of record of the order. Brown v. Levingston (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 861.

Where a temporary injunction was granted on September 18th, and on October 20th a motion to dissolve was overruled, an appeal taken November 4th is too late, for under the statute an appeal from the granting of a temporary injunction must be taken within 15 days, and the action of the court on October 20th in no way modified or changed the original injunction, hence, appeal not having been taken in time, it must be dismissed. Jowell v. Lamb (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 897.
The requirement that transcript on appeal from order refusing temporary injunction be filed in an appellate court within 15 days after entry of record of the order, is imperative and jurisdictional; so that, filing being later, appeal will be dismissed. Scott v. Board of Trustees of Waco Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 253.

Where all that appears in the transcript on appeal is a docket entry stating that a temporary writ of injunction was dissolved, the appellate court acquires no jurisdiction of the appeal, such not being "an entry of record" as contemplated by this article. Stripling v. Partin (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 527.

Effect of appeal.—Under this article, as amended by Acts 36th Leg. (1919) c. 17, where the trial court did not order that an order denying an application for a temporary injunction was dissolved, the appellate court acquires no jurisdiction of the appeal, such not being "an entry of record" as contemplated by this article. Odem v. Cain (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1079.

Where a restriction in an injunction limited the extent of the life thereof to the date of the further order of the district court of the county, filing of supersedeas bond by plaintiff appellants in the suit did not suspend the final decree and continue the temporary injunction in effect pending the decision of the Court of Civil Appeals. Garit­ty v. Halbert (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 196.

Art. 4645. Proceedings on appeal.—It shall not be necessary to brief such case in the Court of Civil Appeals or Supreme Court, and the case may be heard in the said courts on the bill and answer, and such affidavits and evidence as may have been admitted by the judge granting, refusing, dissolving or refusing to dissolve such injunction; provided the appellant may file a brief in the Court of Civil Appeals or Supreme Court; but such appellant shall furnish the appellee with a copy thereof not later than two days before the case is called for submission in such court, and the appellee shall have until the day the case is called for submission to answer such brief. [Acts 1909, p. 354, § 3; Acts 1907, p. 206, § 3; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 17, § 2.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Briefs and assignments of error.—If appellant, on appeal from order on temporary injunction, elects under this article to brief the case, brief need not comply with rules for ordinary appeals. Tyree v. Road Dist. No. 5, Navarro County (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 644.

While it is the better practice on an appeal from an order refusing a temporary injunction for the parties to make assignments of error and file briefs, yet it is not necessary to do so. Moore v. Norton (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 373.

Discretion of lower court.—The granting or refusing of a temporary injunction is within the sound discretion of the district court, and that court's action is not reviewable on appeal, unless it clearly appears from the record that there has been an abuse of such discretion. Sutherland v. City of Winnboro (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 63; Houston Electric Co. v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 198; Ward County Water Improvement Dist. No. 5 v. Ward County Irr. Dist. No. 1 (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 490; Beirne v. North Texas Gas Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 301.

An appellate court will not ordinarily interfere with the exercise of discretion by a trial judge in respect to a temporary mandatory injunction in vacation, unless a right is clearly shown to exist which recognition has not been properly accorded. People's Guaranty State Trust Co. v. Tynan (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 27; Castle v. Texas (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 300.

The trial judge's exercise of discretion in granting lessens an injunction against lessor ousting them, notwithstanding defendant's denial under oath of a written lease, would be subject to review by the Court of Civil Appeals on appeal by the party aggrieved; but such court has no original jurisdiction to exercise that discretion, which is lodged in the trial judge. Phoebus v. Connell (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1019.

A broad discretion is vested in the trial court regarding temporary injunctions, but a denial thereof based on lack of power may be reviewed by the appellate court, without interfering with such discretionary power. Blume v. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 831.

Denial of a temporary injunction rested largely in the discretion of the trial court, and its action will not be disturbed in the absence of abuse of discretion, particularly where such determination is made upon conflicting evidence. George v. Jonenville Oil & Gas Co. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 445.

Consideration of pleadings and evidence.—Answer filed after orders for receiver and injunction had been made in divorce suit cannot be considered on appeal from orders. Clauneh v. Claunch (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 950; Thompson v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 175.

Where case is before Court of Civil Appeals on appeal from order granting tempo­rary injunction court must consider all orders presented for consideration. City of Brownsville v. Fernandez (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 112.

On appeal from an order granting a temporary injunction, ex parte and in chambers, only the record as it existed at the time the writ was granted can be considered. Moore v. Plott (Civ. App.) 296 S. W. 966.

The allegations of the petition are taken as true upon review, and it is not essential to the jurisdiction of the appellate court that an answer to the merits should have been filed. State v. Houston (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 293.

On appeal from order dissolving temporary injunction, where there is no statement of facts and no information for appellate court as to any evidence which may have been heard and considered by the court except the affidavits filed, the court will affirm order of dissolution, unless the facts shown by the petition and motion to dissolve disclosed order to be erroneous. Obets & Harris v. Speed (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 318.

Questions reviewed.—Where, on appeal from order refusing to dissolve temporary injunction, the transcript was filed in the Court of Civil Appeals within 15 days from the order granting such injunction, that court has jurisdiction to determine whether the original writ was authorized by the pleadings, although not to consider any of the proceedings after that time, or to review the action of the court in refusing to dissolve the injunction. Howard v. Rushing (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 965.

Where, of fact by the trial court, which granted temporary injunction, when supported by evidence, will not be disturbed on appeal. Oil Lease & Royalty Syndicate v. Beeler (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1054.

Dismissal of appeal.—Where the transcript consisted solely of the order refusing the injunction, the appeal bond, and the clerk's cost bill and certificate, the appeal will be dismissed, as the court could not determine whether the judge erred in refusing the injunction. Baker v. Nipper (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 596.

An appeal from an interlocutory order denying application for temporary injunction to restrain sale of property will be dismissed, where sale has taken place; it being impossible for court to decide except a moot question. Whitesides v. Wood (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 333.

The relief prayed for by plaintiff in an injunction suit against the sale of property by the defendant was granted, where the sale has taken place subsequently to the rendition of judgment in the trial court, so that the appeal therefrom involves only moot questions, except in so far as the determination of costs is concerned. Brown v. Fleming (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 453.

Where an application to join the commissioners of a road district from paying an attorney's fee was denied, and the appeal did not suspend the order denying the writ, and the fee was paid, the appeal must be dismissed; the case having become moot. Odem v. Cain (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1079.

Where, pending an appeal from an order refusing to enjoin payment of money, money was paid, the rule is to dismiss the case and not the appeal. Flood v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 194.

Determination and disposition in general.—That material allegations were denied under oath held not to justify a reversal of judgment granting temporary injunction, in absence of abuse of discretion. City of Dallas v. Atkins (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 596.

In suit for temporary injunction restraining defendant from selling intoxicating liquors at retail, after defendant's appeal from injunction order, he having given bond conditioned as a supersedeas bond, the state, on motion to the Court of Civil Appeals, is entitled to injunction restraining defendant from pursuing the occupation, and the Court of Civil Appeals will not deny the motion on equitable ground of balancing injury to state against injury to dealer by being deprived, in case of reversal, of privilege of pursuing lawful business. Ford v. State (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 490.

If a decree refusing to grant an injunction was permissible under the verified pleadings of the parties, and did not constitute a clear abuse of discretion, its validity is not affected, nor will it be reversed on appeal, merely because the trial court based its decision upon an erroneous ground. Houston Electric Co. v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 198.

An order overruling motion to dissolve an injunction based on conflicting evidence will not be disturbed on appeal. Cooks', Walters' & Waitresses' Union, No. 399, v. Theoharis (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 984.

Affirmance.—Where judgment rendered does not purport to give reasons for denying injunction, court on appeal is required to affirm judgment, if plaintiff's petition was subject to special exceptions directed against it, or if evidence failed to sustain cause of action, though well pleaded. King v. Schaff (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1039.

A judgment of the appellate court granting the motion, erroneously denied by the court, to dissolve a temporary injunction against enforcing a judgment for possession of land, does not prevent a trial on the merits of the suit to set aside the judgment any more than would a similar judgment of the court below. Lewright v. Reese (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 270.

Art. 4646. Case to have precedence on appeal.

See Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Village Mills Co. 109 Tex. 169, 202 S. W. 725.

Construction and application.—This article had no application, where at the time of dissolving the temporary injunction the court also heard evidence and passed on the merits of the application for a permanent injunction and denied such injunction. Early Foster Co. v. Mid-Tex Mills (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 1117.

Art. 4647. [2990] No injunction against a judgment, except, etc.

Injunction against judgment or execution.—Dismissal by county court of appeal from judgment of justice for less than $100 for want of jurisdiction because appeal bond has not been approved within time required being final and reviving judgment of justice, it could not be attacked in suit to restrain execution thereon. Womack v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 607.

The judgment creditor, as the one having the real interest in the subject-matter, is a necessary party to suit to enjoin a constable from levying execution on the ground of the judgment being void. Nail v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 715.

— Tender of amount due.—A judgment debtor who had been garnisheed in an action against his creditor is entitled to restrain execution on the judgment, though he fails to tender the excess of the amount of the judgment over the claim of plaintiff in garnishment, in view of art. 275, which prevents garnishees from paying any debt to the defendant in garnishment after service of writ. O'Brien v. Barcus (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 941.

— Grounds for injunction in general.—An injunction is the proper remedy to restrain the levy of an execution for the county attorney's commissions upon a judgment for a fine which was before the issue of the execution remitted by the governor. Smith v. State, 26 Tex. App. 49, 9 S. W. 274.

Defendants, as sureties on a treasurer's bond, prayed relief from a judgment and execution levied thereon, the ground that their attorneys had failed to show that they signed the bond on condition that two other responsible persons should sign it, whose signatures the principal and one of the county commissioners promised but failed to procure, and that the bond was accepted by the county commissioners' court without their knowledge had not been obtained. Held, that as the defense would have been unavailable in the suit on the bond, the proceedings on the judgment will not be enjoined. Ballow v. Wichita County, 74 Tex. 339, 12 S. W. 48.

Although the jury found that defendant was prevented from defending a suit by the fraud of plaintiff, defendant was not entitled to injunct the judgment, where the jury also found that defendant was liable for the debt on which the judgment was based, although the debt was barred by limitations, plaintiff not having alleged that she would have pleaded limitations. Watts v. Baker (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 623.

— Void judgments.—Judgment in cause submitted to judge is not void, so as to authorize enjoining of execution thereon, because rendered within two days of end of term, contrary to District and County Courts Rule 66 (142 S. W. xxi). Meredith v. Flanagan (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 787.

In suit to enjoin enforcement of judgment, that moneys sued for and for which judgment was rendered were in the custody of another court was a matter of defense, which should have been pleaded and urged in the suit, and could not render the judgment in the suit void. Kerr v. Hume (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 905.

Art. 4649. [2992] Injunctions granted on sworn petition.

Petition in general.—Where petition prays for a permanent injunction “on final hearing,” and does not ask for a temporary injunction, the latter cannot be granted. Hopkins v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 629.

Requisites of petition.—The rule of pleading that the statements of a party are to be taken most strictly against him is reinforced in injunction suits by the further requirement that the material and essential elements which entitle him to relief shall be sufficiently and reasonably stated, from which it might be deduced that he might not, under other supposable facts connected with the subject, be entitled to relief. San Antonio Fire Fighters' Local Union No. 84 v. Bell (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 506; Grayson County v. Harrell (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 74; City of Ballinger (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1173; Texas Novelty Advertis­ing Co. v. Bay Trading Co. (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 729; Davis v. Santa Rosa Infirmary (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 125.

In suits for injunction, the pleadings must specifically and clearly state the grounds for the remedy. City of Forney v. Mounger (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 240.

Where petition to enjoin execution on ground of fraud in violating agreement not to take personal judgment against purchaser of property subject to vendor's lien notes is not brought until three years after judgment, petition should exhibit due diligence. Boykin v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 611.

— Verification.—The affidavit must state that the facts upon which the applicant relieves to sustain his injunction are true, and an affidavit on information and belief is insufficient. Butler v. Remington (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 224; Gray v. S. T. Woodring Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 221; Lingwiler v. Lingwiler (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 785; Wilkinson v. Lyon (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 628; Wilkening v. Wolff (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 598.

Art. 4633, authorizing such temporary orders in divorce as are deemed necessary and equitable, does not dispense with requirement of this article that petition in divorce suit for injunction be verified. Lingwiler v. Lingwiler (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 785.

In suit by wife to obtain divorce and recover her separate property and community interest, verification to petition for injunction restraining defendants from disposing of 1296 property, held to sufficiently indicate the matter sworn to as true and those sworn to on belief. Cores v. Coes (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 157.

Successful in the application of injunction because on information and belief, held waived by defendant appellees, who addressed no special exception to petition, but relied solely on general demurrer and lack of jurisdiction, complaining of improper verification only in Court of Civil Appeals. Wilkinson v. Lycan (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 633.

It is an article applies to a divorce proceeding, wherein district court, by article 4635, has special authority to make temporary orders respecting property of parties, verification of petition for divorce, irregular in that it was not before notary public who was permitted to record, subject to amendment, and does not meet jurisdiction of district court to enter order prohibiting disposition of property of community estate. Ex parte Gregory, 210 S. W. 204.

In a minor son's suit in trespass to try title to recover under his mother's second will half of certain land left by her first will wholly to her second husband, verification of plaintiff's pleadings held sufficient to sustain issuance of injunction. Carr v. Froelich (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 137.

Petition for injunction is sufficiently verified when signed by the petitioner, and the jurat or other officer shows it was sworn to and subscribed before him. Kendrick v. Folk (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 828.

The form of affidavit verifying petition for injunction may be questioned for the first time on appeal. Butler v. Remington (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 224.

Sufficiency of petition.—In suit to restrain defendants from voting stock and controlling affairs of irrigation company, allegations of petition with exhibits held sufficient as to affirmative and negative averments to be basis of writ of temporary injunction. Needham v. Arno Co-op. Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 887.

Petition in suit by water company, to restrain numerous actions to recover back meter rent, rent, and entailing it as a base of action, entitled to temporary injunction. San Antonio Water Supply Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 631.

Petition to restrain sale under power in mortgage, based on uncertainty as to capacity in which defendant held it, held insufficient, not showing he would not execute release in every capacity, and there being remedy by Interpleader, with payment into court. McAllen v. Brownsville Masonic Temple Ass'n (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 660.

A petition, in a suit to enjoin execution on a justice's judgment from which an appeal had been taken, held sufficient as against a general demurrer, notwithstanding it did not specifically allege to what court the appeal was taken; it appearing that there was but one court to which such appeal could legally be taken. Kieschnick v. Martin (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 948.

Petition of cattle owners to enjoin live stock inspectors from requiring the dipping of cattle to eradicate ticks without statute or warrant held not subject to special exception as not alleging facts showing that plaintiffs would suffer irreparable injury, alleging that plaintiffs' stock would be seriously crippled and bruised, while as to much cows there would be a total or at least a partial loss of milk and butter. Castleman v. Rainey (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 690.

In suit by the state to enjoin the operation of a moving picture show on Sunday as in violation of Penal Code, art. 302, a petition failing to allege facts showing that defendant was actually conducting such a show in violation of the statute held insufficient. Barry v. State (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 304.

Petition held to state cause of action for injunction to restrain removal of oil drilling equipment and casing delivered to plaintiff under an executed contract. Hinton v. D'Yarman (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 518.

A petition to enjoin execution on ground of fraud in violating agreement not to take personal judgment against petitioner as purchaser of property subject to vendor's lien notes, held deficient where not alleging a defense to suit if no agreement had been made. Boykin v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 611.

In enforcement of default judgment foreclosure improvement certificate against plaintiff's property, the petition, alleging that she employed a named attorney to file an answer and take such steps as were necessary to her proper defense, and that she assumed he had answered, and that she was not apprised of the rendition of judgment against her until about 30 days before the instant suit was filed, was insufficient as a legal reason or excuse for failing to appear or answer. Eureka Paving Co. v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 903.

Petition for injunction by fence owners, alleging that defendant tore the fence down, converted the material to his own use, threatened to kill an owner, if he found him on the land, etc., held insufficient to entitle plaintiffs to injunction. Graham v. Knight (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 526.

Portion of petition of taxpayers for injunction against construction of road by commissioners, alleging that building of the road would exhaust funds of bond issue and preclude building of other roads in vicinity of their lands, etc., held to present nothing as basis for interference by the court. Tippett v. Gates (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 232.

In a suit by a purchaser of a millinery business to restrain vendor from re-engaging in such business in her own name after having entered into an employment contract with complainant, petition held good as against general demurrer. Lomax v. Trull (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 861.

Allegation of petition for injunction against erection of buildings for lumber yard as nuisance as to likelihood of diseases being brought into and kept in yard, asserted merely probability or uncertain contingency, and was insufficient to invoke injunctive relief. DuPont v. Scheurrier (Clv. App.) 198 S. W. 1969.

Objection that petition does not state amount of tax that will be collected from petitioner stockholders is met by allegation that assessed value of property of one is $30,900, and other $18,600. Veltmann v. Slate (Clv. App.) 206 S. W. 539.

A party's court from allowing county officials to buy postage stamps from county funds, which did not name officers who were going to buy stamps nor the amount thereof, was too indefinite. Edmondson v. Cumings (Clv. App.) 203 S. W. 428.

Pleading a conclusion that petitioners for injunction were owners of the fee in a street in the absence of special exception thereto or general denial held to warrant introduction of evidence of ownership of fee. City of Orange v. Rector (Clv. App.) 205 S. W. 503.

Where a petition and affidavit for injunction to restrain the commissioners' court from canvassing election returns and declaring the results stated that the plaintiffs desired to file a contest of election against M., and that M. absented himself so that notice thereof could not be served upon him, an injunction should not have been issued, because in failing to negative other than personal modes of serving notice of contest there was no showing that plaintiff did not have an adequate remedy at law. Moore v. Plott (Clv. App.) 206 S. W. 958.

Petition to enjoin consolidation of school districts for purpose of high school advantages held to allege facts as to inaccessibility of proposed high school building to plaintiffs' children, and as to assessment of their property to pay bonds, justifying relief sought. Wilkinson v. Lyon (Clv. App.) 207 S. W. 638.

Where petition to enjoin defendants from driving petitioner's cattle from certain land, alleged that petitioner owned one-fourth of a designated section, but did not further describe same, it did not authorize an injunction. White v. McFadden (Clv. App.) 209 S. W. 766.

Where a petition for injunction to restrain defendants from driving petitioner's cattle from certain land failed to allege that petitioner was entitled to possession of the land, and did not negative the defendants' right to possession thereof under lease and to drive away cattle other than their own, it was error to grant a temporary restraining order on an ex parte hearing. Id.

In a suit to enjoin a city from interfering with reconstruction of stables destroyed as constituting a nuisance, allegation of the petition held not sufficient, because failing to show that the building intended to be erected could properly be built under the ordinance of the City of Forney v. Mounger (Clv. App.) 210 S. W. 249.

Petition against live stock inspectors to enjoin them from requiring dipping of cattle of several owners without statutory warrant, also plea of intervention filed by other cattle owners which adopted the allegations of the petition, held sufficiently specific as to nature of acts sought to be prevented, the persons threatening the acts, and the injury or damage which would result. Castleman v. Rainey (Clv. App.) 211 S. W. 630.

In a proceeding by a street railway to restrain a city from enforcing an ordinance reducing fares, bill held not to show that reduced fare was unreasonable, unjust, or insufficient to maintain and pay a fair return upon the value of the property. Houston Electric Co. v. City of Houston (Clv. App.) 212 S. W. 198.

In a petition for injunction, the averment of material and essential elements must be sufficiently certain to negative every inference of the existence of facts under which petition was held to be entitled to relief. Emde v. Johnson (Clv. App.) 214 S. W. 672.

In a suit to enjoin defendants from maintaining fences or other obstructions in and upon certain streets in a named town, a petition alleging that plaintiff was the owner of certain blocks, forming part of a large body of land which had been dedicated to the public use, and had recognized the plan of dedication, and naming the streets alleged to be constructed, held sufficiently to identify the premises obstructed, since the map might be referred to, although not made a part of the petition. Zoeller v. Offer (Clv. App.) 216 S. W. 1113.

Petition for temporary injunction to restrain defendant from coming about plaintiff's premises and molesting him held insufficient as not negativeing reasonable inference from facts stated that defendant was in possession of land involved prior to plaintiff's alleged purchase of an interest therein, etc. Wilkening v. Wolff (Clv. App.) 220 S. W. 588.

A petition of cattle owners to enjoin live stock inspectors from requiring the dipping of cattle, alleging that plaintiff's stock would be seriously crippled and bruised, and that there would be a total or partial loss of milk or butter as to milch cows, held good as against demurrer. McCollum v. McManus (Clv. App.) 222 S. W. 583.

Petition against mineral company and its trustees to restrain issuance of stock and payment of dividends to persons who signed trust agreement, not showing that the trustees were about to violate the terms of the agreement, they having the right to issue stock and pay dividends, held insufficient as against general demurrer. Townsend v. Durfee Mineral Co. (Clv. App.) 222 S. W. 876.

A petition, seeking to enjoin a party chairman from acting as such after the election of his successor who had not accepted, is insufficient, where it does not negative the existence of a party usage or rule that such officer hold over until his successor qualified, even if that office were not subject to the general rule to that effect. Walker v. Hopping (Clv. App.) 226 S. W. 146.

Evidence.—That plaintiff, enjoining defendant's threatened sale of automobile, originally sued for its possession, with no count for its value, raised presumption that it is

In a suit for injunction to compel removal of a ditch constructed by defendant across plaintiff's land, the special warranty deed from plaintiff's vendor was admissible as a link in his chain of title, though petition did not allege title from the sovereignty, where he testified without objection that he was the owner of the lot, and other undisputed evidence carried his title back to the sovereignty of the soil. East Side Realty Co. v.
Fowler (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 999.

Evidence, in suit to enjoin collection of tax, that board of equalization placed on plaintiff's property a value grossly in excess of that under its rule held sufficient, at least, to raise issue of arbitrary discrimination. City of Sweetwater v. Biard Development Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 801.

In suit to enjoin live stock inspectors from dipping plaintiffs' cattle for tick eradication without statutory warrant or improperly as without inspection and in injurious chemicals, evidence held sufficient to raise the issue that the mixture in which the inspectors threatened to dip the cattle was not properly proportioned or mixed and was

In a suit to enjoin lessee under an oil lease from drilling a well, as having forfeited his right to sink a well in a given time on lessor's land "or on one of the adjoining sur-ing that he was not of the general agreement with lots purchased that all lots in subdivision should be subject to the same restrictions. Wilson Co. v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 224

S. W. 703.

It is not necessary that the proof should establish with absolute certainty the impairment of a right to justify the court in granting a temporary injunction which merely maintains the status quo until the final hearing. Sutherland v. City of Winnaboo
(Civ. App.) 235 S. W. 63.

On the hearing of an application for a temporary injunction, affidavits are admissible in evidence, and their admission is a common practice. Hill v. Brown (Civ. App.)
235 S. W. 780.

In suit to enjoin the inspector for a county and local inspectors from requiring cattle to be dipped under the Tick Eradication Statute (art. 7314 et seq.), evidence held insufficient to show the law was being unreasonably and oppressively administered.

In a suit to enjoin an obstruction of an alley by construction of a building, evidence held ample to support a finding that the plaintiff suffered no special or peculiar injury

Art. 4650. [2993] Judge's fiat to be indorsed on petition.

Extent of order.—In a proceeding in the nature of a quo warranto to oust a county judge, an order fixing date for hearing and temporarily restraining the respondent from receiving a warrant or salary held to be a temporary injunction, as distinguished from temporary restraining order, effective only until a time during which it has life is fixed

In suit for injunction, where the judge granted a temporary writ and indorsed his fiat on the petition setting certain date for the hearing as to whether a writ should be issued to operate until final hearing and directing the clerk to issue notice to the defendant, the injunction granted on such fiat expired on the date set for the hearing, so that the case thereafter stood as if the court had not ordered the writ. Belime v. North Texas Gas Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 301.

Art. 4651. [2994] Notice to opposite party, when.

Power to issue ex parte injunction.—Under the statute, matter of notice to defendants of plaintiff's application for injunction is in discretion of trial judge, and Court of Appeals is not authorized to reverse injunction order on ground notice was not given.
INJUNCTIONS

Art. 4651

In wife's divorce action court had the right to issue injunction restraining husband from interfering with wife in harvesting of certain crops and in the use of certain teams and implements and in driving and intruding on her premises, without notice to husband. Hunt v. Hunt (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 228.

Necessity for notice and hearing.—That defendant, having replevied an automobile claimed by plaintiff, was threatening to sell it without right, justified granting a temporary restraining order against defendant without a hearing. Sweeney v. Alderete (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 357.

On petition to vacate judgment and enjoin enforcement, it is the court's duty to determine the rights of the parties to a judgment on the pleadings and evidence, and it is error to enjoin enforcement of the judgment without a hearing. Reed & Reed v. McKee (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 717.

Granting a temporary injunction restraining defendants from driving the petitioner's cattle away from certain land, without a hearing, was not such an abuse of the court's discretion as to constitute error, where it was alleged that the cattle could get water at no other place in the vicinity. White v. McFaddin (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 766.

To be entitled to an injunction upon an ex parte hearing, and without notice, the plaintiff must show by proper allegations a right in himself to do the act which he seeks to perpetuate, and must negative every possible hypothesis upon which defendant might lawfully do the act which he seeks to enjoin, and plaintiff must show immediate and pressing necessity which prevents a hearing. Gill v. McFaddin (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 613.

Showing.—Where temporary injunction is granted on ex parte hearing, all allegations, including the prayer for relief, should be construed strictly against the petitioner, and the relief granted should not be broader than the prayer. White v. McFaddin (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 766.

Petition of pasture land owner to restrain removal of dam, erected to impound water for his cattle in dry season, held insufficient to entitle him to injunction upon an ex parte hearing, as showing, that his land abuted upon the bayou, or that defendant was not the owner of the land or entitled to the water. Gill v. McFaddin (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 722.

Art. 4652. [2995] Petition to be filed and cause docketed.

Art. 4653. [2996] Writs, where returnable.

Application.—This article applies to suits going to the validity of the judgment, and not to suits to prevent the sale of property on which the judgment, however valid, is no lien. Van Ratcliff v. Call, 72 Tex. 491, 10 S. W. 578.

This article applies to every one who seeks by injunction to stay the execution of a judgment not void and who, as a party to the original suit, is not in possession of personal property and the main purpose of his suit was to enjoin execution of the judgment foreclosing a chattel mortgage thereon, he cannot avoid the provision requiring return of writ to the court rendering the judgment, on the theory that he sought to quiet his title. Matthews v. Eyres (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 963.

The district court of one county has jurisdiction of a suit to enjoin execution on a justice's judgment rendered in another county from which appeal has been taken to the district court of such county notwithstanding this article; a justice court not having jurisdiction of injunction suits. Kieschnick v. Martin (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 948.

Under art. 1380, subds. 17 and 30, and this article suit to enjoin execution of judgment not void must be brought in county in which judgment was rendered, but where the judgment attacked is void it may be attacked in any court. Price v. Beaird v. Eastland County Land & Abstract Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 478.

The venue of a suit which was primarily to recover possession of land, though injunction is asked as relief ancillary to the main suit, is governed by art. 1336, subd. 14, permitting suit for the recovery of land to be brought in the county where land is situated, not by this article. Evans v. Hudson (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 491.

Where creditor of insured garnisheesee insurer, which paid amount of policy into district court after insured had sued on the policy in county court, and the creditor got judgment which was paid, the district court may perpetually enjoin enforcement of the county court judgment against the insurer, notwithstanding the provision, requiring writs of injunction to stay execution of a judgment to be returnable in the court where the judgment was rendered. North British & Mercantile Ins. Co. of London & Edinburgh v. Klaras (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 298, reforming judgment (Civ. App.) Klaras v. North British & Mercantile Ins. Co. of London & Edinburgh, 200 S. W. 584.

Jurisdiction and venue.—In a petition to enjoin the enforcement of a judgment foreclosing a lien on personal property, on the ground that the judgment creditor converted the property to his own use, and failed to apply it to the judgment, an allegation that Application.—Notwithstanding arts. 4653, 4659, the statute making the giving of a bond a condition precedent to the issuance of an injunction applies to a divorce suit. Ex parte Coward, 110 Tex. 587, 222 S. W. 531.

Provision mandatory.—The provision of this article, that, the complainant shall give bond, is mandatory. Phoebus v. Connellee (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 982; Boykin v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 511.

Issuance without bond.—A temporary injunction issued as directed without a bond is void. Griffith v. State (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 293.

Where an interlocutory injunction was granted without the filing of the bond, the injunction may be upheld, after appeal by the filing of a bond in the amount fixed by the Court of Civil Appeals. Oil Lease & Royalty Syndicate v. Beeler (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1054.

Specifying amount of bond.—In suit to restrain collection of a debt on notes given for the price of machinery, and amounting to approximately $3,200, two bonds given by plaintiff, the first in the sum of $1,000, the second in the sum of $3,000, were insufficient: under the statute bond should have been given in double the amount of the debt. Twin City Co. v. Birchfield (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 616.

The requirement of bond of $6,000 as a condition to the issuance of temporary injunction to restrain the eviction of plaintiff from premises alleged to be worth $15,600, the rental value of which in excess of the amount which plaintiff agreed to pay for premises was greater than the amount of the bond, is not excessive. Phoebus v. Connellee (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 982.

Liability.—Defects in injunction bonds are waived unless attacked by motion to correct or dissolve. Mansfield v. Ramsey (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 230.

It is not contemplated that mistake in making injunction bond to E. E. W. instead of D. E. W., the real name of defendant, shall relieve surety of liability, but the obligee may plead and prove mistake and show true intention of parties. Ables v. Waggoner (Civ. App.) 298 S. W. 563.

Without pleading and proof of mistaken injunction bond in favor of defendant B. E. W., held that judgment against surety on cross-complaint of defendant D. E. W. was unauthorized, despite statutory requirement that bond be payable to adverse party. Id.

Art. 4662. [3005] Citation to issue to defendants.

Necessity for citation.—Where, in injunction suit, defendant filed an answer to the entire petition, in obedience to a notice of the court, both parties thereafter appearing before the judge in chambers, who heard the evidence and refused the temporary writ, such answer constituted an "appearance," under art. 1852, rendering unnecessary the issuance of a citation, as required by art. 4662, where not dispensed with by art. 4662. City of Seymour v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 299 S. W. 237.
Necessary parties defendant.—Where a suit was brought to prevent levy and assessment for the payment of certain bonds, but the petition alleged they were sold to the state board of education, it was demurrable for failure to make the purchaser a party. Walling v. Malone Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 671.

In suit by cattle owners to enjoin live stock inspectors from requiring the dipping of cattle to be enroiled for the ticks without statutory warrant, the several live stock inspectors were properly joined as defendants; the suit not being to recover damages, but to enjoin threatened acts, but the live stock sanitary commission, under whom the inspectors acted, was not a necessary party to the suit. Castlemann v. Rainey (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 439.

Art. 4663. [3006] The answer.

Answer.—In view of art. 4644, giving right of appeal to any party to any civil suit wherein temporary injunction may be granted, and article 4645, relating to briefs and hearing on appeals, and this article, the allegations of the petition are taken as true upon review, and it is then incumbent upon the appellate court that an answer to the merits should have been filed. Griffith v. State (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 293.

Motion to dissolve temporary injunction, containing demurrers and exceptions to plaintiff's petition and a positive and direct denial of all the equities pleaded, in the form of a regular answer to the merits of the case, held an answer. Worm v. Wood (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1016.

— By all parties.—The general rule is that an injunction granted against several defendants will not be dissolved until all defendants implicated have fully answered denying the existence of such facts; but when the defendant denies only the facts with which he is not in controversy and his own personal knowledge, it is allowable to lay such facts before the court as to render it apparent that the complaint establishes no equity, a motion to dissolve may be granted without answer of the other defendants. Harris v. Tarrant (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1068.

— Verification.—Facts alleged in unverified motion to dissolve temporary injunction could not be considered in determining whether the injunction should be dissolved. San Antonio Water Supply Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 631.

An affidavit filed therewith to constitute a properly verified answer which entitled defendant filing it to a dissolution of a temporary injunction thereupon granted. Harris v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1088.

— Sufficiency.—In suit to enjoin inspector of live stock sanitary commission from requiring cattle to be dipped, answer held, in absence of special exception, to sufficiently aver that commission after investigation had quarantined county and declared all cattle and premises therein to be unclean, and had required such cattle to be dipped and to deny essential allegations of petition. Trimble v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 224.

Even a general denial under oath puts in issue allegations of petition for injunction and renders the answer demurrable by proof. Id.

Where an answer in an injunction proceeding contained a general denial, a demurrer to the answer must be overruled. Manton v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 951.

In an action by a physician to enjoin certain physicians, as members of a hospital staff, and the hospital, from interfering with his practice in the hospital, answer filed by an attorney for the hospital reciting that the hospital withdraws from the answer filed by all the defendants held not to be construed as meaning that the plaintiff was entitled to injunction against hospital, although it stated "that the position of this defendant [the hospital] is, and always has been, neutral in the matters involved therein."

Harris v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1068.

In an action by a physician to enjoin members of a hospital staff and a hospital from preventing him from practicing medicine in the hospital, an answer by the members of the staff held to sufficiently refute any wrongful intent or that they conspired to deprive plaintiff of any rights. Id.

Effect.—Even where the sworn answer negatives all the equities set up in the petition, defendants are not entitled as a matter of right to dissolution of injunction, but it is still a question within the sound discretion of the trial court, guided by the facts of the particular case under consideration. Carr v. Froelich (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 157; Staffel v. San Antonio School Board of Education (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 415; Harris v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1069; Graham v. Knight (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 326.

In suit to restrain defendant from pursuing business in town contrary to his agreement when he left firm which took in another member in his place, held that court erred in rendering judgment enjoining defendant, without any evidence being introduced, on pleadings and admission in paragraph of answer. Schläg v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 369.

On motion for an injunction made on bill and answer, statements made under oath in the answer, where responsive to the bill, will be taken as true, and if in such answer, under oath, the facts constituting the claim of the plaintiff for the interposition of the court are controverted by defendant, the court will not generally interfere, but will deny the injunction. Houston Electric Co. v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 198.

In a proceeding in which an injunction and mandamus is sought, submitted on bill and answer, allegations of the bill not specially denied under oath must be taken as true. Id.
INJUNCTIONS

Art. 4664

Where answer denying allegations of petition for injunction is verified general equity practice of refusing the writ should ordinarily be followed. Boykin v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 611.

On motion to dissolve an injunction on bill and answer, the answer, when sworn to, in so far as it is responsive, is taken as true. Harris v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1068.

Where one in possession of land, title to which he claimed to have secured by adverse possession, sought injunction against defendants, who, as he alleged, were trespassing, and for the purpose of avoiding the burden of an action for trespass to try title to possession, but defendants filed a plea of not guilty, such plea put plaintiff to proof of title. Butler v. Borroum (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1115.

Art. 4664. [3007] Dissolution in term time or vacation.

See Harris v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1068.

Notice and service thereof.—It was not error to refuse to quash the service of a motion to dissolve a temporary injunction, though the precept was ambiguous in stating the place to which the motion would be heard, where the plaintiffs appeared at the time the re-issued precept was therefore not misled by the ambiguity. Richardson v. Mayes (Civ. App.) 233 S. W. 546.

Discretion of court.—Where verified answer denied every material allegation in petition and there was no evidence offered in support thereof nor agreement to submit cause on bill and answer, it was discretionary with trial judge to dissolve his temporary restraining order and refuse temporary injunction. Peters v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 989.

The judge had a right to dissolve a temporary injunction, if plaintiff's petition, standing alone, did not entitle it to such injunction. San Antonio Water Supply Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 821.

In a suit by one licensee of a patented process to enjoin others from using an alleged improvement in the territory allotted to him, the refusal to dissolve a temporary injunction on the filing of an answer denying the equities of the suit under oath was not an abuse of discretion in such matters, especially where the dissolution would result in greater hardship and injury than its continuance, or where the complainant by the dissolution would lose benefits which would accrue by its continuance. Southland Sweet Potato Curing & Storage Ass'n v. Beck (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 636.

Right to dissolution.—Where defendants by exceptions in the answer and by motion to dissolve injunction attacked sufficiency of petition, dissolution of injunction after consideration of questions of law held not erroneous, though equities of bill were not denied under oath. Crowell & Conner v. Howard (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 911.

In a suit by the lessee of an oil and gas lease to restrain the purchaser of a part of the land omitted from the lease by mutual mistake from drilling an oil well, it was not an abuse of discretion to dissolve a temporary injunction, where litigation as to the title of the omitted land was pending on conflicting evidence, and irreparable injury might result to defendant by wells drilled on adjacent land by petitioner. Texas Pacific Coal & Oil Co. v. Howard (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 735.

Where taxpayer obtained temporary injunction restraining school trustees and others from tearing down and relocating a school building, on a petition praying therefor, pending an appeal by the taxpayer to the county school superintendent, and the county superintendent and county board of trustees decided in taxpayer's favor, and trustees of the school district filed motion to dissolve the injunction, in answer to which taxpayer filed supplemental petition showing the decision in his favor, court erred in granting the motion and dissolving the temporary injunction; it being alleged in the supplemental petition that the trustees were threatening and preparing to remove the building, regardless of the decision of the county superintendent. Seat v. Jones (Civ. App.) 235 S. W. 308.

Since the statute requiring competitive bidding for all county contracts exceeding $2,000 does not except contracts for the services of an architect or for the purchase of a site for a county courthouse, a temporary injunction, restraining the enforcement of such contracts, made without competitive bids, will not be dissolved, though it might be determined on final hearing that the nature of those contracts created an implied exception from the statutory requirements. Ashby v. James (Civ. App.) 236 S. W. 732.

Where plaintiffs asked for a temporary injunction against school trustees and a county superintendent until they had their appeal from the action of the trustees to the state superintendent and state board of education, and an order was made granting the relief as asked for, the injunction was properly dissolved on a showing that the appeal had been taken and the action of the trustees had been affirmed. McClure v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 236 S. W. 222.

Evidence.—Evidence held to show no defense to deed of trust or secured note, given as liquidated damages, or justification for delaying sale thereunder; so that temporary injunction of sale, granted in suit to cancel note and deed of trust, was properly dissolved on motion. Voelker v. Holderby (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 727.

On motion to dissolve temporary injunction, where plaintiff's pleadings were insufficient as a basis for issuance of injunction, court did not err in refusing to admit testimony to controvert the special allegations in defendant's answer. Worm v. Wood (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1016.

Art. 4665. [3008] Refunding bond on dissolution.

Liability on bond.—Where an association of underwriters was sued in the name of the association, and in order to secure a modification of a temporary injunction a bond was entered into in which the association and the attorneys in fact bound themselves as principals jointly and severally to satisfy any judgment which might be rendered, the attorneys in fact should be bound under their express obligations as principals to pay any judgment that might be rendered against the association. Merchants' & Manufacturers' Lloyd's Ins. Exch. v. Southern Trading Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 312.

Art. 4667. [3010] Damages for delay.

Right to damages in general.—Defendant in injunction suit, wrongfully deprived of his property by the writ by a plaintiff, who claims the property as his own, may treat the suit as a conversion and sue for the value of the property. Anderson v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 784.

Measure and amount of damages.—The wife's action to enjoin a sale of property which had been conveyed to her by the husband in fraud of creditors, in the absence of showing that it was brought for delay, did not merit, on determination against her, the assessment of the penalty of 10 per cent. Quarles v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1112.

Where an injunction restraining defendant from building on his own land was improper, defendant was entitled to compensation for the damages proximately resulting from that restriction, and the measure of damages was, it appearing that defendant intended to occupy the building for his own mercantile purpose, the cost of securing another building, less the expense incident to doing business in the building he intended to erect, but an award of $169 in favor of defendant, held not insufficient, but to exceed the amount to which defendant was entitled by $7. Bryson v. Abney (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 945.

Judgment, on cross-complaint against surety on bond to procure injunction against disposition of notes assigned to defendant by seller of automatic piano to plaintiffs, being for amount of principal, interest, and attorney's fees of notes, held without support in evidence. Ables v. Waggner (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 693.

In a suit to restrain execution under a justice's judgment from which appeal has been taken, actual damages for unlawful issuance and levy of the writ of execution do not include attorney's fees or the expense of attending court. Kieschnick v. Martin (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 948.

Injunction suit, where such issue was not submitted to jury nor requested by either party, though defendant in its answer asked for penalty, provided under this article, held that court erred in allowing defendants 10 per cent. damages in way of statutory penalty. Quarles v. Eaton-Blewett Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 896.

Where a tenant claimed that the landlord had wrongfully excluded him from part of the premises by an injunction, he is not necessarily entitled to recover the value of his share of the crop on land covered by the injunction, where his cattle entered the field and ate or destroyed the crop despite the injunction. Friemel v. Coker (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1106.

Punitive damages are not recoverable for wrongfully suing out a writ of injunction, no matter how improper or malicious the motive. Lomax v. Trull (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 851.

Art. 4670. [3013] Persons guilty to be imprisoned.

Violation of decree and punishment.—Proprietor of motion picture show enjoined at suit of the state from operating on Sunday was not guilty of a contempt through violation of such injunction pending his appeal on account of the operation of his theater by his lessee in good faith who had sole control. State v. Barry (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 957.

Where a tenant claimed that the landlord had wrongfully excluded him from part of the premises by an injunction, he is not necessarily entitled to recover the value of his share of the crop on land covered by the injunction, where his cattle entered the field and ate or destroyed the crop despite the injunction. Friemel v. Coker (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1106.

Punitive damages are not recoverable for wrongfully suing out a writ of injunction, no matter how improper or malicious the motive. Lomax v. Trull (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 851.

Art. 4671. [3014] General principles of equity applicable, when.

Right to injunction.—In granting injunction under art. 4642, the court is not confined to the general rules of equity practice on the subject, and will give relief where applicant has a substantial right cognizable in law that is or is about to be invaded, where injunction is necessary to restrain some act prejudicial to him. Hinton v. D'Yar­mett (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 518.

Effect of general denial.—In a proceeding in which an injunction and mandamus is sought, submitted on bill and answer; allegations of the bill not specially denied under oath must be taken as true. Houston Electric Co. v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 198.
INJUNCTIONS IN PARTICULAR CASES

Art. 4674. Unlawful sale, etc., of liquors may be enjoined.

Validity of statute.—Notwithstanding Const. art. 4, § 22, the Legislature could authorize county attorney to sue to enjoin corporation from keeping and selling liquors without a license, though corporation thereby exceeded charter powers. Aetna Club v. State, 109 Tex. 91, 199 S. W. 1090.

Court of Civil Appeals has jurisdiction of subject-matter of state's suit to restrain defendant from selling intoxicants at retail, that is, prohibition of the sale of intoxicants, despite adoption of prohibition amendment to Constitution of United States: amendment not being a complete law, and Congress having enacted no law for its enforcement, while it gives states concurrent power. Ford v. State (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 490.

Liability of club.—Under Rev. St. art. 4674, county attorney held authorized to sue to enjoin incorporated social club from keeping and selling liquors without a license, though in excess of its charter powers, and notwithstanding Const. art. 4, § 22. Aetna Club v. State, 109 Tex. 91, 199 S. W. 1090.

Injunction against incorporated club and its officer from using premises of club, or any part, for selling liquors, etc., related to business or occupation in which club and officer were engaged, and could not be avoided by removal to another town in county. Ex parte Alderete, 83 Cr. R. 355, 203 S. W. 763.

Where defendant club might lawfully dispense liquor to its members and guests so far as Penal Laws are concerned, held, that the state was not entitled to restrain it from so dispensing the same on the ground that such was not within its corporate powers, since a corporation may transact all such subordinate and connected matters as are, if not essential, at least very convenient to the due prosecution of its main undertaking. Country Club v. State, 110 Tex. 40, 214 S. W. 294, 5 A. L. R. 1185.

Art. 4680. By whom prosecuted.

Power of county attorney.—Notwithstanding Const. art. 4, § 22, the Legislature could authorize county attorney to sue to enjoin corporation from keeping and selling liquors without a license, as was done by art. 4674, though corporation thereby exceeded charter powers. Aetna Club v. State, 109 Tex. 91, 199 S. W. 1090.

Art. 4688a. Maintaining or operating pool hall enjoined.—The habitual, actual, threatened or contemplated use of any premises, place, room, building, or part thereof, or tent, or any kind or character of enclosure, similar or dissimilar to those named, or any unenclosed open space for the purpose of exhibiting any tables, stands, or structures, of the kind or character referred to and described in this Act shall be enjoined at the suit of either the State or any citizen thereof. The Attorney General of the State, or any District or County Attorney, or any citizen, of any county in which any pool hall is maintained, operated, or the use threatened or contemplated may either in term time or vacation apply to the district judge, in which district is located the place where such pool hall is maintained, or operated or the use threatened or contemplated (or to any district judge in Travis County) for injunction to prohibit the maintenance and operation of such pool hall. Should the Court determine that a pool hall is being maintained or operated in violation of this act, he shall issue a temporary injunction or restraining order as may be necessary and shall issue an injunction permanently prohibiting the running thereof upon final hearing. For this purpose, jurisdiction and venue are conferred upon the several district judges and courts within the State, according to the purpose and intent of this provision. This remedy by injunction shall be considered in addition to the remedy by prosecution and may be exercised independently of and without reference to whether or not any prosecution has been instituted or may, or may not, be instituted. Any person who may use or who may be about to use or who may aid or abet any other person in the use of any such premises or places named in this act in violation of this act may be made a party defendant in such suit. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 14, § 3.]

Explanatory.—For secs. 1 and 2 of Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 14, see Penal Code, arts. 633a, 633b.

The act took effect May 1, 1919.

1305
Art. 4688b. Sale of liquors within certain prescribed zones.—The Attorney General is hereby authorized to enjoin the sale of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors capable of producing intoxication, in violation of this Act, or any conduct in violation of this Act, and suit therefor may be maintained in the name of the State of Texas in Travis County, Texas, and the District or County Attorney of any county wherein any sale of such liquors are made in violation of any term of this Act, or any conduct in violation of this Act, is hereby authorized to maintain, in the proper court of said county, or in Travis County, Texas, suit in the name of the State to enjoin and prevent such sale or other violation of this Act. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 12, § 6.]

Explanatory.—For the remainder of Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S. ch. 12, see Penal Code, arts. 610d-610m.

For similar provision in Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 78, § 38, see Penal Code, art. 5881-4rr.

Art. 4689. Use of premises for bawdy houses enjoined.

Bawdy houses.—One seeking to enjoin the maintenance of a bawdyhouse as expressly entitled by arts. 4689, 4690, is not barred from questioning the validity of a proviso contained therein, where his right to injunction is not based on such proviso. Baker v. Coman, 109 Tex. 85, 198 S. W. 141.

Art. 4690. By whom brought; proceedings as in other injunction cases.

Petition and answer.—One seeking to enjoin the maintenance of a bawdyhouse as expressly entitled by arts. 4689-4690, is not barred from questioning the validity of a proviso contained therein, where his right to injunction is not based on such proviso. Baker v. Coman, 109 Tex. 85, 198 S. W. 141.
TITLE 70

INJURIES RESULTING IN DEATH—ACTIONS FOR

Art. 4694. Action for injuries resulting in death, brought when.
4694a. Contract releasing liability invalid.
4694b. Repeal; partial invalidity.
4695. Character of wrongful act.

Art. 4696. Exemplary damages.
4698. For whose benefit action to be brought.
4699. Who may bring the action.
4704. Damages to be apportioned by jury.

Article 4694. [3017] Actions for injuries resulting in death, brought when.—An action for actual damages on account of injuries causing the death of any person may be brought in the following cases:

(1) When an injury causing the death of any person is caused by the wrongful act, neglect, carelessness, unskilfulness, or default of another person, association of persons, joint stock company, corporation or trustee or receiver of any person, corporation, joint stock company, or association of persons, his its or their agents or servants, such persons, association of persons, joint stock company, corporation, trustee or receiver, shall be liable in damages for the injuries causing such death. The term corporation as used in this Act shall include all municipal corporations, as well as all private and public and quasi public corporations; except counties, and common and independent school districts.

(2) When an injury causing the death of any person is caused by the wrongful act, neglect, carelessness, unskilfulness, or default of the proprietor, owner, charter or hirer of any industrial or public utility plant, or any railroad, street railway, steamboat, stage coach, or other vehicle for the conveyance of goods or passengers, or by the unfitness, wrongful act, neglect, carelessness, unskilfulness, or default of his, their, or its servants or agents, such proprietor, owner, charter, or hirer shall be liable in damages for the injuries causing such death.

(3) When an injury causing the death of any person is caused by the wrongful act, neglect, carelessness, unskilfulness or default of the receiver or receivers, trustee or trustees or other person or persons in charge of, or in control of any railroad, street railway, steamboat, stage coach, or other vehicle for the conveyance of goods or passengers, or any industrial plant, public utility plant, or any other machinery, or by the wrongful act, neglect, carelessness, unfitness, unskilfulness or default of his or their servants or agents, such receiver or receivers, trustee or trustees or other person shall be liable in damages for the injuries causing such death, and the liability here fixed against such receivers, trustees, or other persons shall extend to all cases in which the death is caused by reason of any bad or unsafe condition of the railroad, street railway or other machinery under the control or operations of such receivers, trustees, or other persons and to all other cases in which the death results from any other reason or cause, for which an action may be brought for damages on account of personal injuries, the same as if said railroad, street railway, or other machinery was being operated by the owner thereof. [Acts 1860, p. 32; Acts 1887, p. 44; Acts 1892, S. S., p. 5; Acts 1913, p. 288, § 1; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 109, § 1, amending art. 4694, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Art. 4694  INJURIES RESULTING IN DEATH—ACTIONS FOR

1/2 Constitutionality.—This article as amended in 1819 by Laws 1913, c. 143, entitled "An act to amend article 4694 of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911, giving cause of action where injuries resulting in death is caused by the negligence of a corporation, its agents or servants, and declaring an emergency," held void to the extent that it makes a natural person liable for a wrongful act of his agent: such provision not being embraced in title, in violation of Const. art. 3, § 35. Rodgers v. Tobias (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 804; Anderson v. Smith (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 142.

Act of 1913 (Laws 1913, c. 143), entitled "An act to amend article 4694 of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911, giving cause of action where injuries resulting in death is caused by the negligence of a corporation, its agents or servants, and declaring an emergency," held not to authorize provisions relating to all subjects covered by the specified article, but only such subjects as are embraced in the portion of the title describing the statute to be amended. Rodgers v. Tobias (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 804.

1. Right of action in general.—Plaintiff brought an action under this statute against a sheriff and his bondsmen, for the death of her husband, who was killed by a deputy of the sheriff, while attempting to escape from arrest. Held, that a principal's liability, under this statute, for the acts of his agent is confined to the class of cases mentioned in the first clause of the section, and that plaintiff has no cause of action against the sheriff. Hendrick v. Walton, 69 Tex. 162, 6 S. W. 745.

In actions to recover damages for injuries to or the death of children, as in cases to recover damages to the minor or injuries to adults, suit cannot be maintained unless defendant has been guilty of a breach of duty. Flippen-Frathery Realty Co. v. Mather (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 121.

Under the common law, damages were not recoverable for death: the right of action having attached with deceased. City of Dallas v. Halford (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 725.

A wife injured by contact with an electric wire on going to the aid of her husband, who had come in contact therewith and who died from his injury, can maintain a suit for her own injuries, and a separate suit for his death. Abilenje Gas & Electric Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 906.

The right of action depends on the negligence of the corporation: and it is immaterial that the death occurred within the state, when the negligent act is charged to have been committed in Mexico. De Ham v. Mexican Nat. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 249.

9. Negligence of municipal corporation.—A municipal corporation is not a "person or corporation" within this article. City of Dallas v. Halford (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 725.

11. Negligence of railroad company.—Under this article, and art. 4428, inhibiting, constructing roadbed without sufficient drainage, it is liable for death of one knocked from tree by its floating trestle, if failure to have insufficient drainage was proximate cause. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Behne (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 690.

13. Negligence of owner or landlord of building, or premises.—A necessary element of negligence is a legal duty, and without the legal duty resting upon the party charged with the breach thereof; the breach being improper and untrue, and where plaintiff's decedent was killed in an elevator which defendant's employes had voluntarily kept in order, defendant owed no duty to decedent to continue such service, but if defendant had agreed to maintain such elevator its failure to continue to use reasonable care to do so was a misfeasance, making it liable for plaintiff's death. Dallas Hotel Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 647.

A pit filled with live coals and hot ashes was an intrinsically and affirmatively dangerous agency, and it was the absolute and nondelegable duty of a private corporation to protect and guard against its dangers those rightfully upon the company's premises; failure to guard being negligence of the company itself, as distinguished from negligence of an employe or servant. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Bustillos (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 268.

A private corporation is liable for wrongful death only where the negligence, unskillfulness, or default is act of its vice principal; and where vice principal was not negligent in directing teammate to travel certain road under the circumstances, and death of plaintiff's wife, riding on top of wagon, was due purely to negligence of teammate in driving of wagon, corporation was not liable. Aguirre v. Medina Valley Irr. Co. (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 515.

Though a private corporation engaged in the manufacture and sale of cement is not liable for the death of a person caused by negligence of its agents or employes, 1308

INJURIES RESULTING IN DEATH—ACTIONS FOR

it is liable for injuries resulting in the death, from its own wrongful acts or omissions as distinguished from the acts or omissions of servants or agents. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Bustillos (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 268.

In action against private corporation for death, the fact that negligent dumping of burning coal and slag into a pit was being done under orders given by a superintendent and continued by another after he had succeeded and vice principal did not relieve defendant of liability simply by reason of the fact that the superintendent at the time of the accident had not reiterated the orders theretofore given. Id.

Where deceased had no knowledge of the existence of an uninsulated wire and stepped upon a parapet in a building, which act involved no danger had the wire not been there, and he was not then trespassing to any appreciable invasion of the rights of others, he was not guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law. International Electric Co. v. Sanchez (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1161.

17. — Children.—That a child escapes the watchfulness of parents and gets on a railroad track is not conclusive proof of failure in their duty to exercise ordinary care to prevent it from going into danger, which would prevent a recovery for its death. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Haywood (Civ App.) 227 S. W. 347.

27. Measure and amount of damages.—Measure of damages for death of minor's father is essentially indefinite, not capable of exact ascertainment, and so left to sound discretion of jury. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Boyed (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 219.

The measure of damages to parents for the death of a minor son maintaining himself is the amount they would have had a reasonable expectation of receiving from him during his minority. Patterson v. Williams (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 89.

Where a son gave most of his earnings to his mother, the amount she received from him measured the amount of pecuniary loss by his death, and it was immaterial how she expended the money. Hines v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 493.

A judgment of $20,000 for the death of a stock dealer aged 46 years, who was a generous provider, and who left surviving a wife and five children, held not to be grossly excessive. Texas & F. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 357.

Damages awarded to two minor children, in respective sums of $5,000 and $6,000, for wrongful death of their mother, held not excessive. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Benjamin (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 906.

Where a hack driver was killed by a collision with defendant's locomotive, a verdict for $4,500 to his wife and $3,000 to his minor son for pecuniary loss till he became of age held not excessive. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 496.

A verdict of $10,000 for the death of a healthy, robust, and bright boy about seven years old, is not so large as to indicate that jury was actuated by improper motives, and will not be disturbed on appeal. Flippen-Prather Realty Co. v. Mather (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 121.

Parents are entitled to recover only compensation for the services and contribution which they might reasonably have expected from a son of 23, and, where they were not in need of the financial aid of the son, though he was at home and devoted all his time to his trade, an award of $2,500 was excessive. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Huckabee (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 329.

In action for death of 48 year old fireman, a $27,000 judgment, awarded to widow and seven children, was not so excessive as to require reduction by Court of Civil Appeals. Lancaster & Atl. Ry. Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 984.

Where deceased was 41 years old, had a wife and six children, aged from 2½ to 15 years, was in good health, sober, and industrious, and his earnings had ranged from $1,600 to $2,500 per year, a verdict for $12,500 for his wrongful death was not excessive. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Terrazas (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 387.

Under evidence as to contributions by deceased, 28 years old, to plaintiff, his father, 65 years old, held recovery for his death above $1,200 was excessive compensation. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Gravea (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 973.

In action by a woman 55 years of age for death of daughter earning $50 per month, a verdict of $8,000 cannot be said to be excessive where plaintiff depended upon her daughter for support, and daughter was in all respects an admirable character of exemplary habits and constantly increasing in efficiency as a stenographer. Ward v. Cathey (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 283.

For the death of husband and father, 31 years old, in good health, of exemplary habits and earning over $2,000 a year, a verdict of $28,000 in favor of wife and children held not excessive. Texas Power & Light Co. v. Bristow (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 702.

Verdict of $1,600 given parents for death of son, who at time of death was contributing $250 per year to support of parents over and above expenses they were out on him, and in all reasonable probability would have continued to do so for seven years, held not excessive. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Huckabee (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 456.
INJURIES RESULTING IN DEATH—ACTIONS FOR

Judgment for $8,500 in favor of a mother for death of her daughter, rendered on verdict for $12,500 after remittitur of $4,000 required by the court, held not excessive. Howard v. Flatley (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 960.

$2,400 to the widow and $2,400 to the father and mother held not excessive damages for the death of a strong healthy man 23 years old. Texas Electric Ry. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1081.

Verdict for $5,000 in favor of a father for the death of his son, 20 years and 10 months of age, held excessive as based only on evidence that an affectionate relation of father and son existed, and that the son was considerate of and obedient to his father, and considerate of his brothers and sisters. West Lumber Co. v. Hunt (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 1106.

$10,250 verdict for surviving wife and $5,250 verdict for surviving child for death of husband and father earning $2,500 to $3,000 a year, with life expectancy of more than 26 years, held not excessive. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 281.

$10,000 verdict to surviving wife and children for death of 27 year old common laborer, earning $1.50 a day, with expectancy of more than 37 years, held not excessive. Rio Grande, E. P. & S. P. Ry. Co. v. Guzman (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1102.

A verdict awarding $4,000 for the death of plaintiff's husband is not so excessive that a remittitur will be ordered to prevent reversal, since every husband has for his wife a pecuniary value beyond the amount of his earnings, which value can be assessed by the jury by the exercise of their best judgment. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Price (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 628.

In an action for the death of plaintiff's husband, a verdict, reduced by the trial court from $30,000 to $12,000, was not excessive, where it appeared that the husband was 29 years old, in good health, and a hard-working farmer, cultivating land as a share cropper, though previously he had worked as a hired hand at $20 or $30 per month. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 277.

Verdict of $10,000 in favor of widow for death of husband, 56 years old, having an expectancy of little more than 16 years, who at the time of his death was receiving only $1.50 a day, though he had been employed at $3 or $4 a day, and would probably have a right to expect other employment at better wages, held excessive by $5,000. Jefferson & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Blair (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 548.

In an action for the death of a boy 11 years old, bitten by a rabid dog, evidence that the father had to borrow money to send the boy to the Pasteur Institute for treatment, and that the boy was the oldest of three children, was healthy, bright, and intelligent, worked every day, and was a good hand, warranted a verdict for $5,000 actual damages. Holland v. Adams (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 512.

Where the court limited the recovery of plaintiff for the death of his son to the value of the son's services during minority after deducting the probable expense of maintenance, an award of $15,000, the son being only four years old is so excessive that it cannot be cured by remittitur, for it is obvious that the son could not have earned during his minority an amount above the expense of his maintenance to reach $15,000. Hines v. Roan (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1070.

An award of $50,000 in favor of plaintiff for the death of his wife, who was 25 years old, in good health, kept her house, and was faithful in the discharge of her wife's duties, is warranted. 1d.

A verdict for $12,662 held not excessive for loss from wrongful death of services of a 17 year old son, who was intelligent and dutiful, and relieved plaintiff of many of her business burdens, and had an estate of his own, from which he might have assisted her beyond what he earned. Hines v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 889.

30. Mitigation or reduction of damages.—That children have an older sister, who might and no deceased mother from their deceased father, is not to be considered in mitigation of damages. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Benjamin (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 996.

In a wife's action for the death of her husband it was not error to charge that the jury should not consider in mitigation of damages the fact of her remarriage inadmissible evidence as to such remarriage, introduced by defendant, having been admitted. Texas Electric Ry. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1081.

31. Elements of compensation—in general.—The amount of recovery by the mother, being the sole surviving parent, is not limited to the value of the services of the deceased during minority. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Compton, 75 Tex. 667, 13 S. W. 667.

A charge as to the cost of the maintenance of a minor son maintaining himself is properly omitted, in a parent's suit for his death. Patterson v. Williams (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 89.

Surviving wife, in action for death of husband, is entitled to recover for the pecuniary loss, if any, suffered by her in husband's death. San Antonio Portland Cement Co. v. Gschwender (Civ. App.) 297 S. W. 967.

The measure of damages recoverable by a mother for death of minor son is the pecuniary loss resulting from his death including any pecuniary benefit she would probably have received from him during his minority, and the value of any aid she may have reasonably expected of receiving from him after reaching majority. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Bustillos (Civ App.) 316 S. W. 286.

Under the common law, a father could recover for the death of his son the value of the son's services during minority, and, under the statute, is also entitled to recover the value of such contributions or pecuniary aid as he had reasonable expectation of.
Title 70) INJURIES RESULTING IN DEATH—ACTIONS FOR Art. 4694a receiving from the son after majority. West Lumber Co. v. Hunt (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 1106.

34. — Grief and loss of society, care, counsel and training.—The wife and son of deceased are entitled to recover, as pecuniary loss for deceased's wrongful death, not only the amount he might have contributed to their support, but the value of his attention, care, and counsel to the wife, and of his intellectual and moral advice, education, and training to his son. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 696.

In an action for death of father and husband, damages may be allowed for loss of care and support. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Glass (Civ. App.) 291 S. W. 738.

In action for death, where deceased leaves widow and children. Damages are not limited to loss of actual earning power of deceased, and jury may award children damages for loss of father's nurture and admonition. Lancaster & Wight v. Allen (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 984.

In action for death of daughter, jury in fixing damages may consider fact that in time of sickness of plaintiff deceased would, if alive, attend and care for her with tenderness. Ward v. Cathey (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 283.

The damages to a widow and children for wrongful death are limited to the pecuniary benefits, if any, which the widow and children respectively have lost, and, in fixing the amount due the minor children, the money value of the loss of care, training, and education which the deceased would have bestowed on them if he had lived should be considered, but no damages should be allowed the widow for loss of care, consolation, training, and guidance, or for grief or loss of companionship or society. Hines v. Mills (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 777.

37. Persons liable.—Liability for wrongful death is not limited to person whose hand inflicted the death wound, but extends to his joint tort-feasor, and where son shot deceased, there had been concerted action between father and son to wrongfully kill deceased, the father was a "joint tort-feasor." Anderson v. Smith (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 142.

40. — Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—The amount of a father's recovery for death of his minor son must be based upon evidence before the jury, and cannot properly be left to their determination on surmise or speculation. West Lumber Co. v. Hunt (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 1106.

In an action against father and son for death of plaintiff's husband shot by son, evidence held to show concerted action between father and son to wrongfully kill the husband. Anderson v. Smith (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 142.

45. — Proximate cause.—Evidence held to show that the death of plaintiff's intestate was caused by injuries resulting from intestate's being thrown from a hack to the ground when defendant's locomotive struck the hack. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 696.

In suit for death of a son about seven years old due to his falling into an open, unguarded well on defendant's vacant property, held, on the evidence, that negligence of defendant caused death of son. Flippen-Prather Realty Co. v. Mather (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 121.

46. — Negligence.—Where electric company knew that insulation was burned off of a wire on premises of user beyond its meter, and sent a current over same of such voltage as to cause death to a person coming in contact therewith, the jury was authorized to find that it was negligent. International Electric Co. v. Sanchez (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1194.

Jury finding that unguarded, open well on defendant's vacant property into which plaintiff's intestate, a son about seven years old, fell, was attractive to children by reason of its nature and surroundings, held warranted. Flippen-Prather Realty Co. v. Mather (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 121.

47. — Contributory negligence.—In suit for death of a son about seven years old due to his falling into an open, unguarded well on defendant's vacant property, held, on the evidence, that son was not, considering his age and discretion, guilty of contributory negligence. Flippen-Prather Realty Co. v. Mather (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 121.

In an action for damages for the drowning of plaintiff's son in defendants' swimming pool, evidence as to the son's knowledge of conditions, including depth of water and of his ability to swim held sufficient to warrant the jury's verdict that he was guilty of contributory negligence. Barnes v. Honey Grove Natatorium Co. (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 354.

Art. 4694a. Contract releasing liability invalid.—No agreement between any owner of any railroad, street railway, steamboat, stage-coach or other vehicle for transporting passengers or goods, or any industrial or public utility plant, or other machinery, and any person, corporation, trustee, receiver, lessee, joint stock association or other person in control of, or operating the same, shall release such owner, person, trustee, lessee, corporation or joint stock association from any liability fixed by the provisions of this Act. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 109, § 2.]

Art. 4694b. Repeal; partial invalidity.—All laws in conflict here-with are hereby repealed. If any of the provisions of this Act are held invalid, such invalidity shall not affect any of the remaining provisions hereof. [Id., § 3.]

Right of action of person injured.—In actions to recover damages for injuries to or the loss of children, as in cases to recover damages for the death or injuries to adults, suit cannot be maintained unless defendant has been guilty of a breach of duty. Flippens-Prather Realty Co. v. Mather (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 121.

Where surgeons operated on a child without authority, so that it amounted to a technical assault for which the child could have recovered had she survived, the parent has a cause of action, and it is not dependent on the extent of the injury to the minor child. Moss v. Rishworth (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 225, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Rishworth v. Moss, 191 S. W. 843.

Liability to passengers or employees.—This article does not change the rules as to the liability of a railway company either to a passenger or an employee. The T. & F. Ry. Co. v. Carlton, 60 Tex. 397.

Art. 4696. [3019] Exemplary damages.

Right to exemplary damages.—In order to support a recovery of exemplary damages from a railway company for death, it must appear that there was some willful act or omission or gross negligence on the part of the officers of the corporation. International & G. N. R. Co. v. McDonald, 75 Tex. 41, 12 S. W. 860.

Whether this article authorizes punitive damages in cases not allowed by Const. art. 16, § 26, it is unnecessary to decide, on appeal by defendant, in a case where the charge limits the damages to compensation for loss, and there is nothing to indicate that the jury did not observe the charge. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hall, 93 Tex. 675, 19 S. W. 121.

Defendant, though convicted of assault and fined, is liable to exemplary damages in a civil suit; this not being a double punishment for the same offense, in view of Const. art. 16, § 26. Hartman v. Logan (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 61.

Though there was evidence that a dog was vicious and that defendant knew of such viciousness, where an action for the death of a boy was tried on the theory that the dog bit the boy because it was rabid and not because of viciousness, and there was no evidence that defendant knew the dog was rabid though there was evidence that he had reason to believe so, exemplary damages were not recoverable. Holland v. Adams (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 512.

In a suit for damages for the drowning of plaintiff’s minor son in defendants’ swimming pool, evidence showing that defendants had exercised some care for the safety of persons using the pool held to preclude a finding that defendants were guilty of gross negligence. Barnes v. Honey Grove Natatorium Co. (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 534.

Art. 4698. [3021] For whose benefit action to be brought.

Construction in general.—Under Workmen’s Compensation Act 1913, § 8 (Vernon’s Sayles’ Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 5246kk), declaring that compensation shall be paid to legal beneficiaries to be distributed according to the law of descent, the beneficiaries as well as the apportionment must be determined by the law, and not by art. 4699, governing recovery of damages for wrongful death. V.ughan v. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co., 193 Tex. 298, 206 S. W. 920, reversing (Civ. App.) Vaughan v. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co., 195 S. W. 261.

Surviving husband or wife.—Where one sues as wife, evidence to show the invalidity of the marriage is admissible, though the question is not raised by defendant’s pleadings: and, the evidence being conflicting, the question of its validity should be submitted to the jury, with proper instructions. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cook (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 455.

That a wife is not living with her husband does not as a matter of law preclude her from recovering damages for his death, as there is probability of a reconciliation and her right of support. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Saint (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1021.

In an action for death, brought by wife as administratrix and beneficiary, evidence held to sustain finding that husband and wife, though separated, had agreed to again assume marital relations. Id.

A woman cohabiting unlawfully with a man has no right to such damages, even though she did not know he had ever been married. Lopez v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 665.

Parents.—In an action by a father and mother for injuries causing the death of their infant child, the court properly charged that, if the jury should find for plaintiffs, the damages should be apportioned between the plaintiffs as the jury should deem just and right. Houston City St. Ry. Co. v. Sciaccia, 89 Tex. 350, 16 S. W. 31.

A wife separated from her husband and unable to locate him may sue for their child's wrongful death. Schaff v. Shepherd (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 232.

In action for death of adult son, financial condition of parents was no bar to right of recovery. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 292 S. W. 778.

Where Texas is no proof that parents suing for death of their minor son could have reasonably expected him to continue to contribute to their support after attaining his majority, it will be presumed that his contributions would cease at such time. Patterson v. Williams (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 89.

Child.—That a daughter of deceased was a school-teacher and capable of supporting herself does not bar her right to recover for her father's death if she suffered pecuniary loss by reason thereof. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Tisdale (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 347.

Minor child entitled to support by father may recover for his death damages sustained, not depending on whether he had supported, or intended to support, child. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Boyed (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 218.

Personal representative.—The amount recovered does not become part of assets of deceased, and administratrix cannot maintain action therefor. Cole v. Mallory S. Co. (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 326.

Art. 4699. [3022] Who may bring the action.

Plaintiffs.—There is no misjoinder of plaintiffs in an action by the father and mother for the death of their child. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hall, 83 Tex. 675, 19 S. W. 121.

Necessary parties.—In an action brought by a wife, on behalf of herself and two minor children, for damages for injuries resulting in the death of her husband, where it was developed on the trial that deceased had a mother, the proceedings should have been arrested until she could be made a party, or the petition should have been amended so as to make her a beneficiary under the judgment. East Line & Red River R. Co. v. Culberson, 65 Tex. 664, 5 S. W. 820.

A married woman, in an action for damages for negligence in causing the death of her son, who had for many years supported her, alleged that her husband had abandoned her, and for many years contributed nothing to her support; that her son had supported her, but had never given anything towards the support of his father; and asked to be permitted to prosecute the action in her own name, and for her own benefit; but, if it should be held that her husband was entitled to any benefit, that she might be permitted to prosecute the action in her own name for the benefit of both. Held that plaintiff was entitled to maintain the action without joining her husband. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co. v. Henry, 72 Tex. 220, 12 S. W. 828.

A father, who lived in another state, and was not dependent on deceased, was not a necessary party to an action by deceased's surviving wife and children, who were dependent on him. St. Louis, A. & T. Ry. Co. v. Taylor, 5 Tex. Civ. App. 648, 24 S. W. 975.

In a suit by the wife and child of deceased to recover for deceased's wrongful death, the nonjoinder of deceased's father is not jurisdictional, but will abate the suit when made to appear of record. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 936.

Authority to sue for others.—In an action for damages for an injury resulting in the death of plaintiff's husband, plaintiff sued in her name alone, and in the body of the petition alleged that the husband left a child, and claimed damages on its part as well as her own. A judgment was had for both. Held that, any one of the parties entitled to damages may bring an action for the benefit of all. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Berry, 67 Tex. 238, 5 S. W. 817.

Art. 4704. [3027] Damages to be apportioned by the jury.

See East Line & Red River R. Co. v. Culberson, 65 Tex. 664, 5 S. W. 820.

Apportion of damages.—Notwithstanding this article, the court, under art. 1985, may, in a death action submitted on special issues, determine the question of the amount of damages, on the ground that jury trial was waived where the only special issue submitted or requested on the question of damages was to the yearly earnings of deceased. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Huckabee (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 429.

As a general rule, if the damages for death are not excessive, defendant has no legal right to complain that in the apportionment between a widow and children the widow received more than was justly her share. Jefferson & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Blair (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 546.
